A GLIMPSE OF THE OLD CHURCH.

The site of Williamstown was a grant from the Crown to Sir John Johnson, and the village was so named in memory of Sir John's father, Sir William Johnson, who died in 1744, just before the breaking out of the war of the Revolution.

THE SIXPENNY DOCTOR

(By Evelyn Orchard, in the 'British Weekly'.)

Archibald Goss was a sixpenny doctor. Lest there should be any who do not know what that means, it may be briefly explained that a sixpenny doctor is a properly qualified medical man, who, for the modest sum of sixpence, gives advice and medicine at his surgery. For two sixpences he will pay a visit to a patient in his own home, and give medicine without further charge, provided it is called for. The sixpenny doctor only flourishes in the quarters of the poor, where he is most needed and, generally, is most appreciated. There are different sorts of sixpenny doctors, some of them dear at the price. But among them there is one who, in the opinion of Paris, of exceptional skill, of rare sympathy and insight. To the latter class Goss belonged. How did he come there when he was fitted by nature to shine in his profession, when, given opportunity, he could have risen to its topmost height? Simply because at the start opportunity was lacking. It generally is, or there would not be any sixpenny doctors. It is not to be thought for a moment that any man who honors his profession would like to prosecute it on these lines. There was an orphan and had been grudgingly brought up by an uncle likewise in the medical profession. He had intended him as a cheap assistant for himself, but had been called from the scene of his labors before he realized this economical idea, and his practice was sold for the benefit of the widow. Goss had then still a year of his study to put in, and he managed it by unheard-of labor and exertion. Then he hired out as an assistant, served for two years, and, finally, seeing no prospect of advancement, started, what in technical parlance is known as a 'sixpenny go' in Limerhouse Road.

He rented a small-front shop, with a room behind, and two above, and there he lived and moved and had his being, and became extraordinarily popular. He was one of the cleverest doctors in the East End, and his surgery was packed at the advertised hours. He had now to hire an old brougham for two hours in the day to get through his visits, and he was saving money fast. He was a singularly lonely man. He had only a casual acquaintance with his medical brethren in the neighborhood, most of whom were jealous of him, and abused him whenever they had a chance. Goss was a great favorite among women, but knew none of his own class, except occasional nurses he would meet out at cases. And for nurses as a class he did not care. One day, however, something happened to change the current of his life, and to pull him up to a sense of how time was passing, and how little he was making of his life, judged by the ordinary standards. It was his thirty-fifth birthday, and he remembered the fact in rather a melancholy fashion as he sat down to his solitary tea. He had not remembered the birthday; he did not suppose a soul in the world knew it except himself. He had now a middle-aged housekeeper called Julia, who adored him and watched over him with anxious manliness. It was owing to her that he had a good deal of comfort now in his little home. Julia lived in the attic which before had not been considered habitable. But her capable hands had wrought wonders up there. He was about half-way through his tea, when Julia appeared with her hands full of a letter from the 'Osteo-pathic Doctor, the one they call Sister Mary.'

'What does she want, and what does she want?' he asked, with his mouth full. He was, perhaps, not very particular about his manners now, there being nobody but the dog in the house, and he was not very particular. 'Well, ask her to wait a minute in the surgery. Anybody else?' 'No, sir.'

'Right-o,' he answered, and made haste to finish his tea. It was the first meal he had had since breakfast, and he was enjoying it. He kept Sister Mary waiting about five minutes, and when he had done so, for she seemed tired, and there was something very pathetic about her eyes. She smiled, however, as he entered, and he knew what a sweet face it was. He knew what a fine work it did in a very sad and needy area, but he was certain he had never seen her before. 'Well, what is it?' he asked a little brusquely. Sixpenny doctors nearly always have brusque manners, there being no time for courtesy in their engagements. But he had the faintest glimmer of gray eyes, which so fervently belied his curt speech, that nobody ever dreamed of being afraid of him.

'I've come to see you, Doctor, about my own case. I haven't been well for ever so long, and I hear everywhere how miracles you work. I wish you would work one on me.'

