Zero Factor has slick surface

"The Zero Factor" by William Oscar Johnson (POCKET): $2.95, 330 pp.

The political scenario of William Oscar Johnson's novel goes like this: the time is November 1980, and Augustus Alvin York, former Governor of Kentucky, a Chicago Bears end for 16 years, has been elected to the American presidency in an amazing upset over the Democratic incumbent (unnamed but we-know-who). Gus York is attempting to turn the country around with a Republican program that reflects his own mountains of Kaintuck background rather than the traditional catering to big money, big business and the conservative bastions of U.S. policy. Enter the Zero Factor: Since 1840 no President of the United States who won election in a year ending in zero has left office alive. Death, by the hand of an assassin, or by natural causes, the Zero Factor has played a part in the American presidential succession.

For Gus York, namesis stalks the international routes of terrorism as a professional assassin, known as Le Bombardier, due to his preference for plastique exploded by remote control. While author Johnson offers us a portrait of a simple, down home president plagued by the energy, finance and foreign affairs crunches, as the inevitable confrontation between chief executive and hired assassin develops. Insights into the president's typical day are less revealing than Nixon's memoirs. The author inserts a disclaimer to the effect that all of the computer technology, explosives techniques and politics in the book are entirely fictional. He needn't have bothered.

"The Zero Factor" is too glib, too easily spun out a tale, devoid of feeling for actual events. In a word it lacks realism. We do not become attached enough to the personality of Gus York to be apprehensive about his impending fate. As light entertainment, "The Zero Factor" has to be rated with "Jaws" or "The Exorcist". With a more realistic narrative it could have been far more scary in an election year that ends with a zero.

Wishbone Ash "Just Testing" (MCA)

Their late 1979 release marked a rebirth for England's Wishbone Ash, and this album is sort of a second opinion after their resurgence. It's old wave, verging on progressive Brit rock, but like most of those outfits, Ash has begun to make the human voice an impressive segment of their arsenal of sound. Guitars are still the key to Wishbone Ash's approach to Eighties rock, and the accent is on the type of repetitive, dominant riff ripping that formed the basis for the Heavy Metal crews, Wishbone Ash, while heavy enough in their approach to rock, escape the narrower confines of the Sabbath, Grand Funk category through vocal dexterity and innovative stylings. Cherie and Marie Currie "Messin' With The Boys" (CAPITOL)

The Currie girls may well be identical twins, as far as the cover art reveals on their album, but as for their singing, they are dual approaches to the up-front brashness of Deborah Harry of Blondie fame. Backed by a slick studio assembly (Porcaro, Lukather, and Winding), with Jai Winding also supplying arrangements, the Currie sisters are considerably more middle-of-the-roadish in choice of material than the outrageous Ms. Harry.

Marie's vocal on Eric Carmen's "Overnight Sensation (Hit Record)" is one of the few occasions when the vocals are not shared. It is by far the most outstanding cut on this album by two saucy blonde songstresses cashing in on the prominence of female rockers with successes such as Fleetwood Mac, Heart, and Blondie.

Pekins delight Cowansville diners

By JOHN McCAGHEY

COWANSVILLE — As you swing down South St. from Main you might just think you had seen a stage being set up for a Hollywood 'duster.'

Nope pard, that isn't the Last Chance Saloon, but the Cafe Terrasse. The rustic exterior decor continues in the interior and the walls are enhanced with photos of the early days of Cowansville.

"It's highly appropriate," explains co-owner Philippe Lizotte. "After all, the oldest buildings when the town was originally settled were located in this vicinity, along the banks of the Yamaska."

Phil and Yvon Nadeau opened the cafe-bistro in May of 1979 and it has become one of the most popular spots in town, especially during hot spring and summer days when the patrons can enjoy the terrace overlooking the river or sit under parasols outside the rear with trees whispering overhead.

"All our main entrees are home-made," Phil continued. "Yvon's mother provides us with fresh tourtières and chicken pot pies on a daily basis, but quite frankly our main drawing card is the all-you-can-eat salad bar which we feel is a bargain at $3.75."

We wandered over and surveyed the selection as the lunch hour patrons entered and Phil's statement proved more than accurate as they lined up to dig in,

Wining and dining and dig in they did! A crock of pea soup led the list, followed by ham, salami, turkey cold cuts, and Matane shrimps. Potato and macaroni salads surrounded a bowl of cottage cheese while the marinades included beets, green and yellow beans and chickpeas. Appropriate garnishes as well as mounds of sliced cucumbers and sliced tomatoes were in abundance. Hot smoked meat is the favorite sandwich.

Although the decor is rustic the bar setup is highly efficient and worthy of a Crescent Street establishment. The owners admitted they had a problem when they opened -- the Quebec Liquor Board was on strike.

"We made a decision which proved to be another success," Phil said. "We checked out a Townships winery and found a dry red which exceeded our fondest expectations. We had it bottled under our own label and we offer a ¾ litre bottle for a mere $4.75, which is a bargain these days."

The cafe draws mainly from the mid-twenties to the forties age group and chansonniers are a way of life. "There is rarely a cover unless the person is a highly renowned artist," Phil continued, "and most of them are bilingual and can entertain our anglophone friends, although the majority of our clientele is francophone."

Owners and clientele alike are most interested in the restoration of the Yamaska River and they took part in a recent drive when 1,200 seedlings were planted along the banks in the Cowansville sector. They have also provided a bit of beauty as well as a new pastime, feeding a flock of ducks. They hit on the idea last summer when the feathered Pekins caught everyones fancy, ultimately ending up on tables during a roast last autumn.

Eyes will be on the river on July 5, when the Cafe Terrasse will be sponsoring canoe races as part of the sidewalk fiesta and undoubtedly later on this summer when work begins to completely restore the South Street bridge and sidewalk superintendents offer gratuitous advice. A cool one or iced tea -- they're both available in ample quantities.

Big Dipper cookery is really garden fresh

By JUDITH KELLOCK-HEWARD

GEORGEVILLE — A beaming chef, white-aproned, answered the door of the old Georgian Lodge, newly christened "Aux Berges de la Grand'Ourse" or "Down by the Big Dipper".

A little country inn, "somewhere in France" seems to be the inspiration for chef Richard Bizier and partner Roch Nadeau, who closed the doors of their inn in Notre Dame du Bois to settle a month ago in Georgeville atop the hill overlooking Lake Memphremagog and the Benedictine Abbey.

The cuisine is French, "and international", adds Bizier, and is based on the freshest ingredients available from the nearby kitchen garden, rabbit hutch, hen house and guinea hen house. The ducks wander free from time to time. The one called Napoleon strides about like a general. Fresh herbs, fresh vegetables, fresh blackberries from the hedge, green walnuts from the trees on the inn property, conspire with locally made cheeses, specially-fed chickens and conies to create a cuisine that has nothing to do with the freezer and the microwave oven.

