Prison back to normal

COWANSVILLE (JM) — Authorities at the Cowansville Institution expect full services will be offered from today on, following two days of negotiation with personnel concerning security measures.

Inmates were placed in lockdown the evening of the hammer murder of chief painting instructor Georges Nadeau, April 8 and only essential services such as food, medication and cleaning were maintained.

Jean Desrochers, assistant director administration, told the Record Warden Guy Lemire said the meetings had been very profitable and the security suggestions offered were reasonable. One demand was that solid walls be replaced by shatter-proof glass to allow instructors to monitor fellow workers in different workshops.

The instructors are locked alone in the shops with inmates and are unarmed.

Mr. Nadeau, 34, the father of three children, was with 12 prisoners when he was slain last week.

The approximately 430 inmates at Cowansville were released from cells Monday and were allowed to move about in their cell blocks or the exercise yard although shops and classes were not in operation.

Members of the Guards Alliance Canadian Union of Public Service Employees expressed indignation that there was no representative from the Solicitor General's office at Mr. Nadeau's civic funeral Saturday.

Police are detaining Mario Gauthier, on a coroner's warrant as an important witness in the slaying of Mr. Nadeau. Gauthier, 19, of Montreal, who was to have been released September 3 following a two year sentence for armed robbery with violence at an east end Montreal pharmacy attempted to escape from Cowansville with a hostage shortly after his arrival here.

Date of the coroner's inquest is expected to be announced later today.

Hits lack of action on textiles

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie would not be welcomed in textile-producing regions of Quebec's eastern townships, Senator Paul Desrousseaux (PC—Quebec) said Tuesday.

Senator Desrousseaux said in the Senate the government's lack of import controls on cheaply-produced textiles has thrown many workers in the eastern townships out of work.

He said the textile industry is "sick and in want of better government understanding and support."

Trudeaus expecting

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister and Mrs. Trudeau are expecting their third child in October.

Sources in the prime minister's office confirmed Tuesday that 26-year-old Margaret Trudeau is expecting a baby after rumors to that effect had been circulating for some time.

This birth will break a pattern established by Justin, 4, and Sacha, 2, both of whom were born on Christmas Day two years apart.

The prime minister, now 55, and Mrs. Trudeau were married March 5, 1971, in a secret ceremony in North Vancouver, B.C., that caught all but their most intimate friends by surprise.

Government may act in strike by longshoremen

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro probably is considering whether to legislate an end to the Quebec longshoremen's strike, Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday.

He was replying in the Commons to Albert Bechard (L—Bonaventure-Iles-de-la-Madeleine), who had asked whether the government is considering such action.

Mr. Trudeau said there is a point in every strike at which the government must weigh the right to strike against public interest.

"It's quite sure that the minister of labor... is examining the question very closely."

Mr. Bechard had asked whether the government will order the 2,200 striking Quebec dock workers back to work as it did with 4,000 longshoremen who closed down 11 British Columbia ports for three weeks before they were ordered back to work March 24.

Workers at the ports of Montreal, Quebec City and TroisRivieres have been on strike since March 31. Quebec livestock producers have complained that they are having trouble getting feed grains.

A spokesman for Mr. Munro said a cabinet committee—including the ministers responsible for labor, agriculture, public works, the wheat board and the treasury board—discussed the situation Monday.

LIKELY DISCUSSED

He also said the strike likely was discussed at a full cabinet meeting Tuesday, but this could not be confirmed.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Tuesday the government is "doing everything humanly possible" to ensure that poultry and livestock producers get enough grain. He said he had not seen a telegram from Quebec producers stating they had only a 24-hour supply left.

He said grain elevators at Quebec City had been open for several days and there likely was enough feed available to keep poultry and cattle alive.

Mr. Whelan told Roch LaSalle (PC—Joliette) that there had been many statements about the Quebec producers' situation, but neither he nor Quebec Agriculture Minister Norman Toupin had any evidence that producers are in serious difficulty.

Mr. LaSalle had asked whether the government had set a time limit before going in with back-to-work legislation.

When asked whether producers could expect federal grants to help cover costs, Mr. Whelan replied: "We've always looked after them in the past."

The World in focus

To join India

NEW DELHI (AP) — The chief minister of Sikkim, Kazi Lhendrup Dorji, arrived in New Delhi today to make final arrangements for the merger of the tiny Himalayan kingdom with India.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi invited Dorji to visit her after the people of Sikkim, a 2,745-square-mile state bordering Tibet, voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to abolish the 300-year-old monarchy and seek full statehood with India.

Battle continues

BEIRUT (AP) — Youths with sub-machine guns battled from rooftops and behind street barricades today and bombs blasted stores and homes as other groups joined the war between Lebanon's rightist Phalange party and Palestinian guerrillas.

The unofficial death toll from four days of violence in Beirut rose to more than 100.

The fighting continued despite announcement of an agreement mediated by the secretary-general of the Arab League, Mahmoud Riad, who hurried to Beirut from Cairo.

Wine farmers protest

PARIS (AP) — Enraged French wine farmers blocked the major railway and highways across southern France today after the French government agreed to lift its ban on the import of inexpensive Italian wines.

The farmers also lined up 30 cars to block the runway at Montpellier airport, set fire to tax offices in Narbonne and Pezenas, destroyed files in the Toulouse tax office and threatened to bring out their guns against the Italian wines.

Military council formed

YAOUNDE, Cameroun (CP) — The army officers who seized power in Chad on Sunday have formed a supreme military council to run the country, the national radio announced today in a broadcast heard here.

The council is made up of three generals, one colonel, one major, two captains and two lieutenants under the chairmanship of Gen. Felix Malloum, the former commander in chief of the armed forces.

Kai-shek buried

TAIPEI (AP) — The body of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was placed in a marble catafalque today in the rustic silence of a mountain retreat following an emotional farewell from the Taiwan he led for nearly half a century.

The flag-bedecked coffin was entombed at Tzu Hu, Chiang's summer residence close to the reservoir of the Shihmen dam. His 74-year-old widow and his two sons by his first marriage, Premier Chiang Ching-kuo, and Lt.-Gen. Chiang Wei-kuo, looked on.

CNIB CAMPAIGN — Mayor Cecil Dougherty of Lennoxville, left, is shown looking over an official receipt with Gerald Frost, chairman of the campaign for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in Lennoxville. Mr. Frost hopes to raise $3,000 in Lennoxville and next Saturday the youth group from the Huntingville Church will be canvassing on Queen Street for donations to help the blind.

Pressure mounts on capital city

Cambodian government territory around Phnom Penh was growing steadily smaller today as Khmer Rouge insurgents continued to mount pressure on the beleaguered capital.

The communist-led insurgents moved their captured 105mm artillery to the southern outskirts of Phnom Penh today after driving government troops from the town of Takhmau three miles south of the capital on Tuesday.

Clouds of black smoke hung over the Phnom Penh as the insurgents began shelling the central part of the city. In one area ten persons were reported killed and 30 wounded.

The airport west of the city was reported still held by government forces, but the four-mile road between the airfield and the city was blocked by insurgents occupying the Poehentong market.

Fighting was reported at Kbal Thnal and Phum Cham, five miles to the south.

POSITIONS UNDER FIRE

Government forces north of the city were reported to have established a defence line about five miles up Highway 4, but its positions were under attack. The east bank of the Mekong River across from Phnom Penh also was lost to the insurgents.

West of the city, hard fighting was reported at the southern edge of Chba Ampeou, on the other side of the UN Bridge into the outskirts of Phnom Penh.

Government forces closed the bridge to refugee soldiers and civilians in an apparent attempt to keep out Khmer Rouge infiltrators.

Government forces pulled back on Chba Ampeou from Prek Pra, to the south. But government positions in various other parts of the southern and southwest sectors were reported holding.

In South Vietnam, North Vietnamese forces bypassed Xuan Loc and overran government troops holding a strategic highway crossroads 30 miles east of Saigon, field reports said.

But the reports said the government forces who have been battling the North Vietnamese at Xuan Loc for a week continued to hold the provincial capital 40 miles east of Saigon although it has been leveled and stands isolated.

ENCLAVE ATTACKED

The Saigon command reported that a North Vietnamese column invaded Phan Rang, 160 miles northeast of Saigon and one of the government's last two enclaves on the central coast. The command claimed that 20 enemy tanks were knocked out and fighting was continuing.

Another battle was reported at Ben Tranh, in the Mekong Delta 35 miles south of Saigon. The government said two of its A-37 jets were shot down and three men were lost. Casualties in ground fighting were 26 Viet Cong and two government soldiers killed and 18 government men wounded.

For MPs

Pay hike approved

OTTAWA (CP) — A committee of MPs approved an amended bill Tuesday that would increase their salaries by 33 1-3 per cent.

The bill also would mean more than $4,300 in back pay for MPs because the proposed one-third increase is retroactive to July 8, 1974.

An amendment passed by the Commons miscellaneous estimates committee would place a seven-per-cent ceiling on proposed annual increases, scheduled to start in 1976.

A government spokesman said the bill was expected to be back before the Commons next week for final approval. It then would go to the Senate.

The basic MP salary now is $18,000 a year plus an $8,000 tax-free allowance for a total of $26,000. Of the immediate $34,600 that would be provided MPs under the proposed increase, $10,600 would come as a tax-free allowance.

The total basic MPs salary and allowance would be $42,387 in 1976 if it increased by the maximum seven per cent a year allowed by the amended bill.

BACKED DOWN

The government backed down considerably from its original pay bill proposal that would have increased salaries and allowances paid to MPs and senators by a flat 50 per cent. That would have meant $52,000 a year for MPs and $44,000 a year for senators.

A major amendment announced in December cut the proposed increase to 33 1-3 per cent, but would have pegged salaries and allowances to the industrial composite index (ICI).

New Democratic Party spokesmen said that the second scheme would have provided even more money for MPs by 1978 than the original 50-per-cent proposal because the ICI has risen by an average of 10 per cent in the last couple of years.

The proposal was revised again Monday when the government suggested that senators and MPs should get the full amount of the index increase only if it is seven per cent or less.

The $22,000 now earned by senators includes a $4,000 taxfree allowance. They would get an immediate increase to $29,300—a $24,000 salary plus taxfree expenses of $5,300—under the amended bill.

Meanwhile, the Commons continued debate on a bill that would give Ottawa unilateral power to set petroleum prices.

CONFERENCE FAILED

The government brought the bill back into debate Monday after the failure of last week's federal-provincial conference to reach agreement on a new price for oil.

Ottawa fears that if no compromise is reached before the present pricing agreement ends June 30, one of the producing provinces will move to increase prices sharply.

Office may be set up for Maine-Canada relations

AUGUSTA, Me. (AP) — Maine's ties with Canada go beyond the sharing of a border, supporters of bills establishing a state office of Maine-Canadian relations said Tuesday.

Several persons told the State Government Committee they support two proposals to set up a permanent office within the executive branch.

Representative Georgette Berube (Dem. Lewiston) and Senator Theodore Curtis (Rep.) sponsored the two bills. Both measures would create an office to deal with the neighboring provinces, Quebec, New Brunswick and the Maritimes.

Supporters of the plans said Maine's economic and cultural ties to Canada are strong.

Former governor Kenneth Curtis appointed a Canadian affairs assistant in 1973 to handle economic, cultural and educational matters between the state and the three provinces.

The post has not been continued by Gov. James Longley.

Mrs. Berube and Curtis said a large percentage of Maine's residents are of Canadian descent. They also noted that numerous Maine industries are located in or do business with Canada.

Dennis Violette, Canadian aide in the Curtis administration said: "Many in Maine and Canada are of the same heritage. These people have maintained connections to Canada, but the state government has not been involved."

He said as a result of earlier Maine-Canadian communications, two Quebec teachers are working in Maine schools and various cultural groups have visited the state.

Violette said mutual co-operation between the regions is possible in studying marine and forest resources, including the spruce budworm infestation.

Gerald Cole, senior vice-president of Cole's Express, a Maine trucking firm which also operates in Canada, supported the measures along with the Paper Industry Information Office.

"Our economy is tied to Canada. There is as much growth into that area as within our own country," he said.

VW in trouble Montreal

WOLFSBURG, West Germany (Reuter) — A leading West German metal and steel company said Monday it is holding co-operative talks with the ailing Volkswagen auto company, once the pride of West German industry, but now its problem child.

M.A.N. of Augsburg made its statement as the supervisory board of Volkswagen met to decide on the giant car company's future and that of its workers.

There was speculation that M.A.N. might offer to take on some of the 10,000 Volkswagen workers expected to be laid off as part of the auto-maker's drastic work force reduction.

Volkswagen spokesmen declined to confirm that talks were being held with M.A.N., but informed sources said Volkswagen—under its new managing-director Toni Schmuecker—had recently been in contact with several firms.

Meanwhile, Finance Minister Hans Apel joined Monday with other government critics of Volkswagen's management. He said the company—in which the government has a 36-per-cent stake—should long ago have carried out plans to set up an assembly plant in the United States.

The aim of the plans, which have been under discussion here for months, would be to cut Volkswagen's costs of producing for its vital U.S. market and avoid losses suffered as a result of the steady devaluation of the U.S. dollar against the West German mark.

Last year, Volkswagen's exports to the U.S. fell by 30 per cent and company losses totalled more than $200 million.

Informed sources said Schmuecker will propose a cut of 25,000 in Volkswagen's 133,000-member work force by the end of next year.

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were higher in all sectors in heavy trading Tuesday on the Montreal Stock Exchange.

Analysts said stocks rose for the sixth straight day following New York's advance and heavy trading. The decline of the Canadian dollar to $0.9885 on the foreign exchange market had no apparent effect on traders.

Volume at the close was 719,285 shares compared with 722,800 Monday.

Banks gained 3.58 to 256.49, industrials 2.32 to 191.01, the composite 2.10 to 186.99, papers 1.43 to 108.15 and utilities 0.63 to 136.17.

Calls for auto pact revision

OTTAWA (CP) — The president of the Automotive Parts Manufacturers' Association predicts a 1975 loss on Canada-U.S. auto trade even higher than the record 1974 deficit of $1.3 billion unless the government acts to modify the auto pact agreement.

