Heavy snow, freezing rain:

Storm ravages Westmount trees

By LAUREEN SWEENEY

THE FIRST snow and freezing rain of the season Saturday and Sunday tore apart Westmount trees, still heavy with leaves, and caused as much damage as the great ice storm of 1961, officials report.

Falling trees played havoc with power and phone lines, damaged cars and "scalped" upper Westmount. The summit area was described as a jungle of fallen branches.

One man was injured as emergency crews worked almost non-stop throughout the weekend and into Monday to repair power lines at 46 locations, unclog flooded drains and clear away tree debris.

André Millette, a line foreman with the light and power department, was taken to hospital Tuesday after a branch struck him during clean-up operations (see separate story.)

More than 50 weather-related incidents were recorded by police and public safety departments over the weekend and power crews received 116 calls, mostly for power outages.

Water rushed down the hills and collected in boot-deep floods on Sherbrooke street where drains clogged with leaves.

Tree and power crews worked throughout Saturday until 1 am

SMILING WINNER: Monday evening was a happy time for the victorious Brian Gallery, Westmount's new mayor-elect, and a proud one for his wife, Nancy.

By LAUREEN SWEENEY
WESTMOUNT chose Brian.

The 49-year-old publisher who served on the city council for eight years as alderman, Brian O'Neill Gallery, Monday won the first mayoral election held here in 56 years as 33 percent of the eligible voted.

His opponent, Allen E. Nutik, polled 30 percent of the votes cast, which he claimed as a victory for citizen opposition.

The mayor-elect will be sworn into office Monday at the inaugural session of the new council along with eight new aldermen.

Six also were elected Monday: Sally Aitken, Phillip Aspinall, Paul Fortin, Ian McPherson, John Shingler and Peter Trent. All were endorsed by the Westmount Municipal Association. (See separate story.)

Peter Duffield and Joan Rothman had been elected by acclamation a fortnight earlier on nomination day.

Although the election had attracted much media attention outside the community and probably was the first one here of such magnitude, only a third of the citizens eligible turned out compared, for example, to 52 percent in Outremont's election Sunday.

Even as the results were being posted in the council chamber Monday night, Mr. Gallery jumped up on a chair to claim his victory and to face a room packed with media, candidates, citizens and city staff.

'First happy hour'

"Let me welcome you to the first of many happy hours to come in Westmount!" he said.

He thanked his supporters, con-

Christmas countdown

BARELY more than six weeks remain before Christmas and already careful shoppers are out prowling the stores or looking for ideas for their Christmas giving. The old excuse for stalling seasonal merchandising until the weather really turns to cold, snow, blizzards or other unpleasantness drives people into the shops doesn't wash any more. Recession-mindedness is making folks more cautious and deliberate, impelling them to take a longer view. In short, six weeks is not too far ahead to announce what you have to offer. All of which makes November's BUYS, monthly shopper companion to THE WESTMOUNT EXAMINER, particularly timely. Individually addressed and mailed to the Westmount homes which do not subscribe to THE EXAMINER, BUYS is your opportunity to blanket and penetrate the Westmount market as no other medium can. Deadline is Tuesday at 2 pm, but you should book your space now, together with laying your local promotion plans for between now and Christmas. Call 932-3157 for expert assistance.

It also wants parking stickers for merchants and utilization of the parking lots.

From Dec. 12 until Christmas, Westmount Square opens its stores for evening shopping along with many other Greene area shops.

At a meeting of the Greene Action group Tuesday morning, there was discussion to extend hours from 6 pm to 7:30 pm on Thursdays and Fridays on a regular basis.

There are now 30 merchants signed up in the association. New members from Westmount Square are Mobilia, the Jockey Club, MacKay Smith Cleaners and Henry Marks.

The log of fire calls was not made available at the Westmount Fire Brigade headquarters again this week.

29th week: Fire news ban still on

THERE was a change, but the net effect was the same, in press relations at the Westmount Fire brigade Tuesday, the morning after a new city council was swept into office on individual platforms of open government, freedom of information and more than one expressed determination to "end Firegate."

Reporter Lauren Sweeney made her usual weekly visit. The only officer in sight was Deputy Chief William Timmons, the second in command.

When she told him she was there to do the fire reports, instead of the usual standing-order brush-off he unhesitatingly called Chief Edward Martell on the intercom and announced: "Mrs. Sweeney is here to do the fire news."

There was a silence followed by something unintelligible to her but upon which Mr. Timmons told her there was no change for this, the 29th week of Mr. Martell's ban against her gathering news at the fire premises.

Grill bent

Someone bent the front grill on a door to a furrier's store at Sherbrooke street and Prince Albert avenue last Thursday, police report. The incident, classified as wilful damage, resulted in $10 damage.

FLOWERS GALORE: The 51st Annual Chrysanthemum Show opened in the Westmount conservatory last week and this year's theme is "The English Countryside in Color." Along with the 2,111 mums representing 97 varieties, there is an English cottage and a stream with goldfish. The show continues through the month or until the blooms fade.

Centraide now stands at 75%

The local Centraide campaign has achieved 75 percent of its $225,000 objective, according to Sheila McCall, campaign chairman. Returns as of Tuesday morning totalled $168,675.

Mrs. McCall hopes that the campaign will reach its goal before Christmas, noting that the campaign is roughly $15,000 ahead compared to last year.

Canvassers are urged to finish their routes and return their kits to area chairmen or the office in Dominion-Douglas Church as quickly as possible.

Line foreman is injured

André Millette, 51, line foreman with the city's light and power department, was taken to the Reddy Memorial Hospital Monday during clean-up operations following the weekend storm.

Officials said Mr. Millette was struck on the head by a falling branch while restoring power in Summit Park.

He was believed to have sustained a fractured vertebra.

He apparently had been wearing a hard hat, protecting him from brain injury.

Mr. Millette, who lives in LaSalle, has been with the city for 24 years.

Matches ignite in bathroom

Matches left in a medicine cabinet ignited Sunday morning in an apartment at 4300 de Maisonneuve boulevard, Public Security officials said.

The fire apparently was out upon the arrival of firefighters called to apartment 1026 at 11:15 am.

The matches had been stored in a cabinet where the fire was confined. No damage to the room was reported.

Equipment lost

A compressor and other equipment valued between $1,500 and $2,000 disappeared from a body shop at 27 Hillside avenue Sept. 24, police said. The loss was reported last Thursday.

Vendôme work beginning

Construction crews will begin breaking ground for the new Vendôme train station on approximately Nov. 21, according to officials of the Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission.

Preliminary work already has started on the station, which is expected to open in April 1984.

We Say

Council of quality

MAYOR-elect Brian O'Neill Gallery had a clear victory over Mr. Allen E. Nutik in Monday's municipal elections. The congratulations, good wishes and hopes of all Westmounters go with him into the city's highest office.

Such was the quality of the campaigns of both candidates, who pledged themselves to the very best they could bring to our local government, that it is safe to say that Mr. Nutik and all his supporters, the die now cast, would desire that the Gallery administration have every success.

Much the same must be said of Monday's six aldermanic races. Whether the walk-over win of Mrs. Sally Aitken or the narrower squeaks of Mr. John Shingler or Mr. Peter Trent, all the decisions of the electorate were explicit and no one, including the defeated candidates, needs feel that we are not going forward with an excellent, balanced city council.

Messrs. Ian McPherson, Phillip Aspinall and Paul Fortin all had decisive victories over worthy opponents, whose consolation must rest in having put up good fights.

It is good to know that in the runners-up there is such quality as could among them put together a wholly creditable city council. It is notable that we detected not a single sour grape among them Monday night. In fact, several said that the experience of just running was a privilege and a revelation: they met many interesting persons with whom they might otherwise never have had contact. One said he thoroughly enjoyed the experience. Another described the sensation of the past few weeks as "a high."

What a pity that no one chose to stand against Mrs. Joan Rothman and Mr. Peter Duffield, who won their council seats by acclamation. It is not to take away from their elections; only to comment that the electoral machinery, when honed up, should be fully used.

The comments of the defeated candidates are nice to hear. They make the electoral process all the more important and meaningful.

Which we would like to think typical of Westmount.

Wish them well and thanks

AS the members of the outgoing city council return to their private, professional and business lives freed of the responsibility and preoccupation of service to their fellow citizens, they deserve thanks and good wishes.

Some weeks ago, when we urged on these pages that it was time, for a variety of reasons, for Mayor Donald MacCallum to step down, we sought to assure him that the differences, the acrimony and the fights will end — that "they go with the job, not the person."

He and the other members of his administration go to well-earned retirement from municipal affairs — though some, we hope, will return in the future to this or other forms of public service.

EXAMINER readers will know that the outgoing city hall team did not turn out in the end to be our favorites. Indeed, to the bitter end: the remarks of Mayor MacCallum at last week's flower show opening and again Monday night concerning both contenders as his successor as mayor were tasteless, uncalled-for and resented by many.

Even so, these are to be regarded as made by the incumbent mayor of Westmount. Next week, when Mayor-elect Gallery is sworn in, it will be Mr. MacCallum, private citizen, once more.

We wish him well, as we do former aldermen Alwyn Lloyd and André Gervais, both active antagonists of this newspaper latterly while in office, and JoAnn Isenman and Muriel Kaplan, who more passively permitted excesses of the administration to continue without evident protest.

All let personalities intrude on their conduct of public business.

Despite that, others should not play the same game.

Let us be grateful for the hours, the talents, the devotion given this community during their terms at city hall and permit them to retire from office without rancor.

