Jesus and John Lennon inspire Shanghai's bold new writers

By John Ngai

SHANGHAI (Reuter) — Confucius goes to the United States to investigate declining morality, while Jesus Christ and John Lennon team up on a similar mission in China.

This is the improbable subject of a comedy, Confucius, Jesus and John Lennon, written by leading playwright Sha Yexing as a new wave of liberalism sweeps China's cultural scene.

With its theme of cultural differences between East and West, the play, when staged, will be the most daring on a Chinese stage in years, says Sha. He expects it to be produced in August.

Sha, 46, never would have written such a play 10 years ago.

"I was criticized and sent for re-education for a book on the life of city workers in the 1970s," he said.

"Rehabilitated" in 1978, he was appointed director of the Shanghai People's Art Theatre last year. He toured the United States for four months, meeting playwrights, actors and actresses.

Sha, who is also a novelist, is part of a group of poets, novelists and playwrights who are becoming increasingly popular for their bold satire and realistic treatment of contemporary China.

WINS FAME

Most of the young writers who have won fame in recent years came from the so-called Lost Generation — people in their mid 30s or early 40s who missed university because of the tumultuous 1966-76 Cultural Revolution.

As official restrictions on publication relax, old and new frustrations about life under Communism are publicly vented. Torment has been turned into creativity and inspiration drawn from painful experiences.

Some talented artists have been groomed by the state and given good jobs. Others contribute regularly to literary magazines which have blossomed in Shanghai in recent years.

Zhao Lihung was given a job as a carpenter when he graduated from high school in 1967. He became an amateur writer and completed his university education in 1980.

He now has several best sellers to his credit.

Zhao, 36, said most young artists hoped the liberal policies of supreme leader Deng Ziaoping could herald an era of artistic awareness and creativity in the arts, with more encouragement of young talent.

"Artists can only be creative in an environment without interference," he said.

Shanghai authorities seem to share this view.

CHANGES RULES

Until a few years ago, works dealing with sex or capitalist values or which criticized government policies were condemned by the official media and their authors were reprimanded.

"Now, artists can create in a free atmosphere and make greater contributions to our Socialist literature," said an official of the Shanghai Culture Department.

He said the city was sponsoring training courses for young writers whose works will now have a better chance of publication.

China Valentino, a book depicting social problems in China, was officially criticized four years ago but it became such a best seller on the black market that it surfaced in government-run book stores in 1985.

Its author, Chen Naisan, is now one of Shanghai's most celebrated women writers and her latest novel, Blue House, has been filmed by the official Shanghai Film Company.

Most authors and artists agree that much still needs to be done if China wants to restore its former glory and take a leading role in world arts and literature.

"No one knows how far liberal writers are allowed to go or how long this will last," said a writer who declined to be identified. "But, most people are optimistic that it will go on as long as the current government policies are maintained.

"Politics always intrude into literature and arts in China. History shows Chinese intellectuals are often the ones to be blamed if anything goes wrong."

Spain produces far more than sherry

One of the finest wines in the world, and one of the best bargains, is sherry. Unfortunately, many of us in our appreciation of sherry tend to forget that the country that produces it — Spain — also produces a variety of excellent non-fortified wines as well.

This is hardly a surprise when you consider the people of that ancient land have been cultivating grapes and making wine since long before the Romans conquered most of Europe. It was, however, the Romans who gave real impetus to the wine industry of such regions as Valdepenas, Barcelona, Tarragona and Andalusia when they began a brisk trade in wine some time shortly after the birth of Christ.

With its entry into the Common Market and with an increased interest in its product shown in North America, the Spanish wine industry is thriving. Production has also slowly moved away from simply vin ordinaire to a greater emphasis on the making and marketing of quality wine.

Probably the best-known region for quality wine is that of the Rioja. Situated in the north-eastern section of the country, the 43,000 hectares of vineyard hug both banks of the Ebro river as it moves eastward from the highlands of the Cordillera Cantabrica. The region is subdivided into three sections: the Rioja Alta (where most of the best wine comes from), the Rioja Alavesa and the Rioja Baja.

Typical Rioja wine is red, fruity, soft and with a lingering vanilla-like flavor of oak. It is often best after several years of aging but this "old-fashioned" emphasis on maturity has been under attack recently.

The next most important region in Spain for the production of quality wine is the Penedes region south of Barcelona.

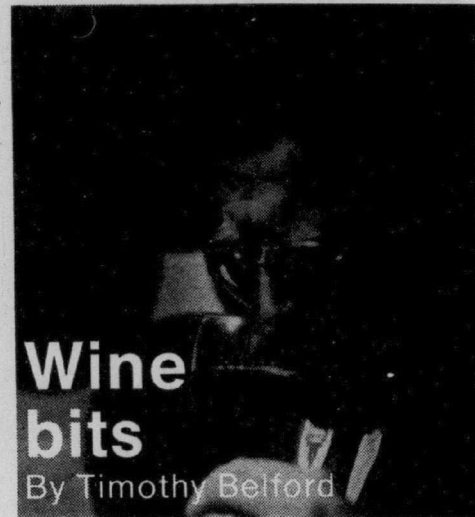

As a matter of fact, the Penedes produces more quality wine than the Rioja although nothing, in my way of thinking, to match the best from the Ebro river valley.

Like the Rioja, the Penedes region is sub-divided into three: the Bajo Penedes, the Medio Penedes and the Alto Penedes. The Bajo, closest to the sea and the hottest of the three, produces predominantly red wine while the Medio and Alto regions concentrate on the production of white wine. One of the most famous companies in the Spanish wine industry — the Torres firm — is located in the Penedes. I mention this in passing since many Torres wines can be purchased at the local SAQ.

Other regions in the north-eastern section of the country that produce wine that can often be found in North America are Tarragona — best known for its dessert wines and fruity red table wines — and Navarra which produces some very good red wine in the style of Rioja.

By far and away the largest producer of wine and the region responsible for much of the bulk wine of both Spain and Quebec, is Valdepenas and La Mancha. This giant plateau south of Madrid is an almost endless sea of grape vines. Unfortunately very little first rate wine is produced and the wines are best described in the words of Don Quixote's amiable servant, Sancho Panza, who said "I drink it when I have the taste and also when they give it to me and I do not, so as not to seem off-handed or bad-mannered."

Whatever the region, Spain produces far more than sherry to please the palate of the discerning wine tippler. Cheers!

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Wayne Newton kicked off a booking at the city's largest showroom with a party attended by civic leaders, actor Robert Wagner and actress Jill St. John.

Newton performed before a sell-out crowd in the Las Vegas Hilton's showroom and drew a half dozen standing ovations Tuesday night.

Hilton officials say Newton has signed a contract to perform 12 weeks at the resort through January 1988.

The entertainer sued over broadcasts that linked him to organized crime figures. The verdict is expected to be appealed by NBC.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television personality Art Linkletter will be an ambassador provided the U.S. Senate goes along with the presidential appointment.

