CARDINAL VILLENEUVE DIES OF HEART ATTACK

World News In Brief

Jerusalem, Jan. 17.—(Reuters)—Palestine police today arrested eleven members of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish terrorist organization, as Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham, High Commissioner for Palestine, was reported to have returned to Jerusalem under a strict security blackout.

Official confirmation of the high commissioner's arrival from London, where he discussed with the government "outstanding political and administrative problems affecting Palestine, including questions regarding long-term policy," was being withheld until later today, it was understood.

Boston, Jan. 17.—(P)—Given the first fair weather in three days, United States navy and coast guard aircrafts ordered nine bombers into the air today to look for the overdue Boston trawler Belle, unreported since a call for help eight days ago. Three of the planes were radar-equipped Flying Fortresses.

An area of 45,000 square miles—within a line running from the southern tip of Nova Scotia 250 miles to the south and then 250 miles west—was marked down for intensive scanning.

The Belle, carrying a crew of 17, was 100 miles east of Boston when her skipper, Capt. Peter Linehan, radioed that her engine was disabled and she was drifting. Strong north-west winds may have blown her far off that position in the last week.

Lake Success, N. Y., Jan. 17.—(P)—The most realistic officials of the United Nations agreed today that it probably will take many years to put world disarmament into effect. These officials said the task of world arms reduction and limitation is so colossal and complicated that it is not a question of weeks or months but of years.

They explained there can be no disarmament until the United Nations has its own international army sufficient to maintain world security. The United Nations Security Council, currently discussing the best way to tackle the arms reduction program, was called to meet today but the delegates expected little business would be transacted out of respect for Dr. Pedro Leao Velloso, Brazilian delegate who died yesterday.

Outcome Of Ottawa Parley Seen Important To Canada

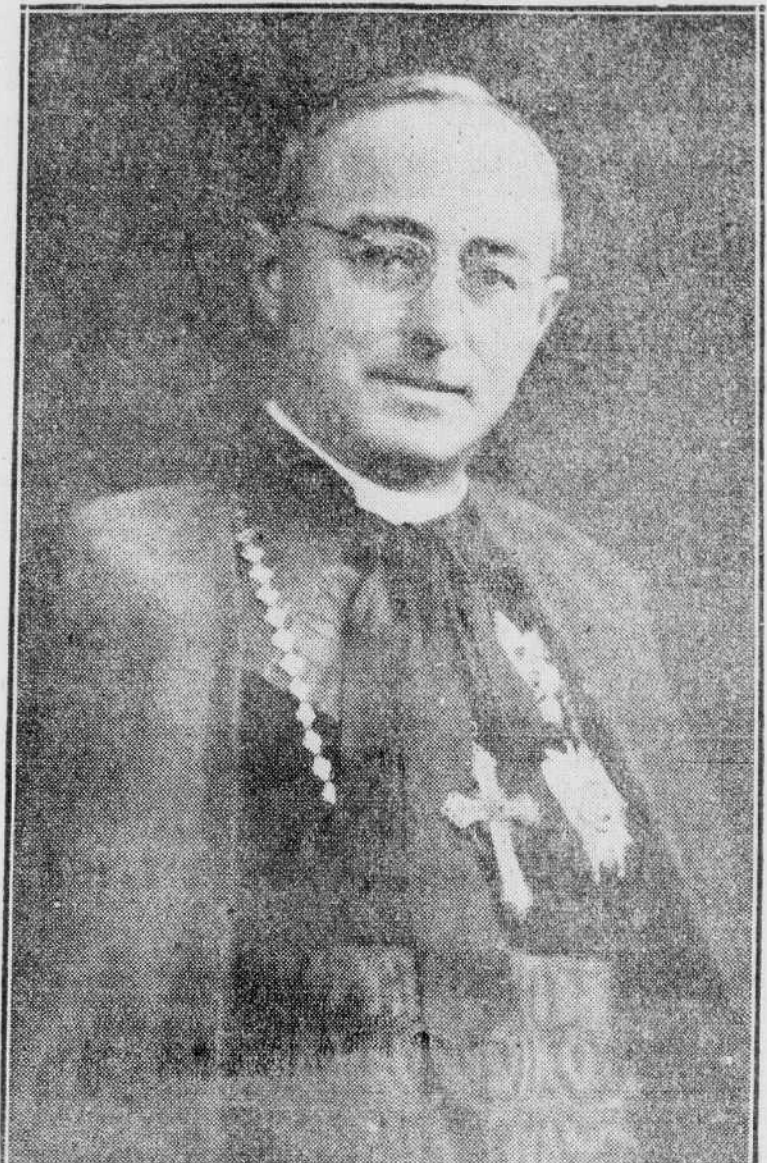

Ottawa, Jan. 17.—(P)—The outcome of the four-government taxation agreement negotiations, expected to end today, is likely to have an important effect on the future of Dominion-Provincial financial relations.

One source described the discussions with New Brunswick, Saskatchewan and Manitoba as the turning point in the Dominion's efforts to bring about new agreements with all provinces. If federal authorities are successful in current negotiations it is believed that some of the provinces now holding out may decide to accept the Dominion's offers.

If the negotiations fail the Dominion likely would be faced with the difficult task of starting on a new basis its efforts finding a tax field division that would assure all governments sufficient revenue to carry out their responsibilities.

There have been no official reports on the progress being made by Finance Minister Abbott in his dealings with Premier McNair of New Brunswick, Premier Garson of Manitoba and Provincial Treasurer Pines of Saskatchewan. However, from sources in close touch with the proceedings have come reports of satisfactory progress being made.

Distinguished Career Is Closed By Quebec Prelate

Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve

Quebec's Credit Held Excellent

Quebec, Jan. 17.—(P)—A group of financial advisers called in by the Quebec civil authorities to investigate the city's financial status, has advised City Council members that "we find Quebec's credit excellent, and see no necessity for forced conversion of the city's debt."

The City Council and Treasurer Fontaine recently discussed possibility of converting the city's debt of $33,000,000 and expressed intention of inserting a request to that effect in the bill to be presented to the forthcoming session of the Quebec Legislature.

Henry Harris 16th To Face Spy Charges

Appeared Yesterday Immediately After Acquittal of Sqdn. Ldr. Poland—Gouzenko Again Crown Witness.

Ottawa, Jan. 17.—(P)—The 16th trial in Canada's espionage probe continued here today following acquittal yesterday of Sqdn. Ldr. Frederick W. T. Poland, 37-year-old former R.C.A.F. officer who was charged with communicating confidential information for Russia.

Immediately after Sqdn. Ldr. Poland's acquittal—sixth in the 15 trials completed to date—Dr. Henry Harris, Toronto optometrist, appeared on charges of conspiring to obtain false passports useful to a foreign power and forging passports.

Sqdn. Ldr. Poland, who will face a second charge under the Official Secrets Act, was freed on his own recognizance by County Court Judge A. Gordon McDougall and given a two-month adjournment.

First witness to appear against Harris yesterday was Igor Gouzenko, former cipher clerk in the Russian Embassy, who read official Russian documents which allegedly named the optometrist as a go-between for Soviet agents and Sam Carr of Toronto, missing Labor-Progressive Party organizer who is also under charge.

Rose from Humble Position as Son of Shoemaker to Highest Roman Catholic Rank in Canada—Was in 64th Year.

Quebec, Jan. 17.—(P)—Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve, 63-year-old Archbishop of Quebec, died early today in a convent near Los Angeles where he had gone only recently for continued rest after recuperation in hospital from a long illness.

The Archbishop's Palace announced the cardinal's death which occurred at 6:50 a.m., Pacific Standard Time, at the Romana Convent of the Holy Names at Alhambra, Calif., about 20 miles from Los Angeles. The palace said it had no further details at present.

Stricken by a heart attack last July, shortly after returning from religious ceremonies in Western Canada, the Cardinal, who rose from the humble position as son of a shoemaker to the highest Roman Catholic rank in Canada, had been in failing health since then.

He recovered, temporarily, from his first attack, but his weakened heart failed him again and he entered hospital in New York. He was released from there only last week after a long period of convalescence.

Cardinal Villeneuve was elevated to the Cardinalate in March, 1933, just a year after being named Archbishop of Quebec. He was Canada's fourth cardinal; the fifth, James Cardinal McGuigan of Toronto, was elevated as a consistory early last year.

A brilliant scholar, he advanced rapidly in the ranks of his church from the time he entered the Lachine Novitiate of the Oblates in 1901. He had a brilliant career as student and teacher at the Scholasticate of the Oblates in Ottawa and was ordained priest at the age of 23, the earliest age permitted under the canon law of the church.

His success as a teacher of philosophy, canon law and theology led to his election as Bishop of Gravelbourg, Sask., in June.

North Shore Centres Hit By Epidemic

Mercy Ship North Voyager Docks at Havre St. Pierre With Badly-Needed Supplies — Four Dead from Diphtheria.

Havre St. Pierre, Que., Jan. 17.—(P)—A diphtheria epidemic was in full swing in this North Shore St. Lawrence settlement when the freighter North Voyager arrived with food and medical supplies yesterday.

After threading its way through a path across the icefields in Jacques Cartier straits cut by the Dominion Government icebreaker Ernest Lapointe, the North Voyager docked to find the town short of medical supplies and its food stocks low.

One child was dead of diphtheria here and three deaths were reported at Agassiz, 70 miles east of this town which itself is some 325 miles downriver from Quebec City. However, doctors said the epidemic, which broke out two weeks ago, is under control.

