

Bill 22 gets final reading

A sad day for Quebec Anglophones

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec national assembly Tuesday adopted on third and final reading a bill making French the official language of Quebec.

The legislation, adopted over the protests and opposition of the Parti Quebecois, two Liberal members and many groups in the province, is expected to become law today when it receives royal assent from Lieut. Gov. Hugues Lapointe.

The bill—parts of which will be applied immediately while other parts will come into effect gradually—makes French the language of public administration in the province and contains measures designed to integrate immigrants into Quebec's French-speaking majority and make French the working language of the province.

The legislation also sets up a regime de la langue Française—the bill contains no English version of the title since it says government bodies are to be known by their French title only. It is a nine-member board empowered to conduct inquiries to ensure the act is being observed and to help firms implement francization programs in their operations.

ISSUE CERTIFICATES
The board will also issue certificates to firms attesting that the firm is implementing a francization program—promoting French language and French personnel at all levels—thus making the firms eligible for government contracts of grants.

The bill also repeals controversial 1969 legislation permitting parents to choose what language their children will be educated in, legislation that many saw as leading to assimilation and a minority position for French-speaking Quebecers since some French and the vast majority of immigrant parents were choosing English schools for their children.

The legislation says English education will continue but it also says the education minister must approve any increases or decreases in the size of the English school system. This is a move to prevent the English system from growing to the detriment of the French system.

It also provides for language proficiency tests to determine which system new pupils will attend.

These measures will not be applied until next year since enrolments for the 1974 fall term are completed.

TO BE IN FRENCH
Notices, communications and directions addressed to employees are to be drawn up in French although an English version "may" also be available for English personnel.

These measures and those concerning francization certificates will probably come into effect in the next six months after regulations governing the issuance of such certificates are published.

One part of the law that becomes effective immediately requires all standard contracts, receipts, order forms and invoices to be in French although they may be accompanied by an English version at the request of the client or customer.

The clause calling for public signs and written handbills and advertisements to be in French or French and another language—except those in English newspapers—also takes effect immediately.

But owners of billboards and electric signs have five years to comply with the law.

HAS LITTLE EFFECT
The language of the public administration becomes French Jan. 1, 1976—a move that has little effect on the provincial civil service which conducts its work almost exclusively in French.

Public utilities and transportation facilities will also adopt French as the working language but may continue to issue notices, tickets or bills of lading with an English version.

The bill was given final approval by the assembly after more than two months of stormy debate and filibuster marked by public demonstrations inside and outside the assembly.

The final public outburst came Tuesday during the rollcall vote when two women dressed in black were hauled out of the public galleries for shouting "impotent enunch" at Education Minister Francois Cloutier.

The Parti Quebecois had opposed the bill for not declaring French the only official language and for granting too many rights in law to English.

The PQ, along with dissident Liberals John Ciacchia (Montreal Mount Royal) and George Springate (Montreal Ste. Anne), warned the bill might be struck down as unconstitutional in the courts.

Mr. Ciacchia and Mr. Springate, suspended from caucus by Premier Robert Bourassa for voting against the bill, say that by limiting freedom of choice in education the bill is unconstitutional under the British North America Act.

The PQ holds that by not repealing the BNA Act article granting French and English equal status in the assembly and before the courts, the bill might be ruled unconstitutional.

Mr. Cloutier says that even those who would like the bill to go further will have to admit it is a positive step forward.

"Passions will cool, at least among those who are not doctrinaire," he said, adding that the bill took the only acceptable middle road between extreme views in the English and French communities.

Bill 22, confederation and other things by Glen Brown

"I hear, and read, and see a group of modernistic beatniks led by and expressed through a minority of news media in the papers, over the radio, on television and from the soap box; the Goebbels like, attack our institutions through innuendo slander, inference—half truths—out of context quotations and expressions of out of the ordinary situations.

"They are merely adopting the methods that gave rise to the terrible regimes of Nazi and Fascist thought."

Glen Brown, English-speaking MNA for Brome-Missisquoi county writes about Bill 22 and confederation in today's Sherbrooke Record. The text appearing on page 6 is one he prepared for the debates of Bill 22.

Greece, Turkey sign agreement

GENEVA (AP) — Greece and Turkey have signed a military disengagement agreement for Cyprus providing for indefinite partition of the island, the indefinite presence of the Turkish invasion force and a United Nations buffer zone around the territory occupied by the Turks.

The agreement, signed by the foreign ministers of Britain, Greece and Turkey Tuesday after six days of negotiations, also puts no brake on the landing of foreign troops or supplies on Cyprus.

A spokesman for the United Nations peacekeeping force said the Turks brought in more reinforcements Tuesday, and a high-ranking Western diplomat in Nicosia estimated the Turkish force at 40,000 men and 300 tanks.

The three governments agreed to begin further talks in Geneva Aug. 8 to restore constitutional government to Cyprus. They said representatives of the Greek and Turkish-Cypriot communities will join two days later, and Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros said the Greek-Cypriots will be represented by their current president, Glafkos Clerides, not by ousted president Makarios.

Vice-President Rauf Denkash, the unchallenged leader of the Turkish-Cypriots, will represent them, Mavros said.

PREMIER SATISFIED

Although Turkey gave up nothing, Greek Premier Constantine Caramanlis said he is satisfied with the agreement because it "puts an end to hostilities" and "can mark the starting point of a fair settlement of the Cyprus issue."

Archbishop Makarios complained that the provision concerning Turkish withdrawal is "very vague." Clerides was not available for comment, but initial reaction among the Greek-Cypriots in Nicosia was suspicious.

The agreement provided that:

1. The opposing military forces will not extend their territory beyond the limits held Tuesday night when the agreement was signed;
2. A security zone manned by UN forces will be established around the enclave of approximately 200 square miles seized by the Turkish invasion force on the north coast, including the port of Kyrenia;
3. All Greek and Greek-Cypriot forces in Turkish enclaves will be evacuated immediately, and UN forces will protect the enclaves;
4. UN forces will protect all other Turkish enclaves as well as villages containing both Greek and Turkish-Cypriots.

Cyprus: Canada relieved

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada welcomes "with great relief" a report that Turkey, Cyprus and Britain have reached an agreement on the future of Cyprus, an external affairs department spokesman said Tuesday.

However, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp would not make a formal statement until he had seen the official document, the spokesman said.

Delegates to the Geneva peace talks said the agreement provides that Turkey will have the right to retain military forces on the Mediterranean island.

Once all its men have arrived on Cyprus later this week, Canada will have about 950 troops on the island with the United Nations peacekeeping force.

Impeachment warranted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proclaiming that President Nixon "warrants impeachment and trial and removal from office," the judiciary committee has ended its inquiry with a three-part resolution to be sent to the House of Representatives.

In the committee recommends Nixon's impeachment for obstructing justice, misuse of his powers and refusing to obey its subpoenas for evidence.

Debate in the House will begin in about two weeks.

The three articles would define and limit the power of the executive. They were the first to be sent to the House floor in more than a century since President Andrew Johnson's impeachment during the period following the U.S. Civil War.

The third impeachment article relating to the subpoenas was approved Tuesday by a narrow 21-to-17 vote.

KNOWLTON GIRL WINS PLEASURE DRIVING — Mrs. Homer Blackwood and George Rogerson, Equestrian Ringmaster, present the Jim Blackwood Memorial Trophy to Leslie Mizener for top honors in the Pleasure Driving Class, at the Foster Horse Show held at the Lions Park, Knowlton, July 28.

held at Knowlton, July 28. Mr. Doug Caldwell, Hunter Judge is to the right of Mr. Deslauriers who rode Grand Marechal from the Bromont Equestrian Club and Al Cauley, CJAD sports director is to the left.

Horse Show success again

KNOWLTON (JD) — A tradition of 24 years of sunny skies went unspoiled at the Foster Horse Show, held here Sunday, when a crowd estimated between 3,000 and 4,500 attended the popular event.

Simon St. Pierre, executive vice-president of COJO, was one of the many dignitaries present, as well as Mayors Roland Desourdy, Cowansville, and Homer Blackwood, Town of Brome Lake.

A Lions Club spokesman indicated the weather forecast might have been one of the causes for the reduction in this year's crowd. Thunderstorms at approximately 3 a.m. woke many Townshippers and the sky was overcast until noon. The traditional sunshine, though, held true in the afternoon, with a temperature of 86 in the shade.

Profits from the show are devoted to community projects sponsored by the Knowlton Lions Club. Outgoing president Gib Rotherham thanked the spectators and entrants for their participation in the successful event.

Although the crowd was slightly diminished, entries were up, as were the number of entries.

An unofficial estimate placed profits as being up $100 from 1973, although the Lions parked 100 cars less than last year.

There is no entry fee to the show. Revenues are obtained through parking fees, sales of programs and tickets for drawings on gifts provided by local merchants and industries.

Lion Gerry Moore, public relations officer for the show, said advertising revenue in the program increased by at least 20 per cent compared to 1973.

Some of the winners included: Anne Marie Desourdy, Bromont, on Joli Vent in the Loto-Perfetta Junior A and B; Jane Shemilt, West Brome riding Centennial in the Loto-Perfetta Working Hunter Junior A and B.

Leslie Mizener, Knowlton, won

both the Brome Young Farmers Fitting and Horsemanship, and Pleasure driving classes in the equitation ring.

Daniel Ross on Cinders took the Western Parade, Anne Taylor the Eastern Townships Pleasure Hack.

Danny Krohn won the Loto-Perfetta Equitation C limited to children under 11 as of January 1, 1974, while Eve Monast took the Loto-Perfetta Equitation Junior B, for children who have attained 11 but not their 14th birthday as of January 1, 1974.

Master Krohn was on My Boy, Miss Monast on Courisio.

Bruce Somerville capped his class in the Loto-Perfetta A on DHF Kathie. This class is for persons between 14 and 18 who have not attained 18 as of January 1, 1974.

Gilbert Rharid, as perennial winner took Western Reining on Rosia Georgia. Sharon Doon won Driving Pony, and Mitchell Bronfmann copped the Western Pleasure group on OM.

Becky Hunting closed out the Hunter Ring when she won the Loto-Perfetta Working Hunter Junior A and B.

Leslie Mizener, Knowlton, won

Testimony showed yesterday that the unionized employees prevented CPR railways from removing approximately $50,000 worth of perishable merchandise from the company's plant located on King street west.

The injunction prevented the employees from doing so. Other testimony is expected next week when the case resumes.

The company is seeking $50,000 in damages from the union and fines and sentences for 19 employees who allegedly contradicted the injunction.

Five cadets killed in Quebec explosion

QUEBEC (CP) — Five Montreal-area youths were among six cadets killed Tuesday in an explosion at the nearby Valcartier Canadian Forces base during a lecture on the handling of explosive devices.

Twenty-two others, including Capt. Jean-Claude Giroux, an instructor, were injured in the blast that caused only slight damage to the training hall where the explosion took place.

Five of the dead were identified as O. Mangos, 14, Montreal; M. Voisard, 14, Longueuil; P. Leroux, 15, St. Laurent; K. Wright, 17, La Salle; and Y. Langlois, 15, Roxboro. The name of the sixth victim was not immediately released.

All but one of the 22 injured were in hospital at the military base. The most seriously injured was taken to hospital in Quebec City.

DEVICE UNKNOWN

At a news conference Tuesday night, spokesman Col. Roderick Sullivan said it was not known what type of device had exploded.

He said the lecture during which the incident occurred "was to warn the cadets what types of devices to avoid handling if they found them in fields on the base."

All of the dead and injured were believed to be residents of Quebec province. A partial list of injured, all from Quebec, was released early today.

The three cadets listed in serious condition were D. Malcolm, 15, Montreal; R. Brooks, 14, Chambly; and Y. Senecal, 14, Montreal.

Those injured slightly included C. Cote, 15, Farnham; J. Demers, 16, Montreal; I. Hunt, 14, Greenfield Park; D. Milkowski, 16, Montreal; E. Munizaga, 14, St. Leonard; K. Wright, 17, Verdun; E. Maura, 15, St. Laurent; R. Brousseau, 16, St. Hubert; P. Van Kampen, 15, Montreal; and G. Katzko, 21, Beaconsfield.

WAS SUMMER PROGRAM

The dead and injured were among 1,600 cadets receiving six weeks of basic military training at the camp as part of the force's summer program for students aged 14 to 17.

Shortly after the explosion, families began arriving at the camp gate.

"It's my only child. Please, I have to get in," cried one mother as military policemen blocked the entrance to the base.

Col. Sullivan said the explosion area was evacuated as soon as the incident occurred. First aid was administered immediately.

"The training the boys get really paid off," he said. "There were boys, only slightly injured, helping others."

All courses at the camp involving the use of explosives or ammunition have been suspended pending the outcome of investigations, he said.

Col. Sullivan said a coroner's inquest is expected to begin today. Military police, provincial police and Canadian Forces explosives experts all were to investigate the incident.

Howard Hughes charged with conspiracy, fraud...

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Billionaire Howard Hughes and three others have been charged with conspiracy, stock manipulation and fraud by a federal grand jury that made an about face in 24 hours.

The grand jury accused the four men Tuesday of trying to force down the value of Air West stock in order to make it easier for Hughes to gain financial control of the regional airline. Now called Hughes Airwest, it was taken over by Hughes Dec. 31, 1968.

The charges are a streamlined version of an indictment returned last Dec. 27 which was thrown out by a federal judge. He termed it "the worst case of criminal pleading" he had ever seen.

When the charges were thrown out Jan. 30, the jury was given six months to return a new indictment, a time limit which expired at midnight, Tuesday night.

The grand jury, the same one that handed down the original charges had met Monday but returned no indictments.

There is a lack of understanding of the crucial role played by corporation profits in business, says Odium Brown and T.B. Read of Vancouver.

Odium Brown says in an investment letter that politicians have been quick to condemn recent profit increases as being "too high" without either examining the underlying causes for the increases or defining what would be considered an adequate profit. It is no surprise then, that the general public is unaware of the true function of profits.

The consequences of inadequate corporation profits, the firm says, would be much more serious than a few cases of temporary excess profitability. Since the economy cannot function without capital and there can be no risk capital without profits, government-sponsored programs would suffer if funds accrued through taxation of profits decreased. Projects would either be seriously hampered or personal taxes would be increased to make up the deficit.

RISK ESSENTIAL

At the heart of a dynamic and innovative economy, Odium Brown says, is the concept of risk capital. Without this new industrial capacity and expanding employment opportunities will not be created.

The stock market is the single most important source of risk capital. In the past, stock markets have been an effective and sensitive mechanism for matching the savings of individuals with the long-term financing requirements of industry. Odium Brown says this function might be seriously undermined if present trends in federal and provincial government policies continue.

The savings of many investors, the firm says, have been depleted as a result of current stock market conditions. The number of small investors purchasing stock may have declined in recent years, but most people are involved in the market indirectly through investments in pension plans, retirement savings plans, life insurance policies and mutual funds.

HIT GROWTH INCENTIVE

Big business—or multinational corporations—as opposed to small businesses, Odium Brown says, often have been the targets of government policies. In addition to not defining when small becomes big business, these policies ignore the fact that the motivating force behind many small businessmen is the incentive to grow larger.

An unfavorable investment climate, the firm says, can thwart these dreams even more than the expansion plans of a large corporation.

Odium Brown says leaders in the business sector are starting to question the direction of government policies openly in an effort to explain the role of profits in the free enterprise system and bring about changes in government policies.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market suffered its fourth straight broad decline Tuesday in response to investor worries over inflation, interest rates and impeachment.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 5.32 points to 765.57 and losers outnumbered gainers by a two-to-one margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow, with a 40-point loss since last Wednesday, reached its lowest finish since it touched a 3 1/2-year closing low of 759.62 on July 11.

NYSE volume was 11.36 million shares, just a shade below Monday's 11.56 million.

NEW YORK (AP) — Those funny little lines on cans of peas, soup and other grocery items are the signal for a new marketing technique that store officials in the United States say will save money and time for shoppers and the industry. Consumers aren't sure how well it will work.

Supermarkets are just starting to try the system on a limited basis. It's called the Universal Product Code and involves the use of a scanner and computer designed to speed things up at the checkout counter and reduce human errors.

The Marsh Store at the Sherwood Shopping Centre in Troy, Ohio, has been using the code system since June 28 and spokesman Steve Overmyer said Monday that initial reaction has been "just fantastic." He conceded that there were "a few little bugs here and there, but nothing like the problems we anticipated."

