THE BONS OF MURAT.

The Countess of Lipona, ex-Queen of Naples, has appointed Joachim Murat, son of Lucien Bonaparte, her residuary legatee, and has left to him every thing left to her by the Emperor Napoleon—his sword, bed, portrait, &c. He will direct that he shall be educated, and live in France. Her daughters, Letitia and Louise, (Countesses of Popoli and Rosponi) will receive what the law accords them, and the two sons will retain every thing that will remind them of their brave and heroic sire. We see it stated that these young men reside in this country—in what part we are not told—and are practicing as barristers. Their absence from their mother is said to have greatly increased the anguish of her last moments.—Boston Transcript.

The two sons of Murat referred to in the above paragraph are Achille and Lucien. Achille, the eldest son, was on board the frigate in which his father sailed on the desperate and fatal expedition to recover the throne of Naples. At that time he was some ten or twelve years old. Subsequently he passed several years in Austria, and on coming of age, emigrated to the United States. He purchased a plantation near St. Augustine, in Florida, devoted himself to the study of the law, and was admitted to practice as an attorney and counsellor.

About the year 1825, the Seminoles, who at that time occupied what is known as Middle Florida, were induced to cede their lands, and to retire southward into the peninsula. Murat, in company with his friend, Col. Gadsden, of South Carolina, was one of the first adventurers who explored the country thus ceded. They built a hut in the midst of the wilderness, and employed themselves in land hunting, that is, in seeking out fertile tracts which might be purchased to advantage. These gentlemen entered plantations some fifteen or twenty miles west of Tallahassee. Murat called his plantation Lipona, the title assumed by his mother, which is formed from Napoli, the Italian of Naples, by reading the syllables backwards.

Among the French, and other foreign settlers in that vicinity, Murat commonly went by the title of the prince, that the state which he kept did not exactly correspond with the notion we are apt to attach to that title. He might be met in the woods, on a lean horse, dressed in the common homespun of the country, with a long whip in his hand, driving cattle, with the outward style of what is known in that country as a Georgia cracker, rather than that of the heir and claimant of the throne of Naples.—Having settled in the woods, he availed himself of his liberty, and seemed to cast off all regard for the mere forms and shows of artificial society. His domestic establishment was on the same careless plan. It is related of him, that one day a large party from Tallahassee having come out to pay him a visit, he sent for his cook to inquire what there was in the house for dinner. "Nothing at all," replied the cook—a circumstance rather apt to happen in the days of his bachelor house-keeping, when things went with him pretty much at sixes and sevens. Just at the moment of this alarming announcement the overseer came in to say that he had driven up the cattle of the plantation, to inquire of Murat what mark he should put upon them. It is to be observed, by the way, that in Florida the cattle belonging to the several settlers run wild in the woods, the whole time. Once a year, however, they are hunted and driven up, for the purpose of marking the young cattle—every proprietor having a peculiar mark, generally a slit of some kind in the ear, by which his particular cattle are distinguished. "What mark?" said Murat, why, cut off their left ears, and bring them all in directly to the cook." This was done accordingly, and Murat's guests were soon served with a dinner, consisting principally of cow's ears, dressed in every variety of style. To this day, in riding through the woods in that vicinity, if a cow happens to be seen mutilated of her left ear, she will be pointed out with the observation, "There goes one of Murat's' attle."

That Murat is a philosopher, and no epicure, will appear from the following anecdote. One day at a dinner party, the conversation turning on the different viands, Murat declared that during his early residence in Florida, he had made trial in the way of eating—divesting himself of all prejudices—of all the various birds and beasts which he could lay his hands upon. "Crow soup," said he, "is fine; alligator's tail is excellent; but turkey buzzard is not good; I have no prejudices, but it is not good." Subsequently Murat married a daughter of Mr. Willis, the navy agent at Pensacola, and a grand niece of Gen. Washington. Mr. Willis had emigrated from Fredericksburg, Virginia, to Florida, bringing his daughter, a beautiful young widow, with him, and at that time resided at Tallahassee. Mrs. Murat is a lady of uncommon beauty, spirit and good sense. An excellent house-keeper, she has put Murat's domestic establishment upon a somewhat more orderly footing.

