JAPANESE FLEET BEFORE KAI PING

General ... gagement is in Progre... ...o Tung Peni...

WHERE ARE RUSSIAN SHIPS?

General Oku Reports That He Buried 1,516 Russian Dead After the Battle of Telissu—Japs Lost 900 Men.

Liao Yang, June 20.—A general engagement is proceeding near Kai Chou. The first train bearing wounded men has passed through here going northward.

Kai Chou (or Kai Ping) is on the west coast of the Liao Tung peninsula, about twenty-five miles south of New Chwang and about thirty-five miles north-north-west of Siu Yen.

Battle May Be in Progress.

Liao Yang, June 20.—A correspondent of the Associated Press who spent the night at Hai Cheng reports having heard heavy firing to the southward, and believes it to have been either an attack upon Tashichiac or the Japanese fleet again bombarding the coast near Kaiping. The firing continued from ten o'clock at night until two in the morning. A heavy rain is falling here.

Death List Increased.

Tokio, June 20.—General Oku reports that he buried 1,516 Russian dead on the field after the battle of Vafangow (Telissu), and then the work was incomplete. The natives say that the Russians themselves buried and also carried away many of their dead.

No Trace of Russian Ships.

Tokio, June 20.—Noon.—Vice-Admiral Kamamura returned to his base yesterday (Sunday) without having discovered the Russian Vladivostok fleet.

Vladivostok is Better Base.

St. Petersburg, June 20. The military critics are discussing the results of the raid by the Vladivostok squadron. They say Vladivostok has proved more valuable as a naval harbor and better as a strategical position than Port Arthur.

Where is the Squadron?

London, June 20.—The Daily Mail this morning prints the following despatch from its correspondent at Hakodate, Japan: "The master of the American bark James Johnson, from Shanghai, reports that on the morning of June 18 his ship was stopped by Russian cruisers at the western entrance to the Tsugaru Straits and searched. After being detained for two hour the captain was ordered to proceed."

The foregoing despatch may give some idea of the whereabouts of the Vladivostok squadron on Saturday morning last. The Tsurguru Straits divide the Island of Yezzo from the main Japanese Island of Hondo and the western entrance to the straits is about 450 miles east of Vladivostok in the Sea of Japan.

Japanese Memorial Service.

Via Fusan, June 20. The second division of the Japanese army celebrated to-day a grand memorial service with shinto rites, in honor of the soldiers who have been killed in the present campaign. Altars were erected on the hillside and a concourse of officers gathered about them. Five regiments of infantry and a squadron of cavalry were massed in the plain below, the walled city and mountains forming the background.

Five or six thousand Russians occupied Tsamiaki June 17. A considerable force is at Sishita, about fifteen miles to the southeast of Tashichiao, which is about twenty miles south of New Chwang.

General Oku's Report.

Tokio, June 20.—General Oku, the victor of the battle of Nanshan Hill on May 26, fought and won the battle of Telissu (Vatangow) according to the Russian designation, on June 14.

There is a strong similarity between the two fights. At Telissue the Japanese had to drive the Russians from two hills, while at Nanshan the enemy occupied one hill. The Russian position at Telissue was superior to that of the Japanese and equalized the disadvantage of the Japanese in having a larger force. The Russian position extended from east to west and crossed the narrow valley through which runs the Foo Chou river and the railway. From these positions on the right and left in the high hills, which flank this valley, General Oku drove the Russians down into the valley. The Japanese general carried first the enemy's right and then his left. The fight at the left of his line was the most desperate of the day. The Russians held this position with desperate determination and only fled when they were almost completely enveloped. The field had been disputed all day, and when the Japanese reached it six hundred of the enemy's dead were found there.

General Oku started from a line marked by the Pulantien and the Tassa river on June 13. The following day the several advancing columns were in touch 1-2 miles south of Telissu.

Russians Driven Back.

When dawn of the 15th broke the field of battle was obscured by fog, but the artillery opened early. A portion of the Japanese middle column advancing to the north side of a hood in the Foo-Chou River, where the men were greatly exposed to the enemy's fire, but a force of infantry and artillery relieved them. At half-past nine o'clock this relieving force seized a vantage point, and in co-operation with the middle column drove the Russians from Tafang-Shen.

The Russian batteries posted in two different points poured a heavy fire into these forces, but in spite of this shelling, the middle column and the men who were sent forward to relieve the force at the bend in the Foo-Chou River, climbed the heights ahead of them and quickly mastered the situation.

In the meantime the Japanese right was suffering. The Russian left had been reinforced until their numbers were greater than the opposing Japanese. General Oku was twice forced to order up the infantry reserves. The Russians made a series of desperate counter attacks, and when the situation was most critical Japanese cavalry swung around the Russian left and struck the enemy on the flank. At this time additional reinforcements had arrived, and the Russians held their position with dogged determination until their front and both flanks were under fire. Then they broke and fled.

900 Russians Ambushed.

The Japanese cavalry pursued the enemy for a short time, but the roughness of the country made it necessary soon to abandon the pursuit. The Japanese left succeeded in ambushing 900 Russian infantrymen, who were discovered retiring toward Wu Chiatun. They sent two companies of infantry and one battalion of artillery to a hill east of Hong Chiatun, and the Russians were completely trapped.

Many of the enemy at this point were killed or wounded. In his report General Oku says the Russians began the fight with twenty-five battalions of infantry, seventeen squadrons of cavalry, and ninety-eight guns. They were reinforced several times, but the number of reinforcements is not known. The Russian casualties are not known with exactitude. The Japanese right found and buried part of the enemy's dead. Seven Russian officers and three hundred men were taken prisoners. The Japanese casualties reported up to noon on June 15 amounted to about 900 men, including eight officers killed and fourteen wounded.

GENERAL KUROKI,
Whose Forces Inflicted Such Severe Defeat on the Russians at Talissee.

Naval Engagement Reported.

Tokio, June 20.—It is reported that Vice-Admiral Kamimura is engaging the Russian Vladivostok squadron off Usima. The navy department has no confirmation of the report but hopes that it may be true.

MONTREAL MASONS AT THEIR ANNUAL SERVICE

Kilwinning Lodge Marches to St. Jude's Church to Hear Excellent Sermon.

The annual church service of Montreal Kilwinning Masonic Lodge, No. 20, A. F. & A. M., Q.R., which was held in St. Jude's Church last evening, was the most largely attended that has ever been held in Montreal under the auspices of a single Masonic lodge, over two hundred brethren being present. Suspended from the ceiling in the nave ... was an electrically illuminated ... and appropriate Masonic service was arranged for the occasion and included a special prayer for those present, with particular reference to the Worshipful Master, W. Bro. W. A. Williams, who sailed for England last week. Besides Bro. Samuel Skinner, S.W., and Bro. C. M. Mills, J.W., there were more than seven of the past Masters of Montreal Kilwinning were present. R.W. Bro. W. A. Doughty, V.W. Bros. John E. Wright and James Dougherty and W. Bros. F. W. Knowlton, H. Booth jr., Edmund Neve and A. J. Brown, the D.D.G.M. of the Montreal district, R.W. Bro. J. Alex Cameron, was also present, together with M.W. Bro. Lieut.-Col. A. A. Stevenson, past grand master of the Grand Lodge of Canada, R.W. Bro. H. Dumas, and V.W. Bro. Edmund T. Perry, grand steward, Zetland Lodge, New York; R.W. Bro. Guy H. Dewar, Mount Moriah Lodge, No. 38; W. Bro. A. Percy Leeming, Corinthian, No. 45; W. Bro. R. Hamilton, Prince Consort Lodge, No. 52; W. Bro. Wm. Ware, St. Andrew's Lodge, No. 52; W. Bros. James Chalmers and Wm. McLean, Eastern Star Lodge, No. 74; V.W. Bro. Wm. Angus, Westmount Lodge, No. 76; W. Bro. R. J. Thompson, Aurora Lodge, Fort Covington, N.Y., and every lodge in the city was represented by one or more members.

As the latter marched into the church the organist played Christian Soldiers' was sung by the choir, and the rector, R.W. Bro. the Rev. Canon Dixon, past grand chaplain, on behalf of himself and the churchwardens and congregation, welcomed the Masonic brethren to St. Jude's Church. The craft held a warm place in his heart, and he mentioned that it had been his privilege when in England last to be present when the then Price of Wales, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of England, gave up the throne of freemasonry to take his place upon the throne of Great Britain and Ireland as the Emperor of the greatest kingdom and the greatest Empire the world had ever seen, and he was also privileged to be present when H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught was enthroned as the Most Worshipful Grand Master in succession to his brother before over 13,000 prominent Masons in Albert Hall, London.

The sermon was preached by the chaplain of the lodge, R.W. Bro. Thomas Eaton, D.C.L., who, taking for his text the words "O, when wilt thou come unto me?" (Psalms, ch. 21), delivered an eloquent discourse on the tenets of freemasonry, which interfered with no man's moral, civil or religious liberty, and remarked that that day had been chosen for the service to commemorate the festival of St. John the Baptist who, with St. John the Evangelist, stood for two grand pillars to adorn the moral and spiritual temple of Freemasonry. Moreover, patriotism, as well as piety and philanthropy, being one of the prominent corner stones of the craft, it was appropriate that the Masons in the province of Quebec should show a fraternal feeling towards their French-Canadian fellow-citizens in rejoicing with them on their national day of St. John the Baptist.

THE EMBARGO FAVORED.

(Canadian Associated Press Cable.)

London, June 20.—At a special meeting of the Staffordshire Chamber of Agriculture, at Stafford, the chairman said he had convened the meeting in consequence of a communication received from the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce. He was asked to express an opinion in regard to the proposal to allow Canadian cattle to be admitted free into England and Scotland. The Council of the Chamber had met and Mr. Patterson, on behalf of the Council, moved that the Chamber regards the proposal for the alteration of the Diseases of Animals Act, 1869, so as to admit the importation of live Canadian cattle as likely to be injurious to agriculture as a whole, being of opinion that the advantage to a section is quite inadequate to compensate for the risk of importation of disease. Mr. Toon seconded the motion, which was unanimously carried, and the secretary was directed to send a copy to the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, the Canadian Cattle Association, the president of the Board of Agriculture and the Central Chamber of Agriculture.

PRESS AND DUNDONALD.

(Canadian Associated Press Cable.)

London, June 20.—The London afternoon newspapers devote much space to the Dundonald incident. The Globe, alluding to the claim that his efforts were constantly hampered by interference with the technical part of his duties says: "This is a very serious indictment against the Canadian Government more particularly as the special department concerned with the defensive services referring to Lord Dundonald's saying imperfect as its training and great as its lack of armament and numerous faults in detail there lies behind all these evils the far greater evil of the indifference of the men who govern the country to the welfare of the force. The Globe says: "It is not possible to imagine a more damning charge. Enough has been said to show that a distressing situation exists which may raise, unless wisely handled, most serious and far reaching issues. If Canada cannot or will not organize and maintain a sufficient and properly equipped force for the defence of a frontier the duty and burden will in the last resort be ours

Referring to ex-President Cleveland's attempt to provoke a quarrel, the Globe says: "What has happened may happen again, and it is notorious that for years the American Government has been fortifying positions upon the Canadian frontier in a manner the thoroughness of which with Dominion armaments will compare most unfavorably. The Globe concludes by suggesting the formation of an Imperial council to discuss questions likely to affect the Empire as a whole."

The Pall Mall Gazette says the Canadian Government must have such an uncomfortable feeling that in resentment of criticism they have only managed to call down upon themselves its heaviest and most galling artillery. By dismissing Lord Dundonald they have merely unmuzzled and given a free hand to one whose firm purpose is to drag to the light of day some of the sinister features and consequences of their policy.

The St. James Gazette wishes the Dundonald's statement had been less pictures in its coloring. Time will tell a loyal colony that it has been living in a fool's paradise and to belittle its own particular preparation for war is surely not the moment of crisis when the country is abnormally sensitive and ready to find matter of offence on every side Lord Dundonald's mistake has been an excess of zeal.

STATEMENT OF COLONIAL SECRETARY.

(Canadian Associated Press Cable.)

London, June 20.—In reply to Mr. Devlin this afternoon Mr. Lyttleton said that no representations were made by His Majesty's Government to Lord Minto in the matter or as to the mode of the appointment of general officers commanding the militia in Canada, and such has not been the subject of discussion. He added that no suggestions as to a change of procedure have been made by the Canadian Government.

G.O.C. DESERVING LITTLE SYMPATHY

He Carefully Chose Time of Retirement to Hurt Government.

Ottawa, June 20.—(Special.)—Sir Frederick Borden returned to the city at noon to-day, and being interviewed in regard to the statement issued by Lord Dundonald, the Minister of Militia said that it was an ancient matter.

"What strikes me as rather peculiar," said Sir Frederick, "is the course which he followed, according to himself, to benefit the militia. His own story is that he pursued the dishonest course of remaining in the employment of the Government and under the control of the Minister simply and solely to look out and watch for something so that he could do the Minister the utmost possible harm. He says he did this in preference to retiring. That is the avowed object which he pursued when all the time pretending loyalty to the Government and loyalty to myself, with whom he was on the best possible terms, sending me letters and notes daily. And I have said this was a rather strange course to pursue, at least, it strikes me that way."

"What about the colonels and the Ordnance Corps?" he was asked.

"I see the statement says that I was anxious to secure highly paid posts for my friends. Lord Dundonald knows that this was not the case. The Ordnance Corps is scattered from Halifax to Victoria. There are fewer colonels now in charge of the stores than formerly. The salary of the different districts were fixed. The fact that two officers having the susbtantive rank of lieutenant-colonel were given rank in no way changed the pay. These two officers had served in South Africa, and one of them, whom the General struck off, was the only French-Canadian on the list."

"Then there is the Gregory case. Lt.-Col. Gregory had served his five years, and under the regulations was entitled to one, two or three years extension, if it was in the interests of the regiment to give this extension. The second in command, Major Ferguson, a son of the late Senator Ferguson, was in poor health and not able to succeed Col. Gregory. A year's extension was given Col. Gregory. Meantime Major Ferguson did not improve, and Major Glasgow has been recommended by Col. Otter and the inspector of cavalry as having properly qualified to command.

"The regiments are not run in the interests of the colonels, but the service of the colonels are utilized for the benefit and improvement of the regiments. Some colonels would like to remain forever at the head of a regiment."

Sir Frederick said that in a number of instances his instructions to the general were utterly disregarded, but he did not desire to go into these matters at present. As to those who were bestowing sympathy upon Lord Dundonald for the way his services had been dispensed with they had now from his own lips that he had specially and carefully selected his own manner of going.

REV. DR. CAMPBELL DEALS WITH UNION OF CHURCHES

Advises That Haste Should be Made Slowly and Individual Work Not Abated.

Dr. Robert Campbell, reviewing the proceedings of the late Presbyterian General Assembly at St. John, last night in St. Gabriel Church, dwelt specially on the attitude adopted by the assembly toward church union.

Union in the abstract all the ministers present had advocated; but in the particulars, it was clear to all that there were very great obstacles to be encountered. Each of the three denominations stand for something which they deem of vital importance—their distinguishing character as churches. It was not to be expected that old views would readily be abandoned, and yet comparative union was not practicable unless some section or sections of the three parties in question would yield in these particulars. The Presbyterians, for example, would not care to forego their permanent pastorate, with its many advantages, and the shorter catechism.

A system had been suggested whereby each pastor and his congregation should conduct their mutual affairs as their own judgment dictated. Each of the churches was acting with honesty and sincerity, and there was at least a real unity of spirit among them. The visible church really consists of all those in the world who profess the true religion of Christ.

The Methodist quadrennial conference had formally begun the union movement, and the Presbyterians were not slow to take up the suggestion. A significant feature of the movement was that it proposed to take in also any other churches, such as the Baptist and Anglican, which desired it. A federal union might result in parcelling out the country for evangelical effort.

In any case, all haste was to be deprecated.

Meantime the churches might in their separate capacity provoke each other into love and good works; and all of them ought to prosecute their several missions with unabated zeal, for if the suggestion of union caused any of them to relax in their efforts to extend the kingdom of God, then the result of the movement was sure to be harm and not blessing.

PROF. ROSS GOES TO LONDON.

Accepts Call as Pastor of St. Andrew's Church and Will Leave Montreal Presbyterian College.

Rev. Professor Ross, of the Montreal Presbyterian College, has received a call to the pastorate of St. Andrew's Church, London, Ont., and will accept it. The call was unanimously agreed on by the congregation, and the Montreal presbytery will be communicated with shortly. His successor in the college has not yet been selected, but it is possible that Rev. Dr. R. Campbell may give lectures on church history during the next session.

Dr. Ross is of Scottish birth. He was born in Peterculter in 1851, where he received his primary education. After emigrating to Canada he taught school for some years, and then entered Queen's University, Kingston. He graduated as B.A. in 1878 and as M.A. and B.D. in 1881, after an exceptionally brilliant course. He then accepted the pastorate of Knox Church, Perth. In 1890 he was appointed lecturer in church history in Queen's University, which position he left in 1892 to take the chair in practical theology in the Presbyterian college here. He is a man of fine Christian character, wide scholarship and culture, and will be greatly missed in Montreal.

MR. JAMES HARDWELL TAKES UP HIS NEW DUTIES

His Appointment as Traffic Officer to Railway Commission is a Popular One.

The appointment of Mr. James Hardwell to the position of Traffic Officer to the Board of Railway Commissioners at Ottawa is a most popular one, both in railway and in business circles, and is a well-earned tribute to the high efficiency which has always characterized the work of the new officer.

MR. JAMES HARDWELL,
Traffic Officer to the Board of Railway Commissioners.

Mr. Hardwell, who was born in Devonshire, Eng., commenced his railway career in 1874 with the Grand Trunk at Toronto. By dint of hard work and close attention to his duties he rose to be chief clerk, and in 1879 he was advanced to the chief clerkship of the general freight department at Toronto. He left the Grand Trunk in 1884 to accept the position of chief clerk in the general freight department of the Ontario division of the Canadian Pacific Railway on the opening of the company's Ontario system. He remained with the latter company until Jan. 1, 1898, when he received the appointment of Division Freight Agent of the Western division (Montreal to Dalhousie, N.B.) of the Intercolonial Railway, with headquarters at Montreal. This was at the time the Government Railway system was extended to Montreal. In the latter part of 1899 he was promoted to be Assistant General Freight Agent for the entire system, which position he has since occupied.

Mr. Hardwell, who will reside at Ottawa in future, left for Toronto last night to attend a meeting of the Railway Commissioners there to-day.

SHAMROCKS LOYAL TO C.A.A.U. FINDING

Absolutely Refuse to Play Brantford or any Other Professional Team.

"The Shamrock Lacrosse Club have unanimously decided to abide by the ruling of the C.A.A.U. and will absolutely refuse to play any Brantford professional team."

The official announcement was made to The Herald at the close of the directors meeting to-day, by Mr. W. P. Kearney, President of the Shamrock Lacrosse Club.

"We fully recognize that the Union are the law makers, regarding sports in this country and though we are materially affected by the ruling we believe that by taking our present stand we will be the strongest advocates of purely amateur lacrosse.

"If the Brantford Lacrosse Club desires to send down a team of amateurs we will willingly meet them in the matches for the Minto Cup, even though we know we are going to lose a big gate.

"Further we have decided that a delegation of the club should wait on Mr. P. D. Ross, the trustee of the Cup at Ottawa, to-morrow, and after submitting our decision to him will ask him his view on the matter.

"But now that the C.A.A.U. has come out and taken the first step against professional lacrosse we sincerely hope that the Union will act consistently and follow up its action by investigating the conditions under which the teams in the eastern league are working. Such an investigation should deal with all clubs, Shamrock, Montreal, Capitals.

"The Shamrock Association has always been an amateur one and it is to live up to this standard that the directors have decided to take this strong stand against semi-professionalism."

NAMES ON PETITION SAID TO BE FORGED

Alleged Crookedness in Regard to St. Denis Street Tunnel.

EX-ALD. MARTINEAU'S CHARGE

Claims Three Sheets of Signatures Are Clipped From the Requisition Papers of Mayor Laporte.

What promises to be a big sensation in civic circles will probably come up at the City Council this afternoon. For the charge is made that three pages of signatures attached to the petition for the naming of the St. Denis Street tunnel after Ald. Vallieres, have been forged, and several affidavits will be produced to support the charge.

A fortnight ago a petition, alleged to have been signed by over one hundred ratepayers of St. Denis Ward, was presented to the Road Committee, asking that the new tunnel under the Canadian Pacific tracks at Mile End be named after Ald. Vallieres. This petition was approved by the committee and a report sent to Council, signed by Ald. Lariviere, Ames, N. Lapointe, and Gallery, recommending that the suggestion be adopted.

Since then affidavits from six persons have been received, swearing that their signatures were never affixed to any such document. On closer examination it was found that of the five pages of signatures, three had been clipped at the top. In addition, the name of A. A. Masse, 1777 Labelle Street, appears in two places, at the beginning of the petition and on the first of the three pages which are said to be false.

Ex-Ald. P. Martineau, who has been investigating the circumstances surrounding the petition, and who is said to have secured the six affidavits, was seen by The Herald this morning. Mr. Martineau says that he is prepared to prove that three pages of signatures attached to the Vallieres tunnel petition really belong to the nomination papers of Mayor Laporte, and that the heading was cut off and the pages added to the petition.

Mayor Laporte says that the names do not belong to his requisition papers, since he has all the lists locked up in his safe. His Worship admits that certain lists sent to him might have gone astray, but he is certain that he has in his possession all the papers that he received.

"I may say in this connection," added the Mayor, "that Ald. Vallieres never wanted to have the St. Denis tunnel named after him. In fact, he strongly opposed the suggestion when it was brought up."

Mr. A. A. Masse, who is employed on the staff of the Municipal Gazette, has been the chief mover in the Vallieres petition. When seen this morning, he admitted that he had clipped the top off three pages of signatures, not because there was a heading there, but in the process of securing the names the pages had been soiled. Mr. Masse said that it was ridiculous to characterize these pages as belonging to the Laporte requisition.

"I can swear," declared Mr. Masse, "that all the names on the first two pages are genuine, for I went around and got them myself, but I cannot swear as to the others, because they were in the hands of friends."

"Did you not sign the petition in two places, at the head of the list and on the first of the clipped leaves?" Mr. Masse was asked.

"I admit that I did," he replied, "but there was nothing strange about that. I did not want my friends to start out with a blank sheet to get names. It is always better to have somebody to start the list of signatures. When my friends brought in the three pages I clipped the tops off and attached them to mine."

Ald. J. D. Couture, when seen this morning, remarked: "It is really serious, as we have affidavits from people that they never signed this petition at all." Ald. Couture declined to say what steps he intended to take in the matter.

Every one in civic circles seems to be unanimous in saying that Ald. Vallieres is blameless in the matter, and that he had no desire to have the tunnel named in his honor. At the same time the opinion is freely expressed that it will be hard on any civic employe, who may be found to have inserted the wrong signatures.

Lord Dundonald Issues Statement Defining His Course of Action

Claims He Was Constantly Hampered by the Militia Department and That His Reports Were Suppressed—Sir Fredk. Borden Says That Lord Dundonald's Second Report Was on a Question of Policy—The Sweetsburg Militia List Was Only a Side Issue.

Toronto, June 20.—Lord Dundonald issued the following statement on Saturday :—

Considering it desirable that I should lay before the people of Canada a statement of my position with reference to the difficulty between myself and the Government of Canada, I may say :—

I was fully aware of the gravity of the step which I took in making a public protest. I was fully aware that it was an unusual step. I decided to take it because I was convinced that it was the only means of serving the militia of Canada.

I have for two years been general officer commanding the militia. I have worked hard to improve the force, to devise a scheme of reorganization, to create and organize numerous departments and to revise the system of training. I have sedulously avoided taking any part or interest in Canadian politics.

In all of my work I have endeavored to keep steadily in view the nature of my post. I have not sought to impose my policy upon the Minister or upon the Cabinet. I have sought to carry out the plans approved by the Government. In the technical administration of the force I held that I should be given a fairly free hand. At the same time I was careful to ascertain and consider the views of all persons interested. I claimed a smaller measure of freedom than is accorded to the general managers of important commercial companies. To make a railway pay it is necessary to leave detail matters of administration largely to the expert official in charge of the system. The managing of a military force is expert work, and the safety of the country is surely as important as the success of a railway. My claim for freedom extended only to the technical side of my work. I had no desire to force my policy upon the Minister.

Efforts Were Hampered.

In my efforts I was constantly hampered by interference with that particular part of my work. This interference began very soon after my arrival. It has continued incessantly ever since. Mr. Fishers interest in the affairs of the 13th Scottish Light Dragoons was simply the final incident in a long list of various phases of obstruction.

