A girl's hardest task is to prove to a man that he's serious.

Found in home formerly owned by basketball star

Seven dead in religious 'execution'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven person, including five children, were killed Thursday in what police described as "definitely an execution" in a fashionable home used as headquarters by a Muslim religious sect.

The home was formerly owned by Milwaukee Bucks basketball star Kareem Abdul Jabbar who recently donated it to the Hanafi Muslim sect of which he is a member.

Police said they are looking for four black men seen running from the back of the house about 4:30 p.m. The home is located in an area of expensive homes where many of Washington's wealthiest black families live.

The identity of the dead was not immediately known, but police said they ranged in age from infancy to about 30. Earlier reports said three children were found drowned in a bathtub, but police declined to say how any of the victims died.

Two other occupants of the house, both women about 20 years old, were taken to hospital with bullet wounds in the head. One, Bibi Khaalis, was reported in critical condition, and the other, Almira Khaalis, was reported in serious condition.

Police intelligence sources at the scene said eight men burst into the house around 4 p.m. during a meeting and "performed the execution." They did not explain how they determined eight entered the house, nor why, if eight entered, only four were reported by witnesses running from the rear of the home about a half-hour later.

All the victims were black.

'LUNATICS' SAYS JABBAR

Jabbar, who was in Milwaukee, told reporters he "couldn't understand the violence at all... I can think of only crazy people, lunatics who would do it."

Jabbar never lived in the home which he purchased in 1971 and later donated to the Muslim sect.

Metropolitan police Lieut. Joseph O'Brien said five of the dead were children. He said all of the dead were found inside the house. He declined to comment on whether any weapons were found.

He also had no comment on whether any bodies were mutilated.

Jabbar was in Milwaukee Thursday with the Milwaukee Bucks basketball team for which he now stars. A spokesman for the team said Jabbar was "obviously shaken."

Jabbar said in a telephone interview that he knew the people living at the home.

"It's my community and the home is for the use of the community," he said when asked if the home was his.

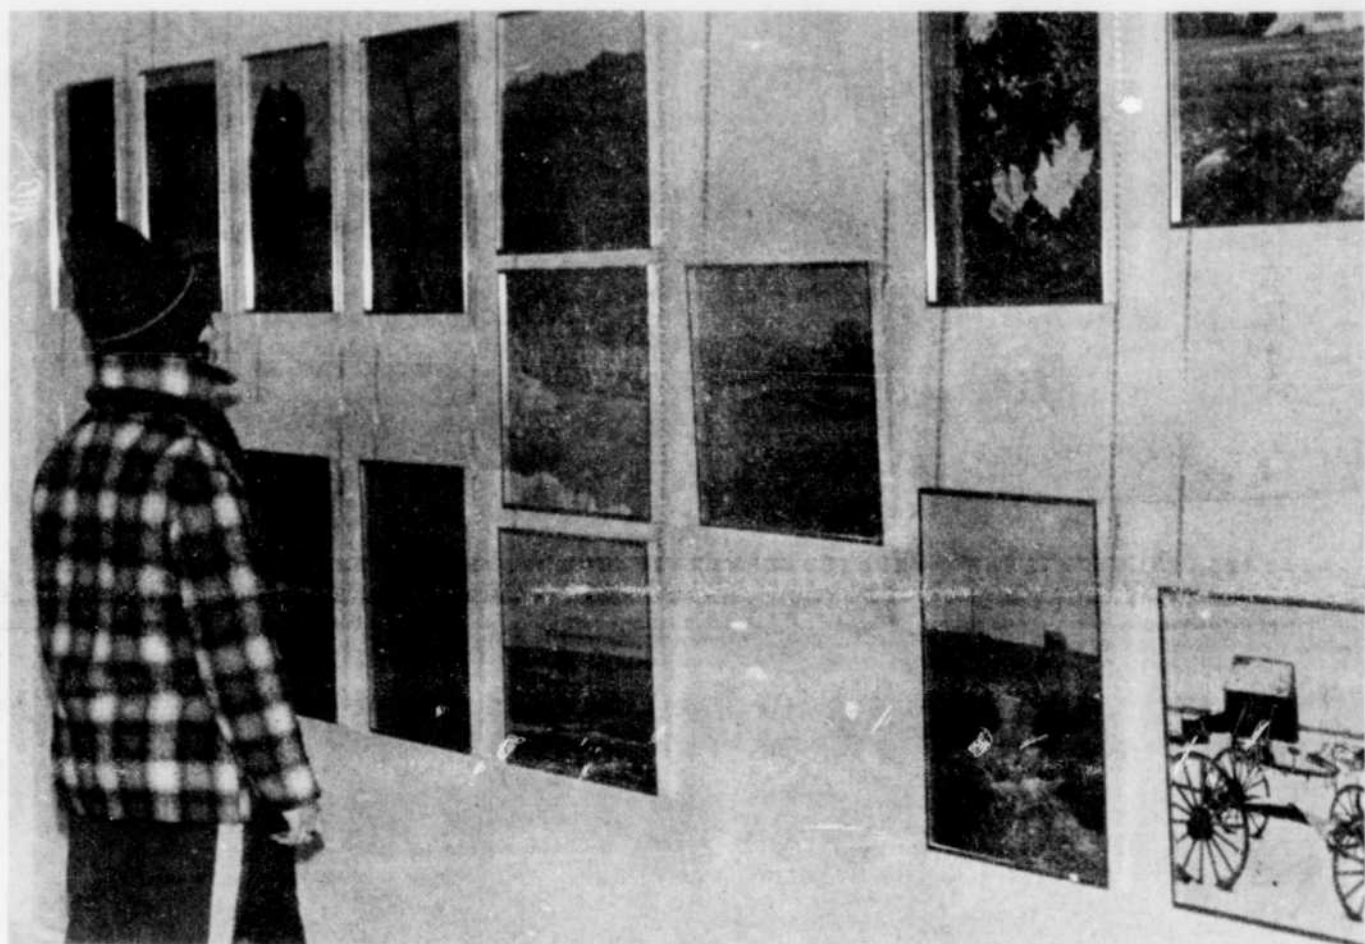

Asked if the shooting might be the result of a religious feud involving the Muslims, he said "No, I can only suspect lunatics."

Police said they received the first report of the killings about 5:30 p.m. Neighbors reported they saw men run from the home, and police said they recovered a .38-calibre pistol.

Police sealed off the area and began a search.

One neighbor said two men who ran from the house jumped into a car and were pursued by a third man in another vehicle. The second car later returned to the home with a bullet hole in the windshield. The car was parked in front of the home Thursday night.

The house is a fashionable three-story stone-and-brick building on a tree-shaded corner. It is surrounded by a wrought-iron fence with stone columns.

PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION — Photographs of rural Quebec, both landscape and architecture are presently on display at the University of Sherbrooke. The photography is the work of Henri Durand, who selected work for the exhibition from some 30,000 negatives of Quebec rural scenes and architectural styles.

Kidnap story changes again

TORONTO (CP) — Millionaire Mayor Mel Lastman of North York said Thursday kidnappers of his wife Monday injected something into her wrist and told her she would die in 48 hours unless they provided an antidote contingent on payment of an $800,000 ransom.

Police also reported that during the day blonde Marilyn Lastman told them she had found in her home rings worth $92,000, which she previously had reported as taken by kidnappers, but they said they continued to believe her story of the 10-hour abduction.

Mayor Lastman said his 37-year-old wife is insisting on a lie detector test, but top Metro police officers said they do not want her to take one. Mr. Lastman said he will pay for one.

"I don't know why there should be doubt in anybody's mind—as far as we are concerned, there was a kidnapping," said Deputy Police Chief Bernard Simmonds.

Mr. Lastman, a 39-year-old appliance dealer who recently reported his worth as $10.7 million after being elected mayor of the Metropolitan Toronto borough, had arranged to have $900,000 available after learning of the deferred death threat, police said.

Deputy Chief Simmonds confirmed that Mrs. Lastman had marks on her left wrist after the mayor told a news conference of the injection.

DEADLINE PASSED

The officer said the 48-hour deadline passed at 9 p.m. Wednesday, indicating Mrs. Lastman had been injected about 2½ hours before she returned home. She had been enticed from her home on the pretext of being driven to a hospital, where an anonymous phone caller had said her husband was being treated for a heart attack.

