BUT THE OVERPASS DIDN'T MOVE — The driver of this semi-trailer found out that the railroad overpass at the intersection of Galt and Federal streets in Sherbrooke was pretty solid yesterday when his trailer proved to be too high to go beneath it. The 13'6" high trailer, which sells for around $16,000, had the top torn off and the frame and sides extensively damaged when it passed under the 12'1" structure. The driver, unfamiliar with the city streets, was en route to the company's depot on Bourque Blvd. from Halifax at 4:45 p.m. and couldn't see the height marker on the overpass. The cargo was unloaded in the evening and after the trailer was brought back to a straightened form left the scene almost six hours after the incident occurred.

All-out police search on

MONTREAL (CP) — An all-out police search is under way for five convicts, described as extremely dangerous, who escaped from the Laval maximum security prison Wednesday with the help of a woman visitor who smuggled in three revolvers.

The escaped prisoners were identified as Jean-Paul Mercier, 29, Richard Blass, 29, Pierre Vincent, 29, Edgar Roussel, 28, and Robert Frappier, 27.

Minutes after the escape, police took a 22-year-old woman into custody for questioning. She was described as a friend of Mercier.

The prisoners escaped in a car from the prison parking lot and drove to Montreal North where they switched to another vehicle, taking the driver hostage.

The driver of the second car, Claude Ouellet, 32, a post office investigator, was locked in the trunk of his vehicle when the convicts abandoned it after a 25-minute drive.

"They told me to keep my mouth shut and everything would be fine," said Mr. Ouellet after he freed himself from the trunk with a tire iron.

TWO INJURED

He said two of the men had bleeding hand wounds and the convict at the wheel drove fast. "We almost crashed into the rear of a couple of cars and several times police cars crossed our paths."

Four of the men—Vincent, Blass, Mercier and Roussel—had escaped from area penitentiaries before.

In Ottawa, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said he was surprised as well as "disgusted" at the escape.

He said he could not explain how the woman got the guns past the usual checks and why the five convicts were in the visitors' room at the same time.

Police said one of the prisoners pulled a knife on a guard while two others smashed their fists into the glass partition separating prisoners and visitors.

One convict reached through the broken glass and picked up a bag containing three revolvers.

BREAK OUT

"That's when all hell broke loose," said Laval Grondin, assistant director of the penitentiary.

"The convicts started shooting in the visitors' room to intimidate the guards, forcing them at gunpoint to open doors. There were about 10 persons in the visitors' room. Women were screaming and crying."

Mercier was serving a life term for murder, holdups, attempted murder and escaping from prison. Blass has a 15-year sentence for attempted murder, holdups, assaulting a police officer and car theft.

Vincent was serving 15 years for armed robbery, possession of an offensive weapon and escape. Frappier was serving 12 years for armed robberies, conspiracy to commit armed robberies and kidnapping.

Roussel was serving seven years for holdups and escaping.

Unhealthy hamburger queried

OTTAWA (CP) — The food prices review board has become involved in another disagreement with the Liberal government, this time over inspection of ground meat.

Board Chairman Beryl Plumptre, fresh from a tiff with Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan over the rotten egg scandal, said Wednesday the government has virtually given meat merchants a licence to sell substandard hamburger.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde replied that Mrs. Plumptre should become better informed and that germs are no problem if hamburger is well cooked. He recommended cooking the meat at 160 degrees or more to destroy any health hazards.

"That's fine if everyone likes to eat hamburger well done," Mrs. Plumptre shot back at a news conference.

She said inspection services by Mr. Lalonde's department are inadequate. The government and meat sellers were not doing enough to see that hamburger is safe to eat.

CITES COST

But Mr. Lalonde replied in an interview later that to strive for food products without bacteria would be "horrendously expensive."

"We have to have realistic standards."

Last June, the board reported that the health department tested only 105 samples of ground beef for bacterial content between January, 1972, and December, 1973. At that time, the board urged the government to increase inspection services and to enforce accurate fat-content labelling on ground beef.

Mrs. Plumptre said Canadians ate about 450 million pounds of hamburger in 1973, about 393 million pounds of it at home.

"The number of samples by government inspection were infinitesimal when compared with the amount of ground beef sold and eaten. . . ."

Mr. Lalonde, who recently suggested that Canadians try powdered milk to avoid the rising costs of whole milk, said health inspection costs must be considered.

SAYS IMPOSSIBLE

"You can't have an inspector in every shop in Canada, just like you can't have one policeman for every citizen."

The unhealthy hamburger controversy erupted after a CBC television program reported Sunday that a survey discovered bacteria from fecal contamination and staphylococcus in a number of hamburger samples collected in the Toronto - Hamilton - Kitchener area.

In the Commons Wednesday, Philip Rynard (PC—Simcoe North), a physician, raised the issue and later asked if packages of hamburger should carry a label saying they must be well cooked.

Mr. Lalonde said he would consider the suggestion and discuss it with Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet.

The issue spilled outside the House with James McGrath (St. John's East), the Progressive Conservative consumer affairs critic, telling reporters that changes in supermarket meat department operations may be responsible for higher rates of contamination.

Ground beef no longer was ground at the store, but was prepared at a central location and delivered to supermarkets.

"God knows how long it sits in the store," said Mr. McGrath.

Mrs. Plumptre said inaccurate labelling of ground beef continues to confuse consumers.

She also pricked the government for not establishing standards for the sale of soyaburger, a hamburger substitute made from soyabeans.

"While the departments of agriculture, health and welfare and consumer and corporate affairs dally, many consumers, especially those with low incomes, are being deprived of the right to buy this food.

"Surely this must be a case of triple jurisdiction providing the avenue for avoiding responsibility."

In the interview, Mr. Lalonde said Mrs. Plumptre never has been in touch with him or his department, and probably does not have any up-to-date information.

Corruption indication

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec justice department is carrying out a "complete and general" inquiry into alleged misappropriation of funds dating back to 1965 by government officials administering the northern region of the province.

The department said it has already discovered "indications" of corruption among civil servants employed by the Direction Generale du Nouveau Quebec and intends to analyse procedures and administrative measures "so that corrections can be made."

Quebec Provincial Police (QPP) investigations had shown that "certain employees" involved in general management of the area known as New Quebec had deposited more money in personal bank accounts than they were paid in salaries, a department statement said.

The resources department said auditors would examine the books of the territorial administration since 1965 and take inventory of all stores and supplies shipped to the northern area.

The QPP began investigating the matter in 1971 and about 40 QPP officers took part in about 25 raids in connection with the case Tuesday, seizing documents from agency offices at points as far north as Fort Chimo, 900 miles north of Montreal.

Judge hopes company will return Mantha

MONTREAL (CP) — Judge Robert Cliche, head of an inquiry into construction union freedoms, appealed Wednesday for the return to Canada of Rene Mantha, a former union official now working as a construction consultant in Africa.

Judge Cliche asked one of the directors of the Quebec-based company which employs Mantha to repatriate the former coordinator of Local 791, International Union of Operating Engineers, "as soon as possible" to testify at the inquiry.

Mantha is working for Sintec Inc. in Zaire. He resigned his position with the local following destruction of the LG-2 site at the James Bay hydroelectric power project last March which caused $1.5 million in damages.

Sintec is establishing a communications system in the African country under contract to the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA). Two months ago, a CIDA representative telephoned the Cliche commission to inquire about Mantha, the inquiry was told Wednesday. Commission counsel Jean Dutil said he told the caller Mantha's repatriation would be "highly appreciated."

NOT CHARGED

Mr. Dutil said Mantha cannot be extradited since no charges have been laid against him. The commission has, however, issued a subpoena to Mantha.

Mantha's name was mentioned frequently during the day's testimony by three of five Local 791 members sentenced to three years in prison on charges related to labor violence two years ago at Mirabel, site of a new international airport under construction 25 miles north of Montreal. The three said they pleaded guilty, on Mantha's advice, to beating up a rival union official on the site.

"Mantha was very well connected," Julien Masse, one of the five, told the inquiry. "Mantha said he would fix our sentence with a deputy minister of justice."

Another witness, Gaethan Gauthier, said Mantha promised "it was all arranged with ministers and that there would be no more problems."

Gauthier told the inquiry he received threats from Robert Meloche, former chairman of Local 791, when Mr. Meloche visited him and another union member in jail Sunday.

Mr. Meloche told Gauthier and Robert Beauchamp to corroborate his testimony to be given the next day.

Gauthier said Mr. Meloche reminded them "that you're not alone, there are others behind you."

Both men said they understood "others" to mean their families.

The inquiry into construction union freedoms was set up after labor violence last March at the LG-2 camp of the James Bay hydroelectric project.

Nixon is readmitted

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Former president Richard Nixon was readmitted to Memorial Hospital Wednesday night for further treatment of his left leg. Nixon's doctor said if the treatment proves ineffective, surgery may be required.

Nixon's readmittance to the hospital came less than three weeks after he was released from his first hospital treatment for phlebitis, an inflammation of the veins.

Dr. John Lungren, Nixon's personal physician, said the decision to readmit Nixon to the hospital for further diagnostic tests was made after oral medication proved ineffective for treatment of the problem.

Grenade explosion a mystery

QUEBEC (CP)-"If I'd seen it, I would have known it was a live grenade and I'd have done something," explosives instructor Capt. Jean-Claude Giroux Wednesday told a coroner's inquest into the July 30 deaths of six army cadets at the Canadian Forces base at nearby Val Cartier.

Sixty-five other persons, including Capt. Giroux, were injured in the incident.

Capt. Giroux said he emptied a box of explosives, all labelled dummies, one by one during the lesson, explaining to the class of about 100 the function of each weapon. The inquest was earlier told that grenades painted blue had been rendered inoperative while live grenades were green.

QUESTIONS WITNESS

Crown prosecutor Francois Tremblay asked Capt. Giroux if he could have accidentally taken a green grenade out of the box.

The captain replied that he examined each explosive as he picked it out of the box and "I would have known if it had been a live explosive."

Capt. Giroux said that shortly before the explosion occurred, he turned his back on the box while answering a question from one of the cadets.

"I did not see any cadet rummaging around in the box," he said.

The witness was asked if he could have accidentally taken a green grenade out of the box and circulated it among the cadets.

"There is a possibility that an error could have been made," Capt. Giroux replied. "No one is infallible. I cannot say I did not make a mistake but I think that if I had had seen a green grenade I would have reacted."

Coroner Armand Drouin told the inquest "the main point remains a mystery."

He said he would re-examine the testimony of witnesses and render his final decision Dec.15.

Meanwhile, a four-man Canadian Forces board of inquiry in Ottawa concluded Wednesday that the explosion was caused when one of the cadets accidentally detonated a live grenade which had been inadvertently placed in the box of dummy explosives.

