You know there is much more painting done now-a-days than of old, but did you know there is a far better way to do it? Painting is no exception to other things. The art has not stood still. You can still buy some white lead (are you a judge of it?) and some oil (are you a judge of that?) and find a neighborly painter and have some paint made; but as sure as you are alive there is a better way.

DON'T.

DON'T imagine that because I am buying nearly a ton of Raspberries every day that I have no time or goods for my regular customers.

DON'T think that I cannot sell goods of the same quality as cheap as any other merchant as that would be a grave mistake. I buy for cash.

DON'T send your money away when it is needed and will do more good at home, and you make nothing by it.

DON'T imagine that this store is open to-day and closed to-morrow, as I am here at the pleasure of my friends the public.

DON'T think that I am not going to bring by and bye and would like you to come now while business can be done under my personal supervision.

TRAMPS WANTED.

Mr. J. M. Herbert of the Grand Trunk Railway system has notified the Chief of Police to keep a sharp lookout for three men, one five feet nine inches in height, weight, 170 lbs., 27 or 30 years old, sandy hair and moustache, no whiskers, stooping forehead, sack coat light cloth, peak cap, heavy gold ring on little finger of right hand, gold watch chain, dark shirt and collar. Another of the men wanted is the same height, dark hair and moustache, no whiskers, dark clothes, sack coat, 30 years of age, bruised on right side of face, black cloth peak cap, dark shirt and collar, weight 160. The third man is five feet eight inches in height, 50 years of age, gray hair and moustache, no whiskers, dark clothes, cut away coat, soft brown felt hat, 150 lb.

The agents of the road have been notified to look out for men answering the above description. It is not known what they are wanted for.

ALLEGED HORSE THIEF
ARRESTED.

High Constable Moe brought back to Sherbrooke this morning a young man named Lachance on a charge of having stolen a horse and buggy from T. Peck's livery stable some time ago. It would appear that the man just arrested hired the horse from the livery stable in question and drove to Capleton, where he disposed of the whole outfit to a party for $90. Fifty dollars was paid in cash and the remaining $40 was to be called for the next Saturday. He failed to turn up, however and it was thought he had gone to the States. The Capleton man drove down to Sherbrooke shortly afterwards, when he discovered that his purchase had been stolen. An endeavor was made to locate Lachance but it was not until last week when he wrote from the States asking that the $40 be forwarded to him. Instead of this being done, High Constable Moe paid him a visit with the above result.

$5000 FIRE AT MAGOC.

Manson & Boright's Mill
Burned.

NO INSURANCE ON THE BUILDING.

Magoc, Aug. 14.—(Special).—Fire broke out yesterday morning about six o'clock in the mill belonging to Manson & Boright, with the result that the entire buildings are a total loss.

On the fire being discovered an alarm was immediately sent in and the fire brigade responded. Willing hands were soon at work in an endeavor to save the property but it was found that nothing could be done to save the building and the attention of the workers was directed towards saving the adjoining properties and the contents of the mill. The house next to the mill had an iron roof and this certainly saved it from gutting. A goodly portion of the contents of the mill was saved although in a somewhat damaged condition.

The loss will amount to about $5000, and Messrs. Manson & Boright carried only $1000 and that was on the stock, so that the building will be a total loss. The mill was saved although in a somewhat damaged condition.

The fire is supposed to have been started by tramps as several members of that class were seen around the place previous to the fire.

METHODIST CHURCH.

The Rev. Mr. Lett preached at both services yesterday. At the evening service he entered a strong personal protest against the desecration of the Sabbath by excursions being run into the city from outside points, and the use of our park for musical performances that disturb the day of rest.

The regular prayer meeting takes place Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Thursday evening at 7.30 the pastor will meet the teachers and those who desire to study the S. S. lesson in the church parlor. The Financial District Meeting will be held at East Angus next week.

SUNDAY EXCURSION.

There was a large number of excursionists in the city yesterday from Berlin Falls, and other points in New Hampshire.

We are in receipt of a handsome illustrated folder from Mr. D. O. Pease, District Passenger Agent, Grand Trunk Ry., Montreal, showing the beauties from the boundary line down through the charming mountain scenery of the White Mountains to Portland. It is most artistically gotten up with excellent engravings and is a readable letter press.

The funeral of the late Joseph Desjardis, pattern maker at the Jenckes Machine shops, took place this morning. The Catholic Order of Foresters attended in a body. The deceased who died on Saturday had only been sick for three weeks.

REGATTA AT NORTH HATLEY.

The Regatta of the Massachusetts Canoe Club, which took place at North Hatley on Saturday afternoon last is now looked upon, not only by the large number of summer visitors at Hatley but by a large contingent from Sherbrooke who always go up to make the event the success it always is, the gala day of the season, and Saturday last was no exception to the rule. The weather was perfect for such an occasion, the sun shone out bright and there was a delightful breeze which materially aided the sailing events. Roxton Pond Plane Mill's Burned.

