

We Say Suburb police needs differ

ONLY effect thus far in Westmount of the creation New Year's Day of the Montreal Urban Community Police Department has been a diplomatic assurance from the acting chief, QPP Director Maurice St. Pierre, to our own Director Edward Harper that he should carry on and simply advise Mr. St. Pierre of any extraordinary problems, of which there have been none. None save the inevitable problems of uncertainty hanging over the local force resulting from the cart-before-horse inauguration of the new metropolitan force, whereby "integration" took place first and now planning is to follow. The situation is at least consistent, in a perverse sort of way. It is like the "shared" costs of island policing, whereby the suburbs are called upon to subsidize the City of Montreal department's excessive expenses over the past two years. This, of course, is the main thrust of the submission which our Mayor Paul Ouimet and his suburban colleagues have been working tirelessly this week to prepare for the Quebec Municipal Commission.

While the focus has been on the economic impact, on local taxation and on the serious prejudice which the police-dominated MUC budget would work on the suburbs, the practical effect of integration should be weighed seriously, too.

In the final framing of the provincial legislation bringing the MUC force into being, there is an even more serious prejudice done not only to the suburbs but to the City of Montreal. It should be borne clearly in mind by every citizen of the island, by every elected and appointed official, by the

Drury stands again

Hon. C.M. Drury told some 75 members of the Westmount Liberal Association at the Manoir N.D.G. last night that he is available for re-election to Ottawa. He was warmly applauded. A nominating convention is to be held at a later date.

In discussion prompted by Mr. Drury, consensus of the meeting favored a fall rather than a spring federal general election.

Some dozen members were presented as the constituency's delegates to the national convention and in a resulting ballot to choose six. Paul Beauchemin, John Claxton, Miss Diana Harrison, Yves Pelletier, Lord Shaughnessy and Mrs. Blena Steinberg were the winners.

Mr. Drury spoke to the gathering while ballots were being counted and later continued a question and answer period.

President Chris Brand presided.

French chairs board

Mrs. Kaplan to PSBGM

Dr. Stanley French was elected unanimously chairman of the Westmount School Board at Monday night's meeting while Mrs. Sam Kaplan was elected the board's representative to the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal.

Dr. French, who has sat on the board for a year, replaces Dr. Elton Pounder who has retired from the board after a three-year term. Dr. French has served as president of the Westmount High Home and School Association and the Westmount Park Home and School Association and, before he moved to Westmount, was chairman of the board of education for the City of London, Ont., 1967-68.

Elected vice-chairman was Commissioner Joan Rothman, who also was elected to the board about a year ago.

Mrs. Kaplan replaces, as the board's representative to the PSBGM, Reid Tilley who was a member of the Westmount board for 15 years and chairman of the PSBGM for 2½ years. Mr. Tilley declined to run for the local board during the last school board elections because of his health.

Lock twisted

An attempted break and entry was reported to Westmount Police Saturday about 10 am at Teletronics Corp. Ltd., 4888 Sherbrooke street west. The man in charge of the store heard a bump at the front door but was having a coffee in the back of the store and didn't pay any attention. When he checked the front door he found somebody had tried to twist off the lock.

Mayor reports again

At Tuesday night's mid-month city council meeting, which begins at 8 pm at city hall, Mayor Paul Ouimet will deliver another report on the Montreal Urban Community.

Members of council and city officials expressed surprise following the Jan. 4 council meeting that there was only a handful of interested citizens on hand to hear His Worship report latest developments on MUC issues, considering the expensive bearing these are to have on the forthcoming municipal tax bills of every Westmount property-owner and, eventually, tenant.

Stanley Church is sold

JAN 17 1972

Adventists buy for $50,000

Stanley Presbyterian Church has been sold to the Seventh Day Adventist Church for $50,000.

The Seventh Day Adventist and Presbyterian congregations have been sharing the big church since Dec. 20, when the sale took place. The Presbyterians have been holding their services in the hall of the church, which is at Victoria and Westmount avenues.

