The Sisters Brothers

Rootin' tootin' shootin' gold rush psycho-drama!

Good Reads

Lennoxville Library

By Stephen Sheeran

If you haven't already read The Sisters Brothers by Patrick deWitt, well, you must.

The novel achieved considerable recognition when it appeared in 2011, shortlisted for awards such as the Man Booker, ScotiaBank Giller, and the Rogers Writers' Trust. It is due to arrive in Sherbrooke any day now in its film version, featuring a quirky cast—John C. Reilly, Joaquin Phoenix, Jake Gyllenhaal, and Riz Ahmed—under the direction of Palme d'Or winner Jacques Audiard (5' 8 "!).

The Sisters Brothers, like Deadwood and Unforgiven, belongs to a new type of Western genre—one in which subtleties of character vie with the traditional stereotypical black/white conflicts (bad guys vs good guys, settlers vs injuns, farmers vs cattle ranchers) and in which moral choice becomes a critical plot element.

We are taken directly into the story through the deadpan, whimsical, and at times irascible narration of the main character, Eli Sisters. The year is 1851, at the height of the California gold rush, and he and brother Charlie (the other Sisters brother) are in the employ of the Commodore, whose base of operations is Oregon City. The Commodore is at the center of a vast illegal enterprise, whose operations are as ruthless as they are widespread. Eli and Charlie are charged with going to San Francisco, then seeking out and killing one Hermann Kermit Warm, a prospector who has somehow offended the Commodore.

At this point you have to pull your hat firmly down on your head and hold tight to the reins, because this is going to be a helluva yarn—or at least a shaggy dog story. Things get off on the wrong foot at the get-go. Charlie is appointed "lead man" by the Commodore, in a departure from the traditional equal footing shared by the two brothers. This rankles and leads to some peevish exchanges. The brothers have been given two new mounts to replace the ones "immolated" on their previous mission, and Eli takes exception to his new horse—even its name, Tub, seems a silent and constant reproach for Eli's tendency to put on extra pounds. In short order, Eli is bitten by a poisonous spider, suffers agonies from an abscessed tooth; then they encounter a self-appointed dentist, an evil witch woman, Tub is attacked by a grizzly, then they meet a group of bellicose prospectors, then... well you get the idea.

In all these events Charlie reveals as fiercely loyal, but a hothead, and the one who most often resorts to violence. Eli is more contemplative, but once his ire is raised, cool and deadly in any confrontation. The brothers work their way to San Francisco, and on the way they meet all manner of desperate and shady characters.

One critic rightly labels the work as a "picaresque", a genre originating in 16th century Spain. The picaresque typically recounts the travels and adventures of a rogue, a bandit, a prostitute, or some other marginal or low-life character. This hero—or anti-hero—encounters a cross-section of characters from different walks of life, and typically satire is the main focus. So, tales as varied as Don Quixote, Barry Lyndon, Tom Jones, Moll Flanders—even Huckleberry Finn—are pretty much variations on this genre. But, while the characters in most picaresques are static and fixed, Eli shows great depth. He longs for the love of a woman, and finds his and his brother's random acts of violence increasingly distasteful. As the story progresses we discover the troubled past of the two brothers, and see what made them into violent sociopaths. So, if there is such a thing as a psychological picaresque, this is it.

To add to this complexity, the brothers' language is startlingly refined. Thar ain't nuthin' of varmints nor danged, cussed, consarned, low-down polecats about their elocution. Their exchanges tend to be pithy and cutting—elegant in a way—and and what is unsaid often drives the action. In a Guardian interview with Susanna Ruston deWitt discusses how he delights in revealing character through dialogue: '"You can show so much about a person from what he shares and obscures," he says. "I come back more and more to the rhythm of conversation, when two people are engaged and feeding off one other; that is relentlessly interesting to me. I come by writing dialogue fairly naturally, I've got a chatty family, I'm a bit of a voyeur, and if I'm ever in a public place I automatically find myself listening."'

The novel lacks the complexities of many contemporary works, perhaps because deWitt is no product of creative writing programs. In fact, his success has a bit of the JK Rowling about it. He was never really clear on a career path and ended up, after several missteps, serving drinks in a bar three nights a week to make ends meet. In his spare time he worked on his writing and finally plucked up enough nerve to show one of his drafts to a customer, who happened to know someone who knew someone who was a literary agent. Voila! DeWitt consciously makes plot his chief focus—he wants every work to be a page turner with a story that will compel the reader.

He succeeds wonderfully. The Sisters Brothers is available in both text and audiobook in the Lennoxville Library.

After roughly four hours, the team made two arrests; one male in his 30s. A woman in her 20s, also in the motel room, was arrested as well and will be questioned by police.

Carrier said a pellet gun was recovered at the scene. At press time, the SPS was still in the process of searching the room, so Carrier could not confirm any other details about the investigation, still in progress.

facts on the accomplishments that the youth programs have attained since they began some thirty two years ago, convincing Mr. Paradis that Potton is a model was not difficult.

While Mr. Paradis and his staff are up for a challenge, achieving this goal is a long shot and even though this will be the primary focus, the MP suggested a plan "B" in case the dream goal does not work.

"If we cannot bring the Prime Minister to Potton, maybe we can bring the youth of Potton to Ottawa," he offered. "While this would take some fundraising for the buses needed, this may be an easier goal if the dream goal does not work," he added.

Having worked with Potton's youth for over thirty years, Hastings feels that this is the perfect challenge to strive toward. After spreading the message over the years that all positive things are possible, she feels that, were this achievable, the message it would send and solidify in Potton's youth would be immense, positive and extremely powerful.

"We've had the support of some wonderful key people in regards to this request," said Hastings. "Townshippers Association among others have been at our side trying to make this happen and we are extremely grateful for the interest and encouragement."