Mr. Lastman said his wife's arms were black and blue from having blood samples taken as doctors tried unsuccessfully to find foreign substances in her blood stream.

"It sounds like something out of a Russian movie," he said. "The idea was that they would supply the antidote if I paid up."

Staff Supt. Adolphus Payne said Mrs. Lastman had actually offered $1 million to the kidnappers as they held her in an unknown place, but eventually $800,000 was decided on. He did not elaborate.

The officer said the mayor, who recently disclosed he had a personal bank balance of more than $900,000 and his wife one of $700,000, had $100,000 in cash ready for ransom Tuesday and had arranged with his bank to have $800,000 more ready if needed.

The money was to have been picked up by 3 p.m. Tuesday but the kidnappers did not try to collect it.

Mrs. Lastman has reported that two men drove her away from home, kept her chained to a bed for about four hours and drove her around blindfolded for another five hours before releasing her in the basement parking garage of an apartment building several miles from her home.

Posties promise to return today

TORONTO (CP) — Mail volume is drying up in a large area surrounding Toronto, the post office reported Thursday as postal workers went through the second day of a strike but promised to be back at work today.

The Canadian Union of Postal Workers, whose Toronto members began a strike at key locations early Wednesday, said they will report for work at 7:30 a.m. today to face a logjam that hasn't moved out of the city.

Union spokesmen on Wednesday made the same prediction for a return to work on Thursday morning, but this time Toronto vice-president Norman Youghsband said the return is definite.

"We intend to make it stick," he said during a meeting of the local executive which was issuing a back-to-work order.

A spokesman for the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, some of whose members here have been on strike, also said the carriers would be ready to work today.

At Winnipeg, about 250 sorters walked off the job at the city's main post office for the same reason as in Toronto—to apply pressure for conclusion of a new contract between the unions and the federal government.

Professors attack foreign teachers

OTTAWA (CP) — Professors James Steele and Robin Mathews, leaders in the campaign against foreign dominance in Canadian university faculties, renewed their battle Thursday at a hearing of the Ontario legislature's select committee on economic and cultural nationalism.

But the hearing did not attract a single student to the theatre at Carleton University where the two professors have been sounding their call for more than five years as members of the English department. They suggested scant advertising by the committee was responsible.

They cited an Economic Council of Canada report, showing that 75 per cent of newly-hired professors in 1970-71 were not Canadian citizens as new evidence that faculties remain largely in non-Canadian hands.

But they said figures gathered by Statistics Canada and other agencies are "nothing short of a joke" because they are incomplete.

Professor Mathews put part of the blame on Statistics Canada, which he said has not used its legal powers to demand information on hiring from universities. He said the universities themselves must share the blame because they have refused information about who and where they hire when it is requested.

Canadians, as taxpayers, have "an absolute right to know" who their universities are hiring, where they came from and whether they are Canadian

Lennoxville club to get grant

SHERBROOKE (WM) — The Sher-Lenn Plus Fifty Club is to receive government assistance under the federal government's New Horizons '73 program, the club announced yesterday.

It is not yet known what amount the club will receive, but Charles Douville, Quebec co-ordinator for the government program, told the president, Douglas Armitage, and club secretary, Mrs. Irma Muchler, that financial assistance will definitely be forthcoming.

It is hoped that the club will now be able to establish a 'drop-in centre' for club members. The organizers envision a number of possible facilities in the centre such as a workshop, a handicraft room, a television room, facilities for shuffleboard and a reading room as well as a kitchen and dining room.

The provincial co-ordinator has recommended that the club find the accommodation and then submit a request to the government for assistance. If the government approved the centre, it could be partially in operation within the next two weeks.

The Sher-Lenn club for senior citizens began nearly a year ago following the initiative of six people concerned about the lack of facilities for senior citizens. The venture was a success from the beginning and has now grown to 135 members.

At the moment, weekly meetings of the club are held in the Masonic lodges in Sherbrooke and Lennoxville where the pensioners are entertained with films, speakers and card parties. Periodically, trip to museums and places of historical interest are also arranged for club members.

It is hoped by the club organizers that the support of the New Horizons program will enable the club to increase its membership and add further new activities.

Activities formerly were paid for by club membership fees and a few donations from local social clubs.

The federal New Horizons program was announced by the government in September 1972. It is the first federally-sponsored program of its type.

Vote embarrassing not fatal

Liberals outvoted on senate proposal

OTTAWA (CP) — The minority Liberal government met its first Commons defeat Thursday night, outvoted by the three opposition parties 128 to 102 on Conservative motion to rid a proposed joint parliamentary committee of Senate representatives.

The defeat, while embarrassing, was certainly not fatal. Conservatives and New Democratic spokesmen agreed it did not involve confidence in the government.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said after the vote that the proposal for a joint Commons-Senate committee to inquire into rising food costs would give the government an opportunity to "load it with Liberal senators."

An all-Commons committee would justly represent the standings in the minority Parliament, he said.

Allan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland-Durham), who moved the amendment to exclude senators, said his party would move another amendment suggesting the committee have 19 members: Eight Liberals, eight Conservatives, two New Democrats and one Social Credit MP.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons is: Liberals 109, Conservatives 107, NDP 31, Social Credit 15 and independent two. In the 102-seat Senate there are 74 Liberals, 17 Conservatives, two independents one Independent Liberal, one Social Credit and seven vacancies.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen accepted the defeat gracefully, saying that "not even the opposition took the matter all that seriously."

"They certainly did not rise up and say resign."

It would be preposterous to consider it a vote of confidence in the minority government, he said.

His Conservative counterpart, Gerald Baldwin (Peace River), agreed the vote entailed no question of confidence, but it showed that "the walls of Jericho are crumbling." His party would be making many more amendments to government motions in the days to come.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis said the same for his party.

"There will be many amendments they will have to swallow," he said after the vote.

Earlier in debate, the lead-off NDP spokesman Grace MacInnis (Vancouver-Kingsway) said her party wants a prices review board set up as part of the food-price inquiry. The board should disallow price increases and roll back unjustified increases already in effect.

Mr. Lawrence said the Conservatives, besides excluding the Senate, want the committee to look into other inflationary problems such as rising housing costs.

As well, the terms of reference should require a report within three months and include a restriction to prevent the inquiry from covering ground already travelled in a similar government investigation in 1966-67.

SHOWING PEOPLE

Above all, the Conservatives wanted to show that as the government's answer to rising food costs the committee "is a weak-kneed and heartless smokescreen to the people of this country who think the government is doing something about this crisis."

Five joint parliamentary committees appointed in a previous Parliament took an average of 18 months to complete their work, he said, and the major joint committee in the last Parliament—on tax reform—took two years.

Cold cure may be ready soon

MONTREAL (CP) — A cure for the common cold may be available within the next few years as the result of a research program at the Montreal Institute of Microbiology.

The institute's medical director said Wednesday a synthetic chemical compound has been tested in the laboratory during the past year and has proved effective against a range of cold viruses in a tissue culture.

"We tested the compound against the three major groups of cold viruses and it was 100 per cent active in preventing the viruses from growing in the culture."

Dr. Armand Frappier said in an interview.

"There are at least 60 cold viruses but biologically there is little difference between them and the effects on the three groups of viruses would apply to all. We feel the compound would be effective against all 60."

Testing on animals is just beginning and it may be another two years before the compound is proved viable for man, he said.

Costs of the project, shared by the National Research Council and Canada Packers Ltd., is near $500,000 to date.

By
Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: A 13-year-old asked what to do about his four-year-old brother who bit people. He said his parents had tried withholding desserts, severe scoldings and so on. Nothing worked. He bit the cleaning lady, the TV repairman and every kid he ever played with. You were the boy's last resort. You told him that your own daughter bit you when she was two years old and you bit her back. Your final line was, "She never bit me or anyone else after that."

Please say you were joking. I can't believe Ann Landers would do such a thing. — Let Down

Dear L.D.: I wasn't Ann Landers when I bit my daughter, but it worked, and that's what counts. It may not have been according to "The Book" but there are times when a mother's instinct is better than any book.

