NUMBER 100,000 — Immigration Minister Jack Nicholson was on hand at Toronto International Airport Wednesday to welcome Elspeth Ann Whitley as Canada's 100,000 immigrant of 1965. The 20-year-old ballerina flew from London, England, to audition for the National Ballet Guild of Canada. The native of Scotland was formerly with the Royal Ballet and Royal Opera companies in England. Mr. Nicholson took Miss Whitley's arm under protective cover of umbrella held by attendant as rain teemed.

Dupuis trial after election

QUEBEC (CP) — The trial at Sherbrooke of Yvon Dupuis on influence - peddling charges cannot be started before the middle of November, a provincial justice department spokesman said Wednesday.

It could only be held that early if a special session of the criminal assizes in that city were called, the spokesman said.

A justice in St. Johns, Que., Tuesday ordered that the site of the trial be changed to Sherbrooke from St. Johns. The next regular assizes at Sherbrooke are scheduled for January.

Lawyers for Mr. Dupuis, former federal minister without portfolio, had opposed the Crown application for the change of venue.

Mr. Justice Philippe Lamarre of Quebec Superior Court said in granting the application that it would be impossible to choose an impartial jury at St. Johns during the campaign for the Nov. 8 federal election.

WANTS TRIAL

Mr. Dupuis has said he wants his trial as soon as possible and Justice Minister Wagner of Quebec has said efforts were being made to arrange this.

The influence - peddling charges resulted from unsuccessful efforts to obtain a race-track charter from the Quebec government for a group in St. Jean - Iberville - Napierville constituency, the riding Mr. Dupuis held in the last Parliament.

He was fired from the Cabinet by Prime Minister Pearson last Jan. 20 following an investigation into the charges.

Mr. Dupuis has said he plans to contest the coming election, but Prime Minister Pearson has said Mr. Dupuis will not be the official Liberal candidate.

Volcano blows again as 500 thought dead

MANILA (CP) — The Taal volcano hurled steam and lava 2,000 feet into the air today while rescuers tried to determine how many persons died in the volcano's eruption Tuesday.

The Philippine constabulary estimated about 500 persons may have been killed. About 2,000 Filipinos lived on the volcano's slopes and the first rescue parties to reach the island feared most had been killed. But more and more were turning up in refugee camps.

The new burst of activity from the 4,000-foot volcano—a onetime tourist attraction set on an island in the middle of a lake—heightened fears that it might explode with even greater fury.

Reports from the scene said bursts of mud and ashs were becoming more frequent.

New evacuation measures were ordered along the lake surrounding the volcano island 40 miles south of Manila.

But some island residents who fled Tuesday's eruption defied the government and returned to salvage surviving work animals and belongings.

It was believed there must have been 4,000 persons on Taal when the volcano first exploded.

People were shot and stabbed in a panic rush to escape the volcano, police said.

They reported stories of survivors fighting over boats in the desperate scramble as molten rock and lava poured down to the shores of the island.

One eyewitness told how, under a shower of white-hot rocks and mud, he saw a family of six preparing to launch their boat. Five armed men shot them and piled their own families into the boat, he said.

The Philippines constabulary said looters were ransacking houses abandoned in towns near the volcano. Security forces were ordered to patrol the almost deserted shores of Taal lake.

Union fight hurts labor says Fortin

SEPT-ILES, Que. (CP)—The cause of labor in Quebec is being hurt by a struggle between two of the province's unions, Carrier Fortin, Quebec labor minister, said Wednesday.

Mr. Fortin said the Confederation of National Trade Unions and the Quebec Federation of Labor were engaged in a figat involving personalities rather than principles.

The two unions have accused each other of performing raids to get the other union's membership.

The struggle, the labor minister said, had gone beyond the point of simple competition and was becoming dangerous.

Mr. Fortin, speaking to a group of union representatives, said the unions should meet on common ground to formulate a code of ethics.

He now is making a tour of northern Quebec. Monday, he was detained for two hours by striking CNTU workers at the Maniccuagan power development project 300 miles northeast of Quebec City.

UN members walk out on South Africa

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Nearly three-quarters of the members of the United Nations —representing the bulk of humanity—showed their distaste for South Africa's racial policies Wednesday by walking out of the 117-nation General Assembly as that country's foreign minister was given the rostrum.

Among the 30 or so delegations who remained were those of Canada, Britain, France and the United States. About 85 delegations quietly left their desks.

The walkout took place when Foreign Minister Hilgard Muller stood up to deliver his country's defence of apartheid (racial segregation).

All the delegations from Africa except South Africa's left as did the Communist bloc members, some Western European delegations, about half of the Latin Americans and all the Asian group except Nationalist China, Thailand and Nepal.

After criticizing the behavior of the delegations who held the assembly, Muller said each country "has the indisputable right to live its own separate life."

'IGNORE IDENTITIES'

He deplored the "tendency to ignore the separate identities of different peoples and to expect heterogeneous communities to share a common national consciousness and loyalty."

After winding up his address, Muller was given a sympathetic ovation from sections of the public gallery, with feeble applause from the delegates who had remained seated.

Outside the UN, U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk gave a dinner for Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko. They explored possible points of agreement between the two countries.

U.N. OBSERVER ARRIVES IN NEW DELHI — Canadian Army Maj. Gen. Bruce MacDonald (left), recently appointed commander of the U.N. India-Pakistan Observer Mission, is greeted on his arrival in New Delhi by Maj. Gen. M. N. Batra, director of Indian Military Intelligence. MacDonald was promoted to his present rank on the day he was assigned to the new command and has previously served in a U.N. post on Cyprus.

India and Pakistan lack of compromise promises more blood

NEW DELHI (AP) — India and Pakistan were digging in today for what promised to be more bloody skirmishing along the ineffective UN ceasefire line separating their armies.

Diplomats of both nations were publicly adopting uncompromising stands that appeared to leave no prospect of a significant troop withdrawal or long-range peace settlement.

And both armies were nervously fencing with each other, sending out patrols, consolidating their positions in several sectors and continuing the bloodshed.

The United Nations, which arranged the ceasefire Sept. 28, still did not have enough observers on the front to do much good and the chief UN officer, Maj.-Gen. Bruce Macdonald of Canada, was reported to have crossed no man's land in an effort to quiet down the skirmishing.

Gen. Macdonald, a native of Edmonton, was said to be proposing that both armies initially withdraw 500 yards from the tense Lahore front, where their forward units now face each other across the 100-foot wide Ichhogil Canal. He is commander of the newly-created United Nations India-Pakistan Observer Mission.

The newspaper Indian Express reported from Amritsar, an Indian city behind the Lahore front, that Gen. Macdonald left Wednesday to cross to the Pakistani city of Lahore.

The Express said Gen. Macdonald was asking both armies to disengage physically because their nearness to each other was considered a major reason for frequent ceasefire violations.

Both sides were charging violations along almost the entire length of the long, tense front that stretches from northernmost Kashmir state southwest unil it almost reaches the Arabian Sea coast.

Some of the heaviest fighting was reported in the great Indian desert that covers much of India's Rajasthan state and the adjoining Hyderabad area of southern West Pakistan.

Pakistan's Foreign Minister Z. A. Bhutto said in New York Wednesday there could be no withdrawal of Pakistani troops unless there was "an impartial authority" to replace them.

India, on the other hand, has said no United Nations peacekeeping force will be permitted on Indian soil.

Canada's role is blasted

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada should stick to the economic role of hewing wood and drawing water, three United States senators said in effect Wednesday.

Canada should concentrate on what it does best and car manufacturing isn't in that category, suggested Senators Albert Gore, Tennessee, Abraham Ribicoff, Connecticut, and Vance Hartke, Indiana. All are Democrats.

They renewed assaults on the agreement between Canada and the United States to abolish tariffs from manufacturers—but not consumers—on most motor vehicles and their original parts.

Their message was that Canadian cars are high-cost ones and that Canada should attack its annual trade deficit of more than $1,000,000,000 with the U.S. by expanding sales of pulp, paper and other such products.

Hartke challenged Russell Long of Louisiana, the bill's manager, to prose an amendment calling for unrestricted free trade between the two countries.

Gore called for "truly freer trade, thus increasing Canadian production in such commodities as paper and U.S. production in such commodities as automobiles, with lower prices for all consumers."

Long said full free trade would swamp Canado's car industry and the object of the agreement was to get it a larger entry to the U.S. market and preserve the big U.S. share of the Canadian market as well.

Gore moved that the bill be held up until Jan. 10 for further study by the U.S. tariff commission on a number of points.

Grafftey becomes 2nd Tory nominated in ET, outlines plans

Heward Grafftey, MP for Brome-Missisquoi from 1958 until dissolution of the last parliament, was named officially Progressive Conservative candidate in that riding for the Nov. 8 federal elections at a convention held at St. Damien School, Bedford, last night.

His was the only name to be presented to the 250 delegates who met under the presidency of Louis Cournoyer, head of the Brome-Missisquoi Progressive Conservative Association.

Mr. Grafftey is the second PC candidate to be nominated for an Eastern Townships seat, Rene Letourneau, a former MP being selected at a Stanstead County convention held in North Hatley Sunday night.

In his acceptance speech Mr. Grafftey presented the broad outlines of his program.

He said his party planned to solve the question of national unity calling a conference with the provinces to prepare a new constitution based on unity in equality.

Mr. Grafftey said such unity existed in Brome - Missisquoi and he was proud to be its spokesman in Ottawa.

"In this election campaign we must adopt a positive and constructive approach," he said. "I pledge myself to a campaign of positive politics. In discussing the major issues which face our nation, the people do not want to hear differences for differences sake. I shall do everything possible to present a program based on the dynamic principles of the Progressive-Conservative party. Our people must do more than vote against the present government. A positive and constructive alternative will be offered for November 8. In other words, the citizen, casting his or her vote, will have something to vote 'For.'

Mr. Grafftey said the Conservatives offered a program of ownership democracy in which the government would aid the people to own their own homes and dwellings, good farmers to own good farms and independent businessmen to own their own businesses. The government would encourage more Canadians to invest in Canadian enterprises.

Part of this plan for ownership democracy would abolish the 11 per cent sales tax on building materials, farm machinery and production machinery.

In order to encourage home and dwelling ownership, he continued, future home and dwelling owners would have federal tax exemptions equal to the amount paid in municipal and school taxes.

The farmers, said Mr. Grafftey, would benefit from a program of crop insurance, establishment of a minimum price of $4.00 per cwt. for milk, the creation of an Eastern grain agency and the acceleration of the ARDA program.

MARCHAND TO SPEAK

Jean Marchand, former CNTU chief and Liberal candidate in Quebec West, will be the speaker at the Liberal convention for Richmond-Wolfe, to be held in St. Isaac Jogues Hall at Asbestos Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m.

Patrick Asselin, ex-MP for the riding, is expected to be the unanimous choice of the convention.

VOTERS INCREASE

A total of 44,265 names are included on the preliminary electoral lists in Sherbrooke County for the coming elections, J. Nestor Boucher, Returning Officer stated last night.

This represents an increase of 3,001 as compared with the 1963 elections when 41,264 names appeared on the preliminary lists.

There will be 234 polling stations established in the county this year, three more than in 1963.

The final list should be somewhat larger than the preliminary lists owing to names likely to be added during the official revision.

Where a person feels he is qualified to vote but cannot find his name on the preliminary list the procedure is simple, the Returning Officer explained.

The aggrieved elector merely needs to phone the Returning Officer on October 15 or 16 explaining his position and two enumerators will be despatched to make a new registration.

ENLARGE SAIGON EXECUTION WALL — Vietnamese soldiers add sandbags to the execution wall in Saigon's central market place today as it is enlarged. Previously only one person at a time has been executed at the wooden post in center. The South Vietnamese government is reported planning six more executions tomorrow despite Viet Cong threats of reprisals against American prisoners. Informants said those to be executed were convicted of criminal activities in no way related to the Viet Cong.

Lull in leaders' scramble

NDP's Douglas has campaign field

A lull in election campaigning by major party leaders left New Democratic Party leader T. C. Douglas a clear field Wednesday.

Telling a Kirkland Lake, Ont., meeting that his party is the only one dedicated to making Northern Ontario a manufacturing region, he stressed that the NDP's program calls for resources being developed where they are found.

Prime Minister Pearson occupied a non-political platform but managed to squeeze in one reference to the Nov. 8 election in a speech to the Ontario Association of Housing Authorities.

He said a lot of landlords are trying to evict him from his residence, 24 Sussex Drive, the home of Canada's prime ministers. His speech included a statement that the federal government will have to consider an increase in housing aid to the provinces and municipalities.

Progressive Conservative Leader Diefenbaker remained in the capital where he's taking a couple of days off from campaigning before a Toronto rally Friday.

OTHERS AT HOME

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson was spending a few days in his Red Deer, Alta., constituency. Creditiste Leader Real Caouette is at home in Rouyn, Que., until an Oct. 1 meeting in Quebec.

Mr. Pearson travels today to St. John's, Nfld., where he's scheduled to speak tonight.

Finance Minister Walter Gordon, Liberal campaign chairman, held a press briefing in Ottawa Wednesday at which he maintained the Canada-United States auto parts agreement—attacked earlier by Mr. Douglas and Mr. Diefenbaker—is one of the Liberals' major accomplishments.

CONTRACT PUT IN RIGHT SUIT

By JACOBY AND SON
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The United States team carried a seven International Match points lead after the first 14 boards of the match against Italy.

They increased their lead in the second 14 boards when the Italian bidding faltered a trifle.

America's South played at a safe two - spade contract and managed to make four odd. He needed a lot of favorable breaks plus perfect play to make 10 tricks. Thus, the trump finesse worked and trumps broke 3 - 2. Then there was a two-way finesse for the queen of clubs and he handled it the right way.

In addition he needed to make two tricks in the heart suit and he did this by first leading a heart to dummy's nine and East's 10 won. The next heart lead was won by East's ace as West's jack was covered by dummy's queen. Finally our American player led the four of hearts from dummy and finessed successfully against East's eight spot.

The Italians actually bid the game when they got going and were unable to stop. In all probability if they had bid the game in spades they would have made it, but somehow or other they landed in four hearts.

Piero Forquet made a gallant try for his contract but he was forced to use a couple of his trumps to ruff diamonds and wound up losing three trumps and a spade. The net gain of 240 gave the United States another six IMPs.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding six no-trump you decide to be a scientist and bid three spades. Your partner bids four clubs. What do you do now?

The Renault 8 won the Car of The Year Award. How do you top that?
Like this.
The new Renault 10 Major for 1966.

It wasn't easy. The Renault 8 is a gas of a car, and we're going to keep right on making it. Standard shift and automatic. When we designed the Renault 10 Major we put in all the features that made the Renault 8 the Car of The Year. Things like 4-wheel disc brakes. A fully independent suspension. 4-speed synchromesh transmission. Up to 45 miles per gallon. Then we broke away. The Renault 10 Major is longer, sleeker, more luxurious. The foam rubber seats are still "...better than most cars...at any price." But now they're contoured a bit more to hold you a bit more firmly through fast corners. The dashboard has a burled walnut finish. So has the steering wheel and the shift knob. A bigger trunk because the car is longer (a foot longer than the Renault 8). Naturally, that means the Renault 10 Major is heavier. There are a lot of other new features on the Renault 10 Major. Most of them are for appearance sake. Because we started with a car that was so good mechanically it was named Car of the Year. Your nearest Renault dealer has the Renault 10 Major now. He'd like you to take one for a spin. Do it now. You can afford it.

E.T. Regional Board news

New system of promotion expected

By IAN A. McLEAY
(Director of studies, ET Regional School Board)

In the last two articles we examined some of the problems involved in the application of a philosophy and suggested subject areas to help accomplish the aims of this philosophy. This article will deal with some thoughts on the organizational framework and promotional policy which will complement the teaching of a diversified curriculum, with a policy designed to take the utmost advantage of such a system.

As was previously mentioned the traditional courses leading to Quebec High School Leaving Examination, Institute, and University will be offered. To these will be added a wide variety of optional subjects on a technical level that will also be acceptable for university entrance.

