PAUL MARTIN

Makes proposal for U.N.

NEW YORK (CP)—External Affairs Minister Paul Martin made a flying trip to New York Tuesday to put forward a three-part plan for strengthening the peace-keeping capability of the United Nations.

He also met with UN Secretary-General U Thant and disclosed that Thant has been invited to make a formal visit to Canada. He said the visit may be made this year, possibly in September.

Later, speaking before the annual awards dinner of the Overseas Press Club of America, he said Canada is determined to explore and support practical ways of strengthening the UN peace-keeping machinery.

The Canadian government is not disturbed by the fact that significant elements in the UN membership are opposed to a standby UN force, he said.

COULD TAKE STEPS

"We believe that even in the absence of formal arrangements there are steps which still can be taken to make the peace-keeping machinery of the United Nations more effective."

As a first step, he suggested individual governments could improve their own arrangements for providing military assistance to the UN.

He noted that Canada maintains an infantry battalion and transport facilities "which would enable us to place troops at the disposal of the United Nations on short notice anywhere in the world."

Pope rallies as condition still grave

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John, rallying from a crisis that brought him near death, was reported slightly improved today after spending a good night.

But from the report by Vatican authorities it was clear that improvement was only in relation to the crisis the 81-year-old Roman Catholic ruler suffered Tuesday.

Three separate blood transfusions to offset extensive internal bleeding from an abnormal stomach growth that has bothered him for a year were reported necessary to pull the pontiff through his brush with death Tuesday.

His condition still is grave, and his Roman physician, Dr. Piero Mazzoni, was with him throughout the night. It was his eighth straight night in the Apostolic Palace.

Classic words comfort Pope

Pope John lay on his sickbed, and the words of consolation and fortitude fell on his ears.

"Man proposes, but God disposes; neither is the way of man in his own hands."

Beside the Pope's bed, an alert, dark-haired priest sat in a chair, reading aloud from an open book.

"He that clings to the creature shall fall with its falling. He that embraces Jesus shall stand firm forever."

The words were classic old words, always treasured by Pope John, and they come to him now in his grave illness.

"It is good for us at times to have troubles and adversities; for they make a man enter into himself, so that he may know that he is an exile, and may not place his hopes in any thing of this world."

The mediations, from Imitation of Christ, written more than 500 years ago by a 15th-century monk, Thomas a-Kempis, have been a source of spiritual strength ever since throughout the Christian world.

Pope John turned to it in his affliction.

"My son, in proportion as you go out of yourself, so will you be able to enter into Me."

READS TO POPE

Vatican sources said the Pope's private secretary, Msgr. Loris Capovilla, came often, to sit beside the Pope and read to him from the book.

MIRACLE NEEDED

After the Pope's harrowing day Tuesday, the word from inside the Vatican was: "Only a miracle can save him."

(Reuters news agency quoted an authoritative Vatican source as being slightly optimistic today. Reuters quoted the source as saying the Pope had "a heart like a horse" and might be able to resist his illness even for a month.)

Vatican authorities said the Pope appeared rested this morning.

His illness was said to have reached a state where he visibly suffers pain. He also has a prostate condition that might disturb him at night. Once shortly after midnight the lights in the Pope's apartment were switched on for 15 minutes, indicating his rest was disturbed.

The crisis Tuesday apparently was the worst since he was stricken by what the Vatican call a "gastric heteroplasia." That could be a benign tumor, a cancer, or an overgrowth of tissue.

DOCTORS DISTURBED

Any one condition could cause hemorrhaging. Vatican communiques indicated the doctors were more disturbed by the hemorrhages than the growth itself.

This could indicate that the growth was benign and not spreading as would cancer.

Concern mounted as Vatican sources said the Pope found difficulty in retaining the all-liquid diet which has been nourishing him since last week.

The greaty worry seemng to plague doctors during the last 24 hours was the Pope's lessening resistance to new hemorrhages. Time and again he had rallied strongly during the early stages of his sickness.

Although the spiritual ruler of the world's half billion Roman Catholics was said to be in pain, Vatican sources reported his mind is clear.

They said he was aware that Catholics and non - Catholics alike around the world were praying for him.

The Pope was described as resigned to death.

The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano said hemorrhaging had subsided but did not say the loss of blood had been halted. It used the term "gastric heteroplasia" to describe the Pope's ailment.

The statement in L'Osservatore Romano revealed that the Pope had been ill for a year. Previous reports had dated his illness to last fall.

The statement said the Pope was aware that he was close to death.

Negroes to appeal federal judge ruling

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Counsel for Negroes seeking to desegregate city schools prepared today to appeal a federal judge's ruling that in effect gave local authorities more time to integrate the schools.

U.S. District Judge Seybourn H. Lynne denied Tuesday a requested injunction against school integration and said that the Negroes had not exhausted the provisions of the Alabama pupil placement law.

A Negro lawyer, Orzell Billingsley Jr., said the decision would be appealed immediately to the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

A Birmingham Negro integration leader, Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth, president of the Alabama Christian Movement for Human Rights, commented:

"Judge Lynne's decision in the school case was against what America promised — desegregation and integration of the races. It must be appealed at once."

ALLOWS CHANCE

Lynne gave the school board a chance at voluntary integration, but warned that he would order the board to draw up a desegregation plan if the pupil placement law was not applied without discrimination.

Lynne said school authorities had assured him they would comply with the law, a 1956 statute that gives school boards almost unlimited pupil assignment powers.

Lynne followed a 1958 federal judge's panel decision that the law furnishes a legal machinery for an orderly administration of the public schools in a constitutional manner by the admission of qualified pupils upon a basis of individual mert.

The U.S. Supreme Court affirmed the lower court ruling on the placement law, with a warning against its possible unconstitutional use.

Lynne said the placement law must first be tested before he would consider ordering desegregation.

Scientists meet

QUEBEC (CP)—More than 1,000 papers will be read at this year's Conference of Learned Societies on a variety of subjects of broad current interest. The conference begins Wednesday at Laval University, with several hundred present of the 4,000 scientists who will be in Quebec City in the next two weeks.

Hospital probe proposes tighter charity controls

QUEBEC (CP) — Recommendations to put tighter controls on charitable and social organizations and to regulate companies that specialize in raising money for charity, have come from a provincial government inquiry commission into Montreal's Fleury General Hospital.

The report of Judge Jean Tellier, his second into the hospital's administration, was tabled in the legislature Tuesday by Premier Lesage.

He told reporters government legal advisers are studying the report for possible court or legislative action.

The report was divided into three sections dealing with a financial campaign by the hospital, its building fund and administration of funds in general.

It said the 1961 financial campaign was a "fiasco."

It collected $27,173 at a cost of $54,052—including a fee of $27,000 charged by Power and Desroches Incorporated, a firm that operates fund-raising campaigns.

"I believe," wrote Judge Tellier, "that special legislation regulating the holding of these charitable campaigns is necessary."

The legislation should require publication of names of professional organizers, expenses and fees and other information which the public has a right to know, Judge Tellier said.

The report called for changes to the Companies Act, as it affects non - profit organizations. The amendment proposed would require such companies to have a board of directors of more than three members—"that is, a number sufficient and considerable enough to prevent them from becoming closed or family corporations."

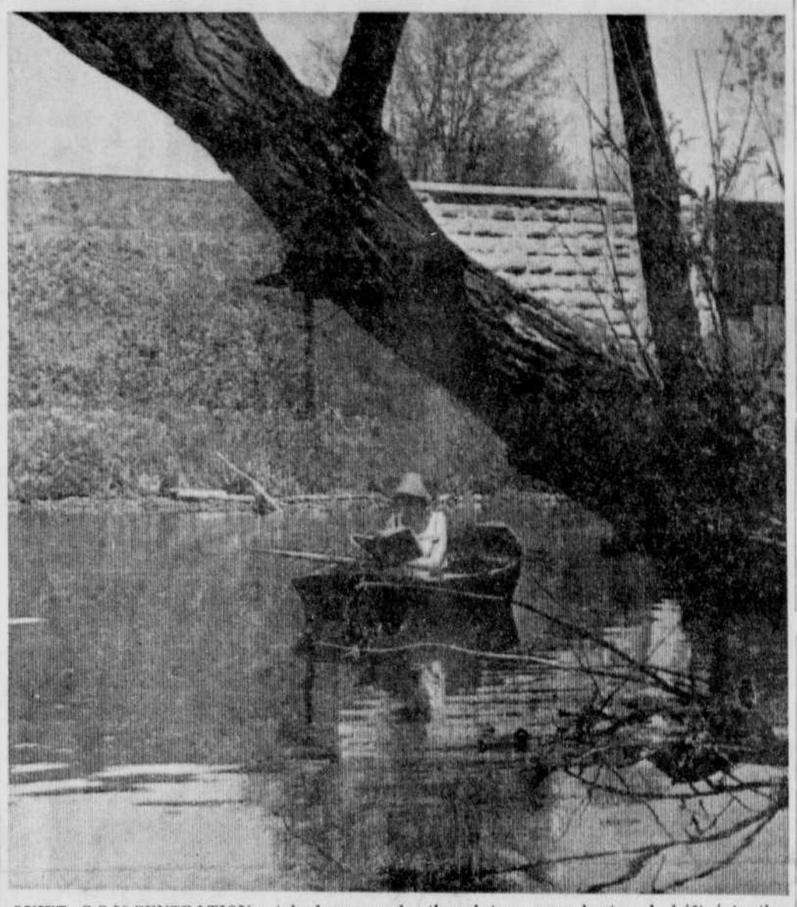
Balcer proposes five immediate measures

Says Quebec 'revolt' won't wait for report of bicultural probe



QUIET CONCENTRATION — Stratford high school student Ruth Kelly finds the best way to escape jangling telephones and other interruptions while cramming for her grade 13 examinations is to pile her books into a row boat and drift into the middle of the secluded Lower Avon River.