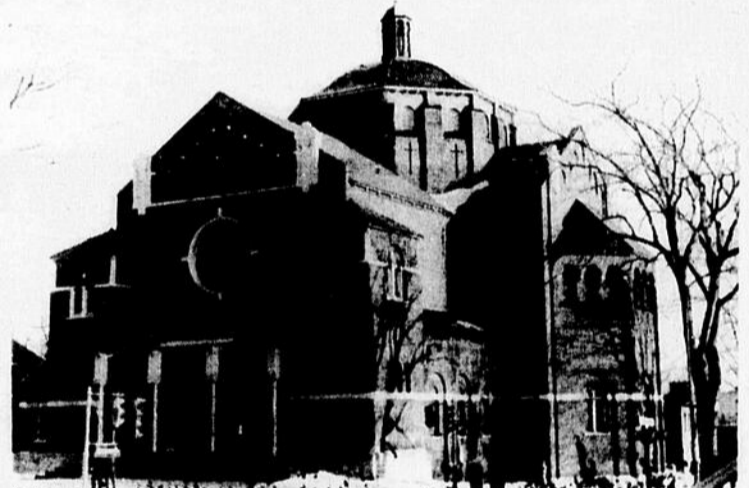

Rev. Scarth Macdonell of the Presbyterian congregation said membership in the once fashionable church had been declining for many years and the building had become too large for the needs of the congregation.

"It was just inefficient," he said.

He added that the congregation had not yet decided what to do in the future.

Stanley Presbyterian Church first opened its doors in the autumn of 1914 after moving from Stanley street in Montreal, where the church was first established in 1874.

The congregation moved to Westmount after suffering from the usual problems confronting down-town churches.

Adventists growing

Pastor C.S. Greene of the Seventh Day Adventist Church said his congregation purchased the church because its old building at 4250 de Maisonneuve boulevard (corner of Olivier avenue) had become too small.

"Our membership is 350 people and still growing," said Pastor Greene. He added that there were many people who attended the church who did not have a membership in it.

He said the congregation remained at the de Maisonneuve church during its entire 50-year life-span.

He added that the congregation operates a welfare centre at 4320 St. Antoine street, on the south side near Atwater avenue.

Liaisons meet

The city's urban renewal liaison committee will meet at 8 pm Wednesday in the men's lounge of Victoria Hall to study government legislation on public housing and urban renewal. "Before we proceed with recommendations we have to educate ourselves," said a member of the committee.

January 14 to 22

Blizzard conditions continue in the north country, but southern counties are likely to have blowing snow with near-zero days and very cold nights into Monday. 5 to 7" would be normal, but we could have more this season.

As usual, days are bright and cold, with skies clear and wind-swept snow from the day after New Moon to the day before the First Quarter. Well-below-zero nights, relatively mild days with gusty winds and occasional flurries. Misty golden or orange sunsets, with salmon to magenta skies.

Suddenly milder Saturday, with thawing conditions for many places followed by heavy falls of wet snow or freezing rains.

what is the definition of a private brand?

To some people, it is a retailer's own brand created with selling price first in importance and quality second.

To us at A&P, it's the opposite.

Quality comes first.

Value...the best for the least is the rule for our private brands.

If this wasn't true, how foolish we'd be to invest, as we have, literally millions of dollars in processing plants and testing laboratories.

If all we wanted were products we could sell cheaply without quality control, anybody could produce them for us.

The idea of quality private brands isn't new at A&P.

As a matter of fact, it's one of our oldest policies - and by golly, we're proud of it.

Are A&P Private Brands a good reason for shopping A&P? They're one of many.

Olds takes dive into realty office

About $5,000 worth of damage was done yesterday at 11:25 am when an elderly Westmounter smashed her 1971 Oldsmobile into two cars and then sent it plunging into the front of Westmount Realities Company, at 1367 Greene avenue.

The impact of the crash smashed a plate glass door and knocked in concrete blocks so that Westmount Police were afraid that the front of the building might collapse. The area was cordoned off.

Mrs. Ruth Swan, 310 Grosvenor avenue, was driving south on Greene avenue from Sherbrooke street looking for a parking space when the car drifted to the wrong side of the road. She swung the car back and smashed into the left side of a 1971 Fiat driven by Mrs. John Lane, 5 Hudson avenue.

She then swung the car to the left away from the Fiat, grazed a 1971 Mustang parked in front of Westmount Realities and plunged the car into the building, almost at right angles. Owner of the Mustang was Mrs. Saul Markowitz, 73 Rosemount crescent.

Mrs. Swan was taken to the Queen Elizabeth Hospital by Westmount Police patrol car suffering from shock and bruises.

The Oldsmobile suffered between $1,500 and $2,000

Two VWs collide head-on

A head-on collision on Sherbrooke street at Arlington avenue between two Volkswagens injured one person and caused about $400 damage Monday about 7:30 am.

A 1969 model driven by Horst Leenbourg, 28, of Montreal, was heading west on Sherbrooke when it crossed over to the south side of the street and collided with an eastbound 1970 version driven by George Amberg, 55, of Chateauguay.