Children's responses vary, no matter how severely you punish some kids, they won't bat an eyelash. Other youngsters dissolve into tears when you look at them cross-eyed. A mother knows her kids better than any psychologist and I'm for doing what comes naturally.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I moved from our home town 25 years ago. My parents are in their 70s, and while there is no ill will, we are not close. They were born in Europe and made no attempt to Americanize.

Yesterday I received a letter informing me that a cousin (my aunt's daughter) is coming from another country to visit in our home. I do not know this woman's age (it wasn't mentioned). I cannot speak her language and she cannot speak mine. I didn't know she existed until this letter arrived.

I phoned my mother and asked how this person got our address. She said, "I gave it to her. Be nice and put a roof over her head."

My husband and I work six days a week. We don't need a houseguest, especially one who doesn't speak English. My husband said he has never heard such gall and has urged me to say we can't accommodate her. What would you do? — Waiting to Hear

Dear Waiting: I'd tell my mother that I would be glad to have the cousin for a weekend but after that she would have to take over.

P.S. Make sure the cousin goes to your Mother's house (from the boat) and is based there. More to the point, instruct your mother to send her with an overnight bag.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been sitting here for 20 minutes trying to put my problem into language you can print. Now I've decided to tell it like it is.

My husband is 42, nice-looking, a good father and he has no bad habits. Our bills are paid and he doesn't chase women. He is a construction worker and comes home at 5:00 every evening, which is plenty of time to shower and change clothes for supper. But this man refuses to clean himself up. He showers about once every two weeks. He also ignores the fresh underwear and socks I put out for him every morning.

I have talked to him until I am blue in the face. He calls me a nag and says I am exaggerating. This problem had led to another. When he wants to make love I dread it.

Do I have a right to say no unless he takes a shower? — N.N.N.A.

Dear N.M.: You do and you should. Your husband needs counseling and I hope you will insist that he get it. This is more than "lazy"—it's sick. And, I might add, more common than you think. Every day I get this same complaint from at least a dozen women. Hand him this column if you think it will help.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB No Cures Yet, However

Immunity and Cancer Studied

Dear Dr. Lamb — Some time back I read an article on cancer which stated that a substance could be injected into the cancer cell, arresting it. Is this process available to the public? I read the article with interest but did not know I would be personally interested. My husband is in his late 30s and we have a small child. He had a malignant tumor removed from his colon, but the doctor said it had already spread to two small spots on his liver. This has been three months ago. What can you say about this process and is there any possibility that this process could be available to my husband, and would it work on the liver?

ries of breast and skin cancers, it will no doubt be tested in other forms of cancer.

Cancer of the colon is a fairly common disorder. It is much more common in modernized nations such as the United States than it is in undeveloped countries. Many investigators think this is due to the differences in our diet, pointing out that we tend to eat large amounts of concentrated foods such as sweets and bakery products and do not get as much roughage in our diet as is obtained by individuals who eat natural foods such as unprocessed cereals, vegetables and raw fruit.

Our refined foods often move rapidly through the small intestine and remain in the colon a long time. In part because of lack of bulk. The end result is an increase in constipation (leading to the ill-advised laxative habit, and irritable colon) and an increased incidence of diverticulosis and even colon cancer. There are other factors, of course, besides food.

One of the best signs of cancer of the colon is an unexplained change in bowel habits. If a person starts developing recurrent diarrhea or suddenly develops constipation, he should seek medical attention immediately. If cancer of the colon is detected before it has spread, it can often be totally removed and permanently cured. As in most other types of cancer the earlier the detection the greater the likelihood of successful treatment.

Dr. Klein has taken advantage of this principle by injecting tuberculin into the tumor and then the body's immune system mobilizes and causes a reaction in the tumor. If the body's immune reaction is severe enough, it will literally reject the tumor cells. He has had some early success in the treatment of patients with breast cancer and skin cancer with this technique. It is still in the research phases and after the initial encouraging results in a small se-

Some parents say children too young

Grade 7 children better off in regionals, panelists agree

By WENDY McMULLEN
Record Reporter
COATCOOK — The consensus of opinion at a Coatcook school committee meeting yesterday seemed to be that Grade 7 children are better off in a regional high school than in a local elementary school. Due to complaints among parents that children of 11 are too young to cope with the long hours of travelling and the vastness and complexity of regional schools, the school committee arranged a panel discussion yesterday evening to debate the matter.

However, there seemed to be little doubt among the panel and the few parents who attended the meeting that despite the many drawbacks, Grade 7 children would not have as many opportunities in the elementary schools.

The panel of four admitted the many problems which children have to cope with in the first years of regional school but said the advantages outweighed the problems.

TRAVEL A PROBLEM

Aubrey Greer, commissioner for the Lennoxville elementary and regional school board, pointed out that while transportation was a big problem, the diversified educational program offered to the students, which would be impossible in a small elementary school, gave the pupils an opportunity to find a subject to which one could easily adapt.

Mr. Greer added that the effect on the child varied according to the individual temperament of the child. In his own family, he said, while two of the children would not be bothered at all by the immensity of a regional school, one of his children might have been very confused by it.

He also asserted that the problems of integration into the regional school system had diminished since its foundation three years ago.

"For one thing, children adjust more easily to the regional school at Grade 7 than they did when they started at Grade 11," he contended.

SAME TEACHERS

The panel representative for Alexander Galt Regional High School, Mr. B. Hodge, outlined changes which have been implemented to make it easier for Level 1 students to integrate into the larger community of the regional school.

Starting this school year, teachers keep the same students for several basic subjects making it easier for the young pupils to become accustomed to a few teachers rather than seeing a myriad of different faces during the course of a week. Students also take many subjects in the same rooms so that they do not feel lost in the huge complex of the regional school.

Mr. Hodge claimed that according to most reports, this is a successful arrangement which has inspired more enthusiasm and keener participation than was apparent in previous years. Many teachers, he said, feel that this program should be continued into Level 2 until students are fully prepared to integrate into the larger environment of the regional school.

The larger perspective of the situation was presented by Mrs. Marguerite Knapp, Chairman of the Lennoxville board, who said it was human nature to oppose the change-over to a larger system, a whatever level. "We cannot compare the regional schools to school life as we experienced it and it is hard for us to evaluate," Mrs. Knapp explained.

She commented that it was interesting that adaptations were being made to the change and that most of the innovations were being made by the teachers who were on the firing line from both parents and students alike.

"The regional school was to a certain extent hoisted upon us," Mrs. Knapp continued.

"It is possible we should have built junior and senior high schools instead of one big complex. However, change is still possible. There is room to separate students into peer groups if it is considered necessary."

"This is what is valuable about parents groups questioning the system."

BUILT FOR USE

Mrs. Knapp said a serious disadvantage to Grade 7 children reverting to elementary schools was that the regional schools were built to be used up to 80 per cent of their capacity. "If 364 pupils were withdrawn from the regional schools, the government would not allow that space to remain empty and someone would have to replace them," she commented.

"This might be good, but we must consider all the advantages and disadvantages."

Finally, Mrs. Knapp suggested ways of better preparing children for integration into the regional school. She recalled an experiment in one large school where children were introduced to the school by attending the school for several days with brothers, sisters or friends. This experience, she pointed out, removed most of the child's fears and anxieties.

Mr. Hodge, principal of Green House, announced that such an experiment designed to ease the transition from elementary to regional school was due to start Monday with 60 children from Lennoxville elementary school visiting Alexander Galt for a short period.

The crux of the situation, however, was probably identified by one of the parents who attended the meeting, Mrs. Jean Abdella, who claimed that it was the parents rather than the children who must learn to adapt to, and get to know, the regional school.

"It is the parents who have to be educated to like the regional school," Mrs. Abdella claimed. "There are so many complaints but most of the parents do not bother to visit the school and to find out what it is really like."

For those parents who wish to find out what the regional school is really like, there will be a meeting on Jan. 26 at the Alexander Galt Regional School on how to make the transition from elementary to high school easier for students. All parents are invited to attend.

Protect Bromptonville?

Mayor Marc Bureau said recently that he is ready to discuss the possibility of providing police protection to Bromptonville if that municipality approaches the city. The Mayor was not precise on what effect such a move would have on municipal regrouping.

