

Road development push includes new Bromont park exit

BROMONT — Road Minister Bernard Pinard announced Friday that work will begin immediately on a $600,000 3.2-mile access road linking the Bromont industrial park and regional airport to the ET Autoroute.

Speaking at a news conference Saturday, he said completion of the project is expected by the end of 1971, when the $21,000,000 IBM plant now under construction is scheduled to begin operation.

Speaking to The Record after the conference, the MNA from Drummondville stressed the efforts being made by the Bourassa government to aid the establishment of secondary industry in the province.

He referred to the Trans-Quebec highway as being one of his department's "top priorities".

"Sherbrooke is one of the greatest industrial areas of the province and must be treated as such. If Sherbrooke is going well economically, then the whole region benefits."

Earlier he had said, "In future, we will build roads to aid economic development and this Exit 41 to the industrial park is an indication of things to come."

MNA for Drummondville, the 47-year-old father of three was first elected in 1962, serving continuously except for the 1966-1960 period. He was named Minister of Roads in the Lesage Government during 1960.

Accompanied by senior departmental civil servants, Pinard said he would return to the area shortly to announce further road improvements which are currently being considered by his engineers.

The Minister praised those responsible for the development of the Bromont area, especially Mayor Germain Desourdy, and said "each area which embarks on a similar self-help program will receive the fullest co-operation of the Ministry of Roads to ensure manufacturers have easy access to major markets."

The ET municipality received national attention from the business press this summer with the announcement that IBM Canada Ltd had selected Bromont over 100 other locations for its computer components plant, and notice of another major industrial firm signing up should be made in two weeks, Mayor Desourdy said Friday.

"We must work together for the common good to build Canada into a strong nation, and Bromont is in the forefront of this movement," he said.

Bromont's ideal industrial location coupled with the business-like zeal of its promoters seem to have ignited the imagination of the Quebec economic community. It's no accident that IBM decided to come here, he said, just look at the advantages we can offer.

They include 6,000 acres zoned for an industrial park, a regional airport, the proximity of Montreal via the autoroute, a railway main line, adequate water supplies, Catholic and Protestant regional schools, the bilingual culture, year round sports and the fact that 100,000 persons live within a 15-mile radius of Bromont, Mayor Desourdy said.

Dignitaries present for Friday's announcement at the Bromont Ski Chalet included Mayor Germain Desourdy of Bromont, Bob Charlebois, resident manager, IBM Canada Ltd, Mayor Roland Desourdy of Cowansville, Armand Russell, MNA — Shefford, Jean-Jacques Bertrand, MNA — Missisquoi, and Jean Leduc, director of services, City of Cowansville.

Ministry of Roads officials accompanying the Hon. Bernard Pinard were Asst. Deputy Minister Claude Rouleau, District Chief Louis Paquette, Division Chief Guy Bourrelle, and Director General — Construction, Rene Blais.

Municipal election

Alds. Beliveau, Martin retire from politics

SHERBROOKE — Two members of the Civic Action League's majority-holding city council team pulled out of the election race Friday by announcing they would not seek re-election in the Nov. 1 general election.

Mayor Marc Bureau said in a news conference Friday that West Ward Ald. Hilaire Beliveau and Centre Ward Ald. Raymond Martin were withdrawing from municipal politics.

The mayor's announcement came as little surprise to observers, in view of rumors floating in political circles lately that finance committee chairman Raymond Martin would not seek a second term.

As for West Ward Ald. Hilaire Beliveau, having terminated his three-year mandate, the mayor's announcement confirmed comments from close friends of the 48-year-old building contractor that he was unhappy with municipal politics.

At the same time, Mr. Bureau said that six of the remaining eight-man CAL squad would run for re-election.

Seeking re-election are East Ward champions Romeo Quintal and Gerard Deziel, Centre Ward's Raymond Bergeron, North Ward engineer Luc Lamoureux, Mayor Marc Bureau and council rookie Romeo Bergeron in the South Ward.

But the last minute withdrawal of the two aldermen also vacated two important seats on council, in addition to weakening the eight-man team.

In his message, Mr. Bureau said the city could have benefited longer from their experience and wisdom.

"During their brief stay on city council, both men succeeded well in getting to know their city, its possibilities and its problems," the mayor said, "they also succeeded in learning how to work as a team on prevailing issues."

During the same press conference, Mr. Bureau also announced the opening of the CAL election campaign.

In spite of the opening, he would not say when a new slate of candidates would be introduced to the public.

"We have two months to go," he said, "name dropping now would be immature."

But judging from the tone of confidence in the mayor's voice, he made it clear the CAL was getting ready to load a strong team into the election battlefield.

Reginald St. Laurent, president of the four-year-old Civic Action League, said plans were underway to complete the aldermanic slate.

Although Mr. Martin stated he would be of better help to the city as a businessman rather than an alderman, he did say that he might actively participate in the upcoming campaign if he was asked to.

Mr. Martin said he was leaving municipal politics to safeguard his business interests throughout the city.

"By creating employment, I think I will be of bigger help to Sherbrooke as a businessman rather than an alderman," Mr. Martin said.

He was elected to council just one year ago, replacing Centre Ward's Marcel Savard who had resigned from his seat after more than 12 years of service.

The second CAL candidate to be elected to council after the 1966 Quintal breakthrough, Mr. Beliveau joined city council to promote the betterment of living conditions in Sherbrooke.

Back in 1947, Mr. Beliveau started his campaign for better housing and revamped housing institutions.

RAYMOND MARTIN

He once said that he had failed in his crusade to provide better living conditions for a greater number of people.

Nevertheless, during his three-year term, Mr. Beliveau fought for the idea of building an industrial park, fostered the city's urban renewal committee and almost singlehandedly launched the low cost housing projects now under construction in the city.

In addition, Mr. Beliveau is the council member who awakened the city to the need for better technical services.

"All I can do is wish both men lots of luck in carrying out their new self-imposed assignments."

Mayor Bureau said Mr. Beliveau's departure was "very painful" and regretful.

Close police watch makes weekend one of safest

SHERBROOKE — Complete mobilization of the Quebec Police Force on the province's highways contributed to make this Labor Day weekend one of the safest in Quebec history.

Here in the Eastern Townships, an estimated 100 Quebec Force policemen kept an eye on highways and secondary roads.

There was only one highway fatality reported in the ET this weekend. It occurred Sunday on a secondary road near Disraeli, when an 18-year-old youth was killed in a car crash.

The victim was identified as Pierre Guy of Black Lake.

A APF spokesman in Sherbrooke last night said close surveillance of highway conduct induced motorists not to exceed the speed limit.

Instead of handing out harsh reprimands to guilty motorists this weekend, the Quebec Police Force handed every highway violator a copy of the Quebec highway safety code.

"The sight of motorists being stopped by our patrol cars was almost enough to convince people to keep a cool head on the road," the QPF spokesman said.

There were few serious traffic accidents in Sherbrooke over the three-day weekend, but local police reported a number of thefts and break-ins.

In Magog, police said break-ins reached epidemic proportions over the weekend with a total of seven being reported.

On Sunday morning, a shed fire in a house located at 892 Main Street caused an estimated $1,500 damage.

A jail break late last night at the Cowansville prison marred and otherwise peaceful weekend in Missisquoi county.

The escapee was identified as Marcel Desjardins, a 20-year-old man serving a prison sentence for armed robbery and car theft. Police said the convict was not dangerous.

And 72 fatalities across the nation

At least 72 persons died in accidents across Canada during the three-day Labor Day holiday, 61 of them in traffic.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local times Friday to late Monday night also showed three persons drowned, two died in fires, two in hunting accidents, one in an airplane crash and three in other accidents.

The Canadian Highway Safety Council predicted 70 would die on roads during the three days. Last year 112 died in accidents, 82 in traffic.

Twenty-nine persons died in Ontario, 27 in traffic mishaps. One person died in a hunting accident and one died from injuries in a boating mishap.

Fourteen persons died on the road in Quebec and one was drowned.

