Capt.: Bases were poorly defended

TORONTO (CP) — A Canadian Forces captain says he warned months ago that the country's military bases are poorly defended and vulnerable to a terrorist attack similar to Monday's early-morning explosions at a base at Lahr, West Germany.

Investigators suspect sabotage in the explosions.

Capt. William Welsh, in an appraisal published last fall, described the defence at bases as "a mixed bag of people of uncertain motivation with inappropriate training, inadequate firepower, indifferent and insufficient equipment attempting to defend a very vulnerable base."

But his suggestions, in the Canadian Defence Quarterly, didn't lead to any changes in security, Welsh said in an interview with the Toronto Globe and Mail on Tuesday.

"It's a question of dollars and only so many bucks go around," he said.

Canada maintains the West German military base as part of its commitment to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

No one has claimed responsibility for the explosions, which caused more than $2 million damage. Six military vehicles were badly damaged and about 10,000 litres of fuel was destroyed.

Welsh, stationed in British Columbia, joined the armed forces in 1966 and was involved with base defence for 15 years.

GETS LOW PRIORITY

In his magazine article, he said base defence is perceived as a "Joe-job" and personnel are only assigned to it when they can be spared from other tasks.

He said light machine-guns and mortars are not available and few base defence forces have flares for use at night.

At most bases, the soldiers must scrounge or borrow radios, night observation devices and extra binoculars from local militia units and other sources, he said.

North: I never got initials from Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt.-Col. Oliver North, trumpeting his devotion to Nicaraguan rebels, said Tuesday he assumed President Ronald Reagan approved his efforts to divert Iranian arms-sales profits to the rebels.

But, he said: "No memorandum ever came back to me with the initials from the president."

And he said on the day Reagan fired him, the president told him on the telephone: "I just didn't know."

With barely controlled anger, North said: "I never carried out a single act, not one, in which I did not have authority from my superiors."

"I have not in the 23 years that I have been in uniformed service violated an order, not one."

North's testimony was the most sought-after in the congressional Iran-arms hearings to date and it lived up to its advance billing.

His more than six hours in the witness chair was punctuated by sharp exchanges with House of Representatives committee counsel John Nields, and between North's lawyer and the committee chairman.

Speaking with fervor, North said: "Thank God" there were people willing to help the rebels with money "and the Nicaraguan

Killiniq Inuit going home without government help

By Jane McElhone
 for Mainland Press

QUEBEC CITY — In early August, three Inuit families living in Northern Quebec are moving back home to Killiniq Island off the eastern tip of Ungava Bay.

Here they will join three other families who moved home this spring, travelling by snowmobile from George River.

In 1978, these Inuit were resettled in Northern Quebec after their Killiniq Island village of Port Burwell was closed down.

At that time, federal government officials told the people that the cost of maintaining government services in such an isolated outpost were too high.

As services in Port Burwell dwindled over the years, people began leaving. The health clinic closed and other government services were reduced.

The population of Port Burwell shrank from 185 in 1971 to 45 in 1978.

That year, the remaining residents of the village were forced out of their homes by federal officials, flown across Ungava Bay and resettled in other communities.

Today, Mike Keelen is the store manager at the Quaqtaq Co-op. In 1978, he was one of the Inuit flown out of Port Burwell.

TAKING INITIATIVE

Keelen says there are 113 Inuit who want to move back home. For the moment, they have no choice but to make the move on their own.

"We've tried to convince the government that we want to move back ever since they first took our village away. We've been unhappy for the past nine years, and the government is aware of that. They've been at the last three or four Heads-of-the-Family meetings. They've taken all the information down, but there has been no action on their part."

Keelen says, "It hasn't been easy for the families who have been resettled. They were forced to leave their homes and belongings behind, taking only what could be loaded on the planes."

GOOD HUNTING

Keelen maintains that Killiniq Island is one of the best hunting and fishing areas in the region.

"There seems to be a lot of game in the old area. It just seemed a lot easier to survive there."

Integrating into new communities was often hard for the dis-

Lemonade sales up, cookies down

RECORD/GRACIE MACDONALD

The sunny hot weather of the past two days certainly warms the heart of children with an entrepreneurial bent. What better way to cool off than a 25¢ glass of lemonade and a 10¢ chocolate chip cookie? These business types have been manning a cooler at the corner of Church and Lorne Sts. in Lennoxville since Monday. Business, they say, has been good: on their first day they raked in $7, despite the fact someone seemed to be eating the profits. The idea seemed so good that by late afternoon there were three stands on the same corner, selling everything from peanuts to apples. This supply glut threatened to cause a price war until the three groups decided it was more profitable to join forces and goodies once again. Here from left to right are Robbie Moore, 5, Jason Picard, 6, Jon Yellin, 9, Jamie Moore, 9, and Laurel Ann Picard, 4.

Two premiers would reject free trade deal

By Alan Bass

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Brian Mulroney emerged early today from a seven-and-a-half-hour meeting with the premiers confident he has their support on Canada-U.S. free trade talks, but two premiers said they'd reject a deal if they were asked to approve it now.

Mulroney said the premiers "maintained their ongoing support" for the negotiations and were satisfied with the progress being made. He said they will meet again Sept. 8 — and sooner if required.

The prime minister acknowledged there had been several differing views expressed at the meeting, but said the premiers were cooperative.

"The negotiations are ongoing with the full support of the ministers," Mulroney said.

However, Ontario Premier David Peterson complained that the premiers were told only what Canada was prepared to give up to get a deal, while learning very little about what the Americans will give. He said most of his questions were still unanswered.

"If I had to make a decision on the basis of what I've heard tonight, no way I'd support it in principle," Peterson said.

Manitoba Premier Howard Pawley also said he wouldn't back a trade deal on the basis of what he heard at the session. But he said he was willing to wait and keep an open mind.

Most of the other provincial leaders were a bit more positive.

Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa said he learned a lot at the meeting.

TIME WILL TELL

However, Bourassa noted that the next few months will tell whether the U.S. will agree to Canada's demand for a mandatory, binding procedure to settle disputes. Bourassa and Prince Edward Island Premier Joe Ghiz both warned that Canada must win that concession before a deal could be approved.

British Columbia Premier Bill Vander Zalm said he was satisfied by the briefing and concluded that the talks were making "great progress."

Alberta Premier Don Getty said he came away from the meeting feeling that the talks were progressing, but that several significant hurdles have not yet been tackled.

"I feel the potential to make an agreement is still very much there," he added.

During the meeting, Canadian trade negotiator Simon Reisman showed the premiers 33 slides outlining his vision of what a trade deal might look like.

Reisman told reporters that he gave the premiers "a lot of answers" to their questions.

"I think most people went away — all people went away — feeling that this has been a very, very constructive session."

However, Peterson said Reisman's presentation was nothing more than a "wish list" and that it answered few questions.

"I guess they told us what they knew, but the problem is that at this moment they don't know

Probe ordered into unreported gov't contracts

QUEBEC (CP) — A top Quebec civil servant has ordered a probe into the number of government contracts awarded since 1984 without the knowledge of the province's spending watchdogs.

Benoit Morin issued the order Tuesday when he learned 44 contracts worth $2.5 million, awarded by the solicitor general's office since 1984, were never reported to a legislature committee that examines the department's spending.

Morin, government secretary general, said he wants results from all departments by the end of the month.

"I'm crossing my fingers the solicitor general's department is the only case," he said in an interview.

Thirty of the contracts, worth a total of $1.81 million, were awarded under the former Parti Québécois government when Pierre Marc Johnson, now Opposition leader, was justice minister and solicitor general, officials said.

Under government rules, contracts of more than $25,000 must be reported to the Treasury Board, which in turn reports them every three months to committees composed of members of the legislature.

Failure to report contracts to the committees does not indicate that money is missing — the contracts are still listed in the government's account books — but it means departments can avoid public accountability for the way Quebecers' tax dollars are spent.

Former solicitor general Gerard Latulippe quit the cabinet last week amid allegations of conflict of interest and favoritism involving his girlfriend and his former law firm.

Pit bull attacks beagle

MONTREAL (CP) — Spiro Vlahopoulos doesn't have much use for pit bull dogs.

Vlahopoulos, 19, said his beagle pup was grabbed by a pit bull dog that "wouldn't let go. Neighbors were hitting it without any effect."

"He even ran back into the house with my poor puppy in his jaws. It took 15 minutes before he dropped it at his master's orders."

Costa Sifakas, 27, who has owned the pit bull for six years, said, "It's not the dog's fault. It's mine. I should probably watch him more carefully."

The pit bull that ripped the beagle's throat has never been trained, he said in an interview

Tuesday, the day after the incident.

Montreal dog catcher Michel Laframboise said the city will ask a veterinarian to examine the pit bull before deciding whether to remove it.

He said removing a dog is an exceptional measure ordered only two or three times a year when a dog is considered dangerous or abused.

Sifakas has also been ordered to appear in municipal court on charges of having a dog without a licence and allowing his dog to run without a leash. If convicted he faces fines of $100 on each charge.

Journalist to take case before UN commission

MONTREAL (CP) — A Salvadoran journalist who has been denied permission to remain in Canada is taking his case to the United Nations Human Rights Commission, his lawyer said Tuesday.

Victor Regalado, 38, of Montreal, has been fighting a deportation order since 1982 when Liberal cabinet ministers Robert Kaplan and Lloyd Axworthy signed a security certificate saying that his continued presence in Canada would be "detrimental to the national interest."

The grounds for the judgment have never been made public.

Through his lawyer, Giuseppe Sciortino, Regalado sent a formal complaint to the commission in Geneva Monday, charging the Canadian government's position violates his civil and political rights.

Last January, the Supreme Court of Canada denied Regalado's request to appeal rulings by immigration officers and lower courts that he must leave the country. Regalado came to Canada in 1980 to give lectures on El Salvador and sought asylum as a political refugee.

Tape shows Glass choking back tears, saying he was a CIA spy

BEIRUT (Reuter) — Kidnappers have issued a videotape of U.S. hostage Charles Glass choking back tears and saying he was an U.S. spy — the first such claim by a captive in Lebanon.

In Washington, the White House denied that Glass was a spy and suggested the video recording was obtained under duress.

The tape and an undated statement by the Organization for the Defence of Free People, saying Glass was being interrogated as a U.S. spy, were delivered to an international news agency in Moslem western Beirut on Tuesday.

Glass, 36, of California said: "Many of you only know me as a journalist, but few know the truth. I used the press as a cover for my main job with the CIA. I came back to Lebanon on secret missions from the office of the CIA in London."

Glass, wearing a dark blue tracksuit, with dark circles under his eyes and a few days growth of beard, read the words from a statement phrased in awkward English.

Speaking in a way suggesting that his mouth was bruised, he was close to tears when referring to the Central Intelligence Agency.

The five-minute tape was issued as U.S. special envoy Vernon Walters left Damascus after two rounds of talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad. Diplomats said they paved the way for improving strained U.S.-Syrian ties.

The diplomats said Walters expressed U.S. appreciation for Assad's efforts to win freedom for American hostages in Lebanon. Ten are among 29 foreigners missing, believed kidnapped.

Gunmen seized Glass, a freelance newsman with ABC, on June 17 a few hundred metres from a Syrian checkpoint south of Beirut.

Moslem militia sources say he was seized by the pro-Iranian Hizbollah, or Party of God, but the Shiite radicals deny any link to the abduction.

Israeli troops and Shi'ite guerrillas massed on the edge of a self-declared Israeli security zone in the south Tuesday night after an all-day battle on Monday in which at least seven Shiite Amal fighters were reported killed.

Amal sources said machine-gun fire and rocket clashes continued near the villages of Kafra and Yater, southeast of the port of Tyre.

They said Israeli gunners and their allies the South Lebanon Army shelled Kafra and Yater and prevented rescuers from reaching the villages to evacuate casualties.

Monday's battle lasted 13 hours and involved about 200 Shiite fighters as well as attacks by Israeli helicopter gunships, tanks and artillery.

Roller coaster accident caused by design error

EDMONTON (CP) — Last year's fatal roller coaster accident at West Edmonton Mall was caused by a design error and a manufacturing defect, says the board of inquiry into the crash.

A summary of the report, by the two-man board of inquiry into the accident that killed three people and seriously injured a fourth, says indirect causes included the fact the mall lacked proper maintenance procedures.

The report says that if proper maintenance procedures had been in place June 14, 1986, the train on the giant Mindbender roller coaster which crashed would have been inspected and faulty equipment would probably have been noticed.

The summary was released Tuesday by the Alberta Court of Appeal.

The board said its report was ready May 29 for Labor Minister

Ian Reid. Court of Queen's Bench documents show a file on the case was sealed by Associate Chief Justice Tevie Miller that day, preventing anyone from learning details of the dispute.

Lawyer Kenneth McKenzie and engineer Geoffrey Kulak heard 60 days of evidence in their $1-million investigation into the accident.

The summary says maintenance management at the mall didn't understand how critical components of the roller coaster worked.

It says mechanical maintenance check lists were not in place. And because the West German manufacturer of the ride was in receivership, the inquiry board says Triple Five should have had an expert or a consultant to ensure quality control at the factory.

If these steps had been taken, the board says it's likely some factory defects on the trains would have been revealed.