Loss Estimated About $15,000.

WILL BE A GREAT LOSS TO THE VILLAGE.

Fire broke out in the large Plane factory at Roxton Pond about nine miles from Granby belonging to Mr. Monty, and at one time it looked as if a considerable portion of the village would be wiped out. A good supply of water and willing help kept the flames, however, from spreading. As it is the loss is a very heavy one, being estimated at about $15,000, and the help employed, it being the chief industry in the place, will suffer a good deal as, even if the factory is rebuilt, it will be some time before the majority of them can get to work. A barn belonging to Mrs. S. F. Willard was destroyed, and her house was one time in great danger, but by hard work it was saved. It is supposed that the fire originated in the boiler room. The only insurance carried was $4,500 carried in stock companies.

LARKS.
All day in exquisite air.
The song clouds an invisible stair,
Flight on fig. 1, story on story,
Into the dazzling glory.
There was no bird, only a singing,
Up in the glory, climbing and ringing,
Like a small golden cloud at even,
Trembling 'twixt earth and heaven.
I saw no staircase, winding, winding,
Up in the clouds, sapphire and blinding,
Yet noted by round, in exquisite air,
The song went on the stair.
—Katharine Tynan in "The Wind in the Trees"

Rosa of Tannenburg.

A Story Begun by a Father and Ended by a Daughter.

The castle of Tannenburg was like all castles of its time, strongly fortified and surrounded by high walls and a deep moat. In an upper room, one warm summer day, Rosa and her father sat together. The knight had just come home from the wars, badly wounded, and Rosa, a fair haired girl of 17, sat by him working over her gayly colored tapestry.

"Father," she said, "tell me the story of how you got the chain round your neck."

Rosa had heard the story a hundred times before now, but she never tired of hearing it any more than the old knight of telling it.

"When I was a page at court," began the knight, stroking his long, gray beard, "a great tournament was given in honor of a French prince who came to visit the emperor. There I saw your mother for the first time, and so lovely was she that she was elected to be the queen of beauty, and was to give the prize, a golden chain, to the victor. I loved her from the moment I saw her, and her beauty gave me such strength and daring that I came out first in the games, much to the chagrin of the young baron of Odenwald, who opposed me fiercely in the tourney.

It was, like myself, a suitor for the hand of the queen of beauty, and when I finally won her for my bride he swore that he would have revenge on me."

"But," interrupted Rosa, "this castle is only 15 miles from us, and he has done us no harm yet."

"Yes," answered her father, "that was many years ago, and he has now a young wife and two children, but he still hates me bitterly."

A loud clamor in the courtyard interrupted the story, and on looking out of the window to their consternation they saw the very man they were speaking of, the baron of Odenwald, and his soldiers marching up to the castle doors. The knight's soldiers were still at the wars, and the few old men left to guard the castle had been easily overpowered by the fierce baron.

Rosa screamed with terror. She heard the tramp of armed feet coming up the stairs. In came the haughty baron of Odenwald and ordered his men to bind and carry off the wounded and helpless knight of Tannenburg. In vain were Rosa's tears and prayers. The unfortunate knight was hurried off, Rosa turned out of the castle, which was looted and then locked up, and the poor girl left weeping and disconsolate.

All night she wandered through the dark pine forest till she came to a charcoal burner's hut, where she was taken in and kindly treated. Days passed by, and Rosa longed to see her father once more and perhaps help him to escape. Accordingly one day she stained her face with brown berry juice, changed her own pretty dress for a peasant's coarse cotton gown, and with a large basket of mushrooms on her arm started off for the castle of Odenwald.

The sentinel, seeing only a harmless little peasant girl, let her pass over the drawbridge and through the castle gates. She walked up to the porter's lodge, where the porter's wife stood in the doorway scolding her children. The baron of Odenwald was extremely fond of mushrooms, and the basketful was soon bought and paid for by the porter's wife.

"Will you not stay with me and help me look after the children and cook the food for the prisoners?" she asked after a few moments' chat with Rosa. "I need a young, strong girl like you, and I will give you a new dress every year if you will stay."

Rosa accepted the offer eagerly, and her duties, none too light, began that very day. She had to light the fire in the morning, dress the children, help the porter's wife cook the most unsavory soup for the prisoners of the castle and do many things. One day the porter came to his wife and told her that he was obliged to go away with the baron for some days and that she would have to take the prisoners' food to them besides cooking it.

"No, indeed," replied his wife. "There are murderers and thieves in those cells, and I will not go near them."

"Let me go," begged Rosa. "I will do it for you."

"Very well," said the porter, rather surprised at her request; "come with me and I will show you how to unlock the doors."

Together they went down a winding flight of stone steps, opened a door heavily bolted and barred and down a long, dark corridor dimly lighted by the porter's lantern. On one side were small stone cells, behind whose iron gratings wild, cruel faces gleamed in the light of the passing lantern. Hidden oaths and fearful laughter followed them, and Rosa shrank, frightened, to the porter's side.

