World News In Brief

Cebu City, Philippines. April 14.—(P)—A child with a flaming match yesterday touched off a $10,000 fire in this city's densely-populated area. Six persons were reported missing and authorities estimated about 8,000 persons were left homeless.

London, April 14.—(P)—Duchess of Windsor arrived from Paris today and went to a country estate, by-passing the Royal palaces whose doors haven't opened for her since Edward VIII abdicated for her love.
The former king, who came over from their Paris home a week ago, met the train at Waterloo station. He accompanied her by automobile to the home of the Earl of Dudley, at nearby Sunningdale. They plan to spend Easter there.

Vancouver, April 14.—(C. P.)—Some 50 members of the Labor-Progressive party yesterday picketed the Hotel Vancouver where Prime Minister St. Laurent was bedded down last night after an arduous day.

Wearing placards with slogans such as "We Want Peace?" the picketers handed out leaflets headed "Peace Treason?"
The leaflets bore a picture of Mr. St. Laurent and one of L.P.P. leader Tim Buck. The latter's picture bore the inscription "Peace" while Mr. St. Laurent's had the caption "War."

New York, April 14.—(C)—A "conservative" estimate of the number of atom bombs in the United States today was set at between 100 and 200 by a former member of the Manhattan project—wartime atomic experimental group.

Writing in the armed forces chemical journal, Dr. J. A. Campbell, chemistry professor at Oberlin College, Ohio, said "estimates based on many sources all lead to the conclusion that the rate of production is about one a week."

Denver, April 14.—(P)—Gilda Gray, star of the Ziegfeld Follies during the 1920's, yesterday filed suit for $1,000,000 against Columbia Pictures Corporation, claiming that incidents from her past were used in the motion picture "Gilda." She said she was all ready to sell "The Gilda Gray Story" to Hollywood when Columbia "came out and messed up everything" with its "Gilda" picture.

Washington, April 14.—(P)—Washington had its newspapers back today after A.F.L. press men and stereotypes ended a strike which had lasted since Monday morning.

The Post and Times-Herald rushed to press with their early morning editions last night shortly after the wage-hour dispute was settled. A Times-Herald headline was "Strike ends—here we are again."

The Evening Star, News and Times-Herald afternoon editions also had been forced to suspend publication during the strike.

New West Coast Violence Marks Strike By Seamen

By The Canadian Press.
In Halifax today a Montrealer is scheduled to appear for preliminary hearing on a charge of attempted murder arising from a bloody riot in the 14-day old deep-sea shipping attack strike even as reports of new violence broke on the west coast.

At Vancouver last night striking Canadian Seamen's Union (T. L. C.) pickets clashed with police as a rival Seafarers International Union crew (A. F. L.) boarded the strike-bound S.S. Seaside. Riot squads of city police stopped enraged C. S. U. men and six were reported injured in bare-knuckled fights.

Although the situation remained trigger-tense there and in at least two other Canadian ports, there were indications the law was tightening its grip on the 14-day old tug-of-war between rival unions for control of deep-sea shipping jobs. Developments already have brought an assortment of court actions.

Most serious of these is the attempted murder count against Harry Pilgrim, member of the S. I. U. Pilgrim is alleged to have fired a shotgun at C. S. U. members from the deck of the Canadian National Steamship Lady Rodney in an outbreak of violence at Halifax during which eight men were injured.

The C. S. U., in an announcement made yesterday at Montreal, said the strike now has extended to a 12th country. A 46th ship became involved when the Federal

Premier Sees No Decline In Business

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Vancouver, April 14.—(P)—Canadians have amassed a $500,000,000 insurance fund to meet unemployment but their government sees no serious business decline and feels it can raise employment to ever higher levels, Prime Minister St. Laurent said yesterday.

The Prime Minister made a major topic of employment in an address last night at the Hotel Vancouver.

Earlier he indicated to another luncheon crowd that the democracies don't know whether Russia has equivalents of their "instruments of destruction" greater than any yet used in war. To 2,000 students of the University of British Columbia, he held up the "experiment" of state financing a higher education for veterans as one which would benefit the Canada both of today and tomorrow.

Mr. St. Laurent left last night for Victoria.

In his night address, Mr. St. Laurent agreed that Canada has a long way to go "before we can be complacent about the welfare of our people."

The Liberal party had a policy of full employment and "a record of full employment." Because one in three Canadian workers were dependent on trade, "we are doing everything which can be done to keep our markets open and to find new ones."

He did not think any government would deserve to survive "which did not strike even in the face of unfavorable conditions abroad to maintain high levels of employment, production and national income."

Detailing the party's stand on "full employment," he said: "In a country like Canada there is always bound to be seasonal unemployment and in every free country there is bound to be casual unemployment while people are changing jobs or looking for better jobs or because certain factories are slack."

"I mean by 'full employment' is a level of jobs over the country which makes it reasonably possible for most men and women to get work most of the time without too much difficulty."

"And coupled with a high employment policy there should be, as there is in Canada, a system of unemployment insurance to help the individual worker and his family to weather the periods of fluctuation in employment."

So far, since the war, there had been no mass unemployment. There were some signs of slackening in demand but "even though we may not continue to have a seller's market there are no serious signs of any decline in business."

There had not been any great drain on the unemployment insurance fund, now up to $500,000,000. This was a bulkhead but the government did not consider it a substitute for employment.

Pioneer, owned by Federal Navigation and Commerce, reached Nantux, Cuba. Stevedores were reported to have pledged to support the seamen by not unloading or loading the ship.

The tie-up, called after Canadian shipowners signed an agreement with the S. I. U., thus now reaches all the way from Norway to Australia, touching France, Belgium, Holland, South Africa, England, Port of Spain, Cuba, British Guiana, New Zealand, and the Canadian ports of Halifax, Saint John, N.B., Louisburg, N.S., Montreal and Vancouver.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, on a tour of western Canada, was greeted by C. S. U. pickets who were among several hundred people who welcomed him in Vancouver.

It was the second successive day on which there was violence in the Vancouver waterfront. S. I. U. men went aboard the Seaside after the vessel was swung out into mid-harbor. The crew went aboard from three skiffs guarded by a police boat.

In Halifax meanwhile, the S. I. U. also waited an opportunity to board the freighter Sunprince, now manned only by officers, which slipped her cables yesterday while some 200 police blocked off the pier to C. S. U. pickets. The ship has cargo aboard, ready to sail.

Northwest States and British Columbia Feel Tremor, One of Most Severe in Many Years.

By GAIL FOWLER

Seattle, April 14.—(P)—Eight persons were counted dead, scores injured and preliminary damage estimates ranged as high as $10,000,000 in the wake of an earthquake which jolted the Pacific northwest yesterday.

The shock struck at 11:55 a.m. Bricks showered off cornices and building facings; chimneys toppled; plate glass cracked and shattered and roads sagged and split.

Two small, unoccupied houses on Fox Island, near Tacoma, Wash., were dumped into Puget Sound.

Cities from Vancouver and Victoria in the north, southward to Oregon towns in the Salem, Ore., area felt the quiverings of the quake. Scientists rated it of No. 8 intensity, which compares to a No. 12 or "total destruction" quake.

The total effect in British Columbia, however, appeared to have been a bad scare. No one was killed or injured and there was no extensive property damage there. However, the quake was felt in dozens of B. C. points and the Dominion seismograph at Victoria registered the tremor for more than four minutes. It was one of the severest recorded in Canada.

The Victoria seismograph registered No. 6 intensity on a Canadian scale which differs from that of the United States in that "total destruction" is No. 10.

In the United States, the Red Cross and government agencies stood by today, ready to plunge in with aid. An official said today that not a single person had applied in the Seattle area for aid for injuries, but that funds would be forthcoming to rebuild homes damaged by the quake, on a basis of individual need.

Governor Arthur B. Langlie at Olympia, Washington state capital, said:

"Everyone is going to have to pitch in and do what he can." Olympia was especially hard hit. The old capital building and the insurance building were the most severely damaged, and were ordered closed. Six other state buildings were shaken and cracked, but inspectors said they still were sound.

Two of the quake dead were in Olympia. Falling chimney bricks killed Percival Bissan, and Mrs. C. W. West died of a heart attack when the quake shook her hotel.

Langlie's assistants reported on the condition of several state buildings throughout the quake area. The dormitory buildings at the boys' training school at Chehalis, Wash., were damaged, and boys were moved into three new dormitories nearing completion. Two boys were hurt. Seventeen men in the old soldiers' home at Retell, near Bremerton, were moved after damage to their building.

Tacoma, 30 miles south of Seattle, reported "scores and scores" were treated for shock, bruises and other minor hurts. Many downtown buildings were ordered evacuated.

The Holy Rosary Church, probably the highest in Tacoma, was closed, as its cross was in imminent danger of collapsing.

Trains ran late between Seattle and Portland, by-passing the "Narrows route" at Tacoma where quake-caused slides were not expected to be cleared until later today.

Two men were injured at the Narrows Bridge tower, where a 23-ton "saddle" fell and sank a scow. In Seattle, a preliminary listing showed 75 buildings which suffered damage from amounts estimated up to $50,000 apiece.

The top 100-foot section of radio station KJR's Harbor Island tower broke off but was still hanging from the rest of the structure. Broadcasting continued.

Seattle, April 14.—(P)—This wasn't earthquake country at 11:54 a.m. yesterday. But a minute later, it was.

And today signs of the tremor are in scores of Washington cities and towns.

There still is some rubble in the streets of Seattle, Tacoma and Olympia, all near the centre of the shock.

Many business places remained closed today and pedestrians walked gingerly around roped-off mounds of debris before damaged buildings.

Home owners shopped for replacement items—new window glass, cement to patch cracked basements, new crockers and nails to rehang pictures jarred from the walls.

In the wake of the quake—here are some of the stories being passed around:

In the southwest Washington city of Aberdeen, the shock sent all occupants of a downtown tavern rushing into the street—all

Nineteen High Nazi Officials Are Given Penal Terms For War Crimes

Optimism Is Growing For ERP Success

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Paris, April 14.—(P)—Men on the inside of the European recovery program claim it now has a 40 to 60 per cent chance of long-range success.

A year ago, they saw only a 20-per-cent chance. But they say their feeling of cautious optimism is growing.

The European recovery program has already cost the United States about $5,000,000,000 since it was started April 8th, 1948.

The total cost may reach $17,000,000,000 before the program is completed in mid 1952.

The pay-off hoped for is the peaceful evolution of diverse countries toward self-supporting European unity, which will foster economic well-being and virile democracy for all of them.

More simply, the pay-off might, with the impetus of the Atlantic alliance, be a kind of United States of western Europe. E.R.P., in aiming in this direction, is strictly a gamble.

But in short-range activities, E.R.P. is less uncertain. Judged on factual results month by month during its brief life, it is accomplishing a good many of the urgent tasks which its backers claimed it would accomplish.

E.R.P. involves many operations, but most of all it is investment banking. It furnishes dollars to stimulate and expand European trade and industry through normal commercial channels.

The dollars come out of the United States treasury. At least 80 per cent of them are gifts to E.R.P. countries, with certain strings attached. The remainder are loans, requiring full repayment with interest at 2 1/2 per cent.

The immediate political purpose of E.R.P., when it started in April 1948, was to help Germany.

The court room was packed as sentences were pronounced in the same room where Hermann Goering and other top-ranking Nazi leaders were convicted nearly three years ago by an international tribunal.

One of the eight charges in the original indictment was dropped early in the trial. This was a charge of pre-war crimes against the Germans.

The charges were:

Count 1—Planning, initiating and waging a war of aggression.

Count 2—Conspiracy to commit crimes against peace and humanity.

Count 3—Murder and ill-treatment of prisoners-of-war.

Count 4—Dropped.

Count 5—Atrocities and offenses against civilian populations (mass extermination of Jews).

Count 6—Plunder and spoliation of invaded countries.

Count 7—Enslavement of conquered people.

Count 8—Membership in criminal organizations.

Weizsaecker was credited with four years he has been in prison awaiting trial, leaving him only three years to serve.

Ernst Wilhelm Bohle, suave English-born chief of the Nazi party's foreign organization, was sentenced to five years. He was convicted only on count eight.

Ernst Woermann, chief of the political division of the German foreign office and pre-war councillor at the London embassy, drew a seven-year sentence on two counts—one and five.

Karl Ritter, former ambassador for special assignments, known as

Red Charges In U.N. Will Be Answered

New York, April 14.—(C)—The western powers today were prepared to challenge Russia's charges in the United Nations that they plot an aggressive atomic war through the Atlantic pact.

Warren R. Austin, United States delegate, was reported ready to ask for a chance to reply to the blast delivered yesterday by Andrei A. Gromyko, Russia's No. 1 deputy foreign minister.

Gromyko's 75-minute address followed Austin's condemnation of Russia's use of the veto as undermining the confidence of the U. N. members in efforts of the security council to maintain peace.

The Russian replied with a counter-charge that the western powers were wrecking the U. N. by forming alliances which he said were violations of the U. N. charter.

But Gromyko ruled out predictions Russia would pull out of the world organization because of the pact signed April 4 in Washington by 12 states including Canada.

The Dominion came in for a sideswipe from Gromyko. He claimed that the United States was building "secret bases" in Canada to be used in an attack on Russia.

Russia previously criticized the pact in a note to the United States, but yesterday's slap was the first in the U. N.

Gromyko, however, made no recommendations to the Assembly for action against the pact whose signatories he said, were trying to encircle Russia.

"The conclusion of the North Atlantic treaty signifies that the ruling action circles of United States and Great Britain have reverted to the old anti-Soviet course in foreign policy aimed at isolating the U. S. S. R.," he said.