News-in-brief

Bathurst workers end strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Agreement in principle was reached Tuesday between Consolidated Bathurst Inc. and the Canadian Paperworkers Union to end a strike at three of the company's Quebec mills.

About 2,400 workers at mills in Trois-Rivieres, Shawinigan and Grand-Mere went on strike June 26 after failing to reach agreement on such issues as overtime, vacations and working hours.

Company official Denise Allard could not provide details of the agreement but said if it is endorsed, the workers could be back on the job later this week. The last agreement expired April 30.

Saskatchewan passes accord

MONTREAL (CP) — Saskatchewan will become the second government in Canada to approve the Meech Lake constitutional accord after it is introduced in the legislature Thursday, says Premier Grant Devine.

In an interview from Ottawa with the Montreal daily Le Devoir, Devine termed "fantastic" the agreement reached June 3 which got Quebec support and has already been endorsed by the Quebec legislature.

Devine, who is in Ottawa with other premiers to discuss Canada-U.S. free trade talks with Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, said Tuesday he does not expect a hard fight in the legislature on the accord.

"We would have liked a few amendments but they will have to wait for another occasion," said Devine, who added he agrees with Mulroney and Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa the accord "has to get through."

Quebec's libraries below par

MONTREAL (CP) — A provincially-appointed inquiry reported Tuesday that Quebec's public library system won't catch up to the standards of other provinces without $170 million from the provincial government over the next five years.

The report said Quebec has the lowest ratio to library books per resident, 1.56, compared to a Canadian average of 2.2, and one of the lowest per capita spending rates on libraries at $13.77, compared to a national average of $19.30.

About one million of Quebec's six million residents have no municipal library. Ninety of 125 libraries in Quebec communities of more than 5,000 population have book inventories well below recommended levels.

Babies die — no donors

MONTREAL (CP) — An acute shortage of organ donors and the failure of alternatives such as baboon hearts often leave doctors powerless while infants with heart defects die, a leading cardiac surgeon said Tuesday.

Dr. Claude Chartrand, a surgeon at Ste-Justine children's hospital in Montreal, said in an interview the shortage of young donors "is an immense problem."

"I know of three patients who have died in the last week at our hospital while waiting for a donor," said Chartrand. "From what I've heard, all pediatric surgeons around the world have the same problem."

Quebecair on strike

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebecair's 250 ground employees will be in a legal strike position early Thursday.

The regional airline has asked its ground staff affiliated with the International Association of Machinists to accept cuts in pay, sick leave and guaranteed hours of work.

Union spokesman Henri Lemelin said Tuesday members may have no other choice but to launch the strike.

Company vice-president Guy Sarrasin said, "We are still awaiting a union counter-proposal to our offers made last February." He said Quebecair will decree a lockout if necessary.

Acid rain is health threat

TORONTO (CP) — Acid rain is now a health threat to more than half a billion people, says a United Nations report.

The pollution, which has killed 14,000 Canadian lakes, is endangering 600 million city-dwellers worldwide, says the report, prepared by the UN Environment Program and the World Health Organization.

Another one billion people — more than one-fifth of the world's population — are exposed to high pollution levels from coal, wood and oil combustion and dust from automobile traffic, said the July report from Geneva.

Prison investigator says

I should have had to report to Parliament, not Kelleher

OTTAWA (CP) — A man who has investigated prisoners' complaints for the last 13 years has criticized the federal government for not passing a law that would have required him to report to Parliament instead of the solicitor general.

Correctional investigator Ronald Stewart made the comment in his annual report for the year ending May 31, 1986. The report was handed to Solicitor General James Kelleher last December but was only made public Tuesday.

The delay prompted Liberal justice critic John Nunziata to say Kelleher deliberately held back the report until the Commons recessed for the summer.

Stewart said in his report he was named to the job under the Inquiries Act because that was the fastest way to establish the position in the mid-1970s when a riotous state of affairs existed in the federal prison system.

He said it is a misuse of the Inquiries Act to continue the position for 13 years instead of setting up a system whereby the investigator would report to Parliament rather than the solicitor general.

Stewart added it doesn't make sense that his mandate prevents him from investigating complaints about material on prisoners prepared for use by the National Parole Board.

He said in an interview that draft legislation exists to create a correctional investigator's act but it appears to be in limbo. However, Stewart added he and Kelleher have discussed extending his mandate to parole material.

Six accused plead not guilty for Chernobyl

MOSCOW (Reuter) — Fresh details emerged about the world's worst nuclear accident at the Chernobyl power station in the Soviet Ukraine when six men went on trial accused of responsibility for the radiation disaster.

The Chernobyl atomic station's former director, Viktor Bryukhanov, and four men employed as officials at the plant when its fourth reactor exploded on April 26 last year, were charged with safety violations resulting in human deaths. Hearing of their cases began on Tuesday.

The sixth man was charged on a lesser count of negligence and, if convicted, faces up to two years in prison, compared with terms of up to 10 years for the others.

The Chernobyl explosion was blamed on tests designed to see how long one of the fourth unit's generators could continue supplying electricity to the reactor during a power failure.

It occurred at 1:23 a.m. in the absence of Bryukhanov and chief engineer Nikolai Fomin. Plant personnel had switched off the reactor's safety systems, and a rapid chain of events led to the blast and fire.

A report by the Soviet Public Prosecutor's office read out at the trial disclosed that Fomin and his deputy, Anatoly Dyatlov, had modified reactor operations to try to obtain 15 per cent more power without consulting the contractor or the designer of the unit.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY

All the defendants pleaded not guilty of the charges against them at Tuesday's opening session, but some acknowledged partial guilt.

"With so many human deaths, I cannot say I am completely innocent," said Dyatlov.

Jews, Arabs together for peace

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Former U.S. state secretary Cyrus Vance has disclosed the existence of a private group of American businessmen of Arab and Jewish descent who have been working behind the scenes for five years to bring about a Middle East peace.

The group was going public now because "a window of opportunity" existed to achieve a peace treaty between Jordan and Israel if an international Middle East peace conference was convened, Vance said Tuesday.

He added: "I think the window of opportunity is a narrow one and it is closing."

The group includes Najeeb Halaby, the father of King Hussein's wife, Queen Noor, Reagan administration trouble-shooter Philip Habib and Vance.

Bash for chimp's homecoming

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Sam, the beer-drinking, cigarette-smoking chimp, has a "welcome home" sign on his cage and his owner is planning a big party thanks to a judge who cleared the way for Sam's homecoming.

Sam's TV- and radio-equipped cage is in a building at the rear of the Train Stop Inn near Lebanon in southern Ohio. Sam's owner, tavern proprietor Kenneth Harris, 55, says he spent more than $10,000 US in lawyer's fees to get Sam back.

Harris pledges to try to break the chimp of his vices. Sam was taken from Harris on April 15 after allegations of abuse were raised by the Humane Society of the United States, which said Harris kept Sam in a cage littered with jagged, empty soda cans.

Public protests banned

PANAMA CITY (Reuter) — Panama's military-dominated government has banned public protests indefinitely after a week of growing anti-government street demonstrations and an attack Tuesday night by gunmen on an independent radio station.

The government said in a presidential decree read over government television late Tuesday that it is banning all public protests to avert what it termed "serious disturbances of public order."

Proposals get mixed reviews

GENEVA (Reuter) — Japan and the European Community said Tuesday that U.S. proposals aimed at ending all farm subsidies by the year 2000 would go too far toward eliminating government influence in world agricultural trade.

The United States presented its plan, which also called for an end to import barriers, at a two-day meeting of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, which ended Tuesday.

Many agricultural nations, including Canada, Argentina and Australia, endorsed the U.S. initiative.

Doo-hwan frees 357 dissidents

SEOUL (Reuter) — South Korea freed 357 jailed dissidents today under a democracy package announced July 1 by President Chun Doo-hwan to end countrywide political protests, the Justice Ministry said.

The freed dissidents included veteran human rights campaigner Moon Ik-hwan and student Kwon In-suk, who claimed police sexually tortured her after her arrest last year.

Also freed were 12 students jailed for the takeover of U.S. cultural centres in Seoul and Pusan.

The government, striving to project a more liberal image, was pressing forward with its reform offensive on the eve of the funeral of a student fatally injured during anti-government protests.

Nearly 400 dead in Zambia

MANSA, Zambia (AP) — Zambian police said today nearly 400 people are believed to have lost their lives after a barge carrying about 470 people hit a sandbar and overturned in the crocodile-infested Luapula River dividing Zaire and Zambia.

Twenty-three bodies were immediately recovered after the ship tipped over Sunday on a routine crossing, a Mansa police officer said. Mansa is about 50 kilometres west of the river where the ship sank.

The policeman said at least 80 passengers on the upper deck swam to the Zambian side of the river.

"It appears the Zairean coxswain was dozing and the barge hit the sandbank and overturned," the officer said. The coxswain also swam to safety, he said.

Legion rises up over Transport Ministry plans

Danville's move-the-monument proposal pits truckers against townies

DANVILLE — A Transport Ministry proposal to move a monument out of the town square has angered at least some residents, who say they aren't going to take it lying down.

The Danville monument is "perfectly located". No one, passing through the town square can miss it. And perhaps that's the problem.

The Danville First War Monument was unveiled on May 24, 1921. A solid block of granite rising eleven feet and bearing the names of the fallen, it stands squarely in the centre of the square.

Traffic, including large semi-trailers, some with pup-trailers attached, must go around to one side or the other no matter if they are headed to Nicolet, Richmond or Asbestos.

That's where the trouble started. Truckers have been complaining. UP ON THE CURB

To turn right as they proceed toward the Victoriaville highway (Route 116), they must sometimes run the wheels of their awkward rigs up on the curb in front of the monument to make the corner. Even then they sometimes have to back up a bit to avoid hitting cars parked on the other side of the intersection. And the problem worsens during the winter when snowbanks and slippery conditions add to their headaches.

Several solutions have been proposed by sidewalk superintendents as well as town fathers, the local Royal Canadian Legion branch, custodians of the monument and even a citizens movement that has resulted in hundreds of names on a petition requesting that the monument remain where it is.

Transport ministry officials have apparently allowed their ears to bend to the truckers' demands. The department has told the town the monument would be moved to a new location nearby due to truckers' complaints.

GROCERY STORE SITE
The proposed new site would involve purchasing an abandoned building which was formerly a grocery store owned by Grimard and Associates. This enterprise failed a few years ago, and since then the building has been on the Banque Nationale's hands. The Roads Ministry is proposing to buy the building, tear it down, prepare a new location for the monument in the resulting space and then move the monument onto its new resting place.

To complete the job, a new cement curb would have to be constructed in place of the monument as traffic would still be crossing a town square to reach any desired route.

According to some residents a simple change of parking from angled to parallel (to the curb) would give the truckers the required space. Others are adamant that they don't want to see any changes.

CRITICS AFRAID
Danville being the type of small town it is, the critics are afraid to identify themselves, for fear of the gossip that will result. But that doesn't stop them from talking.

"After all," one local grocer said, "they are building a bypass that will see an end to truck traffic through here within the next two years. The whole thing is a lot of nonsense as far as I'm concerned."

A nearby restaurant owner says she doesn't have any feeling of attachment for the monument but she is upset about the possibility of losing parking facilities in front of her business. "People are victims of habit," she said. "They are used to parking here, at the door, and I'm sure we would lose some customers if they had to walk further than usual."

Danville council has proposed three plans to improve the situation in the square. At press time, these plans were in the hands of MNA and frequent roads critic Yvon Vallières.

Also presented to Vallières was a petition of over three hundred names.

HERITAGE RISING
Feeling is running high in the village, where there has recently been a strong surge of enthusiasm for things relating to the past. Buildings have been saved from the wrecker's ball, others are being restored and there is a growing sense of pride in their heritage shown by residents of Danville and its hinterland who have taken a stand in this latest mêlée.

As said one of the principal organizers of the movement to have the monument remain where it is (who is afraid to use his name although he represents the powerful Royal Canadian Legion), "This memorial to those who died has served to remind the generations that have followed of the great numbers who gave their life for their country and for freedom."

"Surely there is a simple solution," the anonymous Legion executive said, "that would keep this memorial in its rightful place. It was placed here by the citizens of Danville, Shipton, Asbestos and Victoriaville as an abiding memorial to those who lost their lives in the 1914-1918 war."

'SERIOUS'
"I hope the people who are considering the move will also consider the serious nature of their intentions."

Busy trying to get the town water supply going after a breakdown Tuesday, Danville Mayor Donald Roy could not be reached for comment.

A public meeting has been called for 7:30 p.m. next Tuesday to hear everyone's opinion.

Transport Ministry district chief Jean-Marc Thivierge makes two things clear.

The project seems to have come from the regional planning summit Le Sommet de l'Or Blanc, Thivierge said, and was submitted for study by council and delegates in attendance.

As well, Thivierge said, as a result of the request for changes, the departments' engineers have drawn up three separate plans. Two of them would result in moving the memorial and the third would require decreasing the size of the lot the monument is situated on, as well as major changes to parking facilities.

Some trucks and truckers can get by the Danville monument; others have to drive up on the curb.

The onus is on the councillors, Thivierge said. They must choose one plan.

