Only a politician would sell you a $100-a-plate ticket to a dinner and then give you a speech on how he plans to stop inflation.

Bush joins Reagan on GOP ticket

DETROIT (CP) — Former political rivals Ronald Reagan and George Bush joined forces today at the head of the Republican party campaign to unseat the Democratic administration of President Jimmy Carter in the general elections Nov. 4.

Presidential candidate Reagan picked Bush as his nominee for vice-president in a surprise midnight decision after the failure of efforts to recruit former president Gerald Ford as his running mate.

The choice set the stage for a threatened challenge at the Republican convention today by anti-Bish forces under ultra-conservative Senator Jesse Helms of North Carolina. They believe Bush is too liberal to fit the politics of Reagan and the party's right-wing policies.

Reagan's second-choice call came "out of a clear blue sky," said Bush, who lost to Reagan in a contest for the presidential nomination and had been the favorite for the No. 2 position among most delegates at the Republican convention here before Ford entered the drama.

Bush is a former congressman, ambassador and head of the Central Intelligence Agency.

After Bush accepted, Reagan went to the convention hall and startled the crowd of 20,000 into silence in announcing Ford's refusal and his second-choice selection of Bush. Then the throng burst into cheering.

The bizarre developments killed the hopes of some delegates and Reagan advisers of presenting the voters with a so-called Reagan-Ford dream team.

Ford, while only two years younger than Reagan at 67, would have added to the ticket the prestige of a former president and the reputation of a political moderate against Reagan's conservatism, his backers calculated.

But Reagan apparently balked at Ford's condition — stated on television Wednesday night — that he receive "reliable assurance" his role as a vice-president would be more than ceremonial.

The bargaining over Ford, the final lurch to Bush and Reagan's hurried and unscheduled report to the convention, tended to undermine the party's efforts through the first three days of the convention to present itself as a unified movement with decisive leadership.

PLANS CHALLENGE

Senator Helm said Wednesday night he plans to contest the nomination of Bush.

Farnham pipeline brings tapwater relief

By MERRITT CLIFTON

FARNHAM — I rolled my pants just above my knees, waded into the Yamaska River right beside Farnham's new city water intake, and didn't get anything abouve my socks wet. I nearly gagged from the stench of newly-spread pig-manure on nearby fields. A sip of river water left me queasy for some six hours.

That's the bad news.

The good news is that Farnham taps will flow with this stuff beginning Friday. Officially, at least, Farnham's 8,000 residents will have safe running water for the first time since June 6.

One hopes they'll drink beer to celebrate.

The new intake dips into the Cowansville fork of the Yamaska roughly halfway between the hamlets of Rainville and Ferndon. A concrete-bottomed cattle ford, long unused for cattle, forms a sort of miniature dam, backing water up into a murky, silt-filled pool. The pool reaches a maximum depth of three feet during high water periods, as indicated by riverbank growth. During midsummer, it averages about 18 inches. The coliform bacteria count here is presently 300, according to the Quebec environmental protection service -- about a third the legal 'safe' maximum.

The current colliform count in the Granby fork of the Yamaska exceeds five million. Both counts figure to climb rapidly, as warm weather encourages bacteria reproduction.

Farnham's new water source does not have an algae problem, at least. Algae blooms in the Granby fork have reached record density, once again drawing oxygen out of the water, killing fish -- the few fish left -- by suffocation. At the old Farnham water intake, the oxygen level reached 2.7 last Saturday, due to heavy rain the night before. Though low, this was the highest level detected in several weeks.

A portable diesel pump will pull Farnham tapwater up from the Cowansville fork through a four-inch aluminum pipe. Another 12,500 feet of aluminum pipe will carry the water cross-country to the city filtration plant, first paralleling the Brigham-to-Rainville road, then running alongside the Canadian Pacific tracks for the final mile. At least one booster pump will be installed on the line to keep the water flowing despite uphill stretches and frequent bends. In one case, the pipeline detours over 100 yards, where unable to cross a residential property.

After the emergency pipeline is finished, workers will begin immediately on a permanent line to follow roughly the same route. It must be finished by October, as the unprotected emergency line could freeze and burst during winter cold.

The temporary pipeline brings water from the Richelieu system. At one point, it takes a detour 100 yards around a house.

Consult house NDP warns Grits

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's long-awaited final decision on whether to approve preliminary construction this summer of the giant Alaskan natural gas pipeline was expected today as political storms loomed regardless of the outcome.

Angry New Democratic Party MPs warned Wednesday they would attempt to block Parliament's planned summer recess if the cabinet approved the project without first consulting Parliament.

And a decision against construction would touch off howls of protest from western natural gas-producing provinces, the petroleum industry and thousands of steel and construction workers banking on new jobs.

NDP Leader Ed Broadbent told reporters unless the government consults Parliament before making legislative amendments authorizing construction of southern Canadian portions of the line this summer, the party will fight a recess motion planned for Friday.

A debate involving the party's 32 MPs would effectively delay the recess at least until next week.

The controversial decision promised for today by Prime Minister Trudeau will determine whether surplus Alberta natural gas will be sent to U.S. markets well before the entire $20-billion project is completed.

The NDP says any approval of construction of the southern portions without first getting guarantees that financing is available for the entire 6,700 kilometre route — that is to carry Alaskan natural gas through Canada to the lower 48 states — would be a violation of the Northern Pipeline Act passed by Parliament in 1978.

The prime minister says the cabinet can amend the law so that it only requires that financing has been obtained for the southern sections and "can be obtained" for the rest of the line.

ON FIRM GROUND

Trudeau told Broadbent in the Commons the government would be on firm legal ground if it ordered the amendment and would not break the spirit of the law.

Approval would mean exporting lower-cost Alberta natural gas to the U.S. at the risk of saddling Canadians with highercost gas from less accessible supplies later on.

The government sought last-minute assurances from the Carter adminstration late Wednesday of its commitment to the project.

The government has no immediate plans to increase the price of natural gas exported to the U.S. and it is reviewing the situation on a month-to-month basis, Energy Minister Marc Lalonde said Wednesday.

That means there will be no increase from the current rate of $4.17 U.S. a thousand cubic feet at least until Nov. 1 and perhaps longer.,

In Edmonton, meanwhile, Alberta Energy Minister Merv Leitch said his province is entering further oil-pricing talks with Ottawa in good faith.

He was commenting on an Edmonton Journal story which said the Alberta government is preparing to raise the price of its crude oil by $2 a barrel Aug. 1.

Talks getting nowhere

TORONTO (CP) — The key federal and provincial negotiators admitted Wednesday they have no solutions to a major stumbling block in their constitutional discussions.

Roy Romanow, Saskatchewan attorney-general and spokesman for the provinces, described the problem — — the extent to which Ottawa should be allowed to control the flow of goods, capital and labor across the country — as an "irreconcilable situation."

Federal Justice Minister Jean Chretien occasionally contradicted Romanow as they briefed reporters on the day's discussions. But Chretien did agree their differences are major.

"Don't ask me if I have a solution, I don't have a solution."

Chretien wants a new constitution to give the federal government the power to intervene when provinces pass legislation restricting the flow of goods, capital and labor across provincial boundaries. Ontario is the only province supporting the federal position.

Such power is needed, Chretien says, because some provinces have already passed legislation forbidding residents of other provinces to purchase land or to work in specific industries.

"This is not my vision of Canada," Chretien said.

Romanow argued that the provinces do not agree a problem exists and, therefore, do not want to give the federal government a new power.

BOMBARDIER LAYS OFF 240 WORKERS

VALCOURT (SM) — Some 240 employees of the Bombardier plant in Valcourt have been given layoff notices for up to two months because of poor sales this past winter.

Bombardier, the sole maker of snowmobiles and motorcycles in the area blames the loss of sales on a poor winter both in Canada and the northern United States.

The company says sales were lost in such machinery as snow tractors — used to maintain ski resorts — and in the profitable area of leisure snowmobiles.

The affected employees are presently on annual vacation time but will remain off the job for another two months following the holiday. Bombardier says that if inventories are sold off in time, the employees can be rehired in October when demand usually increases.

A Bombardier contract with the New Jersey Transit Corp. will give the company a firm hold in the US, but part of the cars will have to be assembled in the US. See Page 2.

...but it's too late for the Irvings

By MERRITT CLIFTON

FARNHAM — Farnham's emergency water pipeline won't arrive in time to help the Irvings. Robert, Joanne, and their infant daughter will have moved to Cowansville.

"The water problems aren't the only reason we're moving," Robert explains, "but they're certainly a factor. We were ready to buy a house, and then we found this neat one up in Cowansville where the water isn't so bad. So we're moving. We'll be sending our pollution down to Farnham now instead of drinking what everyone else sends down."

Neighbor Bryan Mitchell also wants to move. "I'll have to find out if I can break my lease. I don't think I can break it just because of the water, though."

The Irvings and Mitchell agree over coffee that neither the emergency pipeline nor the permanent pipeline to be built later can be trusted to keep clean water coming.

"They've had water shutoffs before," Joanne points out, "where they've said after a few days that the water was safe to drink again. Then all of a sudden it's unsafe the next day. We don't know who to believe."

"Can a 4-inch pipeline really supply all the water Farnham needs," asks Robert. "From the south fork of the Yamaska? How deep can it be where they're drawing from?"

"Probably a few weeks after the pipeline's built, it'll be back off again," Mitchell nods. Farnham's frequent water shortage have hit Mitchell and the Irvings particularly hard.

Bombardier nets railway contract

MONTREAL (CP) — An order from the state-owned New Jersey Transit Corp. for 57 railway commuter cars will give Bombardier Inc. of Montreal a firmer American foothold, but the cars will have to be assembled in the U.S., the company said.

In announcing the $50-million (U.S.) order, to be completed by mid-1982, Raymond Royer, head of Bombardier's mass transit division, said the company will decide soon on the site of a U.S. plant it will need to comply with the recently-passed Buy America Act.

The act requires that rolling stock purchased by public transit authorities be assembled in the U.S. with components at least 50 per cent U.S.-made.

But Royer said engineering on the self-propelled cars will be exclusively Canadian and the labor-intensive manufacture of car bodies will be performed at the Bombardier plant in La Pocatiere, Que., creating 400 person-years of work.

The U.S. plant — sites in Massachusetts, Vermont and New Jersey are among those considered — would carry out final assembly and finishing work, as well as work on future U.S. orders, Royer said.

"We want to show that this isn't an adventure but a serious plant. An American plant would allow us to bid on future U.S. jobs."

The La Pocatiere plant, currently producing LRC highspeed intercity passenger trains for Via Rail Canada, completed orders recently for self-propelled Chicago commuter coaches and for Amtrak LRC trains.

Carl Mawby, vice-president of Bombardier's mass transit division, said New Jersey has until February to exercise an option on a further 58 cars. Before the New Jersey order, nothing was lined up for the plant after next year.

Budd Co. of Philadelphia and Vickers Canada Inc. of Montreal also submitted bids on the job. Budd's bid was the lowest but failed to include warranties and financing arrangements demanded by New Jersey. Budd tried unsuccessfully in the courts to have tenders reopened.

Other U.S. cities where Bombardier is considering bidding on transit equipment include Buffalo, Pittsburgh and Portland, Ore., Mawby said.

Quebec answer to Loch Ness?

MANIWAKI, Que. (CP) — Harold Harris has a fish story to top all fish stories.

The retired credit office manager was taking a dip in the peaceful waters of nearby Lake Baskatong last Sunday when he encountered a huge, greenish creature that he said easily rivalled the infamous Lock Ness monster in appearance.

Harris said he was up to his waist in the lake when he heard a swishing sound and saw a strange, heavy movement about nine metres away.

"As it moved forward, it undulated up and down like a massive boa constrictor," he said Tuesday.

"Then a head — about the size of a horse's head but not the same shape — came out of the water and went back down."

The monster was between nine and 12 metres long and had a row of jagged spines rising out of the water, says Harris. His wife, Jacqueline, also saw the creature through binoculars from their cottage before it disappeared into the lake again.

Adds Harris: "I'm not a nut. I don't want to be accused of fabricating the story."

Iran seals its borders

As Iran sealed its borders Wednesday, President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr announced that alleged conspirators in a plot against the Iranian government will go on trial shortly.

The 48-hour travel ban, closing Iran's land, sea and air frontiers, was imposed to prevent any of those accused of conspiracy from escaping abroad.

Last Thursday, Bani-Sadr said a coup attempt had been uncovered. A reliable source in the president's office said he believes hundreds of people, many of them military personnel, were arrested and 100 more might be at large.

After a meeting with revolutionary leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the president said some of the accused will go on trial "today or tomorrow," a Persian expression which also means "very soon."

At the same time, Ayatollah Mohammed Beheshti, leader of the clergy-dominated Islamic Republic party, told a news conference: "Some of them will receive the death penalty."

The government has said the United States, Israel and Iraq were implicated in the plot, which was intended to bring back the last prime minister appointed by the deposed shah, Shahpour Bakhtiar, living in exile in Paris.

The coup also was reported to have included plans to bomb Khomeini's home and other key targets.

In other Iranian developments Wednesday, a foreign ministry spokesman said Turkey has agreed to return a helicopter in which two Iranian lieutenants fled Iran last Friday, the day after the coup attempt was made public. An Iranian request for the officers' extradition is still under study.

Iranian officials reported, meanwhile, that a Roman Catholic school in Tehran — the Andisheh school — has been closed because its priests are alleged to have carried out espionage activities for Israel.

In Cairo, a spokesman for Mohammad Reza Pahlavi said he does not need surgery now and none has been performed - contradicting an earlier report by an Egyptian specialist that an abscess on his left thigh had been drained.

