Local Boys Return From Overseas

A number of the soldier boys from overseas have arrived back in Shawville and have been welcomed heartily by their friends in the district.

W.O. Donald McDowell

Warrant Officer Donald McDowell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manson McDowell, had a varied experience overseas and was a prisoner-of-war in Germany for ten months. He enlisted in the army in July, 1940, but in July, 1941, transferred to the Air Force, and after training in Toronto, Guelph, Trenton and Mountain View, went overseas with the rank of Sergeant in April, 1942. As part of the crew of a bomber he made 54 operational trips over enemy territory, and in the last his plane was hit by flak and set on fire, and five of the crew of seven saved their lives by baling out over Hungary. He was made prisoner on July 2, 1944, and placed in a camp in East Germany. As the Russians advanced he was compelled to march with thousands of others to the West for 800 miles, and was liberated by the British on May 2nd, 1945. He was brought by plane to the British Isles on May 8, 1945, and came to Canada in June arriving here last week.

W.O. Beverly Howard

Warrant Officer Beverly Howard, son of Mr. G. A. Howard and the late Mrs. Howard, was also a prisoner-of-war nearly two years. He enlisted in May, 1941, and received his training at Oshawa, Toronto, Aylmer, Ont., and graduated at Mountain View. He proceeded overseas in December of that year as a Sergeant, later receiving promotion to Warrant Officer. While on operations over France, which was then in enemy hands in 1943, his plane crashed and the two of the crew who were saved were made prisoners-of-war and taken to Germany. As the British advanced he was marched inland by his captors, at one time being on the march for 23 days; but was released by the British troops on May 2nd, 1945, and carried by plane to England on May 8th.

Both these boys who were prisoners look well despite their terrible experiences. W.O. Howard has a brother, Dean Howard, who was also taken prisoner while in the Army's march forward in France, but has now been released and expects to arrive home shortly.

L-Sgt. Floyd Little

Lance Sergeant Floyd Little, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Little, arrived home on Sunday. He had enlisted in the Cameron Highlanders, of Ottawa, and without previous training, left Canada with his brother for Iceland with his Regiment. After ten months there, he was transferred to the British Isles. On D-day he landed in France and was through the campaign that carried him into Belgium, Holland and across the Rhine into Germany. He was uninjured, and his friends were glad to welcome him back. His two brothers, L-Cpl. Clarence Little and Tpr. Kenneth Little, are still overseas, but are expected home shortly.

Tpr. Alton Olmstead

Trooper Alton Olmstead, a member of the Sherbrooke Fusiliers, also arrived home on Sunday. Overseas for over four years, he landed in France on D-day, and was all through the campaign in Belgium and Holland that carried through the flooded lands, and North-east to the shores of the North Sea. He received a minor injury, but looks very well. He was attached for some time to the Army Medical Corps, but later saw active service with the Tank Corps. While in England he was married to Miss Edith Plumb, of Wiltshire, who came to Canada a month before her husband, accompanied by her two children, and all are living at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Olmstead, at Austin.

Able Sm'n Alvin Belsler

Able Seaman Alvin Belsler landed home on Monday for 60 days furlough at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Belsler, Yarm. He enlisted in December, 1943, and received training at the Naval Stations at Ottawa and Cornwallis, N.S. He saw service in convoy duty on the corvettes Napanee and Oshawa, his ships doing duty up and down the East coast of America and going sometimes as far as Ireland in this work. His ship is now being decommissioned, but he may see further service in the Pacific.

W.O. Iverson Harris

The latest arrival home is Warrant Officer Iverson Harris, who reached Portage du Fort C.N. Station on Monday night of this week. He was welcomed by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Harris, of Starks Corners and a large number of friends were also at the Station to greet the young airman. W.O. Harris was accompanied by his sister LAW, Laura Harris, R.C.A.F., of Camp Borden. The Equity expects to give further details of the young officer's experiences overseas in a later issue.

Memorial Service Largely Attended

The young flying officer was reported "missing", June 16, 1944, and officially "presumed dead" May 30, 1945.

CHRONICLES of GINGER FARM

By
Gwendoline P. Clarke

Last Friday morning the first thing I did was light the furnace. Nothing remarkable about that you say. Well, no — there wouldn't be back in March or April — but this was June 1. However, don't think I was burning good coal that should be saved for next winter. My fuel was nothing more than chips and cinders — and they made an excellent fire — the only drawback being the number of trips I had to make to the cellar to keep the fire going. But I soon had the house quite comfortable. After all why endure damp, cold rooms when the chipyard needs cleaning up and provides the means of killing two birds with one stone.

I also had to start the brooder fire going again — and that didn't please me at all. After getting the chickens hardened to going without heat I hated the thought of warming the pen up again. However it might have been a case of no heat, no chickens, so I chose the lesser of two evils.