The visit from Denis Paradis definitely was a boost and a clear message that the local MP for Brome Missisquoi truly believes in the youth of our area. His staff clearly understood the dream and as they left, the positive message was, "we are on it!"

"Regardless of the outcome," said Hastings, "We have been heard and supported and there is a wonderful message in that."

This likely will be a challenge that will take some time and effort. If a miracle occurs, Record readers will be among the first to know.

Beaudin creates citizen committee to analyze City budget

Record Staff

After having had her proposal that the planning sessions for the municipal budget be made public rejected by the Sherbrooke City council in September, Sherbrooke Citoyen Councillor Évelyne Beaudin announced Thursday that she will be establishing a committee of citizen experts to analyze the municipal budget independently.

"I asked for more transparency in the budget process, because I consider not only that the population has the right to be informed, but also because I have faith in collective intelligence," Beaudin said. "Some people think that people will get "mixed up" if we talk to them about the municipal budget, but I think we would be crazy to deprive ourselves of their expertise. That's why we decided to form this analysis team."

Composed of three people, the committee will be chaired by Abdeljalil Azzane, a citizen involved in municipal politics and an occasional speaker at City Hall. An engineer by training, Azzane holds a Master's degree in Business Administration (MBA) and is currently the director of a management consulting firm.

"I have been interested in municipal management for a few years now and I take Ms Beaudin's initiative as an opportunity to contribute even more concretely to the City's sound management," Azzane said. "To me, it is obvious that citizens should be able to contribute as we think about the budget. I hope that Ms. Beaudin's initiative will inspire more people to take an interest in the management of their city."

In order to fulfill his mandate, Azzane will be able to count on the support of Julie Dionne, a PhD mathematics and teacher at the Cégep de Sherbrooke since 2006 and Ludovick Nadeau, a student in business administration, accounting and taxation at U de S. Both Dionne and Nadeau were candidates for Sherbrooke Citoyen in the last municipal election

Sherbrooke Citoyen's only municipal councillor wants more transparency and citizen involvement in city budget planning.

Psychotic Episode Service introduced

Record Staff

The CIUSSS de l'Estrie – CHUS, the Eastern Townships' regional healthcare establishment, has announced the arrival of its new Psychotic Episode Service. (PEP)., which aims to provide services to 12 to 35 year olds throughout its territory to support not only the individual who is going through a psychotic episode, but also his family and loved ones.

"Early detection of PEP is essential because the long-term cognitive consequences are cumulative and above all irreversible for an individual who has had multiple undetected and treated psychotic episodes," said Annie Laliberté, Head of Mental Health, Outpatient and Day Hospital services. "The earlier an individual is treated, the better his chances of controlling and even stopping the progression of psychotic symptoms."

"Psychosis not only affects the person afflicted, but also families, loved ones and workplaces. Early detection and management can reduce the negative impacts on these different environments, lessen and control a psychological state that could lead to serious consequences for individuals such as disability, homelessness or judicial problems " added Myriam Lussier, Department Head for Mental Health and Addiction Programs.

Interventions by the PEP team will be developed in an interdisciplinary way by people with various backgrounds such as social work, psychoeducation, occupational therapy, nursing, psychiatry, and child psychiatry.

"They will aim for the socio-professional reintegration of the individual with a PEP, by offering them all the support necessary to continue activities practiced before the psychosis, for example returning to school or to work," added Pascale Dumais, in charge of to the team implementation project.

Psychosis is a serious and common mental disorder. It is characterized by a loss of contact with reality that leads a person to have, among other things, hallucinations, exaggerated and inappropriate emotions, obsessive and unreasonable beliefs or bizarre and disjointed speech. Data show that three per cent of the general population will experience psychosis in their lifetime and that 47 per cent of PEP cases are manifestations of schizophrenia.

For information or to make a reference, you can contact the PEP team at 1-888-440-4559.

Sherbrooke group raises funds for families of people with mental illness

Record Staff

October is mental health awareness month and the APPAMM-Estrie, the local association of relatives of persons with mental illness has begun its annual fundraising campaign. Working this year under the honorary presidency of Professor Pierre Cossette, Rector of the Université de Sherbrooke, the goal of the annual campaign is to raise $25,000 to support the mission of the non-profit organization.

"The importance of organizations such as APPAMM-Estrie is undeniable, because it provides concrete support to caregivers who are in dire need of these services." Cossette said. "In fact, like many community organizations, APPAMM-Estrie does a lot with little to respond a problem that affects a large number of families."

"All of us will be touched, one day or another, by mental illness. The theme "So Close, So Ready" highlights the importance of supporting the loved ones of people with mental illness, as well as the ability of these family members to be ready for their role," said APPAMM-Estrie Executive Director André Forest.

APPAMM-Estrie was created 37 years ago to offer a community-based support for mental health. It accompanies the relatives of people with mental illness, allowing them to develop coping mechanisms that promote daily well-being. Relatives of people with mental illness are now even more likely to use the services of APPAMM-Estrie and it recorded more than 2,500 people present at its various activities over the last year.

Through individual or family psychosocial interventions and information activities open to the general population, the organization offers a range of free support services tailored to the needs of its clientele. The issues served by APPAMM-Estrie are: schizophrenia, bipolar disorder, depression, obsessive-compulsive disorder, and borderline personality disorder.

Giant Pumpkin and Harvest Festival in Lennoxville this weekend

Record Staff

Lennoxville's Giant Pumpkin and Harvest Festival this Sunday, Oct. 14, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Fire Hall on Samuel-Gratham St. behind the Lennoxville Borough Office.

The popular annual event has been organized in partnership with the Lennoxville Volunteer Firefighters Association Inc., the Giant Pumpkin Association, and Clarke & Sons, and offers a family friendly day with a multitude of activities for young and old alike, such as the traditional hay wagon horseride, local artisans and vegetable producers, inflatable games, obstacle courses, workshops with an autumn theme, and face painting by Mimi-Papillon.