Many of the courses on Technical, Vocational, and Occupational levels will be given to students not planning to attend University. The majority of these courses, with the possible exception of the Occupational level courses, will be for Quebec High School Leaving Credits. All courses will lead to a School Graduation Certificate that will be granted by the Regional Board. With such a system it is to be hoped that all students will have the opportunity of receiving a High School Graduation Certificate. The level indicated by the student on graduating will depend upon his interest, effort, and ability.

For the past few years Montreal and the West Island Boards have been experimenting with an organizational and promotional system called subject promotion. The experiments have been decidly successful and next year the entire Montreal high school system will function on this principle. The Parent Commission has also strongly recommended it in its report.

The traditional method of promotion has called for a clear pass in an arbitrary number of examinations to proceed to the next year. For instance, a student could be promoted if he failed no more than two subjects providing his overall average was 60%. Let us assume that this has happened to Student "X" and the decision has been made to promote him. This would mean that in those subjects that he had failed a higher level for complexity would be attempted without prior mastery at the lower level.

Experience has shown that seldom has a student been able to cope with such demands. On the other hand, let us assume that the decision was made to fail Student "X". This would mean that not only are his failures repeated but also the six, seven or eight subjects that he has already succeeded in passing. No matter what good intentions the student had, a few weeks of this repetition and ensuing boredom usually are enough to dissolve all good resolutions. For this reason failing a student rarely accomplishes what is intended. This unfortunate situation of which all teachers are aware places them on the horns of a dilemma for the choice must be made between two unsatisfactory courses of action.

The system of subject promotion erases this problem. Don't pass the student by grade but rather by subject —the student goes ahead in the subject areas that he has been successful in and repeats only those in which he has not. This subject will be dealt with further in the next article.

Mr. Brazel shot it Tuesday evening of this week in the woods near his home. He had been hunting the animal for almost a week.

"We almost shake hands with bears in our village," said Record correspondent Jack Murray." They have been crossing the road in this area all summer long."

Four groups interested in tapping city pipeline

By KARL KRAMER
(Record staff reporter)

Three municipalities and a religious institution have shown interest in securing water from the Lake Magog — Sherbrooke pipe line, it was learned yesterday.

Rock Forest, Ste. Catherine de Hatley, Val du Lac, and Development Belle Isle have approached Ald. Jeanson on the possibility of Sherbrooke supplying them with water from the newly laid pipe.

As each of the group has shown considerable interest it was decided to install a T-section in the pipe for each group. The section was paid for by each of the parties at a cost of $300.

Should a group want water from the pipe line, all that is required is a pipe from the area concerned to the main pipe. The laying of the pipe would be the responsibility of the party desiring water.

The cost of the water to each group has not been decided upon, Mr. Jeanson said.

Should these four municipalities draw water from the Sherbrooke pipe line, the city's supply will not be adversely affected. The city needs 7,000,000 gallons daily. The pipe is able to supply 18,000,000 gallons of water daily.

Charles Langlois, city services director, said this morning that Val du Lac, an institution near Ste. Catherine Rock Forest, Development de Belle Isle, which is part of Ste. Catherine and Ste. Catherine de Hatley at present have unsatisfactory water supply systems.

As it is expensive for each individual party to provide new water systems they found it cheaper to buy the water from Sherbrooke, he said.

The pipe has been cleaned since September 21 about 20 times. On September 24 the process of cleaning the 36-inch diameter pipe was completed Mr. Jeanson said.

City officials were very happy to find no part of the pipe broken or leaking badly said Mr. Jeanson.

City water mains will be closed off for four or five hours in the East Ward to clean the pipes, said Mr. Jeanson. He added that this operation would be worked on day and night for about six weeks until completely finished. Shut downs will be advertised in news media.

If all goes according to schedule all pipes and reservoirs should be perfect and every home will have Lake Memphremagog water coming out of the taps by December announced Mr. Jeanson.

He said it would be the "best water in all of Canada."

Ozone, a water purifier, will be installed in the future Mr. Jeanson said. This chemical will ensure pure water for the Sherbrooke area and any municipality wanting Sherbrooke water.

Ozone was preferred over chlorine by the city council earlier this year.

CHARGED WITH PASSING COUNTERFEIT $20 BILLS

Two persons appeared in the Sherbrooke Court of Sessions yesterday morning on charges of passing counterfeit 20 dollar bills in the Townships. Both pleaded not guilty and were released on bail. Trial date was set for October 6.

Miss Estelle Tardif of East Angus was accused of passing three bogus bills on September 22, two in Sherbrooke stores and one in Windsor. She had on a previous occasion been sentenced on complicity to commit theft.

Raymond Lemire of Sherbrooke was accused of passing two bogus 20s, one in Sherbrooke and one in Danville, police said. He chose trial by jury and was released on bail of $500 cash or $950 property, as was Miss Tardif.

RCMP have warned that counterfeit $20 bills are circulating in the area.

3 steal chain saw, sentences suspended

Three North Hatley men were given a suspended sentence yesterday morning in Sherbrooke Court of Sessions when they pleaded guilty to stealing a chain saw valued at $100.

The threesome, David James Young, 19, Peter Sayers, 19, and David Rube, 25, were ordered to each post a bond of $300 to keep the peace for a year. Rube had a previous record of theft. They spent a night in jail.

In sentencing Rube Judge Redmond Hayes said, "How many more times do you expect clemency from the court as requested by the crown prosecutor."

"Not too many," came the reply.

"You had better answer none," replied Judge Hayes.

The saw which was recovered, was the property of George Moore and Company, North Hatley.

A Grand Metis, Quebec girl of 14 was yesterday sentenced to an indefinite term in a protection home in Quebec City when she was found guilty of vagrancy and of running away from home. She appeared in Sherbrooke Social Welfare Court.

The girl who was found in a St. Francis Street home here earlier this week had been keeping company with a man named Marcel Fortier who had a camp near her home in Grand Metis.

Says visitors are startled by 'amazing' growth of the city

Addressing the public meeting which followed the close of nominations at the City Hall yesterday, Mayor Armand Nadeau told the gathering that visitors to the city had been startled by the amazing growth of Sherbrooke during the past few years.

The mayor was one of the five speakers, the others being Centre Ward Alderman Amedee Roy and South Ward representative Gerard Berard, both of whom were returned by acclamation for three year terms, Ald. Robert Gauthier, of the East Ward, and his opponent, Claude Richer.

The mayor declared this growth was largely the result of the splendid support given by the citizens to the city council.

Among the projects carried out during the past few years he listed the new Lake Memphremagog pipeline, bridge and street construction and the approval of the sports palace.

First speaker was Ald. Gerard Berard, who thanked the electors for the continued confidence shown in him after 11 years on the Council.

He said he would continue to work for the good of the citizens with dignity and devotion.

"Perhaps I do not do anything startling," he said, "but I always try to carry out my duties efficiently."

In closing he said experience was always a valuable aid to a man in public life.

Similar sentiments of thanks to the electors and a promise to work for the future advancement of the city were expressed by Ald. Amedee Roy.

Ald. Robert Gauthier, seeking re-election in the East Ward, said he hoped to continue as a member of a team that had done so much for the progress and expansion of Sherbrooke.

He stressed that the sacrifices sometimes imposed upon him as an alderman were amply rewarded by the accomplishments in which he had participated.

Recent developments in the East Ward, he said, included the construction of the new bridge linking the East and North Wards, the planned construction of a sports palace, public works amounting to $1,675,000 and many local improvements.

Claude Richer contented himself with promising to do the best he could in the interests of the citizens.

Stresses need for trained labor force

With the present technological advancement in industry, there are more openings for technicians, computor operators and so on, than there are trained men and women to fill the jobs, said Marcel Guay, to a class of National Service personnel last night at the University of Sherbrooke. Mr. Guay is Regional Director of NES.

Mr. Guay who spoke to the group prior to the beginning of the first extension course for NES and Unemployment Insurance Commission employees in this district emphasized the necessity of NES employees to continually improve their knowledge to face the ever-increasing problems related to employment and economic conditions.

In the future, said Mr. Guay part of the duty of NES personned will be to advise a serious job applicant to take the basic training necessary to make him better equipped for a position of interest to him.

"The National Employment Service is now going to be an economic arm of the Canadian government to point out the fact that if we in this country are to properly utilize our natural human resourses our people (NES employees) will have to be better prepared to face their obligations; be better prepared to properly channel manpowed," said Mr. Guay.

"The general trend of upgrading the labor force has taken us into all sorts of activity," he said, "such as supplying advisory committees for regional school boards and being on various other planning committees. Therefore we must be more diversely knowledgeable. We are today called on to take part in more and more political labor legislation and political agreements. We are also called on to use the physiological approach in some matters as well as being called upon to enter many other phases of activity. We must be prepared."

Many important tasks performed by Sherbrooke's Welfare agency

When the need is there it is met.

The Sherbrooke Welfare Agency, one of the organizations served by the Sherbrooke - Lennoxville Community Chest, gives aid to all who need it or if it cannot help directly, calls someone who can.

Should an alcoholic come to the agency necessities are given him.

An appeal for a doctor is sent out or one of the community service organizations finds him a home.

Needy families are fed and clothed, and in winter given fuel.

Glasses are provided for children who need them but cannot afford them.

Homes for children from broken homes or unwed mothers are more of the agency's services.

THIRD IN A SERIES

Maplemount, the Cookshire home for young folks has helped solve problems of persons referred to the home by the Sherbrooke Welfare Agency.

President of the agency is Douglas Armitage.

The Community Chest this year has set as its campaign objective $24,000. With its funds it helps support the Welfare Agency as does the Kiwanis Club of Sherbrooke. The Imperial Order of the Daughters of the British Empire and ministers, docotors and lawyers who volunteer professional aid when appealed to.

There are many underprivileged people in this community and the Sherbrooke Welfare Agency is an important force in helping them.

H & S group meets Oct. 4

The first meeting of the Sherbrooke Home and School Association for the new school year will take place Monday, October 4 at 8 p.m., at the Mitchell School auditorium. The subject of the meeting is to be a debate on the merits of large and small secondary schools for the future.

Professor James Angrave of Bishop's University is to speak in favor of the small secondary school while Mrs. J. A. Scott, of Magog, is to speak for the large regional set-up.

Both Professor Angrave and Mrs. Scott were on last year's regional school board planning committee. Mrs. Scott is to receive the Buzzell Award at the October 22 and 23 annual Provincial Home and School Association meeting in Montreal.

The officers of the Sherbrooke association for the new school year are to be presented, to be followed by a short business meeting at the opening of the evening's program.

NO COURTING IN EAST

BAD HERSFELD, West Germany (AP)—Every time they made a date, a couple aged 18 and 21, living in two villages just east of the Iron Curtain, had to get permission from border guards and both town mayors. They were restricted to one meeting a month and so fled to the West to escape the red tape.

Check before doing home alterations; you may need permit from city hall

If you're thinking of altering your house in a major way, don't — at least until you've got the project cleared at the city building office.

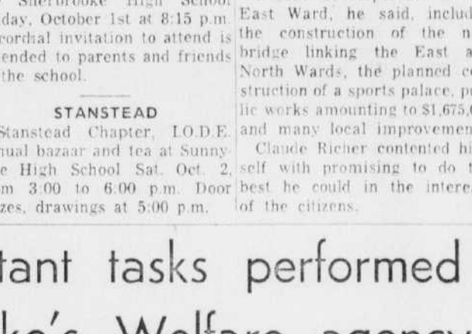

Building permits must be taken out for almost all renovation work, explains Sherbrooke building inspector Aime Gagnon.

There are only two exceptions to the rule: painting and "furniture" alterations.

A small air conditioning set up in the window, for instance, is considered furniture and does not require a building permit, he says.

However an extensive air conditioning unit, installed within the building, does require a permit.

You're taking a chance starting a building project without having a permit, declares Mr. Gagnon. If, when they check it, city inspectors find the construction violates no bylaws they will merely ask the owner to get a permit.

If, however, the project contravenes a city bylaw it must be altered.

In one case, he recalls, a man forgot to take out a permit before starting building. After he'd done about $100 work inspectors found the location too close to a property line. Thus the building had to be torn down.

In cases where buildings are erected contrary to bylaws and their owners refuse to dismantle them city employees tear them down — and charge costs to the proprietor.

There is, apparently, no way of doing renovations on the sly and concealing the result from the all-seeing eye of city officials.

Records are kept of the number of rooms, sinks, toilets, etc. per house and their location, explains, Mr. Gagnon. Any changes are noted and will affect the proprietor's assessment and, perhaps, his water rates.

For smaller projects plans should be brought to the city hall building office. If approved the permit may be granted immediately.

Larger structures, classed as public and industrial buildings, (office buildings, schools, large stores, factories), must also be accepted by Quebec government inspector, says Mr. Gagnon.

Electrical and plumbing work is further subject to government inspection and cannot be hooked up to hydro and water lines without permit.

City inspectors too, keep tabs on construction work through regular bi-weekly inspections until the project's completion, he adds.

HORSES EVADED TAX

One explanation for the herds of wild horses on Sable and Assateague Islands, off the Nova Scotia and Virginia coasts, has been that they were sent there to evade a 1662 tax on horses.

Voters show confidence in Council

By re-electing two of the three retiring members of the city council by acclamation at yesterday's nominations, the electors of the South and Centre wards have shown their confidence in the manner in which the city is being administered.

Both Alderman Gerard Berard and Alderman Amedee Roy represent wards which contain much of the city's commercial and financial institutions and are districts in which criticism of the civic adminstration as a whole would be first apparent.

The single battle, that in the East Ward, is apparently based entirely on ward issues, over problems which inevitably arise in any rapidly-growing section of the city.

In the few public meetings held to date there has been little criticism offered of the various major projects undertaken by the City Council in recent years.

Speakers on both sides are almost unanimous in admitting that such undertakings as the new water system, the Montreal-Terrill street bridge and road complex to name but two have been for the best interests of both the ward and the city.

The disagreements arise over the manner in which the ward has been treated in matter of strictly local projects — whether the East Sherbrooke citizens have or have not been receiving their share of the tax dollar.

This is a question which the East Ward electors must decide for themselves, expressing their opinion at the polls next Wednesday.

The two aldermen returned by acclamation yesterday both have proved valued members of the City Council and the citizens generally will be pleased that they will have another opportunity to work for the betterment of the city.

Hourly wage purchases more food

Probably the greatest problem facing the farmers, especially those conducting a small or medium sized operation, is that food costs have declined substantially over the past fifteen years in relation to wages and to many other living costs.

While the Canadian worker pays a lesser proportion of his wages for food than he did in 1950 and considerably less than his fellows in other parts of the world, the farmer finds his revenues in terms of purchasing power reduced, while his costs are rising.

Figures issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture show that in that province — and conditions are roughly similar in Quebec — an hour's wages buy 9.8 loaves of bread compared with 6.3 in 1949; 9.1 quarts of milk as compared with 5.6; 2.9 pounds of beef against 1.9 and 4.5 dozen eggs against 1.7 in 1949.

Whereas retail food costs have risen 33 per cent in fifteen years, housing costs have gone up 40 per cent and medical care 76 per cent.

And the city dweller must remember that the farmer gets only a portion, sometimes a very small portion, of the price paid for food in the retail store.

The rest goes for processing and distribution. One survey conducted recently showed that what the farmer gets in some cases for the vegetables and food contained in a can cost less than the can itself.

One possible relief for the farmer would be a simplification of processing practices.

Shelves of supermarkets are lined with canned good, each manufacturer offering the same product in a multiplicity of sizes. This might ease the problem of the housewife who finds it easier to purchase a small can of peas than to buy a larger can and put half the contents in the refrigerator for use next day.

But it does add to the cost of processing the article.

The savings effected by reducing the number of sizes might be infinitesimal on each can, perhaps insufficient to permit a reduction in the unit most, but if they were passed on to the producer, his increased earnings could be substantial.

Solicitous of opposition health

During the past few days Liberal spokesmen have become extremely solicitous about the welfare of the Conservative party.

For instance, Gerald Regan, leader of the Nova Scotia Provincial Liberal Party told a Yarmouth meeting that the Canadian people would be doing the Conservatives a great favor by returning a majority Liberal Government to Ottawa on November 8.