Patrick Lavelle said in an interview Monday the association met industry department officials recently to suggest that some mechanism be built into the 1965 Canada-U.S. trade agreement to protect each partner from excessive trading losses.

"We feel very strongly that the deficit on parts trade for Canada now is unacceptable.

"Some process for bringing it back into line must be undertaken," Mr. Lavelle says.

Figures released by Statistics Canada Friday showed Canada's loss on auto trade—with the United States including assembled autos and parts—more than tripled from a $440-million deficit in 1973 to $1.3 billion last year.

Most of this occurred because of a continuing deterioration in the deficit on auto parts, which grew by 47 per cent last year to a $2.05-billion loss. With the U.S. auto industry in a slump, this deficit likely will grow even more in 1975, Mr. Lavelle says.

Capital investment by parts makers is declining, jobs in the industry are being lost and many of the parts makers are moving their operations back to the United States, he says. Most of the parts producers are U.S. controlled.

The industry department has not responded positively to recommendations for a mechanism for adjusting the auto pact when the loss to either partner grows beyond some negotiated size, Mr. Lavelle says. In general, the government's response is that now is an inappropriate time to talk about changes to the trade agreement.

One reason for this is that Canadian officials fear certain existing safeguards built into the auto pact might come under fire if talks were reopened with the U.S. government. Among these is a requirement that the ratio of the value of vehicles made in Canada be equal to the value of vehicles sold here.

So far, this has protected at least part of the domestic manufacturing industry, particularly the truck manufacturing sector since truck sales are a big factor in the Canadian market.

Mr. Lavelle says the association also has been trying to find out if the government intends to hold meetings on the auto industry, as had been agreed by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and President Gerald Ford in a meeting last December.

North Sea oil in UK sector

NEW YORK (CP) — Pan Ocean Oil Corp., the operators for a group of oil companies, says it has discovered oil in the British sector of the North Sea, 175 miles northeast of Aberdeen, Scotland.

A company statement said the wildcat well, located in block 16-7, flowed oil through restricted openings at rates of up to 5,100 barrels a day.

It added that "test data and sand properties indicate that the well is capable of flow rates in excess of 10,000 barrels a day." Further will be required to the extent of the discovery, Pan Ocean said. Besides Pan Ocean, which holds a 40-per-cent interest, other participants in block 16-7 include Bow Valley Exploration (U.K.) Ltd., with a 35-per-cent share; Sunningdale Oils (U.K.) Ltd., with 10 per cent; Sibens Oil and Gas (U.K.) Ltd., with 10 per cent, and Saga Petroleum A-S and Co., with five per cent. In addition, Britain's state-owned national coal board has an option to acquire a 20-per-cent interest in the block.

Pan Ocean is the parent company of Pan Ocean Oil Ltd., Calgary.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — A continuing wave of buying interest swept the Toronto stock market to a sixth straight gain Tuesday. Even sagging gold shares joined the broad advance, rebounding from sharp losses the previous day.

The widely-based industrial index rose 1.96 to 186.13, highest close since Feb. 24. The six-day rally has brought the index up 8.86 points.

Analysts say the buoyant New York market continues to be the main influence on trends at Toronto amid investor hopes for an economic recovery.

The base metal index rose 1.45 to 73.90, highest since Aug. 21. Western oils added .74 to 161.75.

Despite another sharp drop in the price of bullion Tuesday, the gold index rose 6.43 to 366.47. The index Monday lost 18 points. Analysts said the decline attracted some buyers of gold shares at the lower prices.

Chemical, construction and material and real estate indexes led the 15 advancing industrial sub-groups. Only the food processing index eased.

Newsco Well Service was up 3/4 to $9, a high for the year. The company said it will pay an initial semi-annual dividend of 20 cents early in May.

Royal Bank, which said it will increase its quarterly dividend by one cent to 30 cents with the May 24 payment, was up 3/4 to $32 1/4.

Alcan, the most actively traded issue, was up 2 1/2 to $23 1/2.

Walker-Goodherham A rose 1 1/4 to $34 1/4, Westinghouse Canada 1 1/4 to $16 1/4, Moore 1 1/4 to $46 1/2, Nabors Drilling 1 to $27 and Texaco Canada 1 to $33.

TORONTO (CP) — Sylvia Ostry, Canada's new deputy-minister of consumer and corporate affairs, said Monday there are serious gaps in the economic system preventing consumer interests from being fully satisfied.

Mrs. Ostry told The Canadian Club, a businessmen's organization, that the consumer movement will have to develop new issues, strategies and spokesmen if it is to become a more influential force.

Especially, the consumer movement "faces a major challenge to more effectively represent low-income consumers."

Consumerism still had its detractors.

She cited a Canadian senator who during the debate on the Hazardous Products Act said consumerism was "an ephemeral and insignificant phenomenon largely and artificially contrived by frustrated women who have difficulties keeping their husbands under control."

Mrs. Ostry, first woman to be appointed a deputy-minister, said on a number of important issues such as tax reform, tariff negotiation and competition policy, there has been considerable disparity between representation by consumer groups and producer groups.

She said at times it has taken "almost a full-fledged scandal" to force the introduction of major new legislation.

Power's play refused

TORONTO (CP) — John A. McDougald, chairman and president of Argus Corp. Ltd., Toronto, says he joined other directors of Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in approving a loan commitment to help finance a takeover bid for Argus because he believes a condition of the loan can never be met.

Mr. McDougald said he approved the credit because it was based on the condition that Power Corp. of Canada Ltd., Montreal, acquire at least 80 per cent of Argus shares.

"That just will not happen because control of Argus is not for sale," he said in an interview.

He heads a group of Argus directors who control a 50.68-per-cent block of the company's voting shares and who have said they will sell no shares.

FINANCING SPLIT

The Bank of Commerce has agreed to provide 40 per cent of the financing needed by Power Corp. The other 60 per cent is to come from the Royal Bank of Canada.

A. F. Knowles, financial vice-president of Power Corp., said in an interview that the company has "reserved the right to take less than 80 per cent (of shares) and we have arrangements with the Royal Bank to discuss financing such a purchase."

Power Corp. is offering $22 a share for the 90 per cent of Argus voting common shares it does not own and $17 a share for all non-voting C preferred shares.

Mr. McDougald said the Commerce cannot lose on its loan commitment.

"There's always a standby fee, you know," he said. "I am in the banking business."

New import car

CENTER LINE, Mich. (AP) — Chrysler Corp. will beef up its small-car lineup next year with a new subcompact Plymouth imported from Japan, the company said today.

Chrysler President John Riccardo said the new hatchback model, smaller than the subcompact Dodge Colt currently imported from Japan, will go into production next January.

Riccardo made the disclosure in remarks prepared for the auto-maker's annual stockholders meeting in this Detroit suburb.

Company Chairman Lynn Townsend said the firm lost money during the first quarter of the year. But he said the loss would be "somewhat improved" over the record pre-tax loss in the last three months of 1974.

He said second-quarter results "while still not satisfactory, will be substantially improved over the first quarter. And we look for continued improvement through the year."

Chrysler releases its January-March financial performance at the end of the month. Chrysler's after-tax loss in the fourth quarter of 1974 was a record $73.5 million. Net losses for the 12 months ending Dec. 31 were $52.1 million.

Townsend said the firm has improved profitability since last September by cutting manpower by 30 per cent.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Hopes for an end to the slide in U.S. economic activity helped the stock market buck periodic waves of profit-taking Tuesday to post its sixth straight gain in the heaviest trading in five weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 8.13 to 815.08—a new high since last June 26—and extended its advance since a week ago Monday to 72.20 points.

The Dow actually showed a slight decline at midday, rallied to a gain of better than 10 points and then slipped back again in the tug of war between buyers and profit-takers.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index picked up .70 to 86.30, and the New York Stock Exchange composite index rose .33 to 45.66.

NYSE volume hit 29.62 million shares, the largest total since 31.28 million changed hands on March 11. The volume record of 35.16 million was set Feb. 13.

Analysts noted some lingering enthusiasm over the government's report Monday of a record $1.49-billion reduction in business inventories during February.

The theory is that the removal of goods from a clogged distribution system tends to open the way for resumed production.

After Tuesday's close, the Federal Reserve Board reported that industrial output declined in March for the sixth consecutive month. But the drop, at 1 per cent, was smaller than in any of the three preceding months.

The market also seemed to get a mid-session lift from a statement by Lynn Townsend, chairman of Chrysler Corp., that the big auto manufacturer would give prompt consideration to restoring its dividend once the company returned to profitability.

Chrysler shares edged up 1/4 to $11.

Du Pont contributed more than 3 points to the Dow's overall gain for the second straight day, rising 5 1/4 to $124 1/4 after a 5 1/2-point advance Monday, when the company estimated first-quarter earnings at 40 cents a share.

The figure was down sharply from the comparable period last year, but nevertheless exceeded many analysts' expectations.

Among other big-name issues, Eastman Kodak broke $100 and closed at $100 1/2, up 1 1/2; Texas Instruments was up 4 1/4 to $104 1/4, and Digital Equipment added 1 1/2 to $105 1/4.

G.D. Searle was the day's most active issue, up 1 1/2 to $21 1/2 on turnover of 245,400 shares.

In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite added .18 to 77.51.

Damage awards hurt insurance

TORONTO (CP) — Property and casualty insurance companies in Canada had a total underwriting loss of $290 million in 1974, compared with $136 million in 1973, results collected by Canadian Underwriter and Canadian Insurance Magazines show.

Canadian Underwriter reported accident and sickness insurers had an underwriting loss of about $21 million in 1974, compared with $6 million in 1973, and reinsurance companies' loss increased to $20 million from $8 million.

Statistics from the Insurance Bureau of Canada show that in auto insurance, the average cost for each claim of bodily injury and property damage claims for the year ended June 30, 1974, increased to $977 from $847 in the corresponding period in 1973.

Collision claims with $100 deductible were up to $550 from $483 and collision claims with $250 deductible increased to $807 from $705, the statistics show.

J. R. MacKenzie, chairman of the bureau's property insurance committee, said

Anti-pollution device safe?

BOSTON (AP) — Reports that anti-pollution catalytic converters may produce harmful sulphate emissions, including sulphuric acid, are exaggerated and unjustified, a General Motors executive said Monday.

Ernest Starkman, vice-president of environmental activities, said there is no indication of any present sulphate-related health danger from converter-equipped cars.

"It would be unfortunate if the exaggerations of conjectured or unfounded potential problems, which have been reported, succeed in undermining the public's confidence in the catalytic converter," he said in a speech at Harvard University.

"The catalytic converter is, at present, unquestionably the most effective and most fuel-efficient emissions control technology available today," he said.

Starkman said more studies must be conducted to determine whether catalysts pose a health problem.

Recent government studies have concluded that catalysts emit harmful sulphates, but no conclusions have been reached as to whether large enough quantities are produced to create a public health hazard.

Activities at Galt

By Joanne Brown

Last week's big event was the arrival of the two orchestras from Barrie and Islington. On Friday, they played two concerts for the students during the afternoon, and then Friday night, Galt put on a variety show and a dance for the students' entertainment.

On Saturday, they were given free time during which many bowling and sugaring-off parties were arranged. On Saturday night, they played a concert for the public. It was absolutely fantastic.

The string orchestra from Barrie, quite renowned for the students' ability, was most professional in their technique and presentation. The Islington orchestra was interesting, as it was conducted by five different students who played in the orchestra. This group played quite popular music, and their arrangement of Theme from Shaft was the hit of the night. These two orchestras left for home on Sunday morning.

Tonight, for senior English students, there will be special buses to Place des Arts in Montreal, where Shakespeare's play 'The Two Gentlemen of Verona' will be presented. This trip will cost $5 per person.

Miscellaneous events this week are: a noon-hour concert by the Flaming Flamingoes; the 'Flop of the Year Awards' put on by the English history class and a two-day trip to Ottawa on the planning days this week.

On Thursday, April 10, the gymnastics teams put on a show at Galt. The show consisted of individual routines, work on equipment such as the trampoline, and included two of the dances from the modern jazz and dance show. There was quite a good turnout for the event.

Last Friday, around 25 women came to Galt to talk about their various careers to any girls who were interested. During the hour that they were there, over 75 girls came to ask questions about careers in medicine, politics, etc.

Last Thursday there was a 'Reach for the Bell' competition between teams from Purple and Blue house. This was something like 'Reach for the Top', a students' television show on which rather difficult questions are asked and the first team to answer correctly receives points. Purple House was the winner by a large margin, in spite of the fact that they were missing one player. In the next few weeks there will be more competitions of the same sort between other houses.

LENNOXVILLE ORATORICAL CONTEST — Nine area students participated in the annual Lennoxville Optimist Club oratorical contest held last night. With the theme of 'Give Me Your Hand', the five girls and four boys gave the judges a hard time in choosing the winners. Michael Austin and Susan Armstrong were the winners while Andrew Lyon and Janice Vaudry were the second place finishers in their sections. Shown from left to right are

Music exchange well received

After a very successful weekend of concerts and social events, the music students of Alexander Galt Regional High School are comparing notes on the weekend visit of students from Burnhamthorpe Collegiate Institute, Islington, which is part of the Toronto suburb of Etobicoke, while the members of the senior band will go to visit the Eastview Secondary School at Barrie, Ontario. Both these organizations gave a series of concerts for the local students on Friday. Then on the Saturday evening the symphony orchestra of Burnhamthorpe and the string orchestra from Eastview presented a public performance.

Much favourable comment was heard on these orchestral concerts.

Now the music students of AGRHS will journey to Toronto and to Barrie on April 24 to return the visit. For this occasion the concert choir will be going to the Burnhamthorpe Collegiate Institute, Islington, which is part of the Toronto suburb of Etobicoke, while the members of the senior band will go to visit the Eastview Secondary School at Barrie, Ontario. Both organizations will be giving concerts for the students of the schools concerned and for the public on Friday evening, April 25.

The week following this visit, the concert choir, together with the junior choir of AGRHS will be presenting their annual Spring Choral Concert at the school, Friday evening, May 2.