To sweeten the event, visitors can enjoy delicious homemade pies prepared by the firefighters.

Later in the afternoon, the giant pumpkin contest will take place. A small tractor will hoist the pumpkins, some weighing in the 500-700 pound range, onto a scale to decide this year's 'big' winner.

The Record's own Steve Young has been participating in the giant pumpkin contest for the last few years. With the help of his children Hailey and Sean, Young placed third in 2016 with a pumpkin weighing a whopping 750 pounds. Last year, in what was widely considered a difficult growing year, Young's pumpkin didn't make the top three. This year, Young 'guestimates' that his pumpkin is in the 550-pound range, so he hopes it will place well.

Legion Branch 026 officially named HMCS Coaticook

By Matthew McCully

The Coaticook Legion, previously known as Branch 026, decided to officially name the branch, solidifying a part of the municipality's history.

During Tuesday's council meeting, Legion First Vice-President Marc Dauphin presented the new charter to Coaticook Mayor Simon Madore, to, from now on, recognize the Legion as HMCS (His Majesty's Canadian Ship) Coaticook (Branch 026).

While Coaticook is not exactly known for its Naval ships, Dauphin explained that the Legion's name was chosen to honour the citizens of the municipality who provided funding for a river class frigate to support the Canadian Navy during World War II.

At the beginning of the Second World War, Canada's Navy had very few ships. Coaticook was one of the towns across the country to answer the call to help beef up the fleet. By the end of the war, Canada's Navy was the third largest in the world, Dauphin said.

The HMCS Coaticook, like other river class frigates, was known for its endurance and anti-submarine capabilities. They were equipped with deck charges and often used to protect large convoys of ships.

Editorial

An attempt to marry the rule of law with right-wing populism has played out to a rapt global audience in the debacle surrounding the Trump administration's nomination of Judge Brett Kavanaugh.

First Ontario, now Quebec: The notwithstanding threat

By Jeffrey B. Meyers
Lecturer, Faculty of Law, Thompson Rivers University

Newly elected Quebec Premier François Legault has announced his intent to use Section 33 of the Constitution of Canada, more often referred to as the notwithstanding clause, to prohibit civil servants from wearing religious symbols when interacting with the public.

It's an alarming announcement to me, as a lawyer and faculty member at a law school. Here's why.

Legault's invocation of the clause, just weeks after Ontario Premier Doug Ford's ultimately unnecessary threat to use it in his legal battle to shrink the size of Toronto city council, sent a signal to the prime minister and other premiers: Ontario and Quebec do not play by the rules.

Legault issued his threat even earlier out of the gates than Ford did, following a similarly stunning provincial election result.

He's musing about using the notwithstanding clause to short-circuit the Supreme Court of Canada and the Charter of Rights and Freedoms on a matter of fundamental religious freedom and freedom of expression.

While the two NDP governments in British Columbia and Alberta duke it out over pipelines on the West Coast, central Canada is threatening the tenets of democracy.

Right-wing populism

The early signals of both the Ford and Legault premierships suggest that Canada's two largest provinces have fallen under the spell of a right-wing populism of the type associated with Donald Trump and Brexit.

Central to this style of politics is its total disregard for the rule of law on the premise that their government's electoral mandate means that they can do whatever they please, including exerting their will over municipal governments.

Have no illusions, this is an authoritarian tendency and presents a clear and present danger to the rule of law. In Canada, the most obvious avenue of expression for this tendency is through the invocation of the notwithstanding clause.

An attempt to marry the rule of law with right-wing populism has played out to a rapt global audience in the debacle surrounding the Trump administration's nomination of Judge Brett Kavanaugh.

Culture wars

Although the cultural politics of America are different than they are in Canada, no country is closer to the U.S. economically and socially than Canada. Pierre Trudeau's old adage about the mouse at the foot of the elephant, and the old saying about American sneezing and Canada catching a cold, are true

In fact, in the context of globalization, America's realities are generalities. So much so, the current mainstreaming of extremist populist politics not only in the Anglo-American world, but across the globe, is borne out by the evidence.

Freedom House, a well-respected and still objective U.S. government agency with a storied history that advocates for democracy and human rights, describes 2017 as the 12th consecutive year of decline in global freedom as measured by net declines in political rights and civil liberties in 71 countries with only 35 registering gains.

It will be interesting to see how things look in 2018. I am not optimistic.

Right-wing, often xenophobic and nationalist politics characteristic of downward trends in global democracy and the rule of law are apparently beginning to thrive in Canada. Wherever there is a declared willingness of elected officials to escape, short- circuit or otherwise undermine courts, Constitutions and established standards of conduct, alarm bells should sound.

It's essential for Canadians to understand we're not immune from similar abuses of our institutions and our laws. Today, what we see occurring in Trump's America is part of an alarming global tendency. It can happen here and anywhere.

'Nativist, reactionary'

Although some commentators have celebrated the apparent demise of the Parti Quebecois in that province's recent election, the Legault victory speaks to some of the most nativist and reactionary impulses of Quebecers by redirecting popular politics along the lines of ethnic rather than civic nationalism.

We must not be smug or look down at Americans for their crass political culture and race to the bottom. I worry that what we're now experiencing in Canada's two major provinces is an expression of a similar downward trajectory at highest level of our politics.

As a federal election looms next fall, Canadians must be alert to the risk posed to our entire legal and constitutional order if the notwithstanding clause is routinely invoked and used to short-circuit the application of Charter rights in Canada's most populous provinces.

The notwithstanding clause is a dangerous defect in Canada's legal order. Absent a convention of not triggering it routinely, there would indeed be a constitutional crisis. A constitutional crisis occurs when it is no longer certain whether the Constitution can be relied upon and courts' judgements enforced.

In many countries, including our own, we are on the brink of just such a crisis.