Diagnosing the ailments of the Official Opposition, Mr. Regan said the chief weakness of that party was its inability to dispose of its present leader. By keeping the Tories in the Opposition benches, they would be enabled to pick a new leader and thus rise to greater heights in the future.

Naturally the Liberals hold Mr. Diefenbaker in low esteem. He does not want to fight the battle according to their rules. He will not accept their argument that the real issue of the present campaign is the need for a majority Liberal. Rather he sees a number of other important problems facing the electors, including malpractice in high places and the maintenance of a strong federal administration.

Perhaps, however, the Opposition chief might take one leaf from the Liberal catechism.

He, or his chief aides, could discuss the health of the Liberal party and argue that for its own benefit it should take another term on the opposition benches.

Within the next four years the Liberals might be able to find a man who can give them more inspiring leadership than Mr. Pearson. For all his noble qualities, and they are many, the Prime Minister has done little or nothing to present the Liberal party as an aggressive, dynamic organism.

Rather the ineptitude of many of the key ministers has given it the appearance of a weak-lunged man who devotes all his efforts to the first mighty blow only to fail miserably when it comes to carrying through.

The Government may make much in its accomplishments but it has an even more impressive form sheet for matters proposed but not disposed.

In Portugal

Church political efforts fought

LISBON (AP) — The government of Premier Antonio Salazar is preparing to stop any attempt by Portuguese Roman Catholics to organize a political party.

Some leading Roman Catholics this summer formed an underground organization called the Christian Movement for Democratic Action.

Portugal recognizes only one party, that of Salazar. But the electoral law says any group may present candidates during a campaign period. Legislative elections are to be held in October or early November.

Salazar has criticized the Catholic movement, saying:

"The church can Christianize the nation and even the state. But I think it should stop there, for it cannot substitute for the state nor do his work in the material or profane order."

Diario da Manha, the National Union newspaper which supports Salazar, commented: "Communist manoeuvres are behind the present agitation for the creation of a Catholic party."

The movement's unsigned statement has been circulating from hand to hand in his 90-per-cent Roman Catholic country.

The readers say:

If you were Premier, Mr. Pearson

The average Canadian voter is a puzzled and suspicious voter today — a frame of mind which has existed since Prime Minister Pearson announced that a general election would be held on November 8, next, for the sole purpose of gaining an over-all majority in the House — a dream which may not be realized. Such a declaration by Mr. Pearson cannot but excite suspicion that the Prime Minister, if elected according to his wishes, might rule as a dictator during his next term of office, because we know that he, his followers, and almost all the members of the splinter parties, voted down efforts of the official opposition to consult the people in a plebescite on a matter of grave national importance.

It is obvious that Mr. Pearson, if elected, intends to bring in legislation of a contentions nature, and, since, if given an over-all majority in the House, and frowns on any attempt to consult the people in a plebescite, he would rule the destinies of this country as he saw fit. Is that a pleasant prospect? In view of his possible return to power, I feel that it is the privilege of each and every voter in this country to ask Mr. Pearson what his opinion is, and what his government would do, concerning certain issues, if, and when, they are brought before the House.

So, Mr. Pearson, assuming for the moment that you were given an over-all majority in the House on Nov. 8, please give clear, concise, and unequivocal answers to the following questions. Thank you, sir.

1. Do you intend to continue house-cleaning operations in the House, or, do you consider moving the principals involved from one post to another as sufficient?

2. Do you intend to send Canadian troops to Viet Nam to assist American forces in their attempted obliteration of that land? It has been reported that you received a letter from President Johnson in this connection, but you have refused to make public what the request, or demands, were in that letter.

3. Are you in favor of Canada becoming a member of the O.A.S.?

4. Are you in favor of divesting the flow of some of our northern rivers to replenish the Great Lakes, from which this priceless heritage would be drawn by our neighbors to the south of us?

5. What plans have you in mind to correct the long, standing imbalance of trade with the United States? The treaty arranged by you and President Johnson concerning auto parts, appears to be of the delayed action variety — some say that five years may elapse before results, of any kind, will be realized.

6. What do you intend to do to combat the high cost of living?

7. Are you in favor of closing permanent, important, but non-paying, sections, of our railroad system, in the West, or elsewhere, in this country?

8. What do you propose to do to assist farmers in Eastern Canada? The income of the average Eastern farmer is dropping steadily, while his operating costs have been mounting by leaps and bounds.

9. Do you intend to continue giving special privileges and special tax concessions to "special" Provinces, thereby removing all the authority, and powers, of a central government?

10. Do you consider that heavy national expenditures, such as you advocated at this time, are consistent with the best interests of this country? We are told "That debt charges — now near the billion dollar mark — rank second only to defence in the federal budget, and, already, demands for interest have forced the curtailment of many vital projects."

11. Do you intend to remove the odious 11% tax on building materials? This tax compels the many who repair existing buildings to pay for new homes for a few?

12. Under any circumstances, whatever, do you intend to resort to a motion of closure to enforce the passage of any bill through the House?

The above questions, which represent only a few of the problems on our political horizon — and the possible legislation that Mr. Pearson may adopt concerning them — are a cause of great concern to the Canadian voter which can only be dispelled by a clear-cut definition of policy. Failure on the part of Mr. Pearson to disclose his policy on each and every question of national importance, submitted to him, would only serve to deepen the distrust and fears prevailing, and as a result many would.

Join the throng on November 8.
And vote for a Canada,
united, great,
Recalling Honest John to
once again
Give us a government free
from stain,
And hand a defeat to
Lester B.
Instead of his much-wanted majority.

Thank you, Mr. Editor,

Must move ahead in education field

Dear Sir:

In your issue of Sept. 24 we read about "Closing the doors of Inverness Academy," the writer evidently being a little sceptical of certain facts about this transaction.

He (or she) termed "The Academy," as, "an ancient seat of learning". Yet a petition was drawn up asking bachelors, old maids, and non-parents to sign this document, that "The Academy" remain as it has been, over years, with no changes.

Now for goodness sake who wants to sit still in this day and age and let the field of education for our youth remain as it has been in the past? But our school board was broadminded enough to think of the welfare of the young people instead of their tax bill. The tax bill being a point much stressed by the writer.

Our present tax rate as stated in your paper is 4.12 per hundred of valuation, but it was not pointed out that 25% of this amount is reimbursed by the government to all farmers. In depression years our rate of taxation was $2.00 per hundred of valuation. How many things can we buy or sell today for only twice what it was in the lean 30's.

So instead of looking around at our land holdings and wondering what our next tax bill will be, let us think of our young citizens and wish for them the best.

Thank you Mr. Editor.
A Disgusted ratepayer.

Still plain old-fashioned bus service

Dear sir:

This is my first letter to your paper, and of course it's to complain about bus service. We have a good English daily paper, a good French daily, good radio stations. But just plain old fashioned bus service.

Mr. Nadeau, our mayor, has done some very wonderful things for our city. I wonder if Mr. Nadeau or any of the council members has ever visited the City of Baie Comeau on the North Shore? I have, and the city has their own bus service and they don't have those big buses that take up all the road. They have small buses seating 12 to 14 but you never have to wait more than ten to fifteen minutes at the rush hours, they run more than one bus.

Baie Comeau is very hilly and spread out, yet you can always get to church, school or shopping by bus.

Hoping someone acts soon.

I remain,
Another disgusted shopper.

No excuse for executions by Viet Nam

Sir:

With reference to the recent execution of three Viet Cong for war crimes. I feel that all Canadians, especially those who served during war time, will agree that it is not a crime to say things about the people a soldier is trained to kill.

Another discrepancy exists when the USA disclaims responsibility for the execution, on the grounds that the South Vietnamese did the killing. This is rather like a puppeteer disclaiming responsibility for the actions of his puppets.

In a war the same code of justice applies to both sides without regard to the smallness of race, colour, creed, religion or nationality.

I am atheist, but even so, we must all "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."

A membership in the American College of Hospital Administrators has been conferred on H. C. Allnutt, superintendent of the Sherbrooke Hospital, it was announced today by J. Gordon Armitage, president of the hospital.

This high honor, first of its kind ever accorded to an official of a Sherbrooke hospital, was conferred on Mr. Allnutt at the annual meeting of the American College of Hospital Administrators held at Atlantic City earlier this month.

Qualifications for membership are stiff as there are examinations to be passed and investigations into the applicants' ability are conducted over a period of at least two years, during which the applicant is considered as a nominee.

Reports and discussions were heard from each group, all having some helpful advice or suggestion to pass on.

Gerald Waring REPORTING

OTTAWA — With this election I have covered nine of the 27 federal elections since Confederation, or exactly one third. And I've never known one so phoney.

It is an election without a popular issue. Three weeks after Prime Minister Pearson committed the country to the polls the people are largely unmoved. So Mr. Pearson wants a majority; so what else is new?

It's an election that by rights shouldn't have happened — unless, as I believe, Mr. Pearson needs a new and more solid mandate to strengthen his hand in further fiscal and constitutional negotiations with Quebec. But he can't dwell too precisely on this point without risk of antagonizing Quebec voters and jeopardizing the seat gains his party must make in Quebec to get a majority.

It's an election that dissolved the 26th Parliament just when the MPs elected only two and a half years ago had proven, by their hard and fruitful labors last spring, that they were mastering their jobs, and that minority government can be made to work.

It's an election that could have been postponed a year, with the likelihood that the postponement would make it possible to take the vote after an overdue redistribution of Commons seats and on an incomparably more democratic basis.

The element of phoniness is intensified by the spectacle of the Tory mavericks emerging from the bush to rejoin the herd, ostensibly submitting to the leadership of the old bull they tried to drive out, but in reality getting ready to destroy him should the expected opportunity arise after Nov. 8.

And by the graveyard whistling of Mr. Pearson: Liberal candidates should ignore the slander, innuendo and calumny of their opponents, he advised. In other words, ignore the Dorion Commission report and it'll go away.

And by the equal absurdities of Conservative leader Diefenbaker, who blames the Liberals for price inflation, and proposes to reduce taxes, increase old age pensions, and expand consumer credit by reducing interest rates and enacting a consumers' loans act — all inflationary measures.

The voters' choice isn't between two rival philosophies of government. The Conservatives provided good, imaginative government between 1957 and 1960, before strains and frustrations began to wrack — and wreck — their administration. The Liberals have provided good, imaginative government for the past two years, scandals and stumbles notwithstanding.

Only rarely, as over the flag, have Grits and Tories been unable to agree broadly since 1957 on policies and programs in the national interest. There has been much wrangling, of course, to avoid me-tooism, but the pattern of government has not changed much. Where there has been difference is in approach, timing, priority, degree, and individual expertise is dealing with specifics.

The election rivalry, and the voters' choice, is thus much more between parties and leaders than between programs. Many voters seem to find the alternatives less than enthralling.

This actually favors the Liberals. It's axiomatic that the people don't elect oppositions; they defeat governments. A quiet election, a disinterested electorate, a light vote — and the progs are that the vote may be down 10 per cent from 1963 — increase Mr. Pearson's chances of getting his majority.

TODAY IN HISTORY

A papal bull re-established the Roman Catholic hierarchy of bishops in England 115 years ago today—in 1850—in an attempt to follow up the reform movement which had abolished many of the legal restrictions on English Catholics. The following year Parliament, with mass popular support, passed an Ecclesiastical Titles Bill, which forbade any Catholic priest or bishop to use as a title any British place-name. This bill was never enforced and was repealed 20 years later. However to this day certain high offices, such as that of sovereign, are prohibited in Britain to Catholics.

1399—Henry IV of England was crowned while Richard II was still alive.

1846—Ether was first used medically as an anesthetic.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1915 — Lord Derby took charge of British recruiting; it was announced British war casualties to date on the Western front totalled 331,262, including 11,779 Canadians.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1940—there were six German air raids on England, four on London; Air Marshal Sir Hugh Dowding, commander of Fighter Command, was decorated; seven British subjects were reported convicted of spying in Japan; it was announced units of the Australian Air Force had reinforced the garrison in Malaya.

The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room

O earth, earth, earth, hear the word of the Lord. (Jeremiah 228:99).

PRAYER: Dear Lord, we thank Thee for the opportunities to hear Thy voice through Thy Word. Help us to be witnesses of Thy Word to all nations. For His sake we pray. Amen.

Knowlton school board meets

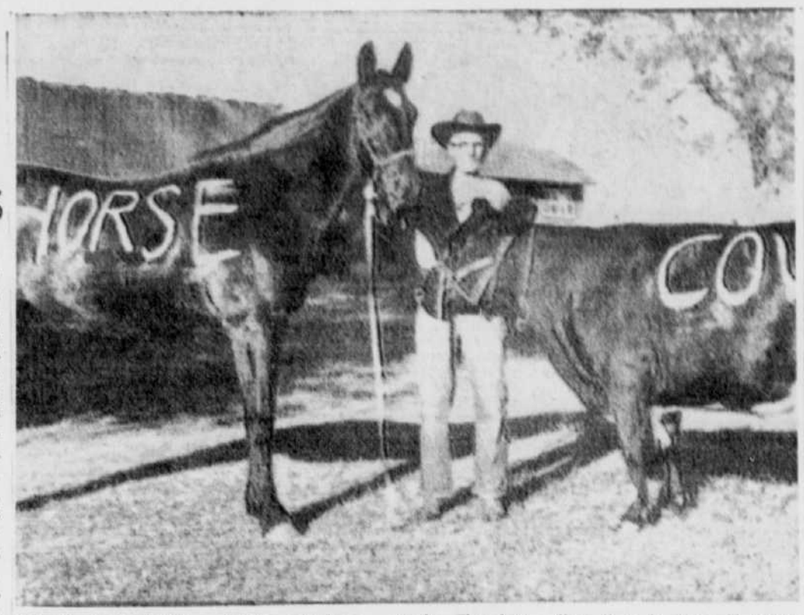

KNOWLTON — At the regular monthly meeting of the Knowlton Protestant School Commission Principals S. B. Hardacker of Knowlton High School and Vance Patterson of Mansonville Intermediate School, gave reports. Enrolment at Knowlton has increased while Mansonville has about the same number of students as last year. The renovations and repairs made in both buildings were reviewed by the board.

Mr. Hardacker and vice-principal Ronald E. Elliott outlined the program of the in-service education held for teachers of both schools at the beginning of the school year.

Team teaching is now a reality at Knowlton High. Pupils of grade six have been supplied with a double classroom and provisions have been made for much more individual attention.

Col. O. B. Rexford welcomed James R. Boule, secretary-treasurer, and J. L. MacKeen, director-general District of Bedford Regional Board to the meeting. Mr. MacKeen, requested the Knowlton Board for permission to obtain statistical information concerning the age-grade distribution of students. The next stage in the planning for the Regional School is to obtain an inventory of all students in the District of Bedford and information concerning teachers available for the varied program of studies being planned. Homer Blackwood, regional board member for Knowlton, was in attendance.

Col. Rexford invited Mr. MacKeen to visit the school and meet teachers in groups or individually. The full co-operation and support of the Knowlton School Commission was assured the visitors.

Waterloo lawyer named judge

WATERLOO — (Special) — Prominent Waterloo lawyer Guy Genest has been appointed a judge and will share work with Judge Patrick Delaney in Bedford District Court in Sweetsburg.

Date for the swearing-in ceremony will probably be mid-October.

The newly appointed judge, born in Montreal, is 46 years old. He was admitted to the bar when he was 22. He has practised law in Waterloo for the past 16 years. A very active and public-spirited man, Judge Genest has been a church warden of St. Bernardin's in Waterloo, an alderman on the Town Council and secretary of the Catholic School Commission for the last 12 years. He is now chairman of the School Commission and president of the Parent-Teachers Association for Exceptional Children in the County of Shefford.

Mr. Genest married Miss Fleurette Gosselin of Montreal in 1948. They have seven children. The two share a common interest in art, spending much of their leisure in painting in their studio, built in their Western Avenue home.

Business is rapped for failing to project proper society role

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's top businessmen were told Wednesday that their image in the eyes of much of the Canadian public consists of "misconceptions, misinformation and plain ignorance."

This was the message given to the closing session of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce conference—but it was made clear to the 800 assembled delegates the fault lies mainly with business for not projecting its proper role in society.