"Do you fear them?" he said. "They cannot possibly escape. This man, however, is good and gentle, and you can go over into his cell." He stopped in front of one of the gratings and held up his lantern. Rosa's heart beat fast and loud. There on a wretched heap of straw lay her father, asleep, pale and emaciated. She longed to call to him, but remembered that she must be silent before the porter, and she left him sleeping and walked back through the long corridor, bolting the heavy door behind them.

The next day Rosa took into the prisoners the bowls of unappetizing soup, pushed one under every grating and finally came to her father's cell. Unlocking his door, she pushed in and knelt by the sick man's side. "Father!" she cried. "Rosa!" exclaimed the knight, recognizing his daughter in spite of the brown stain and rough dress. He took her in his arms and together they wept over their terrible misfortunes. Then Rosa told her father all her adventures since she had been carried off, until the sound of the great bell of the castle, coming dim and muffled through the thick dungeon walls, warned her that it was time to go back to the porter's wife.

Twice every day Rosa brought food to the prisoners and thus saw her father. Escape, however, was not possible. The walls were too well guarded, and as the days slipped by the poor knight grew worse and Rosa despaired.

One morning the castle was filled with noise and busy movement. The news that the baron was to return that evening with a large company of guests flew from mouth to mouth. So excited were they all that the nursemaid forgot her precious charges, the baron's two little sons, who were playing in the courtyard while she gossiped with the scullery maid over the coming event.

A bright blue and yellow butterfly flew across the grass and away with the two children after it. The butterfly settled for a moment on the edge of the bucket dangling over the well. The eldest of the children clambered up, stretched out his little hand to reach the gay plaything, lost his balance and fell in. The baroness at the window saw and fainted at the sight. Men and maids rushed up, and among them Rosa. Down in the dismal depths of the well they peered and saw that the little fellow's coat had caught on a sharp stone projecting half way down the well. Rosa saw that the coat was already beginning to tear, that there was no time to be lost, and, jumping into the bucket, told the men to let her down gently till she reached the boy. Soon the child was safe in her arms and the bucket, with its occupants, carefully brought up to the mouth of the well.

It was not many hours after that the baron of Odenwald, sitting in the great hall of the castle with his guests, heard the story of his son's narrow escape from death and Rosa's plucky act.

"Bring the girl here!" he commanded, and Rosa was brought in, her rough peasant dress contrasting with the gay costumes of the knights and ladies in the hall.

"Girl," said the baron, "you saved my son's life. Ask what you will of me and I will give it to you."

"Baron of Odenwald," answered Rosa boldly, "there is one favor I will ask of you. Give up your prisoner, the knight of Tannenburg, to me."

"No, no! Not that!" frowned the baron.

A murmur went around the hall from the guests. "Your word, your honor!" and the baron turned pale with chagrin and rage. By his order the wounded knight was brought up from the dungeon. Astonished and almost blinded by the bright light, he gazed around him, while Rosa quietly put her hand in his.

"My daughter, what does this mean?"

"His daughter!" murmured the guests once more.

The whole story then came out. A reconciliation was effected between the knight and the baron and the property of the former restored to him.

Some days later Rosa and her father sat together in an upper chamber of the castle, the knight with the glow of returning health on his face. Rosa in a pretty little silk gown and the brown berry stain completely disappeared.

"Father," said Rosa, "this is a happy ending after all to the story of the golden chain."

"Yes, dear," answered her father. "I began the story, but it was my brave little daughter who brought it to this happy termination."—Pittsburg Press.

Easily Recognized.

Charles Dickens delighted to tell stories of John Forster, the writer and editor with whom he was much associated. Mr. Forster had so perceptive and so decisive a manner that it impressed all who came in contact with him. His servants were kept in perfect and almost abject submission to his wishes, and yet he showed many kindnesses to them, and they were greatly attached to him.

The story runs that on one occasion a cabman called at the printing office and was unable to give the name of the person who had ordered him to come at a certain hour, without fail.

The office porter asked for a description of his fare, and the cabman stated that he was "a stout gentleman." To this the porter replied that there were several stout gentlemen in the office and inquired whether this one was tall or short.

"I don't know which you'd call him," returned the cabman. "I don't take special notice; but there can't be two like him; he's that there harlequin cove!"

The porter summoned Mr. Forster without hesitation and found he had made no mistake. When the story leaked out, nobody enjoyed it more than the "harlequin cove" himself.

Make Good Settlers.

MR. C. O. SWANSON RELIEVES GALICIAN AND DOUKHOBOR ARE ALL RIGHT.

Mr. C. O. Swanson, Waterville, Que., Dominion Government interpreter, returned Friday morning from a trip to Alberta and the North-West. He left the west on July 5, with a delegation from the Scandinavian settlements in the eastern and western states, and also about forty settlers. They had a good trip to Alberta. He visited all the Swedish colonies and found them doing very well. The crops were looking better than he had ever seen them. They were a little late on account of the late opening of the spring, but the farmers hoped to get them harvested safely. So far they were all right.