Letters

Dear Editor:

It seems that the producers of CBC Newsworld have decided that we have become part of the United States of America. It seems that every press conference taking place in the White House is streamed live to us. It seems that every appearance of president Trump is shown to us in real time and then covered again in clips on the news broadcasts. It seems that every accident, shooting and a variety of other incidents occurring in our neighbouring country, plus news conferences given by the relevant police, fire and other authorities comes to us live when a news announcement would certainly do the job. All this is to the detriment of informing us of events in our own country or indeed of those elsewhere in the world. One has to ask why.

Fortunately, RDI does a better job and I often turn there instead.

COLUMNIST

"It all depends on what we want. Some wanting is like a black hole. We can never get enough of the things that we didn't really need in the first place."

ONE COLUMN, FOUR VOICES

Opening to the Spirit

Today's word: Wanting

By Revs Mead Baldwin, W. Lynn Dillabough, Lee Ann Hogle, and Carole Martignacco

1) Wishing and wanting: as children, so much of our young lives seem bound up in our desires to grow up quickly so we can do all the things adults do. In our senior years it is tempting to look back and wish we were young again. We would redo the parts where we made mistakes. If only we could go back, we would enjoy the good things we were too busy to appreciate.

What would our lives be like if we stopped wanting what we don't have, accepted what we do have and stopped to give thanks for today's blessings? Nevertheless it is an enduring challenge to turn off the little "wanter" that sits inside my heart. Right now I want to be thinner, have more free time and feel less stressed.

Just sitting down to this writing exercise though allows me the occasion to appreciate the moment of calm that surrounds me. I enjoy this time to write with colleagues. I give thanks for this space carved out in a busy day. I really don't need one more thing than this small pause.

My "wanter" has been silenced for the moment.

2) We have some young children in our congregation who come eagerly each week to worship and Sunday school. Their first words as I greet them at the door are usually: I want to ring the bell, or I want to light the candle. We have tasks for many of them: "The Acknowledgement of Native Land", the monthly coin collection for our foster child, or the Echo prayer after story time. With eight or nine children however, not everyone gets to do what they want. What a powerful life lesson.

"We can't always get what we want, but if we try sometimes, we get what we need." Yes, I am quoting the lyrics of a Rolling Stones song. Wanting and getting are two very different things. There may be some in our society who are truly privileged, and have the money to actually fulfill their every desire, at least, advertisers seem to hope so. The rest of us have to make choices. What do we really want? What do we actually need?

When I think of "wanting", I think of harmony, world peace, a non-violent world, food and shelter for everyone. What I need to achieve these dreams is not money but a change of attitude. Working together, if we try sometimes, we may get what we need.

3) We used to play a game, the girls and I, called Wants and Wishes. On a bleak weather day with nothing else to do, giving our imaginations free reign could brighten the mood. We'd name all those things that were missing from our lives - a dishwasher, matching winter caps and mittens, and a car that didn't break down every other week. The more we imagined, the wilder we got. One daughter decided being a princess wasn't enough, she wanted the whole castle, and another topped that with her own personal genie and a "real" magic carpet. Outrageous wishing was somehow satisfying; naming our wildest wants had even a kind of cleansing effect. We'd play it all out until we could think of nothing more. At the end we'd agreed to give thanks that we had quite a lot already to make us happy, including each other, if happy we were to be.

Needless to say, as a single mom with four growing ups, my wants were quite pedestrian: that my girls would be safe and healthy, that I would keep my job in a cycle of layoffs. And by all means the tangibles: to be pare down the electric bill, to be able to call a plumber, to find enough sales and coupons to cut the grocery bill. At that point, I'd remember I was blessed - for somehow we always made it to each month's end.

Wanting rhymes with haunting. In the background of our lives, it's hard not to think of all whose real needs, let alone wants, go unfulfilled. What does it feel like to live in a state of perpetual wanting? I will never know, from this privileged place and time where just about anything that comes to mind, within reason, is within reach. I turn to my spouse and say, next time we're out, let's pick up (fill in the blank - food, gadgets or bottle of wine). So much of what we want far outstrips our needs. And I am haunted by the awareness that for much of the world, and not far from my own doorstep, such is not the case.

If all our needs and desires could be fulfilled, wouldn't there yet be something left "wanting" - something we don't even know we need. Isn't a world where others are not left wanting what we should want most of all?

4) It all depends on what we want. Some wanting is like a black hole. We can never get enough of the things that we didn't really need in the first place. We want things. We want recognition. We want control.

Over and over, our Scriptures tell us to turn ourselves toward God. We are told to put on the mind of Christ. We are told to ask for what we need in Christ's name and we will receive it. These are the wants that can be fulfilled. This is the living water that leaves us never thirsty.

It is all about our orientation. When we want what God wants there is always enough because we are thinking about what we can share, rather than what we can accumulate. When we want what God wants we don't have to go looking for love because we know that we are love. When we want what God wants we do not waste time trying to be in control because we know that we are not.

Let's not waste time storing up things for ourselves that will not last but, rather, put our minds to things that endure. Always and always this is love. Try wanting things for other people. Want justice for the oppressed. Want food for the hungry. Want peace in your relationships for love of the other person.

Want God to live in your heart and guide your thoughts. With this you will no longer want the things that cause you harm. With this you will want only what is good.

One word, four voices -now it's your turn to reflect: What is wanting in your life?

GLIMPSES OF THE PAST

Sherbrooke City Fonds. Sherbrooke Historical Society

One had to be bold and daring to start a business that would compete against the Paton factory, the largest woollen mills in the Dominion. A. L. Grindrod was ready for this challenge when he launched his company in 1868. Known as the Magog Woollen Mills, the factory worked only with Canadian wool. In 1879, Grindrod moved his business to the end of Belvedere Street to harness the hydropower from dam No. 2. The factory manufactured all types of car mats, blankets, and of course, clothing. If you couldn't make up your mind, you could ask to be mailed a sample!