About 1,700 manufacturers, with annual grocery sales of $69 billion, are planning to implement the system. They're members of a trade association called the Uniform Grocery Product Code Council.

Here's how the system works: The different-sized lines are imprinted on a can or box by the manufacturer. A spokesman for Distribution Codes Inc. of Washington, D.C., which developed the system, explained that the lines really are called a "machine readable symbol linear bar type."

REPRESENTS PRICE

Some of the lines stand for the name of the manufacturer and the type of product. The rest represent the price.

It's up to the individual supermarket to set the price by feeding information into a computer. It might tell the computer that a specific combination of lines means 29 cents, for example.

If an item is not marked with the code—either because the manufacturer has not imprinted it or because the product is something like meat that varies in price according to weight—the store can stamp on its own symbol with an in-store printer.

The customer takes the product to the checkout counter where it passes by an electronic scanner which "reads" the lines and asks the computer what the price is. The computer's reply flashes up on a screen and is noted on the cash register.

Shoppers still will get a supermarket tape—including not only the price, but the name of each item, represented by what's known as a 12-character alpha description. That means the description of the product can't be more than 12 letters.

Consumer opposition stems from industry plans to eliminate price tags on individual items entirely. The price would be posted on the shelf above or below an item, but wouldn't be stamped on the product itself.

New supermarket markings signal

Oversupply means cheap fish price

Consumers are finding some frozen fish and seafood bargains these days because of an overabundant supply at the wholesale level, an Associated Press spot check shows.

"The whole industry is faced with an overabundance of the produce in the freezer," said Si Stern of the Ludvig Shrimp Co. of Miami, which sells shrimp for a fleet operating out of Trinidad.

"There has been a backup at the wholesale level. Prices are actually below production costs," Stern said Monday.

Government experts on the subject reported that wholesale prices were down about 15 per cent in the past four months.

"There should be some pretty good buys in seafood in the weeks ahead," said Hank McAvoy, a market specialist for the National Marine Fisheries Service in Gloucester, Mass.

EXPECTED HIGH DEMAND

Other market specialists said part of the reason for the large supply was increased consumption of fish during last year's meat boycott.

Business briefs

NET INCOME GOES UP

TORONTO (CP) — TransCanada PipeLines Ltd. reports income for the six months ended June 30 of $11,787,000 or 42 cents a share compared with $12,663,000 and 46 cents excluding extraordinary items for the first six months of 1973. The per-share figures reflect a three-for-one split of common shares approved by shareholders June 5. An extraordinary gain of $12,461,000 from the sale of TransCanada Petroleum Ltd. on Jan. 31, 1973, brought net income applicable to common shareholders for the six months ended June 30, 1973, to $25,124,000 or 91 cents a share.

ZINC PRICES GO UP

TORONTO (CP) — Noranda Sales Corp. Ltd., the marketing arm of Noranda Mines Ltd., said Monday it is increasing its prices for zinc metal in Canada and the United States by three cents a pound, effective immediately. The new prices in Canada are: 37.50 cents a pound for special high grade and for continuous galvanizing grade with aluminum; 37.25 cents for continuous galvanizing grade; and 37 cents for both high grade and prime western.

TO AUCTION OIL

BEIRUT (Reuters) — Saudi Arabia will auction 1.5 million barrels of oil a day for the next 16 months at whatever price the market will bring, the authoritative Middle East Economic Survey reported Monday. The publication said current reports indicate that this amount will be put up for auction by Aug. 5. It will represent about 18 per cent of Saudi Arabia's crude oil production of 8.5 million barrels a day.

ISSUE OF $250,000,000 NON-CALLABLE GOVERNMENT OF CANADA BONDS DATED AUGUST 15, 1974

Bank of Canada is authorized by the Minister of Finance to receive subscriptions for a loan, to be issued for cash as follows:

2 year 5 1/2 month 9 1/2% bonds due February 1, 1977
Issue price: 100.00% yielding about 9.25% for 2 years 5 1/2 months
Exchangeable

at the option of the holder, on or before November 1, 1976, into an equal par value of 9 1/2% bonds due February 1, 1982 yielding about 9.25% for 7 years 5 1/2 months

Interest payable February 1 and August 1
Five and one half months' interest payable February 1, 1975
Denominations: $1,000, $5,000, $25,000, $100,000 and $1,000,000.

Bank of Canada has agreed to acquire a minimum of $125 million of the new bonds. Proceeds of this offering will be used for general purposes of the Government of Canada.

The new bonds are an addition to $350 million of 9 1/2% bonds due February 1, 1977 and dated June 15, 1974.

The new bonds will be dated August 15, 1974 and will bear interest from that date. Principal and interest are payable in lawful money of Canada. Principal is payable at any Agency of Bank of Canada. Interest is payable at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank without charge. Definitive bonds will be available on August 15, 1974 and thereafter in two forms: bearer form with coupons attached and fully registered form with interest payable by cheque. Bonds of both forms will be in the same denominations and fully interchangeable as to denomination and/or form without charge (subject to Government transfer requirements where applicable).

The new bonds are authorized pursuant to an Act of the Parliament of Canada and both principal and interest are a charge on the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

Applications for the new bonds may be made, subject to allotment, through any investment dealer eligible to act as a primary distributor or through any bank in Canada.

Memphremagog and Massawippi Pollution groups at work

By ROSA HARRIS
Record Reporter

MAGOG — As far back as 1968, a group of concerned citizens living near Lake Memphremagog, banded together to take action against the pollution that was ravaging their lake.

The organization, which subsequently formed a corporation called Memphremagog Conservation Inc. (MCI), has been educating local and neighboring communities since then towards the dangers of water pollution and how to combat it.

Tony Lesauter, Director of Sanitary Engineering for the province of Quebec who has been working closely with the group, described the problems particular to Lake Memphremagog.

"Since the lake runs through the border between Quebec and Vermont, an international approach to the problem is required. Because some of the more significant factors that cause pollution in the lake may have their sources south of the border, co-operation from U.S. authorities is essential. The MCI is in the process of amalgamating with a similar citizens' group in Newport, Vermont, but the process has been slow because of the unusual inter-governmental situation."

Meanwhile, the MCI has urged Eastern Township municipalities to adopt sanitary and building by-laws to prevent further pollution, and has financed the training of sanitary inspectors for the area.

"The committee has also funded a youth project," Mr. Lesauter added. "High school students have been patrolling the lakeshore cleaning up refuse. They also encourage the owners of boats to keep the lake clean."

The organization has spawned the creation of many related action groups in the environs of the Eastern Townships. One of these, The Massawippi Water Protection Inc., has run into similar Vermont-Quebec snags.

H.A. Hencher, president of the Massawippi corporation, explained that officials in Vermont are eager to participate in a joint government effort to clean Lake Massawippi and the Tomifobia River.

"In fact, of all the communities on the border we contacted to co-operate with us, only the municipality of Derby Line on the Tomifobia River in Vermont has responded to our letters," Hencher said. "We're still waiting to hear from officials in Beebe and Stanstead, for instance. Derby Line is trying to negotiate a treatment plant to handle sewage, but they have run into financial delays with the federal U.S. government."

Gordon Booth, Mayor of Ayer's Cliff, and a member of the Massawippi corporation, described a survey performed last year by the University of Sherbrooke.

"The surveyors discovered that the major pollution culprits were those villages that were located closest to the border, when they analysed the sources of gross pollution. They separated the pollution factors into three categories — human, industrial and natural waste. These southern towns had high counts in all three."

Mr. Booth deplored the apathy of Canadian communities. "Even though the plans for a treatment plant operating in conjunction with Vermont probably won't be settled before 1977, at least Derby Line is making an effort to fight the problem. It is discouraging to get no response from our own communities."

The Massawippi Water Protection Inc. has accomplished many of its objectives in its five year history. Like the MCI, it has prompted the passing of anti-pollution by-laws, and has hired a sanitary inspector to examine that region.

The corporation has opened information centres to keep the public up to date on its progress and to educate land owners in pollution control.

Methods of sewage disposal have either been established or are underway in all five of the municipalities immediately surrounding the lake, and a permanent office with a part time manager is now in existence.

LENNOXVILLE CHILDREN HAVE FUN — More than 100 youngsters gathered at the Lennoxville Optimist Pool in the Centennial Park last night. For the children there were fun and games as 'kiddies night' was held. The evening was organized by the lifeguards who are being paid from an Opportunities for Youth grant this summer. Children participate in a penny race Tuesday.

ROTARY NIGHT SELLS OUT — Sherbrooke Rotarians spent many hours selling tickets for last night's performance of Adam's Fall at Festival Lennoxville. Proceeds will be donated to the Dixville Home for retarded children and the crippled children's camp at Ayer's Cliff.

LENNOXVILLE ELEMENTARY SCHOOL COMMITTEE SURVEY

Members of the Lennoxville Elementary School Committee argue that high pupil-teacher ratios constitute the largest single problem faced by their school.

According to responses made by the committee to a questionnaire administered by the regional office of the ministry of education, members were primarily concerned with provincial language legislation, the operations of the school cafeteria, establishment of curriculum priorities, outdoor recreational activities, staffing, capital budget expenditures and UNICEF collections during the 1973-74 academic year.

The committee feels it is supported in its activities by school principal, teachers, parents, school board administrators and school board commissioners. Although the four general meetings of parents held during the 1973-74 academic year attracted some 200 of 450 parents with children attending the school, the school committee has held its 10 regular meetings in closed session and only once, by invitation, has a non-member attended such a meeting.

Members say that board administrators possess the greatest authority to resolve problems encountered by the school during its day-to-day operations. Following administrators, they continue, these persons hold successively decreasing amounts of authority: school board commissioners, school principal, teachers, parents and the ministry of education.

ETRSB-SFPSB SCHOOL COMMITTEES SURVEYED

Administrators of the Eastern Townships Regional and St. Francis Protestant School Boards have combined the responses of the school committees of these boards and have produced a joint set of responses to questionnaires circulated by the regional office of the ministry of education.

According to the document, these committees concerned themselves with the following matters during the 1973-74 academic year: smoking, discipline, French language instruction, installation of lockers, bus routes for meter students, closing of the Windsor-Brompton Elementary School, safety on buses, provincial language legislation, improvement of school lunch programs, organization of socio-cultural and sports activities, general curriculum, improvement of library facilities and school board finances.

Members of the various committees have pointed to an apparent lack of locker space, smoking, overcrowded classrooms and inadequately developed French instructional programs as the most severe problems of the elementary and secondary schools administered by the SFPSB and ETRSB, respectively.

In general, committee members declare, parents show little, if any, interest in the operation of the committees. Teachers, school board administrators and school board commissioners show 'fair' levels of acceptance of the committees, they continue, and school principals receive the committee well.

The committees claim the school principals have the greatest authority to solve the problems encountered in day-to-day operation by the schools. Following these persons, members say the following groups have successively decreasing amounts of authority: school board administrators, teachers, school board commissioners and parents. They note that the ministry of education also holds the requisite authority.

On the whole, committees contended, liaison between themselves and school board administrators and commissioners should be improved. Specific suggestions for ameliorating the situation include the recommendations that school boards meet at least once per year with the school committees and that school board commissioners make a practice of attending the meetings of school committees in the ward they represent.

Committee members generally agree they will need assistance if their committees are to function well during the 1974-75 academic year. Most important in such matters, they elaborate, is the requirement that they gain greater financial assistance — at present, school boards allocate about $0.25 per pupil attending a given school to that school's committee.

Following financial assistance, the committees assert they will need assistance in the form of information sessions, resource persons, animators, documentation and training sessions in group dynamics.

They suggest a positive step forward may be taken by extending the terms of members to two years from the present one year, in order that more continuous involvement of parents' might be effected."

ETRSB STAFFING 1974-75

As of the most recent meeting of members of the executive committee of the Eastern Townships Regional School Board, the schools administered by the ETRSB required teachers in photolithography, commercial cooking, electricity, mathematics, instrumental music, special education and French.

According to Marlis Wehr, ETRSB director of personnel, the board also requires two guidance counsellors, two Protestant chaplains and an administrative technician for pupil transportation.

Ms. Wehr reported, however, that a counsellor, French specialist, and teachers of beauty culture, construction and instrumental music had been engaged for Alexander Galt Regional High School, and that teachers of English and crafts had been engaged for Richmond Regional High School.

QUEBEC LOANS AND BURSARIES 1974-75

The provincial ministry of education has mailed some 60,000 application forms for loans and bursaries to students who applied for financial assistance from the government last year.

According to the ministry, other students in need of financial assistance can obtain application forms from any college or university within the province, or from any regional office of the ministry itself.

SFPSB DELEGATION TO ETRSB APPROVED

The ministry of education has formally approved the proposed delegation of powers from the St. Francis Protestant School Board to the Eastern Townships Regional School Board. The two boards had both made appropriate resolutions in this regard for presentation to the government.

The authorized delegation applies to the following items: planning and organizing kindergarten and elementary level education programs; organization and provision of psychological and orientation services; engagement of professional teaching personnel, administrators and support personnel; collection of taxes; maintenance of school equipment; negotiations for short-term and long-term financing; general and pedagogical administration; and, student transportation.

Hall committee already at work

NORTH HATLEY (MI) — Nearly 150 citizens of this municipality met at the North Hatley Elementary School Monday night to discuss their plans for adjusting to life without their community hall.

The hall, valued at more than $60,000, was destroyed by fire two weeks ago. Formerly a school, it had served the various citizens' associations as a meeting-center for years.

Emily LeBaron, a spokeswoman for the citizens, told The Record yesterday that the group has mandated a committee to study alternatives and to report back within three months with recommendations as to desirable courses of action.

The committee includes one representative from each of the 15 associations which participated in the meeting, and one representative from the North Hatley municipal council.

"Several alternatives were discussed, although no decisions were reached," Miss LeBaron asserted. "Among others, we considered the possibilities of rebuilding the hall, using an existing building after adding an extension to it, and renovating the old French Catholic school."

Although she emphasized that the figures are not exact, she reported that the group believes construction of a new building will cost between $150,000-$200,000 and renovating the former Catholic school will cost $20,000.

For the moment, citizens will be forced to utilize such space and meeting-places as are presently available within the municipality. Among these sites, Miss LeBaron listed the North Hatley Elementary School, church halls, barns and the library.

She noted that the possibility of utilizing the elementary school — after school hours and on weekends, by arrangement with the school committee — looks promising.

Peace Hopes Promising

The Greek military junta, which had recklessly embarked on the Cyprus adventure, suffered a shattering diplomatic defeat — Greece was completely isolated in the world community — and the military police generals, who in November 1973 had toppled the seven-year-old regime of another military strongman, George Papadopoulos, lost control and resigned. After an interval of seven years Greece once again has a civilian government headed by Constantine Karamanlis, who was Greece's premier from 1955 until 1963.

In 1961, Mr. Karamanlis scored a sweeping electoral victory which registered a sharp popular swing towards his party. Two years later, on June 11, 1963, Mr. Karamanlis resigned over a quarrel with the late King Paul and left Greece for a voluntary exile in Paris. Mr. Karamanlis was then opposed to the king's state visit to London, convinced it would be marred by leftwing demonstrations against the continued detention of Greek Communists convicted of crimes committed during the Greek civil war. It would thus be one of the ironies of history were Mr. Karamanlis now to be instrumental in bringing back to Greece the exiled monarchy, an institution over which the Greek people have been sharply divided ever since the first days of Greek independence in 1821.

During his years in office Mr. Karamanlis headed a centre-right party, the National Radical Union, that was fiercely opposed by the left-centre Centre Union led by the late George Papandreou and his son Andreas. Andreas Papandreou has spent most of the past seven years in Toronto, but it would not be surprising if he were among those itching to get back into the political arena at home.

Mr. Karamanlis thus inherits a shattered economy, a country mobilized and still on the verge of war with Turkey, and shaky political institutions that could all too easily collapse. Indeed, the Portuguese example — Portugal now has a strong leftwing government with the Communists calling the shots — comes easily to mind, although Mr. Karamanlis, unlike the Portuguese liberal leaders, is an experienced politician who knows his people, and, moreover, is a past-master in the subtle rules of the Greek parliamentary game.

His first job will be to defuse the Cyprus situation, not an easy task in view of the brutal atrocities committed on the island, atrocities whose gruesome details are only now coming to light. However, it was Mr. Karamanlis who successfully negotiated the 1960 Zurich agreements, that, but for Archbishop Makarios and Nikos Sampson, would have brought peace to Cyprus. A year later, speaking of Cyprus in Montreal during his official visit to Canada, Mr. Karamanlis said: "In life we do not always get what we want, but what we can." With this pragmatic attitude it might be possible to come to a speedy agreement with the Turks and turn to more important problems, such as the rescue of the Greek economy plunged into near-catastrophe by the reckless spending of the outgoing junta, a galloping inflation and a drastic fall in tourism that hitherto provided Greece with the bulk of her foreign earnings.