The board said a total of 19 live grenades, received in a shipment July 18, were placed temporarily in a wooden box in a truck containing dummy grenades and other training aids. During the handling and transfer, one of the live grenades ended up in the box of dummy grenades, the board found.

Loan shark takes toll

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime heard testimony Wednesday from a young woman who said she was coerced into a prostitution ring after borrowing $300 from a loanshark to help a friend.

The woman, whose name was ordered withheld, said her friend introduced her to loanshark Gerard Fortier.

Her friend had asked her to borrow the money from Fortier, explaining he would not advance her any more funds because she already owed him too much, said the woman.

She testified it was the same destitute friend who later warned her to repay the loanshark and introduced her to the head of a "hostess service" which was actually a prostitution ring.

"I only worked three weeks. I never did this before, and I only did it to pay the loanshark debts."

Her friend, a 37-year-old woman who lives on social welfare, testified Wednesday that the loanshark was "always nice" to her. 'I'd be surprised if others (debtors) said they were threatened," she said.

However, she admitted she too "did" a couple of customers for the "hostess service."

Fortier, 53, a general contractor, admitted being in the loanshark business for three years and started out by loaning money "to friends" in taverns in the St. Henri district.

He said a woman on social welfare introduced him to several women who borrowed money from him.

Fortier denied playing any part in a prostitution ring.

He said he charged 25 per cent interest on his loans but appeared at a loss to explain the higher rates of interest indicated in his own record of debts.

The inquiry adjourned until Dec. 11.

OTTAWA (CP) — All is not working out as expected for Leonard C. Jones, and at times the independent MP for Moncton gets a little hot under the collar about it.

During the first week Parliament sat this fall, the new MP said he thought he would be accorded the same privileges and rights as any other MP.

Wednesday he complained that he is not getting them.

The Commons was studying estimates under an agreement worked out by the House leaders and Mr. Jones gave MPs a look at some of his complaints.

"I do not know what this agreement is that honorable members are speaking of, but I was not privy to it. . . .

"I am getting a little fed up. I come in here day after day and find that the party wheels and party whips have got together and made some sort of agreement."

Mr. Jones also was angry because he is not a member of any standing committees of the House.

John Reid, parliamentary secretary to government House Leader Mitchell Sharp, said later that Mr. Jones, like all MPs, can participate in any committee. His only restriction was that he could not move motions or vote but he could vote after the committee reported business back to the Commons.

"The parliamentary secretary had better get things straight," Mr. Jones shot back. "I am as much a member of Parliament as he is, and I should have as much right to be a member of a standing committee as he."

Later, in an interview, Mr. Jones charged: "I think there's been an obvious attempt to keep me off standing committees."

But Mr. Sharp said the government takes enough places on any committee to ensure a government majority after the chairman has been appointed. If an independent member was to have a place, it must come from the seats reserved for opposition members.

Parliament boils over Transport estimates

OTTAWA (CP) — An experiment in parliamentary chemistry exploded in Transport Minister Jean Marchand's face Wednesday night when the Commons started studying some 1974-75 spending estimates.

Things bubbled smoothly through 90 minutes of treasury board estimates, but the experiment boiled over when the transport department estimates came up for consideration.

There was a breakdown in communications between the two sides of the House as points of order, questions of privilege and just plain shouting took over.

Spokesmen for the four parties had agreed to spend limited time on several departments, sitting as committee of the whole House, something opposition members had been demanding for about five years. In 1968, the estimates were turned over to more than 20 specialized committees because the government felt this was the best way to streamline an increasingly onerous workload.

The experiment with six departments was the government's response to the opposition criticisms.

Between 2½ and three hours had been allotted for cosideration of Mr. Marchand's estimates. The House spent three hours duelling with him, but most of the time went up in unproductive smoke.

It began when Mr. Marchand was late returning to the House after the two-hour dinner recess. There were some jeers and catcalls when he showed up a few minutes after the House sat again at 8 p.m.

It simmered for a while as several opposition members questioned the minister, unsuccessfully at first, about federal freight rate subsidies paid to the railways.

It blew up when Progressive Conservative transport critic Don Mazankowski (Vegreville) had his 20-minute question period cut short by Albanie Morin (L—Louis-Herbert), chairman of the House committee.

Mr. Mazankowski, Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North), Party Leader Robert Stanfield and others were on their feet in succession, complaining that Mr. Marchand was unwilling to answer questions and about Mme. Morin's rulings.

"We've got a good bunch here tonight," Mr. Stanfield observed, his voice sharp with sarcasm. " . . . I've been in legislatures for about 25 years and I've never seen such a farce as this!"

The situation got worse as the night wore on and the end result was that few of the opposition questions were answered by the transport minister.

Les Benjamin (NDP—Regina Lake Centre) had asked Mr. Marchand before dinner how much compensation the government is paying railways to offset the effects of the federal freeze on freight rates.

HARD TO SAY

There was no immediate answer, but a few minutes later, after prodding by Mr. Mazankowski, Mr. Marchand said "it is very difficult for me to say what is the amount."

Mr. Stanfield, in French, said this was evident.

"Of course," replied Mr. Marchand. "If I were to put that question to the honorable gentleman, he would not know either."

Then he said Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways claim the government owes them a total of $41 million in freight rate subsidies—$27 million to CN and $13 million to the CPR.

"But if you ask me how they arrived at that amount, you know what my answer would be? It would be 'I don't know.' "

Mr. Mazankowski also asked whether the minister could tell the House if his department or the Canadian transport commission had conducted any cost studies on freight rates in the Crowsnest pass area of southwestern Alberta.

"The honorable member is not going to get an answer to that from me," Mr. Marchand replied.

The rest of the evening was in the same vein.

Today the Commons opened at 11 a.m., three hours earlier than normal, to continue debating the estimates.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A sharp decline on the Toronto market Wednesday ended a four-day rally. Trading was light.

A lower New York market was the main influence, analysts said.

Toronto's industrial index, widely-based indicator of market trend, was off 1.99 to 166.09 after gaining about four points during the previous four days.

Paper and forest, bank, industrial mining and oil refining sectors were among those with the largest declines.

The base metal index fell .27 to 66.09 and western oils 2.61 to 148.04. The gold index rose 7.10 to 390.15.

"There's an awakening awareness in the market that the economy is indeed slowing down and could slip into a severe recession," analyst Monte Gordon said.

He added Wall Street found especially troubling the report Tuesday that durable goods orders fell in September even as consumer prices rose 1.2 per cent.

After the market closed, Paul W. McCracken became the first Ford administration economic counselor to describe the current downturn as a "recession." He said no recovery was likely before mid-1975. McCracken was chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers in the Nixon administration and still advises Ford administration leaders.

One recessionary symptom that Wall Street reacted to Wednesday were poor mid-October car sales reported by the Big Three auto makers.

Ford Motor, the NYSE's volume leader, gave up 1⅜ to 31½, including a 125,000-share block at 31. Chrysler, second most-active, fell a point to 9¾, followed by General Motors, off 1¼ to 33¼.

PRICE BOOST SOON

Chrysler chairman Lynn Townsend said his company would boost prices again in the near future and predicted an 18 per cent drop in mid-October car sales for his firm, and a 28 per cent drop for the entire industry.

Oil issues took heavy losses, in part the result of a statement by White House spokesman Ron Nessen that "current profit levels of some unnamed U.S. oil companies" point up the need for a windfall profits tax.

Atlantic Richfield was off 3⅜, Getty 3, Exxon 2⅛, Kerr-McGee 2⅝, Mobil 2⅛, and Standard of Indiana 2¼.

Glamors joined the market retreat, with IBM off 5¾, Johnson & Johnson 3⅞, and Digital Equipment 2⅞.

Weyerhaeuser gave up 2⅝ to $28⅛. The previous sessions, the paper concern said third quarter earnings fell to 51 cents a share compared with 60 cents the same time a year ago.

The American Stock Exchange's volume leader was Storm Drilling, unchanged at $25⅞.

The Amex market value index fell 1.14 to 68.59.

Among Canadian issues on the New York Stock Exchange Dome Mines was up 1⅜ to $46⅞.

McIntyre was down ¾ to $29 and Alcan dropped ¾ to $24⅛. International Nickel was down ½ to $24, Massey Ferguson ½ to 14⅜ and Seagrams ⅜ to $32¾.

Spot gold quote in US after Jan. 1

NEW YORK (CP) — Plans to provide a daily spot gold quotation were announced Tuesday by the chairman of the International Monetary Market (IMM), a branch of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Leo Melamed said the spot market will be established Jan. 2, the day it becomes legal for Americans to buy and sell gold, as a complement to the IMM's previously-announced plans to set up a futures market for trading in gold.

Melamed told a news conference there was no reason Americans should continue to depend solely on foreign quotations for gold buy-sell transactions started and completed in the U.S. Spot gold prices used throughout the world at present originate in London and Zurich.

The IMM was up several years ago by the Chicago Mercantile Exchange to provide a vehicle for trade in foreign currencies.

Mark Powers, senior vice-president of the IMM, said the market already has three or four Canadian members and hopes that number will grow.

MAY AFFECT TRADE

He declined to speculate whether operation of the new Chicago market will substantially cut into trade on the Winnipeg Gold Exchange, established several years ago to provide a Canadian market for trade in gold.

"I suspect we may limit their total growth," he said.

However, he suggested the Chicago gold market might help the Winnipeg operation in its early stages through the process of arbitrate, trade developed because of a difference in prices between two markets.

Powers said spot quotes will be fixed on the Chicago market during five-minute trading periods two or three times a day.

"There is evidence that London dealers will be participating in the gold market in this country and the establishment of a U.S. market that corresponds to their London market should facilitate their business. The fact that the IMM will be providing a competitive spot market at a different time of the day than London should be particularly advantageous to them."

TREASURY MIGHT ENTER

Powers said he thought there was a possibility that the U.S. Treasury might enter the gold market with some of its gold stocks to use them as a stabilizing device if the price of gold went too high.

He expects five or six other gold markets to be opened in the U.S. when gold trade becomes legal, including two others in Chicago, two in New York and one in San Francisco.

Private ownership of gold—except for jewelry and coins held by collectors—has been prohibited in the United States since the country went off the gold standard in the early 1930s. Congress recently passed a law removing the ban effective Jan. 2.

Oil company profits sky

NEW YORK (AP) — The biggest U.S. oil companies began reporting third-quarter earnings Tuesday, with profits increased to one and a half times over those reported a year ago.

Exxon Corp., the largest, said earnings rose 25.4 per cent over the third quarter of 1973, while Shell Oil's were ahead 158 per cent, Standard Oil of Indiana's earnings doubled and Gulf Oil Corp.'s were up 31 per cent.

