Fifty-Fourth Year

World News In Brief

Istanbul, Turkey, May 16.—(AP)—Turkey's new strong man, Celal Bayar, said today his country's newly-elected government stands loyal to its alliances and friendships with the Western World.

He gave his pledge in an interview after disclosing his five-year-old Democrat party had already taken 375 of the 487 Grand National Assembly seats in Sunday's general election.

The Democrats' triumph left in ruins President Ismet Inonu's People's Party, which has ruled Turkey for 27 years. With returns still awaited from some provinces, some observers said Inonu's group might have no more than 80 seats when the Assembly meets next Monday to elect a new president.

Moscow, May 16.—(AP)—The Soviet Union has accused Iran of using American experts to make aerial surveys of "military significance" along the Russian-Iranian border. The use of such foreign experts, said a Russian note delivered to the Tehran government, "can create a danger to the frontiers of the U.S.S.R." Such action, Russia added, is "incompatible with good neighborly relations" between Iran and Russia.

The note, made public last night, called on Iran's government to "eliminate the abnormal position that has been created." Russia said the border surveys, allegedly made during oil prospecting operations in North Iran, should be carried out by Iranians.

Jakarta, Indonesia, May 16.—(AP)—Indonesian troops under Dutch command and Indonesian soldiers of the Federal Government clashed Monday morning in Makassar, it was learned today. More than 30 casualties, half of them civilians, were reported. The number of dead was not stated.

After the outbreak of shooting, Dutch commanders ordered their Indonesian troops to their barracks. Dutch and Indonesian officers meeting with a neutral United Nations military observer brought the situation under control.

Berlin, May 16.—(AP)—Russia announced a sharp cut in East German war reparations bill today. The news touched off a big Communist propaganda campaign extolling Soviet "generosity and helpfulness."

Anti-Communist Germans and Allied officials promptly labelled Prime Minister Stalin's reparations cut an empty gesture and "phone book-keeping" aimed at countering the recent announcement that occupation controls would be relaxed in Western Germany.

Moscow radio disclosed Stalin informed East German Premier Otto Grotewohl that Russia was cutting the balance of the Soviet occupation zone reparations bill to half, leaving $3,171,000,000 to be paid in the next 15 years, Moscow's original demand made at Potsdam in 1945 was for $10,000,000,000 in war reparations.

Controversial Pipe Lines Measures Passed By House

Ottawa, May 16.—(AP)—The Commons has cleared from a crowded order paper a big legislative stumbling block—western oil and gas pipeline legislation.

Filibustered last session and again in this one, two private bills to incorporate western pipeline companies were given final reading last night in a last-minute flurry of debate and divisions. There were four recorded votes which split party lines and the bills were approved "on division"—indicating disapproval without a recorded vote.

They now go to the Senate where demands for assurance of an all-Canada pipeline route could be renewed. But this is considered unlikely since the Senate passed them last year and they later bogged down in the Commons.

The bills are those incorporating the Alberta Natural Gas Company and Prairie Transmission Lines Limited. Both companies seek the right to construct a natural gas pipeline from the oil fields of Alberta to the Pacific coast.

In a last-ditch opposition stand last night, the Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. parties put forward two amendments to each bill and forced four divisions of the House.

The House voted 98 to 34 and 100 to 35 against the Progressive Conservative amendment. It was sponsored by Howard Green (P.C.—Vancouver-Quadra), a leader in the Canada-first policy fight and asked that the bills be sent back to committee for consideration of a proviso that any pipeline built must follow an all-Canada route.

Winnipeg Hopes Brightened As Bloating Red River Holds To Levels For Second Day

No Change Expected From Talks

Moscow, May 16.—(P)—Prime Minister Stalin and United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie talked for 90 minutes at the Kremlin last night.

The conference climaxed the "Save the U.N." mission which had brought Lie halfway round the world to see the Russian leader.

Diplomats speculated that China's representation in the U.N. was a major topic at the discussions. No details of the talks were disclosed but it is not thought here that the Russians showed any signs of modifying their refusal to participate in any U.N. organization in which Chiang Kai-Shek's government is represented.

Russia has demanded that the Peiping government of Mao Tse-tung be recognized as China's representative in the United Nations. Present with Lie and Stalin at the meeting were Vice-Premier V. M. Molotov and Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky. The interview came after Lie—seeking to ease east-west tension—had conferred with President Truman in Washington and with top officials in London, Paris and here in Moscow.

The 90-minute interview was considered a rather long one for the Soviet Prime Minister. It was considered here that Lie and Stalin discussed not only the China question but other basic points of east-west tension as well. There was speculation that Lie might discuss his talk with Stalin at a press conference he has scheduled tentatively for tomorrow.

The Lie-Stalin interview had been preceded by careful preparation by both the Russians and the U.N. official. Lie arrived last week. He conferred first, 90 minutes, with Vishinsky. This was followed by a long interview with Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, a former Russian delegate to the United Nations.

All Moscow newspapers reported the meeting today on their front pages, publishing the brief communiqué announcing the meeting which the United Nations information centre here issued last night.

Meanwhile another high U.N. official completed his own mission to Moscow. He was Gunnar Myrdal, executive secretary of the U.N. Economic Commission for Europe, who leaves today for Warsaw and Western Europe after eight days of what he described as "long full talks" with top Soviet officials.

Myrdal declined to say what response he had received to his pleas that east-west trade be loosened, nor whether he was optimistic over possibilities of increasing such trade. He said, however, "I am not any more discouraged than when I came here."

Myrdal plans to spend one day in Warsaw, then to visit Geneva, London and Paris.

Undermining Of Sudden Dikes Or Unfavorable Change Of Weather Still Provides Major Worry For Control Officials.

By NORMAN MICHIE, Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Winnipeg, May 16.—(P)—The eyes of two flood-weary, crippled cities focussed today on a precarious, 14-foot-high dike and the hundreds of empty homes it protects from the bloated Red river.

For three weeks the river, higher than anytime since 1832, has eaten at the huge earth-and-sandbag barrier which skirts St. Boniface and its Norwood suburb, opposite the Winnipeg business district.

Other whole suburbs in the metropolitan area have been inundated by the Red. The Winnipeg business section has been threatened. Even most of St. Boniface has been evacuated as "precautionary measure."

But the Lyndale dike—pet project of Contractor Rosario Brabant who nursed it from a frail ditch-lip to the strongest dike in Greater Winnipeg—still held.

Sandbags around the riverside power stations and protection of the water supply were infinitely more important. Power and water failure would be the only likely cause of general evacuation of all Greater Winnipeg if the now-cresting river rose unexpectedly.

But to thousands of volunteers who have piled its sandbags, the seven-mile Lyndale dike was the main "crisis" point.

Today it was a case of watch and wait. Engineers said the dike seemed in good shape. But there was fear constant erosion had eaten away its base, threatening to topple sections outward into the river.

The army said it was unsafe to pile more weight on top. Instead, 200 civilians and 120 service men worked last night and today strengthening its back. Sixty bulldozers, nine draglines and 60 trucks moved earth and gravel to make the dike thicker. Two hundred other volunteers filled sandbags to plug any minor break.

Experts said the Red and its tributary Assiniboine and Seine would have to fall five feet at least before the Lyndale dike and others in Greater Winnipeg could be called out of danger.

For 30 hours up to 5 a.m. EDT today, the Red and its tributary Assiniboine and Seine held steady at 30.1 feet. That is 12 feet above the flood-risk level in Winnipeg district, but an encouraging one-tenth foot below the 1950 high record Sunday.

D. M. Stephens, Deputy Minister of Resources for Manitoba, said yesterday the river's crest was passing the metropolis and that there should be a gradual drop starting at noon today if no complications occurred.

The average Winnipegger looked ahead with optimism. But the head of army-directed flood control warned that "tragedy of life or further loss of property is still quite possible."

Voluntary evacuation, which has already stripped Greater Winnipeg of 80,000 of its 350,000 normal population, must be continued until all danger was past, he said.

Heavy rain or a surge in the Saskatchewan-sourced Assiniboine, a tributary running through the city, could still cause serious complications. Even if the waters slowly receded—as expected—the soggy, saturated dikes might collapse.

"A catastrophe could still happen," warned Brig. Ronald Morton. But last night radio stations carried no frantic calls for volunteers, and many were turned away from leading stations usually humming with activity.

The migration of evacuees continued, but apparently on a reduced scale. Where thousands had crammed railway and bus stations now a few hundred moved to the safety of dry centres east and west.

Hospital patients were still being sent across the Prairies, but the Red Cross said that exodus, too, had slowed.

Lift in Greater Winnipeg, six of its 75 or 80 square miles already lost to the two rivers and the smaller Seine, was on a quasi-war-time scale. Theaters were closed; blocks of business buildings without central heating or elevator service; pumps throbbed in the main streets and pedestrians dodged hoses draining flooded basements; residential districts were deserted and in darkness, washed by the filthy current.

Two of the four bridges across the Red were open. Many other city bridges were closed or restricted to essential traffic. Public transportation was disrupted, with street car and bus services cancelled or rerouted.

The city was divided into a half-dozen remotely-connected sections. Flood-control headquarters warned that heavy rains anywhere in the watersheds of the three rivers might quickly wipe out the tiny yardage gained and send them surging to the all-time high of 1826.

The Assiniboine, which roughly parallels Portage Avenue on its

Truman Asks Voters Purge Die-Hards

Aboard Truman Train, May 16.—(P)—President Truman put opponents of his "fair deal" program on notice today that he will "fight to drive 'reactionaries' out of Congress in the country-wide November elections."

He rode back to Washington aboard the 13-car presidential special on the last leg of a 6,000-mile speaking trip to the North West and in the wake of Democratic party cheers to put new heat on those he termed "backward looking" Congressmen to fall in line with his program.

Speaking before a capacity crowd of 22,000 in Chicago Stadium, Truman declared his determination to help assure "better health, education, security and recreation for all the people."

Truman said the Democrats "will carry on the fight" for: (1) International co-operation; (2) Taft-Hartley labor law repeal; (3) Improved social security laws; (4) Federal aid to education; (5) Middle-income housing help; from the government; (6) Health insurance; (7) Natural resources development; (8) Improved farm price supports; (9) Aid to small business; and (10) Civil rights laws.

That was Truman's formal summary. Deftly turning from his text, he glibly at the Republicans.

"I wish the opposition would come out for something and be a real opposition. A great political party cannot survive by being against everything."

Truman said the Democratic Party is one of "Progressive Liberalism."

Evidence In Roncarelli Case Closes

Montreal, May 16.—(P)—Evidence was completed here yesterday in Frank Roncarelli's $118,741 damage suit against Premier Duplessis and it is expected the case will go today to Mr. Justice C. G. MacKinnon of the Superior Court.

Final arguments of opposing counsel will be presented this morning and it was understood that the summing-up must be completed before noon because L. Emery Beaulieu, one of Mr. Duplessis' top lawyers, must leave for England to represent Quebec in a case before the Privy Council.

Mr. Roncarelli, well known as a Montreal restaurateur for many years, charges that Mr. Duplessis, as Attorney-General of Quebec, caused his beer and wine permit to be cancelled in 1947. He claims that the cancellation forced him to close his restaurant because of declining business.

Plaintiff charges that the cancellation was made because he acted as bondsman in a number of court cases involving members of the Witnesses of Jehovah religious sect.