President Ronald Reagan on Wednesday picked Linkletter, 74, a veteran broadcaster, author and lecturer, for ambassadorial rank as commissioner general of the U.S. exhibition at the 1988 International Exposition in Brisbane, Australia.

So its good bye to Phil Authier as another Record reporter goes on to bigger — but not necessarily better — things in Ottawa. Forties Phil somehow managed to persuade the Ottawa Citizen that his training at the Record under Chuck Bury qualifies him for a job in Slumberland on the Rideau. And Mulrone thought things were bad up until now!

Speaking of dear old Brian I, I bet he wishes he'd never given up Iron Ore of Canada. He probably wishes he'd never heard of Quebec either. If its not all the other provinces venting their jealousies over Quebec's ability at obtaining government contracts, its the news media hounding his cabinet and colleagues from La Belle Province just because of their real estate expertise. And to think, in the latest caper there wasn't even one mysterious Arab backer.

I see Mikhail Gorbachev's war on alcoholism in the Soviet Union has hit a snag. Gorbachev doubled vodka prices recently, raised the drinking age to 21 from 19 and established new store hours from 2 until 8 p.m. all in vain, however, since the hard core drinkers in Mother Russia have continued to abuse their bodies with everything from home brew to ethylene glycol. You'd think that a man as intent on modernizing the Soviet Union would realize the easiest way to cut back drinking would be to tax it to death as they do in Quebec. At that rate even shoe polish is to expensive to distill.

If I see one more cutesey article on the happy newlyweds Hisandher Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of York I think I may be physically ill, Who cares that she

And for God's sake why doesn't the media leave us to be pleasantly surprised if and when Randy and Fergy present the nation with another bouncing baby tax drain.

I was also delighted to see that TV Guide — the poor man's Saturday Night — has finally run a feature on Dennis Franz. Franz, whose facial features give him the look of someone who should be serving time in Kingston Pen, plays Lt. Norman Buntz on Hill Street

Blues. The gum-chewing Buntz, dresses like a delegate to an NDP convention — you know, paisley tie, striped shirt, tweed jacket, white shoes, matching belt — and acts like an usher at a Liberal convention — you know, Turner button, rubber hose, brass knuckles.

And finally, I see that a new book about the Fitzgeralds and the Kennedys is coming out in which we find out that apart from being charming, witty, talented and Irish, the Kennedy boys (from father Joe on down) were also sneaky, adulterous, power hungry and Irish. Lord, I do love a scandal.

Prize Stories: The O. Henry Awards (DOUBLEDAY): $24.95, 274 pp.

The 66th volume of the O. Henry Memorial Award series, edited this year by William Abrahams (co-editor from 1964-66, editor since 1966), contains 19 examples of the alive and flourishing genre, including a Special Award For Continuing Achievement for Joyce Carol Oates, who is represented by a fine story titled "Master Race".

The winning entry, chosen by William Abrahams, is "Kindred Sprits", a story from Alice Walker, whose The Color Purple was such a celebrated novel that was also filmed to great acclaim (except that director Stephen Spielberg was not nominated for an Academy Award). To the reader's dismay, the Walker story is perhaps the weakest of the selections in the 1986 retrospective, leading to speculation that the publishing industry likes to flaunt the wares of a "hot" artist just as the more flashy entertainment areas of rock music and film often do.

Far more interesting are stories by Bobbie Ann Mason, "Big Bertha Stories" about a hard-drinking strip-miner's family near Central

Kaleidoscope

By RICHARD LONEY

City, Kentucky, which is disintegrating due to Donald's persistent drinking and his being haunted by the horrors of Viet Nam — which carry over into the bedtime stories that he fashions for his son Rodney, in which Big Bertha becomes a created persona that represents "the echoes of his father's nightmare, like TV cartoon versions of Donald's memories of the war"; or a story by Jeanne Wilmot, a New York City writer who grew up in Kansas City, which is called "Dirt Angel".

Wilmot's focus is the street people, or rather the subterranean people who live and die in the Big Apple every day, and this tale of violence, depravity and squalor concludes with an emotional rendezvous beneath the city streets in a wretched warren where a girl named Pandly hangs herself, after discovering the inevitable truth about the baby she has borne in spite of her habitual shooting of heroin into her and the baby's veins.

Many of the stories in the O. Henry collection are vivid evocations of youth and of growing up in America, such as "Kid MacArthur", Stephanie Vaughn's rich study of the American army/guns/killing syndrome which is currently popular on the heels of the Rambo style films. The narrator, the sister of the boy named MacArthur, documents the lifestyle led by a father who sounds like Pat Conroy's The Great Santini personified, and the manner in which the "Kid" ends up, like many thousands of his generation, in the rice-paddies of Viet Nam, only to return to the United States as a haunted, zombie-like creature who moves from odd job to odd job, with most of his future prospects as blighted and frightening as the severed ear that his pal Dixon has sent to him as a Christmas present. The horrible memento mori becomes something that the sister is only able to escape when she sells her brother's car, with the withered ear lodged beneath the front seat.

Stories both conventional and unconventional are represented, with one of the best of the latter type to be found in Irvin Faust's "The Year of the Hot Jock", a breezy, colloquial monologue by Pablo Dega, a Panamanian immigrant to the States whose success on American racetracks as a jockey rivals that of riders such as Willie Shoemaker. Pablo is a much-travelled, ever-celebrated, woman's man who lays out his life for the reader in a non-stop confession that only ceases when the horse he is riding to the finish line takes a forward plunge and pitches Pablo into a life-ending crunch into the track.

Gathered from journals, magazines and periodicals, the stories that are considered for the O. Henry Award have appeared in The New Yorker, Atlantic Monthly, The Virginia Quarterly Review, Esquire, The Partisan Review, and The Ontario Review, to name a few of the sources.

Such lively, honest, and interesting stories as can be found here are proof that not all of the writers in North America are obsessed with grinding out abysmally dull treatises about how hard it is to write this story, and other examples of the "look at me I am actually a writer" syndrome, which unfortunately flourish and are given encouragement by the Canadian university community.

The Steve Miller Band LIVING IN THE 20TH CENTURY (CAPITOL)

On most Steve Miller albums there are one or two tracks that make it into the hallowed ground of airplay, and for the rest, well blahh. But Steve gets over this bugbear with the release of LIVING IN THE 20TH CENTURY, which can be nothing but a large improvement over the fortunes of his last, ITALIAN X-RAYS, which sunk into the vinyl ocean with scarcely a ripple of interest.

How Steve does it is by dedicating his album to the memory of early blues belter Jimmy Reed, and utilizing most of side two to highlight some of Reed's most covered and remembered songs. He kicks off with "I Wanna Be Loved (But By Only You)", and then launches into "My Babe", which was actually written by Willie Dixon, and also covered by Rick Nelson in a somewhat sanitized version in the late fifties (Willie's line was "When she's hot there ain't no coolin'", which Rick cleaned up to "When she's around she's so darn cool an'"). Another tune in the same mood as that one is "Big Boss Man", a song that Elvis covered in his Singer Special from 1968.