J. M. Keith of Montreal, newly-elected president of the chamber's executive council and president of Imperial Tobacco Co. Ltd., told delegates the chamber will have to make clear that the real objectives of business are "being for progress and for the people, instead of appearing to be against government, against labor, against much that is considered progressive in our society."

Business has to show that its economic aims are the same as those of all Canadians, even though in the past it has failed in presenting this basic objective in terms that could be understood and accepted by the public, Mr. Keith said.

BACKS BILINGUALISM

In its policy sessions, the chamber made some changes from last year's resolutions, including one calling for both French and English to be taught from Grade 1 on, and for more bilingualism in the civil service.

The major theme of the conference, however, was that business has failed to show the public that its aims are not just to make bigger profits.

The chamber heard a report, drawn up by a private company, on the public's attitude which showed:

—That 23 per cent of the 2,200 persons queried did not know of any difference between the Canadian and the Russian way of life;

—That people thought business makes a net profit of 19.3 per cent, although recent government statistics show that the profit on the sales dollar was 2.7 per cent;

—That people believe business pays 23 per cent of their profit in taxes, although actual rates run 50 to 52 per cent;

—That they believe business has much more control over the government than it should have;

—That business does not really live up as much as it should to its responsibilities to customers, shareholders, employees or communities.

Bedford Sunday School to open this Sunday

BEDFORD — (Special) — The opening meeting of the St. James Church Sunday School will be held Sunday, Oct. 3, with Miss Dorothy Ewing as superintendent. A meeting of Sunday School teachers will be held on Friday at 4 p.m. in the church hall.

A Thanksgiving Service will be held on Oct. 10. Rev. Trickey asks that parishioners bring flowers, fruits and vegetables for church decorations. The suggestion was also made that a new form of decorations could be used this year, with samples of the work of various industries in the town.

A letter was read at the Sunday morning service, Sept. 26 dealing with the recent synod meeting held in Victoria, B.C., and the advancement which had been made in the proposed union of the Anglican and United Churches.

Away-from-city dream squelched for family

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lee van Dusen's dream of life in the British Columbia wilderness has vanished. He, his wife and three children have been ordered back to the U.S.

Two other American families, also from Tripton, Ind., will remain behind and try to build a new life, away from the city, at Wakeman Sound, a remote mainland inlet about 200 miles northeast of here.

Immigration authorities ruled Wednesday the van Dusens were not properly landed immigrants and have given them until the middle of October to leave the country.

Van Dusen, 27, told authorities he would have his wife Karen and three children flown out of an abandoned logging camp in which the families are living. Van Dusen said he would leave by boat as soon as he made repairs on his small inboard.

PLAN TO WORK

Immigration authorities said the heads of the other two families, Dave Stafford and Jack Myers, both 31, plan to obtain jobs in logging camps on the island.

"They will make good immigrants," an immigration spokesman said here Wednesday. "If they can't make a living where they are, they will move out and fit into some community."

The spokesman felt reports of the Americans' reasons for leaving Indiana were exaggerated.

The men were quoted as saying they feared sporadic nuclear warfare, an impending Communist takeover, creeping socialism and the "Mickey Mouse philosophy."

"All they really want to do is get away from city life," the spokesman said. "The Myers and Staffords lived on opposite sides of a freeway in Indiana and their children couldn't play with each other.

"They're not crackpots."

Granby couple is honored on 25th anniversary

GRANBY — About 75 friends and relatives gathered at St. George's Anglican Parish Hall on Sept. 18 to surprise Mr. and Mrs. T. Green of Queen Street on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Reg. Topp presided at the piano for several selections until the honored couple arrived, when she played the Wedding March.

Mrs. Green was presented with a dozen long stemmed red roses, after which she and her husband were escorted to the bride's table, where an attractively decorated bride's cake centered the lace covered table, flanked by silver tapers and autumn flowers.

Archdeacon I. M. Lidstone D.D.; proposed the toast to the couple, John Livingstone, St. Lambert, presented them with a purse on behalf of those present.

Mr. Livingstone was best man at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Green.

Miss Katheryn Green, daughter of the guest of honor presented her parents with an eight place setting of silver.

Guest attending were from Granby, Bondville, Montreal, St. Lambert, Lachine, Valleyfield, Ottawa, Ont., Winnipeg, Mann., and Fort William, Ont.

A delicious supper was served to add to the most memorable evening.

Says public interested in funerals

OTTAWA (CP)—It's time funeral directors realized the public is interested in funeral services and launched a massive public relations program, a U.S. authority on the subject said Wednesday.

Dr. Charles H. Nichols, director of the National Foundation of Funeral Service, Chicago, told the annual convention of the Ontario Funeral Service Association the public doesn't know "how to distinguish the good and bad among us."

"Too long we've deluded ourselves that the public is not interested in funeral service."

Dr. Nichols called Jessica Mitford's best-seller The American Way of Death, a "vicious, slanted, clearly - propagandist book" full of "biased, half truths" and "in some cases, outright lies."

Miss Mitford had interviewed him but the references to the interview in her book made him "look like a perfect ass."

Her book had "galvanized" the foundation and other funeral groups into action. But they still needed to learn the "lesson of continuing public relations."

Compensation to farmers for drought damage due

QUEBEC (CP) — Alcide Courcy, Quebec agriculture minister, Wednesday announced that farmers in 50 Quebec counties will receive federal-provincial compensation for crop losses suffered due to drought this summer.

None of the Eastern Townships is effected.

They will receive $30 for each ton of fodder they have to buy for cattle because of the shortage of hay brought on by the drought.

In some counties farmers will be compensated for a ton of fodder a head, in others only a quarter-ton, depending on the seriousness of the drought in the area.

The total amount paid in aid will be between $8,000,000 and $13,000,000, the announcement said.

Brewers president

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP)—Melville R. (Mel) Jack, 56, of Ottawa Wednesday was elected president of the Canadian Brewers Association.

The post is reported to carry a salary of $50,000 a year.

Imaginative, hard-driving and jovial, Mr. Jack spent 20 years in political and governmental life in Ottawa, almost always in the background, as executive assistant to former conservative leaders John Bracken and George Drew, and then as executive assistant to George Hees, then trade minister.

Separatist jailed

QUEBEC (CP)—Reggie Chartrand, 32, a Quebec separatist, went to jail Wednesday night rather than pay a $25 fine for disturbing the peace during the Queen's visit here last October.

Chartrand, a Montreal boxer and leader of the militant separatist group Les Chevaliers de l'Independance, chose to spend eight days in jail rather than pay the $25 and costs.

Must regroup

MONTREAL (CP) — Gerard Levesque, Quebec minister of industry and commerce, says small and medium - size businesses must regroup if they do not want to disappear or deterioriate.

"These businesses can no longer go it alone," he said. ". . . If they wish to expand by enlarging their markets, there is only one route open to them, that of regrouping."

On social security

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadians must do some hard thinking in the matter of social security legislation, H. B. Style, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said Thursday.

Speaking at an association luncheon in Montreal, Mr. Style said he is concerned about welfare psychology being carried to the point where more and more people think in terms of "being spoon - fed from the cradle to the grave."

He said he was not proposing to turn back the clock in social security legislation.

School is late

SHAWINIGAN, Que. (CP)—The 1965-66 school year begins next Monday—four weeks late—for some 8,500 French-speaking high school students of the St. Maurice Valley region in central Quebec.

The announcement of the opening of classes followed a meeting Wednesday night of the St. Maurice district Roman Catholic school board, whose 500 teachers had refused to report for work after the Labor Day weekend because of a dispute over teaching contracts.

DOESN'T ATTACK DIEF — Pierre Sevigny former associate defence minister, told McGill University students Wednesday his forthcoming book on politics does not attack Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker. (CP Wirephoto)

Murder restudied

MONTREAL (CP) — Three men are being held as material witnesses in the slaying almost 16 years ago of a resident of east-end Montreal.

The victim was Romeo Lamy, 40. Police reopened their investigation of his death after receiving an anonymous telephone call early this month.

Lamy was attacked and beaten after he had stepped from a streetcar en route to his home, Nov. 16, 1949. He died that night in hospital of head and neck injuries.

News flashes from around the world

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—A young mother of two, angry because her 20-month-old daughter would not eat her breakfast Wednesday, threw the child out of a third-floor apartment twice, police said, then drowned her in a bathtub.

Paul Dankow, an investigator for the county medical examiner's office, identified the dead girl as Susan Vukovich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Vukovich.

Mayberry strangled Helga Hoffman, 25, a part-time prostitute, under the influence of drink during an argument over money, according to his statement to West German police. Mayberry pleaded guilty.

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—The head of the Ku Klux Klan in Delaware said Wednesday the Klan has reversed its historic anti-Catholic stand and now welcomes Roman Catholics as members.

Ralph E. Pryor, Jr., said in a radio broadcast and in telephone interviews with reporters that the policy change was adopted nationally by the United Klans of America about three months ago.

Rt. Rev. John H. Dewson, spokesman for the Catholic diocese of Wilmington, said:

"To be a Catholic and a member of the Ku Klux Klan is a contradiction in terms. I don't see how, either as a Christian or an American, a person can in good conscience belong to the Klan."

Indians Sam McDowell joins Koufax as member of 300-strikeout club, fans 12 Yanks, Twins edge Orioles

What pitcher is striking out batters at a faster clip than Sandy Koufax?

None other than Sam McDowell of Cleveland Indians, whose individual performances have been overshadowed in recent weeks by the American League pennant race. Without fanfare, he has joined Koufax as a member of the exclusive 300-strikeout club.

McDowell, 23, in only his second full major league season, raised his strikeout total to 318 Wednesday night by fanning 12 in a five-hit, 5-3 victory over New York Yankees.

The left-hander, who has a 17-10 record with a league-leading 2.17 earned-run average, has struck out 10 or more batters in 17 games this season and is only the fifth pitcher in major league history to hit the 300-strikeout plateau.

Only Koufax in the NL and Rube Wadell, Walter Johnson and Bob Feller in the AL have reached that level.

In addition McDowell is fanning batters faster than Koufax, 29, despite the fact the Los Angeles Dodger left-hander has struck out a major league record 369. Koufax, who has worked 326 2-3 innings, has a 1.1 strikeout-per-inning rate to 1.2 for McDowell, who has pitched only 265 innings.

While McDowell was adding to his laurels, champion Minnesota Twins ended Baltimore's nine-game winning streak by edging the Orioles 3-2, Jim Hannan of Washington Senators five-hit Kansas City Athletics 9-0 and Boston Red Sox edged California Angels 2-1. Chicago White Sox and Detroit Tigers were idle.

Fred Whitfield and Max Alvis supplied the only support McDowell needed. Whitfield hit a three-run homer in a four-run third inning while Alvis, who went 4-for-4, singled home the other run in the uprising and then hit a homer in the eighth inning.

Jim Grant, the lone 20-game winner in the AL, gained his 21st victory against six losses when Bob Allison won it for the Twins with a two-run homer in the eighth inning. Allison also tripled and scored the first run on Andy Kosco's fourth-inning single.

Hannan brought his record to 1-1, pitching the first shutout and first complete game in his four years with the Senators. Ed Brinkman singled home two runs in a four-run first-inning rally.

Tony Conigliaro snapped a 1-1 tie in the fourth inning, boosting the Red Sox to their victory over the Angels with his 32nd homer. A crowd of 409 was on hand at Boston—the smallest turnout of the season in the major leagues.

Rough Riders face tough weekend as they tangle with Stamps and Roughriders, Ticats go West also

OTTAWA (CP)—Red O'Quinn has been studying statistics this year and has come to one vital conclusion:

Ottawa Rough Riders will have to finish in first place in the Eastern Football Conference to entertain any serious hope of reaching the Grey Cup final.

The Riders general manager said he had checked back over the last 10 seasons, "and the first-place club went to the final nine times."

"The only exception was the 1960 Ottawa team—which went on to win the cup after a second-place finish."

That was the season the Riders eliminated Montreal Alouettes in the semi-final and went on to beat Toronto Argonauts in the two-game total-point final after blowing a 20-point lead in the first half of the second game.

Coach Frank Clair went out on a limb for the first time in his coaching career this year and predicted Ottawa would lead the Eastern Football Conference, and to date, his forecast doesn't look too bad.

The Riders now are tied for first with Hamilton Tiger-Cats and have a game in hand.

PLAY KEY GAMES

But the next two weeks will tell the story. The Riders start a road trip this weekend with three games in 10 days, all against tough opposition.

"We have to make a good showing—win at least two or preferably all three games," O'Quinn added.

"But that's going to be tough."

The Riders start their tour Saturday in Calgary against the Stampeders and move on to Regina Monday to meet Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The Stampeders lead the Western conference, and Saskatchewan is tied with B.C. Lions for the third and last Western playoff berth.

"Both clubs are tough," Quinn said. "They can score a lot of point and they have big, tough defences."

Clair also feels the two games in the West are big ones.

"Ordinarily, when you go out West you think more about getting a split," he said.

NEED BOTH WINS

"But we can't think about that at all . . . we have to win both games."

Hamilton also has a Western trip this weekend, but it involves a single game against second-place Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

The following Monday, Thanksgiving Day, rates as the key game of the season as the Riders finish their road schedule with their third and final game against Hamilton.

"That's one game we have to win," O'Quinn added.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Batting—Bob Gibson, Cardinals, hit a grand-slam homer in St. Louis' 8-6 victory over San Francisco Giants.

Pitching — Sandy Koufax, Dodgers, pitched a two-hitter and gained his 25th victory of the season as Los Angeles flanked Cincinnati Reds 5-0.

Sandy Koufax posts 25th win, Giants lose 8-6

IT WASN'T EVEN CLOSE — Maury Wills of the Los Angeles Dodgers is out by the proverbial mile on an attempted steal of second against Cincinnati in Los Angeles last night. Shortstop Leo Cardenas is taking throw from catcher Don Pavletich who had called for a pitchout. The play cost the Dodgers a run because the next man up, Jim Gilliam, doubled. Umpire is Augie Donatelli. (AP Wirephoto)

Sandy Koufax, whose dazzling curve and fast ball have brought him just about everything a pitcher could want, now has a fork-ball.

He displayed it Wednesday night, pitching a two-hitter and gaining his 25th triumph as Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Cincinnati Reds 5-0 for their 12th straight victory and increased their National League lead to two games over San Francisco Giants.

The Giants lost 8-6 to St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday and now face a four-game, season-ending series with Cincinnati. The Dodgers play their last four games with Milwaukee Braves. If they win only two of them, the Giants have to sweep all four of theirs to gain a tie.

"It's hard to tell one game of Sandy's from another, he's so consistent," Dodger manager Walter Alston said after the game.

But there was one difference—the forkball. And Koufax was appropriately proud of it.

GOT THEM OVER

"I had a good curve, and my control was as good as it's been all year," the left-hander said. "Then I threw five or six forkballs—got 'em over, too."

Koufax, 29, has been experimenting with the pitch this season but had thrown it only once or twice in any game before Wednesday night.

It only foreshadowed worse things to come for Dodger opponents, who have stood by almost helplessly while Koufax has compiled a major league record of 369 strikeouts, eight shutouts and 26 complete games in 40 starts this season.

Koufax' 25 victories also equal his personal high achieved in 1963 when he won the Cy Young Award. He lost five that year compared with eight this season. He also reduced his earned-run average to 2.06 as the Dodgers eliminated the third-place Reds from contention.

In other NL games, Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed New York Mets 4-2, Milwaukee Braves beat Houston Astros 5-1 and Philadelphia Phillies edged Chicago Cubs 7-6.

STRUCK OUT 13

Koufax, who struck out 13, allowed only singles by Vada Pinson in the fourth and Deron Johnson in the seventh. The Dodgers' big blow was Maury Wills' three-run triple in the seventh off Jim Maloney, now 20-9.

The Giants went down to their sixth defeat in the last eight games despite a six-run rally in the ninth. Bob Gibson, 19-12, held them to two hits until that inning, but Curt Simmons and Hal Woodeshick had to come on before the Cardinals got out of it.

Jim Davenport hit a three-run homer in the rally, but that was nullified by Gibson's first major league grand slam in the eighth.