The Premier testified that Mr. Roncarelli's action on behalf of the Witnesses disrupted procedure at the Recorder's Court here and "encouraged a condition that threatened peace and good order."

At yesterday's brief session, Mr. Justice MacKinnon suggested that counsel present their arguments in writing as oral testimony so far had been long.

Conference Divided On Asia Policy

Sydney, Australia, May 16.—(P)—The British Commonwealth Conference here was reported today partially stalemated on the question of aid to Asia.

Pakistan, and to a lesser degree, Ceylon, were said to be the only countries sympathetic to an Australian proposal for immediate aid by Commonwealth countries to Asian areas threatened by Communism.

Australia was reported as regarding Indonesia and Indochina as chief danger spots. Percy Spender, Australian Minister for External Affairs, was quoted by informed sources as saying only immediate aid would help meet the Red threat.

Britain and most other powers represented at the conference were said to be urging a "go-slow" attitude toward immediate help to Asia. One delegate attending yesterday's closed conference session was quoted by the Sydney Daily Mirror as describing this policy as a "treason."

This delegate, who was not named, said he could see the "cold hand" of Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the British policy.

Australia's proposal for immediate aid was reported to have drawn solid support from the leader of Pakistan's delegation, Chaudhry Nazir Ahmad Khan, Minister of Industry.

The leader of the British delegation,

Conservatives Capture Two Federal Ridings In Ontario

Toronto, May 16.—(P)—The Progressive Conservative party won two federal by-elections yesterday. It retained Toronto Broadview and a wide margin and wrested Hamilton West from the Liberals in a tight race.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, 45-year-old Hamilton Controller, became the first woman member of the present Parliament when she won in a three-way race in Hamilton West by a plurality of 388 votes.

George Hees, 39, former Toronto Argonaut football player and now executive of a Venetian blind factory, kept Toronto Broadview for his party with a victory over three other candidates, including runner-up Ruth Radford, Liberal.

Three of the seven candidates in the two by-elections—one Labor Progressive and two C.C.F.—lost their $200 deposits because they failed to win half as many votes as the winner.

The results: Toronto Broadview (155 of 160 polls): Prof. George Grube, C.C.F. 4,763; George Hees, Progressive Conservative 10,157; Ruth Radford, Liberal 5,876; Charles Weir, Labor-Progressive 182.

Hamilton West (165 polls complete): Alfred Collingdon, C.C.F. 3,200; Ellen Fairclough, Progressive Conservative 7,980; Harold Lazier, Liberal 7,592.

The results brought Progressive Conservative strength in the Commons to 42. The Liberals now have 186 members.

The standings: Liberals 186; Progressive Conservatives 42; C.C.F. 13; Social Credit 10; Independent 5; Inde-

Nationalist Forces Quit Key Island

Taipei, Formosa, May 16.—(P)—Nationalist China tonight announced abandonment of the Chushan Islands.

The official announcement, coming on the heels of vows by the Nationalists to defend the islands to the death, said 150,000 troops were evacuated.

Only yesterday a Nationalist general from there who insisted that he not be named, said the battle for the Chushans had not started.

The Chushans were extremely important to the Nationalists. From that base 100 miles south-east of Shanghai an effective air and naval blockade of the big Communist port had been effected.

The victory for Mr. Hees, father of three daughters, kept Toronto Broadview in the Conservative fold where it has been since 1933. T. L. Church, whose death early this year precipitated the vote, successfully contested the seat from 1935 on.

The results of the by-elections were given two different interpretations in Ottawa. Prime Minister St. Laurent said that "While I am naturally disappointed that the Liberal candidates were not successful in yesterday's

Tomatoes Of Old Vintage For Red Dean

Hamilton, May 16.—(P)—The Dean of Canterbury doggedly completed his local speaking engagements on behalf of the Canadian Peace Congress last night despite a barrage of eggs and tomatoes and one large rock that showered members of his audience with glass splinters.

Very Rev. Hewlett Johnson—the so-called Red Dean—who advocates friendship with Soviet Russia, spoke before two audiences, at the Central and Hungarian hall. He repeated that "Russia does not want war" and declared "the people of the world are hungry for peace." He urged that people join the Peace Congress to bring this about.

The 76-year-old Dean and Rev. J. G. Eudicot, chairman of the Peace Congress, were on the platform in the first hall where an audience of 500 was interrupted once when a side door was flung open and a number of rotten tomatoes were thrown at the speakers.

The main trouble started when the Dean and the Congress members moved to another hall where an audience of 400 waited.

A crowd of several thousands had gathered on James street north, in the foreign section of the city, and they greeted the Dean and his party with eggs, tomatoes and the explosion of numerous firecrackers. At one time the bursting firecrackers appeared like a halo around the clergyman's head. Several members of the Peace Congress were struck by the eggs and tomatoes, but the Dean himself apparently was not hurt.

Police, who had tried to keep the mounting crowd on the move, put in a hurry call for reinforcements and four carloads of cops arrived. Several of the policemen were not as fortunate as Dean Johnson. One constable was hit squarely in the eye with a rotten egg and others were shoved around.

Two men, George and Richard Ives, were bundled into a police cruiser and taken to police headquarters where they were charged with creating a disturbance.

The Dean's second address was interrupted when a large square of cement was tossed through a wire-glass window, fragments of glass cutting several persons. Police refused entry to Archie McMillan, anti-Red editor of the weekly Hamilton Review, who was in the thick of the heckling when the Dean was unable to finish his speech here last week.

When the second meeting was over, police escorted the Dean out of a back door and he entered a car waiting in a darkened alley. Some of the crowd discovered the secret and threw some more eggs.

The Dean is scheduled next at Timmins on Wednesday and the meeting will be under auspices of the Labor-Progressive party.

He will be held in the open air. Mayor Philip Fay of Timmins has declared the English churchman is "not a welcome visitor" and requests for use of the McIntyre Arena or the Pavilion dance hall were refused.

The strike, originally set for April 26, started May 10 against parts of the Pennsylvania, New York Central, the Southern Railway and Santa Fe systems. It was extended to the southwestern district of the Union Pacific Railroad last Saturday.

Although only some 18,000 locomotive firemen went on strike, the walkout disrupted much of the U.S. rail transportation and had made idle some 200,000 workers—mostly railroad employees.

The break in the strike was announced shortly after 4 a.m. EDT and immediately the union sent telegrams to striking Locals cancelling the strike order.

The union and carriers had met continuously for nine hours during the night and early morning hours. Sitting in at the peace talks were members of the National (Railway) Mediation Board.

The main snag in the negotiations was the dispute over the hiring of a second fireman on the big diesel locomotives.

While the carriers said the union withdrew its demand, a union spokesman said it modified its demand to the extent that the question will be approached through arbitration of the existing contract agreement.

One fireman and one engineer are employed on the big diesel locomotives. The union has charged the rule, which provides for a fireman in the forward cab of diesel locomotives on main line or through passenger service at all times. The union said the agreement eliminated wage differentials which it said existed in pay of firemen on oil burning steam locomotives and straight electric locomotives. They had lower rates than those on coal burning or diesels, the union said. The new agreement, it said, brings all rates at the same level. No figures were given.

JANE RUSSELL, A BIG GIRL NOW, HAS A LEADING MAN SHE LIKES

Hollywood — Jane Russell, no mere slip of a girl, has landed her first bruiser of a leading man in "Smiler With a Gun." Georgeous Jane says she likes 'em big and hulking and Robert Mitchum is filling the ticket. She told me: "My leading men have always been shorter than I. They were fine actors, sure, but nobody could picture me with them. Everyone expected ME to save the hero."
Jane says she's lost her "poor-but-honest" state of mind about her career and is raring to play musical comedy queens, drawing room sophisticates or even a sultry gypsy girl. She says:
"In this one I'm a character I like doing. Not a gun moll or a 19-year-old bank clerk."

Greta Garbo slipped into Hollywood quietly and will light down for a while. Advocates of the short hairdo who get a peek at Garbo's unruly mop will shudder. . . . Maureen O'Hara will unveil her concert singing voice May 9 at a benefit for the Military Order of the Purple Heart.

Frederic March and Florence Eldridge nixed an offer to take over "Death of a Salesman" on Broadway because the producers couldn't guarantee them the leads in the film version. . . . Kids accustomed to setting theater-sitting endurance records are confused by TV. A nine-year-old sat through his first TV movie at the home of Julie Adler, then asked:
"Gee, that was swell. Can I stay and see it again?"

Good Reason
Adv. in a local newspaper: "Owner leaving beautiful San Fernando Valley. Reason for moving: health." . . . Alan Ladd is putting another race horse on the track—a two-year-old mare named Alsulana. . . . There must be a gag somewhere about all the sterling Jan Sterling will get for her wedding present when she marries Paul Douglas.

Harry Popkin is trying to persuade Ronald Colman to star in "The Diplomat," all about an American ambassador in one of the hot cold-war countries. . . . MGM is toying with the idea of doing a big Ed Wynn musical, "The Perfect Fool." . . . Sally Forrest, as I rumored, will play the tennis star in Filmakers' "Mother of a Champion." Eleanor Tenant has been signed as technical adviser. . . . Yvonne de Carlo cracked open her piggy bank for a mink coat. She says the push-up sleeves are for the diamond bracelets she hopes to accumulate.

Not in the Script: Bob Sterling is sitting at a table at the Mocam.

AT THE PREMIER

Joella McCrea and Frances Dee play the romantic leads in a new screen drama, "Four Faces West," which opens at the New Premier Theatre tomorrow for four days. The story was adapted from the popular Saturday Evening Post series, "Paso Por Aqui," by Eugene Manlove Rhodes. The added feature is the Broadway musical, "One Touch of Venus," starring Robert Walker, Ava Gardner and Dick Haymes.

SUTTON
The Sutton and Sutton Junction Women's Christian Temperance Union met in Olivet Baptist Church Hall, with the two presidents, Mrs. Herbert Toof and Mrs. Cecil Woodard, presiding. Mrs. Harry Righton conducted the devotional service on "Mothers." The elections of officers resulted as follows: Mrs. Harry Righton; vice-president, Mrs. Cecil Woodard; secretary, Mrs. Percy Rumsby; treasurer, Mrs. Percy Rumsby; convener: Evangelistic; Mrs. Naom O'Brien; World's Missions; Mrs. Albert O'Brien; Anti-Narcotics. Mrs. Hattie Smith; Lord's Day Observance; Mrs. Harry Righton; Flower Mission; Mrs. H. F. Archibald and Mrs. John Jones; Mothers and Little White Ribbons; Mrs. Archie Hoppson; Anti-

bo. Betty Hutton, the ex-girl friend, waltzes with Stewart Granger. Betty stops and introduces them. Both mumble "Please to meetcha."
Betty: "Gosh, it's hot in here."
If Betty's ex, Ted Briskin, had walked by the automatic sprinkling system would have spouted for sure.
Movietown's famous Hollywood Guild is continuing its work for veterans and the community needy by selling movie stars' glamour duds at its thrift shop. The Guild did a record day of business with a carload of hats sent over by Joan Crawford. Anne "Mom" Lehr, founder of the Guild, said:
"Joan's hats went like hotcakes. Every waitress in town bought one."
Waiting For This
Mickey Rooney and producer Ben Bogus have inked a deal that will put the Mick in the Screen Directors' guild before the year is out. After he stars in "E. Tigre" for Bogus, he will turn director for a second film, then move over to Columbia for a third this-is-how-you-do-it stint. It's a long-time dream come true and Mick says: "Now I won't do that Broadway play."