As private persons we wish them well.

The role of the WMA

WE noted in this space in September, when the Westmount Municipal Association announced its "slate" of candidates for city council, that they were all good people, that the WMA had done well to come up with a balanced list, and the association was to be commended for making known which of the mayoral candidates it would recommend.

There will be joy, then, not simply among those individuals but in the WMA itself and, notably, the persons who sought out ward by ward these names, that these were the candidates who, without exception, made it onto the city council in Monday's elections.

We congratulate them all, and must include the WMA, not only for the excellent selection of men and women to serve the community for the next four years but for proving that the WMA cachet still means something important to Westmount voters.

The WMA stamp of approval, of course, is not everything. There were a lot of votes cast Monday for candidates whom the WMA had either passed over or had not even considered.

Yet, in our electoral system it is winner take all. All WMA-named candidates won and the WMA rightfully can claim a clean sweep.

We are not convinced that this is a position the association should be in. We said prior to this election, as we said four years and eight years ago, that its role simply should be to assure that there are qualified candidates, in any number, putting themselves forward for all public offices in Westmount. The choice among them should be the voters'. The WMA places itself dangerously close to being a party of the select rather than an association of all citizens of Westmount.

Where, for example, does the process it pursued again for this election put the eight defeated candidates, their agents, their workers and their supporters vis à vis the WMA? Can they feel at home in an association intended for all but which makes choices?

There is no question of the good intentions of the WMA officers. Yet, once more — before another election — they should openly re-examine their role to make sure that making and taking sides is not inimical to the best interests and potential of the association as a place for everyone.

Remember the electors

HOW good it would be if, as a kind of exhortation leading off each city council sitting over the next four years, there could be a replay of the essence of Monday evening's election night excitement.

All but two of our new nine-member council will not soon forget that they had to get out and fight with conviction for their new seats at city hall, to woo voters and savor victory.

But there will be occasions, in the heat of debate on more contentious issues, when strongly held views of some councillors may cause them — only momentarily, we hope — to forget that there are several hundred citizens who voted for each of them. Just as important, a goodly number, if not quite so many, voted for others who didn't make it — others whose viewpoints may have been different but would be no less important on given matters.

In short, they may sometimes forget that there is an electorate out there which cares about our city and has chosen this council to represent a wide range of opinions, positions and interests.

It will not be easy, as the weeks and months run to years, four long ones, always to remember that the mandate given on Nov. 7, 1983, is not the end of it. Representative government is an on-going thing.

should remember that Monday they had their essential say.

And incidentally they should remember that this entire council, mayor and eight aldermen, will be new to their jobs. Let there be patience and understanding while they learn.

PERHAPS as important, those who did not bother to get out and vote on Monday have suspended their moral right to participate, as much as the system allows, in the on-going dialogue which always should obtain between the electorate and the elected. As someone remarked while awaiting the returns Monday night, the challenge to a complaining or carping citizen in the audience at a city council meeting should be: did you vote?

It should not necessarily come to that. There was not a member of the new council who did not pledge open government and recognition of the right of citizens to be told everything they may wish to know about their public business. Their declarations of this precept, inherent in a full-working democracy, were prompted by attitudes and actions of the outgoing council not always in keeping with it. Just as all are equal before the law, anyone coming before Westmount city council is deserving of equal treatment, whether they happen to live here or not, whether they pay taxes here or not, whatever their station, whatever their race or creed and, yes, whether they voted or not.

Despite the attempts in some quarters to define issues in Monday's election, there were in fact none. Open government, containing expense and taxes, maintaining the Westmount standards of excellence — all of these are "motherhood" issues which few would oppose.

How to achieve these ends may well in time cause difference. It would be a rather bland and ineffectual government that simply "went along." Indeed, it is out of divergent views that worthwhile, innovative consensus is achieved and we all will be looking for that in our new city council.

I Say!

An optimist and a pessimist were opening Christmas presents. The pessimist got three cases of 21-year-old Scotch. "Oh," he groaned, "am I going to have an awful hangover!" The optimist got a bale of hay. "Goody, goody!" he exclaimed. "Somebody has given me a horse!"

Canada tomorrow

AS I write my column this week the Canada Tomorrow Conference is in progress in Ottawa.

Many of you already will have read or heard accounts of the conference by the local media. It is an exciting endeavor. Over 700 delegates from across the country, representing governments, business, labor, business associations, universities and colleges, women's groups and the media have gathered to discuss the impact of technological change on our society.

A number of notable international guests also are present. The delegates, in a series of workshops, are addressing such issues as technology in Canada's future, consequences of change, putting the technologies into place, and adjusting to change.

Monday morning, Prime Minister Trudeau opened the conference and he was followed the same morning by three noted international spokespersons, namely, Dr. George A. Keyworth, director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy and science advisor to the president of the United States; Mr. Masahiro Sakamoto, counsellor to the minister for Japan's Economic Planning Agency, and Mr. Jean-Jacques Servan Schreiber, president of the World Centre for Information and Human Resources, located in France.

There was a consensus among the speakers on the critical importance of the educational system in the management of technological change and in particular in preparing our young people for the challenges and opportunities of the future. As the father of three school-aged daughters, I know and appreciate the importance of education and preparedness for the future.

The atmosphere at the conference is very stimulating and I am certain interesting ideas and concepts will emerge. I look forward to sharing more about the conference with you in my column next week.

High-tech development

Now it is time for the government of Quebec to show that it is really serious about high technology development in the province, and particularly in Montreal.