'What's the matter?' he asked as he sat down in front of her, in the bare, dismal little room, with its close smell of disinfectants and nauseous drugs. She tapped her chest, and, of a sudden, her eyes, her own eyes, filled with tears. Goss was not altogether unused to tears, because he saw them frequently, and sometimes, metaphorically speaking, dried them. There was something about the creature in front of him which appealed mightily to his heart. 'Oh, don't let go,' he said brightly. 'Get a bit of a cold; sitting tight, perhaps? Just undo your things, and let's see.'

'It was the month of November, and a typical winter day. If there was not actually fog outside, there was a sort of grey pall; and the cold was intense. I'm not very strong; I never have been, and last winter I was laid off for two months,' said Sister Mary. 'They can't afford to let me lose that time this winter, I know, and if I'm going to be laid off, I shall have to resign my post at St. Etheldreds.'

OUT-DOOR GARMENTS. The girl who goes a-camping with an outfit like this in her suit case will be sure of a glorious vacation, as far as out-of-door fun is concerned. The frock is made of khaki, with a knotted neckerchief of black silk and a stitched cloth hat. White pique washes well and is just now very fashionable. This frock for a young girl is of heavy wale plaid, sometimes called cotton broad cord, and the skirt is short enough to show buttoned boots of white buckskin.

and it's just possible it might turn out better than we expect, when we get there to the sun.' Mary Thelsson, still flushed, and a little startled, met his eyes with a long searching look. Then she smiled. 'I do believe that we must have met in some former state, for I don't feel a bit surprised. Yes, I'll come.'

It turned out well. They live in Westmore street now, and they are happier than many people who take years to make up their minds to the matrimonial venture. But then as it happened, the sixpenny doctor was the right stuff.

LOOK ABOUT YOU. Did you ever see a pigeon hopping along the path? Did you ever see a sparrow walk to his outdoor bath? Did you ever see a pigeon's nest that had three eggs, or more? Did you ever see a snow-white colt on any hill or shore? Do you know what letter you may read on every leaf of clover? I mean the little meadow kind that grows the whole world over. Did you ever see two four o'clocks that were colored just the same? Or two variegated flowers alike, of any size or name? What animal sleeps standing? You may meet him in the street? How many loes has Pussy on all her little feet? If you can tell me all these things, and I must confess I doubt you, you may say you've earned the lesson well, to observe small things about you. 'Youth's Companion.'

CULLY'S BONE. Cully is a large St. Bernard dog. Usually he lives on milk and dog biscuit, but sometimes he thinks a nice bone would taste well. Then he goes to call on Mr. Brown, the family butcher. Cully is very particular. He will not take his bone home unless it is wrapped up in brown paper. One day Mr. Brown picked out a fine bone and said: 'Here's your bone, Cully. I'll fix it up for you now.' You put on too many airs! Then he turned away to serve a customer, and forgot all about the dog. It was almost dinner time when he noticed Cully lying in the corner, patiently waiting for the bone to be wrapped up. 'Have you been waiting all this time?' said the butcher. 'Well, how are you to-day?' he asked cheerfully. Cully wagged his tail gratefully and started home. He always went across the field instead of by the road when he had a bone, to avoid the other dogs, who were apt to be curious. When he got home he went straight to the kitchen to have his bone baked. 'Alas for Cully!' the cook was busy and cross. 'I can't bother with your bone,' she told him. When Nan came out to hunt for her pet, she found him still waiting. 'You poor doggie!' she cried. 'I'll bake your bone for you.' When it was done, what do you think Cully did with it? He took it out into the garden and buried it in his own particular corner where he stored his luncheons. Then he hurried off to play with the dog next door—'Our Lambie.'

THE HOURS. The morning is the time for play. When all our dreams we fold away. The noontide is the hour for rest. And then we dream the good is best. The evening is the tender time. For storied fable all in rhyme. The night is when we dream so deep. That every fear is drawn in sleep. 'The Child's Hour.'

WHAT SAITH THE SCRIPTURE? July 19. Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom.—Luke xii. 32. In the floods of tribulation. While the billows o'er me roll, Jesus whispers consolation, And supports my fainting soul. Seek not ye what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, neither be ye of doubtful mind; for the Father knoweth of God, and all these things shall be added unto you.—Luke xii. 29, 31.