"These plans are now in the hands of Yvon Vallières, MNA, pending further study of new developments," Thivierge said. "To date no money has been allotted or definite steps taken as the whole affair is still really on the drawing boards."

Lise Bacon promises quick action on Sauvageau's bad-news library report

Lise Bacon... 'Necessary to re-examine and update'

SHERBROOKE (CB) — The provincial government will soon act to improve the "sub-standard" condition of the province's public libraries, says Vice-Premier Lise Bacon.

The report, released Tuesday, condemns the government for inaction, underfunding and an attitude of unconcern for the reading habits of the Quebec public. It stems from a work of La Commission D'étude sur les bibliothèques publiques.

Bacon, who is also Quebec's minister of cultural affairs, received a copy of the report from commission chairman Philippe Sauvageau.

According to a press release issued by Bacon's office Tuesday, the minister "immediately acknowledged that this study document was a necessary prerequisite for an in-depth revision of the government's interventions in this activity sector."

STATUS REPORT
"As you may recall," the communiqué says, "the minister of cultural affairs created this commission last December and entrusted it with the mandate of preparing a status report on public libraries and proposing orientations dealing with the sharing of responsibilities between the provincial government and municipalities, methods of funding, as well as means to insure the development of this sector over the next five years."

"To carry out this mandate, the members of the commission proceeded with a vast consultation of the various parties involved, an initiative that the minister qualified as extremely appropriate given the importance of the subject and the absence of sufficient information to guide government action in the future."

Sauvageau's committee determined that Quebec's public libraries are too few in number and too far apart, that they have too few books and too little money.

BOTTOM RUNG
The report said Quebec would have to change its attitude towards libraries if the province is to get off the bottom rung of the Canadian library ladder.

According to the press release, Bacon said she would study the report and its recommendations during the summer "in order to be able to outline this fall the main orientations for government interventions in Quebec's public library sector."

The committee suggested more government funding to help solve the libraries' problems.

Bacon said she would consider the committee's suggestions "within the framework of the 1 per cent increase plan currently being prepared by department officials."

"The government has agreed to pursue the objective on increasing the budget allocated for culture by 1 per cent of the government's overall budget during the present mandate," the communiqué said.

"Lise Bacon will submit a brief on this subject to the executive council (inner cabinet) by the end of the summer."

Bacon praised the Sauvageau committee for its work.

'VITAL' SECTOR
"This is the first time that such a study had been conducted on Quebec's public libraries," Bacon is quoted as saying. "And not only has the commission managed to collect the necessary data on the subject, it has also initiated a coherent and well articulated reflection process on a sector that is vital to our cultural development."

"Clearly," Bacon continued, "I will study the commission's recommendations with a great deal of interest, for in an era characterized by the rapid progress of communication means, it is essential that public libraries be able to continue to adequately carry out their mission of disseminating culture to the general public."

"To achieve this goal," concluded the minister's press release, "it is necessary to re-examine and update policies that have been established over the past thirty years."

ced people. Keelen points out that, "Port Burwell's residents were scattered among five villages, breaking traditional community ties. They had to learn new skills and adapt to new hunting areas."

Last March, at a Family Heads meeting in George River, the decision was made to move back home. LONG ENOUGH

"After nine years, we figured the government wasn't interested in making a decision. They were talking about reconstruction in another five to nine years' time. But we were fed up. We'd waited long enough," says Keelen.

The three families who moved back in the spring settled in a new village, Taqpanyayuk, about 20 km south of Port Burwell.

"We can pick them up every so often by trail radio. They seem to be settling in quite well. They dug up some materials in the area for building. Now they're just waiting for the rest of us to come."

Mike Keelen is eager to leave his job at the Co-op to begin a new life.

"We'll be leaving in early August, when our vessel, the Ivy, comes to pick us up. Then we'll have August and September to get organized before the freeze-up begins."

Taqpanyayuk is 160 miles away from the nearest village. According to Keelen, this will not be a problem.

"Just before freeze-up, our vessel will go down to George River to pick up some supplies. Once ice conditions are good, we can travel by snowmobile."

NO SCHOOL
Schooling is another consideration.

"The old village had a school. There won't be one in the new location this winter until the government decides to begin construction of the new village."

The Inuit hope this move will pressure the government to act. Keelen says the government will finally understand that the Inuit are determined to have their village back.

The fact that the government closed down the original village nine years ago because of high maintenance costs does not appear to worry Keelen.

Woman dead in crash near Roxton Pond

ROXTON POND — A young Granby woman was killed Tuesday when the car she was driving went out of control and hit a road-side bridge on Route 139 near here.

Dead is Caroline Boyer, 21. She apparently died instantly in the 7:45 p.m. crash, police said.

Boyer was alone in her car at the time and was apparently trying to avoid a collision with an on-coming vehicle, police said.

Unitcast lockout hits 130 workers

SHERBROOKE (GM) — Although their union president would not say what 130 locked-out Unitcast Canada employees plan to do, pickers Tuesday were gearing up for a stay.

Unitcast locked union employees out of its Belvedere Street plant

Workers at Unitcast Canada were locked out of the company's Belvedere Street plant Monday; Tuesday they made plans to fight back.

MET MONDAY

But he said the two sides met Monday to discuss how employees would be paid for last week's work.

Management at Unitcast would not return reporters' calls Tuesday.

The union says Unitcast has offered the workers a new contract with a reduced salary, saying the company is in bad financial straits. A union member said Tuesday workers have increased their productivity by 25 per cent over the last 16 months, but that the company had not made any changes.

So far, picket lines at the plant on the corner of Belvedere and Galt Sts. have been peaceful. Tuesday afternoon there were four picketers on Galt St. while most union members voted at a private meeting at the CSN office on Acadie St.

A privilege not a right

Unions in Quebec should pay close attention to an Ontario court ruling that says workers should be allowed to "opt out" of union dues that go towards causes they don't believe in.

A Supreme Court judge there ruled back in January that using compulsory union dues for anything but collective bargaining infringes on a person's rights. In the final part of his decision, released yesterday, the judge said unions should allow non-union members who must pay dues anyway to decide how much of their money should be spent on things other than collective bargaining.

Unions have become more than just tools to get better pay and working conditions. They now give money to a million and one causes and stick their noses into everyone's business. They have also become a business onto themselves. While there is nothing inherently wrong with this, it remains their primary function to negotiate on behalf of their members.

This seems to be forgotten in Quebec, where unions send out memos about Nicaragua and act as unofficial opposition to the provincial government at the drop of a hat. Their original purpose has been lost as they jump on every left-wing socio-economic cause.

Sure, somebody has to pipe up and say something when injustice is being done. But that is still no reason for a worker's dues — hundreds of dollars each year — to go towards causes he or she doesn't believe in. Union dues are not taxes, and unions are not governments. Just as workers should not be forced into a union, they should not be robbed of their hard earned money. It is not a union's right to be advocate for all, it is their privilege, they shouldn't forget it.

Allowing non-union members to give just to collective bargaining and not to Third World farmers and the NDP will not weaken unions. It will only make them more responsible and thus more credible, a virtue Quebec unions sorely lack at the moment.

Hong Kong-ruled gangs cause angst

VANCOUVER (CP) — City police say they are concerned that the overlords of Hong Kong's powerful mafia-style triads are infiltrating Vancouver's Chinatown gangs.

And with Hong Kong's return to Chinese control looming in 1997, the city's Asian gang experts are bracing themselves for a wave of crime.

"We haven't seen anything yet," Const. Bob Cooper, Asian gang expert in the Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit, said in an interview. "It will be a very naive crook who stays in Hong Kong when the man with the Red Star arrives."

Police say the grim prospects for Chinatown are:

- More gang violence as young Chinese — some fake refugees from Hong Kong — use terror and violence to mimic the triads and establish status and power;
- An increase in gambling in the "sham" social clubs of Chinatown;
- Increased laundering of Hong Kong crime cash in area residential and commercial real estate;
- A multi-million dollar heroin smuggling business from the Golden Triangle of Southeast Asia, through Hong Kong and on to Vancouver.

CONTROL VICE

Founded as patriotic societies pledged to drive the Manchu conquerors out of China in the 1600s, the triads now control drug trafficking, extortion, gambling and prostitution with tentacles in most Chinese communities.

The transfer of triad assets to North America has already begun, Cooper said.

United States undercover federal agents traced one elaborate scheme through San Francisco, Hong Kong, Seattle, Vancouver and Zurich.

The vice-president of a large Hong Kong bank was convicted of currency violations and sentenced to six months in jail.

Halting this Asian tide is daunting for local police because of traditional secrecy in Chinatown, said Cooper.

"The gangs' chief weapon is fear. They keep the public scared. Crimes go unreported. And it is hard to find witnesses for those that are reported."

"People in Chinatown, who have lived in Hong Kong, are aware of the power of these triads and they equate the gangs here with the same sort of thing."

Const. Peter Ditchfield, a colleague of Cooper's, said some local gangs use triad-style initiation ceremonies.

The local gangs are not triads but "some of the very senior people are connected to triads in Hong Kong," Cooper said. "This is how they arrange their heroin importing."

HAVE CONNECTIONS

Police say major heroin dealers in their 50s and 60s have "strong connections" to the triads. They exercise control over local gangs by providing them with spending money and by paying for lawyers when gang members are arrested.

They say the heroin trade is closely linked to Chinatown gambling clubs where gang members act as bouncers and collect debts.

Cooper and Ditchfield said some of these local overlords are established men in Chinatown. They refuse to reveal names.

The officers said several gambling den operators were raided in the early 1980s, but they never went to jail and they are back in business.

"They're a sham," said Cooper. "Their annual reports are all money and the people who appear on the lists of directors are just stooges."

Bill Yee, a Chinatown community leader, acknowledges the Hong Kong connection.

"There has been speculation," he admitted. "I wouldn't be surprised that there are some connections since some of the so-called gang members came from Hong Kong."

Outstanding institutions are leaders in innovation

Commentary

By Alan Wallis D.C.

Concerning the article "Chiropractor slams hospital rules" in your Thursday July 2 edition I would like to make the following comments:

One of the conclusions of the Royal Commission on Chiropractic in New Zealand in 1979 was the following:

"It would be easy to say that medical practitioners are on the whole biased and prejudiced against chiropractic, and that prejudice is what has kept chiropractors in isolation. It would be fairer at the present day, to say that ignorance and misinformation have been the main factors. If this inquiry has achieved nothing else, it has left little excuse for ignorance; it has, we hope, cleared up many aspects on which people have been misinformed and misled about chiropractic."

Mr. David Mackenzie as Sherbrooke Hospital general manager is a perfect example of this conclusion as he appears to have made statements based on ignorance and misinformation and not from reality.

Doctors of chiropractic have a comparable education to that of doctors of medicine.

Doctors of chiropractic and medicine are primary health care professionals. Nurses, physiotherapists and nutritionists are NOT.

A primary health care professional is one with the education and the competence to diagnose by physical, clinical and radiological examinations to determine the indications or non-indications of treatment.

Yes it is up to the government to change the law but laws are changed through pressure. Sherbrooke Hospital should be a leader in change in order to serve our community better.

There is no question that patients everywhere can benefit from a blend of the pharmacological and surgical expertise of medical physicians and with the neuro-musculo-skeletal expertise of the doctors of chiropractic. As a side benefit this could also reduce the Canadian health care bill by hundreds of millions of dollars a year.

The 1979 New Zealand Royal Commission of Inquiry into Chiropractic is the most complete investigation into chiropractic ever undertaken by a government taking 18 months of study in New Zealand, Australia, the United States and Great Britain.

The following are some of the conclusions:

1) Chiropractic is a scientifically and effective system of health care.

2) Doctors of chiropractic carry out spinal diagnosis and therapy at a sophisticated and refined level.

3) There should exist a camaraderie between chiropractors and medical doctors, with the patients' health the primary concern.

4) Chiropractic care should be made available to patients in hospitals, and any deterrent to this service should be remedied by the governments to insure the right to provide this care.

5) The independent chiropractic profession, while remaining a separate and alternative approach to health care, should co-operate with medicine.

6) Medical doctors should refer patients requiring manipulation to doctors of chiropractic as they are the best equipped by their education and training to carry out spinal manipulation safely and effectively.

7) No scientifically oriented person can any longer deny or ignore the obvious clinical results of chiropractors, nor can they sweep the obvious results "under a rug" as though they had never happened. And, the only unscientific posture can be to ignore or to reject the obvious fact that chiropractic is a vital, safe and effective therapy.

8) When an M.D. chooses not to co-operate with chiropractic on an ethical basis, he justifies denying the patient's health by rationalizing his position.

There is a change coming in Canada: The Consumer's Association of Canada (B.C.) agree that consumers should have the right to exercise their choice of practitioner. "We recognize that many people have found chiropractors to be helpful," says Ada Brown, chairperson of CAC (B.C.). "But by barring chiropractors hospitals are preventing freedom of choice which is every patients' right," she said.

Outstanding institutions are leaders in innovation. Hospitals have to choose between being outstanding and mediocre. I think the population deserves the best.

Death notice showed little respect

Dear Sir,

I have always regarded your paper as a family-oriented paper but feel that you overstepped the bounds of propriety in the copy of June 25, 1987. I am referring to the publishing of the farcical death notice of the Montreal Alouettes under the same heading as the normal death notices.