The French revolution of 1830 excited new hopes in the mind of Murat. He mortgaged his property, raised what money he could, and set sail for Europe. He spent some time in England, and John Randolph observed of Mrs. Murat, that she was the only American he had ever met abroad, of whom he was not ashamed. Brought into society esteemed the most aristocratic, and recherché, she made no attempt to imitate the affectations, and never condescended to re-echo the sentiments of her new associates, but maintained the simple elegance of her native manners, and all fit occasions expressed opinions and sentiments proper to an American woman, though discordant enough from the prevailing sentiments of her new associates.

After waiting in vain for a repeal of the law, which excluded the family of Napoleon from the French territory, and finding that any ambitious hopes he might have entertained had little prospect of fulfilment, Murat went to Belgium, and obtained a commission of colonel of cavalry in the army of Leopold. He had originally received a military education. Afterward, however, when Leopold married a daughter of the King of France, he found it necessary to dismiss Murat from his service, who returned to Florida after an absence of three years. Returning to Florida Murat resumed the occupation of a planter and lawyer. Previous to his visit to Europe, he had been for several years a postmaster, under the appointment of the United States government. Subsequent to his return, he was appointed Judge of the County Court of Jefferson, in which office he gave good satisfaction.

Achille Murat has little of the personal appearance of his father. He is of small size, and his constitution has suffered so severely from the effects of a paralytic shock, experienced some years ago, that he appears to be much older than he is. His face presents a striking resemblance to the portraits of Napoleon. He is a man of great accomplishments, being thoroughly versed in the Italian, German, French, and English languages, all which he speaks with perfect fluency. He has a great taste for mathematics, and is well acquainted with all the most recent works in that department of science. He is a man of reflection, but in many points his opinions are rather visionary. He has a strong disposition to engage in speculation, but in these undertakings has been generally unsuccessful. His most sure resource has been an annuity which he has received from his mother. Large sums of money, recovered from his father's estate, have from time to time come into his hands, but they have generally been spent soon after they have been received.

Lucien Murat, the younger brother, has resided, we believe, principally in the state of New York, where he has acted as agent for Joseph Bonaparte, for the sale of certain lands belonging to him in the Northern part of the state. He lives now, we believe, in New Jersey.

AGRICULTURE.

SHAKERS' ESTABLISHMENTS. From the Second Report of the Agriculture of Massachusetts, In a survey of the agriculture of Berkshire, it would be inaccountable to pass over these establishments.

1. The family at Tyringham consists ordinarily of one hundred members. The farm is understood to contain more than one thousand acres, principally situated on the side of a hill, and running down into the valley, where it is crossed by the small stream called Hop Brook, which empties into the Housatonic River at South Lee. The view from this eminence, as the prospect extends towards the northwest, embracing the village of Lenox, "set upon a hill," with the whole intervening valley of a diversified aspect and luxuriant soil, the little manufacturing bee-hive of South Lee, and the many rich summits every where scattered in the back ground of the picture, their tops and sides fringed with the chestnut and the rock maple, and the double pile of Saddle Mountains lying in the distant perspective like a contemplative giant in his repose, is among the most beautiful of those enchanting views, which are constantly opening upon the traveller, in this picturesque region.

The principal object of their farming, at Tyringham, is the raising of stock, neat cattle especially. The dairy is well managed; and they have a garden of four or five acres, devoted to the raising or garden seeds and medical herbs, under skillful and successful cultivation. Their annual sales have sometimes amounted to $3,100; and they allow to their agents twenty-five per cent. commission on sales, and take back what is unsold. They produce some wheat, corn, and oats; and they are now effecting with great labour and admirable skill the redemption of extensive alluvial meadows on Hop Brook, by draining, rooting out the stumps, and cultivating the soil, which will bring these lands under a course of most productive improvement.

Of the religion of this peculiar people, it is not for me in this place to speak. A religion which holds the severest restraint over appetites and passions ever flable by their excess to lead men astray, which encourage industry, frugality, mutual love and kindness, and that which certainly is not lowest in the scale of virtues, the most exemplary neatness and order in every thing, is so far entitled to respect and commendation. Under whatever aspect we view it, we have at least occasion to congratulate ourselves, that we live under a government tolerant to every honest difference of worship and opinion; and to remember, that the same principle, which secures freedom to ourselves, should guarantee to others a like boon.