My only reason for remaining in my post was to benefit the militia of Canada, but my efforts were so persistently blocked that I came to look upon the case as a hopeless one. I was forced to reflect very seriously upon what I could do to effect my object—the improvement of the militia. It seemed to me that, imperfect as is the training, great as is the lack of armament, numerous as are the faults of detail, there lies behind all these evils a far greater evil—the indifference of the men who govern the country to the welfare of the force.

It seemed to me that the best way to help the militia of Canada was to let daylight into the working of the system.

I realized, moreover, that the new militia bill would soon be discussed in Parliament, and that it was my duty to give a warning of certain dangers before it was too late.

I might have lodged an official protest with the Government. I cannot see that this would have been of any avail. It would have been simply one more document in a pigeon hole.

A course offering many attractions was to resign and issue a public statement giving my reasons. So far as I personally was concerned it would have been by far the easier and more pleasant course. The objection was that by so doing I would give neither the Government nor the people of Canada any real opportunity to pass judgment upon the matter brought to their attention. My protest would have been made, it is true, but not in a manner that would have attracted attention to the evil.

It seemed better to make a public protest, and to leave with the Government the option of heeding it, or of opposing the system which is destructive to the efficiency of the national defence.

I was in this frame of mind when Mr. Fisher's interference with the 13th Scottish Light Dragoons came to a head. It precipitated my resolution to speak out, no matter what the consequences.

His Reports Suppressed.

I may now pass from the general aspect of the mater to a few particular instances where not I, but Canada, suffered from autocratic and unusual interference with the machinery which I was supposed to control.

One extremely serious case of interference was the suppression of the important parts of my first annual report on the militia. After studying the situation with great care, I came to certain conclusions, and sought out certain plans. For convenience of reference I divided my report for the year 1902 into two halves. Part I. was a simple diary of events. Part II. contained my description of the condition of the the militia and an outline of a comprehensive scheme for reorganizing the force upon lines suitable to the country. This part was fully intended by me for publication. It contained nothing that could be described as a military secret. It covered matter such as is constantly made public in Great Britain and the United States. In my judgment it was information as to the actual condition and possibilities of the militia, which it was desirable for the people of Canada to know.

This part of the report Sir Frederick Borden suppressed against my protest. In the House of Commons, at various times, he described this part of the report as "private," "confidential," and "secret." It was marked neither "private," "confidential," nor "secret." When the minister made these statements he had been explicitly informed by me that I desired its publication. He went so far on one occasion as to compare the report to the secret report on Canadian defence. With that report my report had no analogy.

When I presented my report for 1903, Sir Frederick Borden told me that certain portions were too strong, and might embarrass him. I modified it, and again sent it in. Without further reference to me, hes truck out whole pages and separate paragraphs, all of which I had intended should be made public. Among the portions he eliminated were references to the condition of the permanent corps—which I pronounced in many respects unsatisfactory.

The Permanent Corps.

Last year,, for instance, the permanent corps, with an establishmefit of 995, were 207 under strength, had 277 enlistments and 154 desertions. The two small instructional batteries at Kingston were practically reduced to one. The dissatisfaction in the permanent corps, and its urgent requirements had been pointed out by me to the minister ever since I came to the country.

A more recent instance occurred in connection with the organization of the ordnance corps. The establishment of this corps was fixed at a colonel, a second in command—with the rank of lieutenant-colonel—and three lieutenant-colonels. This was a larger establishment than I would have recommended had I been unhampered; but Sir Frederick Borden was anxious to have a number of senior and highly paid posts, and a scheme which he desired was carried out.

Soon after this I went to the Northwest. As soon as I had left Ottawa, the Minister of Militia ordered the Adjutant-General to prepare an order increasing the number of lieutenant-colonels to five, thus giving seven officers of the rank of lieutenant-colonel and upwards to a corps of about 100 men. In this connection it must be remembered that the most elementary requirements of the militia were neglected for want of money.

The case of Col. Gregory of the Second Dragoons has been placed before the public. The excellent work done by him during his command showed itself in the fine state into which he had brought his regiment. I was anxious, for the sake of the regiment, for reasons into which I need not go, to extend his command for another year. Recently Major Glasgow, was gazetted second in command. Immediately afterwards the Minister of Militia sent me a short minute to say that he did not desire Col. Gregory's command extended for another year. This was a most unusual progedure for a minister to adopt, as it was entirely within the scope of my duty to recommend to Sir Frederick Borden what I considered best in the interests of the Second Dragoons, from a military point of view. The action taken by him certainly was not conducive to the interests of the regiment.

13th Scottish Dragoons.

It is perhaps here necessary to say how difficult it is to get qualified officers for the militia. This difficulty was accentuated in the comparatively small area of the Eastern Townships, where the number of cavalry officers had been increased from 26 to 192, and the number of squadrons from four to twenty since May, 1903. The only possible way to get the new corps officered was to get local support and trust to the opinion of the commanding officer entrusted with the duty of raising the regiment.

The whole details of the interference with the officers entrusted by me with the duty of organizing the Thirteenth Scottish Light Dragoons have already been made public.

That Mr. Fisher's motives were political he himself admitted in his second speech in the House of Commons, on June 10. This admission, I may observe, was singularly at variance with his earlier speech on the same day. In that speech, which was a prepared statement, he distinctly stated that his objections to Dr. Pickel were of a military nature, and that his interference was not due to political motives.

I may also note the peculiar coincidence by which Hon. Mr. Fisher was acting Minister of Militia on the very day on which this case came up. I do not remember any previous instance of his acting for the Minister of Militia. The case of the Thirteenth Scottish Light Dragoons was pending. On the 18th of May the minister struck out from the Gazette the list of names submitted to him by me on the ground that further consideration was needed. On the very next day that further consideration was given—by the very man whom Sir Frederick Borden knew to be pressing to have the Gazette altered in the direction of his own wishes. The effect of Sir Frederick Borden's unusual step in asking Hon. Mr. Fisher to act for him was to make the strong opponent of Dr. Pickel the arbiter by whose decision the council would be guided.

A Reflection on Minister.

It has been said that my proper course on the matter coming up before Parliament was to send a statement of facts to the Minister of Militia, and not to an Opposition member of Parliament.

Although statements condemning my course were being prepared to be read in the House, I received no intimation from Sir Frederick Borden that this was being done, and no invitation to prepare a memorandum setting forth the facts as far as I knew them. All that I received from Sir Frederick Borden was a request to know whether a paragraph in a newspaper represented what I had said at Montreal.

Had I volunteered such a statement I had no assurance that the Minister of Militia would read it to the House. On the other hand, Col. Hughes, M.P., a brother officer and a member of the headquarters staff, asked me for information on the subject, I do not think that I did wrong in complying. But for my so doing a one-sided version would have gone uncorrected to the country which half an hour afterwards was universally seen to be untrue. I took pains to place a copy of my memorandum in the hands of Sir Frederick Borden by the same messenger who gave it to Col. Hughes.

These few instances which I have quoted are sufficient to show how my reports have been suppressed or manipulated, how my hands have been crippled in my endeavor to promote the efficiency of the militia.

Having dealt with matters appertaining to my administrative duties, I desire here to place on record the fact that in my opinion much injury has been caused to the militia by want of sympathy with its improvement. I will instance here the educational scheme for the promotion of officers and non-commissioned officers. One has but to turn to the pages in the militia list to see the vast number of names of officers who are professionally unqualified. The training ground necessary to qualify these officers on a scheme prepared by me and approved of by council could have been provided for a comparatively trifling sum of money. An adequate artillery range is urgently required. A recommendation by one that local camps be provided suitable to modern conditions of war training was struck out of my second annual report, though it is notorious to every thinking militia officer that several of these camps are urgently required.

Recommendations Rejected.

There being no central camp this year, I applied on the 23rd of May to be permitted to hold this September, two shotr courses of instruction, accompanied by staff rides, for a limited number of field officers. This I hoped would in some slight measure qualify urgent cases requiring promotion. My recommendations was rejected by Sir Frederick Borden, no reason being given.

One of my plans for the improvement of the militia has been the issue of large illustrated placards for their instruction. Recently I desired to bring these up to date, according to the latest ideas. Though I had got the new plates and letter press prepared ready for the printers, my application to have them printed was returned, endorsed "postponed." No reasons accompanied this ruling.

It fay be a matter of indifference to some whether the militia lacks guns, rifles, ammunition, equipment, and all that is necessary to make a fighting force efficient. It may be a matter of indifference to some whether the great Northwest, with its splendid fighting material, be left in a defenceless state and without a gun, with patriotic offers to organize urgently needed corps ignored. Above all, it may be a matter of indifference to some whether other considerations beside military cons.derations influence the choice and advancement of the military leaders of the people. But as I am now free to speak more openly on matters I have often referred to in public, I desire here emphatically to warn the people of Canada that though they may be indebted for the integrity of their territory, and, indeed, their national existence, to the forbearance of others, they are, as regards their preparation for war and their state of readiness to successfully resist aggression, living in a fool's paradise.

Words of Farewell.

I take leave of the Canadian militia with regret.

My relations to the officers and men of the force have been exceedingly pleasant. My observations of the force have confirmed the high regard which I formed in South Africa of the soldierly qualities of the Canadians. From my brother officers and fellow soldiers of the rank and file, I have received loyal and ungrudging support, which I can never forget. Had I been able to help to place these troops of such fine natural qualities in that thorough state of preparedness which is their due, and which the nation desires, it would have been an achievement of which I should ever have been proud. As matters have turned out, I can only hope that my protest may have some weight in lessening the unfair restrictions under which they labor. The circumstances of my dismissal make it impossible for me to issue a farewell order. I can bid them good-bye only in this informal manner.

LORD DUNDONALD AND THE CAMP.

Toronto, June 20.—A story about Lord Dundonald is being told by an officer of the Provincial Government. At the time when the G.O.C. was endeavoring to secure a permanent camp of instruction he decided that a site in the Province of Quebec was preferable to any other. The Ontario Government was naturally anxious that the camp should be situated in this province, and made an offer of sufficient land in the vicinity of Sharbot Lake for the purposes of the camp. Lord Dundonald declined to accept the site, giving as his reason that the troops would have to travel much farther to reach it than to reach the spot he had selected. An official of the Government interviewed Lord Dundonald, and proved to him that there would be an actual saving in the distance travelled if Sharbot Lake were chosen, but his Lordship's decision could not be shaken.

MR. FISHER WAS FORCED TO INTERVENE.

(Toronto Saturday Night.)

Hon. Sydney Fisher, in reluctantly confessing that he had interfered with Lord Dundonald's appointment of Dr. Pickel as major of the Thirteenth Light Dragoons, simply admitted that politics have to do with militia appointments—something everybody knew before either the G.O.C. made his break or the Minister of Agriculture made his confession. It has been and always will be so, though things now are not as bad as they were in the past. It is evident from all that has been said and published that the new regiment, which was being partly raised in Hon. Mr. Fisher's own county, was being officered by a coterie of Conservative politicians, who would doubtless have made it an effective political organization. Probably Lord Dundonald was unaware that he was recommending a clique of political workers, a little family compact as it were, but such being the case, Hon. Mr. Fisher would have been a very poor politician indeed if he had permitted the scheme to be worked. A man would have to be a little better than human to clothe his bitterest local opponents in the gaudy trappings of cavalry officers and give them a pull with probably several hundred men in their command, for in the end it would likely mean his own defeat.

G.O.C. COULD NOT AGREE WITH THE GOVERNMENT

Why His Reports Were Suppressed—The Sweetsburg Incident Was Side Issue.

Ottawa, June 20.—(Special.)—The statement issued by Lord Dundonald makes it perfectly clear that the incident in connection with the organization of the 13th Scottish Dragoons was only a side issue, and that his real difference was with the Minister of Militia and the Canadian Government. The trouble started, according to Lord Dundonald, about as soon as he came here, as he complains that his report of 1902 and part of his report of 1903 was not published.

There are too many colonels, he says, of the ordnance corps; his recommendations were not carried out; there is not a gun to protect the North-West, and Canada is living in a fool's paradise. Such is a brief summary of the general's statement.

In the first place, the colonels of the ordnance corps are scattered from the Pacific to the Atlantic, which is as carefully excluded from the general's letter as his Montreal speech had omitted the fact that Mr. Fisher was acting-Minister of Militia when the name of Dr. Pickel was cut off the list.

There is one colonel located at Kingston, one at Toronto, one at Ottawa, one at Montreal, and one at Quebec. Then there are majors at Halifax, St. John, N.B., London and Victoria, B.C. Lord Dundonald is evidently of the opinion that some of these colonels should have been reduced to the rank of sergeant-major when the corps was organized.

As to the suppression of reports, one of them related to the defences, which are always kept secret, and the other to a scheme which involved over twelve million of dollars, which the Government could not recommend to Parliament.

The Opposition in Parliament was kept fully informed about the unpublished reports. Col. Hughes, Col. Tisdale, Mr. Ingram, and others referred to the item last session.

Col. Tisdale pointed out that the report was not confidential and that it should be published.

Sir Frederick Borden said that the report might not have been marked confidential, but the Minister was the best judge whether it was confidential or not. The report was a scheme of defence which should not be published to the world.

Besides this he made a special report involving a very large expenditure. That report was handed to the Minister twenty-four hours before the whole report had to go to the printer. He had not read or submitted it to his colleagues, and therefore could not publish it. There were parts that would be published, but as it involved a heavy expenditure which the Government had not decided to make it would be highly improper to print it.

Mr. Ingram complained that the report was not made public, and Colonel Tisdale went on to say that the Major-General was not an officer of the department but commander of the militia.

Sir Frederick Borden—He is an officer of the Canadian Government.

Col. Tisdale—He is. But the Minister said he was an officer of the department.

Sir Frederick Borden—Well, he is. He is certainly not controller of the department, not the "boss" of the department—not now at any rate.

Col. Tisdale—I laid it down before, and I do it now, that the General is under the Minister. The Minister is, under our system, responsible. His position is political.

Sir Frederick Borden—That is right.

"E" Squadron Taken From Brome After Being Fully Organized

Missisquoi Was Given Two Squadrons in Order That Certain Conservatives Might be Provided With Commissions—There is Great Indignation in Brome County Over the Transfer and None of the Troopers in the County Will Enlist Under Sweetsburg Officers.

(Staff Correspondence of The Herald.)

Adamsville, Que., June 20. — The Brome County end of the militia trouble has not yet been written. It is an important part, because the chain of events which led up to the dismissal of Lord Dundonald had their origin in this village. Long before Sweetsburg had any serious expectations of becoming a military centre, a squadron of the Thirteenth Scottish Dragoons was being formed in this neighborhood. The probability of raising a company was discussed early last summer, the men were canvassed in the fall, and the list of officers drawn up and recommended by the D.O.C. before Dec. 15. But after things had gone that far, and even further, the squadron was taken away from Adamsville and Brome, and transferred bodily to Sweetsburg and Missisquoi. Why this was done would make a pretty story, but unfortunately there are a few chapters still missing in this bit of military history.

Why Was Squadron Transferred?

The leading question in Brome County to-day is, Why was "E" squadron transferred from Brome to Missisquoi, which already had "D" squadron. There is considerable feeling aroused, and it is not confined to either party. It is intimated that the county has been sidetracked in order to gratify the military ambitions of a well known Conservative family in Sweetsburg, and at the same time punish some of those who have not seen fit to dance when certain Montreal militia officers whistled. There are many who say—and some of them are good Conservatives—that Hon. Mr. Fisher should have quashed the transfer of the squadron, that his first duty was to his own county, and that much interference would have been perfectly justifiable.

When such opinions are current among the Conservatives of his own county, the attempt of the party at large to make political capital against him, because he interfered only to the extent of objecting to Dr. Pickel's name, shows a limited acquaintance with local conditions.

History of the Organization.

The Minister of Agriculture was one of the very first to advocate the creation of a cavalry regiment in the Eastern Townships. One of the most enthusiastic and earliest supporters of the project was Captain G. J. Adams, of the Sixth Hussars, who recently tendered his resignation from the militia. He is a well known Brome County man. He succeeded in convincing Lieut.-Col. Roy, of St. Johns, the D. O. C. for the district, of the feasibility of the project. The original intention was to form five squadrons, with headquarters as follows: "A" squadron at Stanstead; "B" squadron at Mansonville; "C" squadron at Waterloo; "D" squadron at Stanbridge East; "E" squadron at Adamsville. The D. O. C. allotted certain districts to each squadron for recruiting purposes. "E" squadron, or the Adamsville squadron, included most of Brome County, a portion of Rouville County, and the towns of West Farnham and Granby. "D" squadron was located in Missisquoi, with that county for its territory. Captain Adams was placed by the D.O.C. in charge of the organization of "E" squadron. He went enthusiastically to work, and met with success. As before stated, the list of officers had been drawn up and approved and forwarded to Ottawa by December. At that time little had been done in getting the other squadrons into shape. In fact not one of them to-day are as far advanced as E squadron was last December. Captain Adams had enlisted nearly sixty troopers, the picked young men of the district. Not one of them but owned his own horse, and was a fixture. They wanted men who would be permanent members. Early last fall the D. O. C. informed Captain Adams that he would be given command of "E' squadron, with the rank of major, and told him to tell his men. On that understanding Captain Adams went ahead and selected his subordinate officers.

Excellent Staff of Officers.

The squadron was to be divided into three troops for the present, one at Adamsville, one at West Farnham, and the third at Granby. Mr. Burney, principal of the academy there, was chosen for command of the Granby troop, and Mr. M. L. Hibbard, a member of one of the leading families in the Townships, was to have command of the West Farnham troop. The list of officers for the squadron was as follows: Captain Adams in command, ranking as major; Mr. G. A. Cameron, second in command; F. F. Taber, lieutenant; William Stevenson, in command of the Adamsville troop; and Melvin Clow, Percy Hawke and H. G. Sample were going in as non-commissioned officers. These were the men chosen to command the Brome squadron, and they will compare very favorably with the now famous Sweetsburg list, who replaced them. There are many competent judges down here, who make the comparison much less favorably to Sweetsburg gentlemen. Another comparison is interesting. In the Adamsville, or Brome County, list, there were four Liberals and three Conservatives. The Sweetsburg list are almost entirely Conservatives, and notoriously strong opponents of Hon. Mr. Fisher. Mr. G. A. Cameron, who was chosen as second in command of the Adamsville squadron, is the Conservative leader in that district. Mr. Taber, chosen as lieutenant, has always been a Conservative, and is to-day, as is also Mr. Stevenson.

Politics Were Not Considered.

These gentlemen are the first to bear out the claims that politics were never considered when the squadron was be being organized. Captain Adams stipulated at the outset that neither political leanings, race or religion were to be considered, and that the first man who raised a question of this kind was to be severely disciplined. It is interesting to note that the political standing of these men was not definitely ascertained until last Thursday evening, when they met here to discuss the present situation. The canvass showed four to three, as fair a proportion as could well be imagined.

The list had been approved and forwarded to Ottawa in December, and such was the enthusiasm that several of the proposed officers had hired men to take their places during the three months they would be away qualifying for commissions. Matters were in such advanced condition that "E" squadron would have been able to go into camp in June with fully qualified officers and sixty troopers. The list was issued in the militia list in April. But a few weeks before this a bombshell exploded which upset all these plans. It was whispered about that the military powers that be in Montreal had decided to transfer the squadron out of Brome altogether and station it at Sweetsburg. When the truth was fully known, there was indignation and disappointment, which is as fresh to-day as it was three months ago.

There has been no good reason advanced yet why the transfer was made. Sweetsburg is not a better recruiting centre than Adamsville, for one reason because there was already a squadron being formed in Missisquoi. More than that, there had been no trouble in getting men in Brome. The squadron was practically up to full strength by December. If those responsible for the transfer reckoned that these men would be willing to go to Sweetsburg and serve under different officers, they made a big mistake, for not one of them have been yet induced to do so. The squadron with Adamsville as headquarters had a good territory, which included Granby, with a population of 5,000, and West Farnham with 2,500. More than that, in spite of the exertions of the family compact, the Sweetsburg squadron does not yet number sixty troopers, or anything near it.

Feeling Against Montreal Officers.

All this has caused bad feeling, but it is not directed against the Minister of Agriculture, who took no part in the proceedings until the Sweetsburg list was before the Militia Department. He was not responsible for Brome losing its squadron and Missisquoi getting two. The indignation is toward the heads of the Thirteenth Scottish Regiment, who are in Montreal. Public opinion here is being crystallized into opposition against Montreal officers for rural corps, and for various reasons Mr. Bruce Payne, a large manufacturer of Granby, and one of the best liked men in the Townships, had been slated for second in command of the regiment. A Montreal officer was chosen for the position, and Mr. Payne was offered the next place lower. He refused to acept it, and has since gone in with the Shefford Field Battery, with the understanding that as soon as he is qualified he will be promoted to the command. He is thus lost to the cavalry regiment, no matter what subsequent shuffle may be made. Further, it is claimed that a number of men in the district already qualified for commissions, and that these should be given the preference over outsiders. Lastly, and most important, the dismissal of Lord Dundonald and what led thereto is placed to the credit of these same Montreal officers. They are held responsible for the introduction of politics into the militia as far as "E" squadron is concerned, and if a contest is waged next election against Hon. Mr. Fisher on these lines he will be supported by many who never before cast a vote in his favor.

COL. SMART DENIES CAUSE FOR DISSATISFACTION

Says the Changes in Location of Squadrons Was Made With Minister's Consent.

Lieut.-Col. Smart denied that their was any cause for dissatisfaction over any changes in the location of E squadron. "When the regiment was started," he said, "it was necessary to get five squadrons into four counties, which of course necessitated putting two into one county. There were originally two in Brome, one at Mansonville, and one at Adamsville. By arrangement with Hon. Sydney Fisher the Mansonville squadron was moved to Knowlton, his own residence, and the Adamsville squadron to Cowansville, not to Sweetsburg as was stated. The result of the change is that there are two squadrons in Missisquoi and one in Brome. The change was simply made for the advantage of recruiting, Cowansville being a much better centre than Adamsville, which is a very small place."

The effect of the present discussion, said Col. Smart, had been very stimulating to the new regiment, which would go into camp on the 25th of June nearly up to full strength.

The officers are just about evenly divided so far as politics are concerned. But as far as I am concerned politics had nothing to do with the regiment, and as far as I know none of the officers are bothering about politics—it is the politicians who are doing the worrying. Personally I take little interest in politics."

Col. Smart said he had been put to a great deal of bother and expense in the formation of the regiment, and stated that when he found its organization "bung up" he had offered to resign on three different occasions. As to the merits of the present difficulty Col. Smart declared that he would not consent to be drawn into the discussion at all.

SIR FREDERICK BORDEN VISITED NIAGARA CAMP

Minister Expressed the Opinion That This Year's Camp Excelled Any Other.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., June 20.—(Special.)—Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, visited camp on Saturday and left for Toronto in the evening. He came over with a party of military men on Col. Pellatt's yacht. The party visited Niagara Falls and were shown over the works of the Niagara Falls Power Company, of which Sir Frederick is a bondholder and, returning to Niagara-on-the-Lake in company with Brevet-Major Penchen, Sir Frederick rode through the lines on a tour of inspection and later watched the men at work in rifle practice at the butts. He was afterwards entertained at luncheon by Col. Otter and staff, when he expressed his opinion that this year's Niagara camp was the finest he had seen.

SIR FREDERICK BORDEN ON THE G.O.C.'S STATEMENT

Says That Lord Dundonald's Second Report Was on a Question of Policy and Not in General's Sphere.

Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, was in the city yesterday morning, having spent Saturday inspecting the militia camps at Niagara-on-the-Lake.

Sir Frederick was seen by a Herald representative for a few minutes before his train left, and in response to an enquiry as to whether he had read Lord Dundonald's statement said:

"I have seen a synopsis only, but I understand from it that Lord Dundonald lays particular stress upon the fact that Part 2 of his first official report was not published. This matter was threshed out in Parliament in the session of 1903. The proposals contained in Part 2 were largely questions of policy, which of course would have to be decided upon by the Government before being placed before Parliament. I explained this very fully to Lord Dundonald, but to my surprise, in his next report, he made frequent reference to this expunged Part 2. I pointed out that it is unadvisable to make references in a Parliamentary report to other reports not before Parliament, and that while I did not accuse Lord Dundonald of having such a purpose in view his references to Part 2 were equivalent to appealing from my decision to Parliament. I had therefore to request him to expunge these references. He took the report away, and to my surprise, when it was returned, I found that he had excised a few words, but not the objectionable reference. I accordingly marked out these references and sent one copy, so marked, to Lord Dundonald, and one to the printers.