OTTAWA (CP) — The senior Progressive Conservative spokesman from Quebec, Leon Balcer, says the "peaceful revolution" in his province is such that the federal government cannot afford to wait two years for a royal commission report.

The former transport minister told the Commons Tuesday that Quebec "will sink even deeper into separatism" unless immediate action is taken to give the province a larger role in Confederation and French-Canadians a larger role in society.

Mr. Balcer, MP for Trois-Rivieres, since 1949, proposed five measures which he said are needed now:

1. A five-per-cent preference to bilingual applicants in civil service exams to encourage bilingualism in the public service and boost French-Canadian representation to a fair level.

2. Creation of a federal district comprising Ottawa and Hull, Que., administered by a commission divided evenly between representatives of both language groups so that French-Canadians would feel "really at home" in the national capital.

3. A federal-provincial fiscal conference to consider demands by Quebec and other provinces for a larger share of direct taxes.

4. Adoption of a distinctive flag.

5. Official recognition of "O Canada" as the national anthem.

Today the Commons will complete its eight-day debate on the speech from the throne which outlined the government's legislative program at the opening of Parliament May 16.

The minority Liberal administration will face its third vote test of the session when the address in reply to the throne speech comes to a vote at 5:45 p.m. EDT. In effect, it will be a vote of confidence but the government is expected to weather the test with some help from the Social Credit and New Democratic parties.

Thursday the 26th Parliament will tackle its first item of government legislation—a motion to set up an all-party defence committee.

Mr. Balcer, 45-year-old lawyer, said English-French relations have been soured by terrorist acts of "the angry madmen of the FLQ" (Front de Liberation Quebecois). These were the acts "of a few" and were deplored by all right thinking French-Canadians.

He said the "ferment" in Quebec began long before the FLQ bombings and the separatist movement. It had started with the education reforms introduced by the late premier Paul Sauve.

Butterworth letter said a trick photo

OTTAWA (CP) — Highly-placed informants say a three-stage photographic technique was used to produce a highly controversial political document which Prime Minister Pearson and U.S. Ambassador Walton Butterworth have branded as a forgery.

The document, read in the Commons Monday by Gordon Churchill, former Conservative defence minister, is so worded as to appear to be a pledge by Mr. Butterworth of support for the Liberal leader before the April 8 election.

The text contains criticisms of the former Conservative government as narrow-minded and unfit to govern Canada.

Source of the document was uncertain. One report quoted a government spokesman as saying it originated behind the Iron Curtain. But official sources here said no one was authorized to state this on behalf of the government.

Mr. Churchill said in an interview Tuesday that such a suggestion is "completely false." He declined to discuss the document except to say that any further reference to it by him should be made in the House of Commons.

One informant said a study of photostats indicates separate photographs were made of a U.S. embassy letterhead, the text quoted by Mr. Churchill and the written signature of W. Walton Butterworth, the ambassador.

The source said these then were fitted together to give a picture of a letter on embassy stationery over Mr. Butterworth's signature.

Informants say one flaw in the document was that in assembling the photographic stages the physical proportions of letterhead, type and signature were thrown out. The photostat, reproduced to the normal size of U.S. embassy notepaper, would have the document's text running off the normal-sized page.

At least one was mailed to Canada from London, England, postmarked March 25 but arrived after the April 8 election. The envelope was marked to indicate insufficient postage was paid for it to travel by air.

Reliable sources said that Mr. Butterworth became aware of the document about the middle of the week preceding election day and that he advised Robert Bryce, clerk of the Privy Council, to inform the Canadian government that a forgery was being circulated.

Mr. Bryce, a civil servant, declined to be drawn into what has become a political question. However, an informant says Mr. Butterworth's message was passed along to the Diefenbaker campaign train.

49 die as roof falls

CP from AP-Reuters

LISBON, Portugal — Tumbling concrete slabs and steel girders from a collapsing railway station roof crushed 49 persons to death and injured 61 other Portuguese in a holiday crowd here Tuesday.

The tragedy forced cancellation of further celebrations marking the 37th anniversary of the revolution that brought Premier Antonio Oliveira Salazar to power. There were reports of sabotage and police began an investigation.

Passengers returning from nearby beaches had just stepped out of a train when the roof of the Cais de Sodre Station, built about two years ago, began to crumple. Huge blocks of concrete and stones trapped the victims, some of them children.

Priests administered last rites to the dying. Doctors gave blood transfusions to the critically injured.

Rescuers dug through rubble to reach the victims. Cranes were brought from a nearby bridge construction site to help hoist up the blocks of rubble.

Suggest Rhodesia meeting

OTTAWA (CP)—Some thought has been given here to the possibility of convening a Commonwealth conference on the political future of Southern Rhodesia.

Informants say thinking on this problem hasn't reached the point where any plans for calling a conference have passed among Commonwealth capitals.

But a source close to the cabinet indicated that if talks in London on Rhodesian independence fail, a Commonwealth meeting of prime ministers or foreign ministers might help the situation. At least one British newspaper, the Manchester Guardian, made such a suggestion last week.

Lord Home, British foreign secretary, said Britain's decolonization of territories now has reached its most testing stage in Africa.

It is believed Lord Home discussed the situation with Prime Minister Pearson and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin during his trip here last week for the NATO ministerial meeting.

Meanwhile, informed sources said Canada will participate in a United Nations peace-keeping operation in Yemen, the tiny country in the southwest corner of the Arabian peninsula.

WORLD NEWS

QUEBEC (CP) — Attorney-General Georges Lapalme said Tuesday he has received confidential information about Le Front de Liberation Quebecois, a Quebec terrorist organization, and has turned it over to the police.

Mr. Lapalme told the legislature his information came from an informer "worthy of trust" who visited Mr. Lapalme's home in Outremont, a Montreal suburb, Monday.

He said the informer did not reveal the sources of the information passed on to Mr. Lapalme.

REGINA (CP)—Lung cancer among Canadian men has shown an eight-fold increase in the last 30 years, Dr. John W. Davies of Ottawa said Tuesday.

Dr. Davies, medical consultant of the epidemiology division of the federal department of public health, told a cancer symposium the Canadian death rate from lung cancer has yet to reach the same level as in the United Kingdom, Finland and Austria. But "nevertheless there has been a sharp increase in mortality during the last 30 years."

NEW YORK (AP)—Two Negro ministers have announced formation of a clerical alliance to combat exploitation of Negroes by Negroes and what they call "racism in reverse" — a tendency by some Negroes "to attack whites indiscriminately."

Dr. William S. Rieh, president of the newly formed Northern Baptist Alliance of 60 ministers representing 7,500 persons in the New York metropolitan area, predicted the organization "will shortly be attacked by many Negro ministers and others in Harlem."

MANILA, The Philippines (Reuters) — Headhunters beheaded two girls and a young man picnicking in the mountains of northern Luzon, police reported today. Four other picnickers escaped by hiding in thick bushes.

The headhunters belong to a tribe that has an ancient custom requiring its young men to obtain the heads of Christians before they can court tribal maidens.

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With David Niven, it's a case of have Oscar, must travel.

After making seven films in seven countries, the Briton has settled down to make a movie in Hollywood, of all places. And you can jolly well bet that his Oscar (Separate Tables, 1958) came along with him.

"Why, of course," he remarked on the set of King of the Mountain. "Wherever I go, it goes. I'm not one of those people who treat it casually as a bookend or something like that. I'm damned proud of it."

Niven has been gone from his Hollywood haunts for more than three years, but he said it wasn't for tax reasons. In these days an actor must go where the work is, and his work has taken him far afield to such filming grounds as Israel (Two Enemies), Spain (55 Days at Peking) and Italy (The Pink Panther).

Like all top stars, Niven goes where the good scripts are. But he confessed that isn't his only yardstick. He has what might be called the Niven sliding scale for his film pay.

"It's like this," he said. "One really must work, I suppose, but it's a shame to let your work interfere with play.

"There are certain times of year when I will work if necessary, but my price goes up. The early part of the year is bad, because that is my skiing season. If any work interferes with that, oh, dear—that really costs the producer.

"July and August are terribly expensive. That's when we like to go up to Sweden and eat lots of fish, and I spend a lot of the summer under water in the Mediterranean, skin diving. We have our house at Nice, and it's awfully hard to break away for work, really.

"Christmas is another expensive time to hire me, because we like to spend it at home with the whole family. Actually, the times when I am cheapest is late spring and early fall. I'm an absolute bargain then."

Despite his European residence, his ties to Hollywood are strong and may get stronger.

With the death of Dick Powell, Niven and Charles Boyer are taking more part in policy decisions at Four Star Productions. Both have been here for conferences and last Sunday night accepted the Television Academy's award to Powell for his services to the industry.