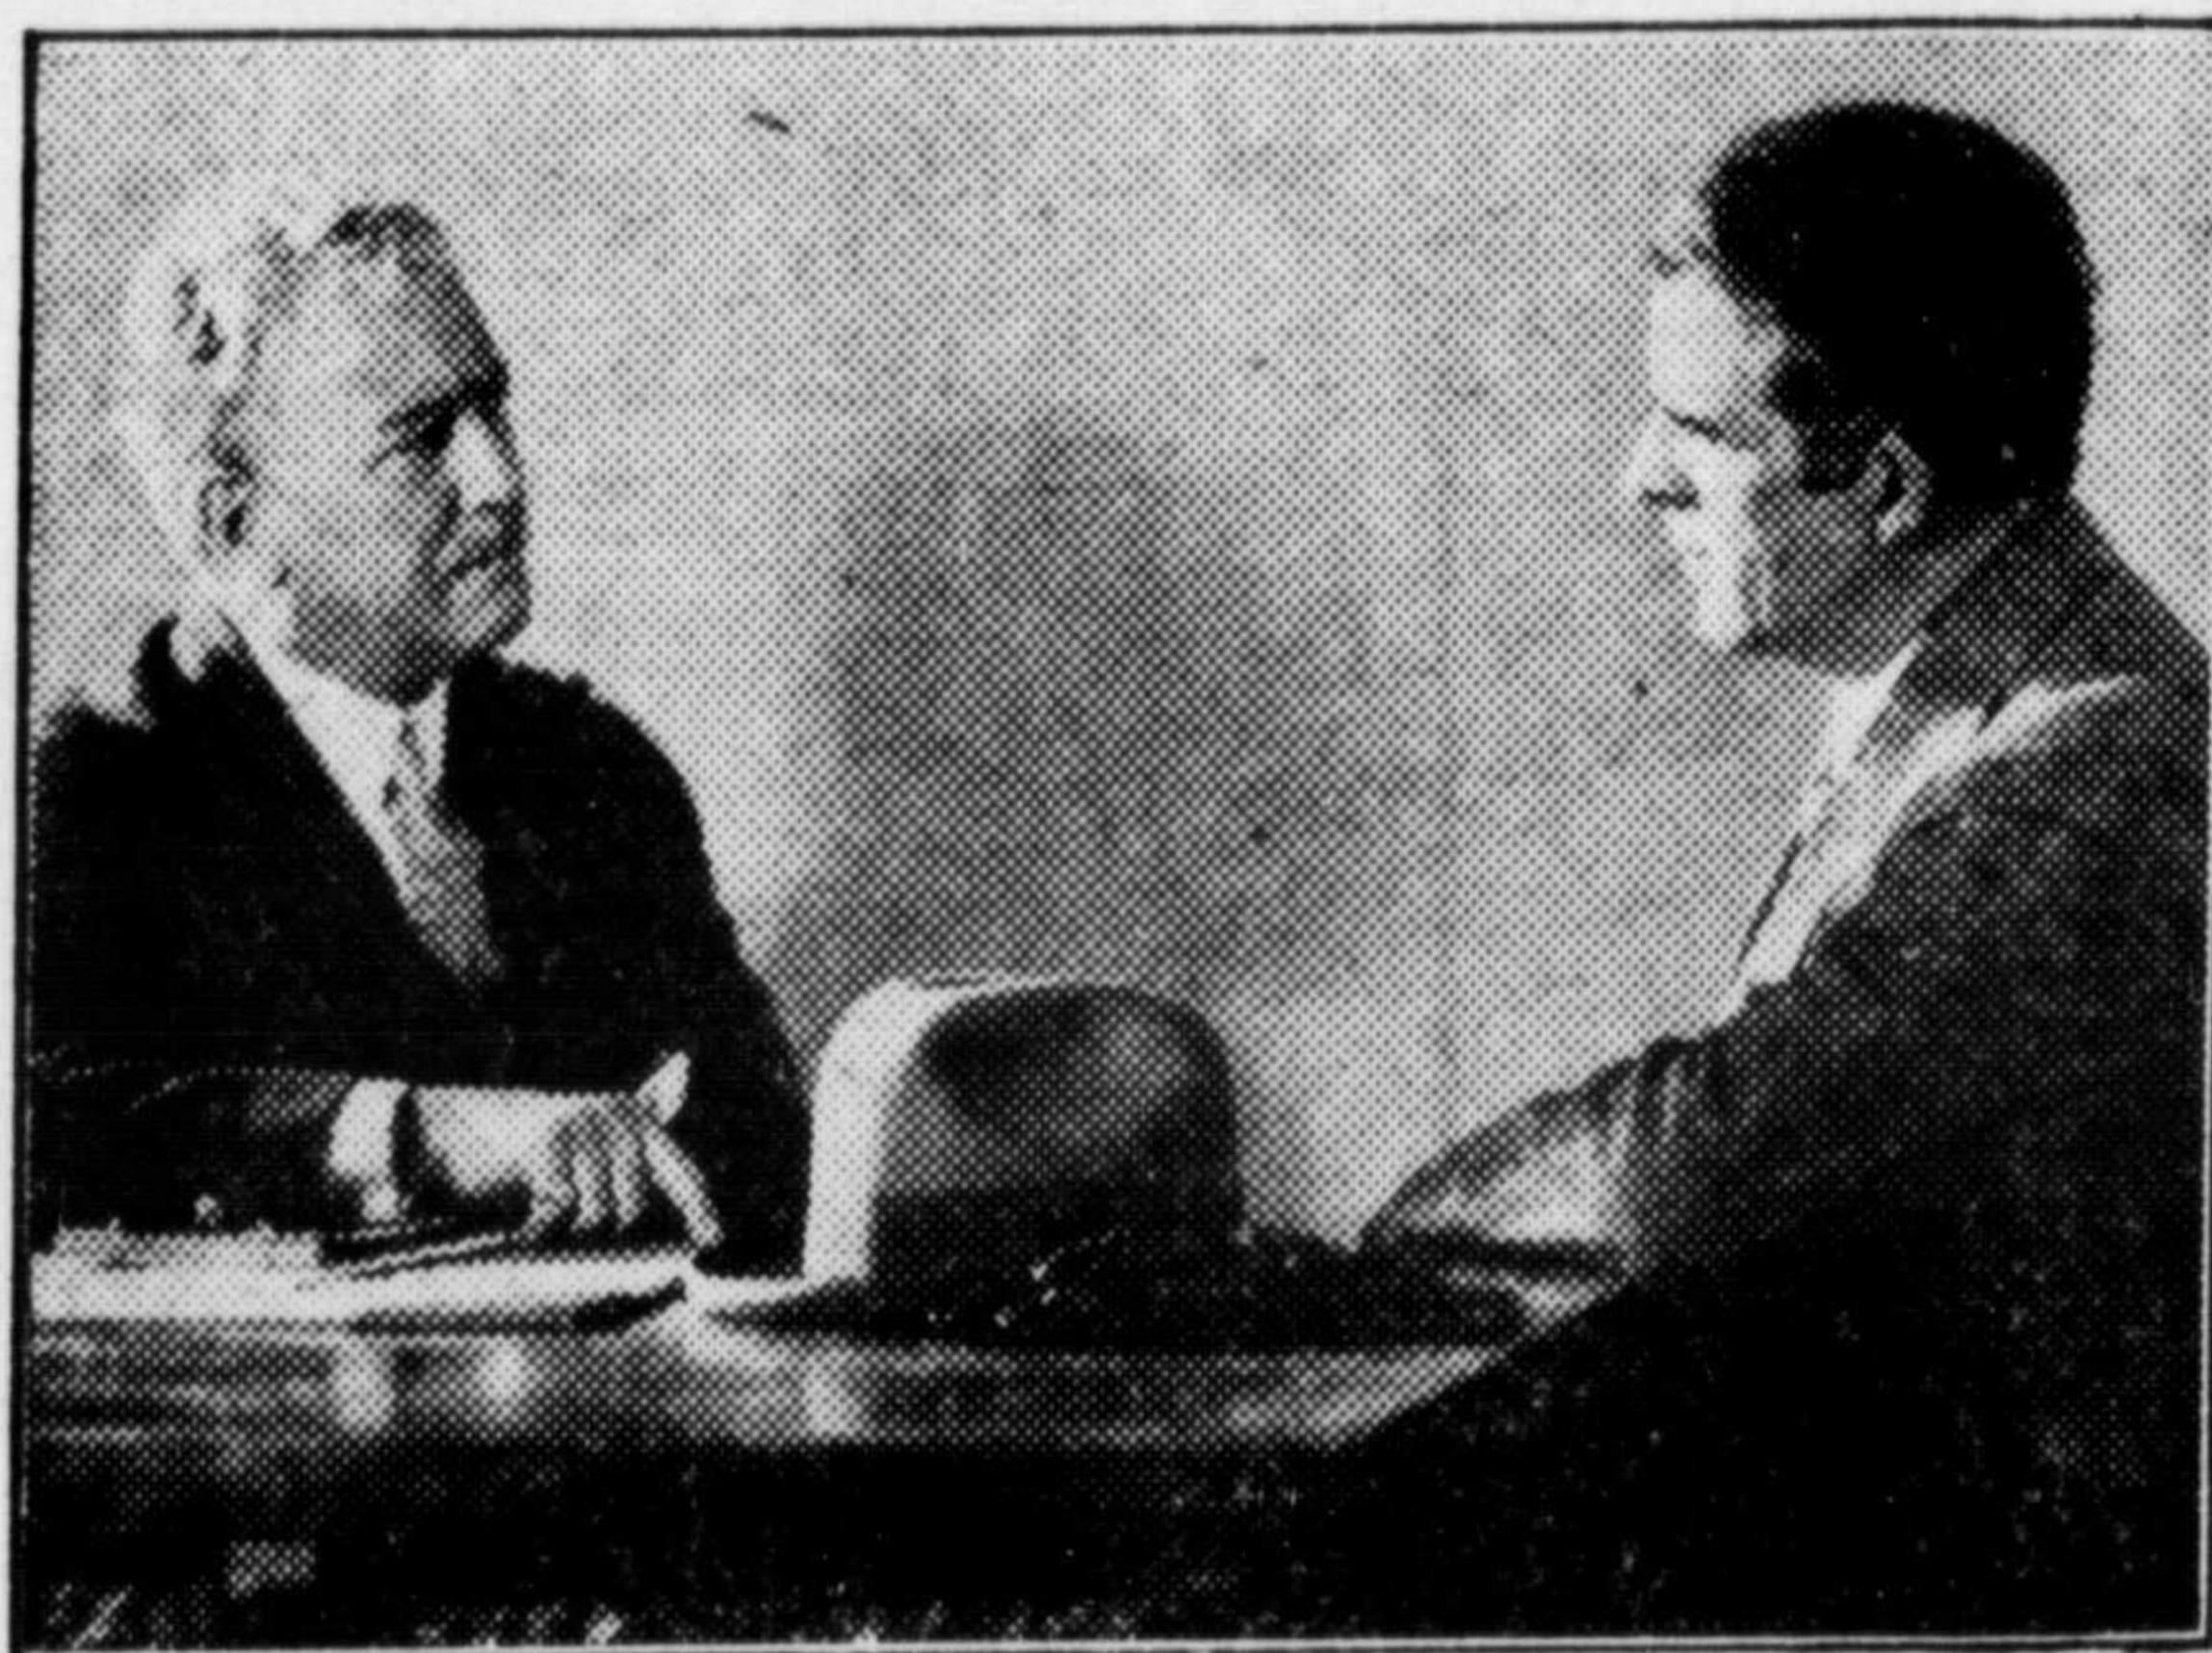

The cattle are out to grass at last — and I don't think they are enjoying the damp weather any more than we are. I said "damp weather" but if you like to read that without the "p", it's all right with me. I'll just say "them's my sentiments too."

One of our bossies developed a chill one morning and had to be blanketed and fussed and kept in the stable until such time as a spell of warmer weather arrives. That was nearly a week ago — and she is still waiting.

And yet in spite of the dreary weather something very lovely and unexpected happened the other day. Partner and I were sitting in one of the front rooms, he with his pipe and I with my sewing. Suddenly Partner called out — "Quick — look at the window." I looked and what should I see but two little humming birds. Evidently they were attracted by the bloom of my bright red geraniums and were trying to reach them. Not once but several times their thin, long bills tapped sharply at the window-pane. I think they really tired themselves out because the little hen bird perched for awhile on a nearby shrub. And that is something unusual because one seldom sees a humming bird any way but on the wing.

And speaking of birds: Last Sunday when my brother-in-law came down to breakfast he asked — "What in the world do you keep upstairs — is it an aviary or what?"

The Kidneys Filter the Blood

Any poisonous waste materials, which the liver has failed to eliminate from the digested food before it is taken up by the blood stream, must be looked after by the kidneys if the blood is to be rid of dangerous poisons.

When the kidneys fail there comes a poisoning of the system with headaches, tired feelings, loss of sleep and such painful ailments as back-ache, rheumatic pains, lumbago and other ills.

The use of Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills is suggested because they help in three ways to get rid of this condition.

(1) By arousing the action of the liver which prevents certain

I laughed — "Oh, you mean the chimney swifts? I should have warned you — they nest in that chimney year after year."

Have you ever slept in a room and been startled by a sudden rush of wings accompanied by chirruping sounds... then silence and then more fluttering of wings? If you haven't, then let me warn you that you are quite likely to have that experience if you should stay overnight in any of these old farm houses with big chimneys. It is a weird sound but really nothing to be alarmed about. The swifts are most persistent tenants and nothing less than a cap on top of the chimney will discourage them from setting up house in any chimney they take a fancy to. You can't smoke them out — we've tried it. One time we left the draft open in the living-room fireplace and a frightened little fledgling dropped down on to the hearth. Another time we had to have the whole fireplace taken out to remove discarded nests and other debris that had dropped down and blocked the shutter so we could not open the chimney draft at all.

A little while ago I was out to feed the chickens and on my way back I took a notion to inspect the cherry trees. There are about eight small trees — and I think I counted about as many cherries! Generally they are loaded with fruit.

And the garden... Last week Daughter said — "Mother, where's the hoe — your flower beds are terrible!"