Text: 'Suffragettes chartered small boats at Shelburne, about seven miles from Dublin, with a view of making a demonstration on the arrival of the Premier's boat, but were prevented from doing so by the vigilance of the authorities. A serious affair, seemingly of suffragette origin, occurred, however, at the Theatre Royal, where Mr. Asquith will speak to-night, during an entertainment, a blazing chair, apparently oil-soaked, was thrown from a box into the orchestra. The curtain of the box caught on fire and the audience was thrown into a panic. Attempts to extinguish the flames, and order was restored. A woman who occupied the box, made her escape from the theatre. Another outrage occurred while the procession was passing Princess Street. A woman threw a hatchet at the Premier's carriage, but nobody was injured.'

Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, and the Lord Mayor of Dublin, proceeded to an elaborately decorated balcony, where Mr. Redmond publicly welcomed the Premier. Great crowds gathered in the street and gave the Premier an ovation. Mr. Asquith, in a brief speech, said that this was the first time the chief minister of the British Government had visited Ireland since the Act of Union, and it was beyond his power adequately to thank the people for their magnificent and memorable welcome. He announced his mission of peace between the artificially estranged peoples. They would not forget Grattan and Parnell now that they were entering into the fruits of the labors of these men. The Premier said that he was the ambassador of a treaty of perpetual peace between Ireland and Great Britain, and he assured the Irish people in behalf of the Liberal party and British democracy that they meant to bring their cause to a speedy issue. It was at first reported that the hatchet struck Mr. Redmond, the Nationalist leader, on the head, but this proved to be erroneous. The English suffragettes handed in a statement at the offices of the Irish Times, in which they declared they had come to Ireland with a full sense of the responsibility of having accepted the challenge of the Right Hon. C. E. Hobhouse, chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, by burning an English castle, but a Dublin theatre.'

Chairman Carlisle, of the Legislature, wired Felder to be held in custody with Beik and Reed, but they refused to go. 'Until Blaise's term of office expires, we would not care to go into South Carolina to give testimony for the State,' said Felder. 'I have received scores of threats from South Carolina and with these I would not care to go into South Carolina. I think you will see how I feel.' In a Game Which Was Full of Brilliant Plays the Royals Took the Game From the Bisons by a Score of 5 to 4.

NOT A HIT WAS MADE AFTER THE SIXTH INNING, ALTHOUGH THE GOOD FELDING, WHICH WAS A FEATURE OF THE GAME, WAS CONTINUED TO END.

Buffalo, N.Y., July 19.—If the Royals have anything against Manager Lush, they did not show it yesterday, for they played all around the Buffalos, winning by 5 to 4, in a game that was full of splendid plays, and one in which the hitters bled but occasionally with some staggering swats.

Buffalo took the lead again in the fifth on a fluke home run, on the part of Brock. The ball went down into right field and found the only broken picket in the fence. Into this hole it passed, and as Hanford was not a well-claimer, the drive had to go down in the records as a home run, whereas the batter would have been fortunate to get two bases had the spheroid remained in the field.

NATIONALS ANTICIPATE A HARD MATCH WITH THE INDIANS IN TORONTO—KENNEDY EXPECTS TO LAND TWO CORNWALL MEN FOR TO-MORROW'S LOCAL MATCH WITH TORONTO.

The finishing touches were put on the local N. L. U. teams last evening in preparation for the matches scheduled for to-morrow afternoon. The Shamrocks are putting forth Herculean efforts to place in the field against the Indians their strongest possibilities.

noon there will be two, or perhaps three, new men on the team. The locals have got to win on Saturday if they want to be in the running, and while they are going better now than at any time this season, no Canadians realize that if they defeat the Shamrocks on Saturday they will have a fair chance of winning even in the season because the Shamrocks are not the best of the season.

JUNE SHIPPING DECREASED

London Dock Strike Had Material Effect on Trade of the Port

Due chiefly to the London Dock strike, the tonnage of ocean-going vessels which entered the port of Montreal from the beginning of the season to the first of July is nearly 15,000 tons less than for the same period last year.

The following table shows the tonnage of vessels entering the port for the last four years between the opening of navigation until the first of July of each year.

1911	242,732,610
1912	227,741,265

Only 54 ocean steamers visited Montreal during June, as compared with 72 during May. The decrease is due chiefly to the strike in London.

Imports during June produced a revenue of $37,000, as compared with $42,000 for June, 1911. Exports produced the same revenue during June, 1912, as June, 1911, being $14,000.

This means that the revenue produced by the port for June, 1912, was $5,000 less than June, 1911.