Even a man as pragmatic as Mr. Karamanlis will find it difficult to evolve a durable solution for the island. Neither the United States nor the Soviet Union wants to see Cyprus partitioned; and there are conflicting reports whether or not the idea of "double enosis," that is dividing the island between Turkey and Greece, still appeals to the Turks. The Turks will undoubtedly insist on a strong Turkish garrison permanently stationed on the island to protect the Turkish minority.

Premier's heart attack plunges Laos into crisis

VIENTIANE (AP) — Premier Souvanna Phouma's recent heart attack, which came at the end of a week of political turbulence in Laos, has plunged this small southeast Asian kingdom into its gravest crisis since the formation of a new coalition government here four months ago.

The 72-year-old Souvanna is the middle man in Laos's third attempt to reconcile its wrangling rightists and leftists, and his absence from the political stage at this time might have serious repercussions, diplomats say.

Souvanna is the architect of the peace agreement that ended more than two decades of fighting here between the royal government and the pro-Communist Pathet Lao.

Diplomats say he put together a ceasefire and a workable coalition at a time when fighting continued unabated in neighboring Cambodia and Vietnam.

STRAIN IS TOO MUCH

Last week, however, the strain of playing "umpire" between the two sides evidently proved too much and the premier suffered a heart attack that seems certain to keep him out of politics for at least two or three months.

With Souvanna confined to his bed, a large number of unanswered questions hang over the coalition.

Basically, there are two schools of thought about what might happen in Laos. There are those who support the "drifting" theory and there are those who favor the "action" theory.

The "drifters" argue that, in Laos, time is never of the essence and that all important decisions can be put aside for several months until Prince Souvanna Phouma is well again.

According to this school, the country will just drift happily along for weeks on end, not going forward, not going back. Nothing will change and nothing controversial will be discussed until the "umpire" is back in his chair.

Those in the non-drift school argue that it is naive to expect that Laos can be put "on ice" at a time when the rightists and leftists are fighting out a vital struggle over the sort of country this is going to be.

Already, these sources say, there is "growing and disturbing" evidence that the Pathet Lao will pursue a rigorous hard line in the government as they press for the things they want.

ACTING PM UNLIKELY

There was some speculation here that an acting prime minister might be appointed to run the country during Souvanna's illness, but this now is highly unlikely, say well-placed Western sources.

"I don't think there will be an acting prime minister," said one diplomat.

"It's not Souvanna's style. If he's in the country, he's the boss."

Meanwhile, the premier's health continues to be the main topic of conversation in Vientiane and each new official bulletin is scanned closely.

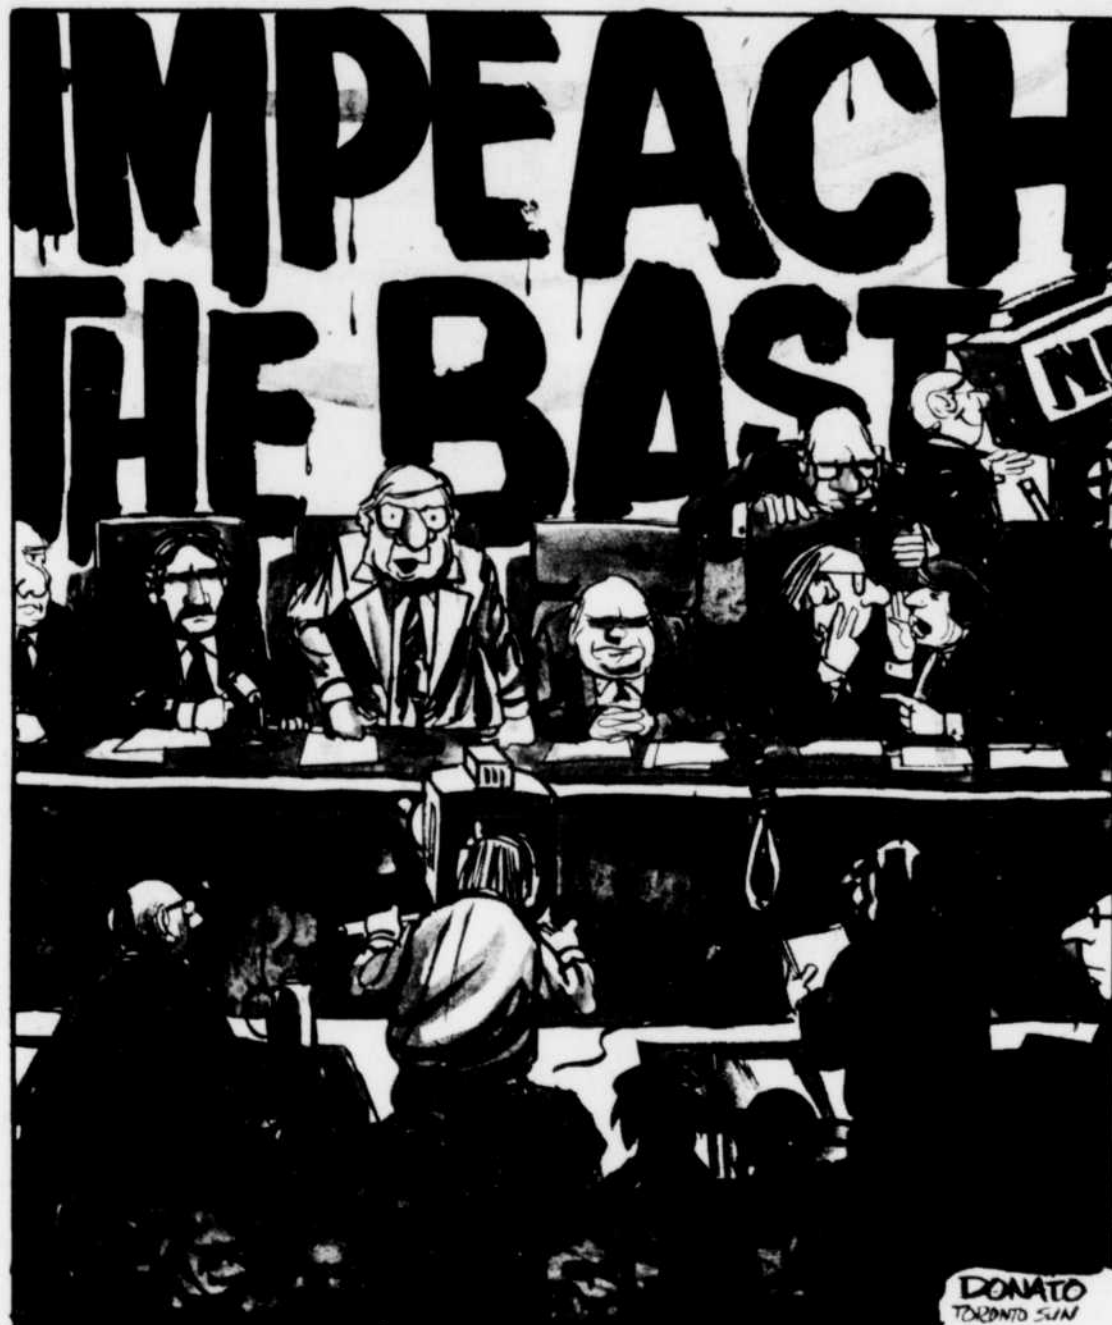

Many sources claim, however, that the official bulletins "are not giving the full story."

The reports sometimes vary. One senior diplomat said confidently a few days ago: "He's pretty chipper. He's on the way back. He was grumping about his cigars the other day so I guess he's feeling better."

Another well-informed source said the same day: "He is recovering well from the heart attack, but he is a diabetic and he's being treated for that and for water on the lung and a bad cough. His condition is giving reason for concern."

GO RIGHT OR LEFT?

Assuming there has to be a new prime minister, who should it be? A rightist or a leftist? Education Minister Leum In-sisengmay, 57, identified with the right wing, is one deputy prime minister; Pathet Lao Foreign Minister Phoumi Vongvichit, 64, is the other.

"COMMENTS THAT THIS COMMITTEE IS BIASED ARE COMPLETELY UNFOUNDED!"

Watergate prosecutors closing in on Rebozo

WASHINGTON — The Watergate prosecutors have picked up the investigation of President Nixon's friend, Bebe Rebozo, where the Senate investigators left off. Prosecutors working on the case, say our sources, believe they already have enough evidence to seek an indictment.

The Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, which investigated President Nixon's tax returns, may also start digging into Rebozo's financial dealings with the President. Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., is considering an in-depth investigation.

Both Mills and the prosecutors are particularly interested in our report of May 28 that Rebozo paid some of the President's personal bills.

We traced an $11,978.84 payment, for example, to a Florida firm for work on Nixon's Key Biscayne vacation home. We reported that Rebozo also paid for a swimming pool, pool table and architectural services for the President.

The Senate Watergate Committee in its closing hours confirmed that Rebozo had expended funds for the President, ranging from $45,621 for improvements on the Key Biscayne properties to much of the $5,650 spent on birthday earnings for the First Lady.

The money to pay the President's expenses, the committee charged, had been deposited in the form of $100 bills in secret trust accounts. The circumstantial evidence suggested that Rebozo had used cash campaign contributions to pay the President's bills.

We reported on August 6, 1971, for example, that billionaire Howard Hughes had dispatched $100,000 in $100 bills to Rebozo for the President's use. The first $50,000 bundle was turned over to Rebozo, to the best recollection of those who delivered it, in the summer of 1969. This coincides with Rebozo's expenditures in behalf of the President.

The Senate Watergate Committee sought to determine who was telling the truth about the disposition of Hughes' $100,000 cash gift. Rebozo testified that he had left the money untouched in a safe deposit box. But other witnesses, including the President's former attorney Herbert Kalmbach, suggested the money had been distributed to the President's secretary Rose Mary Woods and to his brothers, Donald and Edward Nixon.

Nuclear Defects: The Atomic Energy Commission has found serious defects in nuclear equipment manufactured by the nation's largest builder of nuclear reactors.

An unpublicized AEC investigation has uncovered deficiencies in several Westinghouse motors designed for nuclear reactors. Furthermore, Westinghouse made no effort to inform its customers of these flaws, the AEC has charged.

While the defects in Westinghouse's nuclear motors technically didn't violate safety requirements, an AEC spokesman said in response to our inquiries, "it concerns us that a manufacturer is telling utilities that its motor will perform a certain way, and it doesn't."

Discussing the charges with my reporter Howie Kurtz, a Westinghouse spokesman acknowledged that "we need some beefing up of our quality assurance program" but promised that the company is taking corrective action. He said only a small number of nuclear motors were found defective and these caused "no hazard to the public."

There are 80 Westinghouse nuclear reactors either under construction or generating power across the U.S.

Dental Denial: If the American Dental Association is as careless with the nation's teeth as it is with the facts, then this will be a bumper year for tooth decay.

In our July 18 column, we reported that the Food and Drug Administration was taking a tentative new look at fluoridation after respected scientists had raised questions about its safety and effectiveness.

The dental association, which has laid its reputation on the line for fluoridation, rushed out a press release stating that unnamed FDA officials had assured them our column "is simply not true."

The dentists' public relations chief, Peter Goulding, has now confessed to us that he issued the press release without even speaking to the FDA Associate Commissioner, Dr. Lloyd Tepper, whom we quoted by name in our column. Nor had Goulding bothered to check with us or the scientists who had raised the fluoridation question.

We again contacted Tepper, who vigorously reaffirmed that he has just asked for a scientists' study of the fluoridation questions.

Our own evidence indicates that fluoridation is probably both safe and effective. But with most Americans exposed to it at one time or another, the dentists should be the last people to object to a definitive, objective, nationwide study.

Empty chairs match Congress' rhetoric

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Time and again during these indolent hours of summer, members of Congress rise in their wisdom to address themselves to a single question: "Mr. Speaker, I suggest the lack of a quorum." How dignified. How diplomatic. What the honorable gentlemen are really saying is: "Where the hell is everybody?"

It is a gravely important question. The population at high levels of government appears as of late to be infected with "Kissingitis." The President is managing to be absent from his post about 40 per cent of the time. The Vice President has traveled 100,000 miles in seven months making 400 notably unnotable public appearances.

In Congress, there are far more tourists in the gallery than members of the floor. William Simon is on a 16-day, seven nation tour.

Naturally, everyone has an excuse. Harrumph, kaff-kaff. There is a law in the U.S. Code (Title 2, Sec. 38) which provides for salary deductions when members of Congress are absent unless the reason assigned is illness. But the statute hasn't been enforced in 100 years, says Senate Secretary Francis Valeo, because: "We feel members are on duty 24 hours a day wherever they are."

The President, too, we are told, is knocking his brains out for the good of America be he at Camp David or San Clemente. "Would you have him stay in the White House every day?" asks a bored aide incredulously. "Where would we be with China if we did?"

And so, too, it is with the capital's third or fourth best known gadabout, Gerald Ford. His people rationalize that his travels are "unifying the country," and "making government more visible." And the man himself reasons that he should not "stay on the banks of the Potomac and listen only to the strident voices" of Washington.

Sorry. Nobody is fooled. Certainly public officials must move around to function fully, but it is at the expense of their primary responsibilities, as it may be now, then the excuses are phony as the language "suggesting" a lack of a quorum. What the nation needs now is not visible government so much as working government. Poor leadership does not regain public confidence by absenteeism, instead it just passes from lethargy to the comatose state.

The situation seems especially unfortunate in the case of the itinerant Vice President. He, not the choice of the American people, was presented to them not as a unifier but a doer. He was selected, it was promised, because his 25 years in Congress qualified him as the man to join that body to the Administration in the course of progressive legislation. Great goals were ahead; Gerry Ford was just the fellow to see at least some would be met.

Great goals? Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said the other day that while inflation is paralyzing millions of citizens, "Neither Congress nor the Administration is doing a damn thing." Strip mining legislation flounders at the expense of land and energy future. Nuclear proliferation accelerates, to the threat of all humanity. Even when legislation does move, it seems, it's often unwise: the Senate Commerce Committee has recently passed, without dissent, a bill to transfer wildlife control on public lands to state authority, a good thing for hunters but doom for the animals.

Meanwhile the Vice President, the doer, is off about the nation — 33 states so far — putting people to sleep with speeches of better times. Even worse, many of the speeches are for Republicans only (75 by count, raising about $1 million for partisan politics).

Far better it would be if he stayed in Washington to help calm the "strident voices" which if he listened to carefully, he might identify as those of the people he was foisted upon. Cut the jet engines. Say no to the invitations. Sit down to work, sir, or step aside for someone else; that seems to be in vogue these days.

On congressional cowardice

By Don Oakley

Such is the state of political and moral leadership in this country that even the anxiously awaited decision by the Supreme Court on the President's right to withhold Watergate evidence is not likely to prod the nation out of the wallows in which it has been floundering for the past year or more.

If the White House can no longer continue to stonewall the investigation with impunity, there is nothing to prevent it from swamp-marching for months to come by taking its merry old time in assembling the material — no doubt discovering along the way that some of the tapes are nowhere to be found or that there are mysterious gaps in others.

No, the responsibility for pursuing Watergate to its logical and necessary conclusion — essentially, the determination of the extent of President Nixon's involvement in the cover-up — rests where it has rested from the beginning, with the Congress of the United States, in particular the House of Representatives, and most especially with that body's Republican members.

And the only means of making that determination, as it was a year ago, is through implementation of the impeachment clause of the Constitution.

What this country desperately needs is a Republican of stature to lead impeachment proceedings in the House, both for the sake of his party's good name and for the welfare of the country. What is needed is a man like Pennsylvania's Thaddeus Stevens, who almost single-handedly inspired the impeachment drive against President Andrew Johnson a century ago.

Historians agree, of course, that Johnson was wholly innocent of any impeachable offense, let alone any crime and that Stevens was misguided in his attempt to emasculate the presidency and make Congress supreme over the other two branches of the government. But at least Stevens was impelled by principles he believed in, not by what he thought would "play in Peoria."

In less than a month, Johnson was impeached by the House, tried by the Senate on the evidence and acquitted. The question was settled once and for all.

What Republican congressman, at any time during this agonizingly drawn-out Watergate crisis, has had the courage to demand in ringing tones the trial — and the appropriate punishment or exoneration — of a Republican President who has been accused of betraying his public trust?