Modern Etiquette

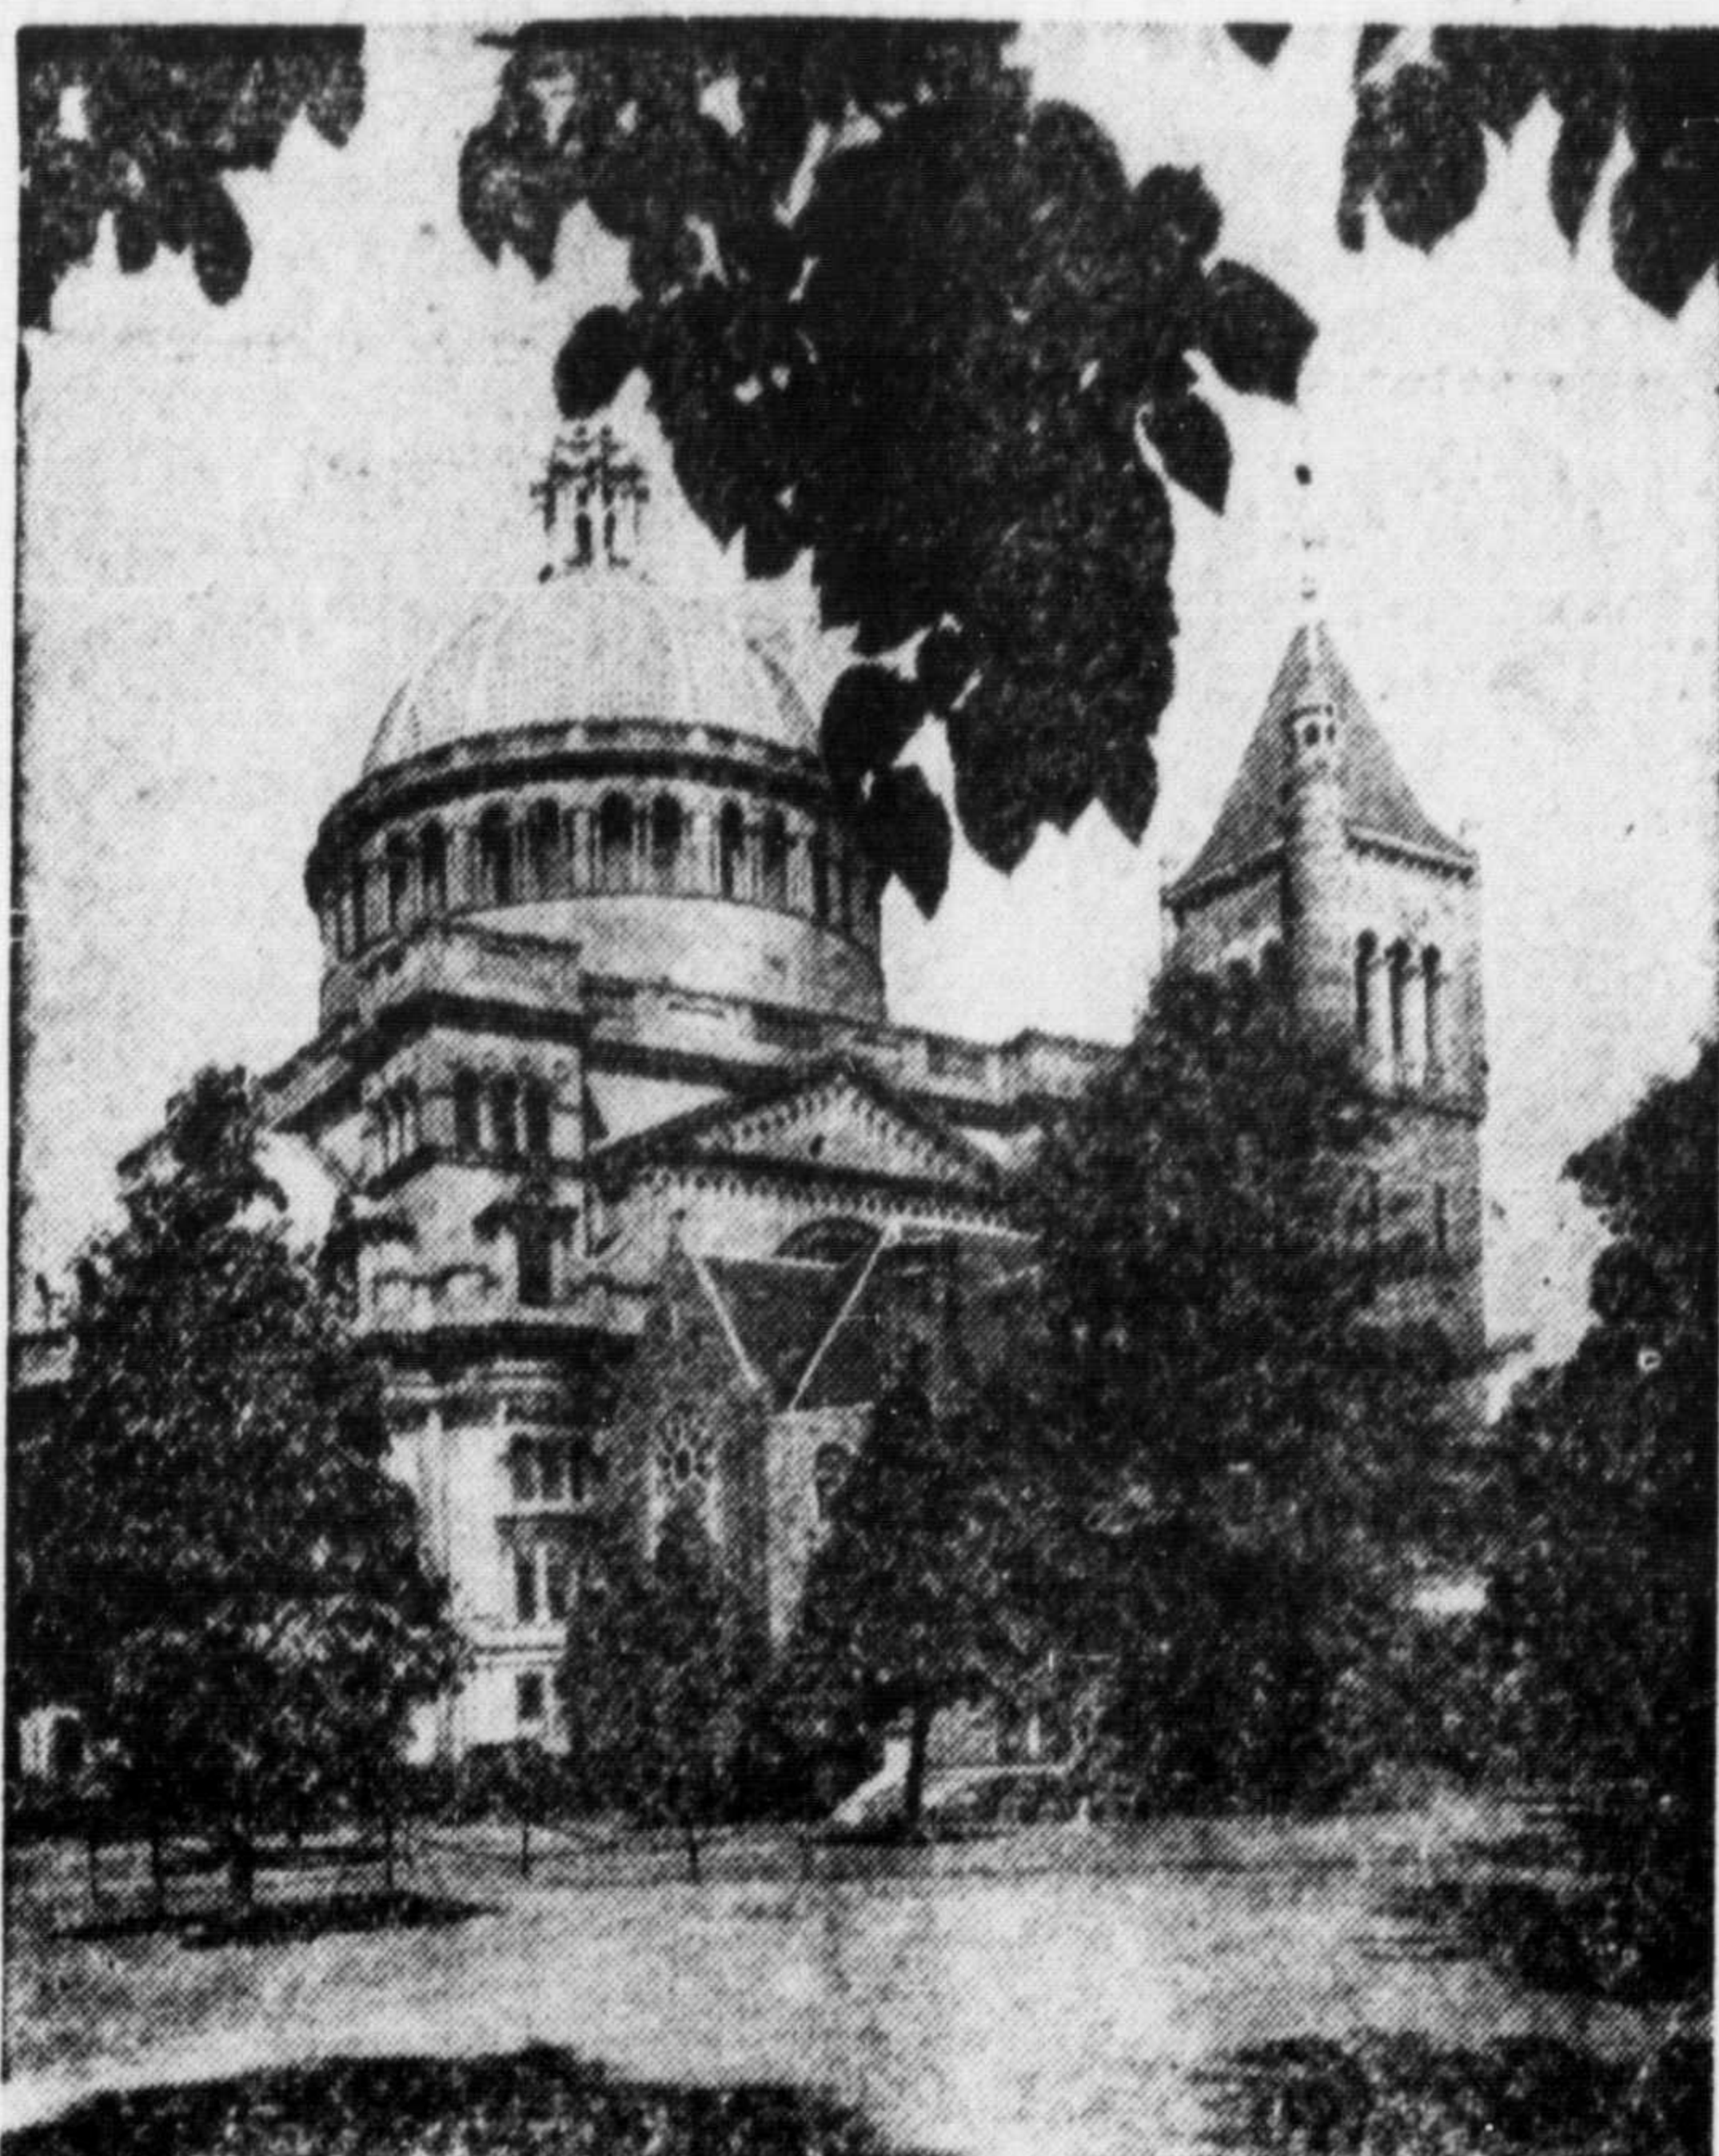

By Roberta Lee

1. Would it be all right for a girl who is a close friend of her brother's fiancée, to give a shower for his bride-to-be.
2. Is it proper for a house guest to leave a tip for a servant who has done some special service?
3. Should calls of sympathy, following a bereavement, be retraced?
4. Is it correct to place all the forks to the left of the plate when setting the table for a formal dinner?
5. What would be the best phrase to use when making an introduction?
6. Should a business woman, or a girl employed in an office use perfume?

Answers

1. While it is done, it would be better not to do so, as it might cause criticism on account of the relationship.
 2. Yes; it is the proper thing to do.
 3. No, it is not expected.
 4. All the forks should be placed at the left of the plate with the exception of the oyster fork, which should be placed at the right.
 5. "May I introduce," "May I present," or merely say, "This is Mrs. Smith."
 6. No; it is obnoxious to some people.
- "I know — but it has never been dry enough to work at them." My doubting Thomas daughter took the hoe but in a little while she was back with it again!

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston

Lasting world peace has its roots in the premanency of divine laws and cannot be expected to rise from the foundations of selfish desires and aims, The Christian Science Board of Directors told the annual meeting of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, June 4.

Highlighting the meeting was the election of Mrs. Myrtle Holm Smith of Waban, Massachusetts, as president of The Mother Church for the ensuing year, succeeding Paul Stark Seeley, and the re-election of Roy Garret Watson, treasurer, and Mary G. Ewing, clerk.

Christian Scientists heartily concur in the purpose of peace conference representatives in California to find ways and means to prevent war, Directors stated. They saw these efforts as making practical the Sermon on the Mount.

Turbulent Waters

"The manifestation of God's law can never fail to quiet the turbulent waters, but we must assiduously strive to rule out of our thoughts any qualities which would work against, rather than for the peace of the individual, and therefore of the world." In this way, the Directors indicated that world peace stems from the individual overcoming of human faults.

"In order to keep one's spiritual understanding clear there must be deep consecration in thought and deed to the government of divine Principle. There can be no lasting peace where selfishness reigns. Therefore, it is by those who base their thoughts upon God's laws that the present global problems can be solved and a lasting peace attained."

Membership Increases

The directors stated that membership in The Mother Church was now four times greater than it was 35 years ago. There is a growing awareness, they said, of the need for unselfish service to God and His law. Without frankness and honesty in the world they added, "we have a whirlpool in which there is no steadiness and no rest."

Demands for Christian Science literature continue to increase, according to the trustees under the will of Mary Baker Eddy. Mrs. Eddy's writings, for instance, were figured to have risen in sale 23 percent from 1941 to 1942, 57 percent in 1943, and 78 percent in 1944. The total sales for last year were said to be more than twice those of the last full prewar year, 1940.

Princess of Gratzzen

LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

CHAPTER V

"Yes, yes—that one." Roger, watching the great moon face, saw the little eyes go blank. "You were very gay, Highness. You have not seen that red-headed one since?"

"Neither before nor since, Jules, but I'll always remember that night. He walked up the hill to the castle with me afterward."

"Sometimes it is well to forget, Highness, said the old man softly. "One has to forget so many things now. You will let me make for you, perhaps, some of the good dishes of home—"

"Ah you are kind, Jules. But not now, thank you. We have already dined and we must go."

"And you will come again, please? It is yours, my little place—all I have. It has been so wonderful to see your face again. It has been like—like home to us—"

Meridel laid her hand on Jules' shoulder. "It is always home when we of our race are together, Jules. Be sure I shall come again and often; and I shall bring the little ones with me, to see you and Magda and Emil. It is good to have the little ones here. I hope to persuade Uncle Rudi to bring many of them to his grand chateau. Do you not think, Roger, it would be a great thing for him to shelter the children from abroad—the homeless ones of many lands?"

"You know," said Roger, "that is a great idea. There's room for a hundred at Philibert, and I'm sure you and Tante Mimi could easily handle them all."

"Then I shall speak of it the moment we return. Now Jules—au revoir—and you, Magda, and you, Emil."

On the trip back to St. Didier, Meridel confided to Madame her hopes of having Uncle Rudi throw open the doors of Philibert to some of the little refugees.

"Do you not think, Madame Laurin, that where there is such abundance it should be shared with those who have nothing—no home, no friends, no resources, no hope even? You will help me, please, to persuade Uncle Rudi?"

"Indeed I will, child," said Madame already making lightning calculations as to the maximum number of children she could accommodate. "I'll talk to the baron, I promise you, and I think you'll have no trouble with him. He is the most generous of men."

Meridel and Madame Fabre-Lusignan, Rudolph and Gabriel Follet sat in metal chairs, salmon-pink and white, on the terrace in front of Chateau Philibert that afternoon, while Rudolph, coached by Madame, outlined to the lawyer the grand plan they had evolved to make of the great estate a sanctuary, a friendly shelter for the little friendless ones.

Gabriel Follet, sipping some of the lamented M. Gossec's excellent cognac, listened attentively.

"You have the kindest, most generous heart in the world." He spoke to Madame, though his black eyes were intent on Rudolph. "This is one of the noblest gestures that has been made, one which all Canada, all America, will appreciate and applaud."

Outstandingly Good "SALADA" TEA

"It will cost a great deal." Rudolph looked timidly at Madame. "In these times—"

"Pouf!" Gabriel Follet grinned into his brandy glass. "What is money in a time like this? Only a lot of silly green paper and dirty metal. Now, if you will permit, I shall go back to the city and set the wheels in motion."

He bent over Meridel's hand, over Madame's; he bowed low to the baron and walked briskly over the lawn to his long black limousine. As he left a battered station wagon entered the grounds. It was driven by Flight Lieutenant Roger Fabre and contained a huge mountain of a man with a walrus mustache and a little boy and girl.

