'Quebec is different'

Dion makes a pitch for distinct society

By Donald McKenzie

VANCOUVER (CP) — Recognizing Quebec as a distinct society would not hurt Canadians because the province would get no additional powers, says the federal intergovernmental affairs minister.

Stéphane Dion made the pitch on the weekend in British Columbia, one of the most vociferous provinces in denouncing distinct society as another tool that would allow Quebec to increase its powers.

That is just not the case, said Dion, making one of his first solo political trips since being appointed to the cabinet in January.

"It is not a request for special status or special privileges," he insisted at a national unity conference in Vancouver.

"All Canadian provinces are obviously distinct from one another. But with its difference in language, Quebec is different in a basic way which requires specific attention."

Recognizing Quebec's distinctiveness would make its French-speaking majority feel secure and give it the ability to "make a more positive contribution" to Canada, Dion said.

Quebec separatists have generally been contemptuous of the notion of distinct society, claiming it is nothing but an empty shell. It is believed, however, that adopting such a motion would placate many soft Quebec nationalists.

Dion, speaking Saturday at the meeting organized by the B.C. branch of the Canadian Bar Association, urged Canadians to embrace Quebec "in their hearts."

"Even if it was possible to impose a distinct-society clause against the objections of B.C. and Alberta, it would be wor-

'Dream job' excites Copps: Her chance to save Canada

By Vic Parsons

OTTAWA (CP) — Sheila Copps positively gushes about her "dream job" as Canada's new heritage minister. "I wake up anxious to come to work," Copps chuckles, running through the issues she'll be dealing with.

Not the least of her tasks will be to smooth over wounds inflicted on Canada's national unity. Copps, who may be the most popular anglophone minister in Quebec, speaks of bridge building.

"I want to reinforce the importance of Quebec to Canada and the importance of Canada to Quebec," she says.

That's on top of a heavy list of cultural issues — an overhaul of copyright laws due this month, the future of the CBC and other agencies, cultural trade disputes with the United States, and the fallout of new technology that affects Canadian content on the country's TV screens and airwaves.

Copps isn't shy of the high-tech world. This week, she'll have the V-chip, the Canadian-developed device that allows parents control of what is shown on their TV, installed on her set at home.

That puts her eight-year-old daughter, Danelle, in the pilot tests of technology that's likely to be adopted throughout North America.

Copps has a reputation of being combative. But she is pla-

'Fringe elements out there'

Post-referendum terrorism threats

By Don Macdonald

QUEBEC (CP) — Gord Campbell has had a taste of '90s-style Quebec terrorism and he says it's a far cry from what he witnessed in the days of Front de libération du Québec.

A brick was thrown through Campbell's second-hand bookshop last November and the culprits spray-painted on the store: "Is it clear now, Anglo?"

cid in the interview. Even the mention of political foes doesn't stir her much.

Of Reform, she says: "I'm convinced the hard-line position that they've taken on investment in culture is going to be tempered by reality."

"As far as the Bloc Québécois is concerned, they are encouraging the sustaining and promotion of Canadian institutions and they are trying to break the country up. There's a lack of consistency."

Copps' appointment was welcomed by many in the cultural sector as well as by her officials. She was called "a breath of fresh air" who quickly grasped the issues.

Not everyone feels that way. "She's out of control," grumbles Reform heritage critic Jim Abbott.

An out-of-control Canadian heritage minister may seem a contradiction, but there's no denying her passion when Copps cheerleads for Prime Minister Jean Chrétien or calls on Canadians to wave a million maple-leaf flags.

One of Copps' early issues may be American targeting of Canadian cultural protections. Hollywood lobbyist Jack Valenti calls Canada's policy "an infection sweeping the world."

"I don't think it's the infection, it's the vaccination," says Copps. "It guarantees the heart of our country does not wither away. I don't think you can put book publishing on the same scale as pork bellies."

Copps sees herself as a CBC defender, but recognizes funding is tricky. There is no public appetite for taxes, she notes — not even her "very modest" proposal of a 25-cent tax on video rentals.

"In 1996, the need for a strong public broadcaster is greater than ever, because we face the double threat of being overrun by the Americans culturally, and the potential for the country to fragment into regional enclaves."

A sketch of Heritage Minister Sheila Copps' career:

Beginnings: Born in Hamilton in 1952. Daughter of onetime Hamilton mayor Victor Copps. Educated at University of Western Ontario and Université de Rouen in France.

Early career: A journalist. Elected to Ontario legislature 1981. Candidate for Ontario Liberal leadership 1982.

Federal politics: Elected to House of Commons for Hamilton East in 1984. Won again in 1988 and 1993.

Cabinet posts: Deputy prime minister and environment minister in 1993. Retained deputy prime minister's post but shifted to Canadian heritage in January 1996.

Quote: "We challenge business and we challenge companies and school boards and municipalities and Canadians to help sponsor this mission to put one million more Maple Leafs on the porches, the balconies, the parks and the school desks of Canada."

thless because Quebecers, British Columbians and Albertans would not feel reconciled in their hearts, whatever the Constitution might say."

But Andrew Petter, B.C.'s intergovernmental affairs minister, said Dion and Prime Minister Jean Chrétien are on the wrong path in discussing distinct society.

"I regret that what Mr. Dion is being asked to do is come out and try to put a sugar-coating on a much more fundamental issue — and that is that the federal government is dismantling the national social-safety net."

"And if that social-safety net continues to be dismantled, then any prospects of Canadian unity around symbols like distinct society are bound to fail."

Kasparov beat IBM but...

Chess computer wants rematch

MONTREAL (CP) — Deep Blue isn't sulking in some dark corner, licking its electronic wounds.

The massive IBM computer may have lost one of history's most-publicized chess confrontations, a six-match showdown last month with the world's best human player, Garry Kasparov.

But ever since, Deep Blue's handlers have been swarming all over their protégé's circuitry and programming, confident that a rematch is coming soon.

"I think it's 75-per-cent sure there'll be a return match within a year," says Monty Newborn, the McGill University computer scientist who organized last month's tournament in Philadelphia.

"And I think it's 50-50 that the computer gets him next time."

Deep Blue is an IBM 32-processor SP2 machine, each with six specialized circuits, all hooked together. Programmers and hardware specialists are now at work beefing up this 192-computer punch by a factor of five.

"That would mean in effect about 1,000 computers," Newborn says. "It would be a lot faster, but would it be effective?"

As for Kasparov, Newborn compared the 32-year-old champion to a superbly gifted athlete who nevertheless may not be at the top of his game for much longer.

"He's a rich man — he doesn't need the money. But he's very competitive. I know he'd love to play against Deep Blue again."

Last month's Thrilla in Phila, which Kasparov won four points to two, brought Kasparov $400,000 and the IBM team $100,000.

Newborn is now writing a book about the Philadelphia tournament, more from the point of view of a computer scientist than a chess player.

A casual chess player himself — while a student, he was a member of the Ohio State University team — Newborn has been organizing major chess events for the Association of Computing Machines for more than 25 years.

Academic colleagues have occasionally cast a dubious eye on the energy he devotes to computer chess. But Newborn soldiers on.

"There's an exciting problem here," he maintains. "Can computers think?"

THREATS:

But Campbell says he's not worried the incident and other extremist threats in recent weeks are the beginning of a post-referendum wave of terrorism similar to FLQ violence in the 1960s.

"There are going to be some fringe elements out there but you can't worry about them all the time," Campbell said in an interview. "I don't think we're going to get into bombings and things like that."

Little has been heard of the separatist FLQ since its terrorism campaign culminated in the kidnapping of a British diplomat and the kidnapping and murder of a provincial minister in October 1970.

But the FLQ was back on the front page recently when a group claiming to be a newly formed cell of the defunct organization sent letters to at least seven Montreal-area businesses.

The companies had promoted the No side during last fall's referendum to their employees and the letter threatened unspecified action if there was any repeat in the future.

"We warn you there will be actions taken against you and your business at the first sign of activity in favor of Canadian domination over the Quebec people," the letter states.

One high-tech company that received the letter — Matrox Electronic Systems Inc. — has beefed up security as a result of the threat.

"We would rather be safe and take it seriously enough to make sure nothing will happen," said Matrox spokeswoman Caroline Debbie.

The FLQ letter was only the latest in a rash of threats from both French-speaking and English-speaking sources since the No side's narrow victory in the Oct. 30 referendum.

Other incidents include a brick being thrown through the window of the organizer of Montreal's Canada Day parade and a shadowy organization calling itself the Anglo Assault Group threatening to kill Premier Lucien Bouchard.

"This is symptomatic of the anger and the frustration that is left over after the referendum on both sides because it was so close," terrorism expert David Charters said.

"It may be simply a case of people venting their anger and may never amount to more than that. . . Anybody can write a threatening letter."

But Charters, director of the University of New Brunswick Centre for Conflict Studies, warned that recent talk of partitioning federalist regions of Quebec in the event of separation is potentially dangerous.

Some recent threats

QUEBEC (CP) — Some facts on recent politically motivated threats in Quebec:

FLQ: Group claiming to be FLQ sent letter to federalist businesses threatening trouble. Brick with a note signed FLQ thrown through window of organizer of Montreal Canada Day.

ANGLO ASSAULT GROUP: Shadowy group sent letter to newspapers early this year threatening life of Premier Lucien Bouchard. Liberal Leader Daniel Johnson and former premier Jacques Parizeau have also had their lives threatened.

VANDALISM: Various English and ethnic businesses in Montreal have had windows broken and been spray-painted with nationalist graffiti and slogans.

QUOTE: "What we don't know is whether these groups really exist or are just one or two disgruntled individuals. At this stage I would be more inclined to put it down to the latter." — terrorism expert David Charters.

Computers, playground 'not contrary to the public interest'

Butler school committee wins one in overtime

By Sharon McCully

KNOWLTON — Quebec's lottery and games licensing board has re-considered its decision to deny Butler Elementary School in Bedford a raffle licence to raise funds for the purchase of computers and playground equipment.

Following a telephone conference call with school committee secretary Edwina Garrick last week, a panel of officials of La Régie des permis d'alcools, des courses et des jeux, decided the school committee's goals were in line with gaming board regulations and granted the school committee a licence for its raffle.

The school committee initially sought the licence in January, hoping to hold the draw at a March 30 brunch scheduled to take place at the school.