Even the Democrats have waffled and temporized for fear of making the impeachment investigation look like a "par-tisan issue." In its final report, the Senate Watergate Committee thought it best to delete this plain statement from its draft:

"It is President Nixon who must be held responsible and accountable for the actions of his subordinates. Not only was he the candidate on behalf of whom these activities were undertaken, he also set the moral and ethical standards by which his re-election campaign operated."

House Democratic leaders continue to assert that they have not yet made up their minds about impeachment — not about a verdict, mind you, which would be up to the Senate, but whether there should be a trial at all. Other Democrats express concern that any declarations by them would make it harder to "attract" Republican support for impeachment.

(Ironically, this very concern of Democrats to avoid the slightest appearance of partisanship has convinced many Americans that it is they, not President Nixon, who are stalling on Watergate and attempting to wring as much political advantage from it as they can.)

Steinberg where the consumer counts!

There's always a way to put together the fixings for a happy picnic — while staying within the limits of your budget and obeying the fundamentals of good nutrition.

But to benefit fully from the countless mouth-watering suggestions published in newspapers and magazines, it's important to follow a few rules of safety to avoid any risk of food poisoning.

- Cold meats, chopped eggs and dairy products, as well as grilled and barbecued meats, must be kept in a portable cooler until just ready to serve. Bacteria develop rapidly.

- As salads are hard to keep, it's always best to keep vegetables and other ingredients in separate plastic containers until serving, just as it's best to open tins (meat, fish, etc.) at the very last minute.

For a picnic that's sure to be a perfect treat, there's no need for gourmet fare. Simply a bit of imagination, a little sunshine and blue sky and lots of high spirits.
Happy picnic!

Glen Brown believes in confederation

By GLEN BROWN
Brome-Missisquoi MNA

As many of us were born and raised in the Eastern Townships and as English is our mother tongue or as bilingualism with some of us, has been an acquired right, what then is our official position here in "La Belle Province?"

Are we interlopers who have imposed ourselves on our French-Canadian friends? Have we in fact insisted on our status? Have we no rights other than the good will of the majority of people who inhabit Quebec? Have we contributed nothing to the welfare and financial well-being of this province?

QUOTATIONS FROM THE DEBATES ON CONFEDERATION

The great architects of Confederation in Canada were Sir Georges Etienne Cartier, George Brown, Alexander Galt, Sir Etienne P. Tache, John A. Macdonald, Oliver Mowat, T. D'Arcy McGee, William McDougall, Alexander Campbell, J.C. Chapais and Hector L. Langevin.

However for sustained effort, for inspired leadership, for considered judgment, for salesmanship in Canada, and in the Maritimes, there was none of the Fathers of Confederation who can be said to have contributed more to confederation than Sir George Etienne Cartier.

Even John A. Macdonald voted against the constitutional committee report in 1864, but Cartier did not flag or fail in his search for the best solution of Canada's ills at the time.

Georges Etienne Cartier was a patriotic French Canadian who supported the aspirations of his race, in the most loyal way. This was the man who contributed more to confederation than any other individual.

Therefore we can say that, in fact, Cartier and the Quebec-French Canadian group desired confederation more than any other group in the British North American possessions. It was their cherished dream to escape from an enforced legislative prison with an English majority.

I quote Sir Richard Cartwright, Hansard 1881.

"I believed that, save one man, he (Cartier) did more, he risked more, he sacrificed more to bring about confederation than any other man in Canada. The only man who risked as much and sacrificed as much was the late Hon. George Brown."

"To these two gentlemen, I believe, the confederation of the provinces was largely due, and I am bound to say that to both of them, in that respect, this country owes a great debt of gratitude."

I want to establish without doubt that confederation and the British North America Act, which was, in fact, the instrument of confederation, was the wish of those powerful in the councils of French Canadians and that Georges Etienne Cartier, its motivator, believed that it was the only answer to Canada.

The first steps to confederation were taken at Charlottetown, where delegations from the Maritime British North American possessions met with Canada East (Quebec) and Canada West (Ontario). There, after secret meetings, Cartier gave a speech in Halifax which I quote in part:

"We have just come from a conference which kept its deliberations up to a certain point secret (Charlottetown conference 1864). What cannot be ignored, however, is that we discussed this question—Can we find means of reuniting the great national units which constitute the British American provinces, and to make of them a great nation, or shall we continue to be separate provinces, having, it is true, the same noble and gracious sovereign, but divided politically?"

"Everyone knows that this division necessarily implies a certain amount of weakness, and everyone must feel that if all the provinces have a general or common government they will thus become a more important portion of the British Empire."

"When we consider that Canada has a population of 3,500,000 it is easy to see that we possess the first of those elements requisite to make a nation. If we next examine the territory occupied by these provinces, we will find another element required for the foundation of a great state."

"We have in Canada, it is true, the two principal elements of nationality—population and territory—but we also know what we lack. Great as is our population and our territory, there is wanting that other element absolutely necessary to make a powerful nation, the maritime element."

"Whilst in Canada we know that we have a large population and that it has settled sufficient territory to merit an honorable rank, we wish to acquire still greater importance, which can be accomplished by your uniting with us. You must not forget on your part that though the Maritime provinces are situated on the sea coast, they will never be more than a string of hills and a sea coast if they refuse to join us."

There are, again, too few of us who know the background of a deal worked out 100 years ago that cleared up stresses built up from 1759 and before. The only way to approach the situation, is to review events dealing up to the British North America Act.

On Friday, February 3rd, 1865, the Hon. Sir E.P. Tache moved "that a humble address be presented to Her Majesty, praying that she may be graciously pleased to cause a measure to be submitted to the Imperial parliament for the purpose of uniting the colonies of Canada, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, in one government with provisions based on the following resolutions; which were adopted at a conference of delegates from the said Colonies, held at the City of Quebec, on the tenth of October 1864."

This was followed by the 72 Resolutions that are the basis of our British North America Act. Sir E.P. Tache, Prime Minister of Canada, had this to say in proposing his resolution:

"If a Federal union were obtained it would be tantamount to a separation of the provinces, and Lower Canada would thereby preserve its autonomy together with all the institutions it held so dear, and over which they could exercise the watchfulness and surveillance necessary to preserve them unimpaired."

"But there might be a portion of the inhabitants of Lower Canada who might, at a first glance, have greater reason to complain, than the French Roman Catholics; these were the English Protestants. And why? Because they were in a minority, but he (Tache) thought, if they took the trouble to consider the subject they would be reassured and satisfied with the scheme."

Much had been said on the war of races; but that war was extinguished on the day the British government granted Canada responsible government; by which all its inhabitants, without distinction of race or creed, were placed on a footing of equality. The war of races found its grave in the resolutions of the 3rd of September 1841. We were so situated that there must be mutual forbearance. He believed the French Canadians would do all in their power to render justice to their fellow subjects of English origin, and it should not be forgotten that if the French Canadians were in a majority in Lower Canada (Quebec) the English would be in a majority in the general government, and that no act of real injustice could take place, even if there was a disposition to perpetuate it, without it being reversed there."

The following are excerpts from the speech of Georges Etienne Cartier given February 7th, 1865:

"We had to deal with five colonies, inhabited by men of the same sympathies and interests and in order to become a great nation they required only to be brought under one general government. The matter resolved itself into this; either we must obtain British North American Confederation or be absorbed in an American Confederation."

"No other scheme presented itself but the Federation system, and that was the project which now recommended itself to the parliament of Canada (Quebec and Ontario)."

"Some parties—through the press and by other modes—pretended that it was impossible to carry out federation, on account of the differences of races and religion. Those who took this view of the question were in error. It was just the reverse. It was precisely on account of the variety of races, local interests, etc. that the Federation system ought to be resorted to."

In our own federation we should have Catholic and Protestant, English, French, Irish and Scotch and each by its efforts and his success would increase the prosperity and glory of the new confederacy."

He viewed the diversity of races in British North America in this way: "We were of different races, not for the purpose of warring against each other, but in order to compete and emulate for the general welfare. We could not do away with the distinctions of races. We could not legislate for the disappearance of the French Canadians from American soil, but British and French Canadians alike could appreciate their position relative to each other."

They were placed like great families beside each other, and their contact produced a healthy spirit of emulation. It was a benefit rather than otherwise that we had a diversity of races."

"This scheme," Cartier repeated, "met with the approval of all moderate men. The extreme men, the socialists, democrats and annexationists were opposed to it."

The Hon. member for Wellington, Mr. Sanborn, laid great stress on the danger which might be incurred by the Protestant minority in the local legislation of Lower Canada (Quebec). He fears that they may not be sufficiently protected by the Catholic majority in respect of their religion, their schools and possibly their property."

I am astonished to hear such language from the lips of a man, who like myself, represents a division of more than one half the population which is French Canadian and Catholic; that fact in itself is a proof of the liberality of our fellow countrymen."

I heard that remark with pain; but I can tell him that the Protestant minority of Lower Canada (Quebec) have nothing to fear from the Catholic majority of that province; their religion is guaranteed by treaty, and their schools and the rights which may be connected with them, are to be settled by legislation to take place hereafter, and when that legislation is laid before the houses, those members, who so greatly tremble now, for the rights of the Protestant minority will have an opportunity of protecting that minority; they may then urge their reasons, and insist that the Protestants shall not be placed in a position of the slightest danger."

Even granting that the Protestants were wronged by the local legislature of Lower Canada (Quebec), could they not avail themselves of the protection of the Federal Legislature? And would not the Federal government exercise strict surveillance over the action of the local legislatures in these matters? Why should it be sought to give existence to imaginary fears in Lower Canada? I say imaginary because the liberality of the inhabitants of Lower Canada—liberality of which they gave proof long ago, by enacting the emancipation of the Jews before any other nation of the world had dreamed of such a measure—is well known."

No, far from wishing to oppress other nationalities, all that the French Canadians ask is to live at peace with all the world, they are quite willing that they should enjoy their rights, provided that all live peaceably together!"

I cannot refrain from saying a word as to the Protestants of Lower Canada (Quebec), and as to the liberality evinced towards them by the French and Catholic population. It is feared that we may combine together in order to treat them unjustly."

I may be wrong in referring to the fact, but it is true that the French Canadians have always lived on more cordial terms with the English Protestants than with the Irish, who are nevertheless of the same religion, and of the same belief as themselves. If this good feeling has always existed what is there to fear."

I have quoted to you the actual debates on confederation by three great Canadians who were of this province of Quebec when the British North America Act was proposed. Is there any doubt as to their intentions?"

Their speeches give a clear cut message of fierce determination to promote Canada and confederation as a vehicle of tolerance and understanding between all races in Canada. How well their arguments fit into the pattern of today's problems."

I hear, and read, and see a group of modernistic beatniks led by, and expressed through a minority of news media in the papers, over the radio, on television and from the soap box; that Geobells like, attack our institutions through innuendo, slander, inference—half truths—out of context quotations and expression of out of the ordinary situations."

They are merely adopting those methods that gave rise to the terrible regimes of Nazi and Fascist thought. The fundamental of which is to have a tight minority well organized, to control the majority; because of the inertia of the larger group."

What then is our situation at this time in the province of Quebec? May I quote the working documents used in the Constitutional Conference of July 1968 by the late and beloved Premier of Quebec Daniel Johnson—and I quote:

"It is important to recognize that there are fundamental rights, both individual and collective, which precede any constitution and which no majority may legitimately infringe; that is the case, in particular, for the freedoms inherent in the human person or the natural right of nations or peoples to self-determination."

"This proposal does not in any way prejudice the division of powers and responsibilities between the two areas of government with respect to protection and enjoyment of these fundamental rights. It simply establishes the principle that constitutions are made for men and not men for constitutions."

It is even fair to say that constitutions exist primarily for the protection of individuals and minorities. Majorities have other means of protecting themselves and may be tempted to abuse their power. An injustice does not become a just act merely because it has been approved by a majority. Thus, there are moral rules and natural limits which majorities cannot set aside without becoming tyrannical."

One of the principal objectives of any law is to establish the rules and limits within which governments must act in order to make legality coincide as much as possible with legitimacy."

"Equality is an ideal to be striven for in every way possible. Be they French—or English—speaking and wherever they may live, all Canadians must be full citizens, having in principle the same rights, the same responsibilities and the same opportunities for self-fulfilment."

"However, if we are to achieve equality, we must go beyond mathematical formulas or rigorous legal provisions, for we shall not do so by extending the same measure of assistance to all; on the contrary, those who most need help must be given more."

"Just as economic equality can be brought about only by the fairest possible equalization of wealth between states and between regions within each state, so the more imperilled of our two national cultures must receive greater support if cultural equality is to be attained."

The secret of relations within any country is the good will and tolerance of its population. No set of rules can be the life blood of a nation. We of Quebec, today, have a reputation set to none in the nations of the world. We have proved ourselves in peace and war. As Sir Georges Etienne Cartier said, "There are no obstacles which human wisdom cannot overcome. All that is needed to triumph is a strong will and a noble ambition."

School committee closing meeting

NORTH HATLEY - The last meeting of the school year was held at the school with six committee members, the staff representative, O. Vaughan, the principal, W. Walls and three parents attending.

The meeting was opened by the chairman, B. Gauthier.

The minutes were read by the secretary, J. McLellan and approved as corrected. The secretary read a letter from Oliver Vaughan, thanking the school committee for their part in organizing the retirement party given on June 9 at the Community Hall.

Regarding the possible enlargement of the school property, Mr. Walls had contacted Mr. R. Losito, who is on the North Hatley Recreation and Sports Committee, and proposed that a playground be established on the property. It was hoped that an agreement with the municipality and the school board could possibly be made to use the school facilities, particularly from September thru June.

The Stevens concert proved very successful and the CEGEP demonstration was reported as very interesting and was very much enjoyed by the children. Mr. Walls reported that kindergarten will probably be held on alternate days for the full day for the 74-75 year. This would enable the children to travel on the regular buses. The starting time of 8:10 a.m. planned for the coming year was also discussed.

F. Stuart was welcomed as school commissioner elect. Mrs. Stuart was elected by acclamation in June. It was reported that the matter with the Catholic School Commission had been resolved.

The cost of bussing regarding the Montreal trip was not available. The bill will be presented to the endowment committee for payment. Mrs. Vaughan and Margaret Cheal reported to the committee on their trip to Montreal with the students.

Irene Humphrey and C. Losito were thanked by the chairman for their work in organizing the retirement party. Mrs. Vaughan, on behalf of the staff, asked for funds for a cook-out and it was decided that this would be held on the last day of school. Mrs. Gauthier and Mrs. McLellan agreed to organize the cook-out with the help of the members.

Due to the absence of the treasurer, Kay Hartwell, the treasurer's report was read by the secretary. Mrs. Losito reported that the Open House at Galt has been very successful with a large attendance of parents.

The secretary read letters received from the municipality regarding the school road and from MNA G. Vaillancourt regarding the North Road.

A letter was read from the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations acknowledging the committee's cheque and requesting a letter of application for membership. A letter was also read from the Associations regarding Bill 22. It was moved that a letter be written expressing the committee's support.

The chairman read the minutes of the Bill 22 Committee meeting. It was decided that a letter be sent from the committee to the Quebec Premier, Education Minister and MNA regarding Bill 22.

The secretary read a letter from M. Knapp clarifying the administrative committee of the endowment funds.

Discussion took place on the evaluation of the Outdoor Education excursions.

The 1973-74 School Committee Report was read by the chairman.

Mrs. Vaughan and Mrs. Stuart expressed their enjoyment in working with the school committee members during the year.

It was moved that the Chairman of Volunteer Parents be given a week's notice to enable her to solicit volunteers needed for trips, etc.

In reviewing the year, ways to improve the meetings were discussed and Mr. Walls expressed his enjoyment in working with the members for the benefit of the students.

Smith powers St. Louis over Phillies

Reggie Smith slammed two home runs and a triple Tuesday night, driving in all four runs in St. Louis Cardinals' 4-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The win moved St. Louis to within one game of first-place Philadelphia in the National League East.

"I was leaving too many men on base," Smith said, after the Cards posted their fourth consecutive victory. "So I came out early and took 25 minutes of extra batting practice. I discovered I was dropping my shoulder and made the correction."

Elsewhere in the National League, Montreal Expos edged Chicago Cubs 4-3 in 10 innings; Pittsburgh Pirates split a doubleheader with New York, beating the Mets 6-0 in the opener before losing the second game 4-3; San Francisco Giants scored three runs in the 12th inning and beat Atlanta Braves 6-3; Houston Astros defeated Cincinnati Reds 8-4, and Los Angeles Dodgers blanked San Diego Padres 8-0.

