Board warns city

Bridge project endangers lives of school pupils

By JAMES DAVIES
(Record staff reporter)

The safety of school children in the Mitchell School area will be in danger if the Montreal-Terrill Street bridge project goes through officials of the Sherbrooke Protestant School Board have warned in a letter addressed to the Sherbrooke council.

The letter was read before the council Monday night and refers to the intentions of the city to construct a bridge joining the East and North Wards at Montreal and Terrill Streets.

If the city follows through with its plans, including changes in Portland square, says the letter, then there will be a heavy increase in the flow of traffic in the area of the Mitchell School on Cambridge Street thus endangering the safety of the school children.

The school officials said that they had no desire to impede the progress of the city, but they did wish the civic authorities to acknowledge the dangers involved in such a project. Later in the evening Sherbrooke Mayor Armand Nadeau said that the city had every intention of carrying out plans for the project.

Nothing would prevent the completion of this scheme, the mayor said.

At the mayor's suggestion, the council awarded the drilling contract to test for the presence of rock in the area of the projected construction.

No tenders were called, but council decided to give the contract for the drilling of eleven holes to the firm that has done work for the city in the past.

The cost will, according to city officials, be $2,500.

The text of the letter from the school board is as follows:

"At a meeting of the Board held last evening I was instructed to write to you expressing the concern of this Board over the suggested changes in Portland Square due to plans for the proposed bridge at the foot of Montreal Street.

While the Board in no way wishes to make any attempt to obstruct progress, they feel that by bringing heavy traffic closer to Mitchell School on Cambridge Street the safety of the school children would be greatly endangered."

The letter was signed by the Secretary of the Protestant School Board, J. MacLeod.

Weather moderates

ET roads re-opened

Milder, but still below-zero temperatures, clear skies and bright sunshine were the first signs of relief early today from the worst snowstorm this winter, which buried the Eastern Townships over the weekend and Monday in over nine inches of snow.

Provincial roads department officials reported this morning that all main highways, clogged Monday by the violent three-day storm, were open to traffic.

Principals of nine Eastern Townships High Schools which were forced to shut school doors Monday due to poor transportation conditions told The Record this morning that the schools had re-opened. Some reported minor difficulties in bringing the children to the school today however.

Winds today were reduced to 15 miles per hour as compared with 35 miles per hour recorded Monday. While the thermometer dropped to a cold 19 degrees below zero during the night the high today is expected to reach 10 degrees above. The Lennoxville Experimental Farm recorded 1 degree above zero at eight o'clock this morning.

The official forecast for Wednesday is milder and variable cloudiness.

A provincial roads department spokesman this morning said that the three main highways closed Monday, Route 24, St. Jacques to St. Martin to Magog; Route 39, Waterloo to Racine and Route 28 to Cookshire were reported opened.

The spokesman said there were some icy spots on the roads but most of the main roads were cleared to the asphalt.

Schools closed Monday and reported open today are St.

Sting going out of Europe killer freeze

LONDON (AP) — Fresh snow fell on the mountains and east coast of Italy today, but in most other countries the sting seemed to have gone out of Europe's killer freeze.

The effects of the long cold wave lingered. Snowplows churned along roads. Ice-breakers crunched through sea and river shipping lanes. Reports continued to filter in of villages marooned by snows and of people killed by the bitter cold.

Europe's unofficial death toll from the freeze reached 423.

In Japan, blizzards slackened along the west coast after 19 days of steady snow. But weathermen warned that more rough weather might be approaching from the China mainland. The death toll rose to 77 with nine missing.

Italy had another night of snow in the Apennine Mountains and along the Adriatic coast. It snowed again in Sicily and Sardinia. Heavy seas kept the Adriatic and Ionian fishing fleets hugging the safety of their harbors. An air force helicopter dumped wild rice over marshes near the mouth of the Po River to save thousands of wild birds from starvation.

Three Yugoslavs die
Three persons froze to death in Yugoslavia. One, a sick boy, died as his father carried him from their village to find medical aid.

While reports came in of more Yugoslav villages isolated by snows, parts of the country slowly returned to normal winter routine.

East Germany also announced it was digging its way out of the heavy weekend snows, but authorities maintained a strict ration on gas and electric power supplies.

Negotiations are suspended

Britain's ECM struggle ended

BRUSSELS (Reuters) — Britain's 15-month struggle to enter the European Common Market ended here today when negotiations on the British effort for membership were suspended amid disagreement among the six market members.

A spokesman at the talks said: "The conference is over."

The six members of the market "have recorded the impossibility for them of coming to an agreement."

The collapse came in spite of a dramatic last-minute intervention by President Kennedy in the crucial talks here.

Kennedy—in an oral message delivered by his representative to West German delegation leaders just before the Six went into private session this morning—expressed anxiety about the consequences of any breakdown in the British membership negotiations, West German sources said.

After an hour's meeting of the member nations, in the morning, the West German vice-chancellor and economics minister, Ludwig Erhard told reporters: "I consider the negotiations as having broken down."

"But we will meet again this afternoon and perhaps one delegation or another will come up with a magic formula to save the talks."

Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak, leading the Belgian delegation, told reporters after the morning session: "We have one foot over the abyss and are holding to a tuft of grass."

FRANCE HOLDS OUT
A Belgian delegation spokesman said the Six could only record the disagreement between France and its five partners.

"They gave themselves a luncheon respite, and when they reconvene again they can only confirm this result," he added.

A British spokesman said Belgian Deputy Foreign Minister Henri Fayat, who is chairman of the conference, had invited British chief negotiator Edward Heath to see him immediately to hear the results of the meeting.

Kennedy's message was delivered by John Tuthill, his representative to the market, to Erhard and West German Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder.

Similar messages were presumably sent to European governments in other capitals concerned.

EUROPE IN CRISIS
Prime Minister Theo Lefevre of Belgium told reporters just before the morning meeting that Europe is going through "a very serious crisis."

"The crisis is more serious than the one at the time of the breakdown of the European Defence Community negotiations" in 1954, Lefevre said.

(The EDC, formed after the war, broke up when the Western allies were unable to agree on an integrated European army. It was supplanted by the Western European Union.)

Commonwealth "summit" conference. British ministers, still now reluctant to convene such a gathering, may be in a more receptive mood.

Officially, the government position has been that it had no formal alternative up its sleeve and was not going to start thinking seriously about one until the Brussels negotiations were completely broken off.

Prime Minister Macmillan has made such firm commitments to the European policy that it will not be easy to change direction.

Politically, however, the domestic situation may not be entirely bleak for the Conservative government. Macmillan can remind the country that he tried his hardest to get into Europe and was turned back only by French intransigence.

Some Conservative MPs feel the government was needlessly humiliating itself — and the country — by persisting with the Brussels talks. One Tory group, which has the support of influential backbenchers, urged the administration to call off the Common Market negotiations and form a new trading area including the Commonwealth, Scandinavia and Japan.

This group, whose patrons include the Marquess of Salisbury, says negotiations with these countries should precede an enlarged conference of Commonwealth prime ministers.

New Zealand is understood to have expressed interest in a

Negotiations may be made public

Canada-US nuclear quarrel in the making?

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada and the United States may be heading towards a bitter quarrel over nuclear policy, with the United States thinking of making public the long and complex history of its warheads negotiations with the Canadian government.

An authoritative source, closely linked to U.S. defence policy, says the U.S. administration does not agree with Prime Minister Diefenbaker's views, which appear to favor a non-nuclear role for Canadian defence forces.

This informant said the administration is "deeply concerned" over the Prime Minister's statements last Friday. A decision will be made "fairly soon" on whether the history of the negotiations should be made public.

He said that contrary to Diefenbaker's view, the Anglo-American Polaris agreement has not altered the need for Canadian nuclear weapons in the defence of the Western alliance.

And while there was a need for expanding conventional forces within the alliance, this did not reduce the importance of nuclear defence both in North America and overseas.

Last Friday the Prime Minister told the House of Commons that "more nuclear arms will add nothing materially to our defence" and that the British-American agreement had "placed in doubt" any Canadian nuclear role.

The informant said the American government vigorously opposes this approach and intends to pursue this position "intensely" in discussions with Canadian authorities.

However, the Prime Minister also stated that Canada has been negotiating with the United States "for two or three months or more" on proposals to make U.S. warheads available to Canadian forces in time of need.

On this point, an American official stated these technical negotiations had proceeded in a serious vein at Ottawa but that the U.S. negotiator returned to Washington about three weeks ago when the negotiations "lost their vigor."

A further statement by Defence Minister Douglas Harkness Sunday that he believes an agreement can be reached soon with the United States on making the warheads available to Canada in time of need is supported by authorities here.

All that Canada has to do to obtain U.S. warheads is to sign a technical agreement to allow the warheads to be stored on Canadian soil under U.S. custody and control laws, which, in effect, place the warheads under U.S. guard.

United States have been under way for several months to make nuclear warheads available to Canada's two Bomarc squadrons and Voodoo jet interceptors. Mr. Harkness said he believed an agreement could be reached "in the near future."

Poet Robert Frost dead at 88; was uncrowned 'poet laureate'

BOSTON (AP)—Robert Frost, 88, uncrowned poet laureate of the United States, died early today.

His physician, Dr. Roger B. Hickler, said death probably was due to a pulmonary embolism (a lung blood clot).

A spokesman at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital said that although Frost's general physical condition had deteriorated in the last 18 hours he was talkative and appeared comfortable Monday night.

He was pronounced dead at 1:50 a.m. (2:50 a.m. AST) shortly after complaining of chest pains and a shortness of breath, the hospital spokesman said.

A team of doctors and several nurses were at the bedside of the four-time Pulitzer Prize winner at the time of death.

The hospital's last bulletin on his condition Monday said Frost's heart was not responding to treatment as well as in previous weeks.

Frost entered the hospital Dec. 3 and underwent an operation seven days later for removal of a urinary obstruction. Subsequently he had a heart attack and blood clots settled in his lungs.

The rugged, non-conforming onetime mill worker, New Hampshire farmer and teacher refrained from calling himself a poet. Leaving that lived to his fellow men, Frost lived to win acclaim accorded to few poets in U.S. history.

Toward the end of his life, the white-thatched crinly-eyed dean of American poetry remarked: "I don't call myself a poet yet. It's for the world to say whether you are a poet or not."

And then he volunteered one of the characteristic Frostian observations: "I'm one half teacher, one-half poet and one-half farmer. That's three halves."

Musing on the fact that more than 1,000,000 copies of his work were in print, he commented: "I wish my grandfather had known about that million. He'd think that meant a lot of work. He always felt I was lazy."

Threatening letters are received

OTTAWA (CP)—Mr. Justice T. G. Norris 69, says he has received anonymous letters since he launched his one-man investigation of waterfront labor violence five months ago.

The disclosure was made Monday by the Vancouver jurist as he accused the Seafarers' International Union of Canada of harassing himself.

He raised the matter as he chastised two officials of the Canadian Maritime Union — President Michael Sheehan and Secretary - Treasurer James Todd—for harassing two SIU witnesses outside the courtroom Monday.

SIU lawyer Keith Eaton protested that the two CMU officials had bothered seafarers vice-presidents Paul Gagne and Ray Doucet.

Show Business

By JAMES BACON HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Charles grew a mustache for the part and refused to shave it. He died with it on, bravely hoping that he could play the part."

Thus Elsa Lanchester, widow of Charles Laughton, discloses how her husband died in character for a movie role he had signed for but never played. "He was a professional to the end," said the comedienne who married Laughton in 1929. She was at his bedside when he died Dec. 15 of cancer.

Laughton, before his fatal siege, signed to play the role of a mustached bistro owner, one of the top parts, in the movie version of Irma la Douce.

"Director Billy Wilder knew that Charles would never make it but he never announced anyone else for the part," says Elsa.

The role went to Lou Jacobi, a Broadway actor. Elsa is leaving Thursday for England for a month's stay.

MUST GO ON "I have to get away, make the break so I can come back and be born again. I am a comedienne and I must go on."

"But here in the house that Charles and I lived in for so many years, I find I haven't quite got the spirit yet to be funny."

"It was a tragic, chaotic year. I shall always have great sympathy for others who have gone through or must someday face such an ordeal."

Elsa said it was Laughton's wish that he go home from the hospital last Nov. 30—only two weeks before his death.

"He felt he should be home and when he got there, he said he was glad that he was."

In England, Miss Lanchester will visit Laughton's two brothers and her 92-year-old mother, who lives in Brighton.

"Charles and I had planned to visit her together last summer and then he had to go into the hospital."

"Charles loved the ocean so we always kept a house at the beach here. I think when I return I shall live there."

