Hot Jazz Trio launches CD

Mike McDevitt
SHERBROOKE

Despite its importance in the development of almost all forms of modern music, jazz remains, in general, the domain of the dedicated passionate few. It is always a pleasure, therefore, when jazz music emerges that satisfies both the demanding nature of jazz purists while bridging the gap between jazz and more mainstream musical styles.

In Shuffletown Blue, the first release from local band Hot Jazz Trio, this mission is accomplished admirably.

Made up of guitarist Andrew Paul MacDonald, percussionist Kevin Sullivan and bassman Guy Breton, Hot Jazz trio offers up a contemporary blend of traditional jazz, blues and pop that takes the listener on a pleasant journey into the possibilities of modern virtuoso performances.

MacDonald, best known for his classical compositions, seems to take the lead on this 15-track introduction, as the CD opens with his gritty, blues-rock title track. Here we get to hear MacDonald laying down some gritty virtuoso licks on top of a hard rocking Chicago style blues.

Juno-award winner MacDonald composed seven of the album's numbers and demonstrates with each his varied musical interests and influences, appearing to relish the freedom that jazz stylings offer, compared to the structural rigidity required in orchestral compositions.

Community radio plays key role in community

I attended the annual general meeting of ARCQ (L'Association des radiodiffuseurs communautaires du Québec), of which CJMQ is a member. There are 39 community radio stations across Quebec and 34 of these stations are members of ARCQ. The convention was attended by 31 of the 34 member stations, an excellent turnout.

Needless to say I learned a lot at this four day convention. There were representatives from the Federal and Provincial governments, as well as vendors and service providers.

There were many sessions dealing with many aspects of radio broadcasting. To me some of the most interesting information was the extent to which local community radio stations contribute to the daily lives of our communities.

Each year community stations produce thousands of hours of local news and sports coverage, interviews with members of the community, interviews with local public officials, public service announcements, public safety advisories, local community events, interviews with local artists, and the list goes on.

Community radio is the broadcaster that is the closest to the citizens of the regions we cover. We have the mandate not only to inform and entertain, but also solicit participation of individuals, including training and support. No other broadcaster has such an encompassing mission. Your involvement and commitment to your local broadcaster is what will assure our continued escalation of services and opportunities provided.

Our upcoming fund raising drive is your opportunity to demonstrate this support. All contributions are important to us and by becoming a member of CJMQ 88.9 FM you are supporting a local endeavour for you and by you that is devoted to talking about our shared challenges, achievements, events and the reality within which we exist as members of the Eastern Townships.

Be sure to tune in during our campaign from November 13th to the 23rd, we greatly appreciate your generous support.

Everyone who donates 50$ or more will receive a pizza donated by Domino's Pizza, as we help them to celebrate their 5 year anniversary at their Sherbrooke location.

Exhibit emphasizes effects of lighting

Joe Strizzi
MAGOG

Magog artist Pierre (Pino) Noel explores the realm of visual arts with his latest works, delving into the world of wood, leather, and glass sculpture. His art stems from the natural, inspired by Nordic and boreal themes, exploring the effects of light on sculpture like moonlight in the forest, and until November 30th, his work will be on display at the Galerie des artistes du Canton in Magog.

"It's hard to describe what my artwork is like," said Noel. "Seeing a picture or photo doesn't do it justice. To capture the true feeling, you have to be there in person, to experience the effects of different lighting on the sculptures, and to get a feel for the natural. You can even touch the work, feel the suppleness of the leather for example, and experience art through different senses."

After studying Arts at the Cegep de Sherbrooke in the 1970's, Noel made his mark as an artist and clown in the region before heading north to Lac St-Jean, where his love for nature and the art in existence was born.

Approximately 15 pieces will be on display, all with specific lighting in order to achieve a feeling of the shapes, forms, and senses of the outdoors.

The gallery is open from Thursday to Sunday, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 5 p.m., and Noel's show runs until November 30th.