Eleven persons died in British Columbia, nine in traffic, one in a fire and one in an airplane crash.

Manitoba reported five deaths, two in traffic, two in miscellaneous accidents and one drowning.

Alberta had three traffic deaths and one in a fire while two persons died in traffic accidents in Saskatchewan.

In the Atlantic provinces, Nova Scotia reported three traffic deaths and New Brunswick one.

One person drowned and one died in a hunting accident in Newfoundland.

Prince Edward Island reported no fatalities.

The survey does not include industrial deaths, known suicides or slayings.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A staff report to the United States national commission on the causes and prevention of violence released Monday night recommended the legalization of marijuana. The report also said the violent crime rate by urban blacks is markedly higher than whites and suggested improved ghettos conditions as a means to solve the problem.

The report called for legalization of marijuana to persons over 18 years old. "There is not reliable scientific evidence of harmful effects, nor is there evidence of marijuana's being a stepping-stone to hard narcotics," the report said.

"Through our harsh criminal statutes on marijuana use and in light of evidence that alcohol abuse accounts for far more destruction than any known psychoactive substance today," the report concluded, "we have caused large numbers of our youth to lose respect for our laws generally."

Turning to violence, the report said, "if present trends are not positively redirected by creative new action, we can expect further social fragmentation of the urban environment ... greater segregation of different racial groups and economic classes ... and an imposition of presumptive definitions of criminality on the poor ..."

During the course of the Culbertson-Lenz match Ely Culbertson came out with a new book. He autographed a copy to Sidney Lenz as "The grand old man of bridge" and another to Oswald Jacoby as the grand young man of bridge. Sidney was 57. Jacoby 28. Today there are great players who are considerably older than 57 or considerably younger than 28. In both the Official System as played by Lenz and Jacoby and the Culbertson System, the single jump overcall was supposed to show a very good hand. Young Jacoby insisted on using a weak jump overcall.

These weak jump overcalls were the first psychic bids. Jacoby has used them ever since as do most modern experts. In addition, they have become part of both the Roth-Stone and Kaplan-Sheinwold systems and have even become an option in Standard American. They are also going to be used in Jacoby Modern, although never with hands quite as weak as the one that Jacoby bid against the Culbertson's.

Ely's hand was a good sound opening diamond bid then, now or any time in the future. Ely had not thought of the idea of an ace-asking bid at that time and the Culbertson's might well have reached the diamond slam without Jacoby's interference but once he threw that monkey wrench into their machinery they couldn't stop.

Jacoby's eight of spades lead was a most fortunate one. Without a spade lead the slam would have been a cinch. Jacoby didn't think that Lenz held the spade ace. He wanted to get Ely to play the ace from dummy if dummy held it. As it was, Sidney took his ace and returned the suit to Jacoby's king.

PAST... On September 9, 1776, the term "United States" became official. The Second Continental Congress ruled that where heretofore the words "United Colonies" had been used, the style be altered, for the future, to the "United States."

FUTURE... Black migration to the suburbs will increase sharply in the years ahead as black income increases. A decline in younger blacks in the central city will be pronounced.

Brome Fair succeeds in spite of rain

WELCOME BROME COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY

WATERLOO'S GEORGE YOUNG

JORGE AND HIS BAFFLING CAR

BROME — Two days of rain failed to quell the enthusiasm of the 30,000 and more people who attended the Brome fair this weekend.

On Saturday, opening day of the Brome County Agricultural Society fair, intermittent rain and a heavy overcast watered the attendance down to just a few thousand.

Sunday, sunny skies drew thousands into the gates of the 114-year-old fair.

Yesterday, a thick line of people were seen pouring into the gates throughout the day.

In spite of the 50 per cent rain fall, one fair official said the total attendance for this year was just one third down from last year.

With Brome Fair being on the tail end of summer, people from a 100-mile radius surged into Brome over the three-day weekend to come to the fair.

Among the visitors included Don Martin of Lennoxville who propelled his 1925 "Star" all the way to Brome.

W. G. Sharman of Scotstown paraded his prize Scotch shorthorns in front of the grandstand at Brome for the 63rd year.

The single ox and oxen team of Frank Cousens was also part of the giant animal parade yesterday afternoon.

In all, there were about 280 livestock entries, Albert Smith, secretary-treasurer of the Brome fair said, 156 horses and three calf club showings.

The Lawrence Carr midway quenched the people's thirst for adventure and the Gastoni attractions glued thousands to the grandstand throughout the Labor Day weekend.

Farm produce presented at this year's fair turned out to be of the highest quality ever to emanate from the county.

But the livestock at this year's fair was probably the finest to be presented at any fair in the province so far this year.

It was an all-around successful fair, the president R. Crandall said last night, "we had a hard working team of directors looking after things."

Bates brings flair to ladies ready-to-wear

LONDON (AP) — Designer John Bates has brought high fashion to the ready-to-wear racks without sacrificing originality or chic.

His sportswear for Capricorn clothing and his dresses for Jean Varon are among the most successful offerings of the young London houses.

His mid-season collection showing Monday was typically up to the minute and competitive.

Capricorn featured long and short midis, hitting just above the ankle and three inches below the knee.

Cossack and Strider, the first trimmed with fur at collar and cuffs and the second worn with turn-up trousers, epitomized the shorter, fitted look, while Nocturne, an extravagant purple creation swirling with scarf, typified the longer, lusher look.

Knickers, a Paris favorite, having gone to the designer's head—and dropped to his model's toes in Dervish, a black wool maxi-knickerbocker and coat outfit. Another variation on the same theme was Natasha, this time a black velvet, the knickers fully bloused to the knee and tightening into stovepipe legs.

The Jean Varon dress collection was less imaginative and overdid the little-girl look, with puff sleeves and rounded necklines, braid and ribbons.

More unusual was Bizarre, a sage jersey print with fitted waist, easy skirt and tight sleeves, worn with a cropped, black bolero.

Varon day wear was also strong on knickers, especially in brushed rayon and worn with long, sleeveless cardigans. Delight, in chocolate brown rayon, was just that: A sleeveless, blousy outfit with matching scarf wound round the head.

The designer let his imagination rip after dark. A series of black and figured panne velvet outfits stole the show, demurely dashing with round neck and long sleeves and skarkly sexy with hip-slung skirt and diminutive bolero top.

Ankle-length dresses in white trevira crepe and silver lame brought sparkle to an evening dominated by black and brown.

Lindbergh talks again

Charles A. Lindbergh has one great claim to fame — he was the first person to carry out a solo flight across the Atlantic, although not the first to span the ocean in a heavier-than-air craft.

But, regretfully for his place in history, he has not been satisfied with this achievement but has selected to undermine his stature with nonsensical utterances on international affairs and the Second World War.

Shortly his wartime journals will be published, and they contain a preface in which he contends that, in the perspective of history, the United States lost the war.

His reasoning is that the defeat of Germany and Japan was secured through the support of "the still greater menaces of Russia and China which now confront us in the nuclear weapons era."

He paints a grim picture of the destruction of Western civilization and especially of "the loss of genetic heredity formed throughout of many million lives."

Apparently Mr. Lindbergh, whose Nazi sympathies were well-known at the time the Second World War broke out, is still prepared to go along with the thesis that it was wrong to go to war with Germany. It is also apparent that he is still preaching the repulsive Nazi doctrine of genetic and racial superiority.

It was this doctrine which was one of the major reasons why the allied countries fought the axis.

There might be a partial degree of truth in his suggestion that the world has not been safe for democracy. Constant vigilance is still the prime requisite for freedom. But at least the free world is still free. But what would the world be like today had Hitler's Germany been allowed to pursue its bloody policies of aggression and calculated genocide?

Garbage as cattle feed

A popular cartoon series on television, "The Flintstones," has one gimmick in which Wilma, the housewife, uses a Stone Age bird as her barnage disposal unit. The cartoonists did it for laughs, but a Norman, Oklahoma, industry is serious about it.

