

SIR WILFRID LAURIER ON RECIPROCITY AGREEMENT.

Premier's Long Anticipated Speech Delivered in Commons—Formally Supports Agreement as Being in Interests of Canada.

Ottawa, March 8.—(Special)—Sir Wilfrid Laurier, in the House of Commons yesterday, spoke on the proposed reciprocity pact between Canada and the United States. There was not an inch of standing room in the galleries. At the right and left of Speaker Marcell sat Countess Grey and Lady Evelyn Grey.

THE PREMIER'S SPEECH.
Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who had a warm reception from his supporters, said a full month had elapsed since Mr. Fielding announced to Parliament the terms of agreement, and during that time it had been freely discussed, not in the House, but in worn out a great deal of shoe leather on missions to Washington in the past in an endeavor to obtain better trade relations. Now the Government had entered into an agreement which brought to fruition all the past endeavors.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier then delved into history for the purpose of showing the changed attitude of Conservatives towards the reciprocity question. Why was there opposition, he asked, against this agreement to-day? When Mr. Foster said that in 1891 the Conservative party had said good-bye to reciprocity he confessed he was staggered. Dr. A. N. Worthington, M.P. for Sherbrooke, suffered a stroke of apoplexy at about 7.30 this morning, and lies at his home in this city in a very critical condition.

health for a year or more, suffering from kidney and heart trouble. He had been feeling considerably better of late, however, and was planning a trip South. He intended to leave with Mrs. Worthington about two weeks ago, but the departure was delayed for various reasons. The doctor had been recuperating considerably, and Mrs. Worthington went to Toronto for a few days, prior to their contemplated trip South.

He was out driving yesterday and the sudden and serious attack which overcame him this morning was not contemplated.

The stroke of apoplexy has affected one side with paralysis. Dr. Worthington, however, remains conscious though unable to speak. His friends and constituents of the member for Sherbrooke will deeply deplore the serious turn in his illness and trust that the crisis may pass, and more favorable conditions of health be established.

SAD DEATH AT MASSAWIPPI.

Hollis Hitchcock Victim of a Fatal Shooting.

ILL AND TEMPORARILY DERANGED—A HIGHLY RESPECTED RESIDENT OF HAT-LEY.

Massawippi, March 8.—(Special)—It is a sad duty to chronicle the passing away of a good neighbor and citizen in the person of Mr. Hollis Hitchcock.

His going is particularly painful; the community are grief stricken and also the members of his family.

His mind has been deranged at times for some months, and in such a moment he made the fatal arrangements, placing a loaded gun in a large barrel, pointing it at his head, he with a bullet down and struck the trigger. The discharge took a portion of his skull and brain away and ethereal the result. The act was committed in his barn.

The shock to all was terrible, in the quiet village where he had always lived, loved and respected.

Coffin Bowen has been summoned.

Of the brothers Alexander died while quite young; George removed to Ontario, while Robert and Henry settled near the old home and reared large families, but Mrs. Lowry was the last survivor of the family. Mrs. Lowry was married in September, 1849. Two sons and four daughters blessed this union: Mrs. Thos. Mrs. Lowry enjoyed very good health notwithstanding her advanced years she did not suffer from deafness but could take part in conversation like a young person. She had a kind word for everyone and was interested in everything that tended to the advancement of Christ's Kingdom. A life-long and consistent member of the Methodist Church her place in Church was seldom if ever vacant on the Lord's Day in many years. Her last illness, which came on very suddenly with a severe pain in the left hand. Gangrene developed in the first finger and in spite of the best medical skill that could be procured grew steadily worse until the end came, just one week later. Mrs. Lowry retained consciousness until the very last. The funeral took place on Saturday, February 4th, at the Methodist Cemetery, the casket being borne all the way by her two sons, David J. and Henry Lowry and four grandsons, Albert and Raymond Frizell, Harley Edwards and Clarence Lipsey. The funeral service was conducted by her pastor, the Rev. Mr. Hurbes, Methodist Minister, who spoke very feelingly from the text: "For ye have need of patience, that after ye have done the will of God ye might receive the promise." Hebrews X:36. The remains were laid to rest beside those of her husband who predeceased her about nine months.