She will re-activate her one-woman show and take it on the road.

"Charles loved travelling about America. He wrote a book about it and when it came out just before he died, I put a copy beside his bed."

"I thought, between the sedations, he might ask for it."

"But he never did."

RICHMOND Mr. Jean-Ives Gauthier has returned from the Sherbrooke hospital, after being a patient there for a week.

At a recent meeting of the Richmond Historical Society, it was decided to hold a display of documents and articles of historical interest in St. Ann's parish hall on Jan. 30, from 2-9 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pope returned by plane on Jan. 19, after a vacation in Clearwater, Fla. Dr. and Mrs. C. Pope, of Binghamton, N.Y., who accompanied them, are remaining for the winter months.

Mr. and Mrs. Martial Dicarie, of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, are spending a week at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Marcotte.

Mrs. A. Griggs and son, Mr. Graham Griggs, of Sherbrooke, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hills.

Friends are sorry to learn that Mrs. Basil Hayward is confined to her home with a broken ankle.

East Angus W.I. makes donation to Maplemount

EAST ANGUS — The regular meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Ramona Hayes, Mrs. Murray Labonte as co-hostess.

Mrs. Coates reported that 33 people had been remembered at Christmas with baskets, gifts or rose bowls, and expressed thanks to Miss D. Shattuck and her assistants, Mrs. R. Joyce and Mrs. R. Hayes.

She also stated that the Maplemount Home in Cookshire needed tables, desks, pillows and many other articles. Seven dollars was voted to buy pillows.

Mrs. S. Bishop, treasurer, reported a good balance on hand and stated that $31.05 had been raised at the last paper drive.

The secretary, Mrs. Wilkin, read many letters of thanks, also a letter stating all Institute members are requested to meet listen to and discuss the Farm Forum broadcast on Feb. 4, at 9 p.m. It was decided to hold the February meeting on Feb. 4, at the home of Mrs. Fred Clark, with Mrs. R. Joyce and Miss M. Ord as hostesses.

Mrs. Coates asked for suggestions for celebrating the 50th anniversary of the Women's Institute in Compton County. One suggestion was a family picnic.

Mrs. Labonte and Mrs. R. Hayes were appointed to bring in the new slate of officers.

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Broadcasting Company, in four programs, is undertaking to explain the "nature of our opponent," the Soviet Union. First of the series was seen Sunday night The Death of Stalin.

With interviews and film clips and narration by Chet Huntley, the hour-long program started with Stalin, Russia's "living god", in 1952, when a Communist party congress was almost a tribute to him and his authority. Five months later he was dead.

The program was essentially a reshuffle of well-known facts—Stalin's distrust of his chief lieutenants, the bitter struggle for power that immediately followed his death and the execution of Lavrenty P. Beria, head of the secret police and strong-est contender.

The program was enlivened—and weakened—by gossipy tales, all second and third-hand reports, and at least one of them flatly denied.

One, for instance, was told by a Warsaw correspondent for a French newspaper who said he heard it from a Soviet ambassador to Warsaw. The story had Stalin dropping to the floor of a Kremlin room, motionless and apparently dead.

Beria jumped up and began to shout "in a jubilant mood," journalist Philippe Ben continued, that the tyrant was dead and they were free. But suddenly Stalin opened his eyes and Beria fell upon his knees begging forgiveness.

Another story, this one attributed to Nikita Khrushchev, told of a final meeting with Beria and Stalin's other heirs. Four army generals were waiting in the next room. Beria was not suspicious until Khrushchev asked a question that tipped him off.

Then he reached for his gun, but "Khrushchev says he had already removed the gun from Beria's briefcase," said NBC correspondent Joseph C. Harsch, who heard it from a man who said he heard it from Khrushchev. At any rate, Beria died in 1953. And the official record has him tried and executed.

CONTINUED NEXT WEEK The first program ended there. Next Sunday, there will be another program, The Rise of Khrushchev. Perhaps it will be more revealing about the nature of the enemy than this one. The one thing this program demonstrated is that when the Russian leaders want things kept quiet it's almost impossible to find out anything.

CBS' Defenders, which normally concentrates on large or lofty scenes, took a night off Saturday and presented a nice old-fashioned house party murder, the kind Agatha Christie writes so nicely.

It was a murder at the seance and—sadly—it seemed like a sweet little period piece.

Marymount student wins speaking contest

PUBLIC SPEAKING WINNER — Helene Chorny, 16, grade eleven student at Marymount High School in Sherbrooke was chosen winner of the regional semi-finals of the McGill Graduates Society's annual provincial public-speaking contest. The 10 contestants spoke Monday night at the weekly supper meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Sherbrooke Inc. A 16-year-old grade 11 student at Marymount High School, Sherbrooke, has been chosen winner of the regional semi-finals of the McGill Graduates Society's annual provincial public-speaking contest.

Helene Chorny, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Chorny, was chosen top winner over 10 other Eastern Township contestants in the semi-finals held Monday night at the weekly supper meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Sherbrooke Inc. Her topic was the Gift of Speech.

Miss Chorny will now represent the St. Francis Valley district at finals to be held in Montreal February 20 at a meeting of the McGill Graduates Society.

The Marymount student will be competing in Montreal against 11 high school girls from schools throughout the province. First place winner will receive $100, a miniature silver cup and a rosebowl which will be placed in the winner's school for one year.

The rosebowl is presently held by the Montreal West High School. Fifty and twenty-five dollar prizes are also being offered to second and third place winners.

Second place winner Monday night was Sherbrooke High School student, Mary Lou Arnold. Her topic was Tomorrow.

Third place winner was Bridget Blackader of King's Hall at Compton. Her topic was Tyranny in Fashion.

Other contestants were Margaret Mitchell of Princess Elizabeth High School at Magog; Mary Ann Masters of Lennoxville High School; Susan Ray of Drummondville High School; Wendy Elliott of Sunnyside High School at Rock Island; Dawn Goodfellow of St. Francis High School at Richmond; Marilyn Fraser of Cookshire High School and Louis McCourt of North Hatley High School.

A contestant from Thetford Mines was unable to attend the contest.

Judges were Mrs. Hawley Griffith, John Ross and Harry Grundy, all of Sherbrooke, and all McGill graduates.

Concerned about raising taxes

To accept bids for fire station, Savard questions urgency of plan

Tenders will be called this week for the construction of a $55,000 new fire station in Sherbrooke's North Ward, council decided at its meeting Monday evening.

But the move brought sharp criticism from Ald. Marcel Savard who maintained that there is no urgent need for the project at the moment. He also expressed concern over the city's ability to avoid raising taxes.

According to the plans that were accepted by the Sherbrooke council Monday night, the station will be a one and one half storey brick building, located at the north west corner of Prospect Street and Jacques Cartier Boulevard, at 706 Jacques Cartier Boulevard.

In addition to accommodating 12 firemen, the new structure, No. 6 station will house a new universal fire truck that, according to council will be adequate for any fire in that sector of the city.

The new building will be equipped with all the facilities that are contained in the other fire stations in the city, such as a kitchen, and a washroom.

North Ward Alderman Everett Nicol who is head of the Sherbrooke protection commission which oversees the fire department, introduced the plans to the municipal body and asked that tenders be called on the project which has been provided for in the 1963 budget.

The plans for the new station that were acceptable to council were drawn up by architects Demers and D'Orme.

According to Alderman Nicol, the projected new station will provide the North Ward with a measure of safety that has been sadly lacking in the area for some time.

He said that for the past seven years he has been urged by underwriters to take the necessary steps so that a new fire station could be constructed in the North Ward.

Mr. Nicol added that if possible he would like to see the building up under the winter works program, thus permitting the city to benefit from the federal and provincial government financial support for labor costs.

Construction on the building could be completed within one month, he said.

After the subject had been introduced, Alderman Marcel Savard said that he opposed the completion of the project at the present time because he contended that it was not of an extremely urgent nature.

Mr. Savard added that he believed that there certainly were other projects in the city that merited an equal amount of attention.

Furthermore, Mr. Savard expressed concern over the ability of the Sherbrooke to avoid raising the mill rate for projects such as this were accepted.

He mentioned the fact that already the city planned to carry out expensive projects in the coming year, such as the Montreal-Terrill Street bridge scheme, and that he did not know how it would be possible to keep the mill rate down if expenditures continued at this rate.

Mr. Savard said that it was not the construction cost of the new fire station that worried him but rather the salaries and maintenance costs of it which he said would be $65,000 annually.

Alderman Savard agreed that it was sound politics to make provision for the project by purchasing the piece of land but noted that he believed that the matter was not of an extreme necessity.

"Everyone says to keep the tax low," he remarked "and I don't know how it is possible in such circumstances."

Alderman Nicol replied that he could not understand why Mr. Savard was raising objections when, said Mr. Nicol, the money had been set aside in the 1963 budget, all the plans accepted by the council, specialists sent to Toronto to study the most efficient way of erecting such a building and the council itself had given the matter tacit approval.

"I don't know what has precipitated this argument of yours," said Mr. Nicol. "Why is it that you decide only at this time, to raise your voice in opposition to the proposal?"

"I noticed that you didn't bother to oppose any other matter such as the Montreal-Terrill Street project.

"The underwriters have been insisting on the urgency of this matter for seven years now and the people knew about the matter and raised no objections to it."

"If we must raise the mill rate in order to be able to provide the population with these necessary facilities, then it will be raised."

"I know that you are coming up for election soon," said Mr. Nicol, "and so am I, but I am not going to attempt to retain my seat at the price of seeing the City of Sherbrooke regress."

"We need more men," added Mr. Nicol, "they are adding in the North Ward all the time and there must be some provision made for the future."

"This project will be for the benefit of the people of Sherbrooke and nothing will ever change my mind on the matter," said Mr. Nicol.

"I know that the police and fire departments are expensive sections to run, and it is the same throughout North America, but that does not diminish in any way the importance and the necessity of their existing."

"You may have a $50,000 truck that will perhaps be used only three times a year, but there is no denying that the truck must be there when the need arises for its use."

Alderman Savard said that he believed that everyone was entitled to their opinion and that he wished to go on record as opposing the project.

Alderman Amedee Roy contended that since the council had on a previous occasion practically given its approval to the building of the new station that a vote should be taken on the matter.

Alderman Antonio Pinard said that he wondered if the whole matter could be delayed for at least one more year, but did not say why he wished it so.

Alderman J. M. Jeanson suggested that tenders be called and council decided to call tenders.

At Bishop's University

Money policy and nuclear arms on agenda of model parliament

Bishop's University model parliament will hold its first of two sittings tonight at 8 p.m. in Memorial Gymnasium, with a variety of bills, ranging from Social Credit monetary policy to nuclear arms, facing the amateur members.

When the members take their seats, four representatives of the Canadian Communist Party will be among them, headed by Tom De Hoop, a first year theology student.

Said Mr. De Hoop, a native of Holland, "I think it is important for Canadian students to realize just what Communism is all about."

The Liberal Party holds a plurality of 14 members in the 40-member parliament, with the Progressive Conservative and New Democratic Parties close behind with 11 and 9 respectively. Social Credit pulls up in the rear with two members.

This is the first year in some time that Bishop's has held a model parliament. The first on record was held in 1926 in Sherbrooke's Town Hall. With many debatable issues in the air and the possibility of a federal election imminent, the Literary and Debating Society decided the time was ripe for such a venture.

Some of the party leaders were successful in summoning aid from party headquarters in Ottawa. Bill Stockwell, NDP head, was answered with two bundles of pamphlets and bulletins, plus several copies of Hand-ard containing important NDP speeches, outlined plainly in red.

On the other side of the fence was Sacred leader Jeff Garlick, who stated, "I have had no luck whatsoever. I wrote (Real) Cautette a letter in French, but he failed to respond." Remarked a Liberal critic, "If he was as good at printing pamphlets as he is at printing money, you would have been buried."

The idea behind the parliament is not so much to promote campus politicians, but to give the students an opportunity to learn about the various party platforms. Most parties are following federal lines completely on the questions that arise, thus giving students an insight into federal platforms. Many have been seen lately in the library industriously studying Bourinot's Rules of Parliamentary Procedure.

Professor T.W.L. MacDermot will don the white wig to serve as speaker for the model parliament. He is supplying his own mace, a souvenir walking stick from British Guiana.

Other contestants were Margaret Mitchell of Princess Elizabeth High School at Magog; Mary Ann Masters of Lennoxville High School; Susan Ray of Drummondville High School; Wendy Elliott of Sunnyside High School at Rock Island; Dawn Goodfellow of St. Francis High School at Richmond; Marilyn Fraser of Cookshire High School and Louis McCourt of North Hatley High School.

