Modern Columbuses display their skill

Tooy Booth and Earl Cavanaugh with their model of an up to date motorized sailing yacht try out the waters of the new pool at Sherbrooke and Melville opened this week. The two juvenile sailors were elated at the prospect that they could get an audience seated around the new development to watch their activities.

English predominant tongue in 180 African dialects

BY E. C. GANNON

Ghana's future is bright providing the country's internal strife becomes stabilized, stated Colonel John Wallace, O.B.E., C.D. a member of the Canadian Government who spent several years there as technical advisor to the Ghanaian government in 1963. Ghana's great drawback he said was caused by her efforts to improve her status overnight. With proper education there is no reason why Ghana cannot take its place along with other nations of the world.

Such was the opinion on Africa's former Gold Coast state given to local Rotarians by Colonel Wallace, in speaking to members of the Westmount Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon meeting held in Victoria Hall last week, Col. Wallace stated it was his opinion that the one party system at present in vogue under Nkrumah was

Stick to the sea, my lad!

A young sailor from New Jersey was fined $275 and had his driving privileges in Canada revoked by the Westmount Municipal Court for various traffic violations committed last Monday.

The youth hit a police car, and evidently panicked. He did not stop and in the chase that ensued he broke almost every basic traffic law in the books.

He drove through four red lights, two stop signs, and proceeded on the wrong way, down a one-way street. He was seen speeding on de Maisonneuve Boulevard but going east while the street is one-way west. A Westmount patrol car cut him off at the corner of deMaisonneuve and Atwater. He was immediately arrested.

Next week's weather

By ERIC NEAL
AUGUST 12 TO 19

Heavy moon first quarter thundersqualls, with hail to open the week. Conditions improving and warming again, although we will still have cold, gusty winds as storms move eastwards.

Typical Harvest Moon weather will then last for ten days. Afternoons warm and sunny. Nights cool. Frosty mornings north of the St. Lawrence.

Temperature range, 50-80°F.
Early morning fishing fair.

New schedule now in effect

Effective immediately, rates for the users of electricity in Westmount have been increased to conform generally with the rates introduced recently by the Quebec Hydro Electric Commission. The new rates will affect all users of the service provided by the City of Westmount's Light and Power Department and were officially made effective at Monday night's council meeting moved by Alderman J. H. Richer, chairman of the Light and Power department.

It was announced at the meeting that electricity rates, generally, in the City of Westmount have not been increased for many years and that the new increase will bring users costs for services in line with adjacent areas on the island of Montreal.

The old rates have been in vogue since 1906 it was explained. The increase is the result of increases in the cost of power purchased in bulk by the city and in the cost of labor and materials necessary to the operation of Westmount's system. As a result, the average householder will be subject to an increase of approximately one to two dollars a month or two to four dollars bi-monthly. The new rates will vary with the type of service used, whether commercial, industrial or residential, and the type of equipment for which the electricity is required. Also the volume of electricity consumed has a bearing on the rate charged in some particular circumstances. In general, the following table shows the rate-structure for residential users:

BI-MONTHLY NET COST

K.W.H.	Present Rate	Proposed Rate	Increase In Dollars
100	2.82	3.67	.85
300	5.77	7.35	1.58
500	8.05	9.94	1.89
1000	12.36	15.12	2.76
2000	21.00	24.84	3.84

Although, the new rates apply on readings taken on or after the 8th of August, it may be a month or two before some customers will be billed for service at the new rates, it was stated.

It was noted in the annual report of the city just issued that the maximum power requirements on the city's system reached a record high of 23,250 kilowatts and the number of kilowatt-hours distributed rose from 89,687,000 in 1965 to 105,152,000 during 1966.

PAVING $12,489.57

The sum of $12,489.57 offered by La Cie d'Asphalte Moderne in tender for the supplying and placing of hot mix asphalt on various streets was accepted by the city over four other companies for work to be done.

City records on microfilm

The City is to have all its records preserved for posterity on microfilm and for this purpose the sum of $7,608 has been voted by Council to provide for the purchase and installation of the equipment. As a result the move will reduce the amount of space at present taken up by bulky records and provide a great increase in the effective handling of records including library books and other municipal department records.

The monies to be spent will include a microfilmer, two filing cabinets and one reader-printer. Permission having been granted by the Minister of Municipal Affairs.

Redivision of civic lots

A redivision of lots situated on the west side of Lansdowne Avenue north of de Maisonneuve Boulevard is being done to create four lots for a development of terraced dwellings. The new houses would bear the civic numbers 306 to 312, plans of which have been approved by the architectural commission. Architects are Perry and Patch, the owner Albert Vallee.