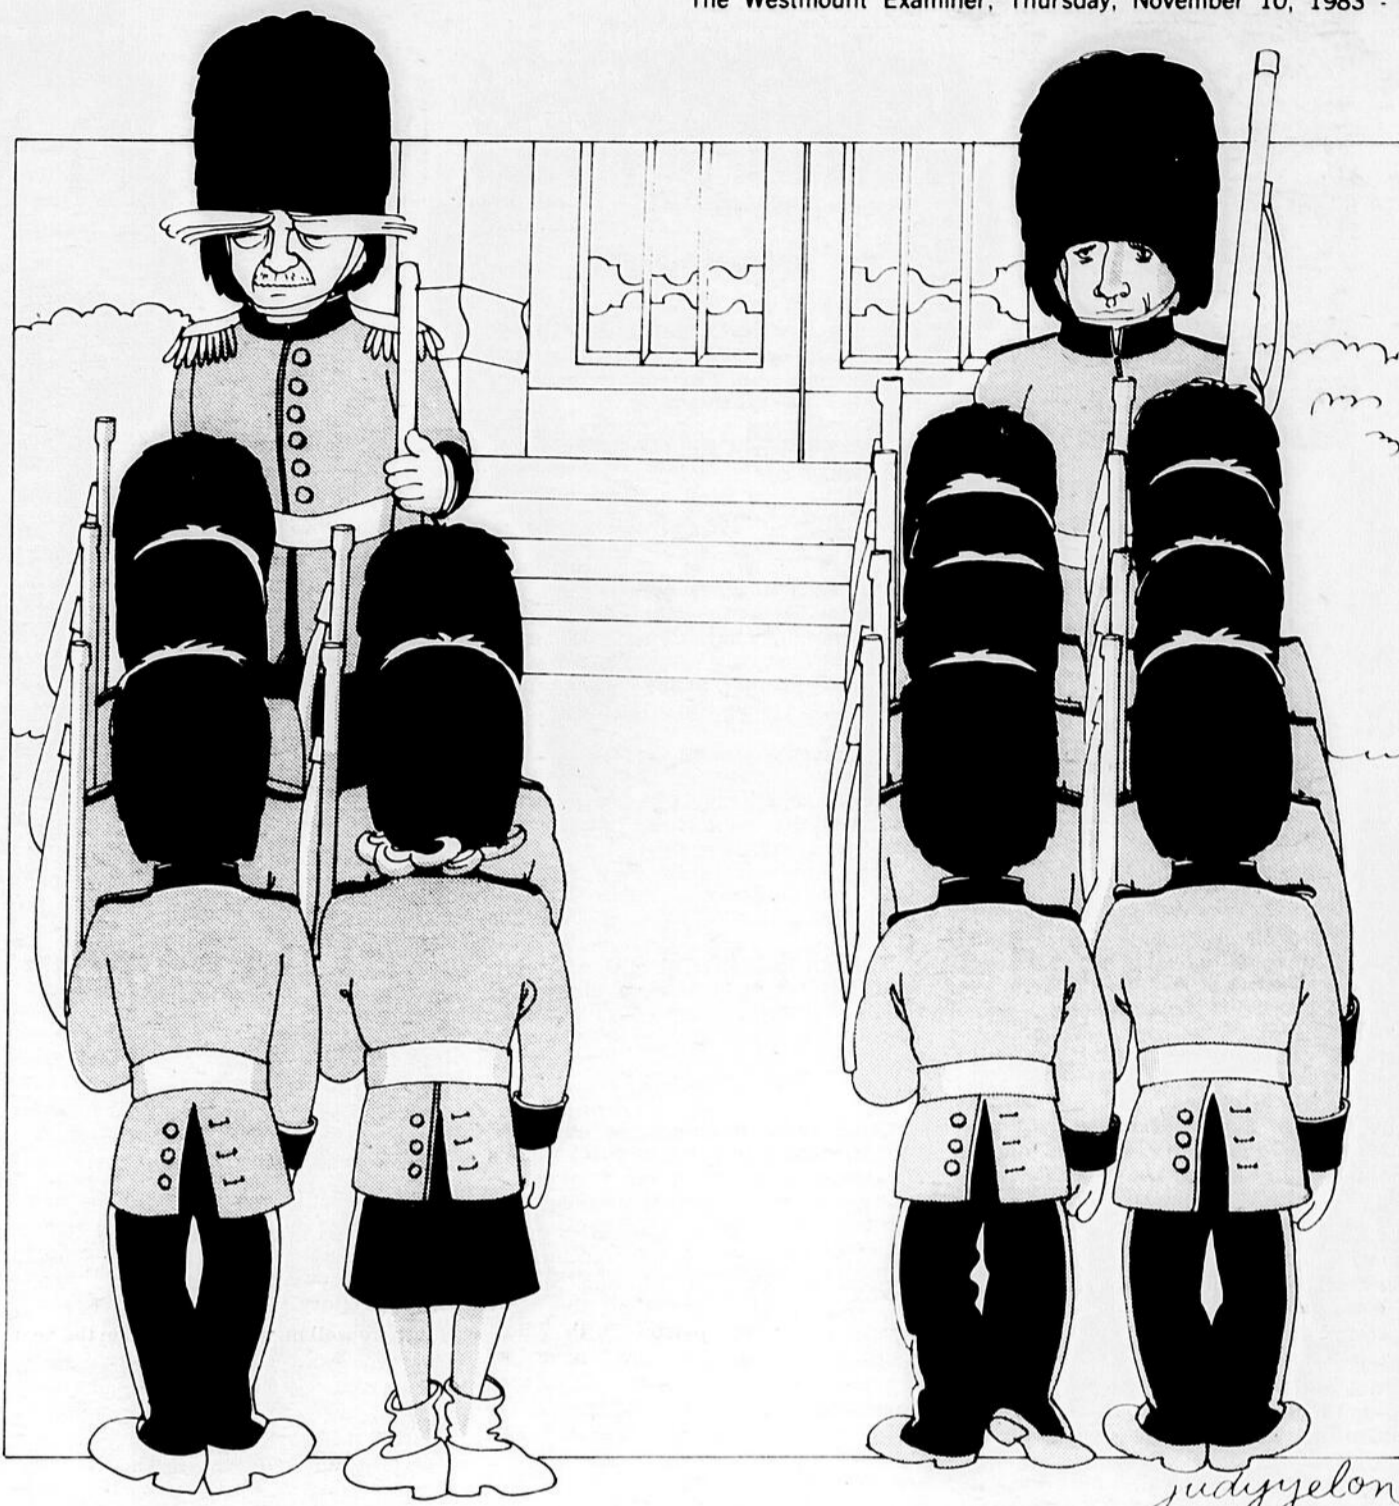

Our federal member, Don Johnston, showed last week that the government of Canada is willing to put its money where its mouth is, in biotechnology research, in aerospace industry, and elsewhere. Will Quebec do as much, and in particular, will it face up to the debilitating effects of tax rates, restrictions on access to English education, and political uncertainty on the development of R&D?

Of course, the government talks a good fight. That's its forte. But now is a uniquely appropriate opportunity to change some of the policies which are major barriers to the "Technological Turning Point" or "Virage Technologique" of which we hear so much.

Recruiting problems

For example, the minister of finance has promised a white paper on personal taxation. Will he deal with the problem of recruiting highly skilled people into the province, given interprovincial differentials in personal tax rates? Industry, especially high technology industry, is unanimous about the damaging effects of this situation for all Quebecers.

There is another disincentive deterring persons highly qualified in technological sectors from settling in Quebec. It is the fact that few of them will have a clear and unambiguous right to send their children to English schools. Such people have many options as to where to live and work, they are very demanding about the education of their children, and they are sensitive re-

Why savings bond ads unilingually French?

Sir: Following is an open letter to Hon. Donald Johnston:
Dear Mr. Johnston:

As the member of Parliament for Westmount-St. Henri, you may be in a position to answer a simple query.

Since the federal government is officially bilingual, can you explain to me why [outdoor] advertising for Canada Savings Bonds in the Montreal area is unilingually French?

If, as I suspect, the answer is that advertising for the bonds in Vancouver is unilingually English because the population is overwhelmingly English-speaking, can you then explain why advertising for the bonds in Westmount is unilingually French when the local population is by no means overwhelmingly French speaking?

Billboard advertising for federal crown corporations in the area of greater Montreal (home to almost a million English-speaking people — about the population of Vancouver as you know) has also become unilingually French in the past year.

In the light of your government's oft-stated commitment not to honor the provisions of Bill 101 requiring French unilingualism (in areas where federal jurisdiction is involved), can you tell me why these crown corporations have been permitted to flout your commitment and to ignore the English-speaking population of Montreal, which they purport to serve?

I must confess I find your party's hypocrisy in this matter irritating beyond measure.

Mr. Udy, HABITATS give warning to Mr. Fortin

Sir: I would like to use your columns to congratulate Paul Fortin on his winning the Ward 7 council seat. At the same time, I should warn him his four years on council will be no sinecure. HABITATS, the organization that closed de Maisonneuve, is now resuscitated and actively seeking new members. We will be watching closely Mr. Fortin's attendance and performance on council.

Some questions posed about local democracy

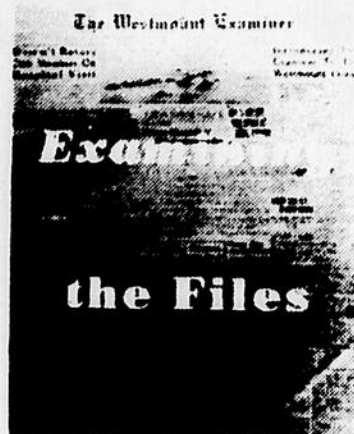

Sir: The election is over and no doubt Westmounters have elected good people to city council. However, it leaves some questions about democracy in this city.

First, the WMA carved up the city according to some logic of its own, as if the ward system did not exist. The parachuting of candidates from upper Westmount in districts below Sherbrooke street suggests a lack of respect, if not disdain, for those of us who live here. It would seem that in the judgment of the WMA we do not have any candidates of quality within our boundaries and that we do not need local representatives to defend our interests.

Second, one has to wonder about the impact of large fortress-like apartment buildings on local democracy. To some extent, the election in Ward 7 placed the homeowners who were in favor of John Udy against the apartment dwellers who voted for Paul Fortin. This was certainly true of the 4300 de Maisonneuve apartment complex, as the poll-by-poll results show. As it happens, John Udy was refused permission to campaign in that complex by the management, but Mel Nixon, campaign manager for Mr. Fortin lives there. Can Mr. Nixon assure us that there was no campaigning for Mr. Fortin in the building?

Finally, there is the discretionary use of THE EXAMINER by you, to favor certain candidates. The most flagrant example was the profile of former Newfoundland premier Frank Moores on Oct. 27 under the heading "Premier to poll captain." Two weeks

"This isn't about the last rose of summer. Here's one that blossomed halfway through the fall. Until Tuesday of this week a lone rose bloomed gaily in the garden at the rear of the residence of Mrs. G. P. McLaren, 79 Arlington avenue, and is believed to have set a record for longevity in this district at least. The flower was of medium size, about four inches in diameter. Its color was a purple-red. It blossomed some five or six weeks after the last of the other roses in the garden had withered and was in excellent condition when plucked ... Tuesday morning."

The feature was held to celebrate the 100th anniversary of an act passed in 1848 that assured the equality of French and English languages in Canada. Dr. W. P. "Westmount's ratepayers include a high proportion of Canada's top financial men and business executives — people who know how to make money work hardest. That goes for tax dollars. Far better, some believe, to let municipal taxes go unpaid at a penalty of 6 percent while the amount overdue earns more elsewhere. Ald. P. M. McEntyre and city hall officials who support him as finance commissioner are pretty quick too. Monday night city council unanimously approved his motion that advantage be taken of a recent Cities and Towns Act amendment raising the ceiling on the penalty rate. Henceforth, you'll be charged 7½ percent."

"Westmount no longer has control over the number of restaurants which can serve liquor in this community Judge Jacques Trahan has ruled, so several establishments wishing to offer alcoholic beverages with meals might soon be able to do so. The ruling, made by the Commission de contrôle des permis d'alcool du Québec, came in a judgment on an application by the St. Urbain Bar B. Q. Inc., 4469 St. Catherine street west, which was granted a permit over the protest of the city. Judge Trahan, in rendering the decision last month, cited similar cases in Chicoutimi North and Hauterive in which it had been agreed that the province had sole jurisdiction in the type and number of permits issued, so long as there was no blanket prohibition within a municipality."

Film-maker on warpath

By JOAN CAPRÉOL

DIRECTING two films of the current CBC television War series has taken all the romanticism out of war for the National Film Board's Paul Cowan. "It made me hate war," he says succinctly.

Cowan directed Anybody's Son Will Do with Judith Merritt and The Deadly Game of Nations.

The film-maker spent a month with his crew at the marine recruit training facility at Parris Island, South Carolina, for Anybody's Son Will Do. "The structure of the film was following a platoon of recruits for a period of one month out of their 11 weeks' training," says Cowan. "In a more philosophical sense it's about how you can take any 18-year-old in any country under any political system and make him a trained killer."

"We haven't shown the film to the marines to date but when they see it I think they will like it because they are very open about what they do and totally believe that what they are doing is right."

"The marines was probably the easiest film I ever made because they're so honest about what they do and what they do is so bizarre."

"You can look at it in different ways. Some think it is horrendous and others think it is virtually a recruiting film for the marines."

