PRICE ONE CENT

NEW YEAR'S DAY AT THE HORSES' HOME.

In accordance with its now happily established custom, the Home of Rest for Horses, at Friar's Place Farm, Acton, England, on New Year's Day, supplied a scene such as would have delighted the eyes of all lovers of horses or of animals generally. Some forty inmates of that pleasant resting place for ill or broken-down horses were feasted with an appetizing New Year's dinner, consisting of sliced carrots, apples, sugar and attractive little loaves of bread, both white and brown. Quite a number of well-known people assembled to see the animals partake of this excellent fare, which is the gift of a clergyman's wife, Mrs. Gore, who devotes much time and interest to the welfare of horses, and when the dinner had been declared served by the secretary of the institution, Mr. Sutherland Safford, the company gathered round the various loose-boxes and watched the animals' enjoyment with their own pleasure in the sight. Among the present inmates of this haven of refuge various types of steeds are to be seen, from the broken-down cab horse or "coaster's moke" to the aged animals of happier circumstances whose kindly owner has sought to shelter its declining years within this comfortable home. Our artist has depicted one of the donkeys, a typical moke, bought by a kind-hearted lady from a brutal master, and saved from his ill-treatment to become a pensioner of the home. An old mare, more than forty years old, is also represented, probably for the last time, for her teeth have grown so long that she is unable to chew her food. She alone, of all the refugees, could not partake of the New Year's fare, so that the humane authorities have decided that her life shall be painlessly brought to an end. Many of the other horses are nearing their time of return to the outer world, for one of the objects of the home is to place temporary rest and care for their horses within the reach of the poorer classes. With this end in view, substitutes are provided, under strict surveillance, for the use of poor owners of horses placed temporarily within the hospitable home.

The above is taken from an English newspaper. It shows something of the work of the humane societies of the mother land. We have in Sherbrooke a recently organized society for the prevention of cruelty to animals. Its purpose is a noble one, and the organization deserves, and must receive, the co-operation of everyone whose nature is not too ignoble to resent the cruel treatment of those dumb animals who spend their lives in the service of man, and have not the power themselves to resist the oppression of cruel masters.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Last Night Cable Despatches From the Old World.

London, Jan. 19.—At St. Peter's Church, Eaton square, this city, today, Mr. Vivian Nickalls, the well-known organist and brother of Mr. Mr. Guy Nickalls, was married to Miss Augusta Bailey, daughter of Mr. Jas. Bailey, member of Parliament for the "Walworth" division of Newington.

London, Jan. 19.—Mrs. Edith Walker, wife of Mr. A. Barclay Walker, owner of the racing center Ailsa, has been granted a judicial separation from her husband.

Paris, Jan. 19.—The official returns just issued show the imports for 1897 to have been 4,000,126,000 francs, as compared with 3,798,579,000 in 1896. The exports for 1897 were 3,675,613,000 francs, compared 3,400,920,000 francs during the previous year.

Bombay, Jan. 19.—Messrs. Hickie and Prunty, who escaped the massacre of the British survey party, which was attacked by natives at Mekran, on Jan. 12, have reached Omran, on the Arabian Sea.

Ancona, Italy, Jan. 19.—There have been bread riots here, arising from a demonstration of women organized by the Socialists, that proceeded to the town hall to beg a reduction in the price of bread. The mayor promised the measures, but the men then joined the demonstration and stoned several shops. In the melee that ensued several were hurt. Several arrests were made.

NEW TRIAL FOR MRS. STERNAMAN.

Evidence at Hand Which May Save Her Life.

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—At yesterday's meeting of the Cabinet it was decided that the Minister of Justice should, by an order in writing, direct a new trial in the Sternaman case.

It is understood that this was not because of any dissatisfaction with the proceedings of the court and jury and trial judge by which Mrs. Sternaman was convicted, but because several important affidavits were filed with the department, making representations which, if they had been made at the trial, might have altered the result.