Jim Pagliaroni's two-run homer in the seventh carried Pittsburgh past New York. Donn Clendenon singled across a Pirate run in the fourth, then stole second and came home as Bill Mazeroski singled.

Ken Johnson stopped Houston on five hits, bringing his record to 16-10. He received support from Mack Jones, who clouted a two-run homer.

The Phillies edged the Cubs on Billy Hoeft's two-out, bases-loaded walk to pinch hitter Bill Sorrell in the ninth.

Sherbrooke High Seniors shutout BCS on Mike Cotterell's tally

Sherbrooke High School Seniors posted a 1-0 win over Bishop's College School yesterday afternoon in a regular fixture of the St. Francis Valley Interscholastic Soccer League at Lennoxville.

Mike Cotterell potted the winning tally halfway through the first frame when he scored from close quarters. The game was a tough one and Willard and Swan, playing defense for Sherbrooke, came up with top performances in holding off Bishop's attempts to score.

It was a battle of the rear guards and players on both sides kept the in-charging forwards at bay. Bishop's tried their best to get a tie out of the tilt and kept battling the whole way.

Sherbrooke held their 1-0 lead after the end of the first half. Bishop's opened with a terrific charge but Sherbrooke held on as play kept moving up and down the field at a good clip. Bishop's were close on three occasions in the closing minutes of the game but Sherbrooke kept clearing well.

The teams played well, as the score indicates, and the outcome was in doubt right up the final whistle. Players turned in fine performances and it was only the outstanding work of the defense on both clubs which held the score down.

On Saturday Sherbrooke Seniors and Juniors travel to Asbestos to take on ADS and at the same time the girls will be playing their first game of the season. This should be interesting to watch.

Bruins to be fined for laxity, Hull shows up

The National Hockey League season doesn't open for another three weeks. All six clubs still have players to sign. But Boston Bruins are playing for money, as of now.

The news was broken to the Bruins Wednesday of Hap Emms, their new general manager, and it wasn't exactly greeted with cheers. For the money they'll be playing for is their own.

Before sending his players on to the ice at London, Ont., for a scheduled 90-minute workout that ran overtime, Emms told them anyone sent off the ice by coach Milt Schmidt for laxity would be fined $50.

Schmidt said afterwards he was pleased by the response.

Emms, who comes to the last-place Bruins after leading Niagara Falls Flyers, their junior farm club, to the Memorial Cup, took personal charge of a defensive drill.

The 61-year-old general manager also signed four players—defenceman Leo Boivin and forwards Ed Westfall, Ron Schock and Tommy Williams.

While the Bruins sweated to preserve their pocket money, Bobby Hull staved off financial embarrassment with considerably less effort — simply by showing up at the rink.

The Golden Jet, threatened with a $1,000-a-day fine by owner Jim Norris if he continued his four-day absence from Chicago Black Hawks' workouts, showed up for a chat with general manager Tommy Ivan and coach Billy Reay and eventually joined his team-mates for the last 15 minutes of their drill.

Hull, who walked out Saturday when Reay wouldn't allow his sons, Blake, 5, and Bobby, 4, to skate with the team, said he would not press the issue.

"I understand now why the management wants to keep the dressing room strictly for players during training," he said. "We have a lot of young players trying to make the team and they shouldn't be distracted."

Still unresolved was the NHL scoring leader's salary for the upcoming season but Hull squelched the rumor that he was asking for $100,000. Hull and Ivan said they had discussed his contract Wednesday and were "a little way" apart.

Coach Toe Blake praised his Stanley Cup champion Canadiens for their offensive efforts and, in the next breath, criticized his goaltenders and defencemen for making the scoring achievements possible.

Captain Jean Beliveau, hero of the playoffs last spring, scored two goals in Wednesday's workout, as did Dave Balon, John Ferguson and Yvan Cournoyer. Goaltender Charlie Hodge, defenceman Terry Harper and wingers Claude Larose and Dick Duff signed their contracts during the day.

At Peterborough, where Punch Imlach is still juggling players to determine Toronto Maple Leafs' lineup, the coach said he will rest centres Red Kelly and Ed Joyal and rookie left-winger Brit Selby for tonight's exhibition game against New York Rangers.

Tim Horton, one of Toronto's top defencemen, will be moved up to right wing for the game and rookie forwards Terry Clancy and Mike Walton will be in action.

At Kingston the Rangers announced the signing of veteran goalie Don Simmons and Vic Hadfield, one of their top right wingers.

NEW COACH — Jean-Guy Charbonneau is signing as coach of the Waterloo Maroons of the Eastern Townships Junior B Hockey League. Rene Boileau, club president, left, is witnessing the signature. Charbonneau is very well known throughout the Townships having played with the Granby Vics of the Quebec Provincial Senior Hockey League ever since they were in the circuit. All patched up says Bobby Hull CHICAGO (AP)—Bobby Hull, the golden jet of the National Hockey League, rejoined Chicago Black Hawks Wednesday after patching up his feud with the management over dressing room policy.

Hull quit the Hawk training camp Saturday when his two sons, Blake, 5, and Bobby, 4, were barred from the dressing room.

"There was a misunderstanding which had been patched up," said Hull after a conference with general manager Tommy Ivan.

"I understand now why the management wants to keep the dressing room strictly for players during training. We have a lot of young players trying to make the team and they shouldn't be distracted."

The conference also included talk on the star player's 1965-66 salary, but Hull scoffed at reports he was asking $100,000.

Hull, who received an estimated $30,000 last season, said confusion was caused by his alleged mention of a $100,000 salary in an interview at Hawaii last winter.

BLAMES JOKE

"I probably should have told that reporter I wanted $200,000 and he would have known I was kidding," said Hull. "I'm looking for a raise, but that hundred grand was a joke."

Unlike most pro athletes, hockey players are not signed before the start of training. The highest NHL salaried player reportedly is Detroit's Gordie Howe, at $35,000.

Hull stressed his walkout was not over salary but strictly over banning of his boys from the Hawk dressing room.

On the salary matter, Ivan said "a lot of figures were tossed around, but we're not far apart."

Ivan said Hull would not be disciplined for his four-day absence.

Injuries hamper squad

Bishop's Gaiters at CMR in first OSLAA grid tilt

Wails and laments can be heard around the campus at Bishop's University this week, and there's no mistake as to their place of origin.

Ever since last weekend's narrow 19-15 submittal to the NDG Maple Leafs, Bruce Coulter, coach of the Bishop's football Gaiters, has been wondering what he'll offer in their first OSLAA league tilt this weekend.

The Gaiters, who are in St. Johns against the College Militaire Royale Saturday afternoon in the league opener, will be minus a few key players, the results of a good showing against the NDG 1964 Junior Canadian football finalists.

Beginning with Will Mitchell, starting quarterback, trouble may be in store, as 'minor injuries' could hamper his style against CMR. His fellow Gaiters Dave Milligan, Pete Dunn and Mark Alexander have been absent from the field of action for various inflictions.

Thus, while Coach Coulter, burdened with the individual losses, makes certain changes, the injuries of the afflicted will slowly mend.

Dave Milligan, in an attempted block last Saturday, received a cast to hold his broken hand, while Pete Dunn suffers a cracked leg and Mark Alexander guards his knee ligaments. Dave Cooper, another of the Bish standouts, adds to Coulter's laments, as he too, will be hampered by a bruised shoulder in practice.

However, after seeing just what his Gaiters are capable of, Bruce Coulter is setting his sights on a repeat performance of the Conference Championship of 1964.

"Although you could say I'm crying now, I may be smiling after our first league game. I'll have to adapt to the injuries sustained, but at the same time, it will allow me an opportunity to see what else is in stock," said the Coach yesterday.

SOCCER SATANS AT HOME

While action is aflare at CMR, the soccer field on the homefront will see the Bishop's Satans in game number two, but looking for win number one.

Their first game was against Sir George Williams University last week, and their 3-1 loss was by far no aumiliation. The SGWU squad are defending champions, and accepted a fair game from the Satans.

Carleton University will be on the field at 2 p.m.

In other sports activities on the Bishop's campus, Garth Smith, Assistant Athletic Director, has completed plans for next week's university golf tourney to be held at the Lennoxville Golf Club. Entries from the Ottawa-St. Lawrence Athletic Association will take part.

Notices have been posted concerning try-outs for the basketball teams, varsity and J.V., beginning tomorrow. Hardcourt fever has already hit the campus.

Canadiens reach agreements with four more, Hodge joins Worsley, Blake satisfied with his offense

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League reached contract agreement Wednesday with four more members of last season's Stanley Cup team.

Canadiens, holding their preseason training camp at the Montreal Forum, now have nine members of last year's squad under contract.

The latest players to come to terms are netminder Charlie Hodge, defenceman Terry Harper and wingers Claude Larose and Dick Duff.

Canadiens' other holdover goaltender, Lorne (Gump) Worsley signed Monday, as did centre Ralph Backstrom ond left winger Gilles Tremblay and John Ferguson. Right winger Yvan Cournoyer signed his contract Tuesday.

Coach Toe Blake continued to scrimmage the more than 80 players from Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League, Houston Apollos of the Central Pro League and his own club in a two-a-day sessions.

Following Wednesday afternoon's practice games, Blake expressed his approval of the offensive work of his club, but said he was not satisfied by the work of his netminders and two of last year's defencemen.

Big Jean Beliveau continued his sharp shooting as he notched two goals for his day's work. Left winger Dave Balon added to his prolific pace as he picked up two more goals, while Harper, who failed to score last season, sank his second in two days.

Duff, Henri Richard, Ferguson, Jim Roberts, Red Berenson and Cournoyer continued to add to their training camp total. Ferguson and Cournoyer had two in Wednesday's workouts, while the others scored singles.

The combined squads will continue twice-daily practices until Friday afternoon. Saturday morning will feature inter-squad playoffs, and Canadiens meet Cleveland Barons in an exhibition at the Forum Saturday night.

John Surtees blames mechanical trouble for his accident, claims front wheel suspension collapsed

TORONTO (CP)—John Surtees, 31-year-old British racing driver who was seriously injured last Friday when his racing car rolled down a 30-foot embankment at Mosport race track 40 miles east of here, blames mechanical failures for the near fatal accident.

Jack Burke, his father-in-law, said Wednesday in an interview Surtees believes an upright on the front suspension of his Lola 70 snapped, causing the wheel to collapse.

The 1964 World champion driver suffered fractures to both hips, fractures to horizontal segments of four vertebrae as well as kidney and other internal injuries when he was pinned beneath the car.

Burke, who flew here Saturday from Winchester, England, with Surtees's wife, Pat, first spoke to the injured driver Tuesday.

Doctors say the British driver is in excellent condition and see no reason why he can't race again. Surtees says he'll be back "inside three months."

Burke said he first heard of the crash when a British newspaper writer telephoned him at home at 1:15 a.m. British time Saturday. Surtees' wife was staying with her father for the weekend before flying to join her husband at the American Grand Prix.

"I called Jackie Stewart (the Scottish driver) in Toronto to see whether he could give us more details. Jackie was on his way to the hospital and rang us from there to say the injuries were less serious than had been feared. This helped when every English radio bulletin seemed to be more grave and depressing."

Burke, who raced cars as an amateur in his younger days, said his son-in-law told him:

"As I came into that downhill curve, I found I had no steering. I said to myself, 'This is it,' and curled up, ready for the crash.

Activities at Stanstead College

The past weekend was a busy one in sports with several games of soccer and football on tap. Soccer was played here by this school and Sherbrooke High Junior team, Sherbrooke winning by a score of 3 - 0. This was a very good game and could have gone either way, says coach William Patterson.

The Sherbrooke High and Stanstead senior soccer teams also played on Saturday afternoon, with Sherbrooke the winners with a score of five to one. Scoring for Stanstead was Peter Sharp.

The annual Old Boys football game took place on the football field on Saturday afternoon. This is always the first senior game of the season and initiates the school team. The scrimmage was a good one and some of the old Boys plays were passed on to the present team.

Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 22, the senior and junior soccer teams played Notre Dame school, Richmond. Both Stanstead teams lost, score for the seniors being Richmond two and Stanstead one, the lone score being made by Peter Waintrager. The junior score was Richmond one, Stanstead, none.

The junior football team played Selwyn House senior team here on Saturday morning. Stanstead was defeated.

Colin Fleet has been elected as captain of the junior soccer team and Tony Sharp assistant captain.

The Stanstead junior and senior soccer teams played a new school this year, first games on Sept. 29 with Danville school, at Danville, at 3:45 p.m.

Mr. Cayley, headmaster, has announced that Brent Moule has been added as a house officer and Peter Sharp as a monitor with responsibilities at the infirmary.

Tom Garland, Colby House, has been elected president of the Athletic Association, Bob Gemmell, grade 12, Davis House, and Tom Wrathmall, grade 11, Colby House, as representatives and Cliff Lusby, grade 10, as secretary.

It was good to see many of the former students here on the weekend with several playing on the football team for Old Boys, also nice of some of the boys to bring their wives and young families. Some of the (single) boys stayed for the weekend.

Allan Fraser, a Sherbrooke High student and talented folk singer, came to an appreciative audience of staff and students at Pierce Hall on Thursday evening, Sept. 23. The concert by Mr. Fraser was much enjoyed.

Several of the boys had visits on the weekend from their parents or other relatives. Also, several of the boys are enjoying themselves at the Sunnyside School dances.

AUTUMN HILLS
Eastern Townships, 1904

I cast my gaze across the valleys unto the rolling hills beyond
That rose to meet the blueness of the autumn skies
Where here a dazzling sun played hide —
and — seek with fleecy clouds,
And seemed to chase the rainbows
over every tree
In a mad race to splash the leaves with all the lovely autumn hues
Whose grandeur nought defies.

And oh the brilliance and the beauty and the wonder left behind —
Which, leaven-like, spread over every valley, slope and mound
Till the whole terrain blazed with the glory of it all, —
And you, nor I — p'raps only God
Who with His hand had painted
this — His gift for us —
Had heard a sound.

This gift of colour — riotously
rampant in its last fling —
Matchless in its exotic beauty and diversified design —
This gift compelling us who stopped to view such panoramic grandeur
To bow our heads and humbly
offer thanks to Him
For this great spectacle He gives to each of us
Each year — at autumn time.

FALL FASHION REVIEW

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1965.

Jewelry for the on-the-go girl

Jewelry that meets the mood of today's spirited young girl on the go is the look of a lively new collection of costume jewelry.

Created for the growing number of young individualists who range between the ages of 15 and 20, plus, and may be in school, married, or in careers, the jewelry reflects the discriminating taste of its wearer, and originality.

Today's worldly girl has wide vistas. The designers have combed the cultural corners of past and present history to bring a highly international flavor to its premiere collection this fall.

Necklaces, bracelets, pins, rings and earrings flash with captivatin freshness, to cover a wide range of activities, interests and fashion fads:

Marvelous Buddhas, Roman heads dramatize rings and stand stylishly in relief on big three inch key pins and chain pendants, jade Buddhas bare the influence of India with carved figurines, while the palate of France is personified with a wonderful wine keeper's key and chain design that can be worn as a dashing 36" necklace or swashbuckling belt. Even today's architectural look inspired by Courreges will be found in cleverly designed Aling animal pins with satin toned pewter and brass finishes and a futuristic look all their own.

Do you ever wear a diamond or other precious gems set in a floral design? If so, perhaps without realizing it, you're harkening back to the original meaning of the word "gem".

A long, long time ago when Latin was the universal language of the West, the word for "bud" or small flower was "gemma". Maybe because both flowering buds and precious stones are small, beautiful and often used for adornment, the word roots became florally interwined and the word "gem" was developed.

In any case, it seems only fitting that throughout much of history, flowers have inspired some of the most beautiful precious jewelry ever made. Floral jewelry is said to have originated in the Netherlands where everybody was so tulip-conscious. Single flowers were made first. Then later jewelry was designed in the loosely arranged, French - style bouquet. Jewel flower sprays, especially with upward forms, grew out of the aigrett for the hair which stemmed from the old East Indian ornament -- the plume in the turban.

