125 Donations at Blood Clinic

The motorized Blood Clinic from Ottawa visited Shawville Thursday of last week and set up their equipment in the Sunday School rooms of the United Church.

A staff of seven came from Ottawa, and these were assisted by a number of local nurses and Dr. Powles and McDowell.

The leading technician in charge of the clinic was Mrs. M. McLeod, of Ottawa, and 125 donations of blood were made by people of this district, which was 40 more than the number made at any previous clinic.

Miss Katie Elliott, the secretary of the local committee was very pleased with the response made, and is very grateful for the fine support thus given to this worthy cause.

Women's Hospital Auxiliary

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Pontiac Community Hospital met on Tuesday afternoon with 12 present and the president, Mrs. R. P. Eades, in the chair.

In the business session the treasurer reported $47.50 on hand.

It was decided to ask for donations of vegetables for the use of the hospital. Mrs. Johnston gave a report of the work of the hospital, and Mrs. Reuben Smith gave an address on the Victorian Order of Nurses.

In the work session 16 articles were mended, 20 T-binders made; 9 dozen alcohol sponges and 11 dozen dressings.

The superintendent entertained the ladies to refreshments.

Freedom is a Little Word

Freedom is such a little word. And many people cannot appreciate its value until they've lost their freedom—which is no simple thing at all, but a mass of rights and privileges accumulated over grim centuries by the blood, sweat and tears of their ancestors.

Compare your lot with that of a man or woman of France. In the first place, if you were a man of military age you probably wouldn't be in France at all, but in some German factory, far from your family, living under military discipline. Otherwise you might well be still in your native city. But with many differences.

Your own police and magistracy would still be there—such of them as cared to or were able to remain in office. But over them, the Kreiskommandatur—the German regional military command. Every day or every week you would go to read the new orders. This or that right would disappear. No talking politics over the back fence. No laughing in public. No gathering of more than three persons on pain of a charge under the riot act. Very severe rationing of food and clothing, of course. So many restrictions, in fact, that you might become a misdeedman unaware.

The penalty? Well, for a quite insignificant offence you would be sentenced to a jail term. But you would not go immediately. The jails are too full for that. You would continue with your daily work until you received an official notification. Your turn for jail.

And then? Well, any French jailbird, even if he's just a man who's chucked in the wrong place, is automatically a hostage. You know what that means. Somebody—perhaps some group among your fellow citizen, irked by the growing mass of restrictions and acts of tyranny, expressed resentment in some forcible way. Then the German commander lines up 50 hostages you among them, maybe—and shoots them.

Well, you've got your freedom. But to keep it sure, you've got to do your bit, as a member of the United Nations, to destroy tyranny everywhere. Destroy it so that it will never again raise its head in your lifetime—or your children's.

How? On the battle fronts Canadians are fighting. On the home front they are buying Victory Bonds. BUY VICTORY BONDS! SPEED THE VICTORY!

MARRIED

McKEE—HANNA-BERRY

A quiet but pretty wedding took place on Saturday morning at St. Edward the Confessor's Church, Maryland, Que., when Rita Ann Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hannaberry, became the bride of Patrick Merlin McKee, son of Mr. Frances McKee and the late Mrs. McKee. Rev. J. L. Enright officiated at the ceremony.

The church was adorned with Autumn flowers. Miss Louise Dumas presided at the organ and solos were rendered by Messrs. Wm. Grace, Merlin Smith and Clarence Roy.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was attended by her sister, Inez, and Mr. Richard Dumas, cousin of the groom, was best man. The ushers were Messrs Herbert and Gerald Hannaberry.

The bride's gown was white net over taffeta with lace bodice extending in points on the full skirt. The neckline was in sweetheart effect with covered buttons extending to the waistline. A wreath of orange blossoms held in place her finger-tip veil, and she carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

The bride-maid chose a gown of turquoise blue brocade organza over taffeta with matching shoulder-length veil. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses.

A dinner was served to sixty guests at the home of the bride's parents, after which the young couple left by motor for Montreal and Quebec City. For travelling the bride wore a two piece wool suit of American beauty shade with navy blue accessories and a shoulder knot of sweetheart roses. On their return they will reside at McKee, Que.

Mobilization Medical Examination System Changed

The procedure followed for medical examination under National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations is being changed, so that it will be as follows:—

- If a man called lives a reasonable distance from a "Reception Centre", he will be ordered to report at such a Centre for medical examination. In the Province of Quebec there are two Reception Centres—Montreal and Quebec. In any event, immediately after his examination, a man will return to his home.
- If a man called lives too far from a "Reception Centre" to have a medical examination there and to return home within a reasonable time, he will be ordered to be examined by one of a panel of physicians near his home, of whom he will be notified.
- In a case where a man called lives in a very remote locality where there is no panel of physicians, he will be ordered to be examined by a doctor of his own choice in his locality.
- Each man required to be medically examined will be notified by mail, through an "Order—Medical Examination" sent by the Registrar of the Mobilization Division, and this will instruct him specifically on how he is to proceed with his medical examination.

The change of system for medical examinations does not change any man's right to apply for postponement of military training, nor does it change the classes of men liable to call. It is designed to cause the man being examined less inconvenience, for in many cases he will be required to be examined once instead of two or three times as formerly. A man who is able to be examined at a Reception Centre will be relieved of any uncertainty as to what is his medical category, for his category will be finally established after the one examination.

The law requires any man receiving an "Order—Medical Examination" to follow carefully the instructions sent by the Registrar with this Order.

A FARM WIFE CHATS TO WOMEN

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

If you ever find yourself taking part in a quiz program and the question is asked: "What are the stupidest creatures on a farm?" take it from me, you need have no hesitation in answering: "Hens and chickens!"

I am sure anyone who lives on a farm will agree with me but those who don't may wonder why. Well, I'll tell you.

Hens and chickens absolutely refuse to co-operate when you try to make them more comfortable. They will come back again and again to the first home they knew—the brooder house. You can shut them out and chase them off to the nice new airy pen you have prepared for them and in half an hour they will all be back to the brooder house, squatting around outside if they can't get inside.

Several weeks ago when our brooder house became too crowded we took the roosters away and put them in another pen. Partner said, "I guess if we keep them shut up for a day or two and then let them out again they will go back all right." But I gave a disgusted sort of grunt in anticipation of what I was sure would happen. And it did.

After a week we let the roosters out and that night every last one of them was back in the brooder house. While Partner was milking I had the grand job of catching and carrying fifty-one roosters back to where they belonged.