Mr. Leenbourg said he did not know why he was on the wrong side of the road while Mr. Amberg said that the 1969 Volkswagen was passing a bus.

Mrs. L. Boudreau, 32, of Montreal, a passenger with Mr. Leenbourg, suffered bruises to her knee and forehead but declined medical treatment.

Each of the cars suffered about $200 damage each.

Mr. Leenbourg was charged with driving on the wrong side of the road.

The following building permits were issued at city hall during the past week:

Jan. 7

488 Argyle: for W.D. Gaherty by Hasko Const. and R.J. Leggett Ltd., alterations to kitchen and new bathroom, $7,500;

We Say

police unions and, not least, by every police officer and man. It is the placing of control of the force, not in the MUC, but in provincial appointees.

Thus, the form, effectiveness, duties, discipline, the entire nature of the MUC Police will be by edict, not by due deliberation and decision by our elected representatives. This is prejudicial to local democratic rights and, indeed, it is suprising that the provincial government would so openly court the inherent danger in thereby making almost complete the concentration of police power in the province. In the wrong hands, without responsibility, that power could put civil authority and civic freedom alike at risk.

The provincial authorities in their wisdom should in due course amend this serious weakness.

Meanwhile, on home ground, we should be looking at more immediate effects of integration of which, as we have said, there are virtually none as yet except for perceptible loss of morale in local forces. Mr. St. Pierre is unlikely to initiate any move; he has his hands full with his own Provincials and undoubtedly will be glad to hand the responsibility to the permanent chief, whoever that may be.

The untimely death last week of Town of Mount Royal Police Director Walter Boyle removed an eminently suitable candidate—broadly experienced in both the City of Montreal, which provides the main component of the new force, and in one of the more prominent suburbs. Furthermore, he served on the commission which, however it was rushed in its mandate, led to the new force's creation.

Main hope for rational development of the MUC Police structure rests with Judge Jacques Coderre, chairman of the new MUC Security Council. While few plans can become known until the new chief is named by the council and confirmed by Quebec, it is reasonable to expect that the main lines of organization will follow the broad outline laid down in the commission report which bears Judge Coderre's name.

Those lines are fairly widely known. However, it might be useful to look at them again, specially those features which attracted Westmount's attention as begging amendment. Westmount saw the department responsible to the MUC council and as a new force apart from the City of Montreal, its main line of responsibility resting in regional police functions, including identification and criminal records, urban criminal and subversive intelligence, uniform forms, correspondence and reports, riot control, a central narcotics bureau, streamlined communications, bomb disposal, air and water patrol and, as a separate division, traffic control promoting standards throughout the community.

Observations on the Coderre report itself, no less valid now than when made a year ago, warned that the rushed deadline for the report should have cautioned against basing legislation upon it: the complexities of pensions and the then $50-million actuarial deficit in the Montreal police pension fund was a prominent and unresolved problem and still remains, for example.

Westmount felt that the report did not appear to give serious consideration to the possibility of co-ordination or partial integration. The reasons given for total integration were equally valid in support of less complete unifying. Normal patrol duties and traffic control by uniformed forces present themselves still as best left to local control to meet extraordinary local conditions. By-law 26 of the MUC early last year, calling for total integration, was opposed by Westmount because it both went beyond the Coderre recommendations and was

Thoughts on 1971

The traditional stock-taking which we are inclined to do around this time of year causes me to reminisce a little bit about some recent events associated with parliamentary and governmental activity.

"ill-considered, unsatisfactory and premature." Those words sound just as fresh and accurate a year later.

Finally, insufficient weight was given to the findings of the inquiry into the Montreal police strike in late 1969 or the findings of the Prevost Commission, questions of police being but one aspect of the larger issue of the administration of justice.

Since the planning of the new force is to follow integration, Westmount and the other suburbs would do well to press now for a voice in that planning—by both our civil authorities and by our professional police. It will be a great folly if organizational work is done without benefit of the special knowledge which suburban experience can offer and which the MUC Police, taking in vast suburban areas, will need. What we don't need over the island is a mere extension of Montreal Police practices; still less do we need an extension over the whole metropolitan area of the undue voice of influence in police administration of the Montreal Policemen's Brotherhood and its officers.

Hanging over all suburban officers is the threat of "reclassification." Undoubtedly, there are numerous instances where standards applied to hiring and promotion of suburban policemen are undesirable, and corrections will have to be made. But one of the earliest assurances which should be made to all existing personnel is that all men, of whatever rank, will be fairly dealt with; that there are clear avenues of genuine appeal open to them, and widest possible provision will be made for special cases so that police careers are not wrecked on the altars of uniformity, privilege or advantaged position.