News in brief

Transportation bill useless — NDP

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to promote safer transportation of dangerous goods does nothing about the worn-out ships, trucks, rail cars and rail lines often used to move such goods, a New Democratic Party MP said Wednesday.

Les Benjamin, his party's transportation critic, said the bill, given final Commons approval after unsuccessful NDP attempts to strengthen some of its provisions, deals only with packaging, labelling and inspection.

"We can have all the transportation of dangerous goods legislation we want but if facilities and infrastructure for transporting these goods are inadequate, the legislation is little help," said the MP for Regina West.

NB legislature ends session

FREDERICTON (CP) — After voting themselves a 33-per cent pay hike, members of the New Brunswick legislature wrapped up the longest, hottest sitting in the history of the 10-year-old Progressive Conservative government.

Lt.-Gov. Hedard Robichaud formally prorogued the second session of the 49th Legislative Assembly of New Brunswick shortly after midnight after an all-day session Wednesday. A total of 84 bills were dealt with during the four-month sitting.

Feds to watch foreign investors

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government will keep a closer watch on foreign investors in Canada to ensure that their interests are not merely self-serving, External Affairs Minister Mark MacGuigan said Wednesday.

Addressing the Canadian Council of the International Chamber of Commerce, he cited a number of causes for concern with foreign investors.

"For example, there will continue to be cases in which some components of multinational enterprises will be torn between respecting the policies of host governments and following the directives of the parent company, which in turn may be responding to the dictates of the home country."

Heatwave compared to Dust Bowl

Kansas and Missouri officials compared the three-week-long heatwave Wednesday to the Dust Bowl era of the 1930s, while cities and counties in the South opened more public buildings as air-conditioned havens.

The unofficial death toll from the heat has risen to at least 750 in 17 states.

In the south, southwest and midwestern United States, forecasts for the Thursday-to-Sunday period were distressingly similar: continued hot, often humid, weather with little rain.

Afternoon readings Wednesday included Atlanta, 37.7 Celsius (100 Fahrenheit); Birmingham, Ala., 39; Fort Worth, Texas, 38.8; and Springfield, Mo., 38.

US unions losing foothold

OTTAWA (CP) — International unions with headquarters in the U.S. still dominate the Canadian labor movement but are gradually losing their foothold as workers in this country flock to Canadian unions, says a government report released Wednesday.

The report, based on information that unions are required by law to give annually to the federal government, says membership in international unions is still growing, but is being far surpassed by growth in Canadian union membership.

Police shot in Liberty City

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Dade County police patrolled Liberty City streets Wednesday after five officers were shot during a new spate of violence in neighborhoods devastated by bloody racial rioting two months ago.

More than 100 officers, working 12-hour shifts, cruised the heavily-black northwest Miami area after a night of disturbances which began after an officer was shot in the back Tuesday afternoon while trying to arrest two robbery suspects.

"Everything is quiet, but the officers will continue to patrol the area until we're sure there's been a return to normalcy," police spokesman Normando Gregorisch said.

Oil subsidies wrong — Kierans

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government's subsidizing of oil prices is "great politics" but fundamentally wrong, the chairman of the Ontario Economic Council said Wednesday.

Thomas Kierans told a news conference that use of federal taxes to keep the price of oil imports artificially low amounts to a misappropriation of Canada's capital resources. He said the money benefits foreign oil producers instead of domestic industries to help them compete in world markets.

Girl's body found

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — The search for two-year-old Anik Beauchemin, taken from her home in this Laurentian city Sunday, ended with the discovery of her body in a plastic bag Wednesday.

Next to the body, police found another plastic bag containing the girl's dead dog.

Police had found the body of Raymond Royer, 57, the girl's uncle, on Tuesday in the same wooded area, behind an outdoor theatre near a major highway. He had apparently killed himself with a 12-gauge shotgun.

Police said they received a letter from Royer on Wednesday detailing the whereabouts of the girl's body.

Mountie's report may hurt MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — A government lawyer pointed out in 1977 that a report by an RCMP staff sergeant could lead to charges of obstructing justice against high-ranking members of the security service, a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing was told Wednesday.

The result was that S.Sgt. Gilbert Albert was called to RCMP Headquarters in Ottawa the next day and asked by Supt. Archie Barr, who testified Wednesday, whether the report was accurate.

Paperworkers talks resume Monday

TORONTO (CP) — Stalled negotiations aimed at ending a paperworkers strike which is depleting newsprint supplies in the U.S. will resume Monday, an Ontario labor ministry conciliator says.

J. D. Speranzini, acting as conciliator for the three provinces affected by the strike, said Wednesday the Canadian Paperworkers Union and Abitibi-Price Inc. agreed to resume full-scale negotiations after holding preliminary talks during the last week.

'Who' concert a success

TORONTO (CP) — Despite some anxious moments for city officials, promoters and the British band The Who, a huge Wednesday night concert at Exibition Stadium came off with relatively few hitches as more than 70,000 music fans chose rocking over rioting.

The lengthy open-air concert, which also featured the popular rock acts Heart and J. Geils Band, attracted the largest crowd ever at the Toronto baseball park, which has a seating capacity of 54,000. The surplus crowd was packed standing on the field of the stadium in what is known as "festival seating."

Teachers forced to strike

ST. ANDREWS, N.B. (CP) — Spending cuts, attacks from a misinformed public and insincere bargaining by school boards are prompting a rash of teachers' strikes in Canada, says the president of the Canadian Teachers Federation.

"It is likely that 1980 will have produced as many teachers' strikes as the entire previous decade," Patricia English said Wednesday at the opening session of the federation's annual meeting.

USSR may buy more Canadian grain

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Hazen Argue, minister responsible for the wheat board, opened the door Wednesday to increased grain sales to the Soviet Union for the crop year which starts Aug. 1.

But he said Canada will honor the U.S. embargo to protest the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan by not increasing sales beyond traditional levels.

REVIVED DIVER YEARNS FOR FRITES

MONTREAL (CP) — After 24 days in a coma and little medical hope that he would ever do more than breathe, Christian Barriere has astounded doctors here by waking up — with a craving for french fries.

Barriere, the victim of a mid-June scuba-diving accident at Montreal's Olympic pool, is now fully alert, in good spirits and expected to recover fully.

"This is a total and wonderful surprise," said a jubilant Dr. Jacques Gougoux at Sacre Coeur Hospital Wednesday.

"Frankly, we didn't think there was anything more we could do for him after he did not respond to treatment in . . . Toronto.

"His brain scans showed disjointed and anarchic activity. He was a vegetable and we thought he'd stay that way."

But Christian, who doesn't recall the June 17 accident which forced a dangerous air bubble into his blood stream, emerged from the coma last Friday.

And the only vegetables around were the french fries Barriere immediately conjured in his mind.

"French fries! That's what I was after," the 25-year-old joked Wednesday. "But they wouldn't give them to me because you can't get them through an intravenous tube."

Barriere, a bank clerk, also wants to resume his scuba diving lessons once he recovers; he still has to undergo physiotherapy for paralyzed arms and legs.

Massawippi pollution team up for fight

By JUDITH KELLOCK-HEWARD

LAKE MASSAWIPPI — Summer finds Massawippi Water Protection Inc. still afloat amid a welter of studies. The association has commissioned five surveys on Lake Massawippi, and is running a Youth project as well.

The group continues this year with testing at the permanent stations around the lake for bacterial and chemical pollution. During 1979 the program revealed extremely high levels of coliform pollution in the Tomifobia river, especially in the Beebe and Stanstead portion. The counts recorded were in the thousands, as high as 15,000 parts per cubic centimetre for an individual reading.

At the lake entrance of the Tomifobia, the counts were also elevated -- around 1,000. Bacterial pollution levels of 1,000 and over for total coloform, and of 100 and over for fecal coliform, are rated unsafe even for swimming by the Environment Protection Services.

The survey last year found pollution levels high in the bay area near Ayer's Cliff. Two camping installations have been a problem in the past in that area, but Camping '67 is getting itself hooked up to a sewage treatment line this summer, leaving only the camping area in Bacon Bay without proper waste disposal systems.

The association can hardly wait for Stanstead and Beebe to hook up to the Rock Island treatment plant, and the Ministry of Environment's Lake and Water Courses Program has been notified about the pollution in Bacon Bay.

A study of septic installations around the lake was carried out in 1972 by the EPS but has not been repeated.

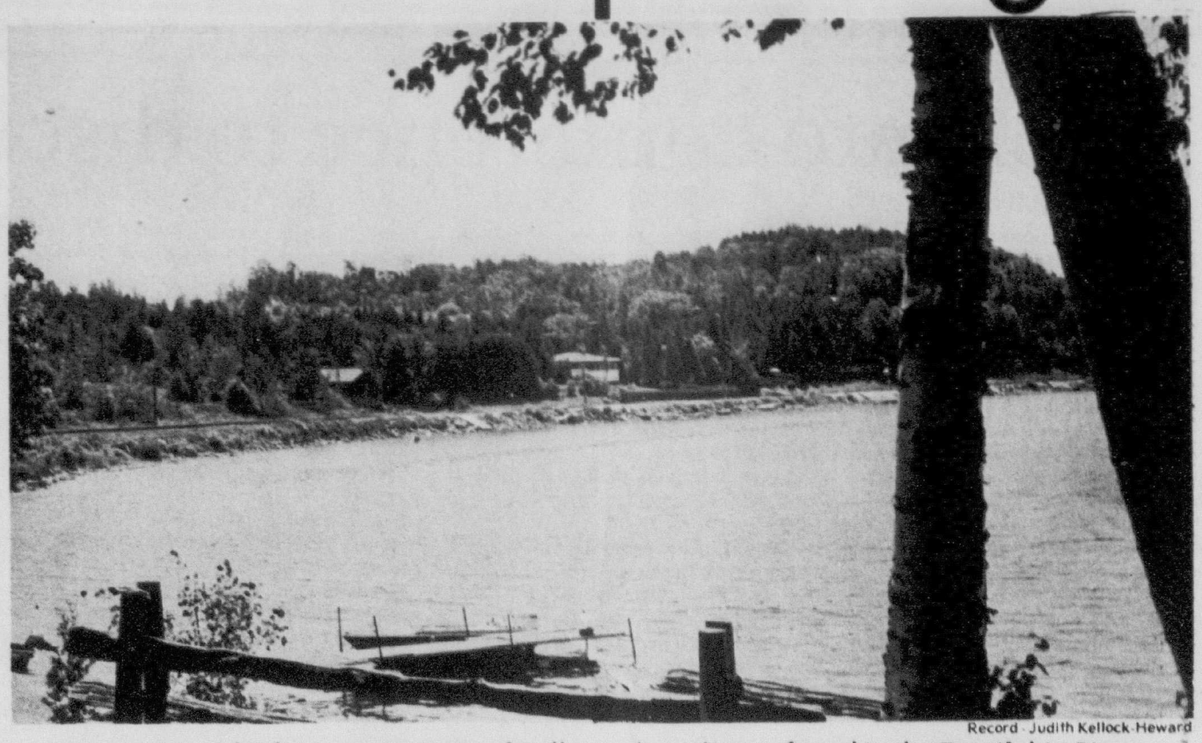

Water samples are also being analyzed at McGill University for phosphorus content and some are being screened for the presence of asbestos fibre, a costly procedure.

At chosen sites around the lake divers are watching weed growth over a three year period, measuring and noting any changes in growth that occur.

A bulk collector is receiving samples from Massawippi rainfall, and pH levels of 6.0, 7.0 and 6.6 give no cause to fear lake acidity from rainfall.

Testing for oxygen content continues this year, but the association feels confident this is not a problem. Although the amount of algae and the phosphorus concentration has been slightly higher than in other lakes in the region, the concentration of dissolved oxygen is also high, in sufficient quantity to host fish and the micro-organisms in the lake, according to Jack Cornett of McGill who is studying the lake as part of a doctoral thesis program.

The group has resolved this summer to add yet another study to its list next summer. It intends to ask EPS to conduct a survey of artificialization of the shores of Lake Massawippi, with the idea of starting a shore regenération program. Much erosion and consequent nutrient pollution can be controlled by returning the shores to a natural state of wild bushes, shrubs and ground covers, now grown in the lake program nurseries, and available free of charge to participating lake associations.

Last Waltz: An attic of lace

Record - Perry Beaton

Katie Rediker has always shopped at rummage sales for style and individuality.

By JUDITH KELLOCK-HEWARD

NEWPORT — As fifties is to punk, forties is to The Last Waltz, the only store for miles around with genuine 1940 duds: Chinese jackets, soft felt Fedoras, ruby-red platform-soled sandals, seer-sucker sport-coats, and even a candy-striped driving bonnet.

Partners Kate Rediker and Donna Jean Rogers' 10-year-old friendship culminated this spring in the opening of their North Street shop for worn-before threads. Rediker and Rogers have always shopped at rummage sales. "Looking around" rather than "looking for" is the way Rediker explains their dress philosophy.

"Our ideal is to find an old lady's attic full of lace instead of polyester," Rediker says.

The duo aren't having any difficulty finding treasures. But they're finding such a variety that they're taking a course on how to identify jewellry, antique items for padded shoulders and black net dinner dresses.

Customers who prefer individuality over the off-the-rack wear keep Rediker and Rogers' trade bustling.

"We find lots of one-of-a-kind items by going to rummage sales and having people drop by with boxes of forties feathers. There's no doubt these clothes are more stylish -- they make a statement. And then there are the really great old materials and really well-made clothes that have lasted," Rediker explains.

