Both King George and Marshal Foch Continue To Improve

International Dog Team Will Be Here Today

Plans Made for Reception of Dog Team on Arrival at City Hall This Afternoon at 3 O'Clock—Supper to Be Tendered This Evening at Magog House, Followed by Social Evening at St. Francois Snowshoe Club Lodge—Will Be Guests of City Until Departure for Coaticook Tomorrow Morning.

FINAL preparations have been made to welcome the international dog team mail, which is scheduled to arrive at the City Hall at three o'clock this afternoon from Magog, and arrangements have been completed to tender Driver Alden Pulsifer and his two brothers, Edwin and George, a supper at the Magog House this evening followed by a social evening at the St. Francois Snowshoe Club headquarters, at which will be present representatives of the local snowshoe clubs, city executives and others. The members of the dog team mail, as well as the huskies themselves, will put up at the Magog House, where they will be guests of the city until their departure for Coaticook tomorrow.

The dog team pulled into Magog from Waterloo yesterday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock sharp, escorted by an honorary body guard, which met the ensemble outside the town limits. On arrival at the town square, Mayor J. D. Hamel officially welcomed the guests, after which the team and drivers were escorted to the Battles House where, during the evening, Alden Pulsifer and his two brothers were guests of honor at a supper given by the Board of Trade.

Left Magog This Morning

This morning, shortly after ten o'clock, the team left Magog for this city. George Pulsifer, in speaking to the Record, stated that the condition of the roads had shown improvement over the week-end and that the snow, which was falling heavily this morning, would facilitate greatly the task of the animals in pulling the sled heavily laden with letters and notes to residents of cities and towns through which the team is scheduled to pass.

Dogs Had Narrow Escape

The hardy huskies had a close escape from injury on Friday afternoon last when two automobiles crashed on the icy pavement two miles west of Granby. Alden Pulsifer, driver, and his brother "Chucks", had nearly completed the twenty-four miles from Marieville over a road covered with ice when the accident occurred, which involved four different means of transportation—a motor truck, a horse drawn buggy, a large sedan and a dog team.

The buggy was following the dog team at a distance of not more than ten feet, and directly behind. A light truck pulled up along side of the buggy and continued to keep pace with it for some time, when suddenly a sedan, coming in the opposite direction, at a speed estimated by eye-witnesses to have been not more than fifteen miles an hour, skidded on the ice covered road directly toward the dogs.

The driver of the sedan attempted to stop the car, but the wheels locked and slid over the ice.

Drove Dogs Into Ditch

In order to save his dogs, Driver Pulsifer ordered them into the ditch. The order was obeyed by Nookchusik, the lead dog with such eagerness and quickness, that the whole line appeared to literally leap as one dog.

The oncoming automobile just grazed Ipar, the huge dog that runs nearest the sled, who is father of all the other dogs in the line, excepting Nookchusik, the lead dog, which is his mate.

Ipar went sprawling on the ice, but Pulsifer thought that the automobile completely missed him, and that Ipar, in the confusion was merely shipped.

The oncoming sedan, however, side swiped the truck. It then shot into

Government's Programme Is Well Advanced—Important International Conference

Radio Meeting Will Open This Afternoon and Allocation of Short Waves Will Be Feature Subject of Discussion—Final Review of Estimates Under Way and Drafting of Speech from Throne Will Begin Shortly.

(Canadian Press Despatch) OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—With the date for the opening of Parliament less than three weeks distant, the political atmosphere in the capital flavors distinctly of the rapid approach of the session. Hon. R. H. Bennett, Conservative leader, is back from a short holiday in Europe; while Cabinet sittings, presided over by Premier Mackenzie King, are attended by every Minister of the Government, with one or two exceptions. The administration's legislative programme is well advanced in the preparation stages, drafting of the Speech from the Throne will begin shortly, and a final review of estimates is under way.

Features of this week will be the International Radio Conference and the expected decision of the Government on the $65,000,000 Beauharnois power project. Headed by Commissioners Caldwell and Sykes, the American representatives are scheduled to arrive from Washington at noon today. Newfoundland will probably also be represented; but Mexico and Cuba will not have delegates present, as these countries have found it impossible to send representatives.