Those plans were dashed when the Régie informed school committee chairman Rita Zimmerman that purchasing computers and playground equipment did not fall within the board's fund-raising guidelines.

The school committee revamped the request, this time asking to raise funds to help subsidize school trips and buy computer software. Again the request was refused.

After a fiery protest by school committee members, the Régie agreed to send the decision to its adjudicators for review.

The review committee determined that the original request to purchase computers and playground equipment satisfied the requirements of the Régie in allowing a raffle, noting it was "not contrary to the public interest."

The Régie has now granted a licence to the school committee. The draw will now take place May 3 instead of March 30 as originally planned.

An ecstatic school committee chairman Rita Zimmerman says the challenge now will be to sell the 5000 tickets. Prizes for the raffle have been donated by community businesses and individuals.

To clarify:

Foster: Not that nursery

KNOWLTON — Not that nursery.

Last week's raid by Brome Lake police officers which turned up a quantity of marijuana plants growing at a makeshift nursery in Foster took place at a private residence and garage — and not at Foster's commercial nursery, Foster Gardens, on Lakeside Road, as some have apparently surmised.

The Record regrets any confusion this may have caused.

As hospitals become leaner and meaner

Home nursing care now on round-the-clock

SHERBROOKE — Today marks the first day of a new program which will offer round-the-clock at-home nursing services throughout much of the Estrie region.

At a press conference Friday, members of the regional health board, the Sherbrooke area short-term health care consortium (CUSE) and the Conférence des CLSCs de l'Estrie announced that some 40 nurses will be put in place to provide home care for those who are ill or recovering from accident or surgery.

The program, which is run by eight community health centres (CLSCs) is part of the Estrie regional health board's objective of cutting budgets and beds by shortening the lengths of hospital stays. After minor surgery or similar lesser health problems, patients at short-term 'acute-care' hospitals will be sent home where they will spend the majority of their recovery in the care of travelling nurses.

But these nurses will be doing more than dropping by for occasional house calls. They will be available seven days a week, 24 hours a day to handle whatever needs a patient might have.

The 40 fully trained nurses in the program have been transferred from the short-term care hospitals. Instead of working within the walls of hospitals, these nurses will be visiting homes to care for recovering patients.

Patients will be sent home for the nursing program only once their conditions have stabilized.

CLSC spokesman Denis Lalumière said the present number of nurses available is based only on the board's best guesses of how many people will be applying for home-care service. In the months and years ahead the number of nurses will depend on the demand for home nursing.

Nurse Sylvie Lapointe, who heads up the new service, said patients benefit by returning quickly to their own environment to heal. And if things

Area health care officials say the new at-home nursing program will help patients heal faster in their own environment.

aren't going well, a trained professional can help decide if a patient should return to hospital.

People who feel they are in need of the at home nursing program can apply for the service by contacting their local CLSC.

Frontenac drove back Phips' New Englanders

Wreck is evidence of early battle for control

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 300 years ago, the Comte de Frontenac defied an English invasion fleet by answering demands for the surrender of Quebec: "I will answer through the mouths of my cannons!"

In a defining moment in Canadian history, Frontenac's artillery and militia chased away the New England raiders in 1690. A statue in Quebec City still shows Frontenac pointing proudly at his cannons as he refuses to surrender.

Evidence from the defeated English, who kept almost no records, has always been harder to find.

Now the St. Lawrence River has revealed a shipwreck that is believed part of the defeated invasion fleet. Buried under silt for three centuries, the wreck became visible to divers after a 1994 storm washed away the sand.

"This vessel is a clue to that period, and an important one," says Robert Grenier, chief of underwater archeology at Parks Canada.

It took a year for archeologists to determine the wreck in Baie Trinité, on the river's rocky north shore, came from the 1690 battle.

Identifying the still-nameless wooden ship is a challenge.

The ship carried swords and muskets, was clearly English-made and its location fit the 1690 invasion by Sir William Phips and 2,000 Massachusetts militiamen.

Phips lost at least four ships after the French beat off his attack, but since his fleet wasn't part of the regular navy, there were no records of the wrecks.

The ship lying in Baie Trinité is between 100 and 200 tonnes. Much of it is still silt-covered, but Grenier's "wild, wild guess" puts it at about 20 metres long.

Because the strong currents and tides threaten to tear the wreck apart now that it is exposed, he is hoping Ottawa and the Quebec government can work out a plan to excavate and remove artifacts and timbers from the site.

"It's a beautiful story," Grenier says.

Phips was a shipbuilder, part-time general and opportunist who made his fortune salvaging a wrecked Spanish galleon in the Caribbean.

He led the attack on New France during a war between France and England, sailing 30 to 34 vessels to attack Quebec.

"They decided suddenly to attack Quebec City and capture New France," says Grenier.

The fleet took two months to reach Quebec because of weather and other delays, giving Frontenac time to prepare his defences and bring in reinforcements from Montreal.

The repulse of the New Englanders strengthened French rule in the colony, and still gets a lot of attention in Quebec schools.

"It's a fascinating story, almost like Hollywood," says Grenier. "There are so many visual accounts, hour by hour, of the two weeks that the invaders were around Quebec."

But the loss nearly bankrupted Massachusetts. "For New England, this was very nasty," Grenier says.

"Not only did they lose, but they had borrowed the money to pay for the fleet. They were planning to reimburse themselves by looting Quebec. They sold the skin of the bear before killing it."

Combined municipality faces unity hurdles

Latulippe wins first Dudswell election

By Rita Legault

SHERBROOKE — Two former mayors were unseated Sunday night as Marc Latulippe was elected first magistrate of the newly-amalgamated municipality of Dudswell.

Latulippe, former mayor of Bishopton, won a huge 412-vote majority over former Marble-ton mayor Raymond Breton, to become mayor of the new municipality formed by the recent merger of Dudswell, Marbleton and Bishopton. Each former town has two seats on the new council.

Also unseated was former Dudswell mayor Yvan Chaloux, who ran for Seat +6 in his former municipality. He was defeated by Wendell Joyce, a local farmer and former director of the Macdonald College farm in Ste-Anne de Belevue near Montreal. Chaloux got 390 votes compared to Joyce's 539.

The other Dudswell seat went to councillor Suzanne Corriveauault who defeated council colleague Claudine Bennett, merchant Jeanine Brossard and housewife Marie-Paule Cloutier to take Seat +3.

FOUR-WAY RACE

Corriveauault won the four-way race with 30 more votes than her closest opponent Brossard. Corriveauault got 344 votes compared to Brossard 310. Bennett and Cloutier finished the pack with 178 and 102 votes respectively.

In Bishopton, where two former councillor shared the ballot, Victor Gravel emerged victorious taking more than twice as many votes as his colleague Gordon D. McAulay for Seat +4. Gravel gathered 638 votes compared to McAulay's 310.

Seat +1 in Bishopton had already been filled by councillor Maurice Dodier who was acclaimed when no one came forward to run against him.

In Marbleton it was a close race for Seat +2 where councillor Gérard Gauthier was unseated by Janet Moore. Moore obtained 481 votes compared to 437 for Gauthier.

Seat +5 in Marbleton, which was filled by acclamation when no one opposed political newcomer André Bernard.

Voter turnout was relatively high with about two thirds of voters — 942 of 1510 — braving cold weather to cast their ballots.

NOT CLOSE

In the mayoral race, Latulippe got 677 votes compared to only 264 for Breton, far from the close race that observers and both candidates had predicted.

But relentless door to door campaigning seems to have paid off for the affable Latulippe, who campaigned long and hard.

"I knocked at every door," Latulippe said, adding that he met almost 1000 citizens during his exhausting campaign.

Latulippe, who credited campaign workers for his strong majority, said his campaign concentrated on people and their needs.

"We presented the team that will listen to them the most," he said, adding that his main goal in office will be to bring people together.

Latulippe admits that people are still wary of the merger between the three municipalities and that his toughest task will be to unite the new town.

As well as losing his seat as mayor, Breton also loses a number of other high profile positions. He had been warden of the Haut St-François Regional Municipality (MRC) as well as president of La Table des MRC de l'Estrie, a body which included the seven regional municipalities.

The new council meets for the first time on March 11. New mayor Latulippe said the first order of the day will be a series of meetings to determine the goals of the newly elected council and its vision for the future.

Marc Latulippe... 'I knocked at every door.'

A burning bed

Fire broke out Sunday evening in a basement bedroom at the Laurier residence of Champlain College on Winder Street in Lennoxville. The fire gutted the apartment, but no one was injured in the blaze. Lennoxville volunteer firefighters and police are still investigating the cause of the fire, which may have been caused by a mattress lying a little too close to an electric heater. Some students just back from Study Week — or is that Spring Break — were forced to find alternate accommodations.

$200,000 could fill a lot of potholes

At a time municipalities are forging partnerships and exchanging services with neighboring towns and villages to help absorb costs associated with decentralization, it seems somewhat bizarre that Brigham town council has opted to be all things to all people.

Fortunately, taxpayers who will ultimately be called upon to pay for council's bravado, have demanded sober second thought on council's plan to branch out into the road maintenance and real estate business. More than double the number of taxpayers required to defeat a borrowing bylaw authorizing the town to build a $200,000 municipal garage, signed the town registry last week forcing council to withdraw the bylaw or put it to a referendum.

Brigham's mayor André Leroux, seemingly overwhelmed by the prospect of infrastructure grants from the federal and provincial governments, seems bent on a building and buying binge.

Already this winter, the town of 1500 has invested $135,000 to purchase a 10-wheel truck. Future plans included the purchase of a grader and snow-removal equipment, and a four-door garage to put them in. Mayor Leroux claims the town can get better bang for its buck by taking over many of the jobs that are currently sub-contracted.

The town has also bid $55,000 on a large tract of private land valued at $70,000 to build the garage. The price and location seemed right, so apparently it didn't seem relevant to council that only a fraction of the land was needed for the garage and, in order to recoup their investment, council would have to sell the additional 30 serviced lots on the property.

Taxpayers are justifiably upset over council's proposal to invest their tax dollars in capital expenses when private contractors already have the equipment to do the job.

They are further incensed that holes in the town's roads are getting deeper by the day as council continues to focus on grandiose acquisition schemes. Two-hundred thousand dollars could buy a lot of fill for potholes.