"If the occasion demands it, I may have to give to Parliament other illustrations of the difficulties that have arisen through Lord Dundonald's somewhat autocratic attitude.

WILL CONFER DEGREES.

To-morrow evening at eight o'clock will take place in the King's Hall, 2463 St. Catherine Street, the eighth annual commencement and distribution of prizes of Loyola College. The present scholastic year has been most successful, more than two hundred pupils having been in attendance. Many of these come from the other provinces and from across the line, but a good two-thirds are sons of Catholic families resident in Montreal. It is worthy of note that Loyola College is the only Catholic classical college in the province where classes are conducted entirely in the English language, and the fact that the number of pupils has been growing so seadily shows how much such a college was needed and how much it is appreciated in Montreal.

The gentlemen who will receive academic degrees this year are: Francis Downes, Guy Hamel and Joseph Descarries, of Montreal; Corbett Whitton, of Hamilton, Ont.; James Clarke, of Nelson, B.C., valedictorian; William Kaine, of Brattleboro, Vt.; and John Walsh, of Quebec city.

Monsignor Bruchesi has kindly consented to preside at the commencement exercises and to assist in conferring the degrees.

General's Famous Report Was Before the House of Parliament Last Year

During the session of 1903 the question of the unpublished report of the late G. O. C. came up upon several occasions.

Upon March 30 the Minister of Militia, in reply to Col. Hughes, said:

"It is not true that any misunderstanding exists betweeen the G. O. C. and myself as to the publication of the General's report, as it now appears as part of the annual militia report. As will be noticed on reference to the General's annual report, published, there has been a further special report by that officer to myself. It is not intended to publish this report. The unpublished report is of a confidential nature, just as was the report of the Defence Committee in 1898.

On May 29 Col. Tisdale said: "I understand that the Minister has declined to bring down the special report which has been made by the G. O. C. Would the hon. Minister please repeat his reasons?"

Mr. Borden replied: "I consider this report of the Major-General Commanding to be of a confidential character precisely similar to the report made by the Defence Committee in 1898, for which the House voted $5,000. That report was marked 'Secret' and was intended for the use of the Government and of the intelligence branch of the War Office."

Col. Hughes asked if the War Office had an intelligence department now or had it then?

Mr. Borden said: "I do not believe there is a country in the world in which such reports are published." The Minister added: "I say that the report of the Major-General is precisely of the same character as the report of the Defence Committee and I am arguing that it should be treated in the same way. I shall be very glad to submit both these reports to the leader of the Opposition and to whatever members he wishes to associate with him as a confidential committee, but I do think it would be very much out of place to publish a report of that kind or to lay it on the table of the House."

On Oct. 8, 1903, after the Minister of Militia had made his statement upon the estimates, Col. Tisdale pressed for the publication of the special report and Mr. Borden replied as follows:

"My hon. friend says that the report to which he refers says it was not confidential. It may not have been marked 'confidential,' but I think I am the ebest judge whether it was confidential or not. The report was a scheme of defence and was not in my judgment such a scheme as should have been published to the world. The ordinary report is published in full with dotted i's and crossed t's. The special report, involving a large expenditure came into my hands twenty-four hours before the whole report had to go to the printer. I had not read it or submitted it to my colleagues and it would have been out of the question that such a report as that should have been sent to the printer before the Minister should have an opportunity of considering it. It was an official report for the advantage of the Government of the country. There are parts of it that will be published; I shall have great pleasure in publishing them. But, so far as that report involved a heavy expenditure which the Government had not decided to make, I felt it would be highly improper to publish it, that it is a thing which would not be done in England or anywhere else—"

Mr. Ingram asked: "What was its nature"

Mr. Borden replied: "I said it was practically a scheme of defence. We had a committeee sitting here in 1898, for which we paid a considerable sum of money—which made a report which has never seen the light of day. It was printed by the Defence Committee under the Imperial Government. It is something secret. Lord Dundonald's report was of a similar character and one that, at any rate for the time being, should be treated as confidential."

In reply to Mr. Ingram, Mr. Borden said: "The hon. gentleman thinks it is in accordance with the principles and practice of responsible Government that an official of the militia department should have the right to put forward his views to the people before the Minister has made up his mind whether he will adopt these views or not."

Mr. Ingram: "I will go so far as to say there is no use having an expert military man coming to this country for the purpose of suggesting what would be in the interests of the militia if his recommendations are not carried out."

The Minister of Militia replied: "I will take the responsibility."

Col. Tisdale then made some remarks as to the position which the G.O.C. occupied. He said: "He is not an officer of the department; he is the General Officer Commanding the militia."

Hon. Mr. Borden said: "I think he is an officer of the Canadian Government."

Col. Tisdale: "He is, but the Minister said he was an officer of the department."

Mr. Borden: "Well, he is! He is certainly not controller of the department, not the 'boss' of the department—not now at any rate."

THE QUESTION OF ELEVATED TRACKS

The Harbor Board Will Discuss With Chief Engineer Regarding Matter.

The Harbor Board to-day decided to go thoroughly into the question of elevated tracks along the entire harbor and decided to have Mr. Kennedy, the chief engineer, prepare a rough sketch of the location of an elevated railway and to discuss it at a special meeting. The question of elevating all tracks was discussed at some length and Mayor Laporte pointed out that the principal railway lines would be in favor of assisting in the construction of elevated lines.

In the absence from the city of Hon. Robert Mackay, the chairman, Mr. Robt. Bickerdike was named acting chairman. The latter was empowered to have a tug placed at the disposition of the French journalists who will hold their convention in the city at the end of the week.

BROME ELECTION TRIAL.

Petitioners Ordered to Give More Specific Details of Charges.

Sweetsburg, Que., June 20.—(Special.)—The trial of the election petition presented by A. J. Dyer and Wm. Curley, of Sutton, against the return of Hon. J. C. McCorkill, the Provincial Treasurer, as the member of the Legislature for Brome County, which has stood over since March 12 last on account of the session, was reopened before the Superior Court here this morning, Mr. Justice Archibald, of Montreal, presiding.

At the opening of the court the respondent moved by two motions to reject the bill of particulars upon the first motion, which was based on the fact that the paragraphs of the bill of particulars were not numbered as required by law. The court ordered each paragraph to be numbered consecutively. Upon the second motion, which was made upon the ground that the particulars were indefinite and not in accordance with the judgment ordering them, the court ruled that no witness would be allowed to be examined upon the facts alleged in the bill of particulars until the petitioners had given full and specific details to the respondent of each act of corruption charged, with names of parties, time and place.

Only two allegations remained unattached in the election petition affecting the holding of the poll at No. 3 East Bolton, and the trial will proceed upon these allegations. At 11.30 the court rose, to resume at one o'clock this afternoon.

The petitioners are represented by Hon. G. B. Baker, K.C., and Mr. G. H. Baker, and Mr. E. Racicot, K.C., and W. K. McKeown appeared for the respondent, who was also present in court personally and took an active part in the proceedings.

ST. HYACINTHE EN FETE.

Over 10,000 Persons Present at St. Jean Baptiste Celebration.

St. Hyacinthe, P.Q., June 20.—(Special.)—The St. Jean Baptiste celebration this year by far surpasses anything witnessed of the kind in previous years. The parade which formed at the market-place, proceeded to the Notre Dame Church where an open air service was held. Rev. Father Hague, superior of the Dominican Order, delivered an able and patriotic address to the vast assemblage present. The allegorical cars were one of the features of the process and were much admired.

Addresses were delivered by Mayor St. Jacques, Hon. L. P. Brodeur, Minister of Inland Revenue; Messrs. J. B. Blanchet, M.P., Jos. Morin, M.L.A., Dr. Morin, of Holyoke, Mass.; Mr. A. M. Beauparlant, advocate and several others.

The principal thoroughfares were tastefully decorated with flags and bunting and the city presents a holiday appearance.

In conjunction with other amusements the annual horse races will be held this afternoon, to be followed this evening by fireworks. A close estimate of the attendance indicates over 10,000.

HELP FOR THE MUTUAL.

Canadian Life Insurance Officials Object to Hon. J. G. Kerr's Bill.

The Canadian Life Insurance Officers' Association, comprising in its membership practically all the Canadian and British companies, has come unanimously to the conclusion that the bill introduced into the Senate by Hon. J. G. Kerr, of Toronto, to further amend the Insurance Act is prejudicial to the interests of Canadian life companies. The members of the association give in a circular as their reasons that the bill is introduced in behalf of, and can apply to the business of, only one institution, the Mutual Reserve Life Assurance Company of New York, "yet it has been framed in such a way as to give the impression that it is of general import" and that it would create an erroneous impression as to the stability and standing of regular Canadian companies. The association is of opinion that the General Insurance Act should not be made the vehicle to give relief to any one institution in particular, and that the legislation asked for should be in the nature of a private bill.

AGAINST STATE RAILROADS.

Mr. E. S. Clouston Says They Would Not Do in Canada.

Mr. E. S. Clouston, general manager of the Bank of Montreal, who has just returned from England, has come out very strongly opposed to Government ownership of railways. Speaking of such a project, Mr. Clouston made the following statement:

"I look upon the policy of state-owned railways as inimical to the best interests of the country. I think Canada's experience with the Intercolonial should be a good enough lesson as to the principle of public railway ownership. Our make-up as a people would appear in fact to be unfitted for the owning of railways by the state."

PENAL SERVITUDE.

What is penal servitude? Ans.—A woman condemned to toil and broil over a red-hot coal fire in an overheated kitchen 1,095 times a year at least, just for meals alone. Isn't she entitled to all the modern improvements obtainable for her comfort and health's sake, and particularly a gas range, which saves so much work and time, keeps the kitchen cool, and makes good results in cooking possible!—Adv.

JOHN WHALLEY DIES OF A FRACTURED SKULL

And it is Alleged That His Brother-in-Law Inflicted the Death Woun.d

John Whalley, laborer, 42 years of age, who was brought to the Montreal General Hospital from Sweetsburg a fortnight ago, suffering from a fractured skull, died there yesterday morning, after being unconscious for five days.

From enquiries made in the Sweetsburg district, it appears that on June 7 Whalley had on loan from his brother-in-law, Elzear Royer, farmer, of the parish of St. Armand East, a horse and rig for the purpose of visiting at a distance. Hour after hour of darkness passed, with no appearance of the return of the rig, and when at length Whalley did not put in an appearance between one and two o'clock in the morning, the farmer's anxiety gave place to anger. Whalley, it is alleged, was under the influence of liquor.

The relatives had angry words as they busied with the unyoking of the horse, and at length, in the heat of the moment, Royer, it is alleged, stooped, grabbed a hammer and struck Whalley a blow on the head. Assistance was at once summoned, and the injured man was conveyed to Montreal.

Mr. J. A. Boisvert, high constable of the district of Bedford, took the matter in hand, and after a full investigation, put Royer under a careful supervision. When the high constable heard of the critical condition of Whalley, he took him into custody.

Mr. Royer is now in Sweetsburg jail, and this afternoon Coroner McMahon will hold an inquest on the body of Whalley.

Fredericton, N.B., June 20.—(Special.)—The Methodist Conference on Saturday afternoon granted a leave of absence of one year to Rev. P. J. Deinstadt, who has voluntarily taken up the work in a weak church at Millbridge, Maine. Rev. C.W. Matthews, of St. John, was placed on supernumary list, owing to ill-health. The annual pastoral address to be read in all churches was adopted. Bible, Sabbath, worldliness, family, religion and spiritual apathy were largely dealt with in addresses in churches on Sunday. Rev. Jno. J. Pinkerton was ordained, the sermon being preached by Rev. Dr. Andrews, of Mount Allison.

Rev. Mark Guy Pearce, of London, preached before immense congregations. The eminent divine is a guest of Mr. Gibson, at Marysville, and preached at that township Sunday morning.

P. AND O. LINER ON ROCKS.

Australia May be Total Loss—Two Torpedo Boat Destroyers Lost.

Melbourne, June 20.—The Peninsular & Oriental liner Australia, inward bound, struck on the rocks at Point Nepean (at the eastern entrance to Port Philip Bay, Victoria), at two o'clock this morning. It is feared the vessel will be a total loss. The passengers and crew were safely landed.

The Australia, which sailed from London, May 13, for Sydney, N.S.W., is a steel steamer of 3,072 tons net and was built at Greenock in 1899.

PARENTS SAW SON DROWNED.

Sherbrooke, Que., June 20. — Dean Henry, twenty-three years of age, was drowned yesterday at Burroughs Falls, near Barnston, in sight of his parents and twenty others who formed a picnic party. The young man jumped into the river just below the falls and was carried down into the whirlpool. His friends tried to save him by means of poles, but the deceased did not succeed in reaching them. The body was recovered later in about twelve feet of water.

Senator James Hopkins, of Washington, D.C., died on Friady evening at North Hatley, where he was spending the summer. The end came suddenly from heart failure. The body was taken to Washington yesterday.

SYDNEY EXPECTS TRADE RUSH.

Sydney, C.B., desires better local railway facilities, and to this end Ald. Ronald Gillis, John Larder and D. A. Hearn have beene sent to Ottawa to represent the needs of the Canadian Pittsburg. They reached Montreal last night, and were met by Dr. Alex. Johnson, M.P., who accompanied them to Ottawa this morning. They will ask that better freight and passenger facilities be given to Sydney, as they expect a big rush of traffic there this season, and the present service they consider inadequate.

CHILD'S MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

George Sutton, a three-year-old boy, of 156 Murray Street, fell forty feet from the gallery in the third story to the ground. This seems to verify the adage that Providence takes special care of children. He was removed to the General Hospital in an unconscious state with a fracture clear across the skull. An operation was performed and it is expected that the child will recover.

REPUBLICANS WILL MEET TO-MORROW

President Roosevelt's Nomination is Regarded as Foregone Conclusion

Chicago, June 20.—Forenoon trains to-day brought in the stragglers and the ranks of nearly all the State delegations to the Republican national convention, which opens to-morrow, have been filled. Some importance is attached to a desultory discussion of Senator Fairbanks' probable reason for declining to talk about the Vice-Presidency and of the wisdom of his reticence. Were it not for the gossip he has furnished and the little flurry created by the possibility of tariff revision and reciprocity creeping into the resolutions in form obnoxious to "stand-patters," politics would be a dead letter in the Republican convention this year.

"We pledge ourselves to make such changes from time to time in the tariff schedules as changing conditions make necessary." This is the language of the proposed platform as now agreed upon, and it becomes more evident that no further concession will be made to those demanding a revision. It is asserted by the Republican leaders that the Presidential campaign will cause enough disturbance in business without adding to it a definite promise of tariff revision by the next session of Congress.

The distribution of prizes and diplomas to the successful students, who graduated in the different faculties was next proceeded with.

GAYNOR-GREENE CASE RECALLED

Bond Given For Appearance of Gaynor is Not Forfeitable.

Buffalo, N.Y., June 20—Judge Hazel has handed down a decision in the action brought by former Mayor William H. Kirk, of Syracuse, against the United States of America and C. D. McDougall, as U. S. marshal for the Northern district of New York, to restrain the defendants from seizing the property of the complainant pursuant to an execution in their favor. The decision is in favor of Mr. Kirk.

The action involved the collection of $40,000 on a bond given by Mr. Kirk as surety for the appearance of John F. Gaynor, indicted for conspiracy to defraud the United States of large sums of money by devising a fraudulent scheme to present false accounts to an officer of the United States.

Gaynor and his partner, Green, were Government contractors and had a contract for harbor work at Savannah. It is alleged that they defrauded the Government of several million dollars by means of false vouchers which were approved by Capt. Carter, a Government inspector. Carter was indicted and convicted. Gaynor and Green fled and were afterwards arrested in Canada. Efforts to extradite them have thus far failed.

UNIDENTIFIED BODY AT MORGUE.

The body of an unknown man was found floating in the river at the foot of Berri street yesterday morning by Mr. J. Filiatrault. It was taken to the morgue, where it still awaits identification. A silver watch, $1.04, and a measuring tape were found in the pockets of the clothing.

LADS ON THE DOWN GRADE.

Joseph Lamarre and James Parker, both young lads, were found in the cellar of the hardware store of A. A. Wilson, St. Paul Street, Saturday night, having entered by a window in the rear. They pleaded guilty before Judges Lafontaine and Desnoyers to-day, and will come up for sentence to-morrow.

DWELLING HOUSE ON FIRE.

Shortly before ten o'clock last night the men of stations 7 and 11 were called to an outbreak of fire in a house in the tenement of 343 Champlain Street, occupied by Uldege Reindeau. The fire originated in a clothes cupboard, and had eaten its way through the floor by the time the brigade arrived. The financial loss was not great.

OBJECT TO POST-OFFICE IN HOTEL.

Two important matters were taken up at the last meeting of the Dominion Alliance. A protest was entered against the fact that in a certain district in Montreal the post office was in a hotel. It was also reported that liquor had been sold to very young childrei. he latter report was referred to the committee on amendment to the license law.

CAUGHT IN TIME.

There were all the elements necessary for a big blaze at the secondhand store of Moses Fox, 547 Craig Street, when the Central fire brigade arrived at a quarter to nine this morning in response to a telephone message. An ancient mattress had got on fire, apparently from an upset coal oil lamp, and had it gone unobserved for a short while longer, there is strong probability that with much inflammable material, the whole premises would have been destroyed. As it was, the firemen got the outbreak under in ten minutes.

A COAL CART PARADE.

A novel parade took place this morning from the coal yards of Hartt and Adair, corner of Wellington and Ann Streets. The company has been investing recently in new carts and horses, and the purchases were inaugurated this morning in this quaint fashion. There were firty or more carts, painted a bright yellow, with the company's name in black. The drivers, who were enthusiastic about the affair, had their horses decked with flags and flowers. The turnout attracted a great deal of comment.

CIVILIAN ASSISTS CONSTABLE.

A young man giving the name, amongst others, of Arthur Reid, was fined $5 by Mr. Recorder Weir to-day, on a charge of having taken part in an attack on Constable Marsolais, at the corner of St. Lawrence and St. Catherine streets at an early hour Sunday morning.

It appears that the officer had occasion to make an arrest for disorderly conduct, but owing to the attack by Reid and five others, was compelled to let his prisoner go. Reid was arrested by a civilian as he was in the act of running off.

BURGLAR GANGS AT WORK.

Chapman's book store, on St. Catherine street, was broken into yesterday, the burglars evidently entering and leaving by the front door, and as nothing was broken, it is supposed that they made use of skeleton keys. The cash register was knocked over and an attempt made to break it open with a hatchet. The thieves procured about $11 in money and stamps, from the s tamp till, and about the same amount from the office in American stamps and loose money. There is apparently a regular gang at work, as Baker's grocery, corner of Fort street, was also broken into yesterday and the safe opened and about $10 or $12 taken. A house on Seymour avenue was also broken into on Saturday, and one young man who returned on Sunday, apparently to finish the job, was caught and handed over to the police.

William D. Ross, a brilliant young barrister of Vancouver, B.C., and a native of Stanley Bridge, P.E.I., was found drowned near a wharf at Vancouver last week. Ross intended coming to the Island this summer, to be married to a young lady of this city.

This season the shipments of produce, particularly potatoes, from the province, has been unusually large. At teh price paid, namely, forty cents per bushel, the farmers found it more profitable to ship their surplus tubers than feed them to stock. Lobstering, another important industry of the Island, has been a success on the north side, but the catches on the south and east will be smaller than usual.

Rhodes Scholarship Contest.

Great interest centred in the Rhodes scholarship, which was won by Mr. N. E. Cameron, B.A., a graduate of Laval University, with which is affiliated St. Dunstan's College, that he was attending at the time. A sketch of Mr. Cameron's career has already appeared in The Herald. The contest was at first between six candidates, but narrowed down to three. The other two were Cyrus J. MacMillan, M.A., and Louis Brebant, B.A. Mr. MacMillan is a graduate from McGill, where he received honor diploma and vice chancellor's medal for English. He has had a brilliant collegiate and athletic career. He twice won the Maritime championship for the quarter mile run and was for four years provincial champion in the eight and quarter mile, still holding the provincial record in the latter event. For the past three years he has been professor of English and History in Prince of Wales College. Mr. Brebant is a graduate of Dalhousie College and President Forrest announced at convocation that his record was the most brilliant in the last decade at Dalhousie."

The Fishery Conference.

Premier Peters, who returned last week from Ottawa, on being interviewed concerning the results of the conferences with the members of the Dominion Government said that so far as the Halifax Fishery Award is concerned, it was decided on the suggestion of the Minister of Justice to refer the matter first to the Privy Council of England to determine whether the Dominion Government in equity or good conscience should pay the province the share of the award. Should the question be decided by the Privy Council in favor of the provinces receiving the award, the question of the amount payable to each province by the Dominion will be decided by an independent arbitration to be selected by the provinces and the Dominion. The above course was decided upon, owing to the fact that Nova Scotia could not be persuaded to join with the other provinces in holding an arbitration as at first intended. The matter is being referred to the Privy Council under a statute which authorizes the Dominion Government to ask the opinion of the King in Council as to any constitutional or other matter by which the Dominion Government will be bound. This question will, if possible, be submitted immediately to the Privy Council.

Premier Peters and Mr. E. Bayfield Williams will leave to-day en route to England to argue the case of Prince Edward Island respecting her claim to retain the six representatives before the Privy Council. The case will be brought on between the fifth and fifteenth of July.

Macdonald Rural Schools.

Prof. J. W. Robertson has been in the province during the past week in connection with the bequests of Sir William McDonald.

The work of the Macdonald rural school fund, so far as it concerns the Island, is divided into three parts.

(1) It is for the purpose of establishing school gardens and nature studies in connection therewith at single rural schools.

(2) It is for the erection of the Macdonald Institute at Guelph, where teachers from the Island will have an opportunity of taking short courses in nature study work and in the management of school gardens.

(3) It is to give an object lesson in the consolidation of rural schools and conveyance of pupils who live beyond the immediate district where the central school is located.

In dealing first with the last division of the work the professor stated that the provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick are providing each eight scholarships for teachers to attend the short courses in nature study at the Macdonald Institute beginning in September. Owing to the absence of Premier Peters no definite decision has been arrived at with the Government of Prince Edward Island, but it is fully expected that they will also provide scholarships for five teachers. The amount of the scholarship in other provinces is $50 for females and $75 for males. This amount will be supplemented by a sufficient sum from the Macdonald fund to enable the teachers to take the course at Guelph without any expense. It will pay their board, laboratory fees and their transportation.

The Professor visited the five districts where school gardens were provided and nature studies carried on under Mr. Theodore Ross, B.A. These gardens were at Kensington, Emerald, Tryon, Searletown and Central Bedeyan. He was greatly pleased with the progress already made. When he returns in August he expects to be able to assist ten other schools, provide gardens and arrange for nature studies under the teachers who during the coming year will take the short course at the Geulph Macdonald Institute.

Henry Palmer, prisoner in the Queen's county jail, attempted suicide by endeavoring to hang himself from the bars above his cell door with a strip torn from the edge orf his blanket. The blanket broke and Palmer recovered. He has ben adjudged insane and will be taken to Falconwood Asylum.

Prof. E. J. MacMillan, Superintendent of Agriculture for Prince Edward Island, left this week for Ottawa, where he will receive instructions from the Department of Agriculture regarding investigations to be made into the agricultural machinery exhibited at the World's Fair. This knowledge is to be acquired in connection with his position as Superintendent of Agriculture in the Orange Free State. This appointment he received recently. The salary attached is $4,000.

COL. HENSHAW A VETERAN IN MARINE DISASTERS

Learned Value of Presence of Mind in "Oregon" Catastrophe.

The sinking of the R. & O. steamer Canada and the prominent part which Lt.-Col. F. C. Henshaw played in the proceedings recalls the fact that Sunday's disaster was not the first experience of the kind that has fallen to Col. Henshaw's lot. He, so to speak, has been there before. Col. Henshaw was one of the passengers on the steamer Oregon some twelve or thirteen years ago when she encountered the adventure which made her famous. She was nearing New York with 960 passengers on board when she collided with a coller and was almost cut in two. The boats were at once launched and the women and children taken off, but the men to the number of 187, of whom Col. Henshaw was one, stuck to the wreck and prepared to go down with her. For three hours they were battered by the waves while the miserable hull beneath them gradually settled into the sea. Just as they had given themselves up for lost a schooner appeared, and by dint of careful manoeuvring on the part of her captain, managed to pick them off. It was a hair-raising experience, but Co. Henshaw's lesson of the value of presence of mind learned on the Oregon stood him in good stead on the Canada.

GLOVE CUTTERS ARE OUT AND MAY FORM UNION

Small Strike in a St. Catherine Street Factory May Result in Organization of a Union.