Alex. Johnston, Deputy Minister of Marine and Fisheries, will head the Canadian delegates, with Commander C. P. Edwards, W. A. Rush and J. W. Bain, of the Marine Department of National Defence, and Leman Beaudry, of the External Affairs Department. Mr. Johnston may be chairman of the party.

Proceedings will open at three o'clock this afternoon and the allocation of short waves will be the subject of discussion throughout. Discussion will likely extend over four or five days.

Hope For Agreement Fair To All Parties

Confidence is felt by the Canadian representatives that the conference will reach an agreement fair to all parties in the allotment of wave lengths in what is known as the "intermediate band," comprising wave lengths between 50 and 200 metres. The band to be discussed is just below the band on which broadcasting programmes are sent out; and there should be no confusion between the two. Programmes are broadcast on wave lengths ranging from 545 metres down to 200 metres.

The United States Radio Commission recently allocated 89 of the 639 channels of the intermediate band. More than 400 channels were already allotted for mobile services, such as ship-to-shore communication and for amateurs. Provision for this was made under international convention, and their use was not exclusive to United States. The United States

CONDITION OF MARSHAL FOCH MUCH BETTER

Allowed to Read Some Messages Received—Ban on Visitors Remains—Cheerful Throughout Illness.

(Associated Press Despatch) PARIS, Jan. 21.—Marshal Ferdinand Foch was somewhat better today and his doctors permitted him to get out of bed and sit in an arm chair for a few minutes. He was also allowed to read some messages which have arrived from various parts of the world, during the last week.

The ban on visitors to the sick room, however, was not lifted by the doctors, despite the marshal's requests to see General Weygand.

The doctors said their patient's strength was increasing daily and his appetite was apparently growing with each successive meal. His spirits have never once been depressed during his entire illness.

A RECORD YEAR EXPECTED FOR FEDERAL FARM

Government Farms Exceeded Average Yield of Provinces on Test Period—These Farms Are Located in 201 Districts.

(By Canadian Press) OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—Proving the value of careful selection of varieties of crops and to adoption of proved practices in farming, the 120 illustration stations of the Federal Department of Agriculture throughout Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes, have struck an average production for the past five years which is well ahead of the general yield of the provinces.

The Government farms exceeded the average yield of provinces on a five-acre field basis during the test period by eighty-one bushels of potatoes, 10.3 tons of turnips, 5.4 tons of corn, fourteen bushels of oats and a half ton of clover hay, according to figures from the Central Experimental Farm.

Dominion Government farms are located in 201 districts across Canada and at all of them the rotation of crops and tests of various sorts are proving the best practices for farmers in their respective localities to adopt, department experts say.

Chicago Police Squad Make One Of Most Sudden, Widespread and Successful Clean-Ups In City

Three Thousand Persons Were Arrested in Raids Which Were Conducted Against Every Known Habitat of Gangster, Gunman and Robber—Drive Was Answer to Week of Crime Which Was Marked by 102 Robberies in Which Four Persons Were Shot to Death and Several Seriously Injured.

(Associated Press Despatch) CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 21.—Three thousand persons were arrested between Saturday night and today's dawn, in the one of the most sudden, widespread and successful police drives in the history of Chicago.

Raids were conducted against every known habitat of the gangster, gunman and robber. Where doors were locked, doors were smashed open. The theatre district swarmed with plain clothes men seeking the "dress suit" crooks and police patrols were booked for hours ahead, so swift were the arrests.

The drive was police chief William Russell's answer to a week of crime marked by 102 robberies in which four persons were shot dead and several others seriously wounded.

Two thirds of the city's force of 9,000 policemen were kept on double duty over Sunday to insure the success of the drive. Squad leaders took their orders from deputy commissioner John Stege in these words: "Every joint in this town is to be visited. Never mind injunctions. If you're barred, grab an axe and chop your way in. Grab every crook with a record that you see. Don't bother seeing booze. Leave the working man and the respectable people alone. Raid the night clubs,

DEAN'S ATTACK IS CRITICIZED BY CLERGYMEN

Thirteen Sign Statement Dissociating Themselves from Attack on United States Made by Dean Inge in Book Entitled "England."