"For sailor's pants, and anything we need more than one of, we go into New York City to a forties warehouse.

"We're having new shelves made for kids' stuff. Lots of children's clothes then were so appealing."

Rediker eyes a black lace evening dress and stole. "I had thought you might wear that just at home," she says. But now I see wearing it to go out. And hats, they should be back in." Several pork pie hats trimmed with goose quills lay on the counter.

"It's so much fun to dress this way."

'The water smelled bad'

"You can't take a good bath in it," Mitchell continues. "We're railroad men. We need our baths at the end of the day. But if you wash with this water, you get pimples, acne..."

"And it stinks," Robert adds. "One day I came in and I was just so sweaty and dusty I had to have a bath. But the water smelled so bad it was miserable. I couldn't stand it more than a couple of minutes."

"I used to wash our little daughter in it," Joanne puts in, "but she started to get blisters from it and I had to stop."

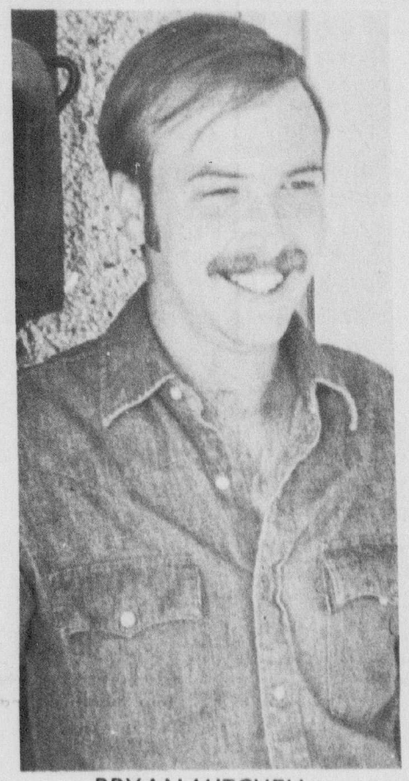

The Irvings report having suffered 'the runs' from drinking Farnham tapwater even when it was officially clean. "This coffee isn't made from Farnham water," they assure visitors. "But then it comes from the Richelieu River, and we don't know what might be in that."

"It's a pain carrying water up from the firehouse," Mitchell observes.

"We have to stock up, too, and that's a pain, because we never know when we'll be able to go get more," Robert confirms. "We don't always work regular shifts, and the firehouse serves water only from 9 to 9. It used to be from 9 to 7, but so many people complained, they had to extend the hours."

Both Mitchell and Robert wonder whether their shortage of bathwater might be compounding danger from another source of pollution, the asbestos ballast along the Canadian Pacific tracks.

"We're breathing that asbestos dust every day," according to Mitchell. "When the trains go over the rocks, they break it up. You wouldn't believe how hot and dusty it gets for us up in the cab of the engine, or back in the caboose. We get covered with the stuff, and then we can't wash it off."

BRYAN MITCHELL... he's trying to leave

Although Robert is secretary-treasurer of his union local, he sees little organized concern. "I just gather up the money and send it off to Cleveland," he says. "The union's run from the United States," where asbestos ballast has long been outlawed and where serious water pollution problems are relatively scarce.

But, Joanne believes, "it's probably worst on the old folks. They can't go anywhere else, they have to carry all that water, and Dr. Laroche here in town has forbidden them to bathe in tapwater."

Generally, Robert feels his family is escaping Farnham just in time. "This place could have typhus, dysentery," he gestures. "We don't want the baby to be exposed to all that. You know, you hear a lot about pollution, but it doesn't really hit home until you're right in the middle of it. I just hope something gets done pretty soon," he concludes.

"I've lived here in Farnham all my life -- 26 years -- and the water has never tasted good. Something could or should have been done about it 20 years ago. But I guess it all comes down to money."

"It all comes down to money," Mitchell echoes, gloomily contemplating higher rent to pay higher taxes, necessary to pay Farnham's half of the cost of new filtration equipment. "I come from Lennoxville. I got used to clear spring water."

Pheasants are no longer wild

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Pheasants cannot be considered wild birds, according to the definition in Chapter 58 of the Quebec Wild Life Conservation Act. Judge Guy Genest made the ruling recently which resulted in the acquittal of Carole Bourque and Guy Lachance on charges of hunting the birds on a Lake Memphremagog island October 27, 1979.

Jean Bonnette told the court he and his brother-in-law were guarding the island that evening when they heard a shot, saw a flashlight, and went down to the waters edge. "We fired a shot in the air to tell them to come down. They did as we lay concealed in the underbrush and when they got into their boat we fired another warning shot and they returned to shore when we found 17 pheasants in a bag and a .22 calibre rifle."

Under questioning by Crown attorney Claude Noiseux, Bonnette told the court the birds were bred for a fish and game club and they were usually set free between August and early December. He added the birds were fed when they were out of the breeding area.

Genest did not allow production of the declaration of the accused following a voir dire hearing ruling they had been obtained under duress.

Genest then upheld Laurent Bergeron's argument that pheasants are domestic birds and ordered the acquittal.

Subsection 1-b of chapter 58 of the Wild Life Conservation Act reads: "animal" means any wild bird, wild animal, wild reptile or wild batrachian whose reproduction is ordinarily effected in the outdoors.

QUEBEC MUSICIANS BATTLE 'BIG NAME' U.S. UNION

By CAROLE TREISER

SHERBROOKE — The Syndicat des Musiciens du Quebec will ask the Quebec government to regulate deals made by its rival union -- the American Federation of Musicians, Jacques Bizier, president of the Sherbrooke local of the SMQ, said yesterday.

Bizier says the American union has tried to monopolize the market in Quebec by forcing night club owners to hire only musicians belonging to the American union.

"We haven't had the problem in Sherbrooke because the union goes after only big-time clubs in Montreal and Quebec City," Bizier said at a press conference yesterday. "However, you can't last in their business without travelling, and many of our Sherbrooke people have been barred from clubs in those two cities."

Bizier could not cite under what statutes the government could regulate union activities, "But it will have to take some kind of action to prevent coercive union action," he said.

One singer, who was booked into a non-affiliated auditorium last month, says the union used its pull with disc jockeys in the city she was scheduled to play and coerced them to falsely report on the air that her show had been cancelled.

"Only half the auditorium was filled and our promoters were expecting a full-house. Nearly all the tickets to the show had been sold."

The American union, which was the only music union in Quebec for nearly 75 years, screens, what clubs its musicians can play at. When signing a contract with the larger clubs, Bizier says it is usual practice to include a clause stipulating the club will hire only through the union.

"The clubs are forced into complying with the stipulation because the union represents all the big-names in Quebec and club owners can't risk losing those stars," Bizier says.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and Radio Quebec have also signed restrictive contracts with the AFM barring all other musicians from their studios.

Last year, Radio Quebec tried to hire SMQ musicians but was stopped by threats of the AFM.

Many of the stars who are protected by the restrictive clause protest against the American union as well, because they are prevented from playing at the non-affiliated clubs. If they do, they risk heavy union fines. "You have no freedom in the union. They dictate all the rules. And those rules weren't created to protect the members, they were created to make the union bosses wealthy men," one musician who didn't want to be identified said yesterday.

One example of how the union purportedly gets rich at the expense of its members is in how it sets its pay scales. Canadian club owners charge customers about half what it costs to get through the doors of an American club, but they are forced by the union to pay musicians the same scale.

"The rates the union charges are ridiculous. They force clubs to close, meaning fewer jobs for us musicians. Unfortunately the union isn't interested in developing a good night club circuit by letting the clubs get on their feet. All the union wants is its slice -- now," the musician said.

In a document prepared by the CSN, the Canadian union federation alleges the American union bars its members from any decision-making -- "It's all left to the American executives," uses a "minute portion" of union dues to help musicians -- the rest is invested "into American corporations"; and that it is the guard-dog of the American record industry, looking after its interests rather than those of union members.

The SMQ charges that musicians are forced to accept "these intolerable conditions" because to go against the powerful union means to ruin one's career. "If you don't belong to the American union, the record industry won't touch you." Bizier says. Felix Leclerc is one of many Quebecois stars who lends moral support to the SMQ but says he can't risk joining its ranks.

The SMQ was formed two years ago to fight the actions of the American union "and protect the interests of Quebecois musicians". It has 700 members, all of whom are small-time.

Townships talk

MONTREAL (CAT) — The federal justice department announced yesterday it still plans to hold hearings to decide whether criminal charges should be laid against Space Research Corp. for allegedly shipping arms to South Africa.,

Weapons deals with South Africa are prohibited by the government.

The justice department has stalled action on the case ever since a US court convicted the American wing of Space Research of violating the American arms ban against South Africa.

Sessions Judge Rheal Brunet who will hold the hearing, has not yet set a hearing date.

SHERBROOKE (CL) — Professor J.E. Desnoyers of L'Universite de Sherbrooke has won the BP Canada Energy prize for his research project into the extraction of petroleum from bituminous sands.

Desnoyers' project was chosen over 28 other projects from 15 universities across Canada entered in the competition. The Universite de Sherbrooke will receive $20,000 to help Desnoyers develop his study and Desnoyers himself will receive a $3,500 cash award as well as becoming eligible for the International Energy Research prize in competition with 10 other countries for a share in a pot totalling more than 17,000 pounds.

Toronto conference to discuss problems of the future

TORONTO (CP) — Soothsayers by the thousands descend on Toronto next week, their crystal ball brimming with a world of predictions.

They're not mystics, actually, although they probably could do with some occult assistance to penetrate the vast and unseen horizons before them.

The occasion is the first global conference on the future — a myriad of question marks and forecasts stretching from life and times in the 1980s to what may befall the movers and shakers of world development far into the next century and beyond.

Scientists, politicians, teachers, urban and corporate planners, theologians and sociologists and "other individuals of goodwill and vision will address specific quetions of worldwide concern," says a promotional brochure announcing the July 20-24 meeting.

The conference combines the third general assembly of the World Future Society and the annual meeting of the Canadian Futures Society. More than 4, 000 delegates from over 40 countries, including a number from the Third World, will include in their spectrum such topics as:

—Is it feasible to produce a synthetic food pill for temporary relief in famine areas?

—Where will exploration of outer space, under the oceans and throughout the frozen poles eventually lead mankind?

A noted science and science-fiction writer isn't coming to the sessions but he's sending a robot in his place.

Although the over-all theme of the conference is "Through the '80s; thinking globally, acting locally," one session is dubbed "the next billion years"

SOME SKEPTICAL

Program organizers are generally ecstatic about the get-together while others see some problems in this type of meeting.

Conference chairman Frank Feather, vice-president of the Canadian society, said the international flavor of the meeting will give people more of a global outlook than other types of conferences.

"We must get people to appreciate that North America is not the centre of the world."

He said an advance survey of delegates indicates the main problems facing the future will be family affairs, lifestyle and culture, as well as some emphasis on the roles of women and electronics in society.

"People have had energy to their back teeth. It won't be a main topic of discussion."

Hank Koehn, a vice-president of Security Bank in Los Angeles, said there could be some problems with a conference this size, with so many diverse sessions going on concurrently that people are bound to miss some provocative discussions.

Koehn, who was invited but is not attending because of other commitments, said there is "perhaps a danger of too much; of an information overload — whereby some interesting things will fall through the cracks.

"In most conferences, people see only the world of yesterday and today and try to project this into the future.

"But this sort of conference shifts the focus of things. They try to create future thinking — it's a shift forward in values and attitudes."

Some of the scheduled speakers are Italian industrialist Aurelio Peccei, founder of the Club of Rome; Filipino official Rafael Salas, head of the United Nations population activities; German author Robert Jungk; Indian urban planner Rashmi Mayur; French social scientist Bertrand de Jouvenel; Argentine economist Andre van Dam; Italian sociologist Eleonora Masini and Swiss economist Bruno Fritsch.

Canadian speakers include senators Maurice Lamontagne and Alister Grossart, Anglican Archbishiop Ted Scott, financier Maurice Strong, scientist Omond Solandt and Walter Pitman, executive director of the Ontario Arts Council.

The United States will be represented by policy analyst Herman Kahn, author-diplomat Harlan Cleveland, public opinion analyst Florence Skelly, environmentalist Lester Brown and others.

Edward Cornish, president of the World Future Society, said no one expects a solution to the world's problems with this one gathering but organizers hope to lay the framework for future meetings.

Conviviality?

The Olympic Games open Saturday in Moscow and apparently the U.S.S.R. propaganda machine is in overdrive according to a report filed by Associated Press. It tells of a cartoon which is being shown at the main press centre which makes no direct reference to the United States-led boycott of the Games.

Loveable little "Mishka", the bear symbol of the Olympiad, is merrily on his way to Moscow when he is accosted by a wicked witch. She throws ever evil hex at the loveable little fellow -- they include make believe stop lights, hurdle-like barriers and even poison gas. Oblivious to all the obstacles, the cuddly bear proceeds to Moscow with his perpetually fixed smile.

Reason must prevail according to the authors of the Soviet version of "Broom Hilda". The wicked witch is confounded by a sign post which offers three methods of getting to the games, straight ahead, right, or left. Presumably the obvious choice would be the latter but they leave the audience up in the air.

The closing scene shows Mishka happily heading off to the games on an Olympiad train with the witch waving her fists in frustration and shouting, "But I am opposed!"

We in Canada are opposed to the unilateral move made by the Soviets with their invasion of Afghanistan and have joined the boycott and this writer endorses that decision. We feel sorry for our athletes who trained arduously over the past four years to see dreams go up in smoke.

