KING DIES IN SLEEP

Death Came Early Today On Estate At Sandringham

London, Feb. 6.—(CP)—Tired and spent, the King died today after 15 years on the throne.

Princess Elizabeth, his 25-year-old daughter, automatically succeeded him — the first ruling Queen in more than half a century.

The King, the steady sort of Monarch Britons love — died in his sleep at Sandringham, the Royal estate in Norfolk where he was born 56 years ago. All over Britain, the people said: "He was a good man."

The King and Queen, with their two pretty daughters, Elizabeth and Margaret, had won the hearts of Britain by their steadfast refusal to seek safety abroad during the Second World War.

They travelled extensively and met citizens of the Commonwealth at first hand. In 1939, the King and Queen toured Canada and won the acclaim of people of Britain's oldest Dominion with their charm.

It was believed that a blood clot — coronary thrombosis — was the immediate cause of the King's death. Last September, a surgeon removed one of his lungs, and the King had looked ill for a long time. But even his immediate family did not know death was so near. Princess Elizabeth was in the first stages of a Commonwealth tour, but planned to fly home immediately from Kenya in East Africa.

News of the death was flashed immediately to Nyeri and Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh made preparations to fly home at once. They are expected in London at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow (11:30 a.m. EST).

The Princess burst into tears when she heard the news.

A London announcement said the Privy Council would meet this afternoon to proclaim Elizabeth officially Queen.

Following the Privy Council's formal action, the accession of the new Queen will be proclaimed by a Royal herald from the roof of St. James's Palace. Later the announcement will be made from public buildings throughout Britain, accompanied by ceremonial fanfare of trumpets.

The King's death, after his apparent recovery from a lung operation five months ago, stunned people the length and breadth of the country.

Conferences and meetings were dramatically interrupted, law courts and stock markets closed and doors were shuttered for the day at theatres and other places of entertainment.

Crowds gathered outside Buckingham Palace in London, gazing sombrely at the great stone building. The hush was broken by the sounds of women sobbing.

Flags of dozens of nations were hauled to half-mast over embassies and legations. And flags over the buildings of humble folk came down as well—for the King liked to be known as a "very ordinary person."

The announcement of the King's death came at 10:45 a.m. (5:45 a.m. EST). It was given out by the BBC, which went silent after that except for news bulletins.

Unwillingly, George VI became King by a whim of the fates—when Edward VIII (now the Duke of Windsor) abdicated rather than give up the love of the American, Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

He lived to see Britain lose much of her empire, and to see his countrymen in wartime valor and peacetime austerity.

Now Britain has her first Queen in 51 years. The last was Queen Victoria, who ruled from 1837 to 1901. And Britons believe firmly that the country waxes prosperous under a woman's reign.

The heir to the throne will be Charles, the three-year-old son of Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. He is destined someday to become Prince of Wales.

While there was no official announcement, well-informed specialists speculated that the King died of coronary thrombosis—a clot on the heart. This is often the cause when death occurs during sleep. Additionally, the King had a history of circulatory ailments—he was operated on in 1949 to relieve a circulatory disorder of the leg.

The King's voice sounded husky when he broadcast his annual Christmas message, and some specialists saw that as a possible indication that cancer, having been removed from his left lung, was still present in his right.

Elizabeth gave him a long, anxious look last Thursday when she left London by air on her trip to Africa, Ceylon, Australia and New Zealand—a trip from which she was not scheduled to return until July. Spectators at the airport felt it was almost as if Elizabeth had a premonition she might not see her father alive again.

Queen Elizabeth's first constitutional duty will be to hold an accession meeting of the Privy Council.

At this accession meeting, the new Sovereign will swear to fulfill her duties and be a good ruler. The oath will be administered by the Lord Chancellor, the highest law lord.

The Lords of the Privy Council swear to accept the new Monarch "as their lawful, rightful liege lord."

The council meeting also must agree on the wording of the proclamation announcing the accession of the new Queen. This is the proclamation that will be read from the roof of St. James's Palace.

The same proclamation will be read at three other places in London — at Charing Cross in the centre of the city; Temple Bar, which marks the boundary between the old city of London and Westminster, and on the steps of the Royal Exchange, in the heart of the old city.

The proclamation also will be read in each of the Dominions of the Commonwealth and in the capital cities of every colony in the Empire.

Prime Minister Churchill called an emergency meeting of the Cabinet to set in motion the machinery which will lead to Elizabeth's formal taking of the throne. One of her first duties will be to set a period of mourning for the court. When her grandfather, George V, died, court mourning was ordered for nine months.

George V's Queen, Mary, at 84 has outlived both her husband and her son.

It was at Sandringham that George V died, Jan. 21, 1936. Then Edward VIII was King for a few months. The dead King at that time was Duke of York. He became King Dec. 11, 1936, when Edward gave up the throne for the twice-divorced Mrs. Simpson.

When word of the death came from Sandringham, newspaper extras hit the streets within a few minutes. In downtown London women burst into tears as they saw the headlines.

While Elizabeth became Queen immediately on the death of her father, Britain actually is without a constitutional head until she returns home from Africa.

The ailing Monarch was scheduled to leave March 11 on a health cruise to South Africa. Counsellors of state, to have been appointed before his departure, would have taken all over Royal functions except the power to dissolve Parliament and to create Peers. Such counsellors are appointed whenever a ruler becomes incapacitated, as during the period after the King's lung operation last year.

King's Death Mourned

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was almost a whisper — "The King died this morning."

In the cities, the news was passed along quietly at bus stops, on street corners, on street cars, by early risers who had heard it on the radio.

In the country, the news spread by radio and by telephone.

It came when most of Canada slept.

At 5:52 A.M. EST it was too early, in the east, where most persons were turning over for another hour sleep in the pre-dawn darkness.

It was too late, in the west, where stragglers were making their lonely way home at the far end of the night. For it was only 2:52 A.M. in Vancouver.

Mostly, the tidings were relayed by word of mouth, to be received with hushed incredulity.

In the west and in some eastern cities there were bold headlines on extra editions of morning newspapers. Most morning papers in the east had "gone to bed."

Upon the all-night disc jockeys on local radio stations fell the task of reporting the momentous news.

They broke into programs with bulletins then switched from the customary swing to appropriate music.

The CBC banned broadcast of commercials for 24 hours. It announced that the King had died.

Princess Elizabeth, who, on the death of her father today, now becomes Queen Elizabeth II, is shown here with her husband the Duke of Edinburgh in a formal portrait taken on the eve of their departure for their now-interrupted visit to Africa, Australia and New Zealand.

Canadian Cabinet Meets

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—(CP)—This capital was deeply shocked today by the news of the sudden death of the King.

Immediate plans were made to call a meeting during the day of the Canadian cabinet.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, informed of the King's death by the members of his cabinet and members of his staff, informed went early to his office in the east block of the Parliament buildings.

Flags on the Parliament buildings and other government structures throughout the city, raised at dawn before word of the King's death seeped through the city, were lowered to half-staff.

Aides said the Prime Minister, as all Canadians, is deeply shocked by the passing of a Monarch who came to visit this country personally little more than a dozen years ago.

One of the first constitutional requirements upon the death of a monarch is that Chief Justice Thibault Rinfret, the administrator pending the assumption of the new Governor-General, must swear allegiance to the new Queen — Elizabeth II.

Then the whole of the federal cabinet must take its oath to the Queen.

Otherwise, official sources said,

Princess Returns By Air Tomorrow To Assume Throne

London, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Britain's new Queen Elizabeth will fly home tomorrow to take over the task of ruling Britain's far-flung Empire.

The slim 25-year-old Queen who succeeded to the throne on the death today of her father, King George VI, is expected to reach London at 4:30 p.m. (11:30 a.m. EST) tomorrow.

The new Monarch and her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, were at their hunting lodge in the hinterland of Africa's Kenya colony when the King's death was announced.

They must dash 100 miles by road through the brush to Nairobi, capital of Kenya, to board the plane which will take them back to England.

The flight from Nairobi to London is expected to take about 17 hours.

The realm will be without a constitutional head until Queen Elizabeth gets back to London.

Britain's accession council was summoned to meet at 5 p.m. today to proclaim Elizabeth formally Queen of Great Britain, Ireland and all the Dominions beyond the seas.

All members of Parliament will start swearing allegiance to the new sovereign some time tonight.

A newspaper, the East African Standard, gave the first news to the staff at the Royal lodge in Nyeri, Kenya, where Elizabeth was resting on her Commonwealth tour.

Not until a direct radio-telephone call had been made to Buckingham Palace and the tragic news confirmed from there, was the Princess told of the King's death and that she is reigning Queen.

The young Queen's first official act is expected to be to order a period of court mourning for her father.

She must also decide the funeral arrangements for the King. If precedent is followed, the King's body likely will be taken first to the little private chapel on the Sandringham estate.

It would then be brought to London where it would lie in state until taken to nearby Windsor for burial.

The fact that Britain is without a constitutional head until the Queen returns home is unique in recent British history.

The ailing Monarch was scheduled to leave on a health cruise to South Africa March 11. Counsellors of state, which were to be appointed before his departure, would have taken over virtually all Royal functions.

Such counsellors are appointed whenever a King becomes incapacitated from carrying out his duties, as during the period following King George's lung operation last year, or when the Monarch is out of the country.

The announcement of the new Queen's accession to the throne will be proclaimed in an ancient ceremony at St. James' Palace, after drafting of the official proclamation announcing the death of the King and the accession of the new ruler.

Queen Elizabeth's first constitutional duty will be to hold an accession meeting of the Privy Council, an ancient body which advises the King. It is composed largely of nobles and leading political figures.

At this meeting, the new sovereign will swear to fulfill her duties and be a good ruler. The oath will be administered by the Lord Chancellor, Britain's highest law lord.

Under the 1702 settlement act, the accession council must have affirmative answers to two questions before Elizabeth can be proclaimed Queen.

1. Is she a descendant of the electress of Hanover, reigning head of the British dynasty of the day?

2. Is she a Protestant?

The new line of succession to the throne is:

1. The new Queen's three year-old son, Prince Charles.

2. Prince Charles' little sister, one-year-old Princess Anne.

3. Princess Margaret, 21, sister of the new Queen.

4. The Duke of Gloucester, 52, youngest living brother of the late King.

5. Prince William, 10, elder son of the Duke of Gloucester.

6. Prince Richard, 7, younger son of Duke of Gloucester.

7. Prince Edward, 16-year-old Duke of Kent, who succeeded to the title when his father—the late King's youngest brother—was killed in an air crash in 1942.

8. Prince Michael, 9, Duke of Kent's brother.

9. Princess Alexandra, 15, Duke of Kent's sister.

10. The Princess Royal, 54-year-old Princess Mary, sister of the late King.

11. The Earl of Harewood, 28-year-old elder son of the Princess Royal.

12. Viscount Lascelles, one-year-old son of the Earl of Harewood.

Elizabeth becomes Britain's first ruling Queen since Queen Victoria died in 1901 and fifth in English history since Mary in 1553.

Elizabeth II comes to the throne every inch a Queen. From childhood she has been brought up according to the strict tenets of British Royalty.

Ever since her father came to the throne it was evident that one day she would be Queen. She has been drilled and schooled for the task.

Britain, for some deep psychological reason, has reached its peaks of greatness under women monarchs. The first Elizabeth's reign produced Shakespeare, Sir Francis Drake, great poets, statesmen and soldiers. Under Victoria the most powerful Empire in world history grew up.

Britain, watching Elizabeth assume more and more responsibilities during her father's illnesses, has no doubt she has inherited his great sense of duty.

Elizabeth is acutely conscious of her Royal heritage, even to the extent of a touch of imperiousness in her character.

Since her children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, were born, however, she has shown more and more how human she is behind the facade of Royalty.

Only her official duties have prevented her from spending more time with them.

Elizabeth was 10 when she was told that her uncle, King Edward VIII had abdicated and that her parents had become King and Queen.

The Princess did not go to school, for many of the things a Queen must know are no part of a school curriculum. Instead, she and her sister Margaret were taught by Miss Marion Crawford, a Scotswoman whom they nicknamed affectionately "Crawfie."

Under Miss Crawford the Princess learned French, German and Spanish and received special tuition in constitutional history. Some lessons were taken standing, because later on Elizabeth would have to stand for long periods at public functions.