A contestant from Thetford Mines was unable to attend the contest.

Judges were Mrs. Hawley Griffith, John Ross and Harry Grundy, all of Sherbrooke, and all McGill graduates.

Breaks window, jailed 2 months

A 20-year-old Danville man was sentenced to two months in Winter Street Jail Monday after he pleaded guilty in Sherbrooke District Court to a charge of damaging private property.

Lucien Gauron, pleaded guilty before Judge Evender Veilleux to the charge of breaking a store plate glass window in Danville and causing $200 damage.

Brome group shows way

Want to develop land without dooming it

A commercial boom can fore-shadow doom for the region which experiences it, the Brome County Rural Development Organization feels. The body wants to prevent that happening in Brome, and possibly help the rest of rural Canada learn the same lesson.

A first glance at Brome shows flourishing ski resorts, summer cottages and pioneer farms, the Organization's pamphlet Rural Development in Brome County says.

"However, along with the well-managed woodlots, there are greedy slashings; along with the good farms, there are pathetic plots on which their owners fight a losing battle against bankruptcy. Some of those beautiful lakes are, if not already polluted, in serious danger of becoming so."

The danger signals are visible, the County group tells citizens in the pamphlet. Farmers are selling and sub-dividers are buying in Brome.

The organization calls the subdivision of farms for indiscriminate cottage building "sprawl-type development." Few municipalities in the county have enacted laws against such development, it says.

The organization recognizes that some lands have been cleared for farming in Brome which are not really rich enough to support crops or grazing.

They suggest sports development as a solution — land that is not rich enough to farm may still make a good camping or skiing site.

Brome's farmers themselves must study, discuss the problems with neighbors, then act.

The Organization wants Brome to retain its essential rural character. Its list of the blights which must be eliminated is a list of urban and industrial phenomena — automobile graveyards, abandoned gravel pits, industrial odors and fumes, signs and billboards.

But the organization does want to "encourage the establishment of suitable light industry to provide employment and stability in the area."

It also urges that absentee land owners be made "aware of their obligations to maintain farm land," and that the profits of commercial game sports be put into the conservation of wildlife. Reforestation is also important to the Organization. The promoters of rural development would also like to see "a county-wide water pollution and weed control program."

The Brome County Rural Development Organization can already point to a substantial list of accomplished projects — most of them social services.

One of these projects has been the district farm forum. The forum, set up in 1942, has established the Brome County Co-op Medical Service and raised funds for a new hospital.

It has helped form the Brome sub-unit of the Ontario Cattle Breeding Association and organized talks and workshops on such subjects as maintenance of farm machinery.

It has undertaken educational projects in collaboration with the University of Vermont, Macdonald College and the Lennoxville Experimental Farm. These institutions have provided lecturers for forum study groups, and the forum has endowed a scholarship to the agricultural school at Macdonald.

The forum also persuaded the federal and provincial agriculture departments to test Brome first in their brucellosis control program, and has approached businessmen through the Knowlton Chamber of Commerce, which it has asked to join it in studying regional planning.

The steps to a prosperity which will not crumble, says the Organization, are sizing up the county's human and natural resources, finding out why children are leaving the farms, agreeing on what kind of development Brome residents want — industrial agricultural, residential, or combined — and carrying out a plan in that direction.

Even then the results of planning must be evaluated and changes made if experience shows the need.

The request of the Beta Sigma Phi to make use of a portion of the Howardene property for an art exhibit from April 4 to April 7 was granted by Sherbrooke council Monday night.

The latest offer of the City of Sherbrooke to H. A. Tinker for a piece of land needed for the park-school in the East Ward was $4,250.

This is the third offer to Mr. Tinker that the council has made. The two previous were $3,323 and $4,000.

The city's business

Wants more traffic lights on Galt West; council approves art show at Howardene

Alderman Antonio Pinard asked Sherbrooke council to consider his request that lights be installed at the corner of Galt Street West and Pacific Street.

He said that were the lights to be installed, they would be a great service to the school children in the area.

Mr. Pinard added that the traffic in this area was considerable and that there had been two children hit only last week.

Furthermore, he noted that the cars in this sector of the city always travel at a rapid speed and that these lights would be the only solution to slowing them down.

Traffic lights that were installed at McManamy had proved to be a great improvement, he said.

Eleven groups accept plan to erect signs

Eleven social and civic groups of Sherbrooke accepted in principle the project of the French section of the Junior Chamber of Commerce for the erection of four signs at the entrance to the city.

Seventeen organizations were invited to the meeting held last night at the Chamber of Commerce headquarters on Peel Street where the decision was taken.

The Jr. Chamber of Commerce intends to erect four signs at the Lennoxville, East Angus, Bromptonville and Montreal entrances to the city and called the meeting to obtain the co-operation of the various groups.

The signs will group the symbolic shields of the various groups together on the same sign and thus prevent the proliferation of signs throughout the city.

The estimated cost of the four signs the cost of which is to be shared by the organizations is $2,000.

OTTAWA — At a small dinner party of parliamentarians and parliamentary correspondents the other night, the question arose as to why some newsmen choose to pursue careers in such a flat, drab, unprepossessing city as Ottawa.

Why Ottawa instead of the urbane civilization of Toronto and Montreal, or the salubrious climate and satisfying intellectual environment of Vancouver?

"To make money," one reporter admitted candidly. "Well," said one of the MPs, "that's about the most unlikely reason that we're here."

His House colleagues nodded agreement. Each makes $10,000 a year as an MP — $2,000 of it tax free. Yet probably in all Canada there is no group of comparable qualifications and attainments in life paid so poorly or so financially pressed. Something of this came out last week when the auditor general, Max Henderson, reported to the Commons that the revenue department had denied him access to its files. What he had wanted to check on was the seemingly questionable action of the department in garnishing the salaries of three MPs for back taxes.

In fact, the inadequacy of the financial reward for service in the Commons has reached crisis proportions. I can tick off the names of half a dozen of the better members of the Commons, both Conservative and Liberal, who are on the verge of quitting public life because at $10,000 a year they're just going deeper in debt.

"Even if we won the election and I became a minister," a Liberal MP told me, "I still couldn't pay my debts and have enough left to live on." A cabinet minister gets $25,000, plus a $2,000 car allowance.

One Tory MP, Art Smith of Calgary, already has announced he is quitting.

Two things restrain others from making similar announcements. They know such announcements would weaken their party's election chances. It would look as if they were quitting because they expected their party to lose. And secondly, MPs on both sides are hoping Prime Minister Diefenbaker will be forced to take remedial action, both because of the dissatisfaction of his MPs and because of the party's difficulty in lining up good candidates for a $10,000 a year job.

Such hopes were raised last week when R. M. T. "Bobby" McDonald, Conservative MP for Hamilton South, quietly approached representatives of the opposition parties to discuss cooperation on the question of increasing MP's salaries. The word spread quickly. Some guessed he was acting on his own, while others argued hopefully that he probably had the PM's blessing.

Then the Canadian Press reported that an unnamed Conservative had approached the opposition with the proposal that MP's salaries be doubled, to $20,000. That is a realistic figure, wholly warranted. But it remains to be seen whether McDonald's initiative can survive the premature publicity. Any strong public reaction against the move can kill it, because the solvency of even Tory MPs is less important to the PM than winning votes in the forthcoming election.

A good argument can be made that this isn't the time to increase MP's salaries, what with the government's efforts to reduce the deficit. But the fact is that no time seems the time to boost a politician's pay, so this is as good a time as any.

centres of both the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches are also located in Victoria.

Neither city is without its refugee problem although the worst conditions prevail in Kowloon. Hundreds of thousands of Chinese have poured into the colony in the last few years and the utter poverty and squalor are beyond description.

In efforts to cope with the plight of this seething mass of humanity, the British government, along with churches and numerous welfare agencies, are working to provide not only shelter, food and clothing, but health services, education and job opportunities.

Kowloon is a city of unbelievable congestion, filth and noise. Although authorities have done a great deal to clean it up, it is still the centre of most of the colony's vice and corruption, run by Chinese secret societies.

The surrounding hills are covered with thousands of tiny shacks. There is no sanitation and all water has to be carried in pans. The increase in the number of squatters has been so great they now are lying on the very fringe of Kai Tak Airport, less than a quarter of a mile from downtown Kowloon.

The 366 square miles of the New Territories consist mainly of mountainous terrain although there are some fertile valleys where limited amounts of rice and vegetables are grown.

Large and heavily populated industrial complexes have sprung up in several places such as Kwun Tong, and Tsuen Wan. An excellent road system now covers most of the New Territories.

The Communist threat comes at a time when both government and church are carrying out extensive rehabilitation and Christianization programs. Dozens of modern low-rent apartment units are being built throughout the area and millions of dollars are being poured into slum clearance and urban renewal schemes.

At the same time the churches are developing properties that can be used as combined houses of worship, feeding centres and schools.

The new Kei Oi Church will rise behind the primary school out of which its congregation developed. Other sites have been acquired and this type of composite church building will be erected as soon as money is available.

All this work, including the Anglican-run St. Christopher's Home for Abandoned Children at nearby Taiipo and the new Roman Catholic hospital at Wong Tai Sin, now fall under this dark cloud of uncertainty.

Thoughtful and responsible speech

Prime Minister Diefenbaker's Commons speech on defence policy on Friday was the kind of talk one expects from a thoughtful and responsible government.

It added little to our present defence posture, but in his remarks, Mr. Diefenbaker explained why this should be so.

He pointed out that entirely new concepts of Western defence may emerge as a result of the Nassau pact; that there is doubt as to whether Canada's role should, in fact, ever be a nuclear one; that there is a possibility the $700 million in Canadian nuclear carriers may have to be partially or entirely scrapped.

All of this demonstrates realistic thinking tied to the facts of nuclear-age defence. It will be remembered that the Arrow, when it was first conceived, appeared to be assured of a prominent place in the West's air defence. Almost before it was airborne, however, new weapons and new strategy, forced upon the Western alliance by natural developments in the world military situation, had made it obsolete. Mr. Diefenbaker, had the courage at that time to call a spade a spade and do what had to be done.

Once again, he is calling a spade a spade. "More nuclear arms will add nothing materially to our defence," he pointed out. He said that there was possibility that the Bomarc, and perhaps other expensive hardware might have to go the way of the Arrow. This should not be surprising.

The Skybolt, too, turned out to be an expensive mistake for both Britain and the United States. The mistake had to be admitted, given the benefit of hindsight. So may we have to admit our own defence mistakes.

Any decision on whether or not Canada should have nuclear arms has apparently been postponed until after a NATO meeting next May in Canada to review "the entire collective defence policy." While this means more delay, it is an essential delay. NATO and NORAD constitute Canada's main defences. It is only reasonable that we should reach defence decisions in the light of their needs and requirements as well as our own.

The readers say:

More nuclear arms for NATO allies

In an editorial entitled Nuclear Arms for Canada Unnecessary (January 24), you suggest that the reason why NATO members are showing little interest in whether Canada does or does not adopt nuclear arms is because they "will not add significantly to Western deterrent strength."

If it is true, as has been insinuated lately in the press, that General Lauris Norstad rapped Canada's reluctance to accept nuclear arms because he was acting on the advice

I would suggest that perhaps the reason for the lack of interest regarding the question on the part of NATO allies is that we have already committed ourselves. These countries, judging from their past experience with Canada, have no doubts that in the end we will fulfill our obligations, hence they have not seen fit to give it much thought. In their minds, we have accepted the nuclear arms and it is only a matter of time before our forces are equipped with them.

I would endorse these predictions and anticipate an affirmative decision within the next six months, if not sooner. Yours truly, JEFFREY K. GARLICK Bishop's University.

of American military authorities we can see that the United States is certainly interested in our decision. If they believed their own deterring strength was sufficient, would they be concerned with our position?

Australia selling wheat to Chinese

The repeated criticism heard in certain quarters about the sale of Canadian wheat to Red China would lead to the conclusion that Canada alone among the nations of the world is seeking to reduce its wheat surplus by exports to Communist countries.

Those who claim that by these sales, Canada is encouraging the spread of communism, is paving the path for its downfall, is selling out to the other democracies or committing a number of other unpardonable sins apparently forget that other nations with surplus wheat stocks are finding continental China a fine market for their excess supplies.

Board has just announced another sale of wheat to Red China, that latest deal involving 50,000,000 bushels at an approximate price of $77,000,000.

Since 1960 Australian sales of grain to China have amounted to 190,000,000 valued at $292,000,000.

Admittedly these sales have caused some dispute in Australia itself, with arguments similar to those advanced in Canada over the wheat deal by this country.