Sweetsburg Court

Real Reignier, Sherbrooke, was deemed fit to stand trial on a count of qualified robbery. The charge stemmed from a theft of $280 from Cadieux's Pharmacy, Granby, March 8.

Reignier was freed pending preliminary hearing April 16 with the provision he return to the OPTAT clinic Sherbrooke. He was represented by Gilles Mercure of the Legal Aid Office.

Gaston Croteau, St. Etienne de Bolton, was deemed fit to stand trial on a count of arson, following a psychiatric examination. He told the court his lawyer was not present and Judge Legare ordered a preliminary hearing which was fixed to May 14.

Arraignment in the case of Robert Levesque was remanded to May 12. Levesque, of South Stukely, is charged with a count of assault on his father February 9.

Judge Legare agreed to the crown's request Levesque be sent to the Sherbrooke University Medical Centre for a psychiatric examination.

Around Town

The entertainment scene in Sherbrooke for the next week is as follows:

Wednesday, April 16 — Singer Michel Sardou will be in concert at the University of Sherbrooke's Salle Maurice O'Bready at 8:30 p.m. Born in Paris on January 26, 1947, Michel started his career in 1966 and has since cut several records. Two of them, 'La maladie d'amour' and 'Le cure', sold over a million copies of each.

Thursday, April 17 — Macon County Line and The Destructors will continue to play at Carrefour de l'Estrie's Cinema 2 this week. The first movie, which shows two times daily, evolves around a group of young people in 1964 enjoying travel about the country until they cross the Macon County Line. The latter stars Michael Caine, Anthony Quinn and James Mason as the three destructors, who lived a sweet life but played a game of sudden death. Gatsby le Magnifique (The Great Gatsby) plays for the second week at Cinema Rex.

Friday, April 18 — The second showing of Amarcord at U of S theatre Cinemafeus. The first showing is on Thursday, with both viewings starting at 8 p.m. The movie, a chronicle of Federico Fellini, was made in Italy in 1973.

Saturday, April 19 — La Maison de Bernard Alba will be performed in the U of S Salle Maurice O'Bready at 8:30 p.m. Michel Garneau adapts the play of Federico Garcia de Lorca which is performed by the Company of Two Chairs.

Girl Guide cookie sale a big success

BOUNDARY — The Three Villages Girl Guides sold cookies in Stanstead on Thursday evening, April 10. They were well received at all the homes they visited and in short order, all their cookies were sold.

One carton, 48 boxes, went to Tomifobia and another to Fitch Bay for sale. The Guides thank everyone who supported this project that will assist to carry on the Guide work.

Wilfred Currier, acting Police Chief in Rock Island, will be coming to a meeting this month to speak on cycling safety. Badge work will also be done.

Workers get shorter hours at Butterfield

ROCK ISLAND — Starting this week, the Butterfield plant in Rock Island is on a 32-hour work week. The plant will not be in operation on Mondays, with the men working straight time, Tuesday through Friday.

This was the decision reached between the union and company management. It had been previously stated that a staggered 32 hour work week would start on April 14. The company feels the reduction of hours is the fairest solution for all its employees. Meanwhile, every effort is being made to secure new business and the plant will be back on the regular 40 hours.

An unusual neighborhood band

High Street Underground — A local group

NORTH HATLEY — A four-man rock and roll band that plays in hotels, schools and colleges and has been going for 2½ years may sound like the usual neighbourhood dance band.

High Street Underground does not sound like the usual neighbourhood dance band. The years experience on the road in the States and in Western Canada has given the band a rare tightness a quality and originality in presentation that guarantees them weekend gigs in "hotels, schools and colleges" and maybe something more.

Should of Seen Us and Don't Take Me Home have received enough obvious acclaim to prompt Mick Hall, the group's songwriter and guitarist to comment that the band's audiences seem to favor their original music over the usual dance band fare.

Although everyone likes to hear the old rock and roll classics once in a while, Mick explained, High Street Underground usually plays a 50-50 split between original and nonoriginal music and, of course, the original is "The stuff we try the hardest on." The years spent in Lennoxville, where three of the band members are from, has meant a wide local following for the band exists and local engagements are considered a special treat.

High Street Underground was formed six years ago by brothers Mick and Ted Hall (guitarists) and bassist Dez McKeon. John Berry first learned to play the drums while living out West but is now based in Lennoxville.

The group's name, as one might suspect, was the obvious conclusion for a group that practised in a basement on High Street, in Lennoxville.

At this writing the band is touring Newfoundland and Nova Scotia and doesn't plan to be back for at least a month. Such disappearances are not uncommon. High Street spent six months in Alberta and British Columbia where, according to Mick, they were widely received.

Playing weekends in Alberta and Newfoundland may not seem like the surest way to reach the fame and stardom that the group obviously is looking for. It's not. The music center in Canada is primarily Toronto with Montreal beginning to develop. The band knows that Toronto is the place to go when in search of recording contracts, but according to Mick, everytime a recording opportunity has cropped up the band has always seemed to feel that it is to be somewhere else. In the meantime, their sound and act get tighter as they continue to test themselves and their material in front of audiences from coast to coast but the group is "just waiting to put an album out."

Mick, while being interviewed between sets at the Monjoye Hotel in North Hatley, said that the band has considered itself professional for two and a half years, professional being defined as having no other income. This type of dependency on music for their income makes a good manager not only an asset but a necessity. Len Wolstenholme fills that role for High Street. His practise has been to wander off into different parts of the country, promotional tapes in hand, to find jobs for the band before they set out themselves.

Like most musicians, Mick was hesitant in describing the type of music that the band plays but allowed that it could be called "boogie music and country rock." One of the most unique aspects about High Street is that they have stayed a dance band but have not become heavy rock band. In discussing theatrics in the music industry, Mick said (See High Street Underground, p. 8)

HIGH STREET UNDERGROUND during a recent performance at the Mont Joye Hotel in North Hatley. The band combines boogie and folk rock to produce a sound that has their own unique accent. ## Kiwanis public speaking winners

THE WINNER of the boys' trophy was Douglas Norris, of Stanstead College, who gave an amusing talk on the ways in which the metric system will influence our lives as it is adopted by Canada as the official method of measurement.

GASTON CHARLAND, president of the Sherbrooke Kiwanis Club, is seen presenting the annual Junior Public Speaking Contest girls' trophy to Nancy Williams of Alexander Galt Regional High School. The topic of her speech was the nature of blindness as a handicap.

SHERBROOKE (GS) — Seven local high school students competed in a public speaking contest at a Kiwanis Club meeting Monday night.

The seven contestants spoke on varied and certainly interesting topics before one girl and one boy were selected to receive the Kiwanis Club trophies.

Nancy Williams, of Alexander Galt, won the girl's prize for her talk on the nature of blindness as a handicap and Douglas Norris, of Stanstead, won the boys' prize for his amusing reflections on the metric system.

The Annual Junior Public Speaking Contest attracted two students from Bishop's College School, two from Alexander Galt, one from Stanstead and two from Richmond.

A five minute time limit was set on the talks and contestants were judged for their spontaneity, their delivery and by the subject content.

Gaston Charland, president of the Kiwanis Club, presented the students with handsome trophies for their schools and with smaller keeper trophies for themselves.

Subjects ranged from alcoholism to UFO's to overpopulation to adopted children and to the effects of advertising.

All of the Kiwanis Club members thoroughly enjoyed the speeches and all entrants received a warm round of applause.

Other items of interest at the meeting included the discussion by the members of the state of the Kiwanis Radio Day campaign. Members were urged to sell ads and to raise pledges so that on the actual day the Club will have raised $10,000 of the $25,000 it expects to get all together. To date the club has $3,000 and the day is to be Friday, April 18.

As It Is

A forthright Canadian diplomat has dropped all the polite circumlocution that has been making the rounds in the Western world, and has told it as it really is. The diplomat is Michel Gauvin, this country's ambassador to Greece, and first president of the International Commission of Control and Supervision in Vietnam. As will be recalled, Canada resigned from the commission on July 30, 1973 after it had become obvious that the commission was not fulfilling its purpose.

Interviewed in Athens about the present Vietnam situation, Mr. Gauvin pulled no punches. He said the Paris peace treaty was imposed on the Saigon government against the Saigon government's will and better judgment, and this caused the first crack in South Vietnam morale. The North Vietnamese, freed from outside interference, immediately began to prepare for their final onslaught. The Ho Chi Minh trail was converted into a two-lane highway; roads were built by Hanoi in South Vietnamese territory for the sole purpose of moving Communist supplies; ammunition dumps were established in the South; and 170,000 fresh North Vietnamese troops crossed the border in a blatant violation of the Paris peace treaty. While the Soviet Union and China were competing over the past two years as to who would grant greater military support to North Vietnam, the Saigon government had to deal unaided with infiltration, terrorism, sabotage and, internal divisions that, as Mr. Gauvin pointed out, are always the price that a non-Communist society pays for freedom — however relative this term may be.

The ambassador was equally outspoken about the futility of the international commission used as a cover-make-up rendering it impotent to stop the numerous violations of the agreement. "The two Communist members, Poland and Hungary, saw their mandate as the protection of the interests of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong, and viewed the Paris agreement as a face-saving device to allow the honorable withdrawal of the American troops from Vietnam pending a takeover of South Vietnam by the Communist North, either through a political solution with the Viet Cong, or by the use of military force."

Mr. Gauvin said that "what is happening in Vietnam cannot fail to have repercussions on the unity, cohesion as well as determination of the allied nations to defend their common freedom."

It was high time that somebody clearly showed where the blame lies. Canada, where contrary to old tradition such plain speaking (other than anti-American fulminations by our "progressives") has fallen into disrepute, can be proud that the tradition has been revived by one of the nation's distinguished civil servants. The question posed by Ambassador Gauvin is of the utmost importance to the future of a free Western world. "The fading of America," as The Economist calls it, may in its consequences surprise even those who have never had a good word to say for the United States. The Western society, a society in which the freedom of the individual is still deeply cherished — is the enduring hallmark of our institutions — is being threatened both by a growing military superiority of our totalitarian foes, and by an outflanking of the Western European heartland. Communist parties are slowly climbing to power in conditions of chaos and recession brought about by outside pressures — mainly the 400 per cent rise in the price of oil. In Portugal, where the Communists have the support of no more than 10 to 15 per cent of the population, the party will remain the effective ruling power, whatever happens in the April 25 elections. Spain may well be next on the list and Greece, and Italy. Even France, with her huge Communist party and her ambitious Socialist leader Francois Mitterrand willing to trust the Communists if they propel him to power, is not immune. This is not a task for which NATO was designed. Nor is it a task for which the American public is prepared. Instead, the sleight-of-hand performed in Vietnam is to be reproduced in the Middle East — the same pressure exerted on Saigon in 1973 is now being exerted on Israel. And then?

Viet Nam assault analyzed

It would make sense now for the North Vietnamese and their Viet Cong allies to slow down their assault on what is left of South Vietnam because they would probably like to have the final result look like an expression of the will of "the people."

Such behavior would be in the textbook design of takeovers masterminded by Communists, and the North Vietnamese Labor party's political bureau is schooled in Leninist revolutionary-military tactics.

The pattern, repeated with variations depending on place and circumstances, has been the use of armed force to the extent necessary to bring an adversary regime to its knees and then apply political force to set the stage for the next phase.

In this case, the stage has been set by the North Vietnamese army, just as it had been set in Europe by the Soviet army in the chaotic period at the end of Second World War.

In Eastern Europe, the Soviets were on hand to watch and exert authority after the Nazi Germans were routed. In South Vietnam, the North Vietnamese find themselves suddenly—with a speed that may even have surprised them—close to the gates of Saigon. They now are in a position to preside over the political developments they hope will follow.

PUSHED TO CORNER

The Saigon regime of President Nguyen Van Thieu is pushed into a corner of territory and the North Vietnamese army now can probe, threaten and apply that sort of pressure in the Mekong Delta, which is the rice basket of a stricken country. The North Vietnamese and their Viet Cong clients likely want to negotiate, but first they want to be in position to dictate the rules.

"Their plan doesn't seem to envisage an attack on Saigon," a Western source in Saigon told AP's Peter O'Loughlin. "They don't want pictures of their tanks in the streets. They still maintain the charade that there are no North Vietnamese in South Vietnam. They want a popular uprising to oust Thieu."

That may be so, but the North Vietnamese also have had their lessons with regard to relying on a popular rising. They had hoped to spark one in 1968 with their Tet offensive and failed. In this offensive they must know they have generated little in their popular favor but fear and panic.

The substitute would be, then, the heaviest political-military pressure short of an all-out attack on the capital itself. More fear and panic might, in fact, be quite useful if it hastened the ouster of Thieu. Hanoi and the Viet Cong then would rationalize dealings with a successor government that would lead to the establishment of a temporary successor regime.

Thereafter the going would be easy. Having all the military authority in its hands, Hanoi would surely insist on a dominant role in a future "popular" regime for the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government.

A land with 24 hours of sun

Picture this: A land that has 24 hours of prime photography time in every summer day; a land where mountains pile on mountains, each peak lit by the glow of a midnight sun; a land where wildlife lines the trail awaiting your artistic whim.

You bet your "Brownie" you can — when you head up north up the Alaska Highway to the Yukon.

You'll find can-can girls in the dance halls and sourdoughs panning gold on the creeks. You'll rush from picture to picture and with sunset and sunrise separated only by a rosy glow, it gives little time to grab a few winks and rest your weary shutter finger.

You'll be out of your sleeping bag early. You'll put in a long day with paddle and pack and you'll enjoy every minute. It doesn't come cheap either. With 24 hours of daylight you need double the amount of film you usually take on a holiday.

It is a beauty-blind, empty-souled traveller that can bypass the lush mountain scenery, the crystalline lakes and the rare Arctic fauna without trying to capture it on film. A plump camera bag bulging with high-speed film is the answer.

You'll need them all — a wide-angle lens to take in the orange autumn tundra, a close-up lens for the tiny alpine flowers and a long, long telephoto for the grizzly that you hope won't develop a taste for tenderfoot photographer.

Bring along skylight filters. These not only cut down on the blue-excess caused by mountain haze, but also protect lens from dust and scratches. Because of the dust on the gravel roads, cameras and lens should all be kept in plastic bags when not in use.