There is a strong case for looking carefully at the norms for manpower and the ratios of officers to men in specific areas. There will be suggestions that some municipalities—Westmount is an obvious target—are "over-policed." Before such a charge is made to stick, and action taken to reduce manpower and facilities here or elsewhere, there should be better yardsticks found than simply saying we have more police here than somewhere else. After all, the professed object of the whole exercise of integration is to raise police standards throughout the Montreal Urban Community, not to reduce them in any way in any area.

The work program of the third session of the 28th Parliament is finally over. The total number of sitting days makes it the third longest on recent record. (The longest was the first session of the 27th Parliament, back in 1966-67.)

The committees of the House were hard-pressed to keep up with the continuous introduction of new bills before Parliament. But through it all, they made many significant contributions to the legislation.

Legislation list

With the help of the committees, Parliament took effective action on a great many pieces of legislation such as the establishment of the Canada Development Corporation, the Clean Air Act, the tax reform bill, Government Organization Act, and important amendments to the unemployment insurance regulations. However, progress through the House of certain bills such as the prairie grain stabilization bill and the proposal to pass an independent act governing the auditor-general were not quite so easy and, therefore, the bills were subsequently withdrawn from the House.

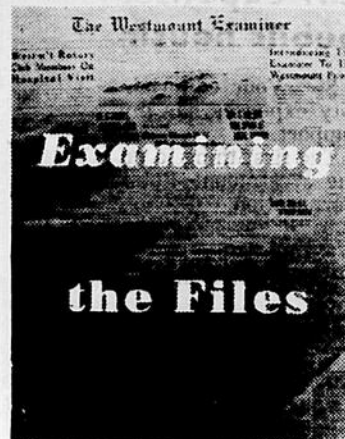

A perfect parliamentary record would not necessarily be a healthy sign given that the parliamentary system derives its strength from the hierarchical relationship between the legislature and the executive. It would therefore be unfortunate and indeed regrettable if the roles of the House and the cabinet were confused or reversed, so as to allow the executive to pass into law any piece of legislation.

So while no government likes to see its legislative initiatives stymied, it is a measure of the stability of our decision-making apparatus that the countervailing forces at work have been neither too strong to impede satisfactory progress, nor too weak to allow the passage of legislation at the discretion of the executive.

The past year will also be remembered for the publications of confidential documents. This is a technique which some people employ to influence certain policy decisions. But what it usually does is cause confusion and turmoil which can only be corrected by postponing all decisions until the dust has settled and heads have cooled, thereby causing a delay which, at best, will frustrate the needs of the very people whom the so-called "leakers" had hoped to assist.

Victoria landmark

During the course of this past year, the federal and provincial governments achieved more success than ever before in isolating the contentions points which have plagued Canada's constitutional disagreements. The Victoria charter very nearly achieved the historical significance of a great landmark; and even though it failed to receive unanimous approval, it is to be hoped that the spirit of co-operation in addition to the successful refinement of the opposing demands will assist us in reaching a comprehensive and satisfactory agreement before long.

"Members of the Westmount Police Force had their dream of a chicken dinner rudely shattered on Wednesday morning when a local truck driver established proof that the 12 frozen birds had fallen off his truck while he was making deliveries to local stores.

"A Westmount resident found the crate containing the 12 undressed chickens on Saturday at Cote St. Antoine road and Grosvenor avenue. He called the police who took the fowl into 'protective custody.' As days passed and the fowl were still unclaimed, members of the force became more and more certain that they were going to receive a welcome but late Christmas treat."

"It is reasonable to hope that the Salk Vaccine or, perhaps, other vaccines yet to be perfected will eventually conquer poliomyelitis. But the fact remains that polio is still with us. The disease is still claiming new victims.

"More Canadians died from polio in 1956 than in 1955. Deaths reported in all provinces last year totalled 34, compared with 28 in 1955. In the Province of Quebec twice as many people died from polio, with 16 fatalities in 1956 compared with only eight the previous year. In Quebec between January and November 1956, new cases totalled 139."

"Tenders have been called for the addition to the Municipal Library—Westmount's Centennial Project—and tenders will be opened Jan. 19, it is announced. Council members, in committee, will check the tenders and award the contract, it is expected, at the first February meeting of council.

"Sneak thieves have struck twice in the same week at Westmount churches—in each case in an overnight attempt at breaking and entering. The first attempt was early Thursday at the Christian Science Church on Lansdowne avenue while in the second case, between Wednesday night and Thursday morning, marauders made their way into the offices of Westmount Park United Church."