IOC chairman Lord Killanin recently revealed his predecessor, Avery Brundage, said that Munich might have been the beginning of the end of the international games. We hope not, but as long as games are being used for political purposes, and we have no doubt this was Moscow's intent. they should be boycotted.

The Soviets have cleaned all possible dissidents out of Moscow and the citizens remaining have been told to have the least possible contact with foreign visitors. That's a great way to foster international understanding -- no communication between human beings.

One of the joys of covering the 1976 Olympiad was getting to know citizens from all parts of the world and to share experiences with them. Conviviality was the hallmark of success in Montreal in 1976 and those games were apolitical.

Frankly, we don't think a cartoon in the press centre is going to have any drastic effect -- the members of our avocation are, after all, known to be the rankest cynics in the world.

Asbestos field studies have uncovered little

Commentary

BY JUDITH KELLOCK-HEWARD

A reporter's job in the scientific area, particularly one in which there is much controversy must be to present as much evidence as possible. In the investigation of the possible effects of asbestos-fibre ingestion through drinking water, the best works to examine are epidemiological ones. Merritt Clifton suggests that The Record neglected to mention the Storeygard and Brown study and the Zanarek study, ones which he says prove conclusively that fibres ingested penetrate the gastro-intestinal tract.

In the 20-odd studies I saw at the time of publishing and in the dozen abstracts, as well as in reports alluding to perhaps 20 other studies, I did not see the studies Clifton feels offer conclusive proof of a link between GI cancer and fibre ingestion. It was not from neglect, wilful or otherwise, that I did not do so.

The fact is, that most studies in the field have uncovered no convincing link between cancer of the digestive tract and consumption of asbestos chrysotile fibre. If, in time, the two studies which according to Clifton offer proof, they will be borne out by others, and the body of knowledge will be formed around a consensus.

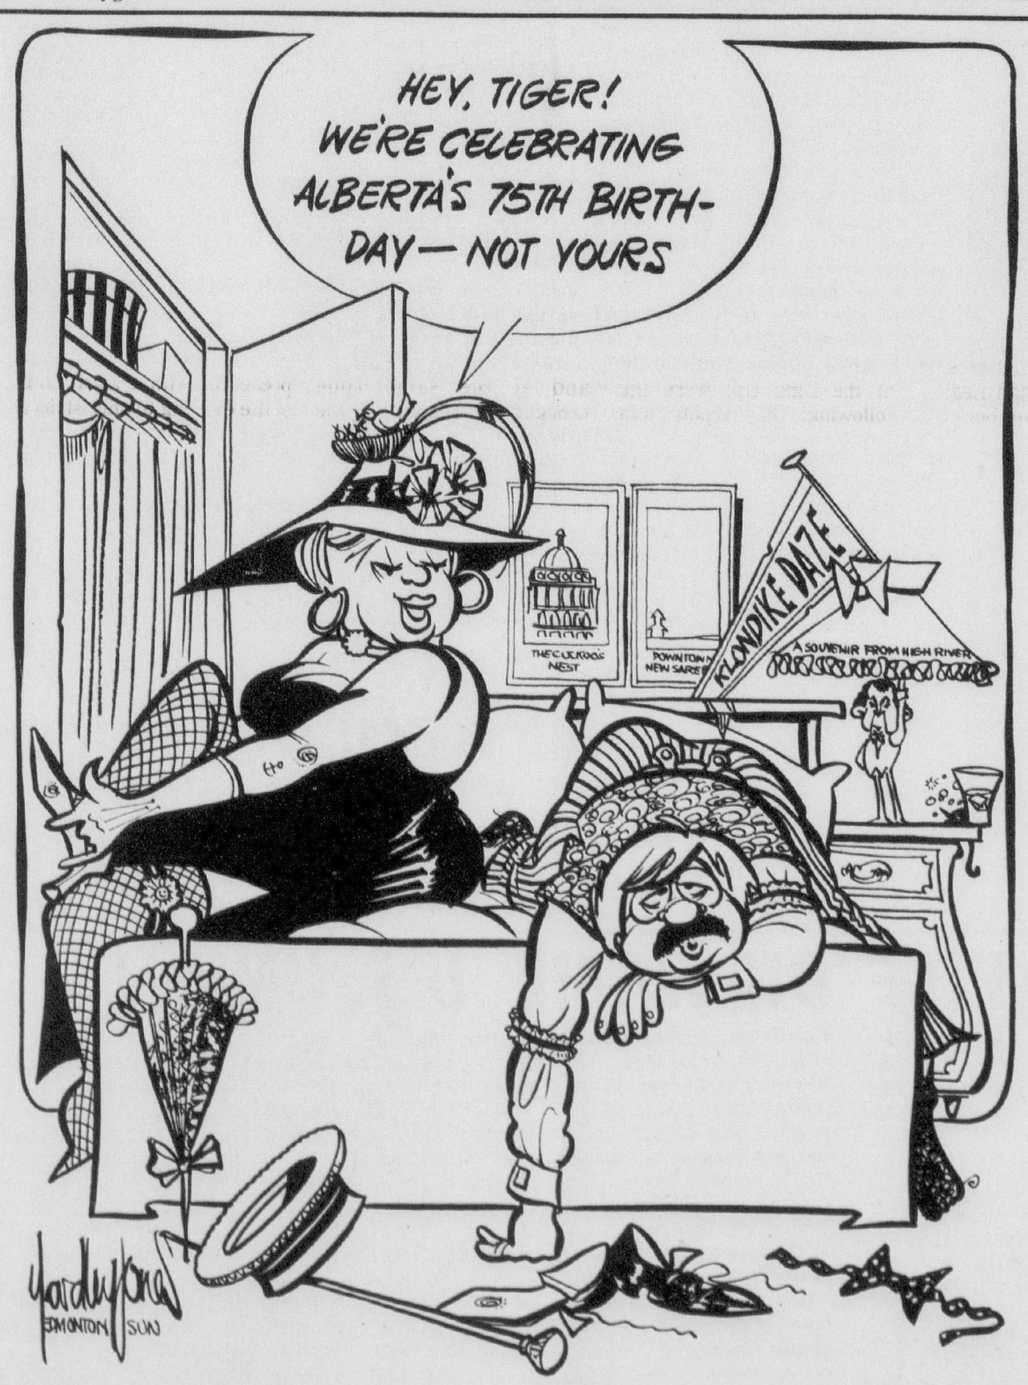

In reporting on such a controversial area the reporter must examine with the most care the studie which are well-designed and well performed. This he is not competent to do without the help of a scientist working in the field. Clifton discounts the immense help offered The Record by Dunnigan on the grounds that his research funds come from the Asbestos Corporation. Does the fact that Selikoff is funded by the unions invalidate his research? I think not.

The most important task while there remains so much that is not known, is to present a state-of-the-art picture in the broadest spectrum possible.

Blanchet, Graham and Wigle have performed studies in the Townships, studies which have not uncovered proof. The Record will continue to research the question in the coming weeks and months. In the meantime, it is scarcely fair or kind to residents of communities such as Thetford Mines and Danville, where the fibre count per litre is quite elevated, to proffer two studies out of many others, as supplying "proof aplenty."

The health of the public demands immediate steps to find out for certain what the effects of ingested asbestos really are. It demands the cessation of non-essential distribution of asbestos: in drinking water supplies for a start. Proper independent studies should be undertaken without delay, performed by competent disinterested parties, funded directly by the government who hitherto has left the research to interested parties.

Townshippers have the right to ask that these steps be carried out, and I hope they will do so.

Cultural impact of Canadian TV threatened—CBC

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian television as a cultural force is seriously threatened and more determination and imagination is needed to preserve it, CBC president Al Johnson says in his annual report to Parliament.

"We want a television system that is clearly and confidently Canadian, that speaks to us of ourselves, and that is not overwhelmed by friendly but foreign voices," he writes in the report for the fiscal year which ended March 31.

Expenditures totalled $662 million. Of that amount, $447.4 million came from the federal treasury and $123.7 million from advertisers.

John repeated his often-stated call on the government to give the VBC a long-term assured budget plan so it will not be subject to fluctuations in the amounts voted by Parliament annually.

Last year, its projected operating budget was cut by $71 million, affecting the development of new programs. Inflation and previously-negotiated wage agreements added $50 million to CBC costs, which could only be met by reducing some program services.

Rise of Reagan aide has many Republicans worried

Jack Anderson

DETROIT -- The recent rise of William Timmons to the top rank of Ronald Reagan's campaign aides has some prominent Republicans more worried than they like to admit.

Although Timmons' name is hardly a household word, he is well-known in Washington -- specifically, known by the company he keeps: Big Business, Big Oil and other big guns in the capital's special-interest community. As one of the city's super-lobbyists, Timmons has grown rich on his fat-cat clients, and the Democrats will be happy to publicize these connections.

Timmons is also a reminder of another GOP skeleton the Republicans would just as soon keep locked in the closet during the campaign: Watergate. As Richard Nixon's congressional liaison man, Timmons worked hard against the former president's impeachment -- perhaps too hard.

But it is Timmons' work as a lobbyist that may prove to be a political liability to the Reagan campaign. While his penchant for rich and powerful clients would not disturb conservative Republicans, his devotion to their causes might not sit well with the moderates and Democrats Reagan needs to win over in the fall.

Here is a list of influential corporations and groups Timmons has been hired to represent:

* National Rifle Association.
* Chrysler Corp., which paid him to lobby for its government loan guarantees.
* Lockheed Aircraft Corp., another supplicant on Uncle Sam's "corporate welfare" rolls.
* Northrop Corp., like Lockheed, a top defense contractor.
* Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.
* American Petroleum Institute, Big Oil's Washington mouthpiece.
* Several utility and gas companies.
* The governor's office of oil-rich Alaska.

These are the interests that have been effectively promoted in recent years by Reagan's new deputy director of campaign operations, his manager for the GOP convention.

One of Timmons' first moves as Reagan's convention manager was to resurrect Richard Nixon's secretary of state, Henry Kissinger, for a major speech to the delegates. The question is: Will Timmons show similar loyalty to the clients he worked for if he is given a top post in a Reagan administration?

Footnote: My associate Dale Van Atta made repeated attempts to reach Timmons for comment, but the calls were never returned.

LATEST FROM JIMMY: The traditional convention oratory starting here today gains added piquancy with the latest word from Las Vegas oddsmaker Jimmy the Greek: He now rates Reagan a 2.5-to-1 favorite to whip Jimmy Carter's you-know-what in November.

As they circle the paddock in the last hours, Reagan's field of vice-presidential possibilities is rated this way by the Greek:

George Bush: 2 to 1.
Paul Laxalt: 5 to 2.
Richard Lugar: 3 to 1.
Howard Baker: 6 to 1.
Jack Kemp: 15 to 1.
William Simon: 15 to 1.
Donald Rumsfeld: 15 to 1.
Guy Vander Jagt: 15 to 1.

Laxalt would be Jimmy's betting favorite, as acceptable to both conservatives and moderates, if Laxalt weren't pushing for someone else -- a moderate like Bush. (Other sources put Bush even farther out front than Jimmy does.)

The only scenario Jimmy sees for a Democratic victory at this point is for Carter to withdraw at the convention and let either Teddy Kennedy, Walter Mondale or Edmund Muskie get the nomination. In that case -- and Jimmy puts the odds of its happening at a realistic 100 to 1 -- he'd then rate the election a tossup.

MUSICAL CHAIRS: The low profile being kept in recent weeks by Sen. Harrison "Pete" Williams, D-N.J., has given rise to speculation that he may take the "Spiro Agnew" route out of his entanglement in the FBI's ABSCAM influence-peddling scandal. Sources close to New Jersey Gov. Brendan Byrne are predicting that Williams will resign from the Senate in return for a "no contest" plea bargain. The script then calls for Byrne to step down. His successor would then appoint Byrne -- who can't run for governor again after his term ends in January 1982 -- to Williams' vacant Senate seat.

KEYSTONE KAPERS: The growing rivalry between Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., and Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh surfaced briefly at the GOP delegation's organizational meeting a few weeks ago. Heinz inspired a boomlet for himself as a favorite son vice-presidential candidate. This visibly embarrassed Thornburgh, who squelched the move with the help of Reagan aide Drew Lewis. The joke going around was that Heinz was aiding his self-promotion campaign by threatening to withhold ketchup from Pennsylvanians.

POLITICAL POTPOURRI: Former California Gov. Edmund "Pat" Brown, who was defeated by Reagan in 1966, wisecracked the other day that the real reason his old rival is running for president is: "He's just an old, old man in search of a job. He hasn't had one in six years." ... The conventional wisdom is that if anyone really did bug Republican National Headquarters, it was conservatives seeking support for their suspicion that Chairman Bill Brock and his aides aren't loyal to Reagan. What Brock didn't know is that the anti-bugging expert he hired is the brother-in-law of the National Conservative Political Action Committee's director ... Meanwhile, fearful Republicans will be relieved to learn that there's a new bug-detector on the market that's pocket-sized, for personal protection around the clock.

Secrets beneath a frozen sea

OTTAWA (CP) — The polar frontier is the focus of an aggressive effort by Canadian researchers eager to learn the secrets of its past which now lie buried beneath a frozen wasteland at the top of the world.

Their ultimate quest is to learn how the Arctic Ocean was formed millions of years ago; knowledge that will fill in the missing chapters on how the earth developed and give scientists some clues about where to look for oil, natural gas and minerals in the north.

The researchers, mostly government and university researchers, have already started the immense project by studying bits and pieces of the north. They began with several small polar expeditions in the late 1960s and culminated them last year with the largest and most far-ranging investigation to date around the North Pole.