A town of 1,500 which depends on mining, fishing and the pulpwood industry for its livelihood, Havre St. Pierre had been without replenishment of its food and medical supplies since Dec. 9. The North Voyager, which services the North Shore settlements, had been icebound until the icebreaker Lapointe was assigned to smash a path for the freighter into some dozen and a half of the lonely towns and villages.

Sum was flown in from Quebec when the diphtheria made its appearance. Doctors from Havre St. Pierre hospital also used planes to visit coastal settlements to administer serum to children. Schools were closed but will be re-opened Monday.

Dr. Leo Cote, director of the 150-bed hospital, said he didn't know what he would have done had the North Voyager been delayed longer. His insulin stocks were depleted, several other important drugs ran out several weeks ago. Only a week's supply of meat was left. Canned and powdered milk reserves were low. Oil for lighting and heating was exhausted.

Meanwhile, the Lapointe was being loaded with supplies from the Voyager last night for a special trip to villages on Johan Beetz Bay, 40 miles east of here, and to Kegaska, a further 75 miles along the shore.

Havre St. Pierre is the seventh settlement serviced by the North Voyager since it left Godbout last Saturday. Thunder River was supplied yesterday and before that Trinity Bay, Pentecote, Shelter Bay, Clarke City and Seven Islands received their shares of the Voyager's cargo.

Fists Fly In Georgia

Exhibition of fistuffs, pictured in top photograph, occurred as a supporter of Herman Talmadge tried to break down the door to the governor's office in Atlanta, Ga., and eject Gov. Ellis Arnall. Arnall supporters on left and right are seen returning the blows. Later Talmadge took possession of Arnall's executive offices and barred the latter when he tried to enter.

State Capitol Is Controlled By Talmadge

Ellis Arnall Forced to Move to Downtown Offices in Atlanta — Firecracker Alarms Rotunda Occupants.

Atlanta, Jan. 17.—(P)—Herman Talmadge, local complete control of Georgia's Capitol today forced Ellis Arnall to move to a downtown office building.

Arnall, who has been Governor for the last four years and claims he is still the state's legal Chief Executive despite the state legislature's naming of Talmadge, announced his intention to establish the Arnall Capitol downtown after a brief encounter with a Talmadge lieutenant at the State House.

Meanwhile Talmadge, who was elected Governor by the Legislature in a tumultuous session early Wednesday, continued to hold physical possession of Arnall's former executive offices about 30 yards away.

Churchill Nearly Victim Of U-Boat

Nürnberg, Jan. 17.—(P)—Admiral Karl Doenitz asserted today that a German U-boat nearly counted Winston Churchill among her victims one month after the Second World War started.

Doenitz, serving 10 years as a war criminal, told an interrogator in his prison cell here that the incident happened west of the Orkney Islands in October, 1939, when a U-boat struck the 33,000-ton British battleship Nelson with three torpedoes which failed to explode because they were faulty.

Doenitz said the U-boat captain was a "broken man" when he discovered later that Churchill was aboard the Nelson.

ONT. RATIONING OF BEER AND WINE ENDS

Toronto, Jan. 17.—(CP)—After nearly four years of rationing, the sale of beer and wine becomes free and commercial in Ontario Feb. 1. From that date ration coupons will not be required.

The announcement by William A. Giesinger, chief commissioner of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, of the discarding of Ontario beer and wine ration books put the province in line with most of the Canadian provinces.

5 Said Dead In Blaze On Gulf Island

Mother and Four Children Die in Blaze at Havre Aubert, Magdalen Isles—Three Escape Burning Home.

Quebec, Jan. 17.—(P)—A mother and four of her children were burned to death Wednesday when fire destroyed their home at Havre Aubert, Magdalen Isles, it was learned here yesterday.

The victims were Mrs. Lucien Cormier, her son, 19-year-old Henri Paul, and three daughters, Denise, 16, Marie Berthe, eight, and Marie Paule, six.

Mr. Cormier, his mother, Mrs. Joseph Cormier, and another son, Leon, were able to escape from the flaming home but suffered burns of varying degree.

The fire was believed to have started when Mr. Cormier used gasoline instead of kerosene to light a fire in a stove.

No further details were available immediately.

Vigorous Canadian Protest Against Unimportant Role In Drawing Foreign Pacts

Ottawa, Jan. 17.—(P)—Canadian Government circles today awaited word from London on a protest that Canada, as an active veteran of two world wars against Germany, is not being given its fair say in drafting the German and Austrian peace treaties.

The Canadian protest, implied in a statement to the special deputies of the Council of Foreign Ministers now meeting in London, and underlined yesterday at a press conference by External Affairs Minister St. Laurent, was launched in terms believed to be some of the strongest in the history of the Dominion's international relations.

It centred around the invitation received by this country to participate in the drafting of the peace treaties. The invitation, Mr. St. Laurent said, was made through the United States Government and was available for consideration here on January 6—only about a week before the date on which the views of the Canadian Government were to be presented.

Implication in the invitation was that Canada would be able merely to present its views in a written statement, supplemented with a few oral comments at the meeting of the deputies of the Foreign Ministers.

WINS NEW TRIAL

MRS. EVELYN DICK, of Hamilton, Ont., who won a new trial today on a charge of murder of her husband, John Dick, on March 6th.

In setting aside the conviction registered last October by a Wentworth County Assize Court jury which listened to evidence in Mrs. Dick's nine-day trial, the five justices of the Ontario Appeal Court said they hoped "to hand down written reasons for their judgment early next week."

Heavy Agenda Facing House At Opening On January 30

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Jan. 17.—(P)—Despite the prospect of a heavy and contentious pile of legislation, present indications are the new session of Parliament will be traditionally slow in getting down to serious work.

It is expected that when Parliament opens January 30, the House will follow its usual procedure of sitting for a few minutes after the Throne Speech has been read. The next day will be Friday and the House will sit for an hour or so and adjourn until Monday afternoon.

At that time debate on the reply to the Throne Speech will start, and probably proceed in its leisurely way for two or three weeks. After that the House will begin its real legislative business, but in no great hurry.

Bulk of the session's work is expected to centre around the question of continued government controls. A pre-session study of probable legislation indicates the following as likely subjects:

- 1—Some legislation to give the Prices Board permanent authority to control rents and commodity prices which the government is expected to keep under ceilings for some months, possibly years.
- 2—Legislation to continue the powers of the Meat Board to ensure that Canada's contracts to supply Britain with bacon and beef products are fulfilled.
- 3—Control on wheat marketing and prices exercised by the Canadian Wheat Board are expected to require some action by Parliament.
- 4—Possibly legislation will be necessary to give the Reconstruction Department sufficient authority, particularly in regard to housing.
- 5—Redistribution of the federal electoral districts under the amendment passed last year to the British North America Act which changed the basis of representation.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

Shake hands with a dope. I turned down the chance to book "Street Scene" into my theatre.

The musical version of Elmer Rice's old Pulitzer Prize play is the town's new bust-in-the-nose hit. Atkinson of "The New York Times" called it "an evening of magnificence and glory," and used the word "superb" three times in his review. People are standing in the cold today halfway down the block to buy tickets.

I didn't think it had a chance. Producer Dwight Wiman sent me the script a few months ago. He wanted to present "Street Scene" at the Ziegfeld. I couldn't get excited about the libretto. Too sordid, I thought. A week later I was invited up to hear Kurt Weill play his score. I only managed to stay awake by counting slowly to 10,000. I told the producer and composer the show wasn't my cup of tea. Out of professional politeness, I refrained from telling them I didn't think there was much entertainment in this opera of the tenements. I walked out of the apartment, smug in my belief that a six-dollar musical had to be as pretty and gay as a wedding cake.

"Street Scene" looked another theatre and went into rehearsal. Before it left for its out-of-town tryout, it had a run-through. Several wise guys who saw it called me up to tell me it was a dreary hodgepodge.

In Philadelphia, it got mixed notices. During its three-week engagement, theatre-goers acted as if there were Chicken Pox signs on the doors.

The first week it grossed $4,750, when it needed almost $30,000 to break even. The second week it lost $18,000. The big New Year's week, another $16,000 went down the drain. On Wednesday matinee, it took in $217, which means there were 60 or 70 lonesome customers in a 1,600-seat house. I understand the ushers didn't even bother to seat people—every ticket buyer had a row to himself.

"Variety" the show-wise trade paper, eulogized it with the following lines: "Misses fire. Smacks of tired and discouraged Puccini. Definitely on the tedious side."

I got the word of mouth on it from three of the smartest cookies in the theatre, who caught it in Philly. Each of these sure-footed old-timers is a Pulitzer Prize playwright. I give you their comments:

Pulitzer Prophet No. 1: "Sick-making."

P. P. No. 2: "Don't ask."

P. P. No. 3: "Unfit for human consumption."

Producer Wiman's staff pleaded with him not to bring it to New York, told him that the critics got through there'd be blood on the pavement in Shubert Alley. Dwight refused to let the wet blankets dampen his enthusiasm for the show.

The day before the Broadway opening, it was rumored around that one of the backers was willing to trade his 10 per cent for a Pullman reservation to Miami.

Eleanor, who loves to glad-rag it for an evening, didn't get this one. We went in our street clothes, and so did most of the audience. Instead of the usual first-night electricity, the evening had the feeling of a duty call at a thirty-second cousin's funeral.

And then the curtain went up. Within ten minutes, the Broadway wolf-pack sensed it was in at the birth of something special. They were looking at a world of trapped and hungry people, people who reacted out for something pretty and got their fingers stepped on. Kurt Weill's music and Langston Hughes' lyrics told their story with a kind of wistful passion. A stageful of nobody Leverage-of-sang better than any cast heard here in 20 years. Charlie Friedman's direction, Jo Mielziner's set—only wonderful! It was one of those rare nights when a show catches lightning in a barrel. The applause was like a 21-gun salute going off in a phone booth. When the final curtain dropped on a scene of murder and despair, I found myself weeping—and I don't weep easy.