A further redivision is being made to create one lot on Renfrew avenue for the owner Mr. L. Mackay Smith who proposes to construct an addition to the rear of his dwelling at 19 Renfrew Ave.

Second and Third readings given

Second and third readings were given by city council to by-laws concerning the Director of Services, the Board of Inspections, the latter being adopted and has now become law.

Second reading was given to the by-law providing for a loan of $1,800,000 for the extension, widening and paving of streets, improvements to parks and public buildings, purchase of equipment for snow removal etc.

New Residential Construction — Construction starts of dwelling units in centres of 10,000 population and over totalled 8,220 in April, up from the 1966 month total of 6,520. During the January-April period starts dropped to 22,745 from 26,356 last year. Completions during April numbered 10,397. During the January-April period completions dropped to 34,345 this year from 50,474. Units under construction at April 30 numbered 59,454 compared with 75,811 at the same date last year. April starts by provinces were as follows: 201 (63 in the 1966 month); Prince Edward Island, nil (1); Nova Scotia, 54 New Brunswick, 61 (109); Quebec, 1,718 (1,471); Ontario, 4,075 (3,066); Manitoba, 156 (93); Saskatchewan, 148 (166); Alberta, 652 (382); British Columbia, 1,155 (1,075).

IT'S A GAMBLE — Canadians who think legalized lotteries will end the financial woes of everything from hospitals to schools might note the case of New York State, The Financial Post suggests. After one month of operation, officials are wondering where the gambling spirit went. The $1 sweepstakes tickets went on sale in June at 4,000 different locations. State officials confidently predicted sales of $30 million a month, with 55% of the take going to support the cost of education. Results in June: a little over $6 million in ticket sales and $3.5 million for education—one fifth of what had been hoped for. Officials, in defence, claim they are still struggling with distribution and staff problems. A better clue, however, may have come from an illegal numbers racket operator. "Numbers players haven't quit us because they now realize that our odds are better," he says. "We pay off immediately and there's no waiting. And furthermore, no winner has to worry about paying income taxes."

NEW TYPE HOUSING — Two major competitive materials manufacturers are getting ready to crack Canada's huge, unsatisfied housing market, W.L. Dack reports in The Financial Post. Their answers to skyrocketing house construction costs—mass produced homes build on an auto-assembly-line basis. Both will vigorously promote greater use of their material in new housing. But the two companies — Alcan Aluminium Ltd. and Steel Co. of Canada — are tackling the problem in widely different ways. Alcan is moving into construction of assembly-produced, fully-furnished homes aimed exclusively at the big urban development market. Stelco, on the other hand, will not move directly into housing, but will work closely with customers in developing new house designs with better and greater use of steel.

PARKS AND PEOPLE — City parks are getting back to the people, The Financial Post notes. Imaginative New York parks officials are luring the crowds with every thing from nickel beer and hot dog summertime parties to big name concerts. Canadian municipal officials, are beginning to catch the motivating spirit too. Toronto, with a budget of $90,000 to spend exclusively on parks programs, this summer is offering 166 free performances of every kind of musical concert, as well as some theatre and children's shows. Budgets are usually the stumbling block to expanded parks programs. But why can't Canadian civic officials seek out more support from commercial concerns? The Post asks. New York has used private sponsors to help it attract the big stars and theatre groups. Surely some compromise can be reached on what kind and how much advertising would satisfy both sides.

Children's Library will reopen Monday

The Children's Library will reopen on schedule, next Monday, August 14. The Library has been closed for a month during which time it has been air conditioned and painted. Also, the book collection has been re-grouped in what amounts to a major change-over, with every section shifted. The result is a more logical and convenient arrangement of the books.

The collection is now divided into three main sections: a fiction "room" created by the placement of waist-high shelves to set off a corner of the room; a section for reference works and non-fiction; and a section for picture books and "easy" books for the younger readers. The picture book section has a low round table with chairs, and the books are kept only on the lower shelves, within reach of the younger children.

The upper shelves are to be filled with a frieze of illustrations from the work of Beatrix Potter, the famous illustrator of children's books. This last division also includes the "intermediate" fiction and the French books.

New COLOR Scheme
The Library has been painted in a new color scheme of three harmonizing pastels: green, blue-green, and yellow. The new colors will provide a more suitable backdrop for holiday displays for all occasions.

In an effort to compensate for its closing, the Children's Library, earlier in the summer, issued eight books on a card, due back after Labour Day. The response was good, and the Library now estimates that it has in circulation about five thousand books.

Accordingly, Mrs. Gay and Mrs. Clayton are sending out an urgent appeal to all the children to refrain from returning all their books the first day the Library reopens. The books are not due until after Labour Day, so the children are asked to please try to spread them over this time period.