As the crime for which Mrs. Sternaman was convicted was one of the most atrocious that a human being can commit, it does not seem that there was any inclination on the part of the Cabinet to commute her sentence if she were really guilty, but if these parties' testimony were given it might have varied that sentence.

The new trial is ordered under Section 718 of the Criminal Code of 1892, which reads as follows: "Upon any application for the mercy of the Crown on behalf of any person convicted of any indictable offence, the Minister of Justice entertains a doubt whether such person ought to have been convicted, he may instead of advising Her Majesty to remit or commute the sentence after such enquiry as he thinks proper, by an order in writing direct a new trial at such time and before such court as he may think proper."

This is the first time that this procedure has been taken, as it is the first time that an occasion has arisen when it was expedient to do so. In has not yet been decided where the new trial may take place, or before what court. The prisoner is poor, and complaint has been made that she was not able, on this account, to make the necessary preparations for her defence in the first instance, but those who have petitioned on her behalf for the exercise of the demerency to which upon the evidence submitted in the first instance, she could not legally lay claim, may now give her that pecuniary assistance that will leave no doubt upon the public mind.

DEATH ATTENDS THE RITE.

Baptist Ministers Begunbed Hands Lose Their Grip.

Hamlin, W. Va., Jan. 19.—The Rev. E. C. Enoch closed a revival service in the Baptist Church on Sunday, and hundreds of persons gathered to see ten converts baptized in Ten Mile Creek.

After seven candidates had been successfully immersed in the icy waters, Mrs. Henry Kirk, weighing 200 pounds, was led into the stream. As she was tipped over, the minister's benumbed hands lost their grip, and the woman, apparently made unconscious by the cold water, sank.

Several men rushed to the rescue, but in the excitement Mrs. Kirk was allowed to drown.

The other two converts were not immersed.

CITY BONUSES.

Sherbrooke Has Granted Liberal Assistance to Many Enterprises.

The City of Sherbrooke has, since it became an incorporated town, voted nearly a quarter of a million dollars in direct bonuses, in aid of enterprises which, in the opinion of Council and ratepayers, would tend to build up and develop the place. Of this amount, about one half has gone to railroads and one half to business concerns within the city.

The following table shows the date of granting and the recipients of the various bonuses voted by the ratepayers of Sherbrooke: Q. C. R. in 1870 $50,000 International R.R., 1872 53,000 Meat Factory in 1877 15,000 Waterloo & Magog R.R. 1885 20,000 Paton Mills, 1898 5,000 Sherbrooke Worsted Co. 25,000 Hovey Bros., 1895 1,375 Jenkes Machine Co., 1896 30,000 Gardner Tool Co., 1896 (cash) 5,000 (site) 13,500 Q. C. R. Shops, 1897 15,000 Exhibition since 1886 (about) 13,900 Corset Factory 588

Total, $247,633 Bonuses for railroads, $123,000. Bonuses for manufactures, $110,733. Bonuses to exhibition, $13,900.

Does it pay to bonus? This is a question often asked. And there are those who feel that it is not in the interest of a town to offer large amounts as an inducement to companies to locate with in the city. Whether the principal be sound or not, there are few who will examine the above statement and fail to realize that on the whole the investment has been a good one and that, for more than one quarter of a million dollars, Sherbrooke could not afford to relinquish the advantages she has derived from the concerns she has assisted. Looking at the various bonuses separately we find that some have proven by time to have been of exceptional merit, while a few have been more or less a failure.

The first railroad bonus, that to the Q. C. R. in 1870, the city certainly has had no occasion to regret. Not only has it opened up a section of the country, particularly rich in lumber, which, till that time, was inaccessible, but it has directed a large portion of the trade of that section to our city. The second bonus to the Q. C. R. of $15,000, voted only this year, for the permanent establishment of the railway shops here, will doubtless, judging from the benefits derived from that portion of the shops which have already been operated here, prove a good investment. Not only will it give employment to a considerable number of skilled hands, but will assist in keeping the chief business interests of the railroad in Sherbrooke.