"Why, it is M. Roger!" said Meridel, "and Jules Goujon and his little grandchildren, Emil and Magda! These are the people from Gratzzen, Madame Laurin. Oh, welcome them, Uncle Rudi—welcome them!"

"Yes, yes," said Madame, "welcome them." And Rudi, whom old Goujon had last seen as a slim black-haired young fellow, buoyant and eager for such fun as life could offer, stepped forward and held out his hand to the landlord of the Coq d'Or.

"Highness," Jules bowed. "This day is a proud one for me, for my grandchildren. You are all so kind—so kind. Lieutenant Fabre is so good."

"Yes," said Madame, "and good to himself."

Roger looked injured. "It was such a grand day," he said, "and I have not much more time—I must be back tonight—I wanted so much to see you, Tante Mimi, and to hear how the plans for the children are progressing. All goes well, Monsieur le Baron?"

"All goes well, monsieur."

"I am so glad," Roger smiled at Meridel. "It makes you happy, little princess?"

"I shall have much to do. I shall like it."

"I could show you about the park," suggested Roger, "if the baron will permit. The guest houses, the chalets—all can readily be put to use for your guests."

They walked away, the tall sunlight whorled and braided.

Strange Bedfellows

Advises from Burma told this one about the strange bedfellows a war in the wilds may make:

Sgt. N. D. Crowther, serving with a West African division in Arakan, built himself a shelter from threatening rain. His officer said if it rained he too would take advantage of the shelter.

It did rain, and Crowther was not surprised when something crawled in beside him. Later on he stirred, stretched his arms, and touched warm fur. His roommate was gone before he was wide awake.

The next morning natives said a tiger had been around camp. Crowther had a look by daylight, and found tiger tracks in his shelter.

How Can I?

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I wash a feather pillow?

A. Dissolve 1 lb. salsoda and ¼ lb. soap in ½ gallon boiling water. Put about 5 buckets of tepid water in a tub and pour in the above solution. Then dissolve ½ lb. chloride of lime in 1 qt. boiling water, let it settle, then stir in tub. Beat pillow's well and then put in tub, pressing down. Let soak for an hour, stirring and pressing constantly with a stick. Rinse in several changes of water, wring, press out all water possible and hang on line to dry, turning and shaking them often. Choose a windy day for quick drying.

Q. What is the best way of dampening clothes before ironing?

A. The longer the clothes lay damp before ironing, the better is the result. Sprinkle starched clothes with hot water, half an hour before ironing.

Q. How can I keep the skins of baked apples from breaking?

A. When baking apples, prick the skins with a fork and they will not burst.

Q. How can I boil a cracked egg?

A. Wrap ordinary white tissue paper around the egg and boil as usual. The paper becomes wet and clings so tightly to the shell that the cracks are closed and none of the egg escapes.

Q. How can I quickly thread a needle?

A. Push the needle through a sheet of white paper, about a quarter of an inch from the edge, until the eye only is visible.

THERE'S ENOUGH IN THE SUGAR BOWL...
If we all share equally

We Canadians, together with the citizens of the United States and Great Britain, will eat less sugar during the balance of 1945.

To meet our own needs and the urgent requirements of our Allies and the liberated countries, our share of the reduction must total nearly 200,000,000 pounds of sugar during the rest of the year.

To assure fair distribution of what is left, the sugar ration is to be cut by five pounds during the next seven months by reducing the monthly allotment to one pound in June, July, August, October and December. In September and November, the allowance will remain unchanged at two pounds.

The ten pound sugar allotment for home canning, represented by twenty extra preserves coupons, remains unchanged. Two regular preserves coupons will continue to become valid each month.

ANSWERS TO YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT SUGAR

Q. How does Canada get its share of world sugar supplies?

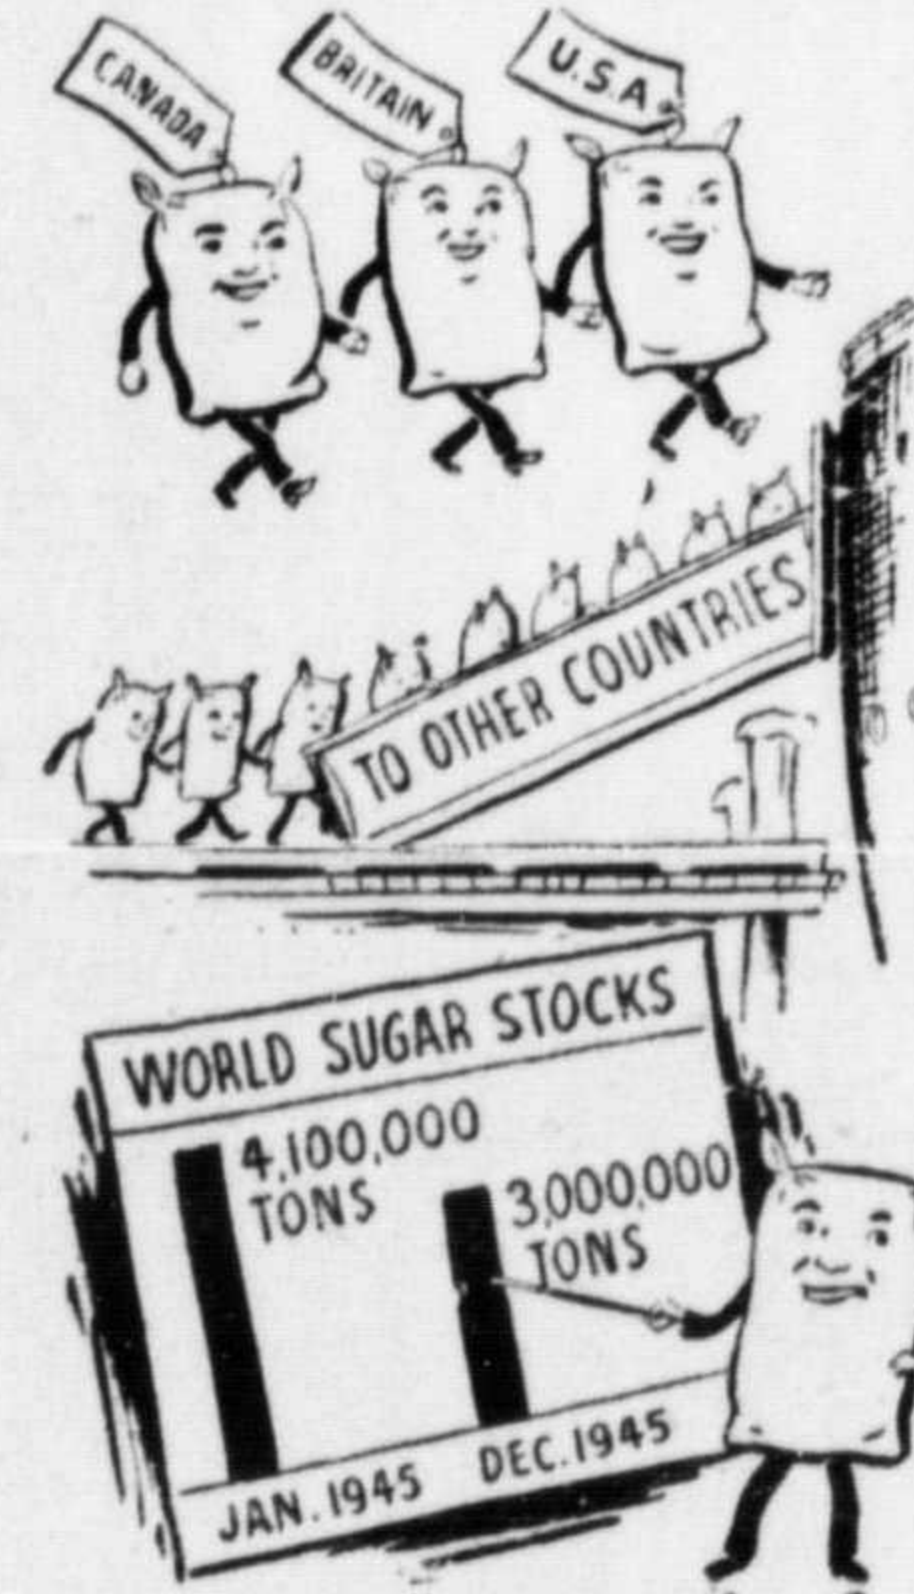

A. World stocks are pooled by the Combined Food Board of the United Nations which allots sugar to Canada, United States and Great Britain on a uniform per capita basis.

Q. Where does the rest of the world sugar supply go?

A. To other claimants, including liberated areas, European neutrals, Russia, the Middle East, New Zealand and other sugar-importing countries. Approximately one-half of this total is destined for liberated areas.

Q. Is there less sugar in the world today?

A. Yes. Because needs are up and production is down, world sugar stocks reached a new low at the beginning of 1945. By the end of the year, they will be down again, this time to a dangerous minimum.

Q. Why is there more demand for sugar?
A. The rising demand largely reflects the needs of liberated areas.

Q. Why is there less production?

A. World sugar output is lower for these reasons:

1. Enemy occupation of some sources such as Java and the Philippines. Java, of course, is still in Japanese hands and, although the Philippines are liberated, production is not expected to be restored until late in 1946.
2. Other export countries have experienced serious shortages of labour and fertilizer.
3. Record drought conditions and hurricanes have also cut into production in the important West Indian area.

INDUSTRIAL AND QUOTA USERS WILL ALSO GET LESS

Effective July 1, 1945, sugar made available to industrial users, such as bakers, biscuit and breakfast cereal manufacturers, makers of soft drinks, confectionery and candy, and jam and wine manufacturers, will again be reduced.

A further cut is also being made in the allotment to quota users, such as public eating places, while similar reductions are being made by the Armed Forces in the sugar quotas for service personnel.