The wharfing for local traffic reports that his receipts from this source during June, 1912, were $14,003.33, as compared with $10,658.45, for June, 1911.

This gives a grand total of $124,198.42 for the revenue from the port since the opening of navigation until July 1st. The grand total for the same period of last year was $118,989.02, being an increase of $5,199.40.

LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEERS DOUBLY RESPONSIBLE

New York, July 19.—Engineers who operate heavy traction locomotives of the Mallet type, a combination of two ordinary locomotives, were witnesses called at the session at Manhattan Beach yesterday of the arbitration commission which is seeking to adjust the wages of the engineers.

Mr. Warren S. Stone, chief of the locomotive engineers, placed these men on the stand to show how the advance in modern railwaying had added to the duties and responsibilities of the men at the throttle. He brought out the fact that many railways had coupled together two heavy freight engines to form one monster locomotive which could be operated by a single engineer. He said that this engineer, who bore double responsibility, is paid only a slight advance over engineers on seven engines. The men ask that seven days be paid for this work.

MOUNT ROYAL HOTEL SITE IS NOT SOLD

The Mount Royal Hotel Company property, situated on the south-east corner of St. Catherine and Peel streets, has not been sold yet. An evening paper reported the sale of the property for over one and a quarter million dollars, but the company, which has the corner in charge, denied this morning that the big block had been disposed of. As was stated exclusively in the 'Witness' some time ago, negotiations are under way for the sale of the property, but nothing has been concluded yet.

It has been well-known in real estate circles for a week past that an offer of something like $65 per foot had been made for the block, but that offer has not been accepted. At one time the block was held at $75 per square foot, but that was too high and the lower offer of $65 was considered finally.

The property is considered one of the best business sites in the city. It has a frontage of 113 feet on St. Catherine street, and a depth on Peel street of 170 feet, giving it a superficial area of 19,270 square feet. At the rate that was offered for it—$65 per square foot—the price will figure out at about $1,252,000. The offer of $65, if accepted by the directors, will establish a new record for up-town values, as the highest obtained hitherto has been $61.25 for the fire hall property near the corner of Bleury and St. Catherine streets.

The property has had a rapid rise in value in recent years. Mr. J. A. Jacobs purchased it a few years ago for $480,000. He, in turn, sold it for $850,000. It was sold to the hotel company for $850,000, so that the offer now under consideration would mean a profit of about $400,000 on the investment of a little over a year.

MAN LAY DEAD UNDER MERRY-GO-ROUND

Toronto, July 19.—Seated under the platform surrounding the merry-go-round at Scarborough Beach, where thousands of pleasure seekers pass daily, the dead body of Walter Leroux, missing from his home since Sunday, was found yesterday afternoon by workmen engaged in repairing the structure.

A strong odor of carbolic acid at first led the police to believe that he had committed suicide, but careful search failed to locate the bottle. There were no marks of violence on the body, and an autopsy will be necessary to determine the cause of death. He was about 36 years old and lived with his mother. He left home on Sunday afternoon without saying where he was going.

NEW ROSS AMMUNITION

At Macdonald College last night a reception was given by the bachelor members of the staff in honor of the Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Bates and Mrs. Muldrew. Mr. Bates was to leave this morning for Regina, where he will take up his duties as professor at the college. Professor Killick spoke in eulogy of Mr. and Mrs. Bates, and Professor Lochhead of Mrs. Muldrew. Mr. Bates replied, expressing their high appreciation of the kindness of the staff. Dr. Harrison also spoke, and the gathering sang 'Auld Lang Syne.' Mr. Jull acted as chairman, and received with Miss Macmillan. There was a musical programme and refreshments were served.

A number came to the train this morning to see Mr. and Mrs. Bates and Mrs. Muldrew off.

TORONTO WILL PROBE DETECTIVE DEPARTMENT

Toronto, July 19.—The 'News' says: 'According to information received this morning, there is every probability of an early investigation of the Board of Police Commissioners into the disclosures at the recent sessions of the Farmers' Bank inquiry regarding the alleged loss in manner in which important documents were handled by the detective department.'

PRESERVING B. C. FORESTS.