410 donors give blood at Red Cross clinic

The Red Cross's four-day blood doner clinic at the Belvedere Street Armory received 401 donors yesterday, still short of its 500-a-day objective. Monday's total was 279.

Today and tomorrow remain to push the total up to the hoped-for 2,000. Two more donors will also be chosen to compete with the two chosen on the first two days for the air trip to New York being offered to a lucky donor by American Biltrite.

Language problems

Says student clubs would help promote better understanding

By SANDRA PICKFORD
(Record staff reporter)

A Catholic School Commission official Tuesday night urged the formation of local "get acquainted" clubs for English and French-speaking students to help break down the language barrier and promote better understanding between the two language groups.

The chairman of the Sherbrooke Catholic School Commission, Francois Thibault a teacher with 42 years of experience behind him both in and outside of Quebec, told members of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club he would like to see "get acquainted" clubs start with a first meeting at the Montcalm park-school for boys on Farwell Street and Portland Boulevard.

The one and three-quarter million dollar school now under construction is expected to be completed by September 15.

Mr. Thibault said he would like English and French-speaking students to meet in the new school gymnasium to hold discussions, study, play sports and in general, get to know each other.

"There is a lack of understanding between the two important elements — Anglo-Saxon and French—of our Canadian people that is a threat to national unity and Confederation itself," said Mr. Thibault.

"The language is a barrier. Remove this barrier and you help bridge the chasm and strengthen the ties of Confederation.

"There is much uneasiness, anxiety and violence in the province today," Mr. Thibault said, "and the reasons are deeply rooted.

"French and English-speaking must get together and analyse the reasons why this is happening," Mr. Thibault remarked.

Mr. Thibault made a plea to Quebecers to travel.

"They don't travel enough," said Mr. Thibault "and meet other Canadians." He asked that Quebecers explain to others this province's problems and help the people of other provinces to try to understand the people of Quebec.

"The French-speaking people don't think there is a superior race," explained Mr. Thibault. The French-speaking people do not think of a Canada which is entirely French anymore than the English-speaking think of a Canada which is entirely English, he said.

Mr. Thibault urged the proper teaching of history in school.

"The students should be taught history in a way to unite Canadian people instead of pulling them apart," he said. In other subjects, he said the students should be taught the glorification of peace, not war and the glorification of talent instead of sports.

Fined $100 on two counts

Fourth man charged after raid on still

Roland Proulx, 41, of Magog, was fined $50 each on charges of leaving the scene of an accident and of resisting arrest, becoming the fourth man to be charged following the October 2 raid by Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Quebec Provincial Police on a still near Cookshire.

Judge Redmond Hayes imposed the fines Tuesday.

Proulx, whose brother Conrad was fined a total of $3,000 for being in possession of the still and 70 gallons of illegal alcohol, had pleaded not guilty to the charges against him.

A third man, Joseph Ambroise Boislard of Cookshire who rented his farm to Conrad Proulx, was fined a total of $1,000 for possession of the still and alcohol.

Conrad Proulx and Boislard were convicted last January during the 1963 Assizes of the Superior Court.

RCMP Constable George Rugenius of the Sherbrooke detachment said he had waited at the still after the raid, along with other RCMP and QPP men.

He said that a large truck drove into the yard and stopped. The lights were shut off.

Suddenly, he said the truck's lights were turned back on, and the vehicle was driven from the yard.

Two police cars gave chase, the RCMP in the lead, followed by a QPP patrol car.

Constable Rugenius said the truck kept to the middle of the road and the police vehicle was unable to pass.

The chase led through the towns of La Patrie and Chartierville, he said, before the police managed to pull their car ahead of the truck.

As they did so, he continued, the truck driver veered to the left, striking the police car

The driver ran into the woods, followed by Constable Rugenius with a flashlight

The constable said he found the man, later identified as Proulx, hiding under a tree.

The Mounties got their man after a 35-mile night time chase along lonely back roads near the Quebec-New Hampshire border and some hand-to-hand combat in the woods.

The Mounties' mechanized mount, however, was wounded in the line of duty.

Constable Rugenius said he identifed himself as a member of the RCMP and said, "I am placing you under arrest."

The man began to fight Constable Rugenius, until he was taken into custody by other members of the chase party.

Another man charged in connection with the raid, Bromptonville plumber Frank Benoit, was found not guilty of making a part of the still when he appeared March 22.

Although he admitted making two tanks later found used as part of the still, he said they were standard models and had other uses.

He also admitted selling copper and piping to the Proulx brothers.

Judge Evender Veilleux said at the time "It is difficult to say that a businessman should be required to verify the use to which his customers put the materials he sells them."

Jewish community marks Shovous

The holiday of Shovous, one of the three great Jewish religious feasts, is being observed by Jews throughout the world, including members of the local Jewish community.

The two-day holiday commenced at sunset Tuesday and concludes one hour after sunset on Thursday.

It commemorates the receiving of the Torah and the Ten Commandments on Mount Sinai following the exodus of the Jewish people from Egypt. It is also the anniversary date of the receiving of the Ten Commandments.

Special features of the feast are: More devotion to the Torah or Jewish Bible, and more time to the study of the Torah and the eating of dairy foods instead of meat during the two day period.

Shovous is considered as the most important of the great religious feasts as it is a commemoration of the foundation of the Jewish nation and is the basis of Judaism.

Special services are being held at the Agudath Achim Synagogue, Montreal Street. They opened Tuesday at 8 p.m. with another service tonight at eight. Thursday morning services are at 9 a.m. with a memorial service at 10:30 a.m.

African nationalism grows stronger

The ascendancy of African power may be years away, but it is beginning very strongly.

Last week, at an African "summit" conference in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, a "Charter of African Unity" was adopted. It represented a step toward the eventual polling of the resources of 31 countries containing more than 200 million people, most up them until recently colonial subjects.

The vision that African leaders have of their continent was best expressed by President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, who told delegates to the conference that Negroes "shall accumulate machinery and establish steel works, iron foundries and factories. We shall link the various states of our continent with communications. We shall astound the world with our hydro-electric power. We shall drain marshes and swamps, clear infested areas, feed the undernourished and rid our people of parasites and diseases."

As usual, Mr. Nkrumah was being overly optimistic. Only two countries in French-speaking Africa, for example, have balanced budgets. The continent's per capita income is about $50 a year. Millions of African Negroes are still clad in skins, and the voice of the drum is still important. Many Negroes still practice voodoo and millions of newly-born children are scarred with tribal markings. Political maturity is a long way off for most of the new countries.

But there can be little doubt that these difficulties will, in time be overcome. And, comparatively speaking, that time will be short. Africa is jumping almost from the Stone Age to the Space Age, with no stops in between. In today's world, development of this kind can proceed with amazing rapidity. The evolution of centuries can be telescoped into a few short decades.

The process will not always be a pleasant one. Consider, for example, the position of South Africa, and of Southern Rhodesia in this development. They may well be swallowed up in Pan-African nationalism.

But the tide cannot be stemmed. It must be accepted and dealt with on a realistic basis.

Subtle prejudices against Negroes

Unconscious prejudice against Negroes is a trap which even the most sympathetic and liberal-minded white-man can fall into. There are perhaps few things that gall a Negro more than overt segregation practises than an acceptance of him out of pity. This condescending attitude —some people view it as an expression of guilt—is not reserved for Negroes alone. Destitute families and underdeveloped countries have known the kind of help that is given less for humanitarian purposes than for a kind of self-gratification on the part of the donor.

People in need—whether it is of equal rights or groceries for the supper table—will settle for something tangible and argue later about the attitude in which they are given.

The second - class - citizen approach towards Negroes is fostered in ways that are not immediately obvious and can be just as harmful in preventing a settlement of racial discrimination as the segregation practises of the American Deep South.

The movies, especially those produced in Hollywood, have shown a remarkable blindness to the unfavorable image of the Negro they have conveyed for years. Apart from a very few exceptions, the Negro in the American movie is usually either such a lovable bland type or a terrifyingly depraved maniac that he is unbelievable. He is drained of all life and is pictured with about as much depth as the shadows on the screen have.

Another sort of movie Negro is the one usually seen in travelogues, and here he is portrayed with a little too much precision. The viewer is brought into the mud hut village in the deepest of Africa and, by way of the camera, is allowed to intrude into the intimate lives of the natives.

There are always close-up shots of the village wives, in near nakedness, washing the family clothes at the river bank. The tribal dances are photographed in great detail and by this time, the wives have finished their washing but haven't had a chance to dress. The closing scene pictures the village chief waving adieu to the cameramen and as the sun fades behind him in the west, the viewers can see his twenty-two shapely wives silhouetted against the bronze sky.

With the high temperatures of Africa, semi-nudity would seem to be the most reasonable way to dress. But what about film censorship? If scenes of unclothed white women are promptly snipped from films, why are those of undressed Negro women left in? Is the censor unwrittingly giving in to the subtle prejudice that Negroes are inferior and don't deserve the same respect? Do the viewers, after seeing the movie, feel that their understanding of Negroes has improved?

Council shows wisdom over housing

Public housing projects may play an important role in improving living conditions in blighted sections of a municipality but they are no substitute for an adequate program of private development.