Next morning, the critics dusted off the adjectives they keep in their vault. A thousand liars on the Big Midway told each other they knew it was going to be a hit all the time. But in my gift, I can't afford the luxury of lying to myself.

"Street Scene," which played mostly to echoes in Philadelphia, will play to better than $40,000 a week at the Adelphi Theatre for a long time. If I were half as smart as I think I am, it would be at the Ziegfeld. Next time I get to feeling I wrote the book, I'm going to walk around the corner and look at the mob fighting to get in to see the show I said didn't have a chance.

The January meeting of the Richmond Hill Women's Institute was held on the regular day at the home of Mrs. John Mason. Mrs. Hampton presided. The Mary Stewart Collect and the salute to the flag were repeated in unison. Seven members responded to the roll call by naming a New Year's resolution in favor of the Women's Institute. There were two visitors present. The minutes and financial report of the month were read and received approval. It was decided to pack and forward a box overseas. Tentative plans were made for a card party to be held during the month. The February meeting will be an open one and Mrs. Roberts kindly offered her house for the same. The refreshments are to be furnished by the members. The entries in the towel contest were judged by Mr. William Bailey while the ladies were busy quilting. The decision awarded the first prize to Mrs. Leslie Healy and second to Mrs. Hampton. There were a few fines levied on non-contestants. SCOTSTOWN

The annual meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society was entertained by Mrs. P. A. Sherman, at her home on Osborne Street, and was featured by an impressive, installation service conducted by Mrs. A. A. MacAulay, when the following officers were dedicated: Mrs. J. C. Cox, president; Mrs. C. N. Smith, first vice-president; Mrs. P. A. Sherman, second vice-president; Mrs. William Taylor, secretary; and Mrs. P. B. Mayhew, treasurer. As a prelude to the service, Mrs. J. A. Penoyer rendered soft music, and the service closed with prayer. The newly-elected president, Mrs. Cox, directed the remainder of the program, which included the presentation by the president of a Life Membership Certificate and pin, to Mrs. A. A. MacAulay, in recognition of the splendid work done by her in the teaching of missions to the children. Mrs. S. F. Carey was welcomed as a member, and the monthly programs were distributed by Mrs. P. A. Sherman. It was announced that the February meeting, which had been designated as a birthday meeting, would be held with Mrs. A. A. MacAulay, and the devotionary Monthly, and ten to the supply department. Reports of the year's activities were submitted by the various secretaries, and revealed that, with a membership of thirteen, eleven meetings had been held, with an average attendance of ten. Associate Helpers have sent in mite boxes. Eleven subscriptions were taken to "Missionary Monthly," and ten to "World Friends." Monthly and sectional meetings were given publicity in the Sherbrooke Record. Three new sweaters were sent to a mission school. A Life Membership Certificate and pin were given to Mrs. A. A. MacAulay. A re-affiliation service with the C.G.I.T. was carried out. The World Day of Prayer was observed, and representatives sent to the Presbyterian and sectional meeting. One meeting in the form of a picnic was highlighted by a presentation to a member, who was leaving for a new home. Increased interest was noted in missionary reading. Visits were made to the sick and shut-ins and reading matter and fruit were supplied. A year's subscription to "L'auroré" was given to French Protestant family. War brides were visited, entertained and given reading material. Temperance study was taken up at the meeting and responsibility regarding the grocer's licence referendum was stressed. The teaching of temperance in the High School was sponsored and the awarding of prizes in the National Temperance Study Course. It was announced that the allocation of $150 had been attained, chiefly through voluntary givings. The Baby Band report by Mrs. W. K. Gordon, the leader, showed eleven members held, five subscriptions taken to "World Friends," and an annual party held for the babies and their mothers. The Mission Band report, presented by the leader, Mrs. A. A. MacAulay, revealed that the baby book, donated by Mrs. P. A. Sherman, and the map of Africa, given by Miss Mary Black, and put together by the children, proved very interesting. The leader attended the Presbyterian and sectional meetings. Prayer was made at each meeting for the prayer-partner. The officers were installed at the annual meeting by the W.M.S. president, the C.G.I.T. leader, Mrs. Charles MacRae, reported regular meetings held, a sleigh ride and a picnic enjoyed. A candlelight vesper service was held at the Christmas season. The worship service was led by Mrs. Cox, and was opened with the hymn, "Prayer To A Heart of Lowly Love," sung by Mrs. Roy Waldron and Mrs. A. A. MacAulay. The theme, "Witnessing for Christ," with basic Scripture reading, was presented by Mrs. F. B. Mayhew, Mrs. C. M. Smith and Mrs. R. A. Scott. The closing prayer was given by Mrs. MacAulay. "Meet the Youth of India," a chapter in the study book, was reviewed by Mrs. Cox, and showed that India's youth is alive to the problems of its country. Complementing the chapter, highlights from "This is India," were given by Mrs. MacAulay, who touched on the travelling, religious, education, and community life of that country, stating that the most pressing problems were that of illiteracy, and health. A brief review of "One World on Your Doorstep" was given by Mrs. Carey, and Mrs. Smith gave interesting facts from, "Come to India." The closing worship included a hymn, from the Christian Youth Movement in India," read by Mrs. Mackenzie, and silent prayers for the education missionaries in India, who are teaching children and youth, and leading them to become followers of Jesus Christ. Later, the hostess was assisted at the tea hour by Mrs. MacAulay and Mrs. Mayhew.

In connection with the Community Christmas tree, the following item, on the program, worthy of special mention, was omitted from a previous account. A waltz-time drill, by eight girls from St. Paul's Presbyterian Sunday School. With Miss Pauline Goodin at the piano. The participants, with graceful rhythm, costumed in white, decorated with silver stars, with silvery girdles and headresses carrying blue and silver halos were Iris MacLeod and Ann Godin, leaders; Alberta MacLeod, Miriam MacRae, Remelda Coates, Shirley Morrison, Norma Nicholson, and Marilyn Goodin. The creditable performance of this number was due, in a large measure, to Mrs. F. C. Goodin, who in her role of instructor, gave unparagoning of her time and energy. Following the drill, "Merry Christmas Bells," was recited, in his initial appearance, very pleasingly, by little Torrey Goodin.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex MacDonald were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. K. A. MacDonald, in Milan.

The following is a report of the work accomplished by the Junior Red Cross Society in the local High School, during the past year, completed and forwarded to headquarters: Seven scarves, five pairs mitts, ten sweaters, pair of flannel pants, cotton dress and parties, three pairs socks, three paper mitts with handkerchiefs, and lollipops, joke book, jig-saw puzzles, cross-word puzzle books, a cartoon of books, pine cones for the D.V.A., Christmas cards, Christmas favors, decorations, used stamps, books, games, magazines, and seven dollars. The children also sold 140 calendars, and 89 magazines, the latter selling for the small sum of five cents, and the group would appreciate having those willing to purchase these worth-while magazines, send their names to the vice-president, Kay MacLeod, or to any other member of the group, as the proceeds from the magazines help to increase the funds of the Junior Red Cross. A special seal was received this year, from Provincial headquarters, recognizing that the school has been doing organized Junior Red Cross work for twenty years. This local group is making an urgent appeal for used postage stamps, which it is hoped, will meet with a ready response, as the Red Cross makes several thousand dollars, annually, through the sale of used stamps. The children will gladly collect these stamps, if needed. There is also an appeal for cross word puzzles, for veterans, in the hospitals, who can never get enough of them. These may be found in the newspapers, and will also be collected on notification. The co-operation of parents and friends is requested. Help the children to assist the Junior Red Cross in its noble work of relieving the needy.

IN HOLLYWOOD

CELLULOID SAYINGS
Hollywood, Jan. 17.—(NEA)—Exclusively yours: Myrna Loy rates a bow for insisting on acting her age. She plays Shirley Temple's mother in "The Bachelor and Bobby Soxer" and insisted that RKO cut out certain too ingenuish episodes in the script. Said Myrna: "Let's put emphasis on the fact that I'm her mother—not an older sister."

Margot Grahame is en route to England to star in a British film, "It Always Rains on Sunday." She'll also spend part of that million-buck settlement she received on parting from husband Allen McMartin. The money is still in England, but can't be taken out of the country.

Odds are rising in favor of Linda Darnell and Pevy Marley reclaiming their marriage when she completes "Forever Amber." He gave her a whacking big ring for Christmas. . . Alice Faye denies that she does not intend to do another picture. All she's waiting for is the right story. . . Van Johnson and Evie Wynn are the latest arrivals at Idaho's Sun Valley.

Virginia Field is trying to talk Paramount into letting her be THE woman and not the other woman all the time. She's lost David Niven, Eddie Bracken and Ray Milland in the final reels of her last three pictures. Yet off the screen she's one of the town's most fetching glamor dolls.

Larry Parks plays his next role, in "The Swordsman," in kilts. No doubt this time. His knees are his own.

Here's a new angle in the coming-to-the-defense-of-Hollywood department:

Film and radio musical director Jack Mackin thinks there's too much snobbery where movies are concerned. Pointing out that the movies combine the three great arts—painting, writing and music—Jack says:

"Because a movie reaches 10 million people at 50 cents a head, instead of being something that a hundred people may have for $50,000 each, it's considered cheap. But I've seen good cameramen achieve visual beauty as rich and eloquent as anything an artist ever did with a brush. The film industry is the greatest patron of the arts of them all."