That great interest is being taken in the preservation of British Columbia's forests is the word brought from the Pacific Coast by Mr. James Lawrence, secretary of the Canadian Forestry Association, Ottawa, who is in Montreal arranging for the next Dominion Forestry Convention which will be held in Victoria, B.C., Sept. 4, 5 and 6. It is expected that there will be special railway rates in force, and already a number of residents of Quebec have signified their intention of attending.

WATER FOR STE. CECILIE.

The Board of Control has recommended the spending of $26,000 on water mains for Ste. Cecile parish in St. Denis ward. Superintendent Lesage reported against the delivery of water in barrels in this district as being too expensive and likely to lead to similar requests from other outlying sections. Stand pipes have been put in where the people can come to get water.

THEATRES FIGHT UNION.

New York, July 19.—The Association of Theatre Managers of Greater New York yesterday announced that the Manhattan and Brooklyn theatres, by its members, there will be no union orchestras next season.

EXPECTS BIG WHEAT CROP.

A bumper wheat crop of between two hundred and twenty-five and two hundred and fifty thousand bushels is predicted for the west by Mr. J. H. Smith, the general land agent of the U. S. R. at Toronto. The land sales of the railway show an increase of about 25 per cent. over those of last year.

UNITED STATES TO PROBE ALLEGED RUBBER ATROCITIES

Consul Appointed in Peru for Express Purpose of Investigating Crimes Claimed by Great Britain to Have Been Committed.

Washington, D.C., July 19.—The United States is co-operating effectively in the effort being made by Great Britain to lay bare all the facts and conditions, in regard to the oppression and murder of natives employed in the Putumayo Rubber country in Peru. Stuart J. Fuller, formerly Consul at Pinar, Sweden, and Vice-Consul at Naples, has been appointed consul at Iquitos, Peru, for the express purpose of investigating fully the rubber region and reporting to the State Department on the alleged atrocities committed there on the men and women engaged in getting rubber.

Mr. Fuller is an Iowa man, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, and of distinguished ability. His instructions will meet him at Para, he having gone directly from Sweden to the Upper Amazon country.

The attitude of this Government toward the situation in Putumayo is that Peru should be given a chance to clean up the affair in her own way. But there is no disposition to tolerate any longer the commission of the crimes that are known to have been common in the persecution of the rubber industry.

The Rubber country is in a terra incognita, far from civilization, and the Peruvian authorities have great difficulty in keeping order there at best. It is impossible to send men from Lima to Putumayo with imperfect communication it is not easy to get evidence or to apprehend the men who commit the crimes complained of by the natives. The British Consul-General at Rio, General Sir Richard Casement, has been able to penetrate the jungle and get more of the actual conditions than anyone else, but the work of a recent commission sent into the Rubber country has verified the charges made by Sir Richard.

The region in particular, is in dispute, Columbia and Brazil both claiming against Peru, and there are few officials and no adequate force to prevent the cruel atrocities that have been reported. There has been a long correspondence between the Government of Peru and the United States in regard to the matter, and this Government has been asked by the British Office to be permitted to allow the transportation or entrance of the British Consul at Iquitos, Peru, under the lead of Sir Richard Casement.

In this request, Secretary Knox gave his consent, and when the further investigation to be made by Consul Fuller is completed, the results will be made public.

The British Government has from the first complaints shown a prompt desire to deal with the criminals in a strong and effective manner, but it has been hampered by the natural difficulties of the situation. Great distance, the pathless character of the country and the uncivilized population, all combine to make the correction of the evil slow and arduous.

Consul Fuller has orders to take a launch and go up the Amazon and into the interior, wherever the rubber industry is carried on, and inquire into the methods and conditions of the industry impartially. He will not allow the rubber companies to furnish him with transportation or equipment, and will, as far as is practicable, maintain a wholly unbiased position between all parties concerned and make a fair and judicial report.

Efforts have been made by the United States to get information in regard to the Putumayo atrocities through missionaries who would have been likely to go into the region. But the constitution of Peru permits only the Catholic faith to occupy the country as a mission field, and it has not thus far been practicable to ascertain from any who may have been stationed in the region what the actual facts are.