Elizabeth's independent attitude, strong will and regal outlook, were noted early in life. Her grandmother Queen Mary once took her on a shopping expedition. Her small 11-year-old companion became impatient and began to tug the skirts of her grandmother.

"Hurry please, do hurry," said a small voice. "What is your hurry, Elizabeth?" Queen Mary asked. "Well," returned the little it would be technically illegal for the cabinet to act.

This procedure presumably will be followed in each of the country's 10 provinces.

It was not known immediately what alteration the King's death might require in the plans for the opening of the 1952 session of Parliament Thursday, Feb. 28.

It is planned to have Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey sworn in as Governor-General the morning of Feb. 28 to succeed Viscount Alexander, who leaves Canada shortly to become Britain's defence minister. The present arrangement then is for Mr. Massey, Canada's first native-born representative of the monarch, to open Parliament that afternoon.

Whether there will be any alteration in that schedule presumably will be decided shortly.

Viscount Alexander, who has had an Earldom conferred upon him by the late King for his six years of service here as Governor-General, received word of the death at Rideau Hall early this morning.

Word of the King's death circulated quickly through the city as sombre-faced civil servants began moving to their offices. Many of them, in the higher ranks of the government service, will take new oaths of allegiance.

This capital has fond memories of the noble King and the gracious Queen who came to Ottawa in 1939 during their state visit to Canada. The King was the first reigning Monarch to visit this country.

While here, the King gave Royal assent to bills passed by

I.O.D.E. Regent

Voices Sorrow

The great sorrow of the entire Order at the death of His Majesty King George V was voiced today by Mrs. A. A. Munster, Regent of the Sherbrooke Municipal Chapter, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

"The entire Order feels great sorrow over the loss of the King and all members extend deepest sympathy to Her Majesty the Queen, to Princess Elizabeth and to other members of the Royal family," Mrs. Munster said.

The Municipal Regent, at the same time, on behalf of her fellow members of the I.O.D.E. voiced allegiance to the Princess who will be proclaimed Queen Elizabeth II at a Privy Council meeting today.

Parliament, then in session. It was a glittering state visit and this capital neither before nor since has been its equal.

Then, only four months ago, the Queen—as Princess Elizabeth—followed in her Royal parents' footsteps as she and the Duke of Edinburgh undertook a month-long tour of Canada, with a side trip to Washington.

Princess Elizabeth spent three days in Ottawa and then was able to report, to a state dinner, that her father was "progressing well and gaining strength daily" from the lung operation which had so weakened him.

All formal state and diplomatic social functions were immediately cancelled. By custom, this capital will go into a period of mourning.

The curtailment of social activities will run through the social strata of the capital.

Mr. St. Laurent called the cabinet into session for noon.

The government now must issue a proclamation naming Elizabeth as the Queen of Canada.

The cabinet also must name representatives—presumably a cabinet delegation—to represent this country at the funeral of the King

Death Came

Much of the responsibility for the state funeral of King George and the ceremonies surrounding the accession of Queen Elizabeth will rest on the shoulders of the 43-year-old Duke of Norfolk, hereditary marshal of England.

The new heir apparent to the throne, Prince Charles, was at Sandringham when the King died. There also was his little sister, Princess Ann, new second in the line of succession.

The King showed no hint of approaching death when he bade goodnight last night at Sandringham to the Queen and Princess Margaret.

The new Queen's husband, the handsome, 30-year-old Duke of Edinburgh, may receive a new title in due course. There is a precedent—Queen Victoria's husband, Prince Albert, had the title of Prince Consort.

The Palace statement said the King retired last night in apparently good health after a country outing.

The King's lung resection last September was his fifth operation since 1914, when his appendix was removed.

His first operation as King, in March, 1949, was a lumbar sympathectomy with a view to improving the blood supply of his right foot and to safeguard this for the future. A few months before this an official announcement

Princess, "there are a lot of people waiting outside there to cheer me."

A lover of outdoor sports, Princess Elizabeth has become a familiar figure in the Royal box at race-track events in recent years. She has entered several horses herself and has always taken a keen interest in her father's horses.

She first entered public life when she was 12. Then she became president of a children's league in London's East End.

Elizabeth was 18 when she performed her first independent public duty—a full inspection of the famous Grenadier Guards Regiment of which she was colonel-in-chief.

In 1944 she sat between the late Field Marshal Smuts and William Mackenzie King, then Prime Minister of Canada, at a dinner party at Buckingham Palace attended by Dominion Premiers. This was her first official debut at a state banquet.

When she was 18 Elizabeth acted on the Council of State during the King's absence with the forces in North Africa.

Like many other young women of her age Elizabeth joined the Women's Auxiliary Territorial Service during the war. She became an efficient driver and mechanic. She made history, too, on the King's birthday in June, 1947, deputizing for the King, who was ill. She was said to be the first woman heir to the throne to ride horseback at the annual trooping of the color parade.

announced that his Trans-Canada and Dominion networks will be linked throughout the day to carry music, news bulletins and overseas broadcasts from the BBC. Tonight's regular programs have been cancelled.

Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—British officials in the United States awoke with a shock today to the news that their King was dead.

The death of King George VI was announced early today in London.

The word had not yet reached Washington when British officials were called immediately after the announcement.

Charles Campbell, press officer at the British embassy, was stunned. He said he was notifying British ambassador Sir Oliver Franks immediately.

At the White House, a spokesman said President Truman would have a statement later.

Halifax, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Twenty United States naval vessels sailed into this mourning old seaport today on a courtesy visit, their flags at half-mast because of the King's death.

No salutes were fired. The visitors lay outside the harbor for a time, after word of the monarch's passing was flashed to ships at sea, before getting orders from Washington to proceed with plans. Many of the gala arrangements for entertainment of the guests were cancelled. Three submarines were the first to arrive of the fleet, led by the heavy cruiser Albany.

The ships—commanded by Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, Jr.—had been scheduled to enter the harbor early today but remained outside when the news of the King's death was flashed to them.

The Americans offered to cancel the visit in deference to the mourning period that will prevail for the next few days. The Canadian navy, however, renewed its invitation for the visit.

In the United Kingdom. A state memorial service presumably will take place in this capital and probably will be duplicated in essence in churches throughout the country.

Once the coronation date is set for the crowning of the new Queen, the government will appoint representatives, again a cabinet delegation, to take Canada's place at the ceremony.

Massey Delays

Return To Canada

London, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Vincent Massey, Governor-General-designate of Canada, today postponed his departure for Canada on learning of the King's death.

Massey, a personal friend of the Royal family, was to have left for Canada by sea this Friday. No new date has been set.

It is expected the Governor-General-designate will attend the King's funeral.

Massey has been acquainted with members of the Royal family for nearly two decades. He had an audience with the King a week ago Friday, shortly after it was announced he was to succeed Field Marshal Viscount Alexander as Governor-General of Canada.

During his stay in London, Massey also saw the Queen and twice called on Queen Mary, once formally and once privately.

Friends said Massey was shocked and saddened when he learned, early this afternoon, that the King had died.

that the King was suffering from obstruction to the circulation in the right leg was the first indication to the public of his ill health.

The King's last public appearance was at the airport last week to bid farewell to Elizabeth and Philip.

The King recently felt sufficiently recovered to take up some of the threads of his old social life. He paid his first visit to the theatre last Wednesday since his operation. With the Queen, Princess Elizabeth, the Duke of Edinburgh and Princess Margaret he saw the American musical "South Pacific."

If precedent is followed the King's body may be taken first to the little private chapel in the grounds of Sandringham. After that it will probably be brought to London and then taken in state to Windsor the Royal castle state to Windsor, the Royal castle funeral.

But all arrangements must wait on the decision of the new Queen.

Normally the coronation of a new Sovereign follows a year or 18 months after the accession. The King was crowned in Westminster Abbey on May 12, 1937, six months after his accession.

By the middle of November it appeared the King had made an excellent recovery. There had been no suggestion of a relapse from his operation.

Doctors hailed the bulletin of Nov. 15 as "very reassuring," and on that day British newspapers featured photographs showing the King looking fit and well, sitting by the side of Prince Charles.

From then on the King began to make an increasing, though gradual, return to his normal life and routine. His duties of state at this time included several Privy Councils.

He left by car from London for the Royal lodge, Windsor, Nov. 30—the first time he had left the Palace since the operation. He was hatless and smiled to the crowd.

The following day he walked in the grounds at Windsor, Princess Marie Louise, a cousin of the King's father, said: "His Majesty has made a wonderful recovery—in fact his doctors say it was a miracle."

The King returned to London Dec. 3. He was due to command a number of Knights of the Bath at Buckingham Palace Feb. 27.

Fifty or 60 people, awarded the title in the New Year's honors list this year, were due to attend the short ceremony to receive the King's traditional accolade granting them the office.

The investiture was expected to be his last engagement before he began a health cruise to South Africa on the battleship Vanguard, starting from Portsmouth March 11.

All court functions today were immediately cancelled. Theatres and movies throughout the country closed.

News of the King's death was immediately telephoned from Sandringham to Buckingham Palace, where officials informed Churchill.

Queen Mary was told at her London home, Marlborough House. She did not plan to travel to Sandringham.

Dr. James Ansell, surgeon-apothecary to the King, was called to Sandringham early this morning. The exact time of the death was not announced.

The King's last public appearance was last week when he said goodbye at London Airport to Princess Elizabeth and the Duke when they left on their tour of Commonwealth countries in Africa, Asia and Australia.

News of the death was immediately flashed to the new Queen at the shooting lodge at Nyeri, Kenya.

She will return to Britain immediately. Parliament was likely to be adjourned in the middle of an important foreign affairs debate.

Born Dec. 14, 1895, the second son of King George V and Queen Mary, who survives him at the age of 84, the late King succeeded to the throne Dec. 11, 1936, after the abdication of his eldest brother, King Edward VIII.

The quiet family man who put Royal duty above personal pleasure quickly endeared himself to his millions of subjects around the world.

The Monarch led Britain through her worst ordeal when the island kingdom faced the victory-flushed German armies alone. His words of comfort, his prayers, his encouragement, helped Britons meet and turn back the foe's blitzkrieg.

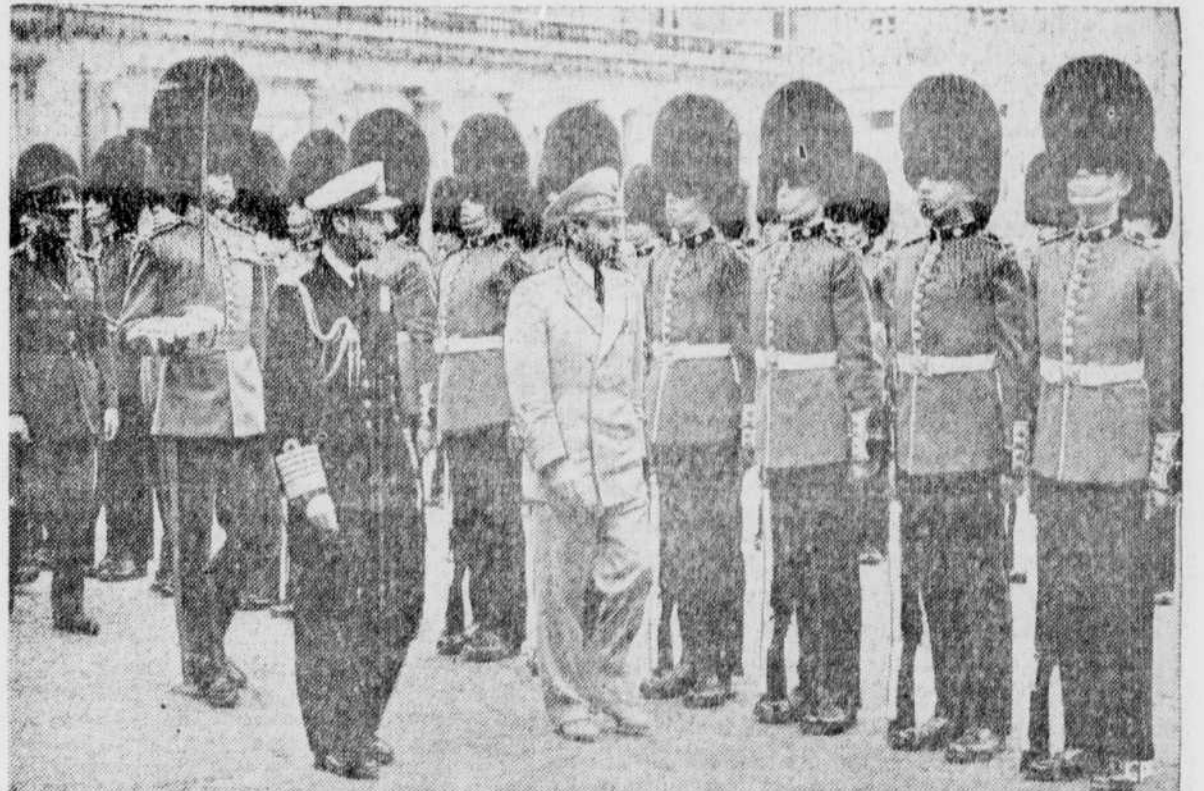

With his Prime Minister Winston Churchill, the King will be long remembered for his part in "Britain's finest hour."