This particular company is keeping ten head of cattle on the fifth of their plant in Norman, feeding the animals processed garbage in edible form.

The goal is to produce a cheaper feed and help find a way of disposing of mountains of garbage. The cattle who have piped-in music to keep their spirits up, seem to be thriving on a diet of half alfalfa, a bit of grain and a lot of refuse — including tree trimmings, meat fractions, plastics and paper.

The experiment is being run under careful, scientific conditions and may eventually be an answer to both the high price of cattle feed and the nagging job of ridding cities of refuse. The cattle will be bred and their calves will also be part of the experiment.

Comment by Cuthbert Jones

There is an old saying that where there is smoke there is fire. This is not necessarily true, but from the amount of smoke reportedly seeping from a hotel room in Saskatoon last week, where 30 prominent Western members of the Conservative party were meeting, to indicate that the air was pretty hot inside.

If the smoke is any indication, it would appear that the federal Conservative party is running true to the tradition it has created during the past half-century for the regularity with which it adopts leaders and then throws them away.

There can be no arguing the fact that Robert Stanfield, the man chosen to succeed John Diefenbaker, has failed to come up to the hopes and expectations of major factions in the party.

Naturally there have been denials that the unofficial and very unsecret caucus of Western Conservatives dealt with leadership worries.

But keyhole listeners gained the impression, probably with justification, that there was dissatisfaction over Mr. Stanfield's direction and the fear that with him as leader the party has little chance of beating Prime Minister Trudeau and his Liberals in 1972.

But the malcontents fail to realize that a leader is no better than the policies his party represents. With the Conservative party at the present time having no policies worthy of the name, it is not surprising that Mr. Stanfield has been making little or no impression on the minds of the Canadian voters.

Of course, some of the blame may rest with Mr. Stanfield and his inner sanctum advisers. Accepting the dictum that a leader is supposed to lead, Mr. Stanfield should be telling the parties what its policies ought to be.

But he has shown little indication of being an instigator of policy. He apparently takes his advice from a group of minor advisers who have little appreciation of what the majority of Canadians want or need.

Apparently they are failing to inform him of the incredible mistakes being made by the government and he appears unable to understand the important ones or present effective criticism.

It can be said that Mr. Stanfield is not in the class of Mr. Diefenbaker. Few can match the scene-grabbing ability of the Old Warrior, not even Mr. Trudeau. But in television or platform appearances, the latter comes across as a person possessing star quality, with a subdued eloquence to match, while Mr. Stanfield loses more voters every time he appears before the screen.

This is unfortunate for the nations at the present critical time. It goes beyond the fate of the Conservative party. For effective government there must be a credible alternative to the administration in the wings or one party will assume the mantle of rule by divine right, a feeling the Liberals have sought to generate for the past forty years.

Unless Mr. Stanfield and his Conservatives can improve their image in the next 18 months, sadly there will be no convincing alternative to the present Liberal government.

Pitman, Lewis on NDP hustings

OTTAWA — Recently, a woman member of the NDP who slogs at party work spoke to me about Stephen Lewis.

"For all his bright talk and the routine he plays out of talking with you, I feel after being with him in a small group for the first time that his is a very perfunctory ear. Behind the brittle eyes there's a hard mind saying 'bear with this, Stephen, it's part of the process.' I'll have to take a good look at Pitman."

A few days ago she had the chance. Her reaction? "Now I'm really on the horns. Pitman is so darned likable, so nice. I found myself wishing he were a Liberal or a Tory so I could work up a mad toward him and to confirm a feeling I have that nice men are always innocuous. How could anyone fail to like him? And how could any New Democrat not want a bit more crankiness and a lot more attack?"

Monday another party loyalist came from a session with the barnstorming Lewis. He was impressed. Is he still stringing his paragraphs with 500 words? "No, his vocabulary was plain." Did you find him flaunting a kind of Lewis intellectualism, rich in avowals of proletarian empathy, a kind of Shavian shop steward? "Not at all. He hooked us into the legislative and economic scene," said my friend. "I could have listened to him for hours."

This friend had only one qualifier to his total enthusiasm. He felt there was a conscious straining after simplicity and niceness. "A kind of bridge over to Pitmanism."

With a month to go in the Ontario NDP leadership contest, Mr. Lewis is generating warmth to soften a reputation for ruthlessness.

Mr. Pitman? "I'm getting self-conscious as hell about the sweet Walter stuff. Oh, I can sense it wherever I go, members silently thinking: Nice all right but can he be nasty enough? I think I can. At least I'm tougher than the label of nice-nellyism warrants."

I asked Mr. Pitman if he and his rival weren't "coming" the Ontario public with their caravans, press conferences, etc. After all, the party makes much of two intrinsics. Policy is developed democratically out of annual conventions. And in the caucus of elected members, the leader is merely the first among equals, not the lonely maker of decisions and policies.

"All you and Lewis can present in all honesty is yourselves to party members on your styles and competence at basic political skills, not as differing symbols of party positions to the general public."

Pitman agreed that the convention and the caucus had greater roles than in other parties and that he and Lewis had, or were likely to have, few differences over policy. But the interest throughout the province wiped out any argument that this race did or should lack interest for the general voter. The most astonishing response he'd found was a keenness on provincial matters. There was small tendency anywhere, even with reporters, to drag in Federal issues.

There's a real hunger for talk about schools and housing and the municipal structures of government and the environment. Most exciting of all, when he spoke in terms of becoming Premier no one laughed or bridled. "We're not on the fringe any more. We're taken seriously."

My own view of the Lewis-Pitman contest was prejudiced firstly, by a close, friendly association with Pitman when we were both Federal MPs, secondly, by a personal aggravation dating back many years at the proprietorial reach all the Lewis family exhibit about the party. The latter phenomenon is natural to them. Stephen's father has been the single, strongest continuity and influence in it since 1935. Others wax and wane. The Lewises continue and they excel.

Aware of this bias, I've taken the time to vet the Ontario Hansard from last November through to June. The most surprising evidence was the high level of participation by both Lewis and Pitman in many, often overlapping, fields. Pitman is slightly ahead in total contributions (largely because of his lead role as education critic) but Lewis threw a bit larger loop, notably in Northern Ontario affairs.

Each is impressive in the assembly record, almost equally so in terms of being informed and persistent. Pitman's greatest fault is that he makes an excellent critical case, is good at projecting alternative policies, but then he lets the ministers off the hook, especially Bill Davis, the smooth minister of education. He skirts personality attacks. He's a bulldozer. He's positive. He gets a much better audience. Clearly, he is rather well-liked, even by political rivals. Even a cultivated "know-nothing" like Stan Randall tenders him respect.

Lewis has the contrary virtue (or fault, depending on what you think vital in partisan politicking). He goes for the throat. He can hardly bear to leave a riddled target. He's far too smart and poised and ably verbose for most of the legislative competition.

Repeatedly one finds evidence of his skill as a "quick learn," digesting and attacking with well-arranged data and arguments, often arguments which zoom over his audience in hundreds of polysyllables which would adorn an Oxford Union debate.

Clearly, he is not a favorite in the House. He's more feared than Pitman. He scares off the comment, pro or con, of the average guys in the Assembly. In sum, he's a considerable opposition politician, only topped as a hatchet-wielder by Morton Shulman, only matched as a partisan advocate (how he flaunts his proletarian identity with the working man) by Donald C. MacDonald. Another bonus Lewis provides is his willingness to aid with interjections and more sophisticated addenda for many of his party colleagues, especially those from the North.

After this arm's-length review of the two as Hansard shows them, the choice between them, as I see it, is just between styles and personalities.

Each has drive, ability, lots of knowledge and the capacity to develop. Neither is far from the other in policy and judgments. Lewis is the superior, attacking, opposition man. It would be hard to plump for one as the better Premier prospect. It would reduce itself for me, if I were a voting delegate, to which man would most attract the unattached voters at a general election. And that choice puts me back with the prejudice I had before I began to read.