Today in History

By The Canadian Press

A scandal involving a senior Ottawa official and a prostitute named Gerda Munsinger became known to Parliament and the country 30 years ago today — in 1966. Liberal Justice Minister Lucien Cardin revealed that Pierre Sévigny, associate minister of defence in the Conservative government of Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, had an affair in the late 1950s and early '60s with Munsinger. She had vague connections with eastern European intelligence circles. A royal commission found that no breach of security had occurred.

Letter to the Editor

The people have spoken

To Whom it may Concern:

I would like to thank and congratulate the anglophone and francophone citizens of Brigham for turning out "en masse" on February 22 to vote against the Mayor's proposal to use our tax dollars to build a municipal garage and purchase more road equipment that no one knows how to operate.

Mayor Leroux, the people have spoken! Now is the time to gain back their confidence in you by repairing and maintaining the existing roads in our municipality. Most of them are no better than a "logging trail".

Another point of interest: Your offices at "City Hall" are not accessible to the handicapped. (The vote took place here). A gentleman wanted to place his name on the list, and couldn't climb the stairs — and the girl recording the names refused to take the paper down to him! (She knew it meant another vote against the project).

Did you not know that all municipal buildings must be accessible to the handicapped? I'm sure most citizens, if not all, would be willing to see tax dollars used to improve this situation.

Okay, I've said enough. Mr. Leroux and councillors, get down to business. Listen to the people, and start doing things right!

Yours truly,
NORMA SHERRER
Brigham

P.S. Since sending a letter to the town council complaining about the sorry state of the road on which I live, and informing them that municipal taxes wouldn't be paid until repairs were made, the so-called town work crew was out this week doing a "wee bit" of repair. At least a couple of holes have been filled in!

Partition opens Pandora's box

QUEBEC (CP) — After narrowly escaping a Yes vote in last fall's referendum many Quebec federalists have rallied to an old Pierre Trudeau position: If Canada is divisible then so is Quebec.

But as the overwhelmingly anglophone crowds grow at proportion rallies, so do the warnings from francophones.

Partitionists believe any region that votes No in a future referendum would remain part of Canada even if Quebec as a whole votes to separate.

The movement has been particularly strong in Montreal and also in Pontiac, a region just north of Ottawa where many anglophones live.

But it has yet to attract much serious francophone support, a prerequisite for a Quebec movement hoping to influence political decisions.

Réjean Pelletier, a Laval University political scientist, says the movement is viewed as an anglophone protest group and one that makes francophones, sovereignist and federalists alike, very uncomfortable.

CP News Analysis

By Jack Branswell

RISK OF VIOLENCE

"If that happens (partition) there would be a risk of violence more than in any other situation," he said.

"It's really the seeds of civil war."

Partition could see the Montreal region deciding to remain in Canada. But any particular riding inside the city that joined most of Quebec in voting Yes could be denied sovereignty.

Pelletier said that would create the kind of enclaves that have been the recipe for violence in the former Yugoslavia.

Would the rest of Canada use force to ensure loyal federalist regions remain in Canada?

With Quebec gone, Canada might be too preoccupied with figuring out its own political future to concentrate on Quebec federalists.

Much of the stiff opposition to partition is economical: a separate Quebec could not survive without the city that has driven the provincial economy.

On a visceral level Quebec could not let the one francophone metropolitan city in North America go.

Louis Balthazar, a colleague of Pelletier's, says pushing partition is just a bad strategy for federalists.

"It's horrible for the climate in Quebec," he said. "Just the simple fact of talking about it creates divisions."

Chrétien: 'We will never accept...'

Canada will fight U.S. on Cuba trade

By Linda Drouin

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (CP) — Canada will keep fighting legislation now before the U.S. Congress that would punish countries that do business with Cuba, Prime Minister Jean Chrétien said Sunday.

"We never accept the notion of extraterritorial application of American laws... and so I said to the president of the United States," Chrétien said after the opening of a summit meeting with Caribbean leaders.

Chrétien talked with President Bill Clinton by phone Thursday and External Trade Minister Art Eggleton is now in Washington for talks.

The Cuba dispute will come up today, as formal talks start among Chrétien and the 14-member Caribbean Community and Common Market, known as Caricom. Cuba is not a member of the group.

The U.S. law, now before Congress, aims to punish Cuba for the downing of two Miami-based civilian airplanes last Saturday.

If the Burton-Helms bill is passed, Canadian firms and those from other countries doing business in Cuba could be subject to lawsuits and their business people barred from entering the United States.

Chrétien said he is hoping even if the law is adopted, the president will use his powers to limit its application.

"There are three levels of government in the United States, so it depends on the power of the president to operate the law after it's passed," he said.

Chrétien will be looking for some support from the Caribbean leaders, although they will not be affected to the same degree as Canada by the U.S. legislation. Only Jamaica, Trinidad and Tobago and Dominica have developing trading links with Cuba.

On the weekend, under pressure from the U.S. and Cuba, the Caricom countries decided not to issue a joint statement on the downing of the two planes.

But they may join Canada in deploring the long reach of the U.S. legislation.

"It's causing problems for every country that does a lot of business with the United States and probably it's affecting these countries too," Chrétien said.

"We'll discuss those questions here and see what is their views. I've expressed mine already to the president of the United States."

Chrétien and the Caribbean leaders are meeting on an island where the scars from a U.S. invasion more than 12 years ago are still not entirely healed.

In October 1983, the United States invaded the island after Grenada's leader Maurice Bishop — who had established close ties to Cuba — was killed in a coup by a faction of his governing leftist movement.

A 21-gun salute Saturday from the Canadian destroyer Iroquois, which is in the area for exercises, startled many of the residents.

"There were those who were wondering what's going on, is it another revolution or something?" said Brian Charles, principal of an elementary school that was being given a fresh coat of paint by volunteer Canadian sailors Sunday.

"To be frank, whenever those large explosions are heard, it always brings back those sort of memories."

In a speech at the opening ceremony Sunday, Chrétien told the Caribbean countries Canada wants to maintain its traditionally strong relationship with them, even though it is now sending less aid money.

With free trade expanding through the Western Hemisphere, he said Canada will try to ease the adjustment of the Caribbean countries, many of which are single-product economies, into the new economic era.

Cuba shows wreckage from planes

HAVANA (Reuters) — Cuba displayed objects Sunday, including flight plans and a black bag, it said came from the two U.S.-based planes it shot down last weekend.

It said the wreckage was recovered in Cuban territorial waters.

Cuban television showed several flight plans, a black oblong case with the letters Solidex Performance Video printed on it and a portable battery-charger it said were from the two planes shot down by MiG fighters.

It said they were recovered by Cuban helicopters and coast guard vessels during a search-and-rescue operation early on Feb. 25, the day after the downing, at a point 9.3 miles north of the Havana coastline, inside Cuba's 12-mile limit.

The report reiterated Cuba's stance that the two planes were downed between five and eight miles north of the coast, in Cuban airspace.

The United States insists the planes from the Cuban-exile group Brothers to the Rescue, were downed in international waters. Four crew members were killed and their remains have not been found.

Cuba said last Monday it had recovered objects from the downed planes but had not given any detail of what these were. It was still not clear whether Cuba had found any parts from the two Cessna planes.

Havana said it acted in legitimate defence of its airspace and after issuing warnings.

Describing the MiG pilots who shot down the two planes, the television report said "they acted with sense and professionalism."

Cuba had done everything possible to avoid such an incident, the report said.

"Only the U.S. authorities could have prevented it," it said, referring to Cuba's view Washington should have stopped violations of Cuba's airspace by exile groups.

"Our sovereignty cannot be called into question," said the report, aired on the Sunday lunchtime news program.

'Russian troops serving with an American general'

Collenette: World is learning in Yugoslavia

By John Ward

VELIKA KLADUSA, Bosnia (CP) — NATO is proving it has a role to play in bringing stability to the world's trouble spots by working with Russian troops to maintain peace in Bosnia, Defence Minister David Collenette said Sunday.

The minister finished a three-day visit to Canadian troops in the former Yugoslavia with a medal-presentation ceremony at this logistical headquarters near the border with Croatia.

He pinned service medals on about 100 combat engineers from Petawawa, Ont. The soldiers worked for almost three months to prepare living and working quarters for the 1,000 Canadians stationed with the NATO force implementing the Bosnian peace deal.

The minister said the success of the mission so far demonstrates that the treaty organization originally designed to fend off the Soviet threat to Europe can also play a role in bringing stability to places like the former Yugoslavia.

"Certainly the thing we've learned is that NATO, as a security organization in Europe, does have a relevance in the post-Cold War era," he said. "It has a relevance in bringing disparate groups together."

"Who would have thought a few years ago you would have had Russian troops serving with an American general?"

By bringing in states from outside its own group, NATO has carved a new niche for itself as a broader stabilizing influence.

But now that NATO has imposed peace on the ethnic factions who ravaged the region for four years, the next challenge is to rebuild the shattered infrastructure, he said.

Homes, offices and factories are in ruins throughout the region and the economy has collapsed.

NATO brought in a big stick to enforce the peace agreement worked out in Dayton, Ohio, last year. The lightly armed troops who manned the United Nations peacekeeping force here for three years have been replaced by tanks, ready-to-fight battalions and an imposing air umbrella.

Bosnian Serbs boycott meetings with NATO

SARAJEVO (AP) — Bosnian Serbs boycotted several meetings with the NATO force, after one of their generals was indicted for war crimes, officials said Sunday.

U.S. navy Capt. Mark van Dyke said Bosnian-Serb military representatives did not show up at meetings Saturday in the U.S.-controlled sector of Bosnia following Friday's indictment in The Hague of Gen. Djordje Djukic.

His indictment drew condemnations from the Bosnian-Serb leadership.

"We can only doubt the further objectivity of the international community and all those in its service," said Momcilo Krajisnik, a key aide to Bosnian-Serb President Radovan Karadzic.

Djukic's arrest last month prompted Bosnian Serbs to sever relations with the NATO force in Bosnia. Ties were only restored after an emergency meeting of Balkan leaders in Rome.

Djukic was charged by the international war-crimes tribunal with shelling civilian targets during the 3½-year siege of Sarajevo.