An appointment to visit with the artist is also possible through the gallery, located at 52 Laurier, Place du Commerce in Magog, 819-868-1881.

Making it in the music industry is 'Hardluck'

Music

New Sherbrooke rock band have their work cut out for them

Legendary singer-songwriter Stevie Wonder once said that "music is a world within itself, with a language we all understand," and if you happen to agree with him, then Sherbrooke's newly formed rock group Hardluck Battleground is a band whose name alone speaks volumes about a band just trying to break into the exclusive world that is the music industry.

"Becoming a professional band is tough," said lead singer and guitarist Nik Roy. "All four of us (band members) have played in other bands, trying to make it, and things just didn't work out. You have a lot of struggling to do before you can see any success, and you need a lot of luck. That's how we chose our name. Breaking into the music business is like fighting a battle. Life is full of ups and downs, laced with a little bit of hard luck."

Roy, along with bandmates Chris Crooke (vocals, guitar), Matt Gilbert (bass), and Ivan Paré (drums) have seen their fair share of downs, playing in local dives no bigger than Britney Spears limo, and nowhere near as clean.

What makes it even harder for a band the likes of Battleground in making it, whose wide array of influences include Rage Against The Machine, The Ramones, and Johnny Cash, is that they live in Sherbrooke.

"We don't have the resources that a band out in Montreal or Toronto might have to get noticed. The Anglophone population here is small, and there aren't as many venues to play at. To top it all off, we don't play mainstream music. We have a particular sound that would appeal a particular group," Roy said.

Despite Roy, Crooke, Gilbert going to Alexander Galt High School together in 1997-98, where Roy and Gilbert played in the school rock band together, they didn't come together as a group until early this year.

"We all had our own projects and were in different bands," said Roy. "Ivan (Paré) and I were in another band together. When we stopped playing as a band, Ivan and I decided to start a new band as a project of our own, just jamming together in August 2007. Then, Chris (Crooke), who saw our first band play, joined the group in March of this year after jamming with us, and finally Matt (Gilbert) in May after doing the same."

So was born Hardluck Battleground, and just after conception, they started playing a few shows around town.

"We played a show on July 1st in Hatley and at a few bars around town, but rehearsal has hit a slight snag," said Gilbert, bringing to light an injury the band's drummer suffered in a work accident. "Ivan broke a finger, but a drummer doesn't need his fingers," joked

Gilbert. "Ivan is a trooper and he'll be back in no time."

Hardluck Battleground, once all members are off the injured reserve list, plan to perfect their sound over the next few months, and then hit spots all over the Townships with their alternative sounds.

"We expressed interest in being part of Fete du Lac des Nations for next year. We are aiming that as our coming out party, after we get our name out there starting in January. There is a lot of competition out there and we have to give 110 per cent every time we play and hope that it catches someone's attention."

nically up to the plate with two compositions of his own, allowing him to contribute interesting rhythmic experimentation on drums. Sullivan also provides some melodic and mellow stylings on the vibraphone - clearly inspired by the late Lionel Hampton.

Bassist Guy Breton demonstrates vividly the virtuosity of this often underappreciated instrument with some high-flying riffs as well as the solid bottom notes which beautifully fill out the trio's sound. With some inspired contributions by pianist Michael Hynes, the band's sound is full, melodic and highly rhythmic.

The album also offers nice arrangements on tunes by such well-known artists as Charlie Parker, Lennie Tristano and Mike Stern. A rendition of the late John Lewis' tribute to legendary guitarist Django Reinhardt is also well worth a listen.

The band officially launched this album at a very well-received concert at Bishop's University's Bandeau Hall, last weekend. We can only hope that the Townships will begin to provide the kind of venues that would allow a healthy, vibrant jazz scene to develop here. While the Townships region has always had a healthy music scene, jazz is one genre that has been severely under-represented. With locally produced recordings like this one emerging, it wouldn't be difficult to imagine. In the meantime, this first release provides a pleasant and enthusiastic blend of several different styles adding up to a wonderful sampling of accessible jazz fusion. Check these guys out.