Mother Nature

MARTHA'S VINEYARD, Mass. — The other night I was home reading a book when I received a telephone call that MOTHER NATURE was dying. I dressed hurriedly and rushed over to the hospital. A lot of people had gotten there before me and they were all sitting in the waiting room crying and wringing their hands. I searched out the doctors who were in another room having a heated argument as to how to save her. Each doctor seemed to have a different remedy.

One doctor said, "We have to get her some fresh air. She can't breathe. We'll have to turn off the power plant because of the smoke."

"Are you out of your mind?" another doctor said. "We turn off the power, and she'll freeze to death."

"Perhaps we could keep all cars away from the hospital," a third doctor suggested. "That would relieve her breathing."

"Out of the question," a fourth doctor barked. "How would we get back and forth to work if we prohibited cars near the hospital?"

"Gentlemen," another doctor said. "I don't believe it's the air that is hurting her as much as the water. We have to find some water that's drinkable. Strong measures must be taken immediately against polluting the hospital water."

The director said, "Where would we get the money to support the hospital if we closed down the factories because they're polluting the streams?"

"We'd also have to give up detergents," a doctor added. "and we can't have a clean hospital if you give up detergents."

"Isn't anybody going to do anything?" I shouted.

They saw me for the first time and one of the doctors said angrily, "We're sorry, this is a medical conference for professionals only. Would you kindly leave?"

I walked out and down the hall. Suddenly I saw a closed room, which had the name MOTHER NATURE hand-printed on the door. Underneath it, in large red letters, was another sign: NO VISITORS.

No one was in the hall, so I opened the door. There was MOTHER NATURE propped up on pillows. She looked old and tired and haggard. I couldn't believe anyone could have changed so much in 10 short years. But she seemed glad to see someone and smiled weakly.

"Hi, Ma," I said. "You're looking swell."

"You wouldn't kid a very sick lady would you," she said, gasping.

"No, I'm not kidding. You look wonderful."

"I've just been talking to the doctors and they say they'll have you on your feet in no time."

"Those quacks don't know anything," she said. "All they do is come in every few hours and take my temperature and give me something to relieve the pain. I think I've had it this time."

"Don't talk that way, Ma. You're going to pull through. You've survived worse things than this before."

"It's never been this bad," she said and then started having a coughing fit. "This time the grim reaper's coming to get me."

"But if you go, we'll all have to go, Ma," I cried.

"You have to hold on. Please, Ma."

"I kept complaining of pain," she whispered, "but no one would pay attention to me. I said, 'If you keep doing what you're doing I'm going to die.' But everyone said, 'Ma, you'll never die.' Why didn't they listen to me?"

"We're listening now, Ma. We're listening. We have the best doctors in the world. They're out there now, and they have a plan."

"I guess the real thing that hurts," she said, "is that my will won't be worth anything now. I left every person in the world clear water, pure air, green fields brilliant sunsets and blue skies. It wasn't much, but it was everything I had."

Just then the door opened and a nurse came in. She went over to the bed waving a thermometer.

"Come on Mother. It's time to take your temperature."

A cruel dilemma

By Frank Mankiewicz and Tom Braden

WASHINGTON — Politics is the cruelest of American sports, and the current example which proves the point is New York's Republican senator, Charles Goodell.

Gov. Nelson Rockefeller named Goodell to Robert Kennedy's Senate seat, from a final list of three men. Rockefeller made his choice, so he told Goodell, because it didn't seem right to appoint former Sen. Kenneth Keating, whom Kennedy had defeated, and because Goodell's voting record was more like Kennedy's than was that of Rep. Ogden Reid, who had a stronger claim on the governor's friendship.

So it was Robert Kennedy whom Rockefeller was thinking about when he made his choice, and Charles Goodell, taking the hint, became at once a Republican spokesman for much of the Kennedy program.

For his pains, he is — as of this moment — the senator least likely to be re-elected. The cruel fact is made the more cruel when it is considered that Goodell's switch from a moderate conservative to a strong liberal was right politically.

There is a cardinal rule in New York politics, which is that the only way a Republican can be elected senator is to be a liberal, and Goodell became a liberal all the way — on Vietnam, most importantly — but also on defense expenditures, on conservation and on the Clement Haynsworth and Harold Carswell appointments.

But the trouble with the cardinal rule is that it contains a corollary: Even a liberal Republican can't beat a Democrat with equal liberal credentials.

Goodell might have beaten Theodore Sorensen or Arthur Goldberg if the Democrats had nominated either for the Senate race. But according to his own early polls, he cannot beat Congressman Dick Ottinger, who is running on a platform at least as liberal as his.

Herein lies another cruelty. For Goodell made his mark — and he made it nationally — by his opposition to the war in Vietnam and his insistence that the Congress should set a date by which American troops should leave.

While Goodell was thus inventing the amendment now called McGovern-Hatfield, Ottinger was side-stepping. In fact, Ottinger's credentials as an opponent of the war are not as good as his campaign advertising suggests.

In 1965, Ottinger exhortated college students for opposing the war, calling them "ignorant" and suggesting that they take their placards to Hanoi. He defended President Johnson's Vietnam policy as "one of the greatest acts of statesmanship in world history." As late as November, 1969 he was arguing that Goodell's withdrawal plan "would play into the hands of the most militant Communist elements."

So cruel and unusual punishment is ahead for Goodell next month when he sees the Ottinger television blitz portraying the candidate not only as totally opposed to the war in Vietnam but as the man "who does something about it."

A further cruelty is that Goodell's running mate, Gov. Rockefeller, will have the best-financed campaign in the country, while Goodell — as of this writing — will have the worst. Goodell cannot draw on private funds as Ottinger can, and Ottinger's posture on Vietnam has dried up the peace contributions which might have been expected to flow to one of the Senate's leading critics of the war.

Conceivably, Goodell might win — drawing support from Democrats — if he had the million and a half dollars or more which Ottinger will spend. But as he starts his television campaign next week, Goodell has $200,000, and when that is gone the campaign will run dry.

On or about Sept. 15 Rockefeller will receive a personal visit from his senatorial running mate, and the message he will bring is predictable: "If you want a strong Republican ticket you'll have to help finance me."

The Rockefeller reply is not predictable. If he decided to go all-out for Goodell, he could irritate enough Republican conservatives to hurt his own chances. Thus, in his most anxious moments, Charles Goodell imagines the cruelest blow of all.

“The introduction of no-lead and low-lead gasolines at this time is no more than a sales gimmick. It will increase costs, but will not reduce air pollution.”

A. Campo

Chairman of the Board
PETROFINA CANADA LTD.

HERE ARE THE FACTS:

Some oil companies recently announced they will introduce no-lead or low-lead gasolines in the near future. Although they have implied that this will reduce air pollution, they have shied away from making a positive unequivocal statement to that effect, presumably because the facts would not substantiate the claim.

THE TRUTH OF THE MATTER

Reducing the lead content of gasoline will not solve the problem of air pollution due to car emissions.

Even the companies who plan to market a no-lead or low-lead 3rd grade gasoline do not claim that lead is a real factor in automobile exhaust air pollution. In a press release one of them said “lead in gasoline is not a major pollutant. It accounts for only one half of one percent of total car emissions and studies do not indicate it is a health problem.”

1971 CARS AND THE RIGHT FUEL

The main reason given for the introduction of no-lead and low-lead gasolines is that they are designed to meet the lower octane requirements of some of the 1971 low compression automobile engines.

It is a fact that automobile manufacturers are making modifications to some of their 1971 engines so that they can operate on gasolines of 91 octane rating. But these cars will operate as well or better on leaded gasolines of higher octane.

The real reason for lowering the octane requirement is to bring about the eventual total elimination of lead from gasolines. Lead would render ineffective the catalyst that may be used in the anti-pollutant devices that manufacturers propose to include in the exhaust systems of automobiles beginning in 1975.

It follows that the elimination of lead from gasoline before these anti-pollutant catalytic devices have been made available, will not solve the pollution problem.