Right now there are 12 bedrooms for inn guests and four dining rooms for guests, and visitors on a call-ahead basis (843-8646). The gastronomic menu is eight courses long, comes as a complete surprise to the eager diner, and wears a $22.50 price tag, service and tax included. Bring your own bottle of wine, enough for an aperitif as well as the liquor license has not yet arrived.

A more modest four-course meal may be had for $12, plus service and tax.

Bizier promises delights such as long summer brunches to music from Jeunesses Musicales students played on the old-fashioned verandah.

Bizier feels uninhibited when it comes to menus. He might, if the weather were right, serve a North African couscous, or a Hungarian goulash. One of his favorites is three-month-old rabbit bathed in a sauce of Dijon mustard, white wine, with a splash of country cream. Another is duckling sparked with fresh peaches and still another, baked cardoons, long, tender salsify-like roots done in the oven.

For the present only one sitting, at 7:30 p.m. is available. A party of 10, delighted with a recent feast, reported a four-hour stint at table, ending in filtered coffee, and tiny mints. Lunch is also available on a reservation-only basis, and might feature Bizier's Gazpacho, a concoction somewhat like iced velvet, or a choice mackerel braised in white wine.

The Georgeville restaurant keeps its own rabbits for the rabbit with mustard sauce specialty.

Broue's new potion is bittersweet

Surprise end caps play

By DONNELLY

The 1980 edition of Broue has matured. Without denying its audience the fun of laughing at the beer-numbed humanity that filters through the doors of Chez Willie's Tavern, it takes that humanity seriously.

Last spring, a hastily assembled series of skits (it took 10 days), linked together to mark the passage of Quebec's bastion of manhood, the tavern, into the co-intoxication brasserie, became the Theatre de l'Atelier's hit of the season. For this production there has been both editing and the addition of new material, along with minor touch-ups in characterization and costuming that improves the whole.

Denis Rousseau's decor is unchanged. An efficiently designed tavern is surrealistically coated with beer foam (broue).

The seven-playwright contribution has been whittled down to five - Claude Meunier, Jean-Pierre Plante, Francine Ruel, Gaston Caron and Louis Saia - with liberal humorous seasoning by the three actors-directors. Two new skits have been added and the structure of the play has been refined by streamlining. The pace is smoother. And a punchy, delightful surprise finish caps off the clever creation.

The most significant modification, though, is a sense of criticism brewing beneath the beer-sloshed surface. Because it is never overt, in fact the very negation of didacticism, Broue's subliminal message about the tavern as a makeshift harbour for lost souls hits home long after the laughter dies down.

Of the family men we encounter, none have a satisfying relationship with their wives. Chez Willie is their refuge, the only place they feel free to dump on the female sex - at times in the most outrageous, unequivocal terms. Offensive as this can be, the no-holds barred approach is honest and makes an impression on the audience where a more watered-down interpretation would have failed.

But even the local drinking haven is not invulnerable to female intervention. A radio show on the survival of Quebecers after the disappearance of the tavern provides a rare opportunity for communication, such as it is, between a married couple. Recognizing his wife as the first caller, a beer-guzzling mechanic hastens to phone in his rebuttal of her condemnation, only to drown his argument in a sobbing, self-pitying on-the-air stupor, to his unmarried mate's amusement and his shame.

Again the play's climax sketch involves the plumber, Ti-Mile, and his bespectacled, bewildered 16-year-old son. For Ti-Mile, initiating Leo into the rites of manhood means liberal douses of beer and sex. The docile, increasingly queasy Leo bends hilariously to his father's wishes as Ti-Mile confesses with mixed emotions that he is experiencing for the first time a father-son relationship. Here too, the scorned and dreaded wife intervenes by way of a phone call to bring them back to reality.

One of the two new sketches introduces a lily-livered chap kicked out by his wife for offending her in a dream-induced daze. His hen-pecked, injured pride is allowed free expression in an uproarious letter composed at the instigation of a more debonair drinking buddy. The offending incident itself is rather absurd but conveys with uncanny truth the uncensored spirit of abandon and irresponsibility that reigns in the tavern refuge.

The other new sketch is done totally in English and garnered some of the most side-splitting laughs of the night. It is less than likely that a ritzy, silk-scarfed English gent who drops into a grungy neighbourhood hang-out for an emergency phone-call, would then sit down to relax with a beer and The Gazette. But some excuses had to be conjured up to give more attention to Quebec's 'English problem' other than the occasional anglicism.

The exchange between this well-to-do Anglo and two French construction workers who bold-facedly attempt to communicate with him is thin in verbal content (possibly in consideration of the audience, a significant number of whom had difficulty understanding even this). But it is quite accurate in its comical imitation of linguistic realities and the class and cultural barriers that have yet to be bridged. It's all done in good fun and devoid of animosity. If anyone is made the butt of a joke, it is the French themselves.

Taverns are an institution in Quebec. They provide an ambiance that permits men to relate to one another. The intimate, beer-soaked atmosphere breaks down inhibitions and loosens tongues. Drowning the world's sorrows, tavern regulars build bonds that seem impossible without a draft in hand and several in the belly. But the bonds are jerry-built, the thin binding matter is soon expelled from one end or another in the grimy tavern toilets.

Showcasing oddballs of Quebec's dying institution was a great theatrical idea. Because of the remarkable characterizations, the material jumps with reality. Without exceptional talent of Michel Cote, Marc Messier and Marcel Gauthier, it couldn't have been carried off. The skits merely provide a framework within which these three members of Theatre Voyagements carve into existence 18 memorable characters.

Michel Cote's portrayal of Pointu, the fireman who drinks enough between calls to put out a blaze when he urinates - and without a ladder yet - is superb. But his Ti-Mile, his clochard (the all-day customer who opens the tavern at 8 a.m. and closes it at 2:00 a.m.), his swaggering construction worker and beaten down mechanic are just as good.

Marcel Gauthier, a speedy shoe salesman last year, has upgraded this character to a manager for the 1980 version of Broue, although he still has the same, single-minded preoccupation with the shoe business and betrays the same impotence. His flexibility is evident in the other roles he brings to life - the hen-pecked husband, a rocker and the svelte-suited Englishman. As one of two waiters who run Chez Willie, Gauthier is the only one to demonstrate some real human contact in his dialogue with Pointu, the fireman.

The second waiter, psychiatrist in all but the pay cheque, is played by Marc Messier, who really comes into his own in this year's production. He puts in a sizzling performance as the itchy-fingered, compulsive pyromaniac, a singles swinger and especially the wide-eyed boy, Leo.

Teaming up with Cote as the other construction worker and mechanic, Messier also joins him in a riotous skit about Louis and Roch's sit-in protesting the transformation of taverns into brasseries. After downing more than 300 beers, they are still keeping tabs on who's paying for the next bottle. Their exchange is probably the ultimate indication that, rather than helping men to communicate, taverns lead to their self-withdrawal. Roch and Louis end up conversing with themselves instead of each other.