Thus the City Council acted wisely in its decision not to seek revival of an East Ward project which had been suspended several months ago. The reason advanced by the aldermen — that the work already was being carried out by private interests — was a sound one.

Under certain circumstances government authorities at all levels must cooperate in replacing antiquated, unsafe and unsanitary dwellings with accommodation that meets the needs of the people. But these projects should be undertaken only as a last resort, when it becomes apparent that private capital cannot or will not assume the responsibility.

The experience of most municipalities that have entered the housing field on a large scale have been far from satisfactory.

Construction costs tend to run higher than estimates, tenants seem to take less interest in the property with a resultant advance in maintenance costs and politics too often become involved in operations. And the inevitable hand of bureaucracy adds itself to the difficulties.

Warning for boating season opening

(Saint John Telegraph-Journal)

The evidence at an Ontario inquest into a drowing death should be noted well by anyone who is inclined to neglect boating safety — and also by federal officials who reportedly are preparing to cancel certain lifejacket regulations.

A man lost his life after falling from his outboard runabout. Witnesses testified that although there were three adults aboard, there was only one lifejacket — in a child's size. The water was choppy, with two-foot waves, yet the owner had handed over the wheel to a man who had never operated a boat before.

Here are timely warnings which New Brunswickers should take to heart. The current Victoria Day long weekend has signalled the start of the boating season. Soon the rivers, and lakes will be crowded with small craft. Unless the operators exercise much more commonsense than these Ontario people did, that tragedy is bound to be duplicated many times this summer across the nation.

What made this death so unnecessary was that the boat owner deliberately broke a law designed to protect him.

The manager of the store where the boat was bought testified that he had offered his customer $10 life-jackets at a 25 per cent discount, but the bargain had been refused. This is not unusual, said the manager; "Some people will pay $2,000 for a new boat but won't spend $40 on lifejackets."

It is this kind of attitude which turns what might be just a small boating mishap into a fatality. Hence the need for the Small Vessels Regulations, which, among many valuable safety rules, speficy that no boat shall set out from shore unless everyone aboard has a suitable life-jacket or buoyant cushion.

Federal officials have proposed dropping this rule for sailboats, row-boats and canoes. They say there are too many of these craft for proper enforcement.

They should heed the Ontario coroner's answer to this argument. In his opening remarks, Dr. Morton Shulman said he intended to consider in the hope of securing better regulations and alerting the public. He later adjourned the inquest when a federal official refused to comment on the proposed changes in the lifejacket regulations.

Said Dr. Shulman: "We are here trying to save lives."

You don't save lives by abandoning safety regulations.

1812 Montreal invasion repulsed

By CAPT. H. C. HOWARD
Waterloo, Que.

One of the thrilling incidents of Canadian history is the story of the Battle of Chateauguay in the War of 1812, the events that led up to it and the heroic part taken in that momentous struggle for the paramount hinges of Lower Canada—the Port of Montreal—by the men of the Eastern Townships one hundred and fifty-two years ago.

This stirring page in our history is not alone remarkable in that it marks one of the most outstanding and unprecedented victories in military annals but it incidentally epitomizes a perfect instance of whole-hearted teamwork between all segments of French-speaking and Anglo-Saxon Canadians, acting as one in the face of a national emergency of the most critical and seemingly hopeless character and wherein their mutual resolve to survive never faltered.

With the Declaration of War in the year 1812, no nation could have been faced by a more desperate outlook as that which confronted Canada with the mobilization of a preponderating invading army based at Plattsburg for the purpose of the investment of Canada which U.S. Authorities intended to go forward in the spring of 1813.

This force approximated some 10,000 men under the command of U.S., Brig.-General Wade Hampton, an American general officer of proven ability who had distinguished himself conspicuously during the Revolutionary War and had now been entrusted by U.S. Congress with this major operation aimed at the subjugation of Canada, the nearest British territory, fully convinced that this country lacked the men and equipment with which to resist an invasion of this magnitude.

General Hampton had certain well defined ideas of his own regarding a successful invasion of Lower Canada. He had been carefully checking history on this point and he had arrived at the conclusion that one of the reasons so many thrusts into Lower Canada had proved disastrous had been due to the fact that these had been made by way of the waterway route into this territory, namely, that of what was known as the old Iroquois approach via Lake Champlain, thence up the Richelieu River. According to General Hampton's reckoning this was all wrong. Good enough, perhaps, for war canoes transporting Six Nation warriors mobile enough to take the various portages on the way in, but quite unsuited to the heavier equipment and personnel of a modern army. In brief, General Hampton planned to go in overland; in fact, U.S. General Hampton was so convinced on this score that he had acquired a negative fixation to water transport.

Pursuing this theory, doggedly, he and his staff had worked out what they believed to be a foolproof plan of campaign that would take the expedition far over to the right of the storied Iroquois passage up the Richelieu and on to the Sherbrooke-Sorel stage road with both feet firmly planted on dry ground, breaking through the mountainous wall of the Brome-Missisquoi region via the famous Bolton Pass. This would put the U.S., invading columns directly on the road now known as auto route 1.

Several of General Hampton's aides with some slight knowledge of the route raised a few queries. The well-known Bolton Pass was a narrow defile wherein it was reputed a handful of riflemen could stall an army. General Hampton gave a tolerant smile. True enough but just where was such a handful of riflemen to be found? The nearest military post held by Canadian forces was at St. Johns, perhaps, 50 miles west on the Richelieu River and according to recent intelligence held by a mere skeleton detachment.

However, General Hampton had no intention of going anywhere near St. Johns and his line of march had been carefully anticipated. He would cross to the Island of Montreal, the main objective, quite some distance above Sorel; then marching in out of a clear blue sky, occupy this important navigation centre, taking it completely by surprise. The sparsely held post at Chambly in Fort St. Louis on the Richelieu would be by-passed neatly and by the time the Commandant there became cognizant of the fact, the U.S. invading army would be in possession of Montreal, 20 miles to the west.

As a matter of fact, Hampton had only one anxiety; in effect, that Canadian General Prevost commanding a strong garrison at Quebec City, by some chance, if remote, should move out of Quebec, cross the St. Lawrence ahead of U.S. General Hampton's time-table then spread out to the west in a reconnaissance in force. Of course, as the situation existed now such a possibility was virtually chimerical because the very latest intelligence available to the U. S. General revealed Canadian General Prevost as a considerably complacent gentleman seemingly content to remain with his Redcoats behind the impregnable walls of Quebec City.

However, though well informed on the general situation there were certain additional facts of which Gen. Hampton remained in complete ignorance — facts, indeed, of an exceedingly vital nature completely obscured by the confidence and conviction born of his own positiveness.

For instance, the U.S. General remained blissfully ignorant of the type of executive soldier against whom he was operating directly, To wit, Colonel Joseph deSalaberry, to whose military genius had been entrusted the doubtful task of keeping the vast territory between his own central pivot at Chambly as well as the Richelieu route to the U.S. frontier under constant surveillance and with nothing more than a meagre force of 350 Militia cavalry and infantry—some of it drawn from Montreal—augmented by 500 allied Indians, most of these latter from tribes of the Six-Nations domiciled within this wide area of country above described.

Relative to Colonel deSalaberry, there were other facts unknown to U.S. General Hampton that had been aware must have undoubtedly restrained him from the confident pursuit of his way.

The redoubtable Colonel deSalaberry was a French-Canadian and hailed from a distinguished old military family. His forebears had been the Seigneurs of Beauport, a famous seigneury located below Quebec City.

Among the very intimate friends of this illustrious family had been the Duke of Kent, Queen Victoria's father, who had passed much of his youthful career in various staff capacities with the British Imperial forces serving in Canada. Attached to Htadquarters at Quebec Citadel he had made the acquaintance of most of the outstanding families, not last of which was that of the deSalaberry, Seigneurs of Beauport.

There may have been a special reason for this intimacy since one of the deSalaberry personalities was a very attractive young widow, Madame St. Laurent. Indeed, the Duke of Kent was reputed to be deeply in love with this young lady of fashion and it was said that had the inhibitions of rank—highly rigid at that period—permitted the match, the Duke would have married her.

As it was, when the question of a career for Joseph and his brother came up, the Duke used his considerable influence as a result of which the two young men entered the Royal Military College at Sandhurst from when they were commissioned in the British Army.

Here they rounded out distinguished careers, serving in various Imperial garrisons in the Empire. At the time of the War of 1812, both had retired but in view of his special aptitudes and qualifications, Colonel Joseph deSalaberry was called up for service again in the emergency and was posted to command at Fort St. Louis, Chambly, where the exigencies of the times found him facing a gigantic and almost impossible task—that of defending the entire south-shore of the St. Lawrence against major invasion and with a mere handful of troops.

To a lesser man than the redoubtable Colonel deSalaberry, such an undertaking must have seemed beyond the ken of flesh and blood. But deSalaberry attacked the seemingly imposible with a resolve and genius that ranks him among the elect of history.

He realized that in order to make any leaway at all, he must rely on constant and effective intelligence and in this regard he had one outstanding asset — his five hundred Six Nation warriors, perhaps, the most efficient trackers and scouting specialists in the business.

Accordingly, when his Indians reported that U.S. General Hampton with his expedition was heading for Bolton Pass, disdaining to use the Richelieu waterway, the traditional way into the St. Lawrence Valley, he saw a possible means of delaying their advance, perhaps, turning them back where they stood.