I feel that this shows very little respect and understanding for the families and loved ones of those who genuine death notices shared the same page. I would request that the editor and management publish a public apology and a solemn commitment to refrain from such crass activity in the future.

Yours truly,

Thank you for a lovely birthday gift

An open letter to
Mr. G. Jobel, Chairman,
Hatley Municipal Association

Dear Mr. Jobel,
Highest congratulations to the people of Hatley! Our pioneer families would be proud to see what the clever, cooperative and peace-loving people living in Hatley in 1987 organized in the way of a joyful celebration.

The leading poster in the parade (hand-made, of course) said: "We're proud to be Canadians." That pride was demonstrated throughout the day with dignity, humour, imagination, and joy. The green-faced witch, the real apple tree laden with red fall fruit, the most arresting officer of the Bowen tribe, the sourdough bagles, the nimble rainbow-hued cloggers, the children searching for coins in the haystack, the thought-provoking literature on food irradiation, the infectious laugh of the president of Alliance Quebec directing traffic into the parking field, and the friendly wave of the mayor of Hatley, also directing cars as people left in the afternoon... these were but a few of the delights of the day.

This is a tremendous undertaking for a small community. When a tiny village receives thousands of visitors in one day with no unpleasant incidents, we can be sure that there are some very skilled and experienced people in charge. Mr. McKinven's dogs gently but firmly manoeuvring the fat, woolly sheep and the proud white Chinese geese around the green common was delightfully symbolic of what was going on all day without our even realizing it. It's no small task to keep control of the space available — keep the common and road round it free of cars; provide pastoral parking space and see that the cars are parked in an orderly way even with no lines painted on the stubble; clear the common of people and yet provide adequate viewing space to watch the show. The whole thing could so easily get out of control, but instead we were given a beautiful day.

Thank you for a lovely birthday gift.

Yours sincerely,
JOYCE BOOTH

Berlin of Adolf Hitler's dreams are just paper

By Michael Stott

WEST BERLIN (Reuter) — As Berlin celebrates its 750th anniversary this year, the city is very different from the vision held by Adolf Hitler.

He imagined a huge boulevard emerging from a vast echoing railway station, its 6.4-kilometre stretch straddled by an arch twice the size of Paris's Arc de Triomphe and lined by monumental buildings.

The Nazi dictator's grandiose vision for Berlin after the Second World War saw the city as the capital of the Thousand Year Reich of Germania, an empire stretching from Scotland to the Urals.

Instead, a concrete wall divides East and West Berlin, cutting a swathe through what used to be the city's heart. And the scars of war are still all too visible in the hastily rebuilt centre on both sides of the barrier.

Historians say Hitler told the wife of his architect Albert Speer: "Your husband will construct buildings for me, the likes of which have not been seen for 4,000 years."

SCALE IMPERIAL

"It was pure propaganda build-ding," said Theodor Boell, curator of the Prussian Cultural Foundation's architectural collection in Berlin.

"The idea was to completely overpower visitors with the scale of the buildings, rather like in Imperial Rome."

By 1938, work had begun on the giant building program.

The central Siegesallee, or Victory Boulevard, was the key to the plan. Running north to south, it was to terminate in the Hall of the Millions, a vast domed building 300 metres high — big enough to accommodate 180,000 supporters. A further one million could have assembled outside, in the Koenigsplatz square.

The plan, said Wolfgang Schaeche, an architectural historian and expert on Hitler's blueprint, defies conventional art-historical criticism.

PART OF PLAN

"It is quite impossible to divorce the architectural and aesthetic elements from the whole political and social context of the program," he said.

"When I look at the architecture of the Hall of the Millions, I see six million exterminated Jews."

Lining the Siegesallee would have been a series of ministries, government offices and headquarters of major German firms, all in a uniform, monolithic style.

Hitler took a keen interest in the project throughout, often intervening with sketches and suggestions of his own, which Speer incorporated.

But when Speer's father, himself an architect, saw his son's work he was appalled.

"You've gone absolutely mad," the elder Speers told his son.

FORCED LABOR

The plan called for the demolition of some 52,000 apartments. Experts have estimated its possible cost at the equivalent of about $140 billion Cdn in today's money.

The workers would have been an army of forced laborers from the conquered nations of Europe.

"In the first year after the war, Speer planned to use 180,000 prisoners of war on the Siegesallee alone," Schaeche said.

Even after hostilities began, Hitler insisted that building work carry on. "Technically and practically, there is no doubt that the project was perfectly realizable," Schaeche said. "The planning work was carried out with the same cold, terrifying precision with which the Nazis planned the recycling of gold from the teeth of murdered Jews in concentration camps."

"The work was so detailed that teams of meteorologists had already calculated the risks of clouds forming inside the dome of the Hall of Millions."

ALL GONE

The program as due to be finished in 1950. But only a couple of the proposed buildings along the Siegesallee were ever constructed by the time of Nazi Germany's defeat in 1945: the House of German Tourism and a new wing of the chancellery.

Today nothing survives of them. The chancellery was destroyed by Soviet troops after the war, and the tourism ministry knocked down in 1966 to make way for a new library.

Unlike Hitler, Speer survived the war, serving 20 years in jail for his involvement with the Nazi forced labor program. He died six years ago in a London hospital.

Farm and Business

Asian immigrants 'my best workers' — strawberry farmer

Picker shortage worries fruit farmers; under minimum pay

By Marilynne Garneau

QUEBEC (CP) — Farmers are worried the province's improved economy and fewer unemployed people may lead to a shortfall of workers to bring in this year's harvests.

Robert Dagenais, a spokesman for L'Union des producteurs agricoles, Quebec's provincewide farmers' group, said the 137,000 pickers who worked last year will not be enough because of a 20-per-cent increase in demand.

More workers are needed largely because of this year's improved apple and strawberry crops. The strawberries are being picked now while apples will be harvested in late summer and early fall.

Dagenais said up to 160,000 workers will be needed and that as many as 8,000 jobs may go begging this year.

He blamed part of the problem on Quebec's growing economy and reduced unemployment.

"When the economy goes bad like in the beginning of the '80s, it's easier to find workers," said Dage-nais. "But when things improve, we have problems like any other sector, it becomes tougher."

NOT COVERED

The jobs, which last for a few weeks at most, involve manual labor and aren't especially well-paying. While some farmers pay the minimum wage of $4.35 an hour, many do not because agricultural workers aren't covered by the provincial minimum wage law.

"The market garden producers who are offering $3.50 an hour for digging black earth under a hot sun all day are having a lot of difficulty finding workers," said Dagenais.

In good weather, these workers can make $140 for a 40-hour work week. If it rains, they don't get paid.

Even welfare recipients and the unemployed are not interested because they make more money staying at home than working on a farm, he said.

Most of the seasonal workers are recent immigrants and high school students, but farmers even have a hard time holding onto the students.

At the beginning of last year's strawberry harvest, farmers hired 1,000 students. Two weeks later, the number had fallen to only 200, said Dagenais.

Mario Tremblay, 16, travelled to Ile d'Orleans, 200 kilometres south of his home in Jonquiere, to work on a strawberry farm for the summer, but quit after only four days on the job.

"It really isn't worth the pain," he said. Rain prevented him from working, and therefore getting paid, on two of the days.

Maurice Vaillancourt, one of the largest strawberry producers in the Quebec City region, said he prefers to hire immigrants rather than students.

"A lot of Asians can pick 80 bushels of strawberries a day," said Vaillancourt. "During the same period, youngsters from around here pick 30 or 35."

Of 100 pickers he's hired this year, more than a third are Asian immigrants who have been in Quebec for just a few months. "They're my best workers," he said.

Brits buy Toronto agriculture firm

MONTREAL (CP) — The $361 million a British conglomerate will pay Canadian Pacific Ltd. for its Maple Leaf Mills was "top dollar" and an "unbelievable price," say securities analysts in Montreal and Toronto.

The sale of the Toronto-based agricultural company, subject to approval by Investment Canada and shareholders of Hillsdown Holdings PLC, gave an initial boost to CP stock on the Toronto and Montreal exchanges with a gain of five-eighths to $27.25 on Monday. The stock fell one-eighth on Tuesday.

Peter von Ond of McNeil Mantha Ltd. said Tuesday that the deal was "a very good" one for CP Ltd. because he expected Maple Leaf to go for between $250 million and $300 million.

"Anyone who's willing to pay $361 million for it is welcome to it," said von Ond. "It's an unbelievable price."

Von Ond said the sale will likely be the last major disposal of assets by CP this year.

Neil Wickham of Walwyn Stodgell Cochran Murray Ltd. agreed with von Ond on the price Hillsdown will pay.

"I would have thought a purchase price of between $250 million and $300 million would be adequate."

DIDN'T FIT

CP had said four months ago when it put Maple Leaf on the block that it wanted to rearrange its portfolio. Last year, it sold CP Air Lines and its majority interest in Cominco Ltd.

Harold Wolkin, an analyst with Nesbitt Thomson Deacon Inc., said every sale CP has made has been successful and in the end it got "top dollar" for Maple Leaf.

"It's no wonder the stock is strong," he said.

Wolkin said CP will probably use the proceeds to strengthen its balance sheet, pay down debt and put more money into remaining subsidiaries.

Maple Leaf Mills employs 4,200 and manufactures flour, baking mixes and cereals under the brand names Maple Mills, Monarch, Red River, Purity and Cream of the West.

It also has a 63-per-cent interest in Corporate Foods Ltd., one of Ontario's largest bakers, a 69-per-cent of Eastern Bakeries Ltd. in the Maritimes and a 40-per-cent stake in the large western baker, McGavin Foods Ltd.

The Hillsdown group, which employs more than 30,000 people, includes interests in food manufacturing, furniture, timber, stationary, real estate and travel.

CP said in a statement Monday that Hillsdown "intends to retain and develop all of the divisional operations of Maple Leaf Mills and the businesses of its subsidiaries."

SELL ASSETS

However, Ian Osler of Prudential-Bache Securities Canada Inc., said that Hillsdown might want to sell certain Maple Leaf assets and focus on flour milling.

"It might not want to keep poultry and rendering, for example."

Investment Canada will likely approve the deal although a dozen Canadian companies apparently bid on Maple Leaf, the analysts said.

"There has been quite a lot of interest out there," a CP spokesman confirmed. He would not name the other companies which bid on Maple Leaf, which had consolidated sales and revenues last year of about $828 million. Profit was $16 million.

Hillsdown profit last year was $110 million on revenue of more than $3 billion.

Massicotte: A question of timing

MONTREAL (CP) — It's all a matter of timing, says Paul Massicotte of Alexis Nihon Group, smiling like a Cheshire cat. "I feel great. I wouldn't mind buying something else."

Massicotte, 35-year-old chief executive of the Montreal real-estate and venture-capital group, was commenting after announcing an agreement to buy Sutter Hill Developments Ltd., a Toronto real estate firm, from Imasco Ltd. That was on Thursday.

On Friday he closed the sale of 5.3 million square feet of land north of Dorval airport, just as the site became embroiled in a zoning battle with municipal authorities.

Timing. The Sutter Hill purchase marks Alexis Nihon's first major foray into national and international real estate.

For about $200 million, it will get all the shares in a company, with eight properties in the Toronto area, four in Calgary, four in Edmonton, two in Vancouver and one in Miami. Thirteen are shopping centres. The rest are of-rice buildings. Running that sort of investment is going to be quite a change, but Massicotte is confident.

"I think we're going to get this purchase under control in nine months," he says. "Then we'll do something else."

Alexis Nihon, named after its Belgian-born founder, is a privately-held company and doesn't issue business figures. But public relations official Claude Amann says the Sutter Hill purchase will almost double Nihon's size.

Bernard Van der Stichele, an analyst with Geoffrion Leclerc, says the purchase is a natural for Massicotte and his team of advisers.

"They wanted to expand. They know real estate and they know what they're doing."

Michael Catford, vice-president of Royal LePage, says it was a good deal and the price was a bargain.

Alexis Nihon began talks with Imasco two months ago but negotiations stalled. Then on May 25 Imasco announced it had agreed in principle to sell to another company.

Ten days ago, Imasco's broker, McLeod Young Weir Ltd., got in touch with Alexis Nihon, Massicotte says, and "hinted we get close to the file. So we did."

FELT COMFORTABLE "This time around we were more comfortable with the issues. So we went in and signed."

"I'm sure if we had delayed two days the deal would have been gone."

Massicotte says Alexis Nihon will remain a private company, controlled by the Nihon family in the Bahamas, but shares in Sutter Hill may be sold to the public.

Massicotte, a Manitoban, was formerly chief financial officer of a Winnipeg-based real estate firm, Marwest Group. In 1983, he met Robert Nihon, son of the founder, in Toronto, and two years later was asked to join the company.

After less than a year as vice-president for finance he got the top job.

As Massicotte puts it, it's all a question of timing.

University rector Cabana joins IBC

SHERBROOKE (JES) — Aldée Cabana, rector of the University of Sherbrooke, was named to the board of governors of the Institute of Canadian Bankers (IBC).

The board, presided over by M.J. Cotton of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, is made up of institutional bankers and Canadian scholars. Its function is to develop and strengthen the teaching policies of the continuing education program put forth by the IBC.