Earnings by Gulf and Exxon had risen dramatically in the 1973 period over the 1972 quarter.

Exxon said its earnings totalled $800 million for the three months, or $3.58 a share, compared with $638 million or $2.85 a share in the like period of last year. In the second quarter Exxon earned $3.80 a share.

For the nine months, profits were $2.28 billion or $10.19 a share, up 37.7 per cent from $1.65 billion or $7.39 cents a share last year.

Sales for the latest quarter more than doubled to $11.9 billion from $5.47 billion, while sales in the nine months period were $33.27 billion as against $20.09 billion last year.

Worldwide chemical sales, higher domestic crude and natural gas prices, and inventory profits aboard arising from higher crude prices were the major reasons for the higher earnings, Exxon Chairman J. K. Jamieson said.

VOLUME DOWN

Measured by volume, nine-month sales of petroleum, production of crude oil and refinery runs were down from last year, Exxon said, while natural gas sales improved slightly to 9.7 billion cubic feet daily.

Because of a Venezuelan tax increase, Exxon was forced to reduce estimated first-half earnings by $75 million or 334 cents a share.

Shell said its profits for the three months ended Sept. 30 were $216 million or $3.21 a share, compared with $83.6 million or $1.24 a share in the 1973 period. Sales for the quarter totaled $2.25 billion, up from $1.43 billion in the 1973 quarter.

For the nine months, the U.S. subsidiary of the Royal Dutch Shell group reported earnings of $462.3 million or $6.87 a share, an 82-per-cent gain over the $253 million or $3.76 a share reported last year.

Shell, like Gulf and Amoco, attributed the gains to higher crude oil prices and chemical product sales.

BACK-DATED PROFIT

In addition Shell President Harry Bridges said federal regulations on revenues and cost recovery caused the reporting of some income in the third quarter which had been realized in the first half.

Gulf said Tuesday its earnings equalled $275 million or $1.42 a share, against $210 million or $1.08 a share in the previous third quarter, the firm said. Sales rose to $4.39 billion from $2.51 million.

For the nine months, Gulf earnings were up 42 per cent to $815 million or $4.19 a share, from the 1973 period's $570 million or $2.88 a share. Sales more than doubled to $13.7 billion from $6.99 billion.

After-tax profits for Standard Oil of Indiana (Amoco) jumped to $296.5 million or $4.22 a share during the latest quarter from $147.3 million or $2.11 a share in the like period of 1973.

For the nine months, earnings were $795.5 million or $11.34 a share on sales of $7.4 billion as against 1973's earnings of $389.8 million or $5.59 a share on sales of $4.6 billion.

Chrysler sales up —still lost money

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp., first of the United States auto firms to make its third-quarter finances public, reported Tuesday its worldwide sales were up over a year ago but that the firm still lost money.

It reported sales for the three months totalled $2.8 billion, an increase over the $2.3 billion reported in the comparable period a year ago.

Chairman Lynn Townsend said Chrysler incurred a net loss of $8 million, or 15 cents a share, compared with a loss of $17.4 million or 34 cents a share in the third period of 1973.

On a nine-months basis, Chrysler said its new car sales in the United States totalled 1,025,974, down 18 per cent from the record of 1,251,246 in the opening nine months a year ago.

Margarine no more a low cost spread

NEW YORK (AP) — In parts of the United States margarine is no longer "the lower-priced spread."

Rising prices for corn and soybean oil, margarine's major components, have reduced the price difference between margarine and butter. Many of the fancier margarines now exceed butter in price in some areas of the U.S.

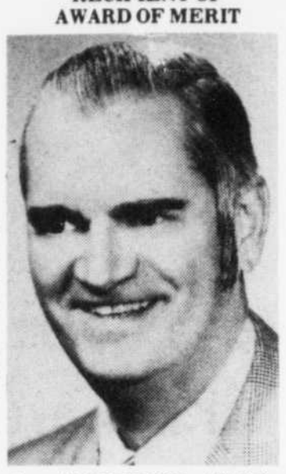

Bob Anderson, executive director of the American Butter Institute in Chicago, says that as a result butter sales are "very, very good," with many dairies working extra shifts to meet the demand.

Industry officials say that in the past, butter was nearly three times the price of the average margarine. But in the last year, crop shortages and commodity speculation have pushed up market prices for corn and soybean oil.

It's primarily the soft, corn-oil margarines which are exceeding butter in cost in some regions.

However, a spokesman for Standard Brands, Inc., makers of Fleischmann's margarine, says there's now some feeling that the oil markets have reached their upper limits and may be headed down.

Demonstration gets results— advertisers bypass Telemedia

SHERBROOKE (RH) — Woolco stores in Rock Forest have ceased all advertising on stations affiliated with Telemedia in Sherbrooke, it was learned recently.

The company, which was the object of a demonstration Tuesday by Telemedia employees, made the decision from its Toronto-based headquarters.

Telemedia workers, who have been locked out since June 20 as a result of labor disputes between management and employees, have embarked on a campaign to dissuade large advertisers from placing their business with stations associated with Telemedia. The most recent decision taken by Woolco, came after a brief meeting between union members and Woolco officials, after the demonstration against that company lasted for under 20 minutes.

Meanwhile, Telemedia workers have also approached the cigarette company Mark Ten to discourage them from advertising their product with Telemedia. The company has decided to refrain from advertising until some settlement is reached.

The workers have decided that as long as the labor dispute is an issue, that they will present themselves before the various large advertisers in an attempt to have them stop advertising.

Thirty-five advertisers will fall under this category.

Threats won't stop inquiry

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa Sunday said threats of violence will not stop the provincial government from pressing "to the end" its investigations into the construction industry or organized crime.

"Whether there are threats or not, and there have been some, the government will take things to the end," the Quebec premier told 500 delegates to a regional Liberal party congress.

A key witness in the government's inquiry into construction union freedom received two letters Thursday containing threats against his life and warnings to Mr. Bourassa and commission chairman Judge Robert Cliche.

Mr. Bourassa later told a news conference that his Liberal government is "the only government in the history of Quebec willing to get to the bottom of this matter.

"No matter who is involved—even if it extends to members of the Liberal party—we are ready to go all the way," he said.

Mr. Bourassa also said a weekend demonstration by 7,000 persons opposing the controversial Official Languages Act did not worry him.

"The separatists will continue to fight us with all possible dishonesty," he said. "This was just another example of their frustration as they see that we are creating a French state in North America."

When asked about a possible constitutional challenge from the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal, Mr. Bourassa said he had received assurances the law, making French the province's official language, is in fact constitutional.

"The question is, is it safe in the courts and I think it is," the Premier said.

Library to stage drive for funds

LENNOXVILLE (JB) — The annual fund raising campaign for the Lennoxville Library will be held Monday, October 28. The campaign objective is $1,500.

Although the town of Lennoxville supplies the building and the government provides a small grant, funds are necessary to pay the librarian and for the purchase of new books. The only other source of money is through membership fees. Membership fees are $7.00 for adults and $5.50 for students. Children can use the facilities free of charge.

The Lennoxville library contains close to 10,000 books. Most of the books are fiction and approximately one third of them are children's books. Last year the 112 members borrowed a total of 10,194 books. During an average month the adults borrowed 589 books while the children used 260 books.

The Lennoxville library is located on the corner of Queen and Belvidere Streets in the old post office building. The library is open on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 3 to 5:30 p.m. and on Tuesday and Friday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Plough match prizes presented at banquet

HATLEY (IH) — The climax of the successful 55th annual Stanstead County Ploughing Match took place on Saturday evening, October 19 at th United Church hall in Hatley.

Miss Hana Gartner, CBC television commentator, her brother, Gary, and her parents were among those present. Miss Gartner was a special guest for she had ploughed the week before at the match when she came with the CBC crew to make a film that will shortly be shown on City at Six, Channel 6.

The evening included a banquet, program and the presentation of prizes and trophies.

The banquet was served at long tables in the church hall by ladies of the church. The menu was delicious meat pies, casseroles, salads with homemade pies for dessert, all from the kitchen of the Hatley church women.

Fred Keet, a director of the society, showed excellent films he had taken of Expo, Ayer's Cliff Fair, Beebe Centennial celebration, Dominion Day at Hatley and others. A second film was on Italy taken this summer when he and Mrs. Keet took the CKTS tour. His film showed a great deal of this old European country.

Then came the presentations as follows: Class 1, Championship class that included winners and seconds of classes 2-3-4-6- in the 1973 Match. Dewey Mosher placed first. He also had the best finish in his class. Class 8: Tractor, hydraulic ploughs, boys and girls, 16-17 years. Andre Brus placed first winning in addition to his prizes the Eaton's silver tray. He also had the highest number of points and is eligible to compete in the International Match in 1975 to be held in Durham County, Ont. Andre had the best crown in his class and tied for the best finish in his class.

Terry Cooper tied for best finish in his class. Should Andre not be able to go to the 1975 Match, Terry will be the alternate.

Class 9: Tractor ploughs, boys and girls under 14 years: Ronald Cairns placed first to win the Hackett trophy.

The original Hackett trophy was given as a memorial by John T. Hackett, (now deceased) in 1931. This has been donated each year, along with a small cup for the winner to keep. However, the 1973 match filled all the spaces, so it will now be placed in the Stanstead Historical Society museum in Beebe, a fitting place since the late Mr. Hackett was the first historical society president. The late Mr. Hackett's son David has donated a replacement, along with the individual trophies, that this first year was won by Ronnie. He was also a winner of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club cash prize for best crown in his class; 2, Robert Kirby, and winner of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club cash prize for best finish in his class; 3 Brent Cairns, also youngest plowman in the field. 4 Allen Cass, also the winner of the Quebec Farmers trophy; 5 Danny Mosher.

Class 10:1, Mrs. Richie (Lorraine) Harrison, also best crown and finish in the class, the winner of the Sherbrooke Record trophy and subscription. Mrs. Harrison has her name on this trophy ten times; 2, Catherine Whitcomb.

Howard Ayers, secretary - treasurer, was master of ceremonies for the evening. At the banquet he spoke the blessing and introduced the head table. Later he mentioned how pleased the directors were to have the CBC crew out the day of the match to film events and Miss Gartner at the match and banquet.

Mr. Ayer expressed appreciation to the many merchants, businesses and individuals who had donated a total of $950.50 in cash and merchandise to support this annual event. The society no longer receives a government grant and without this support the matches would not be held.

He further mentioned the time and talents of the judges, John Rose, Donald Goodfellow, and field judges, Alvin Smith and John Kimpton.

He also thanked Fred Keet for his film showing.

Comments of Judges Smith and Kimpton were complimentary to the plowmen, although they also spoke of how to improve their skills.