THE KING IS DEAD

The sudden death of King George VI has staggered the people of his Dominions throughout the world as nothing else could have done. The shock is made more acute due to the fact that the vast majority of his subjects believed that he was well on the road to recovery from his serious illness of the past year. They appreciated from his photos that he was a sick man but his visit to a London airport last week to bid farewell to his daughter, Princess Elizabeth, on her departure for the Antipodes seemed to confirm reports that he had made substantial gains during the past few weeks. Thus the grief over his death is accentuated.

King George VI could well be classed as another casualty to the service of his country. In the critical years of the Second Great War and the grim period of the uneasy peace which followed, he carried on the onerous duties as head of a major state, a task heavy enough in itself to break the health of an ordinary man. But in addition he did not forget those other ideas of the British Monarchy which demand that the King be a servant as well as the ruler of his people.

Many stories are told, especially during the days of the blitz campaign against Britain, of the manner in which he mixed with the stricken population and by his personal example did much to strengthen their spirit and rally their resistance. Despite the bombing of Buckingham Palace itself, he refused to evacuate the Royal Residence or move himself or the members of the family from the beleaguered island.

These experiences must have had an adverse effect upon his health, but despite the undermining of his constitution, he continued to carry out his Royal duties until the final days.

His whole life characterized the best principles of British Royalty, both in its public and private features, and served to link him closer to his people than could be accomplished by a perhaps more spectacular man.

LONG LIVE THE QUEEN

While bowing their heads in sorrow at the death of King George VI, British people everywhere must for a brief period pause in their mourning to welcome the accession of their new monarch, Queen Elizabeth, whose official proclamation is scheduled to take place in London sometime tomorrow.

Despite her comparatively few years, Queen Elizabeth has already won a warm place for herself in the hearts of the British people. Those who met her on the Canadian tour last fall could not help but be impressed by her charm and graciousness. Her readiness to depart from the prepared and formal schedule to meet as many of her audience as possible, especially children, war veterans and war widows was in keeping with the example offered over the years by her revered father and grandfather.

Her obvious love of her family and of family life has not prevented her from separating herself from those things she held most dear in order to carry out extended trips to the farther parts of the Commonwealth in the line of official duty and she was one of those visits at the time the death of her father was announced.

Queen Elizabeth ascends the throne at one of the most critical periods in the history of Great Britain and the Commonwealth. At home, the economic condition is grave to say the least and the people have just been subjected to another measure of belt-tightening and austerity which has further cut down their already restricted standard of living. Overseas the British possessions are being subjected to an internal and external pressure that will require the greatest efforts of statesmanship to overcome. The Commonwealth is engaged in a war and defence effort that calls for sacrifices almost as great as those experienced in the days of the Second World War.

But, notwithstanding these dark shadows, the people will express the hope that under new leadership, the difficulties may be faced and overcome as they have been in the past and that the reign of the new queen may be a long, prosperous and happy one.

MAIL DELIVERY IN TOWNS

St. Mary's Journal-Argus

Residents of St. Mary's and other towns under a certain population and those living in villages are being penalized by the Dominion Post Office Department in a most unfair way, it would seem. Persons resident in cities and larger towns, and a majority of those living on farms throughout the land have the great advantage of door-to-door or farm-to-farm mail delivery, and it does not cost them a cent extra.

On the other hand, residents of the smaller towns and villages, old and young alike, are forced to go daily to the Post Office for their mail, and if they want a box in that Post Office they have to pay extra for that privilege.

With the higher postal rates now in effect, it would seem that the Postal Department could well consider evening up the service to all of its patrons. As it is now, the folks in small towns and villages are paying for part of a service which they are denied. If, of course, if these underprivileged Post Office patrons expect to get their dues they will undoubtedly have to get on their horses and demand equal service, otherwise nothing will be done.

This business of door-to-door postal service in towns and villages looks like something the Town and Village Councils should take hold of and they should have the backing of the Chambers of Commerce and other such bodies.

NEW USE FOR TELEPHONE

Port William Times-Journal

On a party telephone out of North Bay, a subscriber formed the habit of taking down the receiver for hours at a time without doing any talking, thereby weakening the line and giving other subscribers the idea that somebody was continuously listening in.

All the complainants told about hearing a clock ticking near the "open phone." With this as a clue the manager of the telephone company made an investigation and found that an elderly lady had found the telephone receiver made a good "darning ball" while repairing the family's winter stockings.

NO STRIKE

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

Public opinion will never condone a teachers' strike. Nor will it ever condone the violation of a teacher's contract. But the matter cannot be allowed to rest there. While the teachers have their own responsibilities, their employers (the municipalities) have theirs. These responsibilities are too plain to be misunderstood by any reasonable person. And a multiplicity of teachers' salary scales in this province reflects no credit upon those municipalities where the pay of teachers falls below the subsistence level.

IT'S HARD TO BUILD A PLATFORM "TAILORED" TO ANY CANDIDATE

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington — (NEA) — Efforts to smoke out where Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower stands on every political issue overlook one important factor.

This is that if General Eisenhower should get the Republican National Convention's nomination for the presidency, he will have to take whatever platform the party adopts at Chicago.

He will have to run on it, and he will have to like it, whether he agrees with every plank or not. This makes the fight over drafting that platform a hot political gladiator's battle. There will be all kinds of sparring for positions on the Resolutions committee.

Taft, Warren, Stassen and Eisenhower factions will be anxious to get control of the chairmanship, the full committee and the subcommittees assigned to work out various sections.

In the past, every state has had one delegate on the Resolutions committee. The committee elects its own chairman.

The committee works long hours and late at night.

Knocking Splinters Out Of The Planks

Often it assembles a week before the convention proper, to get a head start by hearing from all the special pleaders for Israel, Ireland, the gold standard, a tax on bachelors, prohibition, the 13-month calendar, anti-viscivision, a high tariff on imported jelly beans and other assorted causes.

The Hon. Robert A. Taft was chairman of the GOP Resolutions Committee in 1944. He eliminated himself from the 1948 committee chairmanship because he was a more active candidate for the presidency.

Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge was chairman in 1948. But Senator Lodge is chairman of the national Eisenhower for President campaign.

Taft, Warren and Stassen supporters may therefore be expected to oppose Lodge this year.

So the hunt is already on for a Resolutions committee chairman who will be satisfactory to all factions.

His thankless job will be to supervise the writing of a platform that will make none of the candidates angry, that all will endorse and that will be so much better than the Democratic platform that the Grand Old Party will be swept into office overwhelmingly.

Senator Taft has already said publicly that his views can be reconciled with those of General Eisenhower. Further, Senator Taft has said that if Eisenhower is nominated, he — Taft — will support the general.

So far, neither General Eisenhower nor his backers have made similar commitments for Taft.

Putting It The Polite Way

In spite of Senator Taft's assurance, there is supposed to be a wide difference between his foreign policy views and those of General Eisenhower.

The general is supposed to be much more of an internationalist than the senator.

This is merely a nicer way of saying that the senator is more of an isolationist than the general.

On domestic policies, Senator Taft has committed himself on nearly every issue. General Eisenhower's views on local issues are unknown.

So if Taft forces control the Resolutions committee and write a platform which fully meets his views, then General Eisenhower, if he should ultimately be the candidate, will have no other choice than to run for the presidency on the Taft platform.

Whatever views the general may have on such things as social security, labor legislation, aid to education, farm policy or socialized medicine will make no difference.

General Eisenhower's statement in Paris, after his name was put in the New Hampshire primary as a Republican, intimated that he would take no part in the campaign until and unless he received the party's nomination.

That means he can take no part in the writing of the Republican platform, except through his spokesmen, such as Senator Lodge.

They may try to see that this document is written to conform with what they think are his views.

Death Of His Majesty Leaves Britain Stunned And Sorrowing

By ALAN HARVEY

Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, Feb. 6.—The King's death today left Britain stunned and sorrowing.

Many couldn't believe it at first. "Our King?" said a British housemaid who works for a Canadian family. "Why, that's impossible."

Then the first reaction, of startled incredulity, gave way to a sense of shock and genuine sorrow.

The throne holds a place in the hearts of Britons that perhaps even some Canadians, sympathetic and loyal as they are, do not fully appreciate.

The news was stunning because it was unexpected. The King's gradual recovery from his operation had led most people to believe that there was no immediate cause for concern.

One newspaper said two or three days ago that the King himself was convinced there was nothing to worry about.

The paper said the King had a philosophy that once a physical ailment was traced to its source and destroyed, the rest would be easy. This attitude of mind was said to have been especially pleasing to his physicians.

The King had seemed in good health and good spirits. The last time the people saw him in public was at London Airport last Thursday, when he arrived with the Queen and Princess Margaret to bid farewell to Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh on their Commonwealth tour.

Ironically, the plane bearing the Princess and her husband bore the radio code name "How King."

At that time the King looked well and cheerful. He wore no scarf and appeared not to notice the sharp wind and scattered snowflakes as he stood bareheaded to watch the take-off.

The announcement of the King's death came after 10 a.m. (5 a.m. EST). An hour later the BBC announced the news, departing from its usual detached style of news presentation to offer "profound sympathy" to the Queen and the Royal family.

The BBC then closed for the day, except for news bulletins, shipping forecasts and gale warnings.

The Sandringham bulletin was too late for the first edition of London evening newspapers, but appeared in the "stop press" section of the second editions. In one paper the words "The King dead" were in inch-high capitals.

Newspaper offices were flooded with telephone calls. Crowds gathered outside Buckingham Palace before noon, although officially neither the police nor the guards on duty had been informed of the King's death.

At Canada House, Canadian diplomatic centre in Trafalgar Square, it was stated that the news had been communicated to L. Dana Wilgress, Canadian High Commissioner who now is in Paris.

Vincent Massey, newly-appointed Canadian Governor-General, could not be reached at the London home where he is staying with his son, Hart. It was not known immediately whether Massey, a personal friend of the Royal family, would cancel his arrangements for sailing to Canada, he is scheduled to leave by sea Friday prior to taking up his new appointment.

Soccer matches, one an important cup final, are expected to be called off.

Theatres throughout the country closed.

Law courts also closed.

Q—Can a bill passed by Congress become a law without the President's signature?

A—The bill automatically becomes law if the President holds it for 10 days (excluding Sundays) without signing or vetoing it. Failure to sign shows that the President disapproves part of the bill, but will not prevent its passage.

The Record Short Story

WORLD PREMIERE

By SANFORD JARRELL

Everything Hank Vetter did was prodigious, including his yawns as he and his pretty niece, Polly, sat in luxurious chairs in the Fairfax projection room to watch the studio's first Western. Polly, however, was delighted. Of course, this was natural, as she was a horse opera fan from way back and her uncle, the huge publicity chief of the company decidedly was not.

In experimenting with a Western, Fairfax didn't go all out. Production costs were very slow. The studio borrowed a few films cowboys and gals from another outfit, picked up its extras by the dozen along Gower Gulch, and hired a producer, director and technical staff largely from among people who were "at liberty." It was strictly a B picture, with the usual amount of hard riding punchers, posers chasing rustlers and the hero rescuing the sheriff's daughter from the villain of the piece just in the nick of time. It was clean and wholesome, of course, and probably would pay expenses or even show a little profit.