Scientists now are planning their next Arctic sojourn for the spring of 1982 — an extensive investigation of a 2,000-metre-high submarine range called Alpha Ridge.

The ridge sits on the Arctic seabed on the Canadian side of the North Pole in an area called the Canada Basin.

ARCTIC PUZZLE

This area is only one part of a global puzzle and scientists know little about how it was developed.

But some believe the Canada Basin was created partly by the movement of oil-rich Alaska away from northern Canada.

Geophysicist Jack Sweeney explains the implications:

"If Alaska rotated back, then another part of the Prudhoe Bay field is probably somewhere near Banks Island."

Sweeney was one of the 30 scientists and technical staff who camped out for three months last year aboard an ice station around the North Pole.

The team was investigating another undersea range called the Lomonosov Ridge that researchers now figure was torn away from the Asian and European continents millions of years ago.

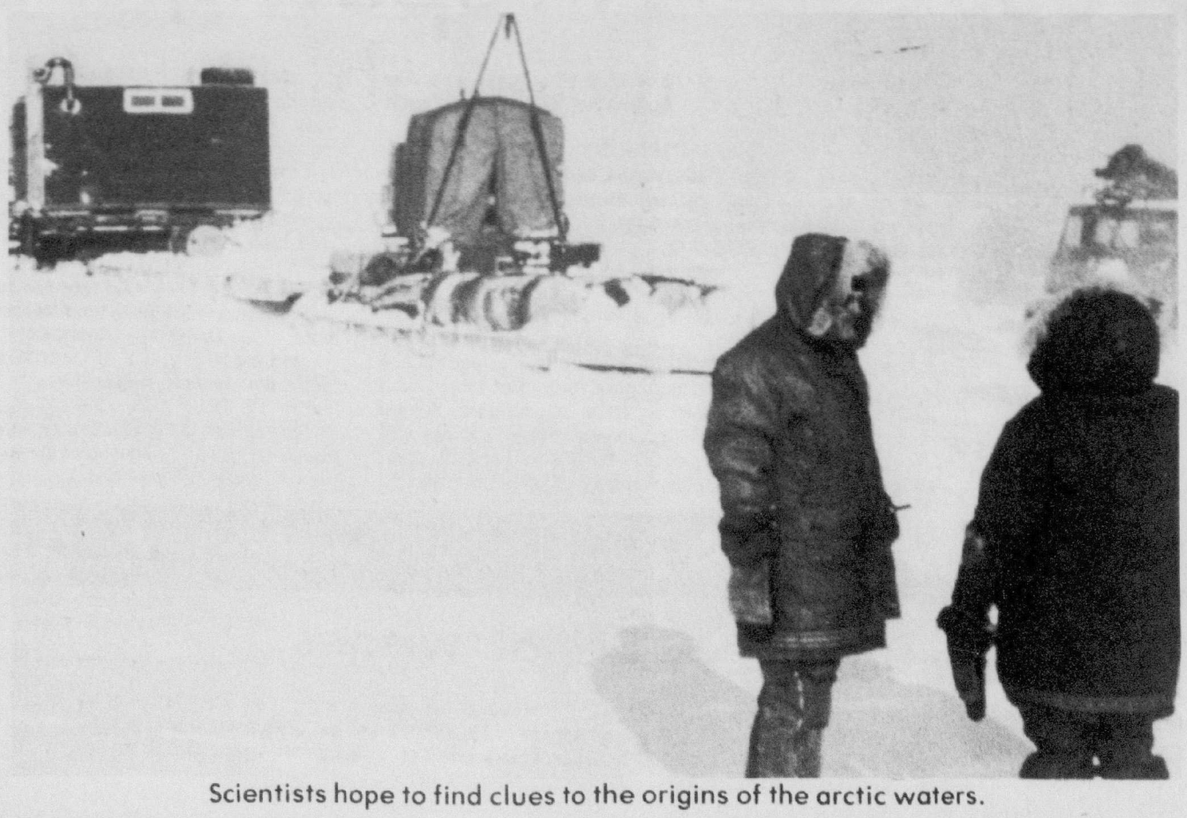

Researchers now have a pretty good idea how the other side of the Arctic Ocean — the Eurasia Basin — came to be, partly because of evidence the Canadians collected aboard the ice floe.

Adds Sweeney: "But everything on the other side — the Canada Basin — nobody can agree to how it was formed."

The work will take years and it fits into the field of earth science with which scientists attempt to explain the forces responsible for shaping and affecting the planet.

Using a phenomenon in earth science called plate tectonics, researchers are able to explain such forces as seafloor spreading, earthquakes, volcanos, the evolution of mountain chains and continental drift.

"The idea of understanding tectonic evolution has implications for where we go exploring for resources," Sweeney said.

Scientists hope to find clues to the origins of the arctic waters.

'BUY AMERICA' RULES TO BE DEBATED

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian opposition to U.S."Buy America" rules will be the main topic when Industry Minister Herb Gray meets U.S. Commerce Secretary Philip Klutznick here Friday for day-long talks.

Gray said Tuesday the talks are to "make progress in solving the issues" but does not expect to settle disagreements between the two countries on U.S.federal and state buying-preference rules.

A recent New York State law requires departments and agencies to buy steel products only from U.S. producers whose industry is operating below capacity and thus preclude export sales from Canada.

Gray says he wants to discuss with Klutznick what federal power Washington, which is on record against the new state law, can use to over-rule it.

Gray also wants to convince the U.S. to exempt Canada from 1978 U.S. federal "Buy America" rules which give preference to mass transit equipment made and assembled in the U.S.

MAY MOVE

Canadian manufacturers of subway and other mass transit vehicles have said they will have to locate assembly plants in the U.S. to comply with the rule.

Since the federal law was passed, Canadian officials have been negotiating with the U.S. to change the wording of draft legislation to exempt Canadian producers.

Gray said he also expects to discuss the automotive sector with Klutznick who was present at talks in late June in Washington between the minister and U.S. trade representative Reuben Askew on the operation of the Canada-U.S. auto pact.

Grim outlook for shipyards

OTTAWA (CP) — Eight of Canada's 18 shipyards will be out of work by the end of this year and only one will be operating by the end of 1982 if the government does not quickly produce a new program to help them get orders, a Nova Scotia MP said Monday.

A Liberal government spokesman said a new program will be announced before the end of the year.

Michael Forrestall (PC-Dartmouth-Halifax East) said the government soon must move to replace subsidies for Canadian shipbuilders, which were cut to nine per cent from 20 per cent July 1.

Delays mean workers could lose their jobs because of the time it takes to receive orders and get projects under way, he said.

Research bodies see clearly

MONTREAL (CP) — The Institute for Research on Public Policy is one of the new crop of research bodies that thinks it can see the future more clearly than governments can — and Ottawa seems to agree.

The institute, which researches economic and social issues, draws part of its operating funds — it spent $2.24 million last year — from interest on a $15-million endowment fund. Ottawa contributed half the fund, while corporate money accounted for the rest.

The government wanted "an institute that could look at issues in a long-term way more objectively than government could do," executive director Louis Vagianos said this week.

California gas prices skyrocket

SAN FRANCISCO (CP) — Consumers in northern California are being hit with about $1 billion a year in increased charges for Canadian natural gas, estimates Alan Stein, the state's secretary of economic development.

"There is a terrific problem at the consumer level with utility bills skyrocketing," Stein said in an interview.

And, he added, the feelings of Californians about foreign energy sources "are coming quickly to a boiling point."

While such feelings have the positive result of encouraging development of new energy sources in the United States, he said, they have also contributed to attempts to pass buy-American legislation restricting imports of foreign manufactured goods. The California government has been opposing such bills in the state legislature.

IOOF Restoration Lodge honors two members

COWANSVILLE (SF) — On Saturday evening, July 5, members from all branches of the I.O.O.F. gathered at the Royal Canadian Legion, in Knowlton, the occasion being the joint reception tendered to pay tribute to two outstanding brothers, both from District No. 10, who have reached the Top in their branch of the Order: Elwood Arnott, Waterloo, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, and Leon Bennett, Knowlton, Grand Patriarch of the Grand Encampment of Quebec, both proudly serving for the current term 1980-81.

Brother Harry Redmile of Cowansville Restoration Lodge No. 32, in charge of the two guest books, with the assistance of his wife Ethel, reported that after the last arrival had signed in, the tally for the evening stood at 214. Obviously, too many VIP'S were in attendance to be all included in the Receiving Line, but Brother Edward Hyatt, M.C. for the event, did manage to line up most of them in a very imposing line, and everyone got a chance to shake hands.

Among those in, (and out), of the Line Up, were the following: E. Arnott and wife, Grand Master; L. Bennett and wife, Grand Patriarch; H. Sargent and wife, D.G.P.; R. Tryhorn and wife, G.G.: N. Langevin, G.C.B.; E. Royea and wife, G.S.W.; R. Bernard and wife, G.S.; Wm. England and wife, S.D.G.M. Of The World, from N.Y., USA; F. Currier and wife, D.G.M.; D. MacMillan, and wife, G.W.; R. Curtis and wife, G.T.,; R. Duffy, G.M.; H. Pratt, G.H.P.; S. Bullock and wife D.C.P.M. Vt., and Que.; B. Draper, G.C.; Phillis Pollock, P.R.A.; T. Johnston and wife, G.M.G.L. New Hampshire, U.S.A.; F. Grant and wife, G.R.; Sister Adams, P.P.R.A.; Sister Curtis, V.P.H.A.; R. Russell, D.D.G.M.

Many members had a few words of wisdom for the assembled guests. Brother England, who had travelled over 400 miles to be present, expressed his pleasure at the enjoyment he and his wife were having at the affair; and at the same time brought the regrets of the Sovereign Grand Master of the World, Brother Eugene Mount, who could not be present, Oklahoma, U.S.A. being a little too far away; G.M. Johnston brought greetings from New Hampshire, U.S.A., and Sister Pollock paid tribute to G.M. Arnott, and G.P. Bennett. Brother Bennett and Brother Arnott wound up the orations with some very inspiring words for all present. Each of these two brothers were presented with a guest book of the evening to cherish as a memento for all time. Brother Tryhorn, one of the chief organizers of the Soiree, thanked everyone for being present.

Music, provided by the Canadian Rainbows from Lennoxville, gave a great chance to try out your dancing shoes, and as the evening wore on, many couple forgot their arthritis for awhile, and kicked up their heels in fine style to polkas and quadrilles!

A bounteous buffet lunch was provided, and thoroughly enjoyed. Eventually, the time came to depart for home. It had been fun, and apparently accomplished its purpose: to pay tribute to Elwood and Leon, and to show them that we are all behind them, and proud indeed to have them as our Leaders.

Your Birthday

July 18, 1980

This coming year you may experience urges to make some major changes in your lifestyle. However, unless they are well thought out and success is practically guaranteed, it would be wise not to make changes out of boredom or for variety's sake.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If the actions of members of your family displease you today, you may say things you'll later wish you hadn't. Mind your tongue. Getting along with other signs is one of the sections you'll enjoy in your Astro-Graph. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A perfect opening to repeat some juicy gossip may present itself today. While your listeners may enjoy what they hear, they won't respect you for saying it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is not a good day to make purchases. You aren't apt to have the necessary wisdom to handle your funds prudently.

LIBRA (Sept. 34-Oct. 23) Button your lip rather than say a few choice words to those who could hurt your position. If they're in a grumpy mood to begin with, they won't react kindly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Avoid all political or philosophical debates today. There is nothing to be gained except dissension with persons who have opposing views.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If your ideas don't perfectly mesh with those of another, don't get involved. You're asking for confusion or even harsh words if you do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Although you are normally your own person, today you are likely to be swayed by one who doesn't really know what he or she is talking about. Be careful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try not to be overly critical of the work of others. Everything you say should be phrased in the form of suggestions that are tactful and constructive.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could be accused of minding someone else's business today if you're not careful. Play safe. Don't ask questions. Don't offer advice.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you can't discuss a subject calmly and sensibly with your mate today, it would be best to drop the matter until you both have a chance to sleep on it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's not like you to be careless, yet that is exactly what you will be today if you don't keep your mind on what you're doing. Concentrate at all times.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In order to resist the temptation to spend thoughtlessly today you may have to leave your checkbook and credit cards at home.

Cabbie won't take pregnant fares

Dear Ann Landers: I heard you say something on the radio recently that was awfully stupid. A woman told you she was expecting her first baby and she wanted her husband to go with her to the hospital. He said he hated hospitals -- the smell alone made him sick. He fainted the last two times he went into a hospital to visit his mother, then his brother.

Your advice was, "Stop begging. He would be more trouble than he'd be worth. Let him stay home. When the pains start to come about 10 minutes apart, call a taxi."

Ann, honey, I am a taxi driver and we don't want fares like that. Every time I get a woman in my cab who is on her way to the hospital to deliver, I get heart failure. I've been hacking for 10 years and I have carried three women in labor. They were all alone with nobody's to help me calm them down. Those little mothers can take years off a cabbie's life.

The first one I drove was just a kid. I'll bet she wasn't 17 years old. She asked to sit in front with me. Every time she got a pain, she grabbed hold of the wheel. We darned near hit a truck. The second lady begged me to go through red lights and stop signs. Finally, a squad car spotted me. The policeman was a nice guy. He took the dame in his car, put on the siren and rushed her to the hospital. (I was stuck for $4.40 on the meter -- she couldn't find her wallet -- which was jake with me.)

The last time I wasn't so lucky. The woman said it was her sixth kid, and by golly if she didn't have the baby two blocks from the hospital -- right on the back seat of the cab. The emergency room doctors came out, finished the delivery and carried the kid off in a blanket. The woman went inside in a wheelchair. She was so thrilled, she gave me a $20 tip.