Steve Miller shows his obvious respect for the memory of Jimmy Reed in the way that he plays lead and sings on "Caress Me Baby", and on "Ain't That Lovin' You Baby", a tune recorded by Elvis, the Youngbloods and legions of other rockers. And even if the Reed tributes were not as tight as they are here, there are already signs that this record will be big for little Steven, as "I Want To Make The World Turn Around" from side one, has already been receiving hot video play.

The other two tracks on side one are the title song, plus one called "Nobody But You Baby", plus a couple of instrumentals wedged in, "Slinky", and "Maelstrom" which provide musical documentation of Steve Miller's passion for the music of Jimmy Reed.

With his 17th Capitol album, Steve Miller seems to have found the antidote to those lazy-filler weaknesses that sabotaged a few of his records, with this bluesy album that celebrates one of rock's minor influences in a major way.

GREETINGS FROM TIMBUK 3 (I.R.S.-MCA)

Pat MacDonald and his lady Barbara K. comprise the new wavy duet that is Timbuk 3, and their spirited, up-tempoed album contains clever tunes such as "The Futures So Bright I Gotta Wear Shades" and the innane "Facts About Cats".

MacDonald's delivery on the songs he sings is a throwback to the folksy things by people like Eric Anderson or Tim Hardin, while the instrumentation features acoustic guitars, lots of harp, folksy bass, and Pat and Barbara locked into close vocal harmonies.

Rock and folk roots vie for domination with Timbuk 3, as "Hair-styles and Attitudes" employs a variation on the old Bo Diddley riff for its effect, while Barbara's vocal on "Facts About Cats" sounds like something that Joni Mitchell would have been comfortable singing. Another strong example of the 60's influence which appears pervasive in some areas of rock, Timbuk 3 is an ensemble that should be heard from again in 1987.

VIDEO SCREENINGS LETTER TO BREZHNEV (KARL-LORIMAR VIDEO)

This gritty little movie set in post-Beatles Liverpool, England is an example of taking a cliché and turning it inside out. Everyone is familiar with the stories of ship-weary sailors getting to port and looking for action, but in LETTER TO BREZHNEV the two sailors, Peter and Sergei, are not the focus of the film at all.

Instead, a couple of tough-talking Liverpool "birds" from the suburb of Kirkby, one a flashy blonde who works in a chicken processing plant all day long, taking the gibles out of chickens, stuffing them into little bags and jamming them back up the chickens' hind ends; the other a 22 year old girl on welfare, set out to gain the attentions of the innocent pair of Soviet sailors that they encounter at a disco bar.

Having just stolen a man's wallet on a lark, the two girls are ripe for an evening's entertainment, and the blowsy, slangy "scouse" accents of the girls recall the strange lingo spoken by the early Beatles. Elaine Spencer, the unemployed brunette played by Alexandra Pigg, falls for Peter, while the gaudy Theresa, played

BCS production of Pirates will have 'delicious local flavor'

By Laurel Sherrer

LENNOXVILLE — When the Players' Club at Bishop's College School performs the ever-popular Gilbert and Sullivan operetta next week, the programs will read The Slave of Duty instead of the more familiar title, The Pirates of Penzance.

There's a reason for this, but director Lewis Evans doesn't want to divulge it before the performance. In fact, he's being pretty secretive about the whole production.

The story, as it was originally staged in 1879, has gone through some changes under the guidance of the Players' Club. But Evans would rather remain vague about those changes.

You'll still recognize the story of Frederic, the pirate's apprentice who wants to return to an honest life, but certain elements have been adapted to the time and place.

"It's an unusual concept with a delicious local flavor," Evans teases. "It's appropriate to the community."

A cast of 34, a seven-piece orchestra and crew of about seven have been rehearsing since last October for this gala production, being performed on the BCS stage next Tuesday through Sunday.

CONSTRICTED AREA

True to the BCS tradition of recent years, both the actors and the audience are located on the 60- by 20-foot stage at the end of the gymnasium. The actors are working in a fairly constricted area, but the audience is small and at an intimate distance.

The set, well, to describe it would give too much away. As for the costumes, says Lewis, "our costumes take all the romance out of Gilbert and Sullivan."

The Players' Club usually does at least one major theatrical production a year, but this is somewhat more ambitious than other year's productions, says Evans, involving more actors and, for a change, staff members. Ten staff members make up the inept police force.

The Slave of Duty is, among other things, a love story with Geoff Belisle and Leonor Mowry in the romantic roles of Frederic and Mabel.

Not only is the lively play perfect for students, but it's also a suitable choice for the school's 150th anniversary year, says Evans.

"It's an excellent play because it cashes in on our main resources," he says, "which are youth, energy, imagination and concentration."

"It's an absolutely ideal production for the 150th year because it's upbeat and lively," he adds.

REHEARSE CONSTANTLY

As opening night approaches, rehearsals have just about taken over the lives of those involved, says Evans. Now the participating staff members regard their classes as interrupting the rehearsals, rather than vice versa.

The students involved are devoting their spare time to the production. That's on top of being required to take part in sports and cadets, besides classes.

"All of these kids are the super-involved," says Evans, many of them taking part in the choir as well.

The creative minds behind this adaptation of the Pirates are those of director Evans; musical directors David Dutton and Dorothy Hewson; Gaston Côté, who arranged the music for a small orchestra; and Margaret McGregor in charge of costumes.

Pirates has been performed many times by area schools and drama clubs over the years. The director of development at BCS and member of the cast, Brad Mitchell, pointed out the historical importance of this production, saying two of the directors' fathers worked together on the very same production back in 1969 with the Lennoxville Players. Lewis Evans, Sr. and Harry Dutton collaborated on many Gilbert and Sullivan productions over the years. Evans was involved in earlier BCS productions of the Pirates.

The play was performed at BCS in 1939, 1946 and 1957. As it was a boys' only school in those years, this is the first time there have been girls to play the female parts.

The Slave of Duty is being performed Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday nights at 8 p.m. and Friday at 1 p.m. Tickets are $4 and may be reserved by calling John Strickland at (819) 566-0227. (Note that seating is limited.)

A brain tumor in 1948 cost Edwin Earle his eyesight and forced him to turn from drawing to writing.

Earle book thoroughly enjoyable

By Lloyd Bliss

I Don't Remember Getting Born, by Edwin Earle; Pigwidgeon Press, Ayer's Cliff, $5.95 U.S. or $7.50 Canadian.

I Don't Remember Getting Born, by Edwin Earle of Derby Line, is a little book, barely 127 pages, that gave me more chuckles and pleasure over the Christmas season than I have had for years. Earle has been an author, columnist, painter and observer of life for more than 80 years.

Edwin may not remember getting born but he certainly remembers the highlights of a life from childhood to the wisdom of maturity, which, combined with a gift for the use of the English language, will hold you from page one to the very end.

For those of us who know and love Lake Memphremagog, Edwin takes us through seven chapters of summer vacations on "The Lake" during the time when steam excursion boats and steam launches were barely taking over from row boats. He recalls the violence of sudden thunder storms and the beauty of sunsets over the mountains; the climbing of Owl's Head from the site of the old Mountain House and the majestic Lady of the Lake.