The Serbian boycotts of meetings with NATO threatened to delay putting into place conditions of the Bosnian peace agreement signed in December. The NATO force is responsible for enforcing and overseeing key conditions of the agreement, such as the withdrawal of heavy weapons and troops from former front lines.

The meetings bring NATO forces together with commanders of all Bosnian factions to discuss progress — or violations — of the peace accord.

Haut St-François flogs farm products, projects

Paul Monette is joined by the Table's president Carole Tessier at the front of the photo as well as Jacques Dion, Pierre-Stéphane Lafrance, Alain Rodrigue, Marcel Normandeau, Raymond Breton, and Johanne Roch, all experts in practice and finance in the region and whose support make this work possible.

COOKSHIRE — "Farmers are intelligent, hard working and resourceful. They are also incredibly tenacious and always ready to believe that next year, things will be better."

The 'Table Agro-alimentaire' — farm and food table — is an organization in Haut St-François that believes this phrase and also is convinced that a helping hand will make things even better.

Times are changing and farming practices are as well. Last week the Table announced the hiring of Paul Monette to help organize projects that are currently planned as well as find and establish new ones.

Monette has been involved in various sorts of farming for most of his adult life, and all of these involved selling his own products, such as mohair wool and goat's-milk cheese.

This experience will be very important as farmers develop new ideas, but aren't sure how to implement them. There are new projects such as land banks that will make land available to anyone from around the world, through the Internet, to come and help build the regional economy.

The Table is looking forward to working with members of the English community for the betterment of the area. Paul Monette's fans will remember him as one of the founders of that wonderful folk group 'La Veillée est Jeune' who are still going strong.

What's an old spy satellite to do? Soil studied from space

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Spy satellites that could once read Moscow newspaper headlines from space are now helping farmers monitor the health of their soil.

It's called precision farming and growers with computerized equipment strapped to their backs are accessing something called the global positioning system, or GPS.

"We experimented with this last year and found it quite successful," said Brian Scales of Island Fertilizers.

While not cheap, large North American operations and corporate farms that can afford it use former spy satellites to map their lands, grid their hectares and determine their fertilizer requirements.

With 42,000 hectares in Prince Edward Island producing millions of spuds a year, potato farmers are keen to find any competitive edge that can keep them in the ever-changing game.

The price for a GPS backpack receiver starts at $3,000 and tops out at $10,000 for the Cadillac version.

"The farmer simply wears a backpack with a round antenna and a digital monitor," said Scales, who recently gave a seminar on the new technology to farmers in Charlottetown.

"We can do a readout and it tells us if one part of the field, for example, is phosphate-low. If it is, we just add what is needed."

With the demise of the Cold War, spy satellite operators are looking for new markets in a big way. Agriculture has become a key industry to pitch, along with the fishery where a GPS readout can even identify the types of fish found in a grid pattern.

The new technology isn't limited to backpacks. Using computers on spreaders and harvesters can apply the proper blend, and even determine the yield while harvesting the crop — all for a cost of about $15,000 to $40,000 per unit.

In a U.S. study on corn, using the variable fertilizer application through GPS readouts boosted yields by several bushels a hectare.

Due South big Gemini winner again this year

By John McKay

TORONTO (CP) — The South vanquished the North at this weekend's Gemini Awards for excellence in Canadian television.

For the second year in a row Due South, CTV's cross-border hit series about a ramrod-straight Mountie's adventures during a diplomatic posting to Chicago, was the big winner.

It claimed six of its 15 Gemini nominations, including best dramatic series, while star, Edmonton native Paul Gross, was deemed best actor in a continuing leading dramatic role.

In contrast, North of 60, CBC's broody series about aboriginal life in the fictional Northwest Territories community of Lynx River, was nearly shut out, winning only one of its 11 nominations. Tantoo Cardinal was named the best actress in a dramatic series guest role.

Last year, Due South won best series and its two-hour pilot episode was declared best TV movie.

The show produced by Toronto's Alliance Communications is the first Canadian series to crack the American prime-time market. CBS recently ordered more episodes after temporarily cancelling the import last year.

Due South also won Geminis for best sound, writing, direction and Gordon Pinsent took best guest actor performance, at galas held over the weekend by the Academy of Canadian Cinema and Television.

Due South also took the Chrysler Canada Choice Award after readers of TV Guide magazine voted it their favorite Canadian program.

Other key winners Sunday night:

— CBC's satirical This House has 22 Minutes, for best performance in a comedy program or series. It took best-comedy-series and best-writing awards earlier.

— Madison's Joely Collins won best performance by an actress in a continuing leading dramatic role.

— Brent Carver gave the best supporting actor performance for the final episode of Street Legal.

— CBC's long-running but budget-plagued Man Alive was best documentary series.

— CBC Newsworld's Bruce Dowbiggin caught best sportscaster.

— Hana Gartner of CBC's The 5th Estate was best host, anchor or interviewer in a news or information program or series.

— Butterbox Babies was best TV movie. And star Catherine Fitch took supporting actress.

Million Dollar Babies, the story of the Dionne quintts, won four Geminis over the three days. With eight nominations, the TV movie won for best direction, editing, costume design, and original music score.

Road to Avonlea, in its last season on CBC after a seven-year run, took only a pair of awards, best supporting actress for Patricia Hamilton, and best original score. It had nine nominations. Avonlea is also carried on the Disney cable channel in the U.S.

Bruno Gerussi was the posthumous recipient of the Earle Grey Award for his outstanding work on TV.

And Nuhoniyeh: Our Story, a powerful documentary about the traditional-homeland claim of the Sayisi Dene people of northern Manitoba, is the 1996 Canada Award victor.

The prize, supported by the Heritage Department honors excellence in TV programming that reflects Canada's cultural diversity.

Sixty special juries of Academy members were convened to select the nominees in each of the program, craft and performance categories. The final vote to select winners was decided by the Academy membership at large.

Star Trek spoof peeves Paramount

Playwrights boldly go to court

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Producer Eric Jensen and his alter-ego, James T. Smirk, have a fight on their hands. It's not with the evil Klingon Empire or those pesky Romulans.

It's worse — lawyers are involved.

Paramount Pictures, the owner of Star Trek and all its various permutations, has sued Jensen and playwright Rod Bedore for copyright and trademark infringements over their tongue-in-cheek Star Trek productions.

Jensen and Bedore own the Off Broadway Theatre which is just off Broadway in Salt Lake City. The 200-seat theatre has been the site of three take-offs of the popular intergalactic adventures.

The most recent is Star Trek: The Voyager Home, which follows the Star Trek characters as they face "corporate downsizing" after peace breaks out across the galaxy.

Bedore, who plays the pointy-eared Mr. Schlock, says Star Trek is ripe for parody — protected parody provided it can't be confused with the real item.

"This is not a battle of size; it's a battle of the law," he said.

"If anything, I feel bigger because I know the law is on our side."

The Paramount suit, filed in U.S. District Court Feb. 18, does not mention specific elements of Star Trek it alleges infringe on its copyrights, but simply alleges Bedore "freely copies the plots, characterizations, character identities, set designs, costumes, music, sound effects and advertising and promotional materials owned by Paramount."

The company warns of "irreparable injury" if the court does not put an end to Off Broadway's parodies.

Mr. Bean mobbed by thousands of Toronto fans at mega-mall

TORONTO (CP) — Hogtown turned into Beantown on Friday as thousands of fans packed a downtown mall to greet comedian Rowan Atkinson, who plays the clumsy Mr. Bean in the popular British television series.

As Atkinson signed copies of his latest Mr. Bean video collection at the Eaton Centre, the nerdy, loveable character was the topic of conversation among the crowd of 3,000.

First in line was Fraser Losee, 42, who got a video box autographed for his kids.

"They love Mr. Bean but heck, who doesn't?" he said. —

He epitomizes the ordinary, everyday Joe. He's a klutz for sure, but so am I."

Fans started lining up for the 12:30 p.m. appearance about 8 a.m.

All this for a guy who bumbles silently through slapstick TV adventures, cuddles a teddy bear when he goes to sleep, and, in one episode, shoots out the lights because he's too tired to get out of bed.

"He's my life and I want to have his baby," squealed Marni Schacter, a 26-year-old marketing manager who fought through the crowd for a glimpse of her geeky hunk.

"I'm flabbergasted," a clearly bowled-over Atkinson told one well-wisher.

So were organizers, who had planned for a somewhat smaller crowd.

"We never imagined anything like this," said one.

The marriage of Susan Brock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Brock of St. Felix de Kingsey, Que. to James Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson of Orangeville, Ont. will take place on March 18, 1996 in Hawaii. A reception is to follow on May 25, 1996 in Orangeville, Ont.

97th birthday celebration for Clara Robinson

WINDSOR — On Sunday, February 18, Mrs. Clara Robinson was honoured at a celebration for her 97th birthday, February 15. At the noon-hour twenty-two family members gathered in the 4th floor. Reception Room at the Wales Home where they were joined by the guest of honour.

Following greetings and best wishes all sat down to enjoy a chicken-pie dinner with all the trimmings. The meal was topped off with birthday cake and ice cream. The cake was prettily decorated in white and pale mauve and suitably inscribed to "Mom, Grandma and Aunt".

Attending the dinner were Mrs. Ruby Berry, Lyle and Yvette Robinson of Lennoxville, Lily and Gilles St. Laurent, Beloeil; Mrs. Marguerite Magwood and Ricky Magwood, Chambly; Ben and Grace Rainville, Waterloo; Claude and Anne Gagne, Mike and Steve Gagne and friend Sonia, Rock Forest; Mary Robinson, Mildred Holliday, Gary and Line Holliday and children Jessica and Philip, Windsor; Nancy Holliday, Shipton; and Dot Hess, Melbourne.

Later during the afternoon some thirty-five to forty friends came to extend birthday greetings and have a visit with Clara and her family. Birthday cake with ice cream, tea and coffee were served.

Before the last dish was washed and the visitors began to leave Clara was at the piano to play a few old favorites to the delight of all.

Clara would like to thank all who helped to make the day so special, and for cards, gifts and best wishes received.

With love, Douglas and Juanita (Willey) Wighton of Highwater, Que. announce the engagement of Tara Graves to Claude Baillargeon. Tara is the youngest daughter of Doug and the only child of Juanita. Claude is the only son of Remi and Karen (Lebourveau) Baillargeon of Johnville, Que. Congratulations! It was a very special Christmas eve. Your families look forward to their future new children.