The prospects for immigration were very bright, and many people were going into the country. Those who had been settled there for four or five years had in many cases begun to buy railway lands near their farms.

Mr. Swanson said that in his trip he had come across a number of the Galician and Doukhobor immigrants. Asked as to the Galicians, he said: "I believe they will turn out much better than was expected, and I see no reason why they should not make good colonists. I think they are just the settlers we want for the section of the country, as Canadians would not settle there anyway. As for the Doukhobors, I believe they also will make good colonists. A number of them are now employed on the railways, on ranches, and as farm laborers. So far they have given good satisfaction and are faithful workers."

A decided increase in the immigration from the western states is expected as a result of the delegates' reports. There is, he said, a great demand for labor. Even in Alberta, 1,500 men could get work on farms, ranches or railways. In Calgary they were offering forty dollars a month and board for men to work at the haying and during the harvest, but enough men could not be obtained.

Mr. Swanson is now at Waterville for a few days' vacation.

THE ELF BAIRN.

As I came over Kirkstone pass,
Through the win and heather,
I met a bonnie shepherd lass,
Strayed in the misty weather.
To her bare feet the rock would seem
As soft as honey-dew,
But if we crossed a running stream
She had me lift her over.
She kissed me sweetly for a charm,
I had been here before,
But that I wore, to shield from harm,
A sprig of the white heather.
And if I asked her whence she came
She would not tell me where;
But if I asked her for her name
Her eyes would glow and glare.
We passed a beck by Kirkstone cairn,
I dipped her in the water;
She changed into an elf-bairn,
Run off before I caught her.

BROKE THE BLOCKADE.

Which Goes to Show That the Spaniard Will Still Be Behind the Times in the Coming Century.

Lieutenant Jose Baquero y Ordonez of the navy of his Catholic majesty of Spain stroked his long white beard and decided on a brilliant and great action. From the decks of his little gunboat he looked once more—"Who knows," thought he, "but it is for the last time"—on the sleepy cove of Turiguano, that had sheltered his craft so long and well from the prowling Yankee fleet. Then sharp orders were given, and the white, shining ship moved swiftly out of the tiny Cuban harbor and stood for the open sea.

On the shore there was strange commotion as she went. It came from Spanish loyalists, who had fed her crew and officers for years and supplied the vessel with material, and their emotion was vivid, for Lieutenant Jose Baquero y Ordonez of the navy of his majesty of Spain had omitted the formality of paying the bills.

Lieutenant Ordonez had things more weighty than mere bills to consider. After long reflection he had decided on a stroke that would end an imperishable glory for him and his—or annihilation. He had decided to run the fierce blockade and enter Havana; to force his way through the enormous steel fleet of the enemy, to defy battleships and torpedo boats and cruisers and to do a deed that would re-echo in Spain.

He did not aspire to the empty glory of sinking a Yankee ship, and, incidentally, being sunk himself. The Lieutenant Ordonez would have dared that, too, for it would have been a chivalrous thing to do, and he lived for chivalry. But that ripe reflection to which he had become a prey taught him that, if he were sunk, the Yankee pigs never would give credit to him and his crew for their glorious blow for Spanish arms.

And, then, where would be all the good effect of his enterprise, as far as the fame of Spain was concerned? No! The Lieutenant Ordonez saw clearly that he could nerve the Spanish arm and force the world's acclaim for the valor of his land best by entering Havana and flashing the news around the globe that a Spanish warship had broken the boasted blockade. "On, then, my brave ones!" cried he. "Fear not! Honor and cigarettes and senoras' smiles await us! And if you see a Yankee pig boat, do not hesitate to let me know in ample season." He looked enthusiastically on his crew, a crew of Spanish soldiers, who might be proud to have—all white-haired men, who had served in the Spanish navy for many, many years.

Intrepidity that was the inheritance of the Lieutenant Ordonez did not interfere with his sound judgment. Carefully, though bravely, he steered along the coast, and at every sign of smoke or sail on the horizon he felt his responsibility for the care of his ship and men keenly enough to suppress his natural desire for battle and to hide in a snug harbor till night made it safe to venture on again.

And so making port wherever a deserted bay or bay was to be found, the little gunboat San Jago worked her way along the north coast of Cuba night after night, giving a wide berth to harbors like Sagua la Grande and Cardenas, where the enemy might be in force, till at last, on the midnight of the seventh day after venturing out of their port, the brave Spaniards crept in sight of their goal.

Now there was intense excitement on the little ship. The men lay down by their guns and whispered what they had to say to each other. The officers crowded together and strained their eyes through the gloom for the dusky shapes of the American ships that must be within a few miles at the most. And softly the engines worked and every moment the coast loomed more plainly. Still there was no sign of foe. No pencil of warning, groping light was to be seen anywhere on the rolling sea to betray an American ship with her prying searchlight.

