Through verdant meadows straying,
 In vain the fields I tread;
 Kind fate each day I'm praying,
 Of life to cut the thread.
 Come, come, &c.

En vain dans la prairie
 Tous les matins j'accours
 Ah! de ma triste vie
 Il faut trancher le cours.
 Viens, viens, &c.

2

Many a lady, high in station,
Whose absent lord his wife had told,
If you do ride for recreation,
None drives but this Postillion bold.
His horses promptly obey his will,
When the trusty reins he's seizing;
There's perfect safety in his skill,
His overturns are not unpleasing.
Oh, oh, &c.

3

Late in the night the village leaving,
To take some trav'lers on their way,
Home he quitted, many grieving
Vainly at his lengthened stay.
No more he roves to ev'ry flower,
His days of gallantry are done,
He that o'er many hearts had power,
Now has become the slave of one.
Oh, oh, &c.

2

Mainte Dame de haut parage
En l'absence de son mari,
Exprès se metait en voyage,
Pour être conduite par lui.

Aux procédés toujours fidèle
On sayait qu'adroit Postillon,
S'il versait parfois une belle
Ce n'était que sur le gazon.
Oh, oh, &c.

3

Mais pour conduire un équipage
Voilà qu'un soir il est parti,
Depuis ce temps dans le village,
On n'entend plu parler de lui.
Mais ne déplorez pas sa perte
Car de l'himen suivant la loi,
La Reine d'une ile déserte
De ses sujets la nommé roi.
Oh, oh, &c.