On the other hand, E. I. Du Pont de Nemours Company has developed an anti-pollutant exhaust device that is not affected by lead. This device will permit the continued use of highly efficient engines and high octane leaded gasolines.

Therefore, it might well be that by 1975 some such device will be used rather than the ones that are being proposed now.

Under these circumstances it is hard to see the justification for the rush to introduce no-lead or low-lead gasolines at this time.

FINA'S POLICY

Repeatedly we have gone on record as being opposed to any marketing moves that increase unnecessarily the cost of motoring.

Although our refinery has full capability to produce competitive no-lead and low-lead gasolines right now, the production and marketing of three grades instead of two will unquestionably increase costs which, in the final analysis, will have to be borne by the consumer.

All the facts at our disposal prove that the introduction of a third grade gasoline at this time serves no useful purpose, and, therefore is not in the best interest of the motoring public.

As our present gasolines cover the requirements of all automobiles, including the 1971 models, in the best and most efficient manner, we have come to the conclusion that no-lead or low-lead gasolines will be required only in the event of the installation of a catalytic anti-pollutant device in the exhaust system of automobiles.

If the real need for such a gasoline ever becomes a fact, Fina will supply it.

Canada's steel industry may hit record production year

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's steel industry appears headed for a record production year.

However, earnings for the three major companies combined have not increased as fast as indexes of inflation since 1968, the industry's record year.

Demand for steel is strong but competition, especially from a rapidly growing Japanese industry, is tough, and costs in Canada keep rising.

There have been few layoffs in the industries, companies report, and the record is excellent compared with a current national unemployment rate of more than six per cent.

"We're operating full-out," said R. C. Varah, assistant to the executive vice-president, commercial, for Dominion Foundries and Steel Ltd. Do-fasco.

"I don't think the economy is all that badly off," he said. Mr. Varah said the effect of a decline this year in demand for consumer durables hit the steel industry during the second quarter.

He said the steel industry now is seeing expectations of a better year in 1971 in consumer durable markets.

He noted steel accounts for 94 per cent of the metal consumed in the world.

FORECASTS RECORD
Asked if he believed 1970 would be a record production year, he said "No question about it."

Peter Gordon, senior vice-president for Steel Co. of Canada (Stelco), said he believes developments in the automobile industry will be deciding factors for steel industry production levels.

The major companies and the United Auto Workers have been negotiating for new contracts, and there could be a strike.

Dominion Bureau of Statistics records show steel ingot production was 11.1 million tons in 1968. Production in 1969, when strikes in the second half cut industry production substantially, was 10.15 million tons.

During the first five months of this year, DBS records show, production was 5.19 million tons. Production through May was greater than during the first five months of 1968 and during the same period in 1969.

The dollar value of sales has increased steadily based on increased production and price increases. For the three major companies—Stelco, Do-fasco and Algoma Steel Corp.—combined sales for the first half of 1970 were $639.9 million, for the first half of 1969 sales were $612.7 million, and sales totalled $554.4 million during the first half of 1968.

EARNINGS HIGHER
Combined first-half earnings figures for the three companies were $63.1 million this year, $62.8 million last year and $62.9 million in 1968.

The first-half earnings for 1970 were about a third of one per cent greater than first-half earnings for 1968. The DBS wholesale price index of 30 industrial materials increased by 8.7 per cent during the 30-month period from January, 1968.

But "you can't keep up with the sort of wage settlements that we've had in the past few years," Mr. Gordon said.

Other problems for the industry, Mr. Gordon said, are financing costs, a shortage of coal reserves and overseas competition.

Canada's largest government-owned steel mill, Sydney Steel Corp. (Sysco), is expected to show a $10 million profit for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1970. The Nova Scotia government took over the mill in 1968 after Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. announced it would be closed as uneconomic.

Sysco, which reports to the provincial legislature, had a profit of $3.3 million during the first 15 months of its operation from takeover in early 1968 to March 31, 1969.

Production records were set in each of the company's first two years—873,000 tons in 1968 and 1,010,000 tons in 1969. Production is expected to reach about one million tons again this year.

Sysco negotiated a new union contract earlier this year and it escaped the round of strikes that hit other companies in 1969.

The Japanese industry has developed rapidly. Mr. Gordon said lower labor costs and cheaper financing appear to be the main factors in their strong position. But he expects costs in Japan will catch up with those here.

"Sooner or later they are going to be in the same position that we're in," Mr. Varah said.

Mr. Varah said pollution from industrial plants in Japan reached critical levels this summer.

"We wondered how they got away with it, and now we see that they didn't."

The Canadian industry has made large investments in pollution abatement equipment in recent years and more are planned. Part of the cost, however, has been offset by increased productivity as new equipment incorporates the latest technological developments.

Mr. Varah said the industry has not experienced a coal shortage but it has not been in abundant supply.

Mr. Gordon said the Japanese government helps its industry with financing. He said the Canadian industry will be in trouble if financing costs continue at rates near 10 per cent.

PIPELINES PLANNED
Prospects for a pipeline through Canada to take Alaska natural gas to the other states may mean a boom for the Canadian steel industry later in this decade.

Three groups are studying plans for a pipeline and Mr. Gordon says "We're right on top of them."

He said Canadian plants could begin immediately supplying pipe up to 42 inches in diameter. For larger sizes, an 18-month "lead" time to build facilities would be needed, he said.

Proposals for the pipeline from Alaska are to use pipe sizes up to 48 inches in diameter. Two plans are for lines about 1,500 miles long that would hook up with the existing systems in Alberta or British Columbia. The other plan is for a 2,500-mile line to Emerson, Man.

Maple Grove Holy Trinity Cemetery

Rebirth of pioneer spirit

August 22nd 1970 will be marked in the minds of many as the day Maple Grove witnessed a full-fledged revival of the old Pioneer Spirit. Since 1839 the Parish's 'Holy Trinity Cemetery' has been remarkably cared for under the supervision of the Rector and Wardens, in succession. Nevertheless, the passing of time coupled with the harsh forces of nature, have taken their toll.

The preservation of this particular cemetery, with its 108 year old PINE MONUMENT, is of prime interest to those who live in "The Grove" now, and to those whose ancestors had made Maple Grove their home. A group of about 60 such persons from New Hampshire, Vermont, the Eastern Townships, Montreal and Baie Comeau gathered with the local people on Saturday, August 22nd to form a "Bee" with the aim of refurbishing the Cemetery.

Men, women and children worked with keen interest, making the day a great success: two local tractors were used to bring in loads of earth for re-leveling graves; tipped headstones were reset; the cemetery fence was partially replaced; the remainder given a fresh coat; trees removed; leaves raked and cleared; shrubbery trimmed.

Picnic lunches were served by the women at noon and Tea at 3 o'clock each providing a welcome refreshing break from the tiring though rewarding accomplishments of the day. The hopes to complete the work before dusk were fulfilled and farewells brought to a close not only a day of ultimate success in terms of accomplishment but it also proved that the old pioneer spirit of togetherness "for a common purpose" can still be revived. Will we ever see this spirit again? — I think so.

As an observer it was evident that these are a proud people — proud of a heritage which dates back to the early 1800's when their ancestors embodied the core of a vital, thriving community, Maple Grove, Megantic County.

Cystic Fibrosis Horse Show is booming success

Sutton, on Aug. 23, 1970, was the locale of a successful Horse Show at El Gaucho stables when a large representation of the better equestrians and their mounts from Montreal area and the Eastern Townships carried on an interesting and varied program, in spite of rain and cloudy skies.

A colorful part of the show was the appearance of the Montreal Hunt Club, under the direction of Mr. Roland Desourdy, M.F.H. It is the oldest Hunt Club in North America, and is now located at the Bromont Equestrian Center.

Mr. Gordon Atkinson, C.B.C. Sports Commentator, donated his services as M.C., and performed in his usual interesting and efficient manner, with explanations and comments on every event in the main ring, the outside course, and the history and traditions of the Montreal Hunt Club and hunting to hounds in general.