It seemed almost too good to be true, and the Lieutenant Ordonez and his men began to suspect a trap. They redoubled their watchfulness, and more than one sailor muttered a hurried prayer in wise provision for a possible emergency when he might not have time to commend his soul to his patron saint. But still there was no sign of an enemy's craft, and finally the ship opened up the entrance to Havana harbor without having met a single obstacle.

Then an involuntary exclamation of surprise came from the watching men. Havana was dazzling with illuminations. The waters of the bay were bright as day with the flashes of electric lights, and from all parts of the city rockets and Roman candles and other aerial fireworks were rising in sheafs of flame. For awhile the Spaniards gazed at the scene in mute astonishment. Then the Lieutenant Ordonez raised his voice and shouted: "Victory! Victory! Behold! This is it! Victory! No blockade! The Yankee pigs have been wiped from the sea that they so polluted! Joy! Joy! It is a glorious day for Spanish arms!"

Loudly the crew cheered at the words, and the gunboat San Jago sped by the dark and silent Morro and up the bay. Quickly the gig was lowered, and the lieutenant with his officers went ashore with feverish impatience to leery the news.

At the pier a great crowd stood, as if awaiting them. But when the seamen landed there were no cheers as they had expected. Instead, they found themselves regarded curiously, and here was considerable jostling and some laughter.

Angry the lieutenant turned to a tall, stout individual in a rather odd uniform of blue cloth with many brass buttons. Him he asked in Spanish for the latest news, but the fellow only stared.

The lieutenant repeated his request peremptorily, and still there was no answer.

But the official turned to one of the bystanders and beckoned to him. He approached and in turn stared and shook his head.

Others came and listened to the question which the lieutenant was repeating, but each looked as nonplussed as the rest.

Finally an old, old man appeared and nodded understandingly. Turning to the rest, he said in English: "This old jay is jabbering Spanish—you know the language that they used to speak here 'way back. Well, I guess he's a little cracked, because he's asking for the latest news of the war."

"What war?" asked a young man curiously.

"What there Spanish war that we had about this island here with them Spanish about 50 years ago. I don't remember the date exactly, but it was about in 1800 or some time like that."

The lieutenant Ordonez was getting impatient. His sailors had been jostled from his side and were losing their selves in the crowd, and his officers also had disappeared. He said: "Tell me, senior, I am the commander of the Spanish gunboat San Jago and have run the blockade. What is the meaning of this discourtesy?"

"Holy smoke!" said the old man in English to his friends the onlookers. "I guess he's a gonner in the head for sure. He says that he's run the blockade. I s'pose, Bill," he continued, turning to the stout man in the blue uniform, "that you'll have to tear your self away from this Fourth of July celebration of ours and take this poor old duck to the police station. He's dead nut."

"Hang it!" said Bill, and stroled over to the lieutenant Ordonez. He laid his hand on his shoulder and began to pull him along. The naval officer straightened up and struck the stout man full in the face. The assaulted man, however, did not grudge the lieutenant the collar and the crowd caught him by legs and arms and helped the procession along.

In a few minutes he was deposited ungracefully, though not altogether unkindly, in a police station, where a red faced man with a rich Irish brogue demanded his pedigree. For the lieutenant Ordonez was quite beyond himself with rage and no one else could tell much about the prisoner.

But finally the sergeant had gathered enough material to make his record on the blotter: July 4, 1899—Prisoner, male; real name unknown; assumed name, Lieutenant Jose Baquero y Ordonez; charge, insanity.

And the Lieutenant Ordonez was hustled rudely into a cell. He had waited in the snug pig of Turiguano too long.—New York Press.

The Boot Language.

Some cities of which the Saunterer knows lay claim to preeminence in cosmopolitanism. But in proportion to population they do not compare with a vessel that steamed into Philadelphia the other day.

Included in the list are Turks, Arabs, Peruvians, Chilians, Chinamen and Filipinos. Naturally, with such a conglomeration, any attempt at a language is useless—that is, a spoken language. An officer of the vessel, which is a tramp steamer, engaged in the sugar trade, by the way, told the Saunterer about it.

"We have only one language on board the boat (time of emergency)," he declared, "and that is what we term the boot language. It never fails. When a storm arises or anything else happens to cause speedy action on the part of the crew, the officers of the ship don't try to talk. They make a few motions with their hands, and if these don't suffice, they employ the boot language. As you may readily guess, this is simply a series of kicks.

One kick, well administered, beats a whole encyclopedia with men who don't understand the language in which the encyclopedia is printed, and so we manage to get through. But I've often wondered what would happen to the ship if paralysis of the lower limbs should happen to set in among the officers."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Put Your Finger on Your Pulse

If the blood is impure then you are weak and languid; your appetite is poor and your digestion is weak. You cannot sleep well and the morning finds you unprepared for the work of the day. Your cheeks are pale and your complexion is sallow. You are troubled with pimples, boils, or some eruption of the skin. Why not purify your blood?