Dufferin Heights Golf Club

The annual meeting of shareholders was held in November at the Club House at which time the following directors for 1996 were elected: President-Larry Curtis; Vice-President-Arthur LaPenna; Directors-Fred Montigue, Marg Corbett, Raymond Langevin, Helene Taylor and Norm Wintle.

Bill Wilson has been hired as Course Superintendent to replace Bob Alger who has retired. Bill has had experience in greens - keeping at other courses so should prove to be an asset to the club. Richard Wing will return as Club House Manager.

As soon as weather permits, completion will be made on renovations to the bar area which were started last fall. The bar will have a beautiful new granite top and a walk-in cooler on the first floor.

The Directors have decided to drop the $100. initiation fee but only until May 1st unless membership reaches the 400 mark in the meantime. This means that a new member can join for a fee of $375.00 but first come, first served, so be an early bird and send in your membership now. Application forms are available from any of the directors listed above.

Buffet R.C. are returning to operate the kitchen again this year and will be holding an Opening Brunch on May 5. Everyone is welcome to attend.

News for residents of Municipality of Stanstead Township

STANSTEAD TOWNSHIP (CG) — Effective March 4, 1996, there will be one telephone number to report all emergency fire calls — 876-5665. Anyone calling from any other exchange (843 or 838 etc.) will be obliged to dial 1-819-876-5665.

Our Fire Department is presently equipped with five portable radio telephones to answer all incoming emergency calls. The fire chiefs and assistant chiefs of Georgeville and Fitch Bay as well as the Mayor are equipped with these radio-telephones.

In the extremely remote event that nobody answers from the fire portables the system is backed up as follows:

After four rings, the equipment is programmed to activate an answering machine and twelve pagers distributed among our firemen.

The answering machine will deliver the following bilingual message:

"You have reached the Stanstead Township Fire Department. After the tone leave your message regarding the type and address of fire and any other important information. The firemen are listening!"

Twelve pagers will receive the pertinent information and will respond accordingly.

If you wish to obtain a burning permit use the personal phone numbers of your chiefs and not the emergency.

Important Notice — Only the members of the Council and the fire chiefs are authorized to ask for help from the fire brigades from outside the Municipality. Any person requesting the services of the firemen of Magog, Ayer's Cliff, Beebe, Rock Island, Stanstead or any other place will be responsible for the costs charged by these Municipalities.

Bulwer Quebec Farmers Association holds meeting

President Ross Kirby welcomed everyone to the February meeting. The minutes were read and Treasurer's report given and approved.

Gary McBurney, Mary Kirby and Albert Sylvester reported on the Agricultural Forum held at Macdonald College on January 18. They felt there had been a good exchange of information and expect positive results from the forum.

Hugh Maynard is drawing information generated by the forum together as a report. He is also hoping to visit each club soon. No expenses were incurred by those attending the forum as the UPA rented the bus for the trip and paid for everyone's breakfast.

Our annual banquet will be held at the Bulwer Community Center on March 9 at 7:30 p.m. A roast beef dinner will be served at a cost of $12 per adult and $6 per child 10 years and under. Mr. and Mrs. Chris Judd will be our guests. Mr. Judd, our provincial president, will give a talk about his farm operation.

The turnout for the sleigh ride wasn't large but everyone had a lot of fun even though it was quite cold. Mac Fraser extended a vote of thanks to Albert Sylvester and the teamsters for the ride.

Mr. Gerald Martin and Albert Sylvester have organized two three-day computer courses to begin in the near future. These courses at the Adult Education Center on Galt St. in Sherbrooke.

A day course on Pasture Management/The Value of Farm Fertilizers, was held on February 21 at the Sevigny Building at the Experimental Farm.

Efforts are being made to organize a Beef Day the end of February/early March.

The Sawyerville 4H were hosting the Farm Management Tour on February 9 and 10 so it was our good fortune to have QYF Provincial Vice President, Dan Egan, of the Shawville club and a student at Macdonald College with us. He gave us a very interesting and informative talk about who the QYF are, how QYF works, programs available etc. There has been an increase in participation over the past year which is encouraging. Dan gave us an outline of how QYF has helped him personally. Mac thanked Dan for his most enjoyable sharing of QYF.

At this time several more QYF members arrived having been delayed in travel and all enjoyed getting acquainted over pot luck lunch.

That West had begun with one heart, one club and, presumably, seven spades. This meant he had four diamonds. The finesse was unlikely to work.

So, South tried for an endplay. He led the spade eight from the dummy, planning to discard the diamond three if East played a lower spade. However, East was awake, covering with the nine. Now South ruffed and exited with his diamond three.

What could the defenders do? If West played low, East would have to concede a ruff-and-discard after winning with the 10. And if West went up with the diamond jack, he would have to lead into South's ace-queen of diamonds or concede a ruff-and-discard. Nicely done!

Wait to elect

By Phillip Alder

In a speech in the House of Lords on March 2, 1770, William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, said, "I love the Americans because they love liberty, and I love them for the noble efforts they made in the last war [the French and Indian War]."

Today's deal was sent by Lord Smith of Marlow to Tony Forrester, the bridge correspondent of The Daily Telegraph.

North couldn't bring himself to pass over three spades with two aces and four trumps. But apparently when the dummy came down, there was a stony silence from South.

After winning the first trick with dummy's spade ace, South was tempted to take the diamond finesse. But there was no rush, as the finesse could always be tried later.

Declarer drew trumps, cashed his top clubs and ruffed the club five in the dummy. What had he learned?

Feed yourself with entries

By Phillip Alder

How do you get a speech from a politician? Nowadays, give him a microphone and an audience of at least one. But in the early days of the century, it was tougher. Commenting about Joseph H. Choate, who was the U.S. Ambassador to Britain from 1899 to 1905, Chauncey Depew said, "All you need to do to get a speech out of Mr. Choate is to open his mouth, drop in a dinner, and up comes a speech."

In today's deal, all South needs to do is drop away a high card and up comes a vital entry.

Against three no-trump, West led the heart six: three, ace, four. Back came the heart five: 10, queen, nine. West exited with the heart seven, East discarding the diamond six.

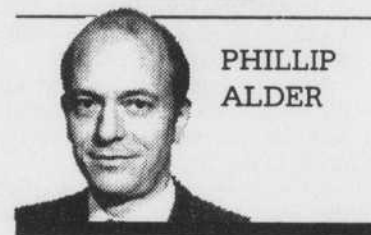

Declarer had seven top tricks. Hoping for luck in the suit, South cashed his three club honors, but West discarded a diamond on the last. Now came a diamond to dummy's ace, a spade to the queen, the spade ace and another spade. However, East took two spades and one club to defeat the contract.

Assuming the heart six is West's fourth-highest, after East produces the ace, West is marked with the queen. So South has only one heart trick coming. And he desperately needs a second dummy entry for a spade finesse. (If West has the spade king, declarer is probably in trouble.) At trick one, South should unblock the heart king under East's ace.

Suppose East switches to a diamond. South wins with dummy's ace, takes a spade finesse and leads a low heart. He must get into the dummy for a second spade finesse, which produces nine tricks: three spades, one heart, two diamonds and three clubs.

Abused women must realise there are alternatives

Dear Ann Landers: I am tired of reading letters from women who complain about being abused. You have said many times, "No one can take advantage of you without your permission."

I don't know anyone personally who is being abused, but I have seen talk shows and read articles about girlfriends and spouses who have been beaten up and knocked around for years. Often, the woman says she can't leave the guy because she "loves him." They get married, and the abuse continues. The woman thinks if she has children, the abuse will stop. It doesn't. Seven kids later, she says she can't leave him because "the children need a father."

Over the years, the woman calls the police repeatedly and has the man arrested. The following day, she drops the charges and lets him back in the house. Three days later, he beats her up again.

A woman should never give a man a second chance to abuse her, no matter how many times he apologizes and professes his love. Please tell them again, Ann. They need to get the message. -- SEEN TOO MUCH IN BALTIMORE

DEAR BALTIMORE: Thanks for the opportunity. I hope somebody listens.

Wife-beating is probably the most underreported crime in the country. A great number of women are scared silent. Many fear reprisals; others are afraid to be alone. They figure an abusive man is better than none.

I urge these women to get counseling. They need to understand the importance of self-respect. No woman who allows a man to knock her around can have a decent opinion of herself. Once women get this message, they can move forward.

Dear Ann Landers: You recently printed a funny letter about chivalry -- a woman fainted when a man offered her his seat on the subway. When she recovered, she thanked him, and he fainted. You replied, "Thanks for a joke from the '50s. I kicked the slats out of my cradle when I heard it the first time."

Your response didn't add up numerically. Meaning no disrespect, Ann, but you were long out of the cradle in the '50s.

Of course, we all know that the Ann Landers column was born in 1955. So, Happy 40th Anniversary, Ann. You're doing great. -- WES PEDERSEN, DIRECTOR OF COMMUNICATIONS AND PUBLIC RELATIONS, PUBLIC AFFAIRS COUNCIL, WASHINGTON, D.C.

DEAR WES PEDERSEN: Thanks

for a perceptive catch. Would you believe that gaffe got by me and three editors?

Sharp-eyed readers such as you keep me on my toes, and I appreciate it.

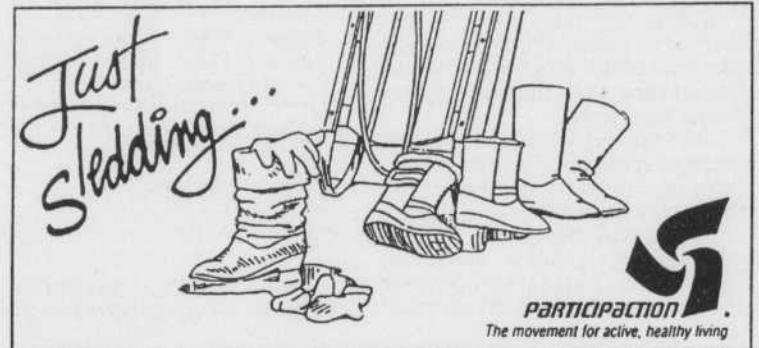

Dear Ann Landers: If you still want letters about how we met our spouses, here's a good one:

Early in 1941, I traveled to a new air base. My friend, "Rob," and I stopped off in Cincinnati for the evening and were told the USO was close to the YMCA where we were staying. While Rob napped, I wandered over there and lined up dates for the dance that evening.