The city is still awaiting official word from the owners of the New Sherbrooke Hotel on their plans. Following a meeting Tuesday the owners were unavailable for comment. Maurice Fillion, president of the group, is expected back in Sherbrooke today.

Representatives of Sherbrooke taxi drivers are presently in Quebec City participating in the hearings of the parliamentary commission on Regulation 6. The local taxi men maintain that service in the city is adequate and are demanding at least a four-year exemption from the recommendations of the legislation.

Due to rapid evolution in land use technology the city of Sherbrooke is preparing a major overhaul of present zoning regulations institute in 1960.

To that end the city's urbanists have organized an information evening early in the week in conjunction with their counterparts from Laval. At that time the intensive land use method, applicable exclusively to residential development, will be discussed.

The system is widely used in the United States and according to Laval officials has proved fruitful in their city.

PQ meets Sunday

SHERBROOKE (AR) — The local Parti Quebecois will hold a general assembly Sunday evening to discuss several resolutions and to elect a delegation to the national congress.

Sherbrooke members are presently preparing several position papers which will be presented to the provincial gathering and Sunday night's agenda includes discussions on the cultural and economic sectors.

The local members will choose 12 representatives to the 4th Congress of the Parti Quebecois which is to be held in the near future. Only those members who submit their names before the morning of the meeting will be eligible for election as Sherbrooke representatives.

It was decided that the party will hold only Sunday meetings in order to give those who work a chance to participate actively in the political life of the organization.

BRIEFLET

KNOWLTON

The Annual Vestry Meeting of St. Paul's Church will be held in the Church Hall on Monday, January 29. Further particulars will be published at a later date.

Mrs. Trudeau buried

ST. REMI, Que. (CP) — Grace Elliott Trudeau, mother of Prime Minister Trudeau, was buried here Thursday in the family crypt overlooking a flat expanse of farmland.

About 300 relatives, friends and inhabitants of this small village attended the simple Roman Catholic funeral mass at the village's 132-year-old church and the burial at the nearby cemetery.

Prime Minister Trudeau, accompanied by his wife Margaret, led family mourners, along with his brother Charles and his sister Suzanne.

Mrs. Trudeau died in hospital in Montreal Tuesday night after a long illness. She was 82.

The three priests at the mass wore white vestments rather than the usual black for the mass, at the request of the family.

STAYED CALM

The prime minister remained serene throughout the mass during which he received communion, but was later seen to dab his eyes with a handkerchief as he left the church.

Following the mass, the body was taken to the nearby cemetery where it was placed in the Trudeau family crypt. The prime minister's father, his grandfather and his father's brothers are buried in the same grey stone crypt.

About 300 people jammed the church for the mass, consecrated by Rev. Louis Telmosse, Mrs. Trudeau's parish priest and a family friend. Rev. Albert Desroches, a friend of the prime minister in his college days, and Rev. Gilles Lacroix, vicar of St. Remi.

Aside from relatives and friends from Montreal, many residents of St. Remi gathered inside and outside the church and at the cemetery, drawn perhaps out of respect for the wife of a man whose ancestors settled in the area generations ago and equally attracted by the presence of the prime minister and his young wife.

REQUESTED SIMPLICITY

The funeral was a family affair with none of the prime minister's political allies or foes in attendance.

Father Lacroix said the family had asked for a "simple and not too sad" ceremony.

The body had been brought to this village, 30 miles south of Montreal for the service, under overcast skies.

RCMP and provincial police in civilian clothes were in evidence throughout the ceremonies, mainly controlling traffic and keeping photographers away from the crypt.

The noon burial brought housewives, children and even a man on a snowmobile to the cemetery on the edge of the village.

Mrs. Trudeau, who had been in poor health for a number of years, was an active woman, enjoying travelling and sports such as cross-country skiing and skating.

SUCCESSFUL HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN — Sherbrooke Hospital once again received enthusiastic public support for its fund raising campaign in 1972. Yesterday, co-chairman Donald Patrick and Bruce Bishop proudly surveyed the chart indicating the progress of the campaign while hospital director Earl Gould looked on approvingly.

Examination of roles signifies change

This is one of a series of stores specially written for The Canadian Press by experts in various fields of Canadian activity, outlining developments they expect in 1973. This one, on the outlook for the arts, is by Arthur Gelber, past president of the Canadian Conference of the Arts.

By ARTHUR GELBER

TORONTO (CP) — Perhaps the most significant recent change in the arts, and a trend which I foresee expanding in 1973, is the willingness by both the federal and provincial governments to examine their role in relation to the long-term and permanent support of and interest in the arts.

There has been a flurry of activities in this area—the re-examination by the federal government of several policy areas, for example, film, museums and publishing, followed by legislation in each case; the concern by provincial governments of their role in the process. With the exception of Montreal, and to a lesser degree Toronto, Canadian cities have been conspicuously absent from this process of evaluation.

In a sense, this new surge of interest and support could be a reflection of governments' realization that modern technology and economic growth have not created the more humane world which was predicted just several years ago and we must look elsewhere for a sense of spiritual well-being.

Parallel to the increase in funding which has put the artistic organizations on a sounder financial basis, there has been a re-examination of existing theories and policies which has led to the beginnings of new trends which I predict will play an important role in the 1970s.

One of these new aspects, known in the artistic world as "democratization of the arts," is really an opening up of the artistic process to the participation of citizens other than as members of the audience. To a certain extent this new trend has been helped by the massive funding under the federal Local Initiatives Programs and Opportunities for Youth Programs, which have encouraged young artists and groups to experiment with new art forms.

PROCESS BROADENS
As I see it, there are several important elements in this process. One of these is the general acceptance that the entire artistic process must be made accessible to all elements in society; that the young, the underprivileged, the elderly can have something to contribute to the community, and that they should be given the opportunity to make artistic expression a personal and direct experience.

This broadening of the artistic process has assisted and will continue to assist us not only in recognizing new and different forms but also various and varied cultural heritages and traditions. Governments as well as artistic groups themselves have been instrumental in this accessibility.

Stratford Shakespearean Festival, for example, has had resounding success with its program of selling tickets to factory workers, illustrating that given the opportunity to do so, the average citizen is indeed eager to taste the artistic experience. The citizens of Hamilton have shown remarkable support for their new cultural centre.

In a way, we are moving to a balanced approach to culture, in the recognition of new artistic forms as well as new and undiscovered audiences.

One other strong element in the arts in 1973 will be the decentralization of our institutions. While the majority of the federal cultural institutions are in Ottawa, the former secretary of state, Gerard Pelletier, openly questioned the desirability of this trend. The recently announced National Booking Office, although centred in Ottawa, will have offices in other Canadian cities. The Canadian Conference of the Arts for the first time has created a series of regional meetings in an attempt to create a more meaningful dialogue with the artistic community in each area of the country.

CREATORS RECOGNIZED

At the core of all these developments is the creative personality itself. We are moving to a position of recognition of this person who not only contributes to society through the art form, but also plays a very real economic role. Recent studies on the economics of the arts have shown that the artistic community contributes far more in economic terms in the creation of jobs, than the grants it receives from governments. This type of statistical analysis of artists and artistic organizations will be on the upswing in 1973, as we observe the expansion and growth of statistical and other types of research into artists and artistic organizations.

I mentioned above the lack of concern by most Canadian cities for its artists and artistic communities and a hope that the new "reform" groups now prominent in several cities will bring a new responsibility in cultural affairs.

The other element in society which should play a far greater role in the arts is the business community.

Canada may lose scientists to U.S.

TORONTO (CP) — Canada is in danger of losing many of its brightest scientists because of a shortage of research jobs in Canadian universities, a Quebec doctor said Wednesday.

Dr. Rene Simard of the University of Sherbrooke said in an interview that fellowships to pay salaries must be made available "if Canada wants to assure a supply of qualified medical researchers in the future."

Dr. Simard is chairman of the National Cancer Institute committee that decides which researchers will be awarded fellowships paid from funds collected by the Canadian Cancer Society.

He said the institute encourages young researchers by providing scholarships for training in research institutions outside of Canada and coaxes them to return. But now, there are no jobs for them.

"We must support them with jobs," he said. Otherwise "when there is something that urgently needs investigation, we won't have the talent to do it."