President Richie Harrison expressed appreciation to Willie Antink for the field where the match was held and all the directors who had worked many hours to bring off another good match. Mrs. Richie Harrison spoke in tribute to Howard Ayer who does so much to bring about the successful matches and a "hand of applause was given".

As for Miss Gartner, she said, "I'm proud of my furrows" and warned the others, "Next year watch out". She was invited to return as often as possible to the Townships because her warm personality made her a favorite.

Fred Keet thanked the church women for putting on the delicious banquet.

Judge Redmond Hayes efforts are praised

SHERBROOKE (RH) — Editor's note: Judge Redmond Hayes, who was recently retired from his position as judge with the Sherbrooke Municipal Court, can be rightly considered as one of the most publicly-minded men in the city of Sherbrooke. After many long years serving the administration of justice, he recently received only high praise from Judge Jean Louis Peloquin. We reproduce herein an extract of the speech made by Justice Peloquin on the occasion of the swearing-in of the new judge, Jacques Page.

"Solely because of the passage of time, Judge Redmond Hayes passed graciously into retirement as provided by the law.

"I could, with pleasure, recite the episodes I know of the life of our esteemed colleague up to the time of his accession to the Bench, but today, it is more in order to speak of the fine career of Judge Hayes on the Bench — first in his capacity as a member of the district court (formerly known as the magistrate's court) and then as a member of the provincial court for 20 years.

"Admitted to the practice of law in 1930, Judge Hayes practiced his profession in the district of St. Francis for many years, during which time he was Crown Prosecutor in Sherbrooke up until 1954.

"In that year, by the grace of God and the electors, Judge Hayes was appointed district judge, while the honorable Maurice Duplessis was premier of Quebec.

"I evoke the name of the former premier, because throughout his life he was a great friend of Judge Hayes, and in a recent biography of Duplessis it was pointed out that the young attorney played a large role as the secretary of the Conservative party in 1935, at the end of which Duplessis became the leader of the provincial Conservative party — later to become the National Union.

"During the early years in his position as judge, our colleague worked mainly within the field of criminal jurisdiction, while his confrere, Judge Edward Boisvert concentrated mainly in the civil realm of jurisdiction.

"In his capacity, Judge Hayes brought not only his vast knowledge of criminal law but also his deep sense of humanity, and his desire to rehabilitate offenders — especially young delinquents who appeared before him. In the background — without receiving credit — he helped many young people, once out of detention, to find employment and to get a new start out of life.

"He understood, perhaps more than any other judge, the necessity of tempering mercy with justice — especially in the criminal realm, where human passions lead many people to commit reprehensible acts without previously weighing their consequences.

"Judge Hays also used his knowledge in matters of labor law, acting as arbitrator or chairman on boards in labor conflicts throughout the province. The quality of his work in this capacity still stands today.

"It has been my privilege and my pleasure to work with Judge Hayes for eleven years, and I can assure all his friends — and they are numerous — that he has always been faithful to his colleagues, and willing to cooperate with them in the best interests of justice.

"His well-defined sense of humor has made this relationship a most pleasant one.

"The court house will not be the same without Judge Hayes because in the last 20 years he has spent most of his time in this building from early in the morning well into the night.

"During my first years on the Bench, it happened that I had to distribute some cases for hearing. At one point in my career, a knowledge of horses was required. I was happy to have Judge Hayes to confide in who is an expert in such matters due to this interest during his leisure time in great racing champions.

"After another colleague of ours, Judge Dugre, was appointed to the provincial court, I was somewhat embarrassed because I then had two colleagues equally qualified in the horse domain.

"I said in the beginning that Judge Hayes had retired graciously because he enjoys good health and is in perfect possession of his faculties, which would allow him to continue in his former capacity, for a long time yet. He can still offer us, as well as Judge B. Turmel, his precious assistance in sessions court. We have approached the government to take advantage of his service and experience in order to accelerate the judiciary process, and to bring relief to judges who are often overburdened with work.

"We wish our colleague good health, and the opportunity to serve the cause of justice for some time to come."

Casper for UNICEF

On Friday, The Record began a new comic story called 'Casper for UNICEF.' It will be appearing every day until Hallowe'en.

Last year, 1,000,000 Canadian children raised over $856,000 in one night, to help those less fortunate than themselves. As a result, UNICEF projects in underdeveloped countries around the world will benefit.

The Canadian UNICEF Committee has obtained, through the kind permission of 'Harvey Famous Cartoons' the exclusive rights to 'Casper for UNICEF', and we believe that every child who reads it will be enthusiastic.

Gauthier will work from offices located at 209 Belvedere Street north, in Sherbrooke.

Career nears end

OTTAWA (CP) — A political career spanning 39 years, five prime ministers and four cabinet portfolios is drawing to an end on Parliament Hill.

But for Senator Paul Martin, Canada's next high commissioner to Britain, the shift from the domestic political arena to international diplomacy is more a continuation than a new beginning.

The appointment of Mr. Martin to London, announced Friday by Prime Minister Trudeau, represents an opportunity for the 61-year-old parliamentary veteran to pursue the interest in foreign affairs that has permeated his Commons and Senate careers.

"After so long in Ottawa, it will be a wrench to leave," he said of his December move to Britain. "But I'm looking forward to working in London."

MP for the former riding of Essex East from 1935 to 1968 before becoming government leader in the Senate, Mr. Martin became involved in foreign affairs early in his political career.

NAMED DELEGATE

Just three years after the first of his 10 successive election victories, he was named by then prime minister Mackenzie King to a Canadian delegation to the 19th assembly of the League of Nations.

Eventually external affairs minister under Lester Pearson from 1963 to 1968, Mr. Martin said later his 1955 role at the United Nations was "perhaps the most significant contribution I was able to make."

No Fatted Calf

Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to Europe later this month may not turn out to be the expected triumphal return of the Canadian prodigal son. Indeed, very few fatted calves may be offered to the prime minister and his party.

At NATO, Mr. Trudeau will be told bluntly that Canada is a bad boy, a country which has failed to keep her promises and pull her weight within the alliance. In the European Economic Community the welcome will be circumspect. Special relations with the EEC may be suitable for countries such as Nigeria or the Cameroons, but where Canada is concerned this would smack too much of discrimination against the United States, and at this particular moment of an avalanche of crises the Europeans's minds have been wonderfully concentrated: They have begun to understand the true power relationship in a world of harsh realities, and their dependence upon the United States.

However, the most critical reception Mr. Trudeau will experience will be at NATO, which has undergone a remarkable change in its collective mood. The two men who, until a year ago, wielded a disruptive influence within the alliance — the late President Pompidou and the former French Foreign Minister Jobert have left the scene and there is a much stronger feeling of solidarity within the community. There also is much concern.

Polities, and above all the petty politicking that has marred the alliance after the Yom Kippur war of last year, have largely vanished. Instead, economics has become the main disruptive factor. The contemptuous dictum of the late General de Gaulle, l'intendance suive, that is the supply corps (or economics) follows the lead of the main armies of politics, has proved to be a fallacy. Today, economic problems are very much in the van of international affairs, and they will make or break the Western alliance. The alliance is thus worried about its economic cohesion—any economic upheavals would have dire political consequences. Yet NATO's task has not changed and its role is as important as ever: to provide a shield for a weakened and beleaguered Western world.

* * *

Canada's unwillingness to make a contribution to the alliance commensurate with Canada's wealth thus further adds to NATO's difficulties. In Lahr, which is the main Canadian base in Germany, lack of funds has imposed upon the force the most stringent, and often unwise, economies. The Ottawa government, which pours millions into all kinds of domestic ventures of dubious value, seems reluctant to provide money for defence without which most of our hopes for a better future would quickly vanish. The proportion of the Gross National Product that Canada, one of the world's richest nations, devotes to defence is only slightly higher than that of Luxembourg.

Thus far, no decision has been made about replacing Canada's Centurion tanks on the central front. The Canadian forces stationed at this front are earmarked for reserve and counter-attack and they cannot fulfil such a role without a good tank. The refit of the Centurions now in progress will turn them indeed into virtually new tanks, but nonetheless this is a palliative that cannot provide a cure beyond 1976. It is imperative that a decision about a new tank be made now.

Above all, Canada's moral posturing in refusing a nuclear role has weakened NATO's deterrence based wholly on the credibility that in the event of aggression nuclear weapons would be employed. The cement that holds the alliance together is a strong feeling of solidarity. By refusing a nuclear role, Canada has opted out of this collective solidarity, while by turning her NATO contribution into a token force she has badly dented the shield that protects the central front. Others, including the Dutch — a much smaller nation — now have to carry Canada's discarded burden.

Soviet news show Vreemya accentuates the positive

MOSCOW (AP) — The CBS Evening News, the ABC Evening News and the NBC Nightly News constantly battle for ratings and sponsors in the United States. But Vreemya doesn't have to worry about either.

It is the only major television news show in town or country here. Its name means "time" and it starts at a time—9 p.m.—most American channels are filled with gunsmoke, comedy or family dramas.

Vreemya viewers do not learn about car wrecks, dissident demonstrations or Moscow's most recent murder. What they do learn is the status of the harvest, which factories are meeting what production quotas and the names of the latest official visitors to the Soviet capital.

Television news in the Soviet Union isn't burdened by the charge often made against U.S. network news—that it presents a steady diet of doom, uproar and conflict on the home front.

Here, TV reporters take a leaf from an old Johnny Mercer song—they accentuate the positive and limit, if not eliminate, the negative.

AVOID BAD NEWS

Even more than the Soviet print media, television here stays away from bad news, unless it happens in another country.

The editorial policy was neatly summed up when a Soviet, watching a TV report on the harvesting of corn in Novosibirsk, was asked by a visitor if the harvest had been successful.

"Of course," he replied. "Otherwise, it wouldn't have been shown."

Vreemya, like its American network counterparts, lasts 30 minutes each night. It is beamed throughout the Soviet Union on the country's main TV channel.

For those who miss the prime time news, there also is a pair of 10-minute newscasts which appear at 6 p.m. and shortly before the midnight sign-off each night.

Like Western network news shows, an anchorman here sits behind a desk, reading the day's news while slides illustrating the stories occasionally are flashed behind him on a screen.

Filmed reports also are shown, with reporters often pictured interviewing their subjects or simply standing before a particular scene, giving a summary of the matter at hand.

Unlike the American networks, there are more women on the air in the commercial-less brand of Soviet TV news.

HALF ARE WOMEN

The anchorman on Vreemya is joined by an anchorwoman in delivering the nightly report and at least half the reporters on all three Soviet news shows are women.

The anchormen tend to resemble the American breed—relatively good-looking, dressed more fashionably than other men and possessed of deep, resonant voices.

Here, as in the United States, television news folk are well-known names. Unlike most of their American counterparts, they often appear as masters of ceremonies or announcers on other Soviet TV programs.