There was no ballyhoo about the matter, although all the trade journals made reference to the fact that Fairfax might invade the Western field, which for years has kept some other studios out of the red. There were no hints that tempting offers might be dangled before any of the outstanding stars of the saddle and open spaces. Someone had sold the Chief on it and a couple of free lance writers had knocked out an acceptable script, probably over a week-end, although they didn't turn in their finished product for a month.

In the projection room an idea began to dawn in Polly Vetter's active mind and when Polly had an idea she generally developed it. Not on impulse, but with careful and calculated planning, with her fond uncle as the victim of the plot most of the time. This advance strategy took about three or four weeks and then one afternoon she dropped in on Hank unannounced.

"Darling," she began, after kissing her uncle's bald noggin as he sat behind his vast desk in a room he likened to a mausoleum, a mausoleum with a carpet thick as the porthouse steaks they serve in exclusive clubs in the stockyards.

"Darling, I think I'll take a vacation."

"Your whole life, twenty-four hours a day and 365 days a year—or is it 366 this year?—is just one vacation," Hank grumbled.

"I have a yen," said Polly, "to spend a few weeks in the mountains."

"That's fine," said Hank. "Put a couple of gallons of gas in your jalopy and you can be in the mountains before dinner tonight."

"Not these hills," said Polly. "And not the Sierras, either. I mean the Rockies."

"The Rockies?"

"Yes, darling. I haven't been in the Rockies in ages. I yearn for them. I am nostalgic. I remember my Summers as a kid in the high country."

Then she explained that she planned to spend a few weeks visiting with a friend in a resort town, a girl she'd known all her life.

Next day Polly boarded an east-bound plane at Los Angeles International Airport.

Ten days later the Chief summoned Hank to his office, which was three times bigger than Hank's and twice as elaborate, replete with hidden bar, bathroom, a small dining room with teakwood furniture, and a private bath. All it lacked was a pool and a badminton court. The president of Fairfax Studio came to the point at once. He waved a letter at Hank.

"It was written in a fine, feminine hand which the publicity director recognized at once."

"Your niece," said the great man, "has a splendid idea."

Hank smothered a groan, as the Chief continued, "Yes, a splendid idea," and he told what it was. Polly had outlined a plan to premiere "Bandits of Tall Pine Arroyo" in the mountain community where she was vacationing. It wouldn't cost much, just the expense of sending three or four of the players there, and it should have some publicity value.

"Polly says she thinks she can get some good publicity," went on the Chief, who was very fond of Hank's niece. "She's volunteered to handle that end. What do you think of it?"

Hank Vetter knew the Chief very well indeed, and while he was not altogether a yes man, he

FANCY PLAYING WON THIS BRIDGE MATCH

As most bridge players know, the American team defeated the Italians for the world championship in a match held in Naples last November. The Italian team had previously won a European round-robin contest.

It was the general opinion that our team owed its victory mostly to better bidding methods. Just the same, they had to play their cards with great precision to bring home the Bermuda Bowl for the second year in succession.

In the hand shown today, Howard Schenken of New York held the West cards, and John R. Crawford of Philadelphia held the East cards. Their successful defense against four hearts was a combination of cold skill and "warm imagination."

Schenken opened the three of hearts, reasoning that dummy's bidding showed ruffing power. The Italian declarer won in his own hand and went after the spades in order to provide a discard for one of his own clubs.

Schenken took the queen of spades with his ace and led a second trump. Declarer won in his own hand and Crawford discarded the deuce of diamonds even though he held such great strength in the suit. He had already foreseen the course of the play.

Declarer got to dummy with the ace of clubs and discarded his remaining club on a high spade. Then he led a diamond from dummy to prepare for diamond ruffs.

Without a second's hesitation, Crawford played the seven of diamonds instead of putting up his ace or king.

Declarer didn't realize he could win the trick by playing his queen. Instead he finessed the eight of diamonds, hoping that the top diamonds would drop early enough to establish his queen later on.

This allowed Schenken to win with the nine of diamonds—something to his surprise. It also allowed Schenken to lead a third trump, which, of course, was exactly why Crawford had made his remarkable play.

Now declarer could ruff only one diamond in dummy and he therefore wound up losing three diamonds and a spade.

Last night a monarch, dearly loved by all his subjects, passed away. Our ruler for many years, King George VI, entered into rest peacefully in his sleep. This news shocked the nation today as a bulletin from the Palace gave out the sad announcement. Our deepest and most heartfelt sympathies are with Queen Elizabeth, the late King's wife; Queen Mary, his mother; our new Queen, Elizabeth, his daughter, the Duke of Edinburgh, Princess Margaret Rose and to all the members of the Royal Family. A great man has been taken away from us . . . the King is dead . . . long live the Queen.

Work on the Parish Church of St. Francis Xavier, has been suspended for several weeks, during the excessively cold weather. This $90,000 job will, when completed, see the church and Presbytery restored to first class condition. Ninety-four years ago, in June, 1858, the Roman Communion began functioning here and has throughout the years, had pastors, who faithfully ministered to those committed to their charge. Each pastor has left an indelible imprint. To single any one out, would not be wise, yet there stands "like a tall chief," the name of Father Pelletier, latter, Right Rev. Mons. Pelletier, of the Parish of Notre Dame de Granby, who will long be remembered as a born organizer, a skilled musician, an energetic leader of men, a master builder and a faithful parish priest. Nor do we forget the kindly Father Pihlhus, who has left his imprint for good. So has Father Alcide Roy. To this succession came, a short time ago, Father Paul St. Pierre, after serving St. Edward's Church, in Knowlton, for ten years. Now he has 1,500 members on the Shefford Church Roll distributed in 280 families, of which, 40, are of Irish extraction. True to the ancient tradition of their forebears. They accept that devotion exemplified by St. Patrick and with their French compatriots, work together successfully in the work of their church. Nor are we unmindful of that marked feature of West Shefford village life, the brotherliness existing between the Roman and Anglican communities here. They exhibit a spirit of friendship that is outstanding with, naturally, strong differences of religious opinions yet in a social, commercial and all other activities, they live as one big West Shefford family.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Snodgrass entertained the Women's Club at their home, "Birdhaven," on the evening of January 29. The Doctor Says:

THANKS TO SULFA AND PENICILLIN, TRACHOMA IS BEING CONQUERED

By Edwin P. Jordan, M.D.

One of the tragic causes of blindness has been almost conquered. This is an eye disease known as trachoma.

Trachoma was formerly responsible for a great deal of blindness among American Indians and was all too common among the residents of the mountains of Tennessee and Kentucky and the farmers of Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota.

It is still the chief cause of blindness in some parts of Egypt and Palestine, until recently, 90 per cent of the people in certain of these regions were victims of this disease.

At first trachoma looks like any other acute inflammation of the outer part of the eye. The eye appears inflamed and thickened. Little blister-like bodies appear around the edges within a few days.

In three or four weeks the thickening and other signs become typical of trachoma and are easy to distinguish from other inflammations of the eye.

The cause of this condition is a virus which unlike ordinary germs is too small to see under the microscope. Among the other symptoms, pain and sensitivity to light may be severe.

In the late stages of this dangerous disease, the eyelids tend to drop down and the lids may become deformed.

The disease produces scarring of some of the tender tissues of the eye and this is what causes the inability to see.

Early Diagnosis Needed

A correct and early diagnosis is the most important problem in the treatment of trachoma. Many treatments which are useful in other eye diseases, however, are not satisfactory for trachoma.

Some years ago the treatment consisted in painful and lengthy scraping off of the diseased tissues.

Even today, however, if the condition has lasted for a long time operations may be necessary.

The improved outlook for the sufferer from trachoma comes from the use of the sulfa drugs or penicillin. This is one of the few virus diseases which respond to these preparations.

Either of them, whether used locally, by injection, or by mouth, are highly effective in the early stages of the disease.

It is for these reasons that early diagnosis and prompt treatment are necessary so that blindness can be avoided and painful and difficult operations on the eye made unnecessary.

By the use of these preparations, and by recognizing trachoma as an infectious disease spread from person to person, it is becoming a constantly less dangerous cause of blindness.

This splendid home mixture has a three-fold action. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. This explains why it gives such quick relief.

Knowlton WCTU Prize List Results For School, County

Knowlton, Feb. 6.—The regular meeting of the Knowlton Women's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. Hastings.

During the business period, the president gave a report on the result of the National Temperance Course taken by the pupils of Knowlton High School.

Two hundred papers were given to the different grades, 69 completed answer-papers were returned. Eight answer-papers were received from East Farnham making a total of 77 papers to be corrected by the Knowlton Union.

Mrs. Gray, County Superintendent of the course, reported the prizes won by the County Contestants.

The study part of the program was entitled "Industry and Alcohol." The following startling facts were brought out: For the year ending March 31, 1949 Canadians spent approximately $22 per capita for milk and $47 per capita for alcohol. In the year 1949 the sum of two hundred and forty million dollars was spent for education but six hundred and thirty million dollars on alcoholic beverages more than two and a half times as much as on education.

A Canadian industrialist estimates the cost of alcoholism to Canadian industry through loss of time in efficiently and production slow downs at 80 million dollars or more, annually.

Seeks Friendship

Reader Complains Men Want More Than Companionship

DEAR MISS DIX: Is friendship or companionship between a man and woman a thing of the past? I am a single woman in my middle thirties and find it practically impossible to have male friends, unless I lower my standards or sacrifice my high ideals and self-respect. Unmarried men in my age bracket are indeed scarce and when the few I do meet are attracted to me it seems that sooner or later they expect liberties and privileges that I will not allow. Then and there the friendship ends, as they are no longer interested. I am considered intelligent and though not a ravishing beauty am attractive and make a good appearance. I neither smoke nor drink and my behavior has always been that of a lady. Men enjoy my company and like to be with me, yet it is obvious they consider a date a waste of time and money unless there is something more in it than good, clean fun. Perhaps I'm too old-fashioned.

PUZZLED R.
ANSWER: Difficult as it is to believe, your unfortunate experience with men does not mean that they are all the same. You must realize one thing, however: the fact that a man has remained single into his thirties indicates an unwillingness to accept the responsibilities of marriage—and a determination to continue ignoring them. They are not apt to be good matrimonially.

THEY FEEL SUPERIOR

The fact that this group is so small numerically makes its members feel very superior; they expect every woman they meet to fall at their feet and be ready to give in to every whim. Of course, this feeling is furthered by the fact that so many women do exactly what is expected of them. They practically make idols of these bachelors and the eligible male comes to think himself very important indeed.

In seeking, among men, for the sort of companionship you wish, and are capable of giving, you have a task compared to which Diogenes' search was a childish game of hide-and-seek. Lowering your standards certainly is no solution. You can only continue to hope someday to find someone who also has high ideals and is content to be a good friend and pleasant companion. Men who appreciate these things do exist, and one of these fine days you will cross.

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm in love with a boy in the Navy who doesn't seem to show much affection for me. I've known him four months and during that time have been the only girl he's taken out. I write to many boys in service, but know that Johnny is the one I love.

M. B.
ANSWER: Please give the boy a chance! It's quite possible that Johnny cares for you, but four months is rather short acquaintance to expect a declaration of undying love from him. Besides, he has many other things to think of; the Navy keeps its boys busy. Keep on writing to the other boys at least until Johnny declares himself.

DEAR MISS DIX: When a young couple is entertaining another young couple for dinner, should the woman guest offer to help the hostess with dishes? These two couples haven't known each other very long. I feel that company should go into the living room after dinner.

WILL MILTON BERLE, KING OF TV, LOSE HIS CROWN THIS YEAR?

Hollywood—Milton Berle's hint to Hollywood friends that this will be his last season for his Texaco sponsor has posed the question: Will Milton Berle be uncrowned as the king of television in 1952?