One of the most fabulous jewels ever made was a diamond dahlia brooch belonging to Britain's Princess Margaret, known for her preference for floral jewelry. The dazzling dahlia holds a large center diamond encircled by two rows of round diamonds and two layers of glittering diamond petals.

Men's hats in sportster style

Men's hats for fall include both dressy and casual styles with an increasing emphasis on the sportsters. Among the smart felts keyed to business and dress-up wear are simple cent-narrow snap with the brim curling away at the side and back.

Dress hats for fall range from medium to dark in color with added interest in browns to complement the new brown suits and topcoats as well as the increasing camel color coats.

Casual headwear for the cold months really outdoes itself this year. Starting with the classic Tyroleans in rich velours, colorful mixtures and rough pebbly felts, the wide assortment of shapes, colors patterns, fabrics, furs and leathers is the greatest ever seen.

today, there's no reason for not being well - and fashionably - dressed. it pays to care how you look - in business and in your social life. if you want to be well - dressed, have a talk with fern gagne or one of his boys. they're all experts on how to make you look your best. that's at one eighty-two wellington north, across from the courthouse.

A colorful combo captivates the fanciful heart for fall

SKI-LOOK outerwear turns to combination sweater-jackets like this tweedy style, with ruff collar, cuffs. By Ulla, in a blend of Herculon olefin fiber for lightweight warmth.

ALL POPLIN — This attractive poplin raincoat is sure to beat those rainy day blues.

Young, snappy and very contemporary, sportswear captures the fanciful heart for fall. New proportions extend the line of fashion from neck to toe, giving feminine creativity free rein to perfect a most complete sportswear look.

The predominating looks follow the strict shaping and welt seaming of Courreges, the softer but still young London look and the truly soft, feminine look. Really rocking the waves is the latest conception of the total look: matching stockings.

To show off all the patterned and textured legs, skirts are shorter still, some rising all the way to kilt level, usually bouncing out in pleats or softened with front panels, slim shirring, A-line shaping.

For a difference, hemlines are cuffed, waistbands are trimmed in leathers. There's a Western look to hipster skirts of leather with lace-tie backs, lots of welt seaming.

Suspender skirts, topless jumpers help broadcast all the news in fall sweaters. Most especially, the sweater is skinny, less bulky, all female and closer to the body. Variations on this theme extend the sweater to tunic length and belt it.

Heather, cables, argyles are back; so are stripes. There's textured art in the surface interest of embroidery, fringe and crochet.

Knit tops and pullovers take the same direction as sweaters but have unusual turnoffs, such as doublets.

ADDING A DASH of Italian flavoring to the season are these checkerboard fashions-to-knit created in Italy. Eased, narrowed in houndstooth check, the suit travels with its own kerchief. Simply silhouetted, the great coat is daring in a pattern-within-pattern design. In Bernat yarn.

"More men will wear sweaters this year than before," Mr. Laliberte notes, basing his reasoning on the casual look that has taken over in men's fashions. (Record photo by Gordon Alexander)

Marks in school grading system may be harmful, says ex-director

OTTAWA (CP)—The use of marks in school grading systems is unfair to the child and can be harmful to his mental health, says a former director of the federal health department's mental health division.

Dr. Charles G. Stogdill, chief of child adjustment services for the Toronto Board of Education, says that in time more and more members of the public will come to appreciate the destructive effects competition in school achievement can have on pupils.

In an outspoken article in the department's publication, Canada's Mental Health, Dr. Stogdill writes:

"The use of marks as a measure of comparison between pupils in a class is of little value—yet it is of enormous destructive importance, a point widely recognized by educators.

"Why then do they continue to use them and force competition? The teachers themselves are competing. Parents expect marks and class standings and passing from grade to grade."

So long as the public demanded this system, the schools were bound to accommodate. But already there is a good deal of support for the use of psychologists, social workers and psychiatrists in school systems.

"Damaging practices . . . will soon no longer be tolerated."

Dr. Stogdill, who was the first chief of the mental health division when it was established in 1945, writes that competition for marks is faulty because the children seldom have an even start.

SOME GIVE UP

"The innate, developmental and experiential differences between children makes it unfair to compete. Through failure, or fear of failure in this unfair competition, children become so frustrated and tend to give up, and so never reach anywhere near their potential."

He says even the children who win out often fail in the long run by their emphasis on excelling over others, rather than experiencing the inner satisfactions of acquiring knowledge, developing skills and feeling a sense of personal growth and progress.

He says there is grave danger the child will begin to do only as much as is required to pass his subjects or to win his teacher's or parents' approval.

"But when he leaves school and these standards become irrelevant, he is not likely to feel the need for further education or training. However, with this rapidly changing society it is essential that learning continue throughout life."

Dr. Stogdill says parent-teacher communication will do more than anything else to reduce learning difficulties for the school child.

"Neither (parent nor teacher) should feel that he alone has all the answers. More teachers need to recognize that a family's expectations inevitably play an important part in the child's work and behavior at school.

Questions readers ask

Q—How cold should my refrigerator be to keep food safe?

A—In most refrigerators, with the control set at the position for normal operation, the average temperature in the general storage area is usually between 38 and 42 degrees. The chill tray, located just below the freezing unit, is the coldest area outside of the freezing unit; the area at the bottom of the cabinet is the warmest. As air in the refrigerator circulates, the cooler air falls and forces the warmer air near the bottom to rise. This movement of air tends to dry out any uncovered or unwrapped food.

You can check the temperatures in your refrigerator by placing a thermometer in different locations in the cabinet. If temperatures within the cabinet are above 42 degrees the control should be regulated to maintain a lower temperature.

An accumulation of thick frost on the freezing unit or frequent openings of the refrigerator door, especially on warm, humid days, raise the refrigerator temperatures.

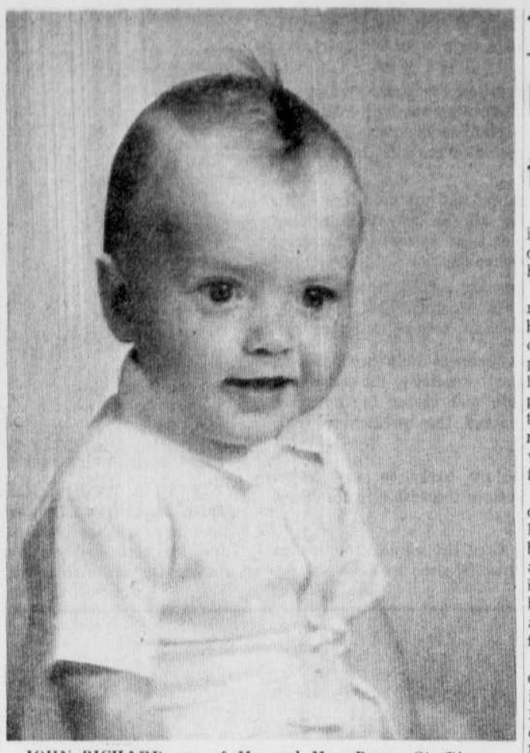

Since the freezing compartments of home refriperators are not designed to give temperatures of zero, hold frozen foods only a few days in these. However, in the refrigerator-freezer combinations where temperatures can be maintained at zero or lower in the freezer cabinet, food may be kept for the same storage periods as in a freezer

Q—Please tell me what exactly is ascorbic acid? Is it a medicine?

A—No, it is not a medicine. Ascorbic acid is another name for vitamin C. Ascorbic acid or vitamin C is necessary for healthy gums and other body tissues because of its role in the formation of connective tissue. Fruits, particularly citrus fruit, and vegetables, especially dark green vegetables, are the best sources of this important vitamin.

The coat silhouette

Drastic changes in coat fashion history in 40 yrs.

NEW YORK (CP) — Nothing in fashion history changes more drastically than the coat silhouette.

During the last 40 years we've run the gamut from barrel to huge to skinny. Waistlines in dresses may stray from an empire high to a hipster - slung low. But few designers would place the bulk at the hips or top of a dress. No girl likes a really hippy look. Shoulder width is not too popular even for suits or jackets.

Since the Second World War coats have captured the limelight in seemingly abrupt silhouette changes. Immediately after the war, interest centred in sleeves—dolman, raglan and bell styles. Collars were small and neat. Skirts were 14 inches from the floor.

They were to go all the way down to the ankles wher Dior introduced his New Look in 1947. And last season they climbed four inches above. English Mary Quant even predicts a high of six inches for this winter.

In the late 1940s the cocoon or tubular coat emerged as the top silhouette. Paris called it the barrel. Pierre Balmain presented a long tubular coat in black velour, front-buttoned to the black fox hemline. This year, Canadian coat manufacturers are again banding the hemlines in fur.

Later Gres introduced his reversible blanket coat in nut brown, faced with yellow. And the double-faced coats are again popular, especially with Originala. Harvey Berin likes checks on one side, the reverse plain to match a dress underneath. A two-faced coat in mocha and cream by Ben Reig wraps a cream wool dress.

TENT STYLE REVIVED

Gres' blanket coat was a circular flare that, by 1948, developed into the generous proportions of the pyramid silhouette. Cut in ample back fullness from a yoke, it hung full and free from small shoulders.

As one fashion writer described the coat: "It stands out like an upright triangle. One of its chief charms lies in the grace of action." But since it fell right down to the ankles and completely enveloped the wearer, it became known as the tent coat.

At the recent showings in Rome, this silhouette was revived by the popular young Roman designer, Federico Forquet. In New York it came near the same—but straight-hanging — proportions in a greatcoat in grey tweed by Monte-Sano and Pruzan. However this was the extreme. The slim or semi-fitted prevails this fall.

There was only one way for the 1948-49 coat silhouette to go after this exaggerated coverage. It had to shrink. By the fall of 1955 Dior introduced the caftan. It was the hit of the Paris openings. This slim tunic coat was inspired by the costume worn by the late prime minister Nehru of India.

This fall, 10 years later, Ben Zuckerman introduces a rajah-inspired group in elegantly slim quilted silk poplin with jet buttons.

By 1956 the caftan expanded into a barrel look again. Typical was a red "purl" tweed by Monte-Sano and Pruzan with a shaped pucker hemline. Skirts were still long.

COLLARS CLIMB HIGH

Important by 1958 was the three-quarter-length coat. Actually it was some 20 years old but had been overlooked during the war years and the New Look period. A popular seven-eighth length also appeared in the New York collections. Large draped collars stood away from the neckline.

Only collectivists countries allow women full potential sa ys scientist

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Linus Pauling of Pasadena, Calif., a scientist and a grandmother, said Sunday only socialist countries are allowing women to achieve their full potential.

She told a Toronto Unitarian congregation that only collectivist countries offer enough services to aid in caring for families to permit women to hold jobs, and only these countries offer jobs to women according to ability instead of sex.

As examples, she mentioned the place of girls in the Israeli Army and the large number of women in Russian medical schools.

Mrs. Pauling, who was here with her scientist husband — winner of two Nobel prizes—for a weekend with fellow Unitarians, said separation of men's and women's work causes unhappiness and distress in the United States.

"Women are discriminated against in all aspects of our society. . . .We will only have progress when men and women work together."

HOME MORE INTERESTING

Most jobs women can get in the U.S. are not as interesting as caring for a home and family, she said.

The ratio of women to men in U.S. medical schools is lower than it was in 1900, and the number of women taking advanced studies is dropping while in most other countries it is growing. Although about 75 per cent of bank employees are women, women are still refused admission to three of the four U.S. graduate banking schools and are excluded from the floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

"It is a country of rich widows, but the women don't control the investments," Mrs. Pauling said.

She said an indication that women are aliens in American society is the fact that more money is spent on the adornment of women in the U.S. than anywhere else in the world.

"Men will continue to give them fripperies and gadgets to keep them subordinate," she said.

Leather limitless in fashion

Career girl or suburban housewife — when it comes to the new fall fashions, we'll all be sisters under the skins. New or more feminine, more fetching or more fun, reports Leather Industries of America. The clothes line this season has softened in silhouette and detail. Women of fashion are seeking the latest, in which the gentle touch is well mixed with a dash of drama. For every style need — daytime, evening, sports, at-home — we'll be wearing exciting garments in leathers.

Colors cover every taste. There will be subtle neutral ones that blend with most costumes, clear blues and reds for a visual pick-me-up, deep shades for dramatic effect.

Coats have been slimmed to a new elegance. There is no bulk — simply trim body — skimming lines interpreted in luxurious, lightweight leathers. Silhouettes are straight, princess, A-line, plus a return to the classic wrapped coat. Among the most important fashion touches to be seen are side closings, and the stitched or "quilted" look in suede coats.

Touch of real McCoy perks up fake fur

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Fur that is frankly fake has been around for a long time and it gets better looking each year. But this may be the season to top the whole story.

The news (the result of a process developed by Alamac Knitting Mills) is that now there are fabrics for synthetic fur coats which contain 15 per cent genuine fur fiber. In the past, fake fur was all synthetic, chiefly blends of Dynel and Orlon.

Coats made from the new fabric are cut individually with razor-sharp instruments (as real fur is cut) so that the ends of the hair taper naturally. The coats are also individually blended for color so that the markings give each coat a "let out" look. This is a result impossible to achieve if the fabric is coats are also individually blend-color-blended by the yard.

Lou Nierenberg, a master craftsman, who designs coats from the new knitted fabrics, explained the advantages of the addition of genuine fur fiber to the fabric and then handling it as though it were real fur.

"The fur fibers guide the synthetic fibers into position," he said. "They keep the fake fur from going to sleep like a tulip petal on a damp day. And they give the finished fabric a beautiful hand."

As to cutting the fabric as though it were the real thing Nierenberg said, "When a garment is cut individually the way real fur is handled, the ends of the hairs are tapered and look like fur does.

"Take a look at the original fake fur coats that were cut in bulk like cloth. The edges — hems, collars, sleeves — look as though they were sheared with a lawn mower or given a Beattle haircut."

Nierenberg has installed closed circuit television in his office through which he can watch the entire factory all day. I felt I had wandered into a scene from "1984." But this kindly "Big Brother" said the television simply made it possible for him to immediately contact cutters, blenders or pressers without wasting time should any difficulty arise. And well it might, for the process seems detailed and complicated.

After a coat is cut and color-blended it is electrified to make the hairs go all one way and stay that way.

Alamac's new fabrics include raccoon, which is further news, for until now no one has tried to imitate raccoon. Each coat has 15 raccoon hairs to every 100 hairs of Dynel. Beaver and mink also are among the new fabrics and other "furs" are in the works. Aside from women's coats there are men's coats and children's wear, as well.

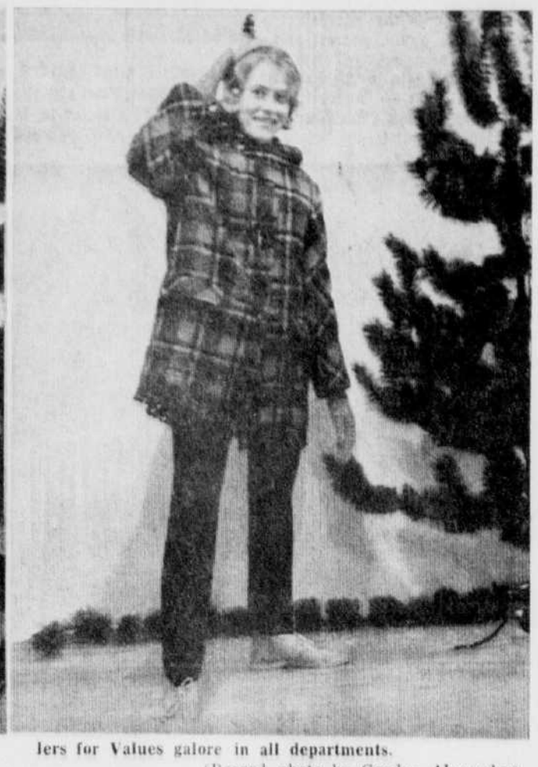

A silicon finish makes these moderately priced garments moth and mildew-proof and nonallergenic, pretty much waterproof and they require no storage.

Should you doubt all this interest in fake fur is warranted, an anecdote of Lou Nierenberg's may sway you.

He was sent to Russia by our State Department to teach his craft. And in Russia, the land where everyone is pictured muffled to the eyes in real fur, the government offered to buy 10,000 fake raccoons to be paid for in vodka.