"Happy-talk" news, a fixture on many local stations in the United States, is nyet-nyet here. The news is considered a serious subject and is delivered seriously.

For viewers used to American newscasts, in which any story longer than two minutes is considered an epic, TV news here might seem extremely slow of pace and long of wind. It concentrates heavily on wreath-layings, speeches and factories which overproduce their quotas.

The deteriorating road to rising prices

By Don Oakley

Tired of being told of spring flood here, summer drought there and fall frost somewhere else have wiped out this or that crop and that the family food bill is going up, up, up?

Well, try this one on as a reason for increasing food prices: The deterioration of the nation's rural roads and bridges.

The price you pay for beans or beef or anything else has transportation costs cranked into it. If bad roads wear down a farmer's or a hauler's truck, or a dangerous bridge forces him to take an extensive detour, the cost of the repairs or the extra gasoline is figured into the selling price of what he carries.

Multiply this by the tens of thousands across the country and inadequate roads can have a real effect on your grocery bill, says The Road Information Program (TRIP), a highway-oriented research and information group based in Washington, D.C.

The railroads have abandoned about 40,000 miles of track since 1938, TRIP notes, and have proposed dropping another 7,000 miles, mostly in rural areas. This increases the burden on existing roads for trucking food to market. Already trucks handle about 75 percent of all food products.

Yet the Federal Highway Administration considers more than a third of America's rural roads — a total of 1.2 million miles — to be "intolerable" because of ruts, bumps, patches and potholes.

Not only that, but about one out of every six of the country's 560,000 bridges is dangerous, says Sen. Jennings Randolph (D-W.Va.), chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee. This doesn't mean they will fall down tomorrow. It does mean that they are not safe for the loads they are carrying.

What's the answer? According to TRIP, a concerted, sustained effort to repair and strengthen our country roads and bridges. The alternative is even higher food and road repair costs in the future.

Icy silver anniversary

Most of us would like to be able to go south for the winter but not as far south as a certain band of U.S. Navy men and women. The Navy people are part of Operation Deep Freeze 1975, the code name for the Navy's nonmilitary logistics support of America's scientific efforts in Antarctica.

For the 25th consecutive year, a special group of trained volunteers will spend five months in the world's southernmost and coldest continent (even in its summer, which is our winter). A total of 625 men and women, primarily Navy but with elements from the Air Force, Coast Guard and Army, are involved in this year's Deep Freeze activities on the "Great White Continent."

The first Operation Deep Freeze was in 1955 when, in preparation for the 1957-58 International Geophysical Year, the Navy was assigned the task of polar exploration and construction in still little-known Antarctica.

The place is getting crowded now. An estimated 275 scientists and assistants will be "on the ice" this year, undertaking or continuing projects in every scientific discipline as part of the Antarctic Research Program administered by the National Science Foundation.

One such project is the Ross Ice Shelf Project. Begun last year, it involves extracting samples of ice at various locations on the ice shelf. The samples, taken from different depths, yield considerable information on ice movement, atmospheric pollution in the past and radiation.

America's latest world policy: none

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — If U.S. prestige is declining in the world, it's our own doing.

For wherever one looks, influential leaders behind the scenes are urgently begging this country to take over leadership. This is true in Japan, West Germany, Britain, Italy, Egypt, Israel and the Middle East, much of Latin America and in some of Africa.

Statemen from London to Bonn to Rome have made clear that if the U.S. economy falters badly, West Europe will go down. The Japanese echo this concern. Equivalent messages come in from much of the underdeveloped world. A new piece of research illustrates with astounding clarity the heavy economic dependence of the non-industrialized nations on the American market, technology and leadership.

A series of reports attest to the fact that major Arab nations, beginning with Saudi Arabia, are more confident in the U.S. future than in that of any other nation. This is evidenced by the growing number of Arab investments in the United States, by the deposit of Arab funds in American banks and the growing desire of Arab governments to secure the services of American technology. Since most of the oil-rich lands will be dependent on these investments when their petroleum resources are depleted, the Arabs obviously are tying their economic future to that of the United States. Therefore, other nations wishing to share in the petrodollar pool, apparently will need to borrow through American banks.

For the time being at least, the Chinese fear the Russians and the Russians the Chinese. Both thus need this country. Which major country, other than the United States can be trusted by both the Israeli and the Egyptians? Without U.S. approval what sort of an arms or force reduction arrangement can be worked out between the Soviet Union and West Europe? Without the U.S. nuclear umbrella and American trade and technology, Japan would face a far less rosy future.

The problem is not lack of influence. It is rather indecisivenss in the White House, the State Department and in Congress. This country today has no foreign policy, no Mideast policy, no West European policy, no Asian policy and no Russian or Chinese policies. It has no worldwide policy on oil or energy, foreign investment, inflation, the recycling of petrodollars, arms control or defense. Policies worked up in one department or another are negated by policies developed in other departments.

We make dramatic moves without planning or preparation. These confuse, annoy and frequently anger our allies and tempt our opponents to rash actions inimical to our interests.

With no visible counter action in hand, President Ford and Secretary of State Kissinger speak out strongly against those nations which are boosting oil prices beyond all reason, leaving friends with mouth's agape and arousing scorn among the oil producers.

West European leaders were visibly annoyed when Kissinger, with much ado, invited the Big Five in to develop an oil-inflation-energy program — with no plan in mind and no idea of what the United States wants or is planning.

Adroit diplomatic agreements, breakthrough talks with China and Russia and tightrope negotiations to avoid war in the Middle East and Cyprus are great achievements. They do not constitute a policy which should be a standard around which friends can rally and a symbol of determination which will give pause to enemies.

Not Long for White House

Jack Anderson's Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON — President Ford's new staff chief, Donald Rumsfeld, won't be around the White House more than six months.

Sources in the President's confidence say he needed someone in a hurry to replace Alexander Haig, who had headed former President Nixon's White House staff.

The President, therefore, summoned Rumsfeld whom he actually had in mind to be the next Secretary of Defense. Our sources say Ford still intends to send the able Rumsfeld to preside over the Pentagon.

The President wanted to get rid of Haig, say our sources, because he held too tight a rein on the White House staff, which looked to him instead of Ford's people for their orders.

The President's plans for Rumsfeld, of course, means Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger will be dropped from the cabinet. This will be a victory of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who has been feuding with Schlesinger over foreign-military policy.

Watch On Waste: About 180 welfare officials gathered on exotic Frenchman's Reef in the Virgin Islands late last month to discuss the plight of the poor.

Choosing from a menu "laden with a host of superb continental specialties," they dined in lazy luxury as they talked about the hunger that is gaining in impoverished neighborhoods.

One conference session, for example, dealt with food stamp programs. It was presided over by an Agriculture Department official who was flown in from Washington, $169 round trip.

When the problems of poverty became too depressing, the welfare officials could escape into the coral waters for "free snorkel lessons," or on afternoon tours of the Virgin Island paradise.

The delegates came from 31 states and regions. At least 10 federal officials from the Health, Education and Welfare Department slipped down to the Virgin Islands for the conference, at a minimum cost to the taxpayers of $200 apiece, including hotel accomodations.

A spokesman for the American Public Welfare Association, which sponsored the frolic, explained to us: "We hold the conferences in a different region every year, and this was the first time for the Virgin Islands."

Yosemite Story: There is more to the story of how Yosemite National Park, with scenery no Hollywood studio could duplicate, became the backdrop for the TV series "Sierra."

We published the first installment on September 15. The Music Corporation of America, we reported, had taken over the camping and catering concessions in Yosemite in late 1973.

Not long afterwards, film crews belonging to an MCA subsidiary turned up in the park to film the "Sierra" series. Although nature provided them with some of the most spectacular scenery in the world, we reported, the Hollywood hotshots tried to improve it by painting the rocks in one area.

The "Sierra" TV shows are now appearing on the NBC network, which should be good for MCA's camping and catering business in Yosemite. The program's producer, Bob Cinader, denies that the series was created to promote tourism in the park. But here, at least, are some curious coincidences:

- The series was not proposed to MCA, as usually happens, but MCA initiated it. "Somebody upstairs got the idea" for the show, Cinader acknowledged.

- The pilot show, originally titled "Park Ranger," was a sad flop. The scenery outperformed the actors, and only a bear impressed the test audiences. Yet miraculously, MCA was able to peddle the series to NBC. "They bought it in spite of the pilot," said Cinader.

- The producers had trouble completing the scripts and casting the actors. Off-duty park rangers were used as production assistants. Production costs were high, with each episode costing about $60,000 more than programs filmed on studio lots.

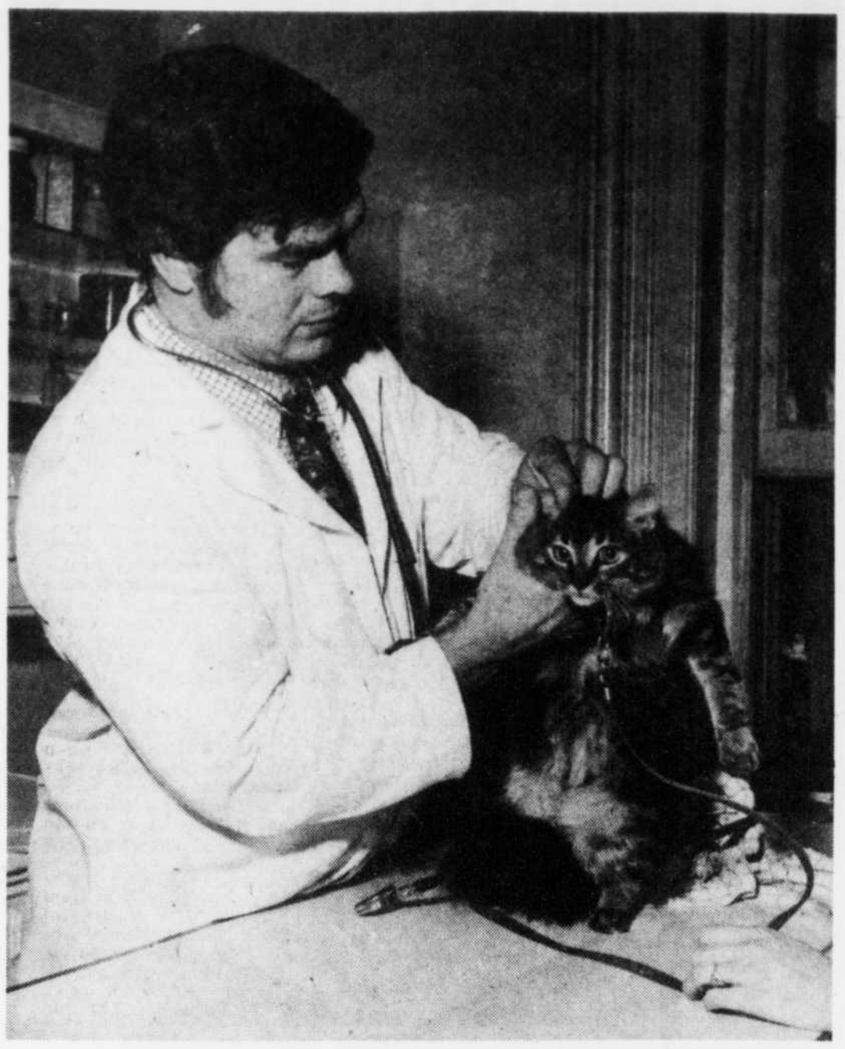

Whether or not MCA planned it that way, the company could make up the extra costs in the tourist business that the TV series should attract to Yosemite. Cinader's comment on this: "There is no attempt made in the show to indicate that the park is Yosemite."