THE SHAH OF PERSIA

By SIMON KAVANAUGH

The anomalies of Middle East politics are bewildering. Israel has the only legal Communist party; the Communist-backed Arab states put their Communists in jail. Arab nations created and maintained by the West sever all relations with their commercial partners; socialist Egypt spends more on arms than on education, while an Arab monarchy Saudi Arabia institutes a huge programme of land reform and free technical schooling.

Nowhere is this kind of political paradox more evident than in Iran or Persia, as the West insists on calling it. Some of the Shah's best friends are Communists, yet there is no word of disapproval from them as he rails against Nasser and steps up business with the Western imperialists.

If his title was President of the People's Republic, instead of "Emperor, King of Kings, Shadow of the Almighty and Centre of the Universe," he could scarcely be doing a better job, as far as Moscow's ideologists are concerned.

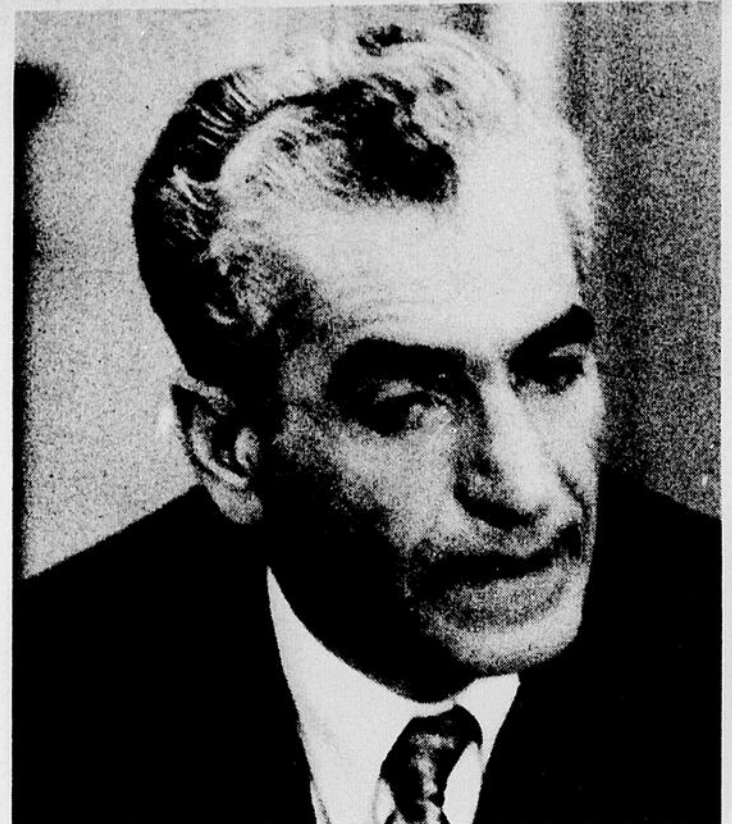

His reforms have been staggering by any standards; 25 million peasants — though most are still at subsistence level — have never had it so good, comparatively speaking. Hundreds of thousands of acres of land have been redistributed, co-operatives have sprung up, schools can be found in the smallest villages and vast irrigation schemes have been undertaken in barren desert. The Shah himself horrified conservatives by giving away the huge and profitable royal estates and thirty million pounds or so in cash as well. He has disarmed the left-wing further by swinging away from dependence on American oil companies and throwing much of the country's economic lot with the Soviet Union.

STATISTICS

Though statistics are hard to formulate, Russian investment in Iran is believed to equal that of the West — and by 1970 will certainly surpass it. For by then there will be the first concrete results of a huge deal signed two years ago to provide a steel mill and an oil-and-gas pipeline from the south to the northern frontier with the USSR. These will be guarded by American-built tanks and jets.

To carry the irony further, Arab states are accusing Iran of supplying oil to Israel, but that will doubtless not prevent everyone from being present in church when, in October this year, the Shah is formally crowned in a long-delayed ceremony which will rival any Arabian Nights scene for splendour. Capitalists, communists, arabs and jews will all bring their gifts and their congratulations.

Chess, it will be remembered, originated in Persia. . . . Mohammed Reza Shah Pahlevi was born on October 26, 1919, in Teheran, the eldest of nine children. His father was a former colonel in the Persian Cossack Brigade who became military dictator, replacing the ruling house of Kajar and taking the crown of Darius in 1926. His young son was sent to school in Switzerland, but returned home just after World War II to enter the Military Academy. His Swiss schooling may have been responsible for much of his democratic thinking in later life; it is highly probable, anyway, that if he had been brought up entirely in Teheran, his father's pro-Axis feelings would have affected him more. Leading Persians were Hitler sympathisers to a man, and this led to Britain and Russia sending troops to Teheran in 1941. It was a three day war. The Shah refused to comply with the amistice terms and abdicated in favour of his son.