Please, Ann, tell PG ladies to call an ambulance if their husbands won't take them to the hospital. Taxi drivers aren't equipped to handle such stuff. — Irish In Boston

Dear Boston: You told 'em -- and in a way I never could. Thanks a heap.

Dear Ann Landers: Your comments to "Scared to Death," the woman from Canada who asked about the legitimacy of fortune tellers, were perfect. You told her to eat a salami sandwich and get a good night's sleep. I would like to share with her (and others who believe in that psychic garbage) an incident that might be helpful.

During World War II, a close friend (I'll call her Zelda) went to a fortune teller. She paid $5 to be told that her husband would be killed in action within six months.

Every time the phone rang, Zelda shook like a leaf. She was certain the person on the other end was going to tell her the terrible news. The poor woman was a nervous wreck waiting for the mail. When she received telegrams for her birthday, she went to pieces until she could read the contents. The sight of a Western Union messenger made her physically sick.

Needless to say, Zelda's husband came home with nothing worse than tired feet. But thanks to the fortune teller, the woman's life was hell until her man walked through the door. So much for "seers into the future." — There Oughta Be A Law

Dear Oughta: I'm with you. I agree there's enough suffering in the world without the added agony of being told, "Expect tragedy. It's in the cards." Thanks for the testimony.

DEAR POLLY — Before discarding an old pin cushion open it up and you might discover a treasure of good needles that have worked their way inside and out of sight. I love to eat fish at least once a week — yet hate to serve the same recipe time after time. Therefore, I welcome new ways to cook fish. Clean fish and cut into usual portions, season with salt and pepper and let stand for about five minutes. Dip fish in salad dressing diluted with water until it has the consistency of cream. Then roll fish in flour or cracker crumbs and pan fry in butter or margarine.

Last weekend my family and I took advantage of the nice weather and gave the cottage a thorough cleaning job. Everyone chipped in with the work...even my parents. Dress codes in spotlight again

TORONTO (CP) — Controversy surrounding office dress codes is taking on a new twist as human rights commissions become involved in the debate.

Revolts against employers' dress and grooming regulations died down in the 1970s as postwar babies grew up and chucked their 1960s overalls for the well-groomed look.

The debate, however, has been revived recently, with both the federal and provincial human rights commissions called in for the first time to referee disputes over employers' rules for dress and grooming.

A part-time stewardess who was denied work by Air Canada for not wearing lipstick and mascara in keeping with the company's grooming standards (she was allergic to the makeup) has won the right to her job.

FILED COMPLAINT

She had complained to the Canadian Human Rights Commission that it was discriminatory to require female flight attendants to wear makeup when male flight attendants don't have to.

It's the first time the federal commission, which covers all federally-regulated employees (about 11 per cent of Canada's total work force) has been asked to resolve a case of alleged sexual discrimination in a company's dress and grooming code — but it's not the only case.

The Ontario Human Rights Commission is investigating an informal complaint by a man who believes his employer's ban on long hair for men is discriminatory, because the rule doesn't apply to women.

Then there is the case of a Toronto company which offered a Montreal woman a job on condition that she wear a dress and high heels to work every day.

The woman, who feels pantsuits can be suitable office wear, refused the job offer and filed a complaint of sex discrimination with the Ontario commission, which covers the 89 per cent of Ontario workers not under federal regulations.

DEBATE SPREADS

This is the Ontario commission's first formal complaint about sex discrimination on the basis of dress codes.

The debate is spreading to involve other institutions. A Winnipeg grocery clerk, who was fired when he grew a beard, failed to win his job back through a union grievance.

However, Mary Anne Baxter, a union representative with the United Food and Commercial Workers' International, said: "We'll try to get rid of that nobeard policy when contract negotiations open in August."

In May, Toronto taxi driver George Dowse complained in vain to Metropolitan Toronto council's licensing committee after two taxi companies refused to hire him because of his beard and pony tail.

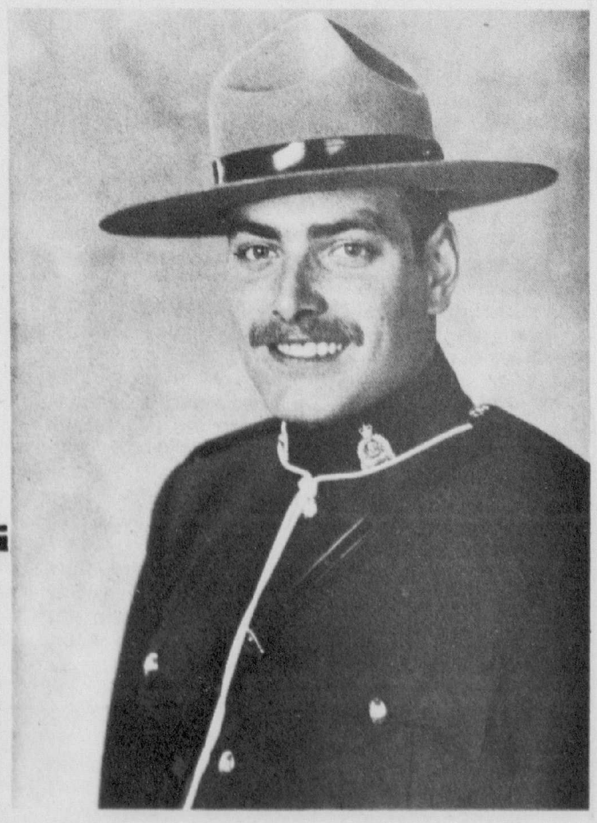

Dowse learned what few people realize: Company dress codes are legal.

Bridal wishes

A very pleasant occasion took place on Tuesday July 8, at the home of Hazel Blair in East Clifton when past neighbours met for a coffee party in honour of Ann McBurney of Winnipeg, Man., a bride-to-be.

The dining table was covered with a white linen cloth and centered with a cake decorated with "Coffee Break with Clifton Friends". The bride-to-be enjoyed her visit with the old neighbourhood friends.

Each woman present had brought Ann a piece of their own handiwork or a gift representative of the community, which she will treasure in her new home in Edmonton, Alta. Several pictures were taken and delicious refreshments were served.

Ann thanked Hazel and all those who had made this a day to remember.

Rudd Bockus wed in Cowansville

A very pretty evening wedding took place, June 28, 1980 at Trinity Anglican Church, Cowansville, Quebec, when Susan Kimberly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rudd became the bride of Christopher Elson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorimer (Mike) Bockus, Waterloo, Que.

Archdeacon Sparling officiated at the double ring ceremony with organ music played by Miss Watson. The church was decorated with baskets of summer flowers and the guest pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding gown of white satin. The gown had long sleeves, jewel neckline and the skirt in tiers of white lace with matching veil held in place by miniture white carnations. She wore a gold chain necklace. Susan carried a cascade bouquet of white daisies, miniature carnations and red sweetheart roses.

Heather Wharton, a close friend, as maid of honour wore a floor length gown of yellow floral print with matching shawl and carried a nosegay of colored daisies.

The bridesmaids Wendy and Debbie, sisters of the bride wore pink floral gown identical to the maid of honour and carried nosegays of colored daisies.

Tammy, youngest sister of the bride, acted as flower girl and wore mint green floral print and carried a basket of daisies. They wore a touch of baby's breath in their hair.

The best man, was Frank Bec, friend of the groom. The junior ushers were Wayne Bockus and Douglas Rudd, brothers of the bride and groom. Christopher and his attendants wore brown and beige tuxedos with boutonnieres of yellow miniature roses.

Mrs. Bockus, the groom's mother, wore a mint green gown with a matching floral chiffon shawl, beige accessories and a yellow carnation corsage.

Following the service, a cocktail reception was held at the Cowansville Golf and Curling Club. Light refreshments were served and on the head table was a beautifully decorated three tier wedding cake, a gift to Chris. and Susan from the groom's grandmother, Mrs. Florence Fuller. Dance music was provided by Brian Stretch for the enjoyment of the guests.

Following best wishes and toasts to the bride and groom, the couple left for a brief trip to the Townships. The bride travelled in a printed lilac dress with white accessories and the groom in a green suit.

Guests attending this happy occasion were from Edmonton, Alberta; Winnipeg, Man.; Toronto, Orangeville, Minden, Richmond, Mississauga, Ottawa and Waterloo, Ontario. In Quebec, they attended from Cowansville, Huntingville, Bury, Waterloo, Mansonville, South Stukely and Lennoxville.

50th anniversary

When Basil and Muriel Prescott awakened to welcome the sunshine on June 29, 1980, great happiness filled their hearts as they recalled all the events of June 29, 1940, when they began their wedded life, in the Chapel at Lower Ireland, with Rev. R. Clarence Belbin, then pastor of the Birchton-Bulwer-Eaton Corner charge, assisted by Rev. L.T. Miller, Basil's uncle, of Auburn, Mass. Their attendants were Gladys Moore Patton and Gerald Williams; flowergirls Sarah Jane Taber Cummings and Elaine Moore; and ushers Alex Glen and Fred Wark, with Eleanor Leith at the organ, and Margaret Ann Forbes Fuller as soloist.

When Basil and Muriel celebrated their 40th hosted by their son Sidney, and their daughter-in-law, Donna, their hearts swelled to see the Old Homestead.

As they arrived at the familiar door, Marcia Bailey, Rev. Miller's granddaughter, presented Muriel with a corsage of ruby-red roses, while daughter-in-law Donna honored the bridesmaid, Gladys Moore Patton and flowergirl, Sarah Jane Taber Cummings with yellow and pink rose corsages. Sidney boutionniered his dad and the best man, Gerald Williams.

The beautiful anniversary cake in colours of white with ruby-red roses and rose-buds, a creation of Mrs. L. Goode of Sawyerville, centred the main table. The table holding the refreshments was centred with a florist's handiwork of daisies, mums and carnations.

Scattered throughout the house were many floral arrangements of yellow and white mums, shasta daisies, carnations and mock orange, among such were two beautiful arrangements conveying affection to the guests-of-honour from friends, as well as cards and other tangible gifts.

Among those who helped Sidney and Donna with the serving, at the afternoon and evening gatherings were Joan Herring, Marcia Bailey, Gwendolyn Robinson, Laurie Buxton, and Heather Turchyn.

Relatives and friends came from points in Ontario, New Hampshire, Montreal, Hemmingford, and surrounding areas.

May you, Muriel and Basil, be given many more wedding anniversaries of good health and contentment!

Bridal showers

The Brookbury W.I. hall was the scene of a pleasant event on July 4, when Nancy Olson of Bury was guest of honour at a kitchen shower. Nancy's wedding to Allen George takes place July 19, and the shower was given by Bishopton friends to welcome her and make her acquaintance.

On arrival, Nancy, her mother Mrs. Kay Olson, the groom's mother, Mrs. Anne George, and grandmother, Mrs. Vera Harper were pinned with rose corsages and escorted to seats at a large table loaded with gifts.

After the gifts had been opened and admired, Nancy expressed her appreciation for the gifts and the shower.

A delicious buffet lunch was served by the hostesses. A prettily decorated shower cake was served to the guests by Nancy.

The hostesses were Mrs. Florence Harrison, Mrs. Vera Willard, Mrs. Reta Downes, Mrs. Grayce Betts and Mrs. Grace Rolfe.

On July 3rd, Wendy Smith, an August bride-to-be was pleasantly surprised by her maid of honor, Shelley Cook and bridesmaid, Kim Brotzman at a miscellaneous shower held at the latter's home in Danville.

The rooms and tea table were tastefully decorated with pink and white streamers, white bells, vases of pink and white peonies and pink and white candles.

The bride-to-be was assisted in opening her many beautiful gifts by her mother, Mrs. Hillary Smith and future mother-in-law, Mrs. Walt Brotzman, after which they were passed around to all present and admired. Wendy then graciously thanked the hostesses and all present for their gifts and invited all to visit her in her new home.

A delicious lunch was then served by the hostesses assisted by the groom-to-be's grandmother, Mrs. Stuart Billing, bringing a very happy evening to a close.

Congratulations

Congratulations are extended to Mrs. Margaret Hover of Sawyerville who will be celebrating her 80th birthday on Tues. July 22. Best wishes from her family and friends.

Eastern Star 25th anniversary

By Mrs. E. S. Heatherington
(Record Correspondent)

COOKSHIRE — Few things are more satisfying than to look back over the years, and feel that we have spent them well.

Memories are such precious things, whether they are sad or glad, and no one escapes either the good or the bad. There are two kinds of persons in the world, those who think first of difficulties, and those who think first of the importance of accomplishment in spite of difficulties. Members of Cookshire Chapter No. 46. O.E.S. should be classed in the latter category.

Amid numerous difficulties, Cookshire Chapter started from small beginnings in the year 1955. Now it is a well-established Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, and were very happy to celebrate its 25th anniversary on Saturday afternoon, June 21, 1980.

Seventy-six members of the Order attended this special meeting, and joined in the fellowship of celebrating this special occasion. There were members from the Grand Chapter of Quebec, O.E.S., and members from eleven other Chapters, namely, Queen Mary Chapter No. 5, Beaver Chapter No. 7, Westmount Chapter No. 9, Electa Chapter No. 12, Cowansville Chapter No. 17, Lachine Chapter No. 21, Sherbrooke Chapter No. 22, Victoria Chapter No. 25, Owl's Head No. 35, Lake St. Louis No. 45, Golden Star Chapter No. 48.