Filmed in Mid-East

Cowan spent two months in Israel and Lebanon during the summer of 1982 filming The Deadly Game of Nations.

"It's about countries which have gained their independence since the Second World War and how, in many cases, the people, the military and the state have grown up together and have become indivisible."

"In Israel there was a war going on and that made it difficult. I certainly had moments when I was afraid."

"It's hard moving around to get a handle on something so large and constantly changing. We didn't want to make a film on that war per se. We were trying to find a way to crystallize the experience of that war on the civilian population of Israel — why they supported the war and the price that they had paid for it and the price they would pay again which is what is depressing about it. They will do it again, again and again."

The War series took close to four years to make and Cowan worked on it off and on for two years. Gwynne Dyer designed and narrated the series. "He was the philosophical core of the series," says Cowan.

Paul Cowan is 36, 5-foot-10. He has magnetic, deep-set blue eyes and a pleasing personality.

Filmed Morgentaler

Presently Cowan is working on two films, one on Henry Morgentaler and the other on car accidents.

"I think Henry is like any hero," says Cowan. "He has got heroic qualities and very human qualities. I am editing the film now and it will be finished next spring. It is not about abortion but about the law and before the election, the usually non-controversial "profile" tells us in the opening paragraphs that one of the candidates for mayor is a delightful person who "really does care about people." Then, on Nov. 3, you appear to have let Mr. Fortin answer the question put to all the other candidates the previous week because he was away on business. However that may be, you certainly managed to omit the name of John Udy from the portrait gallery of candidates on page one. I know you say that this was a technical error, but have you no proof-readers to check on something as important as this?

So while the people have had their chance to vote (and a majority chose once again not what happens to you when you break the law."

Cowan started the second film at the Shock Trauma Centre in Baltimore, Maryland, six weeks ago. "We follow the victims of five car accidents from the time they were admitted to hospital for six months or so," he says. "We are seeing the cost of car accidents through the devastation to the victims and the victims' families."

Cowan has worked for the National Film Board for 10 years. "Giles Walker gave me my first job at the board," he says. "Giles taught me everything I know."

He directed Coaches, a one-hour film for TV; I'll go again about the Olympics in Montreal in 1976; Going the Distance about the Commonwealth games in Edmonton which was nominated for an Academy award in 1979; Stages about the Canadian performing arts; and The Kid Who Couldn't Miss about Billy Bishop, the First World War flying ace.

Paul Cowan was born in Montreal but grew up in Toronto. His parents, Bill Cowan, who was in the food importing and manufacturing business, and Margery Cowan, a former journalist, still live there.

His brother, Stephan, is a businessman in Vancouver.

Cowan attended York Mills Collegiate. He received his BSc. at Cornell University in 1969 and his MA in film-making at Stanford University in 1971.

Worked in Hollywood

After Stanford he worked for three years in Hollywood, doing everything from writing to camera work. He was associate producer of the film Best Friends.

Cowan made 10 half-hour dramas there for high schools. "They were about all teenage problems — sex, drugs, alcohol, etc.," he says.

"I liked Hollywood because that's the mecca of film-making," he says. "I joined the NFB because I wanted to make documentaries instead of features and I also wanted to stay away from the immigration service because I was working in Hollywood illegally."

On May 21 this year, Paul Cowan married the glamorous broadcaster Katie Malloch who, with Wayne Grigsby, appears on the CBC TV show Steppin' Out. Paul was born in Montreal and raised in Toronto while Katie was born in Toronto and raised in Montreal. Her father is Archie Malloch, professor of English literature at McGill University.

Among the authors Cowan admires are John Irving, Alice Munro and Mordecai Richler.

He likes ELM jazz from Europe and classical music. His favorite composer is Mahler.

To keep in shape Cowan plays squash at the Rockland Squash Club and rides his bicycle, in the summers, to the NFB.

September transfers continue recent trends

By JAMES MILLS

A SUMMARY of Westmount property transfers registered during September fits in with generally improved conditions in the local residential real estate market of recent months.

Volumes and average prices each month have been fluctuating within a broad range since the first clear signs of market recovery were noted in May registrations, but levels consistently have been higher than those recorded during the same period last year.

In September registrations, volume is up from August transfers but prices are down — in keeping with the market's month-to-month saw-saw movements since May.

Sales of 34 one- or two-family dwellings were registered during September. Prices, on average, were 8.2 percent higher than the 1983 Montreal Urban Community valuations for the properties.

Peak volume for this year — indeed, for nearly four years — was recorded in June registrations, when 59 houses changed hands at prices averaging 6.2 percent more than valuations.

Values up, volume off

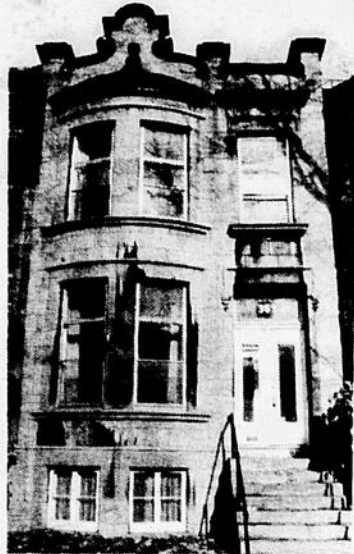

In August transfers, prices soared to a level 14.6 percent higher than valuations, but the volume of sales tumbled to 20.

September statistics fall between those for June and August. The market would appear in good shape but moving with no discernible trend.

The typical Westmount dwelling is valued at $189,718, according to averages for one- and two-family homes in the 1983 valuation roll. Since May, the expected price for such a dwelling has ranged from just over $200,000 to more than $217,000.

Were the sale of such a property registered during September, the price might have been $205,275 — low enough to keep the market moving at a reasonable rate.

In September registrations, the average price of the 34 homes sold was $185,000. The figure suggests that most of the houses sold were in the market's middle and lower ranges.

365 Olivier
Highest markup: 48 percent

The highest registered price for a Westmount residence in September was $225,000, paid for a home on Belmont avenue.

A house on Grosvenor avenue sold for $95,000, the lowest declared price in the September registrations.

Some up, some down

An Olivier avenue home was sold for $170,000 — nearly one-and-a-half times more than its $114,900 valuation — the highest price in relation to valuation for September. The greatest markdown from valuation appears in the sale of a house on Mountain avenue. Valued at $254,800, the property was sold for $152,000 — more than 40 percent less.

Two apartment buildings, a small piece of land and two condominium units in the building at the corner of Clarke avenue and Sherbrooke street also were transferred.

The multi-million dollar transfer of Alexis Nihon Plaza between two companies also appears in the September registrations.

Details of the September transfers follow:

120 Abbott: Karen Glenna Coyne to Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Beitel, sale price $102,500 (1983 MUC valuation $88,300);
12 Aberdeen: Jean Marie Cloutier to they were exhausted. Seven power men worked the weekend with only four hours' rest. Localized power losses were reported for brief periods but no general blackout hit Westmount.

Ed McCavour, city engineer, said the first salt truck hit the streets at 2:15 am Saturday and soon was joined by crews on loaders and plows.

Most damage was confined to streets north of Westmount avenue, according to Alex Heron, director of power and communications for the city.

"It was a different city up there," he said. "It was as if Westmount had been scalped. The summit was like a jungle of fallen branches. It was amazing."

The Public Security Unit alone logged close to 40 incidents related to the weather over a 24-hour period between Saturday at 9 am and Sunday.

"The weight of the wet snow on the leaves was just too much for the trees," explained John Garland, superintendent of parks and recreation.

'It's a shame'

"It's a shame," he added. "Our trees are in good condition, but when nature takes a swing at you, there's not much you can do about it."

Except pick up afterward. Five cars were reported damaged when hit by parts of trees, one twice (see separate story).

Leon Rosenbaum, of 60 Aberdeen avenue, called THE EXAMINER Saturday evening to report that a large portion of a tree had crashed down blocking the street near his house.

City workers pushed it alongside the street until tree crews could get around to cut it up.

A house on Grosvenor avenue was hit by a branch falling off a tree at civic number 704, breaking some front windows, police said. The following calls were answered by the Public Security Unit during the 24-hour period:

IN OUR COUNTRY, THESE WOMEN WOULD HAVE BEEN HONoured FOR THEIR CONTRIBUTION TO SOCIETY...

Mrs. Zhinus Mahmudi, Iran's first woman physicist, executed December 27, 1981

Mrs. Shidrukh Amir-Kiya Baqa, concert pianist, executed January 4, 1982

Mrs. Tahirih Siyavushi, nurse, hanged June 18, 1983

IN THEIR COUNTRY, THEY WERE KILLED.

On the night of Saturday, June 18th, this young woman and nine other women and teenage girls were secretly hanged by Islamic Revolutionary authorities in Shiraz, Iran.

Their crime was refusal to deny their beliefs. For three days prior to their deaths, they endured barbarous pressures to sign prepared statements converting to Islam, at the hands of Muslim clergymen, who had already murdered the husbands, son and father of four of them.

These women and girls were Bahá'is. As Bahá'is they had refrained from any involvement in partisan political agitation. As Bahá'is they believed that mankind is one human family and that the great religions, including Islam are, in their essence, one. And they believed, to the depths of their beings, that women and men are equal, with equal rights to education, opportunities and respect.