CLARK GOES COY

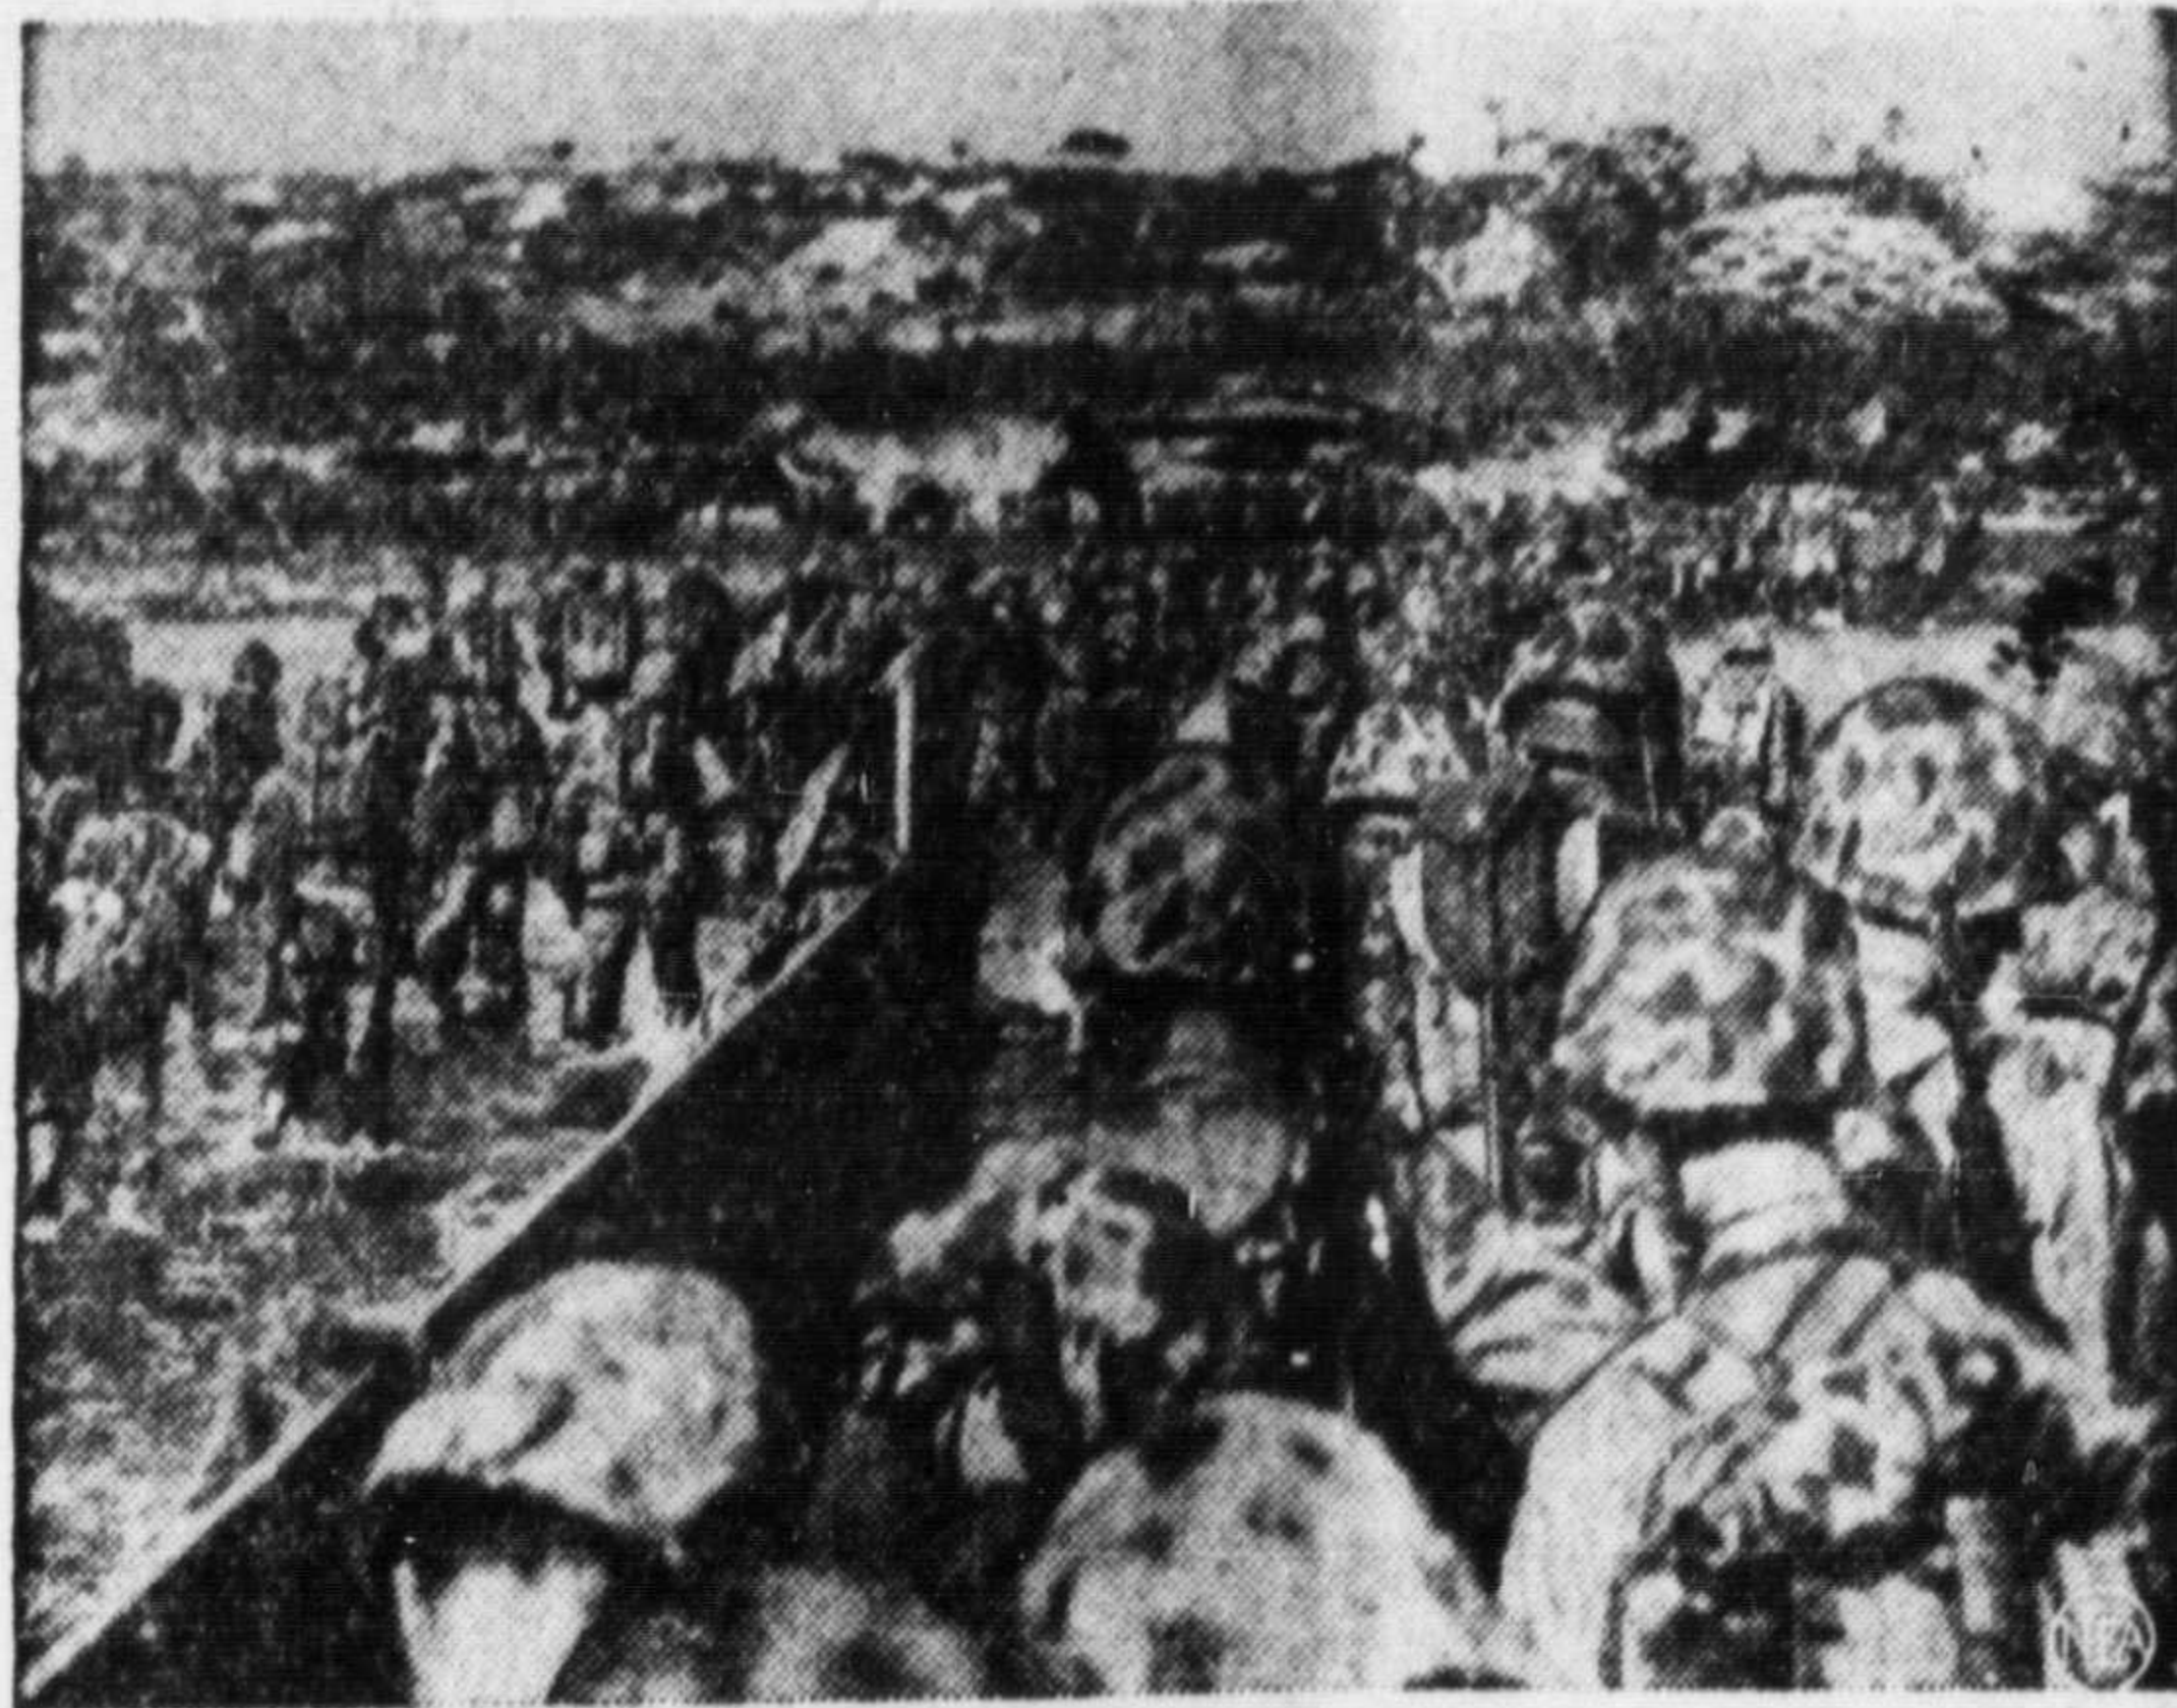

You can almost see the blush rise in the face of Clark Gable, who gags with a coy pose, as actress Greer Garson compliments him on his record as a captain in the Air Force on his return to Hollywood. Gable, who won the Air Medal for bomber action over the Western Front, is pictured as he made his first appearance before the camera since his retirement from the Army.

Stamps are issued in denominations of one cent, green; two cent, red; three cent, purple (these shown above); and five cent, blue; and will be special delivery size. Three cent stamp goes on sale June 27. Others will be announced later.

WHY OKINAWA GOING IS TOUGH

Initial landings were unopposed, but the enemy was so well-prepared in the south that Yank's early speedy advance was slowed to about a mile a week because of . . .