The program is aimed at bank employees interested in increasing their knowledge of business management. The courses, offered in about 40 universities across the country, lead to certification, licensing and an MBA. The board meets four times a year to check on the efficiency of the program and to improve on it if necessary.

Cabana received his bachelor, masters and doctorate in chemistry at the University of Montreal. He then pursued post-doctoral studies at Princeton University in New Jersey. He joined the teaching staff at the University of Sherbrooke in 1963, later becoming the dean of sciences, a member of the university council, and president of the council of the faculty of science. He is now the rector, member of the corporation, and president of the university council at the University of Sherbrooke.

He has received countless awards and distinctions and is a member of the administration council of the National Research Council of Canada.

— The Ontario Securities Commission's investigation of improper trading was not sparked by the Securities and Exchange Commission's investigation of the insider trading scandal on Wall Street, the commission said Monday.

Reports have said an investigation by the SEC led to the Ontario investigation.

"The SEC is not involved in the investigation," said Jim Turner, the commission's general counsel, "And, to the best of my knowledge, the investigation did not get underway because of the SEC."

Turner would not comment on what did trigger the investigation into trading activities of certain employees of several unidentified institutions and investment dealers.

— Union Enterprises Ltd.'s restructuring plan is an attempt to take away the rights of shareholders and should be voted down, a leading pension fund manager said Monday.

Toronto-based Union Enterprises, which is 60-per-cent owned by Unicom Canada Corp., announced Friday that it will seek shareholder approval for a plan that would give investors a direct stake in the highly profitable Union Gas Ltd. of Chatham, Ont.

Common shareholders of Union Enterprises would exchange each voting share for a non-voting preferred share in Unigas Corp., a new company which would own 100 per cent of the natural gas utility.

Stephen Jarislowsky, a Montreal investment manager and leading advocate of minority shareholders' rights, said the plan "is just another attempt to disenfranchise shareholders."

"My recommendation is that everybody vote against it," he added.

OTTAWA (CP) — The dumping onto the Canadian market of small gas-powered chain saws produced in the U.S., Sweden and West Germany is injuring the production of similar saws in Canada, the Canadian Import Tribunal has ruled. The ruling, made last week, followed an earlier ruling by the Department of National Revenue that the chain saws were being dumped on the Canadian market.

A duty equal to the margin of dumping has been imposed on the foreign producers.

Little is ever paid out in dumping duties, however, as producers who are hit with the duty generally raise their prices to acceptable levels rather than pay the duty.

Dumping occurs when producers sell their products in a foreign country at a price below their domestic selling price.

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian newsprint industry operated at 97 per cent capacity in May, compared with 94 per cent for the same month a year earlier, the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association says.

The average operating rate for the five months through May rose to 98 per cent from 92 per cent for the same period in 1986.

Newsprint production in May was 816,000 tonnes, up 4.3 per cent from the same month in 1986, while shipments to all markets were 815,000 tonnes, an increase of 5.9 per cent.

Newsprint consumption in the United States reached 1.066 million tonnes in May, the highest monthly total this year and three per cent higher than in May, 1986.

CALGARY (CP) — Intera Technologies Ltd. has signed a six-year, $58-million deal to supply aircraft, staff and equipment to the Canadian Coast Guard for an ice monitoring system.

The contract, signed by Intera president Brian Bullock and Harvie Andre, federal minister of consumer and corporate affairs, will create 13 jobs directly and up to 600 due to spinoff sales.

The Calgary-based company has about 300 employees in Canada. Under the deal, radar systems will be mounted on jet aircraft to monitor the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the East Coast up to Baffin Bay and the northern Arctic.

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre Peladeau, president of Quebecor Inc., said Tuesday the company has completed the acquisition of the controlling interest of Donohue Inc. from the Quebec government.

Quebecor owns 51 per cent of Mircor Inc. which paid $320 million to buy Quebec's majority interest in Donohue, a manufacturer of newsprint, pulp and lumber. The remaining 49-per-cent interest in Mircor is controlled by British Printing and Communication Corp. of London.

Pardon possible for the patient offender

Q. My son was found guilty of breaking and entering a year ago and he was sentenced to a fine and a year on probation. The year is now over and I would like to know if he must state that he has a criminal record if he applies for a job.

A. There is an act called the Criminal Records Act designed to help people erase a mistake of the past. Any person may apply for a pardon when they have been found guilty of a criminal offense under the Criminal Code of Canada, the Narcotic Control Act, the Food and Drug Act or the Income Tax Act.

A pardon is not given automatically, it must be applied for and is granted only after the results of an inquiry conducted in most cases by the RCMP.

Eligibility for a pardon is calculated from the date a sentence imposed was fully satisfied, whether it was a fine, a period of incarceration or a period of probation.

The waiting period can vary between one and five years, depending upon the seriousness of the crime and type of conviction (summary conviction or conviction under indictment).

If the offense is punishable on summary conviction, (most minor offences), the waiting period is two years from the date the sentence was satisfied. If the person was found guilty and given a conditional discharge, the waiting period is one year from the date the probation period ended; if it was an absolute discharge, the time is one year from the date the discharge was handed down.

Legally speaking

A pardon is not required for charges that were withdrawn or dismissed because they are not recorded as convictions. Your son would be eligible to apply for a pardon in one year that is one year after the end of the period of probation. Once your son has received the pardon, it constitutes evidence that the conviction of a criminal offence should no longer have an unfavorable effect on his life.

Jacqueline Kouri is an attorney in private practice in Lennoxville, Que. All queries or comments should be addressed to The Record, P.O. Box 1200, Sherbrooke, Que. J1K 1A1.

Aging a positive experience — counsellor

By Judy Creighton

The Canadian Press

Although people are living longer, most services for seniors still operate as if their clients won't survive much past 65, a Calgary counsellor says.

A person reaching 65 today may well live another 20 to 25 years, says Jeanne Schnell, co-ordinator of a program that helps older adults improve their well-being.

"The fastest growing population is in the over-85 group," she adds, and services for older adults must start reflecting that change.

Schnell challenges the attitude that getting old is undesirable or frightening, and the assumption that all learning is done when one is young.

"When we become adults we are supposed to know everything. Let me quote actress Katharine Hepburn, who said: 'Youth is a gift of nature, but age is a work of art.' We never lose the need for personal growth."

TOOK A COURSE

Schnell, a registered nurse, took a course that changed the direction of her career.

"In 1976, I heard about the SAGE group — senior actualization and growth exploration — in California," she said. "This group, which recognized the potential of older people to grow and change, considered the body, mind and spirit to be equally important in personal growth."

After attending the SAGE workshop, Schnell returned to Calgary and began designing and leading classes in personal growth for seniors as well as working in staff development and volunteer training.

She brought her experiences to a recent Summer Institute on Gerontology at McMaster University in Hamilton.

COME ALIVE

To counter what she calls the negative movement in the 1970s — where every conference, paper and perception dealt with the "problems of aging" — Schnell devised a program under the auspices of the Alberta Council on Aging entitled Come Alive at 65, or more simply Fully Alive.

The program challenges attitudes and beliefs about aging which have a "profound impact on how we feel about ourselves as we get older and how we treat others who are aging.

"Through the program, we want to encourage participants to view aging as a normal, necessary part of life with its own unique possibilities for growth."

The program is based on three basic principles of health promotion.

The first places responsibility for poor health habits on the individual. This gives people options to improve their health, rather than concentrating on poor health habits of the past.

Then, Schnell said, there is the "wellness" approach.

"This is based on the belief that people will make health changes more successfully for positive reasons than for negative reasons. In this approach, we do not preach the ill consequences of bad health habits, but instead talk about the positive aspects of health such as feeling energetic, laughing, looking good, sleeping better, handling stress better and having a zest for life."

Finally, the program offers a support system.

"Few people fail at health changes because they are lazy, dumb or unconcerned," Schnell said. "They fail because our culture puts up too many barriers to successful changes."

The Fully Alive program encourages participants to support each other in maintaining positive life changes, not only in this group, but by connecting them with other groups that deal with specific health problems, such as Alcoholics Anonymous, weight-control groups and the Arthritis Society.

Victims traumatized by break-ins

TORONTO (CP) — Margaret Wilson came home to a jolting welcome one Sunday night shortly before last Christmas.

Burglars had broken into her house in London, Ont., and ransacked every cupboard and drawer.

They had stolen her coffee-maker, television, jewelry, a kitchen mat and Christmas gifts from under her tree.

They even went through her refrigerator and took orange juice, raisins, three dozen home-made Christmas cookies, "and an old pizza shell that had been in the freezer for about a year," says Wilson.

Nothing — not even the pizza shell — was ever found or returned. The identity of the thieves remains a mystery. But Wilson is still feeling the psychological effects of being one of the 217,000 Canadians who reported break-ins last year.

"You feel like you're being watched all the time," she says. "When you come home, you never know what you're going to find."

"It's an invasion of privacy."

WORST PERIODS

Summer and the weeks around the Christmas-New Year's holidays are "the two prime times for household burglaries," says Barry Weaymouth, an expert with Winnipeg-based Astro-Guard Security Systems, which has dealers throughout Canada.

Guild meets

SOUTH STUKELY — St. Matthew's Ladies Guild met at the home of Mrs. Joan Moore, Orford Lake, with a good attendance.

President Margaret Wright opened the meeting with the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison, thanked the hostess and welcomed the members.

Secretary Myrtle McLellan read the minutes of the previous meeting. Thank-you letters were read from the Sherbrooke Hospital and the BMP Hospital, Sweetburg, for the donations received, also a thank-you letter from Mrs. Blanche Martin for the lovely plant sent to her. This was moved by Mildred Bowering and seconded by Lucy Wright.

Treasurer Celia Gamache read her report showing all bills paid and a good balance on hand.

Mrs. Myrtle McLellan gave a donation to St. Matthew's Church in memory of her sister-in-law Mrs. Harold Boulter and Mrs. Joan Moore gave a donation to St. Matthew's Ladies Guild, all was greatly appreciated.

The hostess served delicious refreshments, assisted by Celia, Margaret, Nellie and Eileen, bringing a very enjoyable afternoon to a close.

Wedding day ends in tragedy when drag-racers plow into limo

Dear Ann Landers: I know you've read a great many sad letters over the years, but this one will be one of the most heartbreaking. I hope you will print it because it points out how unnecessary some tragedies are.

A young couple's wedding day ended in sorrow when their limousine was broadsided by a car as they were turning into the reception parking lot.

The groom and the best man (brothers) were killed instantly, and the bride and her maid of honor (sisters) are in critical condition.

The best man left a wife and two small children. The bride's leg had to be amputated two days ago. Yesterday they buried both the young men.

How did this terrible accident happen? Two wild kids were drag-racing on the highway. One was going 85 m.p.h. when he plowed into the limo.

My own darling daughter was married three months ago and when I think that this could have happened to her I want to scream. I hope every reader who has attended a wedding in the last six months will put herself or himself in the place of the parents of those maimed and killed. Something must be done to get the maniacs off the streets and highways. Any suggestions? — Heartsick in Long Island

Dear L.L.: And I am Heartsick in Chicago. What a story.

We need more police on the lookout for the lunatics, and when they are caught they must be made to put in several hundred hours of community service, pay a stiff fine, attend rehabilitation sessions that involve viewing films of similar crashes.

They should be taken to hospital emergency rooms and forced to look at victims who are brought in after other car crashes. In my opinion this approach would be great deal more effective than sending the culprits to jail.

Dear Ann Landers: This is in response to your recent column about the 13-year-old boy who was short for his age.

My son at 13 was also the runt of his class and the butt of many jokes. His tall father felt it was a reflection on his genes. Over my objections he dragged the boy to an endocrinologist. Thank God he was a sensible and caring doctor and refused to give the boy shots. He said, "Leave him alone. Give him time to grow normally." (Actually our son was not tiny, just a bit undersized compared to most boys his age.)

Two year later my husband died. My son started to catch up on his 15th birthday and kept growing until he was 21. The "runt" is now 31 and over six feet tall.

Your advice to the other boy's mother was excellent, but my letter goes one step further. I urge parents to accept your sons just as they are — short, tall, skinny, whatever. Give them loving support, and let them know you love them just as God made them. — H.H. in New York

Dear H.H.: May I grab your coattails and add one more thought? Children (girls as well as boys) should be loved for what they are, now how they look. Entirely too much emphasis is placed on beauty, the ideal figure and other superficial garbage that doesn't amount to a hill of beans in the long run. Thanks for saying it so well.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sure I speak for millions when I say I am sorry you have decided to retire.

You've done a wonderful job all these years and deserve the freedom that retirement will offer. Goodbye and God bless. — C.D.R., Cleveland

Dear Cleve: Retire? Who, me? Surely you jest. I can't imagine anything less appealing. I plan to appear in this space as long as the good Lord gives me the strength to belt out the column. Thanks for caring.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm one of those old gaffers you write about who is unable to "rise to the occasion."

I can't speak for others, but I do know that my wife's ridiculing has been a major factor in my bedroom failures. I'm not exactly an Adonis, but it might be a good idea if she took a good look at herself with no clothes on in a full-length mirror before she crawled into bed. No name or initials, please just — Not Hacking It in Wisconsin

Dear Not Hacking: Show her this column and say, "Ann Landers printed my letter today."