The judges Mrs. Arne Johansson, Mr. John Sharp, and Mr. Gilbert Rihard also donated their services. Near the conclusion of the show the four above mentioned were presented with suitable gifts by Mrs. Mary Memess, president of the Quebec Cystic Fibrosis Association who thanked the assembly for their generous donations to the C.F., and specially to all equestrians who braved the inclement weather.

The Demers family of El Gaucho Stables, and the Dyer family of Whispering Pines Stables, who jointly promoted the show, were presented with the C.F. Serve & Solve scrolls for their efforts.

The equitation program, which included both Eastern and Western events, and the outside jump courses were built and arranged under the direction of Diana, Ann, and Charles Dyer of Whispering Pines Stables, who received generous assistance from many local persons in materials and work.

The financial success for the benefit of the Cystic Fibrosis Association was better than expected in view of the rainy weather, and showed clearly what can be accomplished when people cooperate for a worthy cause.

It is hoped this project will be carried on again next year with greater zeal, and improved in all departments. Sincere thanks of the C.F. Association and the joint sponsors is being extended to all who contributed to its unequalled success.

Suggest break soon in recognition talks

TOKYO (AP) — The newspaper Tokyo Shimbun quotes Japanese government sources as saying Canada may establish diplomatic relations with Communist China in the middle of October.

The newspaper says the sources, which it does not identify, believe Canada will "break off its relations" with Nationalist China but will "not state in writing" its position on Communist China's claim of territorial sovereignty over Formosa.

The Stockholm talks were making no headway because Peking insisted that Canada recognize the Communist Chinese claim of territorial sovereignty over Formosa.

The newspaper says the government sources believe Canada will call for the ouster of Nationalist Chinese representatives from the United Nations and support Peking's admission into the UN when its General Assembly meets in New York for the 25th session Oct. 20.

Ottawa has been negotiating with Peking officials in Stockholm since May, 1969, on possible establishment of diplomatic relations with Peking.

Prime Minister Trudeau said last May during a visit to Japan

A foreign ministry spokesman when asked to comment on the report said his ministry has had no official information on the progress of the talks between Canadian and Communist Chinese officials "except that the talks are still going on."

River of fish killed

SURREY, B.C. (CP) — The entire fish population in the lower reaches of the Campbell River, about 30 miles south of Vancouver, was killed during the weekend by an undetermined poison.

Don Udy, fish and wildlife conservation officer, said the kill included at least 1,000 bullheads, many flounders and cutthroat trout and a few spawning coho salmon. He said dead fish were found from the mouth of the river to a point about three miles upstream. He said a number of fish, including about 50 coho, were also found dead in the Serpentine River, about five miles north of the Campbell.

Mr. Udy said other fish, including coho of up to 10 pounds were found gasping for breath in the Serpentine but recovered quickly when moved upstream from a quarter-mile stretch that was contaminated.

Mr. Udy said heavy weekend rain could have caused a run-off of pesticides or herbicides from farms in the area, but other possible causes were also being investigated.

Some of the dead fish were turned over to the department of agriculture for analysis.

Both the Campbell and Serpentine are small streams that run into boundary bay near the Canada-U.S. border. They are favorite haunts of sports fishermen at this time of year with the coho run just starting.

MONTREAL — One hundred and five Quebec professionals — members of the Canadian Professional Golfers Association of Quebec — will tee off Thursday in the first round of the 1970 O'Keefe CPGA-Quebec championship at the City of Montreal Golf Course. The total number of entries will be known only at the next league meeting to be held Tuesday, September 15 at the Labatt outlet in Sherbrooke.

The clubs forming the circuit to date are the Voltigeurs of Fern Gagne, Motel Claude Lions, Domil Fabrics and the Papaya of Hotel Crete in Sawyerville. The latter two clubs are new

Two clubs that performed last year, the Cobra Jets of Val Estrie and the Elite Business Braves will have their players "frozen" until the decisions at the meeting are made known.

August wedding at St. Andrew's church

A pretty wedding took place August first at Saint Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Sherbrooke, when Shirley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Billing, became the bride of William, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wyatt Savage, all of Sherbrooke.

Rev. Donald Cambell officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mr. Wright Gibson played the wedding music. Mr. Andrew Patton sang The Wedding Prayer during the signing of the register. Arrangements of yellow gladioli were used as decoration in the church.

The bride given in marriage by her father wore a gown of silk organza over taffeta, fashioned on an empire line. Her floorlength veil was trimmed with the same lace as that of her dress. She carried a cascade bouquet of shasta daisies and yellow roses.

Barbara Billing, as maid of honor for her sister, was in a sleeveless lemon brocade gown fashioned on princess lines. She wore a matching bow in her hair and carried a bouquet of shasta daisies and baby's breath.

Carol Balawyder and Lynda Savage, sister of the groom, as bridesmaids wore lime green gowns identical to that of the maid of honor. They wore matching bows in their hair and carried bouquets of shasta daisies and baby's breath.

Julie Sparkes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sparkes, as flower girl was dressed in lime green and carried a basket of shasta daisies and babies' breath.

Mr. John Garneau was best man and the ushers were Mr. John Billing, brother of the bride, Mr. Dan Savage, cousin of the groom, and Mr. Robert Dowd.

Mrs. Billing, mother of the bride, was in a beige brocade gown with pink brocade accessories and a corsage of bronze daisies. The groom's mother, Mrs. Savage, wore a coral shantung ensemble with bone accessories and a gardenia corsage.

Following the reception the couple left from the bride's home, the bride wearing a cream coloured linen tailored dress under a sleeveless beige and yellow plaid coat. Her accessories were in yellow, with yellow daisies for her corsage.

Prior to the wedding the bride was entertained by Mrs. K. C. Broadbent and Mrs. J. Garneau at a linen shower; Mrs. G. Smerdon at a miscellaneous shower; Mrs. G. Decoteau, Mrs. A. Graham, Mrs. D. Westman and Miss Linda Decoteau at a pantry shower; Mrs. E. Wells, Mrs. W. Guay and Mrs. W. Bryan at a kitchen shower; Mrs. D. Savage and Miss Elaine W. Savage entertained the bridal party and out of town guests

Wedding anniversaries

SUTTON — On August 22 several relatives and friends gathered at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall, No. 158 to help Mr. and Mrs. Harry Butler, the former Mabel Garland celebrate their 49th wedding anniversary.

On entering the hall they were met by Mrs. Bernice Boule, who pinned a corsage of red roses and white daisies on Mrs. Butler and a rose bud and daisies boutonniere on Mr. Butler.

The anniversary cake presented to the happy couple by Mrs. Lynn Goyette, was made and decorated by Mrs. Vera Bell of Gilman's Corner and held the place of honor in the centre of the table, with low bowls of roses for decorations.

The bride of 49 years cut the cake and served the 45 guests present. They were presented with a purse of money as well as several anniversary cards.

Dancing was enjoyed with Garth Burnham supplying the music.

Mr. and Mrs. Butler expressed their thanks for the gifts, cards and surprise celebration.

Besides their only son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Butler, Jr., of Candiac and their only daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Don Roberts, Richford, Vt., the bridesmaid of 49 years ago, Mrs. Gladys Garland, was present. Other guests were from Cowansville, East Farnham, Graaby, Richford, Vt., and Sutton.

NEWPORT, Vt. — Open House marked the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Palin, Derby Road, held on Sunday, August 23, at their home, attended by approximately 100 relatives and friends, who extended congratulatory good wishes to the popular couple.

Mrs. Palin was presented with a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses and miniature carnations and Mr. Palin a boutonniere of a carnation tinted gold. The home was decorated with beautiful arrangements of flowers, gifts to the couple.

Refreshments were served from the dining table centered by a wedding cake, decorated in white with gold leaves and topped with the numeral 50.

Susan Palin and Mrs. Judy Bouffard, granddaughters, presided at the punch bowl and poured coffee. Oralie and Kathy Palin, also granddaughters, were in charge of the guest book.