A city boy from Boston, Edwin had the advantage of the best of two worlds. Summer vacations and Christmas were spent at Grandpa Knight's farm just out of Beebe and he knew farm life at a time of horses, sleigh bells and farm cooking. The other side of Edwin's life was as a commercial artist in New York and for a time on a Hopi Indian reservation in Arizona. It was during his time on the reservation that his gift as an artist blossomed in a series of paintings some of which are used as illustrations in his book.

You don't have to be a senior citizen to thoroughly enjoy the humor and wisdom of Edwin's little book, but if you remember the Model T Ford era, you will get a chuckle out of his experiences with Elizabeth, a 1924 beachwagon that he purchased in 1927 and drove from Boston to Derby Line and subsequently to Arizona and on to California.

If you have met Edwin on the street with his white cane and been greeted by name before you said a word, he tells you how this came about as the result of a brain tumor in 1948 that left him without his central vision. To an artist an illustrator this could have completely crushed a lesser man. For Edwin it meant turning to writing and, with his wife, the management of a successful insurance agency. Some of his experiences with that white cane add a spice of humor.

I Don't Remember Getting Born is available at newsstands in Newport, at the Derby Line Drugstore, and at the Journal office in Rock Island and at University Book Store, in Lennoxville.

Montreal singer wants more than commercial jingles

MONTREAL (CP) — Kenny Karen's name isn't exactly on the tip of everyone's tongue, but his singing has seeped deep into the North American collective subconscious. The Montreal-born singer's voice can be heard in such jingles as "Oh what a feeling—Toyota!", "When you say Bud, you've said it all!" and "Just for the fun of it, Diet Coke."

And Karen says in the early 1970s, he wrote and sang McDonald's hamburgers ubiquitous

"You deserve a break today." Karen says he was paid a flat $500 for his effort.

Karen, born Kenny Teicher 43 years ago, estimates he has logged more than 11,000 studio sessions, singing the praises of everything from Kentucky Fried Chicken to Nissan cars.

But these days, Karen is trying to make a name for himself, not for a corporate sponsor. And he's doing it by plugging the virtues of his hometown, not some consumer product.

Copies of his four-minute-plus ode to Montreal have just been shipped to disc jockeys throughout North America.

But so far, the song has had a lukewarm reaction here.

SHOWS EMOTIONS

Aaron Rand, host of an afternoon show on Montreal radio station CFCF, says: "It's OK, but it didn't knock my socks off...It's one of those outpourings of emotions."

The song starts off: "I touch you with my eyes. I feel you with my heart. I hear you when you call. Montreal, another place in time. The playground of my mind. The sweetness I recall."

Still Rand figures that there is enough local interest in the song to play it a couple of times a week. "But I'm not going to add it as a regular piece."

Karen's newfound tenderness for Montreal represents an abrupt turnaround. He abandoned the city as a brash 16-year-old determined to make it as a singer south of the border.

"After I started writing songs and lyrics at the age of 11, there was nothing else for me," Karen recalled. "I couldn't wait to get out of Montreal."

He cut a couple of records that didn't go far. Then his manager got him a club date in Atlantic City where rock entrepreneur Don Kirshner spotted the young singer.

"He said: 'I'm Neil Sedaka's manager. Come to New York and we'll do wonderful things'."

Karen went, but the wonderful things weren't immediately forthcoming. "By the age of 18, I had experienced failure in the music business and had not a penny to my name."

So Karen ended up in Kirshner's stable of songwriters until the day he was invited to sing a jingle. "Since then, I've done an average of 500 or 600 spots a year."

IT'S A RIOT

He hummed a few bars of the music for a Sure deodorant commercial. "This is what I've done for 20 years. Isn't that a riot?"

At least it's been a profitable riot. His annual income is easily in the six-figure range. To boot, he has won a fistful of awards, including five consecutive prizes as New York's most valuable male studio singer.

Then two years ago, following the end of a longstanding relationship, Karen decided to return home. "I had tried to negate any ties to my youth, but I needed to remember."

He revisited his childhood stomping grounds, a now trendy street in the swank, central neighborhood of Outremont. The street's transformation "gives me a tremendous amount of hope for the city, and I would like to be part of it."

So he hired a private tutor to learn French, began coming back here more often and wrote his song, simply called Montreal.

"It's funny doing jingles. You hide behind a piece of glass in the studio and nobody knows who you are," he explained.

"But I believe in this song. It's very much autobiographical...This is kind of like coming out."

Hardly a trace of our ancestors' efforts left behind

'Life passes on and so does glory'

Sept. 13, 1986, I received a telephone call from a Mr. Sargent of South Weymouth, Massachusetts, who wished to meet me. We arranged for an immediate meeting in my office.

He explained to me that he was retracing his family genealogy, but when his ancestors arrived in Canada around 1800 the information was a little hazy. Someone told him that on Lake Memphremagog there was a Sargent's Bay and that perhaps I could help him.

This required a lot of research, but it has allowed me to tell you about another part of our lake.

Let us go back to the May 15, 1877, edition of the Newport Express and Standard: "The new steam ferry boat, built at Sargent's wharf, showed itself a few days ago." (It was surely the Minnie, a steamer that was in use until December 2, 1880, when it met harsh end, necessitating its demolition. Luckily we have a photo of this boat which hares witness to the splendid years of steamship navigation of Lake Memphremagog).

We all know that the "Head of the Lake" is Newport and the "Outlet" is Magog. The Head of the bay was later changed to Sargent's Bay.

ARRIVED 1793

Nicholas Austin, one of the first pioneers, arrived in the area around 1793 or 1794. In the Brome County Historical Society archives can be found a reference to a man named Roswell Sargent, living in this locality who had received a military commission in 1802 and the document was given by one of his descendants, Alfred Sargeant, in 1908.

By 1820 there were already three mills installed on the shores of the little stream flowing into the bay. Two were used for carding and cloth dressing, and the other was a saw mill. They were very important and one had been constructed by Nicholas Austin Jr. — son of the leading founder of the county of Bolton.

The first store which was built by John Austin, opened its doors in 1841, but people had to wait till 1855 to see Alexander Sargent set up business in this corner of the world. In the meantime a post office with a Mr. A.M. Bullock as postmaster was established on June 9th, 1851 under the name of East Bolton. Later Alexander Sargent, son-in-law to Nicholas Austin Jr., became postmaster on July 1st, 1868, and remained so till his death.

of the Société d'Histoire du Lac Memphremagog Inc.

Abigail, born October 28, 1819, married William Sargent. The census of 1825 showed two Sargent families in Bolton County: Isaac and William with a total of 13 children. The Canada Directory of 1857-58, the following names for East Bolton can be read: Alexander Sargent, storekeeper and Justice of Peace and William Sargent, farmer and Justice for the Peace.

Sargent well deserved the name of this bay, for around 1850 he was such an extraordinary optimist, that he built an inn which carried his name. He believed that the railway would make a detour close to his bay to leave passengers, making the place nerve-centre for rail transport, maritime or otherwise. But life passes and so does glory...