But the Australian government apparently feels that it would be foolish to let its own wheat go bad while other nations were filling the demand from Red China.

Is it revenge?

Behind Common Market hassling: how did de Gaulle get that way?

BRUSSELS—(NEA)—Is revenge what makes President de Gaulle tick? Is it vengeance that motivates him in his dealings with the United States and Great Britain?

By TOM A. CULLEN

equal of America or the Soviet Union.

The Guardian, which accuses De Gaulle of using the European Common Market as an instrument for "the renaissance of France as a commanding European power," says that this is "a perversion of the European ideal."

The revenge theory is popular with the British at the moment. It is advanced to explain President de Gaulle's intransigence in slamming the door of Europe shut on Britain. It is also said to be the reason why he rejected America's offer of Polaris missiles.

According to this theory, De Gaulle never forgets a grievance. In this case, he has been harboring his grievances against the Western Allies for 20 years. De Gaulle was humiliated by Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt during the war, both of whom failed to recognize his genius, and now he sees his opportunity for vengeance. So runs the argument.

The trouble with the revenge theory, in the opinion of those who have followed French politics closely, is that it is much too simple to explain a complex man.

If revenge were really what motivates the French president, then the present moment should see France at loggerheads with Germany instead of forging the Paris-Bonn axis.

Himself the veteran of two wars against the Germans and the son of a soldier who was wounded in the war with Prussia, Charles de Gaulle would have good reason for being anti-German instead of pro-German.

A tragic but mutual misunderstanding lies at the bottom of the present impasse between France and the Anglo-Saxon world, according to students of French politics. In the first instance, the Anglo-Saxons have never understood De Gaulle, himself, or appreciated his character.

The best self-portrait of De Gaulle is to be found in his writings as a young, keen-eyed army officer, where he refers to himself impersonally as "the leader." "His passion for acting on his own," De Gaulle wrote, "is naturally accompanied by a certain roughness of conduct."

"The leader is distant, too, for authority is not to be had without prestige, nor prestige without aloofness."

fers from eye cataracts, but is still the same unbending figure.

The Anglo-Saxons, for their part, have mistaken "roughness of conduct" for rudeness, authority for stubbornness, aloofness for arrogance.

"Of all the crosses I had to bear during the war the Cross of Lorraine was the heaviest," Winston Churchill remarked of De Gaulle. The Cross of Lorraine, of course, was the Free French symbol. President Roosevelt found him no less difficult to get along with.

De Gaulle, in turn, blamed the Allied leaders for not giving proper attention to France and to French interests in their conduct of the war. And this basic distrust undoubtedly lies behind his fear today that the Anglo-Saxons are plotting to dominate Europe. (Britain's entry into the European Common Market would create "a colossal Atlantic Community dependent upon and controlled by the United States," he told his recent press conference.)

The suspicion grows in Britain that De Gaulle is himself trying to dominate Europe through the creation of a Western Third Force extending "from the Atlantic to the Urals," in his phrase, and the Anglican missionaries disturbed

Red Chinese claiming Kowloon

Fred Wooding, national supervisor of information for the Anglican Church of Canada, accompanied the primate, Archbishop Howard H. Clark, on a visit to Hong Kong and Kowloon last November. In this story he tells of church reaction to Communist Chinese threats to Kowloon.

Written for The Canadian Press By FRED WOODING

Communist China's move to claim sovereignty over the British-controlled Hong Kong enclave known as Kowloon and the New Territories deeply disturbed officials of the Missionary Society of the Anglican Church of Canada.

Not only has it a significant financial investment in the area, it has had a long-time relationship with Christian workers serving there.

Only last November the primate of the Canadian church, Archbishop Howard H. Clark of Winnipeg, visited the colony and preached a special service of blessing for a new church.

Named Kei Oi, it is being built at a cost of $100,000 of Canadian money in a section of Kowloon now under redevelopment.

No one in the colony, of course, has any illusions about China's ability to carry out a coup at any moment she chooses. The fast way would be to send in armed forces, against which the small British garrison could offer no more than token resistance. A slower way would be simply to cut off the fresh water she supplies the colony.

However, no one seriously believes Communist China will attempt to take over Hong Kong, which has been under British rule for nearly 125 years with the exception of the period of Japanese occupation during the Second World War, has carried on happily enough through emergencies such as this in the belief that its existence provides China with a handy international sounding board and that as a world trading centre it is indispensable to China's economy.

a complex of islands and a tiny slice of the China mainland adjoining the province of Kwangtung. In all, it consists of an area slightly less than 399 square miles. Its twin cities are Victoria, on Hong Kong island, and Kowloon, only a few minutes away by ferry on the other side of the harbor. The New Territories, acquired by Britain in 1898 under a 99-year lease, consist of a stretch of mainland north of Kowloon as well as a group of islands around Hong Kong itself.

Victoria (generally called Hong Kong) and Kowloon are among the most extraordinary cities in the world. Of the two, Victoria is by far more Westernized.

It is here the colonial offices are located as well as the universities, the best hotels, best shopping areas and best homes. In fact, on the hill behind the city known as the Peak are grand mansions that would do credit to Mount Royal in Montreal or the British Properties in Vancouver.

Shedding our wintertime lethargy

Carrying on normal activity during our harsh winters is something we Canadians like to pride ourselves in. Sometimes, during weather such as we've been having for the past few days, for example, our pride has to take a back seat to Mother Nature.

During less severe periods, however, we like to think its "life as usual" in Canada. This, of course, is not so. Our unemployment figures shoot up alarmingly every winter, and for thousands of unemployed Canadians, life is not "usual," but hard. In some seasonal occupations, this is all but unavoidable. But in many trades, there is a remedy, and it is to break our traditional habit of putting off things that could be done during the winter months.

This is the aim of yearly "do-it-now" campaigns, one of which is in full swing across the country right now. Simply put, it is a campaign to even out the work cycle; to fill in the winter valleys and shave off the spring peaks.

Now, men and material are available for a wide variety of jobs. And goodness knows, there's plenty to be done. It's simply a matter of stirring ourselves out of our winter lethargy, and getting it done now, instead of waiting for warmer weather.

Unpatronized, last train mourned

When a railway curtails or abandons passenger service — as happens too often nowadays — protests and sometimes even public manifestations of grief are heard. But precious little attention is paid to the reason for it — the public's own abandonment of the railway in favor of competitive transportation.

Not until a train makes its last journey do the people who had ceased to take advantage of the service it offered, realize how much they are going to miss its friendly whistle and sure dependability.

Last week, when a train went on its final journey from Tavistock South to Plymouth, in England, it was filled with mourners wearing the frock coats and black ties appropriate to a stately funeral. Buglers sounded the Last Post and Reveille. All this might best be likened to a sentimental gesture. It won't bring that train back when it's wanted and perhaps much needed.

If similar sentimentalities marked the journey of the last stage coach between Tavistock South and Plymouth in the 19th century, it's a story untold now. The people then were excited by the advent of the steam power which was to change the face of England and swiftly advance the economy of the country in an industrial revolution which brought misery and social damage as well as good.

When our forebears turn to stories of railway days to get away from all to come, as we turn to historical fiction of the stage-coaching days, to

Some people will be quite surprised to learn that gelatin is used in commercial ice cream. It exerts a powerful protective colloid action and when it is used in ice cream increases the product's resistance to "heat shock," the formation of ice crystals by sudden changes in temperature.

Jan. 29, 1963 . . . The official toll in Britain's influenza epidemic was placed at 2,698 deaths 12 years ago today—in 1951—but the total was to go even higher, to more than 7,000 in the first four weeks of the year. In the worst week the disease claimed 1,239 deaths and after 11 weeks the total toll was 9,212. The epidemic struck at the worst possible time with a serious coal shortage threatening industry, electricity and gas plants and home heating. Prime Minister Ateele appealed to the nation's miners to increase their output.

COMMONS SPENDS

Canada was going to negotiate to have nuclear warheads readily available "in case of need."

Mr. Diefenbaker told the Commons Monday his Friday speech did not need interpreting.

Mr. Harkness said he made his press statement in reply to reporters who wanted clarification of the government's position, and the statement "stands as it is."

Paul Martin (L—Essex East) asked whether Mr. Harkness intended to resign in view of his differences with the Prime Minister.

Mr. Harkness said he had done nothing extraordinary and Mr. Diefenbaker said it was natural that he had not seen Mr. Harkness' statement before it was issued.

J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista-Twillingate) sparked the later fireworks on the government's bill to establish a National Economic Development Board.

He called it "another Diefenbaker gimmick to fool the people" and Finance Minister Nowlan replied that the Liberals were speaking nothing but political clap-trap.

BUSINESS UNCHANGED At the night's adjournment House Leader Churchill announced the business for today's sitting would be just the same as called for action Monday.

The economic development board bill, followed by an extension to the Freight Rates Reduction Act.

Debate on the economic planning measure dragged through weary debating hours Monday until Real Caouette, Social Credit's deputy leader, took the floor to accuse the Liberals of stalling the measure, after having stalled for 22 years in office before 1957.

That brought Mr. Pickersgill to his feet to denounce Social Credit for cultivating misery.

"That is their whole stock in trade," and to declare that Canada had enjoyed full employment under a Liberal government for 14 years after the Second World War.

His speech drew Finance Minister Nowlan to his feet to denounce it as "an example of political irresponsibility . . . a partisan diatribe the like of which you wouldn't hear in the backwoods."

Mr. Nowlan asked the House to end its rambling, general debate on the economic development bill and get down to specific clauses setting up the board.

The Liberals, however, put up two more speakers to extend the debate to the adjournment hour.

DEPLORES CRITICISM Mr. Nowlan said there was no grey eminence behind the board and that the idea was his own as a measure to meet Canada's long-term balance of payments difficulty.

He said partisan criticism of the measure was going to make it difficult for the government to get the best men available to serve on the board.

The chairman, he said, would be an outstanding figure whose worthiness for the post would be accepted by all.

Mr. Nowlan also said he would argue strenuously against cutting short the 10-year period of appointment the government intends for the chairman.

During the day, Liberal MPs argued that while they support the measure in principle, they thought the government had sufficient experts in the public service to advise it on economic problems.

Government economists are second to none, Mr. Nowlan said, but they are overburdened with day-to-day administration. The government needed outside advice on long-range planning and regional problems from people experienced in various fields of business and labor.

CLASSIC 770

Here are the reasons why Motor Trend Magazine chose the 1963 Rambler as the "Car of the Year"

The coveted Motor Trend magazine "Car of the Year" award was won this year by the entire line of 1963 Ramblers. The popular Classic 6—the powerful Ambassador V8 and the compact American 6. The award was given to Rambler "for outstanding design achievement and engineering leadership." The panel of automotive experts took 26 pages in the February issue of Motor Trend magazine to outline the reasons for their choice of Rambler. The following are excerpts from their remarks to show you why Rambler is "Car of the Year" for 1963.

- 1 Uniside Construction "... this latest design represents a real advancement and the biggest single reason we chose Rambler Car of the Year. Not only does this new construction method save approximately 150 pounds over the older design, but it results in a unit so strong it'll take punishment longer and naturally hold its resale value."
2 Handling and Driving "... pleasantly light and responsive under all cornering conditions. . . a good boulevard and highway ride. There isn't any bounce or choppy ride noticeable even on rough roads."
3 Styling "Progress in design is the theme of Motor Trend's Car of the Year award. American Motors' Ramblers are this year's best examples of outstanding design achievement. New styling is based on lean, clean lines that are apparent from almost any angle."
4 Interior Room and Comfort "The lengthened wheelbase has given more room inside. . . and this means increased driver/passenger comfort. The interior offers plenty of leg room. Reclining bucket seats with headrests are options well worth the extra expenditure."
5 Economy "There won't be many cars of this size delivering more fuel economy than this basic-engined Classic."

6 Value and Features "Quality has always been one of American Motors' largest selling points and continues to be on the new models. In addition to the long-recognized owner appreciation features inherent in all Ramblers, the factory has doubled the new-car warranty to 24 months or 24,000 miles. In summing up, all we can add is that it looks like the new Rambler will be an even better buy than it has been in previous years." That's what the experts say. They are echoing what Rambler owners have been proudly claiming for years. To prove to yourself Rambler's exceptional value see your Rambler dealer soon. Take a test drive in the "Car of the Year"—the 1963 Rambler. Ask your Rambler dealer for your free reprint of the 26-page Motor Trend article.

At Cookshire

Trinity Church holds annual meeting

COOKSHIRE — The annual congregational meeting of Trinity United Church was held in the church hall on Jan. 17, with Rev. W. Reid presiding.