Iran's mullahs regard these beliefs as a "satanic conspiracy" against their Islamic State. In the name of religion, they are engaged in a savage campaign to force Iran's 300,000 Bahá'is to renounce their faith and convert to Islam:

- Scores of Bahá'is, including women and girls, have been shot or hanged for refusal to deny their beliefs.
- Thousands of Bahá'í families have been made homeless.
- The pensions of Bahá'is have been cancelled and their savings confiscated.

- All Bahá'í cemeteries throughout the country have been bulldozed.
- Bahá'í children have been expelled from school as "unclean infidels".

The Iranian clergy have threatened that these newest executions are only the beginning. Speaking in the government-controlled newspaper Khabar, the Islamic judge who sent the latest victims to their deaths warned:

"Before it is too late, the Bahá'ís must recant.... Otherwise, the day will soon come when the Islamic Nation will, God willing, fulfill the prayer mentioned in the Koran: 'Lord, leave not one single family of infidels on the earth'."

Iran's government, however, must take account of world opinion. Nations as diverse as Zambia, Ireland, Fiji, the United States, Panama, the Netherlands, Australia, Togo, Britain, Ghana and many others have joined in efforts at the United Nations to induce Iran to respect the minimal requirements of international law and human decency. Canadians can feel particularly proud of the leadership which our own country has shown in this endeavour.

So far, the pressure of that united opinion has prevented a tragedy of appalling dimensions. Bahá'ís of other races and cultures, in over 130 countries of the world, have joined together to bring the situation in Iran to the attention of mankind. In publishing this statement to our neighbours and friends, the Bahá'ís of Canada want to express their gratitude to the many humanitarian organizations, women's groups, journalists, leaders of thought, and Canadians of all walks of life who have shown concern and support.

Many of you have asked what you can do to assist. We feel that the most valuable contribution you can make is to express to your Member of Parliament the admiration you feel for the generous and effective efforts Canada has already made and your whole-hearted support for whatever further initiatives are now being considered.

If you would like further information on the situation of the Bahá'ís in Iran please feel free to write us.

St. Andrew's Church celebrates anniversary

The congregation of St. Andrew's properly traces its formal beginning to Nov. 3, 1900, but the roots stretch further back and are intimately connected with the growth of the community it continues to serve.

The first minister of the new St. Andrew's was the Rev. George Fulton Johnson, followed by the Rev. W. J. Clark in 1907. The cornerstone of a greatly enlarged church was laid in 1908. A well-known name in the community was that of the Rev. George F. Dewey, who was appointed director of religious education and the enrolment in the Sunday School increased to nearly 700 children.

In 1932, the Rev. F. W. Kerr was called from Winnipeg and served until 1944, winning an affectionate place in the hearts of his congregation. His objective was to make St. Andrew's "a friendly church," which it remains to this day.

His successor was the Rev. Dr. Daniel M. Grant, a native of Cape Breton, who remained at St. Andrew's for over 23 years. He was appointed minister emeritus in 1980 and passed away in Halifax in October of this year. This Sunday, during the morning service, a tribute will be paid to him as a person, a pastor and a friend.

On the night of Aug. 3, 1965, fire completely destroyed the church building. The decision to rebuild was approved by the congregation in 1966 and the cornerstone containing the items from the old church as well as current items was laid in 1967.

Dr. E. Allister Kirker became minister of the new St. Andrew's in 1968 and remained for the next 11 years. He is currently minister of Trinity United Church in Kitchener, Ontario.

The Rev. W. E. Hussey came to us from Brandon, Manitoba five years ago. He is also a native of Cape Breton. His sympathetic understanding of all ages of people has been exceptional. Rev. Bob is a very special person and his cheerful approach and understanding of today's problems will be greatly missed as he has accepted a call to St. John's Church in Moncton, New Brunswick and will leave in July 1984.

Ascension choir in concert

The 30-voice choir of the Church of the Ascension of Our Lord, Sherbrooke street west and Clarke avenue, will be heard in a concert of music for choir and organ on Sunday, at 3:30 pm.

The program will include "Thou Knowest, Lord, the Secrets of our Hearts" by Purcell, "Then Round About the Starry Throne" by Handel, "To Thy Heavenly Banquet" by Lvov, "How Lovely is Thy Dwelling-place" by Brahms and the Mass in G by Schubert.

The concert will be directed by Phillips Motley with soloists Hélène Richard, soprano, Richard McNally, tenor, and Paul Lafontaine, baritone. Mr. Motley will play the Sixth Organ Sonata by Mendelssohn.

Abramsky gives Bronfman talk

The 1983 Allan Bronfman Memorial Lecture will be delivered by Dr. Chimen Abramsky, professor and head of the department of Hebrew and Jewish Studies of the University of London, England, on Tuesday, Nov. 29 at 8:30 pm. Dr. Abramsky will speak on "War, Revolution and the Jewish Dilemma."

Congregation Shaar Hashomayim hosts the evening in its hall, 450 Kensington avenue. A reception is to follow.

Un fils de la paroisse de retour à St-Léon

C'est aujourd'hui la fête de Saint Léon en ce 10 novembre. À la paroisse Saint-Léon de Westmount, on a reporté la fête à dimanche.

A cette occasion, nous sommes heureux d'accueillir un fils de la paroisse, le père Gabriel de Lorimier, Père Blanc d'Afrique. Le père de Lorimier présidera l'eucharistie de 11h15 et y fera l'homélie (de même qu'à la messe familiale de 10h00).

Le père Gabriel de Lorimier, fils de Louis Raoul de Lorimier et de Joséphine Hébert, est né et a été baptisé dans la paroisse Saint-Léon, y a passé toute sa jeunesse et, après avoir opté pour une vocation missionnaire et être ordonné prêtre à Ottawa, c'est dans notre église qu'il a présidé sa première messe.

Sa famille était de vrais paroissiens de Saint-Léon. C'est un grand plaisir d'accueillir le père Gabriel et d'autres membres de sa famille parmi nous. Un vin d'honneur sera servi pour fêter la Saint-Léon, pour accueillir le père Gabriel et sa famille et aussi notre attaché pastoral, M. Laurier Tremblay.

Scroll award to Alan Rose for dialogue

Alan Rose, 1111 Greene avenue, executive vice-president of the Canadian Jewish Congress, recently was awarded an honorary scroll at the annual meeting of the National Tripartite Liaison Committee.

Mr. Rose is credited with "setting up Jewish-Catholic dialogue in Canada," along with Rev.

Alan Rose

Everett MacNeil of the Canadian Conference of Catholic Bishops, who also was awarded a scroll.

Accepting the award, Mr. Rose said: "In Canada, we are doing something that augments the work that was begun at Vatican II. We are proving the Jewish saying that only a heart can speak to a heart. We are showing through the NTLC that we can work together on mutual concerns. This means that there is hope for humanity when we look at problems going on in the rest of the world."

Mountains come

Mountains are special places in the psyche of man and in our mythology. They are imbued by us with spirit and personality and for many cultures they are the dwelling places of the gods. It is not at all surprising that the Nepalese consider Mt. Everest to be the mother goddess of the world. North Americans and Europeans generally have seen the mountains as areas for recreation — skiing, climbing, hiking — but those who have been too bold or simply been in the wrong place at the wrong time have paid with their lives. The Lakeshore Dog Training Association will hold obedience trials during the weekend. The show is open Fri., 1-9 pm, Sat., Sun., 9 am to 8 pm.

Cossacks are coming

If it's excitement you're looking for in a show, it would be hard to beat the Kasatka Cossacks who will be singing and dancing Wednesday until Nov. 19, at Théâtre Maisonneuve de Place des Arts. You will get lots of balalaika music from the musicians, breathtaking leaping about from the dancers and Slavonic songs from the singers. You don't have to worry about supporting a show from the U.S.S.R.; the troupe is composed of Soviet Union expatriates. The company was formed in England in 1977 by Goggi Bestavachnili.

Dickens on stage

The English Department of McGill University is presenting Richard Ouzounian's adaptation of the Charles Dickens classic Nicholas Nickleby, Wednesday until Nov. 20 and Nov. 23-27, 8 pm, in Moyses Hall of the Arts Building of McGill. Strings join singers

Several singers whose names you probably wouldn't recognize and a nameless string quartet will be giving a concert Wednesday, 8 pm, in Notre Dame de Lourdes Church, 4949 Verdun Avenue. A piano will be thrown in for good measure and it will be played by Marjorie Tanaka. Admission is free.

Music at A and P

Even if you believe in evolution you can't deny the beauty of Haydn's "Creation." Darwin himself probably enjoyed it. You can hear the choir of the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul singing it Sunday, 8 pm, at the Church, corner of Sherbrooke and Bishop streets. The choir will be under the direction of Wayne Riddell. There is no truth to the rumor that he prepared the choir in only six days. Admission is free but a voluntary offering will be collected.

Goode music Sunday

Richard Goode, a pianist, will perform Sunday, 3:30 pm, in Pollack Hall, 555 Sherbrooke street west. He will perform works by Beethoven and Schumann. This concert is sponsored by the Ladies' Morning Musical Club.

Cellist performs

Leonard Rose, a cellist by any other name, will give a concert Monday, 8 pm, at Place des Arts. You should all go out to hear him because he needs the money for a new cello. The one he uses now was built in 1662. It is a rare Amati cello. This concert is part of the Pro Musica series for which you can buy a subscription. Call 845-0532 for ticket information.

Golem concerts

Bill Staines, folksinger, will be performing tonight, 9 o'clock, at the Golem Coffee House, 3460 Stanley street.

Eric Andersen will be performing Saturday, 7:30 and 10:30 pm.