The International Railway bonus, in 1872, of $53,000, is another whose merit, we think, has not been questioned. The permanent establishment of railway facilities are seldom dear at any reasonable price. The $20,000 bonus to the Waterloo & Magog Railway in 1885 may be set down as a bad one. This was for the construction of a line from Sherbrooke to Magog, to furnish a connection between the Q. C. R. and the line at Waterloo. In a little while the C.P.R. comes along, and it was bound to come anyway. The International, owing to the mild conditions on which the bonus was granted, are allowed to sell out the right of way from Magog to Sherbrooke, and pull up the road which Sherbrooke had bonused.

The bonus of $12,000 to the Meat Factory in 1867, also proved an unprofitable investment, though the actual loss to the city was not more than $3,000, owing to the security which it held on the site, and which it took in return for the bonus, when the factory closed down after two or three years. It is this same site, with a little addition, which represents the recent bonus to the Q. C. R. shops.

The total bonuses to the Paton Manufacturing Company of about $35,000, divided into $5,000 cash in 1867 and a site valued at about $5,000, and $25,000 to the Worsteds Factory, in connection with Paton Mills in 1891, have given the ratepayers of Sherbrooke no cause to regret. This large concern employs 700 hands involving a large annual expenditure in wages within the city, and for much more than the amount of the bonus Sherbrooke could not afford to lose it.

The Jenkes Machine Company received $30,000 in 1896. A Council member remarked the other day that he considered this one of the best bonuses ever granted by the city. The Jenkes machine shop has done much to procure for Sherbrooke a prominent place among the manufacturing centers of Canada.

The Gardner Tool Company received in 1896 a cash bonus of $5,000 and a site valued at about $13,500. This concern has proven a valuable addition to the manufacturing of the city, and like those of the Jenkes Machine Company, its productions are in demand in every section of our country.

The corset factory received aid amounting to less than $1,000 which the city lost, the factory closing in three years. The Eastern Townships Agricultural Association has received aid for the exhibition since 1886 amounting to about $13,900, cash, besides a considerable amount expended on the grounds. No one who has been here during the busy days of the exhibition will deny the wisdom of this assistance which has been given to an enterprise which is not only a financial benefit to the citizens, but of a greater benefit to the city, as a means of advertising it among its neighbors.

This covers the cash bonuses granted by the city. Aside from this, exemption from taxation has been granted to properties valued at about $878,355. Of this, only about $174,525 represent the property of private concerns, while the balance represents municipal, provincial and Dominion properties, churches and public institutions.

The bonuses granted by the city are responsible for the greater amount of the city debt, but the amounts voted at different times have, on only a few occasions, failed to yield good returns, and Sherbrooke's position today, and her prospects for the future, are due in no small degree to her investments in those concerns upon which her very existence depends.

PRESENTATION TO MR. HURD.

About 9 o'clock last evening Mr. A. S. Hurd, on going to his front door in response to the ringing of the bell, was confronted by a large party of men who were advancing into the porch like the trees of Birmah forest towards Dunsinane.

Being unarmed and the only man in the house, he was somewhat alarmed and was on the point of rushing to the telephone to summon the police when he was reassured by seeing behind the chair the faces of many familiar friends comprising the pastor of the Congregational church and the teachers in its Sunday School who were bringing this handsome and useful piece of household furniture to Mr. Hurd as a testimonial of their appreciation of his services for many years as superintendent of the Sunday school.

Mr. A. S. McCaw, on behalf of the donors, in a few well-chosen words, made the presentation, which was responded to in a feeling manner by Mr. Hurd, who expressed his pleasure and gratification at receiving from their hands this token of their regard.

ST. FRANCIS BRIDGE.

The Difficulty Between the Council and Railway Company Will Likely Be Settled Tonight.