Russia's aim is "to uphold the

Plaster Image Said To Weep When Kissed

Syracuse, N. Y., April 14.—(P)—Hundreds came last night to watch an 11-year-old girl kiss the forehead of a broken religious statue saved from a trash can.

Many, including a Roman Catholic priest, said tears appeared in the eyes of the plaster image of St. Ann after Shirley Anne Martin had pressed her lips to it.

It happened time after time, they said.

Some visitors kissed the severed head but nothing happened, witnesses said.

Rev. Francis J. Furfaro of Our Lady of Pompeii Church said he had "watched the little girl kiss the head and it began to weep."

"I can only say," he added, "that it is a wonderful, extraordinary occurrence."

Two other priests from that church, Father Furfaro said, also had seen what were described as tears in the painted eyes of the three-inch plaster head after it had been kissed by the girl.

Bishop Walter A. Forcey of the Roman Catholic diocese of Syracuse could not be reached for comment.

Shirley Anne, the oldest of a Syracuse milkman's four children, attends public school. They are Roman Catholics.

The child was reported near exhaustion last night after demonstrating the phenomenon for several hours. St. Ann was the mother of the Virgin Mary, the Mother of Christ.

Moscow, John McMahon, dean of the State College of Ceramics at Alfred University, Alfred, N. Y., told reporters by telephone that from a scientific standpoint "it doesn't seem probable."

McMahon, also a Roman Catholic, said that plaster of paris absorbs water readily but does not release it except through evaporation.

He indicated he would send an investigator to the Martin home if the occurrence continued.

Police estimated that 500 persons were in or around the Martin flat last night. The Martins planned to open their home to visitors again today.

In front of one reporter, Shirley Anne twice kissed the statue lightly, he said, and twice a drop of liquid appeared in the right eye.

She kissed the forehead fervently, three times in succession. A moment later, what appeared to be tears filled both eyes and rolled down the cheeks.

Another reporter said the tears, when wiped away, reappeared.

Mrs. Viola Martin, Shirley's mother, said the statue was one of two given the children by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Laura Allen of Syracuse.

The foot-high statue fell April 2 and broke into 16 small pieces, Mrs. Martin put them in a trash can.

She said Shirley Anne found the head section later that day in the driveway. The girl told her mother that the statue cried when she kissed it.

Buenos Aires, April 14.—(Reuters)—President Juan Peron yesterday issued an invitation to foreign and domestic capital to set up new printing factories in Argentina to overcome an acute shortage of newsprint. Those qualifying will receive special facilities, including exchange to import necessary materials, which will be allowed in duty free.

Western Powers Ready If Reds Seek Talks On Berlin

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Washington, April 14.—(P)—The United States stood ready today to receive, and consider jointly with Britain and France, any proposal Russia might make for lifting the Berlin blockade and renewing four-power talks on Germany.

Acheson indicated he had studied the report and carefully considered what he would say about it. The Secretary's associates flatly declined to amplify his remarks. Some informed officials said they had never heard of any Russian idea.

At Frankfurt, Germany, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States military governor, said he had not been approached on it.

Moscow radio was heard in London saying that the Anglo-American-French plans for western Germany are "designed to complete the political dismemberment of Germany, perpetuate the occupation regime, postpone indefinitely the conclusion of a peace treaty and make certain the separate west German state is included in the aggressive North Atlantic pact."

Acheson made a cautiously-worded comment at his press conference yesterday which officially emphasized the American position that communications for any proposal from the Russians are open if Moscow wants to use them.

At the same time, he said he had nothing to add on previous policy declarations about lifting the blockade and he could not appropriately comment on any possible change in the Soviet attitude.

Acheson was prompted to make

CORINNE CALVERT BOOSTS BLOOD PRESSURE IN PUBLICITY STUNT

Hollywood—Producer Hal Wallis is introducing a slick French chick named Corinne Calvert as Burt Lancaster's leading lady in "Rope of Sand."

It is Wallis' belief that Corinne is the hottest thing in Hollywood since they burned Ingrid Bergman at the stake.

"Honest," one of Wallis' press agents said, "this gal will raise your blood pressure. Come on over and we'll show you some scenes from the picture."

The press agent was mighty clever about it. A Paramount nurse named Lillian Rock was there to take my blood pressure while I looked at Corinne on the screen.

Nurse Rock is a professional lady, so of course she thought it was rather ridiculous. She smiled friendly-like while she unpacked her blood pressure gauge, but her eyes told me her heart wasn't in it. She took my blood pressure—"128 over 70," she said.

Then I sat back and saw a sequence from the picture in which Corinne rips off part of her dress, trying to compromise Claude Rains in a hotel room. Corinne is mighty easy on the eyes indeed, and I was sorry that the film ended so quickly.

Nurse Rock took my blood pressure again.

"A hundred and forty-five over 76," she said. The disbelief was gone from her face. "I'll be darned," she said, "it really did go up."

I'm not sure whether it was because of Corinne or those onions I had for lunch.

"Stinks" Returns

"Mr. Stinks" is back from the Army and there's a murderous gleam in the eyes of every producer and director in Hollywood.

"Mr. Stinks" is a Hollywood character who has gone to almost every sneak preview in the past 15 years. He gets an audience reaction cards and writes, whether the picture is good or not, "It stinks."

There can be 128 cards saying the picture is sensational but there's always that one ego-deflator from Mr. Stinks saying, "It stinks."

Then came the war and "Mr. Stinks" was drafted. He wound up in the South Pacific, and liking every motion picture they showed him. But now he's back.

Director Robert Siodmak showed me a batch of audience reaction cards on his latest film, "The Great Sinner." Two hundred cards raved about the film.

One was in familiar handwriting.

It read: "It stinks."

"I wish," Siodmak said, "that he was back in the South Pacific."

Note from reader Howard Harris:

"I don't mind people eating popcorn in movie theaters, but the other night I went to see the French picture, 'Symphonie Pastorale,' and the guy in back of me was eating French toast."

The James Mason book, "The Cats in Our Lives," will hit the book stalls soon. Some of the cats are of the two-footed variety.

Albert Dekker, once a California state assemblyman, is finished with politics. His wife says so.

Aside to pedestrians: Pioneer-town, the new Hollywood for western films near Palm Springs, has a law set down by movie star president Russell Hayden. You can't drive your car on the main street. It's unpaved, will remain that way, and is only for horses and people.

Claudette Colbert has a reputation for being as good a businesswoman as she is an actress. I asked her how she did it.

"When I'm in front of the camera," she said, "I try to be a full-time actress. When I'm in back of a camera, I try to be a full-time businesswoman."

Many a producer who has faced Claudette across a desk will attest to this.

Radio Daily's Main Street column gives this travelogue of a gag:

A 13-year-old high school humor editor originates a joke. Press agent clips gag. Joke appears in a Broadway column. Bennett Cerf reprints as anecdote which happened to Alex Woolcott or John Barrymore.

Famous toastmaster picks it up and relates it as happening on his way to the dinner. Radio gag writer at dinner swipes same for his next week's radio show. Night club comic hears it on the air and tells it at his cafe. High school teacher attending cafe hears joke and tells it to the principal of the school.

Principal remembers seeing it in school paper and drops the 13-

The Denison's Mills Women's Institute held its April meeting at the home of Mrs. A. Hebert. The meeting was opened in the usual manner with the president, Mrs. A. Hebert, in the chair. The roll call, pay by waist measure caused much merriment and was responded to by six members. Proceeds from this and similar roll calls during the year are to be used to buy cutlery for the Women's Institute Community Hall. A contest was held of articles made from scraps or something old. These were judged and the prize given to Mrs. Elton Carson, for a girl's coat. Mrs. Spencer Brock, the past president, was presented with a gift for which she thanked the members. The meeting was adjourned to meet in the Hall on Thursday evening, May 5, when the hall will be cleaned and put in readiness for the summer activities. Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. A. Hebert, assisted by her daughters, Velma and Shirley.

Iceless Oxygen Tent Is Installed In St. Vincent De Paul Hospital

By BOB PERRY
Sherbrooke is the scene of another medical "first."
On the fourth floor of the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital here stands the first modern iceless oxygen tent ever purchased by a hospital in the Province of Quebec. Several years ago the Sherbrooke municipal government bought the first portable iron lung ever acquired by a city to combat that dreaded child-killer, polio.

Both machines were supplied by one man. He is Bob Hulme, a Montreal oxygen expert, whose life is devoted to the saving of other lives through medical equipment such as this.

Bob started in this tricky and gratifying business 20 years ago and never left it. At fires and mine disasters all over Canada the sight of balding, moustached

Bob lugging oxygen and respiration equipment about is quite common. In Montreal he has probably saved and revived more victims of smoke poisoning than any other individual.

Transportation is no problem to Robert C. Hulme. He at one time had his own ambulance fitted out to carry the special gear, but today he relies on police cars, taxis and even aircraft. Since cars carry no warning devices, he packs along his own hand siren. It must be quite an amazing sight to see a taxi cab racing through Montreal's streets with Bob Hulme grinding the wailing hand siren out a window.

It is Bob Hulme's service that supplies oxygen to the Montreal Royals. While in Sherbrooke, Bob tells us he is negotiating with the St. Francis club to oxygenate them next season. He can recite a long and impressive list of athletes who used oxygen and shot to the championship in their respective sports. The list includes swimmers, fighters and hockey players.

"The purpose of supplying oxygen," explains Bob, "is to replenish the supply used up in heavy exertion. From the medical standpoint it provides a 'second wind'." Experiments prove its effectiveness too, he says.

Sherbrooke's fire department is purchasing some oxygen equipment also, Bob tells us. He has refitted some surplus air force masks to suit the fire-fighters' purpose and they seem to work well. Our smoke-eaters have ordered some.

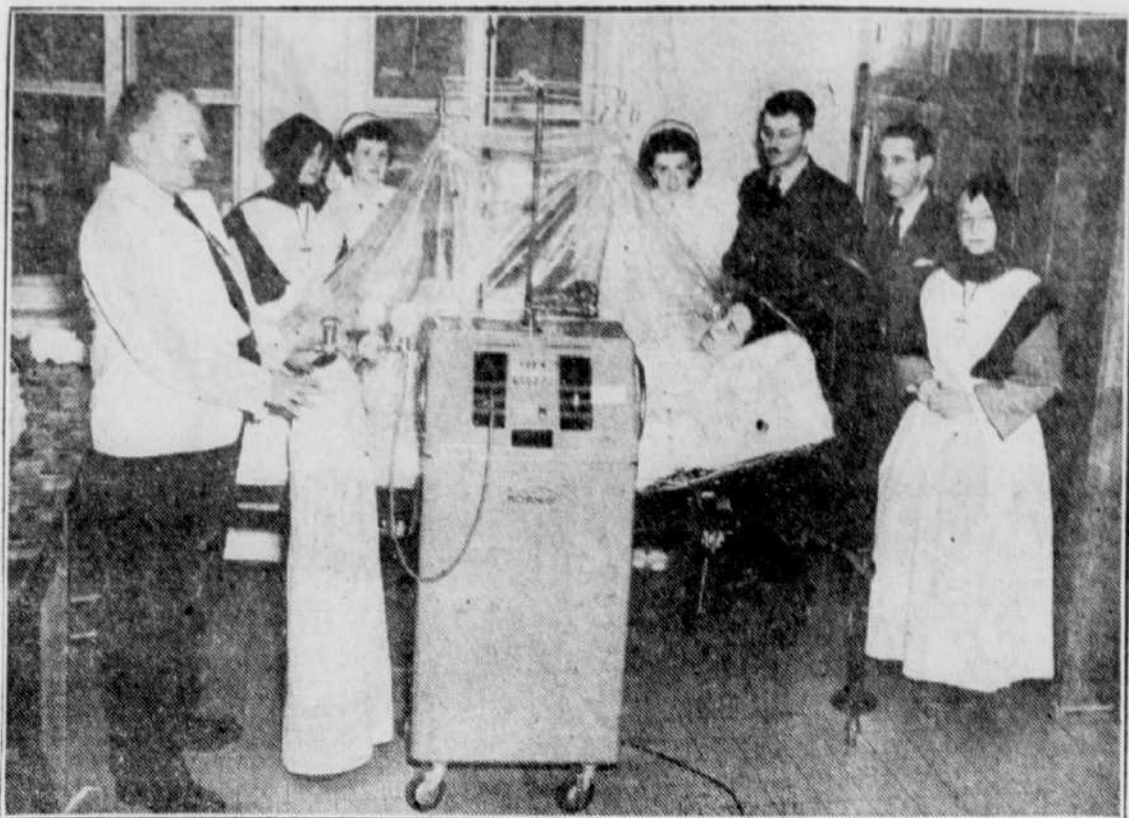

Bob has been here since Monday demonstrating the new oxygen tent to the hospital staff. The machine, he explains, makes the old ice-cooled tent look like horse and buggy stuff. Known as the "Mechanairer," the new tent is produced by the Oxygen Equipment Manufacturing Corporation of New York City. The entire device is fully automatic.

To the layman, an oxygen tent is an oxygen tent, but to a technician it's a different story. The old ice tent, we are told, embodied the danger of pneumonia through rapid temperature changes when melting ice is not replaced on time. This new tent controls the temperature automatically through an electric refrigeration system. To a technician, that's good.

The refrigerated tent is noiseless, vibrationless, fire-proof and completely portable. Its operation has been simplified to one control panel that permits easy manipulation and instant response. The clear plastic canopy that tucks under the bed's mattress is completely transparent and zipper openings permit easy access to the patient by doctors and nurses attending. On the whole, Bob says, it's pretty good.