Short Reply: Marguerite Steed, granddaughter of Rep. Tom Steed, D-Okla., signed on as an interne last summer in the office of House Speaker Carl Albert.

In the manner of young people, she struck up a summer romance with the Speaker's son, David. Young Albert, like his father, is short in size. And Marguerite, like her grandfather, is a talker.

Congressman Steed jokingly asked his granddaughter one day what might result if a Steed should be crossed with an Albert. She retorted without hesitation: "A long-winded midget."

Prairie farming towns face extinction

"WHAT'S HAPPENING TO ME?" asks "Fluffy" as Dr. J. Gregoire gives her a checkup at one of the two free clinics operated by the Canadian Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA) in Montreal. Over 3,000 animals were handled in these clinics last year. The annual SPCA fund-raising campaign is now under way and as SPCA does not have canvassers, cheques should be sent to SPCA, 5215 Jean Talon St. W., H4P1X4.

HILLSPRING, Alta. (CP) — "There's a conspiracy afoot to kill Hillspring, there's just no other way to look at it."

The grim-faced farmer was talking about what many people in this southern Alberta region have come to call "the conspiracy" by CP Rail, the Alberta Wheat Pool and the Alberta government to abolish farming towns like Hillspring.

Like many other prairie communities, Hillspring is expected to fade out of existence in the next decade because of changes in grain handling, transportation and life-styles.

A study by the Canada Grains Group 30 months ago predicted small towns like Hillspring and nearby Glenwood will die as farm families move to larger communities like Cardston, 25 miles to the southeast.

The first death throes have been felt here already with the announcement late in August that the Alberta Wheat Pool would close down its three elevators next July 31.

CP Rail, which has a spur line into Hillspring to service the elevators, has applied to the federal government for abandonment of service.

TRACK DISUSED

The weed-covered track shows no evidence of recent traffic and one farmer says the ties are so rotten he had to replace three in a section of track which runs through his wheat field.

"I was afraid that if I didn't, a train might get lost and come to Hillspring, only to derail in the middle of my field," said the farmer.

Hillspring, in many ways, is typical of the prairie towns which spawned many of the country's political and business leaders and now are fading away in the name of progress and economics.

The town's 200 inhabitants—another 300 live on surrounding farms and ranches—are largely long-time residents. Virtually every adult can remember the days of the Depression, the poor wheat markets and the coming of industry to the region.

Hillspring, an exclusively Mormon community, used to boast a prosperous business community. Today it has one general store, one derelict service station-garage and one United Farmers Association outlet.

FACILITIES DWINDLED

Grant Harker, owner of the M and M Supply store and mayor of Hillspring, recalled the "better days."

"Just about 10 years ago, we had a Co-op store, a hardware dealer who also sold farm equipment, a butcher shop, a garage and a restaurant," said Mr. Harker.

"Today, it's all I can do to stay in business here. I lose money on lots of items but I figure we have to provide a service to the people of the town."

The soft-spoken mayor reflects the optimistic feeling of most townspeople that the so-called business and government conspiracy will not succeed.

"Closing the elevators is going to crowd out the small farmer, no doubt about that," he said. "I don't think it will kill the town but it sure won't do it any good.

do it any good.

"The big farms with the heavy trucks can haul over to Glenwood (a slightly smaller town seven miles away) because the elevators there are going to be kept open for a while."

ROAD WIDENED

While the railbed leading into Hillspring is in need of major repair, the road leading to town is newly paved and widened.

"Even though they just finished paving the road it's starting to break up already," said Mr. Harker. "It can't take the weight of the heavy grain and transport trucks."

While the Hillspring spur line has not yet been officially abandoned by CP Rail, "as far as we are concerned they shut it down a long time ago."

"I sell fertilizer here and I've always relied on the railway to bring it in. It got so bad, though, that you could never tell if it would take three or six weeks to get a shipment that the men around here needed right away.

"Now I used trucks to haul fertilizer in here, so in a way I guess I'm partly to blame for the roads breaking up."

Despite a sign at the entrance to Hillspring which bars "heavy trucks" from the town's paved main streets, two heavy trucks—a transport unloading goods at Mr. Harker's store and a gasoline tanker at the UFA outlet—were in town.

VOLUME TOO SMALL

"I'd like to see the Pool keep at least one elevator operating," said Mr. Harker. "The small farmer who uses a half-ton truck to haul his grain could bring it here and the Pool could combine it all to be hauled out in trucks."

Pool secretary B. A. Friesen said Hillspring's elevators, along with those at Monarch, Whitney, Cessford, Dorothy, Dowling, Gem and Equity, will be closed because they failed to handle at least 200,000 bushels of grain last year.

Hillspring was the busiest, handling about 70,000 bushels

Dan Clarke, Pool agent at Hillspring, said this year's volume will be more than double last year's, largely because farmers can obtain higher prices for their products.

The Pool, in a letter signed by Mr. Friesen, told Hillspring farmers their elevator would be closed as part of a province-wide program.

"Closure of elevators at locations where handlings are so low that an earning is not possible has been under active consideration by the directors and delegates for a number of years," the letter stated.

"They are concerned that continuing the operations of the uneconomic elevators will result in a reduction in member earnings and a deterioration of service."

LINE OVERGROWN

Mr. Clarke said Hillspring is operating under a handicap due to poor railbed conditions

"There are so many weeds in the bed that I won't be able to load any cars this winter," he said. Snow piled against the high weeds would make it impossible for cars to reach the elevator.

Weeds in some sections of track are more than a foo high. In one spot, a half-mile from the elevator, small vines have grown across the rails.

Mr. Harker said the Pool may be making "a serious mistake" in closing the elevators because the bushel-per-year figures are taken from a period of reduced grain production.

"Small farmers change their production to meet the market," he said."A few years ago the market was down so they switched to cattle production.

"Now, with the cattle markets so uncertain and grain prices so high, a lot of men are going back to grain. In another year they might have more than 200,000 bushels, a lot more in fact."

But he admits that grain movement into Hillspring will never be as great as it once was.

"The Hutterites used to haul their grain in here, but now they take it straight to Cardston. The Palmer Ranch (a giant cattle farming operation nearby) doesn't sell its grain any more, since it needs it all to feed the stock.

"In fact the Palmer Ranch buys a lot of grain directly from farmers, so it never gets here at all."

Raquel's feelings hurt

NEW YORK (AP) — A wet-eyed Raquel Welch walked out of news conference Thursday after being asked if her sex-symbol movie image is too frivolous for her role as chairman of the 1975 American Cancer Crusade.

"I don't feel that at all," she responded. "I think that was very rude of you."

Then she walked out, but returned five minutes later and said: "Excuse me. I'm sorry I had to leave to regain my composure."

Irving Rimer, vice-president of public information for the American Cancer Society, said the society is grateful to Miss Welch for volunteering to head the 1975 crusade.

Society officials said crusade fund-raising will total $100 million this year and they hope to raise between $110 million and $115 million next year.

ATLANTA (AP) — Physicians for Academy Award-winning actress Susan Hayward say she is seriously ill but won't say what is wrong with her.

Miss Hayward, who re-entered the hospital 11 days ago, has asked that her ailment remain undisclosed, neurosurgeon George Tindall said Wednesday.

She underwent a biopsy at Emory University Hospital last July but the results of the test for cancer were never released.

Ann Landers

Don't play Vatican roulette

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 17-year-old high school senior who needs an answer. I hope you will print the advice because there is no way I can risk getting a letter with such information in the mail. My mother would surely open it and all hell would break loose.

My steady and I have been going together for 14 months. We started to have sex three months ago. Please don't tell me to stop because we tried to three times and it's impossible. We even made promises to each other and took an oath on the Bible. It didn't help.

What I need to know is this: When is the safest time for me to have intercourse because I sure don't want to get pregnant. I hope you won't suggest Planned Parenthood or anything that has to do with birth control. It is against my religion. Also, my boy friend thinks (and I agree) that any artificial methods would cheapen the beautiful love we have for each other. Please, Ann, try to understand and help us. — Very Anonymous

Dear V.A.: What you are already doing is against your religion, Dummy. I wish you both lots of luck if you continue to play Vatican Roulette because you're certainly going to need it. The rhythm system is the least safe way to prevent pregnancy. (In fact, at least 15 per cent of the time it doesn't work.)

The system has to be worked out with a professional, according to each woman's cycle. The problem lies in the fact that most women's cycles are somewhat irregular. If a woman miscalculates by even one day she has a new name. It is "Mother." My advice is to go to Planned Parenthood or your family doctor and not take any more foolish chances.

Dear Ann Landers: My mother had a beautiful gold bracelet. Since I was the only daughter, it was natural for her to promise it to me. Whenever she wore that bracelet, she mentioned that one day it would be mine.

A few weeks ago Mother passed away. The gold bracelet was not with the rest of her things when the family gathered to divide her few meaningful possessions. No one seemed to know anything about it.

Last week I learned my brother had given the bracelet to his 13-year-old daughter. That brat never gave two hoots for her grandmother. She was a rude and disrespectful child. Today when I saw her wearing the lovely bracelet, my blood began to boil. What should I do? — Out

Dear O.: Tell your brother the bracelet was promised to you and you'd like to have it. Too bad your mother didn't put the promise in writing. She could have prevented what is sure to be a great deal of unpleasantness.

Dear Ann: I know you aren't a doctor but you have good connections. Here's the problem. When I get tense I perspire profusely, especially my hands. It's very embarrassing when I'm in a group and have to shanke hands, especially in a receiving line. I wore cotton gloves once and felt very out-of-place because no other woman had gloves on.

Three doctors have given me medication but nothing works. I would bless you forever if you could suggest something. — Wringing Wet

Dear Wet: Your problem is not uncommon. It is called hyperhydrosis. Some drugs give relief but the side effects may cause problems. If you've seen three doctors I suggest you see one more, a dermatologist. If he is persistent he may hit on the drug or combination of drugs that will solve your problem without creating new ones.