The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn, with Mrs. D. MacRae at the piano.

A short period of silent prayer was observed in memory of Cyrus MacRae, Josiah Suffolk, Peter McDonald and Miss Myrtle Desruisseaux.

The minutes of the previous annual meeting were read by the recording steward, Mrs. Mary E. Heatherington.

Plans were made for the centennial committee to meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. MacRae on Jan. 29, at 8 p.m.

Favorable reports were then given from the various departments of the church. The treasurer, Mrs. Nellie B. Parker, reported all bills had been paid, the allocation for the M and M had been sent to Toronto, the minister's salary paid, and there was a fair balance on hand.

REPORTS OF SESSION
The report of the Session, read by Mrs. Barbara Vogell, showed that it had met twice, plans had been made for the Easter communion service and the reception of new members. New communicants each received a small Bible.

Tape recordings of Palm and Easter and Thanksgiving services were made available through the courtesy of Rev. E. E. Breen.

The elders were to arrange for dates in their separate districts to accompany the pastor and to assist with the Communion service at separate homes, which was simplified by the donation of a communion set for this purpose by Miss Carrie Nelson.

A centennial committee was appointed to learn about the history of the church and manse and the names of clergymen serving during this period, etc., and photos to be procured, if possible.

Elders assist in baptisms in church on Sunday afternoon when required. Holding funerals on Sunday has been eliminated by Presbytery. There were two baptisms, three marriages, four deaths and two interments.

The trustees' report, written by J. L. Wootton, and read by D. MacRae, showed one meeting held. It was decided to put a new roof on half of the church, and the material has been bought. A few repairs have been made and new grates bought.

COMMITTEE OF STEWARDS.
The committee of stewards' report, made out by Mrs. Myrtle Learned, was read by D. J. Macmillan, five meetings had been held, a new lawn mower purchased, church steps repaired, the lumber being furnished by L. G. McKay. Dead trees were cut down at the back of the church. Liability insurance on church property had been guaranteed.

A committee of two from Bury, Island Brook and Cookshire was to decide on the work to be done outside the manse. An oyster supper was held to augment the treasury funds.

The secretary's report for the United Church Women, given by Mrs. Heatherington, showed 17 members on the roll, ten meetings had been held, with an average attendance of 14. The members read Glorious Physician, and The Word and the Way.

Money was raised by holding food sales, from fees, dime cards and a sale of work. Flowers were sent to a sick member. Numerous convalescent cards and a few sympathy cards were sent out. The members assisted the W.A., with the congregational supper and a bridal shower.

A number of ladies attended the Quebec-Sherbrooke Presbyterian, held in Lennoxville and also the Regional U.C.W. held in Bury.

Financial assistance was given to the committee of stewards, towards cleaning the church, the expenses of a student minister's work, and a gown for the senior choir.

Clothing was sent to the Ste. Anne des Monts project, and a farewell gift was given to Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Breen, Mr. and Mrs. W. Reid were remembered at Christmas.

U.C.W. REPORTS
The report of the treasurer of the U.C.W., Mrs. J. A. Butler, was read by Mrs. D. MacRae, and showed a substantial sum had been given for missionary work.

A donation was sent to the St. John's Home, in Quebec City, and to the Maplemount Home, in Cookshire. Literature was purchased, four Christmas gifts for Cree Indian children were sent out west, and money given towards the cost of a lawn mower. All bills had been paid, and there was a fair balance on hand.

W.A. REPORTS
The report of the W.A. secretary prepared by Mrs. Roberta Macmillan was read by Mrs. Hazel Burns, and showed 16 meetings had been held with an average attendance of nine members.

Their activities consisted of help with the congregational suppers supplied for the church per, material was bought and made gowns for the junior choir, during the summer months, decorated the church at Thanksgiving and Easter; a donation of baby clothes and quilts was sent to the Cecil Duttons Memorial Home. Money was raised from a Bring and Buy sale; two weddings were catered for; a turkey supper held in conjunction with the U.C.W.; also the Christmas sale and tea.

Mrs. Jean Tredinnick gave the W.A. treasurer's report which showed subscriptions had been taken for the Upper Room, all occasion and Christmas cards sold, a spring sale and tea, also a Christmas sale and tea and a food sale and a harvest supper had been held; wool was sold, two weddings catered for; donations had been given to the Canadian Bible Society; an honorarium given to the janitor and the organist; and money donated to the Sunday School and the parsonage. All bills had been paid and there was a good balance on hand.

Mrs. Tredinnick's report for the Explorers showed five members on the roll one, a United Church girl and four Anglicans. Activities were, sliding outings, sugar on snow parties, a hike and a marshmallow roast, which brought the meetings to a close in June. Mrs. Breen was remembered on her departure, in a donation made to the British and Foreign Bible Society, A small balance was on hand.

SUNDAY SCHOOL
The report of the acting superintendent for the Sunday School, Mrs. Jean Tredinnick, showed seven on the Cradle Roll five in the nursery, three beginners, two primary and two intermediates. Teachers are, Mrs. Hazel Burns, Mrs. Pauline McVetty, Miss Aleta Mackey.

The Sunday School treasurer's report, given by Miss Aleta Mackey showed that bills for lesson books, papers and prizes had all been paid, and there was a very small balance on hand.

The joint parsonage committee's report, given by Mrs. Myrtle Learned, showed plans to paint the manse in the spring. The roof has been repaired and painted and a few small things put in order in the interior of the building. Wall paper has been purchased for redecorating two rooms.

CHOIR REPORT
The choir report, given by the organist, Mrs. Mary Heatherington, showed there were seven senior and seven junior members in the choir; anthems were sung at fairly regular intervals; the W.A. had bought material and made new gowns for the junior choir; Santa Claus brought bow head coverings also for the junior. Another new gown for the senior members had been purchased with a little help from the U.C.W. After all expenses were paid a small balance remained.

Mr. Reid stated he would be very glad to visit any sick members of the congregation either in the hospital or in their homes, and was willing to assist the church societies in any way he could.

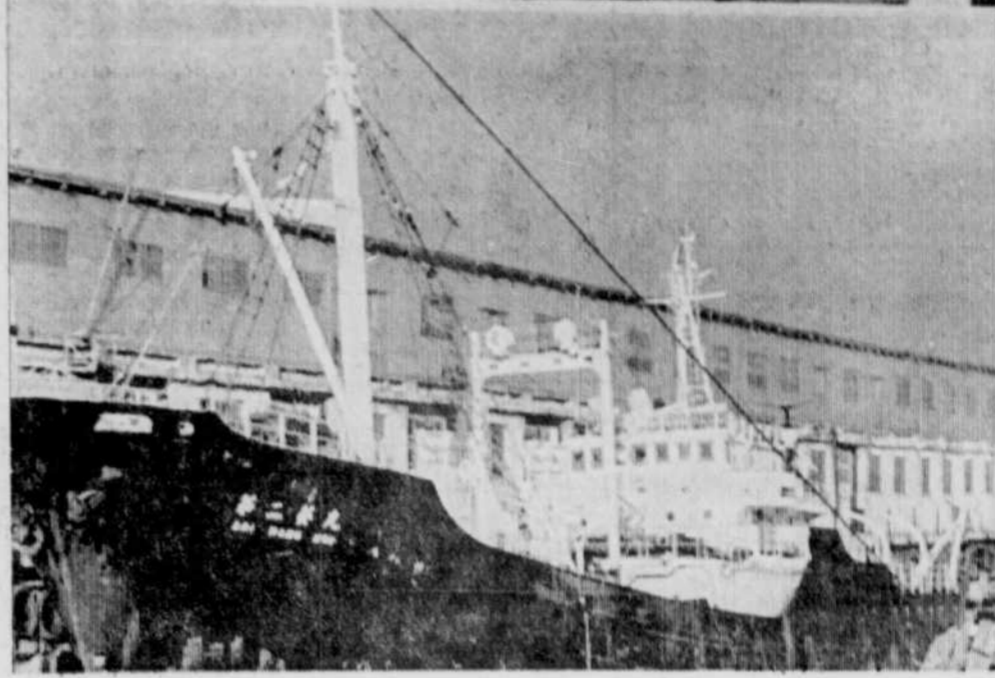

OFFICERS ELECTED
The election of officers then took place and is as follows: Recording steward, Mrs. Heatherington; treasurer, Mrs. Parker; organist, Mrs. Heatherington; assistant organist, Mrs. D. MacRae; auditors, D. J. Macmillan, C. M. Cooper; janitor, Robert McDonald; Board of Trustees, A. H. Goff, J. L. Wootton, R. B. Learned, Rupert Learned, J. H. Vogell, Stanley McVetty, Thomas Bewick, D. D. MacRae. The elders of session, Mrs. Barbara Vogell, Mrs. Myrtle Learned, Mrs. Marcia Farnsworth, D. D. MacRae, H. B. Burns, G. W. Leaned, F. H. Tredinnick, J. L. Wootton; committee of stewards, Mrs. Nellie B. Parker, Mrs. Marcia Farnsworth, Mrs. Myrtle Learned, D. Bellam, E. Parker, R. McDonald, R. Stevenson, D. J. Macmillan.

It was stated that a choir room and vestry had been promised some years ago, and this should be considered when planning for the centennial.

Mrs. N. McLeod and Miss Esther Farnsworth will look after the renewal subscriptions for the United Church Observer.

A basket of artificial flowers, given by Mrs. N. McLeod, served as decorations for the evening and will be used each Sunday through the winter and early spring months.

The ladies served refreshments buffet style.

WRITE A RESUME

In your letter of application, include a resume of your qualifications. It is a good introduction to a prospective employer. Your resume should be brief and factual. But do not sacrifice information and neatness for brevity. Two easy-to-read pages are better than one page that is incomplete or untidy. Use the following as a guide in preparing your resume.

YOUR NAME:	Home phone number
Address:	Business phone
Personal:	Age, height, weight, marital status, number of dependents.
Education:	School name, grade attained; high school, college diplomas, special schools, honours received. Extra curricular activities. Offices held.
Experience in Business:	List present or last position first. Give dates of joining and leaving companies, kind of business, addresses, positions held. Be explicit. Describe your exact duties, progress, accomplishments. Give reasons for leaving each position. List your supervisor or other reference for each job.
In a supplementary paragraph:	List any other information that may interest the employer and help him fit you into a job.

Homemaking

Fluffing, sometimes called "shedding," is natural in most new carpets. Loose bits of pile show up on the surface. Regular vacuuming will soon remove these loose bits, and fluffing does not affect the quality of the carpet.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY — I read where Jamie has a new method for teasing hair with a tooth brush but really, how is hair teased?

OUT-OF-STYLE

DEAR POLLY — Perhaps you and I are of the same generation. In my younger days, "teasing" was known as "roughing" or "ratting" the hair. You take a section at a time and lift it up. Brush or comb the strand toward the scalp. Then, smooth the top for a fuller look to the hair-do.

POLLY

DEAR POLLY — My two ideas are really worlds apart. A hint from my doctor which has worked beautifully to help a one-year-old with self-feeding is to sit at his right side (assuming he is right-handed) and feed baby with your hand over his on the spoon to guide him. This is much easier for a baby to imitate than when you sit in front of him and poke the spoon straight at his mouth.

Knitters who are always embarrassed by dropping needles at meetings or in public places can knit even a straight piece (back and forth) on a circular needle. Then there is no other needle to drop and it also ends the fear of poking the person sitting next to you.

Mrs. R. S. L.

DEAR POLLY — Can anyone give suggestions for ways in which to increase the humidity in a house with a hot air furnace?

MRS. M. L. — Perhaps some of the other girls or boys know a better answer but my home-made remedy has always been to keep open pans of water near the register or radiator. This is a lot of trouble and can be messy but other than having a humidifier installed in the furnace, it's the best suggestion I can offer.

POLLY

DEAR POLLY — Other mothers of preschool children may find my hint helpful. I have solved the problem of a red shirt, blue overalls and brown socks. My oldest preschooler likes to dress himself but is not color-conscious so I arranged his drawer with matching overalls, shirt and socks in sets and now he selects a set each day and everything matches. He is learning his colors, too, by selecting a blue set, brown set and so on.

A. T.

DEAR POLLY — When sewing, keep a bobbin filled with nylon thread to use when gathering. The thread slips more easily and is almost impossible to break. Most any color thread can be used on any colored fabric because it is on the bottom side and if very much material is gathered, it is almost completely covered.

MDS. J. H.

DEAR POLLY — Putting polish on my nails used to be a problem because I could not hold my hand steady. One day I discovered that by placing a cup upside down on a table and placing my hand on the cup, my problem was solved. No more do I worry about a smeared or uneven look to my polish.