The special meeting was opened in regular form, with flag presentation, at 2:30 p.m. Saturday, June 21, 1980, with Sister Beverley Powell W.M. and Brother Fred Robinson, W.P. presiding.

The Worthy Grand Matron, Sister Eileen Eldridge, the Worthy Grand Patron, Brother Fred Burns, Sisters Margaret Irvine, Mildred Wheelock, Alta Fowler, Marjorie Baker, Hazel Alexander, Past Grand Matrons, and Brother Mervin Jones, Past Grand Patron, were presented at the Altar, introduced, escorted to the East, and given Grand Honors.

Sister Annie Bunting, Associate Grand Matron, Brother Geoffrey Pickering, Associate Grand Patron, Sisters Irene McCormack, Grand Secretary, Eleanor Baldwin, Grand Trustee, Mary Lou Burns, Grand Marshal, Ona Lee, Grand Electa, were presented at the Altar, introduced, welcomed and escorted to the East. A cordial welcome was given to the Worthy Matrons, Worthy Patrons, Past Matrons, Past Patrons, visitors and members by the Worthy Matron, Sister Beverley Powell.

The initiation of Wanda Parsons took place, after this came our Birthday Party celebration.

There are 14 charter members who remain of the 29 charter members that started Cookshire Chapter. Of these 14 there were nine who were able to be at this 25th birthday celebration: Sisters Ruby Davies, Idell Griffin, Mary E. Heatherington, Marie MacDonald, Gertrude Raymond, Barbara Vogell; Brothers Earl Crawford, John MacDonald, Wellington Raymond. The Worthy Matron, Sister Beverley Powell, gave corsages to the ladies and the Worthy Grand Matron, Sister Eileen Eldridge pinned on their 25 year pins. The Worthy Patron, Brother Fred Robinson presented boutonnieres to the men, and the Worthy Grand Patron, Brother Fred Burns, pinned on their 25 year pins. Those chartered members unable to be present were: Sisters Lillian Brazel, Audrey Crawford, Marcia Farnsworth a past 50 year member, Thekla Stevenson, Edith Waldron.

Pins were also presented to two members affiliated and initiated in 1955, Sisters Esther Farnsworth and Winnie Buchanan by the Worthy Matron.

The Worthy Matron, presented pins to the members of Silver Star Chapter that consolidated with Cookshire that were 25 years or more. Those present to accept these pins were Sisters Vivian Bell, Ruth Cillis and Brother Roy Cillis, a past 50 year member.

The members of White Heather Chapter that consolidated with Cookshire Chapter were the next to receive their 25 year pins. Those present were all over 25 years: Sisters Jean MacIver, Louise Hodgson, Elsie MacKenzie a past 50 year member; Dorothy Moore, Brothers Alex MacIver, Murdo MacKenzie.

Those that were unable to be at this celebration are: Sisters Marjorie Bustard, Ida Currier, Gladys MacLeod, Ambra Morrison. Ruth Beattie, Fern Bishop, Patrica Rowland, Shirley Willard, Irma Wood, Marguerite Bailey a past 50 year member; Brother Doug Willard, Sisters Irene Howes, Marjorie Munroe, Gladys Sinotte, Alice Veary, Jean Wilder.

A fifty-year pin was presented to Sister Mary Heatherington by the Worthy Matron, Sister Beverley Powell and a special gift was also presented to her by the Worthy Patron, Brother Fred Robinson, in recognition and appreciation of her many years of supplying inspiration to the members by her music.

Sister Wilda Robinson gave a resume of the highlights of the past 25 years, which was enlightening to all, and in some instances, very amusing.

The meeting closed in regular form, and all retired to the lower hall, which was nicely decorated with spring flowers. Refreshments were served buffet style, and all sat down to a beautifully appointed table, where individual place cards and table decorations presented an inviting atmosphere to all. The head table was centred with the large anniversary cake, which had been made and decorated by the Worthy Matron, Sister Beverley Powell. She and her Worthy Patron made the initial cut in the cake, which was then taken to a side table, cut into small pieces, placed on small silver trays and passed around to the members by some of the lady Charter members, the gentlemen looked after the serving of tea or coffee.

It is interesting to note that one of the ladies, Mrs. Elsie MacKenzie, has been a member for 60 years; there are not many who can surpass that record.

Toasts were made to the Queen, to the Grand Chapter of Quebec, to General Grand Chapter, and to Cookshire Chapter No. 46, with responses by various members.

The party ended with a feeling of great content, and faith that the future would continue to produce amicable relationships, with beneficence and the practice of spiritual values among all people. All took home souvenir booklets with the names of the 50-year members, 25 year members, Charter members and the Officers for Cookshire Chapter No. 46, O.E.S. 1979-1980.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Although North-South could easily defeat four hearts with a diamond lead, South was not looking at North's hand. He decided to take an inexpensive save in four spades, which might possibly make.

This contract could only be defeated one trick. However, after the opening low trump lead, the defense had to work very hard to accomplish this.

West made an excellent decision to double four spades. After East cue bid three spades to show a void and an excellent hand interested in slam, West realized the ace of spades was a duplicated value in hearts, but good for defense in spades. He promptly doubled to warn East that his hand was unsuitable for any higher heart contracts.

West made what might be a good lead — his low trump. He hoped to gain the lead with his heart queen and continue spades, preventing declarer from scoring too many ruffs in dummy.

Unfortunately for the defense, declarer won the opening lead in dummy and immediately discarded a small heart on dummy's second high diamond. Declarer then led a small club from the table and won East's queen with the king. He returned another club which East won.

The fate of the contract hinged on East's return. West had played the eight and seven on the previous club leads to show an even number. East therefore knew declarer had started with four clubs, one diamond and probably six spades and two hearts.

East had to find an entry into partner's hand to lead more trumps. Accordingly, East underled his ace and king of hearts to West's queen. Ace and another trump finished declarer. South could ruff one club in the dummy, but at the end he had another club loser. Declarer lost one spade, one heart and two clubs.

Obituary

C.J. SCHOOLCRAFT
of Hartford, Conn.
(formerly of Bedford)

Cyrene James Schoolcraft of Hartford, Conn., formerly of Bedford, Que., passed away after a lengthy illness at Kimberly Hall Nursing Home, Windsor, Conn., on Saturday, June 14, 1980.

Born in Bedford, August 14, 1900, he was the youngest son of the late James Schoolcraft and his wife, the former Philadelphia Heatherington.

Following cremation, the remains will be sent for burial in the family plot in Union Cemetery, Bedford.

Cyrene received his education at the old Bedford Academy where he made many lifelong friends. He was a carpenter by trade, and a contractor until his retirement a few years ago.

Since living in Hartford for about the last forty years, he always made regular visits back to his old home town, two or three times yearly. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge here.

Cyrene was a man of quiet nature, well liked, but he never married. Two brothers predeceased him, Edward of Bedford and Arthur of Meriden, Conn., and a sister, Mabel, Mrs. Wallace Bray of Toronto.

He leaves to mourn his loss, three nieces and a nephew, Arnold Bray, in Ontario; and a niece, Lorna Schoolcraft (Mrs. William Davitt) of Stanbridge East, Que.

Obituaries

BEATRICE B. REILLY
of Victoria, B.C.
(formerly of Mansonville)

Beatrice Boright Reilly, 91, of Victoria, B.C., died May 15, 1980, in hospital, after a lengthy illness.

Born in Mansonville, Que., on May 13, 1889, she was the daughter of the late W. Henry Boright and his wife, the late Jane Minnie Oliver Boright, and granddaughter of the late Mayor Nelson Boright who played a prominent part in the history of the Township of Potton. Mrs. Nelson Boright, Beatrice's grandmother, was the daughter of Robert Manson from whom the town of Mansonville derived its name.

Beatrice lived her early life in the Mansonville-Magog areas attending the local schools. She graduated from McGill University with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in 1913; but it was while she was at Stanstead College that she met John Clark Reilly, marrying him on September 30, 1913. They honeymooned in Boston, settling first in Grenville, Que.; later residing for about 30 years in Ottawa where the Rev. J. Clark Reilly took the morning services in the South Minster Church while the regular minister was ill. Upon retirement, the Reillys moved permanently to their Mansonville home, formerly known as the Boright House.

The Reillys had one child, Nelson, who had married and moved to Victoria, B.C.; and who died December 1, 1969, leaving to mourn, his wife, Frances, a son, John, and a daughter, Catherine. The Rev. Reilly predeceased his son on April 7, 1956. Mrs. Beatrice Reilly was in the Intensive Care Unit of the Jubilee Hospital in Victoria at the time of her death.

Beatrice had seen, at the age of 19, the big fire which took the Town Hall and several other buildings in Mansonville. She had been a part of a joyful parade at the end of World War One - around the Band Stand that stood at one end of the Village Common. She and her husband were involved in the ministry when the United Church emerged in 1925. They weathered the depression years after the market crash of 1929 which followed closely the unfortunate Mansonville flood and typhoid epidemic in 1927, the Reillys fortunately living in Ottawa at this time.

Beatrice was very active in Church organizations, especially the Women's Missionary Society and as a Sunday School teacher. In Ottawa she was an active member of various clubs; President of the University Women's Club; also Secretary and Life Member of the Ottawa Local Council of Women. She helped organize the Ottawa Women's Rotary and was on the Executive of the Ottawa Women's Club, as well as a member of the YWCA and the Monday Literary Club. She was a lifelong member of the Mansonville United Church Women.

As a Mansonville Golden Ager she made her first bus tour in 1973 in September, a special and wonderful experience for her, since it was to St. Benoit du Lac Monastery where she walked down the 40 steps (with the aid of her crutches) to the Chapel where she could kneel in prayer. Because of her acute arthritic condition, in her latter years in Mansonville she was often seen in her motorized wheelchair as she made her way conducting business or visiting friends. Beatrice closed her Mansonville summer home to spend the cold winter months in Victoria, B.C., but with the coming of May her friends and relatives looked for her return.

Her immediate family left to mourn her passing are her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Frances Frost, Victoria, B.C., her grandson, Lt. John Reilly, Canadian Forces Base, Shearwater, N.S.; and her granddaughter, Catherine, Mrs. John Manning of Victoria, B.C.

A Memorial Service was held on June 24, at 3:00 p.m. in the Mansonville United Church with the Rev. C.J. Gustafson officiating. Interment followed in the Mansonville Protestant Cemetery.

MRS. ELSIE SAYERS
of Magog

Mrs. Elsie Sayers passed away in the Hotel Dieu Hospital on June 20, 1980, in her 71st year.

The funeral service was held on Monday, June 23, at Webster-Cass Funeral Home. The Rev. Canon A.M. Awcock officiated. The organist was Mrs. M. Fox. The soloist, Fred Fox, sang two favorite hymns, The Old Rugged Cross and Rock of Ages.

Interment was in Milby Cemetery, Milby, Que.

The bearers were grandsons, Allan Whitehead, Donald Sayers, Dale Sayers, Perry Statton, Rocky Sayers, and Michel Dessaint.

Mrs. Sayers was born in Bury, Que., on August 28, 1909, daughter of the late John Lazenba and Adelaide Joyce. She had five sisters, Maria (Mrs. Kenneth MacPherson), Annie (Mrs. Jack Ruel), Alice, Verna (Mrs. Victor Cole), and Florence (Mrs. Clinton Bice).

She was united in marriage to John Charles Sayers in East Angus, Que., on April 24, 1926. They spent their married life in East Angus, Compton, and then Milby, where her husband John passed away on January 5, 1967.

To this union were born six children, Florence (Mrs. Alcide Dessaint), who predeceased her on Oct. 1, 1979, Johnny, parts unknown, Ruby ((Mrs. Lionel Statton), Bury, Charlie, Lennoxville, Clarence, Milton, Ont., and Clara (Mrs. Donald Whitehead), Magog. She is also survived by 34 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren. She will be sadly missed by her family and friends.

In fond memory of Mrs. Elsie Sayers.

Sher-Lenn, Sher-Mont gear for LL tourney

By DAVE CAMPBELL

The Sher-Lenn and Sher-Mont All-Star teams are bearing down on last-minute preparations before the District 1 Little League baseball tournament which starts Saturday. Aside from the two Sherbrooke teams, Boucherville, Verdun and Little Burgundy will participate in the tourney which ends July 29.

"I'm confident going into the tournament. Some people say we're favored to win because we are a big team," said Sher-Mont coach Michel Gaudet. "Games aren't won on paper, they're won on the field."

Bob Halsall, the Sher-Lenn coach, believes "our team is as good as last year's team. Jacques Gagne will start Game One and I believe he won't give up more than one or two runs per game. We also have good hitters like Dave Marcoux, Eric Forgues, Yanick Dupre, Jimmy Waite and Gagne. We'll be hard to stop."

Even though the Sher-Mont squad will have to travel to Boucherville for their first game, and Sher-Lenn will host Verdun, neither coach feels this to be a disadvantage.

"The team will probably be very nervous for the first game, but all of the players have played on this field at least once this year, and I hope to have 1,000 to 1,500 people in attendance which will help the team performances," said a hopeful Halsall.

"It's not really a disadvantage," Gaudet said. "If we can win on the road, in a different ball park, it would make a big difference."

Extra pressure is on Halsall's crew due to the fact that Sher-Lenn are last year's Canadian champions.

"I don't think the team feels any pressure so far, but it is definitely in their minds. I know when I go out, I'll start talking about it. I'm very excited for the first game, just like the players probably are," said Halsall.

"No I don't believe they're nervous," said a proud Gaudet of his Sher-Mont squad. "You can see they're excited on the bench just by the way they act. We gave them the uniforms on Saturday and the hats yesterday. I think they are just looking forward to the tournament."