Smith, who came to the Cards in a winter deal with Boston Red Sox and is batting .318, tripled home Bake McBride in the first inning to give the Cards a 1-0 lead.

TIED GAME

The Phillies tied it in the second as Del Unser tripled and scored on a passed ball, but Smith put the Cards ahead again with a homer in the sixth, off starter Jim Lonborg.

After Dave Cash's bases-loaded single gave the Phils a 3-2 lead in the seventh, Smith came on in the eighth with a man on first to face relief pitcher Jesus Hernandez. Smith homered to the right-field bullpen for a 4-3 victory.

Sports day at Sutton

SUTTON — On Saturday, August 3rd, 1974, the Sports Club of CFCF-TV station in Montreal will pay a visit to the Village of Sutton, P.Q. for a ball game and other activities organized by the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 158 and the Knights of Columbus.

Our two organizations decided to organize a day of sports and other recreation for the Village of Sutton and the whole township and area.

The activities will start with a parade through the town at 1:00 p.m. with decorated bicycles. A prize to be offered for the best wheels at the same time, this to be approximately 1:30 p.m. All children wishing to take part and enter this contest should call 538-2210 after 5:00 p.m. to enter their names.

At about 1:45 p.m. the ball game will commence at the Municipal Ball Park in Sutton between CFCF-TV and the combined Legion-Knights of Columbus team.

Between 5:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. a buffet supper will be served at the United Methodist Church at the corner of Maple and Pleasant Streets. Tickets are priced at $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for children under 12 years of age.

At about 8:00 p.m. we hope to have a street dance in front of the legion building.

We extend a very cordial invitation to the population of the whole area to help make this a successful day and evening. Anyone may participate in this event.

Hamilton rallies to defeat Argos

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Tiger-cats rallied in the fourth quarter Tuesday night to defeat Toronto Argonauts 29-22 in an Eastern Football Conference game.

The result, before 28,391 fans at Ivor Wynne Stadium, left each club with a 1-1 record.

Dave Fleming plunged one yard for a touchdown that won the game after Ian Sunter had kicked two field goals to tie the score at 22-22.

Sunter kicked five field goals and converted touchdowns by Fleming and Andy Hopkins.

Eric Allen and Doyle Orange produced touchdowns for the Argos and Zenon Andrusyshyn converted both. He also kicked two field goals and two singles—one that travelled 88 yards.

Bill Etter replaced starting quarterback Chuck Ealey in the third quarter with the Ticats behind 22-16. Etter directed his team into position for Sunter's two field goals that knotted the score.

Ealey has been hobbled by a hamstring injury that kept him out of the lineup for many of the pre-season games.

The turning point in the game came when the Argos gambled and lost on a third-and-two situation early in the fourth quarter.

Quarterback Mike Rae, following instructions from the bench, sent Ed Shuttlesworth into the centre of the Hamilton defensive line. Shuttlesworth was stopped and the Ticats took the ball upfield for the score that put them ahead.

Etter combined a sharp passing attack with Andy Hopkins'

Mike Jorgensen's two-run single in the 10th inning gave Montreal its victory over Chicago.

The Expos loaded the bases in the 10th when Ron Hunt was hit by a pitch and Willie Davis and Larry Lintz walked, Davis intentionally. Oscar Zamora relieved Cubs' starter Rick Reuschel, but Jorgensen greeted him with a line single to right field.

Pittsburgh's Jim Rooker blanked the Mets on five hits in the opener, but New York's Jerry Koosman came back to stop Pittsburgh on five hits in the second game.

HEBNER HOT

Richi Hebner singled home one run and scored one in Pittsburgh's four-run second inning in the opener. Hebner singled and scored again in the Pirates' two-run fourth.

In the second game, Pittsburgh jumped out to a 3-0 lead, but the Mets tied it in the sixth on a three-run homer by Ed Kranepool, then won it in the eighth when Cleon Jones doubled home Jerry Grote.

Chris Speier's bases-loaded double in the 12th inning provided the winning margin for the Giants, who tied the game in the ninth on a pinch-homer by Dave Kingman.

Lee May drove in three runs with a pair of doubles and Cesar Cedeno hit his 22nd home run of the season to power Houston Astros past Cincinnati.

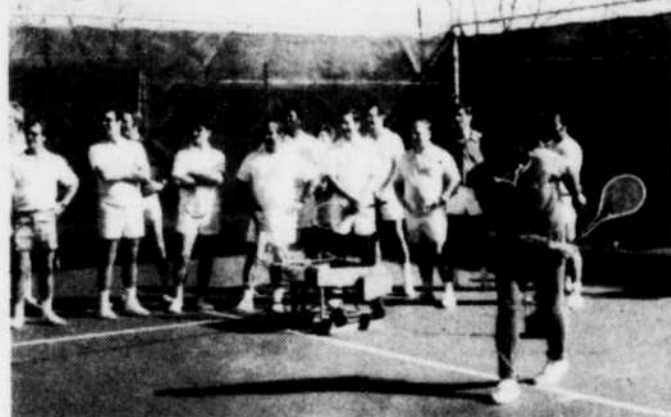

Johnny Bench and Tony Perez homered for the Reds, No. 19 of the season for each.

Andy Messersmith, 12-2, combined with Mike Marshall to blank the Padres on five hits. Messersmith went the first seven innings, then Marshall finished.

TENNIS FOR THE FUN OF IT

BY ROD LAVER & ROY EMERSON

Is 40 too late for someone who's never played the game to take up tennis?

Tennis attracts all ages. You're never too old to start.

Roy: Absolutely not. We've had beginners at our clinics in their 50's and 60's. They've had a great time, and they've picked up the game rather quickly.

Rod: Let me qualify that a little. Age itself isn't as important as the sort of shape you're in, and, frankly, how much talent you have. Not everybody can develop the sort of timing you need for tennis at the same rate. But certainly you should try. And at that age, lessons are a must.

Roy: I'll say. In fact, the best way to find out just how suited for the game you are is to arrange for a half-dozen or so lessons from a good pro. You're much better off hitting with a pro or an accomplished player than you are just banging the ball around with another beginner. You'll never get better that way. Take a bunch of lessons. You don't have to play like Rod Laver to have fun at tennis.

Rod: And sometimes playing like Rod Laver isn't fun either! The beauty of tennis is that it's a game you can play into your 70's.

running to set up the winning touchdown by Fleming with less than six minutes remaining.

EIGHT RECEPTIONS

The Ticats gained 27 first downs to Toronto's 17 and, led by big Tony Gabriel's eight receptions for 118 yards, outstripped the Argos 288-180 in yards gained passing.

The Argos held an advantage in the running department, out-rushing the Ticats 170-144 as Shuttlesworth gained 79 yards on 17 carries and Orange picked up 62 on 12 tries.

Andrusyshyn was the kingpin in the punting, with a 50-yard average — 10 yards farther than Hamilton's kicker Sunter.

33.5 miles of heat and dust

'Ride and Tie' for masochists only

By Murray Olderman

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore. — (NEA) — The dust clogs the nostrils and at better than 5,000 feet elevation the breath comes in sharp, painful gasps. The terrain, coming across the Chiloquin Ridge and down through Hell for Slim Draw and over Hogback Mountain, is tortuous and rocky.

It's a hell of a place to run a race.

But they did. And they even had some people watching it. I can testify to that because I left bits of my flywheel shield, oil pan and muffler which were gouged out on the dirt trail to Hell for Slim Draw.

The contestants were a rare breed, too. They included a physician, a taxidermist, a couple of city firemen, a rodeo cowboy, two college professors, a tavern keeper, a minister and a college track coach. Plus some descendants of Arabia.

The event, to allay the suspense, was something called Levi's fourth annual "Ride and Tie" Race, and it's a cinch you'll see nothing like it anywhere else on the American sporting scene.

It was won by a couple of tousled blond characters from Auburn, Calif., up in the foothills of the High Sierra, who looks like escaped beach boys, and their horse, Smoke. Gordy Ainsley is a 27-year-old drug abuse counselor who claims to be the first 200-pounder in the history of the world to run the marathon under three hours. Jim Larimer is a 25-year-old future elementary school teacher. By avocation, they are both endurance riders. Smoke, who belongs to Larimer, is three-quarters Arabian and he has to be a rugged stallion because Ainsley, with full tack, put 221 pounds on the horse's back.

A digression is vital to explain "tie and ride." It's a transportation form of the old West when two guys had only one horse between them. So one man (or woman) starts out running and the other riding. And the rider ties his horse at a place on the trail where his partner on foot can catch up to it, and begins running himself. Then the original runner mounts and rides on ahead and they repeat the process.

A bearded public relations man named Bud Johns, who is a retired sports writer, dreamed up this race as both a promotional and fun thing a few years ago. Now they've got these characters, both men and women, coming in from all over the country to punish themselves by alternately running and riding over this scenic but forbidding country.

From a remote meadow on the Sprague River in the back country to the finish line at the Fairgrounds in Klamath Falls, it was 33.5 hot, dusty, sweaty and grimy miles.

Ainsley and Larimer made it in four hours, 12 minutes and 45 seconds — more than a quarter of an hour ahead of the field.

"I had," said Larimer looking at 6-3 1/2, 205-pound Gordy, "two horses on my team." Jim was swigging on his first beer in three months of arduous training. He was also looking forward to his cut of the $3,150 winners' swag, put up by Levi Strauss as sponsor, to pay for the rest of his education at Sacramento

State.

Gordy said, "I feel terribly grateful to Jim's horse. Smoke was the only one of the trio who had to make the 33-plus miles on his own hooves."

Ken Williams, a mustachioed dude who finished third in the field of 46 teams, viewed it as a spiritual experience. He is about to get his master's degree in economics from San Jose State and was once a distance runner in track.

"It's got me by the grabolies," he said. "Once you've done it, and this was my third 'tie and ride,' you realize it's the toughest thing in the world. It's my biggest loser economically every year in time and expense, but you get married to this thing."

"Why do I do it? It's the toughest game in town and I've tried them all. In a marathon, you become mesmerized with fatigue until everything is just a red glow. In this one, you're just as tired, but you've got to think because there's more than just you involved. There's your horse and your partner. I'm writing a whole story on the strategy of tie and ride racing."

"The strategy," noted Ainsley of the winning team, "works around the horse. One, do not hurt the horse. (Both men and the horse must finish the race to count.) Two, get the horse through the vet checks."

At five points along the rugged trail, veterinarians checked the horses for pulse and respiration to make sure they weren't abused.

No one, I noticed, ever checked the two-legged animals among whom were 22 women.

Finishing 16th, Joe Amstrong, a 37-year-old air force captain in Montana who won a rowing gold medal at the 1964 Olympics in Tokyo, said, "It's an excuse to stay in shape."

Ugh.

Wohlhuter breaks 1,000 meters record

OSLO, Norway (AFP) — Rick Wohlhuter of the United States smashed the 1,000 metres world record with a time of two minutes, 13.9 seconds at the sixth Martin Luther King Memorial Games Tuesday night.

He sliced 2.2 seconds off the record of 2:16.1 set by Daniel Malan of South Africa in 1973.

Mike Boit of Kenya, who helped set the pace up to the 400-metre mark, placed second in 2:16.7.

Thelma Wright of Vancouver placed fifth in the women's 800 metres with a time of 2:06.6, more than four seconds behind the winner, Robin Campbell.

The U.S. teen-ager clocked 2:02.5, nearly a full second ahead of runner-up Jozefina Cerchlanova of Czechoslovakia, 2:03.4, and the third-place Norwegian, Grete Andersen, who had a national record of 2:04.0.

Other winners were American Charles Foster in the 110-metre hurdles, 14 seconds; Darwin Bond of the U.S. in the 400 metres, 46.2 seconds; and Raelen Boyle of Australia in the women's 200-metre sprint with a time of 23.4 seconds.

Women's softball action

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Begin Sports defeated Brasserie Dauphin Monday evening in Lennoxville, while Lemay Auto Electric and Clark's Pharmacy tied as the Lennoxville Women's Softball League regular schedule draws rapidly to a close for this season.

Ginette Jacques picked up another win for Begin as she tossed a seven-hitter, allowing six walks also in the process. Lynne Lescault was the losing pitcher and she went five innings. Johanne Grenier was the reliever and together, they allowed 14 Begin hits and five walks.

Surprisingly enough, the Dauphin squad took the lead in the game in the third inning with both their runs coming off a home run by Sue Garand. They held the edge until the sixth inning, when Begin added four runs to one they made in the previous frame to put them three runs up. Begin added two insurance runs in the top of the seventh to take the game by a final 7-2 margin.

Christian Lamothe had the big bat for the winners in the game with three hits, two of which later allowed her to score. Nicole Beaudoin, Danielle Carrier, Sylvie Bedard and Angele Bisailon each managed two hits off the Dauphin pitcher.

Sue Garand had two hits for the Dauphin club, one being the two-run homer, the other a single. Janine Grenon banged three singles in the game, while teammate Johanne Grenier had two hits.

Two games were defaulted Sunday night. One decision went to Sawyerville as Clark's Pharmacy couldn't muster enough players, while the same situation happened to Rand, as they conceded to Begin Sports. A third game on Sunday between Sawyerville and Legion No. 10 was postponed to a later date.

Two games are on tap for tonight in Lennoxville, with Clark's taking on the Dauphin team, while Begin hosts Lemay Auto Electric at 8:45 p.m.

Acupuncture works for Garney Henley

HAMILTON (CP) — Garney Henley, 38-year-old wide receiver with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, has provided the latest testimonial to the benefits of acupuncture in keeping an ailing athlete moving.

During the off-season, Henley had knee surgery to remove cartilage fragments but later found that physical exertion caused pain in the knee.

He took four acupuncture treatments from Dr. A. R. Parchment of Toronto before the Ticats played their first Eastern Football Conference season game last Wednesday in Montreal.

"The knee felt really good after the Montreal game and it restored my confidence," said Henley. "I took a couple of hits in the game and they didn't bother me."

Acupuncture, which involves inserting several needles into the affected area, remains a mystery to Henley.

STOPPED PAIN

"I don't know how acupuncture works, but it got rid of the pain," said Henley, an all-Canadian defensive back nine consecutive years until he was switched to offence two years ago.

"I used to get pain even when I cut in practices, but that's gone, too."

Henley said he didn't worry when coach Jerry Williams kept a second wide receiver, rookie Mike Haggard on the roster.

"Basically, I was not overly worried about having another wide receiver on the team. There is tough competition each season."

"But I was concerned about the pain in my knee because there is no cartilage left in it and rest didn't help. Acupuncture got me over the hurdle and while the knee feels tired after a game, there is no pain."

Montreal nips Cubs in tenth 4-3

CHICAGO (AP) — Even the arrival of Montreal Expos has failed to change the hardluck start of new manager Jim Marshall of Chicago Cubs.

Marshall, who replaced Whitey Lockman exactly a week ago, saw his Cubs absorb a fourth successive defeat Tuesday, losing 4-3 in the tenth inning against Montreal in the opener of a three-game set with the Expos. The loss, following three defeats by St. Louis Cardinals, left Marshall with a 1-5 record since he assumed Cub command. It also was the third onerun setback in the slump.

The winningest Cub pitcher, Rick Reuschel, failed to turn the tide against the Expos as he labored into the 10th inning only to get charged with his eighth defeat against 10 victories.

Montreal loaded the bases off Reuschel in the 10th when Ron Hunt was hit by a pitch and Willie Davis and Larry Lintz walked. Davis intentionally

Oscar Zamora then relieved

Reuschel and was greeted by Mike Jorgensen's two-run single to wrap up the game although the Cubs picked up a run in the bottom of the 10th on Jerry Morales' triple and an infield out.

"I gambled on Zamora against Jorgensen and it didn't work out," said Marshall. "Give Jorgensen credit, he hit a tough pitch off the end of his bat."

The Cubs had tied it at 2-2 in the seventh when Andy Thornton drew a leadoff walk, was sacrificed to second by Rick Monday and scored on a single by Morales.

In the top of the seventh, Montreal went ahead 2-1 on Jorgensen's two-bagger and a single by Bob Bailey.

Before that, the Expos scored in the first on Davis' triple and a throwing error by Bill Grabarkewitz and the Cubs counted one in the third on Morales' single and catcher Rick Stelmazek's first National League hit, a double.

Bardsley still seeks title

WINNIPEG (CP) — Tony Bardsley of Vancouver, considered one of Canada's top male tennis players for the last several years, is still seeking to win his first Canadian closed tennis championship.