Bob Hulme left Sherbrooke last night and returned to Montreal. He had a date with the Montreal Neurological Institute. They are going to apply oxygen to a patient while delicately draining his brain. Bob is to preside over the gas end

Oxygen Tent Demonstrated

Shown here demonstrating the new iceless oxygen tent purchased by the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital is Bob Hulme (in white jacket), Montreal oxygen technician, whose business is "saving lives." The tent is the first of its kind purchased by a hospital in the Province of Quebec. Standing in the background are interested members of the hospital staff. They are (left to right) Sister Belisle, Nurse L. Daigneau, Nurse G. Chamberland, Dr. Antoine Hebert, Dr. Lionel Groleau and Sister de Grandpre, superior of the hospital. The "stick" woman in bed is Nurse Stella Hogan.

Memorial Is Dedicated To Former E.T. Man

St. Thomas, Ont., April 14.—A new proscenium arch and stage arrangements, recently completed in St. Thomas, Ont., Trinity Parish Hall, have been formally presented to the church and dedicated by the rector, Rev. J. R. Thompson. This gift is from the members of the Ladies' Bible Class of the church, and was presented in memory of their founder and former teacher, the late Rev. M. B. Johnson, on the ninth anniversary of their organization.

Rev. M. B. Johnson, better known in the Eastern Townships as Moody Johnson, a sister of Mrs. Horace Mayhew, in Lennoxville, was born and brought up in Dixville. He entered Bishop's University in 1905. In 1909, he was ordained and became Chapel Organist, holding a Bachelor of Music degree.

He first took up the ministry in Fitch Bay and from there went to Montreal and Ottawa. He finally went to St. Thomas, where he died in 1947.

At the Dedication Service, Herbert Johnson, son of the former rector, spoke briefly in appreciation of the work of the Bible Class, and stated that his father had long wanted a suitable place for the young people to present drama.

Harry E. Plastow, People's Warden, spoke of the uses that could be made of this beautiful gift. E. T. Holmes, rector's warden when Mr. Johnson was at Trinity Church, recalled that the curtains for the stage had been procured from the Air School, and felt that they were a fitting reminder of the work carried on by the late Mr. Johnson in connection with the Air Schools during the war, in addition to his regular parochial work.

Special Easter Holiday Services Are Planned By All District Churches

English-speaking congregations of local churches will conclude their observance of Holy Week with services on Good Friday and on Easter Sunday. The three-hour Devotion Service will take place on Good Friday, in most churches, with most non-Anglican Protestant congregations gathering for this service in Plymouth United Church.

In St. Peter's Church, on Good Friday, Matins will be held at 8:30 a.m., with the Litany and Ante-Communion at 10 a.m. From 12 noon until 3 p.m., Rev. George Harrington, of St. Anne's Church, in Richmond, will conduct the three-hour Devotion Service.

Rev. Clarence Jensen will conduct the Children's Service at 4 p.m., and in the evening, there will be presented Stainer's "The Crucifixion," by the choir. Wright Gibson will be the organist, and direct the choir in the evening. Soloists will be Bruce Bishop, Dean Bishop, Mrs. Ross Beattie, Ken Doherty, and Don Guardham.

On Holy Saturday, there will be the Litany and Ante-Communion at 10 a.m., with the "Song of Easter" at 8 p.m.

On Easter Sunday, Matins will be held at 6:30 a.m., and Holy Communion will be celebrated at 7 a.m., 8:15 a.m., and 9:30 a.m. The "Song of Easter" will take place at 11 a.m., Canon Russell Brown officiating. There will be no sermon.

At 3 p.m., there will be a Children's Service, conducted by Canon Brown, assisted by Rev. Clarence Jensen. In the evening, at 7 p.m., the Festival Evensong will take place. Canon Brown will deliver his Easter sermon.

In Trinity Church, there will be shown tonight, at 8 o'clock, the Passion Film, "Golgotha." This film is an outstanding sound film and is acclaimed to be the finest of its kind. All congregations are welcome.

On Friday, this congregation will unite with other non-Anglican Protestant congregations at Plymouth United Church, where the traditional three-hour Devotion Service will be held.

On Easter Sunday, there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 11 a.m., preceded by a brief address by Rev. Fred Williams. In the evening, the Cantata, "The Dawn," will be presented by a mass choir, consisting of Trinity Girls' Choir, and a mixed girls' and boys' choir from Magog. Mrs. Bertha Bell will be at the organ.

In Plymouth Church, there will be the joint three-hour Devotion Service on Good Friday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. The Seven Words From The Cross will be illustrated by seven ministers, Rev. R. C. Tait, Rev. E. A. Wright, Rev. H. E. Lewis, Sgt. Major Cook, of the Salvation Army, Rev. O. L. Davidson, Rev. N. B. McLeod, Rev. W. A. Edwards, of Waterville.

Three organists will assist, Mrs. Bertha Bell, Mrs. Mollie Trenholm and J. G. Scorer.

Worshippers may enter or leave during the singing of the hymns, that will intersperse the addresses.

On Easter Sunday, Mr. Tait will address the morning service on "The Life Everlasting." Special music by the choir will consist of "Now the Earth is Resurrection Light," by Shelley, and "God So Loved the World" by Stainer.

At 8:15 p.m., there will be the Sacred Cantata, "Darkness in Dawn," by Fred Peace. Soloists will be Mrs. J. L. Pergau, Mrs. George Ogston, W. Hawley Griffith, C. Jamieson, Fred Sangster and D. MacPherson. J. G. Scorer will be the organist and choir director.

Rev. John Comfort will conduct the three-hour Devotion Service on Good Friday, in St. Paul's Church, from 12 noon until 3 p.m.

On Easter Sunday, there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 8 a.m. and the "Song of Easter" at 11 a.m. Mr. Com-

Sherbrooke Regt. Asks For British Dress For Band

The Sherbrooke Regiment (12th Armored Regiment), RCAC, Reserve Force, is seeking permission to adopt the full dress uniform of bandmen of the Royal Leicestershire Regiment, with which it is allied, as the dress uniform of its band, it was learned this week.

Present army policy is that Reserve Force regimental bands can now be outfitted in full dress regalia, but it must be at the expense of the unit.

Stumped for ideas for a dress uniform that would be suitable for wear by the band of an armored regiment having the background of an infantry unit, the Quebec regiment recently called upon Army Headquarters for help. Mindful of the association between the two units, Army Headquarters suggested the uniform of the Royal Leicestershires.

Acting upon this suggestion, the unit has written to Brig. H. S. Pinder, CBE, MC, Honorary Colonel of the British counterpart of the Sherbrooke Regiment, asking for permission to adopt the English unit's dress uniform and, if granted, for a copy of the pattern.

As an officer of the Sherbrooke said, "It's now up to the British."

R.C.M.P. Work In Arctic Described To Members Of Local Kiwanis Club

Guest speaker at last night's Skagway to White Horse trip, weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club, held in the Mayfair Room of the New Sherbrooke Hotel, was Constable J. P. Romain, of the Sutton Detachment of the R. C. M. P., who spoke on "Carrying our Laws to the Arctic Trail."

In stressing the adventures and thrills that lie in the north land, Constable Romain quoted a poem from Robert Service, one of the foremost writers of the Great North.

Constable Romain stated that the R. C. M. P. have been servicing the north for over a half century, and that the duties of the Mounted Police are numerous. Apart from knowing the Criminal Code, they have extended jurisdiction as they are the only police there.

The Mounted Police, Constable Romain said, must collect poll tax, income tax, fur tax, take care of the mails, act as coroner, undertaker, parson and even sign the death certificate in emergency cases.

Constable Romain spoke of his trip from Vancouver to Skagway, Alaska, during which he ran across some of the colorful characters of the Klondike Gold Rush. From

HAIL TO THE SAINTS

One of the finest hockey seasons this city has ever enjoyed came to an end in Ottawa Tuesday night when the Sherbrooke St. Francis team bowed to the defending champions, Ottawa Senators, in the final play-off round of the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

Those fortunate enough to see the game say the local players turned in one of their finest exhibitions of the season. They were as great in defeat as they had been so often in victory.

To Ottawa, for winning the championship, we say congratulations. To our own boys, who this season far surpassed the highest hopes of their most ardent supporters, we say well done and thank you.

The Sherbrooke St. Francis team not only brought honor and respect to the players, but it put the name of Sherbrooke on the sports pages of newspapers from coast to coast.

Much credit must go to Coach Ivan Dugre for moulding a group of youngsters and oldsters into a harmonious, smoothly-functioning machine. Mr. Dugre's effort already has been recognized in his being named as all-star coach of the League, a high honor, especially for a first year man.

But Mr. Dugre will be the first to admit that without the co-operation of his players a coach can do nothing. The local players gave him that co-operation and the result was a season of hockey which will be hard to match here in the future.

Considerable talk is being heard that Sherbrooke's first year in senior hockey will be its last. To operate a team such as the one Sherbrooke had this season costs more money than can be taken in through gate receipts at an arena with the capacity of ours.

It is to be hoped that a satisfactory solution to this problem will be reached — and reached soon. Other cities already are reported anxious to have the Sherbrooke franchise; other teams will be after our players.

It will be a discredit to Sherbrooke if we repay the Saints for their fine entertainment, fine sportsmanship and fine publicity by sending them on their way to some other city. The players, coach Dugre, the team's management and the people of Sherbrooke deserve something better than that.

A DISQUIETING QUESTION

In the state where everyone has a number under a national registration plan, where movement from one part of the country to another or even a simple change of address must be reported to the proper authorities without delay, where forms and cards are necessary to get rationed foods, and where even the milkman and the grocer would know if a person were absent from home for more than a few days, how could an individual disappear for three years without the police getting suspicious in short order?

This is the disquieting question troubling thinking Englishmen these days as a result of the gruesome acid bath murders which have received newspaper headlines around the world.

Five people vanished in this amazing series of crimes for periods of from one to three-and-a-half years, but, if the rigid bureaucratic check on the existence of individuals is what it is supposed to be, the murders should have been brought to the attention of Scotland Yard long ago. This is what is irritating Englishmen who are forced to spend a fair portion of their time filling in forms for this and forms for that.

Why did not the milkman notify the food office that Archibald Henderson and his wife, killed a year ago, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald McSwan and their son, slain over three years ago, had stopped taking their milk? After all the allocation of milk theoretically depends on the registration of the consumer. And how did the national registration fall down? Surely someone in authority would have noticed when other people moved into the empty homes of the murdered families and when the McSwans and Hendersons failed to report their departure, as they must in the face of stiff penalties. And what about the income tax authorities? How could they have failed to notice that Henderson, a well-to-do man, was no longer paying his income tax or that McSwan no longer accounted for his stock exchange dealings. And what happened to the grocer, who by law must report when a customer ceases to purchase his ration of fat and cheese and eggs? And why did not the Post Office, which zealously checks radio license renewals, investigate the families when their listening permits expired and were not renewed?

All these questions have gone unanswered. The only conclusion is that restriction of people by governmental cards and permits may be all right in theory, but in practice these forms disappear into the maw of some filing cabinet just as thoroughly as the victims did in the murderer's acid bath.

IMPROVING HERDS

The leaders in the agricultural industry in the Maritimes are deserving of the greatest credit for establishing a high standard in their animals and it has been a source of encouragement that men like Walter Jones, Premier of Prince Edward Island, have led the way in giving a practical exemplification of what quality really means. Beyond a doubt an example of this kind has an ever-widening influence and when there are many producers animated by the same spirit we become conscious of a new influence permeating our agricultural life. This is being felt not only by the senior farmers but it is having a particularly fine influence on the boys and girls of the farms who have organized themselves into clubs and who are now not only producers but are becoming very capable judges.

We must believe that from these influences there will come a higher type of farming in the Maritimes and that along with other developments we may within the course of not more than a decade claim equality with any other part of Canada.

SOVIET INVENTIONS

The official Soviet news agency Tass has cleared up another little scientific matter. It announced the other day that the inventor of the telephone was not a capitalist reactionary in Brantford, Ont., named Alexander Graham Bell, but one of the Russian masses named Pavel Schilling. Pavel, it seems, was getting wrong numbers fifty-five years before Bell even thought of lifting the receiver.

This news may be a bit of a blow to Brantford, but it should be realized that Pavel was not only smart, he was busy as well. According to Tass he also invented the submarine cable and the first system of stringing telegraph wires on poles.

In short Pavel takes his place beside those other Russian celebrities who invented the aeroplane, the electric light, the radio, penicillin and lightning.

The Russians are obviously well on their way toward being the greatest inventors in history or of history.

WHY DO THEY DO IT?

St. Thomas Times-Journal
From now on as the weather becomes warmer, we'll all be seeing more and more of those one-arm drivers who steer with one hand and prop the other out the left window with hand on the roof. The type is already in evidence.

We think people who do this are a menace on the road. They slouch behind the wheel and give the general impression of being sloppily careless about what they are doing, while other drivers on the road are giving full attention to the business of making a good job of their driving. In short, we think it is a smart-aleck, exhibitionist practice.

Furthermore, such drivers make a nuisance of themselves, driving along as they do giving a perpetual hand signal which they don't know whether to believe when they do mean to signal a turn.

MARIJUANA DANGER

Detroit Free Press
Just the other day Robert Mitchell got out of jail after serving a term as a marijuana addict. In keeping with Hollywood's whole debased handling of the Mitchell affair, his release was given the surroundings of a triumphal return and he was put back on his pedestal.

We think there is a direct connection between the movie industry's attitude toward such vicious immorality among its great names and the fact that federal agents have discovered that marijuana is sold and used in Detroit's high schools.

As the movie industry's own box-office analysis shows, the screen's principal worshippers are the young, the inexperienced, the impressionable. If it is going to make heroes out of participants in depravity, it is going to lionize depravity with the individuals. Youth is always imitative.