We've got nothing but unqualified praise for the work of these actors and their self-direction. Only with a disciplined effort is one able to identify each actor behind the masque. Their timing and comedic sense is impeccable.

Many in the audience on opening night were obvious converts of the first Broue. Although they had seen most of it before, they were not disappointed with the second edition.

In the summer season when English plays abound locally, it's easy to forget that French theatre is also thriving. Broue unequivocally makes its heady presence felt.

A scene from the witty, new Broue.

Brome County Museum opens doors

KNOWLTON — The Brome County Museum has once again opened its doors to visitors for the summer months. In addition to the regular exhibits, the museum will feature special exhibitions of interest to Townshipers.

The museum will be open for visitors every week-day in July and August from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sundays, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is located on your left as you enter the town on the Lake Road coming from Foster. There are three buildings to visit; the old Academy, now the Paul Holland Knowlton Memorial Museum, the fire hall and the Archives building. The old stone schoolhouse on Tibbits Hill is a mile west of the town and open on Sundays between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. Groups may visit the old stone schoolhouse any day on request.

July 1-25. A special exhibition in the Archives consists of sixty-four Norman Edson photographs. The collection is owned by the Society with a few on loan from Society members.

Historical books on local history are sold in the Archives building and along with historical maps, genealogical charts, and family record sheets. A reprint was done last year of Yesterdays of Brome County Vol. I. Vol. IV is just about to arrive from the printers, and will soon be available in a set of four volumes in hard and soft covers.

This museum is well known for its First World War collection of relics, especially the Fokker DVII German airplane, the only intact one found in North America. In contrast and typical of early life in the Townships is the pioneer room which houses rare hand-made pieces of furniture. In the fire hall building the fire tower is interesting to see, as it was constructed with sway braces.

The turn of the century Country Store Museum evokes the atmosphere of old time shopping at the general store.

Children enjoy the nature room in the base of the tower, the children's section, the 1911 Ford car and of course, the airplane and

Diving school opens up new world

Boisvert explains diving gear in the lakeside office of his school.

By JUDITH
HEWARD

MAGOG — "You don't learn to dive in books," announced Jacques Boisvert, snatching away a copy of Diving for Fun. "You learn by diving."

Boisvert, certified with the Professional Diving Instructors' College, has been diving for years, and has just launched an international diving school on Lake Memphremagog, a school accredited by the provincial Department of Education.

Boisvert insists on the international aspect of the school and of the lake, and hopes to start a Newport counterpart in diving instruction next summer. His aim is broader than the teaching of diving technique, although he intends to do thoroughly, with a student-teacher ratio of 4-1. The educational aim seems to be two fold: mastery learning, so popular in England during the '50s and '60s, where a student progresses at his own rate in a series of graded steps; and a new knowledge of diving sites on the lake, full of buried steamers, and the life of the region's past.

Working from old prints, such as the Bartlett prints, he has located the old wharf near Belmere, where Sir Hugh Allan's pleasure steam yacht, the Orford, was moored. The Orford was no small rowboat, but a craft 86 feet in length.

In his boathouse-office Boisvert proudly displays the anchors of various buried ships, while on the porch of his lakeside house is the large rusted anchor of the Anthemis, one of Captain Clarke's steamers, which plied the lake waters around the beginning of the century, transporting between 200 and 300 tourists to and from the large old hotels, such as Memphremagog House in Newport, an all-wood mansion which boasted 500 guestrooms. Even the modest Camperdown Hotel in Georgeville had 300 rooms.

The Lady of the Lake in service until 1917, out-classed the Anthemis in size as she was a paddle-wheel steamer designed and built on the Clyde, shipped in pieces to Montreal, with an overland leg to Magog where she was assembled. The Lady carried 1200 people to fashionable destinations along the lake.

Boisvert even hints at the existence of a ship graveyard, which he swears to find before very long. Meanwhile, his collection of bottles retrieved from his daily dives grows and grows. Two handsome black bottles, probably once containers for best brandy, were found off Sir Hugh Allan's old wharf. A sirop d'anis bottle recalled the pharmaceutical company famed for popping a good dose of opium into the licorice mixture.

The diving course seems fairly rigorous. The use of the very new and gorgeous equipment heads the list of tasks for Open Water One. Emergency ascents are introduced by the third lesson, and dangers of all kinds are explored in the theory lectures. Divers learn about embolisms and ruptures, about nitrogen narcosis and rapture of the depths, the mysterious condition which hits some divers as early as a depth of 60 feet, and which affects nearly all divers to some degree at a depth of 150 feet. The sensations are similar to alcoholic intoxication, including mental confusion and an impairment of logical thinking. Divers in warm, clear water seem to experience euphoria while divers descending the 200 feet to the wreck of the Andrea Doria in the cold and dark reported a sensation of gloom and fear.

Many of the dangers are minimized by what Boisvert both advocates and practices: planned dives. Part of his diving equipment is a compass, and every move of his dives are pre-planned. Boisvert's emphasis on safety permits him to carry on the Cousteau tradition of underwater research.

THOUGH THERE IS NO WORD YET AS TO WHETHER Led Zeppelin will be setting out on a North American tour in the near future, the band embarked on its first European tour in seven years on June 17. The tour, which is over a 14-day period, will make stops in Germany, Holland, Belgium, Austria and Switzerland with a number of other dates to be announced.

PAUL MCCARTNEY'S LATEST SOLO LP, McCartney II was released in Japan at the beginning of June and unlike in other countries, the purchasers of the record got a special bonus. At McCartney's personal request, everybody who buys a copy of the LP gets a chance to receive a program for his cancelled January-February tour of Japan. The 50-page album-size book containing many color pictures was meant to be sold on McCartney's Japanese tour which you will remember was cancelled after he was stopped at Japanese customs at Narita International Airport when he was found to be in possession of a small quantity of marijuana. In a recent interview, recorded by EMI in London and later broadcasted in Japan, McCartney explained about the drug bust and admitted that he "was careless in bringing the marijuana" into Japan. After that incident at the beginning of the year, all TV and radio stations in Japan stopped playing any music by McCartney and his group Wings. Three months later, the commercial TV and radio stations resumed playing McCartney's material but the Japan Broadcasting Corporation has not yet ended its ban on the former Beatle.

In other areas, banks are finding that giving away custom-made pop and rock cassettes to new depositors at the bank is bringing brisk business. It has caused such an upswing in business that the use of these free incentives is being studied by a marketing tribunal.

BANKERS TAKE NOTE. Banks in Finland have found, and in fact, are still finding that rock and disco music can influence depositors at the teller's cage. Recently a bank in the town of Tampere held a special disco event on its own premises to attract potential depositors. Several thousand youngsters showed up and almost turned the

A SOUTH AFRICAN NEWSPAPER RECENTLY reported that John Lennon has been traveling alone through that country. A local cabbie was quoted as saying that he had spent some time with Lennon and indicated that he has retired but sells real estate from time to time. The cab driver, who claims he and John went meditating together atop a Capetown mountain, says Lennon was "very humble and good, quiet, not at all wild or rowdy."