When I told Rob, he said, "I'm not interested. You always get the good-looking one." I promised him he could have first choice this time, and he relented.

After the war, we lost touch, and I didn't see Rob until 1985. Guess what? He married the girl I fixed him up with in Cincinnati, and they have been together more than 50 years. Not bad, eh? -- PAUL IN BLOOMFIELD HILLS, MICH.

DEAR PAUL: Beautiful! I hope they named their first son after you.

Your Birthday

Monday, March 4, 1996

What you can't accomplish independently in the year ahead you can achieve through competent allies. Friends in the right places could help you to improve your lot in life.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your judgment in regard to important issues will be quite keen today. Peers who do not think as clearly as you do should not be permitted to chip away at your resolve. Major changes are ahead for Pisces in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Make sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Conditions relating to your career will generate favorable trends. Increase your involvement in meaningful objectives while opportunities exist.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today a seemingly moderate gesture of goodwill from a friend might lead to something much larger and more advantageous than you originally imagined.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Do not resist change today, especially at home. These shifts could benefit you, as well as the people entrusted to you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Larger and bolder ideas will have better chances for success today than your less-significant notions. Think big and have faith in your creativity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Luck will be on your side in arrangements that could add to your finances. However, in order to reap rewards, you must try to be persistent and methodical.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There will be a big difference today between gambling and taking a calculated risk. If you think you can benefit from the latter, don't be timid.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The flashes of intuition you've learned to depend on could be on target again today, especially in regard to your material affairs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Variety and change will help refurbish your mental outlook today. Plan to do something interesting and different with a fresh set of people.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You will have an above-average chance of earning a profit today. If you think you have something that could make money, get it to the marketplace.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) The smaller fragments of your plans should fall into place today as soon as the broader outline is conceived. Begin with the overview and work your way down.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Even if it causes you a degree of inconvenience today, go out of your way to assist someone who helped you out recently.

Bromptonville's Annie Perreault sixth overall

Quebec speedskaters excel at world championships

THE HAGUE (CP) — Marc Gagnon of Montreal capped a productive season with his third overall world title in four years Sunday at the world short track speedskating championships.

Gagnon, 20, added silver medals in the 1,000 and 3,000 on Sunday to go with a 1,500-metre world record race Friday.

Isabelle Charest of Montreal was third overall and third in the 1,000 Sunday.

Canadians ended the meet with three gold, four silver, three bronze and two world records.

Gagnon, the 1993 and 1994 world champion and runner up last year, was first overall with 11 points. Ji-Hoon Chae of South Korea, the 3,000 winner, was second with nine points while Li Jiajun of China, the 1,000 winner, and Italians Orazio Fagone and Mirko Vuillemin all tied for third at five points.

Frederic Blackburn of Montreal, a bronze medalist in the 500 Saturday, was sixth overall and Bryce Holbech of

Abbotsford, B.C., was eighth. SATISFYING

"This is the most satisfying win of the three for me," said Gagnon, who withdrew from the men's relay because he was too tired after the 3,000.

"The competition has improved so much that it really is getting more and more difficult. I was happy with both my races today."

In the men's relay, Italy set the world record clocking 7:04.92. The previous record of 7:07.96 was held by Canada's foursome at last year's worlds in Norway. This year's Canadian squad with Blackburn, Holbech, Francois Drolet of Les Saules, Que., and Derrick Campbell of Cambridge, Ont., was second at 7:05.14.

Italy won the women's relay. Canada was eliminated in the semifinal.

In women's competition, South Korea was 1-2 overall with Lee-Kyung Chun first at 11 points and Hye-Kyung Won, who won Sunday's 3,000 winner, second at nine. Charest and Marinella Canclini of Italy, the winner in the 1,000, tied for third at seven.

Charest, who set the world record and won gold in the 500 on Sunday, was third in the 1,000 and sixth in the 3,000 on Sunday. Annie Perreault of Bromptonville, a silver medalist in the 500, was sixth overall.

"My goal coming in was a top-three overall so I'm pleased," said Charest, 25, who was tied for first overall after Saturday's races. "I knew hanging on to first overall was going to be very, very tough. But that just might be my objective for next year's worlds."

SCOREBOARD

Monday, March 4

New Jersey at N.Y. Rangers (7:30 p.m. EST). Mark Messier, who has missed two games with a sprained shoulder, is expected to return to the Rangers' lineup.

STARS

Saturday — Cliff Ronning, Canucks, had two third-period goals 2:55 apart — including the winner with 3:57 to play — as Vancouver edged Detroit 3-2.

— Geoff Sanderson, Whalers, scored three goals as Hartford ended a four-game winless streak with a 7-1 rout of the Florida Panthers. It was the fifth hat trick of his career, giving him 28 goals this season. — Vitali Yachmenev, Kings, scored his first career hat trick in Los Angeles' 5-4 victory over Montreal. The rookie scored the game-winning goal on a deflection with 3:55 left in the third period, and has 19 goals.

SWEET HOME

Detroit lost for only the third time at home, 3-2 to Vancouver on Saturday. The Red Wings, who had won 12 straight at home, are 27-3-2 at Joe Louis Arena, the best home record in the league.

SINKING

Toronto lost its seventh straight and dropped to 3-15-3 in its last 21 games after a 5-1 loss to Dallas on Saturday night.

SHUTOUT

Jim Carey made 28 saves as Washington shut out Boston 2-0 Saturday. It was Carey's fifth shutout this season.

SNAPPED

The Los Angeles Kings ended a 10-game winless streak Saturday night with a 5-4 victory over Montreal. The Kings won for only the third time in 25 games.

STILL IN GOAL

Ottawa goaltender Damian Rhodes started his club-record 19th consecutive game since being acquired in a trade from Toronto on Jan. 23, in Saturday night's 4-1 loss to New Jersey.

SUPERB IN DEFEAT

Steve Yzerman scored both goals for Detroit in a 3-2 loss to Vancouver on Saturday. He has 31 goals this season, the 10th time in his 13-year career he has scored at least 30 goals.

SURPRISING

Craig Berube of the Capitals scored his first goal in 10 months when he was the nearest player to a tip-in by Boston defenseman Dean Chynoweth six minutes into the first period in Washington's 2-0 victory Saturday.

SCORING SLUMP

Florida, which has just four goals in its last four games (0-3-1), lost to Hartford 7-1 Saturday night.

STYMIED

Detroit was foiled in its bid for its club record-tying 47th win when the Red Wings lost 3-2 to Vancouver on Saturday. The loss snapped a six-game winning streak.

SOME RETURN

Devils rookie Steve Sullivan, recalled from the minors earlier Saturday, had a goal and an assist to lead New Jersey to a 4-1 victory over Ottawa.

STURDY

Stars defenseman Craig Ludwig was honored before Dallas' 5-1 victory over Toronto on Saturday night for playing in his 1,000th NHL game, the 110th player to reach that mark.

STATUS

Dallas left winger Greg Adams injured his right hand during the Stars' 5-1 victory over Toronto on Saturday night and was taken to a hospital for precautionary X-rays. His condition was to be evaluated Sunday.

SPEAKING

"I think he poked-checked it into me and it went in. I don't know if it hit my stick or not. I didn't even know it was in until one of the guys came over and told me." — Enforcer Craig Berube, who scored a rare goal in Washington's 2-0 victory over Boston on Saturday. Replays showed Berube never touched the puck.

Gaiters drop first game of series

Strong Stinger intensity too much for Bishop's

By Robert Matheson

MONTREAL — The Bishop's men's basketball team got stung Sunday afternoon by the Concordia Stingers.

The Stingers took command of the best 2-of-3 league championship series with a 78-60 victory.

Concordia beat the Gaiters at their own game, using a relentless defensive effort and strong intensity to turn a six-point lead with seven minutes to go in the half into a 53-31 halftime score.

"I think the biggest thing is that we did not match what Concordia threw at us in the first half — intensity and hustle," Bishop's head coach Eddie Pomykala said. "They just did it better and they worked harder." Concordia head coach John Dore couldn't have agreed more.

"I thought we started the game well," he said. "We played tremendous defence. Our defence set the tone for the game and got us into our transition game." The Stingers' lead got as high as 25 points in the second half when Gaetan Prosper brought the partisan crowd to its feet with a thunderous dunk.

Bishop's whittled away at the margin in the final 10 minutes, finally getting as close as 16 points with 48 seconds to go.

"We played stunned instead of making something happen," Pomykala said. "anytime you do that you'll get your butt kicked." Pomykala made no excuses after the game. He said the Gaiters showed their inexperience in the first half, but that they could build on the second half.

"The best thing about this is we're still alive, if we win Tuesday this game means nothing," he said. "The second thing is we upped our intensity in the second half and Concordia scored only 25 points." The Gaiters actually outscored Concordia 29-25 in the second half.

"We showed that we're a very, very good team when we play well and we're unselfish," Dore said. "Hopefully the guys won't be satisfied with this. We want to go to Halifax (for the national championships)."

"I think intensity was the difference," said Concordia point guard Justin Padvaikas. "We got in some lulls during the season. We're getting excited about playing again and I think it shows."

Rookie Patrice Lemieux led Bishop's with 16 points, six rebounds and four assists. He hit the Gaiters only two three-pointers in the game. Rob Burns added 15 points and Joel Sherbino had 10.

The Gaiters, who led the league in field goals and free throw shooting percentage, were 16-for-55 from the floor, 2-for-10 from three-point range and made 22-of-32 free throws.

Maxime Bouchard led a balanced Concordia attack with 17 points. E. Franklyn, J. Prosser, D. Furlong and G. Prosper each scored 10.

The Gaiters will try and regroup today before game 2 Tuesday night at J.H. Price Sports Centre. Tip-off is at 8 p.m.

"We'd like to win in two, but Bishop's is a team that competes and they seem to play a lot harder at home than they do on the road," Dore said.

"I don't think it will go much past two games," Padvaikas said. "It should end there."

Rob Burns scored 15 points.

Women rank fourth in Quebec

Bishop's track team excels at provincials

By David M. Martin

MONTREAL — It was a big weekend for the small Bishop's University track and field team with one athlete qualifying for the national championships, one finishing third in the province and 10 personal bests for a team made up of only 11 athletes.