The City Council will meet tonight at 8 o'clock. The principal business before the meeting will be that connected with the St. Francis bridge and the Street Railway security.

We understand, on good authority, that in all probability the differences which recently arose between the Council and company will be amicably settled. Mr. Burke has returned from New York, and in all probability the matters will be settled tonight, so that the work on the new bridge will be proceeded with at once. The Council will likely grant the request of the Company for a change in the bond of security, as being a just demand under the circumstances. The Dominion Bridge Company are demanding an immediate acceptance or refusal of their tender, and they will be given a definite answer tonight, the nature of which will depend upon the agreement arrived at between the Council and Street Railway. The application of the Street Railway Company for the right to put salt on their tracks in certain places will also come up. There is a strong feeling against this being allowed, and the application will meet with some opposition in the Council.

CORRESPONDENCE.

AN UNKIND ACT.

Editor RECORD.—Sir.—In your issue of Jan. 19 is a letter with that above heading, signed "R. Davidson, Chief of Police." As being practically responsible for the article mentioned by him, signed "Query," I beg to ask who is R. Davidson and what has he got to do with the hospital? Does he own it, run it, control it, or do the citizens of Sherbrooke do so? The article signed "Query" never even hinted at laying any blame on the police force, and never said the police ill-treated the patient. They supposed the police and Chief were simply obeying orders. Look up your dictionary, Mr. Davidson, and see the difference of meaning between the two words, unkind and ill-treated.

The only question at issue was, who was responsible for taking a weak invalid from his bed, and on a cold winter's day, conveying him nearly a mile in an open conveyance, and that conveyance a criminal's sleigh? When the article was being written, Chief Davidson's name was not even mentioned in this case. We are more than pleased to know that he shoulders the entire responsibility, and that the Hospital authorities were in no way to blame. Perhaps the Chief will tell us where the ambulance is kept, who usually mans it, and what it is used for? Of course, everyone knows that the police patrol runs in connection with the hospital and the ambulance in connection with the jail or police station? How the unkindness can be on the part of Query, when no man is mentioned, I fail to see, but I do see unkindness, and on Chief Davidson's part ignorance, in carrying on this senseless correspondence. His only trouble in this case is that he has gone a little too far, and assumed altogether too much. The hospital is a public institution, kept up by the public, and subject to public criticism, and all the Chief has to do with it is to do as he is ordered, mind his own business, and let other people do the same. I must give the Chief great credit for being so brave, particularly when he is defending the police force, as to use his own signature.

For the crowd, J. T. MORKILL. Sherbrooke, Jan. 20.

THE POIRIER TRIAL.

Evidence Against Mrs. Poirier and Parslow.

St. S. Holistique, Jan. 20.—(Special).—At 10.30 this morning, proceedings in the Poirier murder trial recommenced. Jos. Meunier, who, yesterday afternoon, had given very damaging evidence against the prisoners, was cross-examined as to his having made a statement in public that he hoped that the woman would be hanged. Now, however, he would make no definite admission of having done so.

Adelard Robert proved having filled Samuel Parslow's whiskey bottle the day before the murder and identified bottle produced in Court as being same.

Delia Lachapelle was in company with Mrs. Poirier and Sam, when the latter read aloud an account of the Rawdon horror Mrs. Poirier remarked that murderers were not hanged now. She added, "you will see a worse crime than Nulty's before many days."

Antoine Charbonneau, guardian of Poirier house by order, proved that he had found in a stove a charred heap of papers, cloth and woolen stuff, positively these were not of a wood fire.

CANADA SHOULD HELP

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach Speaks on the Empire's Defences

London, Jan. 19.—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Chancellor of the Exchequer, speaking at Bristol this evening, ridiculed the notion of providing granaries as has been suggested in some quarters. He said he was convinced the British navy was strong enough to hold its own, and in any war England would have many friends ready to supply corn.

Referring to the coming budget estimates, he said these would show that the Government was fully alive to keeping up the standard of the army and navy; though, he declared, it was not creditable to Canada or fair to English taxpayers that such a colony should practically contribute nothing to the naval defences of the Empire.