It's the biggest on-the-quiet, behind-the-scenes story of the new video year. There are two versions—and take your choice. Uncle Miltie's story is that the arches," and that he's had a long show has been "nothing but head-series of differences" with a vice president of the advertising agency handling the account. One of his beefs was Sid Stone's middle commercial. Sid recently was dropped from the show. The other version is that the King of TV for the last three years, and still the top man, will be slipping in the rating now that Hollywood's big-name, big-time comedians are moving into video contention. If and when the sponsor's axe falls on Berle's head, he'll still do an hour show for NBC, where he's under long-term contract. Guy Madison and his pal, Andy Devine, are set for five years of Wild Bill Hickok films. Andy, veteran of 25 years in the movies, claims he's received more fan mail since the show went on the video waves last fall than during his entire Hollywood career. That's a real eye-opener for film stars who are still sneering at the small-screen entertainment. Joan Davis is set for an NBC-

TV show starting in the fall. Now the big argument is whether it will be on film or live. Joan's holding out for celluloid.

Many Will Agree With Him

Goodman Ace, about TV mystery shows: "Just plain murder." ... Hollywood's latest anti-TV propaganda line: "TV is better than never." ... George Raft and Lou Costello are the latest television partners. Lou will finance George as a two-fisted but gunless television detective. The first half-hour picture releases Feb. 14.

Mercedes McCambridge, who does "Defense Attorney" on the air, will do the television version. ... Craig Stevens replaces Joel McCrea in the video version of "Texaco Rangers." Joel, who makes only one or two movies a year, just didn't want to work that hard. ... William F. Broudy, who produces the Wild Bill Hickok films, is shooting his second TV series, "Consultation Room," dealing with a doctor's cases.

Plans of Peter Shaw, husband of Angela Lansbury, to film the "Fish" stories for TV with ZaSu Pitts and Lea Penman have struck a snag.

A New York producer claims that author Mary Roberts Rinehart gave him the rights to the "Fish" stories. Watch for legal fireworks.

It's No Circus For Beatty

Now that he's making films especially for TV, circus star Clyde Beatty and attorneys are conferring about those old Beatty movies showing on the home screens. Beatty claims the distributor failed to get his permission for their revival.

Rochelle Hudson, a pre-war film star, is set for a comeback in "The Unexpected," a dramatic series. ... Gale Storm will star in 13 half-hour religious films.

Ginger Rogers is the winner in a live-TV film battle. All her show, starting in September, will be on film. Shooting starts in April on the first 13, all dramatic shows.

First film in a new science-fiction series, "Rocky Jones, Space Ranger" goes before the cameras at the Hal Roach studio in February. ... Ditto Cesar Romero's "Passport to Danger" films.

TELEFORUM: Olivia de Havilland, about TV: "Television now seems a god, send to many working people. Think of the trouble and expense it saves—baby sitters, parking and things like that."

"But after so long a time there comes a day when these people just have to get out of the house. Hollywood will go on producing great movies and people will go on attending them."

Comedian Henny Youngman is set for 13 television films titled, "Henny Youngman's Playground." ... Film producer Sol Lesser has added three TV films to his 1952 production slate. ... The Goldbergs return to NBC-TV Feb. 4 on a 15 minute, three-times-a-week schedule. ... John Hodiak's latest film star jumping to TV. One of the reasons why he talked himself out of his MGM contract, is that there was "no TV" clause in the small print.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

SIMPLE RULE ENDS AN ARGUMENT
By OSWALD JACOBY

Written for NEA Service
"Perhaps you can tell me if there is a rule that covers this situation," requests a Henderson, Kentucky, reader.

"My partner held three nines, three sevens, two sixes, two fives, and a deuce. We needed 90 points to go down."

"The opponent to my partner's right discarded a five. The discard pile was quite large. My partner put down her entire hand, counting 85 points and took the five at the top of the discard pile to complete the count of 90 points."

"The opponents said it was not legal to put down every card from the hand. They said that if she melded all the cards in her hand she would be out, because the cards in the discard pile cannot be considered in her hand. However, she was not allowed to meld out without a canasta."

"My partner and I maintain that when she uses the top card of the discard pile the rest of the cards in that pile automatically become part of her hand.

"Who is right?"
The play was perfectly legal and proper. You are allowed to put down all eleven of your cards in order to obtain the discard pile. After you have melded and discarded you must then have one or more cards left in your hand (unless you meld out legally). The rule does not require you to have a card in your hand during the meld.

Q.—In the game of Samba, I have four queens and two wild cards down on the table as a meld. The discard pile is frozen, and the player at my right throws a queen. If I have two queens in my hand, can I take the discard pile and add the three queens to my previous meld, thus making a nine-card canasta?

A.—Yes. This play is perfectly legal both in Canasta and also in Samba.

Rule books may be obtained at the Record Office for 15c.

Dancing Years Is Outstanding Novello Show

"The Dancing Years," showing at the New Premier Theatre starting today until Saturday, is Associated British's lavish screen version, in Technicolor, of the Ivor Novello musical play, one of the most successful ever written, which was seen by more than 6,000,000 people during its record ten-year run.

Studded with lilting melodies that have swept the world, "The Dancing Years" tells a tender and unforgettable love story against a background of some of the most colorful and spectacular settings ever created in a British studio.

Though strictly adhering to the original stage play, the film makes full use of the wider scope offered by the movie camera, and many of its scenes were actually shot in the magnificent Austrian Tyrol.

Dennis Price has the romantic role in "Rudi," a young Viennese composer faced with a choice between love and ambition. Lovely French star Gisele Prevaille plays Maria, and blonde, nineteen-year-old newcomer Patricia Dainton acts and dances her way to stardom as Grete. Other important parts are taken by Anthony Nicholls, Grey Blake, Muriel George and Olive Gilbert.

"The Dancing Years" is the first of an all Technicolor double-bill presented at the New Premier Theatre until Saturday. The second color attraction is "Big Cat," a crammed-tight-with-thrills drama, with Lon McCallister, Peggy Ann Garner, Preston Foster and Forrest Tucker.

History Of Sherbrooke Outlined In Address By Antonin Deslauriers

The history of Sherbrooke, with particular reference to municipal affairs, was outlined to members of the Rotary Club last night by City Clerk Antonin Deslauriers.

Mr. Deslauriers divided the municipal history into two periods, 1852 to 1919, at which time he entered the city's service, and 1919 to date.

There are no archives at City Hall from 1852 to 1871, some of the older citizens claiming that fire destroyed them in 1870.

However, treating the history from 1871 on, the speaker gave a humorous and interesting address, interspersed here and there with reference to former aldermen now members of Rotary or at least well known to Rotarians.

The first telephone office was opened in Sherbrooke in 1871, when the Council granted the free use of a small room adjoining its own room, to the Montreal Telegraph Company.

On August 3, 1874, the Council decided to build the first underground sewer in Sherbrooke, on Wellington street, and in 1875 a new charter incorporated Sherbrooke as a city. The following year the Council granted a 25-year franchise to the Sherbrooke Gas Company.

Reorganization of the police was made in a radical way in 1875, Mr. Deslauriers said. The force composed of three men was fired and replaced by three provincial constables.

The speaker said that while electric street lighting might have been enthusiastically welcomed by the citizens with the inauguration of electric light in 1887, such was not the case for illumination in the homes. The population feared the misdeeds of electricity and only after an intensive campaign of education did the home-owners allow the magic fluid to penetrate into their houses. As an inducement the homes were wired free of charge until October, 1889.

Mr. Deslauriers sketched over the various highlights of each year, mentioning that in 1910, the municipal Waterworks Department built the dam and powerhouse at the Drummond pumping station on the Magog River. In 1911 the Rock Forest hydroelectric plant was constructed and the Weedon plant in 1920. The Westbury Rapids were harnessed in 1929, as the most modern of all city plants.

The centennial celebration in 1937, Mr. Deslauriers said, was one of the most important events in his career. "The publicity value of this event cannot be estimated in dollars," he said, "when one thinks that the City of Sherbrooke was featured in newspapers of this country, the United States and even Europe." He added more than 250,000 people visited the city during the celebration.

Another great event in Sherbrooke's history, he said, was the visit of Their Majesties, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth in 1939.

In conclusion Mr. Deslauriers gave the original set-up of the municipal administration, the first mayor being C. F. Bowen, and said that since his appointment 18 mayors and 67 aldermen have come and gone.

The speaker was introduced by A. C. Skinner and thanked by A. C. Ross.

President Emile Levesque was in the chair for the meeting and welcomed one visiting Rotarian, Past President Earl Heath, of the Boundary, and four guests, Dr. T. S. Burton, of Lennoxville, Stewart Roy, Ormstown, John McLeod and Fred Baldwin, Sherbrooke.

Cliff Bryant reminded the members of the annual campaign for the blind, and urged them to give as generously as possible to ensure the success of this drive.

In addition to the above visitors, two aldermen, Pro-Mayor O. Deziel, and Wesley H. Bradley, K.C., were guests of the Club and at the head table with J. R. Sangster, Mr. Skinner, Mr. Ross, President Levesque, and L. W. Dixon.

Fine Year Is Reported By Baptist Church

The annual meeting of the Sherbrooke Baptist Church was held recently in the church hall. After a brief devotional period conducted by the pastor, Rev. O. L. Davidson, the meeting was declared in session.

Reports were heard and received from all organizations and progress noted in every phase of the work. Miss Jessie Hopkins reported a satisfactory year in her treasurer's report. Receipts amounted to $6,850.61 of which $550.74 went to Missions.

One of the outstanding events of the financial year was the splendid response to the annual Parsonage fund campaign in which $762.35 was subscribed to a $400 objective. The treasurer noted that in three and a half years $4,000 plus interest had been paid against the Parsonage mortgage.

In the absence of C. G. Blake, retiring chairman of the board of finance, Henry Leech presented the report. Mr. Blake was commended for his very excellent conduct of this board. Due to his wise counsel the church financial position has greatly improved and has been placed on a sound working basis.

Mr. Davidson presented his report to the church in which he said, "this year like other years has been one of activity and progress due, to a large degree, to the loyalty and devotion of the members and friends who constitute this church." He noted the outreach of the church in the community and in missions abroad and stressed that we "must do everything possible to maintain our witness, assume our place in the community and keep our evangelical ministry."

Following the presentation of the nominating committee report by Mr. Holgate, the Ladies' Auxiliary served cake and coffee to a very fine gathering of church members.