The glove cutters in the works of F. Galibert, 931 St. Catherine Street, to the number of twelve, went out on strike yesterday morning as the result of a disagreement with the manager over the amount of work to be done. The cutters are not connected with any union and are paid on the piece-work system.

It appears that up to the present time the cutters have been marking one thumb only, but the manager decided that this was not enough, so he issued orders that both thumbs were to be marked, but no increase in wages would be allowed for the additional work. The men objected and said that if they were expected to mark both thumbs they would not put the gloves on the strap. The manager refused to enter into this agreement and the cutters promptly went out on strike.

The men feel certain that an arrangement will be reached shortly, as only the sewing girls remain at work in the establishment and they will run short of material in a couple of days.

As a result of the dispute, it is possible that a union will be formed by the glove cutters.

THREE RIVERS SCHOOLS.

Three Rivers, June 20.—(Special.)—The closing exercises of the Academy, Model and Elementary schools took place Friday morning. There was a good representation of parents and friends. Rev. H. C. Stuart presided, and there were on the platform Alderman Tebbutt (of the trustees), H.M.S. Collector of Customs, Alex. Houliston who is secretary-treasurer of the school board, and Rev. J. R. Macleod and G. C. Poyser. Prizes were given for attendance and proficiency in the lower grades, and the winners were: Gladys Williams for punctuality, Rubena Fickler, Bessie Tebutt Harold Marrow, for general proficiency. The prizes in the higher grades will not be awarded until the results of the June examinations are known. The annual report was presented by Miss M. MacCuaig, B.A., the principal, and showed a fair average attendance, and considerable good work done.

The number of pupils in the school is not large, but the trustees with commendable courage keep up all the departments—the staff for the year closing being Miss M. MacCuaig, B.A., principal, Miss R. Stevens and Miss H. N. MacLeod. Short addresses were given by Revs. J. R. MacLeod, G. C. Poyser (for the Trustees), Alex. Houliston, Alderman Tebbutt and the chairman. Miss MacCuaig has accepted the position of assistant principal of the Lachute Academy. Universal regret was expressed at Miss MacCuaig's departure.

PAPACY WANTS TO ENTER.

Rome, June 20.—In 1899 the papacy was excluded from The Hague conference on the protest of the Italian Government, which had Great Britain as its strongest supporter, this support being given in exchange for that which Italy gave the British Government to secure the exclusion from the conference of the South African Republic. Now, several South American states having asked to sign The Hague agreement it is reported that Cardinal Merry Del Val, papal secretary of state, intends to try to enter the agreement also. It is believed, however, that this will be most difficult for him to accomplish, as, besides the former opposition, France now certainly will not support the Papacy, as it did in 1899.

THE LATE MRS. A. R. CREELMAN.

Mr. A. R. Creelman, chief solicitor of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has the sympathy of all in the death of his wife, which occurred Friday at the family residence, 76 Redpath Street.

The deceased was a daughter of the late John Jennings, D.D., of Toronto, and the body was taken to her old home for interment this morning.

CUBANS ASKING PERFECT FREEDOM

Complain Americans Have Not Yet Fulfilled Their Contract.

"The Cuban people are not satisfied. They were promised freedom and independence by the United States, and they have not got it. While the United States allows the government of the country by its own congress, and there is a president, yet true freedom has not been reached. Although there is no revolutionary spirit among the Cubans, I fully believe that time will bring absolute independence of Cuba—an independence in fact as well as in name.

Senor Arturo Gomez, of Santu Clona, a prominent Cuban planter and capitalist, made the foregoing statement to a Herald representative in the C.P.R. offices this morning. Senor Gomez is on his way to Europe in connection with the flotation of Cuban enterprises in which he is interested.

Speaking of the Cuban railway, which was promoted by Sir William Van Horne, Senor Gomez said, "It is doing more to develop the eastern part of the island of Cuba than any other agency, as through it the people of that district are afforded facilities for marketing their produce. The road is gradually becoming a powerful factor in the civilization and settlement of Cuba. The Cubans are not by any means satisfied with the treatment that has been accorded them by the United States. When we fought Spain it was to gain our freedom. The United States government interfered in the name of humanity with the avowed purpose of freeing Cuba, but we did not get freedom."

As to conditions in Cuba, he says the sugar cane crop is now a good one, and the island has practically recovered from the set-back it got during the war. The tobacco crop this year is also very heavy, and altogether Senor Gomez looks for a rapid development of Cuban trade.

MR. BORDEN'S BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED WITH ECLAT

The Dundonald Incident Received a Good Deal of Attention—Col. Sam Hughes Announces That Orange Lodges Are Conservative Committee Rooms.

R. L. Borden was greatly honored by his followers in the Province of Quebec at the Jacques Cartier Club on Saturday evening, the occasion being his fiftieth birthday. The banquet was a decided success, and was particularly remarkable for the cordial intermingling of representatives of the various provinces, and the use of French by English speakers and English by the representatives of Quebec.

Mr. Borden was given an enthusiastic reception, and presented with bouquets by representatives of the various counties of Quebec. He was accompanied by a number of his followers in Parliament.

The sensation of the evening was made by that old Parliamentarian, Dr. Sproule, the Grand Master of the Orange Lodge in Canada. He made a remarkable speech in which he declared that Orangemen and Roman Catholics had always worked together for the Conservative party, every Orange lodge being practically a Conservative committee room.

Presidence Gustave Lamothe, of the Jacques Cartier Club, acted as toast master, Mr. Borden sitting on his right. Among others present were:—Hon. A. Desjardins, Hon. L. O. Taillon, R. A. Pringle, M.P., Dr. Daniel, Hon. Senator Perley, Hon. Senator Bernier, F. D. Monk, M.P., R. H. Pope, M.P., S. Barker, M.P., J J Armstrong, M.P., Dr Sproule, M.P., Hon. T. C. Casgrain, M.P., A. A. The toast of The King having been duly honored, the health of Mr. Borden was proposed by Messrs. F. D. Monk and Rufus Pope.

The Conservative leader was greeted very warmly on rising and presented with a huge collection of bouquets by representative of the various districts of Quebec.

Mr. Borden's Speech.

Mr. R. L. Borden spoke first in French and lauded that language as the tongue of science, art and belles-lettres, in fact, the language of civilization. The Conservatives, he went on, had a grand policy, that of Canada fo rthe Canadians, to preserve our liberties ,to fill up our vacant lands in the West, and to protect our industries. They also advocated the extension of the Intercolonial to the West, and demanded that the new transcontinental should be paid for and owned by the people of Canada.

Concluding the French portion of his speech, Mr. Borden said: "Our cause is just and we know that it must undoubtedly triumph."

Proceeding in English, Mr. Borden said that he was pleased to be able to address his audience, however imperfectly, in their own language. He considered that every public man in Canada should be equally familiar with French as the French are with English. The English would be the gainers, because it would give them access to French literature, which he regarded as one of the greatest the world possessed.

A Union Born in Battle.

The two races had a great work to perform in Canada, ever since the battle on the Plains of Abraham, where Wolfe and Montcalm gave up their lives —which he regarded as a symbol of the union which from that date forward should ever prevail in Canada, under British institutions, both peoples working side by side in the cause of freedom.

"Le me say here and now," said Mr. Borden, "that no party in Canada has ever stood or will stand more firmly for our liberties and the preservation of our provincial rights than the Conservative party, of which I have the honor to be the leader."

The policy of the Conservative party was true to the traditions of Cartier and the policy of Macdonald, in its strong sympathy with the sentiments and aspirations of the people of Canada, especially of those of Quebec. They had always stood for equal rights for all and would maintain under all conditions and at all costs, our rights as a self-governing country.

Grand Trunk Pacific.

The Liberals proposed to build a new transcontinental railway. The Conservative party, although in Opposition was not afraid to face the issue. "Our opponents are trying to put us into the same ungracious attitude as they occupied in days gone by, but the Conservative party is too great a party to occupy such a position. We believe, as in the past, that the great West must be united with the East, but we want it done upon terms just and equitable to the people of Canada."

Mr. Borden remarked that during his tour of the West he had advocated the appointment of a commission to study the whole transportation question, which the Government later did, but before the commission had a chance to start its work the Government brought down the National Transcontinental Railway Bill. Sir Wilfrid Laurier discovered a crisis, which demanded the immediate construction of the Grand Trunk Pacific, although he seemed to have forgotten the crisis since. As to the fear of the abolition of the bonding privilege that was a mere bogey, because Canada's Atlantic ports, such as Halifax and St. John could handle all her trade, summer and winter.

Last year the Government insisted that no change could be made in the project as the bargain had been signed by the representatives of the Grand Trunk Pacific. But hardly a month had passed after the close of the session when the general manager of the Grand Trunk Railway came from England, and a number of changes were made, every one in favor of the company, at the experise of the country.

Division of Liabilities.

At the annual meeting of the Grand Trunk Railway Company's shareholders in London, a few days before the opening of the session, the president of the Grand Trunk declared that the Grand Trunk, which was the principal partner of the Government in this venture, would have to put up $5,000,000 of a deposit, under such arrangements that it would not cost the company a dollar. The rolling stock would be hired from a trust and the rental paid out of earnings. It was further stated that the obligation of the Grand Trunk would merely consist in the guarantee of bonds to between $14,000,000 and $15,000,000. What then was the Government's obligation as senior partner in the expenditure, though junior partner as far as profits were concerned? The road would cost between $150,000,000 and $170,000,000 to the country in cash and guarantees. The Government was to retain the eastern section, which would not be profitable, the G.T.P. paying rental for it on a three per cent. basis, but they would probably be relieved from this obligation if it was found the section did not pay. The western section, which was expected to be immediately profitable, and indeed had been described by experts as the best railway proposition on the continent was to be retained by the company—the junior partner. If the country was to enter into the obligations to the extent of nine-tenths of the cost was it not a business-like proposition that they should pay the other tenth and own and control the railway entirely? This was especially necessary, because under the agreement the Government had no control over rates but that given by the general law. If the people were to build this road they should own it, and he was not afraid to face the people on that issue.

Adequate Protection.

Mr. Borden then proceeded to discuss the Conservative policy of adequate protection, and expressed the opinion that the people of Quebec were more strongly in favor of protection than those of any other part of Canada. He accused the Liberals of preaching free trade or protection according to local demands. The fact was they were neither protectionists nor free traders, but were opportunists. Mr. Borden declared that he had preached adequate protection in the West and in the East, and had met with an equally favorable reception.

Canada's imports from the United States exceeded the exports by $79,000,000 annually, while the exports to Great Britain exceeded her imports by $66,000,000. So that, by adding $13,000,000 of our own money to the balance of trade with Great Britain, Canadians were able to pay their annual bill to the United States. The policy of the Conservative party was to keep that money at home, to keep the home market for Canadian products. He failed to see how a preference in the British market which would increase the price of our products could be a dangerous thing for Canada.

Surely there was no more danger in a reciprocity treaty with the British Isles than there was a few years ago with the United States, and it would mean the raising in value of Canadian farm products by twenty-five per cent. If a proper preference had been got—a preference which would have been got, had Sir Wilfrid Laurier proved true to his country.

The Dundonald Incident.

"I will now refer to a recent incident, and I refer to it, not to defend Lord Dundonald, for he can well take care of himself, but for the purpose of pointing out the evil that will result in this country if that pernicious interference which has prevailed in some departments is allowed to influence the requests of men who are anxious to offer their services in the militia.

"It has been said that the people of Quebec would not be much interested in this incident. I think they will be more interested in it than any others, because no people in Canada have prouder memories in connection with the work of our Canadian militia than have the people of Quebec. Will Canada ever forget how de Salaberry and his three hundred saved this country at the Thermopylae of Canada? And these were French-Canadian militia, under the command of a French-Canadian.

"When you recall the Fisher incident, remember that if there had been a Fisher in those days de Salaberry might not have had the privilege of doing that. Let us thank at least the past that there was no Fisher in those days, and let us hope for the future that after next election there will be no Fisher to put his meddling hands on such matters."

In a well-worded peroration Mr. Borden concluded by expressing the hope that the people of Quebec and the other provinces would learn to know each other better, because with increased familiarity with each other would come the death of any national prejudices in Canada, which were merely the fruit of ignorance.

The toast of "Ontario" was then duly honored, being proposed by Hon. L. P. Pelletier, who in the course of his speech remarked: "We are all subjects of the same King—the greatest 'Foreigner' that has been—and if he does not like that let us call him a stranger."

Orangemen and Conservatism.

Dr. Sproule was the first to reply to this toast and followed Mr. Borden's lead in advocating the adoption of a more brotherly spirit between Ontario and Quebec. Proceeding the Orange Grand Master jocularly remarked: "French and English Canadians have the same problems to face to make Canada a nation, and it only needs organization to secure proper returns. But if you don't build up a better record in Quebc at next election than you did at the last I will come down and organize orange lodges all through Quebec. Because every Orange lodge is a Conservative committee room, and so we will be sure of victory for our candidates when the orange and green are united as they always are. The Orangemen and the Roman Catholics united with those other foreigners, the Scotch, can ensure victory for the Conservatives. I know that with my assistance down here the result would be better for us both, and you would find we wished to be your friends."

This remarkable utterance by the Grand Master of the Orange order, was greeted with a great deal of laughter and applause.

Col. Sam Hughes on Militia.

Mr. R. A. Pringle, M.P., made a brief response, after which Col. Sam Hughes took up the tale of the Dundonald incident by proposing the toast of "Quebec Province." He prefaced his speech of a few remarks in French. Lord Dundonald he said, a gentleman of immense wealth, with a seat in the House of Lords, came to Canada to build up a militia which should be the very antithesis of militiarism. "But in his every effort to improve our militia he was thwarted by the poor, miserable creature, Mr. Fisher. The Conservatives never allowed politics to interfere in the militia and will not allow it under the Liberals. But when Sydney Fisher blue pencilled the appintment of these officers to serve their country, patience ceased to be a virtue. Lord Dundonald decided that the best way to bring matters before the public was to expose Mr. Fisher's intrigue and trickery as he did. From a militia point of view he has done the country the greatest benefit." Col. Hughes considered that the Government's real duty was to turn Mr. Fisher out, not Lord Dundonald.

Mr. F. D. Monk responded, with an eloquent speech, in which he dwelt upon the traditional loyalty of the French-Canadian, who had preserved Canada for the British Crown, a work in which his own ancestors had borne arms.

When Mr. Monk sat down there were loud cries for Mr. Casgrain, but that gentleman declined to follow Mr. Monk in responding to the toast, and refused to say a word.

Other Toasts Honored.

"The Maritime Provinces" was proposed by Mr. J. T. Cardinal and responded to by Dr. Daniel, A. C. Bell, and A. A. Lefebvre, three M.P.'s for the Province by the sea.

"The Province of Manitoba" was proposed by Mr. Renaud, K.C., and responded to by J. C. Lariviere, M.P. for Provencher.

After speeches by R. Moutz, L. T. Marechal, G. A. Nantel, A. Germain, B. A. MacNab and others, Mr. Borden proposed the health of the chairman and at a very late hour the banquet broke up.

REVOLT IN FINLAND.

Revolutionists Sack Offices of the Governor-General.

London, June 20.—A despatch to the Express, from Copenhagen, says that information has been received there that a revolt has broken out in Helsingfors, the capital of Finland, where Governor-General Babriko was assassinated last week. A band of Swedish revolutionists sacked the offices of the Governor-General Saturday night and killed eighteen employes, including a son of Admiral Pinken. They also attacked and demolished the police offices. It is believed that the revolt will spread. More serious news is anticipated. All information is suppressed in official quarters.

CANADA EASTERN PURCHASE.

Fredericton Business Men Pleased With Acquisition of Road.

Fredericton, N.B., June 20.—(Special)—Business men here are well pleased with the acquisition by the I.C.R. of the Canada Eastern Railway. It was feared the C.P.R. would get possession of the road for the purchase of which it was negotiating. Government ownership and operation of the Canada Eastern, gives this section of the province an alternative and competing freight route to and from the West, thus ensuring equitable rates. The Government's action in this matter is very popular.

OPENING OF THE NEW STOCK EXCHANGE

First Transaction Was Put Through by Messrs. Miller and Pangman.

Shortly after ten o'clock this morning the chairman, Mr. Charles Meredith, rang the big gong in the new Stock Exchange building and the first session in that fine structure was under way.

Before proceeding with business, Mr. Meredith arose to congratulate the members of the building committee, who, he said, had spent much time and labor in perfecting the interior work.

Mr. Andrew Wilson replied briefly, and he in turn spoke in praise of the work done by Mr. W. J. Turpin and Mr. Garland.

A compliment was then paid to Mr. Hartland Macdougall, the oldest member of the Exchange, and the chairman again arose to wish the members all prosperity in the new building.

The call was then begun and a few seconds later the first transaction was recorded, Mr. W. R. Miller selling 25 shares of Canadian Pacific at 120⅜ to Mr. J. J. M. Pangman.

There was quite a crowd in the public balcony to see the opening and people kept dropping in all day to inspect the brokers' new home.

The new Exchange is perfectly equipped and has every convenience for the brokers.

Each broker has a telephone of the latest type, and as his bell rings, a big white number appears on a black signal board over the chairman's desk. Should anyone want to speak to a broker, he enters by the south door of the building, informs the attendant stationed there, who presses a button on a keyboard, and again the broker's number falls, a little red square in the white number telling the broker the difference between his telephone call and a request for an interview.

The floor is a small edition of the Wall Street Exchange, although perhaps atfer all the only point of similarity is in the trading posts, to be used in Montreal for the first time.

There are four fine substantial posts on the floor and around them circular seats. Fastened to each post is a small board containing tin slides with the names of the stocks to be dealt in at that particular post. It is scarcely likely, in view of the present dullness, that this method of trading will be taken advantage of just now, but later on when things pick up the scheme may become popular.

While the electric lighting arrangements are all that could be desired, the lights being controlled by buttons at the chairman's desk, the Exchange hall will seldom be in need of artificial illumination.

Two rows of fine oblong windows run almost the length of the main building on St. Francois Xavier Street and also at the back, the light from the Seminary gardens being entirely unobstructed. This alone will prove an agreeable change to the brokers who half the time were compelled to have the electric lights going in their old quarters.

The interior decoration is plain, but very substantial and even handsome. Light, hard wood is in evidence, also marble, and the general effect is certainly very pleasing.

The balcony, which will be available to the public, makes a splendid addition to the appearance of the main hall, the balcony facing the chairman's desk, both being at the extreme ends of the main building.

The members of the Exchange enter by the north door into the wing which contains the smoking and coat rooms.

The south wing has the Clearing House, the staircase to the balcony and the entrances for the brokers' clerks and the public.

The heating arrangements in the basement are amongst the finest in the city, and altogether the building is well worthy of inspection. It is a credit to the members of the Stock Exchange and will prove another object of interest to the city's visitors, the old building seldom entering into the list of "places to see."

A brief history of the Stock Exchange appeared in last Saturday's Herald.

FAREWELL TO REV. C. A. SYKES.

Rev. Chas. A. Sykes, for two years associate pastor of St. James Methodist Church, is leaving to take up his new charge at Smith's Falls, Ont., and last evening a farewell service was held to mark the event.

Rev. J. W. Graham, pastor of St. James, said that the occasion was a sorrowful one. Mr. Sykes had come to the church when a debt hung over it, when the work was heavy and the future, so far as the property was concerned, seemed ominous. By his strong personality and devout ministry he had become a close friend of the congregation.

Rev. Mr. Sykes made a strong appeal for earnest Christian fellowship and for the conversion of those who are not of the fold. If Montreal was to become a godly city, every member of the church must turn evangelist.

HAS TRIED BOTH.
Travel for Health vs. Dieting.
A man who was sent to Europe for his health and finally found cure in a little change in his diet says:
"I was troubled with dyspepsia for five years and two doctors here in Kenosha that treated me for over a year both told me there was no help for me. Then I had an expert from Chicago, but still received no relief; then followed another expert from Chicago who came to our house two times a month for four months. He gave me up like all the others and told me to take a trip across the ocean which I did in the year 1899 and came home about as bad as when I started. The doctors told me my stomach lining was full of sores. Then I began to study my own case and learned of the diet recommended by the Postum Cereal Co., so I gave up coffee, pork and all greasy foods and began using Postum Food Coffee. Gradually I got better and better until I am well now as I ever was in my younger days, have no trouble and eat anything fit to eat.
"Sometimes away from home I am persuaded to drink coffee but I only take a sip of it for it tastes bitter and disagreeable to me, but the longer I use Postum the better I like it and the better I feel. I could say a great deal more of my experience with Postum, but think this will give everyone a good idea of what leaving off coffee and using Postum can do." LORD DUNDONALD—AUTOCRAT.

Lord Dundonald's signed statement will not improve his position in the eyes of the people of Canada. It is the defence of a man, earnest and enthusiastic in the pursuit of his profession of arms, who was imbued with the idea that he had been sent to Canada to create an army, and that nothing must stand in the way of the accomplishment of his mission. The statement breathes the spirit of the military autocrat from beginning to end, and so convinced is the writer that he, and not the Government of the day, is the interpreter of the wishes of the people that he supports his attack upon the Administration by lamenting that he was not able to place the Canadian troops in "that thorough state of preparedness which is their due and which the nation desires." Evidently it was none too soon that Lord Dundonald was taught that his proper relation to the Government and to the people of Canada was not what he imagined. As an example of how the spirit of military autocracy can blind the best meaning of men it would be hard to find a more striking illustration. The coolness of the proposition that a gentleman two years in the country knows what the people desire better than does the Government they have elected, and can take this superior knowledge as his justification for appealing from the Government to the people, would be laughable did it not indicate how sadly deficient is Lord Dundonald, whom we have all learned to admire as a soldier, in his knowledge of human nature and of constitutional Government.

If further evidence were needed as to why the late G. O. C. has to be added to the list of unsuccessful commanders of the Canadian militia, we have it here. He was absolutely out of tune with a democratic system of administration. He did not understand responsible Government, under which the people govern themselves, wisely or unwisely as the case may be. He knew, so he tells us, what the people wanted, and as the Government stood in his way, why, he had to attack the Government. If the Government wouldn't do as advised by him, the Imperially-appointed spokesman for the Canadian people, the duty of denouncing the Government devolved upon him. He saw his duty and he did it. He knew that his dismissal would follow, but if he could draw attention to the fact that the Government is not giving the people what they desire, he was willing to face that contingency.

What a pity that such a man should break himself upon the wheel through sheer ignorance. Not only has he misunderstood our system of government, but he has misread the temper of the people. It is very doubtful if we Canadians, as a whole, desire to spend much more money on our militia system than we are now devoting to it. The military spirit is not strong throughout the country, and Lord Dundonald is absolutely mistaken when he assumes that the enthusiasm which animates the militia officers with whom he has been thrown in contact is reflected in the people. He has failed to appreciate the fact that Parliament is the mirror in which the attitude of the people on this and every other question is reflected, and that it has shown little disposition, during any Administration, to plunge the country into large expenditures on account of the militia. As a matter of fact, the Militia Department, under the Laurier administration, has expended more money and has manifested a keener and more intelligent interest in the progress of the militia than under any previous Government. A month ago, before Lord Dundonald had made politics a burning issue in the militia, it would have been hard to find a single officer in the force, Conservative or Liberal, who would not have agreed to the proposition that Sir Frederick Borden was the best Minister of Militia Canada has had, and was doing much to improve and strengthen the force. The fact that what has been done falls short of Lord Dundonald's expectations is not surprising. The surprising thing is that His Lordship has so utterly failed to discern the gulf that lies between his expectations and the desires of the people of Canada.

In another, and almost equally serious, respect Lord Dundonald's statement betrays his unfitness for the post of military adviser to the Government. He prefaces his remarks by saying: "I have not sought to impose my policy upon the minister or upon the Cabinet . . . . . My claim for freedom extended only to the technical side of my work: I had no desire to force my policy upon the ministry." This is explicit, yet what is the first count in the Major-General's indictment of the Government? That part two of his first report to the Minister of Militia was suppressed. This part, according to Lord Dundonald's own words, contained "an outline of a comprehensive scheme for reorganizing the force upon lines suitable to the country." It was, therefore, a proposition that embodied a policy, and one that certainly involved a large additional expenditure of money. As such, it was the privilege and the duty of the Government to first pass upon it, and to decide whether it should be made public. Sir Frederick Borden, in May of 1903, made this very clear to the House, when interrogated by Col. Tisdale as to why this part of the G. O. C.'s report was suppressed. Not merely did the report embody a question of policy, but it propounded plans which, in the judgment of the Minister, should not be made public, but which he offered to submit in confidence to the leader of the Opposition and to a small committee of the Opposition selected by Mr. Borden. Parliament appeared well satisfied with the explanation, yet Lord Dundonald was not, and at a later time showed his indifference to the views of the Minister of Militia by endeavoring to again place before Parliament the proposition which had been deliberately withheld from publicity by Sir Frederick Borden.