He hoped Canada would soon turn her attention to this matter, adding that he was convinced that if she did not the day would soon come when she would have "a rude awakening, which would be entirely her own fault."

In concluding his speech the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced that China had approached England for assistance to pay the Japanese indemnity, and that the negotiations were still pending. The newspaper statement on the subject, he characterized as inaccurate and incomplete. The Government was not ashamed of these negotiations, and believed the country would approve them. He could see no reason why foreign powers should object, but if the negotiations failed, Great Britain would take her stand on the existing treaty right.

Stafford, of Barnston, and other clergymen will take part in the service. This work was begun at once, and has been carried rapidly forward to a successful termination.

WASPS' NESTS.

The Artistic and Businesslike Way In Which They Are Built.

In a tree in the garden round the house where I was stopping was a wasps' nest in process of construction. The busy insects were going backward and forward carrying their material to the paprika fabric; but, though I watched several days, I could not discover where it was collected. It happened that the pillars of the veranda of the most built house in which I was stopping were roughly hewn trunks of the Lombardy poplar, that grows in that region to a good size and considerable height without branches and makes a clean straight stem. One afternoon while loitering about the veranda, I noticed that numbers of wasps alighted on the side of these pillars that was worn by the weather, and then, after a short stay, moved off again, apparently carrying away a small load with them.

Stationing myself close to one of the pillars, I soon had the satisfaction of seeing a wasp alight on it. After running about over the surface to find what he was in search of, he suddenly stopped, and, carefully feeling the spot he was on, he cut the worn surface with his nippers and then proceeded in a workmanlike manner to cut from the surface of the wood a strip of a width to which he could extend his nippers laterally, and as he moved backward he rolled the strip up under his chin with the aid of his fore feet until he had as much as he could conveniently hold, when he gave a finishing cut off and flew away. Watching the work of construction afterward, it was marvellous to see how the end of the little roll was attached to the strip of work that was being added to by means of some waxy gum exuded by the builder and joined on laterally as it was unrolled until finished, and then the workman would fly away for a fresh piece. Each insect cut off a strip averaging about three-eighths of an inch in length and a little under an eighth in width, and nothing could be more admirable than the artistic and businesslike way in which they carried on their work.—Harper's Round Table.

The Hardworking Counterfeiter.

While counting a package of money handed in for deposit Receiving Teller Jarner of the Nassau bank found a queer looking note. It was a silver certificate of the latest issue, with the figure "5" in each corner, but with the animated group that the government prints only on $2 silver notes in the center. Close inspection showed that by the odd time process of "splitting" the paper the perpetrator of the alteration had removed the figure "2" from the four corners of the original note, on both sides, and had substituted the figure "5." This part of the work was executed so dexterously as almost to defy detection. A large "V" had been inserted in the center of the back with equal skill. The altered bill would never have passed detection under the eye of a careful bank officer because of the great difference between the central pictures on a $2 silver note and on a $5 silver note, but it would undoubtedly deceive 99 out of 100 tradesmen, who are not apt to carry in their minds exact images of the pictures in each denomination of paper money. Cashier Rogers of the bank said he had seen many counterfeiters of United States notes, but never before a successful alteration of any one of them. He said the person who raised the $2 note to a $5 one must have expended $10 worth of time on the work.—New York Times.

Endure Hardship.

As a gladiator trained the body, so must we train the mind to self sacrifice. "to endure all things," to meet and overcome difficulty and danger. We must take the rough and thorny roads as well as the smooth and pleasant, and a portion at least of our daily duty must be hard and disagreeable, for the mind cannot be kept strong and healthy in perpetual sunshine only, and the most dangerous of all states is that of constantly recurring pleasure, ease and prosperity. Most per will find difficulties and hardships enough without seeking them. Let them not repine, but take them as a part of that educational discipline necessary to fit the mind to arrive at its highest good.—New York Ledger.