Dr. Lamb

What will cure hiccups?

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have had several attacks of hiccups. The last was about three weeks ago. It lasted for one week while I was placed in a hospital. The treatment I received was not specific, but consisted of tranquilizers and sleeping pills.

I would like to know if there is any rather direct treatment for hiccups. I have stopped drinking any effervescent drinks and colas and pop.

DEAR READER — There are many cures for hiccups. Most work best if done just at the time the hiccups were going to stop anyway, in spite of what you do. Then you can say, wisely, that you cured your hiccups.

Breathing into a brown paper bag — I have always wondered why it must be brown — standing on your head, holding your breath, or having someone scare you all work — provided you do it just when the hiccups are ready to stop anyway. Timing is very important because if you use these and many other remedies before the hiccups are ready to stop anyway, your treatment will be a failure.

Treating many hiccups is much like treating a cold. A cold may last a week if you don't treat it and will only last seven days if you do.

Some hiccups are caused by distention of the stomach and factors that irritate the diaphragm just above the stomach. Hence, overeating, gas on the stomach, and hiatal hernia of part of the stomach through the diaphragm can be factors. You are wise to avoid the soda drinks.

Hiccups can also be caused by irritation of an area in the brain. Finally, they seem to be related to a reflex that involves the back of the throat.

Other than the passage of time and the use of sedatives or similar methods, I know of two direct methods that are helpful in some cases.

The first is done by taking a teaspoon and putting some vinegar on the back side of the spoon. Then open the mouth and rub the spoon at the area near the uvula in the back of the throat. The uvula is the lobe of tissue hanging down from the midline at the back of the throat. The uvula should be touched. The vinegar or the mechanical action may stop the hiccups at once in some people. Apparently this local action interferes with the hiccup reflex and effects a cure.

Still another cure was reported about three years ago by Dr. Edgar Engleman and colleagues, then from the Miami School of Medicine. They found that the old treatment of swallowing a teaspoon of dry, granulated sugar stopped the hiccups in 19 of 20 cases. In some instances the hiccups had been present over 24 hours before treatment was attempted. In those that had a recurrence of the hiccup, repeating the simple treatment stopped them immediately.

The sugar treatment is not because of the glucose or anything like that. It may be closely related to the spoon and vinegar treatment and by mechanically stimulating the back of the throat with the granular material, it may interrupt the hiccup reflex mechanism.

Neither of these treatments are dangerous, so the next time you have hiccups, try either one and see if it works. It could be a sweet way to avoid spending a week in the hospital.

Yesterday we said that you definitely should not open one spade with four cards each in spades and clubs. Our general rule for other hands with two four-card suits is when you hold four diamonds and four clubs to open one club; with four hearts and four diamonds to open a diamond, unless your hearts are very good; with clubs and either major to open one club and with spades and hearts to open one heart.

In addition we also open three-card club suits with hands like today's. We do hold four cards each in spades and hearts but have no interest in either suit unless our partner can produce four cards there.

It is fairly easy to arrive at four hearts after the club opening. It is even easier to get there after a one-heart opening by North, but any four-card majorite would open the North hand with one spade. The heart suit just might be missed as the bidding went forward.

Not that the heart suit should be missed. Any two bidders should reach that heart game on any system and would wind up losing two diamonds and one heart.

Golden anniversary

BEEBE — Mr. and Mrs. Gerald (Joe) Derusha accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Goodsell and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Richer Jr., out for dinner on Saturday evening. Enroute home they stopped at Paul's Sugarhouse on DerbyLine highway, where an anniversary party was in progress for Mr. and Mrs. Derusha's silver celebration.

Decorations were carried out in blue and white streamers, silver tinsel, a large white wedding bell, a 25th wedding anniversary banner and the many colored lights, all made the hall very decorative.

The celebrants were met at the door by their children, Garry, Debbie and Terry and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Garry Derusha.

A pink rose corsage was pinned on the gown of the bride of the silver years by her sister-in-law Mrs. Victory White, while Mr. White presented the celebrating groom with a white carnation boutonniere, amid much applause by the many relatives and friends who had assembled for the evening.

Corsages were also worn by Mrs. Garry Derusha, Miss Debbie Derusha, Mrs. Roland White, mother of the bride of 25 years; Garry and Terry Derusha and Mr. R. White, father of Mrs. Derusha, Sr., wore white carnation boutonnieres.

Garry extended a welcome to his parents and paid them high tribute.

Thomas Richer, Jr., a close family friend, added his tributes to the celebrants and read messages from the parents to the children, which were very amusing.

Debbie presented her mother with a bouquet of long-stemmed American Beauty roses, while Terry made the presentation of other gifts and many cards.

Following the formalities music was enjoyed to the music of the Nashville Ambassadors band.

At 1 a.m. a buffet luncheon was served to approximately 80 relatives and friends, from a table covered with a white cloth.

The cake and guest book were placed on a table by the orchestra.

The cake, in three layers, in white with large white roses, silver leaves, scroll design on each layer, top layer being faced with a numeral 25, and holding a bride and groom under an inverted wine glass, two white doves holding wedding bands, a stairway with orange trimming holding lighted candles was on one side of cake. (Bride wore a silver gown). Lighted candles with silver motif in silver holders flanked the cake, which was made by Mrs. Horance Doyon of Stanstead, and served at the lunch hour.

Guests of honor, with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roland White, and Mrs. Madge Miller were seated at a table under the wedding bell. The table was centered with lighted candles and flowers.

Throughout the evening, several birthdays and anniversaries were announced, among them being the 55th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Roland White, parents of Mrs. Derusha, Sr. and the birthday of Mr. Derusha Sr., on October 14. Congratulations were extended in song and applause.

During the luncheon hour, Mr. Vernon White, Black Lake, nephew of Mrs. Derusha, entertained by playing the guitar and singing many requested numbers.

The guests attended from Inverness, Black Lake Montreal Sherbrooke, Newport and the Three Villages. Among the guests was the bridesmaid at the wedding, Mrs. W. Trepanier; the best man, Arnold Brewer, was unable to attend.

Gerald Derusha and Mildred White were married October 15, 1945, at Inverness. They are the parents of three children, Garry in Sherbrooke, Debbie attending McGill University, Montreal and Terry at home.

Altar Society meets

DERBY LINE — The October meeting of the Altar Society of St. Edward's Parish was held at the home of Mrs. Hilaire Robillard with 28 members answering the roll call.

Father R. Benoit, Parish Priest, said prayers, after which the president, Mrs. Robillard called the meeting to order.

Routine reports of the secretary and treasurer were heard.

Mrs. Lorette Fortin, speaking for the Derby Line ambulance squad, asked if the Society would like to make a donation to help pay for the new ambulance. After some discussion it was voted and approved to donate $300.00 to this very worthy cause.

Mrs. Cecile Gaudreau and Mrs. Rita Blais volunteered to care for the Altar the month of November.

The refreshment committee for the November meeting will be Mrs. Rita Roy, Mrs. Cecile Parenteau and Mrs. Emiliene Routhier. The meeting will be held in the Parish hall after the evening mass.

It was suggested by Mrs. Jeannine Beauvais that the Society pay a Mass for all the deceased members. This was agreed upon by everyone and this Mass will be sung on November 13.

Mrs. Robillard thanked the members who had helped to clean the church walls.

Plans were made to have a rummage sale in the parish hall the evening of October 24 and the morning of October 25, Mrs. Gisele Seymour to be the project chairman.

As Mrs. Denise Lefebvre and Mrs. Helen Parenteau are going on a four day trip to the United Nations in New York, they were each presented with a sum of money to help defray their expenses.

Mrs. Rufus Patenaude has donated a quilt to be sold by tickets. Tentative plans are to have the drawing at the Saturday evening bingo on December 21.

The meeting was adjourned with prayers.

The social evening hour took place with a few games of bingo played and prizes awarded the winners.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Rita Blais, Mrs. Floride Blais, Mrs. Jeannette Blais, Mrs. Lorette Fortin and Mrs. Solange Martin.

You then complete the coupon with your name, address, telephone number and invoice number.

You deposit the coupon in one of the special boxes. The coupons are kept week after week.

Every Thursday and Friday evenings at 8:45 and every Saturday at 4:45 P.M. A coupon is drawn and the name is announced on the public address system in the Sears store. It is imperative that the person drawn is in the store at this time.

The winner will be asked to go to Restaurant of the Sears store within five minutes following the announcement.

The winning persons must identify themselves in a positive and serious way.

The winning persons will be required to answer a simple question of general knowledge. A correct answer will give them the amount of the day. The basic amount is $500. (in merchandise). If not won $100 is added. If the basic amount ($500 in merchandise) is not won Thursday for example, it beccmes $600 (in merchandise) for Friday ... and $700 (in merchandise) for Saturday afternoon, etc. etc.

If the persons called do not present themselves, or if the General Rules of this contest are not respected by the persons whose names are called, the amount of the day is simply transferred to the following drawing: $100 is added... every Thursday, Friday or Sturday until a winner is found!

Obituary

MRS. EDITH WHITEHEAD of Bury

The death of Mrs. Edith Whitehead which occured at the Youville Hospital, Friday, October 4, 1974, has removed one of our older and most highly esteemed citizens, at the age of 87 years.

Mrs. Whitehead, the former Edith McCubbin, was born in Bulwer on April 10, 1887, a daughter of John McCubbin and his wife Elva Hodge McCubbin.

After her father's death in the 1890's, her mother, with her family of seven, moved to Eaton Corner to be near her relatives there. While living there she was employed as cook in the hotel operated by the late Barney McCanna.

When Mr. McCanna disposed of his propery there and bought the C.P.R. hotel in Bury in 1898, Mrs. McCubbin accompanied them serving in the same capacity as cook, with two of her daughters Bessie and Edith, the other children cared for by relatives.

Edith attended the Bury Model School where she was a universal favorite with teachers and fellow pupils. After completing her education in the Model School, she was later employed by Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Walsh, in their new hotel the "Imperial House" built on the same site as the former C.P.R. hotel which had been destroyed by fire in 1903.

On August 8, 1906 she was united in marriage with Abel Whitehead a former schoolmate. In the months preceding their marriage, he had built a cosy little house on the Main street of Bury to which he brought his young bride and where they spent their married life together.

One little daughter, Freda, was born to them and further enriched their lives.

Mr. Whitehead had a highly diversified line of interests, apart from his personal business affairs.

He was keenly interested in various phases of community life, especially that of education in which he held several offices, in all of which he had the ever willing co-operation and encouragement of his wife.

Apart from her family life, Mrs. Whitehead had other interests too, living practically next door to the church, of which she had been a faithful adherent since her youth; she gave whole heartedly of her time and effort to its support.