In the Hollywood view, marijuana smoking appears to be no worse than gum chewing. And, because Hollywood says this is so, we don't doubt that it is believed among a good many youngsters. The influence of the motion-picture world is tremendous, and is often irresponsibly wielded.

SCOLDING MOTHERS

Peterborough Examiner
In our ambition to lurch the other day our ears were assailed by three tirades of scolding. Three different mothers on three different streets were nattering at three different children. We wondered at this rash of ranting. Is it typical of the dog-days of winter, when mothers have too much indoors presence of their offspring and must blow a gasket to relieve the strain?

Perhaps it is a noise of spring, easily overheard when a child and its mother are standing at open doors. Perhaps such scolding goes on day after day in those households, but is usually unheard by passers-by.

A scolding mother is not the noblest work of God. In fact, the three of them rather marred the brightness of our day. We do not know what effect they had on their children's day.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Let the brother of low degree rejoice in that he is exalted: But the rich, in that he is made low: because as the flower of the grass he shall pass away.—James 1:9,10.

There is no sound basis upon which it may be assumed that all poor men are godly and all rich men are evil, no more than it could be assumed that all rich men are good and all poor men are bad.—Norman Peale, D. D.

THE EYE OF THE NEEDLE

WESTMINSTER REPORT

London, April 14.—(C)—Trade unionism, shocked into temporary silence by the government's stamp-out policy on salaries and wages, may make its voice heard through the land during Easter week.

Industry's opinions are expected to be made clear at a series of holiday conferences. One result may be a new wave of wage demands, possibly placing last week's budget policies in jeopardy.

It is estimated that up to 2,000,000 trade unionists are getting ready to knock on the wages door which Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, slammed behind him in his hold-the-line budget address.

Government policy has been generally to keep wages and dividends stabilized at 1947 levels. Last month the trades union congress, which had supported this policy, warned the government that one of two things must happen soon—wages must go up or prices must come down.

Instead, the budget raised some prices and made it plain that pay envelopes are likely to remain thin indefinitely.

The first outcry against this policy came in Parliament. A hushed House heard Mark Hewitson, Labor member for Hull, say that in 122 of Britain's 151 leading industries, weekly pay averages £4 5s ($17).

Hewitson is the national industrial officer of the general municipal workers union, second in importance only to the transport and general workers union. He added: "If this government is going to depress us below the line of safety, then we will fight it as we have fought in the past. Try governments and Tory employers."

The T. U. C. made no official comment on Hewitson's statement. The Congress' influential economic committee meets Wednesday for its first post-mortem on the budget. This meeting will be followed by an interview with Sir Stafford.

FROM THE PEN OF E. T. WRITERS

THEY HANGED HIM

They led him to a hilltop,
All greenly bright with spring,
And on a cross they hung him;
Their everlasting King.
No royal robe they gave him,
His crown was wrought of thorn;
And on a cross they hung him,
Who for their sakes 'was born.
They mocked him and they scourged him;
Derisive words they said;
And on a cross they hung him,
Yet, for their life He bled.
For them, for us, for all men,
He died, to conquer sin.
Still on the cross we hang him,
His love we won't let in.

Lesson Hand

PASSING OPENING BID SHOWS WEAK HAND

You cannot bid every hand in contract bridge according to the book. There are times when you must rely on your own judgment.

In today's hand, for example, South lacks the qualifications for an opening bid. Under the point count system he has only eleven points. If you average the hand out, South is a ten-spot less than average. If you use the quick trick count, he has only two quick tricks. Nevertheless, this is considered a declarer type hand and some players will open it due to the fact that they have both majors.

Let us assume, however, that although this is a declarer type of hand, and you have two biddable majors, you feel that you want to pass it. The next hand passes and your partner opens the bidding with one club. The next hand bids a diamond. Now what should you bid?

You certainly should not bid one heart, as South did in today's hand. East has made a vulnerable overcall. If you bid one heart, your partner, who has a minimum opening bid, cannot try for a game. He has to be satisfied to bury the contract.

When East bids a diamond, you should tell your partner that you have everything but an opening bid. Therefore, your correct bid is two hearts. Now North has a much better picture of the whole hand. He knows you are not afraid of the diamond bid. You have encouraged him to go to game if he has a good sound bid, so you must have either a control in diamonds or a singleton. He can feel sure that the ace of spades has a fit in the South hand. The king of clubs could be wrong, but North is perfectly justified in taking the contract to four hearts.

In the play of the hand declarer trumps the second diamond, goes over to dummy's ace of spades, leads a heart, and when the king goes up, South wins with the ace. The king of spades is cashed and a spade ruff in dummy. Then declarer can ruff a diamond, ruff out his last spade, lead a trump back to his hand and take the club finesse. When the queen of clubs holds, he cashes the ace of clubs, and gives up a club trick, making five odd.

The Record Short Story WOULD-BE DEB

By HOLLIS STARNES

"I'd never have met Paul except for you," said Sue Monroe. "If I can win over his sister and friends now, I'll owe you that too, Mrs. Griffin."

Hannah Griffin, comely gray-haired widow who owned the village drugstore at Silverlake, asked laughingly. "What will I have to do with that?" The pretty red-haired local girl was leaving for New York for the Easter holidays, to visit her fiancé's married sister, Paul Lindsey of the fashionable Summer set had met and fallen in love with Sue, while she worked part time in Griffin's during the rush season.

Paul's father favored the match. "This girl comes of good sturdy stock," he told Hannah. "She'll steady him down, make a home for him, raise a family. These girls of his own crowd are flighty, they don't make good wives. Look at my daughter Madeleine—her life's just a round of cocktail parties and nightclubs. Five years married, and I'm not a grandfather yet!"

But Paul was devoted to his gay sister. She was only two years his senior, and since they'd been motherless from their early teens, a close bond was between them. "Madeleine's just got to like me!" Sue told Hannah earnestly. The two girls had never met, because when Madeleine summured at Silverlake, Sue was a pigtailed school-girl. By nature and upbringing, the pair were as different as night from day.

So instead of looking forward to her first New York visit with joy, Sue had been dreading the ordeal. But now, as she stepped in to say good-by on her way to the train, Hannah saw that the girl looked cheerful, confident.

"After weeks of trying to think of some way to keep me from feeling and acting like a country jay in the city, I had an idea!" She told Hannah. "And that's where you come in again!"

"If I hadn't worked here for you last Summer, I'd never have had a chance to watch the lake set debs, every day when they came in for sundae. I really made a study of their line!" Sue launched into tones and reflections that Hannah could have sworn belonged to one of the lake girls. It could have been Madeleine Lindsey Blair herself.

Hannah clapped her hands. "Sue, you're amazing! I never dreamed you were that good an actress."

"You mean parrot or monkey," Sue grinned. "Anyhow, wish me luck for I'm going to put on my act at Paul's sister's. For his sake I hope to get away with it, and they won't treat me like a country bumpkin, the poor little mouse Paul picked up in a village drugstore!"

Negotiation Over Berlin Is Possible

By

DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press News Analyst.

Let us examine, without undue skepticism, reports that Moscow has been putting out feelers about possible negotiations of the Berlin imbroglio with the western powers.

Developments entitle us to ask whether Russia may have reached the conclusion that her great offensive for the spread of Communism across Europe has come up against an impassable barrier. The time may have arrived for her to pause to consolidate her gains and bring up her communications.

State Secretary Acheson of the United States said in effect yesterday that if the Russians want to talk about lifting the Berlin blockade and starting four-power talks on Germany, the way is open for them to do it.

As far back as March 20th, Eddie Gilmore, AP chief of bureau in Moscow, reported that "some diplomats not directly involved in the four-power dispute over Berlin speculated today there may be a new move to settle that issue." Since then there has been much other speculation along that line, and numerous reports which have sounded all right though lacking confirmation.

What concrete developments are there to encourage the idea that a peace parley isn't outside the range of possibility? Well, there are several things, among which these stand out: Dan de Luce, one of AP's top-flight correspondents, is making a survey of Europe, and he reports that the Marshall Plan has achieved its political purpose of checking Communism.

Even more important is the signing of the Atlantic alliance which consolidates the United States and virtually all western Europe into a solid defensive block. Back of this is the American promise to help provide its allies with the weapons with which to resist aggression from any quarter.

In short it's apparent that the line which Moscow has established through central Europe is the line on which it must stand, at least for the present. That being so, the time has arrived for consolidation.

This would seem to be especially true since Russia has encountered considerable political disaffection in Yugoslavia and Bulgaria. In the case of Yugoslavia, Premier Tito has become the bad lad on the Communist bloc. There also have been signs of discontent elsewhere, notably in Czechoslovakia and Poland.

Thus it would be rather surprising from the standpoint of good generalship, if the Russians didn't pause now. The Russians are mighty capable generals.

However, it shouldn't be thought such a pause would mean that the campaign for world communication was ended or even slackened.

That will continue until either the Red force is spent or it achieves its objectives.

Assembly president Herbert V. Ewart of Australia called plenary meetings of the 58 U. N. members at Flushing Meadow Park for 11 a. m., 3 p. m., and for a night meeting if necessary.

1,500,000th Telephone Was Installed Today

Somewhere in Ontario or Quebec today, the 1,500,000th Bell Telephone was added to the growing system within the two provinces.

The 1,500,000th telephone may be one of the number scheduled to be installed in Sherbrooke today, according to Manager H. E. Walker.

Reviewing the growth of the Bell facilities in the post-war period, half a million telephones have gone into service since the beginning of 1945, which is equal to the increase for the 21-year period from 1923 to 1944. The million and a quarter mark was reached in August, 1947, and installation has proceeded at a record pace ever since. Each month 12,000 new telephones are being installed to meet the continuing high demand. In the first three months of this year the system has added 37,000 telephones.

The backlog of applications for service remains high with 82,500 waiting in Ontario and Quebec. Here in Sherbrooke there are 1,400 orders to be filled, Mr. Walker said. Meantime, the company's vast construction program continues apace to further expand and improve the service.

last year, was to check Communism. This has been done.

The hard-core of Communism in such countries as France and Italy has not been cut back, but it has not grown. In other countries, like Norway and Denmark, fellow-travelers have been forsaking the Moscow party line.

The immediate economic purpose of E.R.P. was to sustain the post-war recovery drive of western Europe. Now western Europe's recovery is apparently progressing almost twice as fast now as it did after the First World War.

Government Hotel Termed Expensive In Commons Talk

By JAMES MCCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, April 14.—Each guest who stays at the government's own nameless hotel in exclusive Mayfair costs the country £12 ($48) daily.

An attentive Commons recently heard Glenvil Hall, financial secretary to the treasury, explain that he called the "government hospitality centre" entertained 90 guests from May 3 to Dec. 31, 1948. In this time, accommodation, food, cigars and cigarettes cost £12,600, an average of £5.10 a guest, to which must be added £6.10 each for overhead.

Oliver Stanley, former Conservative colonial secretary, asked if government guests could not be entertained at half the cost in ordinary hotels.

Hall said hotel space had been scarce in recent years and the hospitality centre costs were "not vast in excess" of hotel charges. Britain was a great country and had to accommodate distinguished guests in a proper manner.

William Teeling, Conservative, Brighton, said he could give the names of government guests who felt they would have been better treated at a hotel, and E. H. Keeling, Conservative, Twickenham, said guests at the hospitality centre had felt they were there because the government wanted to keep an eye on them.

Not Fully Occupied

After the Commons discussion, London hotels said they could have accommodated guests for half the price charged by the government centre.

Reporters who visited the centre at 2 Park Street, Mayfair, found what the Daily Mail called "the usual life of inactivity."

Of the 60 suites, only 12 were occupied and never more than 20 have held guests at one time in the last four months.

There is a staff of 55 and some staff members complained they were busy only when government hospitality banquets were arranged at the centre.

The eight-story building was converted to its present purpose early last year. The purpose was to provide government guests, like some of the Dominions' staffs here for the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference last year, and the amenities they would have in a private house.

Apart from these visitors who sign "chits" for everything they order and leave it to the government to pay, the centre accommodates business men and others with government backing who have trouble in finding hotel rooms. They pay for everything at prices slightly lower than those at top-class hotels.

Paul Pleiger, Ruhr coal expert who played a leading role in Nazi war production, got 15 years on counts six and eight.

Hans Kehrl, who once headed the war production office was sentenced to 15 years on counts five, six, seven and eight.

The last four defendants to be sentenced were absent from the courtroom because of illness.

Gustav Steengracht von Mayland, bright young man of the foreign office who succeeded Weizsaecker as state secretary, got a seven-year sentence on counts three and five. He is in hospital with typhoid fever.

A 10-year sentence was passed on Wilhelm Keppeler, Hitler's first economic adviser and organizer of the "circle of friends" of Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler. Keppeler, also in hospital with suspected typhoid, was convicted on counts one, five, six and eight.

The court ruled Wilhelm Stuckart was so ill that any sentence against him would amount to the death penalty, so no sentence was given in addition to the four years he already has been in prison awaiting trial.

He had been convicted on counts five, six and eight.

Walter Schellenberg, chief of S.S. intelligence, was sentenced to six years on counts five and eight.

strangers are questioned to see if they have sufficient food and the appropriate clothing for trips into the far areas, Constable Romain said.

In speaking of the Alaska Highway, Constable Romain stressed the value of this highway, which was built primarily because of danger in coastal waters during the war. This highway linked the north with the south when water transportation was endangered.

In conclusion, Constable Romain said that there is uncertainty in every mind as to what is going to happen in the north. All eyes are focussed here as the strategic position of the north causes interest to many nations in the world. Regardless of what may happen, the R.C.M.P. will remain there as protection for the strong and weak, for better or worse, and through this service, the R.C.M.P. are making the frontiers safe.