Chefs of the Eastern Townships

By PHYLLIS PICKFORD (Record Women's Editor)

Chef Herbert Gilchrist, who, since 1946 has been the chef at the Bishop's University cafeteria, says "It's a difficult task to prepare a meal to satisfy each individual." "So many have different tastes," he added.

Preparing a meal for over 240 students and staff, at Bishop's University, Lennoxville, and approximately an additional 25 students who are non-resident, seven days a week is the task of chef Gilchrist and his staff of 13, which includes his helper Fernand Maurice, the pastry cook, Mrs. Alta Fowler and her assistant, Miss Hazel Cutler.

Chef Gilchrist, a native of the Eastern Townships, was born in Richmond. Having worked on a farm for 10 years, he decided to make a change and went to work as a fitter with the Fleet Aircraft, Ltd., in Fort Erie, Ont. Later he joined the Armed Forces, serving as a corporal cook, with the R.C.S.C.

Married now, and the father of seven children, chef Gilchrist says "It's a wife's place to do the cooking at home." "But I still maintain a husband can give a helping hand," he remarked.

The day for chef Gilchrist begins at 6 a.m. and along with his staff they prepare dinner for hungry students attending the university. At 2 p.m. he has earned a well deserved break, which lasts until 4 p.m., when once again he is on the job to prepare supper. By about 7 p.m., the end of a good day's work is in sight, which enables a tired chef to return home to his family and relax (no doubt in front of the T.V.).

The day we went to interview chef Gilchrist he was busily engaged in cooking fillets of haddock, and what else could be more tempting to an English woman than fish and chips, especially with an empty stomach.

This fish looked really delicious, a lovely golden brown in color, and no soggy from excess fat was evident. "I always dip the fish in egg and milk batter, and roll in bread crumbs," chef Gilchrist remarked. "I never use commercial fats, only bacon drippings for cooking the fish," he added.

Fernand Maurice, who has been the chef's helper for 7 years, was born in Lennoxville, and on this particular day, he was busy cooking potato chips, to accompany the fish for the noon hour meal. "We use 400 pounds of potatoes for a meal," Fernand said. "An electric potato cutter makes short work of the job," he added. The chips are also cooked in bacon fat, and they looked delicious too.

Mrs. Alta Fowler, the pastry cook who is married, and has pies each week. For each batch of pastry, they use 18 pounds of flour, 12 pounds of shortening and 2 cups of salt. These batches are mixed by an electric mixer.

The pie, the students like most is the delicious mouth watering lemon pie, which is a speciality of Mrs. Fowler. The meringue which tops her pies is really something to brag about. Here is a tip from her, "I always add baking powder to the egg-whites," Mrs. Fowler said. "This helps the meringue to stay risen", she added. For a meringue, for one pie, Mrs.

TO FRY THE FRITTERS
The fat for fritters should register between 360 and 370 deg. F. (If you do not have a thermometer, use the Bread Test.) Dip the tablespoon into the hot fat, take up spoonfuls of the batter, and let it slide gently into the fat. Do not cook too many fritters at one time, as steam will be formed if they touch, causing a softening of the exterior. Turn the fritters as soon as they rise to the top of fat, and often thereafter that they may be of uniformly fine texture throughout. As soon as the "Corn fritters are served mostly with beef," chef Gilchrist said, "but if you substitute pineapple for the corn they are excellent to serve with ham." he added.

If however you prefer to cook these for the family, here is the recipe to follow for the average family.

CORN FRITTERS (average serving)

- 1 cup flour
 - 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - Few grains of pepper
 - 2 tablespoons milk
 - 2 eggs
 - 1 cup canned corn
- Beat the eggs separately. Add the milk to the corn,

Fowler uses, 3 egg whites, 1 teaspoonful baking powder and 3/4 cup icing sugar.

The students at Bishop's University are well pleased with the meals which are served at the cafeteria, but they have one big complaint, "We are all gaining too much weight," remarked a student. Chef Gilchrist has his own special recipe for Corn Fritters, which he gave me, and the thought occurred to me that this recipe would be fritters are a rich brown shade, lift them from the fat and drain on soft paper to absorb any grease which may cling to the surface, before placing them on serving dish. Meats, vegetables and other foods may be chopped and mixed with the fritter batter and fried, or the foods may be cut in convenient sized pieces and dipped in the batter before frying. Serve the savoury fritters with a well seasoned sauce.

Eat hearty breakfast

Medical, nutrition and educational leaders say that breakfast is the most important meal of the day. According to U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the adolescent's need for plenty of food makes it especially important that he get a good breakfast. For this he must allow plenty of time. Breakfasts that are ready on time and that taste too good to be missed are the least likely to be skipped.

An adequate breakfast need not be elaborate. A basic breakfast pattern of fruit, cereal and milk, bread and butter or margarine, and a beverage can be placed on the kitchen countertop for quick, neat self-service, and the cereal can be a different one for each day in the month.

Many different fruits and juices can be used. Breads offer many changes. Cocoa made with a liberal quantity of milk, chocolate milk or plain whole milk can provide variety in the beverage. For most people, average servings of these foods supply one-fourth of the day's food needs.

Serve-Yourself Basic Cereal and Milk Breakfast, Orange Juice, Hot Oatmeal, Whole Milk, Sugar, Fresh-made buttered Cinnamon Toast, Whole Milk to drink, Corn Flake Cookies, if desired.

CORN FLAKE COOKIES

(Yield: 4 1/2 dozen cookies)
1 1/2 cups fat, 1 1/2 cups brown sugar, packed, 3 1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 cup milk, 1 egg, beaten, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 cups corn flakes, finely crushed.
Cream fat and sugar together well. Sift together the flour, baking powder, and salt. Combine milk, egg, and vanilla. Add flour mixture and liquids alternately to creamed fat and sugar. Mix well. Stir in corn flakes. Roll 3/8 of the dough at a time to 1/8-inch thickness on a lightly floured pastry cloth or board. Cut with floured cutters. Place 1 inch apart on ungreased cookie sheet. Ruth Millett Bored to tears with husband, where does the blame lie?

A recent psychiatric study of the so-called "normal male" indicates that his personality isn't stimulating. His interests and pleasures are narrow, his ambition is comparatively low and he lacks creativity.

That sounds like a pretty sad state of affairs. But how is it going to get any better under present-day dating and marriage customs?

Let's talk about Johnny Brown, who starts going steady in junior high. By the time he is 13, the feminine world has taken charge of his life.

Instead of growing up with a group of boys, Johnny spends his time hanging around his girl friend's house, going to the parties the girls and their mothers cook up. And that routine goes right on through high school, with one steady girl friend occasionally replacing another. If Johnny gets through high school without getting married, he is likely to marry as soon as he graduates. But even if he goes to college he may not make it through four years without acquiring a wife and settling down to campus domesticity.

When does Johnny have time to develop interests that will enrich his personality, to see a little of the world, to try different kinds of work in order to be sure of his aims in life, to develop an ambition that goes beyond a secure little job with a steady pay check and the prospect of a pension at age 65?

In their desire for togetherness from junior high school on, what the Canadian girl and her mother are doing to the nation's youth is as sad as anything that is happening in Canada today.

If Canadian women are bored to tears with their unambitious, uncreative, unstimulating husbands that they married before they gave them a chance to find themselves as men and as individuals, they have only themselves to blame.

CLINTON H. BEATTIE, OF DANVILLE.

DANVILLE — The death of Clinton Harvey Beattie, son of the late Thomas G. Beattie and his wife, the late Sadie Harvey, occurred suddenly at the home of his brother, in Lemesurier on Dec. 30, 1962.

Born at Lemesurier, on March 15, 1915, the deceased spent most of his early life on his father's farm, coming to Danville in 1949, where he was employed by the Canadian Johns-Manville Company at Asbestos for several years. On June 2, 1948, he was married and is survived by his wife, the former Bernice Wilkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Wilkin, formerly of Lemesurier and now of Lennoxville.

He is also survived by five children, Priscilla, Linda, Betty, James and Richard; two sisters, Eihel, Mrs. Herbert Walker, and Dorothy, Mrs. Douglas Pegg; and three brothers, Allen, Lloyd and Charles.

The remains rested at the S. L. Lockwood Funeral Home, Danville, where family prayers were held prior to the service. The funeral took place on Jan. 5, from St. Augustine's Anglican Church, Rev. Nevil Tucker officiating. Hymns chosen were, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus and Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling."

The bearers were Wesley and Howard Walker, Kenneth Forst, Walter Robinson Emile Amotte and Archie Smith.

Among those present were relatives and friends from Lennoxville, Sherbrooke, Bury, Sawyerville, Richmond, Beebe, Theford Mines, Lemesurier, Kinneard's Mills, North Hatley and Asbestos.

The remains were placed in the Danville vault, for burial in the spring.

EUGENE EDWARDS, OF INVERNESS.

INVERNESS — The death of Eugene Edwards occurred in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Sherbrooke, on Jan. 4, 1963, following a long period of ill-health.

Eugene, as he was known to a large circle of friends, was born on Sept. 22, 1889, in Barre, Vt., son of the late Jane Lowry, of Craig's Road, and the late William J. Edwards, of Inverness. His mother died a few weeks after his birth and Eugene was immediately absorbed into the family of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Edwards, of Dublin Rang.

After the deaths of his grandparents, Mr. Edwards continued to live on the home farm with his uncle, Armine Edwards. In 1943 they sold the farm and purchased a home in Inverness, where they remained until Mr. Edwards was forced by failing health to enter the Sherbrooke Hospital in March of 1962.

His uncle then disposed of his home in the village and became a guest at the Rosemary Home, in Bury, where after another brief hospitalization of the deceased, the two spent a few months together.

The deceased leaves few immediate relatives to mourn his loss, except his uncles, Armine Edwards, of Bury and Fred G. Lowry, of Barre, an aunt, Mrs. H. J. Lipsey, of Inverness, and a number of cousins.

The remains rested in the funeral home in Bury, where many former friends of the deceased from Sherbrooke, Lennoxville, Windsor Mills, East Angus and Inverness called.

The funeral service, conducted by the Rev. Canon S. Meade, of Theford Mines, assisted by Rev. G. E. Kendrick, of Coaticook, was held in Christ Church, Lower Ireland, and was largely attended by former friends and close friends of the Edwards family, were John Dempsey, Earl Robinson, Arthur Minnaugh, Willie Learmonth, Conroy Cruickshank, and Dan Melrose.

Interment was in Christ Church Cemetery.

WILLIAM NORMAN HORN, OF WAY'S MILLS.

WAY'S MILLS — One of the oldest and most esteemed residents of this place, William Norman Horn, died Jan. 6. Although his health had been gradually declining during the past four years, Mr. Horn had been active until he was stricken by a severe stroke the previous Friday night.

Mr. Horn was born Oct. 5, 1881, at Baldwin's Mills, the son of the late Norman Horn, and the late Mrs. Horn, the former Sara Humphrey, and spent his earlier days in that place.

On October 20, 1903 he married Mary S. Gilbert, only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gilbert, also of Baldwin's Mills, by whom he is survived. They had no family but Arthur Hethington made his home with them for a number of years.

After their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Horn took up residence on a farm near Magog, where they remained for three years. In 1906, they purchased a larger farm near here, which for the next 42 years was their home. In 1948, they sold the place and moved to the village, where they have since resided.

In 1953 Mr. and Mrs. Horn celbrated their 50th wedding anniversary, when a large party was held in their honor at the local Hall.

Besides his wife, he leaves to mourn a sister, Miss Rose Horn, of Manchester, N.H., a half-sister, Mrs. Sadie Converse, of Stanstead, and numerous more distant relatives.

On Jan. 9, prayers were said at the late residence, where the body had rested since the previous day, followed by the service in the United Church at 1 p.m. Rev. Geoffrey Joyce officiating. A host of friends and relatives from near and far were present.

The bearers, all close friends were: Leslie Call, Cecil Wells, Albert Littlejohn, Stanley Jordan, Syd. Davis and Harry Emo. Interment was in the local cemetery. Cass and Racine, of Stanstead, had charge of funeral arrangements.

Out of town relatives and friends attending included: Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Hodgson, (Laura Gilbert), of Peterborough, Ont.; Mr. Arthur Hethington, Stittsville, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. Kerns Gilbert, Claremont, N.H.; Mr. Irving Corey, Beebe; Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Gilbert and Miss Annabelle Gilbert, Ayer's Cliff; Mrs. Eloise Corey and Mr. Carl Corey, Kingscroft; Mr. and Mrs. C. Fayne Hovey, Derby Line, Vt.; Mr. and Mrs. A. Mitson, Magog; Mrs. Ruth Bliss, Stanstead; Mrs. Alta Dustin and Messrs. Laurie Cooper, A. A. Bachelder and A. Carboneau, all of Beebe; Mrs. Mildred Rudd, of Rock Island and many others.