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

will do it. Take it a few days and then put your finger on your pulse again. You can feel the difference. It is stronger and your circulation better. Send for our book on Impure Blood. If you are bilious, take Ayer's Pills. They greatly aid the Sarsaparilla. They cure constipation also.

BUTTERNUT GROVE.

Several of our farmers have finished haying.

Miss Alice Buchanan is spending few days with her mother, Mrs. Campbell previous to her departure for Lowell.

Mr. J. Cunningham lost three fine yearlings lately.

The Church of the Good Shepherd was crowded to the door on the evening of August 2nd to witness the marriage of Miss Agusta Andrews of Dunstable to Mr. Dana Prescott of Robinson, Que. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. D. Husbands. The friends of the bride had previously decorated the church with flowers for the occasion, while Miss Eva Embury presided at the organ. The bride was very prettily attired in a dress of silken cloth trimmed with white silk lace, with veil and orange blossoms. The bridesmaids, Miss Marie Willard and Miss Irene Rowe, both looked very pretty, in dresses of white with white kid slippers, each carrying a large bouquet. The groom was supported by E. T. Andrews, and Dexter Willard. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful presents.

Mr. and Mrs. Prescott left the next morning for their home in Robinson, followed by the good wishes of their many friends.

ASCOT CORNER.

There will be a garden party at the residence of Mr. Wm. Keos of Stoke neighborhood on Thursday evening next. Proceeds will be given to the English church.

An exchange in an obituary of a man who had died in that community said: "A long procession followed the remains to their last resting place." Of course the family rushed to the office to have the "error" corrected. The editor explained that he could not do it until the seven years' back subscription which the deceased owed, had been paid. It pays to stand in, don't you think?

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

The Paris Exhibition
Grant.

A CHIEF COMMISSIONER WILL BE APPOINTED.

In the House of Commons on Thursday in discussing the item of $175,000 for the Paris Exhibition. Mr. Fisher announced that he proposed to appoint a chief commissioner. Hitherto he had himself been acting as Chairman of the commission, but he intended to send a permanent official who would go to Paris before the opening of the fair and remain there until its close.

Mr. Britton asked if, in the event of a Central Ontario mineral exhibit being prepared, a place could be found for it in the exhibition.
Mr. Fisher replied that the idea of the Paris Exhibition was not that the exhibits
should be arranged according to locality, but that they should be of a national character, and this idea would be carried out in the Canadian exhibit. At the same time each exhibit would be labelled with a description of its nature, but also a statement of the locality from which it came.

Mr. Clarke Wallace contended that the $175,000 could be expended in a wiser and more judicious way by promoting trade. This was an exhibit in largely of the City of Paris and of France, and would be of a national character, and people who went there would be largely there for pleasure, and little commercial result would be secured. If it was necessary for Canada to put in an appearance in France, we were doing it on too
lavish a scale for the people of Canada.
This $175,000 would be largely thrown away, and might better be devoted to the development of Canadian commerce. He spoke of the comparatively important amount of our trade with France, and declared that he could not support the vote.

SPEECHES FROM THE THRONE.

Ottawa, Aug. 12.—The fourth session of the eighth Canadian Parliament was brought to a conclusion yesterday afternoon at four o'clock. It will go down among the members who have participated therein as one of the longest, most wearisome and fruitless in the country's history. The leaders on either side are by no means sorry to part, while the bulk of the members dispersed weeks ago. The extraordinary waste of time and public money on protracted debates in the Lower House is a matter which will no doubt receive a good deal of attention in the country between this and the next session.
What strikes the spectator most is the endless repetition of arguments.

Mr. Fielding was replying to Mr. Foster's arrangement of the Government policy when the mystic three raps on the door of the Chamber by the Gentlemen Usher of the Black Rod announced the call to the Senate, whither the faithful Commoners journeyed to gain their discharge.

THE SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

The speech from the throne was delivered by the Governor-General and was as follows:

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate:

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

In relieving you of your duties during this protracted session, I desire to thank you for the diligent attention you have given to the many important measures which have been submitted for your consideration.

I am glad to observe that the action of Canada in deciding to unite with the Mother Country and the Australian colonies
in the construction of a Pacific cable has met with general approval. I congratulate you on the evidence of continued prosperity that prevails in all parts of the Dominion, and which has stimulated the formation of so many companies having for the object the development of enterprises that must tend to increase the wealth of the country.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I thank you in Her Majesty's name for the supplies you have granted for the public service.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate:

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

In bidding you farewell, I desire to express the hope that Canada may long continue to enjoy the prosperity that at present prevails.