In the face of these facts, it is quite impossible to accept Lord Dundonald's statement that he had not sought to impose his policy upon the Minister and upon the Cabinet. He did so, not once, but twice, and now makes his failure to accomplish his purpose the chief complaint he lays at the door of the Cabinet. Taken as a whole, and viewed in connection with his previous actions, the statement impresses the reader with the conviction that Lord Dundonald, good soldier though he be, was absolutely an impossibility in his position as commander of the Canadian militia. He wanted as free a hand in matters of detail, he confesses, as the general manager of a Government railway, but in addition he wanted to dictate the policy of the department. Imagine the general manager of the Intercolonial undertaking to force the Government to publish a report from him recommending, say, the purchase of the Canada Atlantic, and then appealing to the country if the report was suppressed! Yet this would be an exact parallel to Lord Dundonald's attitude. The general undoubtedly meant well, but his point of view was fatal to the accomplishment of good work. He wanted to create an army, to shape its form, to appoint its officers—and all that was to be done by the Minister or by Parliament was to meet the drafts drawn upon them. The sun sank long ago on the day when such things were possible in Canada.

AN ANTI-BETTING BILL.

On Saturday we alluded to a reform which promises to reach the British statute-book with the aid of men of all party complexions; one which aims to prevent the youthful criminal, or the first offender, from being contaminated by the companionship of the habitual criminal to the extent which he is liable to be under present conditions.

Despite the strenuous claims of party politics there is another measure of an uplifting social nature which has passed some of its parliamentary stages. We refer to a bill aimed to diminish the evils of betting, which has been introduced in the House of Peers by Lord Davey, and in which the Earl of Aberdeen is also taking a special interest. It has been said by more than one statesman and repeated upon the bench of Bishops that the evils resulting from betting in the United Kingdom are more serious than those involved in the drink traffic. This may seem an exaggeration, but we have to bear in mind the evidence adduced that the curse of betting has, in later years, become extended to the ranks of, not only the youths of the office and the factory, but to boys of twelve years of age or even less.

The bill which Lord Davey has carried through a second reading does not attempt to touch more than the fringe of the evil; the influence of the Jockey Club is too solidly supported by the masses to permit of any law prohibiting the making of wagers in the clubs and the enclosures which are licensed by law, and those between man and man which are sanctioned by custom. The proposal, however, will effectually hinder the operations of the men known as "street betters" and ready-money book-makers, and the men who accept money on the sly from a child be he a messenger or acting for himself. The trade is so profitable that there is little or no "welshing," no neglect to pay up when a winner has been "spotted"; but the evidence adduced in support of stringent action shows how many can date their downward career from the first transaction with this particularly abominable form of catering to the love of feverish excitement and gain.

The race of true sportsmen seems dying out—men like the late Lord Falmouth and Lord Glasgow, who dearly loved a race horse but never laid a bet; men like Lord George Bentinck, whose disappointment at not winning the Derby, "that blue riband of the turf," Beaconsfield so strikingly portrays in his memoirs.

Indeed even here, where, we can still be thankful, the craze is more confined to a clique, we cannot congratulate ourselves that the increasing love of sport is going along upon healthy lines. Professionalism is growing. There is a greater tendency to watch such men play than to indulge in healthy sporting exercise personally. The honest, healthy rivalry when teams contended, the members of which were really natives of or long residents of, the rival localities, is giving place to contests which are really meaningless in a trial of skill or strength between one village town or district with another. In our larger cities, too, the circle which bets upon such contests is widening and the professional taker of wagers is coming into evidence.

The bill now before the British Parliament has been carefully framed so as to make it clear that it applied only to those who plied the trade of betting. The penalties proposed are a fine of £10 for a first offence, £20 for a second, and for any subsequent offence, if convicted on indictment, £50, or imprisonment with or without hard labor for six months without the option of a fine; or if convicted summarily £30, or imprisonment for three months without the option of a fine. There is a proviso that if it were a case of betting with children under sixteen years of age the offender should be liable to the full penalty on the first offence. In the betting places defined in the bill "any house licensed for the sale of intoxicating liquors" is included. It has been brought in as a private measure and its progress towards the statute-book is likely to interest social reformers outside the United Kingdom.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

It would be a mistake to assume, because of the indignation of the Conservative press at alleged political interference with the militia, that in the days of Conservative Administrations members of the Government and of Parliament religiously kept their hands off the sacred thing.

The Conservatives even have the assurance to attack Hon. Mr. Fisher's administration of the Agriculture Department. The funny part is that they can't recall anything the previous Minister of Agriculture ever did. A still funnier thing is that not one in a hundred can even remember his name. Just offhand—who was the last Conservative Minister of Agriculture?

The appointment of Mr. James Hardwell, Assistant General Freight Agent of the Intercolonial, to be Traffic Officer to the Board of Railway Commissioners, will be recognized by all who have knowledge of Mr. Hardwell's qualifications as an excellent one for the purpose of the Commission. Mr. Hardwell has had a long railroad experience, and is possessed of a wide knowledge, gained at close range, of the traffic problem. He is clear-headed, and of an independent turn of mind, which will stand him and the country in good stead on the many occasions in the future when upon his advice as an expert in questions arising between shippers and railway corporations the Commissioners will depend.

Views of French Press

La Patrie—We believe that if Lord Dundonald had acted in a constitutional manner he would have avoided the present crisis.

La Patrie—Public opinion requires that the Opposition should be strong. It is one of the surest guarantees of a good administration of business.

Le Journal—What we want is protection, not the shadow of it. But in order to get it it looks as though we would have to wait for another Cabinet.

Le Canada—We hope that our boards of trade will accept the offer made to enable them to place the manufactures of Canada before the trade in South Africa.

La Patrie—We cannot understand how some men can contend that it is just as well for a country to have a balance of commerce against it—that is to import more than it exports.

Le Canada—The divisions have become so numerous in the ranks of the Liberal party that it has become necessary to try, regardless of expense, to sense the loyalty of the members to the chief.

La Presse—The courageous frankness of Sir Wilfrid Laurier will perhaps end in his convincing all that he is not trying to obtain any favors from beyond the sea, as some of his enemies have tried to claim.

La Patrie: The passenger traffic on the St. Lawrence can be increased to a considerable extent. But the traffic should be accompanied by all the possible guarantees of security and the observance of all laws of morality.

La Patrie: A dinner to Lord Dundonald would not be out of place. The statements that he has made in which he forgot himself have not in any way affected his merit or the value of the efforts he has made to reorganize the Canadian militia.

Le Canada: The policy of the Opposition is not to talk business but to discuss incidents that have no bearing on business at all. These tactics, if they are easy, are unjust to the electors who have a right that their representatives should attend to their business and watch their interests.

La Presse: Seeing that in the political world everything passes like a breath of wind or a fire in straw we put our readers on guard against the extreme appreciations being made in the Dundonald case. If the Opposition were serious in its commentaries we might believe that the majesty of a great institution has been seriously affected.

A REMARKABLE WOMAN.

The statement that an old woman has "cast" a fresh set of teeth at the age of ninety has reminded a contributor of the Liverpool Post of a much more extraordinary case than that. In the edition of Thomas Pennant's "Tour in Scotland," printed at Warrington, by W. Eyers, in 1774, among other fine engravings is a portrait of "The Old Countess of Desmond," in Dupplin Castle, N. B., and particulars of her age are given in the text. This portrait represents her at the age of 120, a firm-mouthed, strongly-marked woman, who lived to the great age of 140. She was the daughter of a Fitzgerald, of Drumana, in Ireland, and married, in the reign of Edward IV., James, fourteenth Earl of Desmond; she was in England in the same reign, and danced at court with the King's brother, the Duke of Gloucester, and died in the reign of James I. The year before her death (when 139) she took a journey to London to solicit relief from the King, the Desmond "house" having been reduced to a state of poverty. Francis Bacon, in his "History of Life and Death," states that this lady "did dentise twice or thrice, casting her old teeth and others coming in their place."

CONVENIENT CURRENCY.

In some parts of Macedonia, says the Windsor Magazine, the Bulgarian girls wear their dowries on strings as necklaces, interwoven with their innumerable plaits of hair and about their shoulders—if their dowry is large enough to go so far. That is the reason all small coins in Turkey have holes in them. Probably the display is meant to entice the other sex, but as it attracts bashi-bazouks, a stranger can seldom get to see the display.

"Do his cigars cost him much?"
"Yes; they've cost him all his friends."

Colonel Hughes' Change of Front

(Staff Correspondence of The Herald.)

Ottawa, June 20.—Col. Sam Hughes has not always been the champion of general officers commanding. In fact, his present role is a novel one. For years he has been the most determined critic of the men whom the War Office has sent out to take charge of our militia organization. Just now, when Col. Hughes is busy abusing the Government for having given Lord Dundonald constitutional treatment, the country is likely to lose sight of what the colonel has said about general officers commanding in Canada and British officers commanding on the battlefields of South Africa.

Col. Hughes is not the only Conservative member who has criticized Imperially, and before quoting him it would be well to cite the words of another member of His Majesty's loyal Opposition. Mr. Gourley, of Colchester, has gone beyond the narrow confines of militarism.

What Mr. Gourley Said.

He has claimed to be loyal, has consistently voted with the Opposition side, and has called British statesmen a good deal harsher names than "strangers" or even "foreigners." Only two years ago Mr. Gourley said something about British statesmanship: "Old Gladstone gave away the whole Empire of Africa. We would have had many square miles of Africa if the English Government had not been cowardly." The Opposition only laughed at this and did not resent it when Mr. Gourley said:

"I trust that in ten years the House of Commons in South Africa, the House of Commons in Australia, the House of Commons in Canada, the three speaking together, will control the little blockheads that sit in the great hall of St. Stephens, when they go wrong. I heard a story a few days ago explaining why it was we had such stupidity in the Commons of England. They say men are examined before they are nominated to a seat in the British House of Commons to see that incipient imbecility is thoroughly well established, and unless it is they cannot be elected."

The men who approved of these words from the lips of their associate are the Conservative members who are to-day censuring the Prime Minister for having through a slip of the tongue referred to a member of the House of Lords as a "foreigner," though he corrected himself instantly. The Conservative press did not record an objection to Mr. Gourley's characterization of the British Commons.

Col. Hughes Has Changed Front.

Col. Hughes has not been so broad in his criticism of things British. The statesmen or law-makers have not attracted him. The soldiers have. He has always been a friend and admirer of Lord Dundonald, but the predecessors of that gentleman were worse than "strangers" or "foreigners" to him. This is what he said a couple of years ago about G.O.C.'s:—"There has been a good deal of discussion throughout the press of the Old Country, especially as to why Canada does not get on well with her general officers commanding. If we are to judge by the verdict recorded by every one of these generals, each one found that his predecessors had been absolutely useless. Discuss the matter with any Imperial officer of high standing in the old land, and he will tell you there are three types of generals sent to this country. One of these was, it seems, second in command of a certain regiment, and in order to avoid having to give him the command of that famous regiment he was shipped to Canada to get him out of the way. Another was sent because they wanted to keep him a year or two longer on the full pay list. Another was such a born crank they had no place for him in the service of the Old Country, and so they sent him out to Canada."

Hughes versus General Hutton.

The man with whom Col. Hughes fell out with most thoroughly was General Hutton. That officer thought Col. Hughes had violated the militia regulations when, as lieutenant-colonel of the 45th Victoria Battalion, he offered to raise a regiment for service in South Africa, and made his offer direct to the Colonial Office instead of to the General Officer Commanding in Canada. General Hutton objected. Colonel Hughes moved, in the Canadian Commons, to send a corps to the Transvaal. General Hutton called him to his office and forbade him to speak on his motion because he was a Canadian militia man, and therefore forbidden to discuss such things in public. This aroused Col. Hughes a good deal more than the Dundonald affair has, but his wrath was greater when an official communication told him:

"The Governor-General, Lord Minto, commanded Lieutenant-Col. Hughes to give his reasons in writing for committing an irregularity which reflects so seriously upon his knowledge of military affairs and the customs of His Majesty's service as offering to raise a regiment directly to the Colonial Office instead of to the General Officer Commanding in Canada."

Col. Hughes did not give Lord Minto his reasons, but he gave the House of Commons his opinion of Lord Minto and his unconstitutional conduct.

Col. Hughes said he was amazed that His Excellency should give such a command in a self-governing colony, and said he wished to enter his protest against any officer receiving a command from His Excellency unless authorized by an order-in-council.

Blundering British Officers.

Finally Col. Hughes' opinion of the British officers as given in a letter to General Hutton, is interesting. He said: "To the British soldier is due the victory again and again, despite the stupidity and blundering of British officers. You say I would be incapable to serve alongside British regulars. Why? Could I not retreat or surrender quickly enough to the Boers. History shows that the Yankees, whom the Canadians could always defeat, though with great odds against us, repeatedly dressed and combed down British troops led by British officers, while the old plugs of Boer farmers walloped the British, though the odds were often against them."

The opinion of Col. Hughes and his Conservative associates to-day and his opinion when there was no political capital involved are hard to harmonize.

The Deadly Door Mat.

Scientific men have just added the common house door mat to the already long list of things that contribute to the elimination of the human race. Of late years, even the unlettered, non-reading member of the community has come to have at least a nodding acquaintance with the microbe question, while the man of just ordinary intelligence is well alive to the fact that above, below and all about us, are millions of the "pesky critters," in all branches of the business. There they are in our whiskers, if we have any, and if we have none, the little cusses will hang on to the fringes of our eyebrows, the edges of our chin and perch gleefully round the corners of the nasal organ, on the lookout for chances to get in their deadly work.

But until quite recently, no one thought of suspecting the door-mat. Perhaps the gentlemen who run this section of the scientific world had not been in the habit of using door mats. Mayhap they habitually climbed in by the scullery window, or the fire escape. At any rate, they have only just got their learned minds down to the Death Dealing Dangers of the Door Mat.

The street door-mat in its ordinary form constitutes a standing menace to health. The microbes of street mud accumulate in the meshes of the matting, to be stirred up later in clouds of dust by the feet of those who walk over the threshold.

This is not a great discovery, for the man or boy who is built on such a twist that he simply cannot be taught to wipe the superfluous mud from his shoes before going indoors can now paste this on his shirt-cuff, and when the lady of the household looks like taking aim with the domestic rolling-pin because of a trifling daub of roadway on her newest thing in carpets, he can stay the bloodshed by exhibiting the proclamation of the scientific expert on microbes.

The only wonder is that there are any specimens of humanity left above ground at all. —Roxburgh.

WHAT A G. O. C. SHOULD BE.

(Lieut.-Col. Sam Hughes, House of Commons, May 5, 1903.)

"It took the ministry a long time to learn their duty in the premises. A struggle went on with that officer—I refer to General Hutton. He tyrannized over the Minister of Militia, he tyrannized over the Prime Minister, he even undertook to manage those higher in authority. But I claim the credit of having taught the country what the duty of a general officer commanding in Canada ought to be. But I was not supported. I regret to say that I was deserted by my own friends, and I was not reinforced by the present Government. I fought the fight single-handed on that occasion. . . . Lord Dundonald did not treat the Minister of Militia as an inferior and refuse to obey his orders. Lord Dundonald has never undertaken to place a curb on any member of the House of Commons; he has never undertaken to control the action or the language of any military member of this House of Commons on military questions. Mark you, if I found Lord Dundonald or any Imperial or Canadian officer, encroaching upon the rights of citizenship, encroaching upon the rights of the people's representatives in this House, I would be one of the first to bring him to time, but I have watched Lord Dundonald's course very carefully, and I have seen nothing to find fault with in it. In South Africa he was a gentleman; he treated the officers and men under him as gentlemen and soldiers, and they followed him as a leader. In this country Lord Dundonald has not once encroached upon the domain of the minister. He has been in every respect, so far as I can judge, a model general officer commanding, recognizing that he is the servant of a responsible Government, and that the minister is responsible to the people of the country."

LAWRENCE HUTTON.

Lawrence Hutton, who died suddenly of heart disease at his home in Princeton, N.J., had long been a prominent and popular figure in journalistic, artistic and theatrical circles in New York, while his activity as a popular biographer, essayist, lecturer, descriptive writer and story teller had made his name familiar to the general public at home and abroad. Born in this city in 1843, and educated privately, he inherited literary tastes, and a well selected library from his father, and early in life devoted himself to congenial books and foreign travel. From the first he cultivated close association with the theatre, and in the early seventies he joined the ranks of New York dramatic critics. At the same time he began those frequent contributions to peridical publications of al. kinds which he maintained, with unremitting industry, almost to the last. The number of his published volumes was about fifty. Among the most important of them may be mentioned his "Plays and Players," Artists of the Nineteenth Century," "Curiosities of the American Stage," his "Literary Landmarks" of various famous cities, a "Memoir of Edwin Booth," "Fortraits in Plaster," and "A Boy I Knew." He also edited many volumes of stage biography and history, addresses, etc., and from 1886 to 1898 was litreray editor of Harper's Magazine. At the time of his death he was lecturer on English literature at Princeton University. In 1892 Yale University conferred on him the degree of master of arts, honoris causa. He was an A. M. of Princeton also.

Mr. Hutton was also an indefatigable collector. Among other things, he possessed a famous assortment of death masks, including those of Aaron Burr, Dean Swift, Thackeray, Richard Brinsley Sheridan, Franklin, Tom Paine, Robespierre, Edmund Kean, and Garrick. He also had innumerable autograph menu cards memorials of many dinners. One of these bears the names, among others, of Irving, Booth, Barrett, Wallack, McCullough, John Gilbert William Winter, Charles Dudley Warner, W. D. Howells, and T. B. Aldrich.

An Appreciation.

Rev. C. A. Sykes, the assistant pastor of St. James Methodist Church, in this city, preached his farewell sermon to the congregation of that church last evening. Most evident was it that the farewell was painful to both pastor and people. Most evident was it that the place he had made in their hearts was permanent.

Perhaps Mr. Sykes' strongest characteristic is his strength of thought, his depth of thought. His reasonings are solid-based on the principles of things, his greatest wish is the good of those that are brought into contact with him. He is a strong believer in and upholder of the tenets of the particular denomination to which he belongs, but not to any narrowing of his realization of the good in all creeds. For the reason that he preached the love of God more than the strength of Methodism was he popular with the cosmopolitan congregation of St. James, which is possibly the most cosmopolitan church in Montreal. A man whose doctrine includes all doctrines, whose creed can embrace the good of all creeds, and whose breadth of vision includes all kinds of humanity is the only kind of a preacher who can be successful at this church.

To, therefore, be acceptable to such gatherings of people who assemble there, a preacher must have certain qualities not necessary in a smaller and more limited congregation. Such qualities Mr. Sykes had. Before himself he put his people. Before his own work he put the hand of his Master. He is an earnest speaker, possessing a marvelously rich and well-trained voice, and is able to keep the attention of his listeners in his most serious and thoughtful discourses. All who have had the opportunity of occasionally hearing Mr. Sykes will regret with his own people, his departure from the city.

AUSTRALIANS.

Editor Herald:

Sir,—A very interesting writer is your Sydney, N.S.W., correspondent, Burriss Gahan, but rather inconsistent, if one takes the trouble to give his letter more than a casual glance, and somewhat prejudiced. Assuming that he is as intimately acquainted with the places and things of which he writes as he would have your readers imagine.

Personally, I do not believe that the Australians can teach the Canadians overmuch along the lines of sport. Newspaper work, or politics either, for that matter. We have a national game that surpasses in science and excitement every other known form of amusement. I rather think that if cricket and baseball were rolled into one game, with the worst features of each eliminated, that even then the new game would be far from equalling our own game of lacrosse, and it sruprises me very much, even after a residence of fourteen years in the States, to find many Montrealers who are willing to neglect the only game for the imported imitation baseball article, such as is served here.

As for horse racing, it is no longer the sport of kings, rather that of the pimp and tout.

I reckon that our newspaper men are quite as classical and equally as learned as elsewhere, and maybe most of them can show as clear a balance sheet as what they can in Australia.

If it worries the average Australian as little to be mistaken for an insular Englishman as it does a Canadian to be taken for a bumptious, nasal Yankee, there will be no room for an argument.

After all climatic influences have considerable to do with such things, and many of us are of the same blood. Even the far away Australian is related to the shrewd, clever, able, wide awake Yankee.

As for politics, they are rotten the world over, and if Australians surpass us in this respect, I am sure that they are entitled to the doubtful credit, and neither nasal Yankees, nor dull-eyed Canadians will strenuously object.

And talking of dull eyes! How about dull wits? It is neither charitable nor polite to refer to your relatives' shortcomings in that way, Mr. Correspondent; and to always be sure that you are right. —P. Francis.

HOW TIM BROKE THE NEWS.

Mr. Nolan had acquired a great reputation for tact, so that when Mr. Cassidy fell from a ladder and broke his leg it was quickly decided by all the workmen that Mr. Nolan should bear the tidings to Mrs. Cassidy.

"He broke the news gradual," said Mr. Leahy to his wife that night, "and by the time she learned the thruth she was as calm as a clock, they say. Oh, he's the great man, is Timothy Nolan!"

"How did he do it?" asked Mrs. Leahy, impatiently.

"Like this," said Mr. Nolan's admirer. "He wint to the house and rang the bell, and he says, 'Thin Dinnis is not dead, Mrs. Cassidy, or you'd niver be so gay lookin'."

"'Dead,' she screeches. 'Who said he was dead?'

"'Thin it's not true he's near to dy'in' wid the smallpox, either,' said Timmy Nolan, 'or you'd niver be lookin' so amazed.'

"'Smallpox,' she cries. 'Has he got the smallpox, Timmy Nolan, and been tuk to the hospital widout me sayin' goodby to him?'

"'Sure an' he has not,' said Timmy Nolan, in a comfortin' tone. 'It's only that he broke a few bones in his leg, fallin' from a ladder, an' I'm sint ahead wid the news.'

"'It's you that's a thrue friend, an' you have lifted a big load from me heart,' said Mrs. Cassidy, and she gave a warrm shake to his hand and wint back to her washin'."—Youth's Companion.

Hornerites.

The little church on a side street on Bleury, called the Hornerite, represents, probably, one of the most unique religious faiths in the city of Montreal. There is more of a chance to study human nature than is sometimes agreeable.

In the first place the church is a small one, plainly furnished with chairs a small organ, and an unpretentious preacher's platform. Upon the wall are well known scriptural mottoes. There is also an open space in the floor through which the exhorter comes, and one, unfamiliar with the custom would feel a certain surprise to see a man appear before them, apparently from nowhere.

The adherents of the church dress very plainly, the hymns are the accepted evangelical ones, the preacher usually possesses a powerful voice which is more of the style of an Italian shouting "Ripe bananas," than anything, of which, at present, I can think. As a rule the place is badly ventilated.

The first part of the service is upon an ordinary church plan, a little exaggerated perhaps, but endurable. The air gets heavier with the breath of the many people in the usually well-filled, and sometimes, crowded little room, as the service proceeds. After much lung persuasion on the part of the presiding Hornerite the spirit begins to move. Groans and cries are heard, which grow continually louder and more frequent, and eventually those who belong to the church, go forward to the front and get down upon their knees on the floor; the preacher gets down on his knees on the platform, and the after service commences.

They shout, they cry, they groan. They throw themselves backward and forward and down upon the floor. They beat the walls, they laugh. Men, women and children, indiscriminately tumbling and rolling and throwing themselves, the preacher with his face dripping with perspiration, the room hot and close, with impure air, the frightful bedlam of noise, these are the principal features.

It is excellent physical exercise, if there were only pure air. There is something so far from spiritual, however, in that mass of religion-crazed, hot, shouting humanity, that one can but look on in amazement, then pity, and then leave them, for strong nerves, yes iron nerves alone, can endure the sight of men and women in such predicament of mind. It is nothing less than predicament, and one for which pure air, cold water, and lectures on hygiene, could be recommended. Meanwhile they grow and prosper, and as it is a free country, exercise to the uttermost religious freedom. After all, in a hundred years, evolution may have made them one of the most respectable and orthodox of churches. We can at least hope that evolution will soon commence its work, upon them.

WHISTLER STORIES.