Other ways to aid ex-Selby residents

Sir: Congratulations on your campaign against public housing in lower Westmount.

This scheme is being served up as the solution to a commitment made to the former tenants of Selby street, that Westmount would re-house them within its boundaries.

The mayor at the time denies there was ever a commitment.

If Westmounters want to be generous to these former citizens, there are courses of action less expensive than the multi-million-dollar housing scheme, less onerous in terms of time (Public Housing will go on well past the last commitment) and less painful to our least affluent citizens, into whose residential area this scheme has been thrust.

Westmount Police win citizen praise

Sir: Immediately following the recent death of my mother, the Westmount Police were called to her residence in the first instance. I would like to record the superb way in which they volunteered every possible measure of assistance to my father, who was alone at the time. The promptness of their response, and the offers of many forms of service to the family, were very deeply appreciated, and are hereby acknowledged.

At a time when one hears so many words of condemnation of the actions of our Canadian police forces, I feel it is only right and proper that some record be made concerning the wonderful way in which they stand ready to support citizens in need.

Sir: Westmounters again combined Hallowe'en fun in 1971 with a thought and a deed for other children.

The collection for UNICEF on Hallowe'en through Westmount volunteers totals $3,115.

This amount is enough to provide a vehicle for a mobile health unit ($2,000), a 2,700-egg

Unity service Jan. 23

Westmount Christians will have a chance to celebrate the unity of all Christians on Sunday, Jan. 23, in a service at St. Leon Church, corner of de Maisonneuve boulevard and Clarke avenue, to commemorate Christian Unity Week. The service begins at 8 pm.

Bishop Leo Blais, one of the organizers, said the service was ecumenical which means "all the means taken to reach the objective of unity amongst Christians."

He said the Westmount Ministerial Association, sponsored the service and that the sermon will be in the form of an evangelical play on the theme of "Let us love one another."

In the play, he said, each of the apostles will be represented by a member of a different congregation in Westmount.

Mayor Paul Ouimet will read the Bible lesson.

Marriage attitudes explored

Changes in the attitude of young people toward marriage will be examined this Sunday at St. Andrew's United Church.

In a sermon, "Society on a Firm Foundation," Rev. E.A. Kirker will share his findings after the pre-marital counselling of several hundred couples.

The influence of the sexual revolution, the rise in trial marriages, the effect of alienation and loneliness in city life and other factors which have led to the questioning of the institution of marriage among young people will be considered.

Following the service a talk-back session will give members of the congregation opportunity to discuss the points raised.

Last Sunday St. Andrew's congregation celebrated Holy Communion according to one of the new forms which involved fuller congregational participation.

At its Monday meeting, the Christian Education committee learned that staff requirements in the Church School are now completely filled for the coming months.

Last Sunday the junior congregation met with Rev. Douglas Bacon. With his guitar, Mr. Bacon continued his program of introducing new songs to the children.

Dr. Stanley Frost, vice-principal of McGill University, will be guest preacher on Jan. 23.

Board blocks Quebec data on exceptional children

Westmount School Board Monday night denounced instructions from Quebec's department of education and requested the principals of the city's three Protestant schools not to fill out parts of forms distributed by the department.

Said the resolution passed by the board: "The board requests the principals of Roslyn School, Westmount Park School and Westmount High School to instruct the teachers in these schools not to complete block 6 'Exceptional Children' of the student statistical file form of the department of education without the express prior approval of the board."

The commissioners felt that the information, dealing with a child's mental capacity and ability to function, demanded great skill and training on the part of the person assessing the child and that teachers were not qualified to fill out the forms.

It was also felt that the information which would be computerized and sent to Quebec without the parents having an opportunity to see it, may pigeonhole a child for the rest of his life.

Said the resolution: "This board further requests the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal and the department of education to review its requirements for this type of information with a view to providing clear, objective tests for its collection and proper individual safeguards for its retention.

"Whereas this board recognizes the need for information retention and collection; whereas this board also recognizes the danger of human error in its collection and retention; whereas no safeguards are provided by regulation 7; whereas block 6 of the student's statistical file requires value judgments; whereas this board feels the questions required are inappropriate in this context and that retention of such information may not be desirable for the individual, the board has requested the principals of the schools under its jurisdiction to ask teachers not to fill in the block 6."

Playing field rental charges at issue again

The running sore of the Westmount School Board's rental of the playing field behind Westmount High School broke out in the open at Monday night's board meeting as a letter describing the cost of renting the field was read.

Commissioner Mrs. Joan Rothman said she understood that the school was not to pay for rental of the field until further negotiations were conducted.