ONE OF THE HARDEST WORKING AND LEAST HONORED SEGMENTS of the music business are the roadies who work behind the scenes at concerts, loading and unloading equipment on and off of the stage. With the movie Roadies doing well at the box office proclaiming that "Bands make it rock...Roadies make it roll" Alice Cooper got caught up in the spirit of the occasion and convinced Los Angeles mayor Tom Bradley to proclaim June 7 "Roadie Day." The proclamation coincided with Alice's concert the same night at the Greek Theatre in LA. "I've been in this business for over ten years and I know that we couldn't exist without the backstage crew," says Alice. "Nobody ever pays any real tribute to them and yet they are the glue that holds the whole rock music business together on the road."

MMFA comes up with fresh idea

MONTREAL (CP) — Museums are stuffy places replete with obscure objets d'art and centuries-old paintings of voluptuous naked women, right?

And everything you see on exhibit — a king's sceptre, Egyptian artifacts — they're all real, right?

Not always. At least not at the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, where a special children's exhibit called Tintin's Imaginary Museum opened June 20 and runs till Aug. 24.

Tintin, for those who don't know him, is a Belgian cartoon character created 51 years ago by Georges Remy, alias Herge.

A fresh-faced, intrepid reporter, Tintin travels the world with his faithful dog Snowy and a coterie of cohorts, getting scoop after scoop and always coming out on top of the bad guys who try to trip him up.

Tintin's adventures take him everywhere — the Andes of Peru, the jungles of the Amazon and even the moon. Herge draws his surroundings with painstaking, scientific accuracy.

The imaginary museum is an eclectic collection of things Tintin comes across in his travels, and each item is accompanied by a panel from one of the many Tintin books.

For example, there's a real Peruvian mummy, some actual shrunken heads from the Amazonian jungle and a piece of authentic moon rock.

But some items in the imaginary museum aren't quite so real. That's because Tintin, being a cartoon character, visits some places that exist only in Herge's imagination — like the mythical last European country of Syldavia, whose ruler is descended from the equally mythical King Ottokar IV.

Yet you'll find Ottokar's sceptre — a fake sceptre made especially for the Imaginary Museum — right there beside the real shrunken heads.

"I don't think the kids will be confused," said Pierre Theberge, chief curator of the Museum of Fine Arts. "They'll know it's a joke."

Theberge — young, tall, bespectacled and looking every inch the curator — bubbled enthusiastically about the exhibit, describing it like a child talking about a new and wonderful toy.

"We had a lot of fun putting it together," he admitted.

"We built the exhibit like a Tintin adventure. What's interesting is that it makes Tintin's adventures more real than fiction.

"It's a humorous exhibit too. It's refreshing for the museum. It's a way of getting out of the image of being a dusty old place."

Cannon career ablaze after lapse

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It was a scary time," Dyan Cannon recalls of her movie career a few years ago. "It was like what happens when you keep turning down invitations to parties. All of a sudden the invitations stop coming."

For almost four years the Cannon career lapsed, despite the promise she displayed in Bob and Carol and Ted and Alice, which brought her an Academy Award nomination.

She was undergoing some personal turmoil and spent time in sorting out her life. Now, through her own efforts and a little help from friends like Warren Beatty, things are different.

She recently starred and did her own country singing in Honeysuckle Rose with Willie Nelson. Now she is appearing with Robert Blake in Paramount's Coast to Coast, she as an escaper from a psycho ward and he as a truck driver who drives her, along with 50 bulls, to California from Pennsylvania.

Coast to Coast is no quick trip for Dyan. She said she has been associated with the project ever since producers Steve Tisch and Jonathan Avnet brought her the script a year ago.

STARTS AT BEGINING

"I worked with the writer, I looked at the directors and costars, I was involved in every aspect of the production," Dyan said. "I can't be on the periphery anymore."

In an attempt to rebound from her down period, Cannon was performing I Do! I Do! in Dallas when a call came from Warren Beatty. He offered her the role of the scheming wife in Heaven Can Wait.

"I turned it down three or four times, which shows you how good my judgment was," she said.

Lacy J. Dalton makes gutsy debut

Lacy J. Dalton; same; Columbia Records; JC-36322. This is a strong debut album, but not as spectacular as the hype surrounding it would have you believe.

Lacy J. Dalton has a distinctive, bluesy voice with a gutsy feel, but she interprets all 10 songs in the same way. Her style works well on some numbers, but misreads the lyrical expression in others. It seems Dalton is simply trying too hard, at times sounding affected.

Just the same, Dalton shows enormous potential, with good reason to believe she'll become a premiere artist in country music.

Your Body Is An Outlaw; Mel Tillis; Elektra Records; X6E-271. A couple of years ago, Mel Tillis discovered he could sell a lot more records if he performed pleasant, bland music that never asks his listeners to think or feel. That's what we've been getting from him ever since,

Country music
By DAVE

and this album is more country music for Las Vegas fake.

Tillis is aiming for the heart of common-denominator taste, so the 10 songs are predictable, antiseptic and boring. Country music deserves better than this, but what's musical integrity if you can sell records.

Star; Marie Bottrell; MBS Records; MBS-2003. Marie Bottrell's shrill, little-girl voice doesn't have the color or tone necessary to express complex emotions, such as those in Shel Silverstein's The Ballad of Lucy Jordan. Even in her own compositions, such as Baby It's You, Bottrell's passion doesn't sound as if she's on fire, as her lyrics say.

Bottrell is trying for sophistication, but what comes across is a little girl dressed up in her mother's high heels. As a result, it's difficult to assess just how capable a vocalist she might be.

Bottrell would do much better to write and sing about feelings she's experienced. It's not a good idea to try to build a career on a woman-of-the-world image, when one is obviously not a woman-of-the-world.

John Henry; same; JHL Records; JHL-1301. What a great album! John Henry and the musicians on this session have captured the raw energy that separates really caring about the music from the calculated, contrived slickness of so many of today's records.

From the opening notes of Dave Denison's rockabilly song, Lookout World, to the fading fiddle strains on the Redd Stewart-Pee Wee King classic, Tennessee Waltz, the music is alive and kickin'. The album's only weak song is Henry's composition, Love Is Gone. On the other nine cuts his versatile baritone brings the lyrics alive.

The musicianship is first-rate, background voices are used effectively, and producers Barry Brown and Peter James have left a rough edge on the sound which adds to the music's sense of urgency. Ten years from now this album will still have its spark. Great country!

Chicago sound returns with Blues

By DONNELLY

Record companies are notoriously conservative about where they invest their money. Unwilling to take needless risks, they continually churn out the same old variations on a successful tune until the cash box registers 'no sale'. Not only are most record executives closed-minded about trying something new. They harbour built-in prejudices about music tried-and-true.