Frank Lovejoy, the radio actor who clicked in "Home of the Brave" and who now will be starred in "A Sound of Fury," is very happy about his switch from the airways to celluloid. No longer is he an actor frustrated for action. As he sees it:
"The radio sound effects man has all the fun when you're a radio actor. You berate the villain and you back him into a corner to slug him. What happens? The sound effects man hits a straw dummy."
"You work for half an hour to gild up a terrific love scene. The girl is in your arms. What happens? The sound effects man kisses the back of his hand."
Mike Connolly in Variety: A waiter spilled a drink on Peggy Ryan's new evening gown. Piped Peggy: "Go and never darken my Dior again." . . . Kirk Douglas, about a Hollywood playboy: "I think he went to a school for delinquent millionaires."

Canterbury East W.I. Met With Mrs. D. Mayhew

Canterbury East, May 16. — The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Douglas Mayhew with Mrs. Printice Jacklin, for the joint hostess. The meeting opened in the usual way. There was a very large attendance of members and several visitors.

The secretary's and treasurer's reports were heard and accepted. Correspondence was read from Macdonald College, regarding the "Short Course," and a thank you letter from an overseas parcel.

The roll call was answered by "naming a nation in the North Atlantic Pact, on one article of the treaty."

A quiz on electricity was enjoyed.

The sick committee gave its report, and was re-elected to act next year. Another parcel is to be packed for overseas.

Arrangements were completed regarding the convention which meets in Brookbury on May 23, at 10:30 a.m.

Two new members joined the Institute and were welcomed. The highlight of the evening was a "shower" for a member. She was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Elwin Coates, in opening the gifts which were passed around and admired.

A very enjoyable meeting closed by singing the National Anthem, after which delicious refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Betty Jacklin.

H. L. Cleveland Again Heading Customs Group

H. L. Cleveland, of Sherbrooke, was re-elected president of the Eastern Townships Zone Branch of the Customs and Excise Officers Association at the annual meeting held in the Chateau Frontenac Hotel, on Saturday, May 13.

After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting and the tabling of the financial report for 1949, a slate of officers for 1950-51 was presented by J. J. McCullough, collector at Farnham, and resulted in the following being appointed to act with Mr. Cleveland: Honorary president, L. S. Pinsonneault, collector, St. Johns, Que.; first vice-president, R. D. Beaudin, Stanhope; second vice-president, B. Forcier, St. Hyacinthe; secretary, D. A. Lavalliere, Sherbrooke; treasurer, J. C. Marcotte, Sherbrooke.

The directors are: Zone 1. H. Faucher, Richmond; J. Michael, Lake Megantic; Zone 2. M. R. Murphy, Coaticook; Zone 3. H. M. Clark, Highwater, W. E. Dow, Sutton, J. J. McCullough, Farnham; Zone 4. C. Charland, Magog; R. A. R. Rodrigue, Rock Island; Zone 5. J. L. P. Troie, Drummondville; Zone 6. A. Lacroix, Granby; G. Hamel, St. Hyacinthe, P. Bourassa, St. Johns.

H. Phelps, of Sutton and G. Hamel, of St. Hyacinthe, were appointed auditors. Elected as representatives to the District Council of the Civil Service Federation were E. J. Struthers, collector, Rock Island, and J. C. Belisle, of Sherbrooke.

Following the business session 72 members attended the dinner held in the hotel. Spring flowers decorated the individual tables and each member was presented with a souvenir menu.

Head table guests, who addressed the gathering on subjects of special interest to all Customs and Excise personnel were A. G. Ross, National President, Montreal; George E. Gauthier, Organization Branch of the Civil Service Commission, Ottawa; R. A. Marquis, Assistant Director of Personnel, Ottawa; R. D. Beaudin, vice-president for Quebec, of Stanhope; J. H. Burning Of Blueberry Areas Good

There has been much discussion as to the opportunity of burning the blueberry areas as well as to the time of the year and frequency at which such a burning should be done. An answer to these questions, applicable mainly to Prince Edward Island, comes from the Horticultural Division of the Experimental Farm, at Charlottetown, G. C. Warren, Assistant to the Superintendent, has said that in addition to an increase in yield, thorough burning gives some control of insects and is valuable for that reason alone. It is usually done in the spring soon after the snow has melted but before the ground dries up. If delayed too long, the tops will be difficult to burn and the fire may injure the roots.

For rotational burning, the areas are divided into three parts, one being burnt over each year. A heavy crop is usually produced the year after burning and a fair crop the second year, while in the third year the area is again renewed by fire. Thus each area is burnt over every third year.

Areas not recently gone over are best cut with a brush sythe prior to burning as otherwise many of the "weed" plants will be left standing and interfere with harvesting later on. Where the ground cover is sparse, it may be necessary to spread hay or straw to induce a thorough quick burn. To be fruitful, the blueberry, claims Mr. Warren, should not be subjected to heavy shade or moisture-competing plants and requires frequent renewal of the old wood for blossom bud formation. The object of burning is to destroy bushes and other plants that compete for space and moisture and the old wood so that new shoots will develop.

The spasmodic burning sometimes done in Prince Edward Island, while of some value, does not compare with the regular and systematic burning carried out elsewhere, said Mr. Warren.

While the soil and climate of the Island is ideally suited to blueberry production, the present yields do not compare with those of similar areas in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick where proper cultural methods are regularly practiced.

Under regulations prevailing in Prince Edward Island, it is not permissible to burn over blueberry ground after April 30th, unless permission is first obtained from the Provincial Fire Marshal. No burning is to be carried out within 80 yards of standing forest land.

Local Lions Club Heads Relief List For Catastrophe Victims

Donations to the Winnipeg Relief Fund which is being supported by the Sherbrooke Record, have already started to come in and it is to be hoped that the public will be as generous towards this worthy project as it has shown itself in the past.

Last evening the Lions Club voted $50 to the Winnipeg Fund, as well as $50 to Rimouski and Cabano respectively, for aid to the families who have lost their homes in the fires which ravaged the two towns recently.

The Record, in addition to the Winnipeg Fund, will be pleased to receive any contributions to the other two.

New Municipal Collections System Has Met With Endorsement Of Bill-Payers

With the object of making it easier for Sherbrooke citizens to pay their gas, electricity and water bills, the municipal authorities last November made arrangements with the chartered banks and the Caisse Populaire whereby these institutions would accept payment of the accounts at a nominal charge.

Judging from twenty-two weeks operation of the system, which went into effect November 14, 1949, the plan has met with the whole-hearted endorsement of the citizens and the number of local residents who have taken advantage of the widened facilities has exceeded the most optimistic hopes of the city authorities.

Figures released this morning by City Treasurer Maurice Cormier show that in the twenty-two weeks, a total of 4,830 accounts have been paid through these organizations, the total amount involved being $24,968.25.

Payments through branches of the chartered banks numbered 2,262, of which 2,185 were gas and electricity bills amounting to $11,855.88 and 77 were water bills amounting to $434.76. The collections through the Caisse Populaire involved 2,568 accounts, divided into gas and electricity, 2,468 amounting to $12,072.70 and water 100 amounting to $594.91.

In another effort to ease payments, the collection office at the City Hall was kept open from 7:30 to 9 p.m. on Friday evenings and in the twenty-two week period, 967 clients paid their bills totalling $5,586.59 at this time. These comprised 796 gas and electricity accounts, 74 water accounts and 97 tax accounts. In addition, a large number of complaints, requests for new services and transfers of existing services were also looked after by the skelton staff on duty.

Besides facilitating the payment of bills by clients, the new system has reduced the burden on the City Hall staff. Formerly two cashiers were kept busy all day receiving payments but now, with the exception of the rush times just preceding discount days, one cashier is sufficient to meet the need of those who make their payments directly.

The program was as follows:

Holiday Hours Are Announced By Post Office

Post office authorities announced today that there would be no letter carrier delivery, parcel post or rural mail delivery on Ascension Day, May 18th. There would, however, be a city collection between 4 and 6 p.m., lobby open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., and wicket service from 8 a.m. to 12 a.m.

The same policy will govern post office action on Victoria Day, May 24th, but for two differences. There will be no rural mail delivery and wicket service will be limited to 8 a.m. to 10 a.m.

In the brass section will be Florent Garand, trumpet, Jacques Langevin, trompet, Clement Mongeau, euphonium, and Claude Pigeon, trombone. Jury Rules Death Is Accidental

Knowlton, May 16.—A six man coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death after an inquest into the death of 84-year-old Joseph Bert Abel, of Mansenville, was held here yesterday.

Abel was found face down on the frozen ground near the farm house of Odilon Cloutier, about two miles from Mansenville, on May 8.

First news of the death was shrouded with reports of foul play. Abel was discovered about 5:30 a.m., his face badly bruised. Apparently he died after a fall from the four foot verandah of Cloutier's house.

District Coroner, Dr. Joseph Boudry, who conducted the inquest, said that blood found inside Abel's cap indicated that he had died of an internal hemorrhage caused by the fall.

AN APPEAL TO HUMANITY

The people of the Eastern Townships have long been known for their readiness to respond to calls for assistance from their fellow creatures in distress, no matter where the need appeared. Funds for the relief of suffering and deprivation in any part of the world have always met with a generous response from the people of this district. Today, they have before them a call from fellow citizens of their own Dominion, and even from their own province.

Funds have been opened for the relief of victims of the Manitoba floods, which have already caused untold damage and which threaten to leave even greater suffering and disaster in their wake, and for those who lost their entire worldly possessions in the destruction of important parts of the towns of Rimouski and Cabano by fire.

To facilitate the contributions of the people of the Eastern Townships to these worthy causes, the Sherbrooke Record has accepted willingly the task of collecting such monies as the local residents may feel they can donate to the relief of suffering and the prevention of disease.

Substantial government aid has been promised toward the rebuilding and rehabilitation of the stricken communities but fire and flood leave in their wake an indeterminate loss which cannot be met by government agencies, no matter how extensive and how sincere those charged with carrying out this relief work may be. Especially in the restoration of human values, there is an important place for private charity, for the demonstration of that spirit of fellowship and goodwill which has been a feature of the Christian world. It is this feature of relief that the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund and corresponding agencies in Rimouski and Cabano are designed to accomplish and it is for this purpose that the appeals are being addressed to the residents of the Eastern Townships.

POLISH WORKERS TOE THE LINE

Glowingly optimistic reports about the enthusiasm and progress of Polish workers contrast strangely with some of the statistics published by the Warsaw Government. Confirmation that all is not well on the labor front was furnished recently by passage of a law by the Sejm (Parliament) that aims to put a stop to absenteeism but in effect ties a worker to his job.

The law "to insure Socialist labor discipline" states that no worker may change his place of employment without consent of the Communist Party; that unjustified absence from, or lateness to, work is punishable by reduction to a lower wage category or by a 10-25 per cent cut in wages for a period of three months. In case of minor offense, the penalty may be loss of half a day's wages. Repeated absence will bring the offender before a court.

The word "unjustified" is conveniently interpreted to mean that a lot of slackers and saboteurs are getting medical certificates that they are unable to work. Hence, both workers and doctors are guilty. To combat this, the Ministry of Health has made the already rigorous regulations governing the issuing of such certificates even stiffer; it also has made getting a hospital admittance more difficult, and a long stay impossible.