(Associated Press Despatch) LONDON, Jan. 21.—Thirteen Church of England bishops and several Protestant clergymen of other denominations have signed a statement dissociating themselves publicly from a passage in Dean Inge's book "England," which raised the ire of Senator Robinson during the debate of the Pact of Paris.

"We, the undersigned," says the manifesto, "have read the statement that Senator Robinson quoted a passage from a book entitled 'England' by the Dean of St. Paul's, which runs as follows:

"If the British flag were hauled down in the North American Continent it is more than possible that the nations of Europe, enraged by the bloated prosperity and airs of superiority of the man who won the war would combine to draw Shylock's teeth, and Great Britain, after using Canada, would no longer have any motive to help the nation which, in the circumstances supposed, would have finally forfeited its friendship."

"Senator Robinson is reported as asserting that the Dean's remarks correctly interpreted the feelings of the great mass of English people. We wish to state that the passage quoted does not represent our views and in our opinion does not represent the views of any considerable number of Englishmen."

The signatories are the Bishops of Blackburn, Bradford, Coventry, Durham, Exeter, Guildford, Hereford, Leicester, Lichfield, Lincoln, Peterborough, St. Albans, Wakefield and Liverpool; A. R. Duggard, president of the Baptist Union; W. P. Loftthouse, president designate of the Wesleyan Methodist Conference; Henry Lunn, editor of The Review of the Churches; W. Harry Miller, Moderator of the General Assembly of the United Free Church of Scotland; W. J. F. Robb, Bishop of Brechin and Primus of the Episcopal Church in Scotland; and Bertram Smith and Francis Wrigley, joint chairmen of the Congregational Union.

Dean Inge, when the manifesto was shown to him tonight, refused to comment upon it.

POLAND HAS REPLIED TO RECENT SOVIET MESSAGE

Matter Dea's With Completion of Anti-War Pact Between Two Nations in Interests of Peace in Eastern Europe.

(Canadian Press Despatch) WARSAW, Poland, Jan. 21.—Poland replied yesterday to the most recent message of Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Assistant Commissioner for Foreign Affairs, regarding the completion of an anti-war pact between the two nations in the interests of peace in Eastern Europe.

The Polish note says that since the interests of peace in Eastern Europe, the United States has ratified the anti-war pact and Poland has communicated with all the original signers of the pact, Poland is now able to sign the protocol proposed by the Soviet Government.

Several hundred prisoners, however, were freed when investigation showed them to be law abiding. Up to four o'clock this morning the raids had resulted in the seizure of seventy-five shot guns and pistols. Sunday, while the raids were in progress, only two minor hold-ups were reported.

BRITAIN-INDIA RELATIONS ARE VERY DELICATE

Retiring Agent-General Said It Is Difficult to Reconcile Interests of British Commonwealth of Nations With Interests of India.

(Associated Press Despatch) PRETORIA, Transvaal, South Africa, Jan. 21.—Speaking at a farewell meeting yesterday, Retiring V. S. Srinivasa Sastri, retiring agent-general of the Government of India to South Africa, said the relations between Great Britain and India had become so delicate it was difficult to reconcile the interests of the British Commonwealth of Nations with the interests of India.

Indian thought today, he said, was characterized by a great influx of new opinions. India looked to the dominions for help in allaying the doubts about her destiny, which were arising in the minds of her people.

He begged the South Africans and other British subjects to look beyond their own immediate needs towards the enormous perils which were besetting the Commonwealth and to show by the removal of every subject of contention between themselves and India that the Commonwealth was worth maintaining even at some cost to themselves.

CHICAGO AUDIENCE GAVE SINGER WARM WELCOME

Critics Say that Voice of Mme. Walska Is Sweet But Is Better Adapted to Lullabies and Ballads Than to Operatic Arias.

(Associated Press Despatch) CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Mme. Ganna Walska sang Saturday and satisfied the curiosity of Chicagoans who had been disappointed four times in the past few years by the singer to perform.

A cross section of Chicago—social registers, music lovers and curiosity seekers filled Orchestra Hall to capacity last night when she appeared in a concert.