Commissioner Iain Gow said that the board had felt that the city's charging of rent for the field was a breach of an "understanding" the board had with the city and that the city was not charged when it used school property.

Commissioner James Robb said there was a need to define the relationship and he would contact Ald. William Wood who, he said, was very interested in the question when he was chairman of the school board.

Goodwin and Robb sworn in Westmount's two new school commissioners, James Robb and Harvey Goodwin, took the oath of office at Monday night's board meeting and quickly added their voices to the lengthy board discussions.

Mr. Robb, lawyer, 9 Renfrew avenue, has been involved in Roslyn School educational matters for some years while Mr. Goodwin, aluminum company executive, 572 Victoria avenue, was board chairman of the St. George's School on The Boulevard, a private institution.

Questionnaire is questioned by school board

The Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal intends to send out questionnaires to parents of pupils in the French kindergarten at Westmount Park School in an attempt to work out programs based on their wishes.

A draft questionnaire was distributed at Monday night's Westmount School Board meeting for discussion and recommendation by the city's school commissioners.

Because of numbers, said District superintendent R.T.B. Fairbairn, it is not possible to offer both French and English streams at Westmount Park School such as occurs at Roslyn School.

He said four possibilities would be presented to the parents of children in Westmount Park's French kindergarten: (1) Twenty-five to 30 percent French instruction in grade one at Westmount Park School, (2) French immersion at Roslyn School, (3) Attendance at a French Protestant School, (4) Attendance at a French Catholic school.

Mr. Fairbairn said the board expected that few parents would opt for Roslyn school but added that it might be begging problems by raising the possibility.

Commissioner Iain Gow cautioned the board about raising hopes which could not be fulfilled.

Attendance at Dialogue is urged

Commissioner Mrs. Joan Rothman, at Monday night's school board meeting, urged her fellow commissioners to attend a coming "Dialogue 28" meeting in Westmount High School.

She described the "Dialogue 28" association as a voluntary group of French Catholic and English Protestant parents who meet together to work out educational philosophies and attempt to show that English and French people can work together. "I think we should turn up," she said.

Bill 291 may effect Bill 28

Education Minister Guy St. Pierre may attempt to use Bill 291, a bill concerning the methods of raising school taxes off the Island of Montreal, to implement some of the aims of Bill 28, the purpose of which is to restructure the island's school system.

That was one point made by Dr. Elton Pounder, retired chairman of the Westmount School Board who, at Monday night's school board meeting, reported on a meeting between Mr. St. Pierre and representatives of the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal on Friday afternoon.

Dr. Pounder said that former Commissioner Reid Tilley was not able to attend the meeting so he himself attended in order that he could report back to the local board.

He said the minister was "flying a trial balloon" and obtaining the reaction of the island's larger boards on his ideas before going ahead.

Dr. Pounder said that the minister's proposed additions to Bill 291 would have the effect of the tax reforms of Bill 28 and achieve uniformity of taxation.

Advisory committee

The minister also threw out the idea of setting up an advisory committee, either by order-in-council or by voluntary means, to serve the same function as the island council which was described in Bill 28. Some of its responsibilities would include special aid to underprivileged schools, a building plan, adult education, expansion of vocational training and second-language teaching.

After the minister obtains the reactions of the larger boards he intends to draft a position paper which may be sent out in a few weeks, reported Dr. Pounder.

Commissioner James Robb in the short discussion which followed the report described the minister's actions as "a way of getting on with the job."

Dr. Pounder said the reaction of the PSBGM representatives to the minister's suggestion was favorable.

Regulation 7 rules on study irk local board

Some Westmount school commissioners at Monday night's meeting expressed dissatisfaction with regulation seven of the department of education on the organization of studies.

The regulation was spelled out in the department of education's official bulletin and should come into force by September 1972.

Commissioner Iain Gow said the regulation which dealt with how much time students spent on studies was not in the spirit of regulation one, which encourages freedom and flexibility in teaching.

Discussion on the regulation was tabled until the next meeting as not all the commissioners had the official bulletin.

Evaluation tests ready for French at Roslyn

Evaluation tests for Roslyn School students in the French immersion program have been developed and are available to teachers.

That is one point in the report of the French program co-

PSBGM seeking more French teaching data

Westmount School Board has received a reply from the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal to a letter recommending courses in teaching French as a second language be established without delay.

The PSBGM requested more specific information so that it could be referred to the appropriate committee.

Commissioner Mrs. Joan Rothman said that she understood that the PSBGM had asked McGill University to train teachers to teach French but that McGill wasn't that interested.