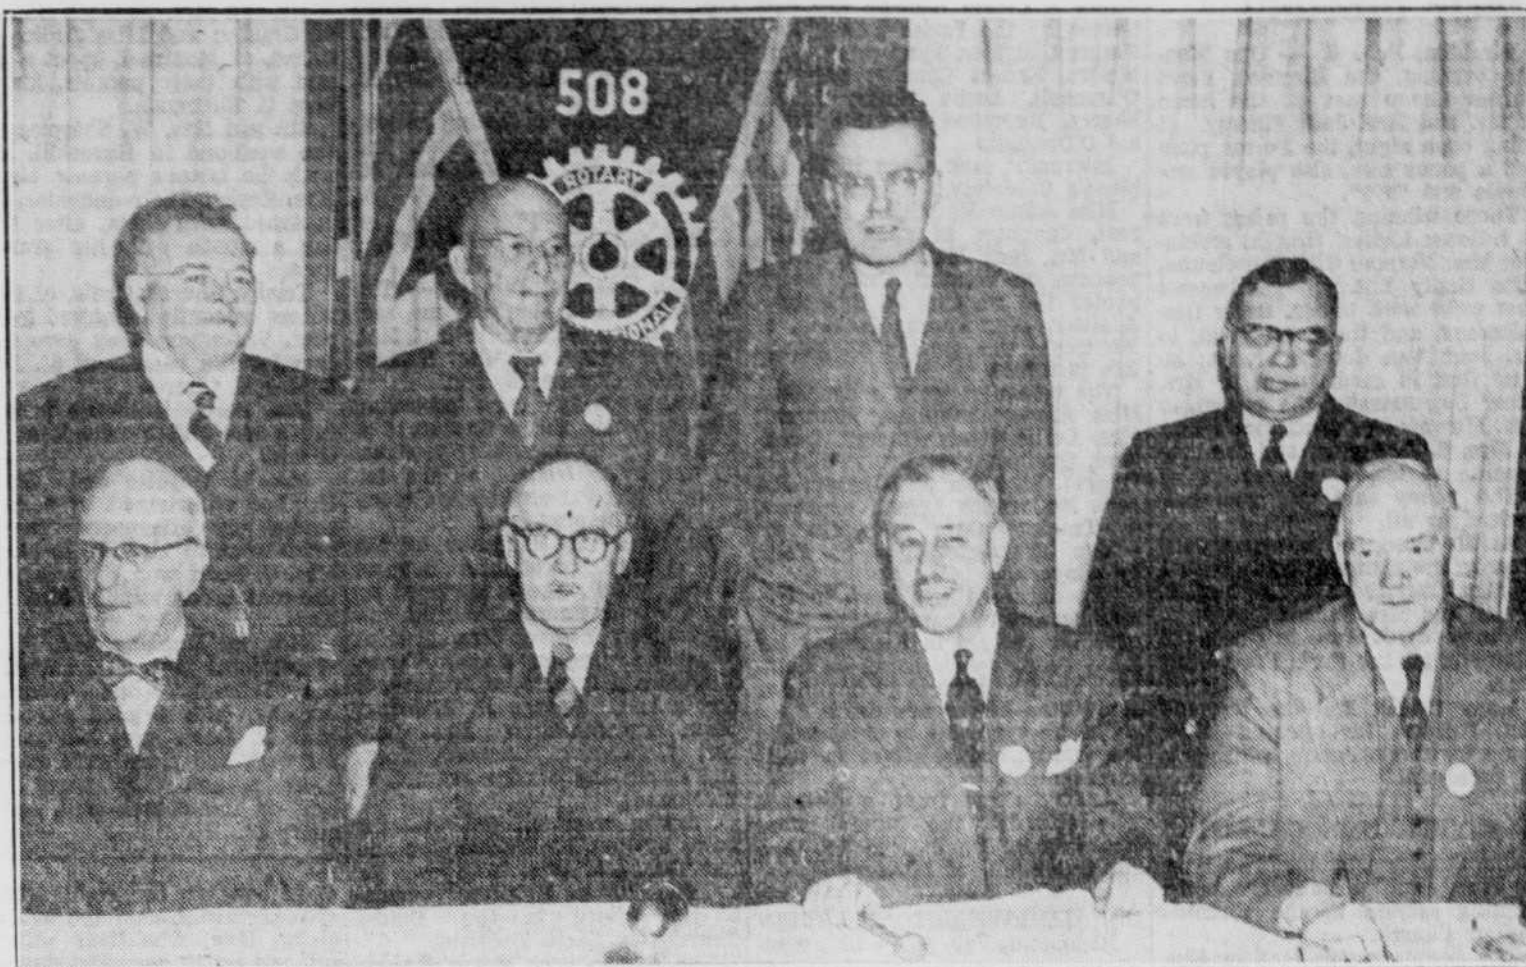

The Baptist Church will celebrate the eightieth anniversary of its organization on Sunday, March 2 and Monday, March 3. Rev. C. R. Duncan, D.D., of Grimsby, Ont., who was ordained to the Christian Ministry in 1908 in the Sherbrooke church, will be the eightieth anniversary preacher. Plans are now under way to arrange for this important gathering.

Accidental Death Verdict Is Returned

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday following an inquest into the death of Antonio Arguin, 40, 18 Oliver Street, who was fatally injured in an accident at the C.N.R. yard on Depot Street here Monday afternoon.

The victim, who is survived by his wife and six children, was crushed to death when he was caught between two freight cars. Dr. Louis Gagnon, coroner for the District of St. Francis, presided at the inquest held at the No. 1 Municipal Police Station.

Well-Performed Concert Given By Symphony

By MARGARET DOHERTY
The Sherbrooke Symphony's second concert of the season at the Granada last night marked another milestone in the development of the local orchestra, whose progress is noticeable and certainly gratifying.

A large audience — and one which seemed to feel a surge of civic pride in its musicians — heard with evident pleasure and appreciation a difficult program well performed.

With each succeeding concert the orchestra gains in musical maturity and assurance and last night, under the fine direction of Harry Long, gave us some very enjoyable moments.

There were of course some less happy spots, but that is to be expected in amateur performances and in time, such minor difficulties can be eradicated.

If one were to venture any constructive criticism at all, it would be that the musicians as yet do not abandon themselves sufficiently to their music, but give one the impression that they are reading the score almost too carefully.

This is to be commended, to a certain extent, because it makes for correct playing, but if carried too far, results in a sacrificing of expression, and one misses the great sweeps of melody in some of the most beautiful climaxes.

In making this statement, we wish it to be understood we are not unaware of the handicaps facing the orchestra, but simply that with our own little feeling of local pride, we would like to see our Symphony become one of the best in the country, and believe with proper encouragement and opportunity, it will.

Soloist on the program was Montreal soprano Constance Lambert, winner of last year's talent program, "Nos Futures Etoiles." We have heard Miss Lambert frequently over the radio, and had occasion to appreciate her full, beautiful voice, but feel somehow that last night she did not appear to best advantage.

Perhaps it was the choice of her program, or the fact that a well developed radio technique does not apply to the concert stage, or again, it could be that we were not strategically placed in the theatre.

The young soprano has a striking stage appearance and charming manner and some of her top notes were breathtakingly beautiful, but most of the middle passages seemed breathy and some of the low notes were lost completely.

She seemed at her best in the aria from Carmen, injecting a dramatic quality into her natural lovely voice with very good results.

However, it is impossible to write a constructive review without mentioning that there is no place on a symphony program for an excerpt from musical comedy, except as an encore. The choice of "Romance" from the Desert Song, while we are not belittling its value of popularity, is hardly justified, particularly when placed in a group with the tremendous Verdi aria, "Pace, Pace, mio Dio."

According to the insistent applause, Miss Lambert responded with an encore.

Most ambitious number on the program, as far as the orchestra was concerned, was the Tchaikovsky Symphony No. 5, and we were pleased with the treatment it received.

All sections of the orchestra are to be congratulated, as Mr. Long who at all times had perfect control over his musicians and seemed to bring out the very best in them.

Onil Leblanc, 20 year old trumpeter from Sorel, Que., was the

Magog Syndicate Petition Heard Here By Mr. Justice Mitchell

Hearing on a petition for interlocutory injunction involving the Catholic Syndicate Textile Workers at Magog and the Dominion Textile Company of Magog, was concluded yesterday in Superior Court, Mr. Justice William Mitchell taking the case en delibere.

The syndicate workers, petitioners in the case, are protesting a change in working operations made by the company, contending that it violates the collective labor agreement.

These changes consisted in placing one man to watch three machines, whereas in the past one employee was required, with a helper, to watch only one machine.

A trial period was undergone, and when the workers declared themselves unsatisfied, they requested arbitration. A board was set up, composed of Jean Lefort, professional engineer, as president, Andre Forget, Montreal attorney, was appointed arbitrator for the company, and Rene Gosselin, of Granby, arbitrator for the syndicate.

Meetings were held but the Board was unable to come to a unanimous decision and finally gave a majority ruling in favor of the company, Mr. Gosselin being the dissenter.

According to testimony given yesterday by the Hon. Antonio Barrette, Minister of Labor a message was addressed to him by Mr. Gosselin, requesting the dissolution of the Board, as the workers wished to negotiate directly with the company.

Argument arose yesterday as to whether or not the decision of the arbitration board was handed out before the request for dissolution.

Armand Noel, business manager for the Syndicate workers, in answer to cross-questioning by Mr. Forget, handling the case for the respondent, said that he knew towards the end of November that the arbitration decision was unfavorable to the syndicate. It was established that the decision was dated November 29, but probably not transmitted for a day or two.

The company, whose manager, Harold LeDuc, testified yesterday, claims that the innovation in the finishing room is necessary if the textile companies wish to keep up production and face competition with any degree of success.

The change is called bonus incentive plan and gives the worker an opportunity to earn up to 30 per cent over and above his usual salary.

Mr. Noel, when questioned by Carrier Fortin, attorney for the petitioner, said that the new work entailed the same responsibility as the previous watching of one machine, and required the same attention. However, when asked by Mr. Fortin if it required more physical effort, he answered "Much more."

Robert Waddell, professional engineer, testified that the plan inaugurated at the Magog plant has been in operation in other parts of Canada and the United States, for the past 20 years, with great success, and that before installing it in Magog, adequate time was spent in studying the proposed change and its effects. He added that the same standard has been applied to other departments and works out satisfactorily.

The workers, however, have taken the stand that the change infringes upon their rights.

At one point Mr. Justice Mitchell remarked that it seemed strange the Syndicate should want arbitration in Persichetti's "Hollow Men" and certainly a promising young musician. His performance was more than creditable, as was that of the string section. Particular worthy of mention is his beautiful tone.

Brahms Academic Festival Overture, with its happy suggestion of joys of student life, brought the program to a close.

Sailor From Richmond Is Killed In Collision Of Bus And Trailer

A collision between a bus and a trailer truck yesterday claimed the life of a sailor from Richmond and injured six other persons at St. Edward, near St. Hyacinthe.

Dead is Ordinary Seaman Bertrand (Bert) Poulin, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Poulin, 420 College Street, Richmond, well-known Richmond family.

Only two of the six injured required hospitalization at St. Hyacinthe, the other four being treated at the scene of the accident. All were passengers in the Montreal-bound bus of Laramée Transport of Sherbrooke.

Information released by the Laramée Company in Sherbrooke says the driver of the bus, Fernand Marcotte, Alexander Street, Sherbrooke, was attempting to bring the vehicle to a stop at the beginning of Highway number nine but skidded on the icy road and crashed into the side of a trailer truck, property of the Vachon Company of Lévis.

The bus was damaged to the extent of between $4,000 and $5,000 while the truck was also heavily damaged.

O/S Poulin is survived by his father and mother, Edgar Poulin, employee of the Canadian National Railways, and the former Alfreda Bedard, and two younger brothers, Edgar and Raymond Poulin.

The popular young man was going to Montreal at the time the crash occurred to take a train to New York city to join his mates aboard a R.C.N. ship in New York harbor. He had just completed his furlough at Richmond and the night before he was killed had attended the installation ceremonies of Richmond Branch 15; Canadian Legion.

SAINTS DUMP SAGS 5-3 TO CLOSE GAP ON VALLEYFIELD BRAVES

Bobby Pepin Notches Two As Locals Down Chics In Listless Game; Meet Cataracts Tomorrow, Royals Saturday

Sherbrooke Saints continued their upsurging march with a 5-3 victory over the Chicoutimi Saguenays last night at the local Arena in a listless game before 2,000 fans in the only game in George Slater's Group.

Tomorrow evening the Dugre team will tangle with their arch rivals, the Cats of Shawinigan, in a very important fixture for the locals. On Saturday evening they will visit the Royals, but the tilt is slated to take place at the Arena as the Montreal club has no ice this week at the Forum owing to the Ice Follies.

Both teams lacked their usual drive and fight and it was only at intervals that they gave a good display with the odd spurt and fight. The Cats were the first to tally when Normie Dussault was put in the clear by Dick Wray and Jean Paul Lamirande and the flashy little winger walked right in before he pulled the trigger to beat Bessette the whole way. Bobby Smith was sitting out a penalty for using his elbows.

Georges Roy was given the nod for boarding and the Saints battled home two goals before he returned to the fray. Guy Labrie started the first with a rush and flipped it over to Jimmy Planché who slid it over to Bobby Smith and on went the red light. Tod Campeau set up the second goal and Bobby Pepin whipped it by Pelletier to put the Saints further ahead.

Roy returned to the ice but he hadn't time to get in the fray before Rene Pepin tallied the third Sherbrooke goal. Tom McDougall picked up the loose disc when Claude partially blocked a pass and Rene Pepin broke away alone to beat Pelletier from close range.

The locals at this stage were beginning to show signs of life and their three goals were registered within two minutes. Lou Smrke came up with the Cats' second tally in the last minute of play. Moore made a passout from the corner to Smrke alone on right wing, and when Planché failed to cover him, Sandalack made a play but he slipped by him to walk in, and slid his own rebound into the net for an easy goal.

Bill Kyle opened the middle frame with a dangerous rush but Lamirande pulled him down just before he could get his shot away. Even with this the Saints kept the locals busy as the Smrke brothers got in close twice.