The place was very busy, for, from 1850 on the Mountain Maid, first steamer on the lake, very often visited Sargent's Bay. The first navigational map of Lake Mem-phremagog (circa 1870) indicated Sargent's Landing.

Today all that has disappeared, and it is difficult to imagine that after all these years our ancestors, having gone to so much trouble, leave hardly a trace behind. But as a diver I saw the remains of the old Sargent's Landing underwater.

WHAT'S ON

Music

Anyone who loves the saxophone and the many styles of music it can be used to perform will be interested in a concert taking place this Saturday night at the Centennial Theatre in Lennoxville. Starting at 8:30 p.m. the Gerald Danovitch Saxophone Quartet of Montreal will present a concert that includes jazz, ragtime, classical and Quebec folk music. According to Danovitch, people are still confused about what to expect from the saxophone. Often they wrongly associate it inextricably with jazz, he says, and he hopes his quartet is helping to break down this misconception. If you're game to find out what the saxophone really can do, you can reserve your tickets by calling the box office at (819) 563-4966.

A mixed program for flute, piano and other instruments is planned for next Friday, Jan. 30, at Centennial when Bishop's University faculty artists play as part of the Musique Chez Nous series. That concert's at 8:30 p.m. and tickets for this are also available at the box office.

This is really the week for saxophone enthusiasts, because in Cowansville the quartet 4 Fois Sax is playing next Saturday, the 31st, at the Ste-Rose de Lima Church. This, like the Gerald Danovitch concert, is a mixed bag of musical styles, including classical, popular, ragtime and jazz. To make reservations for this concert, starting at 8 p.m., call one of these numbers: (514) 263-6666, 263-6464 or 538-2184.

Monday night at the Pollack Concert Hall, 555 Sherbrooke St. W. in Montreal, you can hear a concert by pianist Chia Chou, the winner of the 1981 Sydney International Piano Competition. Included on the program is the Canadian premiere of a work by Talivaldis Kenins, Sonata no. 3 (1985), Motions... and Emotions. Also included are works by Beethoven, Handel and Stravinsky. This is a free concert organized by CBC Radio and the McGill Faculty of Music and it's being recorded on CBC Stereo's Arts National program. That means if you miss the live performance, you can hear it in the comfort of your own home at 8 p.m. March 10 on CBC Stereo. I'd recommend the live performance, however.

There's also plenty of local musical talent to enjoy at various gathering spots around the region. Here's what I hope is a fairly complete list:

Weekend Express plays this Saturday from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at Paul's Sugarhouse in Derby, Vt. This is not a bar, so if you want something to drink, you're invited to bring your own liquid refreshment. Across the border at the Del Monty, there's a band called Delphi tonight through Sunday. In Stanstead, the Maples has The Backroad Band Fridays and Saturdays throughout January.

Moonshine plays again this weekend at the Shady Crest in Ayer's Cliff. You'll hear them tonight and Saturday night, and again next weekend.

The Rock Palace in Sherbrooke has a Montreal band called Threshold tonight through Sunday.

In Lennoxville, the F.L. Hideaway has music by Idle Hands, featuring guitarist Bob Boisclair Fridays and Saturdays this weekend and for three more weeks. At the nearby Georgian, Mick Hall is the featured attraction Fridays and Saturdays throughout January.

The Army, Navy, Air Force Hut in Lennoxville has music by the Good Ole Boys every Saturday night from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. and Sunday from 4 to 8 p.m. from now until the end of February.

There's a dance this Saturday night at the Richmond Legion Hall. The music there is by Country Plus, and it costs only $1 to get in. This event is being sponsored by the Legion, Branch 15.

Country Fever continues to enliven the weekends at the Bar Bossa Nova in St-Elie tonight and Saturday night, and again next weekend.

And lastly, over at the Old Mill in Stanbridge East, Jet Black plays tonight and Saturday and again next week, and next Thursday night you'll hear The Backroad Band there.

Theatre

Tonight and tomorrow night are your last chances to see the "multidisciplinary event", Little Boy at the Cultural Centre on the University of Sherbrooke campus. Little Boy uses the techniques of drama, cinema, dance and music among others to tell the story of one of the pilots responsible for dropping the first atomic bombs over Hiroshima and Nagasaki during the Second World War. Apparently — and this is based on a true story — he suffered anguish over the deed ever after and went to great lengths to convince people of the wrongness of the event. Little Boy is being performed tonight and Saturday at midnight. Tickets are $12 and can be purchased at the Cultural Centre box office.

The Mackinaw Folkloric Group, coming to the Salle Maurice O'Bready (same location as the above event) next Wednesday, combines music, dance and theatre in a production that draws on Quebecois legends. Legends of the Mackinaw starts at 8:30 p.m. and if you'd like tickets, they can be reserved by calling (819) 821-7744. They cost $10.

Gilbert and Sullivan enthusiasts will be delighted, and probably a tad surprised, by the production currently being rehearsed by the students and staff at Bishop's College School. Their version of The Slave of Duty (a.k.a. The Pirates of Penzance) varies somewhat from the original — as most productions do to a certain extent — tossing in a bit of humor and color that will be particularly appreciated by the audience of the Lennoxville community. This operetta will be performed next Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Friday at 1 p.m. Tickets, for $4, may be reserved by calling James Strickland at (819) 566-0227. You can read more, but not much more, about this production on page 3.

Exhibitions/Events

Up until Feb. 6 sculptures and low-reliefs by Granby artist Yves Gendreau will be on display in the foyer of the provincial government building at 77 Main St. in Granby. Gendreau's work can be seen during business hours.

Artwork by children in the Knowlton Academy, St-Edouard de Knowlton and Sutton Schools is featured this weekend and next at the Arts Sutton Gallery at 8 Main St. in Sutton. An interesting variety of drawings by young Townships artists is promised.

Traditional Hunting in Quebec, an exhibit about, you guessed it, traditional hunting in Quebec, continues this week at the Leon Marcotte Exhibition Centre at 222 Frontenac in Sherbrooke. This exhibition looks at the evolution of hunting and its influence on our ancestors' style of life. There's more about this in Réal Hébert's column on page 12 of today's Record.

Until Feb. 6 works in low-relief moulded paper by Jim Benson are featured at the Bishop's-Champlain Art Gallery in Lennoxville. According to the gallery's press release, Benson achieves a sculptural effect by applying light paint to hand-made moulded paper to enhance the textural relationships of the reliefs.

The Horace Gallery in Sherbrooke continues to display work by Pierre Lamarche, Guy Lapointe and Arthur Munk in one room, while the other room of the gallery features Paysages d'eau by Daniel Roy.

Lorraine Simms' recent work, exhibited in the main hall of the University of Sherbrooke's Cultural Centre, examines the effect of social conditioning on people, especially woman. Her paintings are largely figurative, but in her latest work she often juxtaposes abstract elements with familiar subjects to express a more emotive response to the image portrayed.

The adjoining gallery features work by Quebec sculptors Sylvie Gagné, Christiane Gauthier, Jacek Janurskiewicz and Yvon Proulx. This is an exhibition on loan from the Montreal Museum of Contemporary Art, entitled Objets d'inédit. This exhibition, and the one above, continue until Feb. 8.