Lively colors in suits, coats, exciting tones

Gone is the day when a Winter coat meant a somber one. Instead, there is a veritable palette of exciting tones — even two tones together — reflecting the American interest in art.

Two tones are very new in a coat — one for the body, one for collar and cuffs. Sometimes a reversible coat provides the duotone theme. Rose, raspberries and wines are heady, luscious leaders. Green-tinged browns and golds. Blues, ginger and copper . . . greens, oranges and reds. For the more conservative: chocolate, oxford, black. Most women, however, will enjoy a color fling!

Big news in coats as well as suits is skirt motion. Fitted coats make a comeback with new restraint. No nipped-in waist, no whirl skirts. The new silhouette is gently flared for a demi-dirndl look. Occasionally, clusters of pleats provide motion.

The narrow coat is not yet ready to depart. To give it new importance, fly fronts with concealed closings come to the fore. The result is uncluttered elegance. Even the pockets are flat slits in front seams. Trench coats leave the realm of the James Bond world and go high fashion. They appear in new art-conscious tones of opulent wools. Fur-trimmed coats are back in royal regalia. Borders of fur look new and lavish — but collars and cuffs have their rooters — particularly those that detach for versatility.

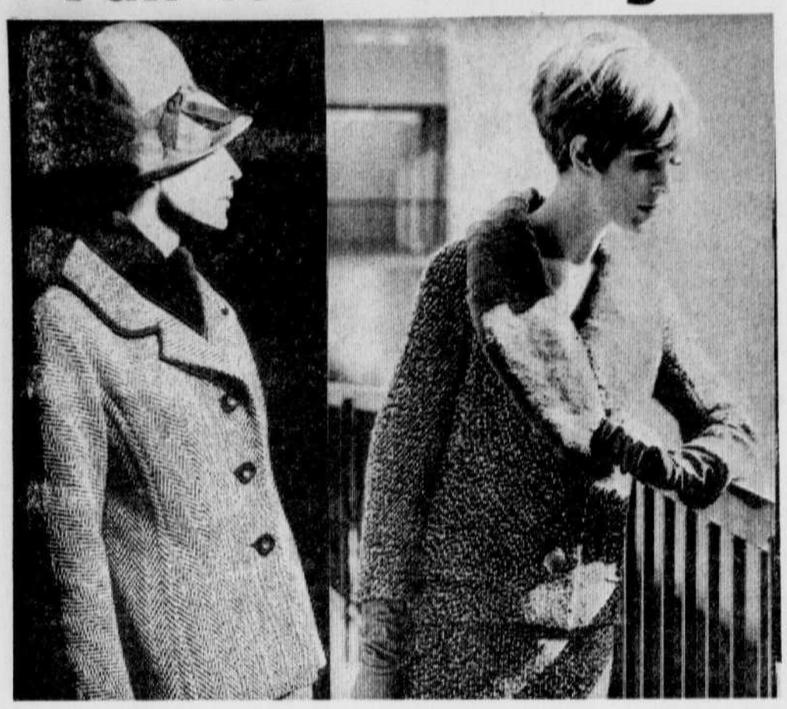

Fur-lined coats are more fashionable than ever. Furs spill from linings to collar. Newly supple and lighter-in-weight, they are warm and wonderful. Something more opulent is added, too. A matching dress to sum up the costume supreme.

Belts are important — even when they play peek-o-boo, tunneling in and out of many of the new suits. Often, they are half-concealed under pockets. And, with the young look still a favorite, sets of pockets are in fashion esteem.

Fabrics are flattened, but interesting in surface via weaves and color usage. Tattersall, houndstooth and diamond checks feature "broken" weaves. Foulards and calico types are seen in wools. Twills, gabardines, coverts and crepe are luxurious. Tweeds, Shetlands, Harris and Argyles are crisp. America runs on suit time — and now this national fashion is destined to make women more colorful, more elegant.

Timely fashion summary offered by National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry.

Fall look exciting and new

NEW STYLES by Nabre Models and Marcusa of the Fashion House Group of London, all of British woollen fabrics, are shown above. The suit in herringbone tweed with self edging, left, and the coat in large merging checked tweed, right are both by Nabre.

Day and evening looks for Fall are exciting and new — sure to make a smart woman want to update her wardrobe.

Look for the — small fur dress, perhaps in the whitest white mink, with little white kid gloves, and, with a curtsy to M. Courreges, white kid boots. Definitely not kid-stuff.

Look for the dirndl suit, perhaps in creamy worsted, probobly with asymmetric closing to the brief jacket — the skirt big, and full of motion, soft, rippling.

Look for — suit jackets like officers' coats, with high military collars, high armholes on long narrow sleeves, a precise parade of buttons.

Look for — the guardsman's coat back again, shaped and double - breasted, with a panache of pleats in the back of the full skirt — lending free-swinging Motion (The Word for Autumn).

Button?

Many a fashion would "fall on its face", literally and figuratively, if it weren't for the Button.

Who's got the button? In these days of push - buttons and telephone buttons (not to mention clothing buttons), it could be just about anyone! Although it's true that we are living in a push button age, buttons were prominent long before now.

In the past they have even been used to designate social and economic positions and were responsible for important inventions and the founding of vast industries.

Today, many buttons play a leading role in accenting a costume, or giving it added fashion interest.

Today most buttons are fashioned of plastic or synthetics but at one time or another almost every material known to man has been transformed into buttons.

Fall fashions are the days of wine and roses

If the prospect of another long winter is depressing cheer up. There's tonic for drooping spirits in the heady, vivid colors giving a lift to the latest fall fashion collections.

Notable are the deep reds. Introduced last year, they are better than ever this season and have expanded to include the lush hues of roses, raspberries and wines.

Bright news is the many warm greens contrasted with oranges and reds. Newest of all are combinations of blues with ginger and copper.

While color in dazzling array takes the lead, silhouettes will be simple and uncluttered, fabrics generally flat-textured. In addition to the traditional wool, silks and cottons, look for a profusion of man-made fibers — used singly or in blends to lend their easy-care, shape-holding qualities to fall and winter wardrobes. Many of them are washable, according to a bureau of bleaching information, which has tested more than 200 brands of synthetic fibers and blends.

INTO FALL — Ye-ye influence goes into fall, in this fringe-trimmed sweater with imaginative embroidery in lively colors — hand-crafted in Hong Kong. Wool slacks are hued to match. By Russ.

The Bureau offers these tips for keeping your new fall clothes band-box bright: Hang on to the hang tags. They'll prevent "washday disasters" by telling fiber content and how best to care for new garments, especially blends. All white and colorfast man-made fibers are basically washable and bleachable, Bureau tests reveal, with the exception of spandex elastics.

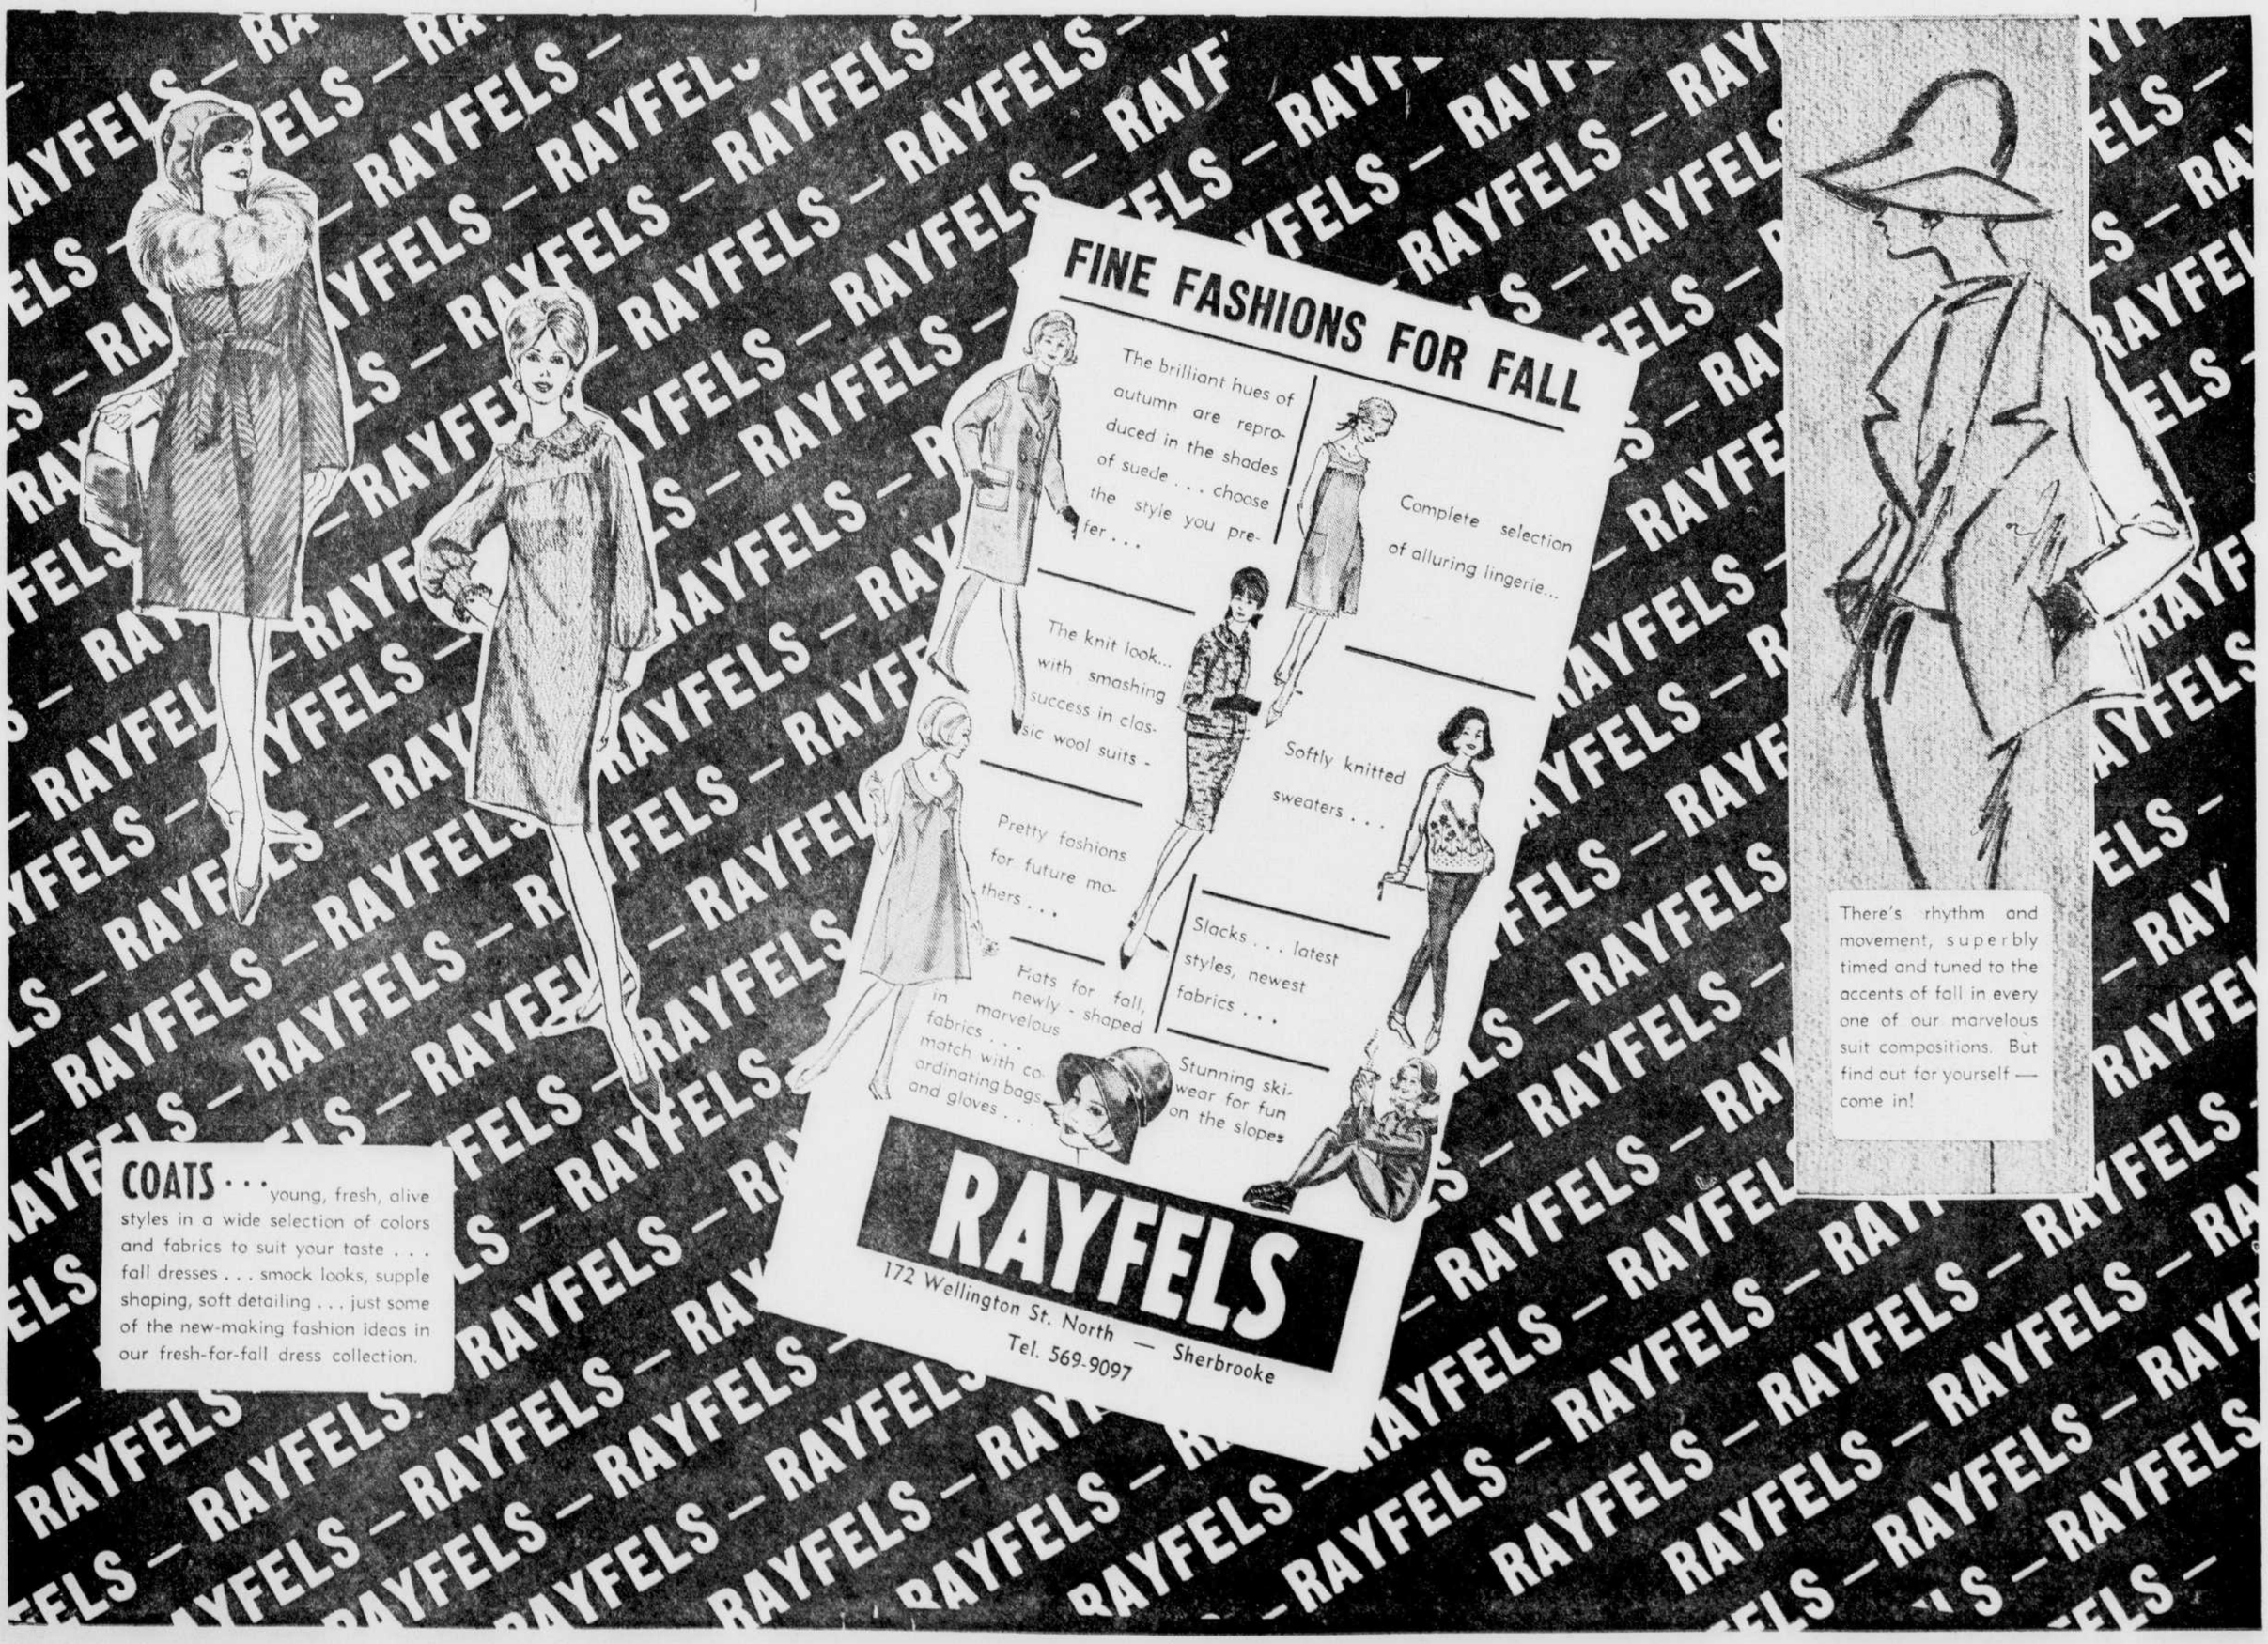

Regular bleaching is as important for colorfast clothes as it is for white articles, to prevent damaging and discoloring soils from becoming permanently embedded.