Fellow townsmen of her wealthy husband, Harold McCormick, gave Mme. Walska a tremendous ovation as she advanced to the footlights at the opening of the programme; and when she completed her first selection, Bach's "Kaffee Kantata," her voice was sweet but in the opinion of critics it is better adapted to lullabies and ballads than to operatic arias.

Settlement Of Roman Question Is Likely To Mark New Era In History Of Catholic Church

Pope Will Have Undoubted Right to Propose Candidacy of Papal State for Admission to League of Nations—Tentative Moves in That Direction in Past Have Been Blocked by Lack of Purely Defined Boundaries.

(Associated Press Despatch) ROME, Jan. 21.—The forthcoming settlement of the Roman question may mark a new era in the history of the Roman Catholic Church in that the Pope will have an undoubted right to propose the candidacy of the Papal state for admission to the League of Nations. Tentative moves in that direction in the past have been blocked by the lack of purely defined boundaries.

Since the League of Nations by its covenant is bound to consider the admission of any applying entity on the basis of answers to the questions "has the state well defined frontiers" and "has the state a stable and established form of government", it appears that the Papal state, once its boundaries are delimited, would be sure of admission, since the answer to the second question is that its government has functioned for nearly two thousand years.

Not only would the representatives of the Pope have influence with representatives of Catholic nations members of the League, but they would have the opportunity in the intimacy of Geneva to iron out many difficulties in the dealings between the church and various states, notably in Latin America, during the intervals between formal sessions of the League.

Would Be Smallest Unit In League. The Papal state would be the smallest unit in the League of Nations having only a few thousand inhabitants. Salvador, with a population of only about one and a half millions, already has a representative on the Council of the League.

The Pope would have the advantage of being able to summon as his representative the nations of other countries than Italy or of its own committees dealing with social and restricted domain.

Transfer Of Passengers From Liner Aground In The Bahama Islands

Passengers, With Their Baggage, and Mail Cargo Taken by Pan-American, Which Went to Assistance of President Garfield, to Nassau—Ship Not Taking Water and in No Immediate Danger.

(Associated Press Despatch) NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Her eighty-one passengers transferred to another ship, the Dollar liner President Garfield was hard aground today on a coral reef in the Bahama Islands.

The passengers, with their baggage and the ship's mail cargo, were taken by the Pan-American, which went to Nassau, Bahama Islands, today.

The Pan-America went to the assistance of the President Garfield when the ship sent out an SOS at 7.25 a.m. yesterday. The distress call was followed by wireless messages saying that Dollar liner was aground on the Matanilla reefs at the northern tip of the Bahama Islands.

Announcement of the safe transfer of the passenger twelve hours later was made by R. E. Duff, operating manager of the Dollar Line here. He said the officers and crew of the President Garfield, numbering 150, had remained aboard their ship, which was not taking water and which was in no immediate danger.

CHURCH ORDERS WOULD BE GIVEN MORE FREEDOM

Newly Reached Agreement on Roman Question Would Give Catholic Church More Power in Administrative or Other Affairs in Italy.

(Associated Press Despatch) ROME, Jan. 21.—It was learned today that greater freedom of action would be given the Catholic Church in administrative or other affairs in Italy by the new agreement on the Roman question.

Notably the accord gives religious organizations, such as monastic orders, the Society for the Propagation of the Faith and the various congregations, the right of instituting themselves as corporate bodies with a definite legal status. This would permit them to own property, receive bequests and institute legal proceedings.

By the terms of the accord the individual diocese may own property instead of merely holding it in trust.

Married Quarters

by DAVID LYALL

Naomi Bradford saw by the girl's heightened colour that the ordeal was rather trying for her. Knowing Susan Bradford's love of a good gossip, she saw no chance of Poppy's release for quite a long time; so she decided to intervene. After a time she slipped across the room first to her sister-in-law's side.

"I'm going now, Susan, and I'm going to take Poppy. She's had enough. It's very trying to her, having so many people making pointed remarks about her. I don't think it was very wise to bring her here this afternoon. You'll understand if I slip away with her?"

"Why, yes, though I don't know why she should be tired already. Naomi. It's very amusing, and everybody so kind and interested. I was telling her all the way up it would be just a fine opportunity of meeting all the friends."