To this end he dispatched native runners into the region of Brome calling for the immediate raising of territorial Militia, contacting direct among others along the route, a certain Captain Bockus resident in the Bolton country whom he gave detailed information and instructions. Having got this force in tolerable organization, he nex dispatched a convoy of rifles, arms and ammunition.

Under the able comand of these selected personnel, he primed them by long distance dispatches realizing that they would be more familiar with the actual terrain than anyone from outside.

Thus set for the fray this Brome Militia moved into Bolton Pass, amply armed and supplied, taking up a position in the Pass in the region generally where McCormick's General Store was at one time located. Here Captain Bockus and his officers skillfully posted riflemen along the defiles commanding the approaches.

To the front and as skillfully concealed, lay deSalaberry's Six Nation outposts from the St. Lawrence Valley further west. All the combined forces had to do now was wait.

Several days elapsed; then the advance guard of General Hampton's columns appeared round a bend in the road followed by straggling wagon trains, the teams straining at the yolks as they breasted the long inclines winding incessantly through the Pass.

Suddenly, the clear notes of a bugle sounded from the dense surrounding forests blowing the 'open fire' and from the muzzles of 300 rifles roared out a devastating fusilade, waking the echoes, bastions of rock eminences catching up and magnifying the salvoes in thunderous volumn.

Eye witness accounts attest to the paralyzing confusion into which the American advance was suddenly thrown. Terrified teams pranced and veered in their traces, throwing vehicles, men and transport off the steep roads of the trail into line ditches, some of the wagons toppling down over precipituous banks, to be smashed to matchwood, strewing freight in all directions, raked continuously by the murderous rifle fire which hammered them from front and flanks of the elevations above.

General Hampton and his staff were left no other alternative but to order an immediate retreat if the expedition was to be saved from complete annihilation. As it was the losses suffered to the head of the column were extremely heavy both in men, horses and supplies.

Had those in command of the Brome detachments been in possession of unlimited supplies themselves as well as adequate reinforcements, they could have followed the expedition in the retrograde movement out of the Pass and back across the border, inflicting total destruction; but the three hundred Canadian defenders from the Eastern Townships were necessarily limited and unable to engage such a large force beyond the close defiles of the Pass; besides their commanders had explicit instructions on this score.

Notwithstanding, General Hampton encountered considerable difficulty in finally shaking them off and was content to limp back across the border to the base at Plattsburg, there to take stock and repair his quite considerable losses.

In the end he decided to use the old Richelieu River water route and some six weeks later appeared just outside of St. Johns in a complete flotilla, having apparently lost his inhibition to water transport.

Before he got his column out of boats and once more on the ground, the small Canadian force in occupation of the St. Johns, Que., fort promptly moved out and rejoined Colonel deSalaberry's main body at Fort Chambly.

Astronauts revolt over Mercury end

By GORDON DONALDSON

WASHINGTON — (TNS) — As America basks in a happy glow of satisfaction over the success of Project Mercury, open revolt is brewing among the suntanned astronauts who took all the risks.

Six of the seven have rocketed into space and returned safely. Project Mercury is officially over.

The National Aeronautics and Space Agency wants to throw all its energies into Project Gemini — a more advanced enterprise which will take America a step nearer the moon.

But the original astronauts demand one more Mercury flight — a three-day whirl by astronaut Alan Shepard.

Last week six of them put their case personally to President Kennedy over cocktails at the White House after Major Gordon Cooper's triumphal parade through Washington.

Mr. Kennedy said last week that the astronauts felt another flight was worthwhile He said he had discussed this with James Webb, head of NASA, but would leave the decision up to NASA.

The astronauts planned to talk to Mr. Webb later in the week. If Project Mercury is closed down it will be nearly 18 months before the United States can put the first Gemini capsule in orbit.

And, of course, dramatic new Russian exploits can be expected during this period.

President Kennedy wants to plant an American on the moon by 1970, at the cost of some twelve billion dollars.

Congress is very unsure about this. It's an awful lot of money, and there aren't any voters up there.

The tremendous public enthusiasm for the Cooper flight caught the White House, the capitol and everyone else by surprise. It was scheduled as just another space shot—the last of the series, featuring the junior back-up astronaut.

But Gordon Cooper's toothy smile, his lack of conversation or his amazing ability to doze off in the face of danger, caught the public fancy.

So the administration hastily broadened its plans for a Washington reception into a national spectace. The school children got out early to watch the parade; government workers got an hour off; the town went wild.

Gordon Cooper went to Capitol Hill. Congressmen and senators basked in space glory and, presumably, grasped the point that space achivements have voter appeal and deserve money—possibly even the $5.7 billion Kennedy is asking for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Then things began to get out of hand. Cooper was supposed to deliver a eulogy on the now-finished Mercury program, not lobby for its continuance.

Dr. Robert Seamans, associate administrator of NASA, had already said it was "quite unlikely" that there would be another Mercury flight.

NASA can save $10 million by pressing on with Project Gemini now. This is a small sum. More important, thousands of top-rate scientists can be freed to get on with the bigger job.

The two-man Gemini teams in their bigger capsules, will do preliminary work towards achieving rendezvous in space —the feat the Russian Nikolaev and Popovich nearly managed last year, and the key to building a space station.

They will also let the air out of their capsules and climb out into nothingness in their pressure suits.

All this will make a great contribution to Project Apollo —the manned moon shot by a sky scraper-sized rocket that is the President's main space goal.

Urges bilingualism for civil servants

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Jacques Bertrand, chief lieutenant to Daniel Johnson, leader of the Union Nationale party, says the federal government should immediately implement the recommendations of F. Eugene Therrien on bilingualism in the federal civil service.

The government should not await the results of the proposed royal commission on biculturalism, Mr. Bertrand told the Richelieu - Maisonneuve Club, a French-language service organization, Tuesday.

He said he looked forward to the day when Canada will have a constitution "made by Canadians, for Canadians."

French-Canadian culture must be expanded within the federal civil service, he said.

Mr. Therrien, a member of the Glassco royal commission on government operations, filed a minority report that French-Canadian representation in the higher ranks of the civil service was low, and that policy on bilingualism involved a waste of energy and resources.

Early settlers of North Hatley topic at W.I.

NORTH HATLEY — A meeting of the Women's Institute, was held at the Community Hall on May 20.

The evening program was in charge of Mrs. C. S. Daintrey, who, for the past few years has been gathering material for a village history. The roll-call was to name a pioneer family of North Hatley. A brief history was read of five of the earliest settling families, LeBaron, Hovey, Cull, Wadleigh, and Hawes, and particular mention made of the Harvey, Huzzey and Bean families.

Mrs. Daintrey stated that if there had been time to carry the program further, the names of other families who followed these earliest settlers, could have been studied with interest. This would have included the families, Bowen, McKay, Ramsdell and Kezar.

Regular reports of the conveners were also heard and two special reports were given, one, regarding the highly successful rummage sale, held earlier in the month, and Mrs. R. Olson gave a detailed account of the annual meeting af Stanstead County W.I., at Ayer's Cliff, which she attended as the branch's official delegate.

Mrs. R. Grandpre agreed to represent the branch at the June convention at Macdonald College, and six members will attend the sessions for one day. Money was voted to be used as prizes for the local children's gardens.

At the close of the program, Mrs. F. L. Holland served refreshments, assisted by Mrs. E. Hatch and Mrs. Daintrey.

Omerville given federal loan to build sewage treatment unit

OTTAWA — John R. Garland, minister responsible for the operations of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, today announced the approval of a federal government loan of $35,740 to Omerville, to assist inthe construction of a sewage treatment project.

Made under Part VI-B of the National Housing Act, the loan is for a term of 20 years with interest at 5⅛ per cent per annum. The loan is based on an estimated cost of $58,710.

Omerville has no piped sewer services. To overcome the pollution resulting from existing private facilities, the village proposes constructing sewage collection and treatment facilities. The NHA loan will assist in the construction of a sewage treatment plant, 1,260 feet of 10-inch gravity collector sewer and 200 feet of 15-inch outfall sewer.

Under Part VI-B of the National Housing Act, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation may make a loan to a municipality or to a municipal sewerage corporation for the purpose of assisting in the construction or expansion of a sewage treatment project. A project must be part of an overall plan for the elimination or prevention of water and soil pollution.

For work completed on or before March 31, 1965, CMHC may forgive repayment of 25 per cent of the principal amount of the NHA loan and 25 per cent of the interest that has accrued in respect to the loan as of the date of completion of the project.

'SUICIDE' SQUEEZE IS MURDER

How do you do about planning your play at three no-trump? your play at three no-trump? You have eight top tricks and possibilities of a ninth trick in each of three suits.

A squeeze is indicated and your problem is to lose four tricks to set up the squeeze.

You duck the first heart and win the second. Then you lead a third heart and West is back in the lead. Unless West is almost superhuman he will laugh happily and run off his last two hearts.

This play will constitute the so-called suicide squeeze. West will laugh, but East will have to make three discards. He will probably let two diamonds and a club go. Meanwhile you will discard a spade and club from dummy and a club and diamond from your own hand.

Now West can lead anything he wishes. It won't matter to you. If he leads a spade you win in dummy and cash the aces and kings of diamonds and clubs. East will have to discard on the second club.