New Foreman Art Gallery exhibition by First Nation artist

By Emilie Hackett
Special to the Record

Bishop's University's Foreman Art Gallery will be presenting Le rêve aux loups, a collection by Marry Anne Barkhouse. Curated by Jennifer Rudder, the exhibition will officially open on Thursday, October 18, with a reception from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Barkhouse will also be giving a lecture on the same day at 1:30 p.m. in the Gallery. Open from Tuesday to Saturday from noon to 5 p.m., the Gallery offers free admission to all.

Barkhouse is a member of the Nimpkish Band, Kwakiutl First Nation, located in British Columbia. Concerned with environmental and Indigenous issues, animals play a key role in Barkhouse's collection. According to the Gallery, her work integrates the man-made and natural worlds, as the raven, wolf, and coyote symbolize the ability to adapt, persist, regenerate and repair in the face of environmental struggles.

The exhibition will be happening from October 18 to December 15. For more information, please visit http://www.foreman.ubishops.ca/exhibitions/.

Cutline: Like much of her collection, Mary Anne Barkhouse's Monsieur straddles the man-made and natural worlds.

Sherbrooke Wind Ensemble looks at literature for first 2018–19 concert

Record Staff

The Ensemble a Vents de Sherbrooke (EVS), a Sherbrooke-based wind ensemble, is inviting the public to dive into the magic of literature-inspired music for its first concert of the 2018-2019 season on Saturday, November 3, at Bishop's University's Centennial Theatre.

For this first seasonal outing, the EVS will bring audiences into the literary scene with three musical compositions for productions of Shakespeare plays, as well as works inspired by popular fairy tales, Hans Christian Anderson, the poignant poem of a 13-year-old Israeli teenager who shares her feelings about the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, ending with the magical world of the Brothers Grimm and their fanciful world.

During this concert, the EVS will welcome a very special audience since it will celebrate the 40th anniversary of the Association des auteurs et auteures de l'Estrie (AAAE) and the four decades of the Salon du Livre de l ' Estrie. For the occasion, the programming of the concert will highlight both the achievements of our authors here and passages of the works that inspired the repertoire of the concert. According to the EVS Music Director, François Bernier, "It has been a great challenge to find and put together a repertoire entirely inspired by literary works. Once again, the wind orchestra repertoire has proven its versatility and ability to adapt to any theme ".

After having enjoyed a huge success for the second consecutive year in the production of the Nutcracker ballet last December, the EVS went on to sell out Place Nikitotek again last August with its concept concert on the music of Star Wars. With five concerts per season of very different repertoires, the EVS is proving more than ever that it is a very high level ensemble, a great training school for younger musicians, and an orchestra that stands out for the quality of its benefits and speed of learning.

According to Bernier, who has been directing the EVS for 18 years, "for a century, composers have become increasingly interested in the colours of the sound palette, the brilliance, and the power of the great wind orchestra, where wood, brass and percussion of all kinds combine their respective sonorities to create melodic and rhythmic effects, each just as striking as the others. As a result, the last decades have given birth to a vast repertoire for large wind orchestra, an international repertoire that is constantly renewed, each calendar year delivering its harvest of new works. "

Created in 1982, the EVS currently has close to 60 musicians and is considered one of the best wind orchestras in Quebec.

Gord Downie's final year captured in CBC doc 'Finding the Secret Path'

By Victoria Ahearn
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Once Gord Downie set his mind to the "Secret Path," virtually nothing else mattered.

One year after his death, the new CBC documentary "Finding the Secret Path" shows just how fiercely determined the Tragically Hip frontman was during his brain cancer battle to raise awareness about Canada's dark history of residential schools through the story of Chanie Wenjack.

The plight of the 12-year-old Anishinaabe boy, who died of hunger and exposure after escaping a northern Ontario residential school in 1966, inspired Downie's the "Secret Path" multimedia project and the Gord Downie & Chanie Wenjack Fund that have moved fans and led to various initiatives across the country.

"If you know Gord and you know even physically what a strong constitution he had, he was a real bear," said Patrick Downie, adding that his brother "scoffed" when doctors told him his illness would hamper his physical ability to perform.

"He was like, 'I think I will be (able to perform). I'm different from everybody else.' And he was.

"If he wasn't a singer, he probably would have been some kind of a professional athlete or something. He just had that fortitude and the physical ability to do it."

Premiering Friday on CBC, the CBC TV streaming app and cbc.ca/watch, "Finding the Secret Path" marks the first anniversary of Downie's death from brain cancer on Oct. 17, and the 52nd anniversary of Wenjack's death on Oct. 22.

"This was a very trying, challenging time for our family, this time last year and the weeks that followed," said Patrick Downie, who co-executive produced the doc along with Mike Downie and Gord Downie.

The family is planning a "quiet, reflective day" to mark the one-year anniversary with a small, private gathering, he added. On Oct. 27, they'll also mark the three-year anniversary of their father's death.

"It's been a long, hard year, a very sorrowful year, where a lot of good things have happened," said Patrick Downie, "and we've heard from a lot of people that feel very moved by Gord and miss his presence and music and art."

Through never-before-seen footage and various interviews, the doc shows the final year of Downie's life, as he fights through fatigue and self-consciousness about his fading memory to rehearse and perform "The Secret Path" onstage.

"If I have any pull or any push at all, this is what I want to do. Nothing else really matters to me," he says in the film.

Cameras also capture Downie as he flies with a group to the remote village of Ogoki Post, Ont., to meet with members of the Wenjack family and get their blessing on "The Secret Path" graphic novel, album and animated film. Travelling there was risky, considering Downie had just undergone two brain surgeries and cancer treatment, but he felt it was important.

"That meeting and then the subsequent meetings cemented a really beautiful and long-lasting relationship between the two families," said Patrick Downie.