Rocke Robertson: Surgeon and Shepherd of Change

A biography by Richard W. Pound

Gilles Renaud

JUSTICE, ONTARIO COURT OF JUSTICE
CORNWALL, ONTARIO AND AUSTIN, QUÉBEC

Anyone who has had even a distant connection with McGill University since 1962 owes a debt of gratitude to Dr. Robertson, the principal and vice-chancellor of that world-renowned centre of education from 1962 until 1970. And those who will come to read this well researched and well written account of an extraordinary man's life will be indebted to the author, a distinguished lawyer and a long-serving high official with the International Olympic Committee whose efforts to eradicate doping in sports (and society) are well known. Indeed, Rocke Robertson Surgeon and Shepherd of Change is an admirable account of a distinguished surgeon educated at McGill who completed his medical training in the most difficult graduate school known, the front lines of battle during the Second World War, prior to establishing himself in his profession in Vancouver from where he was recruited to direct the work and progress of his Alma Mater at a critical time for the University and the whole of the English-language institutions of this Province.

With a deft writing style and a talent for describing in an interesting way what might be otherwise perceived as mundane if not dreary administrative and academic affairs and political interventions and protests, Mr. Pound recites the history of McGill from shortly after the start of the not-so-quiet Revolution to the October Crisis and seeks to underscore how the steely resolve and sure hand of its leader, the qualities one expects from a brilliant surgeon, were instrumental in permitting it to survive and to enjoy its international renommée to this day. The author succeeds in combining interesting elements of everyday life at McGill as seen from the top down, such as whether the social mores of contemporary life had evolved sufficiently to justify permitting female cheerleaders to accomplish full cartwheels, to a recitation of certain defining events in our collective memory, not least the setting off of bombs on the campus itself.

The resulting work is interesting and impressive, broad in scope and yet able to point to fine details with a result that the reader is provided with a sound biography of an individual, and of his most important work. But the author goes further and succeeds in setting forth the life and times of Dr. Robertson from his childhood in Victoria when vehicles still traveled on the 'British side', to his travels and studies overseas as a child and to his school years at McGill and his courtship of the woman with whom he shared his life, to then set out his war years and his family life. Mr. Pound had his subject's diary and a great mass of archival information as a base for his biography, and his prior success as a biographer of Chief Justice W.R. Jockett of the Federal Court of Canada and his other excellent publications prepare him for this task, and his painstaking devotion to this enterprise have combined to produce an exceptional biography.

In the last few years, readers interested in the development of McGill and Bishop's (and of Montreal, Sherbrooke and Lennoxville) have been privileged in being able to turn to My Life at the Bar And Beyond, by Alex K. Patterson, [Queen's-McGill University Press], the chancellor of Bishop's University from 1995-2004 and chairman of the Board of McGill from 1990-1994, and to former Québec Court of Appeal Justice Fred Kaufman's book, Searching for Justice, [Osgoode Society for Legal History]. With the recent publication of Rocke Robertson Surgeon and Shepherd of Change, we now have a third invaluable portrait of a recent builder of this Province and a standard bearer for the English-speaking community.

Bishop's becomes Our Town

Theatre

The Bishop's Drama Department is pleased to present Thornton Wilder's celebrated play Our Town from November 12 to 16 at 8 p.m., with a matinee on November 15 at 2 p.m., in the Turner Studio Theatre, Bishop's University in Sherbrooke. The production features senior students under the guidance of guest director Peter Smith. Admission is $8 and tickets are available through the Centennial Box Office or by calling 819-822-9692.