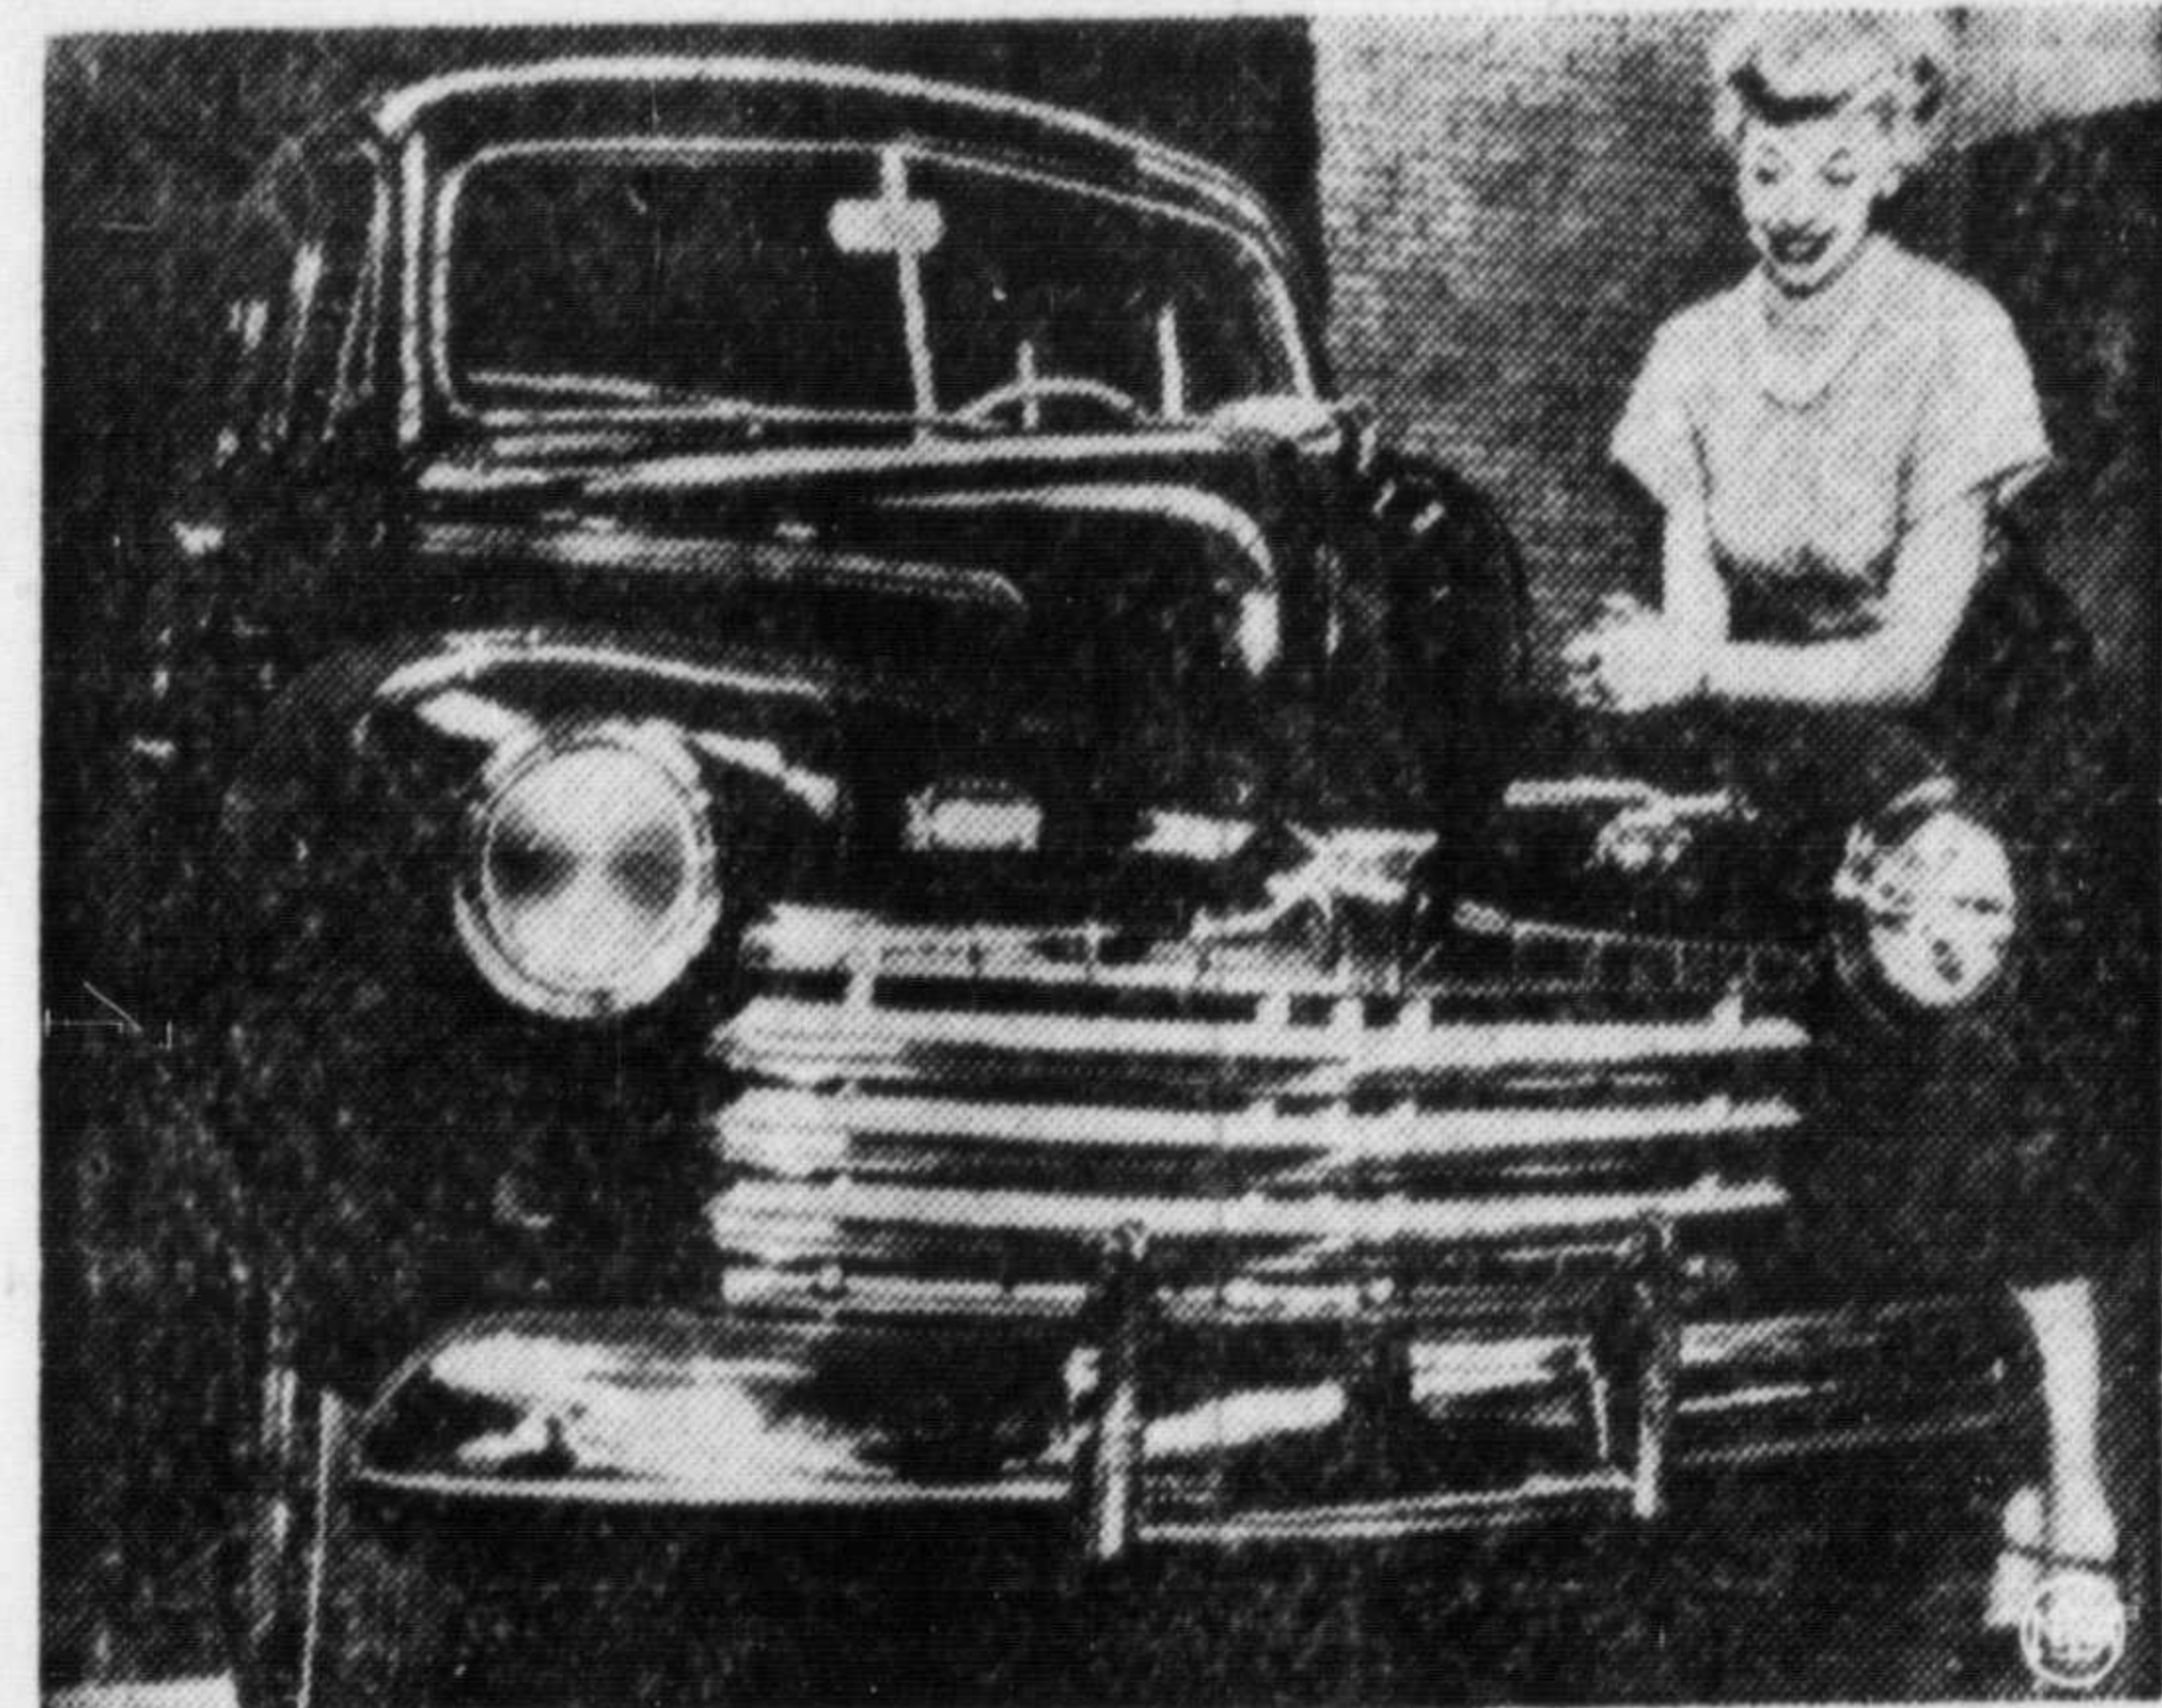

. . . long-prepared fortified caves and concealed pill-boxes in the steep hills. In yard-by-yard advance, Americans literally had to rout out Japs by hand, with rifle, grenades and flame-throwers. But capture . . .

. . . of one of the series of ridges exposed U. S. troops to intense mortar fire (Japs' most dreaded weapon) from the reverse slope and artillery fire from other ridges beyond.