Then we have a pen of yearling hens up in the barn. They have been shut up in that same pen over six months. Then came moulting time and we thought it might do the hens good to have the run of the farm for a while. So we let the hens out. Did they go back to their pen at night? Well, about half of them. The others went to roost all over the place—down in the stable, on the manure spreader, in another henpen, and even in the brooder house from which I had so recently chased the roosters to make more room for the pullets. This went on for about three weeks. Finally I went the rounds one night and carried the hens back to their pen. And believe me when I was through with the job I said to those biddies very emphatically as I shut the door, "Now you can just stay there!"

We also have trouble, but of a different kind, with the pullets. They would much rather sleep on the floor than on the roosts. After the roosters had been taken away there was plenty of room for all the pullets to roost in comfort. But would they do it? In the daytime, yes. But at night half of them were on the roosts and the other half hunched up together on the floor. I tried picking them up and putting them on the roost. But that was no good. As fast as I put one bird up another jumped down. So I tried to outwit them. The next night I collected old stove pipes and odd ends of wire net-

OCTOBER 17

JESUS AND THE SABBATH
Exodus 20:8-11; Isaiah 58:13, 14; Mark 2:23, 27

GOLDEN TEXT—And He said unto them, The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath. Mark 2:27.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING
Time.—The Ten Commandments were delivered in 1445 B.C.; the prophecy taken from Isaiah was spoken about 698 B.C.; the words here quoted from our Lord were uttered in the early summer of A.D. 28.

Place.—The Ten Commandments were given on Mount Sinai; Isaiah's prophecy, in Jerusalem; our Lord's discourse on the Sabbath took place not far from Capernaum.

The Holy Sabbath Day
"Remember the Sabbath Day to keep it holy." This day was set aside for the worship of God that men might not forget their Creator.

"Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work; but the seventh day is a sabbath unto Jehovah thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates." While we faithfully reserve the Lord's Day for worship and rest we must also not compel others to work on the sabbath day.

Sabbath and the Creation
"For in six days Jehovah made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested on the seventh day: wherefore Jehovah blessed the sabbath day, and hallowed it." The sabbath is separated from other days and should be a day of joy and gladness, of rest and refreshment for body, mind and soul.

Joy in the Sabbath
"If thou turn away thy foot from the sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day, and call the sabbath a delight, and the holy of Jehovah honorable; and shalt honor it, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words." We are to seek and do God's pleasure, not our own, on His day. We should seek the good of others, not our own. We are to speak His word, not our own, for the day should be used for His glory, not for self glory.

God's Promises
"Then shalt thou delight thyself in Jehovah; and I will make thee to ride upon the high places of the earth; and I will feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father: for the mouth of Jehovah hath spoken it." If we delight to do God's bidding and observe the Sabbath we will find increased ting and I spread them all around on the floor, making the place as uncomfortable as I could. And it worked. That night there were far more birds on the roosts. The next night still more, and last night there were only five on the floor. So I really feel as if I had done something.

Of course I don't suppose people who run a regular poultry farm have quite as much trouble as we do because they would have their pullets and cockerels in separate pens right from the start. But when you keep poultry just as a sideline as we do—or as a necessary evil—and have only one brooder stove to work with; so that you have to keep mixed chickens in one pen until they are old enough to do without artificial heat then you are bound to run into some kind of trouble.

So you people whose only knowledge of poultry is eating eggs and chickens, please remember that it meant a lot of work before that chicken was ready for the oven, and the hen that laid that egg you had for breakfast was fed and cared for for five months before she laid her first egg—and that a very small one. It took a week or two before her eggs were large enough to be marketable. But we keep on—we don't quit just because some of our work is not as easy as we would like it.

KIEV: RUSSIANS RETURN TO UKRAINE CAPITAL

Kiev and the Dnieper . . . The Russians can see the gilt church domes.

Kiev street . . . as the Russians left it in 1941.

Kiev, metropolis on the Dnieper and capital of the rich Ukraine, had been in German hands just two years to the day when September 22 dispatches told of the Russian advance to within sight of the city's glistening church domes. Kiev is the third city of Russia—Moscow and Leningrad alone are more populous. How many of its 850,000 people have survived the two years of Nazi terror will be revealed when Soviet forces march back down the city's broad, modern streets, left. A centre of agriculture, industry, and cattle raising, Kiev is built on a cliff overlooking the Dnieper. This lofty position commanding the broad plains to the east, above, may give to the Nazis a last defensive advantage.

joy in the existence and service of the Lord. The thought of victory, prosperity and security is undoubtedly implied.

Jesus and the Sabbath
"And it came to pass, that he was going on the sabbath day through the grain fields, and his disciples began, as they went, to pluck ears. And the Pharisees said unto him, Behold, why do they on the sabbath day that which is not lawful?" The disciples were charged with a breach of the sabbath law which forbade working. Reaping was a forbidden work and under reaping was included the gathering of a few ears of corn.

"And he said unto them, Did ye never read what David did, when he had seed, and was hungry, he, and they that were with him? How he entered into the house of God when Abiathar was high priest, and ate the showbread, which it is not lawful to eat save for the priests, and gave also to them that were with him." Since David's action was not condemned it proved that, in urgent cases, human need was to come first. So the necessity of the disciples justified them in doing on the Sabbath what would have been otherwise against the law.

Man's Day of Rest
"And he said unto them, The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath." The sabbath was not made to bring about a state of suffering, but to provide for man's rest and communion with God.

Miracle on the Sabbath
"And he entered again into the synagogue; and there was a man there who had his hand withered . . . and he stretched it forth; and his hand was restored." Christ scornfully dismissed the Pharisees' question. To Him to cause a man to suffer longer than is necessary is an evil thing. "They held their peace." In their silence they confessed their hypocrisy and cowardice. Christ looked upon his critics with grief and anger. Though angry He grieved for them. Anger, as righteousness against evil is justified but it must be tempered with compassion for those who have offended.

In this case Jesus did not even touch the man. The sufferer showed courage in standing forth among the hostile Pharisees, but the faith that made him stretch forth his dead hand and attempt the impossible was greater still.

A Nice Salvage Job On Bomber

Fortress Forced Down, Flies Out of Small Field

Salvage of ships and cargoes is common around the British Isles, but a nice job of salvage was done recently on land when a big Flying Fortress bomber had to make a forced landing when returning from an operation over Germany. The bomber came to rest unharmed in a small field surrounded by trees. There seemed no way of getting the plane out except by taking it to pieces which would have meant a long job of rebuilding.

ing. But, said an American colonel of Engineers, if the Air Corps got it here the Engineers can get it out.