Commerce Chamber President Opposes Charter Amendment

J. A. Archambault, president of the Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce and immediate past president of the Rotary Club, declared to the Record today that he was "not in favor" of payment of a salary to the mayor and aldermen. He also expressed disapproval of the manner in which the City Council proposed obtaining the indemnity. Mr. Archambault believed that either the mayor and aldermen should offer their services free to obviate any possible chance of persons seeking election for personal gain or that they should be paid as full time administrators.

"I believe that the $1,000 which the aldermen propose voting themselves would only serve as an inducement for certain individuals to exploit the position of aldermen for personal gain. On the other hand if the civic administration warrants payments to the Council, it is my opinion that they should be paid as full time aldermen and that they should be chosen upon their qualifications as capable administrators for each civic department."

Regarding the Council's proposed amendment to the City Charter through direct appeal to the Quebec Legislature, Mr. Archambault declared "this is an undemocratic method—the mayor and aldermen are public servants elected by the people and as such it should be our privilege to decide upon such issues as remuneration. I believe that it is only reasonable on the part of the Council to sound out public opinion on the matter before proceeding."

CLAIMING $646 FOR LOSS IN FIRE AT MAGOG

An echo of the holocaust which razed the Battles House Hotel in Magog was heard in Superior Court yesterday when Joseph Leo Moisan and his wife demanded damages of $646 for clothes and effects destroyed in the blaze.

The action was presented to Mr. Justice Dalma Landry and Delphis Goyette was named defendant. Plaintiff alleged that he and Mrs. Moisan were overcome by smoke and fumes while guests in room 35 and holds defendant entirely to blame for loss of his personal belongings since adequate warning was not given when the fire was discovered, the electrical system was defective and the employees had not been trained for an emergency of that nature.

Defendant insisted he was not at fault since official inspection of the building had been made by fire prevention authorities and the precautionary measures had been approved. Additionally, he claimed, the night watchman had made the rounds shortly before 6 a. m. when the blaze was discovered, and had found nothing amiss. Also, he stated, the alarm was sounded at the earliest possible moment.

It will be recalled that the fire occurred on June 15, 1944, and that one man, Percy Wagland, a retired employee of the Dominion Textile Company, was burned to death.

Hearing in three civil action is continuing.

Active Year Is Under Review At Annual Meeting Of E.T.A.A.

A. C. Ross, former Mayor of Sherbrooke, was elected to the presidency of the Eastern Townships' Agricultural Association for the second consecutive year at the annual meeting of shareholders held yesterday afternoon in the Arena building on the Exhibition Grounds.

Directors named for the coming term included two new additions to 30 who held office in 1946. They are John Bassett, Jr., and Bud C. Howard, the latter having been on the board prior to enlisting in the Canadian Army during the war.

Other officers returned for another term were F. W. Webster, honorary president, Louise F. Codere, honorary vice-president, Leo Laliberte, first vice-president, E. E. Spafford, second vice-president, Norrey W. Price, treasurer and manager, and Marguerite St. Pierre, secretary. The executive committee also will continue without change for another year.

Announcement was made during the meeting that the 1947 Exhibition would be held August 23 to 29 inclusive. Tentative dates for the Sherbrooke Winter Fair and Livestock Sale were set as October 14 to 17 inclusive, and those for the Sherbrooke Winter Horse Show as October 16 to 19 inclusive.

Features of the session were the presentation of the president's report and the first annual financial statement. In his address to shareholders, President Ross outlined various improvements made during 1946 to the Arena and Exhibition buildings and grounds. Work done on the Arena included installation of a heating system entailing an expenditure of $7,000, demolition and rebuilding of the east wall at a cost of $4,800, and the first annual financial statement.

The stretch of roadway from the main gate to the entrance of the grand stand was paved at a cost of $2,000, this outlay being made by Conklin Bros. Shows, which also erected two permanent buildings, while further paving was done by the Association to the extent of $2,200.

Higher prices were obtained for stock exhibited at the Fat Stock Show than was the case in 1945, while the Winter Horse Show was a marked success, this being attributed in large part to the efforts of members of the committee. Attendance figures for 1946 were shown to be high, the Arena alone drawing 189,693 customers for various attractions. Estimate of total attendance for all attractions was set at 250,000, this constituting a probable record.

Grants were acknowledged from the federal and provincial governments during the year, as well as a grant and special rates for power and water for the winter months made by the City of Sherbrooke. Bonds were reduced by $1,500 in February, 1946, with redemption of $1,000 in bonds authorized for February of this year, the report showed, this leaving a balance of $60,000.

Reference was made by Mr. Ross to the passing during the year of J. A. McKennie, an honorary director. One minute's silence was observed in his memory by those present.

In closing, the president expressed his thanks for the co-operation and assistance of the members of the Association during the year.

Appointment of C. J. Wright, an Association director in 1946, to the position of honorary director was unanimously approved by the shareholders.

Members of the executive committee for 1947 are President A. C. Ross, Vice-Presidents Leo Laliberte and E. E. Spafford, F. W. Webster, Hon. C. B. Howard, L. F. Codere, W. G. MacDougall, John Peters, M. T. Stenson, R. A. Webster, J. A. Ste. Marie, Colin L. Campbell, W. W. Nichol, J. P. Ted Bennett.

In accepting the presidency for another year, Mr. Ross expressed his appreciation of the co-operation which had been accorded him during his past term in office and stressed the fact that the position of the Association today was better than it had been in years past. He urged all directors, however, to take an active part in the administration of its affairs. Tribute to the organizing ability of the president was paid by Dr. F. H. Bradley, his remarks being echoed by Ted Bennett.

High Bail Was Fixed Today As Jehovah Witnesses Arraigned

Appearing for the fourth time in Magistrate's Court, five members of the Witnesses of Jehovah were today charged separately with "seditious libel" and Judge Dorais Panneton increased bail to $1,000 cash or $1,500 property each. Previous bail set by Magistrate J. H. Lemay had been $500 cash or property of $1,000 and this amount had applied collectively because the sect members were charged jointly with the distribution of seditious literature.

I.O.D.E. GROUP AT LENNOXVILLE HOLDS MEETING

The January meeting of the Maple Cope Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held in the Women's Institute room, the principal business being the nomination of officers for the coming year. The regent, Mrs. M. G. Stewart, was in the chair and there was a good attendance of members.

Reports and minutes were received and accepted. The educational secretary, Miss C. A. Davis, had placed calendars in the Lennoxville High School, St. Anthony's School, Ascot Consolidated School and the Huntingville School. The Child and Family Welfare convener, Mrs. Austin Scott, reported on Christmas baskets she had delivered personally, those for families with children having been furnished with toys by the Boy Scouts. A gift basket had been made up for an invalid member of the chapter.

Money was voted for a needy local family. Mrs. Arthur Preston, post-war service convener, stated that she had a shipment containing 40 articles ready to send off. She suggested that the weekly sewing meeting be changed from Tuesday afternoon to Tuesday evening. This was agreed upon.

Correspondence included a letter from headquarters, urging the chapter to mark "Canadianization Week" in some special manner. After some discussion it was suggested that the educational secretary confer with the High School principal on some project by which the importance of the new Act might be brought before the school pupils.

Plans were made to hold a rummage sale in March, and mention was made of the sale and tea to be held on January 14th, the day before the end of the chapter's financial year.

Nominations were then called for and balloting proceeded, Mrs. R. C. McEadden, convener, Mrs. Henry Downs, Jr. and Miss Delia Sterling, forming the nominating committee.

The meeting closed with the usual ceremony and the members dispersed, tea having been dispensed with because of the function planned for the following day.

SALE AND TEA

Maple Cope Chapter, I.O.D.E., Lennoxville, held a successful "white elephant" sale and tea in the Women's Institute rooms on Tuesday, January 14th.

Members of the chapter and their friends made generous gifts for the sale table which was well furnished with useful and fancy articles. Those in charge of the selling were Mrs. R. L. Young, general convener of the project, and the Misses E. L. Stevens, C. A. Davis, Florence Wark and E. F. Molony. The tea tables were filled many times, the tea convener being Mrs. A. H. Baker, assisted by Mrs. George Doak, Mrs. H. Fowles, Mrs. J. Bennett, Mrs. P. Staples and Mrs. A. M. Taylor.

Mrs. L. V. Parent was in charge of the tickets for the door price, which was given by Mrs. Austin Scott and won by Mrs. Roberts, the drawing being made by the regent, Mrs. M. G. Stewart, who also received the guests as they entered. A Madeira tea cloth and napkins, presented by Mrs. A. M. Converse, was won by Mrs. A. W. Sawyer. The drawing for this was done by Mrs. Ethel Seale, the second vice-regent.

Proceeds, which were for the second war memorial fund of the Order, were most gratifying and Mrs. Young and her helpers are congratulated on a pleasant and profitable function.

Pulp And Paper Mills Making Return To Prewar Prosperity

By SHANE MacKAY
 Canadian Press Staff Writer
 Source of two-thirds of the world's newsprint exports and half the paper consumed in the United States, Canada's sprawling, prosperous pulp and paper mills are resuming their position as a leading peace-time industry.

When 1946 figures become available, officials expect to report the equivalent of 11,000,000 cords produced last year. Barring labor difficulties and an unanticipated decline in demand the 1947 output will exceed this record figure.

Canada's forests produce between 20 and 25 per cent of the country's primary production, and by far the largest proportion flows from the pulp and paper industry.

In gross value of production the industry was surpassed during the war only by non-ferrous metal and refining. On the basis of current output, it is expected to regain its position as the greatest single manufacturer and largest individual exporter in Canada.

Among the manufacturing industries, it stands first in total wages paid, first in export value and first in capital investment.