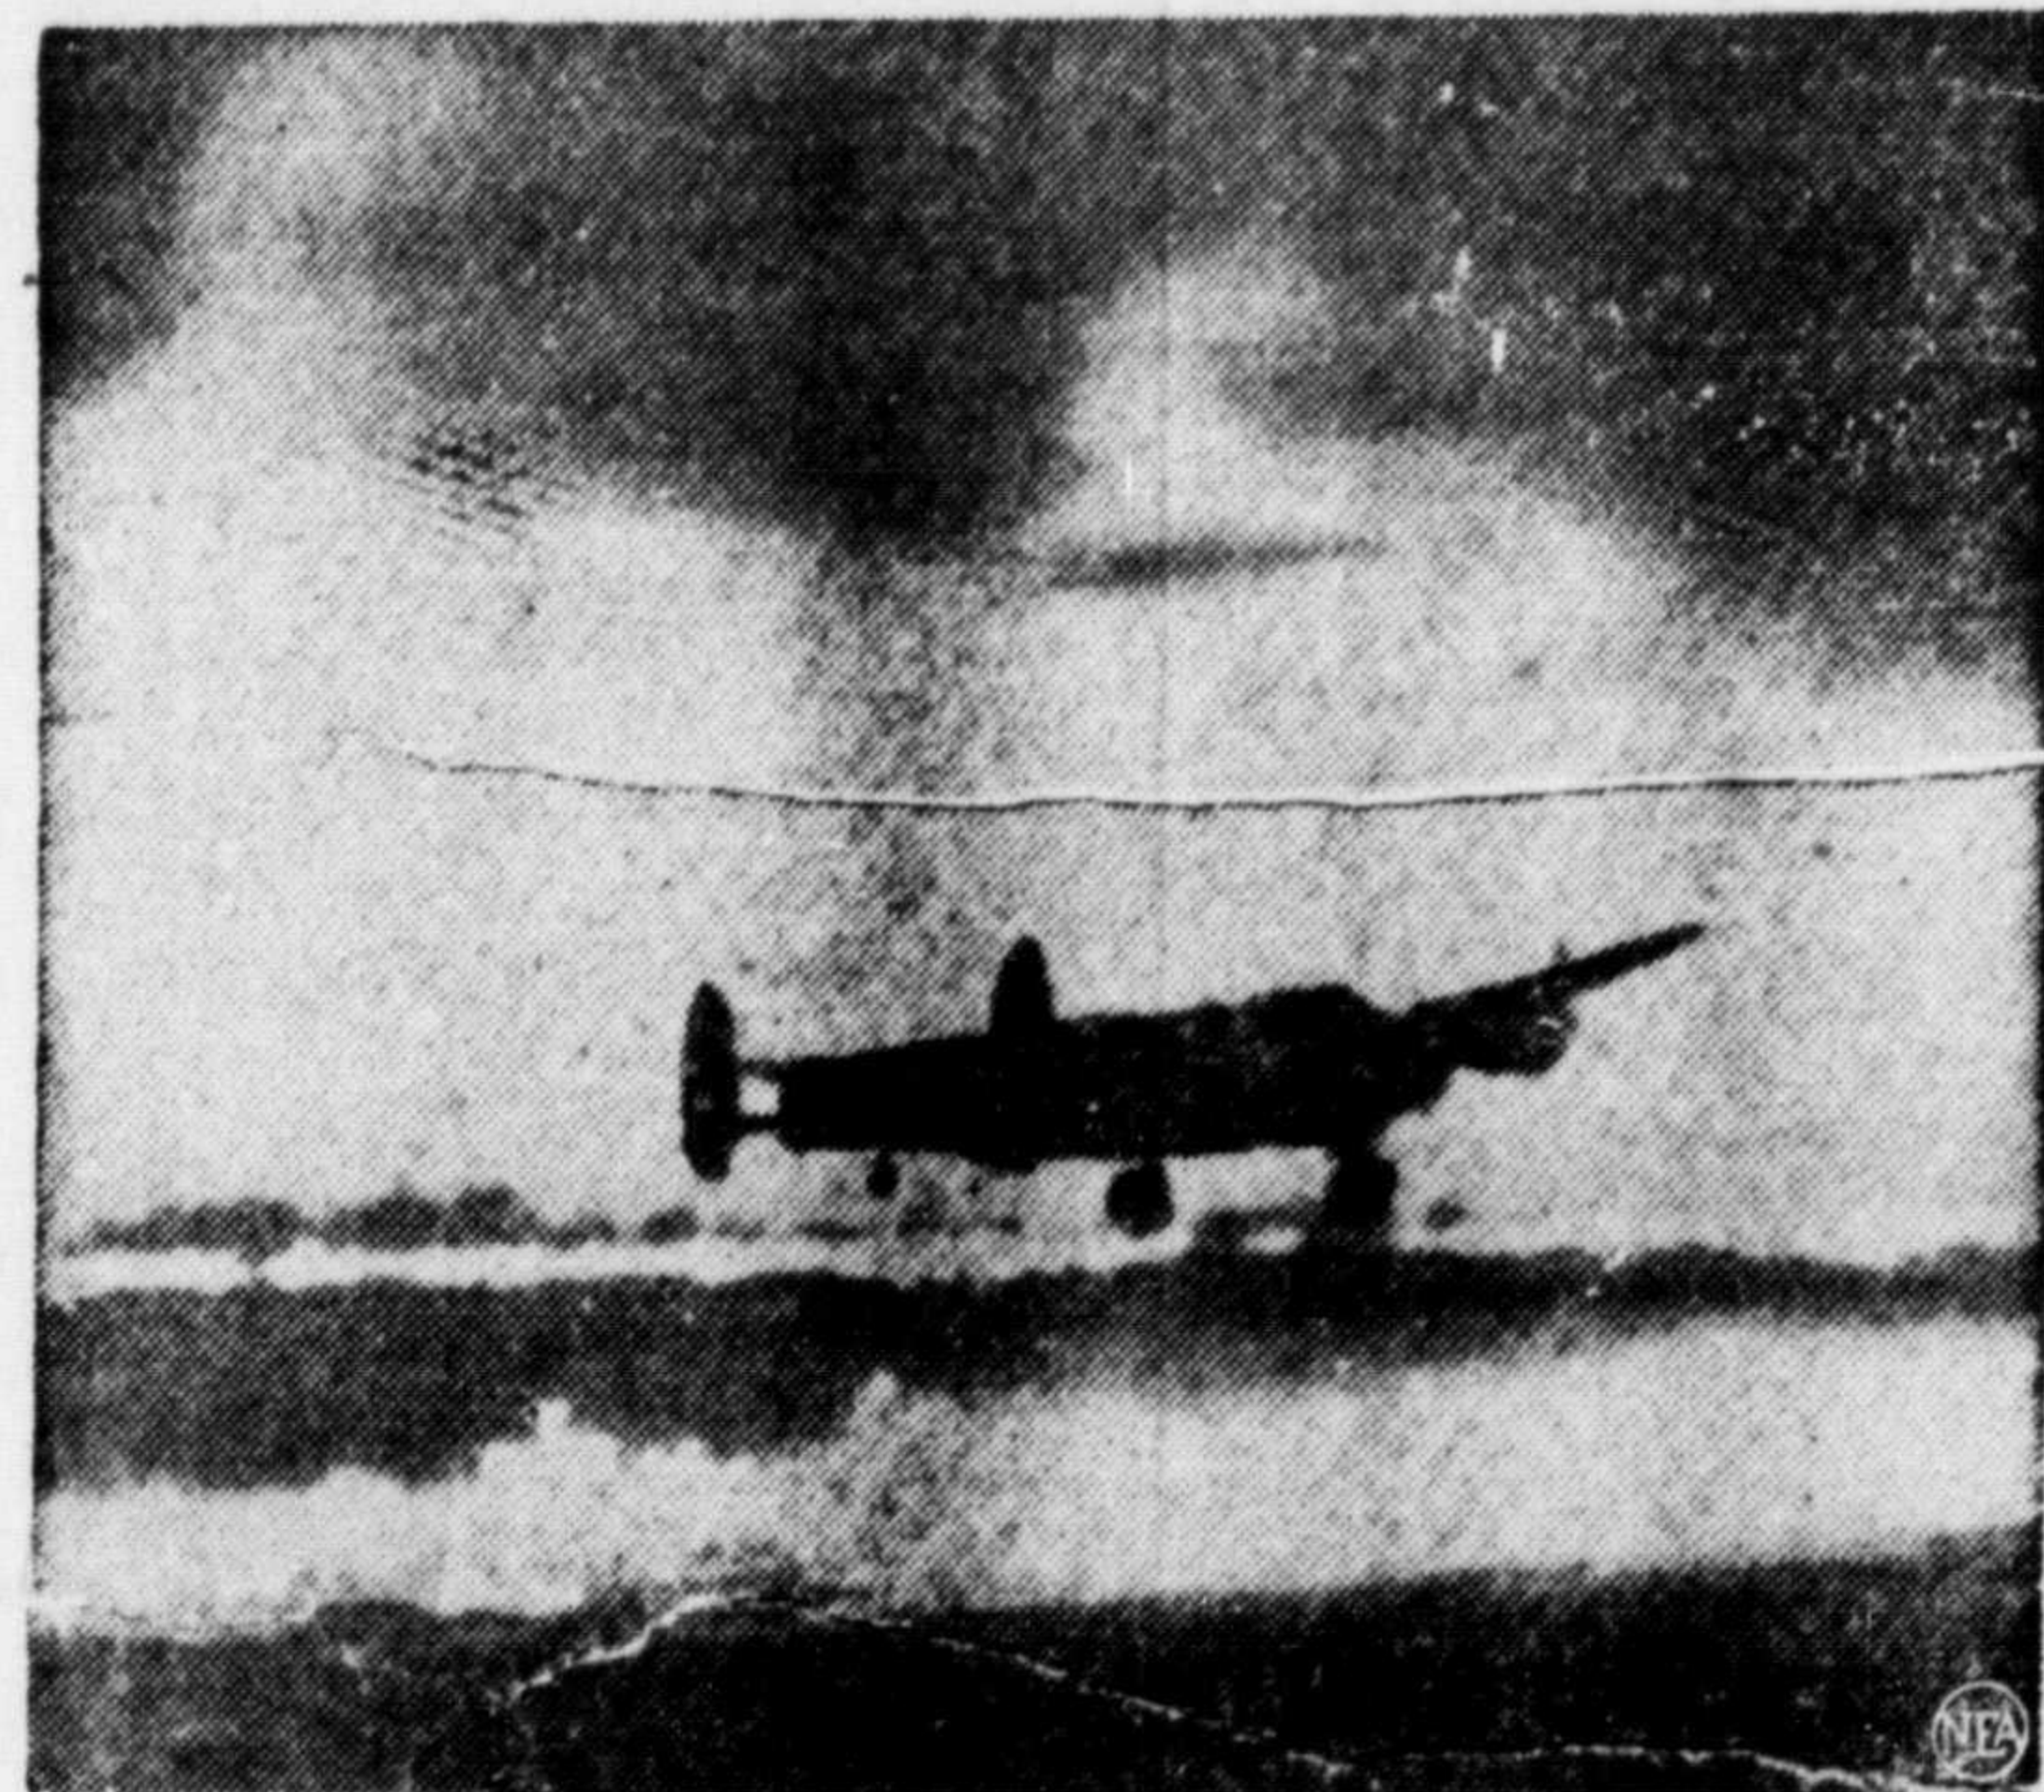

"We must never let Okinawa island fall to the enemy . . . If we lost it, we would be cut off from the south and it would serve the enemy as a springboard for the invasion of Japan itself . . ." So wrote Tokutomi, Jap journalist. And Jap troops on Okinawa fight accordingly, with hitherto unknown skill and tenacity and a desperation that cost them, in the first nine weeks, some 50,000 dead out of the original force estimated at 85,000 men. Photos above illustrate why the Okinawa campaign proved one of the grimmest of the war.

PREVIEW OF POSTWAR CAR

This streamlined postwar model—the handmade 1946 Ford car, not the pretty blonde—will go into production within 60 to 90 days. Although exterior appearance is similar to pre-war models, company officials say it has many mechanical improvements. However, average motorists have to wait a year or more to buy one.

FOG-DISPERSING 'FIDO' IN ACTION

The British public often was puzzled during the war to read that raids had been carried out on Berlin or other places in Germany when they knew that over large areas of England there was widespread fog. No one knew how it could be done, but it was supposed that somehow the pilots had found an airdrome free from fog. Actually, many landing accidents took place because of poor visibility and many potential bombing hours were lost. And for a long time it seemed that no answer to the fog problem could be found.

Yet, in the end, the Petroleum Warfare Department found the answer. It was crude and very extravagant in gasoline, and less expensive methods will have to be developed for "FIDO's" use in peacetime. Yet in wartime, when costs do not count, "FIDO" was greeted by British and American fliers with a shout of joy. By means of that ingenious device it was possible to de-fog an airdrome for the taking off of planes and to allow the fog to return after the planes had landed safely.

The device is a long rectangle of piping laid around the runways and pierced with small holes through which gasoline vapor can be pumped under pressure. When ignited this produces a wall of intensely hot flames. Within 10 minutes, the blazing heat condenses the moist fog to liquid up to a height of about 100 feet above the ground.

On July 17, 1944, Air Vice-Marshal Bennett made four landings on a completely cleared runway of 130 yards, with the surrounding country blanketed in fog and with under 200 yards of visibility.

Had it not been for the intensive bombing of Field Marshal Gen. Gerd von Rundstedt's supply lines in December, 1944, when fog was almost constantly over the British Pathfinders' airdromes, it is possible that the German push toward Antwerp might have succeeded and the war might have been much prolonged. "FIDO" came to the rescue and it is expected to be equally valuable in British peacetime civil aviation.