Enlist her help to make life better for both of you. If she's willing to cooperate, she'll win, too. Good luck.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm still burning over the letter from the woman who insulted men who wear beards. Can a male get equal time to respond?

The subject I'd like to address is makeup. What is the real reason females adorn their faces with gobs of paint? Are they trying for the Clown of the Year award? Is it an attempt to cover up dirt? Are they trying to pave over pimples, acne or pockmarks?

If you print this I'll eat the newspaper. — Waco

Dear Waco: Here's your rebuttal. And now, sir, start nibblin'.

Townships Peace Group News

GEORGEVILLE (CG) — Youth Nuclear Disarmament Tour - Seth Klein, 18, Alison Carpenter, 18, Desiree McGraw, 17 and Maxime Faillie, 18, have seen Canada the way not many other people have, from the stages of platforms in gyms of high schools across the country. These remarkable kids from Montreal have taken one school year to travel across Canada with the goal of informing as many teens as possible about nuclear disarmament. In our area they appeared at Alexander Galt Regional High School and Bishop's College School. Their success has been so tremendous that they had been invited to be part of the Canadian delegation to the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War Congress in Moscow held May 29 - June 1. They also had been asked to speak in several schools in the San Francisco area, May 21 - 23.

We feel that this is an incredible opportunity for Russian and American teenagers to communicate and meet with these extraordinary Canadians to exchange ideas and to learn more about each other. These kids need funds to cover their air fares and expenses. They have already raised quite a bit in their cross-Canada journey by selling T-shirts but wish to have enough for future networking and a hoped-for youth conference in Canada. Following the Congress in Moscow the group visited schools and colleges in Russia. The Townships Peace Group donated a sum of money and if you wish to show your support for these adventurous hopeful young people, you can send a donation, even though it may be only a little, to: Youth Nuclear Disarmament Tour, 610 Victoria Avenue, Westmount, Quebec, H3Y 2R9. For a very good, detailed account on the Tour, read Sally Armstrong's article in the May 16th issue of Canadian Living.

Celebrates 50th birthday

STANSTEAD (IH) — Melvin Dustin was 50 years on July 5, and a party took place at the family home attended by 30 friends invited by his wife Phyllis and daughters Cindy and Cathy.

After everyone had arrived and wished Mel a happy birthday and a wish for many more, the barbecues were lighted and hotdogs and hamburgers cooked, along with toasted rolls. The ladies had brought salads, chips and other goodies and there were beverages for all to enjoy.

Mel was presented with a decorated cake inscribed with "Happy Birthday, Dad" by his daughters. There was another celebrant, Jean West and she was also presented with a cake by Thelma Middleton.

Mel opened his gifts and many humorous cards.

The fun continued into the afternoon with swimming in the pool and lawn games.

Guests attended from Waterville, Lennoxville, Rock Island, Stanstead and Beebe.

Put your love to the test.

How much love do you have to give? Answer these simple questions and find out.

If I saw a lost, frightened child on my street, I would immediately stop and help.

YES NO

I often feel frustrated and helpless when I see a news story about desperately poor or sick children.

YES NO

I believe that no child should ever have to do without nourishing food, decent housing, medical care, or schooling.

YES NO

I think that the best way to help children is not through hand-outs—but rather, by teaching families and communities to help themselves.

YES NO

I believe that impoverished children should receive help within their own families.

YES NO

I especially wish there were an effective way I could personally help just one desperately poor child and family.

YES NO

If I could be assured that my money was being spent effectively, I would definitely consider helping.

YES NO

If I could help a child for as little as 75¢ a day, I would.

YES NO

If you answered "YES" to these questions, you are the kind of person who can help a desperately poor child overseas... through Foster Parents Plan. In fact, for just 75¢ a day, you can make it possible for the child and family you sponsor to have medical care, decent housing, schooling... and hope. Imagine. Your spare change could change a child's life.

Foster Parents Plan lets you help your Foster Child within the child's own family. And more, the small amount you give goes toward teaching families and communities to work together—by growing more food, digging wells, and building schools. You'll see the results for yourself.

Through pictures. Detailed progress reports. And letters from your Foster Child.

How can you sponsor a child now and pass the test of love? Just answer "YES". Mail this entire application, or call toll-free 1-800-268-7174.

Your love does make the difference.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Taylor returned on Monday evening, June 22nd, from a month's trip of travelling with their "Prowler" model camper trailer. They went by way of Sudbury, Ont. and crossed into U.S.A. at Sault Ste. Marie, then on westward through Northern Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota. On the fourth night they arrived at the home of their son, Myron Taylor, and spent a week with him on the Lambott grain ranch near Ruyard, Montana where he is employed. They spent the next week with their older son Stanley and wife Jackie, in Great Falls, Montana, Paul and Eleanor's granddaughter Erica had come down with the chicken-pox a few days before their arrival but was feeling better before they left. The Taylors then travelled down to Broadus, Montana, which is the area where Paul was employed on cattle and grain ranches before his retirement last July. They parked their trailer for a week on the Edwards ranch and visited old friends who warmly welcomed them back to Montana. During that week they were entertained by Louise and Jerry Alderman, Dorothy Edwards, Frances Mitchell, Jim and Iris Neiman, and Stanley and Georgia Danam, all good friends and neighbours of the Taylors when they lived along the Powder River. On their last day in Montana, June 13th, Paul and Eleanor attended the 50th wedding anniversary of Gladys and Buster Deibel, Paul's former employers, held in Miles City, Montana. This

Muddying the waters

By James Jacoby

For all the years I have known him, Al Roth has been an outstanding player, theorist, writer and teacher in the world of bridge. He has also been a "system" player, with a reputation for adhering to his own espoused methods. Thus it was with great interest that I read about one of his early exploits in the Granovetter's new book, "Tops and Bottoms" (Granovetter Books, 80-85 Dumfries Place, Jamaica, NY 11432 — $11.95 postpaid). Bearing in mind that this deal took place in 1942, you can readily see that the bidding methods used by Roth (seated South) were unusual, to say the least.

Because Al had shown diamonds instead of clubs, he received the opening lead of his best suit. He assumed that lead to be from four cards, so to further complicate the opponents' defense, he ducked, playing the eight. East continued the suit. Declarer won the club ace and played a low heart to the nine in dummy, forcing the queen. Now East shifted to a diamond, but it was too late. Al cashed his club winners, played a spade to the ace, and came off dummy with the heart jack, smothering the 10 in West's hand to make his contract. This was the 1942 National Open Pairs, and Al and his partner, Tobias Stone, won the event. Their opponents on this round, Harry Fishbein and Waldemar Von Zedtwitz, finished second. Do you think this deal mattered?

A new book by James Jacoby and his father, the late Oswald Jacoby, is now available at bookstores. It is "Jacoby on Card Games," published by Pharos Books.

happy occasion gave the Taylors a chance to see again all their old friends of the Coalwood, Volborg, and Olive area. On the night of June 16, the Taylors arrived at the home of Paul's sister Fern and husband Gordon Kirkby, in Thorold, Ont., where they spent a few days before returning to Birchton. On June 17, they crossed the border again to Buffalo, N.Y. where they had an interview with the Canadian consulate about obtaining their visas to live permanently in Canada.

This road has had the misfortune of several accidents. On June 4, the day of Kevin Warburton's sale, there were cars and pick-up trucks lined along the roadside, a loaded lumber truck was coming down the road and a car pulled out of the school yard to avoid hitting the car, the truck did some fancy turning and ended up with his load on top of a pick-up truck, demolishing it. Then in the early hours of June 13, a man from La Patrie was on his way to work at Citadelle Swimming Pool Co., a loaded truck was coming and a car passed it, the truck driver pulled out as much as he could. Afterwards trying to get back on track he lost control and went into the ditch on the opposite side of the road at Burns and Lajoie line. He was taken to hospital to be checked and while absent, he lost a thousand dollars worth of tools. The same evening, Bruce Batley and Fred Aubrey collided at the four corners, doing damage to their vehicles. In the early hours of Sunday morning June 14, a big bang was heard and it was a car hitting the guard rail of the Statton bridge, followed the rail a short way, then turned bottom side up, took the whole side out of the car. Mr. Boutin, the driver, was hurt and taken to hospital for a few days.

Mrs. Earl Dawson was in Montreal where she had a doctor's appointment. She also spent time visiting her sister, Mrs. Moday and brother, Mr. and Mrs. N. Wypruk. On the weekend she went to Ottawa to visit Miss Wilson, an aunt of Mr. Dawson, and stayed with his cousins there.

Mrs. Shirley Darker, Mrs. Verna Westgate, Mrs. Ileana Burns, Mrs. Evelyn Lister, Mrs. Ruby Banks and Mrs. Garfield Spaulding attended the UCW meeting and supper held at the United Church in Sawyerville.

Mrs. Robert Burns spent a few days in Dorval with her daughter Mrs. David Walker and Mr. Walker. On Sunday, Robert Burns and Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Burns were in Huntingdon where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Burns. Mrs. Burns returned home with them. They didn't find Bernice as well as they would have wished.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Maddiss, Cornwall, Ont., were visiting her sister Mrs. Ileana Burns.

Mrs. Dorcas French, Sherbrooke, spent a few days with her sisters Mrs. Ruby Banks and Mrs. Evelyn Lister and called on Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Spaulding. She also visited Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey

French and family in Flanders, and attended the Humes Anniversary in Sawyerville.

Garfield Spaulding and Mrs. Ruby Banks attended the funeral services of Mrs. Olive Bogie in Sherbrooke, being a close friend of Mrs. Banks, sympathy is extended to the family.

Mr. and Mrs. George Snook, Toronto, spent a couple of weeks at their mobile home at her sister's Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth French, and visited several of their relatives in the area.

The community was saddened when word was received of Mrs. Pauline McVetty's death. The McVettys lived in Learned Plain, then in Cookshire, where Mrs. McVetty taught school, so she was well known in the area. Sympathy is extended to all her relatives in Truman Walker and Harold Patterson both victims of a bad car accident were taken in separate ambulances to the CHU Hospital in Quebec. Later Truman was transferred to the L'Enfant Jesus Hospital for tests and X-rays while Harold remains in the CHU and will be there for some time due to broken bones and other injuries.

Lyman White and his mother motored to the L'Enfant Jesus Hospital and brought Truman home when he was released from hospital. Truman is presently recuperating at the home of his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. Mimnaugh in Huntingville.
Best wishes are extended to both Truman and Harold for a complete recovery from their injuries and very unfortunate accident.
Mr. and Mrs. W. Mimnaugh of Huntingville motored to Glen Murray, where they were callers at the Lyman White home. Mrs. Mimnaugh remained for a few days to help care for her brother Truman after which Helen Cox came for a few days to help out.

Thursday, July 9, 1987
In the year ahead, you may make some important changes in your work or career. The alterations will be happy ones enabling you to find a more profitable market for your wares and talents.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) The bigger the issue, the better you'll be able to handle it today. This should be especially true in a matter that affects your career status. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Matchmaker set can help you understand what it might take to restore the relationship. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Lady Luck tends to favor you today in situations that have strong elements of chance. This might be the right time to buy a lottery ticket.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You may experience some disruptions in your normal routines today. However, they'll be the types of distractions you'll welcome.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Exciting developments are stirring at this time regarding an arrangement you share with another. It's a turn for which both of you have been hoping.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Larger than usual gains can be derived today from work or service you perform for others. This propitious effect will be absent tomorrow.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you should be able to expand upon something good that you already have going for you. It's to your advantage to elevate your sights.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Anxieties you've been harboring regarding the outcome of an event could be put to rest today. It looks like you've been worrying in vain.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could be extremely fortunate through your friends and contacts today. Keep your lines of communication open so that you can be easily reached.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be alert for an unusual happening today that could have a favorable effect upon your financial well-being. The amount involved might be substantial.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) Wow! This could easily turn out to be a red-letter day for you involving a great deal of luck and joy. Maximize your opportunities.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be alert for an arrangement today where you can capitalize on something successful a confederate already has under way. It could be your lucky day.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Good things could happen for you today in your one-to-one dealings with others. Be open-minded and impartial.

United Church Women meet

MELBOURNE (SD) — The Melbourne Unit of the UCW of Richmond-Melbourne held their regular meeting on June 17 in the church hall. The leader, Leona Crack, opened the meeting by all repeating the purpose and welcomed the members present. The devotional period was led by Grace
 Dunn and taken from the Upper Room.

Roll call was answered by eight members making three local, 12
 Wales Home and five hospital calls and telling about a health superstition that is purely imaginative, which proved to be very amusing.
 The minutes were read and approved. Three members attended the picnic at Aline Healy's home.
 Beatrice Rodgers reported on the pleasant event and a special birthday cake was served by Mrs.
 Healy in honour of Beatrice Rodgers. A flea market held June 27 in the church hall. Suggested more visiting to be done to new mothers,
 Melbourne residence and shut-ins.
 More convenors to be responsible for different things at the church.
 The treasurer Vera Miller reported a sum of money to be given to general UCW Treasurer.