The Yukon has something for everyone. The legendary Alaska Highway with its tales of high adventure; the Klondike with its untold hardships and instant riches; the miles of wilderness in between — the territory has them all.

Picture your wife with Mt. Logan, one of the highest mountains in North America, as a backdrop. Snap the kids as they fish the "marge of Lake LeBerge" or shoot a shot of your mother-in-law as she oversees the entire operation.

Boat down the Yukon, backpack into deserted Dalton Post or take a helicopter trip into the glaciers of the new Kluanne National Park. Each trip provides unique opportunity. The remains of steam-driven paddlewheelers, decaying log cabins, mountains of ice and flower-filled meadows — each a photographic challenge.

The fresh greens of spring along the Canoe Road, the soft browns of summer in the Carcross Desert, the fiery reds of fall in Dawson City or the icy blues of winter on the Dempster; the Yukon awaits with a full palette of color.

"It's the great, big, broad land 'way up yonder,
It's the forests where silence has lease;
It's the beauty that thrills me with wonder,
It's the stillness that fills me with peace."

Robert Service said it with his pen. You can say it with your camera.

Poetry

SONNET ON WRITING POETRY

Tis not for wealth or for uncertain fame
That one doth write a little poetry.
Perhaps to satisfy an urge in me;
Some wrong protest, or Cause proclaim;
Or merely try to clarify the same;
Express a feeling for a person true,
A story told to give someone his due,
A method of escape could be the aim.
From all the things that do frustrate us here,
No matter what the reasons, or how strong,
The main thing is, achieve the goal that's near;
Release emotion pent up for so long;
Fulfill yourself with those ambitions dear;
The spirit must be free to sing its song.

'BETTER MAKE IT LOOK GOOD GUYS... REMEMBER I'VE GOT TO FIGHT AN ELECTION ON THIS!'

Goldwater helped French get a secret U.S. jet component

WASHINGTON — Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., is usually one of the first on his feet to oppose giving away U.S. military secrets. Yet two years ago, he helped the French obtain a highly classified, American-made component for a jet engine.

The senator was won over by French officials who courted him assiduously at the Paris air show in May 1973. He responded by cabling the White House from Paris, urging that the sensitive component be shared with the French.

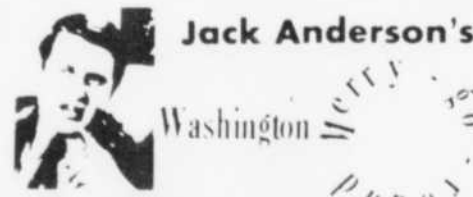

The story is told in State Department cables, which we have now obtained. What the French wanted was a "core element" that General Electric had developed for jet engines. The project had been financed from Pentagon funds for the B-1 bomber.

The French, seeking to revive the European aircraft industry, wanted to join forces with GE to adapt the new engine to commercial use. However, the White House rejected GE's application for an export license on several grounds. Most importantly, the engine was declared to be of strategic importance to the United States.

Still the French persisted. The late President Pompidou took the matter up personally with President Nixon in the summer of 1972, competent sources report.

The following year, the French worked on Goldwater when he showed up at the Paris air show. An official named Henri Ziegler, according to the State Department cables, "welcomed Senator Goldwater to the air show" and "arranged flight in A-300 (airbus)."

The president of a French aircraft company was "host at stag luncheon in Senator's honor on June 1." The same day, the secretary-general of the air show, Jacques Mailet, "called on Senator ... at embassy." The next day, Ziegler took over again as Goldwater's "official host at luncheon."

But the crowning touch came when the French Air Force chief, Gen. Claude Griegault, arranged for Goldwater to pilot a Mirage-3 jet fighter.

This is the senator's favorite sport. He prides himself on having flown every plane made in the United States. "Whenever there's a new plane around," he told us, "I want to fly it."

According to the cables, a Bell helicopter whisked Goldwater to Bretigny where, with a copilot named Capt. Charrin, the senator flew the Mirage-3.

Sometime during the hectic courtship of Goldwater, the French took him aside and explained their great desire for the GE engine component. Goldwater obligingly cabled President Nixon's notorious Mr. Fix-it, Peter Flanigan, at the White House on June 1.

"Suggest you contact the President immediately, urging approval of the General Electric ... agreement," wired Goldwater. "This will be most advantageous to our aircraft industry but, more importantly, advantageous to the relations between France and the U.S. It will have absolutely no harm on our engine industry. In fact, in my opinion, it will help it, and it needs help. Please follow through immediately."

Flanigan's reply was on the wires that evening: "I agree with your telegram ... and appreciate your interest in this matter. This issue is well in hand."

A few days later, the White House ban on the GE export license was lifted. How much the Goldwater cable influenced the decision can only be speculated, but it is known that Nixon was extremely sensitive to pressure from Goldwater.

The senator told us he had sent the cable "based on meetings with the French." He could not remember the details of the GE-French agreement but recalled that "it had something to do with motors," he said.

Phantom Congressman: Ex-Rep. Frank Clark, D-Pa., apparently thinks he still represents Pennsylvania's 25th district despite his defeat for re-election last November by Rep. Gary Myers, R-Pa.

Clark has just sent 150,000 congressional newsletters to his former constituents at a cost to the taxpayers of more than $10,000 in mailing expenses, although he hasn't been a congressman since January.

Under the law, former congressmen are permitted to continue using the free mailing privilege until April 1 after they leave office. This is intended to give them time to clean up their official correspondence.

But Clark misused the privilege to bombard his former constituents with newsletters reporting on "Accomplishments in the 25th District."

The newsletter, which contains a half-dozen promotional photos referring to himself as "Congressman Clark," gives the impression that he still represents the 25th district.

He invited former constituents to business "as usual" at his "offices" in Washington and Pennsylvania, without mentioning the fact that he is now a professional business consultant and is no longer their congressman.

Contacted in Pennsylvania, Clark told us he saw nothing wrong with spending $10,000 of the taxpayers' money to mail out newsletters. "The franking privilege extension," he said, "was designed to allow former congressmen to report to their constituents."

Approaching Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Aldred of Oshawa, wish to announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Beverly Ann, to David Wilbur Sturtevant, son of

Mr. and Mrs. Willis Sturtevant, of Sherbrooke, Que. The wedding will take place June 7, 1975 at 4 p.m. in the chapel of Ontario Ladies College, Whitby, Ontario.

UN evening held

Unity Lodge No. 8 IOOF of Sherbrooke held a United Nations pilgrimage evening and sugaring off in aid of Camp Neafa. Chairman Herb Pratt welcomed everyone.

Stephen Gillam played an accordion solo, Scout Master Russell Gillam of 1st Lennoxville scout troop gave a brief report of the boys from his troop who will be attending the World Jamboree in Norway this summer.

Miss Mary Healy, a delegate of the United Nations, give an address of her experience and trip to New York and the United Nations.

Bro. Edward Hyatt, chairman of the United Pilgrimage of Youth thanked Miss Healy saying he was sure that delegates sent by the order gained many new experiences.

Three Boy Scouts, James,

David and Charles Murray, played three selections on the Recorder.

A 25 year jewel was presented to Bro. Mel McHarg of Unity No. 8 by Bro. John Morrison, Grand Master of Quebec.

Bro. Howard Pratt received his past Noble Grand's Jewel, presented to him by Bro. Lawrence Dewey, Grand Patriarch. The Grand Master, Bro. Morrison, spoke of the programs that make odd-fellowship worthwhile. A few words were spoken by Grand Patriarch Bro. Dewey. The encampment rally will be held in Rock Island, April 26, 2 p.m. with a banquet at 6:30.

There will be a progressive card party on April 22nd at 8 p.m. in the Masonic Temple. Scout S. Gillam ended the program with accordion selections followed by sugar on snow.

ACW meets

St. Peter's Anglican Church Women held their regular meeting in Memorial Hall, April 8th at 2 p.m. Mrs. Cliff Allan presided and following the reports by the secretary and treasurer, plans were completed for the Spring Coffee Party on April 15. Raffle the beautiful quilt ributed among the members present.

Mrs. Franklin reported Rev. Ronald Reeve has consented to address a parish meeting on Church Union in May.

Cards are to be sent to members who are ill, and Mrs. Munkittrick will send forward a birthday gift to our friend, Christine, at Douglas Hospital.

Plans were made for the rummage sale to be held in the lower hall on April 24th from 2 until 8 p.m.

The next meeting will be held on May 12 at 7:30 p.m.

Trip planned for Senior Citizens

ROCK ISLAND — Bob Enright, co-ordinator of Community Services and Norman Majury, Adult Education Professional, were guests at the Senior Citizens luncheon held on Thursday afternoon, April 10 in Stanstead South church hall.

This gathering was attended by some 50 community people all of whom enjoyed a casserole, salad and cup cakes, luncheon served from a long table by members of the Ladies Aid. Mrs. Lillian Goodwin spoke the blessing.

After the luncheon, Mr. Enright outlined the services plan for the Senior Citizens June 12 trip to Montreal. This trip will include a visit to Old Montreal, and other places of interest. He and Mr. Majury will be in Montreal the coming weeks and will make arrangements for all to have luncheon at a restaurant. The bus will leave Stanstead South church at 9:00 a.m. and leave Montreal on the return trip home at 5:00 p.m. Already several names have been registered for the trip.

Mr. Enright made several suggestions concerning the trip. He and Mr. Majury will be accompanying the travellers. Questions were asked and answered by the gentlemen. Both were accorded a vote of appreciation for coming to the gathering on Thursday and for their interest in arranging the trip so efficiently.

Cards were played the remainder of the afternoon.

The next gathering, the last of the season, will be May 8 in the church hall with luncheon at 12:30 noon. By this time both sides of the Border will be on advanced time.

Two door prizes, daffodils, sold that day for the Cancer Society by the Catholic Women's League, were claimed by Mrs. Pearl Farley and Mrs. Richard Boisvert.

Ladies Aid

ROCK ISLAND — Stanstead South Church Ladies Aid met in the church on Thursday afternoon, April 10 after serving the Senior Citizens luncheon in the church hall.

Mrs. Gordon Johnston, president, conducted the meeting which she opened by reading an inspirational poem, "God is a Generous Giver" and another about Life, followed by all repeating The Lord's Prayer.

The reports noted two tea kettles have been purchased for the church kitchen.

Mrs. Harry Goodall asked all people purchasing American Salada tea bags to save the tags that can be made up into scrapbooks.

The luncheon for the May 8 Senior Citizens was planned, and this will be the final meeting for the Senior Citizens and the Ladies Aid.

Chicken scores another winner

By Aileen Claire
 NEA Food Editor

Chicken remains an international favorite and lends itself to a variety of dishes. In France, a chef may insert truffles under the bird's skin and roast it. In Spain, it often turns up in a paella. Italians enjoy chicken with garlic and tomatoes, and the Chinese savor chicken and serve it with crisp vegetables. Americans love their fried, roasted and creamed chicken. A complete dish features a Chicken Amadine with Rice Ring. This makes a good Sunday dinner meal when served with a fresh vegetable salad.

CHICKEN AMADINE WITH RICE RING
 3 cups chicken stock (reserved from Simmered Chicken*)
 3 cups light cream
 1/2 cup butter or margarine
 1 1/2 pounds mushrooms, sliced
 2/3 cup flour
 1 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
 6 cups cubed cooked chicken (from Simmered Chicken*)
 1/2 cup toasted slivered almonds

Combine chicken stock and cream. Reserve. Melt butter over low heat. Add mushrooms and cook, stirring occasionally, 10 minutes. Add flour; stir to a paste. Stir in chicken stock mixture. Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Stir in salt, pepper sauce, chicken. Heat to serving temperature. Turn into Rice Ring**, sprinkle almonds on top. Makes 12 servings.

*SIMMERED CHICKEN
 broiler-fryer chickens (2 1/2 pounds each), whole or cut in serving pieces
 4 cups water

3 small onions
 6 celery tops
 3 bay leaves
 2 teaspoons glutamate
 2 teaspoons salt

Put chicken in large kettle with tight-fitting lid. Add water and remaining ingredients. Cover. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 1 hour or until tender. Remove from heat, strain stock and reserve. Remove meat from bones in as large pieces as possible.

**Rice Ring
 Press 12 cups hot cooked rice into 12-cup ring mold. Turn out on large platter.

Children's clothing industry booming

Attractive, up-to-the-minute styling is as important to the increasingly fashion-conscious young as practicality and durability to the parents who pay for the clothes. Those designers who can satisfy both are finding that they are part of what is now a booming part of the clothing industry.

A look at what some leading British manufacturers propose for 1975 confirms that designers in all fields have achieved a well-balanced mixture, allying quality to what is practical and functional and adding the latest trends in styling.

The result is clothes for boys and girls of all ages that look attractive, are easy to care for and will stand up to hard wear and tear.

The slightly gimmicky look of some seasons ago, when there were many miniature versions of grown-up fashions, has gone and in its place are simple, streamlined outfits with coordinates that can be mixed endlessly and many garments for everyday wear that are suitable for both boys and girls.

FORMAL
 For formal occasions, there are feminine-looking dresses for little girls and well-tailored suits for small boys in materials such as gaberdine and corduroy. For casual wear, a tough cotton denim is a favourite fabric for jeans, shorts, bib-and-brace dungarees and skirts or pinafore dresses with matching shirts, all colour-coordinated.

For dresses it is soft, lightweight cottons that are used, pure or blended with manmade fibres, gingham, chambray, printed calico and muslins.

Colors for both boys and girls tend to be bright and strong, such as yellows, emerald greens and strong reds. There are practically no pastels, except for babies.

Boys' suits come in more conventional masculine shades with browns and beiges predominating. Conwear presenting one of the best ranges here.

Girl's party dresses are often in Victorian picture book tones - creamy beige, pale olive or delicate mauve or violet, with a lot of all-white, especially broderie anglaise, and prints recalling scaled-down 19th century wallpaper or chintz designs.