For the enforcement of these regulations, a special Central Medical Control Commission has been appointed and local party activists have been assigned to help. Local trade union representatives will do their part, as will also "visiting social committees." These will not only keep a watchful eye on doctors attached to industrial plants and private physicians, but will also visit hospitals and homes of absentees. A strict watch is to be kept for physicians "hostile to the People's Poland."

Many Poles claim that the absenteeism is due to poor working conditions, the exorbitantly high output quotas for the individual worker, and the forced speed-up which only few workers are able or willing to stand.

According to reliable information, there is hardly a single industry in Poland that has not suffered through absenteeism. In a well-known coal mine, 1,647 man-days were lost during the first quarter of this year. In the textile industry, the regime press states that the loss through absenteeism was over 4,000,000 zlotys (prewar value) during the month of January alone.

Poles declare that the new law introduces forced labor. Men and women now will be compelled to work as long as labor can be wrung out of them. They assert that Moscow has ordered the regime to meet certain production requirements, regardless of the effects on the workers.

Press Comment

WHAT'S A DOLLAR?

Lethbridge Herald

"We often hear the saying: 'Well, a dollar's a dollar.' But is it?"

What is a dollar worth today? We hear people, particularly the women folk who handle the family purse strings, saying that dollars don't stretch very far these days. What they mean is that we have sent our dollars out on the auction for goods, and that the competition is so strong that a dollar won't buy what it used to buy.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics does a job every month telling us what the cost of living is. Today it costs 164 points to buy what cost 100 points during 1935-39. That is, it costs $1.64 today to buy what $1 paid for then. So the dollar is worth about five-eighths of what it was in the last half of the thirties before the Second Great War—or a dollar is worth between 60 and 65 cents of its pre-war counterpart when it comes to purchasing power.

The reason? We've got more dollars chasing the goods we want. The Bank of Canada statement for March shows that Canadians today have a money supply of $1,413,000,000 as against a mere $1,088,000,000 in December, 1938, and $1,563,000,000 at the end of 1940.

WHERE INFLATION HURTS

Hamilton Spectator

In the past few days there has been a flare-up of a familiar inflation malady. Every one—that is every one who can produce a spokesman—has been blaming some group or other for the stubborn refusal of prices to ease off, while inviting pity for those who pay the shot.

It opened with A. V. Milburn, secretary of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, announcing that the "farmers of Canada will have to insist that labor and industry cease demanding pay and profit increases. . . . Farmers are the only people in the nation whose income is being reduced. . . . Labor is demanding and getting higher and higher wages, which results in higher production costs for the farmer."

On the heels of this Dr. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the Board of Evangelical and Social Service of the United Church, came out with a vigorous—and quite understandable—plea for "Canada's new poor."

"These new poor," he declared, "are aided by the family allowance but with the food dollar at 48 cents that aid is only a fraction of the amount required to make both ends meet. To the new poor, driven into the low income bracket by the greed of industry, labor and farm groups, are to be added the pensioners, the unemployed, the too-old-to-work-at-45's, the handicapped, and the relief-ees."

A union leader promptly came back with the retort that there would be no "new poor" if they organized and made higher demands on the community for their services.

Nothing—not even a mouse-like tremor from Ottawa—emerged in public print to suggest that the already dangerous inflation, which is the inevitable price of war, can be made a lot worse and the new poor a lot poorer and more numerous, if the fallacy of more money for less production is not finally grasped by the public mind. Whether current "demands" are fair or unfair, morally good or bad, there is no way of denying that the most strongly organized and secure groups are at the moment making the heaviest orders on the economy, or that the 48 cent food dollar (accurately estimated by Dr. Mutchmor in comparison with its 1939 buying power) is, in the estimation of some farm spokesmen, not low enough. They think food prices should be higher. Yet food is a vital cost of production factor in industry. One man's return is another man's cost. Trade can't be disguised by money juggling.

It is lunacy to suggest that those who have been so brutally punished by inflation can gain by the pouring of a new flood of cash into the system; it is like hoping that the now swollen Red River can be brought to normal levels by heavy rainfall. The cure for inflation is not more inflation; such a trend is an invitation to a shattered dollar, to production costs that can be soon reflected in unemployment, inability to compete with outside exporters (of which there are already sharp hints) and further frustration. Somehow prices must be adjusted to expand purchasing.

Inflation is a disease that can be controlled only so long. There has never been one yet that did not boomerang. It is the severity of the correction that should now concern Canadians. They should at least be saved from senseless announcements from Ottawa about the dollar value of our "gross national product"—which only measures the shrinkage of the purchasing value of the dollar and not the output of goods which are getting out of the reach of so many people. It is these misleading assurances, as much as anything else, that have encouraged a menacing self-deception on a national scale.

Professor Albert Einstein, in a note to Trygve Lie, wishing him success in his overseas mission, said: "You are one of the very few who in the midst of the bewilderment and confusion of our time have succeeded in keeping his vision clear and whose urge to help remains undeterred by obstacles and narrow allegiances." Lie is setting out on a personal attempt to find a way to use the machinery of the United Nations, of which he is secretary-general, to ease the tension of the cold war.

The great scientist, in this statement, strikes to the heart of the matter. Lie, like everyone else, realizes that the one great obstacle in the way of world peace is Russia's attitude toward the rest of the world. The only allegiance which Russia recognizes is that owed to the principles of communism and the historic fears and ambitions of Russia. Integrity and morality are overruled.

Only by the belief that the world's salvation depends on their efforts, and by faith that in the end truth will prevail, Lie and his co-workers in the United Nations continue their labors with hope that they will finally be fruitful.

Vatican Plans To Open Archives For Benefit Of World Scholars

By ADRIENNE FARRELL

Vatican City. (Reuters)—The secret archives of the Vatican, rich treasure-house of church history, are being completely modernized as a centre of research for the scholars of the world.

After nearly 10 years' work, the labor of overhauling and cataloguing the vast store of ancient documents is now nearing completion. They hope to finish it within the year.

Founded by Pope Paul V in 1611, the archives have been opened to students for the past 69 years.

Only now, however, has the full work of indexing them by modern methods been realized.

The buildings which house the archives in the heart of the Vatican are also being transformed. The "attic" reading-rooms on the third floor of the Belvedere Courtyard have been opened up into large and spacious studies.

Steel linings have been provided to the bookcases and cupboards where the most precious of the documents and books are stored following a double scare from termites during the last two years. An invasion of these pernicious ants was found lodged in the thick Vatican walls within striking distance of the archives.

Modernization of the archives will meet the growing needs of scholars from all over the world who come to Rome to consult the Vatican documents.

Last year, it was estimated that 253 scholars, of various nations and creeds, came to study the Vatican archives. More than 25,000 documents were consulted and about 13,000 photocopies made.

The archives were designed by Pope Paul to preserve the records of his predecessors and to take important documents from the sacred congregations. From the end of the 17th century, they have also contained the correspondence of the Vatican secretariat of state.

The archives provide an inexhaustible mine of information concerning the part played by the church in medieval and modern times in the ecclesiastical and political affairs of nations.

Among the most important are the 8,000 documents of the Castel Sant'Angelo collection, which was housed in the grim palatial fortress on the banks of the Tiber until 1758.

They provide what is probably the largest collection of ancient church documents in the world. During the war, the Vatican archivists helped to collect and preserve from destruction precious writings from convents, monasteries and churches throughout Italy. These have now been restored to their original homes.

There remain on the shelves of the Vatican archives several hundred thousand documents and books, placed there over the last 300 years, providing one of the richest sources of historical research material in the world.

Easier Time For Banks Fishermen

By ALAN HARVEY

London, May 16.—(O)—Britain is going to make it easier for deep-sea skippers who want to go fishing in Newfoundland waters.

Under a bill now before Parliament, masters of fishing boats trying their luck off the new Canadian province will no longer require a foreign-going certificate of competency.

After the bill becomes law—its passage appears to be just a formality—an ordinary certificate of competency will be good enough.

The new measure, given second reading in the House of Commons April 28, removes an anomaly which dates back to 1894. It also brings the practice for Newfoundland in line with regulations applying to British vessels in such Transport Minister Alfred Barnes, proposing second reading, said that in 1894 fishing boats were much smaller than they are today. Expeditions to Newfoundland were liable to be of a hit-and-miss variety, possibly endangering the lives of the crew.

"Now, however, the type and designs of these vessels have changed," said Barnes. "It now is common for them to journey far afield. Therefore we propose to adjust the circumstances and remove the anomaly."

Other provisions of the bill empower the government to make regulations governing crew accommodation in fishing boats; stipulate that crews of ships above 200 tons must be signed on and off in the presence of superintendents of Mercantile Marine offices; and

Making Room For Grandma

By OLGA A. ROSMANITH

When Grandma Holden died after five years illness, it left the young Holden family with only one older relative, Grandma Holden. It also left them with a long anticipated moral responsibility—to give good old Grandma a happy home.

Dennis and Betty both sincerely loved her, but neither of them wanted to do this. They regarded it as a sacrificial duty. Nor would either of them fully admit to the other that each considered it an unfortunate circumstance that would mar the blissful setup of their lives.

"She has a small income," Betty reminded Dennis. "Maybe it could be worked out if she took a small apartment of her own somewhere near us."

"No," Dennis was gloomy but definite. "That could still be as lonesome as you know where. Besides a very old woman needs care. She can't always wait on herself."

"She took care of your Grandpa all those years—"

"With help, darling, remember. Besides," he added, "that's just the thing to help wear her out. She's 69 on the edge of 70. I don't know how she ever survived that terrible shock. We just couldn't not."

He was referring to the death of Dennis' parents in a plane crash. Betty agreed with the fact they "just couldn't not."

She sighed and began figuring out how to fix the house so the weary old lady could fit into their lives without utterly disrupting them.

They decided, almost in anguish, to sacrifice Dennis' study, workshop and den to make a bed-sitting room so Grandma needn't walk up and downstairs. "Then Dennis could use that room they had closed and set aside for a future nursery."

"We could get a chaise longue for the porch," Betty suggested. "Grandma might enjoy being out on the porch in the sun. She's always working at something beautiful. She could do some knitting."

Betty was at that moment wearing a flower-print housecoat Grandma had made on the machine because she had admired the material waiting in Grandma's home to be made into curtains. "She's pretty old, but she's not helpless, Betty. Remember how she loves putting in the kitchen."

Betty exposed her misery in facing the disruption of the happy routine of her house. "But I don't need help in the kitchen. I just don't want anybody interfering in the kitchen."

"She won't if you ask her not to. She's always been very understanding."

"Yes, I know. That's why we just can't—"

"She's quite active too. She won't sit around all day. She's good at gardening."

"But all my seeds are in and my new plants set out. I just don't want anything changed or dug up. There must be other things—"

"She loves the radio. She listens to the commentators and the forums and the symphony—"

"Oh dear—I hope she doesn't stop me listening to Backstage Wife and Stella Dallas—"

Dennis laughed. He thought women listening to soap operas were funny. "She'll bring her own. She can listen to it with her door shut."

Betty brightened. "Of course I guess she likes a private life as much as we do."

broaden the discretionary powers of officers of naval courts.

Barnes said Britain's fishing fleet lands more than 1,000,000 tons of fish every year. About 50,000 men and 14,500 vessels were involved.