She had been a member of the Ladies Aid, later the Women's Association, now the U.C.W. in which she was a regular attendant and participant at their meetings. In recognition of her services she was given a Life Membership. She also received a Life Membership from the Ladies Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion of which she had been an active member since its organization.

She had been a member of the Women's Institute for many years, but her particular interest was in the Alexandra Rebekah Lodge of which she had been a member since its inception in 1909, and in which she had progressed through several offices, eventually that of Provincial President of the Rebekah Assembly of Quebec, during which time she had achieved distinction and received many honors.

In December 1952, she was bereft of her husband who died after a period of declining health, leaving her to carry on alone, their daughter now married and living at a distance from her.

With the tenacity of purpose so characteristic of her, she continued living in her home, carrying on her usual activities as long as her health permitted.

Some years ago she developed a form of arthritis which made it extremely difficult to get around. Although otherwise in fairly good health, she was obliged to curtail many of her former pursuits.

As her health continued to get worse, she had, for several recent winters, the help and companionship of Mrs. Ella Burgess, until she too was obliged to enter the hospital.

Mrs. Whitehead, unable to carry on alone, was obliged to make the difficult and heart breaking decision to dispose of the home in which she had spent nearly 70 years, sell her household effects and enter St. Paul's Rest Home, where she had spent several months before entering the Sherbrooke Hospital, later transferred to the Youville Hospital where she passed away.

In her long life, it was inevitable that she would experience the many joys and sorrows common to all. She had been bereft of parents, brothers and sisters, the tragic death of a dear sister-in-law (Mrs. James Whitehead) in 1949, her husband in 1952, and a beloved grandson Roderick Dods, one of her only two grandsons, who died at his home in Ontario in November 1960 and was brought here for burial, all of which she bore with uncomplaining patience, never imposing her personal griefs upon the lives of others.

Her cheerful disposition, practical common sense and sympathetic understanding won for her the high regard of all with whom she came in contact and by whom she will long be remembered with respect and affection.

As she lay in repose at the Boynton Funeral Home, many friends came to pay their final tribute of respect, and many lovely floral offerings were silent tokens of regard.

On the evening prior to the funeral the Rebekahs held the impressive service of their order with 29 members participating.

Funeral services preceded by prayers at the funeral home, were held at the United Church, with Rev. Geerloff Lokhorst officiating on Monday, October 7.

With Mrs. W.G. MacLeod at the organ two favorite hymns "Breathe on me, breath of God" and "Abide with Me" were sung by the choir.

Old friends and neighbors acting as bearers were Wilfred Coates, Bill Cook, Raymond MacLeod, Bob Mayhew, Galen Morrison and Everett Boynton who conveyed her to her final resting place in the family lot beside her husband.

Left to mourn are her daughter Freda, Mrs. T. Dods, and son-in-law, Mr. Dods of Burlington, Ont., grandson Wayne Dods, Mrs. Dods and children Katherine Julie and Robert of Milton, Ont., and a sister, Mrs. Hazel Griffin of the Youville Hospital, Sherbrooke.

She was predeceased by her brothers Roy and David McCubbin of Beebe, sisters Mrs. Mary Moore, Mrs. Bessie Bishop, Mrs. Gladys McClintock and grandson Roderick Dods.

"For those we love within the veil
Who once were comrades of our way
We thank Thee, Lord, for they have won
To cloudless day,
And life for them is life indeed
The splendid goal of life's straight race
And where no shadows intervene
They see Thy face."

Fish and Game Club

DERBY LINE — Directors of the Derby Fish and Game Club met in the Village hall, Derby Line, the evening of Monday, October 21 with Harold Carter in the chair. In the absence of secretary, Gordon Swett, his duties were carried out by Pearce Wheeler.

Red Gilfillan gave his range report for the season which was a successful one and a good amount of money turned over to the treasurer, George Smith. However, the directors are deeply concerned about the broken glass at the range, seems that some inconsiderate people have been shooting at glass bottle targets. They plan to clean this up. Also a bee to remove what equipment from the range to a safer place for winter storage.

Ira Bachelder reported the memberships stand at 137 seniors and 9 juniors. Several directors turned in memberships at the meeting.

Lionel Fortin and Bill Gosselin noted there is still time for people to join the club and become eligible for a trophy as there will be a trophy given for the largest bear shot; for largest deer during bow and arrow season, and a trophy for each man, woman and a junior for deer shot during regular season, boone and crocket measure to be used. Registration stations are with Mr. Fortin or Mr. Gosselin.

Bill Gosselin and Harold Carter are co-chairmen for the sale of a gun cabinet by tickets. The lucky winner to be drawn for on December 14.

October 27 will be sighting - in day at the range between the hours of 9:00 a.m. into the afternoon. Red Gilfillan and Scott Willard will be in charge.

Having another game dinner in December was discussed. However the final decision will be made on December 1 after the season is over. Although a meeting is not held for the directors in November, Mr. Carter plans to call one if it is possible to have the dinner. More on this later.

Mr. Wheeler, NRA instructor, said 44 persons, 6 adults and 38 youth took and passed the NRA Safety Hunters course.

Mr. Fortin and Mr. Gosselin are to be a committee to make inquiry of a place to have the winter meetings as the Derby Line hall will soon be closed for these months.

"Cheap" goal is difference

When a Rangers player scores his third goal in a game, New York fans usually litter the ice with hats to commemorate the feat sometimes called a hat trick.

When Bill Fairbairn scored his third New York goal in Wednesday night's 5-1 National Hockey League triumph over St. Louis Blues, a solitary, beat-up old cap made its way to the ice.

In a way, though, that was appropriate. Fairbairn is known as "an honest hockey player." No flashy moves, just determination and hard work.

Three other players got three goals each as Atlanta Flames whipped Detroit Red Wings 10-1, Montreal Canadiens edged Toronto Maple Leafs 3-2, Chicago Black Hawks defeated Washington Capitals 3-2, Boston Bruins and Pittsburgh Penguins tied 5-5 and Kansas City Scouts earned their first point with a 4-4 tie against California Golden Seals.

Fairbairn wasn't excited about his highest single-game goal output in five NHL seasons.

"It wasn't much of a hat trick," the quiet right-winger said. "The only goal that was any good was the second one."

Fairbairn's first shot had entered the St. Louis net after bouncing off the chest of Blues goalie Ed Johnston and hitting St. Louis defenceman Barclay Plager in the forehead. The third one also went in off a Blues defenceman.

But the second goal was the kind that brings fans to their feet. New York's Steve Vickers had the puck in the corner and fed it to Fairbairn about 20 feet in front of Johnston, who had no time to get set for the right wing's rising wrist shot.

That gave the Rangers a 2-1 lead at 1:09 of the middle period, after the Blues' Billy Collins had tied the game with a shorthanded goal midway through the first period. Then Jerry Butler added a breakaway score, Vickers deflected a Walt Tkaczuk pass into the goal, and Fairbairn scored his third of the night.

"I never even scored three goals in the Central League," said Fairbairn, who added that he was just as happy the Rangers had given up only one goal as he was with scoring three of his own.

"You can't fault the goalie," Fairbairn said, further belittling his effort. "One goes in off the defence, then another does. When I get a good, honest hat trick, then I'll have something to be really happy about."

Toronto coach Red Kelly said it was a "cheap" goal, scored by Yvon Lambert at 17:27 of the third period, that gave Montreal the victory over the Leafs.

DRIBBLES OFF STICK

Lambert had fired a weak shot from the corner that dribbled into the net off the heel of goalie Doug Favell's stick.

"That's what's happening to me lately," said Favell. "Even if I play well, I still end up getting beat by those sort of shots."

At Atlanta, the Flames scored their biggest goal total ever in one game, with Curt Bennett and rookie Eric Vail each scoring three. Another team record was Tom Lysiak's five points, from a goal and four assists.

Boston's Bobby Orr scored three goals but it took another score by Carol Vadnais in the last minute at Pittsburgh to secure the tie against the Penguins.

At Chicago, the Black Hawks outshot Washington 42-12 and managed the narrow win on Cliff Koroll's goal early in the third period.

California ended a three-game losing streak after Ron Huston's third-period goal gave the Seals the tie against the expansion Scouts who picked up their first-ever point in six games.

Aeros miss Howe power

Houston Aeros opened defence of their World Hockey Association championship impressively enough two weeks ago but now they appear to be resting on their laurels.

The Aeros suffered their fourth straight loss Wednesday night, dropping a 5-4 decision to New England Whalers at Springfield, Mass.

In other action Wednesday, Vancouver Blazers, 6-0 losers to Houston in the opener a week ago, beat Cleveland Crusaders 4-1 and Quebec Nordiques whipped Michigan Stags 6-2.

One of Houston's problems appears to be a lack of punch from Howe family—Gordie and sons Mark and Marty. The elder Howe provided one assist Wednesday night for the family's only point.

New England outshot the Aeros 40-31 with Fred O'Donnell, former Boston Bruins winger in the National Hockey League, providing two Whalers goals.

SCORES WINNER

O'Donnell's second goal, at 12:03 of the third period broke a 4-4 tie.

At Quebec, Pierre Guite's goal early in the third period broke a 2-2 tie and Serge Bernier followed with two goals in a four-goal rally by the Nordiques.

Quebec remains unbeaten in three games and now is only two points behind Toronto Toros in the Canadian Division. The Toros are also unbeaten in four games.

Vancouver, which started the season with three straight losses, scored its second win with the help of two goals from left-winger Johnny McKenzie.

The Crusaders, now with a 1-1-1 record, were without defenceman Paul Shmyr, out with an arm injury, and left-winger Gerry Pinder who is nursing a bruised shoulder.

Attendance was not encouraging at any of the WHA arenas. Vancouver drew 6,622, New England had 4,567 fans and Quebec 6,443.

Winter games to Lake Placid

VIENNA (CP) — The clock turned back 42 years for Jack Shea, town supervisor of Lake Placid, N.Y., when the little ski resort was awarded the 1980 Winter Olympics.

Shea was born in Lake Placid. In 1932, when he was 17, the Winter Olympics were held there and he won two gold medals in speed skating.

Now, at 60, he has helped Lake Placid to get the Winter Games again. The International Olympic Committee (IOC) made the award Wednesday, at the same time choosing Moscow over Los Angeles for the 1980 Summer Games.

"I have waited a long time for this to happen," said Shea whose family runs a meat and groceries business in Lake Placid.

"The Winter Games in my home town in 1932 were the highlight of my life. I have dreamed of seeing them take place at Lake Placid again.

"I have not been to any Winter Olympics since 1932, and I wonder just how different it will be.

SEEKS SIMPLICITY

"The games were smaller in those days. One of our tasks will be to try to restore the simplicity and intimate friendships of the Olympics of days gone by."