Despite a recent injury, Angela Locke threw her way to the Canadian Interuniversity Athletic Union's Track and Field Championships with a shot-put throw of 10.80 metres which placed her first in the province.

"Angela has been injured with an achilles tendon problem for most of the year," said Bishop's head coach Kim Chapdelaine. "Although she didn't throw to her potential she came out to win and that is what she did."

Another impressive performance on the women's side was had by Heather Goodfellow who was narrowly defeated for second place in the 1500 metre run in a final lap sprint to the finish line. Goodfellow ran a personal best time of 5:00.82 beating her old best by five seconds.

SIXTH

Goodfellow also placed sixth in the women's 1000 metre race with a time of 3:15.14 and ran a leg in the silver medal winning 4x400 metre relay which also included Locke, Sarah Milliken and Elisabeth Gagnon.

"Heather has run 18 races since October in both cross-country and track, which is very demanding," Chapdelaine said. "She headed into provincials this weekend with possible stress fractures in her shins and injury or no injury she never gives up."

Chapdelaine added that Goodfellow has been her most valuable asset to the team on every level from racing to leadership and team camaraderie. "It was her last year and she certainly made it worth her while," Chapdelaine said.

With only four on the team, the Bishop's women were able to place fourth out of six in the overall aggregate rankings.

"It is truly amazing what we accomplished this weekend with such a small team when you think that we were put up against teams like McGill and Sherbrooke who carry up to 35 to 40 athletes and are well funded," Chapdelaine stated.

TOP TEN

The men's team also did well with four of seven athletes placing in the top 10 in the province and both the 4x200 metre and 4x400 metre relay teams placing third.

"They allowed us to move up in the overall rankings in comparison to last year when we carried a bigger team with twice as many men," Chapdelaine said.

"Overall I think the meet was entirely successful with all of the athletes peaking in their performances," Chapdelaine said.

Chapdelaine said the amount of work and determination the athletes put towards their season was incredible. She said she was doubly impressed with the fact that the team did it all on their own, from raising travel money to getting to the Sherbrooke track facility six days a week.

"This is one of the best team's I've ever coached and it is a young team which will only get better."

Locke will leave this coming weekend of March 8 and 9 for the CIAU Track and Field Championships in Windsor, Ontario.

Walchuk emerging as power player

Alberta hitting hard in fourth round Brier play

By Reg Curren

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Alberta third Don Walchuk doesn't want to be known as just a heavy hitter.

But so far at the 1996 Labatt Brier he has emerged as one of the hardest throwing players on the ice and on Sunday he used that skill to help Alberta to a 7-4 win over Saskatchewan in fourth round play. The win improved the Edmonton-based team's record to 2-0, while the Saskatchewan rink of Rod Montgomery dropped to 1-1.

Other games saw Newfoundland improve to 2-0 with a 7-4 win over Northern Ontario (0-2), Manitoba (1-1) bounced

Ontario 8-7 (0-3) and P.E.I. was an 11-7 loser to New Brunswick. P.E.I.'s loss dropped the team to 0-3 and New Brunswick is now 2-1.

"I don't know if it's always been my game, I probably do it better than most," said Walchuk, a 32-year-old stock broker in Edmonton. "But I don't like people to think that it's all I can do."

The confident Alberta team broke the game open in the third end when skip Kevin Martin — the 1991 Brier winner — was successful on a difficult angle-raise takeout that allowed him to score two points. He tucked his rock through a narrow opening between two rocks in front of the rings and then removed a Saskatchewan stone.

"By playing the shot we did we couldn't give him more than one," said a smiling Martin. "So we gave it a go, if we hit the hole, we make the shot."

He said the strong play of Walchuk and the rest of the team — second Shawn Broda and lead Don Bartlett — has allowed the rink to relax.

"Everybody feels good right now, there's no pressure," said Martin. "The team is flowing well."

Martin said having Walchuk at third with his ability to send rocks screaming down the sheet allows Alberta to play a lot of offensive shots early in the end. If those early shots don't work then either he or Walchuk can rip their way out of it with the heavy hits.

"We can gamble early and bail if we have to, I can throw the weight and he can too," said Walchuk. "It's a good weapon to have."

In the morning draw, Don Westphal's Quebec rink ran up a linescore that looked more like a football result than curling.

He and his rink of third Dan Lemery, second Louis Biron and lead Pierre Charette recorded four three-point ends on their way to a 12-6 thumping of Peter MacDonald's team from Summerside, P.E.I. The win improved the record of the Buckingham, Que., rink to 2-1.

The other third-round game saw skip Mike Kennedy and his New Brunswick team knock off the Territories 7-5.

"Yeah, not bad. it was a pretty tough schedule in the first three games," said Westphal, 32, who played second for Quebec at the 1989 and 1993 Briers. "We wanted to be at least two and one if we could and we're there and that's good."

Dawson gives Champlain the blues Cougars backskating on way to playoffs

By Robert Matheson

LENNOXVILLE — The Champlain men's hockey team took a step backwards Friday in its quest for a playoff spot.

The Cougars lost an important game 6-2 to the Dawson Blues, allowing the Blues to move into a tie for third-place in the CEGEP hockey league's eastern division. It was Champlain's third straight loss.

Eric Archambault scored on a three-on-one late in the second period to break a 2-2 and Dawson dominated the third period as the Champlain players lost their composure.

"Tonight we were undisciplined," said coach Sylvain Laflamme. "It was a bunch of little things. Our players were selfish and weren't willing to sacrifice for the team."

"We have to give credit to Dawson. We didn't deserve to win," he added.

SHORT-HANDED

The Cougars spent most of the third period short-handed and the Blues added three more goals to coast to victory. Danny Chadakitzian made it 4-2 with a fluke goal early in the third. He centred a pass from behind the net that hit a leg in front and bounced by Champlain goalie Jean-

Philippe Piché.

Danny Panzini added to more goals for Dawson. The first came midway through the period on a quick shot from the slot. Panzini scored again with 41 seconds left knocking a rebound past Piché.

Laflamme said Piché, a league all-star, played well despite giving up six goals. He gave most of the credit to Dawson.

"They played well. They were patient and they waited for us to commit," he said. "We played most of the (third) period short-handed."

"After a while the players got frustrated," Laflamme said. "It's a sign of a good hockey player if you can keep your head in a situation like that."

Peter Arvanitis, who also had two assists, scored the first goal of the game for Dawson.

TIED GAME

Champlain's Philippe Paquin tied the game, but Gianni Cantini restored the Blues' lead before the end of the first period.

Dany Favreau gave the Cougars a boost, tying the game 6:10 into the second period. But Archambault's late goal gave the Blues the momentum for the final period.

Dawson's win left both teams with 10-18-1 records. Joliette is just one point behind both teams. Champlain finishes the season with a game against John Abbott at home next Friday. Dawson finishes with division leaders St-Laurent.

Laflamme would like to win Friday and finish in third spot. The Cougars would then play College Francais in the first round instead of St-Laurent.

"St-Laurent is the toughest team in the division. We've had much more success against Francais," he said. "But against Abbott it's never easy for us. There's a good rivalry."

Maritimes road trip dashes expectations

Mooseheads, Alpines give Faucons a hard time

By Robert Matheson

SHERBROOKE — Bruce Richardson's goal in overtime Saturday salvaged a split for the Sherbrooke Faucons during a less-than-stellar stay in the Maritimes.

The Faucons, who are in a four-team race for the league's third best record, expected to win both games in Atlantic Canada.

Richardson scored with 2:27 to go in overtime Saturday, giving the Faucons a 6-5 win against the Moncton Alpines.

The victory came one night after a humiliating 4-2 loss to the Halifax Mooseheads in a nationally televised game.

The Mooseheads scored three second-period goals in a 1:34 span to the delight of 9340 fans at the Halifax Metro Centre. It was the largest regular season crowd in the franchise's two-year history.

The Mooseheads responded to the support by scoring three goals back-breaking goals in quick succession to break open a 1-1 game.

Eric Houde made it 2-1 for Halifax with 9:54 left in the period. He used a teammate as a decoy on a two-on-one and then fired a high shot past Jean-Sebastien Aubin.

Houde, who had Halifax's first-period goal, set up David Carson's goal 1:11 later. Houde back-handed a pass from behind the net to Carson, who one-timed a shot by Aubin.

Billy Manley capped the onslaught only 24 seconds later, one-timing another quick shot past Aubin. The Mooseheads' Jan Melicherik stole a puck behind the Sherbrooke net and fed Manley.

Patrick Pelchat cut the score to 4-2 in the third period. He beat Jean-Sebastien Giguere on a two-on-one. The Faucons could get no closer, showing signs of fatigue, they managed to fire only three shots at Giguere in the period.

The Faucons were outshot 30-21 in the game, including 13-5 in the second period.

Christian Dube had Sherbrooke's other goal in the game.

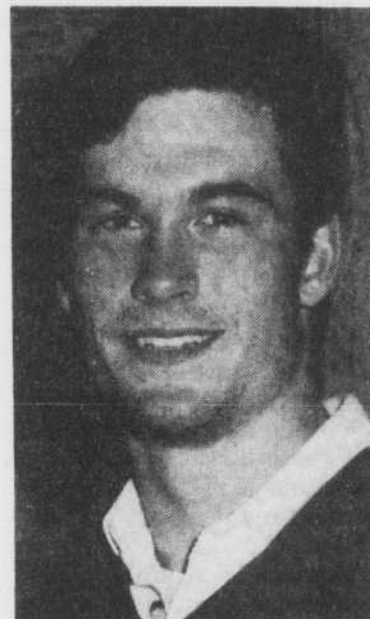

Dube scored the first of four straight goals by Sherbrooke in Saturday's game. He scored his 44th of the season in the second period to tie the game 2-2 in front of 1275 spectators.

Patrick Pelchat before the end of the second period. David Gosselin and Eric Jenkins added to Sherbrooke's lead in the third period. But the Alpines scored three goals in 2:30 to tie the game late in the period.

Sebastien Lefrancois and Jonathan Coursel scored 36 seconds apart and Sebastien Roger tied the game, beating Claude Fernet with 3:17 to play.

Richardson's 18th goal of the season gave Sherbrooke a 36-26-3 record, one-point ahead of Val d'Or, heading into the final five games of the season.