One gets a curious impression of Whistler from turning the pages of Mr. Mortimer Menpes's handsome book on "Whistler as I Knew Him" (Macmillan). There is a strange mixture in his character of the fighting bantam, the irrepressible schoolboy, the vain dandy, and the great master. Cellini was a simple child in comparison with this American-born artist of the nineteenth century. Mr. Menpes has a good deal to say about Whistler the fighter, and his quickness in resenting an affront. He is careful to add that Whistler was always refined in his methods:

Still, he was not actually brutal. He never treated his enemies in a coarse way. Any man who had offended him Whistler would rap sharply over the shoulders with his cane; and then, by the time the sufferer had recovered the Master would be in the next room explaining to every one how he had just felled his enemy. Once he caught a man, with whom he was for the moment enraged, washing his face. Without a moment's hesitation Whistler dashed the unfortunate head straight into the basin of water, and while the foe were endeavoring to clear the soap from his eyes to see the cause of this sudden immersion Whistler was in the smoking room setting the men there in a roar with the account of his adventures. When I first met Whistler he was in the act of searching for a man who had dared to criticise his Venetian etchings. "If you want to see some fun, Menpes," he said, "come with me." Fortunately, the man had been warned, and was nowhere to be found.

As for Whistler's practical jokes and his irrepressible schoolboyishness generally, these have furnished a theme for paragraphs ever since the artist's death. Mr. Menpes, among many others, gives this illustration of his sharp wit:

As he grew older, Whistler's love of practical jokes did not diminish. When quite a lad he was placed in a Government office; but his originality wrought his destruction, and he was dismissed. Just as he was leaving the office he passed through the chief's room, and his eye was caught by a huge magnifying glass which lay on a desk. Now, this glass was no ordinary one, but was used on the most solemn occasions by the "old man" only, and was held in much awe by the staff. Whistler, full of bitter thoughts, stooped over the desk for a moment, and painted a little demon right in the middle of the sacred magnifying glass, and passed on his way with the smile. Next day, when the great man solemnly lifted his glass to inspect something, he saw nothing but a horrid little grinning demon, and dropped it on the table with a howl, thinking that he had gone out of his mind.

PALMIST—"Sire, you are in for seven years' hard luck."

PALMIST—"Oh, by that time you'll be used to it."

THE PROGRESS OF events in the Far East shows that the battle is not always to the people with the longest whiskers.

THE CONS SHOULD cut out some of their banquets. The Libs don't want to take advantage of people who are down with indigestion.

IT'S NOTICEABLE that the average male reader of the newspapers turns to the baseball scores before he peruses the sweet-girl-graduate column.

A GROUP PICTURE of Borden, Dundonald and Tarte on the Con. campaign buttons now seems to be in order.

MANY REFUSE to have Liberal politics in the militia, but don't object to having Conservative politics.

J. HOLLISTER WILSON, one of Montreal's peerless poets, who writes "Up, Britons, and at them," but stays home himself, is worried about the Dundonald affair. The arm chair heroes are making themselves heard.

THE CZAR HAS given Gen. Kuropatkin a free hand. That lets the Czar out when trouble comes.

THE AVERAGE height of Jap soldiers is 5 feet 3 inches. They are good shots and poor targets.

IT WAS NEARLY six months ago that Port Arthur first began to fall.

WHEN RUSSELL SAGE travels he always takes the last seat in the car, so that the conductor will be compelled to let him save the interest on his money longer than any of the rest of the passengers.

LORD DUNDONALD'S cry when he came to Canada was: "Give appointments only to those with experience." Yet, he kicks about Dr. Pickel, who, figuratively speaking, couldn't tell a flank movement from a bale of hay.

CUBA IS RAISING a large amout of sugar cane and hurricane this season.

"OH, WHAT IS so rare as a day in June?" asks the poet. That's easy. News of the whereabouts of the Tarte boom.

SKRYDLOFF MUST have been brought up on the same book of tactics used by Makaroff.

LORD DUNDONALD seems to have created almost as great a sensation as Borden's tariff speech. What? Didn't read that tariff speech?

ONE MAN WANTS open cars equipped with electric plungers, so that the end-seat hog can be pushed to the middle of the car. What's the matter with a gripper that takes the end-seat hog by the neck and throws him out?

DO NOT SCOFF at the Chicago woman who declares that she used to weigh 224 pounds, but has taken off seventy pounds by mental action. Many a woman has taken ten years off her age in the same way.

SPORTING GOSSIP OF THE DAY

Cornwall's Juniors Sprang a Surprise on Montreal Veterans

The Game Was a Draw of Three Goals and Was Rough.

Cornwall caused a big surprise on Saturday by drawing with Montreal, and it might at once be said that the honors of the day were with them. To lose ere the season had begun eight senior men, and some likely juniors would destroy the nerve of almost any team, but this does not seem to affect plucky Cornwall very much, and the game they put up on Saturday stamps them as a team that will be extraordinarily hard to beat at home at least. The draw was three goals each. The teams were:

Cornwall.		Montreal.
Hunter	Goal	Hamilton
M. Broderick	Point	Murphy
Burns	Cover point	Haynes
M. Donald	Defence	Strachan
W. Broderick	"	Davidson
Reynolds	"	McKerrow
Seymour	Centre	Nolan
McAteer	Home	Finlayson
Percival	"	Madden
Cummins	"	Hendry
J. Broderick	Out. home	Wells
McMillan	In. home	Dodds
J. E. Macphee	Timek'rs	G. Pettigrew
R. Clark	Umpires	A. Cameron

Referee—P. Murphy, Montreal.

Right away from the start they were at it hammer and tongs, with Cornwall on the aggressive, their home making determined efforts to rush the Montreal defence. Hamilton was tested severely, but came out of the ordeal with flying colors. "Billy" Murphy was good, but evidently not in condition, but Haynes and Strachan played a great game.

The pressure eventually told, and within five minutes of the start, Percival gave Cornwall the lead, which they kept until the game was almost half an hour old. Montreal had themselves much to blame. Their home became weak through the stubborn defence of Cornwall, and though well worked up in midfield did not finish well. They had chances, more chances than the home team, but failed to make use of them. The first quarter ended: Cornwall, 1; Montreal, 0.

The second quarter was a repetition of the first, with Cornwall likely to increase their lead, until Finlayson, Madden and Hendry began to get going. Finlayson played a very stylish game, and Madden was exceedingly tricky, though evidently suffering from nervousness. Hendry was more vigorous and probably more dangerous. At last Madden put through for Montreal, and the stand cheered heartily the old Cornwall boy. The remaining ten minutes were very much give and take, though "Reddy" McMillan's game had so much improved, that he was little short of being the most effective home man on the ground. The second quarter ended: Cornwall, 1; Montreal, 1.

The third quarter was more lively, especially so towards the end, and broken heads were the consequence, Montreal being the greater sufferers in this respect. Finlayson had had to have one of his wounds sewn up. As time was wearing on McMillan got in a nice shot, which Hamilton got in earthly chance to save, but a couple of minutes afterwards the most brilliant movement of the day drew the teams once more level. Strachan had relieved a hot bit of pressure, when he passed to McKerrow, who handed on to Finlayson. The latter transferred to Madden. Madden gave it back to Finlayson. Finlayson drew the defence towards him, and repassed to Madden. The little Cornwall home saw Hendry with an opening, and, passing quickly, the score came. The score at the end of the third quarter was: Cornwall, 2; Montreal, 2.

If the third quarter was a trifle vigorous, the fourth was considerably more so. Hendry scored when the play had been about six minutes in progress, but a quarter of a minute afterwards McMillan again put his team level. Montreal pressed hotly towards the end, but were unable to score, and the game ended: Cornwall, 3; Montreal, 3. Summary:

	First Quarter.
1st game	Cornwall	Percival	4.53
	Second Quarter.
2nd game	Montreal	Madden	9.37
	Third Quarter.
3rd game	Cornwall	McMillan	14.30
4th game	Montreal	Hendry	2.45
	Fourth Quarter.
5th game	Montreal	Hendry	6.25
6th game	Cornwall	McMillan	.25

Penalties—Murphy, Nolan, Finlayson, Strachan, Hendry, Burns (2), W. Broderick, 2), Percival (2), McAteer (3), Mike Broderick.

The Chippewas, of Toronto, beat Fergus before a big crowd, 6 to 1. The first quarter ended 2 to 1, Fergus scoring the third goal in five minutes, which proved the only one of the game for the home players. The Chipps tallied one in the third quarter, and two in the last.

There were only about 900 people out to see the game at Cornwall. Deduct the Montreal excursionists, the young ladies on the stand, and there were very few of the Cornwall male persuasion there.

Gone to the Soo.

Owen Sound, June 20.—(Special)—Barney Quinn will not play with the senior Greys this season. He has left for the Soo. It is rumored that rivalry with another member of the team was the cause of his departure. He will probably secure a place on a team of some association other than the C.L.A., but he is debarred from playing in the C.L.A. again this season on account of his having played with the Greys against the Beavers of Seaforth.

J. J. Currie's Marriage.

J. J. Currie, the centre fielder of the Shamrocks, was presented by his fellow employes in the Health Department of the City Hall on Saturday, with a handsome clock and bronze statues on the occasion of his approaching marriage. To-morrow the great player joins the noble army of benedicts.

The Bradford lacrosse team, of Ontario, was defeated by the Crescent A. C., at Bay Ridge on Saturday by a score of 6 to 4.

Good gracious! Is Brantford still on the map?

Tecumsehs were all over them to the tune of six goals to love. And now the Western critics are describing the Toronto team as the best in the C. L. A. business.

There is said to be a good deal of friction amongst the Brantford players, and this is given out as the cause of the constant defeats.

Sault Ste. Marie have been on two occasions after Laviolette, of the Nationals. But Laviolette will remain here.

Fred Quinn believes that with a little more practice together, the Nationals would just be about the best team going, as they are now the fastest. He regrets for the sake of his team the absence of a field captain.

Montreal got a big surprise on Saturday afternoon at Cornwall, when they could only tie the score. On the day's play they were no better a team than the factory town.

Where Cornwall raises them it would be hard to say, but any team that can play the game as these fellows did after losing eight of their senior men deserve a great deal of praise.

Willie Broderick was the finest player on the field.

Bob Taylor and "Pokey" Leahy would have made a great difference to the Montreal team, the former in the defence and the latter to do some scoring. The committee know of their mistake now.

"Billy" Murphy played a good game, but was obviously not yet in condition.

The game was pretty rough at times, and a ten minutes' penalty is not nearly enough for fighting. If officials have any desire to stamp out this disgrace to Canadian sport they will have to be mroe determined about it.

No young fellow would take his girl to see pugilism, yet he is expected to bring her along to witness a few fights on a lacrosse field.

A Curious Discussion.

When the game ended three all, nobody knew whether the match should be played to a finish or not. A great discussion arose and guide books, rules, etc., were brought to bear. It seemed that since the new C. L. A. rules had been adopted, nothing had been done in case of such a contingency. Eventually it was decided to postpone the match, and play it off again, provided it would have a bearing on the championship.

Bob Madden did not seem very comfortable playing against his old team and was decidedly nervous.

There was a fight on the bleachers after the second quarter, and two husky limbs of the law triumphantly led away a little fellow about a third of their size amid the cheers of the stand.

The Cornwall defence was remarkably strong. The two Brodericks and Burns were well supported by the youngsters.

Mrs. Dr. Wheeler, who is a sister of Willie Broderick, was an anxious spectator.

Montreal's Extra Goal.

Montreal scored a fourth goal a few seconds after time in the third quarter. There was some doubt about it, and it was due to the timekeepers not being supplied a whistle. "Ten seconds to go," said Mr. Guy Pettigrew, as he ran to tell the referee time was up. The question was whether the Montreal goal was scored within that time or not. After hearing Mr. MacPhee, the referee concluded it was not.

"Reddy" McMillan, of Belleville hockey fame, played a sterling game, but he is really hot tempered.

Hamilton, in goal for Montreal, was a host in himself.

Mr. Murphy, of Cornwall, the old referee, thinks it is high time there was a newspaper crusade against rough play.

Percival and Nolan had a catch-as-catch-can wrestling match with a dash of Graeco-Roman and the ring thrown in.

Six Montreal players decorated the fence and ten Cornwallites. There was absolutely no excuse for some of the ill-temper shown.

Tom Carlind was there to bid good-bye to the team he likes so well.

Haynes played well. So did McKerrow, but nobody thinks of saying it, for everybody expects it of him.

Hard Game at Sherbrooke.

Sherbrooke, June 20.—(Special.)—The first championship intermediate lacrosse match was held on Saturday afternoon between the Young Shamrocks of Montreal and Sherbrooke. The play was fast at times and good lacrosse was witnessed. The visitors were by far the better stick-handlers, and Sherbrooke was given an opportunity to get a few pointers on combination work.

The local men put up a stiff fight, and pressed the green jerseys very hard on several occasions, but they could not get through the impregnable defence of their opponents. The referee was F. Andrews, M.A.A.A., Montreal, and he put his foot down on rough play at the start.

About the middle of the first twenty minutes two of the players got into a mix-up, and they were both sent to the fence. The first game was secured by Shamrock after nine minutes play, and Sherbrooke followed suit five minutes afterwards. No games were scored during the second twenty minutes.

The third game was scored by Shamrock two minutes and a half after entering the third period of the game. The last period was a hard and fast one, and Sherbrooke towards the end kept the Shamrock defence on the move. Time was called with the score three to two in favor of Shamrock. The line-up was as follows:

Shamrock.		Sherbrooke.
Casey	Goal	Byrd
Parker	Point	Drapeau
Devine	Coverpoint	Martin
Martin	1st defence	Price
Noonan	2nd defence	Sangster
Tracey	3rd defence	Maguire
Hardigan	Centre	Parson
Doyle	3rd home	Southwood
Norton	2nd home	G. Povey
Hennessy	1st home	F. Povey
Garoughty	Outside	McInnis
Hogan	Inside	Humphrey
F. Pilon	Captain	O. Maguire

Carleton Place Won.

Renfrew, June 20.—(Special.)—A lacrosse match in the Eastern Ontario Lacrosse League was played here between Carleton Place and Renfrew and resulted, after a good match, in favor of Carleton Place, the score being 4-2. Renfrew is the last team to enter the league and, as the game is young, in its revival here, it was not expected that the local would do even as well as they did against the more experienced team from the Junction town. The match was well contested, and whilst the checking was hard there was little if any foul work, both teams playing hard though effective lacrosse.

The victors were entitled to their win, although Renfrew has shown remarkable improvement since the opening game with Almonte, when they were decisively defeated, and with coaching and experience will be a decided acquisition to the league. Mr. Harold Jamieson, of Almonte, was referee, and proved satisfactory to both teams. The following is a list of the teams and officials:

Carleton Place—G. Wilson, D. Grant, A. Robinson, C. Oliver, W. Kay, T. Lee, P. McLaren, J. Voice, G. Robinson, W. Penny, J. Penny, A. Sinclair.

Renfrew—McVicar, McEwen, Scott, Gilroy, Zevitskey, Vanduson, Ross, Fife, Fraser, Rathwell, Carruth and Gilmour.

Referee—Harold Jamieson, Almonte.

Timekeepers—H. Airth, Renfrew; W. Webster, Carleton Place.

Umpires—Renfrew, J. French; Carleton Place, J. Porritt.

Result—Carleton Place, 4; Renfrew, 2.

The Charity Cup Tie.

Westmount regained their old form on Saturday and treated their opponents and neighbors, the M.A.A.A., to a defeat by 2-0 in the qualifying round of the Charity Cup. Westmount won the toss and decided to defend the western goal. M.A.A.A. started the leather rolling at 4 o'clock and the following players lined up at the command of referee Mr. Norman:

Westmount.		M.A.A.A.
Shortrede	Goal	Hayes
Heald (capt.)	Full-back	J. Brown (capt.)
H. Woodburn	"	Rogers
J. Martin	Half-back	J. Doyle
W. Martin	"	Anstey
McDonald	"	Clinn
J. Anderson	Forwards	Stuart
Macfarlane	"	Porter
Harding	"	Usher
Nairns	"	Small
Deans	"	Other

Linesmen—Mr. James Wilson and Mr. F. Calder. Goal judges, Mr. Ernest and Mr. A. Goodman.

Westmount had decided to make the M.A.A.A. go all the way and at once took up the attack. Rogers relieved and play was transferred to mid-field. A pretty piece of combination by Macfarlane Harding, Nairn and Deans led up to the latter scoring with a beautiful shot that just sailed under the bar, and completely beat Hayes. This sudden reverse made the M.A.A.A. hustle, and Shortrede was called upon to save a shot from Small.

Woodburn and Heald were playing a splendid defensive game and the Westmount halves were supporting the forwards very nicely, MacDonald being perhaps the best of the trio. Usher and Stewart were occasionally dangerous, but the defence was too good for them. Half-time arrived with Westmount leading by two to nil, Anderson having headed a beautiful goal from Nairn's centre from the corner-flag.

The second half was all in favor of Westmount, and only the splendid exhibition of goal-keeping by (Jimmie) Hayes saved the M.A.A.A. from a larger defeat. For the winners, Nairn, Deans and Macfarlane forwards, J. Martin, J. MacDonald, halves, and the rest of the defence played well, while for the M.A.A.A. Hayes, goal, Rogers, back, Chinn, half, Usher, Porter and Stewart, forwards, were the most conspicuous. Mr. Norman gave satisfaction with the whistle.

Westmount will now have to meet Montreal Rangers in the semi-final and if they defeat them will meet the C.P.R. or Lachine in the final. Practices Tuesday and Thursday this week.

MAT AND RING.

Jeffries Fight Postponed.

San Francisco, Cal., June 20.—The Jeffries-Munroe match has been postponed to the last week in August. Manager Cofforth, of the Yosemite Club, and Harry Pollock, manager for Munroe, were Saturday at Harbin Springs, Jeffries's training place, and had an interview with the champion. Jeffries declared his ability and willingness to meet Munroe on June 30, but Coffroth, after consulting with the surgeon in attendance, decided that it would be the wiser course to allow the big pugilist more time to recover from his injury. Manager Pollock was agreeable to the long postponement, provided that he had some assurance that the match would be carried out. He stipulated that Jeffries should post $5,000 by next Monday night, guaranteeing his appearance in the ring late in August. Jeffries agreed to post the $5,000.

BOWLING.

Westmount Bowling Club.

New Beaconsfield Club.

The Beaconsfield Golf Club threw their links open on Saturday to golfers from sister clubs. The invitation was taken advantage of by a great many players.

The Try-Davies Cup.

Competition for the Try-Davies Cup of the Outremont Golf Club has now reached the semi-final stage. As the result of Saturday's play the candidates were reduced to four, and the draw is: Harries vs. Tees, and Brock vs. F. R. Redpath. These will play off during the week and the final will take place on Saturday.

Mrs. Maurice Again Champion.

New York, June 20.—The final round for the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association championship, between Mrs. E. A. Manice, Baltusrol, and Mrs. M. D. Paterson, of Engelwood, brought a large gallery of golf enthusiasts to the Apawamis Club links near Rye on Saturday, to follow the match over the course. Mrs. Manice again won the championship, defeating Mrs. Paterson by two up and one to play. Miss Travers defeated Mrs. Lefferts for the consolation prize by one up.

Victoria Junior Competition.

For those who were not playing in the match against Westmount a competition was held on Saturday over the links of the Victoria Club at St. Lambert. Mr. Tom Wall gave the prizes, which consisted of golf clubs. J. Nichol secured first, H. B. Dunsford second, and D. Beattie third.

The Toronto Golf Club defeated the Rochester Country Club in a ten men team match by 13 up.

TURF AND TRACK.

The Tidal Stakes.

New York, June 20.—Amid the rousing cheers of 35,000 persons, John A. Drake's Ort Wells easily captured the $20,000 Tidal Stakes, one mile and a quarter, at Sheepshead Bay on Saturday. Hildebrand had the mount on the Drake horse and handled him in perfect style. James R. Keen's Delhi, the favorite in the betting, finished second, with E. R. Thomas' St. Valentine third. The time, 2.06, is a new record for the stake.

The American Derby.

Chicago, June 20.—Without feeling the touch of whip or spur, and running entirely on his own courage, Highball, the 3-year-old colt, won the American Derby at Washington Park Saturday. L. B. Dickerson's Woodson, one of the long shots in the race, was second, half a length in front of John A. Drake's Rapid Water. English Lad, favorite before the race, was fourth, hopelessly beaten, although he was coming strong at the end. The time, 2.33, equals the best time ever made for the event. The Picket won last year's Derby in exactly the same time.

For the first time in the history of the event, the betting ring on Saturday was without bookmakers. There was some betting, of course, but it was without the knowledge of the police. The race had a gross value of $31,575, of which $26,575 went to the winner.

Delorimier Park Meeting.

Three events on Saturday brought to a close the meeting of the Gentlemen's Driving Club at Delorimier. Gerald might have won the 2.24 class, but broke badly in the third head, leaving Maud Wilkes the winner. Gerald ran the second heat in 2.19¼.

In the 2.17 class Mamie Abbott had the call in the betting with Josephine second choice. Josephine made it a runaway in the first heat and had no trouble staying in front. Octave B. beat Mamie Abbott home by a long distance. In the trotting event, Belle Benton easily outclassed the other horses and won in straight heats.

Amateur Records Gone.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 20.—Before a crowd of 10,000 horse lovers at Glenville track on Saturday, Lou Dillon, the trotting mare, driven by her owner, C. K. G. Billings, was sent a mile to waggon t obeat the amateur record of 2.10. The mare made the distance in 2.06. The last quarter was made in 30 seconds. Mr. Billings next rode Charlie Mac a mile to saddle in an effort to break the amateur world's record of 2.19 1-4. The record was lowered to 2.17 3-4.

The International Circuit.

Following are the dates of the International Trotting and Pacing circuit:

Westport, N.Y.—September 6, 7, 8 and 9, 1904.

Plattsburg, N.Y.—September 13, 14, 15 and 16.

Malone, N.Y.—September 20, 21, 22 and 23.

The Gentlemen's Driving Club, Montreal—September 27, 28 29 and 30.

Good prices prevailed at the Rancho Del Paso sale of yearlings at Sheepshead Bay. The full brother of Nasturtium, for whom the late W. C. Whitney paid $50,000 as a two-year-old, was sold at Newton Bennington, for $11,200. He is by Imp. Watercress-Margerique.

Bondage, owned by J. A. Arthur, and favorite in the race, won the Club Members Handicap, and a purse of $3,790 for his owner, at St. Louis.

Leo Dorsey, Miss Morgan, Court Maid, Deny, Madden and Mint Sauce were the winners at Kenilworth. Mint Sauce was the only surprise.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Automobile Meet.

Automobile races between machines owned locally and trials against time by "999," supposed to be the fastest racing car in the world, proved a sufficient attraction to draw an exceptionally large crowd to Delorimier Park yesterday afternoon, but the races were not at all successful. In the first place a number of the automobile owners who had entered machines for the races did not show up, and there was consequently a dearth of competitors and a lessening of interest. Then the big machine which was to go against time was in trouble, and the track was sandy and in a poor condition for record smashing. There was considerable delay in starting the programme, and the first race was one of three miles, in which three machines (two Stanleys and a Rambler) started. The Rambler took the lead at the start, and was never headed, the time by miles being 1.55, 3.15 and 5.39 3-5. A second attempt had a silimar result, except that the time was slower.

No. 999 made several trials at different distances, but in none of them were any records in danger.

YACHTING.

Cape May Cup Brought Home.

New York, June 20.—The Cape May challenge cup was brought home by the American line steamer St. Louis, which arrived Saturday from Southampton and Cherbourg, with 184 cabin and 721 steerage passengers, the latter of whom came at the $10 cut rate.

The Cape May cup recently was challenged for by Morton F. Plant's schooner Ingomar, the trophy being in possession of King Edward, who won it with his cutter Britannia in 1893, when she defeated the Navahoe. As the Britannia, owing to her age, was not considered competent to defend the cup against a modern vessel, the trophy was turned over by the King to the officials of the Royal Yacht squadron, to be returned to the New York Yacht Club.

The Lysistrata Cup.

New York, June 20.—H. H. Roger's twin screw steam yacht, the Kanawha, on Saturday won the Lysistrata Cup and $2,500 offered by Former Commodore James Gordon Bennett, of the New York Yacht Club, by beating F. M. Smith's Hauoli, her only competitor, by three minutes and forty seconds, in a sixty-mile race off Sandy Hook lightship.

Longueuil vs. Westmount.

This most interesting game, played on Westmount Park on Saturday afternoon, witnessed by a large crowd of spectators, resulted in a win for Longueuil by 23 runs. Holt (31) and Walker (16) played well for Longueuil. Wood bowled eight wickets for 20 runs.

The feature of the game was the effort made by Nash and Messenger to pull the game through for Westmount, the deadly bowling of Wood, however, proved too much for them.