When Tom Lavin first began to peddle a demo of his Powder Blues Band, recorded in his small 16-track studio (paid for from earnings when he played bass for Prism), he quickly learned that no one even wanted to hear about the blues, a non-existent market they claimed. After two years of playing clubs in and around Vancouver, Lavin knew Powder Blues had that magic touch as the audience response to their music was pretty convincing.

It's a good thing Lavin went with his instincts instead of smart-ass good business sense. The Powder Blues Band is currently the hottest Canadian music group around.

When there were no takers on the demo, Lavin decided to produce the band's debut album himself and sold a treasured 20-year-old Stratocaster guitar to finance the pressing of 1000 copies. First selling them at the band's club dates Powder Blues got their big break when the top record shop in Vancouver, A & B Sound, agreed to carry 100 copies. They didn't last long.

Impressed by initial sales of the album, entitled, Uncut, the owner of A & B Sound ordered and even financed the pressing of 1000 more copies. When these disappeared in three days simply through in-store play, the ordering cycle was continued. A & B began to distribute directly to other record shops in the west, including major franchises which persisted in purchasing despite hassles from their head offices.

In Vancouver at this time, the only LP outselling Uncut was Pink Floyd's The Wall — pretty good competition.

Within a month 15,000 copies had been sold without a slick marketing strategy or real financing backing, just a lot of chutzpah and the music power of the Powder Blues Band. Two Vancouver radio stations had begun including several tracks from Uncut, especially Doin' It Right on the playlist. A program director visiting the west coast was turned on to Powder Blues and brought the album back to his Windsor radio station.

At last the record companies started nibbling and Tom Lavin, bogged down with the commercial end of things, turned to Prism's manager, Bruce Allen, for some help. Allen negotiated a one-album release deal with RCA and now manages Powder Blues. Lavin is back to what he loves, playing and producing. And Uncut, distributed under the Blue Wave label, is certified platinum (100,000 copies sold) and still going strong.

Like Lennoxville's Highstreet, the Powder Blues Band gets its spark from two brothers. But Tom Lavin who plays guitar and brother Jack, bassist, hail from Chicago, where their taste for the blues was nurtured by the originals. In a Winnipeg Free Press interview, Tom said, "I grew up on the south side of Chicago playing with all these guys most people think are legends. I know them as taxi drivers in the day and the guys who play for $10 a night."

Lavin knew back then he wanted his own band and is confident that in the Powder Blues musicians he's found the right combination. Along with his brother, piano and organ player Willie MacCalder is an original member from the Gastown club dates. Drummer Duris Maxwell joined in soon after. Then a spiffy horn section was added, spearheaded by saxophonist David Woodward, an eight-year veteran of the Downchild Blues Band.

As part of a major get-acquainted cross-Canada tour, the seven-piece Powder Blues Band will soon be lighting a blues fuse at La Poupee. Blue wave is a phrase Lavin coined when trying to combat the new wave syndrome which still maintains a stranglehold on the recording industry. On Sunday night we'll find out if the Powder Blues Band has the ammunition to make that wave break.

WHAT'S ON

Theatre

Tonight's the big night. Festival Lennoxville launches its 1980 season with W.O. Mitchell's THE BLACK BONSPIEL OF WULLIE MACCRIMMON. A humble cobbler takes on the devil in a wild curling match that promises some diabolical special effects.

Tomorrow afternoon, Peter Colley's thriller I'LL BE BACK FOR YOU BEFORE MIDNIGHT will be unveiled.

Topping off the theatrical hat-trick tomorrow night is ONE TIGER TO A HILL, a compelling drama by Sharon Pollock based loosely on events surrounding the 1975 prison riot at the BC penitentiary.

All three continue in repertory with the following breakdown this week: Bonspiel, matinees on Sunday and Thursday and a Wednesday evening performance; Midnight on Tuesday and next Friday night; Tiger on Thursday night only.

Evening performances begin at 20:30. Weekend and Thursday matinees are at 14:00. Tickets for individual performances are priced at $6.50, $7.50, $8 and $9, depending on the day and seat location. Student rates (Tuesday to Thursday) are $5. Subscription rates ($15.50, $18, $20 and $23) are a good buy. The number for reservations is 563-4966.

Continuing at the Piggery is the cabaret-style MUSIC BY RODGERS, LYRICS BY HART. And that's what you get - songs grouped thematically and performed with enthusiasm by Eric Hughes, Bridget O'Sullivan, Joanne Kerwan Clark and Ted Simonett. It's nothing like last summer's smash hit Gee Gertie!. No biographical or dramatic signposts to give the show structure. But the old Rodgers and Hart favourites are still great and some of the lesser known songs that come from the 20-year collaboration are revived in fine a cappella arrangements. The Piggery has shows Tuesday to Friday at 20:30 ($6) and Saturday at 18:00 and 21:30 ($7). A three-play subscription (the comic thriller CATCH ME IF YOU CAN by Jack Weinstock and Willy Gilbert begins July 24; the opening date for Eric Donkin's THE WONDERFUL WORLD OF SARAH BINKS is August 12) is available for a reasonable $14; $11 for senior citizens.

Nelly Young

BROUE II, a slightly modified, snappier version of last summer's smash hit at the Theatre de l'Atelier, is a beer barrel of laughs. A series of zany sketches written especially for Montreal's Theatre Voyagements by four Quebec playwrights, Broue shows life through the eyes of beer-guzzling regulars of a neighbourhood tavern. (See review in this issue). There are performances Tuesday to Friday at 20:30 ($5 and $6) and Saturdays at 19:00 and 22:00 ($6 and $7). During the week, students pay $4. Broue will be at the Atelier until August 16.

For a change there's more theatre happening out here than in Montreal, but if you're in the big city and feel like a few laughs, there are two comedy clubs that can oblige. Yuk Yuk's (2025 Drummond St.) has a variety of stand-up comedians on hand as does Maxwell's (2060 Aylmer) which is also currently running a comedy revue, EL GRANDE DE COCA COLA.

Music

CHARLES DUTOIT conducts the MONTREAL SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA in Beethoven's Symphony No. 2 and Concerto No. 1 tonight at the Saint-Patrice Church in Magog. Pianist HENRI BRASSARD is the soloist. This is the first of four concerts by the MSO this summer. Dates for the other three are July 18 (Viennese music), August 9 (Beethoven's Symphonies 8 and 9) and August 15 (Beethoven's Coriolanus Overture and Symphony No. 9).

Reservations for these concerts can be made with the Centre d'Art d'Orford at (819) 843-3981. Tickets are $4 to $10.

Tomorrow afternoon (16:30) harpsichordist FRANCOISE PETIT will perform at the Abbaye de St-Benoit-du-Lac. Admission is $3.