If you're not sure of the colorfastness of an item, make this simple test: snip a small fabric sample from a seam allowance or use an inconspicuous portion. Soak for five minutes in a solution of two tablespoons of bleach to a quart of hot, sudsy water. If no bleeding occurs, the garment is colorfast and bleachable.

So many reasons to get on the new fashion bandwagon. Here a few

Dresses in step with new trends

Dresses take their ease this fall in bloused and biased shapes. They're reed - slim — or dirndl - skirted. They're smock shaped with high yokes accented by braid or smocking, with high - tied belts counterbalanced by low - placed pockets with soft bows or self scarves to enhance necklines.

They're costume components — shifty and sleeveless to accompany a coat, or full and flowing of sleeve and active of skirt to pair with a little bolero, perhaps in a furry - like fabric. They're costumes in themselves — two - piece styles, showing off the bloused, blossed, smocked and pleated trends, or coat dresses, newest with side closings.

"London Look" Comes to Fashion Forefront

They're English dandies, with the London look of crisp white bibs or ruffled fill - ins. They're made for movement — daytime or discotheque, in simple, supple styles that make the most of crochet - look suits, "naked" wools, fluid crepes and jerseys.

Dresses, in short, partake of all the ladylike elegance and young verve that characterize the fall '65 fashion season.

For daytime, the soft, easy silhouette leads Basic simplicity may rely on color, fabric and fluidity of line for fashion interest, or the softening influence of ruffles, lace, bows, scarves may appear.

Sleeves Ar News

When sleeves are present, they are important indeed. The long, full sleeve with buttoned cuff and the flared, kimono-like sleeve take their place in the fall dress picture.

Along with softness and ease, dresses also express the strict and spare "Courreges" look. Almost always, however, the soft touch is apparent.

Slim, sculptured coat dresses, for instance, move toward easy A - shaping, as do dresses with paneled fronts. Welt seaming, a Courreges - look signature, shows up in combination with fluid, feminine skirts.

Some designers like the strict look for late day in opulent, "all girl" fabrics — richly colored velveteens.

Whatever the dress look, there is a fabric to complement it — soft or strict.

Headliners for fall

Riding the crest of summer, the scarf hat is staying right on top for fall. Women everywhere like the adaptability of the scarf hat, its compatibility with so many costumes.

Elegance is also riding high, with a great show of plumage. The "star" — ostrich, reminiscent of the glamourous 20's. One designer shows ostrich in a triangle that billows about the head . . . also a model complemented by woolen plaid.

Space-age fashion . . . . the ski slopers, helmets in shiny patent with space goggles. . . a chenille helmet worked in bubbles which buttons under the chin.

One leading designer shows hat shapes leaning over backward, as well as models with forward movement. She also endorses a new, dramtic pitch on visors. Velvets, suedes, velours are prominent in interpretation.

Fall geometrics have infinite fashion possibilities and — add up to a most exciting look. They begin life as squares. . . some with drapery — to be crushed and shaped as you please.

Various materials lends their own drama — plushy pile fabrics in disguise as a 'way-out black and-red ocelot, or in black-and-white houndstooth — they are expecially favored, since they are washable.

Costume suits are every woman's joy. There's one with baby topcoat over a slim skirt and jersey weskit There's a sheath. Every shape, jacket or coat length centribute to the costume look.

Certain to be a big hit are the many duets . . . slim fit dresses with flattering coats or jackets in such wonderful materials as cashmere, mohair, wool and boucle tweed.

DAY DRESS — The Mondrian look in a two-colour day dress. It's white Arnel crepe with blocks of black that move like mobiles against a background of white. Absolute 'tops' in contemporary, young dressing.

ALMOND GREEN CREPE — The six o'clock dress — with an encircling cape falling from the shoulders into a free-flowing panel at the back. Porcelain smooth almond green crepe, draped from one perfect bow set high on the shoulder.

Shapely, swinging, sculptured, seamed styles take the lead

Soft. Strict. Shapely. Seamed. Swinging. Slim. Smocked. Sculptured. Subtle. Structural. For autumn, words like these sum up fashion significance — and "summed up" is the key to it all. In every look, whether soft, strict or a subtle blending of both, totality spells fashion this fall.

A great deal of the wardrobe planning for the all-important total look has been done in advance, with designers offering an ever-greater variety of coordinated costumes — dresses with coats or jackets; suits with, at the very least, an accompanying blouse and, often, coat, too; separates in a seemingly endless array of ready-mix parts

Complete Look Has Air of Individuality

Hats and accessories, in the soft or strict moods of fashion, provide both the correct accents to complete any costume and an air of individuality, too.

Fashion's two directions, soft and strict, are the result of several seasons during which styles have trended, on the one hand, to a shapely, more feminine look and, on the other hand, to a smart, tailored, refined - classic look.

The soft silhouettes, with their smock - like looks, swinging fit and flare and dirndl - gathered skirts, owe some of their inspiration to Paris and London. In Paris, St. Laurent and, in London, the Chelsea and Mod designers have given recent impetus to smock lines, high - waisted soft detailing and the in-motion skirt.

The strict silhouettes, with their emphasis on seaming, structural shaping, set - in sleeves, slotted belts, away - from - the - neck collars and double - breasted closings, stem from the "Courreges look" now influencing designers everywhere.

Two looks combine

American designers, however, have put their own stamp on both looks. Softness, seen most often in suits, coats and dressier dresses, blends frequently with a bit of the strict — smartly - seamed yokes, for example, high - placed on coats or suits that then take to gently swinging lines.

The strict look comes on strong in sportswear and casual dresses and coats, but even the straightest, slimmest lines show some soft - look effects.

For the total look in either mood, costume coordination most often means mixing, not matching. Fabrics, colors, patterns blend and contrast merrily, producing a new and refreshing fashion personality.

Soft or strict, the totality of the effect is youthful; pointing up what is really the greatest of all influences on fall styles.

The growing numbers of the "under 25" age group have designers thinking young. Many of the strict fashions, for example, are strictly for this group.

And throughout fashion, everything from ruffles and bows to shorter skirts emphasizes an era of style intended "for the young from 18 to 80."

New generation for persian lamb

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Persian lamb, once the staid badge of mature elegance, is back this year in designs as young and modern as the space age.

There are sleek travel coats in leather - bound black Persian lamb, handsome evening coats and dressy coats in which this fur is worked horizontally.

And this season leading coat and suit manufactureres are introducing Persian trim in collars, cuffs and on hemlines.

This fur takes to the ski slopes, too, in smart jackets and handsome sweaters and it is shown in top millinery collections as well.

Persian lamb is a durable fur and its slim, trim lines are flattering to all figures. It has so little bulk that it is even being used now in sleeveless shells to be worn with a matching fabric skirt and coat.

There's even news in color. Along with black, still the leading favourite, and natural gray now being used for a variety of young fashions, there is top-dyed brown Lasur in plentiful supply.

Rarer is an iridescent natural brown, and still in short supply a new beige Persian.

But like a champagne straw in the wind, this new shade shows the direction Persian lamb is taking as it bows in once again as a sought after, fashionable fur.

New shades add zing to sportswear

Some call it "Whiskey" and others call it "wheat" or gold but, regardless of its name, that tawny tone is one of the hit colors in men's sportswear.

Other hot shades for the cold season are rich burgundies, deep warm greens, medium to dark blues and both clear and mixey grays. Bright yellows are often used as accents to those colors, according to the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear.

Outerwear Varied

An unusually big assortment of leisure time outerwear includes hooded "benchwarmer" coats, 28-to-34-inches long, ski parkas in authentic "pro" models in the new flat quilts, "Western" coats and jackets in both snap-front and button-front styles, corduroy wool, shearling and leather-like stadium coats and coats that incorporate the military dash of trench models.

The double-breasted look is strong in outerwear this fall. It appears in dressy suburban models, in shearling and shearling-type cold weather coats, in stylized "reefers" adapted from the familiar Navy peacoats, and in car coats that borrow some of the look of the British short warms.

Corduroy on Rise

Corduroy is on the increase in outerwear as well as in slacks. It now comes in a generous assortment of widths and some of the slacks are cut from "wales" running diagonally as well as straight.

Cameraman views Paris Fashions

NEW YORK— (NEA)— Vincent Gaito is a gentleman who has definite opinions on ladies' fashions. He's not in the fashion business, but neither can his opinions be termed those of the average male observer.

He is a hard-working, no-nonsense cameraman who went with the ABC crew to the Paris designer salons to film on-the spot the recent television special, "Paris Exclusive: Fashions '66 with Olivia de Havilland."

Vincent had a close look at every seam from every angle at Dior, Lanvin and St. Laurent And, my, did those seams endear themselves to the heart of our cameraman.

"The sewing was so beautiful," he said. "Every line was so straight, every seam so perfect."

He didn't join in the bravos the fashion press sent Yves St Laurent's way His dissension seemed to stem from a feeling that one doesn't get enough yardage for his money from Yves.

"Everything there was one piece," Vincent said. "At least at Dior and Lanvin there were dresses with jackets and three-piece suits."

So here's a man who won't be fooled by a little slip of a number that's expensive because it's "all shape." For the kind of money the French couturiers charge, he thanks lots of fabric and workmanship should be thrown in.

The news after the Paris winter collections was heavy with raves over St. Laurent's Mondrian prints. I asked Gaito if he was impressed with them.

"They were wild," he said. "I think more women are interested in the kind of clothes Bohan did for Dior and Crahay for Lanvin. They're not so way out." Seems St. Laurent just couldn't please this conservative man.

I talked to Vincent Gaito because I thought his comments on filming a fashion show might throw an amusing light on a subject which most women take so seriously. A cameraman who works chiefly on hard news and documentaries couldn't take women's fashions seriously, I thought. But I chose the wrong man.

He enjoys doing fashion shows and has done them before, although not in Paris. "They're fun after so many heavy subjects."

The first thing his wife asked on his return was "Were the skirts really three inches above the knee?"

"But they weren't," he said "They were a nice length."

Gaito thinks fashions here in New York are much more outlandish than in Paris. French clothes, he says, are much prettier and not so way out. That observation should shake up the American feminine population who think their "way out" clothes are the latest from Paris.

The current Paris craze for feathers didn't set well with Vincent, either.

"Dior had a blouse that looked like chicken feathers. That one laid an egg with me."

He may have meant the blouse that one New York reporter called "a dear little blouse of hen feathers." I guess it's all in your point of view.

There were lots of boots in Paris. "I like boots on women," Gaito admitted, "but not the clumpy kind they wear with babushkas.

"There were a good many fancied up babushkas in the collections, too," he said, "but they were still babushkas. I won't let my wife wear one. A man likes to think he married a princess, not a peasant."

He does like hats, he added, and most of the models wore them.

Vincent Gaito thinks designers are crazy to show clothes on models who are such small sizes when the women who will wear them aren't made that way. He thinks it's like asking a "Mr. America" to pose for clothes the average Joe will have to wear. "It's just stupid," was his observation.

But he did get an idea of what is happening to the shapes of many well-known women. In the workrooms at the Paris salons there are dummies of the private customers with their names attached.

"You can see," said Vincent with a wide grin, "where little pieces of padding have been added here and there on each as the years go by."

Abloom for fall

Fashion wears a feminine freshness this fall, as many styles take shape in an all-girl mood. Appropriately, femininity also blossoms with fresh, fragrant flowers for day and evening fashions.

The new season's corsages are simple, to complement rich colors and fabrics, and to blend effectively with the merry new mixtures of color and pattern.

Flowers can enhance fashions, any time.

For daytime suits and dresses, FTD floral experts suggest a bold puff of petals — a single, large chrysanthemum centered in a range of autmun leaves, or a round of bubble carnations.

For evening, the florist might fashion a delicate necklace of miniature roses for a jewel neckline, or a garland of blossoms to frame an off- the- face hairdo.

ROLES REVERSED

MANILA (AP)—Antonio Deliva Jr., a 23-year-old Filipino, was sent to jail for contempt after he failed to appear as a witness against two men he said tried to murder him. At the trial, the judge ordered Deliva jailed and freed the defendant on bond.

Lingerie can be practical and pretty

This fall women can look forward to lingerie that features more stretch, is a lighter weight and more colorful. So says Mary Rose Bruckner, Lingerie designer. Mrs. Bruckner notes that with the wide selection available today, there's no reason women can't combine what is practical with what is fun to wear.

She advises fashion - conscious women to buy not only lingerie they need buy also lingerie that make them happy and suits their personality.

To get the most out of your fashion dollar, Mrs. Bruckner suggests familiarizing yourself with the many lingerie fabrics and recommends taffetas, nylon tricot and cotton polyester blends as the most comfortable and long - wearing of the fabrics available.

When purchasing lingerie, check for workmanship, she reminds. Is there double seaming at points of stress, are fabric edges finished neatly? Straps should be attached to body of garment, not just to trim. Check the fabric — it should be firm without being stiff, soft without being sleazy. Test it with your hands to see if it will bear up under months of stress.

Embroidery should be checked for broken threads; laces should be finished neatly and have firm net backing for support and shape. Seam stitching should have some elasticity so it doesn't break at tension points.

When choosing styles, Mrs. Bruckner suggests that bikinis be left to the very young and extreme styles should be avoided — stick to what you need and like.

Why did the Black Horse label turn to Gold?

Because gold is for winners!

In a recent taste-test (no looking at labels) among Quebec beer drinkers, 3 out of 5 picked Black Horse over another popular competitive ale.

(This test was conducted by an independent research company.)

Make the flavour test yourself!
Check the qualities that have made Black Horse the ale with the winning flavour.

Here's all you do: Pour a glass of Black Horse. Look at the head. Sniff the pleasant aroma. Best of all, enjoy the rewarding taste. You'll realize why Black Horse won 3 times out of 5! Its winning flavour really quenches a beer thirst. Look for Black Horse with the new gold label. Gold is for winners!