He is billed as one of folk music's legendary songwriters.

Music from McGill

Paul Helmer, pianist, will perform tonight, 8 o'clock, at Pollack Hall, 555 Sherbrooke street west. He will play music by Brahms. On Monday, Bruce Bower, a bassoonist, will give a concert titled "French Recital Music for Bassoon." He will be accompanied by oboe, cello and keyboard. Harry Datyner, another pianist, will give a concert of music by Bach, Haydn, Chopin and Debussy. Student soloists and ensembles give brief recitals Tuesdays at 5 pm. All the concerts are free.

A varied show

Ronald Bourgeois and Chantal Beupré, two singer-songwriters and interpreters, will be part of a show called "Rideau sur la Troisième Vague" Monday, 8 pm, at the Félix Leclerc Theatre, 1450 St. Catherine street east. Also on the bill are Steve Burman, pianist, Daniel Lemire, monologist, and two groups called Orange and Fanfanie. The show is presented by an organization called Réseau Accès whose aim is to give young professionals a chance and to bring quality shows to the public.

Exhibits about town

Flower guides needed

The Montreal Botanical Gardens needs volunteer guides for the greenhouses. All you need is a love of plants, a slight knowledge of horticulture and a half day per week of free time. If you'd like to tip-toe through the dieffenbachia call Sarah Stevenson at 934-0612 or the gardens at 252-1568.

Children's author at library

Children's science-fiction writer Monica Hughes will be appearing at the Westmount Public Library next week as part of the Children's Book Festival, which lasts from Nov. 14 to 19.

Mrs. Hughes will be holding two readings at the library. One, for young people between the ages of 12 and 16, will be held on Monday from 10 to 11 am. The other will be given Tuesday from 7 to 9 pm for the Quebec Library Association, although the public is invited to attend.

A resident of Edmonton, Mrs. Hughes has had 13 books published since 1974 and has won several awards for her work, including a Canada Council Children's Literary Prize in 1982. Her science-fiction novels are youth-oriented, expressing a wish, she says, to "explore the feelings, the needs and ideals of young people in the world of tomorrow."

Mrs. Hughes will also be reading at the Atwater Library and autographing books at the Double Hook book store on Greene avenue on Nov. 18.

At the September Arts Westmount Festival, he exhibited an acrylic work, "The Sea," from his acrylic series.

He intends to continue showing

Family support and information evenings will begin at the Institute of Psychiatry for Community and Family, 4333 Côte St. Catherine road, on Wednesday, Nov. 16, at 7:30 pm.

Calligraphers to meet here

The next general meeting of La Société des Calligraphes will be held at 7:30 pm on Thursday, Nov. 24, at the Visual Arts Centre, 350 Victoria avenue.

Featured on the evening's program will be a slide show illustrating different techniques in the art of beautiful hand lettering. Admission will be free, and coffee will be served. All calligraphers and prospective members are invited to attend.

The society will sponsor a one-day workshop on Sunday, Nov. 27, demonstrating the various steps in preparing items for the printer.

Further information on the group's programs and membership may be obtained by calling 487-7468.

Kastel shows Chase works

Works by Sherril Chase are to be shown at the Kastel Gallery on Greene avenue beginning Monday and continuing until Nov. 26.

Ms. Chase, a Montreal artist who spent several years working in Sweden, was awarded a Frothingham scholarship while studying at the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts in the 1960s. She has studied with Arthur Lismer, Tondino, Patrick Landsley and Claude Tousignant, whose influences may be marked in her current work.

The fire was discovered in a container in a washroom. Firefighters were called to the scene at 12:35 pm. The fire was put out with a chemical fire extinguisher.

Two youths at the social centre were believed responsible for the incident. The only damage reported was to paint on the wastebasket.

75th anniversary is marked by Selwyn House School

By JAMES MILLS

Celebrations of Selwyn House School's 75th anniversary began in September and will continue for the rest of the year, according to Robert Manion, headmaster.

Festivities reached their peak Wednesday last week, the school's annual Founder's Day, with a day-long schedule of activities for students, Old Boys, staff and parents.

Approximately 450 students and their teachers crowded the lawn before city hall Wednesday morning for an aerial photograph. (See story last week.)

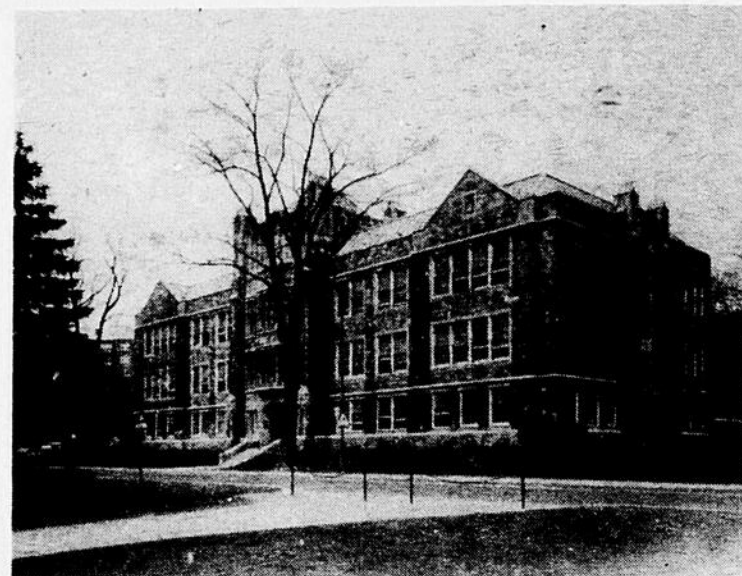

Wednesday evening, a cocktail party was given at the school in honor of the anniversary, followed by an Old Boys' dinner at 8 pm, to which some 250 former students had been invited.

Caps once worn by students, old grading books, pictures and other memorabilia were to be on display.

The evening was the first opportunity many had had to view new facilities in the school, completed during a major renovation project this summer. With help from the McConnell foundation, new science labs were created at the school.

The school's dining room also was enlarged during the renovation project, made possible with a gift from Mrs. Elizabeth Coristine.

Tuesday, at the school's regular weekly assembly, a large birthday cake was cut in honor of the anniversary.

Selwyn House School

A group of boys were to travel to Ottawa Thursday and a special meeting had been arranged with Prime Minister Trudeau, who was invited to attend celebrations at the school but could not attend.

Other activities undertaken by students of the school include the planting of 1,000 tulips — black and yellow to match the school's colors — which should bloom in the spring. Jack Martin, a former teacher of the school, supervised the planting.

Trees are planted

A number of trees also were to be planted near the school.

Posters and buttons commemorating the anniversary adorn the school. For 75 hours of reading or other special projects, boys are presented with their own poster or button.

In their art classes, the boys have been preparing birthday cards for the school.

Grade 4 boys, in an ambitious campaign, managed to raise $600

Selwyn surviving, thriving

Selwyn House School marked its 75th anniversary Wednesday last week with the news that its endowment fund had reached the $1 million mark.

Founder's Day and anniversary celebrations were attended that night by parents and old boys of the Westmount school.

The endowment fund results were reported by A. Blaikie Purvis who said that it was hoped to build the fund to a total of $3.5 million to ensure the school's "independence and quality."

Robert Manion, headmaster, said in his address that those associated with the school were looking to the future "to see where we are headed."

"We are not only surviving but thriving," he pointed out.

Concerns for the future of private education everywhere, he said, include government intervention, enrolment, computer science and technology as well as moral awareness.

towards the purchase of books for the school library.

Selwyn House School began in a private apartment in Montreal in 1908. Seven boys had their education entrusted to Algernon Lucas. The school soon took up residence on MacKay street, where it remained until 1930.

That year, the school moved to a building on Redpath street, where it remained until 1961.

The sudden death of Geoffrey Wanstall, who owned the school, in 1945 threatened the future of the school, since no provision had been made for its continuity. A group of Old Boys were able to purchase the school and their association today still owns the school.

In 1961, Selwyn House School moved to Westmount, occupying Argyle School which had served as Westmount's high school until then.

Mr. Manion, who became headmaster in 1981, is only the sixth to hold that position since the school was founded.

TRIBUTE DINNER: The Montreal Men's Organization for Rehabilitation through Training will honor Hilde and David Weissman, 480 Roslyn avenue, at a dinner of tribute Nov. 20. The ORT intends to acknowledge the contributions made by the Weissmans to many organizations and institutions, particularly the ORT.

Girl, 11, struck by car passing bus

An 11-year-old girl living on Lansdowne avenue was taken to hospital last Thursday afternoon when she was hit by a car on The Boulevard, police said.

The accident took place about 3:36 pm near the Roslyn-Edgehill intersection while a public safety officer was waiting at the light at Grosvenor avenue.

He was told by a motorist that a child had just been hit and he proceeded to the scene, calling for an ambulance and MUC police assistance.

The child was reported to have been in considerable pain and was crying.

Police said a westbound bus had been stopped at Edgehill on the north side of The Boulevard when the girl was crossing. She apparently was struck by a westbound car passing the bus in the outer lane.

The driver of the car, a blue 1980 Oldsmobile, lived in Côte St. Luc.

Gas fumes bring firemen

Gasoline fumes from a car were found leaking into a house at 425 Mount Stephen avenue Saturday night, according to Public Security officials.

Firemen were called to the scene and found gas leaking from the car in the garage. The owner removed the car.

Commonwealth society meets in Victoria Hall

The November meeting of the Royal Commonwealth Society, to be held next Wednesday at 8 pm in the east lounge of Victoria Hall, features Mr. G. A. Rogers who will speak on "Where Your Ancestors Came From."