"It's an ordeal all the same, dear," said Naomi, and made her way through the throng to Poppy's side.

"I'm going, dear, and mother isn't ready. I think you will like to walk back with me. It's very hot in here, and I think you are tired."

The quick gratitude in the girl's eyes touched Naomi to the quick, and also made her a little afraid.

"Oh, thank you, Miss Bradford—Aunt Naomi," Naomi said, jumping up. "Yes, should like to come immensely. Oh, yes, Jane, please let me go now. I've been here such a long time—quite an hour, I should think."

"Some people stop all afternoon and seem to like it," observed Jane rather wistfully, at the same time favouring Aunt Naomi with a disapproving glare. "Too good for you, Aunt Naomi—and so many nice people not yet arrived. It's only half-past four. Of course the best people call quite late nowadays."

Poppy smiled weakly, and very nearly said that she did not wish to be numbered with the best people. Instead, however, she murmured a fresh apology, walked straight up to Mrs. Cotman and held out her hand.

"Good-bye, Mrs. Cotman. Thank you so much for having me, and letting me stay such a long time." Then she turned to Jim's mother, and there her whole expression changed.

"I've been very good, haven't I, Old Dear, and please don't mind if I go with Aunt Naomi now. It is so kind of her to ask me, and I'll come back for you, if you like, in an hour or so."

"No such thing," put in Mrs. Cotman rather icily. "The car will take Mrs. Bradford back, as it had waited for you if you had waited."

The car was such a new possession yet for Mrs. Cotman that a ride in it was an event in any day.

"Oh, thank you ever so much," repeated Poppy. "But I'd rather walk, really." She stooped and kissed Jim's mother with a little spontaneous gesture which was one of her charms. She did not need to pretend to love that big-hearted, delightful woman, it was quite real with Poppy, only sometimes it seemed all such a desperate comedy, she did not know where to hide her head to extinguish the untrollable laughter which threatened to shake her like a whirlwind. It always came upon her in the most solemn moments, when Jim's mother was waiting eloquent about the goodness of God, and the wonderful working of Providence in the lives of men, or being insistent on the exact performance of every duty, however small and irksome, especially by women, whom God had ordained to be servants of all. It was a simple, homely creed which in her life made for complete happiness, it bewildered the girl who was still stretching out her hands before the fire of life, demanding all. Sometimes, as now, she feared with a deadly cold fear that she had made her fire of bricks and straw which would never burn, but only emit feeble sparks and a suffocating kind of smoke.

Jane accompanied them to the door, still glaring at Aunt Naomi, shook hands stiffly, and walked back to the drawing-room with a high head and an angry face. She considered that Jim's wife had been most rude and insulting, and if hers was a sample of manners in what she called the upper circles, why, then, preserve her from them, that was all!

Outside the highly polished mahogany door with its copper fittings Poppy suddenly gripped Aunt Naomi's arm and began to laugh. Weakly at first, but it took possession of her till the tears ran down her cheeks.

"Oh, Aunt Naomi, do forgive me! I'm nothing but a proper pig; but it's all so extraordinary. I hadn't an idea people went on like that. Please, please do forgive me. And I must just kiss you here and now for taking me away. You saved my soul, to say nothing of my body!"

They passed through the ornate ironwork gate whereon was a huge copper plate bearing the name of Haddon Hall in Early English lettering, which the postman and the errand boys found it hard to read.

And as suddenly as the laughter had come, tears began to course down Poppy's cheeks.

CHAPTER XV.

Aunt Naomi gripped the girl firmly by the arm.

"Hush, my dear, you mustn't. People will notice; they might even be looking out of the window at Haddon Hall. It would never do for them to see you cry; they would wonder very much and most certainly misunderstand."

"Would they? I suppose they would," said Poppy, mopping her eyes with the tiniest wisp of pink sleeve. "I'm a little fool, of course, but it was a large dose all at one time. I hadn't an idea when Old Dear said we were going to tea at Mrs. Cotman's that it would be like that. I—I rather wish it hadn't been sprung on me. Do you suppose Jim knew it would be like that?"