YOUR SOUR, GASSY, UPSET STOMACH WILL FEEL FINE IN FIVE MINUTES

A Little Diapiesin will promptly regulate any bad Stomach.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach, if you will take a little Diapiesin occasionally.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Bloating, Heartburn, Water-brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapiesin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. A single dose will digest all the food you eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour and upset the stomach.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapiesin from your druggist and start taking now, and in a little while you will actually brag about your healthy, strong stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

Should you at this moment be suffering from indigestion or any stomach disorder, you can get relief within five minutes.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Gathered by Daily Record Correspondents in Various Communities.

SUTTON JUNCTION.

The following is an appreciation spoken by Rev. E. P. Judge in St. Aidan's Church, Sutton Junction, in connection with the death of the late John Turner Edwards.

"It having been the desire of those most nearly concerned that there should be no sermon at the burial service of our late highly esteemed and beloved church-warden and friend, John Turner Edwards, the present is the first opportunity given me of publicly expressing in the Church my own sense of loss in which I am sure we all join. For at least twelve years, during which time I have been with you he has been a faithful attendant at the services of this congregation, a liberal supporter, and ever ready to help in its work. As treasurer of the Building Fund, when this Church was built, as church-warden, he gladly gave his time to the congregation and he will be greatly missed. He was emphatically the 'noblesse of God,' an honest man, upright and honorable in all his dealings, and faithful in his work. In whatever he undertook he could be depended on. Starting life without influence, but with these qualities, he rose by real merit to a position of trust and responsibility. He won the respect and esteem of all who knew him. In his home life he was a true and thoughtful son and brother, and a tender and loving husband; and I am sure our deepest sympathy is with those who especially mourn his loss. I would ask your earnest prayers that God Himself may comfort them and give them the blessing of His own peace in their great sorrow. He was not one to talk of his religious life, but he was one who loved his Bible and prayer, and this House of God; and we cannot doubt that he is even now with Christ in Paradise, and at the Resurrection shall enter into the higher joy of His eternal Kingdom."

Mr. Edward Slade, managing director of the Black Lake Consolidated Asbestos Co., is speaking of the progress that has been made in the development of the business of the company, says: "With a view to testing out thoroughly the new process of treatment adopted, the work during considerable portion of last season was largely experimental and we purposely delayed the completion of the second mill until the end of the year. The mill is now complete and the grades thoroughly established so that it is ready to operate at full capacity as soon as weather conditions permit. During this period the company produced 3046 tons of asbestos of various grades. Of this 837 tons have been shipped and contracts have been closed for over 2400 tons additional. Negotiations are pending for 3000 tons more so that the sale of our entire output is now fairly well assured. The quantities of high grade asbestos are steadily increasing as the pits are enlarged, so that, with the addition of the extra hoists, we can be assured of a continuous supply of mill rock, the quantities of which in sight, and proven, are practically inexhaustible." Speaking of the future of the company, Mr. Slade said: "I can safely state that the property is now in a position to earn all its fixed charges and a substantial surplus."

Mr. Alibert Fortin acted as funeral director, and the following were bearers: Messrs. Alfred Lecharite, Napoleon Dubois, Alfred Huard, Paul Decoteau, Richard Gagnier, and John Woodgate. The pallbearers were Messrs. Alphonse Beaulieu, Godias Bedard, Alfred Doiron, Ernest Joneas, Romeo Roussel, and James Mooney, all old friends and fellow students at school. At the close of the service the remains were conveyed to St. Michael's Cemetery for interment in the family lot. The casket was covered with beautiful white plush, and the many flowers and spiritual bouquets sent by friends were evidence of the great sympathy felt for the family in their bereavement. The late Armand Aray was 20 years of age, had been ill since last June with the terrible malady, consumption. He was tenderly nursed day and night by his mother, and all that was possible was done to alleviate his suffering. He passed away at the last very suddenly and quietly, with scarcely a sigh.