It is to be hoped that in future Westmount will pay more attention to the selection of their umpire. Following are the scores:

Lord Dundonald committed a flagrant breach of discipline.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

That Play Didn't Work Because We Couldn't Get a Man on Third

The Baltimore Papers all Say the Birds Are Looking Like Real Goods.

THE festive game of baseball reminds us of that celebrated poetical classic which ends:

"Off again,
On again,
Gone again,
Finnegan."

One day we are going around with our manly chests thrown out asserting most positively that of all the ball teams ever organized with the express purpose of getting its hooks on the pennant, the Birds are the greatest that ever wandered down the Pike.

That's when we win.

Bliss put it all over the Toronto sluggers the other day and we came away from that game entertaining the Simon Pure belief taht Bliss had more curyes than McGinnity and Mathewson even thought of.

Bliss lost Saturday and then we wondered why Atherton didn't put McCarthy in oftener.

A team looks great when it wins. When it loses we begin to figure out that we need about seven new pitchers, two new catchers, a new infield and also sweeping changes in the outfield.

What says the late celebrated William Shakespeare on this very point:

"A laurel wreath upon his noble brow,
He won, he won, he is the victor now;
And yet if direful fate comes down and chooses
He'll be a lobsterino when he loses."

No new second baseman has turned up yet, and Lord Dundonald is beginning to think that the appointment is being held up by the Government.

Down with political interference in baseball, ping-pong and checkers!

Baltimore, Md., June 18.—(Special.)—Montreal finished the series in the Ariole town to-day by losing to Baltimore by 6 to 2. It was clean, snappy baseball, however, and the Canadians got in a big share of the good playing. In fact the improvement noticed in the series is a matter of compliment to Atherton's reorganized team.

Bliss added to his reputation by holding his opponents down to eight hits, and the reason they lost was found in the errorless play and good timely work of the home team. Bliss was met as an easy thing by the Oysters, with whom he played before joining the Montreal boys, but he seemed to have his dander up and got in some fine work with the sphere.

Clancy led his team by making four of the ten hits.

Montreal runs came in the sixth. Adams and Clancy singled, Yeager found a nice one and tripled to the centre field fence and of course scored the first two. After that they could not find Adkins, who pitched a shut-out against Providence this week and kept their score at this point.

Three errors charged to Yeager, Hartman and Gibson, came in times when the home players could most profit, and their score went up accordingly.

The Baltimore papers are warm in their praise for Manager Atherton.

Thursday's defeat is ascribed to his absense in search of players and comment is made on the different playing of Friday, when he was in harness again. The play used three times in Friday's game, that of sacrificing when a man on their team starts to steal home, is pointed out as a worthy example for the Baltimores to follow. Newark is the next town for the Montreal nine:

When Bliss pitched for Baltimore, he was beaten by Montreal when he pitched for Montreal he was beaten by Baltimore. That makes it even.

Actually Won.

One of the most mysterious events in the history of baseball happened on Saturday, and it caused a tremendous sensation. Toronto won a game.

Joyce Stealing Bases.

Joyce stole two bases Saturday. He has made a good impression in this important department of the game.

Clancy, Four Hits.

The Herald's correspondent says that Bill Clancy made four hits on Saturday but the score sent out only credits him with three.

Odwell Doing Well.

Odwell is a star on the bases. In the twenty-six contests he has played, he has stolen seven bases, the best showing of any in the Red bunch.—Sporting Times.

Better Than Nothing.

"Any game around here?" asked the city sportsman.

"Goin' ter be a game uv baseball back uv th' village graveyard this afternoon," replied the native.

"Good!" exclaimed the c. s. "I'll stay and take a shot at the umpire.

The Toronto Team.

(Toronto Star.)

We gaily shout Hurrah! out loud,
And likewise shout Hurray!
They didn't beat our baseball crowd.
Because they didn't play.

'Nother Toronto Knock.

This is one of those nice, sweet little chocolate creams the Toronto Telegram hands out to the Eastern League team in that city:

"It looks at this juncture as if the directorate would have to chloroform the crowd in order to get them to the ball grounds when the team returns to town."

New York may let Ames go because his arm is still in a bad way. Pittsburg offered $10,000 for Ames last fall.

SEAWANHAKA CUP DEFENDERS RACE

Thorella II. Shows Superiority Over Her Rivals and Won the Chief Race.

Another trial race for Seawanhaka Cup defenders was held at Lakeside on Lake St. Louis on Saturday and on this occasion the newest addition to the club fleet, Mr. Huntley Drummond's Nourna, built for a cup defender, was defeated by W. C. Finley's Thorella II. of last year.

The race was a pretty one and while measured on its merits it was a most decisive contest, yet the owners and sailers of the new boat have no reason to feel downcast because their craft had to take the Thorella's backwash at the finish line. In the first place it must be remembered that last year the Thorella was by long odds the fastest craft of her class and she has not deteriorated since. Her crew has had opportunity to become thoroughly acquainted with her, and her canvas and gear have been thoroughly stretched and are in splendid running order.

Nourna is a new boat, built for speed and beyond doubt she possesses it, but she has not yet been tuned up. Her canvas does not draw so well as it will later on, and on Saturday she seemed unable to show all thre speed that her designer, Fred Sherwood claims for her.

Saturday's course was a triangular one off the Lakeside club house and the sailing directions were to take all buoys to port. The points of sailing were a reach a run and a beat. There was a spanking whole sail breeze and this kept the yachts down to their work in good style. In the Sewanhaka Cup class there were three contestants, the Nourna, Thorella and Senneville. The starting gun was fired at 4.05 and the Nourna got over the line first followed twelve seconds later by the Thorella, while Senneville was last to cross. On the reach to the first buoy the Thorella made up what she had lost on the start and rounded the buoy at the same second as the Nourna.

On the second round she increased her lead and at the finish line was thirteen seconds to the good. What makes her victory more notable is the fact that on the way up the lake she sprang a leak in one of the bilge board boxes and she finished the race with several inches of water aboard. The official record shows as follows:

	Start.	First. Buoy.	Finish.
Thorella	4.05.20	4.27.10	4.49.00
Nourna	4.05.08	4.27.10	4.49.13
Senneville	4.05.55	4.28.20	4.50.32

Before the big yachts were sent away there were two other races one for twenty-two footers and the other for two raters. They resulted as follows:

	Start.	First. Buoy.	Finish.
Ivan	4.02.17	4.29.10	4.55.45
Koorali	4.02.45	4.30.00	4.56.40

No time was taken in the race for two raters but the finish was as follows:

1. Eadie's unnamed.
2. H. Crombie's Annie Old Thing.
3. Saxe's Yo San.
4. F. Crombie's Zenita.
5. A. Macdonald's Zola.
6. Papineau's Jay.

At the finish of the races a private members dinner was held at the club house. Mr. A. H. Hersey was officer of the day.

Run Down and Out of Sorts

Suffered from Pains and Aches and Was Discouraged and Despondent—Made Strong and Well by

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

When the nervous system becomes exhausted there is suffering of both mind and body.

Even the pains and aches are not so hard to endure as the spells of blues and the gloomy forebodings.

New hope and confidence come with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. By supplying an abundance of rich, red blood it creates new nerve force and instills new vigor into the body and mind, permanently overcoming weakness and disease.

Miss Minnie J. Sweet, Collingwood Corner, Cumberland County, N.S., writes: "I used five boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food last winter, and it did me more good than any medicine I ever took. It is difficult to describe my case, but I felt all run down and out of sorts. I had headache and backache and dull pains through the lungs. I was so discouraged that I didn't seem to care what became of me.

"I hadn't finished the first box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food before I felt a lot better, and it continued to build me up until I became strong and well and was restored to good health and spirits. As I was once cured of a severe case of kidney disease by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills I can strongly recommend these two great preparations."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations, the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous recipe book author, are on every box.

MANY ATTENDED THE LAST SERVICE

Dr. Cotton's Funeral the Largest Ever Held in the Townships.

Cowansville, Que., June 20.—(Special)—The funeral of the late Dr. C. L. Cotton ex M.L.A., who died in the Montreal General Hspital on Wednesday last from blood poisoning, took place on Saturday afternoon from his late residence, here, to the Cowansville cemetery, where the remains were laid to rest in the family lot.

The service at the house was conducted by the Rev. James A. Elliott, of St. George's Church, Montreal, assisted by the Rev. W. R. Plewis and the Rev. W. H. Watson, of Cowansville.

MR. LYALL BACK FROM WINNIPEG.

Looks to Great Future for Western Metropolis—Bad Water Service.

Mr. Peter Lyall has returned from Winnipeg, where he installed a plant for the construction of the new Canadian Pacific Railway station, which he is building. Mr. Lyall found Winnipeg growing rapidly, many changes having taken place since his last visit a year or so ago. He says the people are enthusiastic as to the potentialities of Winnipeg and the West. The one thing lacking, he thought, was an adequate water service for fire purposes. The city depended for all purposes on an artesian well. This gave its citizens splendid drinking water, but he doubted its efficiency in the case of a big fire. This was not an improbable contingency, in view of so many old wooden buildings sandwiched in between more modern structures.

STOWAWAYS ON TURBINIA.

Kingston, Ont., June 20.—(Special.)—Tied up in sacks, three stowaways made themselves known to the crew of the steamer Turbinia when two days out to sea. The steamer had to take on many tons of coal in sacks to make the voyage, her bunkers being too small to hold the cargo and these sacks were piled in the dining room and forward deck. The stowaways got on board, emptied sacks and crawled inside lying for forty-eight hours on top of the heaps of coal. They were quite exhausted when taken out. Of course Captain Erskine made them work their passage across and when land was reached put them ashore. Another stowaway was found after the vessel left Sydney, C.B. He came to Kingston with the steamer.

NAPANEE LAD DROWNED.

Napanee, Ont., June 20.—(Special.)—A sad drowning accident occurred on Saturday afternoon. When Percy Smith, only son of Willett Smith of Fredericksburg Station, lost his life. The little fellow who was but nine years of age, with a companion about his own age, went to Spring Creek, about a mile from his home and were paddling about in the water, when Percy got into a hole and was drowned. The little fellow conveyed the sad news to the grief stricken parents. The funeral takes place this afternoon.

"Lady Walden," he replied, "if there be anything on my part to forgive, I freely forgive. I cannot blame you for seeking to shield your father's name."

The look of gratitude that came over her face thrilled Idris, who would gladly have forgiven her ten times as much for such a glance as she now gave him.

Lorelie had expected to be treated with coldness, if not with anger by Idris, instead of which she received from him the same tender respect as heretofore. She trembled with secret pleasure to think that she still held a place in his regard.

"And now you know the truth, you will publish it to the world," she said.

"I think not," he replied, speaking slowly and thoughtfully. "No, I am sure I shall not."

"You will not redeem your father's memory from guilt?" said Lorelie, with a little gasp of surprise. "Why not?"

"Because the fair name of Lady Walden must not be darkened by the shadow of the past."

Her eyes drooped. She had no need to ask why he was desirous of shielding her name from reproach, knowing full well that it was from love of her.

"But this —this is not just," she said in a low voice.

"To proclaim the truth would injure the living," he replied, "without in any way benefiting the dead."

"It is not right," she declared, "that your father and you should bear the stigma that belongs to me and mine. I will proclaim the truth myself."

"Lady Walden, if it be your desire to please me, you will maintain silence. But pardon my discourtesy. you are standing all this time."

He led her to a garden-seat, and took his place beside her.

"You once asked me," said Lorelie, "to let you read my father's correspondence. I have brought his letters with me. They are here."

She held out a packet of letters to Idris.

"Will you not read them to me, Lady Walden? You can then omit what you think necessary."

"I have no wish to conceal anything contained in them," she answered,placing the letters in his hand. "But before you read let me forestall and correct an erroneous impression you may be likely to draw from them. Guided partly by these letters, partly by other considerations, I have, till a few days ago, entertained the belief that the Earl of Ormsby was none other than—your father, Eric Marville."

Despite his desire to be serious, Idris could not refrain from smiling at this statement.

"And what has led you to discard this extraordinary theory?" he asked.

"I was glancing yesterday over a copy of an old French newspaper—L'Etoile de la Bretagne—in which is given a full description of your father as he appeared at his trial in thePalais de Justice. Now in this account Eric Marville is described as having very dark eyes, whereas Lord Ormsby's eyes are light gray in color."

"Which deprives me of the honor of claiming an earl as my father," said Idris, with an air of mock disappointment.

"I do not think you will esteem it much of an honor when you hear what I have to say. But, first, will you not read these letters?"

Idris, though much surprised by her words, made no further comment, but turned to the correspondence of Captain Rochefort.

Lorelie had arranged the letters in chronological order, and Idris began his perusal, becoming more interested with each successive missive. When he had finished reading he looked extremely grave, and said:

"The final letters, interpreted by what we know to have taken place within Ormfell, would almost seem to suggest—how shall I say it?—that your father was killed by mine!"

"That at first was my belief, but I know now it cannot have been."

"Beatrice in her hypnotic trance recognized the face of the assassin. But she has never seen either your father or mine. Therefore we cannot impute the murder to either of these."

"True!" replied Idris, with a sudden feeeling of relief. "But tell me, Lady Walden, what face did she see, for I am convinced that you know."

"If," she replied evasively, "if we can discover the present possessor of the Viking's treasure, we shall ... a strong clue to the assassin?"

"Undoubtedly."

"Well, then, the Viking's treasure is at Ravenhall, concealed in the secret vault."

And she proceeded to intensify Idris' surprise by relating the incident of her visit to the crypt, saying nothing,however ,as to the earl's purpose in taking her thither.

"Who placed the treasure there?" asked Idris.

"Four persons only have access to this vault—the Earl, Viscount Walden, the family solicitor, and the Rector of Ormsby. The two latter we can at once dismiss from our list of 'suspects.'"

Idris turned a startled face upon Lorelie.

"Surely you would not have me charge your husband—your father-in-law with murder?"

"I strongly suspect the latter from the perturbed air manifested by him when I once hinted at my knowledge of the crime."

"The grave and dignified earl the author of such a deed! Impossible!"

"Not more impossible than that my own father should be a murderer!"

Idris started at the bitter tone. Truly the Fates had dealt hardly with her in the matter of kinsfolk. Those ladies of Ormsby who were disposed to envy Mademoiselle Riviere her new rank would have had little cause for envy could they have seen into her mind at that moment.

"I have found," continued Lorelie, "the very instrument with which the deed was wrought. It is here."

As she spoke she produced a jewelled hat-pin shaped like a stiletto, the steel blade being broken off short at the hilt.

"This belonged to the late Countess of Ormsby, in whose jewel-case it has lain for over twenty years; at least, so the old housekeeper declares. The blade was broken a short time before the death of the Countess, and has never been repaired. Let Dr. Rothwell subject this steel to chemical analysis and I doubt not that he will find it to contain the two per cent. of platinum."

"Does the housekeeper give any account of how the steel came to be broken?"

"She tells a very significant story. The countess lost this stiletto when walking in the park one day. On discovering her loss she immediately set the servants to look for it, but their search was unavailing. Next morning, however, the earl returned the hatpin to the countess, saying that he had found it in its broken condition while taking a walk by moonlight.

"Now my belief is that the earl, having discovered that Ormfell was the site of a buried treasure, was proceeding thither at night, either alone or attended by a servant, for the purpose of opening the hillock, and while on his way through the park he chanced to light upon his wife's hat-pin. Naturally he did not leave it lying upon the ground, but picked it up and placed it upon his person. And this is the weapon with which he attacked the other man, whoever he may have been, that was with him in the hillock. When the countess next morning received back her hat-pin from her husband, she little knew of the terrible use to which it had been put."

"Your theory, if correct, proves that the deed was unpremeditated, otherwise the earl would certainly have gone provided with a more efficient weapon. Do you know the date of the countess's death?"

"She died in the autumn of '77."

"Then the crime must have taken place more than twenty-one years ago."

Idris fell to thinking: and the result of his thought was that it would be an ungrateful task to bring to justice an aged peer for a crime committed more than twenty-years ago. For all he knew to the contrary the deed might have been a case of justifiable homicide: the earl had perhaps been compelled to slay the other in self-defence. Besides, was he not Lorelie's father-in-law? If ignominy fell upon the House of Ravengar it must likewise fall upon her. No breath of scandal must touch her name. Idris felt that his hands were tied: he could make no move in the matter.

"We know the author of the deed, it seems," he murmured, "but the identity of the victim still remains a mystery. Who was he?"

"That is a problem I am trying to solve."

"And you say the Viking's treasure is in the crypt of Ravenhall? What is Lord Ormsby's object in keeping it concealed?"

"I can but guess. Treasure-trove, as you know, is the property of the Crown; therefore the earl on finding it was compelled to act circumspectly. The sudden acquisition of a vast quantity of plate and jewels might have given rise to awkward questions on the part of the steward, and especially on the part of Lanfranc, the Ravenhall solicitor, a man somewhat given to suspicion. The earl was therefore obliged to secrete his ill-acquired wealth: and this he did by placing it within one of the coffins in the crypt, gratifying his avarice by occasional visits of inspection. That is my theory, but of course I may be wrong."

"Mortifying that he should have to secrete it," remarked Idris, "when if the story of the runic ring be true, the wealth is his hereditary right, as the eldest lineal descendant of Orm the Viking."

"Mr. Breakspear, your right to that treasure is greater than the earl's."

Idris was disposed to think so, too, in virtue of the long years he had spent in his attempts to decipher the runic ring. But this was not what Lorelie meant.

"Did you not notice what my father says in one of these letters, that Eric Marville claimed to be heir to a peerage?"

"It did not escape me. A surprising statement if true."

"And the interest taken by your father in the runic ring, the heirloom of the Ravengars, proves his peerage to have been the Earldom of Ormsby."

"I fear you are dealing in fanciful hypothesis," smiled Idris.

"Your likeness to the family portraits of the Ravengars is very remarkable."

"Mere coincidence."

"Not so. It is as certain that you are the rightful Earl of Ormsby as it is that the sun is shining."

"But how? In what way?" cried Idris, impressed, in spite of himself, by her air of conviction.

"That I cannot tell. I am trying to find out."

"I thank you, Lady Walden, for interesting yourself in my fortunes, but supposing that your surmise should prove correct—what then?"

"You will take the title and station that are rightfully yours."

The Perfect Table Salt.

A PARISIAN NOVELTY.

The latest freak of fashion is to have the new bebe or lingerie hat, the most fascinating and charming tour de cou, and the parasol all to match. In this imported set, the hat is of the thinnest and filmiest of white point d'esprit net over pink chiffon, and narrow ruches of ruffled ribbon are used with a lavish hand to edge the irregularly wavy ruffles. The hat is of the bebe order, crown and brim being covered with these ruched ruffles. A splashing bow of pale pink Liberty ribbon crosses the front, and the long strings which stream behind are of the ribbon covered with silk net. The tour de cou, or shoulder piece, has an upstanding ruche in place of a collar, a little shoulder cape covered with ruffles, and long stole ends similarly adorned. The parasol is of the pagoda style, the top draped with the net and chiffon, and the ruche-edged ruffles the same. The long shaft handle is of pink enamel and mother of pearl.

Tears.

There be three hundred different ways and more
Of speaking, but of weeping only one;
And that one way, the wide world o'er and o'er,
Is known by all, tho' it is taught by none.

No man is master of this ancient lore,
And no man pupil. Every simpleton
Can weep as well as every sage. The man
Does it no better than the infant can.

The first thing all men learn is how to speak,
Yet understand they not each other's speech;
But tears are neither Latin, nor yet Greek,
Nor prose, nor verse. The language that they teach
Is universal. Cleopatra's cheek
They decked with pearls no richer than from each
Of earth's innumerable mourners fall
Unstudied, yet correctly classical.

Tears are the oldest and the commonest
Of all things upon earth; and yet how new
The tale each time told by them! How unblessed.
Were life's hard way without their heavenly dew!
Joy borrows them from Grief; Faith trembles lest
She lose them; even Hope herself smiles thro'
The rainbow they make round her as they fall;
And Death that cannot weep, sets weeping all.

The Summer Room.

When the thermometer goes giddily soaring away up into the nineties, when sea breezes are at a discount and land breezes are of a temperature which only increases our discomfort, we can sometimes cheat ourselves into forgetting that we are in the midst of a "hot wave," by a semblance of coolness in our summer living rooms. Not every one is able to seek surcease from heat at the seashore or in the mountains. Some must remain in their homes throughout the entire summer, or at best have a short two weeks in which to recuperate. These must seek to ameliorate their condition by surrounding themselves at home with everything which will give a suggestion of sylvan glades and bosky dells.

This need not be accompanied by any great expense. The first step must be to remove all carpets and rugs. If the floor is stained, polished or waxed, lay on a few simple matting rugs in cool greens and creamy tints. Matting rugs proper, with borders, are, however, not inexpensive, but you can buy sample lengths and remnants of such mattings as are sold by the yard for a merely nominal sum. If a large rug is required, sew two lengths together, or three if need be, and after ravelling the ends for about three inches, tie the warp as for a rag carpet, which gives a thin fringe, and makes a sort of finish. The saving of the summer wear of the rugs or carpet will more than pay for the cost of the matting, and you have not only secured comfort and coolness, but have removed the necessity for overexertion in the way of sweeping, no small factor in keeping cool during July and August days. Roll up the rugs with moth powder, first having them thoroughly cleaned, surround them with old newspapers well pasted together, and pack away in the store closet.

One dollar spent in the purchase of half a dozen of the largest-sized flower pots, a ten-cent roll of green crepe paper, and a trip to the nearest woods for ferns will bring coolness and a sense of rest to your home most charmingly. Ferns at this time of the year are well grown, with large, luxuriant fronds, and the hardier varieties, if taken up with plenty of their native soil about their roots, will never feel their transplanting, especially if the pots be kept well soaked, and in a dark place for a week or two. Scatter these about in your coolest corners (they will need little or no sun), and place a box filled with them in the empty fireplace. Tie dark-green crepe paper about the pots, for although the terra cotta color of the latter is really decorative, the more green you can surround yourself with, the more restful will be your room. Of course, one cannot expect to change the walls of the room, but if they happen to be in green, or even in hard, staring white kalsomine, count yourself fortunate.

Remove all draperies from doors and windows. For the former, green burlap at fifteen cents a yard will soften hard outlines and can be used year after year, as in the case of the rugs, saving their cost in the fact that the winter draperies are not exposed to the sun and dust of summer. Drape the windows at either side with a single breadth of green cheesecloth; it will fade in the course of a season or two, but you can re-dye it yourself, and when it has passed the decorative stage, can be boiled with washing soda and put to such utilitarian uses as dusters, dishcloths and floor cloths. Throw open the windows during the early morning hours, but keep them hermetically closed, with the shades lowered, while the sun is beating on them, opening them again in the evening. This may seem to be on the principle of the Irishman who wore his overcoat in summer, because "what would kape out cold would kape out heat," but try it and see for yourself.

If you have any pieces of heavy upholstered furniture, store them, or make slip covers of green and white chintz. It would be less expensive and more satisfactory, however, to set away the articles and replace them with pieces of rattan, bamboo and prairie grass. If there is a couch in the room of the divan sort, remove the heavy rug and purchase two of the cotton hammocks in green and white stripes, which sell for eighty cents each ,sew these together, and use them for a cover, piling it with pillows covered with various cool green, or green and white fabrics. These hammocks need not be incapacitated for serving in their original capacity; double under the cords at the head and foot, concealing the metal hook beneath the fabric, and a sort of fringe will be formed that is not unsightly.

If the room is large enough, suspend a roomy hammock, keeping to tones of green and white in this as in its pillows. Let cut flowers be in evidence as far as your purse and your city garden will allow, and see if you do not sometimes forget how hardly fate has used you in the matter of a summer outing.

Fear.

Years ago it was considered womanly for a woman to show fear and timidity, and the intrepid were considered "bold." In a boy the contrary disposition is always cultivated, and even if the little fellow is naturally timid this is soon laughed out of him by his companions. The times, however, are changed, and fear is now no more looked on as a necessary attribute of a well-bred woman, than is the "backboard" as the means of giving her an upright carriage.

Fear of any kind, if yielded to, will grow upon one, till it becomes a habit or a more or less pronounced form of monomania. Just as soon as one realizes that fear of anything holds the mind, it should be reasoned with, either in ourselves or others; and in the case of children the most gentle, loving, sympathetic reasoning, and proof of its absolute causelessness should be demonstrated.

The action of fear on the human body is curious. It will paralyse the muscles, depriving its victim of the power of movement or speech, as has been terribly illustrated in the needless sacrifice of life in the Chicago theatre fire.

In a few hours fear has been known to turn black hair white; and, indeed, in not a few instances it has stopped the action of the heart, resulting in death.