Q—What was the first vehicle to attain a speed of more than 100 miles an hour?

A—Running a mile in 32 seconds near Batavia, New York, on May 10, 1898, New York Central locomotive No. 999 became the fastest creation of man up to that time. It was the first 100-mile-an-hour locomotive and held the world's speed record for more than 12 years.

U.S. To Aid France's "Hot War"---

The U. S. will chip in with military and economic aid in France's fight against communist-led rebels in the Viet Nam area of Indo-China. That was Secretary Acheson's response to French Foreign Minister Schuman's S.O.S. at the Big Three meeting in Paris. Map shows where France has been fighting an all-out shooting war since 1946. Communist-trained Ho Chi Minh's 70,000-man army, pitted against 150,000 French regulars plus 50,000 native militia troops, has already cost France some 10,000 soldiers. In return for U. S. help in footing the $500,000-a-year bill, France promises independence for Viet Nam and other Indo Chinese states.

by-election, the very light vote suggests that most of the people remained satisfied with the present government.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said the two victories for his party indicated public dissatisfaction with the government's attitude to their interests.

Mr. Hees' comment tallied with his party leader. "The people of Broadview have demonstrated that they are dissatisfied with a government which promises a great deal but falls far short on performance," he said.

Mrs. Fairclough said the Hamilton West constituency contains a complete cross-section of Canadian life. "I am deeply concerned that the voice of ordinary Canadian men and women should be heard in the House of Commons. This is my chief objective; to speak for them."

Compared with last June 27th, the turnout in both ridings was light. Total vote in Hamilton West was 18,772 — less than half the 41,464 eligible — and almost 10,000 below the 28,000 who cast ballots in the general election.

Broadview ballots numbered just more than 21,000 of 43,437 eligible and compared with 27,000 a year ago.

The reduced vote in Toronto Broadview was reflected in the figures for Miss Radford and Prof. Grube. Miss Radford had 9,316 a year ago to run Mr. Church a close race. He won with 10,507. She lost almost 3,000 this time while Prof. Grube, who contested the seat unsuccessfully for the fourth time, was also down about 3,000. It was the first time Prof. Grube had lost ground in the constituency. The Communist vote was also reduced, from 299 last time to less than 200.

Mrs. Fairclough won in Hamilton West despite the fact she polled fewer votes than when she lost to Mr. Gibson last year. She had 9,252 then against 12,324 for Mr. Gibson. Yesterday she got less than 8,000 votes. The C.C.F. also lost ground. Mr. Collingdon's 3,200 votes compared with 6,748 for J. S. Allen last year.

The small vote — less than half the potential total — tallied with the campaign which lacked the lively issues of the general election campaign last spring. Door-to-door campaigning was popular and most of the public meetings were small.

now were engaged in flood work in Manitoba. This did not include 30 R.C.A.F. planes and crews flying out of the base to Winnipeg hospitals and taking in needed supplies in the biggest air lift in Canada's history.

The final phase of the lengthy and often bitter pipeline debate was highlighted by a clash between Trade Minister Howe and various members of the opposition. At one point Mr. Howe said of Howard Green:

"He goes around the Parliament Buildings with a smirk on his face, a Bible in his hand and stiletto up his sleeve. He is ready to pat a man on the back or stab him as it suits his purpose at the moment."

"Are you going to challenge me to a duel too?" shot back Mr. Green.

Mr. Howe said the Vancouver member had "refused to do the fact I was an American."

Mr. Green denied this and said he had asked why the Minister was "America First" in his attitude toward the Canada-First policy the Progressive Conservative advocated in the pipeline issue.

At another point the Minister clashed with Mr. Drew when he said the pipeline filibuster was "not a Canadian stunt" and came from the United States.

Mr. Drew demanded withdrawal of "any statement that I or any other member of this House has acted under instructions from the United States."

Mr. Howe said he did not say that. But inquiries into the background of West Coast Transmission Lines, which received incorporation at the last session of parliament, showed it was indirectly controlled by the Sunray Oil Company of Delaware, an American firm which builds and operates pipe lines.

The question of routes had only been brought forth "as a herring to cover up the effort to shut off competition for this United States pipe-line company," said Mr. Howe.

Ottawa, May 16.—(CP)—Sir Basil Brooke, Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, said last night that "just as our rocky coasts hurl back the angry waves, the people of Northern Ireland will hurl back anybody who tries to introduce sedition and rebellion into a country which is loyal to the King."

He was addressing a banquet of the Sons and Daughters of the Northern Ireland Association. Among those at the head table were Sir Alexander Clutterbuck, United Kingdom High Commissioner, and George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader. Lady Brooke, recovering in hospital from an operation, sent her regrets and her place was taken by Mrs. Drew.

South Africa Case Before World Court

The Hague, May 16.—(Reuters)—The United Nations today asked the International Court of Justice to give its guidance on the future of Southwest Africa and the rights of South Africa over the former German colony.

Four questions were posed: 1. What are the international obligations of the South African Government regarding the former mandated territory of Southwest Africa? 2. Has the South African Government the right to modify the international status of the territory?

3. If not, who has such right? 4. Is Southwest Africa subject to the provisions of chapter 12 of the United Nations Charter laying down the fundamental principles of the international trusteeship system?

The hearing is expected to last until early next week.

South Africa had been ruling the territory under League of Nations mandate since 1920.

South Africa is the only country which has refused to bring a League-mandated territory under the U.N. trusteeship system.

Montreal, May 16.—(C)—The Bell Telephone Company of Canada announced yesterday it would curtail relay long-distance calls into flood-stricken Winnipeg.

In a press statement, the company said it was doing this at the request of the government-owned Manitoba Telephone System which asked Bell to cut down the number of long-distance calls, only accepting those connected with deaths and vital supplies.

The statement declared: "We condemn efforts to gain partisan advantage of senators and innuendoes which hamper our government and blacken the characters of innocent citizens."

No specific mention was made of charges by Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) of communist infiltration in the State Department.

However, the statement said: "It is the duty of every citizen who has evidence of disloyalty to furnish any such evidence to the government."

"We reaffirm our belief in fair play and honest factual investigation."

"We believe that development of facts better serves the interest of our people than development of headlines based on rumor and distortion."

"The Democratic party will never advocate fighting communism with the police state terrorism which communism imposes upon its own victims."

TESTS SHOW MOTHER'S MILK IS BEST FOR A NEW BABY

By Edwin P. Jordan, M.D.

There is no doubt that the best food for a new-born infant is the mother's milk. When such feeding is possible there is no need to argue the value of other methods. This does not mean, however, that infants cannot grow well and stay healthy if they are fed artificially. Artificial feeding has been carried out successfully many, many times.

Dr. Jordan

It does mean, however, that if one compared a large group of breast-fed infants with a large group of artificially-fed infants,

SOUTH BOLTON

A heavy wind of last Saturday did minor damage here and there. The news of Mrs. Darlington's death, in the Ottawa Hospital, after a short illness, caused feelings of deep regret here, where she had many friends. Her husband was an extremely popular preacher here on the United Church circuit at one time. Sincere sympathy is extended to her children in their bereavement.

A school meeting was held in the school house here on Monday night, but no definite decision was made about closing the school house. A good crowd enjoyed some moving pictures shown by Supervisor Perry.

The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. C. A. Randall and was very well attended. Plans were made to have the annual county meeting on May 17, in the Hall at Mrs. Whittaker's on account of it being a roomy place to accommodate the crowd, which it is hoped will be present. Delegates were appointed to attend the "Short Course", in Handicrafts, at Macdonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue. The June meeting is invited to the cottage of Mrs. O'Reilly, on the Cross Road, and the day will be given over to a "Grandmothers' Program." Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Mr. Graydon True now carries his mail on the East side with his car.

The Sutton cream truck came through on the East side of the river for the first on Tuesday.

Mr. D. Cameron had carried the cream all winter with his team.

Mr. Homer Nicol and daughter of Roxton Pond, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Holland Ross, and family, of Sherbrooke, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Ross.

Miss Marion Martin and Miss Alice Hill, of Montreal, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hill.

Miss Alberta Ross, of Sherbrooke, spent a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Ross.

Bury Athletic Association Has Made Plans For Dominion Day Celebration

Bury, May 15. — At a well attended meeting of the Bury Athletic Association, under the joint chairmanship of Arthur Ward and Thomas Stokes, in the Town Hall, the various committees were formed and plans were under discussion for the forthcoming Dominion Day celebrations to be held in the Memorial Park, on July 1.

This annual event has been held so many years that it has become traditional. It gets under way early in the day with a baseball match, followed at 12:30, by a grand street parade of flamboyantly decorated floats, cars, teams and bicycles. Even the tiny tots take their part with their gaily decorated doll carriages, wagons and tricycles.

The afternoon program is given over to various sporting events, with the addition of some novelty features including, baseball throw, horse-shoe throw and a mirth provoking rolling pin throw by the ladies.

A splendid trophy will be presented to the boy or girl, residents of the township of Bury, aggregating the highest score in these events.

Prizes will also be given to the oldest lady and the oldest man on the grounds.

In the early evening an amateur program of music, songs and skits, etc., will be given, succeeded by a display of fireworks and finally climaxed by a big dance in the Town Hall and Armoury.

The young people hail this event as a thrilling occasion and to their elders it offers the opportunity to meet old friends and reminisce with them of other days.

Franks And Pop Go On The Picnic

MEMORIAL DAY PICNIC isn't complete without sizzling frankfurters and soda pop.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
These all-American favorites—hot dogs and bottled soft drinks—go to the Victoria Day picnic or, for that matter, to the picnic at home.

An old friend of ours, Kathrine Wellingbrook, comes up again with a new angle on an old favorite. She suggests splitting frankfurter rolls lengthwise, spreading them with a mixture of sharp cheese and mustard, and then placing in slow oven (300 degrees F.) for about ten minutes.

We tried it. It's wonderful.

BREAKFAST: Canned grapefruit juice, French toast, syrup, crisp bacon, coffee, milk.

VICTORIA DAY PICNIC: Sizzling franks in cheese spread split and heated rolls; assorted relishes, pretzels and potato chips in sour cream mustard dip, salami cones, fresh fruit, nut cookies, iced carbonated beverages, milk.

DINNER: Baked stuffed beef heart, whipped potatoes, buttered lima beans, raw carrots, strawberries, coffee, milk.

She serves iced carbonated beverages with them. For Victoria Day each bottle has a narrow red, white and blue ribbon about it. The pop bottles stand in a bucket of ice, and there are always plenty of extra bottle openers in case one gets lost in a careless pocket.

She has two other simple, very good snacks for her holiday picnic. I think you'll like them, too.

Sour Cream Mustard Dip: One-half pint sour cream, 1½ tablespoons prepared mustard, ½ teaspoon salt, dash black pepper, 1 teaspoon celery seed.

Combine sour cream and mustard. Stir in seasonings. Chill well. Place bowl in the center of platter containing pretzels and potato chips.

Salami Cones (5-6 servings): Ten to 12 slices salami, 2 packages (3 ounces each) cream cheese, 2 tablespoons milk, 1 teaspoon of prepared mustard.

Roll the slices of salami into cones; fasten with toothpicks. Soften the cream cheese with the milk, using more milk if necessary. Mix in the mustard. Fill the salami cones and chill thoroughly. Before serving, remove toothpicks.