So his men got to work with bulldozer, grader, caterpillar and dump trucks. They built a road through the trees, removed a wall and row of hedges extending 120 feet, and made a runway about 800 yards long. As an additional safety factor they cleared 1,000 feet of fields at the end of the runway and compacted it. Then with about 3,250 feet of clear space the Fortress was tuned up and away she went.

HERE'S THAT PICTURE AGAIN!

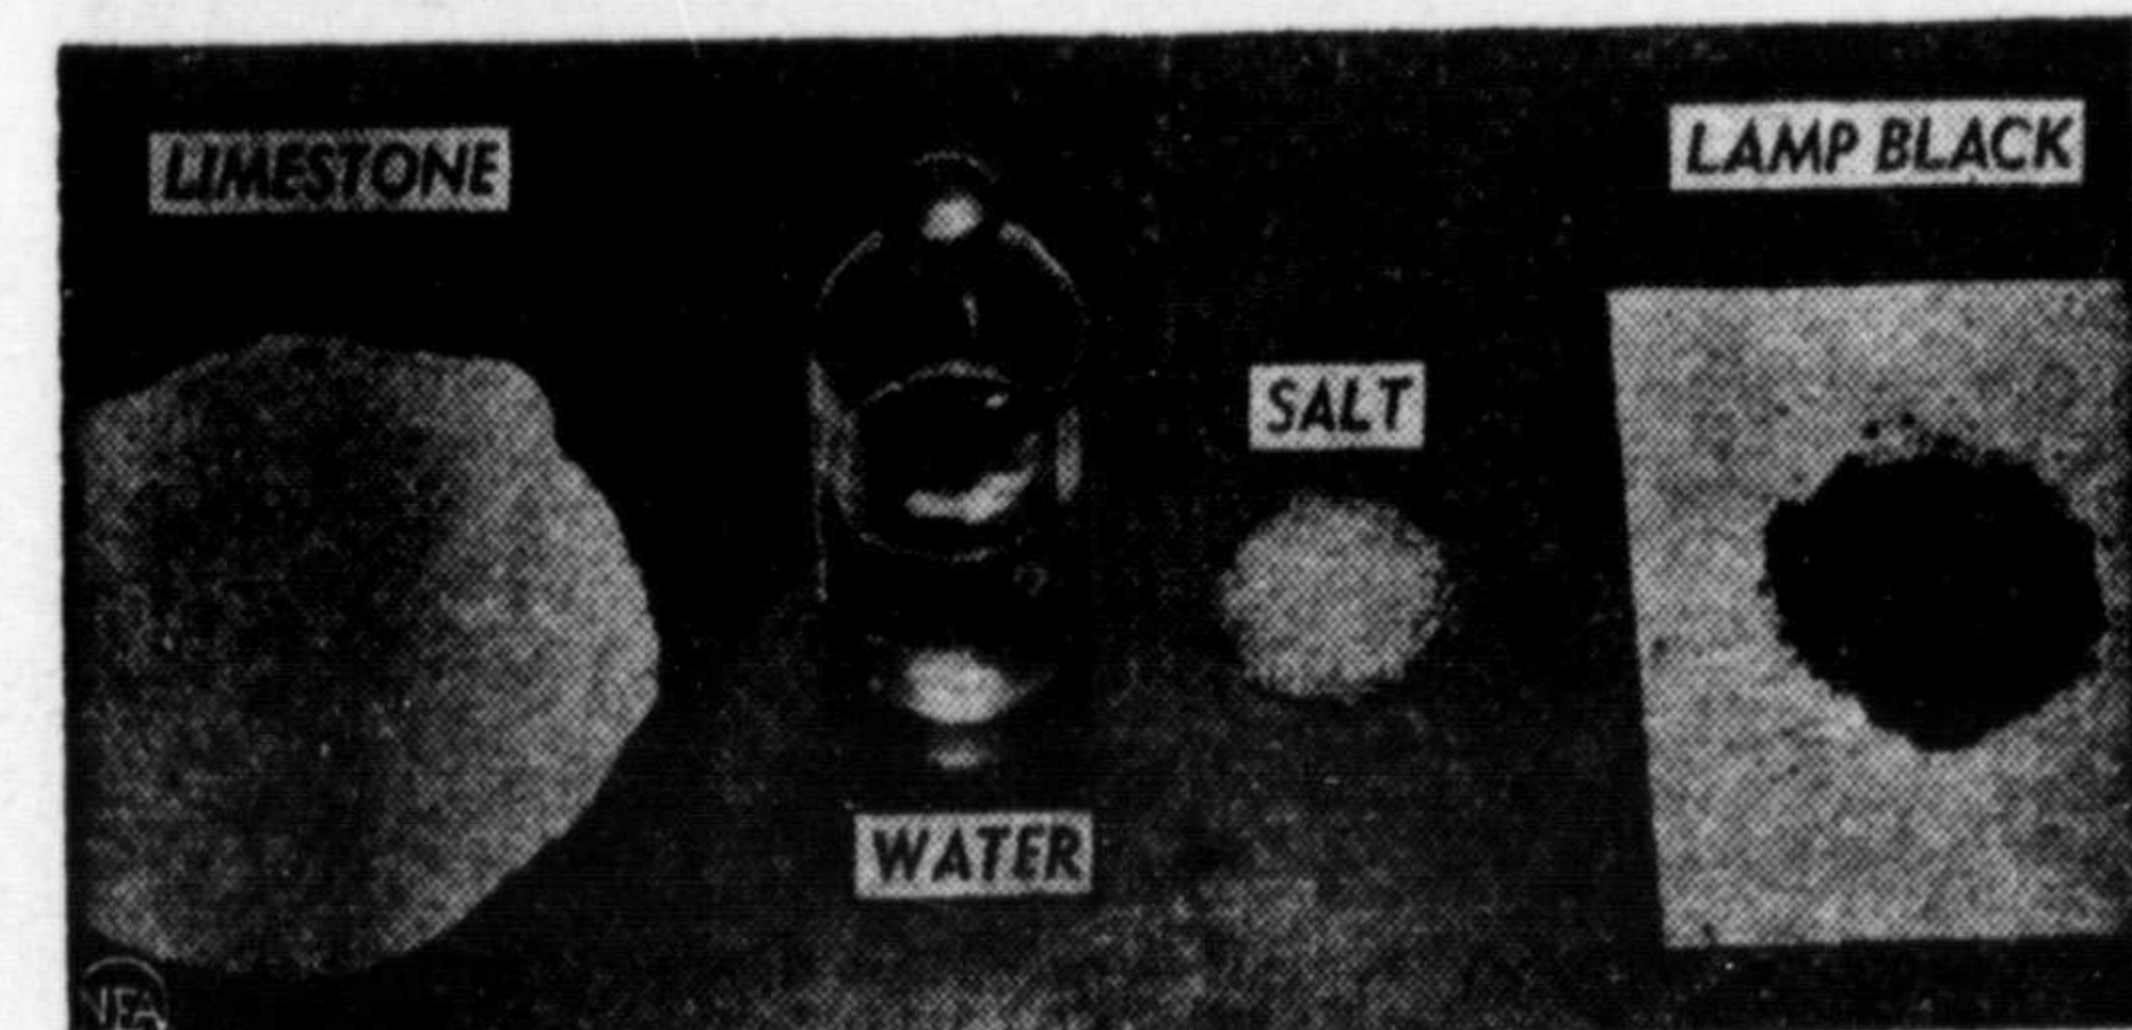

Here are the jubilant New York Yankees in their old familiar pose—cheering themselves after the 2-1 victory over Detroit that clinched American League pennant for the eighth time in the last 11 years—symbolized by Bill Dickey's No. 8, to which grinning Manager McCarthy is pointing. In foreground, left to right, are: Jim Turner, Bill Johnson, Dickey, McCarthy, Spud Chandler and Bill Zuber. In back, between Johnson and Dickey, are Tommy Byrne, Bud Metheny and Oscar Grimes.

Yes, He Had Been Around—A Bit!

In a Boston-bound plane, a civilian was seated next to a young Army flier. "Been around much?" the civilian asked. "Yeah," the flier casually answered. "I was over Rome, day before yesterday."

"Rome? Day before yesterday?" the civilian gasped and started to edge away, cautiously. "And where were you yesterday?" "Oh, yesterday," the flier shrugged, "I was in Iceland." The flier was Lt. Kennedy, the Boston hero, who was going home.—New York Post.

The Appalling Cost of Fires in U.S.

Fires in the United States last year cost the lives of nearly 10,000 persons, J. H. Rutledge writes in Nation's Business. The number will be about the same this year. That's 2,000 more than were killed in action in the United States armed forces in the first twelve months of the war, including Pearl Harbor. This is mentioned here, not to indicate that war, after all, is not costly (which it is) but to show how terrifically costly are our daily fires which we allow to happen, and which we sometimes seem to take for granted. In the first two years of the war, bombing of England, including the destructive attacks on London, Coventry and other cities, caused property damage estimated at $408,000,000. In the same period, fires in America caused damage of more than $600,000,000.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost. If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

How Can I??

By: Anne Ashley

Q. How can I remove mildew from garments and linen?

A. For mildew clothes mix equal parts of soft soap with powdered starch, half as much salt and the juice of half a lemon. Spread over the spots and lay the article in the sun until stains come out. For mildewed linen use a solution of four tablespoons peroxide to one quart of water. See that the water covers the garment, then boil gently until the stains are removed.

Q. How can I keep patent leather shoes from cracking?

A. Rub them over occasionally with a little vaseline. Glycerin, olive oil, or sweet oil are also fine for this purpose.

Princess To Serve On State Council

The House of Commons agreed last week that in future when the King is absent from the realm, Princess Elizabeth may serve as one of his councillors of state.

The King made the request for Parliament's agreement in a message read to the House.