The Canadian Constructor, C. N. S. ship involved in last week's riotous Halifax outbreak, reached Montreal yesterday morning by S. I. U. members and an extra crew of 30 aboard. She docked without incident, in full view of C. S. U. picketers.

Meantime a second court injunction ended the second sit-in by C. S. U. men within a week in the Montreal City left quietly after the order was served. Earlier, the crew of the Mont Alta yielded to a court order after a five-day sit-in.

There was speculation along the waterfront, heavily-patrolled by police, that the extra men brought in on the Canadian Constructor, possibly would be placed aboard the Mont Alta, or the Lady Nelson, now en route to Montreal with a C. S. U. crew.

In Ottawa yesterday, government legal experts said prosecution of Canadian seamen for illegal striking in Liverpool, England, could have been undertaken under provisions of the Canada ship, ng act. Twenty seamen were sentenced to terms of one and two months for disobeying commands of the captain of the Canadian freighter Seaboard Ranger.

In Saint John, N.B., a C. S. U. crew walked off the freighter Ottawa valley, leaving a three-man security watch aboard. The crew was paid off and a picket line was set up at the pier.

Home And School Associations To Have Conference

Montreal, April 14.—Parents of school children will get an opportunity to hear the latest developments on traffic safety and to air their views too, when a panel discussion on this subject is held during the second annual spring conference of the Quebec Federation of Home and School Associations, in Montreal, on April 29 and 30.

Discussion of the urgent problem of traffic will be led by E.

Harris, of Montreal, organizer of the Western Traffic Safety Council, under the title "Traffic Safety Is Everybody's Business." Other panels scheduled for the Saturday afternoon include "Family Recreation," led by C. L. Brownlee, community standards committee; "Mental Health in School Children," led by Dr. Baruch Silverman, head of the Mental Hygiene Institute, Montreal; and "The Child in The Home, the School and the Community," under the chairmanship of Mrs. H. Woodman.

A separate panel will deal with parent education; Mrs. T. B. Hughes and Mrs. Hamilton Marshall will lead the discussion.

These and other features of the spring conference are expected to bring close to 350 delegates from Home and School Associations

Nesting Birds Baffle Experts In New Zealand

By J. C. GRAHAM

Auckland, N.Z., April 14.—If anyone knows a sure way to keep birds at a distance, the state hydro-electric department in New Zealand would be very glad to know of it. Birds nesting in sub-station structures are a serious cause of power failures.

So far all efforts to end the nuisance have failed. Ornithologists, scientists, Chinese market gardeners, bird psychologists and purely amateur well-wishers have all offered remedies, but so far without a practicable solution.

An ornithologist suggested a stuffed owl in a glass case might scare away the birds. The theory was that the owl was the natural enemy of small birds which instinctively avoided it. A trial dispensed of this theory. Apparently birds know a dead owl when they see one.

Reports of the use in the United States of super-sonic waves for scaring birds led to the building of a super-sonic generator. It proved equally ineffective.

Then it was noted that Chinese market gardeners used a device consisting of old sacks in which fire crackers were dispersed. The sacks were set alight and smouldered slowly, setting off the crackers and frightening the birds. The idea was not practicable among high-voltage electric wires, but a variation was tried.

Tried Bell
A large electric bell was set up and connected with a mechanism which made it peal at irregular intervals. The birds soon got used to this and it was abandoned after a sparrow was seen completely ignoring it at a distance of four feet. Besides, people in nearby houses complained of the noise.

The next plan was to smear like-ly perches with a sticky substance. It annoyed the birds for a while but soon formed a film on which they perched quite happily.

Then people in the United States heard of the difficulty and started sending ideas. A woman in St. Louis, Missouri, described how she kept cheesecloths filled with moth-balls on her porch and was never bothered with birds again. A clergyman quoted other people who had used this remedy and passed it on as a contribution to the good neighbor policy.

A teacher in Missouri suggested "scented oil, perhaps crude oil, hydrogen sulphide or sulphur dioxide. He said a Missouri town was troubled with a flock of 10,000 blackbirds which nested in a group of trees in the centre of town. They defied all attempts to dislodge them until a garage stored greasy second-hand machinery under the trees.

The department is trying out several of the proposals but doubts if any will be suitable for use in the large areas covered by modern outdoor sub-stations. It is still looking for a sticky, smelly, noisy, unobtrusive, portable or fearsome surprise for its feathered friends that is simple, cheap and effective and will not bring protests from nearby residents.

Mineral Industry To Be Discussed At Convention

The rapid advance of Canada's mineral industry during recent years is well marked by the huge plants that have been built up at strategic points from coast to coast. A number of these will be described at the annual convention of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, in Montreal, on April 25-27.

During the war aluminum became one of our chief base metals and contrary to expectation, the plants are again producing to the utmost. G. M. Mason will present a paper on "The Production of Aluminum in Canada." The sister metal magnesium is rapidly making a place for itself among the light metals. Two papers will be devoted to features of its use. Industrial uses of zirconium, a metal that still can be accounted comparatively rare, will be discussed.

The production and uses of the radioactive minerals will occupy a prominent place on the program. Canadians are taking a responsible part in finding civilian uses for the material that can, in case of necessity, be used for atomic bombs. Prominent among the peace-time products are radioactive tracers. Some of their uses will be discussed.

One of the oldest, and still one of the most important mining districts in this country is the asbestos area of Quebec. Novel features of the extraction of asbestos from the rock will be the subject of one of the papers. In a much newer Quebec mining camp near Val d'Or is the East Sullivan copper-gold mine, whose new-model concrete headframe will be described. There will be many other important papers in the varied three-day program.

Baseball Games Holiday Hobby For Magistrate

St. Boniface, Man., April 14.—Twenty-five years on the bench undoubtedly have sharpened the judicial perception of Dr. Henri Lacerte, police magistrate here, nor have they dulled his enthusiasm for baseball.

Dr. Lacerte has his own special formula for a good holiday. He usually travels east every year to Montreal, where he has five brothers and a sister. But he makes sure he goes by way of cities in the United States where he can see ball games on the way.

In Cleveland last summer with his wife and 14-year-old son Pierre for only five days, he managed to take in four baseball games.

The magistrate, who came west on doctor's advice in 1915, practised law until he joined the army in 1917. Returning to Winnipeg in 1919, he resumed practice until 1924.

In March of that year, he was called to the bench. He recalls his first case was a speeding charge.

Imposed Fine
"I remember I fined the man $10, gave him a terrible tongue-lashing and made him pay the costs," Dr. Lacerte chuckled.

"Those were the days of prohibition in the province, and we had a great number of liquor cases every day in police court. Six months after the new system came in, liquor cases dropped to practically nothing."

Although the doctor who advised him to go west doubted if he would live longer than two years, the magistrate has been in hospital only once since he came to Winnipeg. That was 34 years ago.

One morning, in police court, Dr. Lacerte was stricken with acute appendicitis. He was on the operating table within a couple of hours. Otherwise, his health has been good since coming west.

A cousin of Maurice Duplessis, Premier of Quebec, Dr. Lacerte was awarded the Grande Médaille d'Or by the French government for his "contributions to Manitoba's French-Canadian culture."

Despite the many baseball games he has seen, Dr. Lacerte has never seen a World Series game.

"If the Cubs win out this year, maybe I'll see some," he said hopefully.

MODERN SCIENCE AIDS FISHERMEN

Nanaimo, B.C., April 14.—A detailed and scientific "fish story" will stand the test of 700 top piscatorial experts at the United Nations World Science Conference at Lake Success Aug. 17.

The "fish story" is the work of Dr. J. L. Hart of the Pacific Biological station here. His paper, "Technological Advances in Fishing Methods," has been released for study by the experts—22 of whom are Canadians—and will form a basis for a part of their discussion on methods of boosting living standards.

Dr. Hart says radio, telephone, echo sounders, radar and direction finders are putting more fish on the world's dinner tables than ever before.

Use of complicated equipment, has increased the qualifications needed by the modern fisherman, but better returns and the better life aboard ship make up for the effort required.

Canadian Cancer Society Outlines Program

The Canadian Cancer Society today made public its budget for the coming year and outlined how it plans to spend the $223,000 it expects to collect throughout Quebec province during the current financial campaign.

The nation-wide drive, which will last through to the end of the month, has a Dominion objective of $1,000,000. The money will be used to further an extensive program of research, public education and direct aid to cancer sufferers.

Included in the Quebec budget is a $15,000 item covering the amount set aside for contingencies and possible project developments, including the balance of the grant-in-aid to the Sherbrooke Tumor Clinic.

The budget was headed by the Quebec division's research program, which calls for an outlay of $70,000. This is the proportion of the budget of the National Cancer Institute for research bursaries and fellowships distributed on a carefully selected basis, screened by the Medical Advisory Board, National Research Council. The $70,000 will be allotted within the province of Quebec.

The Quebec educational program, including costs of literature, films, meetings, mail campaigns, publicity, travelling and supervision, will require $36,000.

The budget also listed the following items: national education and co-ordination of Dominion-wide cancer activities, $14,000; aid to cancer sufferers program, province wide free cancer dressing service, home care service and supplies for cancer sufferers, $30,000; membership and provincial organization, including literature, membership records, news service, organization and supervision of branches, $17,000; cost of appeal, $3,000; general administration, salaries, rent, equipment, stationery and office supplies, $13,000; operating reserve, the amount for carry-over from flourish. "If successful the idea will be extended," one said.

Chronic Visitor

Self-Invited Guest Wastes Housewife's Time

Dear Miss Dix: Why, oh why, do so many women come uninvited into our homes and sit for hours at a time just talking twaddle? One of my neighbors comes in as early as 8 o'clock in the morning and stays regularly until 1 o'clock. Some days she doesn't go home until after 5. I am so fed up with her that I am almost at the point of committing murder.

I have worked hard all my life and reared a family, and there are times when I just want to be alone. Maybe these women who can't bear to be by themselves for a minute are lonesome; but I have work to do and, anyway, I am no entertainment committee. I've gotten to the point where I can't take company any more.

For pity's sake tell me what I can do about it.

WORRIED NEIGHBOR.

Answer: Of all the pests in the world there is none that is a greater affliction than the Chronic Visitor, yet none is so common and none so hard to get rid of. Compared to the woman who virtually camps in your house and who is always underfoot, an influx of rats or fleas or the itch or flu, is a pleasing diversion.

Just how anyone gets to be one of these pests is more or less of a mystery, because at first sight the Chronic Visitor seems a harmless creature who will attend to her business and let you attend to yours. It is only after she has settled down on you and preempted your best chair and started on her monologue that you realize that you are enslaved for life.

NO MERCY.

For the self-invited guest has no mercy. It does not matter to her that you've got your housekeeping to do, your groceries to buy, the baby to bathe, dress and feed, the children to get off to school. Or that you want to read a new book, see a good movie or take a ride. She just sits and sits and sits and talks and talks, until nothing but the grace of God keeps you from choking her.

Why the Chronic Visitor doesn't get a job, go in for a career or even have twins if she really wants something to occupy her time, nobody knows. She just talks and, like the hero in the Bible, she slays her enemies with the jawbone of an ass.

Maybe God can forgive the woman with the visiting complex, but her friends never do.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have been married for 15 years to a man who has a dual personality. Most of the time he is a perfect husband, kind, generous, lovable; but about once a year he reverts to his other personality. He has a spell which usually lasts five or six weeks. During this time he drinks, is cruel and mean, does everything he can to hurt me and act as though he hates me. But after he gets over his bout, he is ashamed and can't be nice enough to me.

His conduct has made me a nervous, unhappy woman. I don't want to lose all my love for my husband, but I am afraid that many more of these tantrums will make me hate him. What can I do? We have one child.

SUE.

Answer: When you think of all the mean, selfish, cantankerous husbands you know who are hell to live with all of the time, it doesn't seem that the wife who has a husband who is tender and kind and pleasant most of the time is getting such a bad break. But obviously your husband has some mental trouble that makes him act as he does, and you should lose no time in putting him under the care of some good psychiatrist.

If you can't persuade him to do that, your next-best move is to pack up your bag. Take your child and go to some place where you will not have to endure the agony of seeing your husband go through the Dr. Jekyll-and-Mr. Hyde transformation.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am a woman 50 years old, with little money left after 30 years of being a widow. Also I am very bored with having nothing to do. The only thing I know how to do is housework, and I love it. I would like to get in some nice family where I could get a good job. Life would be more interesting to me if I had some occupation.

A WIDOW.

Answer: You are quite right in thinking that you would be much happier if you had something definite to do, instead of just sitting sucking your thumbs. Idleness is not only the devil's workshop, but also the most depressing thing that a lone woman ever had to deal with.

My advice to you is to put your pride in your pocket and to get a job in some nice household where you will be made one of the family.

The Record will be pleased to receive any letters to this Dorothy Dix column. These will be forwarded to Miss Dix who will answer them as quickly as possible.

Public Speaking Contest Staged By B. & P. W. Club

Miss Joyce Allen, pupil in grade XI, Lennoxville High School, was the winner of the prize at the annual public speaking contest held at the MacKinnon Memorial Building, Monday evening, under the auspices of the Business and Professional Women's Club.

Miss Margaret Haight, president of the club, welcomed the contestants, the judges and the many guests, among whom were Mr. Wright W. Gibson, principal of the Sherbrooke High School, and Mrs. Gibson, and Mrs. Everett Denison, wife of the principal of the Lennoxville High School, who was unable to attend. Miss Haight introduced Miss Florine Mullins, who acted as chairman for the program.