Although for day skirts are short and swinging, for "Best" the floorlength line is extremely popular and lends itself to many pretty details, such as a frilled flounce at the hemline, lace-edged yoke, or neckline and waist picked out with narrow

velvet ribbon. ATTRACTIVE
 Some very attractive examples of this style of dress are shown by Frederick Barrie, whose range includes polycotton incorporating all these ideas. David Rome also has some fresh-looking floorlength dresses in gingham, and Little Saints by St. Honore equally well by boys or girls, and pinafore-style dresses and skirts for girls are also available. Well-tailored plain shirts are sold to be worn with any of the other garments, while the jeans for older children have the authentic, grown-up, hip-hugging cut.

Another firm whose jeans are outstandingly well made range featuring characters made famous by children's television programmes. These are from their Skanva T-shirt range for boys or girls.

COMPREHENSIVE
 A famous British firm has a most comprehensive children's wear range this season. It includes some beautifully styled classic polo necked jumpers, V and round necked slipovers, mostly in easy-care Cour-telle, and nearly all equally suitable for boys and girls. The fashion story here in knits seems to be jacquards in tobacco brown and white, red and white, and beige and navy.

The collection also includes skinny ribbed sweaters available down to the smallest sizes, and slipovers in plain colour ribbing, usually strong yellows, greens, reds, or white. Some of the jumpers for smaller children have "fun" motifs on the chest.

There are waterproofed jackets, with and without hoods, anoraks, and shower-proofed tracksuit tops which are mostly unisex, but there is also a group of really masculine-looking beige raincoats for boys, with shoulder tabs and a real swagger in the styling.

For sunny days, good-looking beachwear in cotton and nylon mixture are popular with matching sweaters to pull on over swimwear, or shorts, and matching beachwraps, many in gay stripes in colour combinations like canary yellow and apple green. Femina of London also shows smart beachwraps in bright coloured towelling, with hood and tiebelt.

The same firm has also had great success in a field where at one time not much imagination for children was shown by designers - dressing gowns. Now there are flowered quilted gowns for all age groups, from tinies to teenagers, and brushed nylon ones in pretty feminine colours with sturdier-looking versions in more masculine shades for small boys.

VICTORIAN STYLE — A pretty party dress in soft polycotton is seen for ages two-and-a-half to six years. The Victorian chintz-like pattern is sepi on a parchment ground, with lace-edged yoke and brown velvet ribbon bands. Other colorways are slate and shocking pink.

and styled, with many details—such as firebelt loops, extra strong heavy zips and a good deep hem for letting down - is Wizard of Oz. These come in bleached denim and needcord, with matching cheesecloth shirts.

The current grown-up vogue for graffiti-covered T-shirts has spread to the young - though the motifs are more innocent! Lindsay Maid has an up-to-the minute

INGENIOUS

Among leading manufacturers in this field is Kamella which offers a most ingenious collection of coordinates designed by Pat Wardley for two - to ten-year-olds. Mostly in pure cotton denim, these coordinates combine striped with colour-matching plain fabric, the basic colours being either air force blue or loganberry pink.

The jeans, shorts and bib-and-braces could be worn

All Saints' Guild

BEEBE — The April 8 meeting of the All Saints Anglican Guild was held at the home of Mrs. Arthur Slade with an average attendance.

Rev. O. Merriman opened the meeting with prayer and the chair was taken by the president, Miss Rachel Sheldon.

Plans were finalized for the Sunshine tea to be held at the Rectory in Stanstead on April 19, from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. The drawing for a ceramic lamp will take place at that time. Everyone is welcome to attend.

A questionnaire is being sent to church members regarding church union. It is not the idea of being against the union but the way it is worded doesn't meet with the approval of the church dignitaries.

The round robin was won by Rev. Merriman.

Delicious refreshments were served when a time of visiting and fellowship was enjoyed.

Miss R. Sheldon will entertain the May meeting.

High Street Underground

that High Street has kept away from the type of show that is mostly sparkle. The band tries to concentrate on producing the sound, and lets the sight take care of itself. The visual approaches of bands like Alice Cooper and Elton John have made theatre an integral part of the rock world but Mick does not force his band getting involved, at least "not now".

For the immediate future the band is planning a summer full of shows in who knows where and will seriously look for a recording contract in the fall, with the able guidance of Len, High Street Underground is destined for many more hot, smelly bars and gymnasium stages before the music centers start to recognize this band that knows Canada's small town hotels like few, if any, others.

Card of Thanks

ROBINSON — We wish to express our most sincere thanks to all the relatives and friends of the late Charles Stuart Robinson of Birchton, Quebec. Our appreciation to those who brought food to our home, for kind neighbours who assisted with lunch the day of the funeral, for the many friends who visited the Funeral Home and their kind words of sympathy. Many thanks to Dr. Klink and Dr. Paulette and the Nursing Staff on the 3rd Floor for their excellent care, to the members of the King Edward Lodge No. 78 who conducted a Masonic Service, to all those who sent cards and flowers, to the Eastern Townships Regional School Board for its donation to the Scholarship Fund, to donors to the Sherbrooke Hospital "In Memoriam Fund" and the Bulwer United Church, to the Galt Bus Drivers Club, to the students on the bus, to Rev. Phil Gaudine and Mr. Frank Bailey who conducted the service, to all the bearers, and the organist, Mrs. Morris Smith. A special thank you to Mr. Byrl Webster for all his kindness. It is at such times we truly appreciate the blessing of good friends. GOD BLESS YOU ALL.

Hank Aaron is gone from Braves but Evans and Baker take over in clutches, Dodgers stop Reds

Hank Aaron is gone from Atlanta Braves but some of his magic remains in the bats of Darrell Evans and Dusty Baker.

"Driving in runs in the clutch is what I'm paid to do," said Baker after he and Evans drove in three runs each Tuesday night in a 6-1 Braves win over Houston Astros.

"You can't drive them in all the time, but you can try—that was one of Hank's philosophies."

Atlanta has scored only 25 runs in eight games, Evans driving in nine of them and Baker seven.

Elsewhere in the National League, Los Angeles Dodgers defeated Cincinnati Reds 3-1 and San Diego Padres beat San Francisco Giants 2-1. The Chicago-Pittsburgh and New York-Philadelphia games were rained out while St. Louis and Montreal were not scheduled.

HAS THIRD HOMER

Evans hit his third homer of the season, a two-run shot, in the first inning off J.R. Richard. He picked up a third RBI when he was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded in a three-run third. Baker hit a bases-loaded single for two runs in the third and added a sacrifice fly in the fifth.

Meanwhile, knuckleballer Phil Niekro scattered seven hits, including Jose Cruz' first-inning home run. Los Angeles pitcher Don Sutton held Cincinnati hitless for 6 2/3 innings before Johnny Bench's first home run of the season forced him to settle for the fourth one.

Broadway Joe gets $4 million offer from WHA and Chicago, number of teams undecided

NEW YORK (AP) — With visions of Broadway Joe Namath in its dreams, the once-destitute World Football League rises from the ashes today with a press conference at a plush and fashionable hotel.

Hoping to make Namath its biggest catch, the league said Tuesday night it has offered the New York Jets quarterback $4 million in guaranteed cash—a quantity the WFL has lacked so far—to play with its Chicago franchise for three years beginning this summer.

League president Chris Hemmeyer said the offer called for a $500,000 bonus, $500,000 a year for three years and $100,000 a year for 20 years beginning in 1978.

In addition, the WFL said it offered Namath 50 per cent ownership in a future expansion franchise—one which sources said would be located in New York.

As an indication of its uncertain future and unsuccessful past, the league did not know as late as Tuesday night what it would announce today.

Officials said there would be a league, but just how many teams was yet to be figured out. Other problems were also still being argued in meetings that were going 18 hours each of the last two days.

Don Jonas announces his retirement to become CBC color commentator for EFL

WINNIPEG (CP) — Quarterback Don Jonas announced Tuesday his retirement from the Canadian Football League to accept the position as color commentator for CBC-TV's Eastern Conference telecasts.

Jonas, 36, spent five years in the CFL, beginning with Toronto Argonauts of the EFL in 1970 and concluding his career last season with Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

But his most successful years were with Winnipeg Blue Bombers for whom he played three seasons, winning the CFL's most valuable player award in hitter of his career.

The 30-year-old right-hander walked Joe Morgan on a 3-2 pitch with one out in the first inning but Morgan was erased when Bench grounded into a double play. Sutton then faced the minimum number of batters and had retired 18 in a row when Bench homered on the first pitch. Sutton then retired the last seven Cincinnati batters.

Jimmy Wynn hit a two-run homer for the Dodgers in the first inning off Clay Kirby and Sutton squeezed home the final Los Angeles run in the seventh.

The victory was the Dodgers' third in a row and second over the Reds, who beat them three times in Cincinnati last week.

PADRES RALLY

Randy Jones allowed two hits in seven innings and Bobby Tolan and Willie McCovey delivered run-scoring singles as San Diego rallied in the eighth.

Mike Caldwell blanked the Padres on five hits over the first seven innings and an unearned run in the first put the Giants on top 1-0. But Glenn Beckert, leading off the eighth as a pinch hitter for Jones, was safe on an error by second baseman Derrel Thomas, a former Padre. Pinch runner John Scott stole second and third and, after a walk to Enzo Hernandez, scored the tying run on Tolan's single.

Hernandez went to third on Tolan's hit and, after John Grubb was hit with a pitch, scored the winner on a bloop single by ex-Giant McCovey off reliever Gary Lavelle.

Dennis Ververgaert of Vancouver Canucks has a message for Montreal's taxi drivers: "Just tell them to stop making predictions about Montreal and Vancouver. They're wrong."

Ververgaert's message could also apply to many fans who thought Montreal Canadiens would eliminate the Canucks in four straight in their current Stanley Cup quarter-final series.

The Canucks, losers of the opening game Sunday, bounced back to take a 2-1 win Tuesday night to even their best-of-seven set 1-1.

In other games, Pittsburgh Penguins downed New York Islanders 3-1, Philadelphia Flyers topped Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0 and Buffalo Sabres clipped Chicago Black Hawks 3-1. Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and the Sabres all hold 2-0 leads in their series.

"We came here to win a game and we did," said Canucks coach Phil Maloney. "We were skating with them more... a lot better than we did in the first game."

Up until Tuesday night, the Canucks had never beaten Montreal in a game that meant something. The Canadiens were 24-0-3 in regular-season action and 1-0 in the playoffs.

"I don't know what you think, but I don't think we played badly tonight," said Canadiens defenceman Guy Lapointe. "(Gary) Smith was just fantastic for them and he made several excellent saves. This series is not going to be easy."

Ali denies story released by AP and CP regarding Lyle and Wepner

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Muhammad Ali denied Tuesday that he called fights with Chuck Wepner and Ron Lyle "a big rip-off" and that he considered himself a "black Robin Hood."

Ali had been quoted by the Fort Lauderdale News last week as saying: "I admit it. It feels like stealing sometimes. I just made a million and a half dollars beating a nobody like Chuck Wepner. I'll make another million dollars beating another nobody like Ron Lyle."

"Sure, what I'm doing is a big ripoff, but I can't stop fighting while I'm making all this money... I want to Montreal shots as he returned to the Canucks lineup after resting a groin injury Sunday night. The other Vancouver hero was Gary Monahan who scored the game-winning goal at 13:49 of the third period.

"Leon (Rochefort) shot the puck and it hit the boards," Monahan said. "It came off nicely to me and I shot it. I think Dryden had the shot and then I saw the light on."

"Rochefort broke for the net and created some confusion."

Monahan said Smith "came up with a great game" and "it inspired us." But Smith, an 11-year veteran, refused to take the credit. "The guys showed a lot of guts for guys making a lot less in salary than the team they beat."

Smith was upset with rookie centre of Doug Risebrough of the Canadiens who was penalized for charging the Vancouver goaltender in the second period.

BACK WAS TURNED "My back was turned and he took a run at me," Smith said. "He should have had more than two minutes for charging. It was an attempt to injure."

Risebrough denied deliberately going after the Vancouver netminder.

"I was just going after the puck," he said. "Smith was just there."

Risebrough returned to score Montreal's lone goal at 12:39 of the middle session but Gerry O'Flaherty tied it up at 15:08.

make as much money as I can. I want to take as much money from the rich as I can."

The Canadian Press also carried the story. News sports writer Bob Padecky, who conducted the interview, said Ali made the statements attributed to him and added: "To say you were misquoted is an overworked cliché."

Padecky said he interviewed Ali shortly after one of Ali's workouts in a Miami Beach gymnasium, and that a real estate salesman trying to sell Ali Florida land sites overheard the comments.

ET Ski Patrol Founders hold reunion

MT. ORFORD — The role of Canadian Ski Patrol members in Quebec's Eastern Townships, over the past 20 years, were recalled last Saturday when the Zone celebrated its completion of two decades of service.

Mrs. Arlene Whittier, founder of the zone and the Mt. Orford Ski Patrol traced the history of the regional organization and, was accompanied by four of the original ten member Orford squad; Gil Ethier, Bruno Bergeron and Jack Whittier and, first patrol leader Jack Whittier of Edmonton.

While emphasis was on achievements of the Canadian Ski Patrol System in this region, the Mt. Orford patrol was given special recognition, first as the first group and also for its numerous achievements. Zone president Perry Stafford noted, that of the ten special national awards won in this region, seven have gone to Orford patrolers. While the Orford members have many accomplishments to their credit, one of their greatest moments was in 1961, when a team won the International First Aid Competition in the U.S. The same five who earned the prize; Garth Fields, Pierrot Longpre, Ed Vancour, Bib Simard and Jeanine Gagne were on hand to again, with Mrs. Whittier to share a rousing applause for their feat.

Harvey Catchpaw, Mt. Orford works superintendent acting as Master of Ceremonies, gave special praise and credit to others who has helped the zone grow and flourish over the 20 years. Michael Gagnon, of the Association's national office in Montreal, thanked hill operators for the interest and cooperation they had given the C.S.P.S. in the Townships.

Besides Mrs. Whittier, four of the other former presidents were on hand; Charles Catchpaw, Rupert Dobbin, Charles Brooks and President Perry Stafford.