This carries forward one more step the preparation of the Princess for Queenship and will give her an opportunity to try her hand at statecraft.

On the King's last foreign trip, to visit the troops in North Africa, she was excluded from the Council of State, headed by the Queen, because she was a minor. She will attain legal majority on her 18 birthday, next April 21.

The King's action suggested that he may contemplate another trip some day to visit his forces abroad.

Oatmeal Porridge Plus Trimmings

You remember perhaps how Dr. Samuel Johnson defined the word "oats" in his dictionary: "A grain which in England is generally given to horses but in Scotland supports the people." And you will remember the wonderful retort of Boswell, worthy of Johnson himself: "Where will you see such horses as in England or such men as in Scotland?"

But the legend of the Scotsman's oatmeal porridge is more important than the dish. Any how, as with rice pudding, if you use enough sugar and butter and cream and eggs and raisins and currants and what not, and not too much rice, you can finish up with a quite tolerable rice pudding, so doubtless, if you think it's worth while, you can do something about oatmeal porridge too.

The delegation proposed that this right of way be abandoned to the Corporation and exchanged for a perpetual water supply from the Village Tank for the special summer services held at said Camp Grounds.

After discussion it was moved by Cr. Rennie, seconded by Cr. Schwartz the proposed exchange be accepted, and that the Holiness Movement Camp Ground be granted a perpetual water supply for their summer services in return for the abandonment by the Holiness Movement Church of its 30-ft. right of way to the Lake, and that the Mayor be and he is hereby authorized to enter into and sign all documents and agreements that may be necessary in the premises—Carried.

The petition for opening King and James Sts. to Clarendon St. was again considered by the Council. In the opinion of Council the present was not an opportune time to open this street owing to the scarcity of labor and the cost involved, and in view of the fact the proprietor has advised Council that there is no active demand for lots along the proposed street. The Council decided the matter should be postponed until after the War or until building activity warrants the opening.

As per notice given at the previous meeting by Cr. Cotie, By-Law No. 132 was introduced which reads as follows:

By-Law No. 132. Whereas it is necessary and expedient that a tax rate be levied to meet the necessary expenses of the Municipality of the Village of Shawville it is hereby resolved and ordained by By-Law No. 132 that a tax rate of ten (10) Mills on the dollar be and is hereby levied and imposed on each and every dollar of taxable property on the assessment roll of the said Village of Shawville for the year 1943, three mills for ordinary and seven mills for water works, and that a discount of 3 per cent be allowed on all 1943 taxes paid on or before the 15th of December, 1943.

First reading was moved by Cr. Cotie and seconded by Cr. Prendergast, By-Law No. 132 was then read the first time.

Second reading was moved by Cr. Rennie and seconded by Cr. Schwartz, By-Law No. 132 was then read a second time.