Dr. Simard said the cancer institute has almost doubled its fellowships for cancer researchers this year. It will award nine fellowships compared with five a year ago.

Campaign a success

SHERBROOKE (WM) —

The Sherbrooke Hospital fund raising campaign almost reached the $100,000 mark in 1972. From a total of 42 communities spread as far as Montreal and Toronto, the hospital raised a total of $97,046.53.

"Enthusiastic community support and team effort are responsible for the splendid results of the 1972 campaign," Earl Gould executive director of the hospital, said in congratulating the co-chairmen of the campaign, Bruce A. Bishop and Donald M. Patrick.

There is no question for the moment of taking measures to stop the price increase, or imposing sanctions on those who raise them without valid reasons, but will the committee's right to summon and question those interested as well as demanding the presentation of documents pertaining to the price situation, induce them to show more caution.

It must be said that the detached attitude shown by Conservative members in the House of Commons also contributed to Mr. Marchand's loss of temper.

The vicious debate which blew up in the Commons is nothing more than an extension of the last election campaign when some of Robert Stanfield's English-speaking Conservative members did not show too much tenderness toward French-Canadians.

For both sides, too, the new relationship was and is founded on hard interests. For if a Soviet preventive attack on China finally materializes, we in the United States will find ourselves living in another Hitler-time albeit with no Hitler.

DANVILLE — The December Meeting of the Shipton Women's Institute was held in the form of a Christmas Party in St. Augustine Church Hall with the President, Mrs. R. Hull in charge.

A very short meeting opened with The Mary Stewart Collect. Members answered the Roll Call by reading a piece of Christmas Poetry.

The meeting adjourned with Christmas gifts being exchanged among the members.

Cards were enjoyed at four tables with Christmas Carols played on a record player in the background.

Prize winners were: Ladies 1st - Mrs. A. LeRoux; Consolation - Mrs. S. Blake; Men's 1st - Mr. E. Coyle; Consolation - Mr. A. LeRoux.

Travelling prize for the month went to Mrs. J. Saffin.

A basket lunch was served at the close of the evening.

The January meeting was held on Saturday afternoon January 6, 1973, in St. Augustine's Church Hall with the President Mrs. R. Hull in charge.

The meeting opened with the Mary Stewart Collect. The Secretary Mrs. J. Saffin read the minutes of the December meeting which were approved. Members answered the Roll Call by giving your favorite hobby or pastime.

Travelling prize was won by Mrs. F. Bournier and nominating committee selected.

The February meeting will be held in St. Augustine's Church Hall on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 3 at 2 p.m., when the hostesses will be Mrs. Nettie Evans and Mrs. Gladys Woods.

The meeting adjourned and lunch was served by the hostesses Mrs. J. Olney and Mrs. Stanley Taylor.

WATERLOO-WARDEN — The first meeting of 1973 of the Waterloo-Warden Women's Institute was held on January 3rd at the home of Mrs. G. George. This being 1st vice-president's meeting, Mrs. C. Bowker presided, and lead the group in the recitation of the Collect and the singing of the Ode.

Each member and one guest answered the Roll Call by naming a member country of the United Nations Organization.

Mrs. C. Thompson read the Minutes of the December meeting and Mrs. M. Sicard presented the financial report.

Payment of accounts and a donation to the cafeteria of the Waterloo Elementary School were approved. Mrs. Bowker and Mrs. Maynes paid into the birthday apron.

Correspondence read covered thanks for Christmas gifts and cards, a donation to our work from a former member, also a Christmas greeting and a calendar from our penpals of the St. Lawrence Women's Institute in England.

Mrs. George gave a report on the packing of the Christmas gifts for the patients at the Waterloo Hospital, and Mrs. Maynes reported on the visit to the Hospital and the distribution of the gifts.

The Care package, donated by Mrs. George, was won by Mrs. G. Emmett.

Mrs. A. Bazinet, Agriculture Convener, read an article from the Country Guide which pointed out the importance of taking time to enjoy our surroundings, preferably with our families, and to stop being "prisoners of the clock."

Citizenship Convener, Mrs. G. George, told of the opening exercises of Prince Edward Island's Centennial Year celebration.

Miss Ashton, Education Convener, read a letter of thanks from the Junior Red Cross acknowledging receipt of used postage stamps collected and sent in to them by Miss C. Mountford. She also read an article on Emanuel Hahn, the Canadian artist and sculptor who designed some of our silver coins, war memorials and public monuments.

Home Economics Convener, Mrs. H. Smith, told of Sexy Hair Shampoos and gave a grading of dishwashing detergents.

Mrs. W. Copping, Publicity Convener, read an article on the founding of the Women's Institute.

Mrs. M. Hilliker, Welfare and Health, read a doctor's article on the causes and treatment of cirrhosis of the liver.

Mrs. Bowker read an article telling of the work of a Newfoundland nurse, known as "Aunt" Mary Sims who retired recently at the age of 77 years, after travelling and nursing in Labrador and Newfoundland for more than fifty years.

Mrs. Bowker thanked our hostess, Mrs. George, for her hospitality, then conducted a Penny Fair, auctioning off many useful and interesting items which had been brought in by the members.

The hostesses, Mrs. L. Maynes, Mrs. E. McElroy and Mrs. H. Smith served delicious refreshments. The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. Smith.

Carriere-Baird wed

A pretty wedding took place December 16 at 4 p.m. in St. Paul's United Church, Magog. Patricia Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Baird was united in marriage to Richard Carriere, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Carriere.

Rev. W. Close officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Mrs. E. Cuthbert played the wedding music.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of French satin made in empire style, with d'Alencon lace at the neckline, wrist and bodice. Her long veil of tulle illusion was held by a band of miniature red roses. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Linda Lowden, of Montreal, the maid of honour, was gowned in burgundy velvet. She carried a bouquet of miniature pink carnations.

The bridesmaids were Joyce and Charlotte Baird, sisters of the bride, Mrs. M. Gauvin and Brenda Kirby. They wore gowns of azure blue velvet and carried nosegays of yellow carnations.

Hugh McClements of Lancaster, Ont., acted as best man. The ushers were John Carriere, Michel Gauvin, Wm. Teby Jr. and Philip Church.

Mrs. Baird, the bride's mother, wore a gown of black and white crepe with black accessories and a corsage of red and white carnations.

Mrs. Carriere, the groom's mother, chose a blue and white figured gown of silk jersey. She wore a corsage of yellow and white carnations.

A reception was held at the Army, Navy and Air Force Hall.

After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Carriere will reside in Labrador City, Newfoundland.

60th wedding anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Villeneuve, a popular Rock Island couple observed their 60th wedding anniversary on Friday, January 12. There was a weekend of celebrations to mark this great occasion.

At 3:30 on Friday afternoon, Father R. Lecours, Parish priest at Our Lady of Mercy Church in Rock Island, held a special anniversary mass in the couple's comfortable home at 18 Paquette street. Father Lecours was assisted by the couple's children.

The mass was followed by a family dinner. Father Lecours proposed a toast and wished Mr. and Mrs. Villeneuve many more years of health to be together.

On Saturday, the family entertained at Open House from two until four o'clock in the afternoon. Some 80 people came and were received by Mrs. Emile Bouchard.

Mr. and Mrs. Villeneuve received the congratulations and good wishes of the visitors in their living room. Refreshments were served by members of the family.

The anniversary cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Horace Doyon, was her gift to the couple. The large cake was topped with two smaller cakes in the design of 60. White calla lilies, roses and scroll decorated. A large tulle bow, silver leaves and tiny silver birds finished the decoration.

After the initial cut by the bride and groom of the diamond years, the cake was cut and served.

Mrs. Villeneuve wore a gown of periwinkle blue brocaded polyester having white and silver lace at the V neckline and banding the cuffs of the long sleeves. She wore a corsage of pink carnations. Mr. Villeneuve had a white carnation boutonniere.

From the family there was a gift of multicolored gladioli which were used to decorate the living room. To their father and grandfather they gave a gold wrist watch and to their mother and grandmother, a Mother's ring set with six stones, one for the birthday month of each of their children.

Father Lecours gave them a gold "Marriage in Christ" symbol and a blue anniversary candle. They also received china in the 60th wedding anniversary decor, money, other useful gifts, and numerous cards extending congratulations and good wishes.