Today with six patrolers and over 250 members in the Eastern Townships, this organization is part of the 4,000 member national association. It was noted, that in the early sixties, the E.T. zone carried eleven patrols and only 150 enrolment.

Organizers of the event, Judy Lord, Judy Hopps, Lem Bachelard and Ed Vancour are already making plans for the zone's quarter century celebrations.

Mark Howe paces Aeros to 7-2 win

Houston Aeros, led by hot-shooting Mark Howe, could wrap up their World Hockey Association quarter-final playoff series against Cleveland Thursday night and Quebec Nordiques will have to take at least one more game to eliminate Phoenix Roadrunners.

Howe scored three goals Tuesday night to lead the Aeros in a 7-2 win over the Crusaders that gave Houston a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Quebec missed its chance for a four-game sweep over the Roadrunners at Phoenix, dropping a 6-5 overtime loss that forces that series back to Quebec for the fifth game Thursday.

In Tuesday's other game, New England Whalers rallied for a 5-2 win over the Fighting Saints at Minnesota, tying that series at 2-2, with the fifth game set for the Whaler's home ice at Hartford, Conn., on Friday.

The fourth quarter-final, with San Diego Mariners leading Toronto Toros 2-1, resumes tonight at Toronto.

HAS EIGHT GOALS

Mark Howe has been the dominant force behind the Aeros' playoff success. He had his second three-goal game of the series Tuesday and has a total of eight playoff goals.

Ayer's Cliff split games in Minor playoffs

THREE VILLAGES (IH) — The Ayer's Cliff Juvenile hockey team winners in the Border Minor Hockey playdowns, travelled to Rouyn-Noranda last week to compete in the Provincial Minor Hockey Tournament.

The team played Saturday at 10:30 a.m. and emerged winners by a 3-2 count. In the evening, at 6:30 p.m., they played their second game and went down to a 6-3 count.

They stayed overnight and left Sunday morning around 9:00 a.m. by bus. They had trouble with the bus and didn't arrive at Ayer's Cliff until 1:00 a.m. a very tired group.

"Thank God, we're getting out of Cleveland," said Crusaders' general manager and coach Jack Vivian, angered over fans' booing of goalie Gerry Cheevers in the third period.

"He's come out to clear pucks for his team-mates and has taken many checks," the coach went. "It will be nice going to Houston. At least down there they're not fickle."

It was while clearing the puck in the third period that Cheevers got into trouble and started getting catcalls.

With the Crusaders trailing 4-1, Cheevers came out to try to clear the puck, but Houston's Andre Hines poked the puck loose and fed it to Frank Hughes, who fired into an open net.

From that point on, every time Cheevers made a stop, the fans gave him a Bronx cheer.

CORMIER HAS WINNER At Phoenix, the Roadrunners jumped into a 4-2 first-period lead, allowed Quebec to tie it in the second and then won the game on Michel Cormier's overtime score.

Dennis Sobchuk scored twice and John Gray and Rob Ftorek added single goals for the Roadrunners in the first period. Wendell Bennett added a Phoenix power-play goal in the second period.

E.T. Zone Ski championships close season

try out for the Quebec Cup trials, which will be held late next fall.

Saturday's slalom race, with 48 gates, saw the senior boys' event won by Gilles Savard of Orford, with time of 40.1 and 41.6 for a combined 81.7 score. Second place went to P. Ratte from Shefford Valley who scored 39.5 and 64.4 for a 103.9 total in combined points. Alex Speth from Orford was third with combined time of 121.6.

Top senior girl was Paula Pepin of Sutton whose two runs were 45.0 and 45.6 for a combined 90.6. Runner-up was D. Gagne of Bellevue in Sherbrooke, with 45.6 and 45.5 for a 91.1 combined. H. Lacaille, Sutton, was third with runs of 42.5 and 51.2 for a 93.7 combined.

Allen Meek of Sutton was first in the juvenile boys with combined time of 76.2, earned in runs of 37.2 and 39.0, proving that age doesn't make all the difference in skiing. Thirteen-year-old Meek was trailed by J.

Lacaille of Glen Mountain, whose time was 48.6 and 47.5; 96.1, and third went to F. Beaulieu of Sherbrooke Bellevue with 48.4, 48.9 for a 97.3 combined.

Louis Lepine, Orford, led the scoring in juvenile girls with runs of 41.6 and 43.0 for 84.6 combined, chalking up better time than all senior girls. Second place was taken by Julie Roy of Orford with 42.6, 44.3; 86.9 and third seat went to France Demers, Sutton with 45.7, 42.4; 88.1.

Sutton's giant slalom with 33 gates was a longer race and more tiring than Saturday's competition. Although the top half of the race course was extremely fast, the spring sun made the last section sluggish, slowing down the racers and, making a decided difference in times scored the day earlier.

Sutton's Rick Meek won the senior boys' event with 106.2 combined time. Claude Chaput, Orford was second with 111.1, and B. Preston, Owl's Head placed third with 113.0.

Senior girls' award in Sunday's race went to Paula Pepin, Sutton with 118.5 combined. D. Gagne of Sherbrooke Bellevue was second with 120.9, and third place went to A. Shaw of Owl's Head with 121.7.

Allan Meek, Sutton captured the juvenile boys' giant slalom prize with combined points of 110.3. Second belonged to Bobby Handfield, Sutton for 111.9, while Glen's Yves Langlois captured third with 118.1.

Sutton's France Demers won the juveniles girls' giant slalom with combined points of 114.2. Orford's Sharon Munday was second with 115.3 and Louise Lepin of Orford came third with 115.7.

Mark Dufresne, assistant ski school director at Orford was chief of the races. Mt. Orford Ski Club President Roger Morin took charge of timing Prizes were awarded by E.T. Zone president Lorie Cote of Foster.

Syrup under production at South Durham century farm

IS IT READY? — Rodney Duffy of Duffland Farm, South Durham tests syrup to see if it is ready to draw off in his sugar camp.

By JOYCE HIBBERT

In South Durham, 16 miles north-west of Richmond, there is a farm now known as Duffland. It was founded on Crown Land in 1848 and the first farmer settler was James Duffy, an immigrant from County Armagh, Ireland. His descendant, Rodney A.J. Duffy, farms 350 acres and raises registered Holstein cattle. The century-old farmhouse is home to Rodney and Muriel Duffy and their family. Donna now attends the University of New Brunswick, Marina is a student at Richmond Regional High School and James is a second grader at St. Francis Elementary School in Richmond. Young James is the fifth male in direct line to live at the farm and bear the name, James Duffy.

The average yield of the Duffy sugarbush is 400 gallons of syrup.

The prospects for this year? "Very good so far," commented Rodney Duffy while hurling more wood on the fire. "And the recent big snowfall came at the right time. It was worth a hundred gallons of syrup to us." During the past weeks of high winds the sugarbush had also benefitted from its sheltered location. The owner went on to tell how he'd decided to cut down a number of tall hemlock trees. The result had been a lot more sun for the rock or sugar maples and consequently a much greater sap yield.

A sugar maple is 40 to 50 years in the growing stage and its trunk should measure 8" in diameter before tapping. Ninety per cent of the sap buckets used in the Duffy operation are made of aluminum, the rest are galvanized.

If any of the ancestors could return this season, they would find things in the cabin much the same as in their own time. However, they'd likely wonder about the tractor having replaced horses for bringing in the sap. And they'd certainly be curious about the handy snowmobile used by the present owner to get to and from the camp.

The old building may not have many more years to operate. "Down here at boiling time one has plenty of time to dream," remarked farmer Duffy. "It's getting harder and harder to find help and I need an evaporator with double the present one's capacity. I often think of building a new camp on the edge of the bush and having the sap pumped in."

Whatever changes he makes, he plans to be harvesting maple sap in South Durham for many a spring yet.

According to his family, Rodney Duffy is an enthusiastic consumer of maple syrup. "Yes, it's a funny thing," he admitted, "but by the time March comes around each year I get a craving for the stuff."

He offered his visitors steaming samples of Duffland maple syrup to drink. It was just the booster needed for the return struggle through the deep snow.

Delicious too.

Prize seeds are good investment

You'll be halfway to a difference between one variety patents are being granted for bountiful, tasty harvest when at 35 cents and a new improved you know how to select the best, hybrid at 50 cents per packet. most suitable vegetable varieties. But the difference in germination, early maturity, disease resistance, flavor, and yield can be enormous. In effect, saving a few pennies to begin with can cost many dollars in unthrifty or less than excellent results come harvest time. Shop for varieties that have been proven successful. Look for named varieties. We are moving into a period when

Impetus needed in Nursery industry

Short of a complete economic collapse any recessionary tendencies in the general economic climate of our country should add impetus to the industry rather than curtail its activity. This consensus is prevalent among many leaders in the Landscape-Nursery Industry of Canada and of the U.S.A. says Bryan Sutton, executive director of the Canadian Nursery Trades Association. The industry is very versatile, and while reduction in home building starts could conceivably have some effect on landscaping contracts, a million or more people who curtail their spending by not going to Europe, or by not buying a new car could quite easily be expected to spend extra dollars buying nursery stock and landscape services. Quoting statistics, Mr. Sutton said that in 1973 3.4 million kitchens were remodelled in the United States. Statistics are not available indicating how many gardens were remodelled, he said, but in Canada there is a tremendous potential in the garden remodelling field. Too many gardens are planted and then forgotten. Gardens must be re-activated, and even sophisticated landscapes become over-grown and outdated. "Would a housewife wait 10 years to redecorate inside her home?" he asks. No way! Homeowners should more often take a look at "redecorating" outside their home. There are many, many gardens that need re-landscaping. And there is no healthier way to spend money than in one's own back-yard. At the recent Outlook Conference of Agriculture Canada in Ottawa, Knox Henry of Brookdale-Kingsway Ltd., Bowmanville, Ontario, reported that the Ornamental Nursery Industry expects supply to lag behind demand for nursery stock in 1975. "The production base in Canada must be enlarged," he said, "for at present it is insufficient to supply the demand for our product." Changes in the U.S. Tariffs under consideration could stimulate exports and thereby add impetus to the industry's production.

THREE VILLAGES

The AUW of the Universalist Church, Derby Line, are having a supper meeting on April 22 and guest night. After the supper, the program will include the showing of the slides of Rev. Sister Solange Poutre which she took on her trip to the Holy Land. The supper is at 6:30 p.m. D.S.T.

Mr. and Mrs. James Yetter, Laurie and Gayle, Rock Island were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Woods and daughter at Elora, Ont., on Easter weekend. In their absence, Mrs. Yetter's mother, Mrs. Hattie Eryou spent the weekend with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Rediker in Graniteville.

Mr. and Mrs. James Yetter, Rock Island and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bullock, Stanstead were in Danville on April 6 to attend the All-Star Dart tournament. They were also callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Williams in Danville.

There is one way to cast light on the situation, however — the All America Selections. This is the big competition among all seed companies, both here and abroad. Plant breeders vie for honors in perfecting new varieties that can capture gold, silver, or bronze medals as All America winners.

Every year for more than 40 years, seed firms and independent operations have entered the best of their new vegetable varieties in the All America evaluation trials — one of the first consumer-protection programs in this country. Only the smallest percentage that are proved superior ever receive awards. In some years, there are few that can be classed as better than present varieties. In some years, no gold medals are given at all.

Seed companies are justifiably proud when one of their new introductions earns any of these awards — so proud, in fact, that they note the honors in their catalogs. Look for this if you want the best varieties available.

Does beef raising go against the grain?

By Gaynor Maddox

Beef prices are lower. From the standpoint of food value beef is about the best food value in the supermarket. The question is: Should we raise more beef to satisfy our American cravings or should we reduce the number of cattle and use the feed grain for direct human consumption?

That is a vital question today. There are two sides and the meat growers' and packers' side is one.

"Controversy centers on the cattle industry's use of grain to feed cattle. Some argue that cutting cattle production would release more food for the rest of the world," states John L. Huston, of the Beef Council of the Meat Board.

"I think that statement is extremely simplistic. The cattle industry recognizes its role to insure an adequate diet for the world's population. As an industry, it is striving to fulfill this responsibility.

"But the world doesn't need reduced cattle production. Far from it. What the world needs is more food — beef and other animal protein, grain, fruits and vegetables. With so many lives at stake decisions must be made on facts, not on slogans." The Beef Council has published a new brochure, entitled "Beef's Role in Feeding a

"A lot of operators stop at that point," he said as he strained the syrup from the final section into a churn, ready for transference. "I like to finish it off in a small tank. It helps ensure a uniform color and thickness."

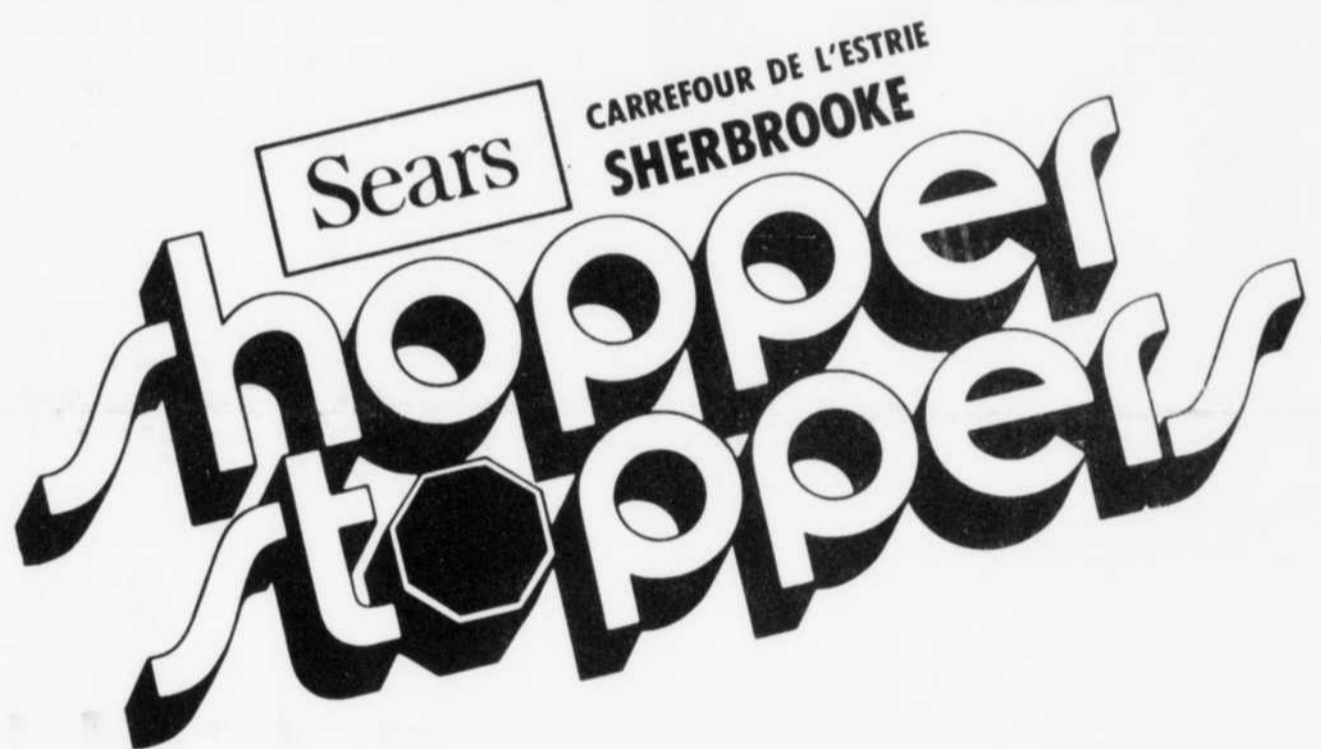

He chuckled as he recalled learning one lesson early in life. When he was 13 his father had left him in charge of the boiling going on in the finishing pan. "I fell asleep and when I woke up, the lot had boiled dry!"