Pete Wright was the next to get the nod and Dube with Campeau got away but Pelletier made the save. Planché and Kyle were right back but their passes were off line and went astray. The Chics came through with a four-man break with only Bessette back but he made a wonderful save to stop the strong attack.

The Saints took over and Bill Kyle tallied what proved to be the winning marker when he rifled in a partially screened shot after a passing play with Bobby Smith and Jimmy Planché. The Chics bounced right back thirty seconds later when Lou Smrke battled home the disc from a scramble in front of Bessette's nets.

The locals moved to the attack from the opening whistle in the final frame as Kyle and Dube were right in. Leger and Claude came right back but they also failed to click. The Hebert team then took over and for the first ten minutes of the period held the upper hand. They slapped shots from all angles and the locals just couldn't get organized until Claude drew a penalty for yanking Ken Biggs down.

This was the sign for the Saints to take over and they kept driving but failed to do anything. Georges Roy got the nod for charging and drew a misconduct for arguing with referee Morrison. Even with this advantage the locals couldn't do anything.

With fifty seconds left Coach Hebert yanked his goalie when they drew a faceoff deep in Sherbrooke territory but this backfired at the Sags. Tod Campeau beat Moore to the draw and rifled a long pass up to the blue line and when White made a play for it Bobby Pepin checked him to walk in unmolested to shove the disc into the empty net just before the

B.C.S. Blanks S.H.S. 7-0 In League Tilt

In a rugged game of hockey which saw seven penalties handed out at the college rink, B.C.S. Midgits romped to a 7-0 victory over the maroon and white crew from Sherbrooke.

From the opening whistle, B.C.S. smothered the High School with everything they had, and score at the end of the first period read 2-0 in favor of B.C.S., on goals by Soutar and Trott.

In the second frame, just as it seemed that Sherbrooke was regaining its composure, they were stunned by four more B.C.S. goals from the sticks of Soutar, Grier (2), and MacDougall. Although they fought back hard in the final frame, the lead was insurmountable and the B.C.S. boys distinctly superior in all departments.

Final score read 7-0 in favor of Bishops. Sherbrooke's only other defeat of the season also came at the hands of the Abenakis.

"The Rocket" Sent

Home By Coach Irvin

Boston, Feb. 6.—(P)—Maurice (Rocket) Richard, Montreal Canadiens' star rightwinger, was sent home last night by Coach Dick Irvin to undergo further medical treatment.

Richard, who has been suffering from a stomach ailment, returned to action last week after missing seven National Hockey League games. He appeared far below par here Sunday night when Boston Bruins shut out Canadiens 1-0.

"Richard will not play for us again until he is 100 per cent fit," Irvin said. "Having him play the way he is feeling now jeopardizes Canadiens' playoff chances."

Canadiens entrained here last night for a Thursday night game in Detroit.

Fisher Signs With

Pittsburgh Pirates

Pittsburgh, Feb. 6.—Harry Fisher, 26-year-old rookie righthand pitcher, returned his signed 1952 contract today to Pittsburgh Pirates. He is the 12th player to sign.

Fisher, a native of Wardsville, Ont., won six and lost nine with Indianapolis of the American Association last year.

Another Change Given

In Girls' Cage Games

The opening playoff game of the Ladies' E.T. Basketball League, which had been scheduled to be played tomorrow night at Bishop's University, is now "definitely" set for Monday night at the University.

This was announced at Windsor Mills yesterday by League President Perc Whitney.

The final game of the two-game total points home and home series will be played a week from Monday night at Windsor Mills, that is on February 16th.

Sherbrooke Spartans Extend Lead With 77-48 Cage Win At Asbestos

Led by Al Hunting's 34 points, Sherbrooke Spartans last night defeated Asbestos 77-48 in a scheduled game of the E.T. Men's Basketball League. It was the third straight victory for the undefeated Sherbrooke squad in the new season.

Next game of the League is scheduled for Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock when Spartans play at Sherbrooke Y.M.C.A.

Spartans took an early lead in the game and were never headed. The score was 36-18 in their favor by half time.

Hunting was almost a one-man show last night as he sank 15 field goals and 4 free throws. Byrce Billing was next best for the visitors with 11 points.

Bob Bailey again was a high scorer for Asbestos but he was limited to only 14 points last night by the effective work of the Sherbrooke guards.

The veteran Ken MacLeod teamed up with the boys from Asbestos for the first time this season and also potted 14. Guy Hamel scored eight for the home squad, the same number totalled by Dave Turnbull of the visitors.

Summary:
Sherbrooke Spartans: Hunting 34, D. Turnbull 8, Stafford 3, J. Turnbull 0, Burt 4, Boland 6, Billing 11, Clarke 7, Burczyk 0, Goodhue 4. Total—77.

Oslo Prepares For Olympic Invasion

Oslo, Norway, Feb. 6.—(P)—This city of 400,000 population is shaping up as the world's sport centre with the cream of the globe's winter sports athletes arriving daily for the Olympics.

Competitors from about 20 of the 30 participating countries are here and 50 of the expected 460 newspaper men and photographers have moved into the newly-built press hotel.

Oslo is taking on the Olympic look. The five rings, symbol of the games, are predominant in store windows and the flags of the competing countries are going up in hotels, shops and other buildings.

Athletes with the "Canada" flash on their shoulders are hobnobbing with Chileans, Frenchmen, Austrians, Icelanders, Swedes, Italians and others at Sogn, the Olympic village in North Oslo.

Sogn is made up of two modern, electrically-heated eight-storey apartment buildings which will house the expected 1,100 to 1,200 competitors. There are two beds to a room, a table with reading lamps, built-in cupboards and every floor has two sitting rooms, showers and wash rooms. Workshops for repairs are located in the cellar. The buildings also have a large restaurant, post and telegraph office, and laundry.

Surging Boston Bruins Continue Upward Rush By Blanking Hawks; Woody Dumart Scores His 200th

The National Hockey League spotlight is focussed on Boston's upsurging Bruins these days.

In the only game played in the N.H.L. Tuesday night—at Boston, of course—it was tantamount to "old home night."

The Bruins blanked Chicago Black Hawks 5-0; Jim Henry chalked up his fifth shutout of the season; veteran winger Woody (Porky) Dumart scored his 200th N.H.L. goal; the victory stretched the Bruins' unbeaten streak to five games; it extended their fourth-place lead over the New York Rangers to six points.

But while there was joy in one town, there was little in another—Montreal.

Reason for the gloom is the fact that Maurice (The Rocket) Richard, perennial goal-scorer for Les Canadiens, has had to leave the team on the road.

Richard, suffering from a groin injury, is expected home today. The right-winger will confer with club officials here about his future plans. It is possible that he may be sent to Florida for a vacation as physicians have told him that rest is the only thing that will do the injured groin any good.

Richard missed seven games because of the ailment and his return to the team is expected.

Boxing Dropped To New Low, Says Carpentier

Buenos Aires, Feb. 6.—(P)—The level of boxing technique in both Europe and the United States is lower now than in his time, Georges Carpentier said today.

Carpentier, European heavyweight boxing king some 30 years ago, was known as one of the ring's finest boxers.

"The boxer has been replaced by the puncher who can knock out his rival with one blow," said the Frenchman on a visit here.

"This has come," he said, "because of public's desire for bloody fights with dramatic finishes. The current crop are but pale shades of boxers whose ability enabled them to overcome cruder adversaries."

Carpentier had high praise for former heavyweight champion Joe Louis. He said Louis would have made trouble for any of the fighters in his own time, including Jack Dempsey.

Carpentier was knocked out in the fourth round by Dempsey in their 1921 title fight in Jersey City, N.J.

In Boston, play was halted when Dumart's tally came early in the third period. Teammates and rivals congratulated him and gave him the puck as a souvenir.

A member of the famed pre-war Kraut line, the 33-year-old Dumart is in his 13th season with the Bruins.

A single game will be played tonight with Rangers tangling with the Leafs at Toronto.

Vancouver Still After W.I.F.U. Franchise

Vancouver, Feb. 6.—(P)—Vancouver is still seeking entry into the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

A directors' meeting decided Monday night to seek iron-clad approval within the next two months of a W.I.F.U. franchise for 1953.

Vancouver wanted to field a team this year but the franchise application was rejected recently at a stormy annual meeting of the W.I.F.U. in Regina.

Directors said they would concentrate for the time being on aiding junior football here.

White Plains, N.Y. — Junius Woods, 157, Buffalo, N.Y., knocked out Tony Masciarelli, 163, New York, 5.

Arthur H. Ehlers, Athletics' general manager, made the announcement on Skaff, a former infielder who has been in the A's farm system since 1949.

Ehlers also announced it has been decided to re-name the Ottawa club the Athletics. It was called the Giants last season.

Communists Seek High Level Political Talks On Korea

By ROBERT B. TUCKMAN
 MUMKIN, Korea, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The communists today proposed a high-level political conference within 90 days after a Korean armistice to negotiate withdrawal of foreign troops settle the Korean problem and resolve related issues in the Orient.

The three-point proposal was made at Panmunjom in the first full dress session of truce negotiating teams in two months.

Allied delegates took the proposal under study and promised a reply later.

Observers expressed doubt that the United Nations command would agree to the third point. The Red proposal—identified it only as "other questions related to peace in Korea."

But in presenting the proposal, North Korean Gen. Nam Il linked it to a statement by President Truman involving United States military aid to Formosa, Indo-China and the Philippines.

Significantly, the communist proposal referred for the first time to "The People's Republic of China" as a belligerent in Korea. Heretofore the Reds have insisted Chinese fighting in Korea were volunteers.

The Reds' three-point plan was their outline of principles for recommendations to the governments of countries fighting in Korea. That would be the final clause of an armistice. Two other clauses still are unsettled.

A sub-committee working on exchange of prisoners agreed to in inspection of P.O.W. camps by joint Red Cross teams of belligerent powers and turned their discussions over to staff officers. Voluntary repatriation is the main unsettled question.

Police Claim Baby Traffic Ring Broken

Montreal, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The backbone of an international baby-smuggling ring, reported to have netted more than $1,000,000 from traffic in illegitimate children, is broken today.

That is how police described the arraignment yesterday of two men, said to be key figures in the ring that disposed of such babies across the United States and Canada. Price tags on some of the babies were set as high as $5,000.

Meanwhile, eight other persons, all said to be residents of Montreal, are expected to be picked up and arraigned this week.

The eight, police said, include two doctors and two women.

Brought before Judge Guy Guibault on charges of depriving an unmarried mother of her children were:

Herman Buller, 31-year-old lawyer from Williston, N.D., who has been practising law in Montreal since 1949, and Bill Dutka, 34-year-old construction foreman, a Montrealer.

Preliminary hearing in their case was set for Feb. 12 after both applied for a trial by jury.

At the arraignment, Buller was freed on parole and bail of $950 was set for Dutka.

The two men, charged under an article in the Criminal Code, are accused of intent to deprive the mother of her children under the age of 14 and of possessing and detaining the children.

The specific offence is alleged to have occurred around May 20, 1951.

Crown lawyers asked that the name of the mother, a Montreal hair-dresser, not be disclosed.

Divinity Is Required In Democracy

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 6.—(AP)—A prominent Quebec churchman told the Alma Mater Society of Queen's University today that "a sound democracy requires a sound philosophy of human rights and a Christian knowledge of authority in those who are fit to share the heavy tasks of building a free nation."

Msgr. Ferdinand Vandry, Rector of Laval University and Superior of the Quebec Seminary, speaking in English, said that a Christian democracy was based on a correct notion of right and authority.

"Universal suffrage, one man, one vote, is, in my opinion, a democratic formula which favors electoral oratory but serves much less the best interests of the nation."

Defining his notion of right, Msgr. Vandry said that in Russia only the state has rights, human beings have none.

"Fundamental rights of the human being are not man-made, they are the work of God to which the human legislator must submit. They constitute what is called natural right... nothing can be changed in this natural right, man must submit to it."

Positive right flowed from this natural right and changed with circumstances and necessities of social order.

But he added, positive right must not conflict with natural right.

"If they want to respect the rights of God and take into account the dignity of the human person, democracies will have to make the basis of social organization and legislation, this correct notion of right."

"Democracy is not synonymous with anarchy," said the Roman Catholic churchman. "Authority is not a negation of liberty."