Canada's first paper mill was established at St. Andrews, Que., in 1805 by United States citizens who obtained concessions from district seigneurs. Ontario's first mill is still in operation. It was built in 1813 at Crook's Hollow, now Greensville, near Hamilton, Ont.

Ninety per cent of the forests used by timber operators are owned by the Crown and most of them administered by provincial governments. The total amount of commercial timber is estimated by federal authorities at 311,201,000,000 cubic feet, of which 191,347,000,000 is accessible. About half the forest area bears trees large enough for use as sawlogs, pulpwood or fuel wood, and the rest is taken up by young trees in various stages of growth.

Concessions or "timber limits" on these Crown lands are granted by the various provincial governments to responsible corporations which, usually, in their own and the public interest, take measures to assure a sustained yield.

Co-operating with provincial and federal forestry officers, many of them carry out their own programs of insect and fire control, conservation and forest farming.

They are concerned at official forecasts that annual consumption of timber shortly will balance replacement of insects. They say circumstances beyond their control—insects and fire—may obviate their efforts to provide annual wood harvests for the pulp and paper industry in perpetuity. Twenty-seven per cent of the nation's annual forest depletion is accounted for by these two factors. Pulp and paper companies account for an additional 17 per cent and the remainder is used chiefly for lumber and fuel wood.

V.O.N. MEETING HEARD REPORTS ON ACTIVITIES

President A. C. Skinner was in the chair for the monthly meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses held with a good attendance on Tuesday in the Child Welfare Clinic rooms. Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. G. A. Sirois, and adopted.

The report presented by the honorary-treasurer, R. C. Muir, covered December, 1946, showing total receipts of $442.88, the main items of which were nursing fees, donations, etc. Expenditures came to $347.53, including nurses' salaries, rent, light, telephone and attendance, auto upkeep, medical supplies, etc.

The monthly report of nursing activities as given by Miss Hattie O. Empey, nurse in charge, showed that during December 107 new patients had been admitted and added to cases carried over to make a total of 279. 891 visits were made. Ten confinements had been attended and four clinics had been held with a total attendance of 27. Fourteen hours had been given to health inspection in the schools and 158 children examined by Dr. Bruce Fletcher. Miss Empey added that medical and surgical visits had considerably increased, indicating that the population of Sherbrooke and Lennoxville is becoming more aware of the V.O.N. service.

No definite date has been set for the annual meeting for which Mr. Skinner reported that he had invited Hon. Senator Norman Paterson as guest speaker.

ITALY AND ITS SURPLUS LABOR

Over-population has long been one of the chief problems of Europe, generally being accompanied by chronic unemployment and a consequent reduction in living standards. The loss of manpower owing to the war, the problems of reconstruction and the need to keep millions of men in the armed forces has reversed this situation, for the time being at least, in many countries, but not so for the Italians. Italy is a country with very limited natural resources. Yet it has a population of 46,000,000, which is more than that of France, on an area of less than half continental France. The result is that the ever-present unemployment problem is now more serious than ever owing to post-war conditions and in October last the number of unemployed was almost two million.

This is aggravated by the immigration bans in effect in most countries. In the days gone by nearly 500,000 Italians emigrated every year, but with the raising of these barriers no such relief is possible and the country is seeking to absorb a natural increase of 300,000 in its population annually.

One way the government is seeking to meet the situation is to hire out the surplus workers to those countries that need them. The contracts, made on a year-to-year basis, are expected to cover one million men. France has agreed to accept 200,000; Belgium and Czechoslovakia 50,000 each, skilled and unskilled. Britain recently signed for a group of 2,800 Italians for foundry work. The British trade unions not only consented to the deal, but will make the Italians temporary honorary members, on condition they are not paid less than British workers and will be sent home as soon as the shortage of manpower is relieved.

The Italian Government looks to Latin American republics to take large-scale immigration. These countries have always welcomed Italian immigrants, Brazil having absorbed 1,200,000 in the past twenty years. But it will take a long time to plan and finance large-scale emigration and meantime the problem is being materially eased by the "lend-lease" of manpower. As many of the men will leave their families behind them, they are being allowed to send forty per cent of their earnings home.

RECRUITING BOGS DOWN

Canadian citizens cannot help but look with misgiving at the statement of Defence Minister Claxton that the three permanent defence services do not intend "to recruit personnel to an extent greater than seventy-five per cent of the numbers set for planning purposes a year ago. In other words, except for men with special qualifications, the navy and air force have finished recruiting. Thus the combined strength of the three services, which was originally placed at the modest figure of 60,000 men, will be held to 45,000, very little higher than the total of 42,905 at the end of 1946.

Numerous reasons have been advanced by the Minister for this decision to cut the armed services, but it is to be feared that the statement is merely bearing out predictions previously heard in government circles that the administration would meet the demands for economy by slashing the active service requirements of the armed forces and at the same time maintaining civilian departments close to their wartime peaks.

This view is supported by figures in Mr. Claxton's statement which show that while the strength of the armed forces had been reduced from 780,730 at the peak of the war to the present figure of 42,905, the number of civilian employees of the Defence Department had only declined from 47,198 to 33,426. Thus while there were seventeen men in uniform for each civilian at the peak of hostilities, there are now three civilians for every four uniformed personnel. It certainly would seem that if the government desired to cut its defence expenditures, there could be a better pruning out of the civilian employees, many of whom are carrying temporary wartime posts over to the years of peace.

Concern must also arise over the statement that the government is reconsidering its decision to have two aircraft carriers in the Royal Canadian Navy, which may be taken as a hint that the Carrier Magnificent, now nearing completion in England, may not be commissioned for service.

The intimation that the nominal figure of the reserve forces would not be reduced but that recruiting would be slow offers little satisfaction to defence-minded Canadians, lowering as it does the potential of semi-trained soldiers, sailors and airmen which might be available in time of emergency.

Apparently the Canadian Government is not as yet prepared to have this Dominion play an adequate part in its own defence, preferring to leave the question of national safety to the goodwill of other interested powers.

JUDGE J. H. LEMAY

The decision of Judge J. H. Lemay to retire as District Magistrate after twenty-five years of service on the local bench brings to a close a record of honorable service in the interests of justice in the Eastern Townships. During Judge Lemay's tenure of office, the work of the Magistrate's Court has increased several-fold due to the increase in the limits of the cases subject to its jurisdiction and the great growth in the population of the district served. Judge Lemay has been a great example of the precept he laid down for his successor in office to "temper justice with humanity."

Without violating the principles of the law, he was noted for the moderation in his sentences, adapting them in almost every case to the circumstances surrounding each occasion.

Despite his serious illness of the past few years, he has fulfilled his duties to the limit of his abilities and in his retirement he carries with him the wishes of Sherbrooke citizens that the increased leisure afforded him will permit his restoration to improved health.

BACK ON STILWELL ROAD

The way Harry Truman can fall into a puddle of mud and crawl out garlanded with roses beats everything.

He gets all splattered with Ed Pauley — and emerges with "Cap" Krug as Secretary of the Interior, in place of Harold Ickes.

He dives in over his head to support Henry Wallace and comes up without Wallace but with Averell Harriman.

Pat Hurley throws a lot of mud at Truman on Chinese policy. He rubs the mud off on Hurley and comes out clean with Gen. George C. Marshall as ambassador to China.

Last month Truman issued a long, pointless and apparently unnecessary statement of policy on China. There was some difference of opinion in the State Department, where it was drafted, as to what should be included. It added to the confusion over the present state of Chinese affairs.

So now, in the most polite language in the world, General Marshall "supplements" this statement with impressions gained at first hand. Normally, this would have reflected discredit on the President. But at this precise moment, Secretary of State James F. Byrnes had to resign because of ill health. Truman appoints Marshall to succeed him. And Truman, crawling out of the hole, emerges a hero.

WHICH WAY NOW?

The riddle still to be answered, however, is just where U. S. China policy now stands. To all appearances, it would seem to be right back on Stilwell Road.

What General Marshall's magnificently frank "personal statement" on the Chinese situation boils down to is a confirmation of everything General "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell and ex-Ambassador Clarence Gauss knew about China four years ago:

1 — The Chinese Nationalist government of Chiang Kai-shek is made up of corrupt politicians.

2 — The Yenan government has irreconcilable leanings toward communism.

3 — Within this Yenan government there is a strong element of liberal leadership genuinely interested in China's reform.

Gauss and Stilwell wanted to build on this slim foundation of decency. If Gauss and Stilwell had been listened to and backed up, the United States might not be in the middle of its own Chinese puzzle. The chance Gauss and Stilwell had may be lost forever.

The fact that the Gauss-Stilwell policy was not followed can't be blamed on Harry Truman. That was before his time. But what's to be done next is very definitely in his time.

Now before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee is a new five-year Treaty of Friendship, Commerce and Navigation with China. Article I says it's to maintain "peace, and free and lasting friendship" between the U. S. and China. There's an order.

This treaty was negotiated last year with Chiang's government. It was sent to the Senate in November. Congress was not in session then. So the Senate of the 80th Congress gets first whack at it, to ratify or reject. It wasn't mentioned in Truman's December policy statement. But it offers the Republican majority of the Senate opportunity for a full-dress debate.

A VITAL ISSUE

It's a glorious chance for militant Republicans to blast Democratic Administration policies in China, going into use and misuse of Lend-Lease, disposal of surplus property and loans to the Nationalists. This may be the first big test of the much-touted non-partisan, bi-partisan American foreign policy.

Maybe General Marshall and Senate President Vandenberg, who is also chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, can keep the debate within bounds. But General Hurley will probably be heard from. And Ambassador Gauss is handy, sitting now as a director of the Export-Import Bank.