Early sap turns into the best syrup and the top quality is known as AA grade. At Duffland Farm, Muriel Duffy is responsible for putting it up in the familiar 26 ounce cans bearing the sugar shanty scene. The producer's name is stamped on the cans are sold to regular customers. The remainder of their maple syrup is sold in bulk.

A copy of the brochure is available free by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to Beef Industry Council, Dept. H, Box 11168, Chicago, Ill., 60611.

Many consumers are bewildered by the continuing drop in beef prices. But the answer lies in the fact production of cattle is up 10 per cent over last year's production and we have the largest cattle production in history. Even so, livestock farmers still receive less than their production costs. The greatly increased production of veal — for such a long time priced too high for many housewives — is one of the most significant things that has happened in the meat industry. Veal production is up 70 per cent from a year ago because livestock producers choose to market younger beef animals rather than place them on high-priced feed.

That is the cattle producers' story. We will give the grain story later.

First Game Students at the International YMCA Training School in Springfield, Mass. played the first official basketball game on Jan. 21, 1892. It was invented by Dr. James Naismith to provide indoor exercise between the football and baseball seasons. Naismith used peach baskets in the gym and players had to use ladders to retrieve the ball after successful shots.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try not to seek advice from too many sources regarding a problem. The diversity of solutions will only confuse you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Guard against making hasty judgments where your work is concerned. Any mistakes you make today is bound to be a big one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be careful! If you borrow tools or equipment today you may wind up paying for repair or replacements!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll have to be very careful the next few days regarding resources. You could buy what you want instead of what you can afford!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Treat associates with kid gloves today. Several important relationships are in delicate balance.

CANCER (June 21-July 20) You'll have a bit of a problem advancing your ambitions today and tomorrow. Back-off if odds seem stacked against you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Stick with proven techniques where work is concerned. This is not the time for new methods or attempted innovations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't try to manipulate others today with techniques out of character for you. Results would be anything but what you sought.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't push your luck too far today. It is much more fragile than you realize. Hide the dice and the cards and stay away from the track.

By Lawrence E. Labm, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been bothered with what I think is a very unusual problem for about five years. It sounds so foolish, but it is very frightening to me, and I desperately hope you will print this with some kind of an answer for me.

Whenever I get around people or children, which of course is every day, terrible thoughts flash through my mind. I mean of hurting someone. They just come and go and I have a lot of pressure in the head which could be from these scary feelings.

I have always been considered well adjusted, have a lovely family, and have always been a happy person. I don't understand these thoughts.

Also a year ago I went to the doctor with these headaches and he found my blood pressure was 190 over 110. He put me on a blood pressure pill, Hydrores.

Strangely the terrible thoughts seem to go away — a tremendous relief. But around the time of my period they come back, headache and all.

I'm 36 years old. Please, do I need psychiatric help or medical help? Could I have hypertension? I will do anything you say. Life is too precious to be miserable.

DEAR READER — You could probably benefit from some professional counseling with a psychiatrist. It is not unusual for people to have momentary frightening thoughts, but if they occur regularly, as yours seem to, then you should try to get at the root of their cause. They are entirely out of your conscious control, and you will need some help to evaluate their importance and what to do about them.

Your blood pressure level is in the range that should be treated, if the pressure levels you mention are persistent. Many people have temporary elevations of the blood pressure during pain, fright or sudden anxiety as might accompany a visit to the doctor. Several readings over several days are often necessary to find out what the blood pressure really is. It is best to know this before any form of treatment, other than weight control, is started.

If the pressure is persistently elevated, treatment should be started. The treatment varies in accordance with how serious the problem is and how the patient reacts to medicine.

Some of the medicines are really dangerous. The doctor chooses between the lesser of two evils — the untreated high blood pressure and the dangerous effects of the medicine.

The rawolfia serpentina or serpassil group, as only one example, has the side effect of causing depression and mental changes. The small amount of serpassil in your Hydrores is not likely to cause depression, but for anyone who already has symptoms or any mental disturbances, it is not a medicine to take lightly. At the very least your doctor must know about your reaction if he is going to treat you properly.

I think you should be seeing a medical doctor for your blood pressure until it is properly evaluated or controlled, as well as a psychiatrist. Some medicines used in treating high blood pressure may well be out of the question for you.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in c/o of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on ulcers, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Ulcers" booklet.

WI meeting

DUNHAM — The regular monthly meeting of the Dunham Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Calvin Harvey, the evening of April 2nd, opening with Salute to the Flag and Club Women's Collect.

The roll call showed an attendance of eleven members and one guest. It was answered with the members bringing in a home made article to be sold at a silent auction.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved, and from these the members' memory was jogged to the fact that they MUST remember to get their articles brought in to the next meeting for handbags for the Canadian Save the Children.

Convenors present, to report, were:

Mrs. I. McLaughlin, Agriculture, who read Consumers in Action, from Chatelaine;

Mrs. C. Harvey for Education Students Ignore Bursaries, from the Montreal Star;

Mrs. Clark, Home Economics read several household hints on the use of kerosene, and a poem entitled Help yourself to vitamins.

Health and Welfare convenor, Mrs. C. Martin read an item from the Sherbrooke Record Health Officials Battled. The secretary read an interesting article also, What, How and Why of WI.

The new program outline was reviewed and approved. In the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. Vaughan, the secretary, read the financial report.

Members are to please note that the meeting place for next month's meeting is changed. It will be held at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Clark in Cowansville, May 7, with Mrs. E. Sherrer and Mrs. E. Comeau as hostesses. Don't forget to bring plants and slips for the sale of same.

It was regretted that it was an oversight at the annual meeting, in not asking Mrs. Elsie Doherty to carry on her fine job as "telephone committee" and she was so asked at this meeting.

Annual report books were handed out to the members, and the meeting was adjourned, with refreshments served, assisted by the co-hostesses, Mrs. Carol Farnam and Mrs. Elsie Doherty.

Members held a Handicraft Display at the close of the meeting.

Golden Age Club

KNOWLTON — The Knowlton Golden Age Club met in the Legion Hall on April 1st with 58 members present, and enjoyed an afternoon of Bingo sponsored by the Knowlton Social Club.

Two door prizes were donated by Tom's Friendly Metro Store, and were won by Mr. Joe Carrara, and Mrs. Marie Bessette. One door prize donated by Murray Walle's store was won by Miss Annette Fleury and another door prize donated by Redmond Brouillette was won by Mrs. Clare Duval.

The Bingo Jack Pot was claimed by Mrs. Helen Marsh.

Birthday greetings were sung for Mrs. Marjorie Bryan.

On April 8, 68 members met and played 500 at 15 tables with prizes being taken by Mrs. Marie Bessette, Mrs. Eva Carrara, Mr. Donald Miller, Mr. Byron Mizener with the door prize going to Mr. Will Pettes, who gave it in again to be won by Mrs. Lil Godefroy.

At this meeting Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Marsh, Mrs. Gorham and Kathleen Gorham were welcomed back to the community after a winter spent in Florida.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Ladies Aid meets

WINDSOR — Lower Windsor Ladies Aid held a work meeting on Tuesday afternoon, April 8, at the home of Mrs. Lloyd McCourt, when two double bed sized quilts were tied during the afternoon. Thirteen members and three visitors were present.

During the course of the afternoon a short business meeting was conducted. Several bills for quilt material were presented and ordered paid. The amount of $150 was voted to the Board of Stewards of St. Andrew's United Church.

A pretty hand crocheted napkin holder was received from Miss Kathleen Wheeler. Articles for auction were turned in by Mrs. Kilshaw and Mrs. L.

McCourt. The names of Mrs. Caron and Mrs. D. Watson were pulled for next month's auction.

A drawing was held on three articles. A surprise parcel was won by Miss K. Wheeler; an Esmond blanket by Mrs. Noella Langlois and the crocheted napkin holder by Mrs. Wm. Paterson.

The date and place of the May meeting were undecided and will be announced later.

A 500 card party will be held on Saturday, April 26. Napkins, tea and prizes were solicited for same.

At the close of the afternoon tea and "pot-luck" lunch were served by Mrs. L. McCourt assisted by Mrs. Lorina Watson.

Theatrics big in British rock

LONDON (CP) — Britain, the country that spawned the Beatles and gave birth to a new teen-age culture, has been gripped by yet another revolution at the root of pop music.

On the cultural level, rock—as opposed to hit-parade pop—has mushroomed into an art form.

So much has been happening that British record buyers and concert-goers have been faced with almost too much choice. But the dominating factor has certainly been the fragmentation of pop into different sections.

Ray Coleman, editor of Melody Maker magazine, lists the choices as pop and rock, glitter and freak, underground and progressive, as well as the more established popular music categories of country and western, soul, or reggae.

When all the intellectual discussion of categories subsides, which is not often in popular music circles in London, one has to consider the people who make the music. Although his initial impact has lessened, David Bowie remains the giant.

Falling somewhere between the glitter stars and the freaks, Bowie has conducted a brilliant publicity campaign and has emerged as an astute businessman as well as pop star whose sounds are admired by musicians as well as the fans.

In North America as well as in Britain, Bowie "freaks," as his audience is described, dress in the most bizarre fashion. A freakish appearance is part of pop gimmickry. Men and boys are wearing lipstick and dressing with feathers and leotards as did Bowie.

HAS NEW FAD
But just as his audience catches up with his latest look, Bowie is off in another direction. Soul music, with black musicians to back him, is his latest fad.

Bowie has a long history of theatrics from his days as a boy in a circus, to the trend to theatrics in rock'n'roll is playing right into his hands. And he has made it clear that he is running a long-distance race.

Chasing David hard for visual honors is Gary Glitter. The cynics mock his overweight and his age (he is 32) but he keeps his fans among the teen-agers with a mixture of pure cunning and sex appeal allied to some catchy songs.

The theatre has not been confined to the stars of the hit parade like Glitter, Bowie, Elton John and Alvin Stardust. In the field of heavy rock, which brought the first revolution after the Beatles, things have been veering towards entertainment after a rather dense period, during which musicians drifting on stage in denims were criticized as not caring about entertainment.

A classic case of rock theatre is Jethro Tull, a group which has also been in the vanguard of that trend, the concept album. With works like Passion Play and Warchild, Jethro Tull, led by the extrovert Ian Anderson on flute, has perhaps pushed rock to its limits in the field of showmanship.

And fans stayed loyal to Anderson, whose stand-on-one-leg-and-play-flute antics at first seemed too absurd for the music to be taken seriously.

WATCH RECORD SALES

While all the acrobatics on stage are manifestations of the stars' ego, their managers are keeping a wary eye on record sales. Nowadays a concert tour is conceived as much to generate album sales as to make money in itself.

Bands like Jethro Tull, Emerson Lake and Palmer, Genesis and Yes would gain more momentum from promoting their new records than all the one-night-stands they could cram into a diary.

As soon as they have made a small impact in Britain most rock bands appear to cast hungry eyes towards the densely rock-populated United States where the youth culture is even stronger and less fragmented than in Britain, and where one can be a massive hit in New York and yet a flop in Los Angeles.

So enormously successful have some British bands been in North America—Emerson Lake and Palmer and Mott the Hoople particularly—that there have been rumors that they may leave Britain and settle there.

STRESS NOSTALGIA

While rock needs to be ever on the move, there has been a strong accent on nostalgia in recent months. First fired by singers like Alvin Stardust (formerly Shane Fenton) and Gary Glitter (formerly Paul Raven) coming out of obscurity after years in the musical doldrums, the nostalgia boom has also been growing through the enthusiasm of more contemporary stars like Elton John.

Elton has made no secret of his love for the old days, while his friend for many years, Rod Stewart, has bared his soul with emphasis on radio, television and in the press on how his youthful days in emergent little bands were of crucial importance to his current success.

"It's not like it was in the old days," Elton says. "Now it's such a big business, whereas when Rod and I were coming up we were more keen to play music. There are so many managers and big companies now!"

Nostalgia or revolution, it is a fair bet that this year's freaks will be old-fashioned by the middle of 1975.

Homes for the aged popular

EDMONTON (CP) — Twenty years ago Alberta began pioneering a system of nursing homes and homes for the aged.

Direct community involvement, provincial funding and an emphasis on self-sufficiency were key features of the scheme, which evolved from a few scattered lodges into what may be the largest construction program in the country.

But government planners say care for the elderly still is in "an evolutionary stage." "One of our big problems is that we're pioneers in this field," said Ben Johnston, a director with the Alberta Health Services Commission, (AHSC) which administers nursing care.