As the doc explains, "The Secret Path" has not only raised awareness about the treatment of Indigenous people in Canada, it's also donated proceeds to the National Centre for Truth and Reconciliation and the Gord Downie & Chanie Wenjack Fund. It's also led to a school educational program and a hockey program that brings together kids from west Toronto and Attawapiskat First Nation in Ontario.

The brothers hope the new doc will encourage even more Downie fans to join the conversation about developing "a more complex culture where Indigenous people have a greater say."

"We're not speaking for any Indigenous people whatsoever," said Mike Downie, who wrote, directed and co-produced the doc.

"We're talking to Gord's army and we want them to participate, we want them to get involved, we want them to see what their kids are doing in school and we want them to encourage their friends to learn a little bit more.

"If it starts with awareness, then the next stage has got to be education and then the next stage is action _ but you need to go through those in order for it to make any sense."

Let the Townships Tellers lighten your day

Submitted by Ann Rothfels

The Townships Tellers have led a quiet existence within the Lennoxville community for many years. First founded by Joan Buchanan with its home base at the Women's Centre in Lennoxville, the group eventually moved to the Uplands Cultural and Heritage Centre and has been under the stewardship of storyteller Ann Rothfels since 1990.

On Thursday, October 18th, the Townships Tellers will provide an evening of stories at Uplands at 7 p.m., based upon the theme "Lighting the Dark...stories of hope, courage and illumination". All donations will be in support of Uplands, in gratitude for that comfortable and beautiful storytelling space. Refreshments will be served.

Tellers Heather Davis, Shirley Nortcliffe, Ann Rothfels and Michel Thibault, will be joined by special guest Selina Eisenberg of the Montreal Guild of Storytellers. Eisenberg, with training in the field of Early Childhood Education, has been telling stories for over twenty-five years. She is comfortable with audiences of all ages and enchants listeners with the hint of humour that is always present in the warm tones of her voice. Much of her material comes from Eastern European traditions. Eisenberg was chosen as a participant for the Canadian Children's Book Week tour in 2013 (many stories there!) and served as president of the national storytelling organization Storytellers of Canada – Conteurs du Canada for two years.

For many of us, these have been dark times both politically and emotionally. Why not join the tellers in an evening of story designed to bring comfort and hope?

Ann Rothfels of the Townships Tellers and Ena Greyeyes presenting a storytelling workshop for Uplands last fall.

Sherbrooke met la table brings affordable gastronomy to the table

By Emilie Hackett
Special to the Record

Orchestrated by Destination Sherbrooke, the 5th edition of Sherbrooke met la table (Sherbrooke sets the table) began yesterday, October 11th, and will be happening until October 25th. Its goal is to make gastronomic experiences in 25 upscale Sherbrooke restaurants accessible to all. For the next two weeks, all participating restaurants will offer three-course meals from $15 to $20 for lunch, and from $25 to $35 for dinner.

Originally a 10-day event, 5 days were added to the promotion to accommodate its large clientele. Sherbrooke met la table can satisfy all palates, from international cuisine with restaurants like Persépolis (Iranian), Coin du Vietnam (Vietnamese), and Masala Café (Indian), to high-end downtown destinations like Auguste, Sballo, and Le Bouchon.

To browse the restaurants, their opening hours and their special menus, or to make a reservation, please visit www.sherbrookemetlatable.com/

You don't have to be rich to make a bequest to charity.

Tkachuk, the fourth pick in the 2018 NHL Draft, was making his home debut at Canadian Tire Centre.

Brady Tkachuk scores 1st NHL goal as Senators fall to Flyers 7–4

By Lisa Wallace
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brady Tkachuk hasn't had a chance to pick up a present for his mother Chantal's upcoming birthday, but figures his performance Wednesday might be a start.

The rookie forward scored his first NHL goal, finishing with two goals and an assist, as the Ottawa Senators fell to the Philadelphia Flyers 7-4.

"Her birthday is (Thursday) so it's a nice little pre-gift for her because as of right now I don't have a gift for her yet," said Tkachuk. "Maybe try to send flowers overnight, but it's kind of my gift for her."

Tkachuk, the fourth pick in the 2018 NHL Draft, was making his home debut at Canadian Tire Centre.

"You saw a terrific player making a difference for us," said Senators coach Guy Boucher. "It's more than welcome."

Maxime Lajoie also scored twice and had an assist, while Chris Tierney chipped in with three assists. Craig Anderson stopped 37 shots in the loss.

Boucher said the youthful Senators (1-2-1) can ill afford to continue to play a run-and-gun style all the time.

Through four games, Ottawa has given up 20 goals and is allowing 37.8 shots per game.

"You definitely want to tighten that up, you have to or else you can't win games," said Boucher. "It's exciting, but you're not going to win many games. Everybody has to be better in that respect and everybody knows that."

After dropping their home opener 8-2 to the San Jose Sharks on Tuesday the Flyers were determined to bounce back with a better effort.

"It was a tough start at home for us, but we scored seven and I think we played a pretty good hockey game," said Jakub Voracek, who had two goals and three assists. "We just have to take it to the home ice now."

Scott Laughton also scored twice for the Flyers (2-2-0), while Sean Couturier, Robert Hagg and Claude Giroux added singles. Calvin Pickard made 31 saves for the win.

A five-goal outburst saw the Flyers jump out to a 4-3 lead after the second.

Tkachuk was thrilled to notch his first career goal as he redirected a Tierney shot off his skate on the power play to give Ottawa a 1-0 lead.

With the marker, he also earned the bragging rights as the fastest Tkachuk to score in the NHL. It took his father Keith Tkachuk five games and his brother Matthew Tkachuk, who plays for the Calgary Flames, four games.

The Flyers tied the game on a power-play goal of their own as Voracek, at the side of the net, redirected Shayne Gostisbehere's one-timer.

Tkachuk's second goal was flashier than his first as he carried the puck in and beat Pickard shortside.