"Vinegar Joe" Stilwell, unquestionably one of the war's greatest generals — the one given the hardest job, the most abuse and the least credit — is dead. But fundamentally, the job ahead is just what it was four years ago — opening up the Stilwell Road, the diplomatic road this time, to unify China and see it made into a strong, democratic ally.

How that is to be done is the question which stumps even General Marshall. American anti-Communist sentiment being what it is, the Yenan government would not seem to be in line for much Senate support, even if the Chinese Communists were honest. It isn't quite that simple an issue. It's whether the 150 or 200 million adherents of Yenan are won over to American friendship, abandoned to shift for themselves towards Soviet Russia, or exterminated politically with American help for the corrupt Nationalist government.

ELECTION BOARD

Press Comment

PREDICTING AN ELECTION RESULT

The Gazette

Political prophecy involving a general electorate is one of the most futile of pursuits. Any one of and any combination of a number of minor events—from rumor to rain—may invalidate the most careful analysis of balloting possibilities. Nonetheless it is as safe as anything is safe to predict the results of Poland's first general election since liberation next Sunday. President Beirut's pro-Communist bloc will score a victory at the polls that will appear to be little short of unanimous.

It will be equally simple to calculate the degree of preliminary terrorism exerted by the Government on the opposition on the basis of the apparent success of Mr. Beirut. Every possible device that has occurred to the Soviet-dominated Security Police has been used to deny Mr. Stanislaw Mikolajczyk's Polish Peasant Party an opportunity to exercise its political franchise. Both Britain and the United States have exhibited their legitimate concern at the demonstrable excesses of political intimidation. Each country has sent no less than three formal protests to Warsaw on the basis of information it believes indisputable. They have all been rejected by Mr. Beirut's government with the curtness of guilt.

There is no more lamentable story of political chicanery and government by force in post-war Europe than is to be found in Poland today. It is a tale of repression, coercion, intimidation, arrest, murder. It wholly discredits any confidence that might have been reposed in Mr. Beirut's government; it finally disposes of any theory that Poles now living out of their unhappy country should be encouraged to return.

Mr. Mikolajczyk, who holds his wholly honorary post as vice-premier at the request of the Western Powers, has estimated the consequences of the election to his supporters. At least 50,000 members of the party have been arrested, he believes (even the Security Police admit to 4,000 such arrests); it is known that tens of thousands of Polish Peasant Party voters have been stricken from the registration lists (60,000 in the Krakow district alone); at least 250 candidates in the election have been removed from the ballots, 120 of them imprisoned; party headquarters in 29 districts have been padlocked, in 10 out of 52 districts the party has been denied candidates at all. Finally, the party has been excluded from the privilege of representation as the polling booths anywhere in the country.

With such practices preliminary to Sunday's election there can be no question of the result; at least of the result that will be given to the world. The elections are a farce and the Communists must win. Neither can doubt longer exist that Russia is cynically determined to achieve its general program at any cost and wholly regardless of international public opinion.

Communist intention in Poland has emerged with that gradualness made only too familiar by the late Mr. A. Hitler. At Yalta the Provisional Government committed itself (with Soviet approval) to hold free elections as soon as possible on a democratic basis. But for organizational reasons the earliest possible date for the elections met with successive delays. Until the middle of last July Mr.

Do You Know?

Q—When was paper invented?
A—It first appeared in China about 100 A.D.

Q—What is dendrology?
A—A discourse on trees, a natural history of trees.

Q—When did quinine first come into use?
A—White men first used it around 1600, when Catholic missionaries discovered natives of what is now Southern Ecuador using it in unrefined form—the bark of the cinchona tree, from which it is derived. It was called "fever bark."

Q—Does the U.S. claim any territory in Antarctica?
A—The U.S. has no formal claims. However, areas have been claimed on behalf of the U.S. by Americans, such as Ellsworth and Byrd.

Q—How many wings do insects have?
A—Four.

Q—What was the full name of Nobel, donor of the Nobel Prizes?
A—Alfred Bernhard Nobel. He has been dead 50 years.

Beirut and his friends exerted every possible pressure to persuade or to blackmail Mr. Mikolajczyk into accepting a non-contested election. He quite properly refused. The election date was then regularly postponed, until the Government was ready to undertake the nationwide program of opposition repression that will probably prove so successful at the polls next Sunday.

Since the middle of November when polling day was fixed, the repressive measures of the Government and its Security Police against the Polish Peasant Party have cumulatively increased in severity. The whole purpose of the dreadful campaign of intimidation has been to destroy Mr. Mikolajczyk—and it is not impossible that he may become a personal sacrifice to Sunday's Communist victory—and his political opposition. That the vice-premier is prepared to see the elections through despite the threat to himself and to his party is a tribute at once to his conviction and to his courage.

The results of the so-called elections will not, indeed, cannot be accepted as a valid expression of Polish opinion by the Western Powers. Mr. Beirut has consistently rejected British and American diplomatic protests on the grounds that the elections, their protocol and procedures are domestic questions, not subject to international interference. He is wrong. The Western democracies cannot ignore without protest so flagrant a violation of the principles of liberty in a country which in part owes its existence to their wartime efforts.

OUR MONEY BACK?

Peterborough Examiner

The subsidy on tea and coffee, which has been in effect since 1942, has now been removed. We regard this as good news, for we disapprove of subsidies, and do not wish them to be maintained a day longer than is absolutely necessary.

The removal of the subsidy means a rise in the price of tea and coffee which we shall all feel, for virtually everybody drinks tea and coffee every day of his life. What we should like to know is this: has the government made provision to remit the money saved on these subsidies to the taxpayers of Canada?

Through our taxes we have put up the money to make these subsidies possible; are we going to get a proportionate tax reduction now that the subsidies are stopped?

SQUEEZE SETS UP SLAM IN NO TRUMP

For the fourth consecutive year the team of Mrs. Helen Sobel of New York, Mrs. R. C. Young of Philadelphia, Mrs. J. E. Folline of Richmond and Mrs. Margaret Wagar of Atlanta won the national women's team-of-four championship. However, their victory at the recent winter nationals in Hollywood, Fla., was by a very narrow margin, only half a point. Perhaps today's hand is the one that gave them the championship.

Mrs. Sobel, the declarer, won the opening heart lead with the king, led a small diamond and went up with the king in dummy. A spade was played to declarer's queen, East won and came back with the ten of hearts. This was won in dummy with the queen, and Mrs. Sobel then ran off five club tricks.

West found it impossible to protect both spades and diamonds. She hung on to the queen and ten of diamonds, letting the spades go—

Quebec Government Policy On Hogs Outlined By Local Agriculturist

Noting that "the battle of food" is still with us, W. G. MacDougall, regional agriculturist at Lennoxville, dealt with provincial government policies on hogs in his broadcast over CKTS.

Excerpts from his address follow:

"Hog products are in great demand for export. Great Britain is having great difficulty in maintaining its present ration of bacon. Therefore, the policies of the Department are framed to assist the farmers in improving the quality of their hogs, and to improve their sheep flocks."

"In order to promote the raising of pure bred hogs, the Department of Agriculture offers the services of specialists for the grading of pure bred hogs."

"Breeders who wish to have purebred hogs graded shall make an application on the form supplied by the Department and forward it to the Sheep and Swine Division, before the pigs to be graded have reached three months of age."

"The hogs will be graded on the breeder's farm only, between four to six months of age, by a grader of the Sheep and Swine Division."

"All hogs must be correctly identified (ear tattooed for Yorkshire) before 8 weeks of age, as requested by the Canadian National Live Stock Records; otherwise, they shall not be graded."

"Grading will be subject to the five following points: a) type, b) development, c) limbs, d) depth, e) length."

"Boars or sows judged 'poor' on one of the above points, will be refused."

"Sows and Boars will be graded XXX when considered very good in type, development, limbs, and at least good in the depth and length."

"Boars graded XXX and XX will be recognized as good for improving hog breeding."

CHAPTER XXXVI.

Hannah didn't know why October should seem so rushed. Maybe it was just herself growing up, and tempus fugit-ing, as adults often said it did. Anyway, she lived in a state of constant anticipation.

First Jeff had gone. . . Hannah would always be proud that it was her money which made his going possible; and when he wrote about his job in New York, drawing Spunky Mule posters to be spread on billboards all over the country, she had a sense of personal gratification. Without her, this could not have been achieved. But she missed Jeff. There was one less chair to be pulled up to the supper table, one less plate to be washed; she couldn't pass his closed bedroom door without sighing for his absence.

And soon after Jeff's departure (that memorable Saturday of turmoil, with Mamma smiling and weeping by turns, and heroically forbearing to refer to Sidney's derelictions of the night before; with Papa grumpy and sputtering, the girls packing trunks. Beau getting in everybody's way, and Jeff himself stolid with excitement) soon after that Saturday, Dixon Thayer had arrived in Blakesville. Probably few people would ever know why Dixon came at just that time; but Hannah knew. Sidney had sent for him. By accident Hannah heard about it. The weather was warm, the parlor window open and Hannah sitting with a library book just inside. From the porch, their voices reached her, Sidney's and Dixon's. To avoid hearing she would have had to get up and shut the window—it might have disconcerted them.

Dixon was saying, "You mean there's someone else?"

"Was," Sidney said. "It's over." "And I can catch her on the rebound? I don't want to." "Don't you? You're not enough in love with her for that?" "I'm completely in love with her," Dixon said, "have been since the minute I saw her. But I'd want her to love me—not so much, maybe, but to whatever extent I deserve and exclusively. I couldn't tolerate the specter of the other man."