"I've tried a few times, but never won it. I was in the final one year, the semi-finals and the quarter-finals but it seems I'm getting worse each year."

Bardsley, a tall, hard-serving and imposing figure on the court, beat Glen Booth of Winnipeg, one of the most improved players on the tour this year, 6-1, 1-6, 6-2, in their second round meeting

Tuesday. "Neither of us played well in the first set," said Bardsley.

"I was worried there for a while, but things came around in the third set."

The No. 2 seed broke Booth's service in the fourth game and Booth, experiencing difficulty judging the high bounces from Bardsley's powerful overhead strokes, never regained his footing.

Top-seeded Don McCormick of Vancouver and the ladies' top seeds, Andree Martin of Montreal and No. 2 Susan Stone of Vancouver, easily won their second-round matches.

HAD PROBLEMS

Three of the other top seeds had plenty of trouble, however, before they managed to advance into the third round.

Vicki Berner of Vancouver, the 1971 women's singles champion, seeded No. 4, dropped the first set to Kathy Morton of Cambridge, Ont., before rallying to score a 4-6, 6-2, 6-2 triumph.

Dale Power of Toronto, the No. 3 men's seed, lost his temper, threw his racket, smashed balls off the court and nearly blew the match before he regained his composure enough to fend off Jeff Moore of Toronto 6-3, 6-7, 8-6.

"I don't usually lose my temper that badly," Power said.

"But I couldn't believe what was happening. I don't know if I regained my control or if I scared him. Maybe he was afraid I'd hit him with my racket."

For Chris Burr of Toronto, the finalist last year who is seeded fourth, it wasn't quite as bad, but he still had to talk himself back to calmness to beat Peter Pospisil of Toronto. Burr won the match 4-6, 6-3, 6-3.

TO OLYMPICS STAFF

MONTREAL (CP) — Lt.-Col. Andre Desjardins, 41, former senior staff officer for transportation at the Canadian Forces base at nearby St. Hubert, Que., Tuesday was appointed director of transportation for the 1976 Olympics. Desjardins will be responsible for the organization and operation of transportation for athletes and officials during the Games. He will be responsible for 1,500 drivers and a fleet of more than 1,000 vehicles.

RUSTY NOT SERIOUS

NEW YORK (AP) — Rusty Staub of New York Mets may be back in action by the end of the week, the team's physician said Tuesday night. Staub, a right fielder, pulled a hamstring muscle in his left leg during Monday's National League baseball game with Montreal. Dr. James Parks, the Mets' doctor, said of Staub's injury: "We may have gotten lucky. It seems like a mild hamstring pull and he may be able to play in a few days."

NAMED TO HALL

TORONTO (CP) — Anatoli Tarasov, who coached the Soviet Union's national team to nine consecutive world amateur hockey titles and three consecutive Olympic gold medals, has been elected as a builder to the Hockey Hall of Fame. The election was announced Tuesday by Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president and chairman of the Hall of Fame governing committee. Induction ceremonies are Aug. 22.

MOVES TO DEFENCE

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Dick Nolan, head coach of San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League, said Tuesday he was moving Vic Washington from halfback to defensive free safety. "I like to hit folks," said Washington, a former member of Ottawa Rough Riders in the Canadian Football League. Washington rushed for 1,813 yards in 438 tries and scored 14 touchdowns during the last three seasons.

Als, Ottawa—tough teams to meet tonight

MONTREAL (CP) — Opposing coaches seldom agree but Montreal Alouettes coach Marv Levy and George Brancato of Ottawa Rough Riders each thinks his club faces a stiff challenge tonight at the Autostade.

"From what I've seen on the films we've watched, Montreal is the team to beat," in the Eastern Football Conference, Brancato told a news conference.

"The Alouettes had the toughest defence last year and things are not changed this season. They're solid. They have real gamebreakers in quarterback Jimmy Jones and halfback Johnny Rodgers."

Levy, who has already picked Ottawa as the team to beat in the East, said he expects his players are in for a "really tough" time of it tonight.

"Everything we get will come hard," he said. "Ottawa doesn't give you anything easy, nothing cheap. They keep the pressure on you."

"We'll need a lot of poise, a lot of perspective in facing a team like this. What scares me most are those two wide receivers, Hugh Oldham and Rhome Nixon."

The Riders, Brancato said, will have the same lineup as faced the Toronto Argonauts last week in a 19-3 upset defeat.

DESCRIBES PLAN

One of the keys to stopping Montreal is to contain the Jones-Rodgers combination, he said. Ottawa will alternate between zone and man-to-man coverage and try to "jam Rodgers at the line of scrimmage."

When asked if the Rough Riders' task would be made easier because of the absence of left guard Ed George who was suspended by the Als, Brancato said:

"They won't miss George that much with a substitute as good as Dave Braggins moving over to his position. Even though George is a super lineman, Braggins is a hell of a good one."

Besides applying defensive pressure to disrupt the Alouette passing game, Ottawa will also try to establish a running game on offense before resorting to an aerial attack.

The Alouettes, Levy said, are ready for anything and might have a solution to offset a strong pass rush.

"We know they like to blitz, blitz, blitz," he said. "The fact that we've been passing more makes it more of a gamble. What we'd like to do is clear out the middle and hit a speedy receiver in the open area."

The game is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. EDT and will be televised on the Eastern network of the CBC.

Top U.S. mediator, NFL meet second time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Representatives of the players and the club owners in the National Football League resume their second day of joint talks with the nation's top federal mediator today in what is described as critical negotiations in the labor dispute and 31-day strike.

The two sides apparently were to discuss the so-called freedom issues, described as the crux of the contract talks.

After meeting for five hours Tuesday with both sides—jointly and separately—chief U.S. mediator W.J. Usery Jr. said today's negotiations would be "extremely important because substantive issues will be discussed."

He said he and his two assistants "explored all issues with both parties separately, but not all of the issues together."

Neither the NFL Players Association nor the NFL management council would discuss the closed-door meeting, and Usery refused to detail the proceedings except to say, "We were being sure that both sides understand the outstanding issues. There was a lot of dialogue and discussion."

It was understood that the two joint sessions, lasting 75 minutes, centred on revised economic proposals such as pension and minimum salaries by the players.

Former Green Bay quarterback Bart Starr offered his assistance Tuesday in settling the strike. Starr said he would make himself available to either players or owners at any time, although they would have to come to him.

The intervention was requested by several Packer veterans.

Meanwhile, the defection of players from the strike continued as four veterans joined Chicago Bears' camp at Rensselaer, Ind. Three crossed lines to join Oakland Raiders' camp, and two more walked into Pittsburgh Steelers' summer camp at Latrobe, Pa., and Philadelphia Eagles' camp at Chester, Pa.

Reporting to the Bears' camp Tuesday were wide receivers Tom Raynolds and Dave Juenger, tight end Bob Parsons and cornerback Willie Roberts.

In Santa Rosa, Calif., line-backer Joe Carroll, Gary Weaver, a rookie last year, and starting guard George Buhler reported to the Raiders' camp. Defensive tackles Ernie Holmes and Steve Furness joined seven other Pittsburgh veterans in camp, and guard Royce Smith joined the Falcons' camp.

In Chester, wide receivers Don Zimmerman and Stan Davis reported, giving the Eagles 12 veterans on hand.

Also joining camp was Don Martin, a defensive cornerback with New England Patriots, and second-year men Clarence Duran and Eddie Moss of St. Louis Cardinals.

Wasting the resource of youth

By Tom Tiede
(Last in a Series)

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Not long ago in Maryland a 10-year-old boy took over a paper route from a friend. When he told his parents about the new enterprise, they were outraged.

In the ensuing argument, the boy's mother slapped him and his dad threatened to cut out his allowance if "you ever do anything so foolish again."

Defeated, the lad quit the route and returned to his former life: watching TV or reading comic books each day after school.

Such is the stuff of the generation gap.

There was a time when children could be of use to their society. In the largely rural and agrarian America of a century ago, children were expected to assume mature responsibilities.

They helped on the farm, or got jobs to supplement the family income. True, some were exploited, others brutalized in sweat shops, but historians say they had a sense of worth and accomplishment that is all but totally lacking in the nation of the Seventies.

Today, says child advocate and author Eda LeShane, there are few demands put on a child's own inventiveness and industry. A seven-year-old goat herder had something to offer in the 18th century, but his latter-day contemporaries are thought too delicate for work, too young for responsibility.

"We push them to excel in school or sports," grumps a Washington pediatrician, "but it's considered folly or unkind to give them anything else to do."

Affluence and comfort are apparently the key culprits in this conspiracy against children. Richard Boone of the child-oriented Robert Kennedy Foundation says that more and more America looks on its children not as producers but as consumers.

"We want them to stay in school, because that way they'll remain off the labor market. And we want them to spend their parents' money."

The function of youth today, Boone adds, is not to earn but to spend. "This is why adults are charged $3 for a Pablo Casals memorial recital, and kids $8 for a rock concert."

To be sure, the kids have plenty of cash. Surveys by Gilbert Youth Research indicate the nation's 28 million teenagers alone spend $15 billion annually; 90 per cent own radios, 86 per cent own record players, 22 per cent own automobiles. More important, they influence their parents on even bigger spending: 69 per cent of all cars and vacations purchased in the United States are inspired by kiddie comments.

The money is predominantly adult-earned. But this is in keeping with the protectionist theory of modern child rearing. Weekly allowance is Father's way of telling the world he's doing better for his kid than was done for him. By the same token, a kid with plenty of leisure time, who doesn't "have to" work, is another indication of parental success.

There is of course no fair reason to sniff at parents who want better lives for their children. Nor do any save primitives wish a return to the days when children marched to the coal mines with pop and grandpop.

Yet many observers feel the pendulum has swung too far to the side of comfort, to the detriment of the sheltered child. Psychologist Richard Farson says that since money is power, and also a measure of human independence, children by right should be allowed access to fair and decent employment; this way they "can exploit the system rather than be exploited by it."

But employment is only a small piece of the problem facing subjugated and over-protected children today. The larger word is responsibility.

Many child advocates believe it simply isn't wise to keep youngsters under wraps for 16-to-18 years and then suddenly dump them into the competitive world. Says an official with the U.S. Office of Child Development:

"We see what happens in every walk of life. In the number of young marrieds who get divorces, in the number of youngsters who weel on debts, in the number of suddenly grown up people who become alcoholics — they find it hard to adjust in the real world, it's a lot of hit and miss."

Better, the advocates say, that kids pick up experience as they mature. But how can they when the adults in control rule otherwise? Recently a band of Boy Scouts volunteered to clean up the litter in a national park, but permission was refused because the park staff was unionized.

Children who attempt to enter the administrative dialogue of their schools are usually ignored and in some cases disciplined.

The Kennedy Foundation's Boone says the old canal which cuts through Washington, now in disuse, would be an ideal rehabilitation project for area youths but: "I'd hate to try to cut through the red tape."

Boone says adults, including adults in positions to help, are simply not willing to listen to the ideas of kids. This too, roots in the theory that kids should not be doers but learners in custody. Even the synonym for children — waifs, brats, wards — expose an adult prejudice of superiority.

And no doubt the opinion is only strengthened when, as in the late 1960s, some youth blew their opportunity at responsibility with excesses and arrogance; as a Washington police official remembers it, "The rowdies only reinforced the opinion kids should be seen but not heard."

Indeed, the giving of responsibility would carry no guarantee of thoughtful use. Perhaps the only absolute fact to come out of centuries of child studies is that kids are every bit as imprudent as non-kids. Yet this is no excuse for keeping them, as psychologist Farson puts it, "prisoners of childhood."

Reason dictates that as the world turns more rapidly its inhabitants need as much head start as possible to keep from falling behind. Children, says family specialist Edward Zigler, are not nearly as fragile nor as stupid as adults have condemned them to be. Rather they are an enormous (72 million under 18) and potentially rich human resource still under the overburden of parental and societal intolerance.

A mind is too precious a thing to waste, at whatever age, and a nation that continues such squander, does so at its present and especially its future peril.

Exhibitionist is not a rapist

Dear Ann Landers: A friend and I had a frightening experience yesterday. We hope you will print this letter and tell us if we did the right thing. It might also help others who may find themselves in the same situation.

My girl friend and I are both 16. We were walking along a path near a creek. It was a bright sunny day and no one else was around. A young man in his early 20's, I'd guess, was walking toward us on the same path. As he came nearer we could see he wasn't fully clothed. In fact, he was wearing a raincoat and no trousers. His coat was open and he was intentionally exposing himself.

As he passed us he said nothing—just kept walking. He then started to follow us and tried to make conversation. My friend decided the best thing to do was tell him off. She told him (in plain language) that he must be some kind of nut, that we weren't interested in peep shows, and to stop following us or we would call the police.

He didn't say one word, just walked away, rejected like.

Since there seem to be so many lunatics running loose these days, will you say something in your column about how to deal with these people? If I had been alone that man might have tried to rape me. Am I right? Please comment.—Scary Scene

Dear S.S.: You're wrong. That man is an exhibitionist. These sick people get their jollies by exposing themselves—and that's as far as they go. Most exhibitionists are passive, timid, often impotent and actually quite harmless.

They should be reported to the police, however. Hopefully they will be picked up and treated for their psychiatric problem.

P.S.: When a college kid does it on the run it's called "streaking," considered a "harmless fad," even "healthy"—by some, not me. What a difference the setting makes!

Dear Ann Landers: I am worried about my sister. Her daughter died six years ago, but she still has a 12 x 15 picture of the girl on top of the TV in the living room. There are three smaller photographs of the girl in the same room. There's another picture of her in the kitchen.

Her husband has told me these pictures all over the house really get him down. I sympathize with the poor man because whenever I go over there I feel as if the girl is in the same room staring at me.

My sister must be very sick to want to be reminded constantly of her tragic loss. Shall I speak to her, for her husband's sake, as well as out of consideration for other relatives and friends who go into that house? Several people have mentioned it.—Uneasy Feeling

Dear Uneasy: If the pictures have been around for six years, your sister has a morbid attachment to them and I doubt very seriously that a suggestion from you will do any good. Her husband should speak to her about getting some counseling, however. The poor woman has been unable to accept the reality of her daughter's death. The ever-present pictures all over the house are a symptom of her illness.

Confidential to Parents of an Only Child Who Is Driving Us Crazy: Sounds like you quit when you were losers. That child needs to be evaluated by a physician. He may be hyperkinetic, and such children frequently are helped by medication—which in turn helps the parents.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," should help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

An anatomy question

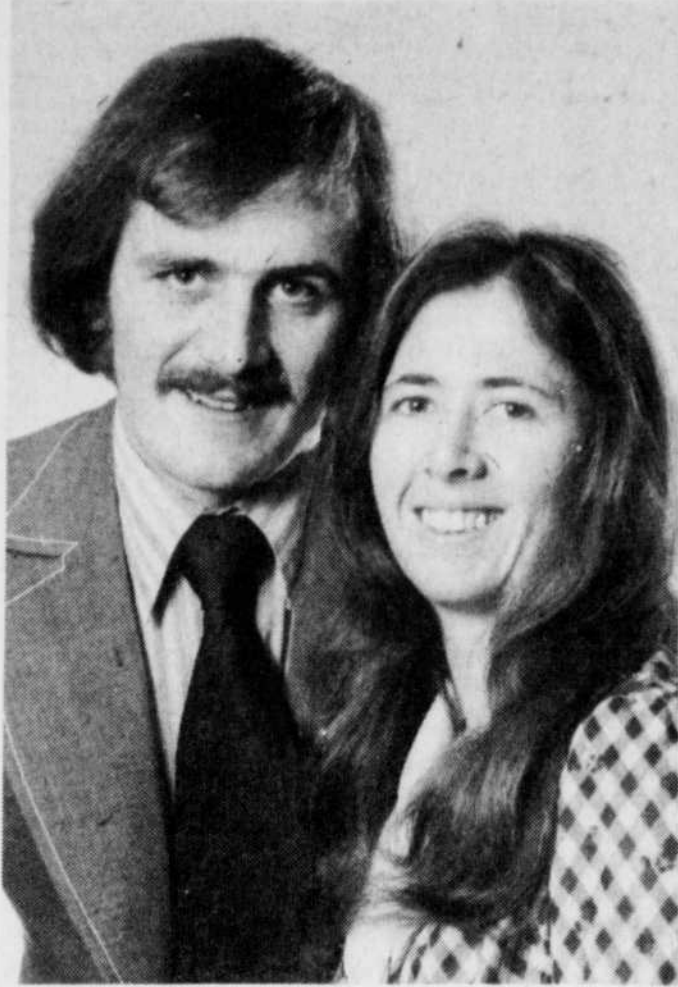

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My question pertains to the male penis. The end is split and the hole is not at the very end.