In the same building, the foyer of the Salle Maurice O'Bready has assemblages by Ola Van Soonhoven on display until Feb. 15. These are works made of paper and other materials which, according to the press release, "touch the imagination of each person, provoking questions about love, death and life."

Everyone is invited to a poetry reading by Anne Campbell at 8 p.m. Monday in the MacKinnon Red Room at Bishop's University. Campbell, a resident of Regina, is the author of two volumes of poetry: No Memory of a Move and Death is an Anxious Mother.

Now this is aimed at those who can hold their own in a fairly erudite conversation in French: A round-table discussion on literary criticism will be held, in French, at the Le Gaufrier restaurant at 440 Alexandre in Sherbrooke next Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. The guest speakers for the evening will be Joseph Bonenfant, Normande Elie, Dominique Garand and Richard Giguère. Everybody's welcome.

And, to close with, a sporting event: this Saturday evening from 9:30 to 1:30 the Men's Finals Invitational Bonspeil takes place at the Danville Curling Club. I guess that means devotees of the sport should be there with their curling irons — or is it rocks?... or stones...

Television

Townships Magazine, the only television program where Sherbrooke and area dwellers can tune in and see their friends and neighbors chit-chatting about issues that concern them, has at least four exciting guests lined up for next week (not to mention the exciting hosts, Jane Gyorgy and Laurel Sherrer). Paul Lecours, a travel agent, will be there to talk about the do's and don'ts of choosing a travel destination this winter. Greg Tuck, the Piggery theatre's new artistic director, will be there to talk about the coming season. Pianist and harpsichordist Mary O'Keefe will be on hand to talk about a concert coming up at Bishop's University. And Doug Grant will be interviewed about continuing education in the Eastern Townships School Board.

The program airs three times a week in Sherbrooke on Cable 11: Tuesday at 9 p.m., Wednesday at 11 p.m. and Friday at 8 p.m. The program can also be seen in Magog at 7 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday.

Movies

The Golden Child is the most ubiquitous of movies in the region this week, showing up at both the Cinema Princess in Cowansville and the Merrill's Showplace Cinemas in Newport, Vt. This is the story of a group of foreigners who are convinced a Los Angeles social worker (Eddy Murphy) is the one chosen to save a thousand future generations, by rescuing a child with special powers (the golden child) from the forces of evil which have kidnapped him. "It involves him in a fantastic odyssey that sweeps him from southern California to remotest China, and on to the gates of Hell and the very edge of infinity," reads the press package about the film.

In Cowansville, The Golden Child is playing nightly at 9 p.m. after Clue, the movie based on the popular board game, at 7:15.

At Merrill's the times were still subject to change when I called, so if you want to see The Golden Child, you'll have to give the recorded message a ding at (802) 334-6830.

The same goes for Crocodile Dundee, The Morning After and An American Tail, also playing at Merrill's. Crocodile Dundee is the story of a rugged crocodile hunter from the Australian outback who allegedly barely survived a close encounter with a croc. A lovely female journalist who treks out into the wilds to interview him decides it would make a better ending to her story if she introduced him to "civilization" in the form of New York City, no less. This of course is where the real test of survival starts for the outdoorsman.

The Morning After is a thriller starring Jane Fonda as a fading movie star with a serious drinking problem. Jeff Bridges plays a world-weary policeman who helps her when, after a blackout, she wakes up one morning in a strange bed beside a stranger with a knife through his heart.

At the Capitol Theatre in Sherbrooke the movie this week is The Three Amigos, a rather amusing tale of three silent movie stars mistaken for real-life heroes. This stars Steve Martin, Chevy Chase and Martin Short, and it's playing at 7 and 9 nightly as well as 1 p.m. both Sunday and Tuesday.

The Cinémas Unis at the Carrefour de l'Estrie shopping centre in Sherbrooke has Critical Condition once again this week. This stars Richard Pryor as some guy who tries to masquerade as a doctor with predictably disastrous results. Critical Condition plays at 7:30 and 9:45 nightly with matinees Saturday and Sunday at 12:45, 2:50 and 5:10.

The Maison du Cinéma in Sherbrooke has one English film this week — with French sub-titles, but I'm sure we can live with that. Desert Bloom is about a family wracked by personal problems as well as the pervasive fear of atomic Lost Empires premieres on Vermont ETV's Masterpiece Theatre Sunday, starring Colin Firth (bottom right) as Richard Herncastle. An English music hall prior to the First World War provides the setting for this story about the backstage lives and loves of various performers. Later in the season, Masterpiece Theatre showcases five Noel Coward short stories on Star Quality. Susannah York (top left) and Tom Courtenay (top testing going on near their Las Vegas home. Jon Voight is the alcoholic father, and JoBeth Williams is the scatter-brained mother of a sensitive teen-ager (Annabeth Gish). Desert Bloom plays at 9 p.m. next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

HELSINKI (Reuter)—Finland's education minister said Wednesday he will ask the government to fire three staff members of the National Theatre School after four of its students flung human excrement at an audience.

Gustav Bjorkstrand told a news conference he will recommend that Rector Outi Nyttaja's resignation be accepted and that two of her colleagues be removed.

The incident occurred in the city of Oulu last Saturday. Four male students stormed onto the stage after telling theatre staff they were going to perform a piece of their own, titled Theatre of God.

They stripped naked and sprayed the audience with a fire extinguisher and pelted it with eggs, smoke bombs and human excrement. They then drove the public out of the theatre with homemade whips and were arrested.

LONDON (Reuter) — London's Royal Court Theatre has cancelled its production of a play alleging Zionist leaders collaborated with Nazis in the murder of Jews during the Second World War.

The planned staging of Perdition by left-wing writer Jim Allen provoked angry protests from historians and the British Jewish community.

Historians consulted by the Royal Court said the script is riddled with inaccuracies.

Martin Gilbert, official biographer of Winston Churchill and author of a 900-page history of the Holocaust published two months ago, said the play contains distortions and is "deeply anti-Semitic."

Announcing the cancellation Wednesday on the eve of the play's first preview performance, Royal Court artistic director Max Stafford-Clark said:

"We have re-examined our position in the light of the representations made to us and we do not accept that there are factual inaccuracies in Jim Allen's play or that the play is in any way anti-Semitic."

"But we do accept that going ahead would cause great distress to sections of the community which finally outweighs our determination to proceed with the production."

Perdition tells of a fictional libel trial set in Britain in 1967 but is based on a libel case tried in an Israeli court in 1954, which set off a debate about the role of Jewish leaders in wartime Hungary.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — "In dullness there is no better man," said International Dull Folks, Unlimited, in naming talk show host David Letterman the dullest American of 1986.

"What more can be said of a TV host who can't get on the air until after midnight and whose schtick is a stupid pet trick?" J.D. Stewart, chairman of the board for the Rochester-based group, said Tuesday.

Second on the top-10 list was Sam Walton of Bentonville, Ark., the founder and owner of the Wal-Mart store chain.