COOKSHIRE.

Jan. 20.—Little John Lowry fell off from a wood woodsleigh yesterday evening and received a deep cut in his knee. Dr. Dewar had to put in several stitches.

Mr. J. H. Burton returned Tuesday from New York.

The funeral of the late Cyrus Rice took place Wednesday afternoon at Sawyerville.

Everything promises a lively match in the rink here Friday night. Last night T. Donnelly, of Lennoxville, was coaching the home team, and the Angus team went up to Sawyerville to give the latter a practice match.

The Royal Templars held an oyster supper Wednesday evening at Mrs. F. Fraser's.

Mrs. Geo. Garvin is visiting friends in town.

METS VS. HIGH SCHOOL.

A practice hockey match took place last night between the High School boys and the Metropolitan. The latter won by a score of 5 to 1. Mr. Jake Samuel acted as referee.

UNCLE JIM'S DANCING.

Uncle Jim, he'd never been to any city ball. Until he came a visitin'. The folks in town last fall; Could dance until you couldn't rest, He'd know how to find his heel, But all the dance he knewed was just The old Virginia reel. So when they took him to the ball The gals had lots of fun; He went a-shippin' cross the hall An bumpin' every one. Of course he couldn't waltz, but they Jest made believe he could. They kept on whirlin' him away, 'Twas worse than shippin' wood. Jest serious as could be kept A-goin' round an' round. On all the ladies' trains he stepped When he wain't fallin' down. He stood it jest as long as he Could stand it, then he throwed His hat down till they laughed to see, Then jerked his coat an' blowed. He give his galluses a hitch An' gravel himself, an' then As quick as that they seen him pitch Right 'mongst the gals an' men. 'Twas damn now without a doubt, For then they seen him ped. His wettin' of an jump about Lu a Virginia reel. —Atlanta Constitution.

A MUTUAL FRIEND.

Howard, desiring to bring Ferguson and Walker into a fellowship like that of Damon and Pythias, set them so far apart that oceans roll between them and deserts parch and bake. This is, of course, a figure of speech, for Ferguson and Walker both live in Chicago, where there are no oceans or deserts.

But the feeling of loathing which has risen up to separate these two men whom Howard had hoped to make firm friends accomplishes the purpose of desert and ocean and mountain chain too. And yet the two men have met but once, and then only to say "How d'ye do?"

Howard lives in Pocatello, Ida. To Pocatello a year ago went Ferguson, journeying on some affair connected with the railroad company which pays him well for knowing intricate and hidden things about the transportation business. Ferguson was in Pocatello for two weeks. It was a gloomy sort of exile, and but for the presence of Howard, whom he met on the first day of his visit, he would have suffered horrible pangs and gripings of loneliness, but Howard, bright, entertaining and all informed, was as a wellspring of happiness and made the railroad man's stay in the sunburned regions of Idaho a pleasant vacation, and when Ferguson was ready to leave Howard said to him: "Now, old man, I want you to be sure and meet my friend Walker. It's a shame that two such splendid fellows should live in the same town and be strangers. I've written a letter of introduction, and you just walk around to his place when you get back to Chicago and go out and take one on me. You'll like Walker and he'll like you."

Ferguson thanked Howard with an easy conscience, for he, too, thought it would be pleasant to meet one whom Howard recommended for his worth.

Then he returned to Chicago. The letter of introduction nestled in his pocket for a month, quite forgotten. At the expiration of that time Ferguson received a note from Howard, who wanted to know something about a business matter which they had discussed in Pocatello. As a postscript Howard added the question: "You have seen Walker, of course? Great fellow, isn't he?"

"Walker, Walker—let me see," Ferguson mused. "Who in thunder is Walker? Oh, yes. That fellow I have the letter of introduction to. Well, I really must call on him."