"She'll forget him—she's already forgotten. It was a sudden thing, a shock. I won't tell you, Dixon; she'll tell you herself sometime. The point is, it's over."

"But love isn't something you can turn on and off at will."

"Not for me, maybe."

"Not for Rose."

"Well, no, it isn't," Sidney said. "She's really loved you all the time; the other was an infatuation. She knows now how silly it was. You must help her recover."

"Help?" he said. "What a word!"

"The mistake is," Sidney said, "in supposing all women feel alike. React alike. They don't. Some women recover slowly from such a shock, or never recover. Rose will snap right out of it. He let her down, the other man; an ideal got dashed to pieces, and it was the ideal, not the man, she grieved for. But you would never let her down; she's sure of that, and if you insisted on marrying her right away—"

"She would accept me?"

"Yes, and be happy ever after."

"—I wonder."

"Oh, yes! You see, Dixon, Rose ought to get married, she needs it. Marriage is security, the kind Rose has been wanting since the day she was born."

Dixon said, after a pause: "How old are you, Sidney? A year younger than Rose? You seem—well, I admire you very much."

"You wouldn't, though," Sidney said earnestly. "If you knew me better. I do crazy things, and poke my nose into other people's business. I'm bossy, and I have no ideals at all. I always think the worst of everybody and everything, and that's what I usually get, of course. I'm not your sort, Dixon. But Rose is."

"He laughed softly. "Yes, Rose is my sort, the darling."

"A longer pause, and Sidney said: "If Rose went off on a tangent, it's the family failing. We all do it; I think, because we've never really belonged anywhere. We haven't any real background, but just something made up out of Papa's dreams and Mamma's sweetness and light. If we could ever have been ourselves—poor, undistinguished people in a small Northern city—but no, Papa wouldn't have it; we must try to live like aristocrats in a pre-war South. So we're just—shadows."

"You're not a shadow, Sidney."

"I don't know what I am. I haven't the faintest idea. I may find out, finally."

"I think you will," Dixon said.

Enigmatic though this dialogue was in part to Hannah, it did explain why Dixon stayed so long and why, when he left, Rose was wearing the star sapphire ring which, he said, had been his mother's. Rose was engaged to Dixon, it would soon be announced. Hannah felt awfully pleased and thought a good deal about Dixon's Virginia home as Rose had described it, the rambling white house with ivied chimneys and glassed-in verandahs, the gardens and meadows and winding woodland. A very nice place, and Hannah asked Rose if she would like to have company there.

"Oh, yes," Rose said. "You must visit Dixon and me often, every summer, Hannah."

When she spoke of herself and Dixon in this way, as if they shared all hopes and interests, Rose looked awfully happy, her eyes shining; and Hannah knew that Sidney hadn't been mistaken. Rose was going to be happy ever after!

The Doctor Says

SPINAL ARTHRITIS STRIKES YOUNG MEN

By William A. O'Brien, M.D.

Rheumatoid arthritis (inflammation of the joints) occurs mostly in women, except for the variety affecting only the spine, which is primarily a young man's disease.

The appearance of a patient who has arthritis of the spine suggests that of a person with a poker in his back. The curve in the lower back is flattened, and the patient bends his body at the hips, holding the entire spine rigid.

Arthritis which begins in the lower back and may be confused with other causes of lame back. But as the disease progresses other spinal joints become affected, until, in advanced cases, the entire spine is held rigid.

X-ray examination of the back as the disease becomes well established will reveal the arthritic changes in the stiffened joints. Young men with arthritis of the spine often date the onset of their symptoms to an infection. Others cite exposure to dampness and cold, while some trace the beginning of their arthritis to an emotional shock.

When rheumatoid arthritis strikes suddenly with severe symptoms, it may run a short course following which the patient is free of trouble for months or years. In the majority of cases, however, the disease tends to recur and become chronic. But if the condition is checked in the beginning it may completely disappear, and even in chronic cases complete recovery sometimes occurs.

Good results have been reported in treating spinal arthritis with deep X-rays, but such treatment must be given by a physician skilled in their use.

Much Rest Required
As patients with active spinal arthritis rest easily, many physicians advise them to rest for an hour or two after lunch. A "rest" vacation is also helpful, and early to bed and late to rise should be the rule.

Heat and massage, by increasing the circulation in the arthritic regions, assist in maintaining better muscle tone.

Question (from a reader of the China Press, published in Shanghai): I am a Chinese girl who has suffered from gonorrhea for nearly three years. At the beginning of the sickness, one of my eyes came out very badly. Since an operation two years ago, one of my eyes has gone back slightly, but the other remains just the same. Is there any treatment or medicine to cure my eyes?

No Matrimonial Wisdom

Girl, Eighteen, Poor Judge to Consider Two Boys,
One Lazy, Other A Stranger

Dear Miss Dix: I am 18 years old and I have a boy friend overseas. He wants me to marry him when he comes home in August, but he hasn't any money on which to support a family and he does not like to work.

In the last few days I have met another boy who also says he is in love with me, and I think I am in love with him, but am not sure as we have only known each other for a couple of hours. Which of these boys do you think would make me the best husband?

E.A.K.

Answer: When I get a letter like this, and I get hundreds of them from lovesick little school girls, I think that the fool-kicker must be lying down on his job. For it does not seem possible that any girl could be dumb enough to risk her life's happiness by marrying a stranger with whom she has had only a couple of hours' acquaintance, or a boy who is too lazy and trifling even to support himself, to say nothing of a wife.

It is understandable that a sentimental little bobby-soxer could imagine herself in love and be willing to rush into a marriage without counting the cost, because she is in love with love and can fit a romantic cap on any lad's head. Also, ever since she was in kindergarten she has been dreaming about having a picture wedding and how beautiful she would look in a white satin wedding dress, with orange blossoms and a veil, and bridesmaids and all the flummery and excitement that go with a wedding, and she just can't wait to make her dream come true.

MARRIAGE SERIOUS

But how any girl of 18 could be silly enough to want to marry a boy with whom she isn't in love just to be a-marrying, passes all understanding. For she must have seen from her mother's experience that marriage for a woman is no picnic. It is a life sentence at hard labor, with cares and anxieties and struggles and babies, and why she wants to give up her playtime of life and even her chance of making a good marriage, is past all guessing.

No wonder that there are so many unhappy marriages and so many divorces when you see girls marrying without using one particle of common sense in picking out their husbands.

Dear Miss Dix: I have a boy of fourteen and a half years old who is terribly infatuated with a girl of 16. He resents deeply anyone interfering in anything he does, so I don't know whether to tell the girl about his age, or not. He tells her that if she ever goes with another boy he will run away from home. When he is at home from school I never go anywhere unless he goes along, and he won't unless the girl does and, of course, she is not interested in his family and friends.

What shall I do about this?

WORRIED MOTHER.

Answer: Keep your hands off and your problem will settle itself. But manage indirectly to let the girl know how much younger your son is and she will soon ditch him for some older boy.

It seems to me that you are making a great mistake in mothering your boy too much. Don't go around with him everywhere he goes. It cramps his style. Boys of that age are crazy to be thought men who are on their own, instead of kids who are tied to their mothers' apron strings. If you can possibly afford it, send him away to some good military school where he will have to make friends on his own hook, and learn to look after himself. The trouble with good mothers so often is that they are TOO good.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am quite convinced that if only the morally and mentally fit people married, legitimate civilization soon would cease to be. I also think that life would be boring if it were perfect. Besides, what is heaven for?

HUSBAND OF EIGHT YEARS.

Answer: We are told, and observation confirms it, that it takes many different kinds of people to make up a world, so perhaps we need the dull and the cranks and the wicked as well as we do the brilliant and the geniuses and the saints. Anyway, we have to take our fellow creatures as we find them and make the most of them on their own plane.

I agree with you that life would be very dull if everyone was so perfect that we couldn't even gossip about them. I am quite sure that none of us in our unregenerate state would enjoy heaven very much. We would not feel at home.

The Record will be pleased to receive any letters to this Dorothy Dix column. These will be forwarded to Miss Dix who will answer them as quickly as possible.

Diet Plus Exercise Is The Team That Wins Slim Figure Quickly

While dieting, Virginia McCurdy does her daily dozen to correct figure faults as she trims her silhouette.

Mr. Mrs. or Miss Overweight: Here's another instalment of a seven-day New Year's diet brought to you . . .

By ALICIA HART

Exercise while dieting is helpful for two reasons. No. 1: Increased physical activity helps the body to burn up fuel foods which form fat. No. 2: If exercise is concentrated on figure faults, you can use it to get rid of those while trimming down your silhouette.

But don't over-do the exercises. Fifty "scissor kicks" are a healthy daily stint for hips while dieting. So are fifty palm-to-floor touch-downs from the waist, taken to pull in a belt. The idea is not to exercise to such an extent that your appetite is whetted and dieting is painful.

SIXTH DAY'S DIET

Breakfast

Orange juice, small glass (6 oz.) 1 thin slice whole wheat toast, 1/2 pat butter, 1 poached egg. Coffee with skim milk, no sugar.

Luncheon

Salad bowl (cottage cheese, tomato, lettuce, parsley) no dressing, 1 thin slice whole wheat bread, 1/2 pat butter, fruit cup (orange and grapefruit), 1 glass skim milk.

Dinner

2 slices roast beef, no gravy, 1/2 cup boiled onions or 1/2 cup potatoes, combination salad (chopped cucumber, lettuce, radish, celery, tomato), no dressing, unsweetened canned peach. Tea or coffee with skim milk, no sugar.

W.A. RE-ELECTS
SAME BOARD
AT MARBLETON

Marbleton, Jan. 17.—The forty-seventh annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Paul's Church was held at the home of Mrs. James Westman with a good attendance.