The 19-year-old wants to contribute as much as he can and while he'll enjoy the moment he said it's just part of the process.

"It's nice, but I feel like I can do even more," said Tkachuk.

"I learned a lot again and I'm just going to keep applying it."

Two minutes after Tkachuk's go-ahead goal Couturier grabbed a rebound and backhanded it past Anderson to tie the game 2-2.

The Flyers took the lead on Voracek's second of the night as he showed great patience before beating Anderson five-hole. This time it was the Senators who managed to tie things back up as Lajoie jumped up into the play and fired a rebound past Pickard to make it 3-3.

Philadelphia finished the period with the lead as Thomas Chabot missed an opportunity to clear the puck down low and Laughton beat Anderson off a backhand.

The game took a nasty edge in the second and continued in the third.

Tkachuk endeared himself to fans with his scoring touch, but also showed his propensity to mix things up when he took a double minor for roughing early in the final frame.

The Flyers didn't score on the ensuing power play, but did shortly after as Hagg picked up his second of the season.

Giroux scored his first goal of the season to make it 6-3 late in the period with a power-play goal.

"It's four games in, there's no need to panic or anything, but we need to learn quick," said Ottawa's Matt Duchene. "We have to learn from those errors and the things we did wrong and get ready for Saturday."

Quebec group taking shot at NBA expansion team for Montreal

The Associated Press

A Quebec group wants to bring an NBA team to Montreal even though the league has no current plans to expand.

The business group is led by former federal cabinet minister and senator Michael Fortier. He said Wednesday he has spoken with NBA Commissioner Adam Silver, adding that his group has ``taken the decision to prepare for when expansion does take place." The group has been meeting with potential Canadian and foreign investors.

Fortier estimated a franchise would cost $1.5 billion to $2 billion, but no public funding would be required. He says Montreal Canadiens owner Geoff Molson is open to an NBA team playing at the NHL club's Bell Centre.

The favourite for an NBA expansion team is Seattle, which lost the SuperSonics to Oklahoma City in 2008.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of

Chrissy Guillette

It broke our hearts to lose you,
but you did not go alone.
A part of us went with you,
the day God took you home.
If tears could build a stairway,
and heartaches make a lane,
we'd walk our way to heaven,
and bring you back again.
In life we loved you dearly,
and in death we love you still,
in our hearts you hold a place
no one could ever fill.

Love and miss you forever,

Death

Mavis (nee Clarke) Westgate (1927- 2018)

It is with great sadness that we announce the passing of Mavis on Oct. 6th, 2018. She joins her late husband, Mailin, the love of her life. She was predeceased by her son, Geoffrey, and is survived by her daughters, Pamela, Valerie and Daphne as well as eight grandchildren and twelve great grandchildren.

Mavis was a precocious, only child who loved books which led her parents to support her in obtaining a University education. She completed her BA at Bishop's University and then specialized at McGill University with a Bachelor of Library Science. Upon graduation she worked at the London, Ontario Public Library and then as a bookmobile Librarian, in Quebec. After marrying, she lived in the Eastern Townships on a farm and started raising children. The family moved to Kingston in 1966. Mavis worked full time in Kingston's Public Libraries until retirement. Mavis was a generous person who donated regularly to many charities, as well as supporting her children in their endeavours. She loved travelling with Mailin to the sunny south during their vacations. They enjoyed their retirement years in Florida, near the sandy shores and surf.

A Memorial Service to Celebrate Mavis's life will be held at Trinity United Church, on Unity Road, Elginburg, Ontario on Monday, October 22nd, 2018 at 1 p.m. All are welcome.

Do Just One Thing

By Danny Seo

Many of us use a space heater as an energy-efficient way to add supplemental heat to warm up a room. Although the design of these little heaters has changed over the years to improve their safety, they still can pose a fire hazard. One important tip from the Consumer Product Safety Commission is that if you need to use an extension cord with your heater, use the 14-gauge heavy-duty kind. This type of cord (usually designed for outdoor use) ensures the electricity is properly grounded when you operate the heater.

Your Birthday

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 12, 2018

Evaluate your life and consider changes that could improve it. If you assess your happiness and the contributions you've made, you'll discover a way to bring joy to others as well as to yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Make a positive change at home. Getting along with family or roommates will impact the way you handle other matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Put your best foot forward and share the love with everyone you meet. Embrace the unknown and unfamiliar, and learn from the experiences you have.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Focus on the physical action you can take to improve your professional relationships and your reputation, status and position. Network and offer suggestions and hands-on help.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Know who and what you are up against when doing business or making a change that could affect others as much as it does you. Look out for those less fortunate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Don't disregard what others do. Someone will try to slip something past you or manipulate you to take part in something that you should avoid. Handle your own affairs personally.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Don't mix emotions and money. You stand to gain if you are direct and you control what happens regarding contracts, investments and health matters. A gift or money is heading your way.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Keep an open mind when dealing with a partner or someone in charge. It's in your best interest to keep a positive attitude if you want to promote some of your own ideas.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — You've got swagger, so strut your stuff. You'll be noticed by both friend and foe. Put any anger you harbor on the back burner and make positive gestures that will satisfy everyone.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Finish what you start and head into the weekend with a clear conscience. Kind gestures toward your peers will help you build strong alliances that will eventually pay off.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Give a little, take a little but, most of all, participate. You'll gain perspective from the people you encounter. An important relationship will strengthen if you discuss its prospects.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Don't take sides. Avoid an argument at all costs. Indulgence may mask a problem, but it won't solve it. Positive change begins within. Focus on self-improvement.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Speak up and say what's on your mind. Your contribution will change the way others view you and open a door to better days ahead. Romance is on the rise.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13, 2018