THE SPECTRE OF ANNEXATION

Mr. Bourassa Claims Quebec Would Enjoy More Extensive Autonomy Under American Union

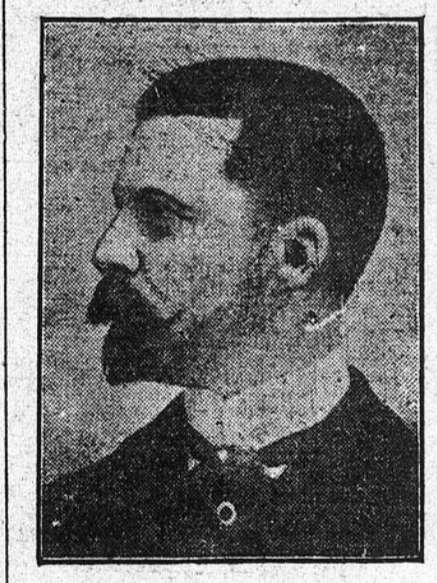

In a third article on the 'Spectre of Annexation' in the 'Devoir' Mr. Henri Bourassa deals with 'The Province of Quebec and Its Privileges.'

'The constitutional position of Quebec,' he says 'is not different from that of the other Provinces of the confederation. Its autonomy, the authority of its Legislature, the jurisdiction of its courts are exactly those of the other Provinces of the East and of British Columbia; except that the English-Protestant minority possess certain additional guarantees of which the French minority in the other Provinces is deprived or of which it has been despoiled—such things as the use of the French language in the Legislature, in pleading, etc.'

The French minority has the same claims in Manitoba and the North West, but the Canadian Parliament under the pretext that the French-Canadians were less numerous than the Anglo-Saxons in Quebec—a quite possible condition—has suggested that to substitute Yiddish for English as the second official language of the Province.

Later he asks: 'If Canada were annexed to the United States, and if Quebec became a state of the American Union which of the rights, privileges, usages, customs and conditions which exist to-day in this Province would be abrogated, lessened or modified in the least degree?'

'The French-Canadians have never thought of suggesting to themselves this question as long as they were in a position to believe that Canada was really their country, to which they owed all their efforts, and which they could claim their part of all the benefits. For some time, however, a new patriotism has been preached, and a new state of things has arisen by which efforts have been made to impose extraordinary sacrifices on behalf of the Empire, and to engulf them in an immense combination of naval and military forces, whose political and strategic direction will remain in the hands of the Government and Parliament of the United Kingdom. By, in fact, a long series of concessions and humiliations, which appear to see no end they are forced to admit that their reserves here in Quebec they possess no more privileges than in the United States, and that they are even treated with less regard by the Anglo-Saxon 'brothers' than their compatriots emigrated to the United States are by the descendants of the Bostonians, the secular enemy against whom they defended the integrity of the Canadian soil and the honor of the British flag. We are told by the submissive that you will adore our gods, then you will fall into the imperial treasury. Aid us to defend Belgian neutrality, save France and cry 'God Save the Emperor' and the greatest humiliations without saying a word in Ontario and the West, for all this is the very modest price of being a subject of the great empire which the world has never seen, and on which the sun never sets. If you refuse to adore our gods, then you will fall into eternal perdition, and the abominable

ASK STORES TO HELP Ways of Assisting the Child Welfare Exhibition.

In addition to the Child Welfare Exhibition in the Drill Hall next October, it is planned to make the two weeks of the exhibition Child Welfare weeks for Montreal by having additional exhibitions in the various stores. It is suggested, and the promoters are endeavoring to arrange, that when a store sells anything forming part of the exhibition, that store should arrange to have the exhibition in its windows. In this way the exhibition will be made as widespread as possible, and so the full benefits be reaped.

Preparations are proceeding rapidly and already are well advanced. Some sixty local societies have so far agreed to co-operate, and there will be no lack of exhibitors. Numerous screens and photographs are being prepared in addition to the exhibits for the stalls, and when the Child Welfare Exhibition opens on October 8th Montrealers will be presented with what is, for Montreal, an unique lesson on the child problem in the 'big city.'

Not the least benefit resulting from the Montreal exhibition will be the encouragement given other cities; and already requests are coming in for information and for help in organizing like projects. The movement will, it is hoped, spread all over Canada as it has done and is doing over the United States. The Montreal Child Welfare Exhibition will not be merely local. It will have an appeal for the whole of Canada, and visitors are expected from many districts besides Montreal. The exhibition is an educational gift to the people, and education is the return it must produce. It is for the people's children, and the people must come.