The young Shah — now married to Farouk's daughter Fawzia — fought his first battle with the Russians, who refused to evacuate the Red Army occupation units until pressured to do so by the United Nations. Then there was a rebellion in the northern provinces, backed by the Communist Tudeh party, and, much later, a more serious crisis when Prime Minister Mossadeq attempted a take-over. There were plots and counter-plots, arrests and counter-arrests, and weeks of bloody rioting. Twice the Shah was deposed in practice if not in law and twice he returned. The Shah was actually in Rome when royalists finally overthrew Mossadeq. The ex-premier was put on trail and faced death until the Shah interceded "on the grounds of his past services to the State." Sentence was three years solitary confinement.

POLITICAL STRENGTH

From that time, in 1953, the Shah has grown politically stronger every year. His critics say he is surrounded by yes-men, and that many of his grandiose schemes exist only on paper, but there is no politician anywhere in the Middle East who devotes himself more wholeheartedly to the national interest. Boxes of State papers accompany him even on holidays, and he will fly anywhere in the world to put Persia's case or help a commercial deal. He was the first monarch to address the U.N. Assembly, and the first monarch to tour East European capitals. He is in fact one of the very few Middle Eastern leaders who can leave his own country for lengthy tours and be confident that he can return.

He has survived many attempts at assassination, but they have been markedly fewer in recent years.

His domestic life for years was marred by his desperate desire for a son to carry on the

Gardener's job
no bed of roses

The conservatory is preparing for the November flower show already.

At present there are no colourful blooms, no crowds of people, the miniature water-fall has been replaced by a common black rubber hose; in short there is no exhibition at the Westmount Conservatory.

On looking at the beauty of a flower show like that of last April, the beholder seldom thinks of the dull routine work that goes into producing it. At present a full staff of gardeners is preparing for the big exhibition which is to take place on November 11th.

The conservatory is at present filled with rows and rows of flowerless plants supported by bamboo stakes, not very exciting. All the buds except two at the head of a chrysanthemum must be nipped off. There are 4,000 chrysanthemums and they have up to 15 buds each. This keeps the gardeners very busy, but nipping off 60,000 tiny buds is not the accepted stereotype of the relaxed and fulfilled gardener. The spring flower show, having 20,336 plants, bears witness to the fortitude as well as the skill of the Westmount Conservatory gardeners.

The Christmas exhibition in November will have an abundance of special Christmas flowers—chrysanthemums, poinsettias, and cyclamen. Thus when Westmounters take in the natural beauty of the autumn flower show they should remember the human element of devotion and patience that went into its make-up.

finishes

The Westmount Y.M.C.A.'s six-week day camp program comes to a close this Friday. If success can be judged by numbers, the camp, with a registration of over 500 camper-weeks, has been a great success. The program consisted of regular instruction periods in swimming, arts and crafts and athletics and special trips to Expo '67, Granby Zoo and Upper Canada Village. Other highlights were the Parents Night on July 13th and the Penny Carnival on July 27th. The final Parents Night will be held this Thursday, August 10th.

We Say

Expressway tieups: there 'otta be a law'

CRUCIAL points on our many glorious miles of multi-million-dollar expressways, specially in and approaching the metropolitan area, are vulnerable.

Vulnerable to vehicles which break down.

Halting or slowing to a crawl traffic which should be moving freely at 45, 50 or 60 miles per hour.

Frustrating other motorists, who rightfully expect to travel from "A" to "B" in so many minutes; instead burning fuel and tempers, multiplied by hundreds of cars, trucks and buses.

Defeating the spending of hundreds of millions of dollars of taxpayers' money in making our highways best on the continent.

Analyzing breakdowns at bottlenecks would reveal almost certainly that the majority arise from owner or driver negligence.

Negligence in replacing wornout or leaking tires.

Failure to refill a low gasoline tank.

Neglect to replace plugs and points burned beyond dependable service.

Inattention to a sluggish cooling system.

Guessing instead of regularly checking oil or battery liquid levels.

Irresponsibility with cars, under modern expressway and road interchange conditions as well as downtown streets is the most frequent cause of traffic tieups, which need never have occurred.

A stiffening of the Highway Code, with tough penalties for the negligently responsible drivers, would go a long way to keep traffic flowing the way it was designed to do.

Westmounter in Britain:

Every Night is Tough

By STEPHEN SCHOFIELD

LONDON: I feel singularly fortunate to have spent a few minutes, quietly and alone, with that striking ornament of the stage and screen, Vivien Leigh, who had now died, alas, at the age of 53.