The judges were Mrs. R. C. Tait, Mrs. Lee Watson and Miss Margaret Doherty.

The speakers were presented by the chairman in the following sequence: Miss Joyce Allen, who had chosen for her subject, "Canada or Communism." Miss Allen visualized the conditions in Canada in 1955, should the communists succeed in achieving their objective. She vividly described the situation as being a desolate one. Her timely topic, delivery and general pleasing manner won for Miss Allen the prize.

Miss Jean Vaughan, also a pupil of the same school and same grade, spoke on "Consolidated vs. Rural Schools." Miss Vaughan very emphatically drew comparisons in favor of the Consolidated School, citing disadvantages which had affected her own life in the rural school and by contrast pointed out advantages available to students in the Consolidated school.

Miss Shirley Travidsky, student in Grade X, Sherbrooke High School, very eloquently expressed her views on "Anti-Semitism," basing her opinions on the fact that we are all children of God and therefore one nation is not superior to another. Miss Travidsky drew attention to unpleasant situations arising from a more narrow viewpoint.

Miss Jane Quintin, pupil in Grade IX, Sherbrooke High School, entertained her audience on the humorous topic, "Lap Food and Why Men Hate It." She convincingly portrayed the embarrassment suffered by the chivalrous man making a desperate effort to balance his plate of food and cup of coffee, endeavoring, all the while to gallantly light a cigaret for friends.

of the "gentler" sex. Jane Quintin's address provoked hearty laughter from her listeners.

Following the deliberations of the judges, Mrs. Tait commented on the merits of the four speakers, and stated the task of deciding on the winner was indeed a difficult one. The decision, however, was in favor of Miss Joyce Allen.

The prize, a pen and pencil set, was presented to Miss Allen, by Miss Mullins, who congratulated her on her laurels. The chairman also congratulated and thanked Miss Vaughan, Miss Travidsky and Miss Quintin, for participating in the contest which had provided an evening of unusual interest in the year's program of the B. & P. W. Club. Miss Mullins thanked the judges who had so kindly consented to act; Miss Haight, the president, and Miss Bessie Bryce, who had assisted her in the arrangement of the program.

Previous to their entering the room, Miss Bessie Mifford, on behalf of the club, pinned a corsage on each of the young ladies taking part in the contest.

Following the entertainment refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Canada's Cultural Development Is Amazing To Argentine Ambassador

By FRED KERNER

Canadian Press Staff Writer
New York, April 14.—Canada's cultural development amazes Antillio Garcia Mellit, newly-appointed ambassador to the Dominion from Argentina.

The 47-year-old diplomat, whose task will embody inter-country relationships principally in the field of trade, said in an interview that he has learned of Canada's culture from W. F. Chipman, Canadian ambassador to the Argentine, has been a source of constant wonderment to him.

"My interest in the culture is great because of the work I have been doing for the last three years," he said in Spanish. "Now I will be able to learn more about it first hand and perhaps learn from it to widen the scope of Argentinian culture."

Millet, who succeeds Dr. Juan Carlos Rodriguez, until recently was director of the department of culture of Argentinian foreign affairs department.

A newspaper man and author of note in his own country, he said both he and his wife hope they will master the English language within a few months.

The Peron government, he said, hopes to increase its relationships with Canada—especially in respect to the trade between the two countries. Extra staff has been appointed to the embassy at Ottawa with this in view.

But economies notwithstanding, culture is going to occupy a lot of Mellit's time, he said. Interest in learning about other peoples has resulted in the appointment of cultural attaches to Argentina's embassies all over the world.

He said his instructions from the Argentine government were that in her relationship with Canada, Argentina hopes no problems will arise. The instructions added, he said, that should there ever be any problem it is to be worked out as quickly as possible.

Antique Cars Opera Tenor's Special Hobby

By GEORGE RONALD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, April 14.—James Melton talks about Grieg and Debussy, about the "lousy, stinking, no-good time-spot" some radio friend of his has been given—and about automobiles. Mostly automobiles.

This black-haired, 44-year-old concert and opera tenor, whose name is synonymous with "Stanley Steamer," is a big, smiling, boy-at-heart who'd sooner cock an ear to the purr of a Rolls Royce than dig into a violin.

Pursuit of a boyhood ambition—plus the cash dividends his voice has paid—made Melton the owner of the world's biggest private collection of antique cars. He has 110.

He buys 'em, redesigns 'em, rebuilds 'em, and has 'em on display in the Melton Museum at Norwalk, Conn. It's a thriving business.

"Fifty thousand people have dropped in for a look around since we opened the place last fall," he said in an interview. "Golly, we'll probably have 100,000 or 150,000 by the end of 1949."

Between gulps of a shrimp cocktail, Melton was telling about a visit to Canada. He turned abruptly to his travel manager.

"By the way"—with a wave of a fork—"I bought another Rolls the other day. A 12-cylinder job—'Phantom III.' Drove her about two blocks and paid for it. Sure got a belt outa that baby!"

"Well, sir," Melton continued, "I cabled London right away for the leather that little old Rolls should have. Then I'm going to do a two-tone paint job. Wait 'til you see her!"

A minute later, Melton had his wallet out. A couple of pictures of his pretty, three-year-old daughter, Margo.

"Built a little electric car for her"—he had pictures of the car, too—"exact replica of the one that won the Indianapolis speedway one year."

And, speaking of replicas, that diamond-and-platinum stickpin in his lapel—that was Diamond Jim Brady's.

"Picked it up at a sale once and always wear it. It's locomotive, first American car to win the Vanderbilt cup race. That was 1905. See how the wheels go round?"

Favorite song? That's easy—the one I'm singing at the moment.

"Well, right now, I'm looking for a pre-1912 Rolls Royce limousine. Any pre-1912 Rolls but real; and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Taylor, of Huntingville, were callers of Mr. and Mrs. John Campbell.

Mrs. John Campbell was in Sherbrooke to see her little grandson, Brian Marsh, in the Hotel Dieu Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Marsh and little Nancy, of West Bolton, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Campbell en route to visit their son in Sherbrooke.

PAINTINGS EXHIBITED

Mrs. Margot Moberly-Perrin of Toronto and Old Lyme, Conn., whose paintings of African natives are now being exhibited in the Museum of Natural History at New York, thinks Darkest Africa is a colorful place. During the past eight years she has travelled 150,000 miles there studying its population. To her African natives are "the world's most perfect gentlemen." (CP Photo).

OBITUARIES

MRS. JUDSON IBY, OF CLARENCEVILLE

Clarenceville, April 14.—Mrs. Judson Iby passed away suddenly in the hospital in St. Johns, on Tuesday noon, March 22. While she had been in failing health for several years, she seemed much improved when Mr. Iby visited her the morning she died, and was looking forward to an early return to her home.

Josephine Eleanor Adams was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Adams and was born on a farm near Clarenceville.

Besides her husband she is survived by a half-sister and half brother, Emma, Mrs. Elgin Sriver, of Minneapolis, Minn., U.S.A., and Mr. Reed Derrick, of Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.

She was married to Judson Iby and they lived for many years on their farm near Alburg, Vt., retiring several years ago to their home in Clarenceville.

The deceased was active in church and social life as long as her health permitted and leaves a wide circle of staunch friends by whom she will be sadly missed.

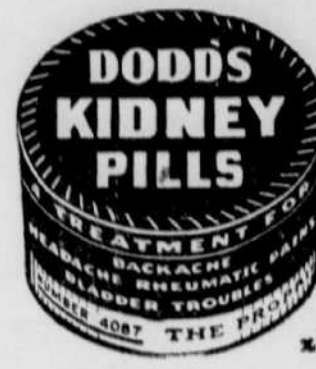

Funeral services were under the direction of undertaker A. C. Collins and were conducted in the United Church by the Rev. Mr. R. Burman. The choir sang "There'll Be No Light There" as an anthem with Mrs. C. Derrick, at the organ.

Burial was made in the Union Cemetery.

Those attending the services from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lodge and Miss Verna Lodge, of Bedford; Mr. and Mrs. William Fairfield, of Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. Donald Derrick, of St. Albans, Vt. Sincerest sympathy is extended to Mr. Iby and relatives by a wide circle of friends.

Experts In Many Fields Heard At Career Day Conference At Knowlton

Knowlton, April 14.—Specialists in many fields in which young people may seek a career were heard during a "career day" conference held at the Knowlton composite High School last Saturday.

The conference was sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Montreal through the co-operation of the Waterloo branch of the club. The committee, with assistance from A. H. McFarlane, student counselor at Sir George Williams College, Montreal.

Details were arranged by W. W. McCutcheon of Knowlton High School and about 150 high school students from Magog, Waterloo, Sutton, Mansonville, Bedford and Knowlton attended.

Robert Flood, of the Waterloo Kiwanis Club, presided over the morning session. In his opening remarks he stressed the fact that education in our ordinary schools prepares the young people for many vocations and he emphasized the need for bilingualism for a successful career.

The meeting was then turned over to Mr. McFarlane, who spoke on the topic "Vocations in General."

Mr. McFarlane recommended the following points be considered in the choice of a career: Ability—performance in high school subjects is as good an indication as any for those considering a course at a university; inclination—the young person should consider what he prefers to do and the choice of occupation wherein his ability lies; personality—the qualities he has for co-operation with his associates; motivation—the driving force there is behind his inclinations; background—how he has been fitted by his environment to adapt himself to changed conditions.

The afternoon session was divided into groups according to the various interests. Miss Ethel Cook, R.N., of the Nursing Association of Montreal, described opportunities for service in the nursing profession. She warned that this is not a career for slackers.

"Food Distribution" was dealt with by Hartland K. McKeown of Roberts McKeown, food brokers of Montreal. A new insight was given regarding the methods of the distribution of canned foods, and the many jobs connected with the industry.

Opportunities for careers in "Salesmanship" were explained by John Court of Macdonald Plastics, Waterloo.

Dr. Jeffries, Professor of Education at the University of Bishop's College, had as his topic, "Teaching as a Career." He outlined the requisites in scholastic preparation for the three types of diplomas obtainable in the Province of Quebec, as well as the personal qualities and attitudes required for the profession of teaching. He reminded his listeners of the urgent need for qualified and efficient teachers.

An interesting and informative talk was given by J. H. Bussiere, assistant commercial manager of the Southern Canada Power Company at Waterloo, on the vast field of service being accomplished by that company throughout the Eastern Townships, and the opportunities for advancement.

Types of occupations in the mechanical trades were explained by M. S. Hayes of Rudel Manufacturing Company and by R. S. Logan of Accessories Manufacturers, Limited, of Montreal.

"Railroading," with its opportunities for employment and advancement, was the subject of G. F. Walsh, supervisor of employment bureau, Canadian Pacific Railway, Montreal.

Describing the work of a laboratory technician, Dr. Burton Wasson, chief chemist of the Charles Frost Laboratories, Limited, of Montreal, outlined the nature of the work, the positions available to young men from high schools or to those with more specialized training. He advised his listeners to consider the choice of work to which they were adapted and to have hobbies for sparetime occupation.

Rabbit Industry Expands Rapidly On Pacific Coast

By FRANK FRAWLEY
Los Angeles, April 14.—(AP)—Rabbits, contrary to popular belief, are not raised for the Easter season.

On the word of the men who buy and distribute rabbits for the United States market there isn't any "Easter Bunny." He went out with high button shoes.

Many states prohibit the sale of "Easter Bunnies," the cute, downy little creatures about three or four weeks old. The reason: children do not know how to handle them; they shouldn't be handled, and the adult who would purchase them for children wouldn't know how to feed them. Organizations against cruelty to animals helped frame the laws.

Any figures pertaining to rabbits are likely to be erroneous, but it is safe to say that more rabbits live and die—at an early age—in Southern California than in all the rest of the United States combined.

The rabbit industry is a big industry and it is getting bigger every day—thanks to the rabbits. In 1947 (the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce says) there were 6,392,000 rabbits produced in this country with a money value to the grower of $5,163,000. They are still struggling with the 1948 figures.

Robert Dubbell, field production manager for Herman Polphrey, who shipped more than 300,000 rabbits to all the States and Hawaii and the Canal Zone last year, says 75 per cent of the country's rabbits have been grown here, "but the industry is expanding, and it is spreading out by leaps and bounds (naturally) in certain other sections of the nation."

Co-operative Animal

Los Angeles is about the only place, Dubbell says, where you can order 5,000 rabbits and get them delivered at once. It seems that a word to the rabbit is sufficient. He's a most co-operative creature, easy to raise, is relatively free from disease, is a table delicacy and his fur keeps lots of garment makers busy in New York.

Coney, Lapin and other furs that go into minky's coat come off a rabbit's back. The common, table variety of rabbit right now is bringing more over the butcher's counter, than his competitor on the scales, the chicken.

Rabbit fur is used extensively in the hat manufacturing business. Top quality furs are made of rabbit hair, and these come from the common New Zealand type of rabbit or the later-developed Californian. The Angora rabbit represents an infinitesimal percentage in the industry, but its fur is clipped frequently for long hair. It is not generally raised for eating purposes, and lives one, two or three years.

The New Zealand or Californian has a short, active life. Ninety-nine per cent are killed by the time they are 12 weeks old. Thus they reach the market when the meat is tender. Growers insist there is less waste and more meat, pound for pound, in rabbit than in a chicken, and that the protein quantity is greater.

The hides all reach the New York market for women's coats, men's hats, for felt, and for a number of other purposes. Some cloths now have a percentage of rabbit fur that makes for softness and wearing quality.

Southern California's ordinarily mild, even climate is favorable for rabbit raising. Dubbell says, although the recently-departed winter that brought sub-freezing temperatures and some snowfall caught many growers unprepared and several hundred thousand young rabbits were frozen.