The QUATUOR PRIMAVERA String Quartet will give a concert of Mozart and Tchaikovsky tomorrow evening (20:30) and Haydn, Seeger and Brahms next Friday, July 11, at the Salle Gilles Lefebvre of the Centre d'Arts d'Orford. Reservations for the Saturday night concerts only ($7) are possible (843-3981). Tickets for the Friday performance are $5.

Next Thursday RAOUL SOSA will perform Beethoven, Schumann and Ginastera in the same location. Admission on Thursday is also $5.

All the above concerts are part of the 1980 Orford International Music Festival which has put together an exciting programme of summer music.

The Theatre le Vieux Clocher gets back into action tonight after several dormant weeks with the delightful, enchanting ANGELE ARSENAULT, an Acadian chansonnier with a generous heart. Her latest album, "Y'a une étoile pour vous" is about to be certified gold as she returns to performing after a six-month writing sabbatical. Lyrics of humour and unpretentious wisdom applied to catchy, folksie tunes are her trademark. A look at the song titles of her recently released single ("La vie va faire une femme de toi" and "Ce n'est pas a parler contre qu'on fait pour") is some indication. Tonight's admission is $7; tomorrow's show is $8. Both begin at 20:30. Call 843-1177 for reservations.

On Sunday, the Vieux Clocher welcomes back RICET BARRIER, a singer who amuses with ironic, delicious imagery. His appearance will be preceded by JEAN HEBARD, a man of many talents who has made a name for himself in the best Parisian cabarets and theatres, including the Olympia. The one show has a $5 admission tag and 20:30 curtain.

Also on Sunday is the much lauded POWDER BLUES BAND, heralded as the top rhythm and blues, rocking band north of the 49th parallel. After sensational write-ups in all the major and minor papers across Canada, this seven-man ensemble (which, incidentally, opened for the Who at their recent Vancouver concert) blows into Magog-town for a one-nighter at La Poupee. (More background on the group in this issue of Townships Week). Admission is $4.

A SCHUBERT CONCERT presented by Les Amis de l'Opera will take place tomorrow night at the Haskell Opera House which straddles the Rock Island, Quebec-Derby Line Vermont borderline. Admission is $4 (Students pay $2). Call 569-5357 for tickets.

In Montreal, JOSE FAJARDO, a veteran charanga (read Latin dance orchestra featuring violins, rhythm section and a flute) bandleader and flutist brings his 10-man band to the Rising Sun tonight for a 9-day engagement. This aggressive Salsa-Cuban music has a rich sound punctuated with shouted unison vocals.

The Rising Sun's FestiJazz, which takes place at Salle Wilfrid Pelletier, Place des Arts, is coming up in about two weeks. On July 17, TAJ MAHAL, SONNY TERRY AND BROWNIE MCGHEE, LOUISIANA RED, LIGHTNIN' HOPKINS; July 18, it's an evening with NINA SIMONE; July 19, blues and boogie with WILLIE DIXON, BIG MAMA THORNTON and the CHICAGO MACHINE-IN, LUTHER ALLISON, MEMPHIS SLIM, BUDDY GUY and JUNIOR WELLS; on July 20, there's the GERRY MULLIGAN QUARTET, WOODY HERMAN and the YOUNG THUNDERING HERD.

The cast from 'Rodgers and Hart' in an uptempo number at the Piggery, until July 19.

Tickets for each of these dates range from $6.50 to $15.50. If you're into four concerts, there's a 15 per cent reduction. Call the club (861-657) or Place des Arts (842-2112) for more information.

The other Jazz Festival is currently at Man and His World. THE HERITAGE HALL JAZZ BAND plays tonight. On Sunday, you can hear the dynamite jazz combination of pianist CHICK COREA and vibraphonist GARY BURTON who was sensational at La Poupee a couple of months ago. And our own MANEIGE appears with RAMSEY LEWIS on July 9. Quite a number of other groups are also booked. All concerts begin at 20:00. Tickets ($7.50 and $9.50) are available at all TRS outlets. Some reports claim that daily admission to Man and His World ($2 and $4) will get you in to the shows, but I'd check first.

The talented British singer JOAN ARMATRADING will do two shows at Place des Arts on Wednesday, July 16 (18:30 and 22:00). Tickets ($8.50 to $11) are on sale at Place des Arts and other Montreal locations. Phone (514) 842-2112 for information.

Brian Monty and the Blues Busters are back at the Coffee Mill in North Hatley this Saturday night. Finish off the evening with a dose of the Blues, music starts at 22:00 and admission is $2.

Exhibitions

There are three art exhibits at the Centre d'Arts d'Orford. MADELEINE AUDETTE's paintings are in the Salle Gilles Lefebvre foyer until July 12.

In the Pavillon l'Homme et la Musique, works by the ARTISANS DES METIERS D'ART DES CANTONS DE L'EST as well as CLAUDE MELOCHE and MICHELINE BRÔDEUR can be seen until August 23.

As part of the Piggery's art exhibit program, Emily Lebaron's Flying Shuttle, in collaboration with Galerie Mena'sen, will be displaying paintings by Yvon Lajole and Roxanne Bergeron, ceramics by Robert Roy and Barbara Stevenson's photographs July 12. The Flying Shuttle is open to the public 13:00 to 17:00 daily.

At the Piggery itself, prints and batiks by ANDREE BERNIER and pottery by MAYA LIGHTBODY can be seen either on show nights or Tuesday to Saturday from 13:00 to 17:00. Both are located in North Hatley.

A group show of landscapes is on exhibit at the Critical Eye Art Gallery, located on R.R. 3 near Hatley. Hours are 10:00 to 21:00 daily.

There's an exciting show of pottery that approaches sculpture at the Musee Beaulne (once Chateau Norton) in Coaticook. Happily it will be with us all summer long. DOUCET-SAITO are a husband and wife team, potters who work out of their Way's Mills quarters creating magnificent ceramic objects vases, urns, plates, boxes, tiles, etc. that are known the world over.

The Centre culturel de Sherbrooke has two summer exhibits on display. In the Galerie d'Art, the display, entitled FACETS OF MODERN QUEBEC ART: 10 YEAR OF GEOMETRIC CONCEPTIONS, 1955-1965, groups together two waves of "Plasticiens". Summer hours at the gallery are 12:30 to 16:30 Monday to Friday.

In the Grand Hall, you can see some 70 photos, the work of three experienced Canadian photographers - ROBERT BOUDREAU, SERGE CLEMENT and GABOR SZILASI. Hours are 8:30 to 22:30, Monday to Thursday, 8:30 to 16:30 on Friday and weekends from 13:00 to 16:30.

If you happen to be going to Portland, Maine, the Webber Gallery (116 Free St.) is presenting a show of NEW ART FOR THE 80's with works by J. MICHAEL GOODWIN (wood sculpture), K. MAX MELLETTIN (glass panels and sculpture, paintings), FR VANCE (assemblages) and JOHN WAUGH (collage, xerography, audio works). The gallery is open daily from noon to 18:00.