I cannot direct the urine stream correctly. Needless to say, this has been very embarrassing at times

The family

Engagement

The engagement is announced of Miss Nellie Elizabeth Tillotson, eldest daughter of Mrs. Audrey Tillotson and the late William Tillotson of Sherbrooke, Que., to Mr. Bob Badger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Badger of Stanstead, Que. A fall wedding is planned.

Golden anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Canning of Inverness, Que., will be celebrating their Golden Wedding Anniversary on Sunday, August 11, 1974. Friends and relatives are cordially invited to a reception to be held at the Oddfellows' Hall in Inverness from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Silver anniversary

DANVILLE — On arriving home from a shopping trip last Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Frost were most pleasantly surprised to find that there was a family dinner prepared for them in honour of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. The meal had been prepared by their daughters and daughters-in-law, and included an anniversary cake, made and decorated by a niece, Mrs. Denis Dubois, for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Frost were the recipients of a number of gifts, including a family one. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Brian Frost and son Steven of Asbestos, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Frost and daughter Michelle of Bramalea, Ont., Miss Doreen Frost and her fiancé, Mr. Charles Davidson of Brampton, Ont., and the Misses Susan and Judy Frost of this place. Another daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Tremblay of Brampton were unable to be present.

MacLeod-MacDonald re-union

MILAN — Under sunny skies, in a lovely setting on Orchard Terrace in Graniteville, Vt., at the home of Leslie and Cassie MacLeod, the MacLeod-MacDonald annual gathering took place. Coming from far and near, they held their picnic lunch on the lawn outside the beautiful MacLeod residence.

Expressions of regret were received from several who were unable to attend. Others living in the area stopped by for a few minutes to say "hello". Many of the families are reunited on this occasion for the first time in years. The afternoon was spent by the participants in reminiscing of times gone by.

The family who travelled the farthest to attend was Mr. and Mrs. James MacLeod who came from Clermont, Fla. The eldest in attendance was Katie Morrison now residing in Montpelier, Vt. The youngest was a granddaughter of Leslie and Cassie. These were all recipients of suitable gifts.

At a short meeting held when the gifts were handed out, it was decided to hold a business meeting at a later date in order to review future gatherings of the clan. Next year's meeting was tentatively set to take place somewhere in the Eastern Townships.

Guests departed for their homes during the course of the afternoon, taking with them happy memories of a delightful get-together in a lovely setting. Each and everyone expressed their thanks to Leslie and Cassie for opening their home for this happy occasion.

Those from Quebec who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Angus M. MacKenzie, Murdo and Colina MacKenzie, of Lennoxville; Mr. and Mrs. Norman Smith, Drummondville; Mr. and Mrs. J. Ross MacDonald, Scotstown; Miss Dolena Nicholson, Montreal; Miss Mary MacLeod and Mr. and Mrs. Duncan MacLeod, of Milan.

Questionnaire exposes alcoholic housewives

Dear Ann Landers: Millions of housewives in this country would be shocked if someone called them alcoholics. But they are. Members of the Kansas City area National Council On Alcoholism have prepared a questionnaire (with help from the Michigan chapter) and we want to give it as much exposure as possible. We hope you'll print it.

Here are 20 questions. Any woman who answers "Yes" to more than half is probably alcoholic.

1. Do you try to get someone to buy liquor for you because you are ashamed to buy it yourself?
2. Do you buy liquor at different places so no one will know how much you purchase?
3. Do you hide the empties and dispose of them secretly?
4. Do you plan in advance to "reward" yourself with a little drinking bout after you've worked very hard in the house?

5. Are you often permissive with your children because you feel guilty about the way you behaved when you were drinking?
6. Do you have "blackouts," periods about which you remember nothing?
7. Do you ever phone the hostess of a party the next day and ask if you hurt anyone's feelings or made a fool of yourself?
8. Do you find cigaret holes in your clothes or the furniture and can't remember when it happened?
9. Do you take an extra drink or two before leaving for a party when you know liquor will be served there?
10. Do you often wonder if anyone knows how much you drink?
11. Do you feel wittier or more charming when you are drinking?

12. Do you feel panicky when faced with non-drinking days, such as a visit to out-of-town relatives?
13. Do you invent social occasions for drinking, such as inviting friends for lunch, cocktails or dinner?
14. When others are present, do you avoid reading articles or seeing movies or TV shows about women alcoholics but read and watch when no one is around?
15. Do you ever carry liquor in your purse?
16. Do you become defensive when someone mentions your drinking?
17. Do you become irritated when unexpected guests reduce your liquor supply?
18. Do you drink when under pressure or after an argument?
19. Do you try to cover up when you can't remember promises and feel ashamed when you misplace or lose things?

20. Do you drive even though you've been drinking but feel certain you are in complete control of yourself?

Be honest. If your score says you're alcoholic, call the National Council On Alcoholism or Alcoholics Anonymous. They are listed in the phone book. — Doris D. And Jane J. (Alcoholic Counselors)

Dear D. and J.: Thank you. And now a word from me to those of you who flunked. These self-help groups have proven more successful than psychiatry, religion or medical help. Millions have found sobriety through their camaraderie and mutual support. You can, too. Get going.

What's the story on pot, L.S.D., cocaine, uppers and downers, speed? Can you handle it if you're careful? Send for Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Cote-Marcoux wed

MANSONVILLE — A lovely summer wedding took place in the Mansonville St. Cajetan Roman Catholic Church on Saturday, July 13, 1974, at 3:30 p.m., when Rachel Francoise, daughter of Mr. Robert Marcoux of Dunkin, and the late Rose Annette Boucher Marcoux, became the bride of Lawrence Armand Cote, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cote of Vale Perkins. Rev. Father Maurice Domingue performed the impressive double ring ceremony after the father of the bride escorted her down the aisle to her waiting groom. The organist, Mr. Philippe Lessard, played traditional wedding hymns and music. Alain Marcoux, cousin to the bride, served the priest as altar boy during the wedding service. Arrangements of fresh flowers decorated the front of the altar.

The bride wore a Victorian styled wedding dress of sheer silk organza over taffeta, high ring collar with pale blue satin ribbon running through the overlay of brocade lace. This same brocade with a touch of forest green here and there, accented the front of the gown giving an apron effect. It also went around the skirt below the apron style and at the hemline which ended in a semi-cathedral train. Three rows of white brocade flower appliques centered the dress from just below the shoulders to midway at the skirt area and also down the balloon part of the sleeves which were lined with fine nylon net stiffening and ending at the elbow where the sleeves blended into white satin fitted to the wrist accented with fine knife pleats, nicely spaced.

The bodice had the same effect as the fitted part of the sleeves. The high waistline was graced with a pale blue ribbon ending in a bow and streamers at the back. Her finger-tip length tulle illusion veil was caught up to the crown of a Victorian style headpiece and edged with a double border of white brocade applique flowers with a pale blue satin ribbon running through the center of the border. The bride carried a nosegay of sweethearts and spring fern with pale blue ribbon streamers.

The maid of honor, Miss Joyce Cote, sister of the groom, wore a floor length pinafore style gown of white organdy with white swiss polka dots at the bodice over white taffeta with wide straps of white satin edged with lace starting at the front waistline and over the shoulders and ending at the back waistline. The ring collar was accented with an overlay of white organdy and the bodice ended with organdy puffed sleeves. Her pale blue satin skirt was overlaid with white swiss polka dots and the hemline ended with a lace trimmed ruffle. Her hair was highlighted with little pale blue satin bows attached here and there. She carried a nosegay of blue baby carnations with blue ribbon streamers.

The bridesmaids, Miss Janie Cote (sister to the groom) and Miss Joanne Marcoux (cousin to the bride) were identically dressed in floor length fortrel pink gowns with a contrasting raised pattern of flowers throughout the dress, short puffed sleeves, plain neckline accented with lace and the high waistline drawn back with a sash of the same material and tied at the back. Tiny pink bows were scattered over their hair. Each young lady carried nosegays of pink baby carnations and baby's breath with pink ribbon streamers.

The flower girl, little Nancy Cote, the groom's niece, wore a pink and white floor length polyester dress with short puffed sleeves and a plain neckline. She wore several tiny pink bows in her hair and carried a small basket of white and pink baby carnations with baby's breath and pale blue ribbons.

The mother of the groom wore a plain cut floor length gown of medium blue with a slight trim of darker blue over the ring collar and several rows of the same trim leading down the front and short puffed sleeves. She wore white accessories and a corsage of pink baby carnations.

Mrs. June Macey, acting on behalf of the bride's deceased mother, wore a plain cut floor length beige sleeveless dress with beige accessories to match. Her corsage was made up of yellow baby carnations.

The best man was Norbert Marcoux, and the ushers were Ronald Marcoux and Steve Johnson. Mr. Johnson is a close friend of the groom and the Marcoux men are brothers of the bride. The men of the wedding party wore white carnation boutonnieres.

Following a shower of confetti and much picture taking, the bridal couple was whisked off to a wedding cavalcade and a reception held at the Owl's Head Chalet where over 170 invited guests enjoyed a hot turkey supper. The head table was graced with lit candles and fresh flowers.

The beautiful wedding cake was made by Mrs. Archie Cote of North Troy, Vt. It was comprised of actually three cakes, the first one having one layer, the second one with two layers and the third with three layers, each connected by a stairway leading from one to the other and ending at the top of the three layer cake with a miniature bridal couple at the head of the stairway and the ladies of the bridal party in miniature along the decline of the stair. Each layer was held by short pillars and it was trimmed with white frosting and pink and blue baby roses. The traditional clinking of spoons against glasses occurred, keeping the bridal couple busy embracing and calling for their parents to do the same. The best man gave an appropriate toast to the bride and groom wishing them long happiness. Following the opening of gifts, the guests enjoyed dancing on the sun deck to the orchestra music of Floyd Ling.

Mr. Jacques Marcoux, cousin of the bride, was in charge of the guest book and also took part at the altar during the wedding mass by reading 1 Corinthians, Chapter 13, of which the 13th verse reads: "And Now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three, but the greatest of these is charity."

Out of town guests came from New Britain, Conn., Underhill, Beebe, North Troy, Vt., Gibson, B.C., Picton, Ont., Montreal, St. Hyacinthe, Asbestos, Drummondville, Sherbrooke, Waterloo, Cowansville, Bolton Centre and Pottsville Townships.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Cote have taken up residence next to the Mansonville Elementary School. A belated honeymoon was taken a week later to Asbestos, Que. Mrs. Cote wore a polyester pale blue two-piece pantsuit with white accessories and a corsage of pink baby carnations.

ASTRO-GUIDE

By Ceean

Thursday, August 1
The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Friend who takes too much for granted starts to get under your skin. It's time you wake up!

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You tend to drop things, stumble over your own feet and be generally clumsy under current rays.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Instead of resisting, welcome changes — new methods, ideas, concepts. Accent flexibility.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Hold your head high and exude confidence. Let no one know you are afraid or are indecisive.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Protect savings and investments. Good afternoon hours for creative activity of various kinds.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): A middle-of-the-road sort of day. Neither expect nor demand too much — of yourself or others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Although you've earned your place in the sun, you can't rest on your laurels; you have to keep plugging.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Love affairs begun now tend to burn themselves out quickly. Make no hasty commitments at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You may have to bypass entertainment to which you'd looked forward, but don't pout about it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Distorted news picture may influence your decision. Don't jump to conclusions. Seek more facts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You may find it difficult to get along with people at the moment. Try to be more conciliatory.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Avoid moody people. A good laugh is what you really need now. Look up Cancer or Scorpio friends.

50th anniversary

BISHOPTON — The Brookbury Community Hall on June 29 was the scene of a happy occasion when approximately 200 relatives and friends gathered to help celebrate the 50th Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Archie James of East Angus, which was given by their sons and all their grandchildren.

Earlier in the evening, their youngest son had taken his parents out to dinner, after which he took them for a ride, ending up at the Brookbury Hall, where they were urged to go in.

Entering the Hall, they were taken by surprise and were met at the door by their two eldest granddaughters, Katherine of Sherbrooke who pinned a corsage of pink roses and baby's breath on her grandmother, and by Kathy of Oshawa, Ont., who pinned a white carnation boutonniere on her grandfather.

They escorted their grandparents to the front of the Hall while the orchestra played "For They are Jolly Good Fellows." They then received the congratulations and best wishes from all their relatives and friends, after which they danced to the Anniversary Waltz. Dancing and social conversation were enjoyed by everyone the rest of the evening.

The Hall was appropriately decorated with white and yellow streamers and white bells with "Happy Anniversary 50" in gold over the archway of the stage. There were vases of white peonies and red carnations on the head table which was centered with a 3-tier wedding cake, made and exquisitely decorated with yellow roses tinted with gold by Mrs. Alfred Goode of Sawyerville. Members of the family were in charge of the Golden Anniversary guest book.

On behalf of himself and his children Arthur presented his parent with an humidifier and a framed portrait of his children, and on behalf of his parents, his brothers and sisters, Richard Janes of Waterloo, Ont., in well chosen words presented his grandparents with two "50th Anniversary" teacups and saucers and a La-Z-boy chair. They also received cards and gifts of money from their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. James both thanked their children and grandchildren, relatives and friends for all the gifts and donations of money and helping make the event such a happy occasion.

Lunch was served to the guests by their sons and all their grandchildren, assisted by a few close friends. Mr. and Mrs. James served the wedding cake.

During the evening best wishes were extended by Mr. Art Bennett on behalf of everyone present to the honored guests, and also to Rev. and Mrs. Lyn Westman of Quebec City who were celebrating their 25th Wedding Anniversary, and to Kelly James on the occasion of her 12th birthday.

Music was provided by Ralph Rossi and Norman Davis and friends of East Angus.

Archie James and Beatrice Cassidy were married on July 1, 1924 in East Angus and lived for several years in Detroit, Mich., where their two sons Albert and Arthur were born. They returned to East Angus where they have resided for approximately 40 years.

Their sons, Albert and his wife Laurel of Bishopton, Arthur of Belleville, Ont., and all their ten grandchildren, Richard and his wife Monique of Waterloo, Ont.; Ronald and his wife Donna, and Andrew of Dundalk, Ont.; Allan and Katherine of Sherbrooke, Marie and Cindy of Bishopton; Kathy, Kelly and Charles of Oshawa, Ont., and two great-grandchildren Ronald Jr. and Kenny were able to attend.

Mrs. Clifford Wilson, only sister of Mr. James, of Bowmanville, Ont., was also present for the occasion.

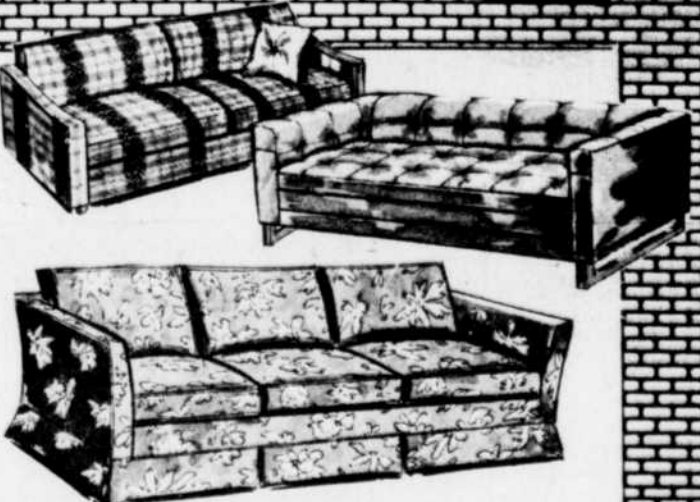

Guests attended from all the surrounding areas.

Misses Doris Mackenzie and Ruth Smith of Montreal were recently visiting Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Smith and Mrs. D.A. Campbell. Mr. and Mrs. William Young of Lennoxville were also recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Beattie, Kent, Lori and Mrs. Kay Coates of Lennoxville were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. John D. MacDonald.

Herbert and Norman Crawford of Adderley, motored to Scotstown early Thursday morning July 18 and were accompanied home by their aunt, Mrs. F.B. Mayhew, who spent the day with her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Crawford. On returning to Scotstown, Mrs. Crawford and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Herbert Wright of Danville, Herbert and Norman brought Mrs. Mayhew home in the evening.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Angus Smith of Bury, formerly of Bishopton in the passing away of her husband on July 16; also to their two sons Allan and Stewart and their families. Several from here attended the funeral service held in Bishopton United Church on Thursday afternoon July 18.