"Some day
I'll own a General Motors
truck *"

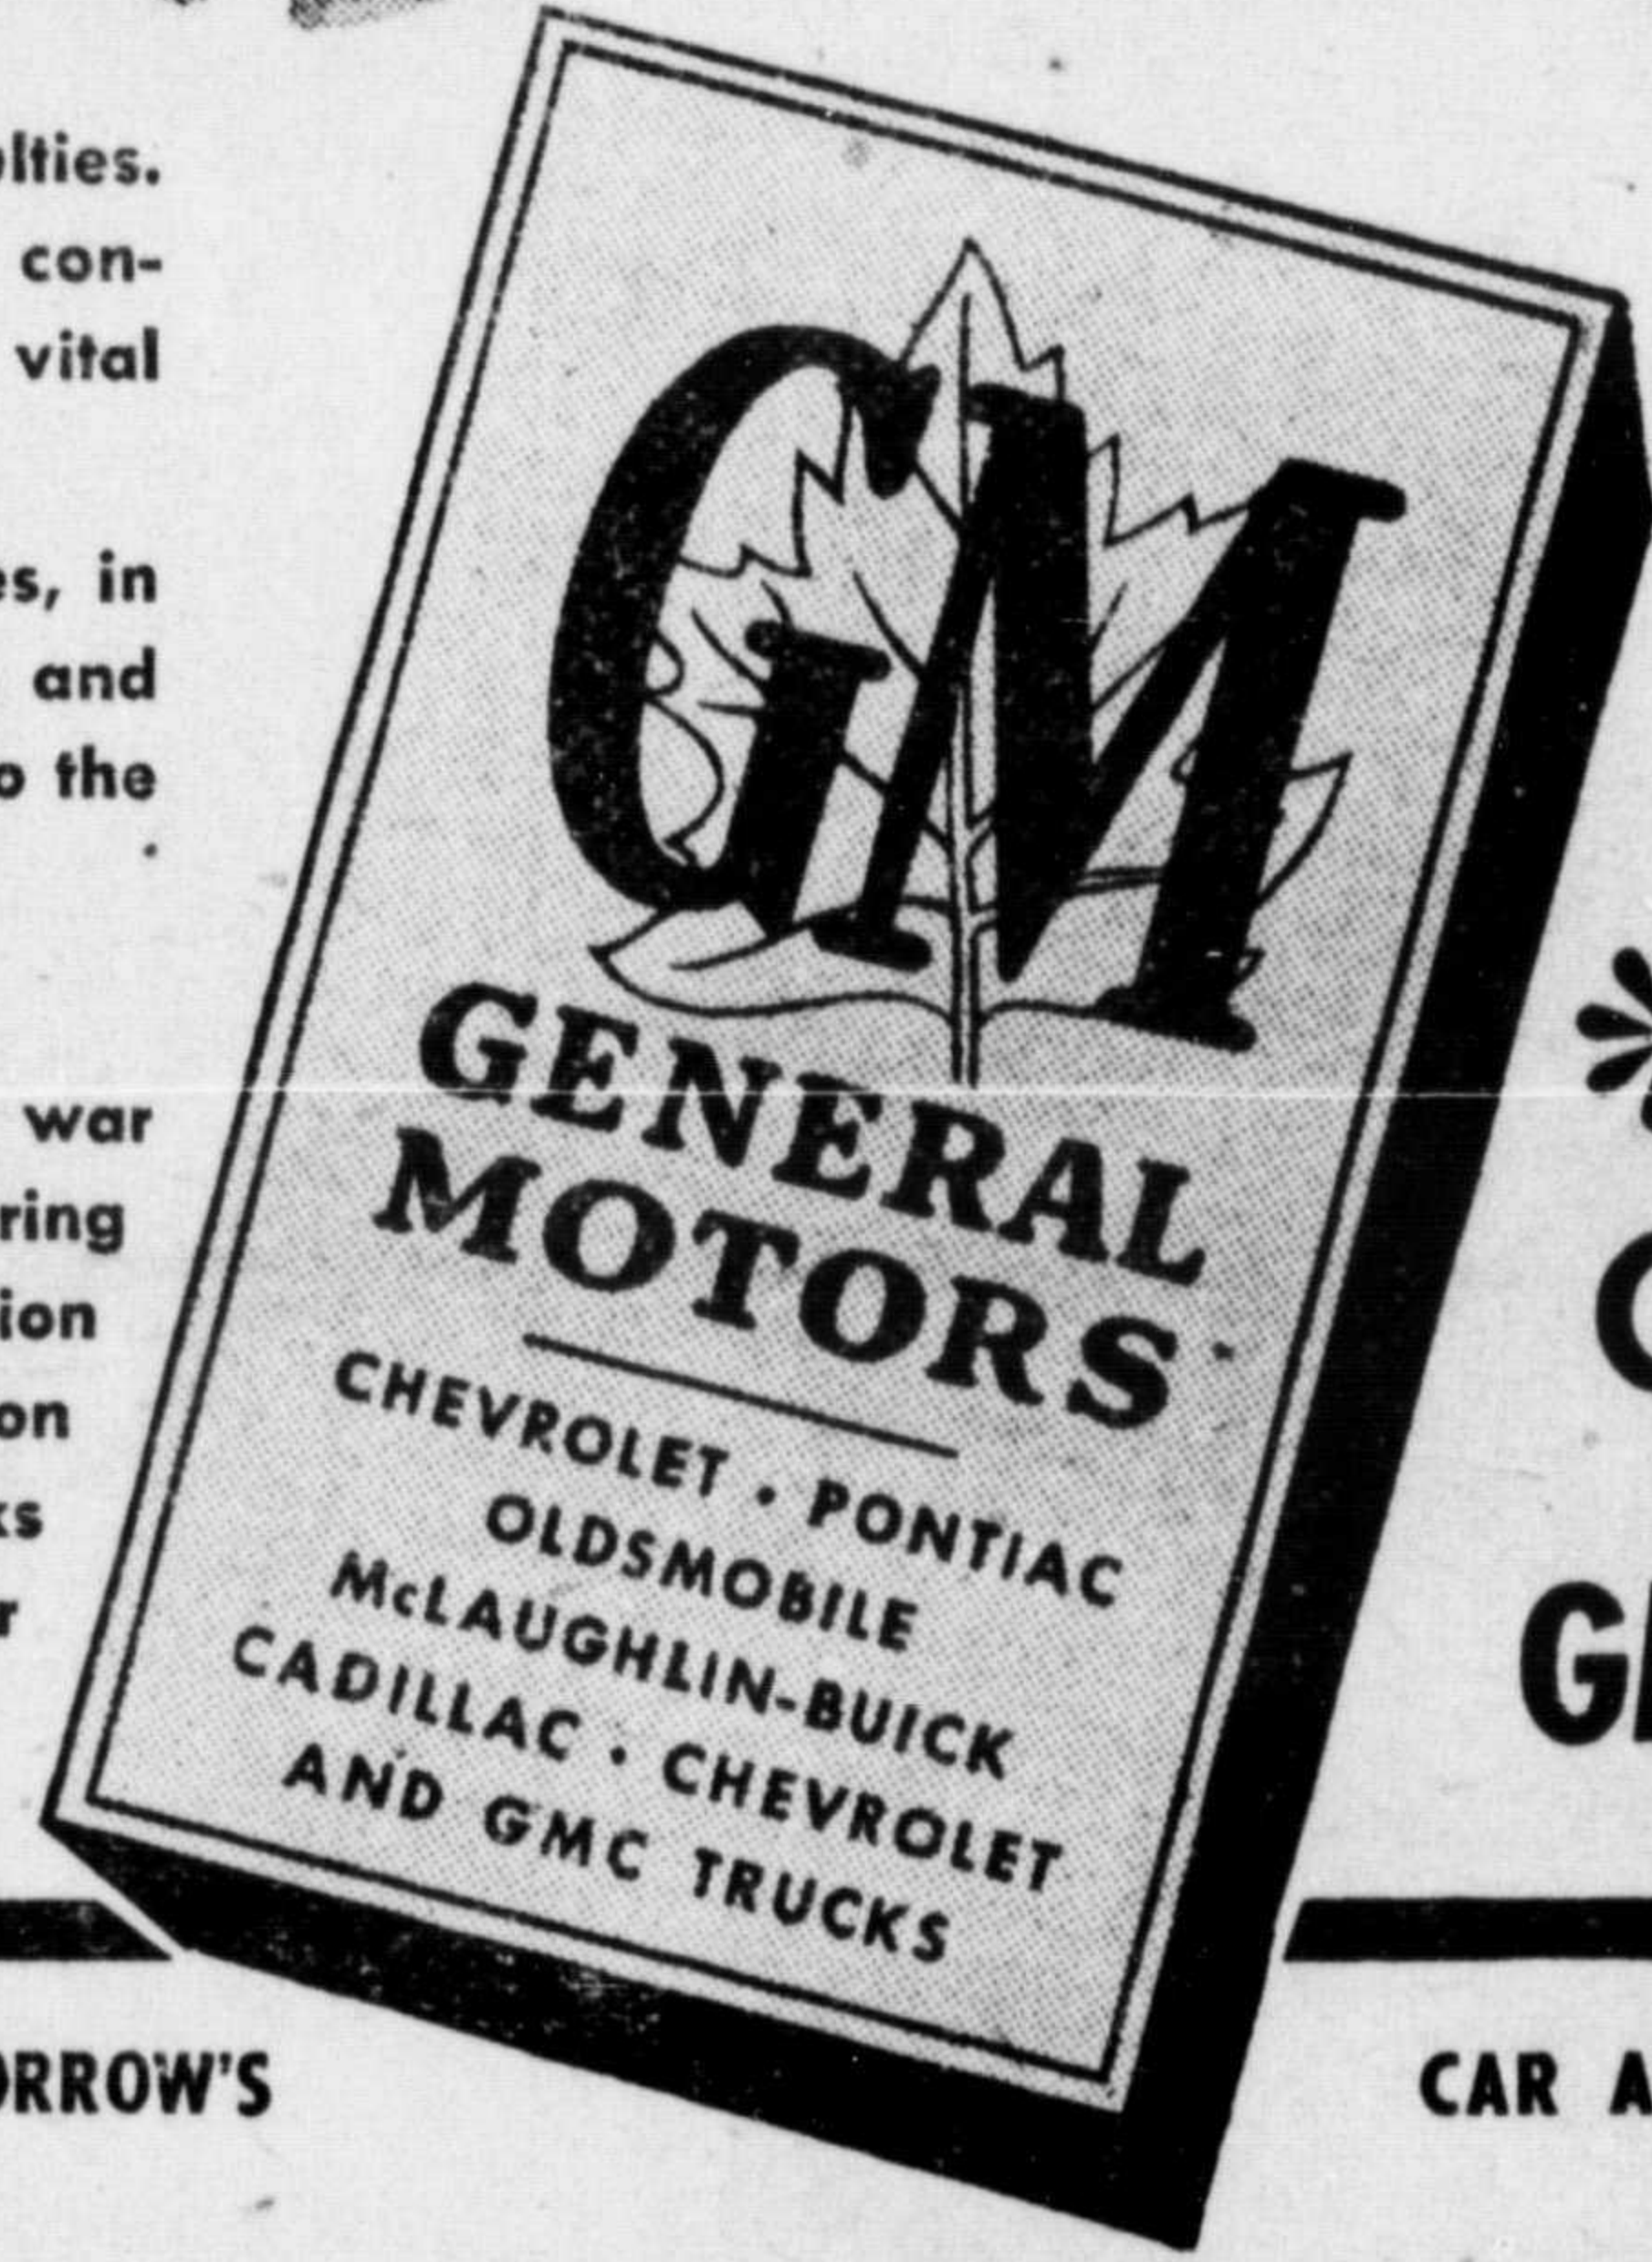

In recent years, Canadian farmers have overcome a multitude of difficulties. Despite labour shortages, storm and weather hazards, they have consistently increased production, and harvested the record crops so vital to a nation at war.

They have been handicapped, by lack of proper distribution facilities, in getting produce to market, farm-fresh. Many who realize the time and labour a General Motors truck would save, look forward hopefully to the time when they are again available.

That time is coming . . .

The time when Victory signals a General Motors change-over from war to peace production . . . the time when all the experience, engineering skill and productive power now being used by General Motors to fashion tough, durable armoured vehicles, will be directed towards the production of sturdy, General Motors trucks — dependable, great-hearted trucks that will mean less work and worry, more leisure and prosperity for farmers and producers everywhere.