Advice columnist Ann Landers finished third and network news anchor Tom Brokaw was fourth, just ahead of comedian Pee Wee Herman, television producer Aaron Spelling and comic strip character Beetle Bailey.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Singer-songwriter Lionel Richie and veteran vocalist Eddy Arnold shared the spotlight at the seventh annual, fan-voted National Songwriter Awards.

Richie's Say You, Say Me from the motion picture White Nights was chosen movie song of the year Tuesday night.

Arnold, 68, received a standing ovation and burst into tears during his acceptance speech for the President's Award, a special honor for selling 80 million records in a singing career spanning more than 40 years.

"Stars don't make songs hits. Song hits make stars," said Arnold, whose hits include Make the World Go Away and Any Time.

MONTREAL (CP) — Polish filmgoers will be treated to a week-long festival of Quebec films in Warsaw starting, the provincial film agency Societe generale du cinema has announced.

Leading the list are two children's films by producer Rock Demers, The Dog Who Stopped the War and The Peanut Butter Solution, as well as the world premiere of Francois Labonte's Henri, which opens in Montreal on Jan. 28.

Others to be shown include two films by Lea Pool, Anne Trister and La femme de l'hotel, Yves Simoneau's thriller Pouvoir intime, Francis Mankiewicz's classic Les bons debarras and Jean-Claude Labrecque's Les annees de reve.

Also included in the program is Kamouraska by Claude Jutra, one of Quebec's leading filmmakers who disappeared from his Montreal home early last November.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Entertainer Dean Martin went home from Cedars-Sinai Medical Centre Tuesday after a severe bout with intestinal flu.

Martin, 69, is in good condition, said hospital spokesman Ron Wise.

The singer entered the hospital Jan. 12. The illness forced him to cancel a week of shows at Bally's in Las Vegas.

JACKSON, Tenn. (AP) — This city will celebrate Carl Perkins Day on Wednesday, the day the rockabilly guitarist is to be inducted into the Rock 'n' Roll Hall of Fame in New York.

"We again extend gratitude to this extraordinary gentleman who has brought national and international honor to our city," Mayor Bob Conger said Tuesday in proclaiming the citywide tribute to Perkins.

Perkins, 54, a self-taught guitarist with an eighth-grade education, has said he penned his biggest hit, Blue Suede Shoes, on a brown potato sack while he lived in a housing project in Jackson.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Grand Ole Opry's Minnie Pearl says she has "geriatric licence" to make a few colorful remarks, but she doesn't think her late mother would have approved of her humor.

"Mama probably would have rapped my knuckles a few times at some of the innuendos I make during my act," said the 74-year-old entertainer known for her hat with dangling price tag, hayseed humor and her "How-dee" greeting.

Pearl, whose real name is Sarah Cannon, recalled in her regular Monday column in the Nashville Banner that one of her sisters sang a popular 1920s song, Last Night on the Back Porch (I Loved You Best of All), before her mother.

"Mama frowned upon the reference to the 'back' porch, likening it, I suppose, to the back seat," she said. "I don't know why she thought 'it' was more apt to happen on the back porch than the front or side. If I remember correctly, it could happen almost anywhere."

Want to see New York? Stay off the beaten track

By Calvin Woodward

NEW YORK (CP) — Tourists in New York have been known to visit the World Trade Centre's 107th-floor observation deck in a thick fog, plunking down $2.95 for a view of the end of their noses.

Some have spent the day walking along Avenue of the Americas, missing more absorbing nearby streets because of their reluctance to venture off a familiar path. Still others have wandered around midtown Manhattan at night, looking in vain for signs of life.

In a city where a single museum can occupy a visitor for a full day, weeding out the merely interesting from New York's garden of fascinations can be tricky.

One preliminary step might be to dip into the vast collection of books giving advice on the city.

The Michelin guide is among the most comprehensive for general attractions. It has maps, historical perspective and suggestions on how to organize the day.

GIVES REVIEWS

The New Yorker and New York magazines contain capsule theatre reviews and listings of concerts, exhibitions and other events.

The 1986 Zagat Restaurant Survey has demanding standards for its ratings of thousands of restaurants and is cross-referenced for best bargains, best decor, best by district, food type and so on.

Gault Millau's The Best of New York provides more elaborate descriptions and spicier irreverence on restaurants and nightspots, and is helpful for its breakdown of shopping bargains and hotel reviews. The revised edition of this prominently displayed book is nearly three years old and, in nightlife years, that's an eternity.

Lacking any mention of today's popular discos like the Palladium or the Limelight, it would steer club-goers to the likes of the passe Studio 54.

As for most clubs, Limelight owner Peter Gatien advises that the nights of cavalier entry policies — when doormen would custom-build a hip, beautiful crowd from among the panting throngs outside — are gone.

Now, says the Cornwall, Ont., native, just about everyone rates entry, except "medallion men with white shoes and a white belt — 10-year-old polyester."

NEEDS PLANNING

Walking around New York is entertainment in itself, but even this merits some planning.

Fifth Avenue, from 42nd Street north to the stunning Metropolitan Museum of Art at 80th Street, is lined with glittering, famous stores and glittering people who look like they should be famous. Two blocks over, Park Avenue holds similar enticements, but Madison Avenue, between Fifth and Park, lacks the same glamor.

A similar walk on the West Side begins with an explosion of neon, bustle and sleaze at Times Square, followed by 20 less interesting blocks to the north. Then comes the Lincoln Centre and Metropolitan Opera House and the beginning of the genteel Upper West Side, with its beckoning architecture and peaceful feeling of elbow-room.

One of the best crosstown streets for shops, art galleries and architecture is 57th Street.

If time is short, consider skipping the midtown quadrant south of 42nd Street and west of Fifth Avenue, unless a trip up the Empire State Building or a visit to Macy's is on your must-do list.

Palate faces paradise or prison in Big Apple

By Calvin Woodward

NEW YORK (CP) — Isn't it about time you treated yourself to a "symphonic" slice of tomato?

If a New York visit is in your plans and you have something special to celebrate — say, the winning of a Nobel prize — consider dining at the Quilted Giraffe at 955 Second Ave.

A minimum of $75 a person, before wine and tip, will buy a fancy scoff at the restaurant, rated among the top five in New York by local and out-of-town critics. The New York Times has given it four stars, meaning "extraordinary" — also meaning reservations must be made weeks in advance.

This place can do more than make tomato spiced with basil put your taste buds in the mood of Beethoven's Ninth. The mushroom and truffle soup, rhapsodized The Times, "suffused our corner of the dining room with the aroma of autumn in a dew-moistened forest."

Yikes!

The cost of one meal at the Quilted Giraffe would feed a convention at the $1.25-a-slice pizzerias around the city.

Chances are that you'll want to try something in the vast range between top-rated bargains like Pizza Piazza and top-rated budget-crunchers like Lutece, the Four Seasons or An American Place.

Although selecting a restaurant by impulse is risky, New York critics agree that SoHo and Greenwich Village are the best parts of Manhattan for visitors who don't want to make dining out a research project.