The talk on the Armed Services as a career Merton Tyler, vice-principal of the Knowlton Composite High School outlined the various phases of army life, its advantages and disadvantages. Hartland McKeown spoke regarding the opportunities offered by the Air Force—of the spirit of comradeship and of co-operation among the members of the crews. Plan For Spring Farm Work, Says Magog Agronome

"We can say with certainty that the farm work done between the first of April and the beginning of June is the most important of the year," M. J. H. Bruneau, of Magog, Agronome of Stanstead County, told a radio audience last Monday afternoon. "For this reason it should not be done lightly, but only according to a carefully made program so as to insure the maximum yield from the field crops."

The radio broadcast, over which Mr. Bruneau spoke, was sponsored by the agronomes of Sherbrooke district. Following through with his subject, the agronomist informed the farmers that it would be advisable if they had not already done so during the winter, to make a cultural plan and to determine immediately the acreage to be sown in feed crops, cereals, forage crops, potatoes, and to decide about the acreage to be left in clover, timothy or common hay so as to have an idea of the crops to be expected in the fall by figuring on a normal year's production.

"This will enable you to determine very closely the number of heads of cattle that you shall be able to feed during the next wintering season. Once this is done, you must afterward, make a list of the varieties of seed that will be required for the spring sowing. This choice must be made with every possible precaution because it might mean a difference of many dollars in the yield of crops. I would advise you very strongly to follow up the recommendations of the Provincial seed board, which are available in a leaflet distributed by every agronomist's office," Mr. Bruneau stated.

"After making the cultural plan

When They Spill The Beans In China—It's Serious

Children and housewives scrambling for beans spilled by a passing truck onto a Shanghai street point up the value placed on food in strife-ridden China. with the list of varieties of seeds to be purchased, and also the material necessary for the disinfection, the farmer shall then see to it that the soils which will receive that seed shall be in the best possible condition. To accomplish this purpose, the first point to be considered is the drainage. Everybody knows of course, that it is impossible to have a successful crop from a soil that is not well drained, and furthermore, the applications of lime, manure, and chemical fertilizers are sure to be a net loss on a soil soaking in water. Consequently, before making any expenses for the fertilization of a soil, we should first, correct the drainage so that even during rainy weather, the surplus water may flow freely and rapidly, and so that the free water of the soil does not come to more than 12" to 15" from the surface," he explained.

Speaking on the fertilizer problem, the agronomist stated that after the soil has been well drained, it should then be tested for acidity. If the soil is acid, it is very important to neutralize this acidity by making the necessary lime applications, since chemical fertilizers and manure applications on these soils cannot give the full result expected if the soil was not acid. Bacterial life is almost non-existent in these soils.

"The farmer—must make sure to have the formulas best suited to the crop and the type of soil on which it will be sown. For instance, we know that the 2-12-6 is a very good fertilizer for the grain, but it might not be the best for certain types of soil. This is why it will be recommendable to use the 2-12-6 formula on light soils, on cereals not seeded down in grass, and the 2-12-6, for the same crop on heavy soils. For the grain crops seeded down in grass, we should use with preference the 1-12-6 formula on light soils, and the 2-16-6 on heavy soils. In the case of heavy soils, rich in nitrogen and organic matter, an application of 20 per cent superphosphate will give the best results; whereas, in the heavy soils that are poor in nitrogen and organic matter, the best result can be reached by using the 3-18-0 formula," Mr. Bruneau advised.

For the ordinary loam, rich in nitrogen with a natural tendency to lodging, it would be advisable to use the 0-14-7.

"As far as the quantity of fertilizers to apply on grain is concerned, it may vary from 375 lbs. to 500 lbs. per acre.

"Once the farmer knows exactly his spring requirements in fertilizers, he must order those fertilizers without delay, in order to obtain the formulas best suited to his needs. If possible, do not let the merchant influence your de-

Princess Margaret Is Fashion Leader

By MURIEL NARRAWAY .. Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, April 14. — If the King's illness had not cancelled the Australian tour, Princess Margaret's clothes would have been front-page news.

For the first time her wardrobe would have been her own choice—her clothes for the South African tour were chosen by the Queen. At 18 the five-foot two-inch Princess Margaret is regarded as a teen-age fashion leader. Her dress sense is held to be better than Princess Elizabeth's and she is certainly fonder of clothes. But until now, she has had little chance to assert herself. The Australian tour would have been her first real chance and its cancellation is a real disappointment.

Clothes for the tour had to be cancelled, but those already completed the princess was allowed to keep. Examples are:

A Molyneux ball gown of ice-blue gossamer lace with floral design in silver thread, over a matching tulle underskirt, has wide skirt, neat waist, lightly-boned bodice and off-the-shoulder neckline with deep fichu.

Favored by Princess, this wide fichu neckline has become a favorite with the princess and is repeated in heavy brocade—the hardness of the brocade neckline broken by an underpiece of softer draping with floral decoration.

A dance frock in pale pink organdy with large skirt decorated by large shaggy roses has its fichu neckline circles completely by an edge-to-edge row of roses.

In day dresses Margaret prefers mid-calf length and the slope-shoulder line with sleeves cut in one with the bodice. Finest wool crepe is used for two dresses she wears this spring. One has tie-neck, full skirt with panel knife pleating; the other, plain round neck, very full swing skirt with a minutely pleated frill added at three-quarter length.

The strongest color in her wardrobe is the coral shantung frock with the neck, button front and fully pleated skirt. This she is keeping for summer to be worn with a matching coat of fine wool.

For some time now the Queen and Princesses have been wearing platform-soled, ankle-strap shoes. And although these are "out" as far as the fashion world is concerned, Princess Margaret is still wearing them with peep-toe and sling-back (size 3 1/2).

Her latest shoes are brown suede with closed heels and thin soles.

Winnipeg, April 14.—Ban the clerical dog collar? "Yes," says Rev. Archie Markby of London, England. "It is an oddity, and makes people think vicars are weeds."

"No," say representative clergymen of this city. "Why be ashamed of wearing the uniform of the church?"

Said Mr. Markby: "It's time we found another symbol. We have to move with the times."

Said Rev. J. H. Oriel of St. John's Cathedral here: "I think the collar is an identifying mark for those people who feel they may need a minister."

Rev. Canon William Askey, All Saints' Anglican Church: "Part of the uniform of a priest. It shouldn't be abolished."

Rev. D. G. Carlson, Tabernacle Baptist Church: "A useful symbol. A man should identify himself as a clergyman in public."

Rev. Harold A. Frame, St. Stephens' Broadway United Church: "Needn't be worn all the time, but should be in evidence at all church occasions."

RULES

Opposite each Jumbled Word, list your solution. For example, the first Jumbled Word, when the letters are rearranged properly, will form the word, SHERBROOKE. Don't be discouraged if you fail to solve every name. Perhaps no entrant will get them all correct. Failure to enter your list, even if it is incomplete may cost you a cash prize that you would have otherwise won.

Each of the Jumbled Words will, when the letters are rearranged in their proper sequence, form the name of a town or village which may be found on any complete map of the Dominion of Canada.

The contest is open to any resident of the Eastern Townships except (a. Employees of the Sherbrooke Daily Record or their immediate families, b. Record correspondents or carriers.) No mail subscriptions will be accepted for delivery within the City of Sherbrooke. Subscribers receiving home delivery in Sherbrooke or any town within the Eastern Townships may compete by sending in mail subscriptions for delivery outside of Sherbrooke or by sending a remittance of $3.25 (covering 13 weeks home delivery at regular delivery rates), the carrier being allowed his usual credit on all subscriptions paid in advance. Not more than 1 year's advance payment will be accepted on any one subscription. All new subscriptions start as soon as they are received.

In the event of more than one person having the most words unjumbled correctly, and tied with the amount of money for new subscriptions, The Record will run one tie-breaker. Only those tied in the first contest will be permitted to solve the second contest. No subscriptions will be necessary on the second puzzle.

Prizes will be awarded according to the list with the largest number of correct names, and the amount of subscription money sent in; new subscriptions earning twice as much as renewal. That is if you sent in $3.25 for a 6 months renewal subscription and won first prize you would receive $50.00. If you sent in one new subscription for six months you would receive $100.00. In the event of a tie with the same amount of correct names then the contestant sending in the most money for new subscriptions will be declared the winner as money for new subscriptions counts twice as much as money sent in for renewals. It's up to you.

At least $3.25 must be sent in with each entry. That would pay a six months mail subscription to The Record. No Prizes are offered for lists without a subscription enclosed.

Participants, by sending in an answer, agree to accept the decision of the judges as final. No controversy can possibly be entered into with any entrant.

ALL ANSWERS AND MONEY MUST be sent direct to The Record and addressed "Jumbled Word Contest", Sherbrooke Daily Record, Sherbrooke, Que.

Different solutions may be sent in by any contestant but each must be accompanied by at least a six-months new or renewal order to the Sherbrooke Daily Record.

Ottawa Senators Meet St. Joseph Aces In Sudden Death Game Tonight; Winners Enter Eastern Cup Final

A hockey club from the North-east Quebec woods some 125 miles north of Quebec City stands in Canadian amateur hockey's limelight today. And it intends to make the most of it.

The club—St. Joseph D'Alma Aces—meets the Ottawa Senators in the Capital City tonight in a sudden-death game for the right to meet Toronto Marlboros in the Eastern Canada Finals of the Allan Cup.

The Aces won the senior B title in Quebec. But few, until yesterday, knew much about the team from the paper town of St. Joseph (population 9,500) on the Saguenay river in county Lac-St. Jean-Est.

They have two former professional players in their ranks and player-coach Armand Gaudreault is hopeful of chalking up an upset victory. Gaudreault played during the war years for the National Hockey League Boston Bruins.

The story of how the Aces entered the Allan Cup picture—and almost entered the Eastern Canada Finals unopposed—is the story of one of the biggest mixups in years in Canadian amateur hockey.

Wednesday, at Midland, Ont., George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association had delayed too long in naming a team to enter the eastern finals. He called off the final and named Toronto as the team to meet the Western Canada senior champs.

Soon after Dudley relented and said the A.H.A. could have "a few hours to make up its mind" about Quebec's representative.

And the team would have to be chosen in time to meet Marlboros in Toronto Friday.

The Quebec Association protested that Dudley had "overstepped his responsibilities" in previously ordering Ottawa Senators into the Eastern final. President Azarie Choquet ordered the Senators to meet St. Joseph.

And, said Choquet, if Ottawa-Quebec senior champs by virtue of playoff victories over Valleyfield and Sherbrooke didn't meet St. Joseph, then the Aces would be declared provincial winners and meet Toronto.

Tommy Gorman, Senators general manager, snorted, "farce." But with the choice of playing St. Joseph or missing out on the Eastern final, Gorman had only one answer. He agreed.

Almost everyone except St. Joseph's loyal supporters up the Saguenay expects Ottawa to win a walk tonight.

Twenty-four hours later the first game of the best-of-seven series. Second and third games are in Ottawa Monday and Tuesday. Then the two teams head back to Toronto for the fourth game, and fifth if necessary, on Thursday and Friday in the Queen city.

In Regina C.A.H.A. president Al Pickard backed up Dudley. He had handed over arrangements for the Eastern Canada playoffs to Dudley with the sole provision that an eastern finalist would be ready to meet the West's team by April 25.

Early Lotteries In Nova Scotia Recalled By Ban

By RAE CORELLI
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Halifax, April 14.—Not far from a pile of confiscated lottery tickets in R. C. M. P. headquarters here, a British governor once invited citizens to step up and take a chance.

Start a lottery today in Nova Scotia and you may be sent to jail for two years and fined $2,000.

In 1780, the risk—other than losing your investment—was negligible and you performed a public service.

Lotteries were operated at Halifax in the late 1700's to finance two of the district's current landmarks—Halifax County Academy and Sambre Light—the oldest lighthouse in Canada.

A recent police crack-down disclosed a $125,000 lottery racket operating in Nova Scotia.

The objective in the Academy lottery among Halifax's 8,000 citizens in 1780 was $30,000.

To Raise $450

The Sambre lottery originated in this announcement:

"... a lottery will be set on foot for raising a sum of $450 toward building a lighthouse at or near Cape Sambre, whereby besides the advantages before mentioned or considered, a number of settlers will be usefully employed for some time."

"... a lottery will be set on foot for raising a sum of $450 toward building a lighthouse at or near Cape Sambre, whereby besides the advantages before mentioned or considered, a number of settlers will be usefully employed for some time."

Prizes ranged from $500 to $7. The government made its quota by collecting 15 per cent of all winnings.

The announcement said: "... in case the said tickets shall not be disposed of before 31st August next, the money received for any sold to be repaid to the possessors thereof on demand."

(signed) Edward Cornwallis, (Lord Cornwallis, founder of Halifax).

The plan didn't work and six years later the government built Sambre Light near the entrance to Halifax harbor at the people's expense.

Authorized by George III of England, the Academy lottery attained 50 per cent of its objective but the $750 never was used for the Academy, later built by private enterprise.

Great Interest Shown At The Regular Meeting Of The Cowansville W. I.

Cowansville, April 14.—At the regular meeting of the Women's Institute held at the Heroes Memorial High School, the first since the annual meeting, there was an attitude of enthusiastic interest shown by all. There were present twenty-eight members and visitors, all of the latter becoming members.

The president, Mrs. J. G. Gibson, was in the chair and she gave a report of a meeting of the executive, outlining suggestions for many new undertakings for the coming year.

Garden seeds are soon to be distributed to school children for the annual School Fair, the third to be sponsored by the Women's Institute.