On Friday evening the family received a phone call from the couple's son, Raoul Villeneuve and his wife and son in Clearwater, Florida, who were unable to be in Rock Island.

When Mr. and Mrs. Villeneuve celebrated their golden wedding anniversary they had a guest book. At their 60th anniversary, the same book was used. Mr. Villeneuve said with a twinkle in his eyes "I think there are enough pages left for our 70th anniversary."

In addition to the family that gathered for this great occasion were Mrs. Villeneuve's brother Arthur Russell and sister-in-law Mrs. Napelon Russell, both of Beebe, and others from Longueuil, Montreal, Sherbrooke, LaSalle, Beebe and the Boundary Villages.

Sunday and Monday that followed several friends unable to attend the Open House called and were warmly welcomed and served refreshments.

Mr. Villeneuve and Laura Russell were united in marriage on January 12, 1913. As he was employed in Montreal at the time the marriage took place there and their first home was in the city. They returned to the Boundary over 50 years ago and have since made their home here.

Their marriage was blessed with six children, Mrs. Emile (Laurette) Bouchard, Rock Island, Mrs. John (Aline) Bouthillier, Longueuil, Amedee Villeneuve who resides on the home farm in Beebe, Mrs. Beatrice Roberge, Sherbrooke, Raoul Villeneuve of Rock Island, presently on holiday in Florida and Mrs. Roger (Jeannine) Turcotte of Longueuil. All but Raoul and his wife were at the celebration. The couple also have 15 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren. The four generations were together at the weekend.

Mrs. Villeneuve's sister, who is in her 80's, Mrs. Arthur Boisclair of Granby was in touch through a telephone call to extend congratulations to the couple.

Nabuurs-Rourke marriage

Gladiolas, carnations, and candelabras decorated St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Aurora, Ontario, Saturday October 14 for the marriage of Dianne Mildred Roarke and Peter Martin Nabuurs. Rev. H. McAvoy officiated.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Roarke of Hatley, and the groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Nabuurs of Painswick, Ontario.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a princess style floor-length gown of white pebble satin, made by herself, fashioned with a roll collar and full length bell shaped sleeves trimmed with lace which matched the lace on her veil.

She carried a bouquet of white carnations and pink sweetheart roses, and also wore a brooch given to her by her aunt, Miss Jean Roarke.

The matron of honor was the groom's sister-in-law, Marilyn Nabuurs, who wore a rose colored floor length gown fashioned in a princess style, scooped neckline, and small full length bell shaped sleeves.

The bridesmaid was Marlene Roarke, sister of the bride. She wore an identical gown to the matron of honor. The matron of honor and the bridesmaid wore miniature carnations in their hair and bouquets of miniature carnations and pink sweetheart roses.

Groomsman was Bert Nabuurs, brother of the groom. The usher was Lyle Roarke, brother of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a street length dress of soft blue crimplene with black accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

The groom's mother wore a street length dress of navy blue with black accessories with a corsage of red carnations.

For travelling the bride wore a burgundy and white checked pant suit with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

A wedding reception was held after the wedding at Newmarket.

The couple now live in Aurora, Ontario.

Kelso-Jamieson exchange rings

A beautiful holiday wedding took place on Saturday afternoon, December 30, at four o'clock in the St. John the Divine Anglican Church, Thetford Mines when Cathy Lynn Dale Jamieson, daughter of Mrs. Damien Trepanier of Inverness and Ronald Jamieson of Kinnear's Mills, became the bride of Ronald Lorne Kelso, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Kelso, of St. Pierre Baptiste.

Archdeacon Guy Marston officiated, assisted by Rev. McLeod of the United Church in Inverness, for the double ring ceremony Mrs. Robert Sellot, of Thetford, played Christmas Carols during the signing of the register in addition to the traditional music before and after the ceremony.

The church was decorated with Christmas greenery, red poinsettias and red and white carnations in silver bowls on the altar table. The steps to the altar were flanked with large round lighted candles set in Scotch pine. The guest pews were marked with large white satin bows.

The bride was given in marriage by her maternal grandfather, Roland White. She wore a gown of white chiffon velvet with a floor length skirt, and empire waistline. The bodice had a scoop neckline. The three quarter length sleeves were banded with white maribou fur.

A cathedral length train of matching velvet fell from the waist. The pearl decorated headpiece held in place her chapel length veil of nylon tulle. Her slippers were in silver. She wore a drop pearl pendant and earrings, a gift of the groom. Her bouquet was a trailing cascade of red sweetheart roses and stephanotis against greenery.

Mrs. Allan Robinson, a friend of the bride, as matron of honor and Debbie Derusha, a cousin of the bride, as bridesmaid, wore gowns of emerald green chiffon velvet fashioned identically with floor length skirts, empire waists and scoop necklines. The puffed sleeves to below the elbow terminated in long cuffs with three gold buttons. They wore gold slippers and carried colonials of red and white carnations with long red velvet ribbons. Their jewellery was cultured pearl earrings, gifts of the bride. In their hair they wore clusters of red and white carnations.

The groom wore a deep blue blazer, light grey trousers, a burgundy color shirt and grey tie. His boutonniere was white stephanotis.

The groomsmen, Allan Robinson, a friend, wore a blue blazer, grey trousers and tie and a blue shirt. His boutonniere and those of the ushers, Dale Nugent and Stanford White, a friend and a cousin of the groom, were white carnations.

Mrs. Trepanier, mother of the bride, wore a floor length gown of sapphire blue deball crushed velvet styled on princess lines. Silver and pearl beaded lace was used to trim. Her accessories were in silver and she wore a corsage of red roses and baby's breath.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Kelso, was in a gown of burgundy wine fortrel trimmed with silver and accessorized with silver. Her corsage was white roses.

The bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Roland White, wore a gown of white and mauve design. She wore a toning carnation corsage and black accessories.

After the ceremony the wedding party and guests motored to St. Jean XXIII School auditorium in Inverness where the bride and groom, their attendants and parents received the guests.

This was followed by a dinner of roast turkey, ham and chicken and all that went with it, served by the ladies of the Inverness Rectory Hill Anglican Church Guild. The hall was decorated in keeping with the Yule season. An arrangement of red poinsettias centered each table.

The bride's table was centered with the wedding cake in triple tiers. Each tier was separated by white pillars. The cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom under a spray of lily of the valley and a lighted wedding bell. The cake was iced in white ruffles and trimmed with silver. This was made and decorated by Mrs. Clifford George, aunt of the bride. The cake was flanked with red poinsettias.

The groomsmen proposed a toast to the bride and groom. The groom responded. The wedding cake was served by the bride and groom before their departure on their honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelso left for their wedding trip to New York. They have taken up residence in Howick, Que. For her trip the bride chose to leave wearing a pant ensemble of brown suede blazer, tweed slacks, and yellow sweater, her floppy brimmed hat matched, her accessories were in brown and she wore a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

Tammy and Cindy White, cousins of the bride were in charge of the guest book. Guests attend from Concord, N.H., Thompsonville, Conn., Sherbrooke, Pointe Claire, Magog, Beebe, Lennoxville, Black Lake, Kinnear's Mills, St. Pierre Baptiste and Inverness.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelso are graduates of the Andrew Johnson Memorial High School, in Thetford Mines.

Zenith
presents the
complete color TV:

SUPER CHROMACOLOR®

Complete with:

- One-button tuning • 100% solid-state chassis
- A full year warranty • Plus the brightest, sharpest, giant-screen CHROMACOLOR® picture in history.

Shown above,
the Elliott Model D4744, with 26" screen. Also available in a wide selection of other fine furniture styles.

Now the famous Chromacolor picture is even brighter, even sharper. Super Chromacolor is a new breakthrough because Zenith has discovered a way to enlarge the color dot area while still illuminating every dot on a black background.

ONE-BUTTON CHROMATIC TUNING: If somebody mistunes the color, a touch of the Chromatic button retunes it instantly. It provides control of picture brightness, contrast, tint, color level and flesh tones.

ZENITH'S NEW 100% SOLID-STATE CHASSIS has no tubes to burn out. It features plug-in Dura-Modules that are pre-tested, then tested again in the set, for long life and dependability.