For the Cook.

Kidney Bean Soup.

One pint of kidney beans and two and half quarts of lukewarm water, when it boils, add a pint of cold water, season with salt and pepper, boil gently three and a half hours, add one potato, sliced, and boil half an hour longer. Rub through a collander and put back in the pot; thin with milk if too thick.

Carrot Soup.

Slice two onions, two carrots, and four potatoes. Fry them with two sliced onions in dripping for quarter of an hour, but do not brown them. Add a handful of spinach, two sticks of celery, and a few mushrooms, and cover with stock. When the vegetables are sufficiently cooked, rub all through a sieve, add more stock if necessary to thin the soup, season with salt, pepper, and cayenne, re-heat, and serve with fried croutons.

Lunch Patties.

One pound sausage meat, half the quantity of mashed potatoes, one small onion, one egg (not any top crust to the patties); fry the sausage, beat the egg, chop the onion, mash the potatoes with a little milk if they are not left over from a previous meal; mix thoroughly; cover the top with beaten egg and crumbs; bake; serve hot.

Rhubarb Charlotte.

Peel rhubarb, cut in inch pieces, place in a dish with twice as much sugar as rhubarb, one tablespoonful of minced ginger root and lemon peel; bake until tender. Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatine in a little hot water for a quart of rhubarb, and juice of a lemon, strain into the rhubarb, and pour into a mold; when chilled and firm slip on to a dish; garnish with whipped cream rings, in which place a bit of reserved rhubarb.

Ice Cream Taffy.

Boil together, without stirring, from twenty minutes to half an hour, two pounds of granulated sugar, one-third of a pint of water, one-sixth of a pint of vinegar, a piece of butter the size of an egg, and one tablespoonful of glycerine; when on dropping a little of this into cold water it hardens at once, add to it a small teaspoonful of cream of tartar, pour it all on to well-buttered plates to cool, and pour two teaspoonfuls of essence of vanilla over the top. Let it cool, then pull it till it becomes beautifully white, and cut it with the scissors into sticks. If kept a week it turns quite creamy.

Boiled Lemon Pudding.

Shred one-quarter of a pound of beef suet, six ounces of finely-sifted bread crumbs, three ounces of moist sugar, the finely-minced rind and the strained juice of one lemon, one-half pint of milk, two eggs (well beaten), mix. Butter a mold, and ornament the inside with raisins, candied fruits or sliced lemond rind; pour in the pudding, cover with a floured cloth, plunge in boiling water and boil rapidly for three hours. Then turn on to a dish, with a sauce made according to the directions following: Put the thin rind and juice of a lemon in one half pint of water, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, simmer gently twenty minutes; add two drops of cochineal and a tablespoonful of gin; serve hot.

CANADIAN PACIFIC AGAIN HIGHER; STOCKS GENERALLY HAVE GOOD TONE

A report of the opening proceedings of the new Stock Exchange this morning will be found on another page of to-day's issue.

There was a moderate volume of business done, and on the whole the new building had a fairly auspicious start.

The strength in Pacific continues to attract some attention, and it is evident that the fine earnings being shown by the property are creating a very favorable impression, and another factor, of course, is the continued favorable stream of reports from the crop in the West. The Chicago & Great Western rumor is still mentioned in Wall street, but no stock is taken in it, nor for that matter in the Ontario & Western rumor, which is also doing duty in connection with C.P.R.

The Montreal Street Railway earnings, out to-day, showed an increase in net earnings for the month of May of $32,666, or 53.69 per cent., this big gain being due in a great measure to the fact that the strike was on for a few days in May, 1903.

At all events, the statement for the eight months now looks decidedly better. The net earnings for that period have increased $20,466 or 4.17 per cent., while the surplus f[illegible] eight months shows an increase o[illegible] 860, or 3.39 per cent.

Pacific sold as high as 121 in Wall street, but 120 7-8 was the best figure here, and there were sellers at that level at the close.

Nova Scotia was fairly strong, ranging from 74 7-8 to 75 1-4.

The fact that the Toronto Railway labor dispute is to be submitted to arbitration created no firmer feeling in the stock at all, sales taking place at 98 3-4.

Dominion Coal was firm around 53, the high point on the recovery.

Theh sales to noon in Wall Street today were 133,900 shares.

Montreal Exchange.

Montreal Exchange quotations to-day are reported as follows by Marlr & Hadgson; New York funds, 1-32 to 1-64 dis. 1-10 to 1-8 prem.; sterling sixty days, 9 5-32 to 9 3-16 9 3-9 to 9 1-2; sterling demand, 9 19-32 to 9 5-8, 9 3-4 to 9 7-8; sterling cables, 9 21-32 to 9 11-16, 9 7-8 to 10; Paris, francs short, 5.16 7-8 less 1-16.

Forget's Cable.

L. J. Forget & Co.'s London cable quoted Grand Trunk first at 102 1-2, second at 86 1-4; third at 39 1-8, Canadian Pacific at 123 1-4, Anaconda 3 3-4, Hudson Bay at 40.

Twin City.

General Bancroft, president, and Mr. C. S. Sergeant, vice-president, of the Boston Elevated Railway Co., have recently been west to inspect the street railway properties in Chicago, Minneapolis and St. Paul. General Bancroft is quoted in the Boston News Bureau srvic as follows:

"We found many interesting street railway conditions, especially in Minneapolis and St. Paul, and we hope to be able to place some of the ideas obtained in operation, if we find them practicable here.

"The Twin City Street Railway property is probably one of the most up-to-date street railways in the world. The roadbed, rolling stock, power houses and electrical equipment, practically all there is to a street railway, are unsurpassed. If the Twin City people are ever in need of praise for their property they will find that I am prepared to give it."

Market Strong.

Mr. C. D. Monk's messages said:—Market opened strong with Amal. and the principal Grangers showing best. The fine weather Saturday and Sunday was considered good enough incentive for a rally in B.R.T.. Met., however, shows the effects of the re cent talk on third avenue dividend and acts weak. At noon market holds fairly well and a trifle below best prices.

Noon Letter.

Noon Letter.—The market opened generally strong this morning and during the foirst hour of trading advances were general throughout the list, So. Pac. being quite prominent on buying, which looked like short covering. The tone was cheerful, being influenced principally by the good railroad earning reports for the first two weeks in June and by the continued good growing weather in the West. The market grew rather inactive on the advance, and now shows a tendency to sell off somewhat, although the tone is nowhere weak. Metropolitan and Metropolitan Securities were the only weak features, both selling off sharply on continued reports of new financing by the company. In spite of the weakness of Metropolitan, both B.R.T. and Manhattan showed considerable strength. London was a smal lseller in this market, but its sales were well taken.—E. & C. Ranodlph.

London Closing.

London Close:—Atch., 74 and 72¼; C. P.R., 123⅜ and 120¼; St. Paul, 146¾ and 143; Erie, 24⅜ and 23¾; E. F., 60 and 58½; Ills. Cen., 133½ and 130¼; L. N., 112¾ and 109⅞; N. Y. Cen., 119 and 116; Penna., 59¾ and 115½; R. G., 24⅛ and 47; S. P., 46⅝ and 45⅝; U. P., 89⅞ and 87⅝; U. S. S., 9⅝ and 9⅜; U. S. Q., 55⅞ and 54½. Consols—Money, 90 5-16; account, 90⅜, decline, ⅛. American stocks in London closed strong. Discount rate in open market closed 2 to 2⅛ for short bills and 2 to 1-16 for three months bills. Money on call, 1½ to 1⅜.

Southern Pacific.

Messrs. Zimmermann and Forshay wire Robert Meredith & Co. The proposed issue of Southern Pacific pfd. continues to be the topic for Wall St. interests. Mr. Kellog the writer of the financial article of the New York Sun believes it to be a bull argument. On the other hand some of the less prominent financial writers think to the contrary. On account of the diversity of opinion Southern Pacific will continue to be the feature of the market. Immediately after the announcement last week of the proposed issue, a large short interest was created and this may at times be frightened and forced to cover. London prices this morning are firm, but little activity displayed in the American market. Weather conditions are exceptionally favorable and railroad earnings are interesting.

Boston Market.

Boston, June 20.—The market opened rather quiet this morning. After the opening hour, however, the local coppers were taken in hand and made active and strong. Copper Range, Utah, Mohawk, Osceola, were leaders Utah advanced to 37 1-2, after closing 36 1-8 on Saturday. Mohawk gained to 41 1-2. Range to 43 1-4. Dominion Coal sold at 53. No sales of Iron. At noon the local coppers are fairly active and generally strong.—Chas. Head and Company.

The Bank Statement.

The New York bank statement had absolutely no effect on the market. The increase in cash was about what was expected, but the increase of $7,596,000 in loans was rather more than had been expected, but it excited no comment. After the statement appeared the tape continued to move sluggishly, and the closing was with slight net change for the day in the general list.

Locomotives.

Exports of locomotives from the United States in the ten months ended April 30, chiefly to Canada and Mexico, increased from $2,998,491 to $3,947,225.

Has the War Been "Discounted"?

The question whether future developments in the Eastern war have or have not been "discounted" is thus discussed by one of the most intelligent Paris journals:

The only conclusion which one can draw from the markets action is that the money rate must fall, and the price of investment securities rise. The Bourse has failed as yet to observe what was happening, because its attention was diverted to the Eastern war. But this week's market developments have been significant. After several days of weakness, caused by fear of a Japanese success, prices recover at the very moment when news of such success arrives. Is not this the best imaginable proof that speculation has already discounted whatever can henceforward happen in the East?

Financial Chips.

London more bullish on American stocks.

Fifteen roads for second week in June show average gross increase of 8.29 per cent.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit has 67 miles of private way exempt from franchise tax.

THREE SETS OF TEETH.

The statement that an old woman has "cast" a fresh set of teeth at the age of ninety has reminded G. W. M." of a much more extraordinary case than that, while possesses local interest, says the Liverpool Post. In the edition of Thomas Pennant's "Tour in Scotland," printed at Warrington, by W. Eyers, in 1774, among other fine engravings is a portrait of "The Old Countess of Desmond," in Dupplin Castle, N. B., and particulars of her life are given in the text. This portrait represents her at the age of 120, a firm-mouthed, strongly marked featured woman, who lived to the great age of 140. She was the daughter of a Fitzgerald, of Drumana, in Ireland, and married, in the reign of Edward IV., James, fourteenth Earl of Desmond; she was in England in the same reign, and danced at court with the King's brother, the Duke of Gloucester, and died in the reign of James I. The year before her death (when 139) she took a journey to London to solicit relief from the King, the Desmond "house" having been reduced to a state of poverty. Francis Bacon, in his "History of Life and Death," states that this lady "did dentise twice or thrice, casting her old teeth and others coming in their place."

INTOXICATED WASPS.

Wasps have a great fondness for over-ripe fruit, especially pears, plums, and sweet apples. The sugar of these fruits has a tendency to pass into a kind of alcohol in the ordinary process of rotting, and after imbibing large quantities of this liquid the wasps become outrageously intoxicated. They crawl away in the grass in a semi-somnolent condition and remain till the effects have passed off, when they will go at it again. It is while in this condition that they do their worst stinging. A person receiving a sting from one of these intoxicated wasps will suffer severely from nerve poisoning for days.

"Street" Gossip.

Chances for Business This Summer in the New Stock Exchange

With the Montreal brokers in their new building, many are pessimistic enough to predict that they won't have much in the way of business to cheer them up.

Not that the new building is likely to have anything to do with it, although some are using the moving event as a date in local history.

It is, after all, merely a question of "Will the summer be a dull one?"

The theory that all summers are dull is wrong.

Wall Street affords, perhaps, the best basis for this discussion.

The midsummer of 1903 was a period of profound distress and anxiety on Wall Street; in 1901, of depression and misgiving. But the great preliminary rise in railway shares occurred in July, 1899; the midsummer markets of 1898 were in the full flood of recovery, and August of 1897 was a month of violent advances in the stock market as a whole. With this double list may be included 1896, when the August markets approached the verge of panic; 1894, when the worst of a discouraging year was experienced; 1891, when a burst of rising prices came in August, and 1890, when midsummer was a period of great activity, bridging the period between the "inflation boom" which preceded and accompanied the passage of the Silver Purchase act of July 14, and the London "Baring panic" of the autumn.

About all that is proved by this striking and varied list is that the midsummer months are by no means bound to be months of financial dulness and stagnation. They were so, it is true, in 1900, in 1895, and in 1892, but in each of those three years there was special reason for it. That reason was that the markets felt instinctively that they stood at a turning point in finance, and yet were afraid to venture ahead until more light had been thrown upon the prospect.

Montreal Gets Bullish After J. J. Hill's Visit

The interesting fact has been disclosed that Mr. J. J. Hill had his hair cut while in Montreal the other day, and gave the barber a tip of 60 cents.

Last winter Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan, while in Montreal, only gave the Windsor Hotel barbers 50 cent tips.

A slight rise of 10 cents in tips indicates that the millionaires are spending money a little more freely.

This looks to us like a good argument for the bulls.

Toronto "Street" and the Threatened Strike

Towards the end of the week the trouble the Toronto Street Railway is having with its men took a more favorable turn, and both sides agreed to submit their differences to arbitration. Those who counsel the men to take advantage of the company, if they can, are not the friends of labor. It is quite true that the revenues of the company have improved greatly during the past year, and that an increase in wages would not affect the dividends. But that in itself is not a sufficient ground upon which to demand additional pay. It must be shown that the work is worth more in comparison with other callings, and that the increased cost of living makes it necessary for the men to get higher wages. That is the solid basis for a readjustment. An advance secured by such means will be permanent. If an increase is forced upon the company solely because the traffic has grown and the receipts are greater, it will lead to reprisals later on that may be disastrous to the men themselves. The employes will be wise if they demonstrate the justice of their demands and exhibit a spirit of fairness in the present emergency.

The Heavy Decline in Net R.R. Earnings

The Financial Chronicle publishes its compilation of gross and net earnings of ninety-six railroads in April. Compared with last year, gross earnings during the month fell off $1,736,000, or 1¾ per cent., while expenses advanced $804,000, causing a loss of $2,540,000, or 8⅛ per cent., in the month's net earnings. Inactivity in trade, a small grain movement in the West, and a small cotton movement in the South, the backwardness of the season, the miners' strike in Colorado, severe storms and exceedingly wet weather in the Southwest—these are among the more conspicuous of the unfavorable agencies to which the decreased earnings is attributed.

The following table of the railroads' net earnings in April during a series of years graphically illustrates the decided change in the trend of earnings of 1904:

	Year given.	Net earnings year preceding.
1904 (96)	$28,552,275	$31,092,626
1903 (109)	33,982,999	29,788,839
1902 (120)	31,260,129	27,891,115
1901 (127)	29,511,141	24,975,196
1900 (127)	23,300,034	20,416,810
1899 (121)	20,458,833	19,119,604
1898 (134)	18,740,860	15,695,627
1897 (127)	15,419,768	14,974,156

1894 (142)	12,287,554	15,764,974

Some Parallels in Raw Cotton Market

In view of the rather acute cotton situation in Canada, arising largely from the recent inflation of raw prices, it is interesting to note the present trend of the market.

The swing of cotton prices since the great speculation culminated has already been abnormally wide, the decline, within five months, having been 5⅞ cents a pound, a loss of one-third of the quoted value of February 1. This is hard to parallel in cotton's history. In the great speculation of 1875, when the crop of the previous season reached an abnormally low level, the price reached 17⅛. The new crop turned out the second largest ever harvested; yet prices fell back, up to the close of 1875, only to 13 1-16c. Neither in that year, nor in any subsequent year, was there such a shrinkage as the past twenty weeks have witnessed. The nearest parellel was only three years ago, when the price touched 12 cents in January, 1901, only to fall to 8 cents in August, and to 7 13-16c in November.

The low price for cotton, in a given crop year, has usually been reached either in August, when the first of the new crop is rushed upon the market, or in the following January, when the full supply becomes available. The midsummer price is apt to be the lowest, unless, as happened last year, the crop deteriorates in the autumn months. Midsummer prices have been the lowest of the season in exactly half of the past dozen years. The lowest price in the annals of the cotton trade—that in 1898—was reached on September 26.

The Situation at the Rossland Mines

Rossland, B. C., June 18. — Generally speaking, the situation in Rossland is dull, and this will probably exist until the community sees more activity manifested in connection with the Lerol mine, which has been the largest individual employer of labor in the camp. Otherwise matters are in most satisfactory condition, and various points have developed in the past week that promise much for the immediate future of the camp.

The Lerol continues to employ 150 men and ship about 160 tons of ore daily. It is intimated that the Northport smelter's reserve of ore will be finished about August 1st, and there is a possibility of suspension then.

On the other hand, it is said that arrangements are being made for supplies of self-fluxing Boundary ores to be shipped over the Great Northwestern extension now being built. The delivery of such ores at Northport will alter the situation materially.

Throughout the week machinery tests were under way at Rossland Power Company's big concentrator, and it is understood that shipments of milling ores from Rossland mines will be started within a fortnight.

"Running like clock work" continues to be the report from the plant as to the machinery tested to date.

That the Iron Mask Cliff and Abe Lincoln mines may soon rejoin the working list is now likely. In each instance steps looking to this end have been taken. All three properties have been closed down for two years or more.

Shipments of milling machinery from the White Bear Company are arriving.

Twenty stamps for the crushing station have been delivered. Much of the plant is now roofed.

Shipments for the past week were: Lerol, 12,330; Centre Star, 1,440; War Eagle, 990; Lerol, 2,490; do. milled, 250; Spitzee, 30; IXL (concentrate), 7; Kootenay, 385; Jumbo, 200. Total, 5,122 tons; year to date, 172,288 tons.

Market Reports.

Country Produce

Hay is Weaker

A weaker feeling has developed in the market for baled hay owing to increased receipts and the prospects of a large crop this season. There has been no actual change in prices, but dealers state that it is difficult to realize outside figures now. We quote: No. 1, 10.50 to $11; extra good No. 2, $9.50 to $10.50; ordinary No. 2, $9 to $9.50; and clover mixed, $8 to $8.50 per ton, in car load lots.

"I Was Sick, Broken Down, No Strength, Couldn't Eat, Sleepless.

"Ferrozone Gave Me Energy, Force, Vim, Comfort, Made Me Well."

Because Ferrozone gives such instant effect, because it steadily builds up new flesh it is used by thousands in poor health.

No other tonic in the world is like Ferrozone. No other medicine accomplishes such marvellous results.

Its wonderful merit in building up and strengthening is acknowledged by every physician and health institution.

It makes you feel better at once like Mrs. Charles Bemy, of Cloyne, Ont., who says:

"I was sick.

"I was broken down, had no strength, couldn't eat. I was sleepless.

"My nerves were irritable. I was thin-blooded, and continually unhappy.

"I tried Ferrozone.

"It gave me new energy, force, vim. It brought me comfort, strength—it made me well."

To get new vital energy, new youth, use Ferrozone. It makes the blood rich and red, fortifies the system with reserve strength, puts new life into all that use it. Greatest tonic and rebuilder known. 50c per box or six for $2.50, at all medicine dealers, or Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

GRAIN HERE AND IN THE STATES

An Improved Cable Demand for Manitoba Wheat with Higher Bids—Flour Holds Steady.

There was an improved demand for Manitoba spring wheat from over the cable today, and the bids in some cases were 1½d higher than those of yesterday, but even at this advance exporters stated that it was impossible to work any business, as the bids were fully 1½c a bushel out of line with prices on this side. Several bids were received from foreign sources on oats, of which some were unchanged from recent ones, while others were 1½d lower. There was some demand on spot for oats, and a sale of 5,000 bushels No. 2 mixed was made at 30½c per bushel west, with a 12½c freight rate, and 5,000 bushels at 30c west, with a 13½c freight rate. Another lot of 10,000 bushels of No. 2 white was offered at 32½c per bushel west, with a 12½c freight rate, but this figure was considered by buyers fully 1c per bushel above the level of the market. The local and country demand for car lots of oats is still limited, but prices rule steady at 37½c for No. 2 white and 36c for No. 3 per bushel, ex store, and Peterboro No. 3 inspected at 35½c ex track. Other lines of coarse grains continue to be neglected, and prices are nominally unchanged. Buckwheat was quoted at 59c; peas at 71c; No. 2 rye at 62c to 62½c; No. 2 barley at 49c; No. 3 extra at 48c, and No. 3 at 47c; No. 2 white oats, 36½c to 37c per bushel afloat.

There was no new feature in the flour situation to note. The tone of the market remains steady, with a fair volume of business passing on local and country account, and there is also a good enquiry from moreign sources for Manitoba spring wheat grades for future shipment. We quote as follows: Manitoba spring wheat patents, $4.90; Manitoba strong bakers, $4.60; winter wheat patents, $5 to $5.10; straight rollers, $4.75; straight rollers, in bags, $2.25 to $2.30.

The demand for all lines of millfeed was limited, and the market is quiet, with no change in prices to note. We quote: Manitoba bran, in bags, $18 to $19; shorts, $20 to $21 per ton; Ontario bran, in bulk, $17 to $17.50; shorts, $18.50 to $19; and moullie, $24 to $28 per ton, as to quality.

At 12.30 the Chicago prices were: July wheat, 84 1-2; Sept., 79 7-8; July, corn, 47 3-4; Sept., 47 1-2; July oats, 38 1-2, Sept., 31 5-8.

OPEN AIR PLAYS WERE DELIGHTFUL

Ben Greet and His Company Score Distinct Successes on Saturday.

It would be difficult to conceive of more delightful entertainment than that afforded by Ben Greet and his woodland players in their production of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night' on the McGill College lawn Saturday afternoon. Amid such beautiful surroundings, with only nature for stage scenery and a lone camp stool and sofa cushion for stage furniture, there was nothing to detract from the play itself, and in the absence of the customary stage accessories the play depended solely upon the skill of the players for its interpretation. That the play lost nothing, but rather was the gainer, by the absence of stage setting, is of itself a sufficient tribute to the ability of the company. The part of Viola calling for the portrayal of such widely differing phases was taken with consummate skill by Miss Matthison. The witticisms incident to the pleading of Orsino's suit before Olivia were given a delightfully droll interpretation, and her alarm over the challenge from Sir Andrew Aguecbuk had all marks of genuine fear, and was most amusing. Her portrayal of the difficult character throughout left nothing to be desired. The part of Malvolio, steward to Olivia, was taken by Ben Greet, and a more supremely ridiculous scene it would be difficult to imagine than the occasion of his appearing in yellow stockings and cross garters in response to the trick of Maria and Sir Toby Belch. Strutting down the lawn with the self-conscious air of one who had accomplished his heart's desire, his face wreathed in the smiles with which the missive bade him greet his supposed inamorata, he gave an interpretation to the character that was as correct as it was amusing. It is no reflection on Mr. Greet, however, to say that he was distinctly the gainer in this scene by the support of Miss M. Laughlin as Maria. She was, indeed, an ideal Maria, appearing to enter into the very spirit of the joke until it seemed almost that she really had concocted the scheme and was overcome with the fun that followed its working out. Mr. Field and Mr. Crawley as Sir Toby Belch and Sir Andrew Aguecbuk respectively made splendidly jovial cronies. There could be said to be no weak spot in the whole play, and though it was necessary to omit some scenes, the play was on the whole the most delightful rendition of Twelfth Night ever witnessed in Montreal.

"Much Ado About Nothing."

In the evening Shakespeare's comedy, "Much Ado About Nothing," was produced before a splendid audience and an imposing army of mosquitoes. So numerous were the insects and so effective their stings that the attention of the audience was evenly divided between watching the stage and dispatching their tormentors. The presence of a number of high hats succeeded in blocking the view for the people behind, if not successful in warding off the mosquitoes.

The play itself was delightful to a degree, and the numerous witticisms had lost none of their point, although written nearly three centuries ago. The development of the plot was watched with the keenest interest, broken here and there with a hearty laugh at some sharp saying or clever pun, and one lady was heard to remark afterwards, "She never knew that Shakespeare was so funny."

The part of Beatrice was taken by Miss Matthison, and was rendered with all the charm that she possesses. Her encounters with Benedick were lively, and the tilts on both sides were so clever as to provoke hearty laughter from the audience. Ben Greet appeared as Benedick, and his transformation from the cynic to the lover deserves special mention, as being strictly within the bounds of probability. Dogberry, one of Shakespeare's most amusing characters, was brilliantly carried out by Mr. Field, and was in perfect harmony with the milieu of the period.

The company was strong, and the production of the piece in a manner so thoroughly in accord with Shakesperean ideals left nothing to be desired. Ben Greet has brought home to Montrealers more vividly than before the wonderful qualities of Shakespeare and the Elizabethan drama.