Coinciding with the opening of Festival Lennoxville, the eighth annual antique fair takes place at Bishop's University this weekend. Some 24 Quebec and Ontario dealers will be showing off their collections, including some rare items. There is bound to be something for every taste. Tonight hours are 19:00 to 23:00, with a wine and cheese party from 20:00 to 21:00. Admission is $7.50. Tomorrow - 11:00 to 21:00 and Sunday - 11:00 to 16:00. Admission is $2.

There is another exhibition at the Musee Beaulne on the traditional manufacturing of linen and wool beginning on July 5 and continuing until September 2.

The Brome County Historical Society is presenting a collection of original photographs by NORMAN EDSON, renowned Canadian and International photographer, at the Archives Building, Knowlton from July 1 to 25.

A new exhibition of acrylics by FRANCINE BLOUIN will begin July 8 at the Bibliotheque Municipale.

Movies

If the Cinema du Carrefour does not hold over THE EMPIRE STRIKES BACK for a third week, the management hopes to get BLACK STALLION, a marvelous cinematic effort produced by Francis Ford Coppola, that is meant for children and adults alike. Check the ad for confirmation.

DEATHSHIP is another disaster flick parading around the Atlantic with spooky pretensions. Sans crew, an old freighter collides with cruising ships and provides blood-curdling sanctuary for their survivors aboard its Nazi-ghost-infested and torture-victim-skeleton-scattered quarters. George Kennedy, a familiar face in this kind of picture, stars along with Richard Crenna and our own Kate Reid. It's playing at the Capitol Theatre this week along with GOLDEN GIRL. Shows begin 19:30 Monday to Saturday. On Sunday, the first show is at 13:30.

Mindless mayhem in a futuristic revenge caper between cop and motorcycle gang, that's the gist of MAD MAX playing at Cinema Newport until next Thursday. There are now two shows daily, at 19:00 and 20:45.

The Derbyport Drive-In has the following line-up for the week: FIVE DAYS FROM HOME with George Peppard and Neville Brand, tonight and tomorrow; on Sunday, AT THE EARTH'S CORE, inspired by Edgar Rice Burroughs; from Monday to Thursday, COAL MINER'S DAUGHTER, the biographical story of Country Music Queen Loretta Lynn with an outstanding performance by Sissy Spacek. Admission is $1.50.

Monday Night at the Movies returns for another year at Festival Lennoxville. On July 7, DIRTY HARRY is the feature. Clint Eastwood stars as the hard-nosed, brutal cop. There are shows at 18:30 and 20:30. Admission is $2.50.

Television

A series devoted to the world's great orchestra conductors can be seen Fridays at 21:00 on Channel 17 (cable 8), Radio-Quebec. Tonight, the life and work of OTTO KLEMPERER, noted for his interpretations of German classics.

Tomorrow beginning at 19:30, Channel 33 comes up with the following goodies: A revealing, off-camera look at Academy Award-winning actor Jack Lemmon on SUPERSTAR PROFILE.

At 21:00 filmmaker Peter Watkins explores the troubled life of the Norwegian painter EDVARD MUNCH and its effect on the development of his work in an extraordinary three-hour film. Try to get to a colour set. It's a moving painting.

Still on 33, EVENING AT POPS (Sunday at 20:00) begins a new season with a tribute to Richard Rodgers, featuring baritone Benjamin Luxon and soprano Nancy Slade. John Williams conducts the Boston Pops at Boston's Symphony Hall. It might be an interesting comparison with the Piggery's tribute to Rodgers and Hart.

THE WINNIPEG SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA conducted by Piero Gamba performs a program of popular works Sunday at 22:00 on Channel 6. To be heard are Tchaikovsky's "The Sleeping Beauty", Valse, the "Peer Gynt Suite", No. 1 by Edvard Grieg, Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto in E Minor (1st movement) with Arthur Polson as featured soloist, Piano Concerto, No. 21 in C Major by Mozart with soloist Irmgard Baerg; Rossini's "William Tell" Overture, Trumpet Concerto, the Allegro by Haydn with solo by Ramon Parcells and Salome's Dance by Strauss.

If mono music over the limited tv speaker is not for you, tune in to LA SALAMANDRE on Channel 17 (cable 8) at 21:30. This film by talented Swiss director Alain Tanner (Jonah A Ving Ans) is about a journalist and novelist who collaborate on a film script. Through their research they become acquainted with a strange girl accused of shooting her uncle.

ALL YOU NEED IS LOVE lends some perspective on "The Musical" Sunday at 23:41 on Channel 6. The demise of the music hall ushered in a new art form. With the production in 1943 of Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma!", a musical comedy integrating music, song and dance with a detailed plot, popular music changed again. Many of North America's top lyricists and composers, including Cole Porter and Stephen Sondheim, the contemporary wizard, explain the history and magic of the musical.

If you're home Monday at 13:00, you just might be interested in an interview with Pierre Bourgeault on VIP. It's on Channel 6.

Quebec's own MONIQUE LEYRAC, the finest ambassador of Quebecois music, is profiled on VISAGE, Monday at 20:00 on Channel 17.

The Dexter Gordon Quartet performs at Iowa State University on JAZZ AT THE MAINTENANCE SHOP, Monday at 22:00 on Channel 33.

FLAMBARDS, a new series from Yorkshire Television on Channel 33 is set in the early 1900s, filmed on location and features galloping thoroughbreds as well as replicas and models of vintage aircraft. The popular show concerns Christina, a young orphan sent to live at the decaying old family home of her tyrannical uncle and his two sons. It begins Tuesday, July 8 at 21:00.

Tuesdays at 18:30 silent movie classics can be seen on SILENCE, ON RIT, a Radio-Quebec show (Channel 17).

LE TIGRE AIME LA CHAIR FRAICHE by French director Claude Chabrol who is known for his police comedies, can be seen on Channel 7, Wednesday at 14:00.

Part 2 of Eugene O'Neill's drama of love, madness and murder, MOURNING BECOMES ELECTRA is aired Wednesday at 20:00 on Great Performances, Channel 33. Bruce Davidson and Joan Hackett star.

Also on 33, TONIGHT AT CARNEGIE HALL offers interviews, rehearsals and performances by violinist Isaac Stern, cellist Leonard Rose and Pinchas Zukerman on viola, Wednesday at 22:00. Pieces performed include Beethoven's Trio in C Minor; Schubert's "Satz" in B flat major and Mozart's "Divertimento".

Speaking of Soap

BY MARY ANN COOPER

Before the recent Emmy awards are put to rest, it seems appropriate to evaluate this annual event and its impact on the afternoon TV industry. The importance of the Emmys has grown in proportion to the respect and popularity of the afternoon dramas themselves. Only recently has this award ceremony been televised. Previously, daytime performers have been frustrated and belittled because the list of nominations and winners were one of the best kept secrets in the television industry. It is a tribute to the ground swell of popularity of afternoon dramas that the television industry has recognized the daytime serial as its backbone and consistent moneymaker by pulling out all stops for the occasion.