The Reds CAN Be Stopped in Asia: 2 India, In 3rd Year of Freedom, Bogs Down In Hunger, Conflict

Editor's Note: John Strohm, who gave the world its first word and picture story of life inside the Iron Curtain two and one-half years ago, has again gone to an area of prime news interest to bring American newspaper readers the inside story of Southeast Asia. Here, on a "front" which diplomats regard as the most critical in the Cold War, Strohm has spent 10 weeks getting the picture with typewriter and camera. He has visited nine countries and spoken with diplomats, officials, businessmen, soldiers and with Gen. Douglas MacArthur. This is the second of six dispatches in which Strohm outlines the dangers of the situation but indicates a possible long road to salvation and economic stability.

By JOHN STROHM
NEA Special Correspondent
Calcutta, India—(NEA)—India, in its third year of freedom, is bogged down in troubles. Population is outrunning food supplies. India's Prime Minister, Pandit Nehru, and his deputy, Sardar Patel, are tired old men whose death at this critical time could plunge the nation into leaderless confusion. Hindu-Muslim conflict lies close to the surface.

In Pakistan, the Moslem country carved out of India in two widely separated chunks, it's much the same story on a smaller scale.

The perpetual food shortage in these lands is a predicament resulting from too rapidly growing populations, worn-out soils yielding low returns, animal and insect pests, and recurring droughts. Visiting the two countries first on my broad sweep of Southeast Asia, I saw southern India suffering from its third straight rainless year. Parched rice paddies mean hungry people will be hungrier.

It's hard to imagine an American farmer tilling two or four acres of poor soil, using antiquated tools to eke out enough food to feed six or seven children. That's the Indian's situation.

At the very least he needs fertilizer for his land, but his children must collect cow dung for fuel—also in short supply.

Normally, India imports up to 4,000,000 tons of food a year. The government has announced, however, that it will bring in no food grains after 1951. It can't pay the bill.

To help offset this loss, officials claim they can hike food output 10 per cent by persuading India's 50,000,000 small farmers to "use a little better seed and a little more fertilizer, and save a little more from the pests." One of the major facts is the sacred cow. One hundred and eighty million set up now to prevent starvation." India has long range plans, of course, to get much more food. Dams and irrigation works are programed. But the money isn't there. The country did manage a $10,000,000 loan from the International Bank, though, for the purchase of 345 large tractors and plows. They're reclaiming 3,000,000 acres abandoned to deep-rooted grass pests.

I talked with L. W. Kephart, the project director, and he said: "We hope to get this soil back in production and raise 20 bushels of wheat to the acre on 100,000 acres this year (present yields are half that). At that rate the bank will soon be paid back, farmers will make money and India's starving will benefit."

In Delhi, Cliff Taylor, U.S. agricultural attache, suggested to me that 100 qualified U.S. farm experts could help raise India's food production 20 per cent in a decade.

"A $2,000,000 investment in these 100 men might mean the difference between a stable India and a Communist country," he said. "The stakes are high—world peace. The price, when you consider that, is peanuts."

The idea isn't exactly new. An agricultural college founded by for their 5,000 workers. Crop yields are high and the food is given away free.

Said the plant doctor: "We now have much less disease and absenteeism. Uplift begins with the belly."

The plant manager added: "Our production is up, our workers happier. We think this is the way to counter-act Communism."

But these workers, who may seem to get new homes with their own gardens, aren't typical. Generally the worker's lot is as mean as the farmer's, if not worse.

In Madras I crawled in and out of factory homes. Doors are three feet high. Floors are of dirt, and the people live five to 10 in a room. The housewife cooks over an open fire, the family squats and eats with their hands from half-filled rice bowls, and sleep on floor mats in the clothes they wear every day.

The huts are windowless, the only light coming from a flickering wick in a dab of coconut oil.

Sighed the same plant doctor: "A man comes home from work and eats. Within these barren walls there's nothing to do then but go to bed. That's why there are so many babies. It's a vicious circle."

Perpetually in debt, Indians are further bowed down by the culture-like money lenders who charge them 12 per cent interest a month. Many are still paying their grandfather's debts.

India's prime hope of better living standards lies in industrializing. The country's leaders confidently reserved to the government the right to build all the plants the nations needs. But they soon learned the job takes capital.

Most Indians have no savings to put into investment, though some businessmen could contribute if they would. Declared one Calcutta man: "We don't want the government experimenting with our money."

So, after a brave start, India now is looking for foreign investors and not finding very many. An industrial control law with stiff features scares both native and foreign capital.

On the other hand, suspicion of American investors still runs strong. In Karachi two U.S. businessmen in a round-table discussion were subjected to an abusive barrage with "Wall Street imperialism" as the theme.

A St. Louis banker, Peter Grim, finally had his fill and told the meeting:

"Gentlemen, don't worry about your business. It will be safe. The U.S. businessman will probably never hear of Pakistan."

Until India and Pakistan do find the capital to develop their own industry, they will probably enter willingly into trade deals with Japan, a nation equipped to meet the Southeast's industrial wants. India recently arranged a $60,000,-

PANDIT NEHRU: A tired man.

SARDAR PATEL: An old man.

000 barter of raw materials for Jap machinery and factory goods. Pakistan concluded one for $20,000,000.

Certainly these two nations their basic problem of people vs. must make serious headway on resources. If they don't, Communism, thus far not a grave internal threat, may soon begin to enjoy good pickings in the vast sub-continent of India.

Tomorrow: Hot war in Malaya.

Rock Island Couple Given Post-Nuptial Party

Rock Island, May 16.—A post-nuptial party was given in honor of Mr. Stanford and Mrs. Stanford Mallard, nee Beatrice Boudreau, of Sherbrooke, who were married recently.

This event was held in the cafeteria of the Spencer Supports, where Mr. Mallard is employed as a foreman.

The evening was very pleasantly spent dancing to music supplied by a victrola.

The bride was presented with a lovely corsage of American Beauty roses.

A toast was proposed for the happiness of the couple and Mr. E. Sutton, work manager, of the Spencer Supports, presented them with a 3-way floor lamp from their thirty-two friends gathered there.

Mr. and Mrs. Mallard expressed their appreciation for the lovely gift and the delightful party.

The hostesses, Mrs. Henry Cournoyer and Mrs. Lawrence Simmoneau served delicious refreshments a-la-buffet from a table very attractively arranged with a centre of potted gladiolus, and yellow tapers in sets of twin crystal holders.

The bride and groom cut the wedding cake, decorated in white and green, and made by Mrs. W. B. Dustin.

Mr. and Mrs. Mallard are residing in West Park, in one of the houses recently purchased from the Housing Co-operation.

The Union Twist Drill Of Rock Island Won The Metal Trades Inter-Plant Safety Competition Prize For 1949.

Rock Island, May 16. — The Rock Island Plant of the Union Twist Drill Company was notified recently that the plant had been declared winner in the Metal Trades Section of the Inter-Plant Safety Competition for the year 1949.

This competition was organized by the Quebec Association for the Prevention of Industrial Accidents and covers all the Metal Trades Plants in the Province.

The presentation of the award was made at the annual Industrial Safety dinner held at the Mount Royal Hotel, Montreal, on May 4. Mr. B. E. Holland, superintendent, and Mr. Hugh Bell, employment manager, were delegated to attend the dinner and to receive the award. The award is in the form of a large plaque and a framed certificate. These will be on display in the plant.

The winning of this competition is an achievement as, out of 622, 149 man hours the plant operated during the year, there were only three lost time accidents involving 109 days lost.

In the year 1938, the plant operated without a lost time accident and was awarded a "Silver Cup" and a certificate of Merit.

In September 1946, the Derby Line plant of the company was awarded an Accident Prevention Flag, as an award for an outstanding record of reducing lost-time accidents to a point 67 per cent below the national average for the years 1943, 1944 and 1945.

A good safety record is obtained by the co-operation of all personnel, every employee must take a personal interest in his own safety and contribute to the safety of those working with him, only when every worker realizes his responsibility to the other fellow as well as to himself can success be assured.

Waterloo Kiwanians Held Ladies' Night At Canada Hotel; Film Shown

Waterloo, May 16. — A very successful "Ladies' Night" was held by the Waterloo Kiwanis Club, at their regular weekly meeting on Tuesday night, at the Canada Hotel, with President Mike Cardinal in the chair. Besides the wives of the members, other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Elder Brock Wells, Mrs. H. D. Wells, Mrs. C. A. Norris, Mrs. C. G. Hal, Mrs. A. F. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. John Coyle, of Sherbrooke, and Mr. Romeo Boivin, the guest speaker.

One new member, Kiwanian Tom Wilkinson, was introduced to the gathering. Favours, silk stockings, were distributed among the ladies by the Kiwanians, in honor of the occasion. Kiwanian A. Grainger introduced the guest speaker, who in turn gave a most interesting of a film entitled "That Babies Might Live," sponsored by the Carnation Milk Co., and had to do with the steady progress made in the milk preparations for babies. As the film showed, fifty years ago one in five babies in infancy. Study was made by doctors, by chemists, and by other men of learning, until it was discovered that most of the sickness and deaths were caused by a certain something lacking in their diet. It was found that this something as milk, "nutrients" most perfect food. But whole milk, it was discovered was too harsh for most children, and thus the birth of pasteurized milk.

One thing led to another in the discoveries of milk and its values eventually led to the discovery of evaporated milk, as it is now manufactured by the Carnation Company. The film was exceptionally well compiled, with some fine scenes of babies in appealing poses, and some very worth while educational points.

Mr. Boivin was thanked by Kiwanian Rollie Boucher, on behalf of the Kiwanis Club.

It was announced that next week the speaker would be Mrs. Kuo, who has just recently won an oratorical prize in Montreal, and who will speak to the Kiwanis Club on the "Chinese Theatre." It is expected that this meeting will be most interesting to the members of the club and a full turn-out is expected.

First Love

Teen-Age Passion Seldom
Of The Enduring Sort

Dear Miss Dix: Does a person ever quite get over his first love even if he knows that it is hopeless? Does a man ever fall in love so completely again as he did the first time? If he marries a second love, will he be as happy as he would have been if he had married his first love? What do you think of first love?

Answer: I think that first love is of the stuff which dreams are made and that it is just as beautiful and unsubstantial as dreams are.

SOMETIMES IT WORKS

Of course, sometimes first love endures and there are cases where men and women marry their first sweethearts, but this does not often happen. Most men and women have thought themselves in love a dozen times before they ever experienced a real case. The truth is that boys and girls in their adolescent state are in love with love and so overflowing with sentiment that they fancy themselves in love with any one of the opposite sex who happens to be near enough for them to hang their affections upon temporarily.

As for a man getting over his first love, there is nothing from which he recovers so completely. Of course, in the back of his mind a certain glamour may hang around the memory of his first sweetheart, but let him meet her again after a lapse of years and he is filled with wonder at what he could possibly have seen in her that caught his immature fancy.

Real love is an experience that grows up men and women and know the needs of our own natures that we are capable of the love that can break our hearts if it is unreturned and that endures for a lifetime.

Whether a man will be happier if he marries his second love than he would if he married his first depends entirely upon the woman and which one would be the most congenial to him. Possibly the first love might have been his predestined mate, but it is more likely to have been the second, because generally a boy's first love is his teacher or some woman old enough to be his mother.