 The leader gave an interesting reading on the Ministry of Women.
 Collection for the Fellowship of the Least Coin amounted to $1.11.
 The next meeting on September 16 and everyone was wished a pleasant summer. The meeting closed by all repeating the Benediction.
 Leona Crack was in charge of the program and she and Vera Miller gave readings. A card game was led by Beatrice Rodgers. Lunch was served by the hostess, May Dubuc, and a social hour enjoyed.

SUTTON — In the afternoon of Wednesday, June 24, members of the UCW of Calvary United Church gathered in the hall for their final meeting of the season, it was also a birthday party to celebrate the UCW's 25th anniversary.
 The president Marjorie Thompson opened the meeting with all repeating the Purpose in unison. The devotional taken by Beth Travers was based on the life of John the Baptist, followed by a poem.

A short business meeting was held, during which a motion was passed to donate a sum of money to the church board soon.
 Games provided by Noreen Doherty were enjoyed with prizes given to the lucky winners.
 Hostesses for the day were Beth Travers and Angie Sherr, assisted by May Godbeer and Linda Go-cher. Delicious refreshments were enjoyed including birthday cake and ice cream. A social hour was spent, ending an enjoyable afternoon and another season of work for the UCW.
 Meeting will resume in September when a pot luck luncheon will be held in the hall by and for the members of the UCW.

Twelve alternatives to lashing out at your kid.

You don't have to lift a hand to hurt your child. Words hit as hard as a fist. The next time everyday pressures build up to such a pitch that you feel like lashing out...stop!
 And try any of these simple alternatives. Remember, take time out.
 Don't take it out on your kid.

Women's Institute hold regular meeting

KINNEAR'S MILLS—The June meeting of the Kinnear's Mills Women's Institute was held on June 3rd at the home of Dorothy Bolduc.

The meeting was conducted by the President, Edna Campbell, and opened by all repeating the Collect and Salute to the Flag. Six members and two guests were welcomed to the meeting.

Mildred Robinson, County President, was a visitor at the meeting, and gave a very interesting report of the Board meeting and Convention she had attended. Edna Campbell and Ann Marie Powell were present one day and each gave highlights of the day. All agreed it was an excellent convention.

Motto: Nature must have a sense of humour to let spring fever and house cleaning come at the same time; Roll call: Name the one place you would like to visit or talk about your wildest dream if you could make it happen.

In the absence of the Secretary, the minutes of the May meeting were read by Audrey Allan. The members had met and cleaned the Community Hall. A question was asked concerning the School Fair, and a discussion followed.

Treasurer's report was given by Dianne Allan in the absence of Helen Lowry.

Members who had bought roses, gave their money to the treasurer. All bills were paid.

Correspondence: The QWI Handicraft Competitor and the J. & P. Coats Competition for 1988 was passed around for the members to see.

Convenors' reports: Home Ec. and Health-Ann Marie Powell had a clipping "Ask what the Dr. ordered". She also had a very interesting article on lightning - 300 people are injured and 125 die by lightning each year in the USA.

A card party and sale will be held on Friday evening, October 23 at the Community Hall. Final plans will be made at the September meeting.

The question of having a picnic was brought before the members. The President named Ann Marie Powell and Dianne Allan to make plans for a summer gathering.

The draw box was won by Mildred Robinson.

The Agriculture convenor Dorothy Bolduc introduced Diedri Wenman, directrice for the Women's Farmers Union who spoke to us on the management level on an Agricultural enterprise. Since time, women have almost always been the unpaid employee or the silent partner, mostly invisible but so appreciated at meal time. Women have been ignored on a political basis and have never been consulted on decisions on a governmental level, which influences agriculture.

There is an urgent need to change this situation and women have got to have a voice for the problems which concern them and their families. Time has come to improve the quality of life on the farm, and to trace strong and easier footsteps for our sons and daughters to follow.

All members agreed this had been a most interesting topic, and felt now they had new ideas to improve the quality of life on the farm. The President thanked Diedri, and all were pleased when she became a member of the group.

A video "Women - all one Nation" was enjoyed by the members.

Delicious refreshments were served by Dorothy during a social hour.

Chapter No. 46 OES holds meeting

COOKSHIRE — Cookshire Chapter No. 46, OES held their June meeting in the IOOF Hall, Sawyerville, with Sister Mary Lou Burns presiding in the East.

The meeting was opened in regular form with flag presentation.

The secretary, Brother Fred Burns, P.G.P. read the minutes, which were approved as read.

The ceremony of draping the altar was performed in respect to the late Sister Pauline McVetty, a devoted member of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Correspondence was read by the secretary, and voted on, bills were presented, ordered to be paid, and other business conducted.

The collection was received, with several contributing to the birthday cake, and gave a few remarks concerning their birthday.

The meeting was closed in regular form, and refreshments served in the ante-room by the social committee.

Sher-Lenn 50 Plus Club closes for recess

June 17, a bus load and one private car motored to the Fisherman's Platter in Newport, Vt. for a most delicious dinner. While there, we were able to view several paintings, and our artists noticed how some were done using a dab method. Perhaps at our next art exhibition we might see that style.

At Newport the bus stopped for an hour at Ames and the IGA Store. I am sure the store was sold out of oatmeal bread. An enjoyable trip was had by all!

June 23 was the closing luncheon for the summer. Doris Shaw welcomed the members. As it was Margaret Tector's birthday, Dorothy Hughes-Games presented her with a lovely corsage. Happy birthday, Margaret, was sung by the members. Seated at the head table were Annie Wilson, Leslie Fales, Mrs. Charles Bleich, Margaret Tector, Edith Noonan, Gerald Noonan and Marguerite Mouldy. Those folks were the back bone of the club. Peggy Munkittrick said grace, a buffet style lunch was served. Guests for the occasion were Judy Crosby of Calgary and Dr. and Mrs. V. Marshall.

Doris Shaw thanked Peggy for organizing the committee in charge of the luncheon, and thanked all those who had brought salad for the meal. Doris also showed a poinsettia which the Craft class had made. Mrs. Drew had given them a demonstration on Monday and they already had a vase full for the Bazaar on November 7.

A large birthday cake was served for all those who had birthdays within the last few months, recent ones were Ruth Cillis and Mildred Knapp.

Door prizes: Helen McGregor, Roy Cillis, Edith Knapp, Ruth Britton, Mable Stafford, Leslie Fales, Emma Peasley, Ruth Millar, Phyllis Hazard, Florence Green and Gerald Decoteau. Special prizes, Vera Lemay, Phyllis Millar and Garnetta Rainey.

Peggy Munkittrick, on behalf of the members, presented Doris Shaw with a lovely throw for all the work she had done for the club, also a decorated birthday cake as her birthday is on July 13 when the club will be closed.

Whist was played, winners being Table No. 2, Captain Anna Bird, Evelyn Graham, Judy Crosby and M. MacRae, the other table was No. 4, Captain Phyllis Hazard, Dorcas French, Victor Belanger and Maurice Lennon. The two of spades was won by Chris Morrison.

The Sher-Lenn is closed for the month of July, and will see you all on August 4. Enjoy a good holiday!

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Parker spent ten days with Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Parker and girls in Ottawa, and while there, spent a couple of days with Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McArthur and family in Markham, Ont.

Sincere sympathy is extended to the relatives of the late Mrs. Pauline McVetty and to the Fraser family in the death of the late Mrs. Donald Fraser.

Women's Institute meet

WATERLOO — The June meeting of the Waterloo-Warden W.I. was held on the 3rd at the home of Mrs. Irene Galbraith with nine members and two visitors present.

Vice-Pres. Anita Hanna opened the meeting by repeating the Creed, in unison and singing the Ode.

Motto: Never let it be said of your tractor "Died of a broken part." Roll Call: Name a part of a tractor beginning with the initial of your surname.

Minutes of the last meeting were read by Sec. Irene Galbraith and the treasurer's report given by Mary Sicard. The annual County picnic was mentioned to be held on July 8, if weather permits, if not, it will be held on July 9 at the home of Mrs. J. Lussier, County President. More discussion about the picnic will be at next meeting on July 1st at the home of Mrs. Mary Emmett.

A contest was held, guessing the number of buttons in a jar, with Mrs. Maude Plunkett the prize winner, this being a package of homemade muffins. The contest was planned by Mary Emmett.

Meeting adjourned and lunch was served by Ruth Lefebvre and Audrey Marcotte.

The next meeting on July 1st with hostesses Mrs. Mary Sicard and Mrs. Dorothy Grenier.

Student receives book award

Penny Woodard, grade 1, Princess Elizabeth Elementary School, receives a book award from Mrs. Suzanne Petraki, Magog Home and School Association. Penny received the award for collecting most money among the students at the School's 1986-87 Read-a-thon. All students gathered in the gym at P.E.E.S. to hear the results and to congratulate Penny on this accomplishment. Happily, some 100 new books are purchased for the School's Library. Penny and her fellow readers are to be commended for a job well done!

Sebra does all for Expos win

HOUSTON (AP) — Montreal Expos pitcher Bob Sebra says he has turned his season around and the Houston Astros probably hope they don't have to see him again this season.

He allowed only five hits Tuesday night while pitching the Expos to a 2-0 National League baseball victory over the Astros.

Sebra, 5-9, also had the game-winning RBI when he singled home Montreal's first run in the second inning for his first RBI in 58 at-bats spanning two years in the major leagues.

The right-hander has allowed only two earned runs in 23 innings against the Astros this year. It was his first shutout of the season.

"After we had a 1-0 lead, it was weird," Sebra said. "I was very confident. I knew I could hold the lead."

After allowing five base runners in the first three innings on five hits, Sebra retired the last 18 batters.

"Since I was 3-8, I've taken it as a new season," Sebra said. "I don't think I have anything to prove." Montreal manager Buck Rodgers praised the work of Sebra, 25.

PITCHES GAME
"He pitched his third outstanding game in a row after getting off to a slow start," Rodgers said. "This was a fine game, and he pitched it when we needed it. We need a stopper-type guy like him. He only threw 121 pitches tonight."

Houston's second baseman Bill Doran just gave Sebra credit for a job well done.

"I'd be willing to bet if we took the top five games against us he had three of them," Doran said. "He has a great curve ball, and it's a credit to him that he stepped our lineup."

Loser Bob Knepper, 3-9, has lost seven of his last eight decisions, but he pitched well in eight innings of work.

"I was not too confident and aggressive coming in," Knepper said. "Later I got a little fired up and more comfortable going after batters with my curve and fast ball."

Knepper and Sebra had duelled earlier in a 1-0 game won by the Astros on April 12.

"Knepper pitched a great game against me and this time I got the win," Sebra said. "I felt like I was in control all the way."

Buck Rodgers... Sebra pitched well.

Dawson beamed by Padres' Show

By The Canadian Press
Baseball showed its ugly side at beautiful Wrigley Field on Tuesday.

Chicago's Andre Dawson was hit in the face by an Eric Show pitch in the third inning, triggering a benches-clearing brawl. After the National League game, won by the Cubs 7-5, the San Diego Padres insisted it was not intentional.

The Cubs weren't sure. Dawson, who hit his 24th homer in the first inning and seventh off the Padres this year, suffered lacerations of the lip and a contusion of the left cheekbone.

He was one of five Cubs ejected from the game. After Dawson was hit, pitcher Rick Sutcliffe came out of the dugout after Show and players from both teams ran onto the field.

Dawson remained face down on the ground for a couple of minutes but when he got up he also went after Show as another fight broke out.

Sutcliffe was thrown out as was Manny Trillo for throwing equipment onto the field. Chicago starter Greg Maddux and manager Gene Michael were tossed out in the fourth inning when Maddux hit Benito Santiago with a pitch. Reliever Scott Sanderson and coach Johnny Oates were ejected in the eighth when Sanderson threw a

Wilson hits mound after pitch

By The Canadian Press

Joe Carter's two-run homer in the ninth won the game 6-4 for the Cleveland Indians, but it was the fighting in the third that had the Kansas City Royals' clubhouse talking afterwards.

Royals centre fielder Willie Wilson was ejected from the American League baseball game Tuesday night in the third inning after Indians' pitcher Ken Schrom had thrown an 0-2 fastball to Wilson inside and high, causing Wilson to hit the dirt.

After Wilson fled out on the next pitch, he charged the mound and tackled Schrom, causing both benches to clear.

Kansas City manager Billy Gardner said he had no doubt who was to blame for the incident.

"I knew Schrom threw at him," Gardner said. "I had him (Schrom) for three years (at Minnesota) and I know what kind of control he's got. When you throw upstairs, throw at the head, well, I don't blame Willie."

Schrom said no intimidation was intended by his pitch. "Willie Wilson, why would I want to hit him? He can get on and steal second and third," Schrom said.

Wilson has 27 steals this season. FOLLOWS SINGLE

Carter's homer, his 18th, came off reliever Dan Quisenberry, 4-1. The homer followed a leadoff single by Tony Bernazard.

Cleveland's Doug Jones, 2-1, picked up the victory with 22-3 innings of hitless relief.

night, it was: Toronto Blue Jays 6, Texas Rangers 2; New York Yankees 12, Minnesota Twins 7; Detroit Tigers 6, Oakland Athletics 4; California Angels 9, Boston Red Sox 4; Chicago White Sox 9, Baltimore Orioles 3; and Seattle Mariners 9, Milwaukee Brewers 5.