Refreshments will be served at the meeting, for which there is an admission charge of $7.50.

The society's Christmas party is planned for Dec. 8 in the Montreal Badminton and Squash Club on Atwater avenue. Don Ellis is to lead carols with assistance from Miss Barwick. Col. Barrett will accompany the singers. Refreshments, prizes and surprises are promised to those in attendance.

Those who intend to take in either meeting are advised to contact the society beforehand. The society office, due to close next spring, is located at 1260 University street, suite 202. For more information, call 866-0337.

Foundation Rotary topic

The Rotary Foundation, which provides scholarships to worthy students world-wide, was praised by Past District Governor Luke Bertrand at the Westmount club's weekly Wednesday luncheon at Victoria Hall last week, this being Rotary Foundation Month.

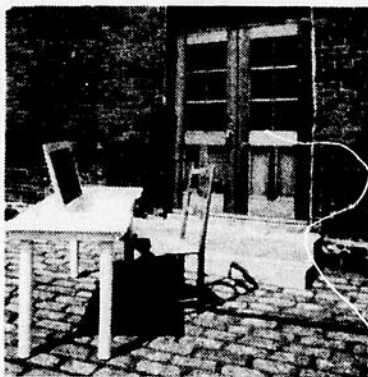

Mr. Bertrand has been a charter member of the Ste. Thérèse club since 1965 and has been the recipient of several Rotary awards and citations.

Matches ignite in bathroom

Matches left in a medicine cabinet ignited Sunday morning in an apartment at 4300 de Maisonneuve boulevard, Public Security officials said.

The fire apparently was out upon the arrival of firefighters called to apartment 1026 at 11:15 am.

The matches had been stored in a cabinet where the fire was confined. No damage to the room was reported.

mount, home to one higher up the mountain very soon; Dr. Donald Gravenor is putting in many hours and effort each week as a doctor at the Jewish General and elsewhere; John David is going to Concordia, worked during the summer and part-time the rest of the year for Bell Canada; Kristian is going to McGill University, works part-time for the Bell, also as a photographer. While all three of the boys' sisters work, the youngest, Tanis, is a part-time photographer and attends Dawson College. They don't know what unemployment is.

At least four of the above have been very active in various religious, charity, community and beneficial urban projects. To the best of my knowledge they are all non-smokers, 100 percent healthy.

The PQ suggestion of half a dozen years ago which these young men opposed about "putting in time in the national service" is out of order, like so many other notions.

This letter is written as an "update" on a six-year-old published lengthy letter in THE EXAMINER.

Bill 101 hearings missed main point

Sir: The Bill 101 hearings in Quebec City did not even touch upon the most important elements of this legislation but instead set off the usual nonsensical debate in Montreal's trendy left-lib press over what the "moderate approach" should be.

The "moderates" are those who accept this bigoted, discriminatory legislation as necessary to preserve the French language and keep Quebec receiving all of the financial benefits derived from its present association with Canada.

The tragic unemployment and welfare figures in Montreal are overlooked or blamed on the recession. The legality of Bill 101 is never questioned in the hope of reaching a "consensus" with the Québécois nationalists over what concessions they will make to 1.3 million non-francophones whom the Federal government claims are now "on their own," i.e. no longer under the direct jurisdiction of either the Canadian Parliament or the Canadian courts.

In this way they tried to erect the usual smokescreen to distract attention away from the key elements in this legislative act:

1) The legislation itself is unconstitutional and beyond the competence of the Assemblée Nationale to enact. It has been kept in force by the delaying tactics of federally appointed justices of the Quebec Superior Court who have yet to hear the Quebec Federation of Home & School Association's case against 31 articles of Bill 101. This delay of over five years has placed the entire judicial process in Quebec under a cloud of doubt and suspicion;

2) The billions of dollars now required to subsidize the economy of the City of Montreal for the self-inflicted losses resulting from this legislation. The Canadian economy cannot afford to increase its spiralling deficit to accommodate legislation like Bill 101 and the massive subsidies now paid out to replace private capital with public debt in Montreal will have to be curtailed. Canadian Business Magazine (August '83) places the minimum figures at 130 major corporations and 40,000 jobs lost in Montreal since 1977. The unfortunate spin-off of this movement outward is now reflected in the collapse of so many retail operations in Montreal.

3) The futility of trying to elicit a response through provincial members like Gerald Godin. Clearly one must get above people like Mr. Godin to those in the federal government who are financing operations, as in the recent Bell Helicopter deal. This American company would not locate here so the federal government handed over $165 millions of the Canadian taxpayers' money as an inducement and then had the PQ exempt the Americans working in Quebec from Bill 101 for six years.

The federal government is the largest employer in the Montreal area yet it adheres to Bill 101 rather than to the BNA Act or to its own Official Language Act. MPs like the Hon. Don Johnston try to tell their constituents that Bill 101 is "sufficient protection for their rights" but turn around and exempt foreign nationals from legislation which has been illegally forced upon Canadian citizens.

This despicable double standard will be a key 1984 federal election issue in all of the Montreal area ridings where non-francophones have a significant vote base.

gratulated other candidates and pledged to work together with the new council and city staff.

"We have a job to do together," he said, "not necessarily to improve Westmount, but to polish it here and polish it there."

Mr. Gallery singled out his opponent, Mr. Nutik, saying he had run an excellent campaign and had "got a lot of support."

He said he looked forward to having Mr. Nutik at the council meetings "as a friend."

"There will be no necessity to have an opposition, because we will give them the information with a smile," he said.

Both he and Mr. Nutik had run on promises of open government.

Mr. Nutik, who made no official address, also claimed victory.

He attributed the retirement of the outgoing mayor, Donald MacCallum, as well as the recent resignation of the city's general manager, John McIver, to the role played in opposing the outgoing city council.

Rejected ballots hit 188

There were 188 rejected ballots in Monday's election, according to results released by the returning officer, Peter Patenaude.

More mayoral ballots were rejected, 119, than aldermanic ballots.

A rejected ballot, according to election officials, is one which has been put in the ballot box, and has been rejected during the count. It might have been unmarked or bear unacceptable markings, for example.

Spoilt ballots, on the other hand, are those which have never been put into the ballot box.

The highest number of rejected ballots in any ward came in the mayoralty race in ward 4, where 26 were found to be unacceptable.

Voters in ward 1, the area of the city north of The Boulevard, ruined the lowest number of aldermanic ballots, only five. They had three candidates to choose from.

The highest number, 18, came from ward 7 in the Fortin-Udy aldermanic fight.

Gallery replies to remark

Mayor-elect Brian Gallery was quick to reply to a remark by his predecessor Mayor Donald MacCallum during the reporting of Monday night's election results in the council chamber.

The outgoing mayor had called Mr. Gallery the "best of a couple of bad choices" and called the result of the entire election "the best we could have achieved."

Mr. Gallery told THE EXAMINER later:

"I am deeply disappointed that Mayor MacCallum could make his personal feelings public on such an occasion, the evening of my victory as new mayor."

Mr. MacCallum has made a similar statement during his speech at the opening of the official opening of the flower show, saying that neither of the two choices for mayor were his favorites.

Percentage results

Since only 33 percent of eligible voters cast ballots in Monday's municipal elections, all successful candidates for council positions received even smaller percentages when viewed in terms of eligible voters.

Although mayor-elect Brian Gallery won 68 percent of all votes cast, this translates into just 22.4 percent of all eligible electors in the city.

By comparison, his opponent Allen Nutik's 30-percent of the vote became 9.8 percent of the eligible vote.

Percentages in the table of poll results on this page are worked out on the basis of eligible voters.

Percentages of the actual votes cast, exclusive of rejects, are as follows for aldermanic and mayoral candidates:

Ward 1: McPherson 46, Leider 34, Fleming 20. Gallery 70 and Nutik 29.

Ward 2: Aspinall 63, Hancock 36. Gallery 63 and Nutik 35.

Ward 3: Trent 54, Ham 44. Gallery 71 and Nutik 27.

Ward 4: Aitken 85, Boucher 14. Gallery 63 and Nutik 33.

Ward 5: Shingler 55, Fernandes 43. Gallery 69 and Nutik 28.

Ward 6: (Alderman acclaimed) Gallery 75 and Nutik 24.

Ward 7: Fortin 62, Udy 35. Gallery 65 and Nutik 32.

Ward 8: (Alderman acclaimed) Gallery 72 and Nutik 26.

'Rally for Sally' brings Monday's biggest victory

By LAUREEN SWEENEY

The "Rally for Sally" campaign chalked up the biggest victory in Monday's vote.

Sally Aitken, alderman-elect in ward 4, recorded the largest margin of the vote of any candidate — 82 percent of those votes cast in her ward — to defeat Paul Boucher.

All WMA candidates won election to city council in Monday's vote, although two of the aldermanic candidates "squeaked through" in closely fought battles at the polls.

Both Peter Trent, in ward 3, and John Shingler, ward 5, won over Keith Ham and Neil Fernandes, respectively, by less than 70 votes.

Mr. Trent took 54 percent of the vote; Mr. Shingler, 55 percent.

Two favor user-pay

Curiously, both Mr. Trent and Mr. Fernandes favored some form of user-pay, though one lost and one won.

Ian McPherson, the only man in the election to emerge victorious from a three-way race, picked up 46 percent, compared to Arnold Leider's 34 percent and Ray Fleming's 20 percent.