ONE YEAR WARRANTY: If your Zenith 100% solid-state 26" color TV doesn't perform satisfactorily due to a manufacturing defect, the cost to replace or repair the defect, including labor, will be paid for by Zenith Radio Corporation. The labor to be performed by a Zenith dealer or servicing contractor.

This warranty covers a period of one year from the date you purchased the TV, and applies only to original consumer purchase. The picture tube is warranted for 2 years from date of purchase. Labor to install the replacement tube is covered during first year of warranty. Warranty does not cover set installation, setup, adjustment of customer controls, and installation or repair of antenna systems.

Stanstead fetes 100th Dinner and dance celebration set

By Ivy Hatch

STANSTEAD - The second major event to mark the centennial year at Stanstead College will take place in Montreal on February 9 - the first of another three events in 1973. The others will be held at Stanstead and Rock Island. The first, in 1972, was the Christmas centennial celebration.

The February 9 celebration will be held at the Windsor Hotel in Montreal. This is sponsored by active alumni who anticipate some 600 to 1000 former students and friends of Stanstead College will gather in the hotel ballroom for a well-planned evening. Alfred Garbarino, a graduate of earlier years, is the chairman. The activities will get underway at 8:15 p.m. with a general reception. While old acquaintances are renewed and new ones made, one will be able to view an interesting exhibit of Stanstead College's past 100 years from the school archives.

At approximately 9:20 p.m. it is anticipated the arrival of honorable Robert Bourassa, prime minister of Quebec, or his representative from Quebec, will bring greetings from the provincial government.

Afterward, a highlight of the evening, a multi-media flashback of the school history, will be given. Mrs. E.C. Amaron, wife of the late Dr. Amaron, principal for over 25 years, will be the commentator up to the mid 1950s, then John Hardy a more recent alumnus, will comment on the remaining years to the present. This should be a delightful history tour of 100 years at Stanstead College and will undoubtedly recall many memories.

Thomas Russell, the present Headmaster, will bring greetings from Stanstead College. Dancing will be held until nearly midnight when a hot buffet supper will be served. After the supper there will be more dancing until 2 a.m. The music will be played by one of the most popular orchestras, Noel Talarico.

During the evening some lucky couple will be given the opportunity of spending a week with free hotel accommodation in St. Lucia, one of the Caribbean's most beautiful islands. This prize includes air flight, compliments of Air Canada, for two people. Arrangements for this trip were made by Don Rofs, chairman of the executive board of the college.

The planning committee have arranged the program to do away with tedious speeches. This will be a once-in-a-lifetime celebration and it is hoped every effort will be made to attend.

Tickets are available in advance by contacting Robert Morissette, 327 Logan street, St. Lambert, Que., at Stanstead College or from Ivy Hatch, Rock Island.

INDUSTRIAL ACCOUNTING

A large manufacturer of heavy industrial equipment requires a qualified accountant (C.A. preferred). The selected candidate will be employed initially in a staff capacity; he will be transferred to a line supervisory position when a suitable opening develops. During the training period, some short-range travel by car will be necessary.

An interesting and financially rewarding future is open to the right person.

Alberta to reduce taxes

By JOHN DODD

EDMONTON (CP) - The Alberta government, bolstered by an increase in revenues, announced a plan to reduce property taxes "to offset the impact of inflation."

The plan also would make education less dependent on property taxes and change the formula for grants to municipalities.

Main features of the proposal, to be introduced at the spring session of the legislature opening Feb. 15:

- A property tax rebate of up to $26 for homeowners each year, an increase of $141 for 1972. The increase includes a $25 raise in the existing homeowners' grant to $100.

- An income tax credit of up to $100 for persons renting a home or apartment on the grounds that they pay property taxes indirectly through their landlords.

- Removal from property tax on the 30-mill, province-wide levy for the school foundation program.

For municipalities—increasingly under financial pressure because of rising costs—the oil-rich province will:

- Pay all the costs of hospital and local health unit requisitions and 90 per cent—up from 80 per cent—of municipal social assistance costs.

- Pay about $15 million in unconditional grants to municipalities, plus about $20 million more in incentive grants. The incentive grants are conditional on the municipalities keeping budget increases to less than 7½ per cent a year.

PAID $42 MILLION

Last year, the province paid out $42 million to municipalities in unconditional grants.

Premier Peter Lougheed told a news conference the municipalities should gain a better financial position under the plan because they will be freed of hospital requisitions and 90 per cent of social assistance costs.

"This step was taken to ensure that the benefits of new revenue from the oil industry, are transferred back to the citizens," the premier said.

The plan drew immediate criticism from Opposition Leader Harry Strom who said it represented "manipulation" and "broken promises."

The plan, he said, does not fulfill the province's promise to pick up the cost of education and, in effect, merely represents an increase in the homeowner's grant.

The opposition leader also said he fears the government's plan strikes at local autonomy.

Premier Lougheed said he believes local autonomy will be increased because municipalities will have more money to spend.

Municipal Affairs Minister Bob Russell said the entire tax-reduction and municipal assistance package, is equal to a raise in municipal assistance grants to $88.2 million from $42 million.

The money for the program will come from increased royalties for oil and natural gas. This revenue is expected to exceed $215 million this year and the government will make $70 million more from its new tax on crude oil. It also is expected to make an additional $20 million if its requests to increase the wellhead price of natural gas are followed.

Annual concert

KINNEAR'S MILLS - During the Yuletide Season a number of people assembled at the Community Hall for the annual Christmas concert.

Mr. David Scott was master of ceremonies. The program included recitations, singing, reading and several short plays.

Among those taking part in the program were Cheryl and Laurel Lowry, Lynn and Ricky MacRae, Florence and Eileen Reid, the Nutbrown children, Aube children, Mrs. Leonard Williams and children, Dixie Trepanier, the Allan boys, Susan and Mary Lou Rothney, also Messrs. Howard McHarg, Brian Lowry, Barrie Crawford and Lawrence Allan. The pianist was Mrs. Murray Nugent.

At the close of the evening Santa Claus arrived and assisted by his helpers distributed gifts from the decorated tree. Each child received a bag of candy and fruit.

Celebrates 7th birthday

ROCK ISLAND - Miss Michelle Stokes observed her seventh birthday on Thursday, January 11. That afternoon after school ten of her class mates came to the home of her parents, Rev. and Mrs. G.W. Stokes in Rock Island where a party took place.

Assisted by Miss Shelley Cox the youngsters had a happy time playing games. Prizes were come to each one much to their delight.

Michelle received several lovely gifts from the guests and others all of which gave her

Clifford leads pack

MOUNT ORFORD, Que. (CP) — A former member of Canada's national ski team and a skier aspiring to the team took top spots in the first Eastern Division race of the Pontiac Cup series Thursday.

Betsy Clifford, on the comeback trail after dropping out of the national team last year due to injuries, won the women's downhill in 73.72 seconds. She is skiing for the National Capital ski team.

In the men's event on the same 20-gate course, Steve Hamilton of Vancouver, a member of the national ski team training squad, came first in a time of 69.49 seconds.

Andrea Esson of Toronto, skiing for the southern Ontario ski zone, took second place in the women's event with a time of 75.95 seconds while Diane Boileau of the Quebec team and Labrador City's Joan Wilson of the Atlantic Division team were tied for third with 77.50 seconds.

Gordon Acton, of the Northern Ontario ski zone, placed second in the men's event in 70.72 seconds and Grant Rutherglen of the national team's training squad was third in 71.01 seconds.

Another downhill race was to be held today on the same 1,700-foot vertical drop course.

Competitors in the races earned points for standings in the Pontiac Cup series except for members of the national ski team training squad who are not eligible for the event.

Perry Spitznagel of Labrador City finished sixth in 71.50 in the men's event Thursday.

First in series tonight

SHERBROOKE (GP) — The first of a 12-game promotional series takes place tonight at the Sports Palace when Drummondville Rangers visit Sherbrooke Beavers.

The game will be sponsored by Kayser and the first 1,000 ladies 18 years and over will receive free a pair of panty hose. As well 500 Kayser employees will be guests of the Beavers for the Quebec Major Junior hockey league encounter.

All youngsters up to the age of 12 will be allowed in free of charge and students will pay but 50 cents upon presentation of school identification.