Blue Jays 6 Rangers 2
Tony Fernandez hit a two-run double and Toronto took advantage of sloppy fielding by Texas in the fifth inning.

Blue Jays' starter Jim Clancy, 9-6, won for only the second time in his last nine starts. He entered the eighth with a three-hitter, but with one out Oddie McDowell hit his 10th homer to make the score 6-2. Tom Henke pitched the final 12-3 innings for his 15th save.

Yankees 12 Twins 7
New York rallied from a seven-run deficit with seven runs in the seventh inning and took the lead on consecutive wild pitches by Minnesota reliever Juan Berenguer in the eighth to end the Twins' four-game winning streak. After being blanked by former teammate Joe Niekro on four hits for six innings, the Yankees erased a 7-0 deficit, including home runs by Mike Pagliarulo and Rickey Henderson and pinch-hitter Gary Ward's game-tying two-run single.

White Sox 9 Orioles 3
Carlton Fisk drove in four runs with a two-run homer and double and Floyd Bannister pitched three-hit ball for seven innings as Chicago got its seventh win in nine games while Baltimore, which snapped a seven-game losing streak Monday, now has lost 31 of the last 37.

Tigers 6 Athletics 4
Bill Madlock hit a two-run homer and Frank Tanana, 8-5, pitched seven-hit ball for 61-3 innings as Detroit snapped Oakland's three-game winning streak. Lou Whitaker walked to lead off the game and Madlock followed with a two-run homer off Joaquin Andujar, 3-2. The Athletics made it 2-1 in their half of the inning on Mike Davis's 19th homer of the season.

Angels 9 Red Sox 4
Jack Howell and Bob Boone drove in three runs each as California beat Boston. Mike Witt, 10-5, allowed 11 hits and struck out four in 7 1-3 innings. DeWayne Buice pitched 1 2-3 innings for his eighth save.

Mariners 9 Brewers 5
Dave Valle highlighted a four-run Seattle first inning with a two-run homer and Jerry Reed pitched four innings of one-hit relief as the Mariners held on to beat Milwaukee. Starter Lee Guetterman, 7-1, worked five innings allowing five runs and seven hits, including three homers. Reed earned his second save.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Oakland Athletics pitcher Moose Haas will undergo elbow surgery Thursday and will likely miss the rest of the season, the American League baseball club announced Tuesday night.

Haas, 2-2 with a 5.79 earned run average and placed on the 21-day disabled list June 25, will fly to California and undergo arthroscopic surgery to remove bone spurs in his elbow.

A shoulder injury kept the right-hander out of action for most of last season, when he compiled a 7-2 record and a 2.74 ERA in only 12 starts. Haas has a lifetime record of 100-83.

NEW YORK (AP) — A sports agent proposed Tuesday that all agents accredited by the NFL Players Association post a $1-million performance bond which would be forfeited if the agent is caught violating NCAA regulations.

Jim Abernethy suggested that any agents found guilty of illegal practices also be discredited by the players association for one year.

"Our business has a terrible reputation," Abernethy said he hoped the $1-million bond would help "weed out the fly-by-night agents who work out of a phone booth and are only interested in quick cash."

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Seventh-seeded Jimmy Arias of the United States needed more than two hours to beat unseeded Christian Miniussi of Argentina 6-2, 6-7 (7-3), 6-2 in a first-round match Tuesday at the $239,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships.

There were two minor upsets as eighth-ranked Tarik Benhabiles of France fell 6-3, 7-5 to Tom Nijssen of the Netherlands, and Guillermo Perez-Roldan of Argentina, the 12th seed, bowed to Andrew Castle of Britain 7-6 (7-5), 6-2.

In other opening-round action, third-ranked Kent Carlsson of Sweden ousted American Jimmy Brown 6-4, 6-3; and sixth-seeded Aaron Krickstein of the U.S., defeated Fernando Luna of Spain 6-0, 6-1.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — San Francisco Giants outfielder Chili Davis was sent to hospital Tuesday with upper abdominal pain and will miss at least three games, the National League team said.

Davis complained to Giants trainer Mark Letendre that he was suffering discomfort. Davis later was examined by Pittsburgh Pirates physician Joseph Coroso, who admitted him to St. Margaret Mary Hospital.

Preliminary tests were inconclusive, and additional tests are to be performed today, said Giants spokesman David Aust.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Olympic gold medalist Carl Lewis and world record holder Jackie Joyner-Kersey took the United States' track and field team for the Pan American Games.

The U.S. team roster was announced Monday by The Athletics Congress, the national governing body for the sport, and the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Lewis, who won four gold medals in the 1984 Olympics, and Joyner-Kersey will enter the long jump in the Pan-Am Games.

The 10th Pan-Am Games are scheduled in Indianapolis, Aug. 7-23. Track and field competition is scheduled for the Indiana University Track Stadium, Aug. 9-16.

Cash a relief from selfish stars

Here's to Pat Cash and his sentimental journey beyond the royal box of Wimbledon to deliver an emotional hug to the people who mean most to him.

How often at the world's greatest tennis spectacle have we watched John McEnroe berate officials and Ivan Lendl and Martina Navratilova perform with mechanical precision? Their cold, calculating, crafty tennis lacked the sense of caring that Cash put into his performance last Sunday.

When Cash threw his arms around his father in a post-victory gesture, how many of us remembered the new baseball glove, the shiny skates or the gleaming football helmet that a parent handed to us as a youngster?

"Enough to make a grown man cry," said broadcaster Dick Enberg, who's seen it all in his years behind the microphone.

In a world where professional athletes have an increasingly strained relationship with the public, many of whom have grown disillusioned by mind-boggling salaries and drug-impaired performances, Cash's climb into the crowd showed the human side of today's jock.

A GIANT FAN

The scene recalled the reaction of Jim Burt, the New York Giants tackle, after the team won the National Football Conference title last season. There was Burt, one of the most punishing players on the field, making his way through the crowd at Giants Stadium, giddily embracing everyone in sight, determined to share as much of his joy as he could with fans, including his family, who had suffered with him for so long.

A few weeks ago, when pitcher Phil Niekro won the game that provided him and his brother Joe with the most victories by a brother duo in the major leagues, he had one regret.

"I only wish my father had been there to see it because he did so much for me so I could get where I am today."

Niekro's father is confined to a wheelchair, and it made travel to Cleveland, where the record was broken, difficult.

In their military-like training, athletes learn to be oblivious to shouts of encouragement or cries of derision. They distance themselves from the audience, and often when the intensity of battle is over, they forget to let down the barrier.

SCALES BARRIER
Last Sunday Cash scaled the barrier, and may have ushered in an era of detente in a sport that has frequently had a volatile athlete-fan relationship.

Just because a tennis champion goes into the stands to acknowledge family and friends doesn't mean he should be cited as singlehandedly establishing a better rapport with a fickle public.

But so much of the public's perception of an athlete is based on perception, and Cash's display of warmth and affection probably won over a few cynics.

Female umpire dreams of making it

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — As she continues to dream of being major-league baseball's first female umpire, Pam Postema fights a numbers game and tradition.

One of almost 200 minor-league umpires seeking major-league positions that open with great infrequency, Postema, professional baseball's only female umpire, speaks cautiously about her experiences as a baseball pioneer.

"I seem to get along fine," said Postema, working her first season in the Class AAA American Association after four Class AAA seasons in the Pacific Coast League. "It's just like any other umpire. Some are with me and some are against me."

For the most part, players and managers, as well as the professional evaluators, appear satisfied with her work. Most, however, are hesitant to publicly criticize her.

An exception was Oklahoma City 89ers manager Toby Harrah, who, after Postema threw him out of a game, called her "a joke" and "a lousy umpire" who "belongs in Class A ball."

BACKS OFF

Harrah subsequently backed off, however, saying, "at one time or another, I've probably said every umpire should go back to A ball."

Yet, former major-league pitcher Tim Lollar, now with the Louisville Redbirds, said, "She's as good as all the umps in this league."

Louisville outfielder Jack Ayer may have paid her the ultimate compliment when he said: "Tell you the truth, I don't really recognize that she's a woman. I don't have time for that."

Barney Deary, administrator of major-league baseball's Umpire Development Program, said there are "very little complaints with her plate work," but her weakness is on the bases where, he said, Postema is occasionally a step out of position.

"She's worked on it very diligently in the past couple of years and from what I've seen, she's improved," he said.

But more than anything else, numbers — both the limited number of major-league jobs and her age — may be against Postema, a 33-year-old Ohio native.

LIMITED OPENINGS

Marty Springstead, a former American League umpire who now is the league's chief supervisor of umpires, noted the league has 32 umpires and two backups. There are 28 National League umpires with four in reserve, said a league spokesman.

With about 180 umpires toiling in the minor leagues, Springstead said, "It's a very competitive field and you always have new people coming into it."

Once at the top, umpires aren't likely to leave, he added.

"We just don't have any room for anybody. I don't want to string anybody along."

Postema, who progressed in six years from Rookie League to Class A to Class AA before being assigned to her current status one step from the majors, has no delusions.

"Once you get to Triple A, you've got to be kind of lucky and in the right place at the right time," she said. "There's not that many openings and they're very selective. We're all taking a chance down here."

Guild members hold meeting

ABERCORN — On June 19 the members of All Saints' Guild met at the W.I. Hall with nine members and thirteen guests present.

The meeting was opened by the president who welcomed all attending.

The minutes were read and approved. Patricia Lahue, treasurer, gave the financial report. Correspondence was read.

Ruth Best gave a report on the repairs being done at the church. A load of gravel and work done with a back hoe had been donated.

Bev Hamilton brought in material which she had bought to make two wall hangings and it was handed out to be cut.

Pat Lahue moved a vote of thanks be given to Bev for all the work she had done. Seconded by Ethel Riddell. Marion Lahue gave a donation to Bev for the material.

As August is the month that we usually take a break, a discussion was held as to what to do this year. No final decision was made.

The next meeting at the W.I. Hall on July 15.

Chance was won by Ethel Haggerty.

When the business was over, thirteen more friends arrived to help Marion Lahue celebrate her 84th birthday. Lunch was served, ending with a very prettily decorated birthday cake and ice cream. Marion opened her gifts and thanked each and everyone for them.

United Church Women meet

KINNEAR'S MILLS — On Wednesday, June 10, members of the United Church Women of Kinnear's Mills met in the church parlour for their regular meeting.

The President called on Beth Ann Yando to conduct the devotional period. She read St. Luke 9: v.57-62; and based her theme on "Faith", closing with prayer.

The business meeting was conducted by the President Alma Reid. All joined in repeating the UCW Purpose and Prayer.

The report of the Secretary Joy Nugent was approved, followed by the Treasurer's report by Audrey Allan.

Correspondence consisted of letters of thanks and the GBMI Pamphlet.

All members agreed we give a donation to St. Andrew's Manse Committee.

Mrs. May Kinghorn and Mrs. Lydia Davidson, former members of this group had both passed away since our last meeting. A donation had been made to the Memorial Fund, Candlish United Church, in their memory.

A note of thanks had been received from the Kinghorn family, and Alma, on behalf of her family, expressed thanks for the donation in memory of her mother.

The annual supper will be held on July 11 at the community hall, menu to be ham, salads, rolls, and assorted pies. Price: Adults $6.00; Children $2.00. Workers were solicited to assist in the preparation for this upcoming event. A donation had been received from Phyllis Allan of Birchton, and Barbara Allan gave a donation towards buying items for the supper. Helen Jamieson kindly offered to make the coleslaw. A handicraft and food table will also be held. Arrangements will be made for the setting of the tables. At a later date a Bee will be held to clean the church.

Members were pleased to welcome Barbara Allan, who has come to her home for the summer months.

The President read the meaning of "The Shakertown Pledge". The meeting was closed, and all enjoyed a picnic lunch and fellowship together.

cousins, Mrs. Doris McGuinness, Vancouver, B.C. and Mrs. Jean Wallace, Don Mills, Ont., who came to Montreal for the Queen Mother's visit. It was a special occasion for all the cousins, their fathers having been members of the Black Watch for 50 years. Frances' father, Lt. Col. Harry Hamer served overseas in both Great Wars with the Black Watch. Geoffrey Prest, Eileen and Bill Prest's grandson, was thrilled when Her Majesty stopped to talk with them and shook his hand.

Burton and Frances Tracy visited Sandi, Jim, Lisa, Kevin and Mark Macgregor in Barry's Bay, Ont., for a few days. While there they attended their granddaughter's grade 12 graduation. She will complete grade 13 next year, then hopes to attend Trent University in Peterborough.

Sunday, June 28, about fifty members of the Tracy family met at the Burton Tracy home. Guests of honour were their niece, Miss Willow Ann Tracy and her fiancé Steven Bennett. After a pot luck dinner outside everyone adjourned downstairs where Willow was surprised to receive many gifts for her pantry. Afterwards everyone had a piece of a lovely cake made and decorated by Betty Willey with bells and a well and watering can containing a pink rose. Pastor Krause spoke a few words to the radiant couple and everyone wished them well.

The guests included family from Trenton, Cavendish, P.E.I., Oshawa and the immediate area. We all enjoyed the beautiful wedding on Saturday, July 4, at Bethel Pentecostal Church, and the reception in South Stukely Town Hall.