Mrs. Wright, the superintendent of the Sweetsburg Hospital, made an appeal for help, which was responded to with great interest. Garments and dressings to be made and returned at the next meeting were distributed. This work is to be continued.

The convener of Welfare and Health, Mrs. Drennan, gave practical suggestions for First Aid treatment and the members practiced bandaging each other, with the help of Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Drennan.

The convener of National and International Relations, Mrs. Winsor, spoke briefly on the early history of Canada, referring particularly to the rights granted to the French by the British, and the consequent loyalty of the French, at the time of the American Revolution.

Members were asked to write on a slip of paper at each meeting any suggestion or questions and drop it into a box provided. At this first meeting, one member offered to give a demonstration on making buttonholes and how to use a Singer Sewing machine. This constructive suggestion will no doubt be taken advantage of at an early date.

It was announced that at the next meeting, plants and slips were to be brought for exchange or for sale.

The meeting ended with a social half hour, a quiz game being enjoyed and a buffet tea was served by Mrs. E. F. Buzzell, Mrs. Claire Buzzell and Mrs. E. A. Phaneuf.

Lucky "Three" Gives Toronto Leafs Victory And 3-0 Edge Over Detroit In Best-Of-Seven Stanley Cup Final

Toronto, April 14.—There's Stanley Cup victory magic in the number "Three" for Toronto Maple Leafs.

When they downed Detroit Red Wings 3-1 last night to take a 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven cup final, it was the third time that three goals brought the defending champions through. They won the series opener 3-2, the second game 3-1.

Now they need only one more victory to become the first team to win the trophy three times in succession since it became the symbol of modern world professional hockey supremacy.

Backed by the spectacular work of veteran Turk Broda in goal, the Leafs held off the determined Detroit offensive through the first period and into the second before they took command of the game themselves and drove in their three goals in less than six minutes.

The Wings, National Hockey League champions, in the regular season, took a 1-0 lead within five minutes on a screened shot by defenceman Jack Stewart from just inside the blue line. Pete Horek fed him a diagonal passout right from the Toronto corner.

A brush between Ezinicki and Detroit's Ted Lindsay, in which each threw some punches at the Detroit end, brought the combatants minor penalties for roughing. Detroit's George Gae drew a 10-minute misconduct for arguing the point with referee George Gravelle.

The Lindsay and Ezinicki penalties had 36 seconds to run when Gus Mortson let loose with a screened shot from the blueline which hit Lumley's stick and bounced into the goal.

From then on, nothing went right for the Wings. Dangerous passes in front of the Toronto goal went begging with receivers out of position. And they lacked the legs to keep pace with the flying Toronto crew which kept rolling to the attack.

Coach Tommy Ivan of the Wings hinted at possible lineup changes for the fourth, and possibly deciding, game here Saturday night. He said a decision would be made today or tomorrow. If a fifth game is necessary it will be played in Detroit Sunday night.

"I wish, on behalf of the City of Sherbrooke and the fans, to thank the players and the executive of the Sherbrooke Hockey Club for the wonderful season of hockey that you have given us this year," stated His Worship Mayor Alphonse Trudeau last night at the Union Hotel at the special dinner given by the City Council to the team.

Mayor Trudeau further added: "Your playing has been something to be proud of and the Council offers their sincere congratulations for your wonderful effort and the credit that you brought our City. The publicity that the City obtained through the hockey team could never have been bought, and we all greatly appreciate it. To you Ivan Dugre, coach, and Forest Keene, business manager, goes great credit for your time and efforts that you put into organizing the team, and we thank you."

Dr. A. N. Dupuis, president of the team, responded and thanked the members of the City Council for the wonderful dinner and the players of the team. He also paid special tribute to Ivan Dugre and Forest Keene for their fine work in getting the club together and running it.

Forest Keene, business manager of the team, expressed his thanks to the City Aldermen, and the Arena, for their fine co-operation in helping to make it possible in having a team in the Senior Group, which without their aid it would have been impossible to do so.

Alderman Armand Fiset, chairman of the finance committee, added his thanks to those of Mayor Trudeau, and at the same time presented each player with a rosette lighter on behalf of the City Council.

Ivan Dugre, coach, thanked the City Aldermen for their wonderful gesture and the nice pen and pencil set which he received. In his remarks he paid special thanks to his players for their co-operation during the year, and the help they gave him in making the season such a wonderful success.

HERBIE CARNEGIE WINS TROPHY

G. M. Young, honorary president of the team, was then called upon.

by Mayor Trudeau to say a few words, and at the same time he presented the George Povey Memorial Trophy to Herbie Carnegie and individual prizes to the runner ups.

Mr. Young thanked the City Council for their nice act in presenting lighters to the players and he added his special thanks to members of the club for their fine showing during the season. Paul Leclerc won second prize, with Kel Burnett third, Adj Cote fourth, with Tony Demers fifth. Each player was given an individual award.

Alex Ross, manager of the Arena, added his thanks and said it was a pleasure to work with such a fine group of players and hoped that next year the boys would be all back once again that their wishes in reaching the Allan Cup finals would be reached.

Mayor Trudeau brought the dinner to a close and for the second time thanked the boys and members of the team for their fine showing and wished them every success for the summer and hoped he would see them back again in the fall.

Providence Reds Face Elimination By Hershey

Providence, R.I., April 14.—(AP)—Providence Reds, who ran away from the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League in the regular season and then lost their scoring zip when they reached the Calder Cup series with Hershey Bears, were faced with a new major problem as they prepared to meet the Bears here tonight in a game that could bring about the Rhode Islanders' elimination.

Carl Liscombe, the Red's high-scoring left winger and the League's most valuable player for the last two years, was having knee trouble yesterday and there is considerable doubt as to his playing tonight. It is believed he has a bone chip in his right knee.

The amazing Bears, who finished a poor second to the Reds in the Eastern Division but who have registered seven victories in eight playoff starts, hold a 3-1 edge over the Reds in the best-of-seven series.

This picture was taken last night when the City Council were hosts to the Sherbrooke Hockey Club at an informal dinner held at the Union Hotel. The players were presented with cigarette lighters by the City Fathers. In the front row, left to right, Ivan Dugre, Dr. A. N. Dupuis, president of the Club, F. DiMaggio Discharged From Hospital Today

Baltimore, April 14.—(AP)—Joe DiMaggio expects his discharge from Johns Hopkins hospital today, but there is still a big question of how long a sore heel will keep the big slugger out of the New York Yankees' line-up.

Doctors examined him yesterday and reported finding "immature calcium deposits" around his heel.

The star centre fielder has been plagued with ailments throughout his great career. His latest trouble started in Beaumont, Texas, last Saturday. His right heel, from which a bony growth, or "spur," had been removed last November, pained him.

He left the team at Fort Worth and flew here, arriving early yesterday.

Joe was examined by Dr. George A. Bennett, who had treated him often in the past. Afterwards, Dr. Edwin L. Crosby, director of the hospital, issued this statement:

DiMaggio was found to be suffering from "immature calcium deposits in tissues adjacent to his heel bone."

"He will receive the usual treatment for his condition, which is seen in many parts of the body. It is expected he will be discharged on April 14, but will continue treatment as an out-patient. The length of the disability will be determined by the results of the treatment."

The Yanks' open the season Tuesday.

Heavy Brandon Sextet Favored In West Final

Calgary, April 14.—(AP)—Two powerful hockey aggregations—Brandon Wheat Kings and Calgary Buffaloes—simply oozed confidence today as they impatiently awaited tonight's opening whistle in the Western Canada Junior Hockey finals.

Winner of the best-of-seven series will advance into the Memorial Cup final against the Eastern champions, either Montreal Royals or Barrie Flyers.

Both teams predicted a "tough series" and both said their club would win. Barney Mollett, talkative manager of the Brandon squad, said he believed the Wheat Kings "are better balanced than Calgary and should win the round." Buffs' manager Art Rice-Jones retorted that "Buffs are a lot tougher than Brandon thinks."

The big Manitoba sextet—average weight 180 pounds—rolled into Calgary in high spirits and were scheduled to don their skates for a light skating drill a few hours before game time.

The Wheaties were odds-on favorites to take the series, with some experts predicting they would not require more than five games.

New faces in Chicago White Sox line-up on opening day in Detroit may include three rookies—outfielders Gus Zernial and Gerry Seala, and first baseman Gordon Goldsberry. Catcher Joe Tipton, from Cleveland Indians, also may be a newcomer in the line-up.

George Povey Memorial Trophy Winner

Herbie Carnegie is seen holding the trophy which was awarded to him by the committee for the third consecutive season. The trophy is donated by G. M. Young, who always presents the individual prizes to the winners. This year Paul Leclerc was second, Kel Burnett third, Adj Cote fourth and Tony Demers fifth.

Pros Require $7,500 For Winter Circuit

Augusta, Ga., April 14.—(AP)—About $7,500-a-year is needed for a touring professional golfer to make the winter circuit of 35 to 40 tournaments.

The estimate was made by George Scheiner, manager of the P.G.A. tournament bureau, during the Masters Tournament just before golfer Gene Sarazen blasted high living charges which he claims the touring pros have to pay.

Sarazen said he was charged exorbitant prices for meals, hotels and caddy fees.

Scheiner said a golfer can earn upwards of $100,000 a year.

Azarie Choquet, President Of Q.A.H.A., Forces Ottawa To Play St. Joseph Or Drop Out Of Allan Cup Playoffs

Montreal, April 14.—(AP)—With two ex-professionals on their roster, Quebec's senior B hockey champions who almost made the Eastern Canada senior final without a struggle, are Ottawa-bound for a clash with the powerful Senators, Quebec senior titlists.

The Aces from St. Joseph d'Alma, a paper town of 9,500 in the Lake St. John district, is the team that was the silent subject of a lively, if brief, controversy among Canadian amateur hockey moguls yesterday.

They had Azarie Choquet, fiery president of the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association, to thank for keeping them in the Allan Cup hunt after Senators had balked at meeting them. Choquet stood firmly by the Aces' right under the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association constitution to challenge.

The hitch was to find the time, the C.A.H.A. having previously instructed the Q.A.H.A. to declare a winner by April 15. So Choquet said Ottawa would play the Aces in a sudden-death game or hang up their tack and let St. Joseph d'Alma carry on in the eastern final.

Ottawa had a change of mind.

While the dopsters are wont to make the Senators prohibitive odds-on favorites to oust the Aces, player-coach Armand Gaudreault is hopeful of chalking up an upset victory.

Gaudreault is an ex-National Hockey Leaguer. During the war years he played for Boston Bruins. Last year he starred for Hershey Bears of the American League.

Also reinstated from pro ranks is forward Gerry Bellemare who last season played for Dallas Texans of the United States Hockey League. Rolli Morisseau of Montreal, another defenceman, spent last year with a Pacific Coast League entry.

The other defence pair is Roger Roberge and Jean-Paul Lacroix. Along with Tammy Tamminen and Marcel Bouchard, forwards, all four last year played with the now defunct Quebec Provincial League.

Fort Frances Takes Lead In Western Canada Senior Hockey Final With 5-4 Win Over Regina

Regina, April 14.—(AP)—Regina Capitals last night stacked the combination of their 13th playoff game on the 13th day of the month against a bunch of hustling, relentless youngsters who make up Fort Frances Canadians.

It was too much for the Caps to overcome and they dropped the first contest of the best-of-five Western Canada Senior final by a 5-4 score to the under-rated Canadians.

The series winner enters the Allan Cup final against the Eastern champions.

ALLAN CUP SURVIVORS

Five teams are still in the fight for the Allan Cup and the Canadian Senior Amateur Hockey Championship—three in the East and two in the West.

East
Toronto Marlboros, Ottawa Senators, St. Joseph d'Alma Aces.

West
Regina Capitals, Fort Frances Canadians.

What was probably the deciding factor in the contest was a major penalty awarded to Caps' Toby Brown in the second period with the score tied 2-2. Brown whizzed in on goalie Harry Barefoot—the Fort Nelson, B.C. net minder who incidentally provided the game's best individual performance—and accidentally clipped the netminder's head with his stick.

The cut drew blood and Brown was handed the game's only major penalty. Fort Frances scored two goals while he was off, and added another in the same period before the disorganized Caps got rolling again.

Barefoot's head injury, forced a 10-minute time out.

Fort Frances led 2-1 at the end of the first period and 5-3 at the finish of the second.

The scorers for the team from the little paper town on the Ontario-Minnesota border were Gord Miller, Doc Johnson, Jack Marshall, Doug Sampson, and Mile Hupchuck. Vic Myles, with two, Mel Hill and Red Tilson were the Regina marksmen.

1. Mrs. Marcotte was suffering from pneumonia... but when she heard the sounds of fire she leaped from her sick-bed and went to the aid of her 3 children.

2. After getting one boy out to safety, she returned and rescued Denise, 13, and Robert, 9. By this time the fury of the fire had greatly increased.

3. For a third time the gallant Mrs. Marcotte entered her burning home... this time to save the life of the little son of her neighbour.

WINS DOW AWARD

MRS. PAULINE MARCOTTE

of Montreal

Suffering from pneumonia, battles blaze to effect heroic rescue

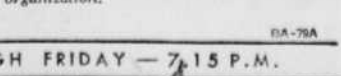

When Mrs. Marcotte, sick in bed, heard the sound of flames crackling, she jumped up to find the house filled with smoke. Pushing 8-year-old Lionel out to safety, she returned to rescue Denise, 13, and Robert, 9. When she learned that a 4-year-old son of a neighbour had ventured into the burning home, the brave woman once more fought the smoke and flames and, although sustaining burns on her face and head, managed to rescue him. We proudly present the Dow Award to Mrs. Pauline Marcotte.