The same mail which bore the missive to Ferguson also carried one to Walker. Howard, among other things, wrote these words: "You remember Ferguson, whom I asked you to call upon? What do you think of him? He's the right sort, isn't he?"

"By George," Walker cried on reading Howard's letter, "he did ask me to drop in on somebody named Ferguson, to whom he had given a letter for presentation to me. And I've clean forgotten it. Wonder where the man's to be found?" He examined the directory's list of Fergusons, and then, with some show of disappointment, said to himself: "Pshaw! His office is down in the Grand Central station, three miles away. Well, next time I'm over that way I'll stop. Then he called for his stenographer and dictated a letter telling Howard that he had enjoyed his visit with Ferguson immensely.

Two weeks afterward Ferguson received further documents from Pocatello. "The matter you were examining into," Howard wrote, "turns out to be a pretty good thing, and I'd advise you to hang on to it. I'll keep you posted on developments. I'll not let them fool you. By the way, what do you think of Walker? You haven't told me."

"Thunder and lightning!" Ferguson uttered. "I ought to have called on Howard's friend a month ago. Here he is doing me all kinds of good turns out there in Pocatello and I haven't gratitude enough to go and meet the man he asked me to." He would have rushed out forthwith to commune with Walker, only he saw that the directory located the man away off on the North Side.

"I'll take that letter around to him next week," said Ferguson.

He did not, however. He promptly forgot all about Walker until a fortnight passed and information came from Pocatello that "the property is up 20 per cent in value. Give my respects to Walker the next time you see him."

"Next time I see him," Ferguson repeated. "Let's see. Did I say I had already met him? I guess I must have told Howard something like that. Well, I'll have to lie it out on that line if it takes all summer." So he answered Howard's letter by saying that he and Walker had together seen a play the night before and had had a most enormously good time. He even repeated some anecdotes of Howard's earlier life which he declared Walker had told him. "I'd like to know whether Walker is married or single," Ferguson thought. "I've got a bully story I could tell about him if I only knew. Deggone him! I wish I didn't have that letter of introduction to him. He's getting to be a kind of nuisance."

About the same time Walker, writing to Howard, was saying how much he was indebted to the western man for the pleasure he had drawn from his companionship with Ferguson.

"Only I wish to heaven Harry hadn't been so fervent in his desire to have me meet the fellow," he observed to himself. "I suppose that, as he says, this man Ferguson is all right, but I haven't time to go skating all over this town looking him up. I presume I ought to have gone and dug him out for Harry's sake a long time ago, but I keep forgetting it, and now I've involved myself in a foolish mesh of lies about my experiences with Ferguson, whom I have not met, and whom, to tell the truth, I'm getting so I don't want to meet."

Out in Pocatello Harry Howard was delighted with the tidings he received from Chicago. "It's a great satisfaction," he told himself, "to bring two good men together this way. It's really a noteworthy thing to be the author of a firm friendship between two first class people. Only I hardly think I understand this last letter of Ferguson's. I thought Walker had only two children, and here Ferguson writes me about his little girl. She must have been born in the last year. There were certainly only two boys when I passed through Chicago last summer. I'll send Ben my congratulations."

When Walker received the sheet conveying honest Harry Howard's good wishes for the best and brightest future for little Miss Walker, he ran his fingers through his hair and looked dazed. "When did I say anything about a new baby?" he wondered. "I must have written him some lie about that fellow Ferguson's child. I think I have described the man's wife and children and father-in-law and the mortgage on his house in my communications with Howard. Harry's always asking new questions, and the chances are that Ferguson has no family, and Howard thinks it was a slip of the pen and that I wrote about my own new baby—which I haven't got. Heavens, I wish this business had never started! I wish I'd never promised to call on Ferguson. I wish Ferguson would get run over by a cable car or come to some definite and permanent end. I'm getting to hate the very name of him. I'll bet he's a cheap skate anyhow who has imposed upon Howard's good nature. Why should I go drilling three miles into town just to meet him and say: "How are you? I know a friend of yours." I shan't do it."