As though yesterday, it seems, I interviewed her in a cosy little room backstage, an hour or so before a performance of Anthony and Cleopatra. Clad in a black negligée, she was sitting with her legs up on a small couch, occupying the whole of it; and her legs were covered with a white eiderdown.

She looked frail and pale; and her face was heavily made up, a deep cream colour, eyelashes long and black, her lips smooth and tapering to a long cupid bow.

WHISKEY BOTTLE

I could hardly believe that this frail looking woman was the passionate coquette who dashed a piece of china against a wall in "Gone With The Wind," and smashed a whiskey bottle and thrust its jagged edge at the face of Marlon Brando in "Streetcar Named Desire." I asked her how she kept her figure so trim?

"Oh," she said, "I don't eat much. And I work hard. That's about all."

Her voice was pleasant, accentless English, that is, neither British nor American.

"How did it sound to hear your own voice on the screen — for the first time?"

"Terrible," she said. "Terrible?"

"Yes, I sounded terrible. I tried to improve my voice. As a matter of fact I still do work on my voice."

During all this time I was standing up, rather awkwardly, notebook in hand. I wanted to sit down to take notes. I could not sit down because there was no chair in the room, and no space left on the couch. I did not like to ask for a chair. So I simply knelt on the floor, on one knee, quite close to her.

A GENTLEMAN

A gentleman knocked on the door, opened it slightly and thrust his head inside. Presumably because he saw me kneeling by the couch, he was about to withdraw when Miss Leigh spoke quickly and loudly! "Come in, Larry! This is . . . ah . . . Mr. Schofield!" Her eyes glared and the tone of her voice implied: "Come on now, Larry! Be nice to the young man! Shake hands with him properly!"

Her husband, Sir Laurence Olivier, strode into the room. Indeed a striking figure, well proportioned and stocky in a shimmering kilt of gold and a great brass breast-plate, he looked like a king of yours. His demeanor bore a slight scowl, an expression of weariness.

Westmount UFO enthusiasts plan to solve the mystery

By Jan

Twice a month, Friday evenings at eight o'clock, the Montreal Unidentified Flying Objects Group meet at the Atwater Library. "Are these strange objects nothing more than an unknown natural phenomena? Are they illusions or clever hoaxes perpetrated on a gullible public? Or are they something which should be a matter of prime concern to the people of all nations on the earth?"

According to the members the latter statement is without a doubt correct. The aim of the group as stated by the president, Lindon Astle, is to carry on as a non-profit club for the purposes of holding public discussions on the subjects of flying saucers and metaphysics.

Several members of the group have formed a sky observation team which with the aid of telescopes, binoculars, and photographic equipment will methodically scan the skies in an attempt to make as many sightings as possible. All findings will be correlated, and analysed scientifically. The public is urged to report sightings to the society. A chart of instructions is being drawn up telling the layman what to look for and record.

This reporter once attended a meeting of the society. Slides were shown of various sightings around the world. To the sceptical many of them may not have seemed quite credible. However, a Westmount Park and King George Park in Westmount were picked out by Virginia Lambe writing in the Montreal Gazette as the epitomes of the English type park. She says French parks subdue nature. Ordered graveled walks with park benches alongside are more common than large expanses of grass and trees. "The Frenchman renews himself by contact with other people. The Englishman immerses himself in nature and returns refreshed," she writes.

Westmount and King George Parks are green, undulating and the benches are under the numerous trees — nature improved. People try to find privacy, they wish to commune with nature in some secluded corner.

Miss Lambe ends with the comment: "English parks are more natural than French parks, but perhaps people are more natural in French parks."

Following Westmount's plan of beautification of city streets by lining them with trees, the City of Montreal reports that it has planted 115,174 trees in parks and streets in the past 4 years, it was announced by Dr. Yves Desmarais, director of Montreal's Botanical Garden. Dr. Desmarais said that at the end of June Montreal's inventory of standing trees was 308,179. At the end of 1963 Montreal owned 268,107 trees. Since then, 115,174 trees were planted — 34,943 in the streets and 80,231 in the parks done. Andy Durso and Claude Cadorette devoted much of their time toward making the trip a success. A visit to Weredale Camp will be made by another group on August 16th.

Bulletins from Birdland

Musical Thrushes

The only Canadian Thrush known to most city dwellers is our Robin, but the gentle Bluebird, emblem of happiness, is also a Thrush. Besides these two there are a number of birds that actually bear the surname "Thrush". All are noted for their vocal ability, but it is a matter of opinion which deserves first prize — the Wood Thrush or the Hermit Thrush.