The game itself will feature two of the highest scoring trios in the Quebec junior loop.

Government repeats no Olympic aid pledge

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government was pressed Thursday to provide financial assistance to the Montreal Olympic Games in 1976.

But Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford replied in the Commons that the government position is unchanged — no financial assistance other than aid available under existing federal programs.

Mr. Basford was asked by Roch LaSalle (Ind-Joliette) whether the government had changed its view so that Montreal taxpayers will not have to bear large tax increases to pay for the Olympics.

The urban affairs minister said the government had been asked for "non-financial assistance." This included permission to issue special coins and stamps for sale to the public.

J. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Annapolis Valley) suggested the government persuade the CBC and CTV television networks to form a consortium to reduce the cost of providing broadcasting facilities for the Olympics.

State Secretary Hugh Faulkner said he has discussed the matter with the networks. The CBC said recently it has not completed a study on the cost of supplying broadcasting facilities. The study is being carried out for the Olympic organizing committee.

LOTTERY SUGGESTED
The government is known to have been asked by the committee for permission to hold a national lottery and sell special coins and stamps to help raise funds for the Olympics.

These would require changes in federal legislation or regulations that now are being considered by the government, say official sources.

Outside the House, Barry Mather (NDP—Surrey—White Rock) issued a press release saying the CBC spent $1,028,000 for radio and TV coverage of the Munich Olympics.

Big M stars for Montreal

Islanders zonk Bruins, help Habs

By IAN MACLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Boston Bruins were aware former team-mate Eddie Westfall was flying, but were at a loss to explain how the rest of his New York Islanders got off the ground Thursday night.

"All of a sudden we caught them flat-footed," shouted Islanders' coach Phil Goyette following a 9-7 upset of the rugged Bruins at Boston Garden to end a 12-game National Hockey League losing streak.

"We got one, two, three goals and we just kept going," Goyette exclaimed in the visitors' dressing room after the game. "We charged at them from the start... that's what they usually do."

Elsewhere the scores were: Montreal Canadiens 5, Pittsburgh Penguins 2; Buffalo Sabres 5, Chicago Black Hawks 1 and Philadelphia Flyers 6, Minnesota North Stars 1.

Atlanta Flames, enjoying a far more successful first year than the Islanders, entertain St. Louis Blues tonight and a win or a tie could move them into second place in the West Division.

In other games, New York Rangers are at California Golden Seals and Los Angeles Kings visit Vancouver Canucks.

NOT IMPRESSED

"This was not our best game," said Goyette after the Islanders won only their fifth game of the season and second in 29 starts at the expense of the defending Stanley Cup champions.

"We've played some damn good games we should have won," he continued. "The big thing is that our players know they can score, and that's something."

J.C.'s stamina helps Nordiques win

Quebec Nordiques counted even more than usual on J. C. Tremblay Thursday night and the veteran defenceman rose to the occasion.

A back injury to Francois Lacombe halfway through their World Hockey Association game with New York Raiders left Les Nordiques with only three defencemen.

As a result, the 33-year-old former National League all-star logged more than 55 minutes of ice time in a 4-4 tie, lengthened to 70 minutes by a scoreless overtime period.

The veteran not only survived the ordeal but contributed a goal and assist to his team's total.

In other WHA activity, Ottawa Nationals defeated Minnesota Fighting Saints 6-3 and Houston Aeros handed Chicago Cougars their seventh consecutive loss, 8-3.

New England Whalers visit Winnipeg Jets tonight in a clash of division leaders while Los Angeles Sharks entertain Cleveland Crusaders and the Nationals move into Philadelphia to take on the Blazers.

GOALS CAME EARLY
Six goals were scored in the first 15 minutes at Quebec before goaltenders Pete Donnelly of New York and Richard Brodeur of Les Nordiques began to assert their authority.

Tremblay gave Quebec a 4-3 lead three seconds after the start of a power play midway through the second period, Brian Perry got the goal back for the Raiders just before the period ended, and the sharpshooters were through for the night.

WARD CRANKS NO. 37

Jean Payette accounted for two of the earlier Quebec goals and Michel Parizeau provided the third. League scoring leader Ron Ward, with his 37th of the year, Hal Willis and Mike Laughton were the other Raider goal-getters.

The Nationals took most of the first period to get untracked when Wayne Connelly's goal gave Minnesota the lead 38 seconds after the opening whistle.

Then Mike Amodeo, Steve King and Jack Gibson scored in a span of barely three minutes and they never looked back.

Pro Bowl becoming no bowl

DALLAS (AP) — The National Football League's showcase Pro Bowl attraction Sunday, featuring what is supposed to be the finest talent in the country, is fast drawing the tag of the "drop-out bowl."

On an almost daily basis since practice began last Saturday, NFL officials have announced another fallen star from either the National or American Conference all-star lineups.

It started when New York Jet quarterback Joe Namath pulled out with a bad ankle and it spread like a prairie fire.

Tom Landry of Dallas Cowboys, the NFC coach, said the goings and comings can be unsettling.

"It's an unusual situation," Landry said. "One goes and then another one comes. However, the new player is usually just as good as the one who left."

SUBSTITUTE SICK

Larry Csonka, fullback for world champion Miami Dolphins reported Wednesday that he had a back problem and he was replaced by another Dolphin star, Mercury Morris, who promptly came down with the flu.

Joining Morris on the sidelines with the flu were two other Miami players, linebacker Nick Buoniconti and defensive end Bill Stanfill, but all were expected to play Sunday.

On Tuesday, injured Washington running back Larry Brown, Miami wide receiver Paul Warfield and Detroit offensive tackle Rocky Freitas checked out for various reasons.

Walt Garrison of Dallas replaced Brown, J. D. Hill of Buffalo took Warfield's spot, and Atlanta's George Kunz decided he could use the extra $2,000 or $1,500, depending on which side wins, and said he'd play for Freitas.

Earlier, defensive tackle Bob Lilly of Dallas, who has a back problem, gave his spot to Minnesota's Alan Page, and Oakland's Fred Biletnikoff decided he couldn't make it.

Cranston notches perfect scores

By PAUL CARBRAY

VANCOUVER (CP) — Toller Cranston received four perfect marks for his compulsory free-skating performance Thursday and virtually locked up his third straight Canadian men's figure skating title.

Cranston, a 23-year-old professional artist from Toronto, put on a stunning performance that brought a capacity crowd of 3,200 to its feet, but later said he wasn't satisfied with his performance.

"I don't feel that was really a top A-1 performance. I was pleased with the marks, if a bit intimidated. I hope I'm able to relax a bit more (in the free skating)."

The judges didn't agree with his assessment, awarding him first place for his two-minute program that was without a mistake except for landing a triple salchow slightly off-balance.

Cranston received the four perfect marks—sixes—out of the 14 given. Three of the perfect marks were for artistic impression; the other for technical merit.

"With the performance, although everything went as it was supposed to go, I didn't feel that I skated with abandon, and I think with really great performances, the skater becomes a bit reckless."

Cranston followed another outstanding compulsory routine, this one by Ron Shaver of Galt, Ont., who was in second following the compulsory figures.

IS POLISHED

Shaver's routine, although not as artistic as Cranston's, was highly polished and was awarded three 5.9 marks.

The compulsory free-skating program, a new addition to figure skating, requires skaters to incorporate six specific moves into their 120-second program.

Cranston's most startling move was a series of position changes on a change-foot sit spin.

He objected to terming the changes of position ballet-like, although "I think ballet and skating are related in some ways. I don't want to be referred to as a balletic skater."

Skiers enjoy outing

Forty-five members of the Richmond Regional Ski Club spent Saturday, January 13, at Glen Mountain in Knowlton. This was the first ski trip for the club this season. It was an ideal day for skiing with a bright sunny day and snow conditions nothing less than perfect.

Glen Mountain offers special group rates for students and its slopes range from beginners to experts. Two T-bars and a chair lift were kept busy during the day. Lee Robison, president of the club and Jo Anne Beliveau, treasurer, were elected to head the club by the members at previous meetings.

A student lost his wallet while skiing and some kind and honest individual turned it in to the office. Not a single penny had been taken and the finder had not even left his name for a reward. It restores one's faith in honest individuals.