Third reading was moved by Cr. Smith and seconded by Cr. Cotie, By-Law No. 132 was then read a third time and duly enacted and Carried unanimously.

The Petition of certain citizens presented at the last meeting to have certain businesses closed on Wednesday afternoon was again taken into consideration by the Council. In view of the provisions of Article 403 of the Municipal Code the Council was of the opinion that it had no jurisdiction in the matter and accordingly dismissed the Petition.

Moved by Cr. Smith, seconded by Cr. Rennie that the meeting adjourn.

A Message for Farmers

In this terrible conflict in which we are engaged, a heavy burden has fallen upon our farmers - a burden which they have accepted with energy and resourcefulness; for food, which suddenly became a primary munition of war, had to be furnished in ever increasing quantities to meet the needs of a larger and larger proportion of our people withdrawn from ordinary pursuits of peace to fulfil the expanding demands of war; to supply the demands of our growing fighting forces and those of our allies beyond the seas. And it has been done.

For there have been no eight hour days, no holidays, no slackening of effort and no strikes on the farm.

Not only have they met this challenge in the production line. It will be told when the history of this conflict is written that our rural citizens have given to the armed forces of Canada a proportion of its sons at least equal to that of any other group in this Dominion, and today there comes to us a new call - a call for money to buy the tools that, in the hands of our sons and brothers, will hasten the day of final victory.

Hastily and ill-prepared, we have had to face the fury of the initial onslaught. We have now a chance to help ensure that this great conflict fast hurrying to a climax may be terminated speedily and with as little loss of life as is possible to those who fight for us.

In this new effort the farmers of Quebec have the same stake as all other citizens.

We know that farmers as a class are not blessed with large sums of ready cash, but, as the largest single class of producers in the country, their combined contributions can well total a mighty sum. In this, as in other fields they shall not fail.

Notice to LANDLORDS AND TENANTS WEEKLY TENANCIES

Effective October 1, 1943, a weekly tenant of a house, duplex, flat or apartment is entitled to the same rights of tenure under the Board Orders as a monthly tenant and can only be required to vacate for the same reasons and with the same length of notice as a monthly tenant.

This does not apply to roomers or boarders or to sub-tenants who share the entrance and the toilet with the tenant or principal occupant of the house, flat or apartment as the case may be. These people may be required to vacate on a week's notice if they are paying by the week.

IF A LANDLORD DESIRES TO MOVE INTO HIS OWN HOUSE, APARTMENT, DUPLEX OR FLAT AND WANTS THE TENANT TO VACATE:

Any landlord who desires the tenant to vacate so that the accommodation may be available as a residence for the landlord or his father, or for his mother, son, daughter or daughter-in-law, and declares the accommodation will be occupied by one of them for a period of at least one year, may give the tenant a notice to vacate on a special form provided by the Board.

Length of Notice

In a case of a monthly or weekly lease, the tenant must receive at least six months' notice and must not be required to vacate during the winter, i.e., between September 30th and the following April 30th. In the case of a lease for a fixed term such as one year, the tenant is entitled to a notice of at least six months before the end of the term.

For example in the case of a lease expiring May 1st, 1944, the notice must be given no later than October 31st, 1943.

A TENANT WHO IS IN DEFAULT OF PAYMENT OF RENT:

After fifteen days of default the tenant may be evicted under provincial law.

NO MORE "DOSING" MY CONSTIPATION —I'VE CORRECTED THE CAUSE!

"Regularity" is important any time, but it's vitally important in these busy war days when all of us are working harder than ever. Don't you be "slowed down" by that common type of constipation due to lack of "bulk" in your diet. And be sensible... correct the trouble right at its source instead of "dosing" with harsh purgatives that give only temporary relief.

Eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN... grand-tasting as a cereal or in hot, crispy muffins... eat it every day... drink plenty of water... then see if you don't forget you ever had common constipation. For ALL-BRAN supplies the "bulk" your diet needs... promotes natural regularity. Your grocer has ALL-BRAN in two convenient sizes. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

THE HUMAN COMEDY

Bess and Mary were off for a rollicking evening with the three gay soldiers.

SYNOPSIS

Over the Macauley house in the small town of Ithaca, California, hovers the protective spirit of Matthew, the father who died two years before. He loves them all, five year old Ulysses, his eldest son Marcus, in an army camp, his young daughter Bess, his beloved wife Katey. Then there's sixteen year old Homer who has a job after school as a messenger boy. Already Homer has seen sorrow, despair and death through his work. He wonders why life is so difficult. He thinks about love, hurt because his girl Helen Elliott favors his rival, Hubert Ackley. Then there's rich Diana Steed who's leading Tom Spangler, manager of the telegraph office, around by the nose. Homer is amazed at how his friend is taken in by her. He worries, afraid that Spangler will make a big mistake in marrying Diana.

CHAPTER FOUR

The streets were wet and glistening with rain. Bess had been shopping with Marcus' girl, Mary Arena. They walked along, happy under their cellophane umbrellas, enjoying the light shower. In front of a drugstore three soldiers, respectively betraying humor, good nature and mischief in their twinkling eyes, hailed them.

Then they came up and bowed worshipfully before the girls. Bess giggled and so did Mary. One of the fellows doffed his cap and spoke. "My ladies, we of the great Democratic army, your humble servants, the soldiers, here today and we hope, here tomorrow, thank you for your beautiful faces—in times of dryness no less than in times of rain. May I present my comrades and your devoted admirers." He indicated the tall, rangy fellow. "This is Texas. He is from New Jersey." Now the next one, "This is Horse. He is from Texas."

The third one stepped up. "I am Fat. I am from hunger. Now, more than anything else I hunger for companionship. You see, it feels better having girls near. It smells better than just soldiers."

Bess laughed. "We were going to the cinema movie."

"To the cinema," Fat intoned dramatically. "Ah, consider with generous hearts our humble petition, for we are of one family, the human, and except for war we might never meet. What do you say? To the movies with us?"

"Is he crazy?" Mary whispered to Bess.

"No Mary he's just lonely. Let's go to the movies with them."

A moment later, they were all seated in the cinema. It was loving and warm, sisterly and brotherly. They revelled and cheered at the newsreels of Churchill and Roosevelt. They wept and laughed at the romantic movie. Later, the boys sent telegrams to their folks and girls and read them to Bess and Mary.

Finally, it was time for farewells. The moment was hushed. Easily and innocently, Fat kissed Bess and Mary.

The Horse shouted, "Well, what about us? What about me and Texas? We're somebody too. We're in the army too."