Chairman Dr. Stanley French said that it was the government's policy to have French universities train teachers in how to teach French as a second language.

The commissioners decided to pass the letter to the board's French committee so that a detailed answer could be framed.

Student thanks moved by Robb

Commissioner James Robb at Monday night's school board meeting moved a vote of thanks to Westmount High Students after District Superintendent R.T.B. Fairbairn outlined some of the extracurricular activities of the students.

Mr. Fairbairn said that the students had sold Christmas trees in a campaign against YAWS, a disfiguring disease, and had repaired toys for needy children.

Goodwin seeks education plan

Newly installed Commissioner Harvey S. Goodwin at Monday night's board meeting brought up his idea of creating a committee to look at the overall state of education in Westmount and plan for the future.

He brought up the idea, one of his election planks, during discussion on the value of the board's present committees and it was greeted with mixed reactions.

Commissioner Iain Gow said, although the philosophy of the board was changing from an emphasis on reaction to one of innovation, it was first necessary to obtain the wishes of the community.

"You can't establish objectives in isolation," he said.

Chairman Dr. Stanley French asked the secretary-treasurer to give to the two new commissioners the original agreement the local board made with the Protestant School Board ordinating (parity) committee which was discussed at Monday night's board meeting.

The report also stated that two consultants are available for immersion French teachers, that a liaison has been established with the learning centre of the Montreal Children's Hospital and discussions are underway with the Westmount Health Committee to attempt to determine whether the immersion program has created problems for youngsters.

The report also says that attempts have been made to establish a liaison between French and English teachers at the school and that meetings between teachers and parents and the sending out of a principal's letter have explained the immersion program, warning of its limitations and high expectations.

Royal Vale kids' integration at WHS backed

The Westmount School Board at Monday night's meeting voted to "strongly endorse" District Superintendent R.T.B. Fairbairn's proposal concerning integration of students now attending French immersion in grade 7 at Royal Vale School into the Westmount High School program and urged its approval by the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal.

At the previous school board meeting, Mr. Fairbairn had said that after consultations with Westmount High Principal Noel Hamilton and, the head of the school's French department Dr. Helene Saly, it had been decided to make available a package offering of French classes.

However, should there be less than 29 students desiring to take the course, it might be impossible to implement the classes which would include French language and literature, history, typing, geography and business French.

of Greater Montreal and a copy of Reid Tilley's history of the board, both of which, he said, would help explain the board's functions.

Mr. Gow said that the board had decided to discuss priorities and that out of those discussions may come new committees.

Mr. Goodwin said he had read the PSBGM's social values report and that he was highly impressed.

"We have to have an education committee which looks beyond today," he said. "This is the type of thing we should be involved in."

'Blackest hour' on at WHS

By CASEY CAMPBELL

Westmount High School is now five days into her "blackest hour," the period of deepest depression commonly referred to as January examinations.

As a result, life in Westmount High has slowed down to a crawl. Indeed, the only indications of life, at this point, seem to be the barely audible utterances of prayer.

However, there are those of us more fortunate. These are the students participating in the study visits to France. The flight for Grade 11 students departed on the 13th with later flights scheduled for grades 7-10. These fortunate souls will be away for three weeks and consequently will miss the January exams. To compensate, an average mark will be taken from their class work.

Things should pick up again after the 20th, (termination of the exams) particularly in the sports department.

Gym team tryouts

Tryouts for the school's gymnastics teams took place last week as did tryouts for the girls' badminton teams. Both these sports will start their respective programs immediately following the completion of exams.

Also organized last week were the boys' intra-mural Borden Ball teams. Leagues for this particular sport also commence after exams.

Once more our boys' senior basketball team has come through for us. They defeated Cardinal Newman in last week's home game. The team remains undefeated and has a good chance of walking away with the number-one position in their division.

"You Can't Take it With You,"

Westmount High School NEWS

WHS's Theatre Club production for 1972, is also starting to take shape. The cast has already been chosen and, once again, rehearsals will begin immediately following the end of exams.

Talmud course at Shaar

Commencing this Tuesday evening at 8 pm, Congregation Shaar Hashomayim will start an Adult Beginners' Talmud Course for men and women.

This course, which will utilise the original Hebrew-Aramaic text, will be taught in English and with English translations available. The course is a "first" for Shaar Hashomayim, which already has a well established advanced Talmud class for men.

The course plans to open new vistas in Jewish learning in the Talmud, which is the greatest of all works of Jewish literature since the Bible, and will be taught by Rabbi Herbert J. Mandl, assistant rabbi. Registration is open to all who wish to attend.