The meeting was opened by the rector, Canon H. O. N. Belford, with the singing of the hymn "Thy Kingdom Come O God," the Litany from the "Living Message" and other prayers.

The business session was presided over by the president, Miss Hunt. The financial report given by the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Hetherington, showed a very successful year, after meeting all obligations. The Dorcas secretary's report showed that considerable work had been done. Two food parcels had been sent to the English clergy in London, a box of bandages and fruit juices to St. Paul's Hospital in Honan, China; and a box of toys and books to the Magdalen Islands. Thirty church candles were sold.

The Thank-offering secretary-treasurer, Mrs. C. Weyland, reported an increase in the Thank-offering donations.

The president reviewed the year's work, which was highlighted by the birthday tea and the Cookshire Deanery meeting. She thanked all the members for their loyal co-operation and work, which had made such a successful year.

Canon Belford then took the chair for the election of officers and expressed his deep appreciation for the splendid work being done by the Auxiliary. All the officers were re-elected as follows:

President, Miss Florence Hunt; first vice-president, Mrs. C. Weyland; second vice-president, Mrs. W. Maskell; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. William Hetherington; T.O. secretary, Mrs. C. Weyland; "Living Message" secretary, Mrs. R. W. L. Thornloe; prayer partner secretary, Mrs. Parsons; Dorcas secretary, Miss Hunt.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Alec Stewart.

MIND YOUR MANNERS

The Situation: You receive a birth announcement from a couple you know only casually.

Wrong Way: Feel that it is necessary for you to send the baby an expensive present, even though you are not really interested in doing so.

Right Way: Decide that a note congratulating the mother and father is all that is necessary.

LEAFS AND CANADIENS BATTLE TO 1-1 TIE IN MONTREAL

Montreal Fans Beginning To Wonder About World Champion Canadiens

Montreal puck fans are wondering if Montreal Canadiens are trying to cash in on Jack Adams' plan of pensions for National Hockey League "has-beens"—that's how it looks to the bench hooter who has seen his champion Canadiens crumble under the hand of the arch-enemy, Toronto Maple Leafs.

Leafs almost dropped Canadiens under the foundation of the Forum with humiliation last night as they handed Canadiens a 1-1 draw after winning 2-1 Wednesday night in Toronto in the first game of the important home-and-home series between the two Canadian clubs.

With a monkey wrench temporarily tossed in their four-game losing streak, Canucks are in the sad plight of having the best in the league in players, but not winning games. They have chased the league-leading Leafs for the past three weeks trying to regain their prestige by climbing atop the ladder in the N.H.L. race, but the elusive Leafs refused to have their three-point margin trimmed and instead boosted it up to the present nine-point lead.

Rearguard Gus Morrison acted the goat for Toronto when he twirled behind his own net and accidentally slipped the disc to Habs' Bobby Fillion who was roosting on Brodia's doorstep and easily beat the bewildered netminder.

Leafs sparked as Bud Poile sank the opening counter before 12,066 sad-faced Montrealers less than three minutes after the opening whistle.

Feelings ran high and Referee King Clancy thumped 20 players into the "sin bin." Leafs led the penalty parade with 11, but Howie

NORTH HATLEY SCENE OF BOYS' SKIING EVENT

BILL OF FARE AT Y.M.C.A. TOMORROW

A basketball and social program consisting of a scheduled game between Y.M.C.A. and Independents, a novelty fixture between the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. teams, and a dance, will take place at the Y.M.C.A. tomorrow night.

The night's activities will begin at 7:30 o'clock when Independents will be the "Y's" opponents in a return match in the men's division of the Intermediate Eastern Townships Amateur Basketball Association.

The "Y" outfit has been going well lately. After whipping Circo in two recent events, it held the strong Independent quintet to a score of 58-45. This last contest took place at the "Y" last Saturday.

Following this game, Y.M.C.A. will play Y.W.C.A. in a tilt in which each member of the men's crew will use but one arm to handle the ball.

The last item on the night's bill will be dancing, and will start at 9:30 o'clock lasting until midnight. Members of the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A. senior basketball teams are promoting this program to defray season's expenses. The two outfits will divide the proceeds.

Wood's Rink Winner Of Bonspiel, Takes Home Four 1947 Automobiles

Nipawin, Sask., Jan. 17.—Howard Wood of Winnipeg Granite Club led his rink to victory and the four 1947 automobiles which were the major prizes of the $12,000 Nipawin Bonspiel early today with a 13-12 victory over Dalt Henderson of Saskatoon Nutana in an extra end.

The victory was the second in the 11-day old 'Spiel for the veteran Manitoba curler. Earlier he had triumphed in the No. 2 event final to win prizes for his rink totaling $1,000.

The match, final draw of the 'Spiel, had more than 800 spectators see Henderson, last year's Saskatchewan Consols' winner, lead 7-3 at the end of the sixth end and maintain this lead until the 11th, when Wood came back with a five ender to move ahead for the first time.

The Saskatoon rink evened the count on the 13th, but Wood counted one on the extra end to win the match and wind up the Bonspiel.

It was Wood himself who won the match. He came through with one of the most spectacular shots of the entire 'Spiel to count the five points to his rink made on the 11th. He came through again on the 13th with the winning shot after Jack Brower skipping the Henderson rink, had thrown two great draws. Brower's last shot was a shade too heavy to be a good guard, but Wood, after missing completely with his first, still had to take out the Henderson counters and stay in with his own to win.

He did and the game was won.

Trippi Signs $100,000 Pro Contract, Which Red Grange Says Is Peanuts

Chicago, Jan. 17.—(AP)—It was Red Grange on the telephone.

"So this Charley Trippi thinks he's getting the most money in pro football history, eh?" boomed the old Gallop'n' Ghost of Illinois. "Why, that $100,000 contract with the Cardinals is peanuts—absolutely peanuts."

All this was shortly after Trippi announced yesterday in New York that he would sign a contract with Chicago Cardinals for $100,000 to perform for the next four years. Previously the All-American half-back from Georgia apparently was set to play with New York Yankees.

Continued Red, the United States football immortal:

"I mean that $100,000 over a four-season period that Georgia lad is going to sign for amounts to $25,000 per season. Even I can figure that. And I used to get $25,000 or more for one game. That's what I mean by peanuts."

Trippi said in New York that when he signs with the Cardinals "I mean add," said Grange, now a successful insurance executive, "that I am for Trippi 100 per cent. He's not a great future. And I'm not trying to belittle a $100,000 contract 'cause that would be silly. I'm just saying what I made out of the game."

Mills Blocks Guard On Outside Play For Quick-Scoring Illinois Attack

By DOUG MILLS
Illinois Coach

This out-of-bounds play from the side, as shown in accompanying diagram, is based on the principle that the defensive man will concentrate on the ball, leaving the thrower free for an easy shot.

(1) throws to (3), who moves forward to meet the pass. (2) comes up behind the man guarding (1) and blocks him. Meanwhile, (4) cuts for the basket and receives a pass from (3). (5) blocks D and cuts for the basket on the weak side. (4) is the first option in case (1) is not open.

A variation is for (1), after he has worked this play several times, to follow his pass after faking to the basket and take a pass from a lay-up.

Circo: H. Twyman, L. Gilles, R. Caunter, H. Griffith, E. Roy, E. Singlet and J. Richardson.

Sherbrooke Meets Tigers Tomorrow; Tangle With Saints At Home Sunday

Sherbrooke St. Francis Hockey Club, home from the road which took them to Cornwall and Lachine, when they won by scores of 3-0 and 4-2, have a heavy weekend schedule ahead of them.

Tomorrow night the locals travel into Tiger country to hook up with Rollie Herbert's boys and return home for a Sunday afternoon engagement with the Gauls of St. Hyacinthe.

On the last two trips to Victoriaville, Dugre's men split. They won the first encounter 5-4, after a hard fought battle, but lost the other 6-5, after one of the best games of the season seen on Victoriaville ice.

Sunday afternoon the locals will be hosts to the high scoring Gauls of St. Hyacinthe. In their last two tilts the Gauls have denied the twine nineteen times while holding their opponents to five markers. On their last trip to Sherbrooke the Saints went down to 6-5 defeat and will be out seeking revenge.

The locals will be without the services of fleet-footed Bernard Lauzon, who received a broken toe at Verdun last Sunday. He was struck by one of Tony Demer's shots, and will be out of action for at least ten days. Syd Wright is still at home in St. Catharines, Ont., and it is doubtful whether he will see any action for some time to come.

Coach Dugre has his team rolling along in high gear and they will be out fighting to extend and maintain their lead on top of Ernest Comte's loop.

Vancouver, Jan. 17.—(AP)—One of the Pacific coast's most ardent supporters of English rugby—68-year-old Lancashire born Harry W. Maloney—is back from a tour of Australia and still convinced that his pet sport is the most civilizing influence on earth.

Mr. Maloney, former rugby coach at Stanford University in California, went to Australia to examine the possibility of exchanging university students between the two countries. But the rugged "missionary" also managed to do considerable rugby spade work.

He just "happened to drop in on the New South Wales Rugby Union while in Australia and ended up arranging matches here and in California for an Australian international team in 1948.

Mr. Maloney, who stopped off here enroute for California, said he hoped the "Aussies" would play on the West Coast on their return from an English tour next year. He told warning the Australians to "watch out" for the American Davis Cup team, which eventually won the cup. "They even had me on the wireless about it over there."

Although interested in many other activities, he said his first love was still English Rugby. "After all, it's the only amateur game left. It's the finest game to play and the finest game to watch—and I'm glad to be called a missionary in such a great cause."