So the girls kissed them and then the three boys leaped and frolicked down the street until they were out of sight.

If Homer had seen them all he would have known that here was another kind of love too, the love of comradeship among strangers, the warmth of the human towards those who are lonely and far from home.

The next morning Homer slept later than usual. It was Saturday. No school. The clock said nine-thirty when he got to the breakfast table. From the empty lot outside came sounds of Ulysses and the other kids having a football game. Homer smiled paternally. Then he protested to his mother. "Gee, I didn't want to sleep this late Ma. Why didn't you call me?"

Her eyes crinkled with love. "You're working hard Homer. You must rest."

"I'm not working so hard. Gee Ma, I wish you wouldn't worry about me. You know I'd sort of like to feel in some way that maybe I could take Marcus' place a little. Let me do the worrying for you. I'll do it fine."

All that day he worked harder than ever just to back up his breakfast speech. He was still filled with the nice glow that evening when the policeman stuck his head in the telegraph office. "Hey Homer, your little brother Ulysses is lost outside. You better come and get him."

There was a crowd surrounding little Ulysses. The child's face was streaming with tears. The most awful thing had happened. He had been staring in a store window at a Mechanical Man. The man, disgusted with only an audience of one had suddenly made a terrible face and a clawing gesture. Ulysses had run as if goblins were after him, shrieking and terrified. Then a crowd had come and that was even worse.

Homer knelt beside him. "What's the matter? What are you crying about?" He understood. "Ah you're just scared that's all."

Ulysses repeated in wonder. "Scared? Am I scared?"

Homer swooped him up on the handlebars of his bike. "There's nothing to be afraid of. You don't have to be afraid any more."

A big smile broke over the child's face. Life was opening up for him. This was a new experience. He hugged himself and repeated the delicious words. "I'm afraid. I'm afraid."

Homer's breast swelled. He felt quite important and grownup, rescuing Ulysses. He was doing the worrying for Ma, taking Marcus' place. The feeling mounted in him, soared.

He couldn't know it but it was his father's spirit that so moved him, preparing him for the future. Way up on high, Matthew Macauley was watching his eldest son Marcus leaving camp. He was speaking soft words of prophecy.

"And now the orders have come for these American boys... kids from big cities and from little towns, from farms and from offices, from rich families and from poor families, kids brilliant and swift in spirit and kids slow and steady. These are the Americans. They are not afraid, but they have accepted the necessity to dismiss their fear and if it so happens, to die. Ah Marcus, you will be joining me perhaps..."

The troop train which Matthew saw was moving through the night. One of the soldiers was putting on a bit of horseplay. At the further end of the car a trio sang some folk songs.

Marcus and his pal Tobey sat together. Tobey's round face was solemn. "You know Marcus I feel pretty lucky. If it hadn't been for this war I wouldn't have run into you." He moistened his lips. "Tell me Marcus are you going to care much if you're killed?"

Marcus' face shadowed with thought. "Yes Tobey I'll care a lot. There are my folks back home, the old neighborhood, the kids that used to be in my classes. Those are all the things I want to go back to."

Tobey had been listening intently. He spoke with matter-of-factness, not sadness. "Well, being an orphan, I haven't got a family to go back to. Or a girl waiting for me like Mary." He turned half around in his seat. "But you know it's a funny thing Marcus. I almost feel that Ithaca's my home town too." He paused for a moment, then: "If we get through all right will you take me back with you, show me all the places you knew?"

An inner lamp seemed to light up Marcus' face. "Yeah. I want to do that Tobey and I want you to meet my folks. Oh we're poor, always have been. My father was a great man, not a success. We didn't ever have any more money than we needed. And you know what? I think you're going to be crazy about my sister Bess." He reached in his pocket and pulled out a snapshot. "Here. Take her picture. It's yours to keep—the way I keep Mary's in my pocket."

Tobey looked at the tiny photograph with reverence. "Bess sure is a beautiful girl Marcus. I don't know if a guy can fall in love with a girl without meeting her but I feel like I'm in love with Bess already."

"Maybe she'll feel the same way. And if you love each other what's to stop you from getting married?"

As if in answer Tobey quietly began a prayer. His face was raised, his hands clasped as he said: "Just get me to Ithaca if you can. Anything you say but let me get home. Protect everybody, keep them from pain, send the homeless to their homes, get me to Ithaca. Amen."

"Amen," Marcus echoed. His eyes were shiny. "That's a good prayer Tobey. I hope it's answered." He opened his bag and drew out writing pad and pencil. "Think I'll get a letter off home. I'm right in the mood for it I guess."

(Tobey and Marcus have discussed an after-the-war future. But now they are heading for battle. Will they get back to Ithaca, to their loved ones, to build the Peace? Don't miss the next exciting installment.)

New Inner Tube To Outdo Rubber

Elasto-Plastic Substance 100 Per Cent Reclaimable

Development of a new elasto-plastic material which, its discoverers assert, promises to outdo rubber in automobile inner tubes and numerous other products, was announced recently by Glenn L. Martin, president of the aircraft manufacturing company which bears his name.

The substance, which has been named marvinol, is not a synthetic rubber, Martin declared, but a new material better suited for many of the purposes for which rubber has been used than rubber itself.

"The new chem-elastic substance, which in effect makes it possible to manufacture inner tubes from coal, salt and water on standard rubber fabricating equipment has been picked out of the research laboratory before its uses have been fully exploited," Martin said in a statement.

"This was done because we were aware that marvinol answered critical war needs—especially for automobile inner tubes and delicate gloves for surgeons."

Martin said that one of the principal advantages of the substance was that it was 100 per cent reclaimable—a property which he said "may in itself revolutionize the entire inner tube industry."

Another valuable property, he said, is marvinol's ability to retain air when used in inner tubes.

Arctic Country Farmers' Paradise

Grain, Vegetables Flourish In Short Hot Summer

Perhaps the most flourishing part of the world at the present time is Alaska. Its rapidly increasing population have no fear of air raids or invasion and they are intensely busy producing not only minerals but food stuffs.

For long Alaska has figured as an Arctic country where the only products were gold and furs. Today it has become a great farming centre. True, the winter is long and cold, but the growth in summer is incredibly swift.

A visitor to Fort McPherson, which is North of the Arctic Circle, says that on June 20th new buds on the trees were just perceptible. Forty-eight hours later the trees were in full leaf. In July it was unbearably hot. On five days in July the average shade temperature was 95 deg. Fahrenheit.