The Speaker of the Senate then said:

Honorable Gentlemen of the Senate:

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

It is His Excellency the Governor-General's will and pleasure that the parliament be prorogued until Wednesday, the twentieth day of September next, to be here held, and that parliament be accordingly prorogued until the twentieth day of September next.

CLOSING CEREMONY.

The military display was as fine as has been seen in many a year, the guard of honor being furnished by the Royal Regiment of Canadian Infantry and the Governor-General's Foot Guards. The escort was supplied by the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards.

Those about the throne during the function were the Prime Minister, the Hon. David Mills, Minister of Justice, and the Hon. R. W. Scott, Secretary of State, in Windsor uniform; Lieut.-Col.
Carter, Neilson, Vidal, Sherwood and Cotton and Capt. Lascelles.

Her Excellency the Countess of Minto and Lady Laurier occupied seats in the front row of chairs next the throne.

ERLE.

The remains of Napoleon Lambert were brought home for interment from Barro, Vt., where he was drowned while out boating in company with two friends.
The boat capsized. The other two were rescued. The sympathy of the community goes out to the bereaved family.

Mrs. Elwin Barker of Sherbrooke has been visiting friends in this vicinity
during the past week.

Mr. Geo. Gorham was in Angus this week attending the wedding of his cousin, Elsie Gorham.

Miss Mabel Gorham is visiting friends
in Marlborough.

Miss Marjorie Bishop is the guest of her brother, S. Bishop, of Erle.

Mr. T. J. Goodenough is somewhat indisposed.

Mr. Jas. Gorham is confined to the house with an attack of asthma.

We are sorry to report Mr. John Jackson Sr., is no better.

Mr. Joseph Light received a blow Tuesday which knocked him unconscious
for a time.

DEATH OF J. H. GRAHAM

FOR A LONG TIME PRIN-CIPAL OF ST. FRANCIS
COLLEGE.

WILL BE BURIED WITH MASONIC HONORS.

We regret to have to be called upon to announce the death of John Hamilton Graham, M. A., LL. D., P. G. M., and
P. G. Z., of Richmond, which event took place at Hartford, Conn., on Saturday morning, after a long and lingering illness.
Dr. Graham's death will be a distinct loss to the Masonic craft in the Province of Quebec, as he was one who took a foremost part in all matters relating to the mystic craft. At the formation of the Grand Lodge of the Province of Quebec, he did much towards the furtherance of this and has since been looked upon as the Father of Freemasonry in the Province.

He had been in failing health for some considerable time, and only a short time ago he went to Hartford, Conn., as it was thought that a change of air and scenery would restore him to a measure of health again. This was not to be, however, and he gradually grew worse and passed away
as stated on Saturday morning.

The body was taken to Richmond and the funeral will take place to-morrow, (Tuesday) at one o'clock, and will be conducted by the Grand Lodge. It is also expected that there will be a large representation of members of the craft present from all over the Province.

The late John Hamilton Graham, educationalist and author, was born at Overton
near Johnstone, Renfrewshire, Scotland, November 5th, 1826, and belonged to an ancient Scottish family. Educated at the local parish school, and at Johnstone
Academy, he was about to enter Glasgow University when he was compelled to go with his family to America. They settled in Orleans County, Vt., where he continued
his studies in the Academies of Craftsbury, St. Johnsbury and Derby, afterwards attending the Grammar School and University of Fribourg, R. L. Leaving himself to teaching, he became first, Principal of Barton Academy and was subsequently Principal of Northfield Institution.

While in Vermont in addition to his other work, he conducted some of the earliest State Teachers' Institutes and co-operated in the work of founding the State Normal Schools. In 1858, out of several other calls, he accepted that to Richmond, P. Q., to become Master of the Grammar School
and Professor of Mathematics in St.
Francis College there. He was transferred to the chair of Classics and English Literature in the last named institution and became, at a later period, Principal of the same. He remained in the service of the college until 1872. Mr. Graham's term of service at the College was particularly notable for strict discipline and the thorough instruction received under him by a large number of young men from all parts of Ontario and Quebec, and from some portions of the United States as well. He was elected President of the St. Francis Teacher's Association and afterwards of the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers, which latter body was founded at his instance. While occupying these positions he did much for the preservation of Protestant educational interests in the Province of Quebec, in concert with the late Sir A. T. Galt and others. After resigning his appointment at Richmond, he declined the Principalship of a western university and has since devoted himself to literary work and private teaching.

Besides several brochures on educational matters, he is the author of a school arithmetic and of "The Outlines of the History of Freemasonry in the Province of Quebec" (1892). An enthusiastic Freemason, he aided materially in the formation of the Grand Lodge of Quebec, and was elected its first Grand Master, a position he occupied for nine years. He was likewise elected first Grand Principal of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons in that Province. Subsequently he obtained the necessary concessions
from the Prince of Wales for the constitutional establishment of the Sovereign Great Priory of Knights Templars for the Dominion, and he did like service for the establishment of the Sovereign Grand Body for the Dominion of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry. He received the honorary degrees of M. A. from the Universities of Vermont and McGill College and that of
LL. D. from Norwich University, Vt.