The reception was planned by the couple's children and grandchildren. All their family were with them, except their son Douglas, who with his wife and son, sent a cablegram of good wishes from Puerto Rico, where they reside.

Mr. Palin and the former Mildred Gray were married at Derby Line on August 19, 1920, at a ceremony in the home of the bride's parents. They were residents of Derby Line, until they sold their farm in 1959, and since have resided on the Derby — Newport Road, where they established Palin's Dairy.

The couple have four children, Mrs. William (Pauline) Caputo, Newport, James and Dean of Derby, and Douglas of Puerto Rico, and 12 grandchildren.

A good number from the Boundary were among those who attended the reception.

Recent guests of Mrs. Hugh L. Wallace, Queen Street, Lennoxville, were Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Gillespie, Rexdale, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Henry Robinson, Thetford Mines, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Moore, Madeira Beach, Fla.

BROMPTON — At 6 p.m., August 16, a double christening took place in Christ Church, Brompton, with Rev. W. Walker of Richmond officiating.

The chosen children of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Daigneault, Agincourt, Ont., were baptized. Godparents of Jamie Jo Anne were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Willey, uncle and aunt, of Santa Barbara, Calif., and aunt, Mrs. Stephen Daigneault, Scarborough, Ont.

Bury Institute entertains Canterbury W.I. members

BURY — The meeting of the Women's Institute was held on August 13, at the home of Mrs. Gordon Dougherty, with Mrs. Dale Quinn and Mrs. Lionel Martel assisting Six members of the Canterbury Institute were guests at the meeting. Thirteen visitors and fifteen members of the hostess branch were also present. In the absence of Mrs. R. A. Mayhew, president, the meeting was conducted by Mrs. Robert Fitzsimmons, vice-president.

The motto for this meeting was Canadian poetry has had self respect and integrity from the first. It is a poetry of distinction quotation from Ralph Gustafson. The roll call was Recommend a book read in the past year, with fiction or non fiction.

Mrs. Herbert Rowell, secretary, read the correspondence, which consisted of two thank you notes from Stuart Coates and Wanda Sylvestre, for public speaking prizes, and a letter from Mrs. Sterling Batley asking to be relieved of her duties as secretary of the Student Loan Fund. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Garnet Morrison, showing a balance of $347.02.

In regard to getting data from the local cemeteries, Mrs. Arthur Olson and Mrs. Dan Pehlemann were appointed as a committee to interview Mr. Arthur Ward, in regard to this, and to submit their findings to the September meeting, when the date will be set for a bee to take place in September to do the necessary work of cataloguing the information taken from the head stones.

It was also decided to send two members of the branch to the Town Council in regard to the illegal dumping of trash along the roadsides and other places in the area. It to be followed up every month until satisfactory results are obtained. Mrs. Mayhew and Mrs. Fitzsimmons were appointed to attend the Bury Council and Mrs. Gilbert Wintle and Mrs. Allan Matheson to do the same at the Gould Council meetings. A copy of Mrs. Groom's letter and the decision of the meeting is to be sent to the Brookbury W.I. asking for their co-operation and support. Mrs. LaRoque presented a gift to Mrs. Douglas Clark, who has moved to her former home at Lake Megantic. Mrs. Clark voiced her appreciation of being remembered and said how much she had enjoyed the W.I. meetings, which she hopes to still be able to attend occasionally.

Mrs. Stuart Dougherty consented to act as secretary for the Pope Memorial Students Loan Fund.

Conveners' reports were heard from Mrs. LaRoque, health and welfare, further information on fluoridization, Mrs. Gerald Pehlemann, home economics, gave an amusing article on Housekeeping in 1980. Mrs. Arthur Olson, citizenship, played a recording of a talk given by Wawyer Laberee on the History of the St. Francis River, which was part of the Institute project at the recent Cookshire fair. The recording was most interesting. Mrs. Douglas Mayhew of the Canterbury W.I., expressed thanks, on behalf of their members, for the hospitality of the Bury branch. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, assisted by several others.

THE WELL CHILD
School Bus Drivers Need Special Training
By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

How safe are the school buses your children use? Some pediatricians made a survey and were dismayed to find that in some states 16-year-olds, although not allowed to drive trucks, could drive school buses. Special driver training is required in very few states.

Over half the states permit standing and even where it is not legal it may occur because of overcrowding. Add to this the fact that horseplay by the children often distracts the driver's attention and it is surprising that there are not more accidents than there are—50 children were killed and 3,800 were injured out of the 16.5 million who ride school buses.

To prevent these accidents it has been recommended that (1) the drivers be between 25 and 60 (some are over 70 in some states), (2) the drivers be given special training, (3) all school buses be yellow and equipped with special stop signals, (4) exposed seat and guard rails be covered with elastic padding, (5) rules against standing be adopted and enforced, (6) if conditions make walking to school hazardous, bus transportation be provided regardless of the distance, (7) all students from kindergarten through high school be taught the principles of highway and bus safety and (8) all buses carry an adult monitor to keep order, escort the children across streets and summon help in an emergency.

Q—My granddaughters, 2 and 10, have a vaginal discharge. What could cause this and what can be done for it?

A—Vaginitis is fairly common in girls. It may be due to a failure to clean the vulva when bathing or failure to wipe the anus after a bowel movement from the front toward the back. It is associated with infection with a bacterium, virus, fungus, parasite or intestinal worms. The children's doctor should make a smear and culture of the discharge and identify the cause if possible. The treatment should then be directed at the cause.

Q—When my son was 5 years old he fell into a coma. His spinal fluid indicated "toxic poisoning." What caused it?

A—Since toxic means poisoning, this is a vague term. Coma in a child may be caused by a severe general infection with a wide variety of germs, diabetes, uremia, asphyxia, chemical poisoning or severe epilepsy.

Inverness

Mr. Harry Lambly, and sister, Isabelle, Mrs. Tom Turner, San Francisco, Calif., have been visiting friends in the area while collecting information about their family, who were prominent in the business and social life of the community for many years. Their father, the late Mr. Norman Lambly, worked in the local registry office with his father, the late Mr. W. H. Lambly, the registrar, who was a local writer of repute, and an eloquent supporter of the temperance movement. Another forebear of theirs was Capt. John Lambly, who served for a time as harbor master at the Port of Quebec, moving later to settle on a farm on the North East shores of Lake William at St. Ferdinand d'Halifax. Their visit here among their friends was a pleasant link connecting the past with the present.

A number from here attended the special service, held annually in the Anglican Church of St. James in Leeds. This ancient church was built by British soldiers from the Garrison at Quebec, shortly after the Craig's Road was opened. A large congregation took part in the ecumenical service, conducted by Capt. Warren Joslin, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Stokes, of Theford Mines and Kinnear's Mills, and M. le cure Champagne of St. Jacques de Leeds.

Guests at the Marshall home included Mr. Harold Graham, Morrinstown, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Perry Lemoine, Mrs. Carmen Fleming, Melbourne, Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall, Dundas, Ont., Mrs. Clinton King, Bulwer, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Payeur and family, Montreal.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ross were Mrs. Mary McAnnaly, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence McAnnaly, Red Deer, Alta., Mrs. Martha McVetty, Mrs. Jim Rodger, and son, Gary, all of Lennoxville, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Maguire and Mr. Tom Maguire, Ste. Agathe de Lotbiniere.

Visitors at the Eric Robinson home were Mrs. Willie Henderson, Lennoxville, Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Lowry and family, Theford Mines.

Guests of Mrs. Gertie Wright were Mr. and Mrs. Masters, Wilmington, Del., Mr. and Mrs. Carl Crawford, the Misses Pamma and Carolyn Crawford, Mr. Herbert Crawford, Mr. Allan Crawford, Mr. Gerald Currie, and son, Cecil, Hamilton, Ont.

Dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Minnaugh were Mr. Harry Lambly, Mrs. Tom Turner, San Francisco, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Welch, Mr.