This year's gala at Studio 8H at NBC proved to be one of the most exciting and tasteful productions of its kind. The nighttime Emmys and Oscars should take a lesson from daytime when planning their next awards program. Fans of Beverlee McKinsey (Iris, "Another World") got a chance to see their favorite wicked lady looking the picture of health and anxious to begin her new serial, "Texas", which will premiere on NBC in August. AW's Doug Watson, (Mac) further delighted this serial's faithful viewers by copping a Best Actor Award. Bubbling over with enthusiasm, Watson graciously praised his leading ladies and his loving wife making if all possible for him.

Francesca James (Kelly) and Warren Burton (Eddie) from "All My Children" received Best Supporting Actress and Actor nods. Anyone who followed the storyline which featured Warren as the pusher, agent, lover to Francesca's slowly and painstakingly deteriorating Kelly could not quarrel with the committee's selections. The fire and chemistry between these two fine performers provided some of the highlights of the dramatic season.

But this column's own sentimental favorite was the choice of Judith Light (Karen, "One Life to Live") as Best Actress. Sometimes someone very special comes on the daytime scene with a talent that is only matched by an inner warmth and glow. Though the competition was stiff and all the other nominees were shining stars, Judith's "light" justifiably outshined them all.

Now a look at what's been happening and what will happen on all afternoon dramas.

AS THE WORLD TURNS--

After Brad is cleared of Melinda's death he decides to ask Annie to marry him. Meanwhile, John and Dee set a wedding date but Dee is not totally happy. Lisa's competitive spirit flares when she is dateless for Barbara and James' costume ball wedding.

THIS WEEK: An intruder has a diabolical scheme to wreck the plans of Barbara and James. Tom may know why James is marrying Barbara.

GUIDING LIGHT -- Holly can't get Ed out of her mind despite her marriage to Peter. Ben and Eve call a cease fire. Amanda writes that she is losing Ben.

SEARCH FOR TOMORROW -- Kathy can't seem to put her feelings for David in proper perspective. Travis agonizes over Liza's condition. Spencer charms Stephanie.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS -- While Derek fools with Judy, Kay is being eyed by Doug. Leslie is as confused about her past as ever. Greg can't stand being treated like a prisoner.

ANOTHER WORLD -- Joey says things to hurt Kit but she pretends not to notice. Larry's life is hanging in the balance while Blaine tries to avoid Jamie's knowing stare. Jerry is trying to unravel the mystery about Hazel's mob connection and Blaine is beginning to panic. Iris is back with Vivian at her side.

THIS WEEK: Kevin takes heroic measures to save Larry's life. Kit wonders if Joey regrets marrying her. DAYS OF OUR LIVES -- Lee hires a hit man to follow Doug and Julie. After following them a while he finds that nothing is going on between them and wants to split. Lee entices him to stay by giving him a diamond ring that Doug gave her. Leslie is becoming a problem because she is so efficient, but Alex warns Chandler to stay away from her. Joshua wards off a would be attacker who had his sights set on Mrs. Chishom.

THIS WEEK: David's loyalty to Alex frustrates Trish. Chris has words with Leslie.

THE DOCTORS -- Luke and Missy are married. Ashley is very upset by the sight of a shell necklace. Darcy asks Garner to make a clean break with her if he stops loving her. Carolee is annoyed with Steve when he spends too much time clearing up Mona's affairs. Vivica invites Steve over. Nola vows to get even with the entire Aldrich family.

THIS WEEK: Carolee and Steve are drawn in opposite directions. Brad and Greta get chummy.

GENERAL HOSPITAL -- The budding romance of Jeff and Ann has hit a snag as Heather becomes more lucid. Ann has the guilts. Smith pressures Luke and Joe is closing in on them both.

THIS WEEK: Jennifer is torn between two worlds. Laura fears that her world will be upset.

EDGE OF NIGHT -- Molly takes a job at April's as a nursemaid and helper. She almost faints when she realizes that "Kirk" is really Draper. Logan's investigation into the train wreck becomes more widely known. Ravin threatens to tell April about it. Nicole is shocked when she meets Jody when she discovers that his name is Travis.

THIS WEEK: Molly is torn by divided loyalties. Ravin tries to further manipulate a bad situation.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE -- Brad tries to charm Beverly, the secretary to Marco Dane. Jenny sees this and is repulsed. She climbs into bed with Peter out of spite but he rebuffs her. Richard storms at Asa that he is responsible for the miscarriage but secretly blames Becky instead. Dorian puts a detective on Mario. While driving with Karen, Mario bumps his head and reverts back to being Marco.

THIS WEEK: Karen tries to help her friend but can't cover-up his lies from everyone. Richard takes rash action.

ALL MY CHILDREN -- Linc and Kelly decide to leave Pine Valley and make a new start. Donna decides to get $5,000 out of the bank to give to a lawyer to buy a baby. Leora is rushed to the hospital with bruises and cuts. Her husband says she fell. Erica calls Nick to plead for a job after Tom fires her. She is made manager of the "Chateau." Linc warns Langley not to step out of line or Myrtle will blow the whistle on him.

THIS WEEK: Donna lies to Chuck to keep her secret. Erica and Tom are adversaries.

RYAN'S HOPE -- Frank confronts Rae with evidence that he ruined his career. She pleads with him not to expose her to the Senate Ethics Committee but he does anyway. Delia finds a half slip at Barry's that is not hers. Ken George Jones beds down with Jill in London. Maeve chews out Rae for her deceptions. Roger tells Delia she can have a divorce. Kim is arrested with a bunch of hookers and calls Seneca for help. He hangs up on her.

THIS WEEK: Tony and Kim become friendly. Jill wonders how to deal with Frank.

THE JEFFERSONS

A year ago this 'All in the Family' spinoff was nearly canceled. But in one of the most spectacular TV turnarounds in recent years 'The Jeffersons' not only righted itself, it hit number one a few weeks ago. It's hard to pinpoint one specific reason for 'The Jeffersons' renaissance, but one does not criticize the scriptwriting which has remained consistently good over the long haul. Sherman Hemsley and Isabel Sanford who play George and Louise Jefferson haven't lost any of their combative and comedic spirit over the last five years (yes it's been that long).

The secondary zanies on the program also continue to be a source of enjoyment as well. Marla Gibbs who portrays the caustic maid Florence improves with very episode and is worthy of a series of her own. Paul Benedict (Bentley), Roxie Roker and Franklin Cover as the Jeffersons 'zebra' in-laws also shine when called upon to do battle with George. What will happen to the Jeffersons next year is anybody's guess but with 'Alice' as lead-in it shouldn't make all that much difference. So why did 'The Jeffersons' falter? Could it be that the viewers abandoned it in search of something better only to find that 'The Jeffersons' were better all along? Could be.

Sherman Hemsley and Isabel Sanford