Word has been received here of the sudden passing away of Douglas Keith Taylor of Springfield, Mass., formerly of Scotstown and the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Taylor. Sympathy is extended to his wife and family, his two brothers, Ross Taylor of Mattawa, Ont., Carroll Taylor of Drummondville and his sister Marjorie, Mrs. Charles Woodside of Lachine.

Mr. and Mrs. John McFarlane of Sackville, N.S., spent a few days with Mr. McGarh's grandmother, Mrs. George Wells. Other recent guests of Mrs. Wells were Mr. and Mrs. Boyle of Montreal and Mrs. Wells's uncle, Mr. Almond Pope of Cookshire as dinner guests.

Miss Margaret Buchanan of Drummondville and Miss Irene Planché of Lennoxville were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Buchanan.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross MacDonald have returned home after spending a week visiting relatives in Vermont. On July 14 they attended the MacDonald-McLeod picnic in Granville, Vt. While there they called on Mrs. Alice MacLeod. While in Vermont they stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Flint. They visited Miss Katie Morrison and Miss Florence Findlater in Montpelier who accompanied them to Littleton, N.H., where they called on Mr. and Mrs. Bill MacDonald. They were overnight guests of Mrs. Guy Snowman in Hanover, N.H. Mrs. Snowman accompanied them to Lennoxville where she would spend some time with her cousin Mrs. Herbert Mayhew and Mr. Mayhew. Mr. and Mrs. Ross MacDonald on their way to Vermont called on Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm MacDonald in Standstead.

Recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. John N. MacKenzie were Mrs. Dora Steele and daughter Deborah of West Springfield, Mass., Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Richie of Ottawa, Ont., and Kenneth Murray of Peterborough, Ont. Major and Mrs. Walter Murray and son, Pierre, of St. Bruno.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray McArdle and daughter, Ellen, of Montreal were guests one day recently of Dr. and Mrs. Dewar Scott.

Mrs. Albert MacLeod spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hunting and family in Huntingville.

At six o'clock Saturday morning July 20 the citizens were awakened by the fire siren due to the electric storm which hit at the entrance of the electric power of St. Paul's Catholic Church on Dutton Street. The church was filled with smoke and a hole had to be cut in the roof to let the smoke out. The cost of damage of fire, smoke and water was estimated to be about $25,000 dollars. Bury and Cookshire fire brigades answered a call to come to assist as at one time it was feared that there might be an explosion, and if that happened, the extra help would be needed. The Sunday church services were held in the convent.

Mr. and Mrs. Finlay Morrison of Port Colborne, Ont., are spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Morrison.

Mr. and Mrs. K.R. MacLeod spent a week in Danbury, Conn., visiting Mr. Dan MacDonald and Miss Laura MacDonald. They went by train but Miss MacDonald brought them home by car. Mr. and Mrs. R.M. Bracken and Robert accompanied by Susan Whitley of Montreal are spending a vacation with Mr. and Mrs. K.R. MacLeod.

DR LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Surgery may need repeating

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 70. Ten years ago I had a transurethral operation on my prostate gland. A month ago I had the same operation. The doctor who operated on me said that it is not unusual to have the growth again. He said that I did not have a tumor, I am in good health but don't relish the idea of going through the same operation again sometime in the future. Can you give me more information on this subject?

DEAR READER — Can't say I blame you. The prostate gland is literally like a donut surrounding the urethra just outside the bladder. As the prostate enlarges it fills up the hole in the donut and compresses the urethra. That is what causes the symptoms of urinary obstruction. The transurethral operation inserts an instrument through the urethra to the area of the prostate. By boring out the hole with the instrument the obstruction is relieved. This operation does not remove all the prostate gland, but enough to adequately remove the obstruction. The boring out procedure is usually pretty generous to try to prevent the recurrence of the obstruction.

Since the prostate gland is still there, if it continues to enlarge, eventually it can begin to fill up the hole in the donut again. When this happens the doctor has to either do another "bore job" or surgically cut out the prostate. If the operation is done fairly late in life, and if the prostate doesn't continue to enlarge too rapidly, then it may last a person for their life span, otherwise the problem may recur.

I can't guarantee you that you won't need another operation, but there is a good chance that your present operation should last at least as long as the last one, or more than 10 years. Your prostate gland growth may now be slowing a bit too, which could work in your favor. DEAR DR. LAMB — My sister has very white teeth and claims it is because she uses baking soda and salt instead of toothpaste. What do you think about this? Is it all right? And, she claims that you can improve your teeth also by using peroxide as a mouthwash every hour all day long. Couldn't that be harmful?

DEAR READER — There are many substances you can use to polish the teeth, and they will make the teeth whiter. But, that doesn't mean the teeth will be healthier. Pumice, a fine gritty abrasive, is used by dentists in polishing your teeth. However, you shouldn't use it regularly, because it is abrasive enough to wear your teeth down.

The same can be said about soda and salt. They may clean your teeth, but they may take part of the teeth away with the food particles and stains. So, whiteness doesn't mean healthy teeth. I believe you would be much better off to use commercially tested and approved toothpastes that contain materials to protect against tooth decay.

Peroxide as a mouthwash may not cause any harm if it is not too strong. If you use a strong solution you can burn the sensitive gingiva (gums) and damage them. I would definitely think that once an hour would run the risk of damaging tissues. The important thing in dental hygiene is just to clean the teeth well and optimally to clean them after each time you eat. In special instances the gums need to be massaged and stimulated. If you do these things nature will do most of the rest for you.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on hemorrhoids, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Hemorrhoids" booklet.

A history of the United Church of Mansonville

(Special to the Record)

The following history was compiled by Mrs. Marguerite Ommerli for the occasion of the 100th Anniversary of the United Church of Mansonville and its preaching points, to be read to the members at one of the United Church Women's meetings during 1973. The material was taken from records and writings of Mr. Lorne Barnett and some other records in Miss Edythe Aiken's possession, also some history and up-dated additions by Mrs. Maria Bray.

In the Dunkin Cemetery there is a tombstone engraved: Col. Hendrick Ruyter 1739-1819, wife Cathrine Friott 1760-1819. These were the first white settlers in Dunkin which was at that time called West Pottan and also Chatigny, a name probably given by the Indians who lived there.

Colonel Ruyter, born in New York of Dutch parents, had fought in the American Revolutionary War in the State of New York. He came as a refugee with the Loyalists of the United Empire from Pittstown, N.Y., (a suburb of Albany, N.Y.) then called Fort George, into Canada and settled in Dunkin in 1799. He had two fingers cut off, for which he received a pension of one Crown a day for the rest of his life. He also received from the British Government a large amount of land in Pottan Township for his loyalty. He chose West Pottan because the brook joins the Missisquoi River and, therefore, it was a perfect place for a trading station with the Indians as water routes were used for transportation in those days. The Ruyter Brook still bears his name.

More Loyalist families moved in and sons are still represented in the area. Later on, Mr. Edgar Barnett, schoolteacher in West Pottan, changed the name to Dunkin, after Christopher Dunkin, then a prominent citizen of Knowlton. He was born in England in 1836 and came to Montreal from London as a journalist. By and by he settled in Knowlton and held many very important positions: journalist, judge of the Superior Court, Minister of Agriculture, educator and lawyer. He worked in the Temperance Movement and also was President of the South Eastern Railway Co.

The village was growing and had stage coach transportation. The Sherrin farm house was the Stage Coach Hotel and the bedrooms are still numbered today. The original barn for the horses burned down in 1939 when it was struck by lightning exactly at noon on a hot day in July.

The villagers held the first religious meetings in their houses. The first minister known was a Reverend James Jennings. He was a preaching Elder long before the building of a church was thought of. From 1870 on, church services were held in the schoolhouse; the minister at that time was Elder B.S. Reynolds, pastor of the Adventist Church. In 1876, the house now owned by Miss Edythe Aiken was built as a parsonage for him.

In 1871 land was donated for a church by Mark L. Elkins who was Mayor of Mansonville during 1862-65, in 1874, and the years of 1876-78. The highest contribution towards the church was $200 from the wealthiest member, Chase Gilman, Sr. as he was too old and too feeble to do manual work. B.B. Titus (Gristmiller) gave much material and oversaw the construction. R.D. Learned was carpenter headman, Charles Barnett, Clerk-Sec., and Mark Elkins donor and helper.

In 1876 the following people voted in favor of Elder Reynolds that he should claim the deed for the parsonage house and the land it was built on, also the land that the church would be built on: Charles Barnett, Abraham Ruyter, Jacob Ruyter, Chester Aiken, Samuel Aiken and Curtis Aiken (sons of Chester), Fred L. Aiken (brother of Chester), C.S. Ruyter, Nelson Aiken (brother of Sam of Glen Sutton), and Oliver Peabody.

The church was built and was dedicated on Nov. 26, 1879, with a debt outstanding of a little over $200. It was named Evangelical Second Adventist Church and later named the Dunkin Union Church. The dedication sermon was preached by Rev. Adams of Mansonville, a Methodist. It is claimed that in closing, he said: "It's a shame to close this scene with so small a sum unpaid," and it is supposed that he then wrote something, placed his name at the head of the sheet of paper, and slipping down from the pulpit said: "Brothers, let's see what you are made of." Again Uncle Chase Gilman led the way, with $10 (he had already donated $200 previously). Before the service closed, the debt was cleared.

Chase Gilman was asked to be trustee of the church, but he declined in favor of R.S. Learned. Four pews were initially for the four heaviest subscribers: C.W.B. (Charles Barnett), G.C. (Chase Gilman), J.M.T. (J.M. Titus) and R.D.L. (R.D. Learned) who also made a bible rack for his own accommodation.

When the church was built, they ran out of white lead for the paint. A 15-year-old boy carried a 25 pound pail of white lead from North Troy to Dunkin one dark night.

The first service was held in Dunkin Church on April 24, 1880, as it had been kept closed during the winter months. Elder B.S.

Reynolds was minister in Dunkin from 1870-1894 and he was followed by Rev. J.J. Theakston from Sutton, a Free-Will Baptist. In 1899 Rev. Theakston died a tragic death. He tried to go through the spring flood down the narrow cove road in Dunkin across to the Missisquoi River bridge. One horse lost its footing and pulled the other horse and the buggy with the minister down the swollen Missisquoi.

He was succeeded by Pastor F.W. Domina, Second Evangelist Advent Church (licentiate) who was minister in Dunkin for three years until 1901. He was succeeded by Pastor W.A. Wells from Sutton until 1903. At the time that Rev. Theakston preached in Dunkin, a Rev. A. Wallace (Sutton) held meetings too. In 1906 Rev. John Champion, a Baptist, took over until 1911 after which Rev. James Kenworthy, a Baptist from Mansonville, preached for six months. Then the Advent Conference sent West Pottan a pastor, Rev. Walter Mansfield from Montgomery, Vt. In 1916 Rev. John Champion preached again for $3.50 a Sunday. Rev. Naaman Brock, ordained Second Evangelist, Glen Sutton, took over in 1918 for one year.

In 1919 Rev. F.S. Domina and Rev. Mansfield held a series of meetings. From Sept. 17-31, 1919, Rev. Rough (Sutton) and Rev. A. Wallace also held meetings. In 1925, 1929 and 1930 Rev. Champion returned as preacher. In 1931 there was a student minister, Dixon Gordon from Montreal, during the four summer months. He was followed by Rev. Huxtable of the Mansonville United Church. Rev. Champion held meetings between May 12 and June 27, 1945. Before and after, there were several ministers from the United Church of Mansonville, including Rev. Malcolm Galbraith (1947-48) and Rev. Edward (Ed) White (1949-53).

On May 1, 1949, five children of James Wilkins and two girls of Frank Sargent's in Dunkin were baptized by Rev. John Clark Reilly assisted by Mr. White who was ordained the following year. In 1958 or 1959, from Aug. to Nov., Rev. Hugh Corey from the Pentecostal Church in Richford, Vt., held services.

Other Pentecostal services held were Rev. John (Jack) Parkes, who held a few night services in the summer of 1969, and Rev. Alex Nyssönen with student minister Malcolm E. Eby (who later became an ordained minister) of the South Bolton Bethel Pentecostal Church, held joint services in 1964.

"The church was also used for many years for the Christmas programs of the Dunkin School which closed in the spring of 1951. On Oct. 2, 1972, the Union Church was taken over by the Ruyter Settlement Cemetery Association and sold to Mr. M. Erkila of Montreal, for a moderate price." Mrs. Erkila became a teacher in the Mansonville Elementary School.

It is with interest to note that in 1909 a marble post marker was erected near the Merrill Sherrer house inside of the road fence identifying the spot where the first house was built in the Pottan Township by Colonel Hendrick Ruyter, with the year 1796 thereon, although other records give the date as 1799. Another note of interest, is the first burial in the Ruyter Settlement Cemetery of Col. Ruyter's two-year-old son Jacob, who died by small pox contracted from a wandering band of Indians. His name is seen on the family headstone along with two other children, Abigail and Joseph. In the cemetery records, the death of Jacob is recorded as June 1797.

These records are in the possession of Mr. Lorne Barnett. The name Ruyter was originally De Ruyter and was changed around in 1770. There is a city named De Ruyter on the map of New York State located just below the area of Utica-Syracuse. The De Ruyter family first came to the territories around New York City known then as New Amsterdam.

NO CHARGE for TIRE INSTALLATION
when you buy our Dill or Schrader valve at our regular catalogue price of $1.00. We must install tire and valve together. "A tire isn't new unless the valve is too!" Static-Balance, tire wheel, $1.00. Dynamic $2.50.

5% Discount for Cash is in lieu of Bonus Coupons

4 + 2 construction means 6 instead of the usual 4 ply under the tread. That makes it stronger than all the others. 4 + 2 costs a lot more to make, and so is rarely available elsewhere. Even at twice Canadian Tire prices, 4 + 2 would still be good value. More miles, twice the safety! (See Nevada Test results posted in our stores)

5-Yr. Road Hazard Insured: 44-Month, 44% Pro-rated Wear-out Disc't Allowance.

Turnpike Wide-Track 2 + 2 Glass-Belted Polyester—A Glass-Belted tire that's extra wide, and deep-treaded like the 4 + 2 Belt-O-Glass above, but with 2 body plies of Polyester and 2 'Second Generation' improved Glass Belts, similar to tires installed on new cars now.

5-Yr. Road Hazard Insured: 36-Mth, 36% Pro-rated Wear-Out Discount Allowance.

Polyflex 2 + 2 Polyester-Belted Nylon—Built with 2 body plies of Du Pont 66 #1260-denier Nylon cord (50% stronger than ordinary 4-ply #840-denier Nylon cord), then belted with 2 plies of Polyester instead of glass. Result? A belted tire that rides softer and costs less.

5-Yr. Road Hazard Insured: 30-Month, 30% Pro-rated Wear-Out Discount Allowance.

Ladies Aid meets

MANSONVILLE — The Baptist Ladies Aid met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Aiken Fri. evening, July 19, with a fair attendance.

The meeting opened by singing the hymn Moment by Moment, followed by all repeating the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Wayne Bedard read from the scriptures 1 Corinthians, Chap. 13.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Clare Bedard and approved.

Mrs. W. Bedard read short selections from the Sword of the Lord, Beatitudes of a Housewife, Home and a humorous piece — Go on with Your Knitting.

Final plans were made for the July 27 sale and a Get Well card was signed by all ladies present to be sent to Miss Greta McKelvey.

The meeting was closed by the members repeating the Mizpah Benediction after which lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. C. Bedard.

Birthday Party

KINNEAR'S MILLS — A very lovely gathering was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Maxwell to celebrate the birthday of Mrs. Maxwell's uncle, Mr. Sam MacRae.

Although his birthday fell on an earlier date the party was postponed and his niece, Mrs. Herbert Crawford and Mr. Crawford, of Hamilton, Ont. were able to attend.

A buffet lunch was served at noon. The birthday cake was made and decorated by the guest of honor's nephew's wife, Mrs. Eric MacRae.

On behalf of the assembled guests he was presented with an electric shaver. Mr. MacRae expressed his thanks for the gift and for the party held in his honor.

The following guests attended the party: Messrs Sam and Willie MacRae, Mrs. Annie Legare, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Crawford and Mr. Sam Nugent, Mr. and Mrs. David MacRae, Mr. and Mrs. Eric MacRae and their sons, Lynn and Ricky, Mr. Leslie King and Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell and family.

All wish Mr. MacRae many more happy birthdays.