The lad, who was never robust, after leaving school, worked when his strength would permit, and for a year was a drummer in the Regimental Band of the 53rd, but failing health obliged him to give up occupation. He had a gentle, kind disposition and during his illness, he was patient, and resigned, looking to death as a friend, who would release him from weakness and pain. He is survived by his mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Oates, three brothers, Crosbie Aray, Philip, and Gaston Aray; three sisters, Mrs. J. N. Bayeur, Lake Magog, Misses Bertha and Pauline Aray, two aunts, Mrs. John Cleary, Lyndonville, Vt.; Miss McArthur, Montreal, and Benjamin and Henry Aray, cousins, with other relatives.

GRANT FOR GOOD ROADS IN HATLEY.

Highway Between Reeds Crossing and Ascot Line to Be Repaired.

PETITION TO LAY OUT A NEW ROAD WAS TURNED DOWN.

Hatley, March 8.—(Special)—At a regular meeting of the Council about twenty-five ratepayers responded to the call to attend this session to consider the advisability of laying out a road across Range 1, lot 20, as prayed for by Messrs. F. Dezan, J. Nelson and others. After hearing all that was said the Council by a vote of five to one rejected the petition, and thus the "Swede Road," so called, was turned down. The petitioners will likely appeal to the County Council on the 8th inst.

As this was the first regular Council meeting since election in January, the Mayor was chosen, and Mr. W. W. Reed was the unanimous choice of the board for that position.

Mr. G. A. LeBaron, of Sherbrooke, was present in the interest of a better and safer road from Reeds Crossing to the Ascot town line and promised to stand for $200 provided the corporation will put in a similar amount to be laid out in extra work over and above the ordinary maintenance of this road. The Council thanked Mr. LeBaron for this generous offer which was accepted, and he and Mayor Reed were asked to engage the proper man to expend this money.

The petitions for a Dog Tax were laid over for further consideration, pending the action of the Provincial Government on a bill to legalize the creation of a fund to remunerate farmers for the loss of sheep killed by dogs which right the Municipal Councils do not have at the present time.

The Council, deciding to do less work with the road machine this year appointed committees to determine just how much and where such work shall be done.

Mr. W. A. Stevenson and Mr. M. W. LeBaron were re-appointed Auditors. Mr. P. H. Hitchcock was appointed Rural Inspector in place of Mr. S. Robinson, resigned.

Mr. Robert Smith was appointed Road Inspector of Division 13 vice Mr. M. D. McNeerney, resigned.

A new road division was made of the cross road from E. Lord's to E. J. Oliver's corner to be No. 91 with Mr. C. W. Sampson, Inspector for one year.

The meeting adjourned to the call of the Mayor at the end of April.

SIR WILFRID LAURIER

ON RECIPROCITY.

only too glad to be on better terms than at that time.

Regarding Mr. Sifton, whom the Premier complimented "for an able speech," he could say that his distaste for reciprocity was more sudden than that he would give the House and country to believe. At the Liberal convention at Ottawa in 1893, Mr. Sifton had supported the resolution respecting better trade relations with the United States. The Liberal party had never abandoned that plank of the platform. True, the policy had been allowed to lie dormant, but the policy of 1893 was the policy of to-day, and he challenged anyone to prove that it had been departed from.