2. The establishment of the brethren at Pittsfield and Hancock, consists of about seven hundred acres, lying together; and is possessed by three large families, containing upwards of three hundred individuals. They are united for all the general purposes of their society; but in their financial concerns are as families separate from each other. The land is not of the best description, being low, cold, and wet; and their attention is mainly directed to the cultivation of grass and garden seeds, and the keeping of cows and sheep. Their first purpose is for their own supply. They raise the best they can, and they eat the best they raise; and though from their temperate and careful habits their thrift is remarkable, yet the accumulation of property is not a principal object with them.—They have various mechanical contrivances by which their labour is abridged or lightened. They have made the best use of water power which their place furnishes, and husband it with care and economy. They have an extensive saw-mill carried by water, and all their fuel is cut in the same way. A simple arrangement which it may appear trifling to mention, impressed me by its directness and good judgment. Ordinary fire wood is piled horizontally, and when exposed to the weather, becomes water soaked and mouldy. Their billets of wood, being sawed, were stacked up in convenient piles, the sticks being placed upright on the end, so that any water which falls upon the pile was immediately drained off. After being sawed, they were neatly put up under cover.

I have already referred to their magnificent barn, built of stone, of a circular form three stories in height, ninety-six feet in diameter, and capable, as well as may be calculated, of containing from three to four hundred tons of hay. Two carts enter in the second story; the floor or drive way is continued round by the wall for the whole of the circle, so that the cart passes round the entire distance, and when the hay is discharged, goes out at the same door at which it entered. All the hay is deposited in the centre. Several loaded wagons may stand on the floor, and be sheltered and unloaded at the same time. The roof is a beautiful and curious specimen of carpentry, and appears to be most securely supported. In the centre of the floor, there rises to the apex of the roof a single column as large as an admiral's mast, around which a hollow frame of slats is fixed, and which serves as a ventilator or chimney to discharge the steam of the hay. It is open at the top, and protected by a small cupola against the rain. At the same time the hay is raised from the ground about a foot, by an open floor of slats, so that there is, while the hay is new, a constant circulation of air up this chimney, and one of the friends informed me that the steam passing from the hay in this mode was often times so dense, that, to use his own expression, "you could wash your hands in it." The arrangements for the cattle are in the lower story, where every animal has its place and number, and where every cow is designated by a label on the post-put milk or otherwise. In this circular form, there is, of course, a considerable loss of room; yet the method of feeding is easy; the place is kept clean; the whole arrangements are convenient; and the kindly treated animals standing around this huge mass of hay, have at least the pleasure of seeing the good things in store for them. These friends have singular advantages, in the amount of labour which they are able at any time to command, and apply to any object which they have in view; and their establishment presents a beautiful illustration of advantages of well-directed industry, neatness and order. The great rule of domestic economy, "a place for every thing, and every thing in its place," is nowhere more strikingly exemplified; and though they make no pretence to the fine arts, and have little of what is called taste, yet all their arrangements, and the products of their labour, exhibit the proofs of thoughtfulness, permanency, utility, and substantial comfort.

Their dairy is exclusively neat in every part of it. Their piggery is the exclusive concern of a single individual; and illustrates the utility in a large concern of division of labour and of individual responsibility. They have attempted all improvement of their neat stock, by the introduction of some of the improved breeds, and the young stock which they were raising from this cross, promised extremely well, though no opportunity had been had to test its qualities for milk. Their land is considered in a great measure unfavourable to the production of grain; and a large portion of their bread-stuff therefore is purchased. They have likewise occasionally hired extensive tracts of meadow on the Mohawk River in the State of New York, which they have cultivated by colonies, in order to obtain brush for the manufacture of brooms, a branch of business which heretofore they have carried on to a considerable extent. They keep a large flock of sheep; and all their woollen fabrics are manufactured among themselves. They likewise are very extensively engaged in the raising of garden seeds, which are put up in a very neat manner, as is well known, and distributed over the country.

A three story brick building for college, erected for one of their families, is most remarkable for its neatness and the excellence of the materials and workmanship. What by the "world's people" is called taste, that is a study of symmetry and beauty in the forms of objects, is studiously stymied by this remarkably community. Yet in the perfection of the finish, which they bestow upon every production of their mechanical industry, they show that native perception of fitness, order, and harmony, which humiliation that the spirit of our young men is absorbed by the highlands, and perished with their "swamping honors" in the glassy waters of Newburgh Bay.

PLEASURE TRIPS.—The Charlevoix is advertised for a pleasure excursion to Crane Island on Sunday next, to start at 9 o'clock, P. M.

The following article from the Transcript, was in the hands of the printers before we received the communication of H. D. L., and as its object is the same, we deem it unnecessary at present, to produce his letter:—

The new steamer Lady Colborne made an experiment trip this week, a short distance below Montreal, and she is expected here in the course of a few days.