Authority is derived from God. The notion of authority "which consists of making the people the source of authority... dechristianizes, and brings it down to the size of man because it removes from it the crown of greatness which the Creator gave it."

He said people would recognize more readily "the majesty of the right to command, if they see its divine character."

President Truman's name could have gone on the presidential preference ballot without any action by him, if he had not previously asked that it be withdrawn. However, delegates "pledged" to a candidate needed his consent, and he gave it.

The uncertainty about the President's plans brought new efforts by Senators Estes Kefauver of Tennessee and Robert Kerr of Oklahoma to line up delegate strength. Kerr has not formally announced his candidacy, but he has made it fairly plain he intends to run if Truman does not seek re-election.

Competent observers here gave Kefauver only an outside chance in New Hampshire.

Strasser Still Under Boycott

Bonn, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Allied authorities here said today Otto Strasser, who helped Hitler to power and then fled, is still banned from returning to Germany and they are confident he can be kept out.

Strasser has announced in Canada he plans to return to form a new political party.

An allied spokesman said Strasser's plans to come back have been known for a long time but there are ways of keeping him out.

Although issuance of visas abroad is now in German hands, the allies have given Germans secret black list of persons considered undesirable.

Edward Poissant, Rita, 11, is in hospital.

Mr. Poissant was at work in nearby McIntyre mines when the fire occurred. Leo, 13, who escaped the blaze, said his mother was out delivering laundry.

Laurent, 9, and Leo, raced out of the tarpaper shack when a woodstove exploded. Leo said he had filled it with wood and closed the door shortly before it blew up.

Cause of the fire was not definitely determined.

President's Plans Still Worry Party

By JACK BELL
 Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—President Truman's off-again, on-again entry into the New Hampshire presidential primary left Democrats confused today about contests elsewhere.

Frank McKinney, the party's national chairman, made it clear there will be no objection to entering Truman delegate slates in such states as California, where the candidate's consent is not required.

But he left in the air any decision on what will be done in states such as Wisconsin, where the President would have to consent to the use of his name.

Wisconsin law requires the filing of a slate of delegates before Feb. 29. McKinney told a press conference yesterday he hopes Truman will decide "within 60 days" whether he is going to seek a new term, but gave no indication he thinks the President will announce his plans this month.

Under United States election law, presidential primaries give electors who are registered supporters of a political party an opportunity to make their choice among the party's presidential candidates.

Gardening Among Courses Offered By Spring So-Ed

Instruction in golf, bridge, stencilling and brush-stroke painting, gardening and social dancing will be among the courses offered by So-Ed at the Spring session of the Social-Educational organization, it was decided at a recent meeting of the executive.

Among the interesting subjects which will be discussed in the form of addresses by prominent speakers are "Questions and answers periods" and "Some Aspects of the Law in Quebec," by a group of local barristers.

The sessions will start on Wednesday evening, February 27th and run for six consecutive Wednesday evenings. Information further to the above may be obtained by telephoning the Y.W.C.A. or the Y.M.C.A.

Registration in the first three subjects—golf, bridge and stencilling and brush-stroke painting (learn to decorate your own trays, metal-boxes and furniture)—will be limited so would-be joiners are advised to register early.

Edward Poissant, Rita, 11, is in hospital.

Immigrants Bow Heads In Sorrow

Halifax, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A band of humble immigrants bowed their heads in sudden sorrow today when they heard that the King, for them a symbol of new hope in a new home, is dead.

They are aboard a Canadian National Railway train, en route to various parts of Canada, and the news of the King's death was relayed to them by the train crew.

Railway officials said the 300 new Canadians, although probably only dimly aware of Canada's status in the Commonwealth under the British crown, appeared deeply affected by the news. They hushed their children, playing happily in the aisles.

The 300 immigrants arrived here earlier aboard the Swedish-American liner Gripsholm from Gothenburg and Bremerhaven.

CENSUS FIGURES

Granby, Que., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Figures for the latest annual census of Granby show a population of 20,234. French-speaking and 719 English-speaking, along with 227 persons of other language groups.

By religion, there are 20,234 Roman Catholics and 1,338 Protestants. Most of the other residents are of no professed religion.

Granby and suburbs, comprising the township, have a population of about 27,000.

Scientists To Discuss Discoveries

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A party of six of Canada's top scientists will leave shortly for Australia to attend a meeting of the British Commonwealth Scientific Official Conference where vital discoveries in many fields are exchanged and discussed.

It will be the first full meeting in more than five years of the Commonwealth scientists whose aim is to ensure full collaboration between civil government scientific organizations in the Commonwealth and to make formal recommendations to their governments. The last was held in London in 1946.

Since the London meeting, special conferences have been held to discuss collaborative arrangements in such fields as fuel research, radio, geology and mineral resources, plant and animal nutrition and culture collection of micro-organisms—a subject of importance to bacteriologists. These will be further discussed in Australia.

Canada's delegation will be headed by Dr. E. W. R. Steacie, vice-president (scientific) and director of the Division of Chemistry for the National Research Council.

Other Canadians are Dr. G. H. E. Etinger, head of medicine, Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., and assistant director of N.R.C.'s Division of Medical Research; Dr. Paul E. Gagnon, head of the Department of Chemistry and Chemical Engineering, Laval University, Quebec; Dr. George S. Hume, director-general of scientific services for the Department of Mines and Technical Surveys; Dr. K. W. Neatby, director of science service, Department of Agriculture; and Dr. G. M. Reed, professor of bacteriology, Queen's University and chairman of the Fisheries Research Board.

The conference will open Feb. 18 at Canberra for a four-day session. Then it will move to Melbourne for further meetings from Feb. 26 to March 7.

Attending will be a working party of 30 delegates, including the six from Canada. Other countries to be represented are Britain, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Pakistan, Ceylon and Southern Rhodesia.

An invitation has been issued by the Australian government for one or more observers from the United States but no nominations have yet been received.

Pole Tells Of Massacre By Russians

By RUSSELL BRINES
 Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A former Polish soldier, masked to conceal his identity, was called before a House sub-committee today to tell how he witnessed the mass slaughter of Polish officers in Russia during the Second World War.

An estimated 10,000 Poles were shot down nearly 12 years ago in tangled Katyn Forest, 33 miles west of Smolensk.

The witness hid in a tree and watched the gruesome drama, Subcommittee Counsel John Mitchell said.

The Polish soldier and two companions had escaped from a Russian prison camp and hiked for six days across Russia, Mitchell said, after hearing that Russian officers planned the assassinations.

They wanted to watch the killings, Mitchell said, so they could tell about it later.

Mitchell said he has evidence to prove the Russians killed the Polish leaders and dumped their bodies into trenches, where the Germans found them in April, 1943. Moscow has claimed the killings were by Nazis.

The special sub-committee, headed by Representative Ray J. Madden (Dem., Ind.), is investigating the Katyn massacre on behalf of Polish-American constituents.

Marion (Mike) Gawiak, a former Polish army cadet now living at Port Colborne, Ont., testified yesterday that thousands of Poles disappeared in 1940 from a Soviet prison camp he was in.

Man Is Overcome By Stove Fumes At Richmond Home

Richmond, Feb. 6.—A retired railroader, all alone in his home, was found smothered to death yesterday morning, from smoke caused by an overheated electric stove in his kitchen.

Dead is Antonio Rheume, 56, who lived in a brick, part-floor, residence on Donnelly street, Richmond.

Rheume was discovered dead in the kitchen of his home at approximately three o'clock yesterday morning by assistant police and fire chief Leslie Ratray who was called to the scene of the fire by a driver of Sinclair's Taxi who was returning home from work at the time. The driver is a neighbor of the dead man.

Fire damage was confined to the kitchen but Rheume himself was not burned. Even his clothes were not singed but the smoke from the fire proved fatal.

Rheume is survived by his wife, at the moment seriously ill in a Sherbrooke hospital, and three children who are now not residents of the home.

Chief Sevigny Arrests Airmen At Richmond

Two R.C.A.F. personnel, stationed at St. Hubert, are being held in Sherbrooke today, having made a nuisance of themselves in this area yesterday with reckless driving.

The men were finally arrested at Richmond in the afternoon by Chief of Police Donat Sevigny, who says the men were drunk, and were scaring the daylight out of people at Windsor Mills and Richmond.

They also damaged the car of Dr. Lambert, of Windsor.

"We received handsome complaints about them before the arrest," Chief Sevigny says.

The men are Gaston Courteous, 22, and Albert Renaud, 27, and they were driving a load of furniture in an Air Force truck to Quebec City.

Under-Rated Al McFater Stays Nine Rounds With Champ Carter But Drops Decision In Non-Title Lightweight

Toronto, Feb. 6.—A 20-year-old Canadian lad who wasn't rated a chance at going more than five rounds with lightweight boxing champion James Carter of New York, last night stuck around for nine in one of the best fights seen in these parts for years.

Even though he dropped a unanimous decision in the nine-round non-title clash, Toronto's Allan McFater put up a show that veteran fight followers termed his best ever. A crowd of 8,666 paid $17,334.

Carter beat McFater to the punch over most of the route, but the Canadian was never on the run. Managed by Willie Ketchum, the negro title-holder directed his attack at the Toronto fighter's mid-section, keeping him off balance with jabbing lefts and a lightning-like right cross.

The Canadian Press score card gave Carter six rounds, McFater two and one even. There were no knockdowns in the nine rounds, a compromise distance between eight and 10.

The galleries boomed the decision. They had roared time and again throughout the bout when McFater laid into Carter, but most of the punches glanced off the champion.

McFater weighed 141, five pounds more than the champion who let him carry the first two rounds. The third was all even as the Toronto boy tired, Carter taking command for the remaining six.

Best exchange of the fight came midway through the seventh when both fighters stood toe to toe trading lefts and rights. McFater broke out with his favorite right hook near the end of flurry and Carter quickly clinched.

The only damage was suffered by the winner, McFater opened a cut over the titlist's left eye and raised a mouse under it.

After the fight, Carter was described McFater as a "tough, very strong young fellow. He took a lot of punches and sure hit with that right of his. I think with a little more experience he'll go far. He caught me with a couple of good ones."

Sedgman Not To Defend His U.S. Championship

Colombo, Ceylon, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Frank Sedgman, Australian star of the recent Davis Cup tennis victory over the United States, won't defend his American title at Forest Hills next summer for purely financial reasons.

Sedgman, playing here in the Asian championships while on his honeymoon, said today that he will concentrate on winning the Wimbledon championship in England, the only major event that has eluded him so far.

Asked why he planned to pass up the Forest Hills tournament, which he won last year, Sedgman said: "The pure and simple reason is we have no money."

Sedgman, who received a wedding gift of $12,250, raised by public donations, when he was married to Jean Spence Jan. 30, denied that there was any question about his amateur status.

The big Australian star easily won a second-round match today, whipping Clean Ebert of Ceylon 6-0, 6-3, 6-0.

could fix 1952 salaries under either of the following plans:

1. The total salary payroll of any one year, 1946 through 1950, plus a 10 per cent flat increase.
2. The total salaries paid in 1951 in accordance with previous applicable rulings, without a 10 per cent increase.

The general attitude of baseball, with Brooklyn's President Walter O'Malley the loudest spokesman, is that the ruling handicaps those clubs and players already holding signed 1952 contracts.

Diamond officials will urge that this ruling, if necessary, be delayed another year and that salaries be governed by the old decree. Under this decree, a club could sign any player for an increase up to 10 per cent, or even more, for any individual.

O'Malley said: "We have signed more than two-thirds of our roster. If we observe the new rule we would have to call back all signed contracts and reconsider them."

Sports Figures To Protest On Government Ruling On Salaries At Special Hearing Of Board

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Organized baseball hauls out its heavy legal guns today to combat a recent government ruling which puts a new squeeze on diamond salaries.

Louis F. Carroll and Ben Fiery, lawyers for the National and American Leagues respectively, head a battery of sports figures to appear at a special hearing called by the Salary Stabilization Board.

The public hearings will be conducted by John F. Kieran, former sports editor of the New York Times and member of the radio-television panel of "Information Please."

The Stabilization Board Jan. 15 issued a ruling which put a limit on over-all club budgets rather than individual salaries. It said under the edict baseball clubs