Hatley

Mrs. June Kennedy, Lennoxville, spent part of her holidays with her sister, Mrs. Willis Emery and Mr. Emery.

Mr. and Mrs. George Muth, of Newport News, Va., were recent guests of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ward and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Sanders, Philip and Margo, Willowdale, Ont., were recent callers at the Cutler home.

Mr. Brian Rice has returned to his home in St. Louis, Me., after spending three weeks with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Emery.

Friends here of Mr. Delbert Vaughan, Lennoxville, will be sorry to hear he suffered a broken hip in a fall at his home and is a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Carter have sold their farm here, and have left for their new home on the Rock Island - Beebe road.

Mr. and Mrs. Otis Patterson, Karen and Kevin, have moved to their new home, which they purchased from Mr. and Mrs. Harold Carter.

A look at the coming season

Ever heard of "ekistics"? Don't rush to the dictionary, watch CBC-TV's Tuesday Night.

Tuesday Night is really Thursday Night in disguise: the widely-acclaimed public affairs series of last season has been moved to a new night, but the tradition of interesting, sometimes provocative subjects interestingly dealt with remains.

William Harcourt, who assumes the role of executive producer of the new Tuesday Night series, reveals some of his plans for the 29 one-hour prime time Tuesday programs (at 9 p.m., starting Sept. 15):

"Several in the coming season will be produced in the regions — for instance, Winnipeg is planning a program on the Prairie French, a look at French-speaking people historically and contemporarily established in a part of Canada outside of Quebec. A Vancouver production will examine Canada's water resources in the context of the American fact.

"In Montreal, broadcaster-writer Peter Desbarats and producer Ian MacLaren will do a Tuesday Night program on the history of separatism — in the light of Rene Levesque's Parti Quebecois capturing 24 per cent of the popular vote in the last provincial election. They will examine the historical roots of the separatist movement, the events of the sixties when separatism gained national attention, and the situation as it is today.

"Jeannine Locke is back from Ireland, where she has been working on a Tuesday Night program about the shifting problems, tensions and pressures of life in the republic, as influenced by the current religious and sociological conflicts in Ulster. She says that in some ways there's a similarity with our Canadian situation, vis a vis Quebec.

"Another Tuesday Night project will be Gordon Donaldson's film on royalty and the validity of the monarchy today. Donaldson is also involved with a program on Lenin: this is the 100th anniversary year of his birth. Tuesday Night's look at Lenin will include some film footage on the 1917 Russian Revolution not seen here before, and we plan to telecast the program in October, the month of the revolution's 53rd anniversary. Working with Donaldson on this production is Noel Moore, free lance writer who was seen on camera last season on our moon shot specials.

"In various stages of planning and production are Tuesday Night documentaries on CPR, much of this shot on board a transcontinental train and produced by Don Cameron; and... The politics of entertainment, particularly on the feature film scene in Hollywood and Europe — over a period embracing D.W. Griffith's Birth of the Nation, Sergei Eisenstein's Battleship Potemkin (Russian), and Mike Nichols' Catch 22. Martyn Burke is preparing this one.

"California, the microcosm of the American dilemma. "A look at British Honduras, the last remaining British crown colony on the mainland of the Western Hemisphere, a country with a rich history and a bleak future as it attempts to find its place among the 20th century giants. Writer of this program for Tuesday Night is Ben Maartman, a Vancouver man whose script for The Manipulators drama series last season made an impact (titled Spike in the Wall, its theme was drug addiction). The documentary on British Honduras will be produced at CBC Vancouver by Doug Gillingham.

"A bearpit debate at the Cambridge Union (Cambridge University, England) between two opposing Americans — William F. Buckley, the conservative journalist-commentator, and John Kenneth Galbraith, the liberal economist and author. This is a co-production of CBC and Buckley's 'Firing Line' (for National Educational Television), and the debate will spark questions and comment from the student audience.

"We have another program in the works titled The Life Game, a look at the dilemma of the middle-aged in our society, particularly in respect to employment. This one is being prepared by Jesse Nishihata of Tuesday Night and freelance film-maker Martin Lavut.

"Last season's Thursday Night was fortunate in winning a good reputation with viewers, and we hope that people will realize that we're Tuesday Night this season. We're grateful for our successes of last season, and hope to improve the record in 1970-71," says executive producer William Harcourt.

Getting back to that word "ekistics", it's the science of human settlements as propounded by the Greek city planner Constantinos Doxiadis. The word is derived from the Greek word for house. This summer, Doxiadis held a symposium aboard a luxury yacht on a cruise of the Greek islands, and among the eminent participants were Dr. Margaret Mead and Buckminster Fuller. A Tuesday Night documentary on their discussions (theme of which was, "How man can best live in an urban environment") is in preparation by Ed Fitzgerald, a young producer from CBC-TV's youth-oriented series Through the Eyes of Tomorrow.

Her new image will soon be evident

Barbara Hamilton was once known primarily as a funny girl, the result of a few thousand laughs she inspired in such shows as television's Howdy Doody and numerous editions of the perennial stage revue Spring Thaw.

No more, not since the role of the austere, warm-hearted Marilla Cuthbert in Anne of Green Gables, the hit Canadian musical, won her critical acclaim and new fans at the Charlottetown Summer Festival, across Canada on tour, in London's West End and, this summer, Osaka, Japan.

This was her sixth consecutive season as the straight-laced Marilla, and after the Osaka engagement the actress and the character parted company.

On Thursday, Sept. 17, at 9 p.m., Barbara Hamilton stars in another serious role, that of the ailing mother in Very Special Shoes, the debut offering of a new CBC-TV series, Theatre Canada. In this half-hour color film drama, she portrays a character from the pen of Canada's best-known author Morley Callaghan.

"I think I'm a much better actress than a comedienne," says Barbara, adding that the Marilla role (for which she won a critics' award as best supporting actress in a musical, in England, in 1969) was the major turning point in her career to date.

"I'm getting a whole new image now, on TV and radio I'm almost a new face," she quips. In addition to Very Special Shoes, she has done a pilot for a proposed new drama series for Screen Gems; guest shots for an independently-produced series based on radio's Easy Aces (retitled The Trouble With Tracy); and numerous CBC radio appearances with Fred Dobbs (Mike Magee), Rod Coneybear, and on a new satirical series, Inside from the Outside.

Barbara's new radio career, in particular, is a real departure.

"I'd always been frightened of radio, ever since at the age of 19 I was interviewed by the late Byng Whittaker. He asked me questions like, 'What's the difference between legitimate and illegitimate theatre?', and when Austin Willis came into the studio and literally burned the script from under Byng's nose I was ready to flee in terror. As I recall, there was an awful lot of dead air on that program."

Barbara has a pro's approach to work; she has equal respect

IT'S SCHOOLTIME

DRIVE WITH CHILDREN IN MIND!

KEEP THEM SMILING... DON'T LET TRAGEDY STRIKE

- DRIVE EXTRA CAREFULLY around schools and playgrounds!
- Be on the lookout for children when they walk to and from school! Your vacation from school children is over now!
- BE ON THE ALERT when you are near a school bus. Of course, they have to obey all the traffic rules. But give buses a break anyway... they carry priceless cargo!
- PARENTS, NEVER STOP TELLING children about the many traffic dangers! Only then can we hope to reduce traffic fatalities. One out of seven fatalities involves a school child. One out of ten fatal accidents is caused by a teen-age driver!
- DRIVERS! DON'T HURRY WHEN YOU DRIVE! We may as well face it — we cannot reduce casualties unless we slow down! Their lives are in the hands holding your steering wheel! The minute you may save isn't worth the life of a school child.
- HAVE YOUR CAR CHECKED by an expert! Any car that is not in perfect mechanical condition is a potential murder weapon! The few dollars you spend may save a life.
- PULL OFF THE ROAD when you're tired, and take a nap!
- DON'T DRIVE at all when you've had a drink. Drowsiness and drinking are responsible for most fatal accidents!

This space in the interest of safe driving and the protection of the lives of our school children.