Potatoes do well, and have been grown successfully sixty miles north of the Arctic Circle. Cabbages, cauliflower, lettuce, carrots, parsnips, beet, onions and rhubarb all flourish during the short, warm summer.

The Russians tell the same story. At Igarka in Arctic Siberia the cabbages are finer than those grown on the Volga. Flowers are marvellous. Violets, marguerites, forget-me-nots are twice the usual size. At Khibin on the Kola Peninsula 20 tons of potatoes have been dug from an acre. Oats grow five feet high, barley and wheat ripen, and all kinds of vegetables flourish.

British Cheese Supply Doubtful

A subsidy on milk to be used in the manufacture of cheese, announced last week, is designed to avert the pressing danger that Canada will be unable to fulfil her agreement to provide Britain with 150,000,000 pounds of cheese in the present contract year.

contract is part of a picture which has changed radically in a year. In 1942 there was anxiety over butter supplies, while cheese output was making records. Later, butter production was encouraged by subsidies.

Now butter production has increased to the point where it is possible to make a quantity available to the United Kingdom as well as meet Canadian ration requirements and the needs of the forces at home, as well as supply ships entering Canadian ports.

The subsidy on milk to be used in cheese production will be 30 cents a 100 pounds and will be payable from October 1 to April 30. Officials said they hoped the effect would be to keep dairy herds in cheese manufacturing areas up to full production during the coming fall and winter months.

Cuts Consumption Of Fuel In Half

A method by which "three or four shovels of coal will keep burning for 24 hours and give plenty of heat" has been devised by Wilfrid S. Higgins of Niagara Falls.

Fuel consumption is cut more than half during the months when only a small fire is required, he said, by "bricking up" one side of the firepot, thereby reducing the size of the pot.

"You simply put a bed of ashes on top of the grates on one side of the firepot. Then lay the bricks on that, piling them one on top of the other loosely. Five or six bricks are sufficient. Cover them with a light surface of ashes."

THE WAR - WEEK — Commentary on Current Events

The Long Arm Of Allied Airpower Strikes Inside Hitler's "Fortress"

With the Russians reported across the Dnieper in several places, the French practically in control of Corsica, Allied forces seizing the Aegean Islands, Yugoslav guerrillas holding most of the Dalmatian coast, and the British-American armies pushing up the Italian boot, the walls and roof of Hitler's "fortress" are bent and breached, says the Christian Science Monitor. Not only has Germany been put clearly on the defensive; her lines of defence have been sharply contracted.

How much the shape of the war has been changed since July is only clear when we look at those encouraging circles the mapmakers draw to show how far Allied planes will go if they fly 300 or 600 miles toward Berlin. The circles are not only overlapping; they are beginning to blanket the whole area under Nazi control. No German can get outside the 600-mile arcs from Allied bases. The Russians on the Dnieper are no farther from eastern Germany than London is. Bombers based in Corsica or southern Italy will be only half as far from southern Germany as when they flew from Africa.

Fighter-Plane Umbrellas

The Liberators which did such damage to the Ploesti oilfields had to go nearly twice as far as they will when the British-American forces have fixed up bases on the Aegean Islands. Allied bombers which have just struck at the Brenner Pass probably started from Sicily; from Corsica they can hit the same targets—or any other along Nazi supply lines in northern Italy with half as much fuel load. The present drive for the Italian airfields around Foggia aims at similar advantages, particularly for attacks in Yugoslavia.

Not only do the air-arms warn of the bombing the Nazis must expect; in Italy, southern France and Yugoslavia, they tell a story of fighter-plane umbrellas for Allied landings and ground operations. Allied air bases in the Aegean Islands will probably force German abandonment of Crete, for which they open the way to landings in Greece.

The Ring Tightens

Of course it is easier to draw the pretty circles on the map than it is to establish bases even in reconquered territory, to supply them and then to develop the air mastery that the maps seem to assume. But the resources for such moves are building up in Allied hands. Soon the Germans, wherever they try to fight, must cope not only with strafing of their front lines, but bombing of all their supplies and communications straight back to the most remote factory or ammunition dump.

The Nazis are shortening their lines, desperately trying to hold the Allies off as far as possible. But the ring tightens. The long arm of airpower, striking far inside, should make the position clearly hopeless to the Germans long before they have been forced back to such lines as they held in 1918.

500 Pounders in 1939

World War II's aerial offensive against Germany began on Sept. 4, 1939, a little more than twenty-four hours after Britain declared war. Planes of the RAF's Bomber Command attacked German warships at Wilhelmshaven and Brunsbuttel, at the entrance to the Kiel Canal. The biggest plane available for the raid was the two-engined Wellington Mark I-A. The biggest bomb used was a 500-pounder. With the Wellingtons went some Blenheims, much smaller. The fleet of twenty-nine planes was the largest Britain could risk on a single mission. The loss of seven planes, almost 25 per cent, was prohibitively high. Except for one raid on Helgoland there were no more major attacks until December.

8,000 Pounders Now

Last week the bomber offensive against Germany was being written in terms that dramatically marked the change wrought in four years. Wellingtons are only medium bombers now. The largest bombs weigh 8,000 pounds instead of 500. Maximum bomb loads have climbed from two tons to more than eight tons. Bomber fleets regularly run to the hundreds of planes and operate day after day. Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons last week that RAF alone had discharged on Germany three times the weight of bombs in the last twelve months that it had in the previous twelve; in the last three months the load was half again as great as in the preceding three. He said:

OTTAWA REPORTS

That Canadian Farmers Can Be Proud of the Results of Their Hog-Raising Program

Farmers of Canada have made it possible to supply Britain with the product of seventeen million hogs, valued at four hundred million dollars.

Since the war began, the total shipments of bacon to Britain have been in excess of two billion pounds. In addition to these bacon deliveries, Canada has sent overseas nearly 40 million pounds of frozen pork liver, kidneys and tongues, 13 million pounds of canned pork, 4 million pounds of lard and nearly a million bundles of hog casings for the manufacture of sausages.

Not only have Canadian farmers supplied the people of Britain with their bacon, but they have also acquired a reputation for regular deliveries of a quality product, a reputation which will be needed in the competitive export market of post-war years.

Meat rationing has helped in the fulfilment of the bacon contract to Britain; limitations on the quantities of bacon and other pork products for domestic use have made more available for export. How much more is shown in an announcement from the Meat Board which states that during the first part of this summer Canada exported 43 per cent more bacon than in the similar period of 1942.