MRS. GEORGE E. MOREY, OF WINDSOR.

WINDSOR — The death of Mrs. George E. Morey occurred at her home, 23 Brown Street, on Dec. 25, 1962, in her 98th year. Mrs. Morey was born at Denison's Mills, Jan. 24, 1868. Noble and his wife, Elizabeth Wentworth.

She was married to George Morey and came to reside in Windsor, where she had since lived.

Funeral services were held Dec. 28, in St. Andrew's United Church, Windsor, Rev. W. Reed officiating. Two hymns were sung, The Lord Is My Shepherd and Abide With Me. The choir was under the direction of the organist, Mrs. Mildred Morey.

Bearers were T. Bolduc, G. Noble, H. Dubuc, I. Rosinon, R. Morey and M. Paige. Interment took place in the Windsor Cemetery.

Surviving are six children, Keith Morey, of Dolbeau, Clifford, of St. Denis de Brompton, Gladys of Windsor, Shirley, of Windsor; Dorothy, Mrs. L. Gregory, Richmond, and Russell, of Windsor; a sister, Mrs. Hattie McPherson, of St. Agnes de Dundee; several grandchildren and other relatives.

Attending the funeral were relatives and friends from Compton, Huntingville, Sherbrooke, Melbourne, Danville, Nicolet and Richmond.

MISS GERTRUDE PALMER, OF SUTTON.

SUTTON — The funeral of Miss Gertrude E. Palmer, who died in the B.M.P. Hospital, at Sweetsburg, on Dec. 3, was held at the C. E. Wilson and Son Funeral Parlors here on Dec. 6, with Mr. Eaton, of Calvary United Church, officiating.

Burial was in the family lot at Mystic.

The bearers were Dr. Gruer, C. S. Douglas, Cecil Carr, James Flanagan, Gordon Marsh, and Cecil Propper.

Miss Palmer was a teacher with the Quebec Protestant School Board for many years, having taught over 30 years in Fairmount School, Montreal.

After her retirement she made her home with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Call, in Sutton.

In addition to her sister, Mrs. Call, she leaves several other relatives to mourn her loss.

MRS. BRUCE J. PAYNE, OF GRANBY.

GRANBY — The death of Mrs. Bruce J. Payne, the former Clara McMahon, occurred suddenly from a heart attack on Jan. 11 in Granby. Mrs. Payne who had been suffering for some time from a cardiac condition, was in her 80th year.

Born in St. Joachim, Shefford, in February, 1883, she was the fourth daughter of Thomas McMahon and Mary Jane Dunlavy, his wife. She was married to Col. Bruce Payne, of Granby, who predeceased her.

Mrs. Payne leaves two sons and two daughters, as well as two step-daughters: Bruce, of Granby; Sigmund of Alberta; Margaret, Mrs. Reg. Wallace, and Eileen, Mrs. John Garland, both of Montreal; Helen, Mrs. Stuart McLean, of Montreal; and Ruth, Mrs. Fred Cox, of California. Two sons, Mortimer and Albert, died some years ago.

In addition, she is survived by five sisters: Ellen McMahony and Rose, Mrs. Arthur Dunn, of West Shefford; Jane, Mrs. John Carroll, of St. Mary's Ely; Susan, Mrs. Frank White, of Springfield, Mass.; and Lily, Mrs. Thomas McGowan, of Granby; and an only brother, Joseph McMahon, of West Shefford. There are also 16 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Payne, after the death of Col. Payne, lived for many years in West Shefford, with her sister, Mrs. Ellen McMahon until her illness caused her removal to Granby.

The funeral services were held here on Tuesday, Jan. 15, at 10 a.m. in Holy Family Church. Mass was sung by Rev. J. Walsh, assisted by Rev. O. Gaudette and Rev. Louis Louise.

Among those present, in addition to her numerous relatives and friends, were Mayor Horace Boivin, of Granby, Donat Brosseau, Granby city controller, Alderman Dr. P.A. Leduc, and Ex-mayor Luc Marchessault, of West Shefford.

Six constables of the Granby Police Force were bearers. Interment was in St. George's Cemetery, Granby, beside her husband.

GORDON BYRON SMITH, OF MONTREAL.

MONTREAL — The death took place suddenly on Jan. 13, at his home, 3485 Wakely Avenue, Notre Dame de Grace, Montreal, of Gordon Byron Smith, only son of Byron Smith and of his wife, Marjory Morse, at the age of 38. Mr. Smith was born in Montreal, where he spent his entire life.

Mr. Smith was a member of a family well-known in Stanbridge Ridge and Bedford, where his father spent his early years.

The funeral was held on Tuesday morning in the funeral chapel of D. A. Collins, Montreal, Rev. Dr. Rawson, pastor of St. James United Church, Montreal officiating.

Following the service the funeral cortege proceeded to Stanbridge Ridge Cemetery, where the remains were placed in the vault, for interment in the spring. Rev. H. Hatt, pastor of Bedford Wesley United Church officiated at the committal service.

Mr. Smith is survived by his parents, of Montreal and a number of relatives in Bedford and Mystic.

MISS JULIA A. WHEELER, OF KNOWLTON.

KNOWLTON — On Dec. 30, 1962, Miss Julia Anna Wheeler died in the Brome-Missisquoi Perkins Hospital, Sweetsburg, where she had been a patient for the past six weeks. Miss Wheeler had been taken to the hospital after being found in her home in a state of collapse brought on by a heart attack and pneumonia.

Miss Wheeler, or Aunt Julia, as she was called by a host of people, was one of this community's oldest residents.

Youngest child of Thomas Wheeler and Anna Duboyce, she was born at the Wheeler farm on Feb. 20, 1875, and had lived there constantly, except for three brief periods in nursing homes and an occasional visit to relatives.

Miss Wheeler loved the old place, which she named The Hermitage, because of the hermit thrushes who sang in the woods. The property was one of the farms awarded a certificate by the Brome County Historical Society for having been in the same family for more than 100 years.

It was there that Miss Wheeler started writing as a hobby. She recorded stories told her by relatives and reminiscences of her own childhood, and composed poems on a wide variety of topics, all of which reflected her down to earth philosophy of trust in God and faith in her fellow-man. One book, Ways of Pleasantness, was published some time ago in two editions and she had been working, as her strength permitted, at compiling material for another volume.

The service, which was conducted on Jan. 1, by Rev. Th. Van Petegem, was simple, composed of prayers, Bible passages and organ music, the musical selections being especially requested by the deceased.

The funeral was held in the old farmhouse, as had been those of her grandparents, parents and two brothers, John and Thomas.

A great number of friends gathered to pay their respects to this grand old lady.

MR. AND MRS. W. WILLARD, OF BURY.

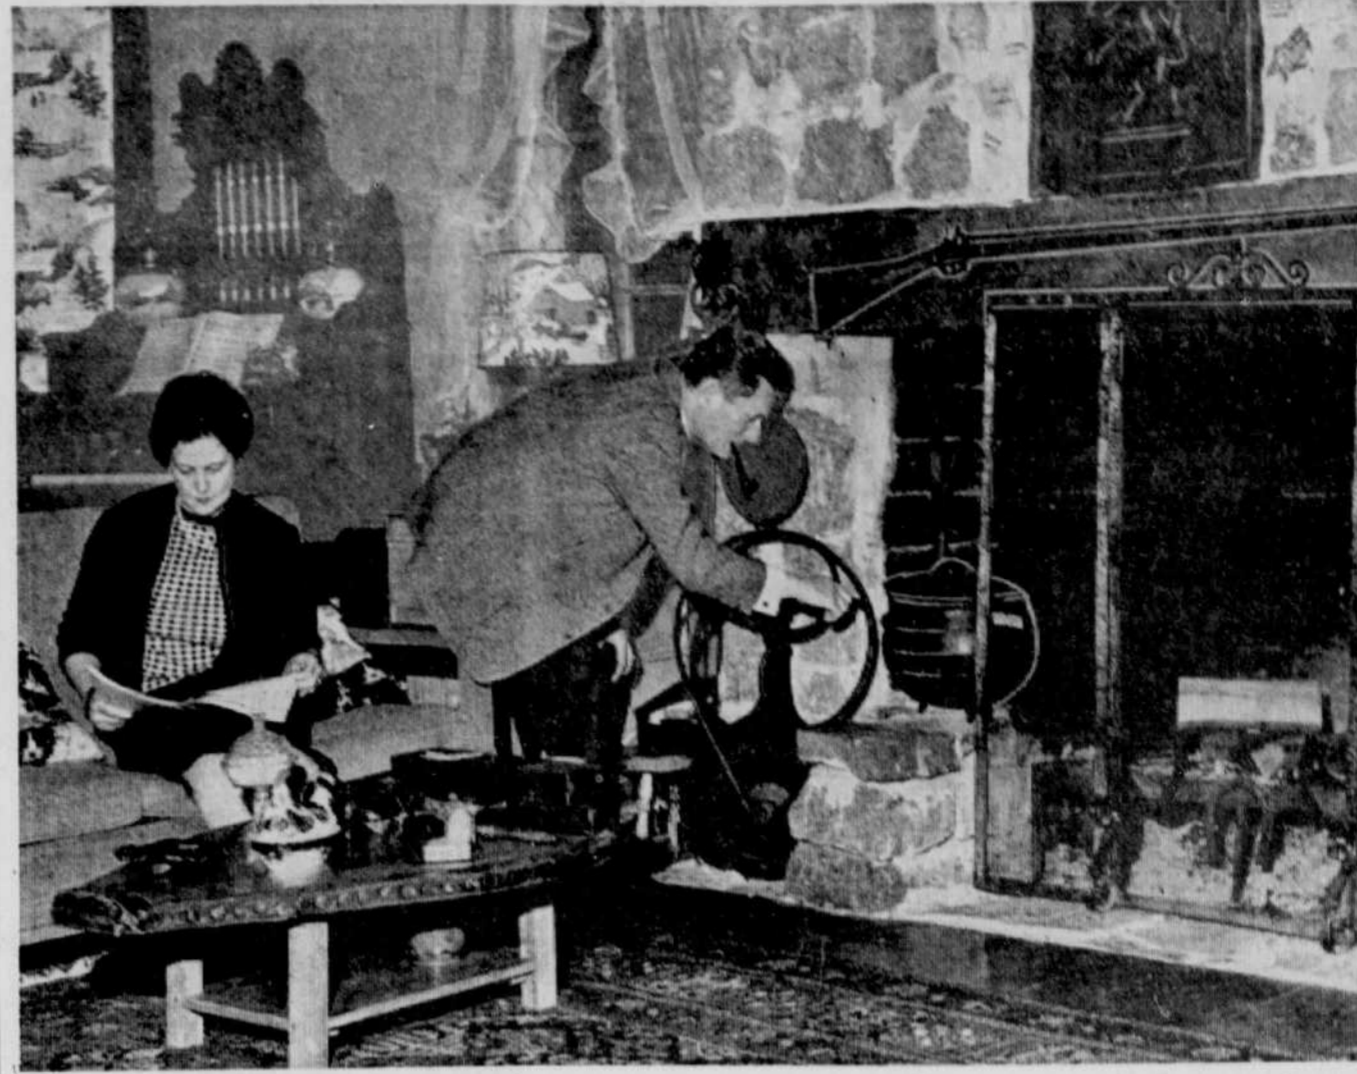

BURY — The deaths occurred at the Hotel Dieu Hospital, in Sherbrooke, of Lois Mary Tupper Willard on Dec. 29, 1962, and of her husband, William Roswell Willard, on Jan. 1, 1963, due to an accident in a fall on Dec. 4, which had necessitated their removal to hospital.

Mrs. Willard was born in Tupperville, Que., on Oct. 16, 1884, the daughter of the late Hardy Tupper and his wife, Electa Bishop, of Bishopton.

Mr. Willard was born in East Dudsell, on July 23, 1880, son of the late Roswell Willard and his wife, Ellen Bishop.

In September 1962, the couple celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary, having been married on Sept. 24, 1902, by the Rev. Mr. Rowan in Tupperville.

Mrs. Willard leaves a sister,

Mrs. Scott Gilbert, of Bishopton, and Mr. Willard is survived by his brothers, Moses, of Sherbrooke and Rufus, of Rochester, N.Y.