Canada has been the birthplace of many Thrushes for centuries, but with the exception of the little peninsula-like strip of Ontario that reaches far into the United States, we have had the Wood Thrush as a regular breeder only within the last 35 or 40 years. Before that a single pair might be found breeding in eastern Canada, now they nest here regularly. Their southern range extends farther south than that of any other Thrush.

In the last 20 years the Wood Thrush has worked its way up into the Laurentians, and its glorious voice may be heard from the date of its arrival in May until the moulting period. This year our cold spring delayed nesting operations, so that all birds are behind schedule. The Wood Thrush is no exception. Consequently, the singing period was extended.

The Wood Thrush's voice is exceptionally clear, yet mellow, the range great, the tune true — no going off key. The flute-like song is divided into phrases with a slight pause between each.

With a great variation in pitch, the tune goes up the scale, then down, and extra trilled notes are inserted here and there. When quite close to the singer a soft "tuck, tuck" and "see-see-see" can be heard. For many weeks this continues from dawn until dark.

Wood Thrushes are handsome birds, male and female alike. They are easily identified by the large almost circular, dark spots on their pure white underparts and a conspicuous white eye-ring. The upper parts, especially the head, are a very reddish brown. The general effect is a plump bird with a rather short tail. Feet and legs are pale, rather pinkish.

Much of their food is obtained by scratching the earth or dead leaves to find insects. With a family to feed, most of the mother's day is spent on the ground while the father encourages her by perching on a low branch to do his singing. This summer their territory was a wide expanse of shrubbery and trees not too far from the lake. The juveniles are still being given some attention by their parents although it is now August.

"But Now"

The words "but now" are found in many places in the Bible, but most often in the Epistles of Paul. "BUT NOW the righteousness of God without the law is manifested" (Ver. 21).

How can this be? How can a man be declared righteous apart from the law? The answer — the only answer is, by grace through faith in Christ.

Though perfect and sinless Christ died for sin. Whose sin? Yours and mine. Thus as Paul declares in Acts 13:38:

"By this Man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins, and by Him all who believe are justified from all things, from which ye could not be justified by the Law of Moses."

"Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith, without the deeds of the law" (Rom. 3:28).

Former Moderator

Dr. Bailey is a former Minister of Westmount Baptist Church and is at present Pastor of Kingsway Baptist Church, Toronto, Ontario. He will preach on the subject. "THE UPLIFTED CHRIST" on Sunday morning, August 13th, and in the evening the topic of his sermon will be "EVERYBODY'S TEXT".

After the morning service all are cordially invited to the Lower Hall for the Fellowship Hour, when coffee and light refreshments will be served.

The midweek meeting of the Church is on Wednesday at 8:00 P.M. for Prayer, Praise and Bible Study.

The B.Y.P.U. ages 18 to 30 meets on Thursdays at 8:00 P.M.

From Death to Birth

"Being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the Word of God, which liveth and abideth forever" (I Pet. 1:23)

We are prone to think of death as following birth. People are born to live their lives and then die.

Spiritually, however, it is the other way. St. Peter, by divine inspiration, says that we must be "born again" because: "All flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth and the flower thereof falleth away: "But the Word of the Lord endureth forever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you" (Vers. 24, 25).

This new birth is a spiritual matter, necessitated by the fact that by nature men are "dead in trespasses and sins" (Eph. 2:1). Thus believers are not born again in the same way as they were first born, but are born again—given new life, by believing the Word of God.

God's Word, in this passage, is called "incorruptible seed"—seed that cannot die. Once the Word takes root in one's heart, once he believes and receives it, it never dies, but produces in him "everlasting life."

"The Word of the Lord endureth forever, and this is the Word which by the gospel is preached unto you" (Ver 25).

The Word of God takes root in one's heart only as he believes the gospel, the good news, about Christ's redemptive work. Peter himself proclaims this wonderful gospel:

"Ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold . . . but with the precious blood of Christ . . ." (I Peter 1:18, 19).

"Who His own self bare our sins in His own body on the tree . . ." (I Pet. 2:24).

"For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the Just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God. . . (I Peter 3:18).

Flaming shish kebabs light summer barbecues

The holiday mood is now at its peak and a good way to add a festive touch to meal-times is to serve flaming lamb shish kebabs.

This is a simple recipe that allows father to show off his culinary prowess at the barbecue. Shish kebab is an ideal party recipe and served flaming on a summer night highlights the occasion.

The major part of the preparation is done in advance with the actual cooking taking about 20 minutes. Flaming brandy is poured over the meat just before it is served on a dish of fluffy rice, making a grand and glorious moment.