We are indebted to Mr. Greig, Publisher in Montreal, for a copy of Hochelega Depicta, the Early and Present State of the City and Island of Montreal, edited by Newton Bosworth, F. R. A. S.

THE WEATHER, has been most unfavourable for the harvest during the past week; and the heavy rains have swollen the smaller streams, and the meadows, on the low lands, have suffered from overflowing.

THE CANOES.—Extract from a letter from an extensive farmer at St. Antoine, Richelieu River, dated 29th July, 1829:—

From the Old Quebec Gazette of yesterday. The Burlington Sentinel of the 2nd instant, contains Mr. Van Ness' plea before the Supreme Court of Vermont, held at Montpelier, 20th July, in favour of Holmes.

The doctrine of Mr. Van Ness is in direct contradiction to the American doctrine on which their revolution is founded; that they may at their own pleasure, withdraw altogether from their allegiance, and enter into a new one, which Dr. Holmes certainly did.

Nothing is known of the decision of the Court in the case of Holmes. It is shrewdly suspected that the decision may be forthcoming before the fall election notwithstanding.

A Company of the 71st Regiment left this morning in the Princeps Victoria, for Acadie, to relieve a company of the same Regiment, which has been stationed at that place for some time.

A Boston paper of the 2d says that it is almost certain that Dr. Holmes will be discharged, as the bench of Judges sitting at Montpelier were, with one exception, decided on the subject.

A letter from Three Rivers, published in the Gazette de Quebec, furnishes some particulars of the damage done by a tremendous thunder storm which occurred in the District of Three Rivers, on the evening of the 5th instant.

HADLOW COVE. Will be sold by Public Sale, to the highest and best bidder, on TUESDAY, 1st October next.

The property is situated on the South side of the St. Lawrence, in the Parish of Point Levy, at about 2 miles from the City of Quebec. It is now in the occupation of Capt. Dawson, as a Timber Cove and Yard, and consists of the following lots:—

1. A Beach Lot of about three arpents in front, extending from the River St. Lawrence, including a considerable lot of arable land, to the highway of the aforesaid Parish of Point Levy; having an extensive Wharf erected along the St. Lawrence, a Dwelling House and various out-buildings; from which lot however there will be taken on its Western side along the aforesaid public road above the Hill, a small lot of about half an acre in front and one acre in depth more or less, heretofore in the possession of one Gibson; also another small lot from its Eastern side along the aforesaid public road, of about one acre square, now possessed by one Aie; and also another small lot above and along the aforesaid Hill, of about one acre square more or less, heretofore in the possession of John Leland McQuay, Esquire.

2. The continuation of the aforesaid arable land or farm, extending from the aforesaid highway upon a width of one and a half arpents to the first large Cape of Rocks in rear, being about eighteen arpents, and thence extending the remainder of its depth two and a half arpents in width. Its whole extent in depth from the St. Lawrence, being about forty arpents; bounded on the North East side by Joachim Dumont and the said Aie, and on the South West side by Joseph Bourassa and the said Gibson; with a Farm House near the aforesaid highway.

3. Another Beach Lot of about one and a quarter arpents more or less in front, upon the depth there may be from the River St. Lawrence to the aforesaid highway, and which includes a considerable extent of ground between the Hill and the said highway; bounded on one side towards the North East by Etienne Dusault, and on the other side towards the South West by Charles Demars.

4. Another Beach Lot of one and a half arpents more or less in front, extending from the River St. Lawrence, including a considerable lot of arable land, to the aforesaid highway, whereon remains the "Oviatt Cottage," and various other improvements; and

5. The Farm in continuation of the beach lot last described, of the aforesaid width of one and a half arpents upon a depth of forty arpents from the St. Lawrence, or thereabouts, bounded on one side towards the north-east by the said Charles Demars, and on the other side towards the south-west by Etienne Huard.

Hadlow Cove is well known as a very convenient and safe Lumber establishment. It is also well adapted and has heretofore been successfully used for Ship Building. The aforesaid arable lands and farms extend through populous settlements, and are deserving of attention. Captain Dawson the present occupant of the whole will afford every information and facility as to locality. And the Titles may be seen and any further information had at the office of the undersigned Notary at this City of Quebec.

The Sale will be held at Hadlow Cove upon the aforesaid Wharf, at ONE o'clock on the afternoon of the day above mentioned. Quebec, 20th July, 1829.