If he lets another diamond go and you have been paying attention you will know that dummy's seven of diamonds is good; if he lets a spade go all your spades will be good.

You do bid three no-trump and your partner goes to four spades. What do you do now?

White Sox and Twins post first wins in Little League last night, one game on tap at Parade Grounds

White Sox and Twins came up with their initial wins in the Sher-Lenn Little league last night. Twins upsetting Indians 17-6 and White Sox winning easily over Senators the score 27-9. Tonight the Yankees meet the Tigers at the Parade Grounds.

White Sox with a bases-loaded home run by Allus got away to a three run lead in the opening inning. Senators had chalked up a single tally in their half of the same inning with Gingras and Morrison driving in the run.

Senators in the top of the second, on seven hits that were good for six runs, bounced back into the lead. It was short lived as the Sox came right back with a big nine-run inning to take the lead again. They added in each remaining inning to win the game on the long end of a 27-9 score. Senators in the last three innings of the game were only good for two runs. Hussey, with three hits, Farrell and Sayer, each with two singles, were the Sox stars. Morrison with three hits was Senator's big gun.

A big third inning with the help of Indian infield errors set up ten runs featured the Wings 17-6 win over the Indians. The teams had battled it out fairly even until then. Indians had taken a four-run lead on six singles.

Wings got three back in their half of the same inning on hits from Planche, Rose, Bonderaunt and Hendy accounting for the runs. Two singles was all for the Indians in the top of the second. Wings duplicated this also in the second Rose coming up with his second hit.

Indians were held hitless in the third and then came the Wings' big inning. The inning produced ten runs, but there were only four hits by Planche, Dumas, Rose, with two, and Hendy, his second hit.

Two single tallies by the Indians in the fifth and sixth and four more runs for the Wings finished off the scoring Wings coming out on the long end of a 17-6 count.

Wings showed lots of improvement in this one, they are still a little loose in the field but more practice will tighten up their outfield. Rose, with four hits, Hendy, with three, and Planche were their big men. The battery of the Bernier brothers also stood out in the game. Indians were well served by Fleury and Simard each with three hits.

Al Smith big gun of Orioles, Yanks lose

The latest member of Baltimore Orioles' hero-a-game club is Al Smith, a 35-year-old veteran who latched onto the brass ring after stepping off a merry-go-round.

Smith tagged a three - run homer that capped a four-run fifth inning uprising as Orioles ran their winning streak to nine games and ballooned their American League lead to 3½ lengths by defeating Kansas City Athletics 4-2 Tuesday night.

Acquired in an off - season trade with Chicago White Sox, Smith has found himself in an unusual role with Orioles. He has been playing only one position instead of commuting between the infield and outfield as in most of his 11-year major league career.

The move has paid off for Orioles, with the talented handyman settled in the outfield regular and concentrating on his hitting. During Orioles' streak he has hit at a .381 clip, raising his average to .293 with seven homers and 17 runs batted in.

Orioles' latest victory—marking the longest winning streak in the majors this season—also was their 14th in 15 games and increaed their edge over the second - place New York Yankees, who were belted by Boston Red Sox 11-6.

TWINS ROLLING

Minnesota Twins also continued their winning march, rolling to victory No. 8 in a row and reaching the .500 level for the first time by beating Washington Senators 6-3 on Bob Allison's three-run homer with two out in the last of the ninth.

In other American League action, Cleveland Indians edged Chicago White Sox 3-2 and rookie Mickey Lolich won his first game in the majors as Detroit Tigers whipped Los Angeles Angels 3-1.

Smith's decisive homer followed a run-producing double by shortstop Luis Aparicio, traded to Orioles along with Smith in the deal that sent pitcher Hoyt Wilhelm, outfielder Dave Nicholson and infielders Ron Hansen and Pete Ward to White Sox.

Smith's blow off loser Ted Bowsfield also handed the victory to Robin Roberts, who stayed on to pitch against the As despite the death of his father Sunday. Roberts, bringing his record to 4-4, had a two-hit shutout for seven innihgs but needed relief help from Dean Stone and Stu Miller to get the victory.

Red Sox got the job done against Yankees with a 15-hit explosion. Gary Geiger hit his fourth homer in as many games and Lu Clinton chipped in with another two-run shot while Ed Bressoud singled home two runs in a four-run second inning, tripled home a run in a three-run third and singled to start a four - run sixth. Bill Monbouquette was the winner, with Bill Stafford taking the loss.

ENDS HITLESS STREAK

Allison's game-winning shot off Ron Kline followed a double by Lenny Green and a walk to Vic Power and snapped the Twins' slugger out of an 0-for-15 skid.

Senators, losers of nine of 10 and 15 of their last 17 games, had tied the score in the top of the ninth on Chuck Cottier's run-scoring single and a two-run homer by Don Lock. Jim Kaat, who had a three-hit shutout for eight innings, lasted long enough to win it.

Ray Herbert drove in both White Sox runs with a homer and a single but took his second loss against five victories when Indians came up with two runs in the sixth on a homer by Vic Davalillo and a run-producing double by Max Alvis. Both Davalillo and Alvis are rookies. Jack Kralick brought his record to 3-2 with relief help from Ted Abernathy.

Lolich, who had four losing minor league seasons and an 0-1 record in the majors, scattered eight hits to post victory No. 1 against Angels. The 22-year-old left-hander got all the working room he needed when Dick McAuliffe hit a two-run homer for Tigers off Ken McBride in the sixth inning.

Sandy Koufax back on beam, blanks Braves 7-0, Redlegs belt Giants, Cards edge Colts in 10-innings

Sandy Koufax obviously is taking his cue from Frank Sinatra, who once played the part of The Man with the Golden Arm. It was about a poker player who rarely lost while dealing.

And that, of course, is the story of the Los Angeles Dodgers' Man with the Golden Arm. When he's dealing he doesn't lose.

He was dealing well enough Tuesday night, blanking Milwaukee Braves 7-0 on six hits, his fourth shutout of the season, and pitching Dodgers to within one game of National League leading San Francisco Giants.

Giants suffered a rain-interrupted 10-6 bombing by Cincinnati Reds. St. Louis Cardinals closed to within three games on the strength of a 10-inning 8-7 conquest of Houston Colts, Chicago's surprising Cubs moved into fourth place by beating New York Mets 5-2, and Philadelphia Phillies defeated Pittsburgh Pirates 5-1.

Koufax, who was on his way to a fantastic season last year before he was sidelined with a circulatory ailment in the index finger on his pitching hand, lowered hs earned run average to 1.52 with the shutout of Braves.

HOWARD CONNECTS

The Dodger lefty, author of two no-hit games, had to work harder than the score would indicate to win his seventh against two defeats. He was locked in a scoreless struggle with Milwaukee lefthander Denny Lemaster until Frank Howard stroked a 3-2 pitch over the left field wall with one out in the seventh.

It was only the fourth hit off the hard-luck Lemaster, who was lifted for a pinch hitter in the 7th and has only a 2-3 record to show for a gaudy 1.47 earned run average.

Dodgers nailed it down by sending 11 men to the plate in a six-run ninth inning, featured by Johnny Roseboro's steal of home and a squeeze bunt by Dick Tracewski.

Jim O'Toole got the benefit of Cincinnati's free - swinging attack on San Francisco and became the first pitcher in the National League to win eight games. He has lost three.

GETS THREE HITS

Leading the Red attack were Marty Keough with three hits, including a bases-loaded triple, Frank Robinson with three runs batted in on a homer and a double, and Vada Pinson with a double, three singles and a stolen base. Orlando Cepeda had two doubles and drove in five runs for Giants.

Curt Flood's double to right, Cards' 18th hit, drove in the winning run in the 10th after St. Louis had struggled from behind a 7-3 deficit with a four-run burst in the seventh. The winning blow followed a single by Gene Oliver and a bunt single by Charley James.

Colts' Howie Goss drove in six runs on two homers and a triple.

Ron Santo had a two-run triple and Billy Williams a two-run inside the park homer to power the Cubs past the Mets who have lost eight of their last nine. Dick Ellsworth won his sixth against three losses.

A two-run homer by Johnny Callison, a two-run triple by Tony Gonzalez and some shoddy Pittsburgh fielding helped Phils' Cal McLish win his fourth straight.

CAHA out to try and improve hockey across Canada, to sponsor five leadership institutes this fall

TORONTO (CP) — What's wrong with hockey's image in Canada?

Plenty, apparently, because there's a strong move under way to improve it.

The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, with assistance from the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union and the federal government, will introduce a new program late this summer at five Canadian universities.

With a $50,000 grant from the National Fitness Council, the CAHA is sponsoring five hockey leadership institutes. The CIAU is directing the program. Professional educationists with help from prominent coaches will be in charge.

A selection committee will handpick 250 amateur coaches to attend the expenses-paid, 10-day program at the institute nearest their homes—50 coaches at each of the five universities.

VALUE EDUCATION

One of the messages pushed at the coaches will be the value of education to a hockey player.

Major W. J. (Danny) McLeod, athletic director of Royal Military College at Kingston, Ont., is the CIAU's representative in discussions with the CAHA.

"There isn't one in 10,000 amateurs who make the National Hockey League," McLeod said Tuesday night in a telephone interview. "We have to condition them to that — our game is more than just playing in the National Hockey League.