Results in wards 2 and 7 were almost identical in numbers.

Winners Phillip Aspinall and Paul Fortin earned 63 percent and 64 percent of the vote respectively over opponents Richard Hancock and John Udy.

Peter Duffield, in ward 8, and Joan Rothman, ward 6, previously had been acclaimed when they were unopposed.

Dogs and kids provide only incidents

Election day in Westmount: it went without major incident, except for the dogs and the children.

Judging by the number of dogs who eagerly showed up at polling locations, a few registered canines on the electoral list might have upped the turnout.

After all, dogs had been an issue in several wards.

They weren't acceptable at the polls, however, as some electors found out to their dismay.

One special constable, a public safety officer, found himself holding the other end of the leash so one woman could cast her ballot, pooch-less.

Another dog managed to slip into the voting process and wasn't noticed until after he, and owner, were on their way out. He was believed to be the only dog who got to "vote."

A few mishaps occurred when people forgot that St. Andrew's United Church was being used as a polling location.

One young student at the school there was dropped off by a parent and left in tears just as the polls were opening at 9 am.

After a while, the special constable in charge managed to contact her father. Meanwhile, he found himself babysitting, as well as maintaining order.

At the other end of the day, Beavers arrived in force for the regular meeting, just as those in charge were locking the door to close down the voting.

The Beaver meeting had to be cancelled so ballots could be counted.

Gym renovations completed just in the nick of time

The gym has finally been completed! The good news came as the first snowflakes came down and turned into slush, making it impossible to hold gym classes outside. It was fun while the good weather lasted but good things don't last forever...

With construction finished, indoor classes were held in the renovated gym this week. Rules pertaining to the wearing of running shoes on the new shiny floor were strictly enforced.

Speaking about running, Jennifer Williams came fourth in the Quebec Provincial Cross Country Championship. Congratulations, Jen!

In other gym news, intramural sports will be offered this year. Students will have a large variety of sports to choose from, including volleyball, table tennis, hand ball, gymnastics and borden ball. Tennis court boundaries also are being painted in the gym for the first time. Sport fans at WHS

Integrative language arts new at WPS

An innovative educational program is now being experienced by a class of 25 grade 1 children at Westmount Park School, announced principal Richard Jack at the Nov. 1 school committee meeting.

Prepared by McGraw Hill-Ryerson Ltd., the Integrative Language Arts program combines reading, spelling, human sciences and art in one educational package.

The program, which is closely monitored by the school and the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal, "looks good at this point" according to Mr. Jack. A workshop arranged between program teachers and McGraw Hill representatives will take place on Nov. 10 at PSBGM headquarters on Fielding avenue in Notre Dame de Grâce.

The program will be evaluated upon its completion in June and, if authorized by the ministry of education, it will become a school option, possibly to be extended to grade 2.

won't have any reason to complain. Their achievements will also add points to their school letters.

The Hotel Bonaventure was chosen for this year's graduation dinner and dance, which is to be held on May 25. The grad committee is hard at work thinking of ways to raise funds. A swim-athon, a Christmas card sale, grad t-shirts, bottle drive and a garbage bag sale are being considered. A Christmas dinner for

PSBGM funding discussed

Unauthorized pre-kindergarten classes within the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal came under discussion at the Nov. 1 Westmount Park school committee meeting.

Some classes are termed unauthorized, because while many pre-kindergarten classes running in PSBGM schools receive authorized subsidies from the ministry of education, those in four schools — Bedford, Parkdale, Iona and Coronation — are completely funded by the PSBGM.

Richard Jack, principal, pointed out that the PSBGM was "dubious" about further unauthorized pre-kindergarten classes. It would, he says, require additional heavy expenditures by the PSBGM.

"When you get down to basics," said Mr. Jack, "the money is taken away from existing programs, and that program has to be cut."

Computer talk raises sparks

The use of computers in the classroom raised a few sparks at the St. Léon de Westmount school committee meeting Tuesday evening.

Initial computer lessons in English for grades 5 and 6 were discussed, one parent saying the demand for English-language computer operators was too great to be ignored.

Another parent argued that computer lessons in English would make pupils forget the appropriate French. Many St. Léon's students are anglophones.

If computer basics are learnt first, was the reply, language was no problem.

Responding to parents' concerns about the effects of computers on education, one teacher present said it would be the wrong idea to think computers will replace the way subjects such as math are currently taught.

Everyone at the meeting admitted they had no personal knowledge of computers. Their information, both pro and con, had been gathered from what they had heard on the subject.

"It depends on whom you talk to," concluded one parent.

the teachers has been suggested, as well. We hope committee members have time left for homework and wish them success in their endeavors.

A first for WHS

The energetic new students council is planning to invite speakers and performers from various ethnic groups to perform for students. They invite volunteers and suggestions. Please! Thank You!

Another first: the school auditorium is now open twice a week for lunchtime fun and entertainment. This week, it's "The Breakers". In case you didn't know, breaking is a type of dance consisting of acrobatics and fancy footwork. It originated in New York among the street gangs who vented their aggressiveness in dance instead of fights. Eventually, it turned into a quickly growing art form. Many people in the U.S. enjoy participating or just watching breaking. It now starts "breaking" onto the Montreal scene, and WHS won't be caught behind.

The boys did not turn up, although they were invited. This time, it was an invitation to be part of the WHS cheerleading squad. So the team is all girls, and we hope the boys won't complain of discrimination.

Parents raise school funds

Balancing the school budget through fund-raising activities was the main topic under discussion at the St. Léon de Westmount school committee meeting Tuesday evening.

The committee has already raised $3,000 this school year, but would "like to start the new year with an additional $2,000," said one parent.

"The funds provided by the Montreal Catholic School Commission are very meagre."

Fund-raising proposals included various public sales, student stage productions and St. Léon pupils making Christmas and New Year's cards to be sold over the holiday season.

Money raised will go for school excursions out of Montreal, St. Léon's Winter Show, trips to the theatre and a proposed chess course.

McGill honors Westmounters

Senator Hartland Molson, 21 Rosemount avenue, received an honorary doctor of laws degree from McGill University at a convocation held at Place des Arts on Nov. 1.

The event also signalled the final convocation presided over by McGill Chancellor Conrad Harrington, 556 Lansdowne avenue. Presenting Sen. Molson with his degree, Mr. Harrington cited "the Molson family's continuous interest in McGill."

Also honored during the ceremony were Westmounters Dr. Harold Segal, who received a doctor of science degree, and Dr. Robert E. Bell, who became professor emeritus of medicine.

Flashing off

A loose roof flashing at 518 Grosvenor avenue was removed by firefighters Friday, Public Security officials report.

Election night at city hall

Brian Gallery, mayor-elect, addressed the crowd at city hall Monday evening after his victory.

Allen Nutik, left, had words for the press after his defeat by Brian Gallery in the race for mayor.

Phillip Aspinall, left, and Peter Trent seem pleased with their victories in wards 2 and 3 respectively.

Allen Nutik will continue council critic

Mayoral candidate Allen Nutik, who won 30 percent of the votes cast Monday, says he'll continue his watch-dog role at city council meetings and will represent his constituency.

"I'm truly delighted that 30 percent of the voters support the principle of change that I was hoping to bring," he said.

"I'll be there to represent my constituency — if not on the council, then on the floor of the council chamber."

Mr. Nutik said he congratulated Mr. Gallery and the new council and would "give them time to prove they can govern Westmount."

"But if they don't," he added, "I'll always be there and ready to do the job."

For now, council critic Nutik is looking forward to obtaining all the answers to all the questions he was denied by the outgoing mayor.

He and mayor-elect Brian Gallery appeared on amicable terms as they spoke together Monday night awaiting election returns.

"I really believe he cares about Westmount," Mr. Gallery said of Mr. Nutik during his acceptance speech, adding, "I'm saying that publicly."

Mr. Nutik recorded his highest vote in ward 2 where he scored 35 percent of those voting.

Mr. Gallery's single most successful poll was number 39 in ward 6 in which the Mother House of the Congrégation Notre Dame voted. There he won 108 votes to Mr. Nutik's one.

Mayor's schedule fills up

Brian Gallery had been mayor-elect for a few scant hours when he already had a schedule laid out for the busy days ahead.

Tuesday, he had lunch with Frank Davis, the city's acting general manager to discuss the change-over and initial meetings with the council.

Today, the new council was expected to get together informally for the first time to get to know one another and to do some future planning.

The swearing-in of the new council takes place Monday evening and the first regular public council meeting is set for Nov. 21.

Allen Nutik, left, had a run-in with the public security officers about where he could walk.

Hockey in full swing; bantam Bruins take Leafs

With hockey already in full swing in the city of Westmount, can winter be very far behind?

The Westmount hockey program has begun its operations with all leagues now under way.

The bantams opened up their season last Tuesday with two games. The Leafs took on the Bruins, and the Flames squared off against the Rangers.

In the first game, Gabi Hasko and Alain Turcot scored two goals apiece to lead the Bruins to a 4-1 victory over the Leafs. The Leafs' lone goal was scored by Russell Blumer.

The next game saw the Flames edge the Rangers 3-2 on Brendan Mahar's second goal of the game early in the third period. Christian Robitaille scored the other Flame goal, while Stephen Barkman and Marc Duquette scored for the Rangers.

The senior league gets under way this week with all teams opening up their seasons either

Tuesday or Thursday night.

The peewee all-stars have begun their season and have yet to lose a game. Thus far, they boast a 3-0 record and have outscored their opponents 30-6 through the three games.