1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1/2 cup salad oil
1/2 cup vinegar
1/2 cup water

3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce

1/2 cup tomato ketchup

1/2 cup chili sauce

2 tablespoons finely-chopped onion

1/2 clove garlic, crushed

3 pounds Spring lamb leg or shoulder, cut in 1 1/2 inch cubes

Fruits and vegetables

1/2 cup brandy

4 to 5 cups fluffy rice

In saucepan combine sugar and mustard; blend in lemon juice; add oil vinegar, water, Worcestershire sauce, ketchup, chili sauce, onion and garlic; combine thoroughly. Simmer, uncovered for 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool and pour over meat cubes in bowl. Cover and place in refrigerator for at least 3 hours.

Drain meat; reserve sauce; thread meat on greased skewers. Leave space between cubes of meat so that heat may reach all sides. Grill 3 or 4 inches from glowing coals for about 20 minutes or until desired degree of doneness is reached; turn several times to brown evenly.

During the last 10 minutes of meat's cooking time grill vegetables and fruits which have been threaded on other skewers. Suggested fruits and vegetables are: cooked or canned onions, mushrooms, cherry tomatoes or tomato wedges, canned pineapple chunks, parboiled green pepper wedges, spiced crabapples, orange sections, canned or cooked sweet potatoes. If meat or vegetables seem to be drying out, brush them with salad or cooking oil.

Heat the sauce and serve with kebabs and fluffy rice if desired.

Carefully warm the brandy in a brandy warmer or small saucepan over low heat; remove from heat; ignite and pour immediately over shish kebabs - away from heat. Makes 8 to 10 servings, so be generous to allow for those hearty outdoor appetites.

R.M.R.'s eagle-eyed Jack Parnell dies

Westmount's Royal Montreal Regiment armory was agog with reminiscences by the older members of the military organization brought about through the death of one of its oldest members who made a name for Canada at Bisley ranges by his achievements. He was Alexander Parnell who died at 86 in St. Anne's Military Hospital last week after a four months illness.

Mr. Parnell will be remembered by the older members of the R.M.R. when he enlisted with the famous regiment following the outbreak of the First World War and went overseas serving as armory sergeant.

His real fame came when he, as a young soldier, was a member of the Canadian Bisley Team and electrified the world by his ability as a crack rifleman by winning the all comers aggregate championship for Canada in competition against the best shots of the British Empire.

The late Mr. Parnell was a crack shot all his life. He the only one for the time being.

Of the 180 different dialects spoken by the populace, English was the predominant language and played an important part in the governing of the country.

Education, he said, is becoming more widespread and is helping to break down the barriers of superstition which pervade the country. Much of this is being done through the efforts of CUSO, the Canadian Universities Service Overseas which is made up of Canadian students who have volunteered their services to help the underprivileged. The students he said are doing a marvellous job and are accepted and welcomed by the natives.

PRIDE PREDOMINANT

Ghanians are an extremely proud people he said and admire prestige which is shown in their personal possessions a point of illustration being their ownership of luxuries such as the most expensive automobiles and other status symbols.

The natives he said have been working on the great hydro development being built, and at all times must be supervised in order to maintain progress in the work. There was a shortage of trained man power to develop the country and it is in this respect that qualified technicians are welcomed.

Speaking of the impact of Rotary in Ghana, Col. Wallace said the organization was doing very good work through its 72 units there embracing 18 different nationalities with the Accra club being the largest. The Rotarians there are doing great work sponsoring projects of great help to the country such as free tuberculosis clinics and other activities. Col. Wallace presented President Everson with an emblem with the compliments of the Accra club.

The speaker was tendered a vote of thanks by Curt Ross. Birthday bouquets were presented to members Ed. Allen and Curt Ross.

was a member of the Black Watch Rifle Team for years and continued his shooting until a year ago when through failing eyesight had to abandon the ranges.

His home in Verdun is replete with trophies and medals of all sorts the results of his bulls-eye hitting ability. Because of his trade as cabinet maker, Mr. Parnell had all his trophies handsomely mounted in hand-made displays of the finest cabinet work art.

J. D. Baile dies

John David Baile a prominent executive who lived at 25 Church Hill, Westmount died last week at the age of 95 at the Montreal General Hospital. Funeral services were held last Thursday at St. Mathias Church.

Mr. Baile was President of the Andrew Baile Coal Company. He retired 27 years ago.

A sportsman who enjoyed curling, golf, and travel, he was a member of the Royal Montreal Golf Club, the Royal Montreal Curling Club, the Arts Club, and the St. James's Club.

He was a leading member of the St. Matthias Anglican congregation and is survived by a daughter, Marion (Mrs. Edward S. Mills), five grandchildren, and 18-great-grandchildren.

Mr. Baile was predeceased by his wife, the former Marion Randall and a daughter, Elizabeth (Mrs. J. C. Flanagan).