"We have to improve the image of our game in the eyes of our country."

McLeod said coaches will be urged to explain the importance of education to players in their area, but not necessarily university education.

"Some of them haven't the goods to get into university," he said. "But even if they're encouraged to take up a trade, it will be an improvement. We want to help them prepare to take their places in society when their playing days are over."

COACHES SCREENED

Amateur coaches will be screened and only those thought capable of getting the most out of the institute will be accepted. McLeod says successful candidates will be those who are most influential in their respective leagues, men capable of passing on information received at the institute.

All amateur organizations—such as provincial and city leagues—will be represented. Included are the secondary school and university coaches as well as men from community recreation leagues.

The institutes will be held at the University of New Brunswick, University of Montreal, Royal Military College, University of Saskatchewan and University of Alberta at Edmonton.

In addition to the education angle, coaches will be taught the philosophy of hockey, fundamentals and officiating and there will be instructions in hockey management.

"We hope that our institute graduates will help make the lads in their areas better citizens because of hockey," said McLeod.

"Playing in the National Hockey League is great—if you make it, but hockey can still be a great game if you don't."

Fed up with incompetently staged road shows

Montreal housewife imports successful off-Broadway play

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal housewife, fed up with watching what she described as incompetently staged road shows, risked time, money and energy to bring to Montreal the original cast of a successful off-Broadway play.

The risk paid off and Montrealers swarmed to The Blacks, an explosive play about racial relations by Jean Genet. The Blacks had been performed more than 900 times, the longest run a serious drama has had on New York's off-Broadway.

Behind what was considered an unprecedented move was Inge Baber, an attractive housewife who in her spare time has been involved with theatre for more than five years.

Mrs. Baber maintains she is neither "beat nor brilliant" but simply enjoys serious theatre.

"And I felt in a large city such as Montreal there must be others like me, so that bringing The Blacks here for two performances was not the height of folly.

"I guess I was right, judging from the attendance at the play."

WILL BRING MORE

What was her company, Spectrum Productions Inc., planning next?

"We'll bring more serious drama to Montreal, though I can't be specific for business reasons," Mrs. Baber said.

"One thing is certain, though, whatever plays we bring will be performed by the original cast or else I won't allow them on stage.

"I think Montreal audiences have been burnt too often by paying for drearily staged, incompetent road productions.

"From now on they'll get something for their money."

Mrs. Baber not long ago gave up running the only theatre ticket agency here to devote more time to her husband, an engineer, and her 10-year-old daughter.

"But my family soon told m I was getting crankier and crankier," the energetic Mrs. Baber smiled, "so I decided to start Spectrum Productions—not a 9 to 5 job, and one which becomes hectic only the week before a play arrives."

SOMETHING NEW

Asked whether the original cast of a Broadway, or off-Broadway, play had ever previously been hired for performances outside New York, Mrs Baber said:

"As far as I could find out, I don't think this has ever been done anywhere before."

Chris Anderson, a New York theatre booking company director here with The Blacks, agreed with her.

Did she lose any money with The Blacks?

"No," said Mrs. Baber.

Home & School elects new slate of officers

THETFORD MINES — The Home and School Association met in the ASJM High School hall, on May 14, when the election of officers for the 1963-64 season resulted as follows: D. McCann, re-elected president; Fred Hodgson, first vice-president; Jean Beaupre, second vice-president; Mrs. A. H. Underwood, recording secretary; Mrs. R. W. Little, corresponding secretary; Stuart Vaudry, treasurer; Jean Beaupre, programme committee chairman.

An informative talk was given by the guest speaker, K. Annett, of Quebec on vocational guidance. Mr. Annett was introduced by Lawrence Belford.

Miss Pauline Litowski was delegated to attend the U.N. bilingual seminar to be held at Macdonald College, August 26 to 30.

Commencing in 1964 it was decided to try to have officers served for a two-year term of office.

Mrs. Robert Coleman was to prepare a complete summary of events and activities during the year and was delegated to attend the annual provincial meeting.

Messrs. Fred Hodgson and Jean Massant were chosen as representatives for the district council.

Among the events and accomplishments by the Home and School during the past year, reported by Mr. McCann, was the Hallowe'en Party for UNICEF, uniformity of dress having been obtained for students of Grades 8 to 11, by the class mothers under the direction of Mrs. Walter Smith, and the continuance of the sports program, under the leadership of C. G. Bourne. Safety tests are to be given shortly under the guidance of R. W. Little.

Refreshments were served after the meeting closed.

WORKS AMONG ESKIMOS — Siegfried Paul Hettasch, a Moravian missionary at Makkovik, Labrador, has some doubts about the effects of government aid to Eskimo settlements in the area. He says that while there are physical advantages, some Eskimos have decided there's little point in working when they can achieve almost the same living standards with government relief. (CP Photo)

Guilty of cottage break-ins

Asks for jail sentence to learn trade, young singer is given a two-year term

Paul Aube, the 19-year old singer who was ordered to post a $200 bond to keep the peace May 9 when he pleaded guilty to breaking into four cottages near Deauville, was sentenced in the same Sherbrooke courtroom Monday to two years in penitentiary, at his own request.

He was charged with breaking into four cottages near Deauville.

Aube, who told the Judge Evender Veilleux May 9 that he earned his living as a singer in hotels in Windsor and Brompton, asked Judge Redmond Hayes Monday to send him to prison for two years with the recommendation that he be sent to Pavilion Laval, a trade school connected with St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary.

Judge Hayes said he would comply with the request. He told Aube that he would be given a series of aptitude tests and then trained in whatever work seemed best for him.

The young singer said he had appeared in court six times in recent years.

Just before his May 9 appearance, he had finished a three month term for obtaining money by false pretences.

At the close of the evening, lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. G. P. Clarke and Mrs. R. Spence.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Horace Ainsworth on June 11.

Doris Clark

Successful living

DEAR DORIS:

Some time ago I read your answer to the "other women." Well, Doris, it took me six years to find out the truth and how much heartaches I had caused another wife and her family. My early marriage was most unhappy when this wealthy business man came into my life. He made me feel like the most desirable woman alive. Like a fool I fell for this line.

He told me how miserable his home life was — his wife beautiful but childish and no time for him at all; that soon he would leave them for me. It was a friend of this man's family who told me I had been misinformed.

So I called on his wife and found out she knew everything. He had begged her not to divorce him. She was one of the most understanding people I have ever met. She was the one who had the miserable home life!

I left her home feeling heartbroken but thankful I came to my senses before losing the respect of my growing children.

Sad Experience.

DEAR SAD EXPERIENCE:

Thank you. We are so prone to believe what we want to believe!

DEAR DORIS:

Thank you very much for your letter. You sent me such a wealth of information about where to get ability tests and other information about the vocation of art.

You must have spent a considerable length of time gathering all that valuable information. Sincerely appreciate it.

M. J.

DEAR JAY:

I did and you are welcome. Sometimes all a person needs is to know about help which already exists.

DEAR DORIS:

My graduation dance will be soon, and it's the custom for the girl's escort to buy her an orchid for her dress. Many girls are afraid that their escort will not know this and they will end up without a flower. My brother feels it is wrong to tell the boy to do this.

Should I hint around? I could buy one myself but they are quite expensive and I'd have no use for two.

A Senior.

DEAR SENIOR:

Take your chances; and don't by any chance insult him by buying one yourself. You can bet your bottom dollar the boys talk these things over.

When he turns up with a box in his hand be surprised and delighted. It's nothto to take for granted.

DEAR DORIS:

I went steady with Frank for about one year, and he couldn't make up his mind. He said he wasn't sure if he loved me enough to marry me. It made me angry and I said I wasn't sure either, because I thought he was a bore and too stingy with his money.

As he is good natured, he didn't get angry, so we parted good friends. I realize now I was stupid to criticize him the way I did. What can I do to get him back without losing my pride? I love him.

JAY.

DEAR JAY:

If you mean it you'll forget about pride and write him a letter. Say you're sorry you spoke as you did and would love to see him some evening. Put in your phone number—and mail the letter—quick!

Only the IBM Executive gives your letters the quality look of professional printing

Ordinary typewriters give each letter the same amount of space

The IBM Executive automatically gives each letter the correct amount of space

iiii

As the name implies, the IBM Executive is a very efficient typewriter. It has special qualities all its own. For example, letters it types never look typewritten. Like type setting, the Executive gives each alphabet character its proper spacing. Ordinary typewriters drop each character in the same amount of space. Which means squeezing the m's and stretching the o's a bit to do it. This, of course, never looks professional.

The IBM Executive has other talents too. It can make every line of type the same length. You can have perfectly even right hand margins (like the type you're now reading). This looks especially impressive on special letters and reports, yet it takes your secretary only a few minutes extra. IBM engineers accomplish this feat by building the Executive with a variable space control. Thus, by expanding or shrinking the space between words and letters, you can type lines to the precise length you desire. This is the way a printer does it. It looks professional.

Call your IBM representative soon for a demonstration of this remarkable typewriter. He's listed in the Yellow Pages of your telephone book.

Love's campaign promises

You can't cancel your marriage just because your wife reneged on her promise to keep on working after the wedding.

A New York Supreme Court justice recently made that ruling when a husband sought to have his marriage annulled because his wife failed to live up to her promise to work and help supplement his income.