Listen to your heart, but don't lose sight of reality. Personal improvements will help build confidence, giving you the boost you need to follow through with your dreams. Walk away from discord, as it's a waste of time. If you surround yourself with positive, creative, supportive people, you will thrive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — A change at home may not be easy, but it will be necessary. Accept the inevitable and do your best with what you have to work with. Trust in your ability.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Keep busy and refuse to get upset about others' words or actions. Keeping the peace is in your best interest. Patience will help you bring about a positive change.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Emotions will surface if someone is not honest with you. Don't give in to manipulative tactics or someone who's trying to take advantage of you. Do your own thing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Clear the air and let your intentions be known. The changes you want to enforce, when presented properly, will encourage others to step up and help you achieve your goal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Be wary of people who exhibit indulgent behavior. You are best off keeping your distance and staying focused on sticking to a budget and adopting a healthy lifestyle.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — Change the way you handle your financial affairs, or revise an investment or contract if you want a little extra cash to head your way. Romance is in the stars.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Taking a day trip, going on a shopping spree or donating your time to a cause you believe in will give you the boost you need to take on a new challenge. Believe in yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — If you want change, make it happen. Sitting back or letting someone take charge will lead to anxiety and regret. Don't hesitate to act!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — When it comes to affairs of the heart, you need to share your feelings. Knowing where you stand will help you make an important decision.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Get involved in something you care about so you can make a difference. Your input, dedication and determination will be a beacon of inspiration for others to join your fight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Do something that brings you joy. Activities with children or someone who is creative, inspiring or motivating will prompt you to move in a positive and healthy direction.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — A change will do you good. Travel, personal improvements or doing something special with a loved one will brighten your day. Honesty will bring you peace of mind, and romance will enhance your life.

Your Birthday

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 14, 2018

Share your opinions with like-minded people. Working with others will help you accomplish the most. Learn from those with more experience and kindly offer your knowledge and wisdom to those who need it. Don't lose sight of your priorities, and be cognizant of what others are trying to achieve.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — If you take on a cause that you feel passionate about, you will gain momentum, make new connections and find inner peace. Positive change will improve your personal life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Don't let anger take the reins when discipline and hard work are what's required. Problems that surface due to changes being made at home or in your personal life should be handled cordially.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Confusion will surface if you or someone close to you isn't up-front about feelings, intentions or likes and dislikes. Clear the air so you can move forward.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Your reputation will be judged by the way you handle uncertainty or changes brought about by other people. Be accepting, and have a carefully considered plan in hand.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Don't engage in events or activities that are detrimental to your emotional or physical health. Be aware of what others are doing, but don't feel you must participate.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — A positive change is heading your way. A gift, winning or offer that is too good to refuse will appear out of thin air. Love, money and opportunity will highlight your day. Romance is encouraged.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Don't give in to someone playing with your emotions. Size up whatever situation you face, and be honest about what you will and will not do. A physical outlet will ease stress.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Initiate change. Your efforts will pay off, and what you accomplish will give you the control you need to achieve your goal. Celebrate with a loved one.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Rethink your plans. Consider your options and what you can do to obtain a position that will satisfy you mentally, emotionally and financially. It's up to you to make changes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Get involved in something that intrigues you. A creative project will open a door to new friendships and opportunities. Don't argue with a loved one. Offer romance, not discord.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Make your strengths prominent instead of highlighting your shortcomings. Be receptive to others, but don't let anyone take advantage of you or talk you into something you cannot afford. Maintain good health.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Do something you've never done before. Getting out of the house and spending time with people who have something unique to offer will be uplifting. Walk away from emotional drama.

Take good care of your key assets

By Phillip Alder

Edward Everett Hale, an author and historian, said, "Coming together is a beginning; keeping together is progress; working together is success."

That sums up winning bridge partnerships, especially on defense. The most successful pairs are like ice dancers, moving smoothly in sync together. A bad defender worries only about his or her own hand and never considers partner.

This deal occurred at Bridge Base Online. At 14 of the 15 tables, the auction understandably ended in a partscore. In this auction, my wife had been getting a run of poor cards, so she decided to open one spade! After East overcalled two hearts, I cue-bid three hearts to show exactly three-card support and at least game-invitational strength. When my wife signed off in three spades, I nearly passed, but then three no-trump caught my eye. My wife, with the heart-king bolster, passed.

If West had just led the heart 10, the contract would have failed. East would have won with his ace and returned a low heart. I could have won with my nine, but East had two spade entries to set up and run his hearts.

Instead, West tried the club six. I won with my jack and played the spade nine. East took that trick and did well, leading the heart ace. But now West wasted his second key card — he played the 10. I won the next heart with my nine, squashing West's eight, drove out the spade ace, won the third heart with my six and claimed an overtrick!

It was tough for West not to play the heart 10, but he just should have led that card at trick one.

WALES
FONDATION · FOUNDATION

Our 7th annual candlelight evening of memories will take place on Friday, November 2, 2018 at 7 p.m. in the main living room of the Wales Home.

Your generosity has helped us accomplish many projects! In 2012, we sold 540 candles and last year we surpassed our goal of lighting over 1100. Your support has helped finance the purchase of numerous projects including a Sky Factory Image for Norton 2, equipment for our wellness room and the installation of the TV Tour system and new lighting for our solariums.

This year our goal is to sell 1200 candles. So far we have sold 557candles. The money will be used to update the library.

Mireille Pruneau will be this year's musical guest (www.mireillepruneau.com) and will perform during the ceremony.

We would like to invite the public to participate in commemorating a loved one by donating to have a candle lit in their memory (the person you are lighting the candle for does not have to be a Wales Home resident).

Cost for Candles:
$10/candle
$50 for 5 candles + 1 bonus
$100 for 10 candles + 2 bonus

For more information or to purchase a candle please contact Rebecca Taylor at rtaylor@waleshome.ca or by calling 819-826-3266 ext. 221.

Our pamphlet is available at http://waleshome.ca/wales-home-foundations-candlelight-evening-2018/

Because our community is so amazing we know that with your help, this can be a reality. Thank you for your support!