Paul C. Drummond

Paul C. Drummond of 10 Bellevue Avenue died suddenly last week at the age of 68. Funeral services were held at St. George's Church last Tuesday. Mr. Drummond was a well known citizen of Westmount, and contributed greatly to the community in which he lived.

He was born in Montreal, the son of the late George E. Drummond. He attended Ashbury College and McGill University where he was graduated with a Bachelor of Commerce degree.

MRS. J. S. STANFORD

Funeral services took place Wednesday morning at the Church of the Ascension of Our Lord, Westmount, for the late Alice Gertrude Shea, widow of the late Joseph Stephen Stanford. Mrs. Stanford died in her 88th year. Her husband predeceased her in 1925.

Every nite . . .

Sir Laurence crossed the room and shook my hand lightly, and muttered, "How do you do?" Then he disappeared.

THE STAGE

I asked Miss Leigh whether she preferred acting for a film or on the stage?

"The stage," she said, "definitely the stage."

"Why?"

"Oh, I don't know. On account of the audience and excitement, I suppose. Every night is exciting, you know. The audience out there in the dark all the time. The effect of a living audience is always electrifying. It's always a challenge to do your best . . ."

"When you do the same show every night, the same lines, the same part, night after night . . . I suppose it comes easily after a time?"

"Oh, no, it doesn't. Not for me. It's never easy. It's always hard. I have to drive myself to do my best every time, every night. For me it is always tough. Every night is tough."

"Who would you say is the best Canadian actor in England?"

"Bernard Braden."

"What American actor or actress do you like best?"

"The Lunts."

"Any particular playwright?"

"Thornton Wilder."

"Is there any chance of your performing on the stage in Canada?"

"Not at present, I'm afraid. I've been there, though; and I like it. I have a daughter working in Vancouver."

A maid came in with a tray containing a light supper: salad, melon and some cocoa. While she dined, we talked for a few minutes longer. Then I rose to leave, and her parting words were, "Good luck to you; thank you for coming."

Indeed she was a delightful woman; whose death is most lamentable. "Age cannot wither her, nor custom stale her infinite variety: other women cloy the appetites they feed, but she makes hungry where most she satisfies."

Today, fortunately, the fact that she did work hard to improve her voice, is audible on children's records, The Tale of Peter Rabbit (H.M.V.) Junior Record Club: His Master's Voice: 7 EG: 10 2), dramatised with music and full cast, led by the charming, lovely voice of Vivien Leigh.

title; the whole world followed the unhappy story of his second wife Queen Soraya. Today, however, married to Farah Diba, he has achieved that ambition. The Prince is now six years old, and the Shah's coronation has been postponed until this year primarily because he wanted his son to be old enough to remember it. It is expected that he will, like his father, go to Switzerland for his education. He will learn the value of thinking internationally, and the first principles of democracy.

From his father, he will no doubt learn chess.

Woman suffers painful injuries

Mrs. Lillian MacLachlan, 60, of Verdun had her leg badly torn and her fema broken in a painful accident at the corner of Atwater and Dorchester.

The lady stepped from the curb on a green light, not noticing the bus which was in the process of making a right turn. The bus knocked her down and the wheel, although it did not run over her leg, dragged her for some distance before the bus-driver realized what had happened.

Mrs. MacLachlan was taken to the Montreal General Hospital and is expected to be released next week.

A According to Westmount sky-watchers mini-skirts have lost their attraction. Seeking out the mysteries of reported unidentified flying objects in the vicinity, their motto now is "Look up, young man, look up". The dyed-in-the-wool UFO enthusiast believes there's far greater interest now being shown in the continued reporting of people who claim to have seen these objects.

good number were verbally unexplainable. Afterwards members gave lectures. The session ended with a question period. The whole operation was conducted with an air of deadly seriousness. Above all the members who represent the whole gamut of human experience wish to avoid any sense of the ridiculous in their operations.

One other project of the group is to collect and examine all events from biblical times to the present that could possibly be connected with U.F.O.'s, leading to the knowledge that our planet has long been of interest to extra-terrestrial beings.

Mr. Astle also says "the flying saucer saga is a controversy which has remained an unsolved mystery in modern times.

Real or Imaginative?

"First of all, we can say that whatever they are, these objects have appeared in our skies with ever-increasing frequency and these sightings have considerable news coverage in the press and magazines conservative in their subject matter.

"These journals have made the public ultra-conscious of the possible existence of UFO's. Nevertheless, skepticism still prevails in many circles and sometimes little significance is given to the details of the various reports and sightings.

"Behind it all is the startling evidence that something is going on which the scientists and experts are at a dead loss to explain."

"Never before in the annals of man has a phenomenon created so much conjecture, speculation, and sensationalism as the enigma surrounding unidentified flying objects."