Said his honor:

"Not every representation made to induce marriage, even thought false, is ground for annulment."

Thank goodness for that. If husbands and wives could cancel out their marriages just because one or the other refused to live up to a campaign promise, there wouldn't be many golden wedding anniversaries celebrated.

Just consider all the campaign promises that have little chance of every being kept:

He: "We'll always tell each other EVERYTHING."

She: "We'll never, never quarrel like so many married couple do."

He: "We'll be honest with each other. If I have any little habits that get on your nerves, I want you to tell me frankly."

She: "One thing you won't have to worry about in my ever being jealous. I trust you implicitly."

He: "Don't ever change. I want you to stay just as you are."

She: "Money isn't important when two people love each other. Whatever you earn will be enough."

He: "Someday, I'm going to buy you everything you want."

She: "We don't really need anybody but each other."

Diamonds are not girl's best friend

BIOT, France (Reuters) — Diamonds are not a girl's best friend, says an internationally known designer of jewelry.

Swedish - born Torun Bulow-Hube, who works in a sunny balcony studio in this French Riviera village, believes that women's jewelry must be sensuous.

"Diamonds have a killing effect on women," says the green-eyed, shapely designer. "You see the diamonds but not the woman.

"Good jewelry reminds men of a woman's beauty. Jewelry only looks good on a woman if it expresses her inner feeling of wanting to appeal to a man."

Torun has achieved international recognition almost overnight.

Little more than a decade ago this master silversmith lived a struggling existence in a Paris Left Bank hotel.

PICASSO A CUSTOMER

Now Brigitte Bardot wears a Torun silver circle necklace with Venetian drop pendant. Pablo Picasso sports a pair of her beach pebble cufflinks.

The fine arts museums of Copenhagen and Oslo have held "One - woman" Torun jewelry shows.

Polly's pointers

by Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY—Do you and any of the girls have trouble getting cobwebs out of a high stair well? I tie an old towel on one end of a clothespron and. presto, with no trouble at all, I clean the whole well with little effort. No stretching at all.—KATE

GIRLS — This is certainly easier and safer than standing on a stepladder with a towel - wrapped broom in hand.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—To make buttons stay on longer and prevent holes, place a straight pin horizontally on the cloth. Place the button on the small bit of cloth between the head and point of the pin. After taking a few stitches, wrap the thread around the pin several times where cloth and shank meet. Now remove the pin. This is especially good for children's clothes.—MRS. J. T. R.

DEAR POLLY—In an emergency, a strainer or collander can be made by punching holes in aluminum pie pans that store pies come in. The underneath side of the pie plate can be used for a grater.—MRS. J. L.

GIRLS—Punch those holes with an ice pick so the back is really rough.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—It dawned on me one day when I was ready to wash my kitchen floor and the mop had dried stiff that the fabric softener I had been using for sweaters might help. It was most satisfactory and I now rinse my mop in the fabric softener and when I use it, it has dried out nice and soft.—M. M.

DEAR POLLY — To prevent tailor's tacks from slipping, I use darning cotton instead of ordinary sewing thread. Darning cotton comes four-ply so I split the length in half and then double the thread after I thread the needle. I then make the tailor's tacks according to directions.—MRS. J. B.

DEAR POLLY — Now that spring has sprung, do not store your windshield snow brush. It is ideal to clean the refrigerator's wire coils and reaches other hard-to-get-at place.—MRS M. J. S.

DEAR POLLY—This is a "must" for a family of two. Mashing just a few potatoes can be frustrating. A fork makes the finger sore and a regular masher will not fit into that small pot. So go to the toy department, buy a little potato masher, and live happily ever after.—BETTY

SWIMSUIT CARE

Wash and rinse swimsuits frequently to make them last longer. Pool chemicals, salt and sand will weaken fibres if left in. Follow the manufacturer's instructions for washing. If none are given, use warm water and mild detergent suds and rinse well. Elasticized swimsuits should never be machine dried.

Questions readers ask

Q—Should I wash rice before cooking it?

A—No. Don't wash it either before or after cooking. If you do, you'll lose valuable vitamins and minerals. Modern processing methods make rice clean and ready to cook. By using the correct amounts of water and rice in cooking, you won't have to drain it. The rice will absorb the water. For family size servings, use 1 cup of enriched white rice and 2 cups of boiling salted water. Cover and cook slowly about 20 minutes. After removing from heat, let rice stand covered for 10 to 15 minutes.

Weddings of interest

RHODES — SHELTUS

BEDFORD — The marriage of Kathryn Ann, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hannibal Sheltus of Bedford to Mr. Brian Woodridge Rhodes of Montreal, son of Mr. P. Rhodes and of the late Mrs. Rhodes of Montreal, took place on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock, on May 17 in St. James Church, Bedford, Rev. W. J. White, rector of St. Philip's Church, Montreal West officiating at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Harry Jones played the wedding music. The church was decorated with white tapers and white snap-dragon on the altar, while baskets of spring flowers were in the chancel. The guest pews were marked with broad bands and bows of white satin.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was in a gown of ivory faille, fashioned with a fitted lace bodice and long sleeves ending in points over the hands, having a bouffant skirt ending in a short train. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a band of lace. She carried a bouquet of red roses and baby's breath.

Miss Pauline Marsden of Toronto, was bridesmaid and wore a frock of heavenly blue brocade, with a small matching veiled hat and carried a bouquet of yellow shasta daisies.

Mr. John Pickering of Toronto, acted as best man and the ushers were Mr. Ashley Sheltus of Montreal, brother of the bride and Mr. James Wilding of Montreal.

Mrs. Sheltus, mother of the bride was in a navy blue ensemble, with a large white and navy blue hat, matching accessories and wore a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Rhodes, step-mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of pale aqua sheer, with matching hat and wore a corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony the wedding reception was held in the St. James Church hall, the bride's table being centered with the wedding cake. Spring flowers were used for decorations.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes left by plane from Dorval, for Antigua, West Indies, the bride travelling in a blue wool suit, with matching hat and black patent leather accessories.

On their return the couple will take up residence in Lachine.

The bride is a graduate of the Montreal General Hospital and is presently on the staff of the Children's Hospital, Montreal, where her coworkers presented her with a silver tea set.

Cosmo-Kismet of Montreal chose crisp and quick-drying Arnel-cotton seersucker to create a modest version of the bikini. The well-cut swim and sun set previewed above at La Presidente, Acapulco, Mexico, comes with its own trend-setting cover-up shirt.

Shower for bride elect

Miss Betty Wheeler, a June bride-to-be was the guest of honor at a shower, given by her aunt, Mrs. E. Wheeler, at her home on Elgin Avenue.

Upon arrival the guest of honor was greeted by her many friends and relatives and presented with a corsage of spring flowers by her aunt, who then escorted her to a gaily decorated seat of honor.

Miss Jo-Ann Wheeler, sister of the bride-to-be presented her with many lovely and useful gifts. Miss Wheeler was assisted in unwrapping the gifts by her mother, Mrs. Albert Wheeler, after which several games were played and prizes distributed to the winners.

Later refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by several of the guests. Mrs. Albert Wheeler, poured tea at the lace covered table, which was centred with narcissus and tulips, arranged in a crystal bowl.

RAYFELS IS AMONG FIRST REGIONAL STORES TO FEATURE LATEST IN WOMEN'S FASHIONS

Rayfels' warehouse offers good buys

One of Sherbrooke's most progressive women's wear stores, Rayfels Style Shop has registered twenty years of steady growth.

Besides extensive renovations made to the firm's 172 Wellington Street North store, Rayfels opened a ware house on Whiting Lane last fall. The new branch was designed to handle broken lines and overstock left over from past seasons. Although still less than a year old the warehouse has been described as a worthwhile venture, inasmuch as it makes way for up-to-date lines in the main store.

Shoppers wishing to save have also praised the Rayfels warehouse, which handles a wide selection in all lines of women's clothes, and at reduced prices.

Shop fashionably at Rayfels' store

Rayfels Style Shop, located at 172 Wellington North in Sherbrooke, has been one of the most popular ladies stores in this region since its founding in 1944.

Proprietor of the store when it first opened was Abe Schachter. Through the years, many changes have taken place in the store.

Situated at the same address today as it was almost 20 years ago, Rayfels first opened business as a men's clothing store. But at the request of more and more ladies, the store discontinued men's wear and opened and exclusive store for women.

The principal reason for the success of Rayfels is the competent administration, the quality of the garments and the pleasant, experienced personnel, Mr. Schachter believes.

Mr. Schachter, proprietor of Rayfels, came to Sherbrooke in 1938 and became president of Mozart's Store. He held this position for six year and then sold his interests in this store and opened Rayfels.

Since the opening of his store, Mr. Schachter has made, and still continues to make, numerous trips to style centers, enabling him to offer his many customers the most recent and exclusive styles.

Always expanding and improving, Rayfels management has renovated the store from top to bottom. The new Rayfels store will be sure to charm you. The merchandise is displayed with pride and taste, permitting you to choose in leisure and comfort.

Rayfels modern and spacious store offers you the latests styles, all reasonably priced.

Whether you are shopping for an afternoon or formal dress; sports clothes, accessories, a hat, suit, gloves, and purse, you will be pleased with the quality and wide choice that Rayfels offer.