Mr. Sifton, said the Premier, had been one of those who charged there was no mandate from the people. Sir Wilfrid Laurier admitted that in the last three general elections the question of reciprocity was not an issue, because at that time, so far as he knew, there was no difference of opinion between the Liberal and Conservative parties on that question. The argument then discussing any question which had not been raised at a general election he described as "childish." What mandate had Lord Elgin from the people when the reciprocity treaty of 1854 was negotiated? What mandate had the Government of 1864 to pass the Confederation resolution, which changed the whole complexion of our national existence? What mandate had the Government of 1891 to assent to the Washington treaty of that year?

The Premier then went to find a reason for the attitude of the Opposition. It seemed to be founded on the argument that Canada was prosperous to-day as she never was before. Prior to 1896 the vast land resources had been lying dormant, transportation facilities were in their infancy, the country was extraordinarily prosperous, but was that any reason, he asked, why we should not go further?

The Opposition said: "Fold your arms and say 'enough is enough.' Is this Canada or is it China?" Sir Wilfrid Laurier asked.

The Premier alluded to the motto Sir John Macdonald had written in a little girl's album: "Hope on, hope ever." How far, he added, the Conservative was from that policy of hope. On the other hand, the policy of the Liberal party was "Advance," and when that policy was submitted to the people they would confidently await the verdict.

Mr. Laurier continued that so long as his Government retained the confidence of the people it would seek new markets wherever they could be found. Canadians were above all an agricultural people. In cereals and vegetables and fruits he had no hesitation in saying they could beat the world. With a fair chance and no tariffs, these products, he believed, could out all competitors. The object of this agreement was to open the doors of ninety million people, which had been closed for fifty years. And yet when the doors were on the eve of swinging wide they were met with these objections that a simple trade agreement would shatter the British Empire and crush the Canadian federation.

"Now let us approach the question from the point of view of common sense," went on Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The only objection was to obtain for the man who worked in the field a better reward for his labor. Canada owed a great deal of gratitude to Flinders and Paterson, "who have obtained such an agreement without making any sacrifices."

Sir Wilfrid Laurier took up the four main objections advanced against the agreement, viz: That it would deflect trade from Canadian channels, destroy natural resources, imperil our industries and destroy our autonomy. Dealing with the displacement of trade, he asked in what way this agreement would have that effect. In his opinion it would not change existing conditions one iota. Goods would go from Canada to the New York seaboard, and American goods would continue to come via Montreal and the St. Lawrence.

The bonding privileges still existed. If it was thought that Canadian channels could be kept in Canadian channels by act of Parliament, the Premier said that was a great mistake. He reminded Mr. Sifton, who seemed to be exercised on this point, that this was tried once in the case of the Canadian Pacific Railway and had to be abandoned. With the Canadian Pacific Railway the object was to keep Canadian trade in east and west channels so far as legislation would go. A provision was inserted in the Canadian Pacific Railway contract with this east and west end in view. It lasted for six years, and there was open rebellion in Manitoba, Mr. Sifton's own province, when a body of citizens interested in a line running north and south forced the diamond crossing over the tracks of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Then it was that the Government of Macdonald changed this contract and took out this provision, which would enact that trade go east and west.

The Pacific Railway dated from that time, and was a singular contradiction to Mr. Foster's fears that British capitalists would be disturbed by any north and south movement of traffic. Sir Wilfrid Laurier also pointed out that the Canadian route being shorter than the United States route to Liverpool by 652 miles from Winnipeg, the Canadian route would easily hold her own.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier paid some attention to the question of the home market. The question was, would the Canadian people consume all the farmers produced. The consumption of wheat per head just now was between six and seven bushels. This disposed of fifty million bushels. What was to become of the surplus? The British market, of course, was open, but there were other products which the United States could export more conveniently. This agreement would, therefore, open up this large market.