He is an adherent of the Presbyterian Church and a widower. Politically a Liberal, he successfully contested Richmond and Wolfe for the House of Commons in that interest in the general election 1872.—Monroe's Men of the Times

LACROSSE.

VICS BEAT NATIONAL.

The match on Saturday afternoon between the Victorias and Nationals was of Sherbrooke at the Lacrosse grounds was witnessed by a fairly large number of enthusiasts. The Nationals had a few of the Sherbrooke players on the team, but notwithstanding this they had to go under to the Victorias with a score of 6 to 2.

During the match some good combination work was witnessed and several of the players will no doubt be seen on the Senior field if they keep up the same game.

Feeling ran high, and rough play was witnessed at times.

A. E. Odell made an efficient referee.

The Nationals of Montreal beat the Capitals on Saturday at Montreal, and the Victorias were turned down by Quebec at Quebec by 10 to 4.

THE PAINT HABIT.

RIGHTLY PURSUED, IT HELPS TO MAKE THE HOME BEAUTIFUL.

The paint habit inside the home will bring big results in brightness, beauty
and economy if it is indulged in wisely.
That is, if the painter gets the best paint
and the right paint for the purpose.
Otherwise, the results may be anything but pleasing. One paint-making house has the reputation of preparing ready-mixed paints of different kinds that give entire satisfaction to housekeepers. These are the Sherwin-Williams Paints.

To make old furniture appear like new,
for fine work on shelling, pottery or wicker work, The Sherwin-Williams Enamel Paint gives the best effects. For covering floors the Sherwin-Williams special floor paint gives a hard, glossy finish that floor painters so often strive for and fail to get. It is made to walk on, and its surface is almost as hard as metal. This cleanliness of such a floor appeals strongly to every housekeeper.

Then for painting the little things that about the house, the same makers prepare the Sherwin-Williams family paint, put up in small cans, ready for use, and for painting the bath tub there is the Sherwin-Williams Bath Enamel. Sample color cards of any or all of these, as well as of the house paint, creosote paint, etc., can be had by sending a post card request.

TRANSVAAL SITUATION

BOERS WILL HOLD REFOR-MERS AS HOSTAGES.

CANADIANS PASS RESOLU-TIONS OF GRATITUDE.

London, August 11.—A special dispatch from Johannesburg, says a meeting of Canadians there has passed resolutions expressing satisfaction, and gratitude to the Canadian Government for its resolution of sympathy and announcing that, if necessary, practical aid will be furnished to the Imperial Government in behalf of the Uitlanders.
The German and French consuls say they will protest to their respective governments if their subjects are called on for compulsory service or forced to pay war taxes.

The Capetown correspondent of the "Daily News," says—"I learn from a prominent ex-reformer, that the Transvaal Government has prepared warrants for the arrest of prominent reformers whenever the condition of affairs at Johannesburg provides an excuse. The presumption is that President Kruger means to secure the leading Uitlanders
as hostages, the moment trouble arises.

The Dreyfus Trial

COUNCIL FOR DREYFUS SHOT.

Rennes, Aug. 12.—The Dreyfus trial was continued on Saturday. Dreyfus was again questioned. Ex-president Casimir-Perier was examined but nothing new was brought out.

At the close of General Mercier's evidence a sensational scene was witnessed when Dreyfus called upon the General to repair the frightful error he had made in stating that he was guilty of treason.

As he left the Court room Mercier was hooted and hissed.

Rennes, Aug. 14.—Two men ambushed Maitre Labori, counsel for Captain Dreyfus, as a dune shot was fired, hitting La-bori in the back. M. Labori fell in the roadway. He is still alive.

KINGSBURY.

We are sorry to have to record the death of Miss Ada Neilson which took place on Thursday, August 3rd, at 6:30 a.m. This sad event, which has cast a gloom over the entire neighborhood, was not unlooked for, as the doctors who attended her, had given up all hopes of her recovery several weeks previously.
Although a great sufferer it was a pleasure to take care of her, she was so gentle and thankful for every little attention tendered her. She was a beautiful young lady in every respect, also very intelligent and accomplished. Her funeral took place on Saturday, 5th inst.,
just two months since she came home from Montreal. A great many floral gifts were sent, in several of which came from Montreal showing the high esteem in which she was held by her many many friends. The funeral service was held in St. Andrew's Church, Kingsbury conducted by the pastor, the Rev. J.
McClung. The church was well filled with sympathizing friends. Some of the hymns sung on this occasion were favorites of hers. After the service the friends accompanied the remains to St.
Ann's cemetery, Richmond, where interment took place. The family have the sympathy of many friends and neighbors
in their sad bereavement.

Though at the age of twenty-four,
Her sun sank in the west;
Her memory remains like a halo,
On those who knew her best.