Sherbrooke hosts the St-Hyacinthe Lasers Tuesday night at 7:30.

Blues beat Oilers despite losing Great One to injury

By Michelle MacAfee

EDMONTON (CP) — A controversial hit cut short Wayne Gretzky's NHL return to Edmonton in a St. Louis jersey Sunday, but it failed to knock the wind out of the Blues as they beat the Oilers 4-3.

Gretzky left his second game with the Blues at 6:33 of the second period after taking an elbow to the head from former Oiler teammate Kelly Buchberger.

Gretzky, a former Los Angeles King and Oiler, was knocked out cold. Doctors said he suffered a minor concussion.

The play was the turning point in the rough-and-tumble game, said Blues coach Mike Keenan.

"I'm sure it raised the emotional level of our team — our team was disappointed," said Keenan, who accused Buchberger of intentionally targeting his newly acquired star.

A sullen Buchberger — the Oilers current captain, a position once held by Gretzky — defended his actions and said it was not a dirty play.

"We're fighting for a playoff spot and we have to take the body on anybody. I didn't mean for him to get hurt but we have to play the game like every game is our last."

Sunday's loss dropped the Oilers nine points back of the last playoff spot in the Western Conference.

Goals by Al MacInnis and Rob Pearson kept the Blues ahead 2-0 until midway through the second period, when Luke Richardson, Jason Arnott and Zdeno Ciger scored three unanswered goals for the Oilers in the late second and early third.

But the Blues regained their momentum at 9:44 of the third when Brett Hull tied the score 3-3 by snapping in a shot from the bottom of the faceoff circle.

Less than a minute later, defenceman Igor Kravchuk scored the game winner on a pass from Mike Hudson, deflating the sellout crowd of 16,437.

Blues goaltender Grant Fuhr, who has played every game this season, said his mates have worked hard for their late-game scoring drives.

"That might just be the sign of a good hockey team," said Fuhr.

"We're starting to battle back now when we get ourselves in a little bit of a hole and hopefully that can continue into the playoffs."

The Blues took advantage of the power play early in the game and often overwhelmed Oilers goaltender Curtis Joseph.

MacInnis scored at 3:27 of the first when he converted a behind-the-net pass from Gretzky past Joseph. Midway through the second, Pearson slipped a shot through Joseph's legs for the Blues' second power-play goal.

Canucks 3 Sabres 0

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The Buffalo Sabres are in the playoff hunt but, right now, they're shooting themselves in the foot.

"It was just one of those games where we were flat," coach Ted Nolan said after a 3-0 loss Sunday to the Vancouver Canucks. "I don't think we really had enough time to overcome that game in New York."

Red Wings 6 Blackhawks 2

CHICAGO (AP) — Vladimir Konstantinov had a goal and two assists Sunday night as the Detroit Red Wings tied a club record with their 47th victory by beating the Chicago Blackhawks 6-2.

Jets 7 Islanders 5

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — For the New York Islanders,

the injury list keeps getting bigger and the losses keep piling up.

After 372 man-games lost to injury, the Islanders suffered two more injuries during Sunday's 7-5 loss to the Winnipeg Jets.

Mighty Ducks 2 Lightning 2

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Paul Kariya and Joe Sacco scored two minutes apart early in the third period and rallied the Mighty Ducks of Anaheim into a 2-2 tie with the Tampa Bay Lightning on Sunday.

Flames 5 Sharks 1

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Theoren Fleury scored two goals Sunday to lead the Calgary Flames to a 5-1 victory over the San Jose Sharks.

Fleury scored his 35th goal of the season from the left just 53 seconds into the game to give the Flames a 1-0 lead.

Spectacular Cougar performance not enough

Nomades beat Champlain for provincial win

By Robert Matheson

LAVAL — The College Montmorency Nomades staved off a determined Champlain men's basketball team to win their fourth straight provincial championship on Sunday.

The Nomades used a 13-0 run to turn an eight-point deficit into a five-point lead late in the second half en route to an exciting 84-78 victory.

Felix Desjardins made five straight points during the run. David Brownrigg sank a shot while being fouled and made the subsequent free throw to make it 71-66 with 5:21 to go. Both players were named tournament all-stars.

Champlain closed the gap to two points with 3:43 to go, but six-foot-10 centre Alexandre Bougaieff dunked on the next play to make it 74-70. The Cougars never got any closer.

Bougaieff's dunk emphasized his impact on Sunday's outcome. He scored 32 points and dominated the boards. Bougaieff's presence also forced Champlain's post players into foul trouble as they tried in vain to stop him.

Champlain starters Carl Corriveau and Krystof Stach sat out large parts of the second half with four fouls apiece. Stach eventually fouled out.

"Once he gets the ball with his back to the basket, it's as good as in," Champlain head coach Don Caldwell said of Bougaieff.

Montmorency's comeback ruined a spectacular team performance by the Champlain Cougars during the weekend. The Cougars won Saturday's semifinal without their top player, Marc-Olivier Bessette.

Bessette, who was named an All-Canadian at Saturday's banquet, left the semifinal nine minutes into the game with a broken nose. He took an elbow to the nose during a play near the Champlain basket.

Bessette returned Sunday, wearing a protective mask borrowed from the McGill University team. He scored 16 points in the first half as Champlain took a 42-41 lead at the half.

But in the second half, Bessette scored only four points as Brownrigg stifled him defensively.

"Marc showed a real desire to comeback and play when it's uncomfortable, obstructive, he doesn't breathe well and probably doesn't feel well," Caldwell said. "He's been a great leader for us."

"Once they put Brownrigg on him that took him out of his game," he added.

Bessette finished with 20 points and was also named to the tournament all-star team. Jonathan McKercher finished with 18 points and was also an all-star. Jason Dawkins added 14 points and Carl Corriveau netted 12.

Corriveau was largely responsible for getting Champlain into Sunday's final. The rookie was a dominant rebounding force in Bessette's absence. He finished with 23 points and 11 rebounds. McKercher had 24 points in the 78-72 win against Vanier.

"Carl gave us a lot — a lot of heart on the floor. He made the shots, the free throws. He's going to be a player," Caldwell said.

"I was pleased with the year. The kids played hard all through the year. We had a real good second term where the chemistry fit together."

"For a guy like Carl to sort of come of age yesterday (Saturday) and Jon with the stuff he went through," Caldwell said. "Next year when we're in this they're going to have the will to win. They're going to remember the emptiness from this."

Dawson College beat Vanier 62-57 to win the bronze medal.

The John Abbott Islanders won the women's gold-medal match, beating the College de Sherbrooke.

Ravenous Raptors capture close win from Cavaliers

By Chuck Melvin

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Toronto Raptors couldn't have cared less that the team they beat was so banged up.

"The fact that Bobby Phills and Terrell Brandon didn't play doesn't diminish this win whatsoever," coach Brendan Malone said Sunday after the Raptors ended their seven-game losing streak by beating the injury-riddled Cleveland Cavaliers 100-89.

Tracy Murray scored a career-high 29 points for Toronto, which wrapped up a 1-6 road trip while sending Cleveland to only its fourth loss in the last 15 games. Damon Stoudamire scored 24 and Sharone Wright had 20.

Chris Mills scored 24 and Dan Majerle had a season-high 22 for the Cavaliers, who played without leading scorer Brandon (bruised tail bone, sprained rotator cuff) and shooting guard Phills (sprained knee, bruised leg). Tyrone Hill scored a season-high 19.

The Raptors shot 62 per cent and were in control most of the way. They built a 20-point lead at the half, capping it with the first three-pointer of Wright's career.

Stoudamire, working against Brandon's replacement, John Crotty, scored 17 points in the half on 7-of-10 shooting.

"We played a complete 24 minutes together that first half and played real well," Murray said. "In the second half, we had a couple letdowns, but we still played well enough to win."

"We kept the lead . . . and learned from our mistakes."

The Cavaliers trimmed eight points off the lead in the third quarter and got the deficit into single digits several times in the fourth.

Each time, Murray had an answer. His 19-footer put Toronto ahead 83-72, a 3-pointer made it 86-74 and a fast-break layup made it 88-76.

The crowd of 18,409 headed for the exits after his alley-oop dunk with three minutes left put the Raptors ahead 94-81.

"With Sharone and O (Miller), we've got two big guys on the block, and when teams double down, they can kick it out," Murray said. "They were rotating, but somebody is going to be open."

"You can't stop everybody."

Murray was 12-of-15 from the floor, including 5-of-7 on three-pointers. As a team, Toronto made 9-of-19 attempts from long range, to Cleveland's 3-of-18.

"We definitely miss Bobby and Terrell," Cleveland's Danny Ferry said. "To say otherwise would be lying, because those two guys are a big part of what we do on both ends of the court."

"We miss those guys, but the show must go on. There's no reason we can't compete."

The victory was Toronto's first since it won 98-87 at Miami on Feb. 13, and only its third in the last 16 games.

Magic not dreaming about Olympics

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Magic Johnson said Sunday he does not want a spot on U.S. basketball's Dream Team III in the Atlanta Olympics.

"I don't want to do it," Johnson told NBC-TV in an interview at the Forum.

"I've been wrestling with it, you know?" Johnson said. "I really wanted to do it, and then when I saw that schedule and I saw, damn, when is my time going to be with the family, for myself to recuperate to be ready for next season?"

Johnson said the Olympic training schedule, coupled with his business and Lakers commitments, would prevent him from spending time with his family and taking them on trips to Hawaii and Europe.

"I want to step back," Johnson said. "It would be too much because of my family commitments."

Already, the third installment of the Dream Team includes Shaquille O'Neal, Hakeem Olajuwon, David Robinson, Scottie Pippen, Glenn Robinson, Karl Malone, Grant Hill, Anfernee Hardaway, John Stockton and Reggie Miller.

The 10-man USA Basketball Committee won't meet until mid-April, and won't pick the final two members of the U.S. team until after the NBA season.

The 1996 Dream Team will be coached by Lenny Wilkens of the Hawks, the winningest coach in NBA history.

Johnson, who began playing this season with the Lakers again, retired from the NBA in 1991 after contracting the virus that causes AIDS. He played the following year on the original Dream Team that won the gold at the Barcelona Olympics, even though some foreign players expressed concerns about banging elbows with someone who had contracted HIV.