This 43 per cent increase was obtained with only 18 per cent increase in hog marketing. The relaxation of the system of discounts on heavy hog made this possible. The average weight of hog carcasses has risen from 148 pounds before the war to an estimated 165 pounds at the present time. While heavier hogs have been acceptable as a wartime emergency, they will not be desirable in peacetime. The heavyweights increase the quantity of bacon, but they don't make for better bacon, and farmers must bear in mind that heavier hogs will not be satisfactory for competition on the British market after the war.

To assist good growth in young pigs farmers feed them skim milk and buttermilk. Other farmers with no milk for feeding, mix twelve pounds of concentrate in every hundred pounds of the grain ration. There is the possibility of wastage of high protein supplements through the idea that by boosting the protein supplement from 12 to 24 pounds the pig will grow twice as fast. This is not so. Unnecessarily large amounts of concentrates have been fed to pigs on some farms when they would be just as well off without it. Any amount over the normal requirements is wasted. A young pig uses excess protein only for energy or fattening and farmers agree that there are cheaper ways of putting fat on a pig than by laying out money for protein supplements. Supplies of commercial protein feeds are limited and it is only by using these feeds and dairy by-products in the most economical way that the large number of pigs required can be raised successfully and cheaply.

Livestock men emphasize that proteins are necessary for young pigs and pregnant or nursing sows. But when a pig reaches one hundred pounds, it will make "The havoc wrought is indescribable."

New Nazi Bomb

There were signs of stiffening defenses on the raids over Germany. Interceptors rose to meet the bombers far from the targets and others hovered over the scene of activity. In two nights the RAF lost fifty-eight of their big planes. There were no signs of new defensive weapons. Mr. Churchill did, however, reveal the use by the Germans of a new bomb—"a sort of rocket-assisted glider" and controlled from a parent aircraft. Used so far only against coastal shipping, its effectiveness is not yet clear.

THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME

And these Canadian troops on Kiska never realized it more than they do now. They're bunking in a filthy, poorly constructed shack that the Japs used as a hospital until better quarters are set up. The more bonds you buy, the sooner these boys can come back to the comforts of home.

reasonable good growth on feed grains alone. By limiting protein supplements to young pigs, more hogs can be raised on the same amount of purchased supplements.

If worried about what the Winter will bring you, just think of the prospect before the Canadians now forming part of the Kiska garrison.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

IN THE ARMY NOW

A Denver musician wants soldiers gently awakened by the soft strains of a violin rather than a blaring bugle. What, no breakfast in bed?—Christian Science Monitor.

NEEDS A SECONDER

It seems to be the belief of almost every woman that she needs someone to help her keep a secret.—Guelph Mercury.

Life of a Private

We stand in line to get a pass
We stand in line to wash.
We stand in line to find a place
To stand in line . . . by gosh.
We stand in line to draw our pay
We stand in line to spend it.
But fellow men, we never have
To stand in line to lend it.

The Ration Board In Kindly Mood

According to the Deloraine, Man., Times the ration board there has been entrusted with a very delicate secret. The board received the following letter:

"When I registered my war ration book No. 1, I asked you not to put my age on the front of the book but just to mark it 'legal age'. Now, listen, if 'age' appears on the new book just mark it 'legal age' again. My husband thinks that I am only four years older than he is and he will be very angry if he finds out the truth. I will remember you in my prayers."

The Deloraine paper says that the ration board has decided to keep a stiff upper lip so that Friend Husband will never know.

French Coast Strip Cleared Of Civilians

According to reports reaching the Allied Governments in London, the Germans have cleared all civilians from a 50-mile strip on the southern coast of France in anticipation of a possible Allied invasion thrust there.

A large corps of Nazi engineers was said to have been sent into the cleared area to speed construction of additional fortifications and defense works.

DAYLIGHT ON SATURDAY

By J. B. Priestley

For that superb modern storyteller, J. B. Priestley, a huge mechanized industry is alive with human interest. In "Daylight On Saturday" he tells a story of drama and excitement within the windowless walls of a vast camouflaged aircraft factory somewhere in England.

Here men and women live, love, hate and aspire amid the glare of bright lights and the roar of machinery. What happens to them in the plant and out of it, how their lives enmesh and clash under the heightened strain of war, is a thrilling story—passionate, colourful and tremendously interesting.

Missionaries' Work Valuable To Army

Missionary work done in the Solomons in previous years paid dividends during the American advance on New Georgia.

A Methodist mission near Munda had taught many natives to speak English and several were employed by American forces to lead them through the jungles.

LOOKING DOWN IN THE MOUTH

Making the ship look like some gigantic fairy story ogre about to swallow a snack of helpless humans, a tank-landing ship swings wide its doors to receive a complement of troops en route to the fighting front. The photo above shows for the first time the hitherto heavily guarded secret of how the bow opens to receive and discharge cargo.

Municipalities Co-operate

Intermunicipal water service agreements, through which more than a score of large cities serve their suburban communities, are proving valuable in meeting various wartime problems. Cities throughout New York banded together in war zones for mutual aid through interconnections of water systems and interchange of materials and personnel. Washington, D. C., led in planning interconnections with adjoining communities, establishing intercommunications systems between emergency repair groups, and exchanging equipment.

MARRIED

DEVINE—CUNDELL

Rev. W. B. Morgan solemnized the marriage on Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 15th, at three o'clock in St. Martin's church, Woodroffe, of Miss Ida Margaret Cundell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Cundell, of Woodroffe, to Sapper Denzel Neilson Devine, R.C.E., of Petawawa, twin son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Devine, of Shawville, Que.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by Miss Helen Hemphill, as maid-of-honor and by Miss Reta McMillan, as bridesmaid. Cpl. W. J. Clifford Devine, brother of the groom, was best man.

A floor-length model of white brocaded satin in lily-of-the-valley design was worn by the bride. Fashioned on graceful lines, the long sleeves tapered to points over the hands and her veil was arranged from a halo headdress. She carried an arm bouquet of mixed Autumn flowers.

The maid-of-honor was in pale blue sheer, made with a shirred bodice and long sleeves. Her headdress was fan shape and she carried a bouquet of mixed Autumn flowers. The bridesmaid chose a floor-length model of pink sheer with an embroidered motif and long sleeves. She wore a similar headdress and carried an identical bouquet.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Grace Kirkham, sister of the groom, and Master Arnold Kirkham, of Kirkland Lake, Ont.