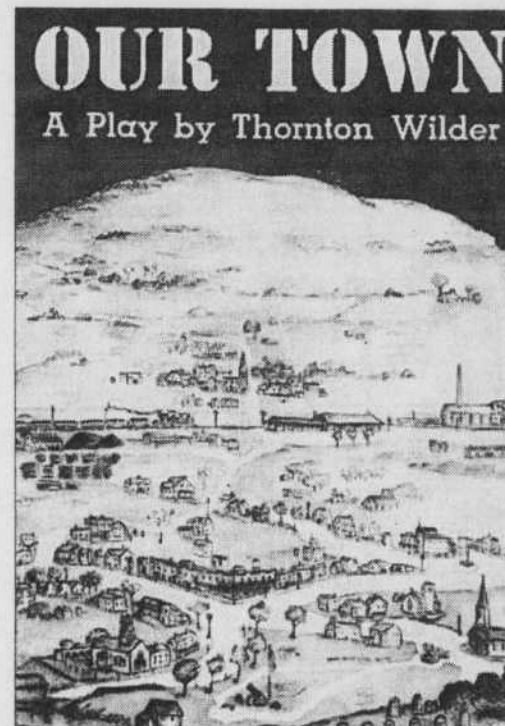

Our Town was first performed in 1938 and became an instant theatre classic. Wilder was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for Drama for the piece that year. Paul Newman played the Stage Manager in an award-winning production on Broadway in 2002. Millions of people have come to the fictional community of Grover's Corners, New Hampshire, and have been taken on a marvel of a ride. The small-town life at the turn of the 20th century reflected in the play is as relevant today as it was when it was first performed. The action is moved forward by the narrator - an enigmatic fellow known only as the Stage Manager. He addresses the audience, plays different parts and along with a great cast of characters takes us on a journey through some incredible landscapes.

For director Peter Smith, the goal of this production is to have the students take ownership of the play. "I want to make Our Town their town," says Smith. "The entire cast is on stage throughout and each actor is in full view, creating the sounds of the town when not involved in a scene. There's really no place to hide. It's great to see the cast one minute making the chicken noises for Mrs. Gibbs back yard and then in a flash become the students charging off late for school." There is a moment in the play when the Stage Manager takes in the audience and says simply, "This is the way we were: in our growing up and in our marrying and in our living and in our dying." That's Our Town - it could also be any other town in the world.

Thornton Wilder is known as one of the great American writers of the 20th century. Author of seven novels, three plays, many essays, one-act plays, and articles, he is the only writer to win Pulitzer Prizes for both literature and drama. His first Pulitzer in 1927 was for his novel, The Bridge of San Luis Rey, and a third one came in 1942 for his play The Skin of Our Teeth. In 1964, his play The Matchmaker was turned into the Broadway musical Hello, Dolly! and went on to win 10 Tony Awards.

Peter Smith is an accomplished actor, director, writer, producer and educator currently living in Toronto. He has performed on stages across Canada, including Theatre Passe Muraille, Canadian Stage, Tarragon Theatre, Belfry Theatre, Blyth Festival, Alberta Theatre Projects, The Centaur, The Piggery Theatre, the National Arts Centre, and the Banff Centre. Smith is former artistic director of the Blyth Festival, the Playwright's Workshop in Montreal, and Associate A.D. at Canadian Stage in Toronto. He has been a guest director at Concordia University, Shakespeare in Action, and the University of Victoria. Currently Smith works as a writer and producer on the Global Television series The Guard. Other television credits include the series Regenesis and The Call and movies 8 Days to Live, Tripping the Wire, and the YTV series The Zack Files.

Costumes for this production are by Helen Rainbird, formerly of Montreal and now residing in Knowlton. Rainbird taught costuming at the National Theatre School for 12 years and has been the resident costume designer at Theatre Lac Brome in Knowlton for the past 15 years. She has designed for

Keith's new album pushes the envelope

Toby Keith is without a doubt, one of the most successful musical performers of his time. He has sold millions of albums since he signed his first record deal, he has won numerous awards from the industry, and is celebrated everywhere by his faithful fans.