First love is a beautiful theme for the poet, but in real life it is a snare and a delusion from which most of us are mercifully saved by a beneficent Providence.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am married to the sweetest man on earth. No man could be kinder, more devoted or more generous to a wife than he is to me. Never scolds, never reprimands me, no matter how extravagant I am or how inefficient. But I don't love him. I am mean, nagging and despicable. I neglect my housework shamefully. If I tell him I don't love him and leave him, he will be so desperate that he will ruin himself. If I leave him, for me it will mean having to take a housemaid's job for some other woman instead of having my own beautiful house and car. What shall I do? I am the most unhappy person alive.

Answer: You have thought and thought about not being in love with your husband, and about his not being the romantic hero of your girlish dreams until you have worked yourself up into a state of hysteria where you are suffering all sorts of psychopathic pains and having a perfectly gorgeous time being miserable about nothing. My advice to you is this: Quit thinking about yourself so much and think a little about the splendid man to whom you are married. Don't be wicked enough to ruin his life by letting him find out how you feel about him, or by leaving him. Have enough courage to carry on and keep up the deception and make him happy. Suppose you are not ardent in love with him. You like him and respect him and admire him. That is the real basis on which all friendship is founded, and friendship is a mighty good substitute for love.

And don't forget this: The best way in the world to cultivate love is by doing something for someone. Get busy doing things for that good husband of yours. Think of him instead of yourself and you will find that you are drawn to him in a way that you have believed impossible, and you will find happiness yourself.

Dear Miss Dix: A business man in his early fifties and a business woman of forty are very much in love with each other and are considering marriage. Is the difference in their age an obstacle?

Answer: Certainly not. They are practically in the same age class, since women age more quickly than men do. Their tastes are settled. They know what they want in a husband or wife and the matter of a few additional years one way or the other is negligible.

Dear Miss Dix: All my life I have wanted to be a trained nurse, but the boy I have been going with for two years opposes it very much. He wants me to be a teacher, or anything else but a trained nurse. Must I change my desired profession to please him, or go ahead as I have planned?

Answer: If you are definitely engaged to the young man and expect soon to be married to him, you might be influenced by his opinion. But if you are just vaguely "going with him" and do not know whether he intends to marry you or not, he certainly has no right to prevent you from taking up the profession for which you have a vocation.

If all of your life you have felt a call to be a nurse, I think you would be very foolish to give it up for the whim of a boy who really doesn't know what he is talking about when he opposes it.

DOROTHY DIX cannot reply personally to readers, but will answer problems of general interest through her column. However, she has written leaflet D-5, "Jealousy," which warns of the futility of being over-suspicious. To obtain a copy, send 5 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Miss Dix, P. O. Box 98, Times Square Station, New York 18, N. Y.

Bridge Grafting
Of Apple Trees
Is Important

Mice and rabbits succeed in killing many apple trees annually because no effort is made to replace the damaged bark by bridge-grafting. This is a simple operation and the cost is negligible if a bearing tree is saved for further production, says T. B. Harrison, Experimental Station, Harrow, Ont.

Injured trees should be marked with white lead when pruning is being done and sufficient vigorous sucker wood for grafting should also be saved at this time. These bad sticks should be wrapped in moist sacking and stored in a cool basement or ice house till needed in May.

The right stage for bridge-grafting is when the bark separates readily from the wood and generally this occurs when the apple trees are in full bloom. It is important to first check carefully the injured area on the tree to insure that the scion or bud stick used overlaps at least three inches into the live tissue above and below the wound.

The areas of contact of tree and graft are carefully cut with a knife and the bark is gently lifted with a screwdriver when ready to insert the end of the scion, previously cut to a flat one-sided wedge. Usually the graft is inserted first into the lower slot and nailed firmly to the tree. Then a similar process is followed with the upper end of the graft and both ends of the "bridge" are then well covered with a grafting compound.

In the case of a wide wound the grafts should be placed three inches apart about the trunk. On young trees which are apt to sway in the wind, it is advisable that the grafts be bowed to allow for this movement.

All the equipment required for bridge-grafting is a sharp knife and a sharpening stone to keep it that way, a small hammer, some flat headed nails of assorted sizes and a can of tree grafting compound. For convenience, all this can be placed in an 11 quart basket for carrying about the orchard.

Olympic Committee Worried About Games' Growth, Study Means Of Cutting Down Number Of Contestants

Copenhagen, May 16. — (AP) — committee responsible for the organization of the Olympics is going to spend next year trying to figure out how to limit the growth of the games.

"It is the most difficult problem we face," said Otto Mayer, chancellor of the International Olympic Committee. "Natural growth of sports and nations threatens the very existence of the games."

"Participants are multiplying at such a rapid rate that unless some limitations are imposed the games will become a physical impossibility within the next eight years."

Although the 1952 program at Helsinki will be almost exactly the same as the 1948 games at London, the committee expects the number of athletes to jump from 4,500 to 6,000.

"For instance," explained Mayer, "we found out that 854 athletes were in London without even participating in a single event. We also found that many of the athletes who did participate simply were not of international class. They knew, and their countries knew, they would have no chance in the competition. They were there for 'representational' purposes only."

Mayer suggested two possibilities for trimming games: (1) cutting the number of competitors in each event; and (2) cutting the number of events in each sport. Any solution, however, will not apply until the 1956 games at Melbourne.

The supporters of handball and archery attempted to persuade the I.O.C. to include their sports in the 1952 Olympic program. Handball was turned down by the I.O.C.'s executive council while archery will be discussed today by the full committee. Its chances are considered slim.

Swimming, boxing, gymnastics and canoeing asked to have their programs expanded. All were refused, as were also suggestions to trim the '52 games.

Cuts become more necessary as more countries qualify to take part in Olympics. Fifty-nine countries were entered in the London summer games. Sixty-seven countries have National Olympic Committees and several more may be recognized.

The status of Western Germany and Israel will be discussed today.

The National Olympic Committee of Japan is recognized but the country still must affiliate with individual sports federations before it is again eligible for Olympic competition.

Russia belongs to sports federations but has not replied to three invitations to form a National Olympic Committee.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

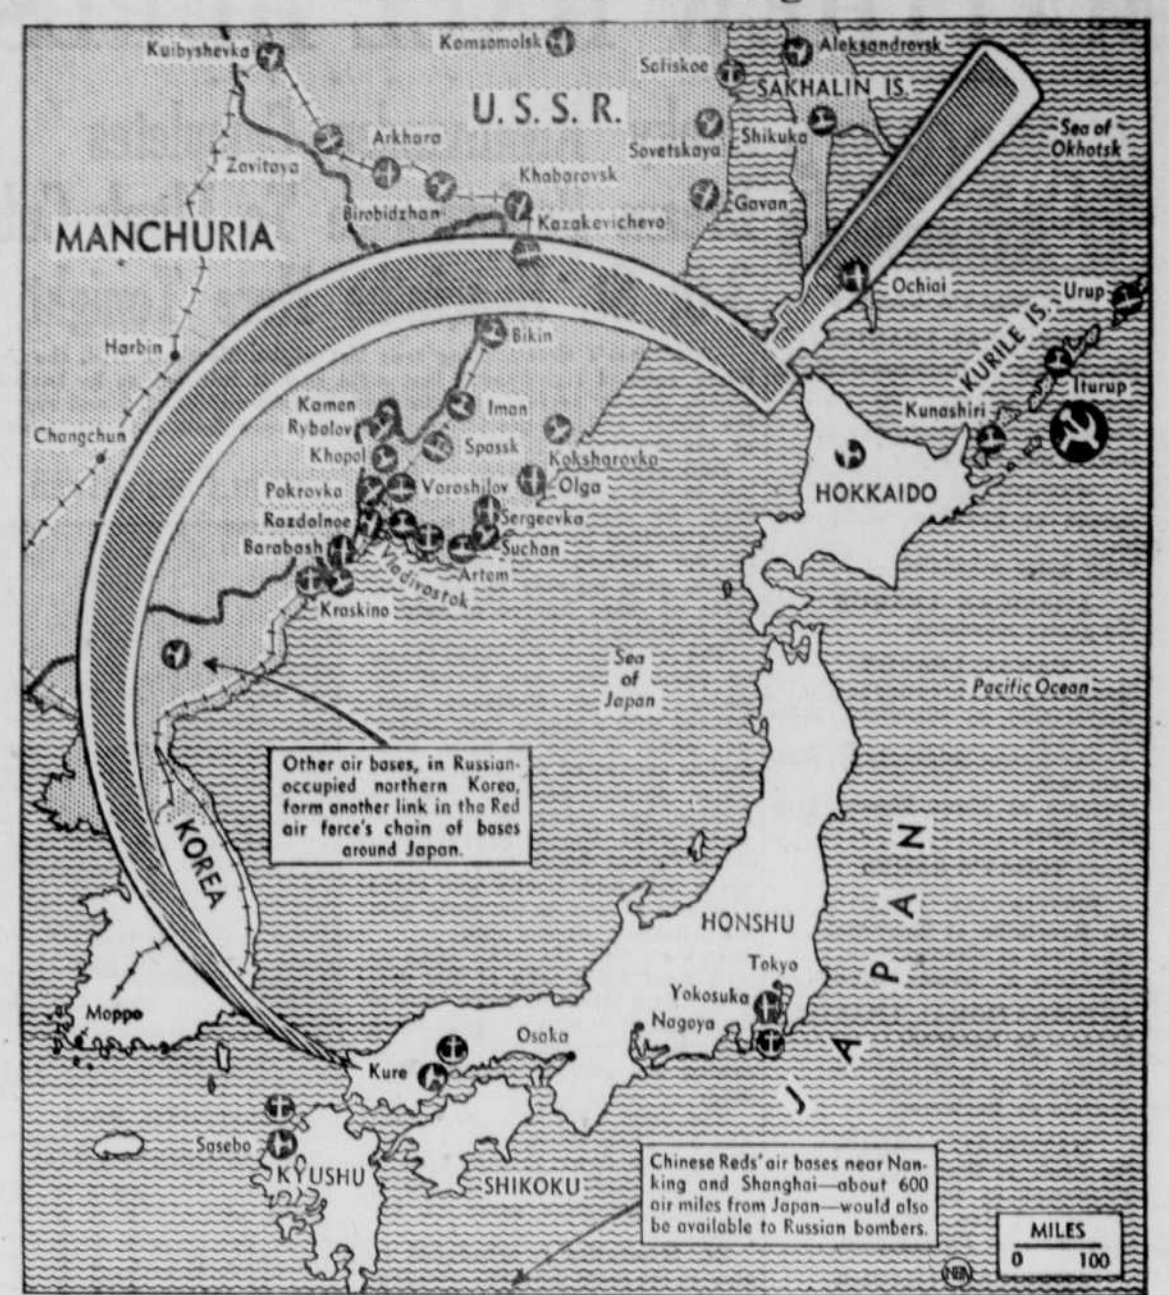

New York, May 16. — (AP) — A baseball scout who recently toured the Carolinas departed with the comment that he'd better find some players sooner he wouldn't be scouting any more . . . and another baseball-wise gent from the same sector adds there is an "alarming" shortage of youngsters who have a real future in the game . . . don't ask us why. They can't all be spending their time watching big league games on television instead of playing on the sandlots.