The attractive Upper West Side, from 60th Street north, is the worst for dining, critic Mollie O'Neill of New York Newsday said in an interview.

"It's really the pits — trendy, loud, overpriced and pretty terrible food. If you're in the Upper West Side, go to Zabar's (2245 Broadway at 80th Street), buy some smoked fish and make yourself a little picnic."

O'Neill's favorites include the Union Square Cafe in Greenwich Village — "young hearted, a terrific wine list and fairly priced for simple French and Italian" — and Chanterelle at 89 Grand St. in SoHo, both praised by several other critics. Chanterelle has fixed prices of $58 and $80 a person.

OFFERS GAMBLE

The Broadway theatre district is more of a gamble, but places recommended by several critics include Lattanzi for a unique Roman-Jewish menu after 8 p.m., Orso for moderately priced Italian, and Carolina for southern food. All are along the 300 block of West 46th St.

The elegant and expensive French restaurant Aurora at 60 East 49th St., meanwhile, is considered one of the brightest new stars in New York.

However, glamorous surroundings are hardly a guarantee of quality and some of the restaurant names most recognizable to visitors make local critics see red.

That's why it's worth while to come armed with a reputable, up-to-date guide such as The New York Times Guide to Restaurants in New York City, available in February; or the 1987 Zagat restaurant survey, based on the opinions of more than 1,500 participants who eat out more than three times a week.

New York's Dining, an annual magazine, reproduces the menus of 150 top restaurants and gives brief, mostly uncritical descriptions.

Barbados pleases night-lifers and explorers alike

Daniel D. Wood
The Christian Science Monitor

BATHSHEBA, Barbados — A crowd hopped onto the back of my chair at the Atlantis restaurant here as I watched a score of shirtless Barbadians carry wooden skiffs out of the waves during a gale.

I sat alone, filling my cheeks with chewy plantain, hot peppers, and mustard while the men's cries and the crowd's caws lingered over swelling waves, then dissolved in a pelting rain. The restaurant's rough, white-painted chairs seemed pilfered from a painting by Van Gogh, the hard linoleum floors and flowered tablecloths purloined from the pages of Hemingway.

Everything seemed lifted suddenly out of time as the clouds stole the light and the crowd stole pickled breadfruit off my plate. The scene has become my personal metaphor for Barbados — a Caribbean island that seems to be "in" but not "of" this world because of its peculiar knack for geography and an ability to stay out of the way of history.

Barbados is not part of the West Indies but rather stands off the island chain's western-curving elbow, an oceanic island and geological loner.

The island remained British from its settling in 1627 until independence in 1966, keeping a sense of singular identity and stability that escaped the other islands, which changed hands frequently during the colonial wars.

Although Barbados has been independent for two decades, it retains parliamentary government and many other British characteristics: ubiquitous cricket fields; names like St. Georges Parish, Tate Hill, and Codrington College; and smiling, unarmed policemen, looking strangely like transplanted bobbies in the same bell-shaped helmets (though white and more squat), gray shirts, and blue pants with two red stripes.

When you see the statue of Lord Nelson in Trafalgar Square here — not London, but Bridgetown — remember this bit of telling trivia: It was erected 27 years before the one in Britain.

Barbados is one of the few Caribbean islands that has both a solid foreign influence and its own, fiercely self-determined side. Of a quarter of a million people, 95 percent are black or of mixed African and European origin.

DEVELOPED AND RUSTIC

If we are enumerating selling points as a tourist destination, Bar-

Barbados has a developed and a rawly undeveloped side, with something to please both the fun-in-the-sun night-lifers and the countryside explorers.

bados is one of the few with both highly developed and rawly undeveloped sections. Thus, it can keep the fun-in-the-sun, night-lifers fully occupied with water sports, restaurants, steel bands, and limbo dances (though duty-free shopping in Bridgetown is a major disappointment). And it can keep the countryside explorer happy with a bookful of rustic destinations.

Those include a totally undesecrated shoreline in the north and east — with undulating terraces and rugged coast — and hosts of plantations before you get there. It includes those plantations' "great houses," with antique furniture, lush gardens, and hilltop vistas. The plantations recall the years when Barbados was a slave society characterized by unprecedented prosperity, followed by years of economic hard times.

Countryside destinations also include Andromeda Gardens — the most extensive botanical gardens in the Caribbean of dozens I've seen — and Harrison Caves, a recently developed underground system of caverns shown by electric-cart tours.

AVOIDED HIGHWAY 1

Of the two kinds of tourist stays, mine was the exploratory kind. That's why I avoided Highway 1, which runs along the entire west coast from Bridgetown to Hometown to Speightstown. This is one of the longest strips of hotels in the Caribbean, from Coconut Creek Hotel in the south to Cobblers Cove Hotel in the north, and includes the five-star Coral Reef Club. You'll need a guidebook that rates the hotels or an experienced travel agent to sort them out. (This stretch includes some of the most expensive resorts. For a more inexpensive and personalized stay, look at the dozens of owner-run establishments on the road into Bridgetown on Highway 7 from Grantley Adams airport, or others on or near the miles of public beaches that surround the island.)

I hired a cab for two days at about $30 a day. I ended up paying more voluntarily because I pushed the driver over his 7 p.m. limit. Armed with a couple of guidebooks with stars next to the most important sites, I set out to get the full flavor of the island.

Destination No. 1 (partly because I couldn't resist the name) was Welchman Hall Gully. A botanical ravine, this area of indigenous woodland was planted by a single owner decades before becoming property of the Barbados National Trust, which has preserved the land's character. With all manner of tropical vegetation, canopied by towering palms with light glittering through, this might fit your fantasy of the perfect rain forest. Not far away is Mt. Hillaby, the highest point in Barbados, and Turner's Hall Wood. In both locations are such trees as mastic, locust, red cedar, Spanish oak, and cabbage palm.

DESTINATION IMMATERIAL

As we got moving, I realized that having a destination was immaterial. Cutting around corners of sugar cane twice as high as the car, zipping between mangroves and stopping at wonderful stone sugar mills and churches, I found names beginning to fade in memory. At 166 square miles, the island can be seen in a couple of days with a fast driver and lots of energy. Or you could go very slowly and take up to two weeks.

My driver took his role as a guide seriously, but as I compared his stories with the ones written in the guidebook, I found there were great disparities in dates, names, and other historical information. The local tourist authority has a laissez-faire attitude toward tours, which I found quite refreshing. There are no top 10 tourist sites with recorded travelogues.

Cutting back down the east coast, you will visit Sam Lord's Castle. My guide took me over protestations, and so will yours. Besides hearing the legend of Sam Lord, now a local controversy, you'll tour the 19th-century country house standing on a rocky cliff looking out to coral beaches and shaded by sea grape trees.

Highway 7 will get you back to Bridgetown for a tour of cathedrals, calypso record stores, museums, and produce markets. But Bridgetown is better suited as a sequel, in my mind, to the countryside.

Barbados seems to be "in" but not "of" this world because of its peculiar knack for geography and an ability to stay out of the way of history.