He said increasing needs of the elderly are leading to new goals in programming and community involvement.

"At one time people were content to place relatives in institutions and leave them there. Now the public is taking more interest."

Alberta's network of housing for the elderly began in 1958 when the province agreed to pay capital costs for 50 lodges.

HOUSING ADDED

Since then, the province has paid for more than 100 lodges accommodating about 12,000 residents—believed to be the most on a per-capita basis in the country. In 1971 the lodges were supplemented with self-contained town houses and four-plexes for persons able to care for themselves.

The lodges are run by locally-elected district boards which handle daily operations, financing and admissions.

Residents are charged $115 to $130 a month for self-contained units and a minimum of $32 for lodge accommodation, depending on ability to pay. Deficits are picked up by municipal taxpayers.

Linked to the development of housing was establishment of the Alberta nursing-home plan in 1964—the first of its kind in Canada.

Under it, Alberta assumed responsibility for those not well enough to take advantage of the housing scheme. Admittance qualifications are based on need and there is no nursing limit.

Nursing-home patients are charged $3 a day for standard-ward accommodation, $5 for a semi-private and $8 for a private ward, the government paying a subsidy of $11.25 a day for each patient.

GETS FEDERAL AID
The province originally took over private homes on a contract basis, later restricting expansion to non-private and voluntary organizations. The government assumed complete financial responsibility until it became eligible for some federal assistance this year.

Planners feel they are entering a new era in care for the elderly.

"In the past, many senior citizens had few expectations and demands," said Tim Cranfield, project manager with the Alberta Housing Corp.

"Now we're finding that senior-citizen housing is being sought by people closer to age 65 than 75. These people are used to having more things."

Improved structural design, public education, community involvement and better in-home programming are seen as priorities.

Structural design and location of housing has already undergone dramatic change, with each home individually designed, and often built in the centre of town.

"Before, many homes were pushed off in the back of the town," said Mr. Johnston. "Now they are usually in the centre, so that interaction with the community increases."

SHOPPING PROVIDED
Many homes provide self-contained shopping malls, banks, hairdressers, outdoor gardens, barbecue pits, and allowance for pets.

John Kitchen, a resource co-ordinator with AHSC, said residents "are encouraged to continue their former activities in the community as much as possible."

Planners say enriched programming within the homes is a key area of development. "The evolution of Alberta's nursing-home system has chiefly been one of refinement," said Joan Gates, a nursing consultant with AHSC.

"Today we are better able to assess the type of care individuals require and more emphasis is being placed on reactivation and diversional activities."

Such programming includes occupational therapy based on the learning of new skills and social activities such as wheelchair dancing, card parties and even beerfests. Some homes have set up self-governments, with one group raising funds for a school bus "to chauffeur them all over the country."

PUBLIC RELUCTANT
The development of care for the elderly in the province has not been without problems. Government officials say there are many homes which lack desired facilities and local feelings still block acceptance of large homes in areas where other forms of housing would be too costly.

Mr. Johnston said planners still are battling the concept of institutions for the elderly as places "where people go to die." Public education and acceptance of old age is seen as "the real key" to providing a satisfactory life-style for the elderly.

However, society "is losing its fear of death, and there is more acceptance of old age."

He said future development of elderly care in the province is expected to come close to demand in terms of available units within three years.

Some Wardrobe
An entourage of 24,000—noblemen with their families, servants, and household goods—accompanied the Empress Elizabeth of Imperial Russia whenever she moved the 400 miles between her palaces at St. Petersburg and Moscow.

For the Birds
Ornithologists searching for precise nomenclature have devised many colorful birds' names. Among them are the great racket-tailed drongo, yellow-bellied waxbill, black-spotted bare-eye, red-whiskered bulbul, turquoise-browed motmot, rufous-browed pepper shrike, and blue-faced booby.

Diplomat to novelist

OTTAWA (CP) — Oliver Jackman, journalist and diplomat, has become Oliver Jackman, novelist.

His book, Saw the House in Half, has appeared in print after five years of writing and four years of negotiations with publishers. Its author is the high commissioner for Barbados in Canada.

With publication of the novel, Mr. Jackman, 45, has joined the select ranks of a number of diplomat-writers.

They include Nathaniel Hawthorne, the 19th-century American novelist who served as United States consul in Liverpool, England, and Pablo Neruda, the Chilean poet and winner of the 1971 Nobel Prize for literature, who was his country's ambassador to France prior to his death in 1973.

Mr. Jackman smiles when he is compared with these distinguished writers and says he must come from "good ancestry."

But the comparison may prove to be not far off the point. A reviewer has called his first novel a "marvelously written, profound and enlightening look at a particular kind of exile, the Oxbridge-educated West Indian who goes to Africa."

SHEDDING COLONIALISM

The hero of the novel, Sinclair Brathwaite, goes to Lagos, Nigeria, in the 1950s, just prior to independence. It is a city dynamic with a black intellectual and professional class that is working to shed the cloak of British colonialism. But the vestiges of a white business class hang on.

Through a first-person narrative, Brathwaite gives an account of the political, social and sexual exploits of his circle of acquaintances during the period.

Brathwaite's circumstances resemble those of Mr. Jackman, who graduated from Magdalen College, Cambridge, and was a senior editor of The Daily Times in Lagos from 1954 to 1957.

But the novel is not autobiographical, he said in an interview. "No libel case could come out of it."

The high commissioner said he went to Africa because of intellectual curiosity at a time of rising national consciousness in the Caribbean.

GROUPS ANTAGONISTIC
The first time he met Africans was as a student in Britain, he said, and although there were many individual friendships between Africans and West Indians, there was a tension between the two groups.

An undercurrent of this feeling between Brathwaite and other West Indians in Lagos and the city's aspiring Nigerian politicians and professionals runs through the book.

Culinary tips from Sister Berthe

Good nutrition is the art of putting into practice available scientific food information in order to bring to the organism everything it needs to build, repair and maintain body health.

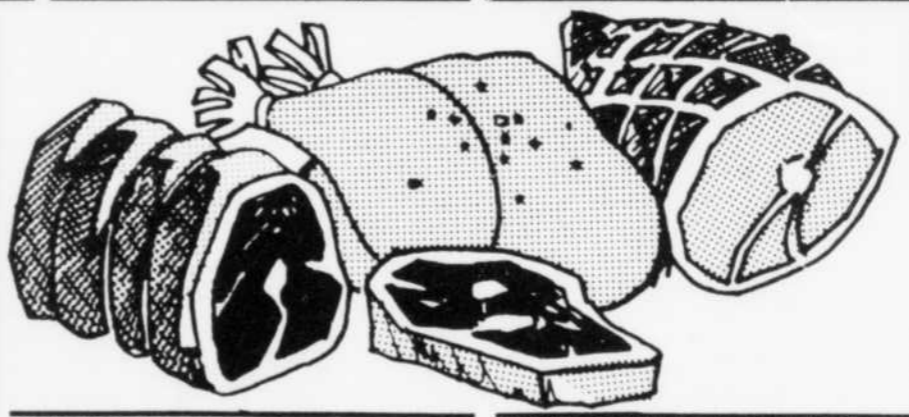

To feed her family sensibly and economically, the alert homemaker must acquire knowledge about the nutritional value of food and exercise every possible care in the preparation of meals.

The result of the wise selection and the careful preparation of its components should always be an enjoyable eating experience.

It is both a program and a responsibility...a satisfying challenge we'll take up together!

Thanks to Provigo, I'll have the opportunity of helping you in this most important sphere by publishing weekly in this page a few food hints. Until next week!

WI meeting

COWANSVILLE — The regular meeting of the Cowansville WI was held on Tuesday, April 1, at the home of Mrs. I. Haines with 10 members and one visitor present.

The President, Mrs. Louise Fulford occupied the chair and the meeting opened with the Mary Stewart Collect and Salute to the Flag repeated in unison.

The Motto for the meeting was "It is not the load that breaks us down, it is the way we carry it."

In response to the Roll Call, each member mentioned changes taking place in Northern Canada.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Ella Brown, and approved. The treasurer, Miss Cecile Darbe reported the balance in the bank at the present time.

Reports of convenors followed:

Agriculture: Miss Connie Norris read an article on the fungicide treatment for Dutch elm disease.

Education: Mrs. Mary McCutcheon read an article on the declining birth rate in the province of Quebec.

Miss Eva Symons read a poem on Spring flowers and the seed catalogue.

Arrangements were made for the annual county convention which is being held in the United Church Hall, Cowansville, on Wednesday, April 30, and Miss Connie Norris was appointed to act as delegate for this branch.

The meeting then adjourned, after which a social hour followed during which refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Fulford and Mrs. Haines.

DUBOYCE CORNER

Mrs. Wm. Badger
243-5383

Despite the bad weather and slippery roads, about a dozen ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. Ernest Badger on Sat. afternoon April 5, to attend a pink and blue shower for Mrs. Ron Tipper of Knowlton. A very pleasant afternoon was spent catching up on the news and happenings of the winter months while Brenda opened up her gifts and displayed them for everyone to see. After every one had been thanked for their gifts a delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Badger and her helpers, Meta and Barbara Badger and Miss Barbara Knowlton.

Mrs. John Russell, Carmen and Ralph have arrived from Germany to take up living in their new home in Knowlton. Until their house is ready they are staying with Mr. and Mrs. William Russell.

Miss Linda Russell and Mr. Larry Ingalls of Dunham, Miss Judy Russell and Pte. Peter Brosseau of Montreal were Easter guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Russell.

Friends of Mr. David Badger will be sorry to know he is a patient in the C.H.U. Sherbrooke. Mr. Badger underwent a major operation and we hope he will soon be on the road to recovery.

DANVILLE

(Mrs.) Margaret E. Frost
839-2185

The March meeting of the Beaver Christmas Club met at the home of Mrs. Irene St. Jean. Mrs. Della Gallup was welcomed back after having been away visiting in Ontario. After the business meeting games and contests were enjoyed, when prize winners were Mrs. Della Gallup, Mrs. Ralph Perkins and Mrs. Norman Brown. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. James Belknap and daughter Robyn of Stanstead were Easter guests of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Brown.

Mrs. Lottie Dean, chairman of the Annual Campaign for Funds of the local branch of the Canadian Cancer Society is busy organizing her canvassers, who will conduct a door-to-door campaign, as well as approaching the various organizations in the vicinity for donations to this worthy cause. The campaign is from April 15 to May 15 this year and it is hoped that the population of this town will respond generously, as they have done in the past, making this an even greater success than the past few years. It had been gratifying to note that there has been an increase over the years, and there has also been an increase in the gifts sent out to cancer patients from the "gift cupboard." Dressings are also available for those who need them and who present a signed statement from their doctor as to what is required. This is the one necessity for obtaining the dressings.

On Thurs., evening, April 3, over 75 guests sat down to the hot turkey dinner served by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion at the Legion Memorial Home on Grove St., making this one of the largest Father and Son Banquets ever held here, in spite of a very heavy snowstorm, poor visibility and hazardous driving conditions.

Seated at the head were Ronald Gibbs, chairman of the Group Committee and his two sons, Robert and Ronald, Gerry Element, Mayor of Danville, Roger Durocher, president of Br. No. 41, Legion, Milton Leet, president of the District Council of Boy Scouts and his son Peter, Mrs. E.P. Lockwood, secretary of the Group Committee, Roger Spencer, Scout Master and his son Billy, George Wood, Cub Master and Donald Duffy, Cub.

Although several invited guests were unable to attend owing to road conditions, it was, nevertheless, a very successful banquet, and is one of the events eagerly anticipated by fathers and sons alike each year.

The Carry On Christmas Club met at the home of Mrs. Jennie Muldoon on Fri., evening, April 4, when prizes were won by Mrs. D. Crockett, Mrs. E. Rolfe, Mrs. J. Foley and Mrs. Sally Laxson. All enjoyed the lovely salad tea served by Mrs. Muldoon at the close of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Beliveau of Chomedey were guests of Mrs. J.W. Beliveau on Monday and all three were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Frost.

Mr. Bruce Lang of Chateaugay was a guest at the McVetty home.

Mr. Don MacLeod went through a harrowing experience on his return home from Montreal on Thursday night, when he drove into a huge drift near Plessisville. As the plow failed to make an appearance, Mr. MacLeod, following the best traditions of the sea, remained at the helm all night long. Mr. MacLeod spent 24 hours on the trip which he usually makes in slightly more than two hours. We are all pleased to know that he is none the worse after his all-night vigil in his car.

Mr. and Mrs. John Evans of Sherbrooke, also Mr. and Mrs. Vic Lowry of Kinneair's Mills, were guests at the Hendersons' home.

The vicious storm which lashed this district for three days left some 16 inches of snow on the top of the old snow, and has left sugar-makers all discouraged with the unseasonable weather.

The flowers in the church of the Ascension on Easter Sunday were in loving memory of the late David and Sarah Lunnie and Albert and Eliza Little and were given by Mr. and Mrs. Allan Little.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Little, Miss Vicky Lapointe, Miss Sue McComb and Mr. Keith Hadley of Lennoxville and Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Wright and family of Henderson

Vale were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Little.

5 YEAR ROAD HAZARD INSURED

Here's why we say 2+2+2 Multi-Cord is the best bias-belt made: 2 body plies of Du Pont 66 Nylon ensure twice the 'Run Soft, Safe Warning Time' possible only with Nylon (See Nevada Test results posted in our stores); 2 body plies of non flat spotting Polyester for smooth-riding comfort; 2 belts of Kevlar (Fibre B) to hold tread firm from squirm and achieve almost double the mileage of many other tires.

Kevlar—the amazing new Aramid cord developed by Du Pont expressly for tires—provides longer mileage and a softer-than-steel ride. Won't kink like steel, or fail like glass under abnormal compression. Five times stronger than steel, its relative lightness means less unsprung weight per wheel, resulting in fewer front-end repairs. The culmination of years of research!

Multi-Cord 2+2+2 Drop Polyester from our 2+2+2 tire, use giant Nylon cords instead and this simplified construction retains most performance features of its big brother 2+2+2—at considerably lower cost. 33,000 Mile Treadwear-Rated!