Left-Handed Compliment
John Davis, Indiana U. half-back, was used chiefly as a defensive player last fall . . . Came spring practice time, John decided he'd like to try lugging the leather and asked quarterback Ray Petruskas to give him a chance . . . The first time he took the ball, Davis galloped 90 yards to score against the first team . . . He crossed the goal with a big grin on his face and was obviously ready for a modest acceptance of compliments from visiting Coach Frank Filechok, who was standing behind the goal . . . Instead, Frank fixed him with a baleful look and shouted: "You had the ball in the wrong hand."

Shorts and Shells
Showing the new interest in baseball in Canada, a group of Regina, Sask., enthusiasts is travelling some 100,000 miles to consult National Baseball Congress officials about the choice of a manager for their non-professional club . . . Coach Bibb Falk is ready to match his Texas U. ground corps against any collegiate staff you can name. Murray Wall and Charley Gorin have accounted for 30 victories in 34 Southwest Conference games during three seasons . . . Nat Fleischer's latest boxing publication is "The Mike Jacobs Story" written by Dan Daniel.

Tearful Earfuls
Mule Haas, the one-time athletics star, is setting records as manager in the Carolina League and could lose his job as a result. At last report his Fayetteville Club had lost 15 in a row . . . Gerold Grim, who pitches for Graham High School at Bluefield, Va., has an even sadder tale. He held Peconantas High to three hits, Saltsville to two, Princeton to one

S. is violating Allied occupation policy by building Japanese naval and air bases, "from Hokkaido to Kyushu," including such bases as Sasebo, Kure and Yokosuka. He demanded an explanation from General MacArthur. General MacArthur rejected the protest as "provocative impertinence." The Russian general did not mention the fact that the USSR has Japan completely hemmed in by scores of new bases she has been building with feverish haste. and Bluefield, W. Va., to two in successive games . . . and he lost them all . . . And Con Dempsey, a flinger for whom the San Francisco Seals once refused $100,000, started both games of a double-header against Los Angeles, May 7. He lasted two-thirds of an inning each time and was charged with both losses.

Pelham Manor, N. Y., May 16. — (AP) — Sharpshooting Jimmy Thompson of London, Ont., is the distance handicap champion of the

The Royal Canadian Navy Academy graduate broke 22 of possible 25 targets in a shoot-out with Ed Modjeska of Kingston, N.Y., for the crown. The two had finished the regulation shoot with identical record of 95 hits in 10 tries.

Lanky Righthander Completes Dream Performance To Blank Cubs 3-0; St. Hyacinthe Here Tonight

A pitcher's dream came true last night. Matthew Hall, the Athletics' colored righthander last night saw it fulfilled as he hurled a no-hit, no-run performance to down Drummondville 3-0 and register the locals' third consecutive victory to move them into top position of the Provincial Baseball League.

Hall issued eight bases on balls, but in the clutch was hard to beat. He struck out five Cubs while coating to his initial victory of the season. His opponent, Smith, gave up only six hits, but three of them figured in helping the Athletics to tally.

The A's opened the initial frame by pushing two runs across the plate. Gordon McMahon commenced with a single. Paul Martin was issued a base on balls. Mike Rollins connected for a hard drive which second baseman DeBishe fumbled permitting McMahon to score, while Martin pulled up at third. Pitcher Smith then committed a balk and Martin was given the right of way to the plate with the Athletics' second run.

In the eighth the locals came up with their third tally of the evening. Paul Martin drove out a double and Rollins banged out a clean single driving him home and ending the scoring for the evening.

The Cubs were in scoring position numerous times, but the lanky hurler bore down to ease himself over the rough spots and turn in his first complete game of the year.

St. Hyacinthe is scheduled to play at the local park this evening, weather permitting. The game is slated to start at 7:15 and it will be the Saints' initial appearance of the season at the Park Avenue stadium. Two other games are also listed for this evening, Farnham at Drummondville and St. John's at Granby.

On Thursday the Athletics will play a two-game series with Granby. The first game will be in the afternoon in Granby with the twilight fixture at the local park at 7:15.

Copenhagen, Denmark, May 16. —(AP)—When the Olympic flag is hoisted in Finland in the summer of 1952, German and Japanese athletes probably will be among approximately 6,000 men and women taking the Olympic oath in Helsinki's new stadium.

Japan's participation in the 1952 summer and winter Games is almost assured, Japan, unlike Germany never was banned by the International Olympic Committee, and the only thing standing in the way of Japanese participation probably is that country's affiliation with various international sports federations.

German participation is a more delicate problem. Yesterday the I.O.C. Committee debated more than four hours on the matter.

The I.O.C. decided to accept an Olympic Committee from Western Germany — "provisionally and under certain reservations."

Those reservations were kept secret by the I.O.C. members. After a full meeting, reservations were handed to a five-man committee, which met behind closed doors late last night.

The committee was to report to the I.O.C. today with a final decision expected in the afternoon.

There is a strong feeling among the delegates that Germany should again be a member of the Olympic family but that it should only include only Western Germany.

Technical difficulties for Germany's readmission are the same as those of Japan. Various German sports federations must agree with international federations before they can send competitors to the Olympic Games.

There is every chance, however, that these difficulties can be overcome.

Feelings ran high at yesterday's meeting. "But discussion was more heated at the beginning than at the end," said Otto Meyer, I.O.C. chancellor.

Major League Clubs Busy Clearing Decks For Wednesday Deadline; 13 Players Moved Yesterday, 19 To Go

New York, May 16.—(AP)—Most of the major league clubs today were busy engaged clearing the decks in order to come within the 25-player limit.

The deadline goes into effect tomorrow at midnight, exactly a month after the start of the season.

A feverish two days of buying and selling resulted in the release of 13 players and the sale of two others to rival clubs in the majors. More are sure to feel the ax. With some 30 hours to go, there are 19 surplus athletes.

Brooklyn's Dodgers, with 30 on their roster, must dispose of five. Detroit is next with three over the limit. Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia Phillies were faced with two amputations while Washington, the two St. Louis clubs, Cincinnati, and the Chicago Cubs were one over apiece.

Clubs already within the prescribed limit include the two Boston and New York clubs, Chicago White Sox and Philadelphia Athletics. The Yankees have 25 exclusive of Dick Wakefield. They were given special permission to carry the extra man indefinitely. The Giants were expected to bring up outfielder Monte Irvin from their Jersey City farm club and release veteran flycatcher Mike McCormick.

The Yankees lopped off five players yesterday. They sold outfielder Johnny Lindell to the Cardinals.

The White Sox assigned shortstop Jim Baumer to Colorado Springs of the Western Association, and released pitcher Bill Connelly to Toledo. Baumer is a bonus player signed by the Sox last year.

The Cubs placed Hal Jeffcoat on the voluntary retired list and recalled Bob Borkowski from Springfield of the International League to take his place in the outfield. Jeffcoat broke his collar bone in a game Sunday.

The Red Sox, after sending pitchers Bob Gillespie to Sacramento and Gordon Mueller to Louisville, recalled Jim Sucheck, another pitcher, Sucheck had a 2-2 record with Louisville. The Braves optioned Walter Linden to Milwaukee to get down to the prescribed player limit.

Only one regular game was scheduled yesterday: that between the Dodgers and Braves in Brooklyn. Rain, however, washed it off the boards just as the teams were getting ready to start.

Aja Vrzanova Celebrates Her Birthday With Visit To New York; Looks Forward To Movie Career

New York, May 16.—(AP)—Aja Vrzanova, 19-year-old world figure skating champion, came to North America "just for a holiday" and not in response to 30 proposals of marriage.

The pretty, Czech exile said today that's how many offers—"mostly from Americans"—she got after winning the world title in London last March.

Aja arrived in Canada last week and the only proposal she has accepted so far is to tour the United States as the star of an ice show. After that, the graceful continental beauty hopes to develop her whirls and spins into a movie career, like that of fellow European Sonja Henie and possibly Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa, the retired world champion who now is in Hollywood with an ice show.

A lively young woman, Aja flew in from Montreal yesterday to see the sights, and be seen. She bought a "few clothes," marveled at Broadway's electrical display, weaved through radio and news interviews, then as abruptly took off as she had come.

was over I had 89. It'll be tough getting that many up here."

That 89 figure, incidentally, is seven less than Tony Cobb's modern major league mark of 96.

How about the pitchers, did they bother him any more?

"Really don't now," replied the switch-hitting flycatcher. "Not keeping track. Something like 340 or so. Last year at this time I was hitting about 180."

Jethroe has played every game of the season so far for Boston. He's neither impressed nor indifferent.

Military Volleyball Tourney To Be Played

In the first two out of three series, 15-point games, will bring together Les Fusiliers de Sherbrooke and the 35th Battery with the winner meeting the 12th Armoured Regiment. The Jean-Paul Perrault Trophy will be at stake in this series.

The second half of the playoffs for the 12th Armoured Regiment Trophy will see the teams meet in the same manner, 21-point games will be played, and the series will be a two-out-of-three series.

Grunt-And-Groan Boys Stage Show At Garden

New York, May 16.—(AP)—Wrestling's grunt-and-grime boys are edging back into the big time with a new set of muscle-bound heroes and some fresh twists to old capers.

A seven-act show at Madison Square Garden last night drew 14,246 patrons, who shelled out $42,311. The previous Garden mat presentation took in $50,000-plus.

This stacks up better than even with the average weekly boxing shows at the big arena, while still falling short of the better ring attractions.

The last Garden fight last Friday night, for instance, drew 9,673 who paid $37,189 to watch Paddy Young beat Charlie Fusari. Six weeks ago Rocky Graziano and Tony Janiro battled to a draw before an $81,049 gate.

When the wrestlers move into the Garden—a couple of times a year and they want to make it six—they put all their stars into one big package.

Last night the customers got the works — from Antonio Rocca, the agile, barefooted Argentine, to Primo Carnera, the Italian hulk of a man who once held the world's heavyweight boxing championship.

Ladies, who comprise about half the audience, gnawed their nails and emitted horrified little squeals while the behemoths labored and belabored in the ring.

Favorite of the fair sex is Gene "Mr. America" Stanlee, a generously muscled Chicago citizen who has a mop of peroxide-blond hair.

Stanlee's semi-final opponent was Carnera, who won the heavyweight ring title from Jack Sharkey in June, 1933, and lost it a year later to Max Baer.

"I want to get back in fight ring," Carnera said last night after drawing with Mr. America, "but they say I'm too old." He's 44, weighs 260 and says, "I feel better than anytime in my life."

The main go sent Rocca, high-leaping, South American who is advertised as being unbeaten, against "Lord" Leslie Carlton, of England, who wrestles with an Oxford accent.

Lord Carlton makes his appearance with a cane and monocle plus a valet. Rocca subdued Carlton with a series of leaping kicks and a treacherous hold known to millions of television viewers as the "back breaker."

Sherbrooke Golfers Beat Lyndonville

Playing under ideal weather conditions a crew of golfers, representing Sherbrooke, eked out a 6½ to 5½ win over the Lyndonville Outing Club at Dufferin Heights Sunday afternoon.

This was the second time that the two teams had met and by virtue of yesterday's win Sherbrooke topped the home and home series, the first match was played at The first match was played at the Lyndonville clubhouse.

Several close matches were played yesterday. One foursome, Ron Leduc and Ray Douglas, of Lyndonville, and Paul Gauthier, of Montreal, and Gordon Harmer, of Sherbrooke, battled to a draw. Each team received 1½ points.