Due to a severe snowstorm services were held from the Bishopton Funeral Home, instead of the Bishopton United Church, by Rev. G. Lokhorst, of East Angus.

The bearers were Ernest McAulay, Ernest Bennett, Rufus Stevenson, Roy Harrison, Norman Matheson and Stuart Joyce. Interment was in Lakeside Cemetery.

MRS. THOMAS WILSON, OF BEEBE, QUE.

BEEBE, QUE — The death of Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson, wife of the late Thomas Wilson, occurred in the Sherbrooke Hospital on Jan. 6, 1963, following a brief illness. She was in her 69th year.

Born in Dalbeattie, Scotland, daughter of William Trainer and his wife, Jessie Smith, she received her education in Scotland and came to Canada as a bride to settle in Granitville, Que., where her husband was employed as a trained granite cutter.

As a young girl she was active in church work, especially in the choir, and during World War I rendered her services singing in Red Cross benefit entertainments.

After coming to this country Mrs. Wilson continued her work in the church and for years gave freely of her singing talent at concerts in Beebe. Many happy hours were also spent assisting with children and young people at school and church entertainments in Granitville.

Her husband predeceased her in 1942, after which she moved to Beebe. For the past few years she made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Laberee.

Surviving her are three daughters, Hazel, Mrs. Gordon Laberee, Jessie, Mrs. Edwin Mettette, and Alice, Mrs. Leslie Rediker, all of Beebe; and three grandchildren.

The funeral service was held in Wesley United Church on Jan. 9, with Rev. Ralph W. Rogers officiating, assisted by the Rev. Arthur B. Lovelace, of Lennoxville. During the service, two favorite hymns, In The Garden and The Old Rugged Cross, were played by the organist, Miss Evelyn Purcell.

Interment was in the Woodside Cemetery. Bearers were William and Victor Denney, Cecil Millar, Salvatore Galazzo, David Grieve and John Stuart Morrison.

New 1963 slate is presented by Megantic group

LAKE MEGANTIC — The January meeting of St. Andrew's Ladies Aid Society was held at the home of Mrs. F. Crossman, Sr.

The new slate of officers for 1963 was presented as follows: Mrs. Sam Jardine, president; Mrs. Bessie Matheson, vice-president; Mrs. Neil Stewart, secretary, and Mrs. F. Crossman, Sr., treasurer.

The financial report for 1962, read by the treasurer, was most gratifying.

Later refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Bailey-David.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Campbell MacLean.

Officers elected for 1963 are as follows: President, Mrs. Ronald Talbot; first vice-president, Mrs. J. Marcotte; second vice-president, Mrs. Percy Ledoux; secretary, Mrs. K. Talbot; treasurer, Miss A. Ashton; auditors, Mrs. J. Marcotte and Mrs. Caw.

Mrs. Talbot took the chair to discuss new business.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served, which included a birthday cake in honor of Mr. Barnes, whose birthday was on that day. Mr. Barnes provided a special treat of sugar-on-snow.

Mrs. Ledoux invited the group to hold the Feb. meeting at her home in Waterloo.

P. Blanchard of Magog setting pace in St. Francis Hockey League while Real Provencher of Jets top goalie

RICHMOND — Dr. Roland Bernier, president of the St. Francis Valley Intermediate Hockey League, has released scoring statistics up to January 20. Games of Jan. 24 and 27 are not included in this list.

President Bernier finally obtained all score sheets from the clubs and reason for not having done so earlier, was that some of the clubs failed to send their sheets to him on time.

P. Blanchard, Mike Sawyer and Gerry Menard of Magog, Richmond and Rock Island respectively are the "big three" in scoring to date. Blanchard has most points with 33 for 15 goals and 18 assists. Sawyer leads the marksmen with 17 goals and his 15 assists give him 32 points. Menard has 31 points from 13 goals and 18 assists.

Next in line are, Roger (Pat) Desrosiers, Richmond, with 29 points as well as Real Jacques of Magog, the same number of points. Three players are in a tie for fifth place in the scoring: P. Ellis, Rock Island, R. Boucher, Magog, and M. Audet, Windsor, each with 22 points.

Real Provencher leads the netminders with an average 2.55 goals against him followed by Yvan Letarte, Magog with 3.66; Gil Sawyer, Richmond with 4.00 and J. St. Laurent, Windsor 4.75.

R. Perreault is the league's "bad man" with 78 minutes spent in the penalty box. Richmond is the most penalized club with 352 minutes. Rock Island has 290, Magog 228 and Windsor 172 minutes.

Richmond down Coaticook 4-3 in close battle, Wheeler gets two for winners and Grady for losers

Richmond Intermediates edged Coaticook 4-3 over the weekend in a close well-played hockey match in Richmond.

No scoring resulted in the opening period but, in the second frame, Coaticook came on strong with T. Chamberlain tallying on passes by Hamilton and Grady with Grady firing in a sizzling unassisted goal to make it 2-0 Coaticook.

In the third stanza, St. Francis High of Richmond poured on the steam and came up with four goals in quick succession. D. Healy picked up Richmond's first goal on a pass play while Nixon and Rodgers while Whittingstall notched on, thanks to an assist from Rodgers.

Wheeler fired in two more Richmond goals, one on a pass from Planadin and the other assisted by Rodgers, bringing the score to 4-2 for the hosts.

Towards the end of the final period, Coaticook came back very strongly when Grady made it 4-3 with a breakaway goal

Quebec Senior Ski Championships at Mount Sutton

The above photo shows the chair-lift at Mt. Sutton where the Quebec Senior Ski Championships will be held Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 3 and 4. On Saturday at 10.00 a.m. the downhill is scheduled while Sunday it will be the Slalom.

SUTTON — (Staff) — A variety of awards and trophies outnumbering those presented last year will be in store for winners of the Quebec Division Senior Ski Championships to be held at Mount Sutton Saturday and Sunday February 2 and 3 respectively.

The downhill competitions are scheduled to get underway Saturday at 11 a.m. Sunday will be devoted to Slalom competitions and activity will get underway at 10.30 a.m. to be followed by a special slalom in the afternoon.

Trophies this year will be donated by Ernest Pouliot, regional representative of O'Keefe Breweries.

Organizer of the two-day event, Jean-Paul Deslaires, of Sutton, urges those who wish to join in the competitions to register as soon as possible.

Drawing for positions will be held at the Horizon Hotel, Sutton.

NHL top scorers have favored teams

MONTREAL (CP)—The top scorers in the National Hockey League—those with more than 20 goals to their credit—have much more success against some opposing teams than others.

Toronto's Frank Mahovlich has scored 10 of his league-leading 26 goals against Boston. The last-place Bruins are also the favorite target of Detroit's Gordie Howe, who has tallied 10 of his 22 markers against the cellar-dwellers.

New York's Andy Bathgate has scored six of his 23 goals against Boston compared to five apiece against Montreal and Chicago.

Boston's John Bucyk prefers the Maple Leafs, scoring nine of his 21 tallies against Toronto. Parker MacDonald of Detroit also likes playing Toronto, scoring seven of his 21 goals against the Leafs.

Official NHL statistics released today show Mahovlich and Bucyk tied for leadership in the scoring race with 50 points each.

Mahovlich had a big week, picking up three goals and three assists while Bucyk scored one goal along with three assists.

Bathgate follows with 48 points. Howe and Murray Oliver of Boston are tied for fourth place with 46. Next is Montreal's Henri Richard with 45 points. Teammate Jean Beliveau moved into the top scoring ranks by picking up two goals and another assist for 44, the same point-total as that of Chicago's Stan Mikita.

Beliveau leads the league in assists with 35.

Toronto's Dave Feen had a terrific week, scoring three goals and assisting in four more to move into ninth place with 42 points.

Other outstanding individual performances last week were Red Kelly's three goals and four assists for Toronto jumping him into 12th spot in the scoring parade, and Camille Henry's four goals for New York which pulled him into a tie for 15th.

Chicago's Glenn Hall moved ahead of Montreal goalie Jacques Plante in the race for the Vezina Trophy which goes to the netminder who plays the most games for the team least scored on in season play.

Chicago has been scored on 112 times in 48 games for a 2.33 goals-against average. Although Plante has a personal 2.11 goals-against average compared to Hall's 2.27, the Montreal team has been scored on 110 times in 47 games for an average of 2.34.

Chicago remains the most penalized team in the league with 588 minutes in penalties, only two more than Detroit.

Howie Young of Detroit remains the league's most penalized player with 154 minutes.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Baltimore — Gaspar Ortega, 148½, Mexico, outpointed Charley Scott, 148¼, Philadelphia, 10.

Granby here Thursday evening in opening tilt of playoffs, season ticket No. 17 to be accepted

The Eastern Provincial Hockey League will open their playoffs Thursday evening when the Granby Vics will visit Sherbrooke. The three clubs, Granby, Drummondville and Sherbrooke will stage a semi-final instead of finishing out the schedule.

Sherbrooke season ticket holders are advised that the executive of the Beavers will honor ticket No. 17 for Thursday's game and No. 18 for the next local game, Feb. 10. The teams indicated that there would be a light increase in admission prices for the playoffs as in past years.

All games will be played to a finish, meaning if after the end of regulation time the game is tied a ten-minute overtime will commence. After that the teams will have a rest period before commencing a 20-minute sudden-death overtime. The first goal will then end the game.

A close battle is expected Thursday when the Beavers and the Vics clash. Hockey fans can expect close battle from now on as all clubs will be going all out in an effort to come up with victories.

The two clubs finishing on top of this eight-game series will then clash in a final to determine the league champion and represent the circuit in Provincial playdowns which commence at the end of March.

Two years ago Beavers and Vics clashed and it required the full seven games before the Vics managed to cop the series.

So far this year the Beavers and Vics have staged close battles with each club slight favorites on their home ice. The Vics on their last visit to Sherbrooke emerged with a 6-2 decision in their favor. It gave them the edge in games having previously registered 3-2 and 4-1 wins while the Beavers posted 5-1 and 5-2 victories so the fans can expect a close battle.

Hollywood, Calif.—Jesus Pimentel, 119, Mexico, stopped Mayo Robles, 118½, Mexico, 6.

Toronto—Peter Schmidt, 153, Toronto, stopped Johnny Hall, 157, Paterson, N.J., 2.

Paris—Ray Adigan, Nigeria, knocked out Ahmed Lamine, Tunisia, 2. Lightweights.

Bruce Kidd increases training

TORONTO (CP)—Fred Foot, coach of track star Bruce Kidd, said Monday night Kidd's training has been increased in preparation for an attempt at a world record for the three and six-mile races.

Foot said Kidd would run 72 laps around the University of Toronto Hart House track, a distance of about six miles, instead of the 48 laps he has been running.

"Bruce has had a loafer's holiday since the British Empire Games as far as training is concerned," Foot said. "We now have to speed up the practices to perhaps 84 laps a day for a try at the world marks this summer."

Knudson and Sanders out of tourney

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) George Knudson of Toronto and Doug Sanders of Miami were forced to withdraw from the $50,000 Palm Springs Classic golf tournament Monday as the complete field of 128 professionals was filled.

It was reported that Sanders suffered an injury to a finger and had to bow out of the tournament which starts Wednesday. The nature of Knudson's problem was not disclosed.

Enjoy Skiing

By ANNE HEGGVEIT

Here is another exercise to prepare a skier for a turn using the parallel method.

Place the ski poles half way between the ski tips and the feet. As always, your feet and knees are pressed together keeping the weight on the balls of your feet. Now hop, lifting only the tails of your skis, first to the right.

HEEL THRUST
Don't jump. The idea is not how high you can go, but it is to encourage the proper sideways heel thrust.

Afterwards practise this to the left. As well, try it without poles.

The upper body must act as a counter balance to this movement. Have you ever ridden a bicycle full-speed around a corner? Your upper body acts the same way on skis. (See illustration.)

Once this exercise is practised on the flat it should then be practised on a slope. Traverse the hill keeping the feet and knees together weight on the balls of the feet and your back to the hill. (This traverse position has been described previously.)

When you have sufficient momentum try a small sideways hop (tails only) so that you turn into the hill. This is simplified by using a slight ridge or bump on which to make the hop.

Practise this manoeuvre both to the left and to the right. You can see how it is preparing you to make a smooth turn into the hill.

Several small hops may be needed to complete your turn. Later the hop need only be reduced until you are just removing your weight from your skis while leaving them on the ground.

In these few articles I am not describing the entire parallel method of learning to ski, but only some of the important manoeuvres which I hope will give you an idea of how this method works.

Miss Heggveit will answer questions from skiers as space permits. Address Enjoy Skiing in care of the Sherbrooke Daily Record.