Toby Keith was never afraid of a good challenge, so he starred in two successful feature films, and made the list as the top male artist on Forbes' list of the world's best-paid music stars.

The country singer owes his success to his creativity, his hard work and the attention he gives to every project along with the little details that make the difference. Toby Keith also created his own record label, he owns restaurants, and even co-wrote a screenplay.

That sense of pushing the envelope is a quality also found in his new album titled, That Don't Make Me a Bad Guy.

His new album displays Keith's strengths such as being an accomplished songwriter, a great vocalist and producer, all done on a label he created with Show Dog Nashville.

Writing has always been at the very center of his main accomplishments, as he has written almost all of his biggest hits.

It started with his very first single and No. 1, smash 'Should've Been a Cowboy', and extends to his current single,

This new collection is his 13th studio album, and his 5th to be released on his own Show Dog record label. It offers 11 tracks that he wrote or co-wrote with the help of Bobby Pinson, Vicky McGehee and Eddy Raven, some of the best songwriters in Nashville.

This album sure is his most solid effort since the album White Trash With Money. This doesn't take anything away from his more recent releases, which were also quite good in their own right. But this album finds the artist back at the top of his game both lyrically as well as musically.

The first single released, 'She Never Cried In Front Of Me' was a definite hit. The song is about a failed relationship. The girl is unhappy and keeps her pain to herself. The guy doesn't realize it till, it is too late, because she has already moved on to someone new. The 47-year-old Oklahoma native's vocals have never sounded better than on this first single.

The country singer has grown as a producer, and he shows here another side of his personality. He delivers extremely well, with a powerful voice that can convey an array of emotions, other than his redneck pride.

The album includes a slow blues number called 'Missin' Me Some You' on which he shows impressive vocal restraint. This number is about a soldier on duty somewhere in the Middle East and he misses his wife. It is one of the highlights on this album.

COUNTRY CONNECTION

JESSIE AULIS

There's also the Southern rock tune titled 'Cry of the Creole Woman' which finds him unable to avoid the temptations of a voodoo mistress. 'Lost You Anyway' is another song about this guy who finally gets a clue as to how he didn't do enough to keep his lady love around. And now that she's gone, the light finally comes on and he sees what he did wrong.

His attitude is present here, most noticeably in 'Time That It Would Take'. Another fine example is the song 'You Already Love Me'. He knows that she could do better than him. And even if he tends to make her crazy from time to time, she still loves him anyway, no matter what.

There's 'Time That It Would Take', a country rocker, filled with the same attitude usually found on Keith's work. There are lyrics such as 'In the time it would take me to tell you where I've been/ honey, I could take you places you ain't never been before'. While the woman is concerned about where he has been, he is focussing on where he wants to go.

The title track, 'That Don't Make Me A Bad Guy' is a tongue in cheek song. It is a reminder of 'As Good as I Once Was' and it comes as a statement. He's still a good guy, even if he lives his life a little on the wild and crazy side. He doesn't want anyone to hate him because he likes to let it rip and have a little fun.

'God Love Her', his current single, is a powerful, guitar driven song about a 17-year-old girl who is a little wild. She's a preacher's daughter who's in love with the local bad boy. They end-up going to California on his motorcycle in order to get a life together.

Finally, the album closes with a slow sexy rocker called 'I Got It for You Girl'. The song is about getting tangled up in the emotions and in the sheets with the one you love. Keith is convincing when he sings that she rocks his world, and he wants her to know how much she means to him, and how much he needs her in his life.

That Don't Make Me A Bad Guy is a solid country album, as unique as Toby Keith's talents, which every Toby Keith fan will love. The collection is easy to listen to and although he seems more emotional, he manages to do it without breaking his redneck image completely. It shows a human side that is really endearing. Toby Keith has done it again.