Texts will be provided free of charge. The course will meet in Classroom A, New Library Building, Congregation Shaar Hashomayim, every Tuesday from Jan. 18.

The congregation Gourmet cooking class will resume on Wednesday, Jan. 19, and the program on that date will feature the executive chef of Hotel Bonaventure.

During January, the Library Museum of Shaar Hashomayim is holding a special exhibition of Yiddish Theatre which is on loan from the Museum of the City of New York.

This collection contains many important Jewish artifacts of interest to all. This exhibit will be open to the public during the regular library museum hours, Monday to Thursday, 1.30-5.30 pm, Sunday 9 to noon, Wednesday evening 7.30-10 pm, plus additional special hours on Sunday, 2-6 pm.

Exhibition

An exhibition of paintings by Lois Ditchburn, a former Westmount resident, and Agnes Knox, takes place in the Air Canada lobby of Place Ville Marie for two weeks starting Sunday, between 10 am and 8 pm daily.

HEMORRHOIDS

Rectal itch, chafing, skin irritation. For prompt relief, ask your druggist for HEMOSTOP A, the many purpose ointment. Insist on it.

Welfare cases in Westmount now total 177

Unbeknown to many Westmounters who consider their city to be inhabited by relatively wealthy citizens, Westmount possesses 177 welfare cases who receive their cheques from a city official.

Welfare is funded by the provincial government.

The city's Office for Community and Social Development,

1210 Greene avenue, is embarking on a program to find out the needs of the welfare cases and other low income citizens as a first step in assisting the city's underprivileged.

Community Worker June McLellan, who successfully initiated Westmount's pre-school program, is working on the project and would like interested persons to contact her.

There has been talk of transforming part of the Greene avenue buildings which were saved from demolition into some kind of community centre or a clothing and food co-op.

Never go ice fishing alone.

Pick the right day to test drive a Volkswagen and you'll have the road all to yourself.

Now that the weather has turned bad, it's a good time to test drive a Volkswagen. Wait for a day when it's snowing or slushing really hard, and let your VW dealer show you how, thanks to its air-cooled, rear-mounted engine, a Volkswagen works when hardly anything else does.

Mayor Ouimet House robbed salutes cadets

Mayor Paul Ouimet saluted the leaders of the cadet movement in an address to the Maple Leaf Wing of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association, Metcalfe avenue and Sherbrooke street, last night and said that the military has a role to play in the formation of the characters of young people.

"Twenty years from now many of these people will be major contributors to and leaders in our society and I know their military experience will have helped them attain their goals," he said of cadets.

He finished his talk by urging cadet leaders to "continue to be involved in the future generation of leaders."

House robbed

Several firearms, two TVs and some jewelry were stolen from 78 Sunnyside avenue sometime Friday night or Saturday morning. Value of the stolen goods has not yet been determined.

The thief gained entry by forcing a small window off the kitchen.

Caron elected

Raymond Caron, QC, 77 Sunnyside avenue, was returned by acclamation to the position of library trustee on Monday. Mr. Caron was nominated by the Westmount Municipal Association.

Break-in

A break and entry took place Sunday evening at 3 Parkman place. Nothing was reported taken.

20-year route for MUC taxes considered here

Westmount has the option of paying its retroactive MUC police expenses over a period of up to 20 years.

Ald. Leeds Nelson, commissioner of finance, pointed out at last week's city council meeting that while stretching its payments over a long period, the city would be paying 8 percent interest on the money.

"But I am not prepared to say that we're willing to pay the expenses right away," he said.

If the Quebec Municipal Commission, to which the suburban mayors intend to petition to change the budget, declines to do so, Westmounters will be hit with a MUC tax of 48.5 cents per $100 of valuation, if the city decides to collect its MUC tax in one lump.

St. Antoine proprietors to push case

Fernand Leclaire, president of the Lower Westmount Citizens Committee, probably won't be the only person from below the tracks to raise his voice in council chambers over the next few months.

At a meeting of property owners on Tuesday in Victoria Hall, it was decided that the burden of representing the St. Antoine street area should not fall only on Mr. Leclaire.

"The proprietors said they were going to attend council meetings and speak out," said Mr. Leclaire. Of the area's 21 proprietors, nine turned up at the meeting.

He added that all believed they had suffered losses because of the city's urban renewal program and the Trans-Canada Highway and that the area is still deteriorating.

"To save our investment the whole area has to be renovated," said Mr. Leclaire. "Piecemeal development just won't be sufficient."

He said the proprietors intended to ask all government levels for assistance.