Ferguson had already come to a similar conclusion. "Howard's a first class fellow, and he made things mighty pleasant for me in Pocatello," he reasoned, "and it would have been no more than white for me to call on that friend of his at first, but I've got so blamed tired of the very mention of the name that it fills me with loathing. I believe, that if I were to meet that pirate of a Walker I'd want to throw bricks at him. I thought the first lie I told about him would let me out, but the falsehoods have multiplied upon themselves until I don't remember half the facts I have reported concerning that outlaw whom I have never seen."

Two weeks ago Ferguson and Walker met. Ferguson, entering the library of his club, was accosted by a fellow member, who introduced his visiting friend, Walker. The two glared at each other, and Ferguson hurried into the billiard room.

"I have changed my mind about presenting an application for membership," said Walker to the man who was escorting him. The next day Ferguson met the member who had introduced Walker and said, "I'm sorry, old man, but if it is your intention to offer the fellow's name for membership I'll certainly have my best to get him black-balled."

And this was the consummation of Harry Howard's kindly designs of reviving Damon and Pythias.—Chicago Record.

Spain and a Conquered Race. The idea of conquered races enjoying the most minute liberty of action by natural birthright was regarded in Spain as absurd. Little by little pressure was brought to bear on the king and his counselors, producing a gradual relaxation of the letters which bound the new subjects to their forced allegiance. Trade, created by the Spaniards, which finally extended to half castes, was confined exclusively to commerce with Spain. Both in the far east and the far west the exact size and number of packages shipped, the number of voyages per annum to and fro of the Naos (government trading galleons), contents of bales, etc., were all regulated, and no one could ship without a boleto or public permit, which could only be obtained from the scrupulous officials who had come to fill their pockets by the most corrupt means. Permission had to be solicited again and again to perform all most any act beyond the common needs of life. One could neither travel quiet or enter the country, read, write assemble in a group, build a house, nor plant a field without license.

In the Philippine islands the natives were forced to think like their masters were dress as they were told and to adopt the religion of their conquerors under the severest penalties of torture and frequently of death. In Mexico official appointments to the Manila dependency were publicly sold. Until the American colonies were lost to Spain hardly one Spaniard in a generation carried capital to these new possessions to develop their natural resources. Foreigners were jealously treated as intruders, and the European influx sprang generally from the lowest social orders, who acted like wolves let loose among a fold of sheep.—Westminster Review.

THE GREATEST WONDER OF THE AGE—RHEUMATISM CURED. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. This acid is poisonous matter and is nothing more than the waste, worn out matter of the body, so to speak, of the first great burst when you think of work. This debris is carried back from all parts of the body to the heart, to be forced through the kidneys for purification, and this poison constantly forming must be filtered out of the blood. If not, this poison acid will gather in all the muscles and joints of the human body, and to remove it has so far defied the skill of all physicians up to the present day. The Great NORTH AMERICAN INDIAN RHEUMATIC CURE.

The only thing that has ever been known to effect a perfect cure. It is a new thing to the white man but an ancient thing to the North American Indian. This medicine contains no drugs, and is made of purely roots, herbs, barks, seeds and flowers gathered by the dusky sons of the forest. Two bottles of this medicine are guaranteed to cure any case of Rheumatism, no matter how long standing or the money will be refunded. Sold by all druggists. This remedy is the best blood purifier yet known, as it excites the kidneys to a healthy action at once, causing them to throw the poisonous matter off and therefore it must be recognized also as a kidney cure. PRICE, $1 per bottle. WM SMITH, Coaticook, Que. Sole Agent and Patentee for Canada and the United States.

He did not help me. I was advised to get a bottle of the Great North American Indian Rheumatic Cure as many of my neighbors had been cured by using it. After using three bottles, I am thankful to say, I was cured, and I am thankful that the Indian medicine ever came to light. Mrs. W. C. Hubbard, Sept. 18, '97. Half Stream, Q.