Sher-Lenn is taking no chances with tired players. Coach Halsall and assistant coach Normand Labelle have set a 9:00 curfew for the players.

"Not too many of the team members will get much sleep Friday night. I can tell you I won't, for sure. But if they can get used to sleeping at 9:00, by Wednesday they will be asleep by that time," reasoned Halsall.

Does Gaudet agree with this tactic? "Maybe it's a good idea, but I'll just ask them at today's practice to eat a good meal and go to sleep early Friday night."

Both teams have exceptional pitching, fielding, outfielding and catching. If these two teams meet somewhere down the line in the tournament, it should be a barn burner, or, as Halsall said, "The game will be decided by an error."

The first local game for the Sherbrooke team will be Saturday afternoon at 2:00 at the Parade Grounds when Verdun will play the Sher-Lenn squad. Also at 2:00 Sher-Mont will play in Boucherville.

Ellie powers Expos

CINCINNATI (AP) — Ellis Valentine knocked in two runs and scored two others Wednesday night to offset a three-home run outburst in the seventh inning by Cincinnati Reds and pace Montreal Expos to a 6-4 National League baseball victory.

Ray Knight and Joe Nolan cracked successive solo homers in the seventh off starter Steve Rogers, 11-6, ending his streak of 50 1-3 innings without giving up a homer.

Two outs later, Sam Mejias chased Rogers with another solo homer. Stan Sahnsen relieved and blanked the Reds until the eighth when Dan Driessen singled and came home on Knight's RBI double.

Sloppy Cincinnati fielding helped the Expos take a 2-0 lead in the first off Mario Soto, 2-4. Valentine singled home Rodney Scott, who walked behind Ron LeFlore's single and advanced on a third-to-first double play.

Warren Cromartie followed with a single and Valentine scored when Knight threw the ball into left field trying to catch Cromartie taking second on the play.

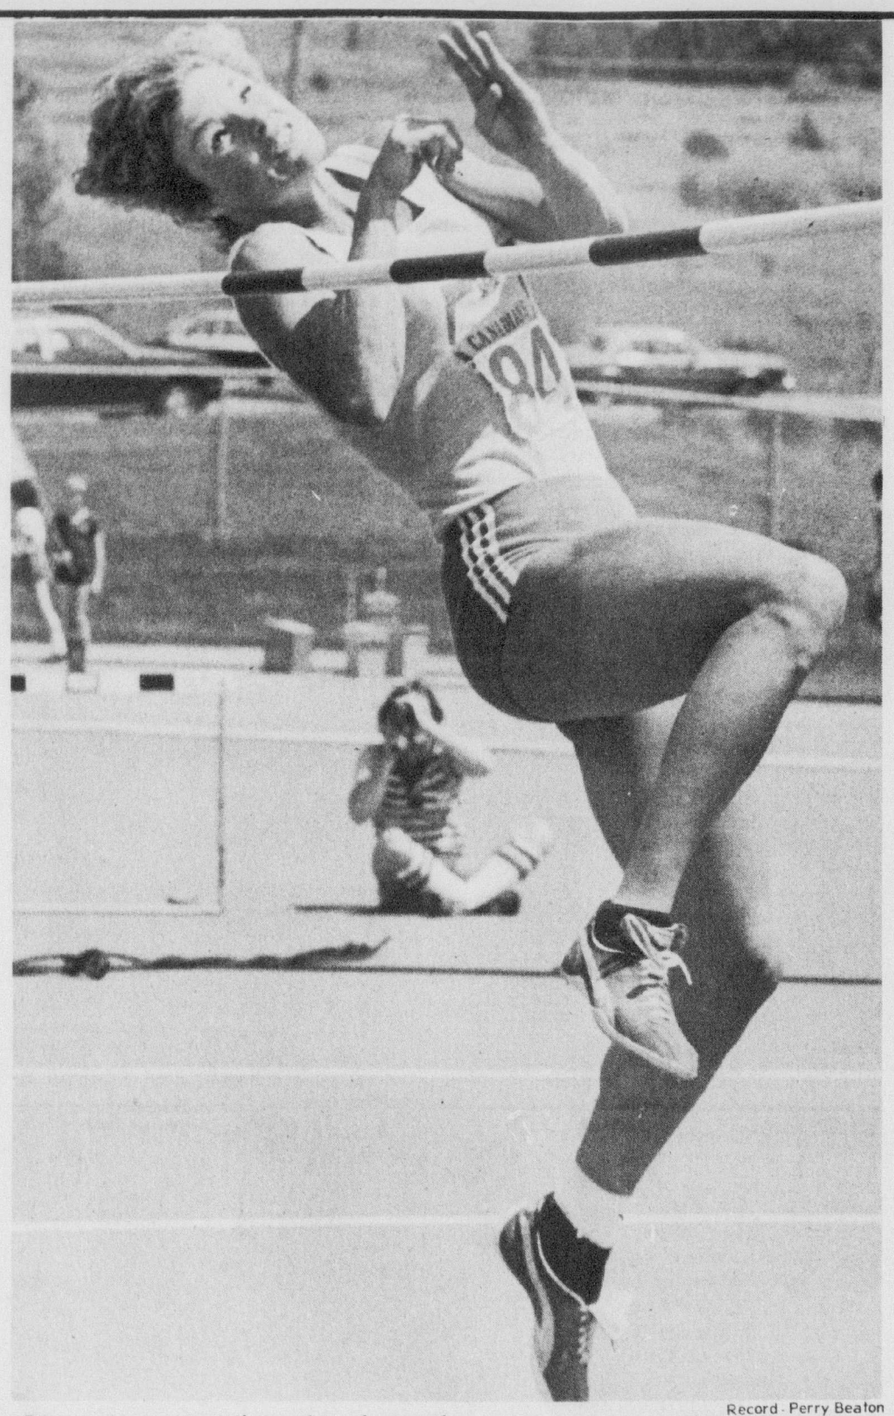

Larry Parrish rapped a solo homer in the second and Gary Carter slapped a two-run single in the sixth for a 5-0 Montreal lead. Carter's single followed a double by Valentine, an intentional walk to Cromartie and a balk by Soto.

Scott singled to start the eighth and came around on Valentine's second double of the game off reliever Doug Bair.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — John Milner drove in two runs and scored a third to support the eight-hit pitching of Bert Blyleven and Grant Jackson, and Pittsburgh Pirates defeated San Francisco Giants 3-1 in a National League baseball game Wednesday night.

Milner's two-run single in the first inning gave the Pirates a 2-0 lead off loser Ed Whitson, 8-9.

Omar Moreno led off the Pirates first with a single and stole second before Phil Garner walked. Both runners advanced on Dave Parker's ground out and scored on Milner's broken bat hit to centre.

Jones-Konihowski wins pentathlon

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Diane Jones Konihowski has had a bad spring, but her summer is looking up and she is winning again.

After the upset over Canada's decision to boycott the Moscow Olympics and a series of bad breaks at three previous meets, the Edmonton athlete won the pentathlon at the Liberty Bell athletics meet Wednesday.

Competing in searing heat and humidity that sapped even the spectators, the 29-year-old pentathlon champion of the Commonwealth Games won two events and added strong showings in the other three to win the day-long competition, her first triumph of the year.

"It's been a long day, long and hot," she said after finishing third in the 800-metre run.

Her time of two minutes, 12.6 seconds was good enough for 888 points, giving her a toal of 4,640 and the victory.

Marlene Harmon of the U.S. won the race in 2:10.17 and fellow American Linday Waltman was second in 2:10.43. They also finished second and third over all.

NOT HER BEST

Konihowski, who won the shot put and high jump, said her toss of 14.86 metres in the shot put was not up to her best, but she was happy with her high jump.

The long jump was a personal triumph even though she finished third with a leap of 6.19 metres, behind Cornelia Sulek of West Germany, who jumped 6.28 metres and Harmon, who covered 6.25 metres.

"This is the first pentathlon I have completed this year," Konihowski said of the long jump. "Due to injury or fouling in my long jump I haven't been able to complete."

The suspense was generated by the pentathlon duel between Konihowski and Sulek. After the long jump, the fourth event, the Canadian had a three-point lead, but Sulek injured her back on her last jump and did not run in the 800 metres.

Konihowski had finished fourth in the opening event, the 100-metre hurdles, won by Waltman.

Konihowski, one of Canada's top women athletes, said she thinks she may leave the pentathlon when the addition of two more events, the javelin and a middle-distance run, will make it a heptathlon.

"I'm getting older now," she said. "I think I'd really like to move to the high jump.

"I think I could become a world-class high jumper."

Argos shade Bombers 20-17 in CFL action

Willie Wood figures sometime within the next month his Toronto Argonauts should start showing their spots.

The Argos are riding a crest at the moment after their 20-17 win Wednesday night over Winnipeg Blue Bombers left them sitting atop the Eastern Football Conference standings with a 2-0 record.

Toronto hasn't won a championship since 1952 and hasn't even posed a threat since 1971 when it went to the Canadian Football League final before fumbling away its last opportunity.

"Sometime down the line, maybe in next month or so, maybe some character will start showing on this team," Wood said after his club almost blew the game in front of 20,980 Winnipeg fans.

The Argos looked much more impressive last week when they handled Montreal Alouettes 18-11 in their season opener.

SURPRISE START

"There's no way I would have figured our team would have been 2-0 at this point because, honestly, I don't think we are that good," Wood said. "I know we have some fine talent, but I think we are a little inexperienced."

Wide receiver Bob Gaddis caught a 23-yard pass from quarterback Mark Jackson early in the fourth quarter to put the Argos in front for the first time in their game, but it took a 40-yard field goal by Zenon Andrusyshyn at the 7:37 mark to secure the victory.

Rick House scored the only Winnipeg TD, a 12-yard pass from Dieter Brock. Trevor Kennerd kicked two field goals and three singles while Robert Woods took a pass from Brock to complete a two-point conversion after House's score.

KEY SCORES

Jim Germany scored two touchdowns to spearhead Edmonton's running game that accounted for 148 yards in the game to just 31 for the 'Riders.

RUSSELL UPSETS WADE

MONTREAL (CP) — Joanne Russell upset Virginia Wade of England 2-6, 7-5, 6-3 Wednesday to eliminate third-seeded Miss Wade from the Player's Challenge women's tennis tournament, which continues to have serious attendance problems.

Russell, the 39th ranked player in the world among women, tore a tendon in her right foot early last year and dropped from the world's top 25 for the first time since 1976, but she went to the round of 16 at Wimbledon this year, losing to Chris Evert Lloyd.

Canadian sets world swim mark

TORONTO (CP) — Peter Szmidt accomplished his goal Wednesday night — a world record in the 400-metre freestyle.

The 6-foot-1, 172-pounder wasn't pushed by his opponents at the Canadian championships, pulling away in a time of three minutes 50.49 seconds to bring the crowd to its feet at the Etobicoke Olympium.

Szmidt, who moved to Edmonton from Pointe Claire, Que., to join his former coach Dave Johnson, left his rivals in his wake to crack the world record of 3:51.20, set in February by Vladimir Salnikov of the U.S.S.R.

Szmidt, 18, holder of Canadian records for the 200-and 1, 500-metre freestyles, went the first 100 in 56.88. He did the 200 in 1:55.57 and the 300 in 2:53.10.

His performance clinched a berth on Canada's honorary Olympic team which will be named at the conclusion of the five-day Esso Cup championships Saturday night. Most of the team, along with some others, will compete here next week in a dual meet against West Germany.

The Canadians will also take part Aug. 9-10 in an international meet in Edmonton, then compete in the Hawaiian invitational and the Japanese nationals.

Finishing well behind Szmidt in the 400 final was Alex Baumann of Sudbury, Ont., with a clocking of 3:56.34, while Rob Baylis of Vancouver came in third in 3:57.04. Baumann, 16, set a national age-class record.

Spaniard named to succeed Killanin

MOSCOW (AP) — "I think I can do something for the Olympic movement," said Juan Antonio Samaranch, president-elect of the International Olympic Committee, "but I am not used to working alone.

"I like working with other people. I would like IOC members to work harder than they have done in the past."

It was the first faint sign of how things may go when Samaranch, the quiet Spanish ambassador to Moscow, takes over from Lord Killanin after the Moscow Games.

The self-elected, self-perpetuating IOC, guardian of the Olympic Charter, has 85 members but has tended to be run by a small group. The inner cabinet — the president, three vice-presidents and a five-man executive board — meets three or four times a year.

Samaranch's remarks Wednesday appeared to mean he expected a fuller contribution from other members. They are chosen as individuals to represent the IOC in their countries, but most of them play little part in IOC affairs except to attend the annual session.

MONIQUE STAYS ON

Monique Berlioux, IOC director who runs the business side of the Olympics in Lausanne, Switzerland, will not be affected by the change of presidents.

Asked at a news conference about Berlioux's future, Samaranch smiled, looked at the French woman sitting beside him, and said: "Madame Berlioux is my right-hand man."

A's double Orioles 6-3

SHERBROOKE (MG) — Second baseman Denis Landry and first baseman Jean Grenier led Sherbrooke Athletics to a 6-3 triumph over Granby Orioles in QMJBL action last night.

Landry and Grenier had two hits apiece against the Orioles, who have not won a game at Amedee Roy Stadium this season (two dates). Granby rightfielder Marcel Lachance was a gun at the plate with four hits. Starting pitcher Alain Cyr went the distance for the A's and allowed eight hits and struck out three. Pierre Archambault took the loss for Granby.

The A's travel to Lachine Friday night and come home Saturday to host Ste. Foy.