Mr. Laurier also dealt with Mr. Sifton's statement that the pact placed a premium on our farming in Quebec. He pointed out that in certain parts of that province there were "natural meadows," where large quantities of hay were cropped every year. This agreement would be a positive boon to those engaged in that industry. The same might be said of poultry and many other things. It was a distinct advantage to have not only the British market but the American market. Trade would go on just the same, the only difference being we would raise more cattle trade, which had been hampered by the British embargo, would be rejuvenated, and under the agreement Canadian cattle would find a ready market in the States. The Premier then dealt with the argument that this agreement put an end to the chance of mutual preferential trade. With that assertion he took direct issue. Canada had not taken any sides in the conflict between the tariff reformers and free traders. In 1902 Canada was prepared to give Great Britain a preference on manufactured articles in return for a preference on the British markets for Canadian products. That would be the attitude of Canada at the next imperial conference. Canada has not changed her opinion in this respect. This agreement did not alter the position in the slightest.

Another thing, said the Premier, which had drawn tears from the eyes of the Opposition was that of the favored nations who came under the benefits of the agreement. These treaties were no insignificant thing, the framers of the pact never thought of them. Who, for instance, asked Sir Wilfrid Laurier, had ever heard of Bolivia? No trade at all was done with Bolivia last year. Sir Wilfrid Laurier then went through the list, showing that in the majority of favored nations the amounts imported and exported by Canada were insignificant and not in the class of goods affected by the agreement.

As to the natural resources of Canada being affected, the Premier declared there was no danger of that. He referred to the work of the Conservation Commission in eulogistic terms, and gave Mr. Sifton a deserved meed of praise.

He then turned to the only objection which he said was of any consequence, that the agreement would imperil our industries.

In the agreement no manufactured article was touched except agricultural implements. The Government had kept within the terms of the resolution at the convention of 1893, and arranged for reciprocity in natural products only. It was to understand that when the negotiations were proceeding the United States were more anxious to get their manufactured articles into Canada than farm products. It had been asked by some why were not agricultural implements placed on the free list. He minded the House and country that while it was comparatively easy to put a duty up, it was a very difficult thing to decrease duties. The Government had proceeded with great care in this matter, and he emphasized the point that the Government did not exist alone for the manufacturers or the farmers, but for the whole people. There should not, he declared, be any antagonism between class and class. Manufacturers and farmers needed each other, and when they walked hand in hand prosperity was assured. The Government's policy was freedom for all and privilege for none. The Premier recognized that capital was at all times a timid thing.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier then dealt with the charge that the agreement would dissolve Canada's autonomy. That was an old cry. It had been heard when the naval issue was before the people. The opponents of the pact said that the arrangement would bring a certain prosperity for a time, but later it might be removed and be followed by high tariffs, and the Canadian people would not have the stamina to resist the dislocation of trade, and would be forced to seek refuge in the American Union.

The Premier ridiculed the statement that a crisis would overtake the country if the agreement did not work out right. Canadians, he hoped, were built of sterner stuff than that.

RESULT OF VOTE

AT SCOTSTOWN.

71 votes cast, 52 for the by-law and 19 against.

Tuesday's voting was rather slow, it being hard to get the people to vote either way. Much hard work was done by both sides. There were only 25 votes cast, 16 votes for by-law and 12 against, making a total of 99 votes cast in the two days. Of these 68 were in favor of the by-law and 31 were against it, making two over the two-thirds majority.

The amount of valuation of the votes cast in round numbers is $89,000, while that of the 31 votes against the by-law is $144,000, making the valuation less than two-thirds majority.

No official statement has been made as yet. Some say that a large majority is all that is necessary while others claim that there must be a two-thirds majority of both votes and valuation.

PROVISION MARKET

WEAKER FEELING FOR LIVE
HOGS.Montreal, March 8.—A weaker feeling prevailed in the market for live hogs and prices declined 10c. per 100 pounds. This was somewhat of a surprise to the trade owing to the fact that supplies were smaller than have been for some little time past, but there were ample to go around,
and a fairly active trade was done with sales of selected lots at $7.40 to $7.50 per 100 pounds weighed off cars. There was no change in the condition of the market for dressed hogs, prices being steady under a fair