"Aunt Naomi smiled.

"I don't think Jim goes to 'at-home' days. Very few men, other than the Rector and the curates, go."

"Oh, have they to go, poor dears? I rather wish they had popped in today. Don't dissenting persons go, then? Doesn't dear Tom Bishop help to swell the happy throng there sometimes? I should want him dreadfully, I'm sure, if I had to have functions like that."

"Tom is much too busy. He seldom goes out to tea. I expected to see Mary, but, of course, she will be at the munitions today. Yes, it is her whole day as Welfare Superintendent."

"Tell me, Aunt Naomi, do I know all these people now, world without end? I was properly introduced, wasn't I? And I shook hands with every mortal one, after Jane told me it was expected. What does it commit me to, really? Will they come up to me in the street and ask how I like Markyate, and if I'm settling down?"

"Some of them might, my dear, out of a kindly interest."

"And the remaining few out of sheer curiosity," said Poppy rather sharply.

"Oh, dear, I shall never remember who they are; I shall mix them all up and call them by the wrong names. The only way will be to go out by night like the cats, so I shall escape meeting them. Tell me, Aunt Naomi, were you born in Stony Markyate?"

"Why, of course, in the house where you are living now. I'm a Bradford, and the Bradfords have lived there for a hundred and twenty years."

"Have they really? And how old are you, Aunt Naomi. You look so young. Tell me, were the Bradfords originally Quakers?"

"Yes, but lately, during the last twenty years or so, the old customs and characteristics of the Friends have disappeared. We have no meeting-house nearer than Mandeville, perhaps that explains it."

"And so you all became Congregationalists? Chapel was rather a trial to me last Sunday, Aunt Naomi, but I never have heard anybody preach like Mr. Bishop. He seemed quite inspired, and you can't think of a single solitary thing while he is speaking, except just what he is going to say next."

"Tom is excellent in the pulpit," admitted Naomi rather proudly.

"I wonder how I would look in a Quaker bonnet; it would simplify life, wouldn't it? But there, I haven't got your winsome, sunshiny face," said Poppy then.

"Hush, my dear, your tongue is full of guile, and I begin to understand."

"To understand what?"

"How Jim was carried clean off his feet."

"Oh, but, Aunt Naomi, I'm afraid it was I who was carried off by feet; that is what makes it so dreadful!"

"Makes what so dreadful?" asked Naomi rather anxiously.

"Oh, nothing. I'm just meandering on about nothing in particular. Shall we go for a little walk now, and get the cobwebs of Haddon Hall blown clean away?"

"I don't think there can be many cobwebs in Haddon Hall," observed Naomi with a deprecating smile.

"A few would improve it," was Poppy's vigorous answer. "But no, I don't think they would; they would merely be dirt and not tradition in that horrid brand new place. It has to be painfully clean to justify its existence, if, indeed, anything could ever justify it."

"They like it very much, my dear. They've made a home of it."

"A home!" put in Poppy doubtfully. "A little tin god, you mean, trimmed with home-made paintings. I'm being horrid, I know, Aunt Naomi. If you won't go for a walk, may I come in under the eaves and be comforted and made nice again?"

"Yes, of course, and we'll have a proper cosy little tea under the porch at the back. Not a soul can see us for the creepers, and the only thing we see is St. Botolph's spire in the distance at Cum Regis; it looks ever so pretty. If I could paint I should paint St. Botolph's spire with the sunset on it just after sunset, that is, when the glow is very tender, you know."

"Aunt Naomi, you are no relation really to the Cotmans, are you?"

"Why, yes, Mrs. Cotman is my sister. Can't you remember even that about us?"

"It's entirely impossible! Nothing will make me believe it. Or perhaps it is her children that have altered her. Have they any brothers in the war? They look like the sort."

But Poppy broke off there, and Naomi was far too wise to ask why. "They have no sons," she answered. "Their only one died in infancy. Here we are, then, darling; come right in!"

She took the key from her little head-embroidered reticule, such as was then the rage, commanding huge prices in London, and the low door under the eaves opened to receive them. Poppy loved that little house, the shop, and all its contents, and Aunt Naomi, above all.

HAPPY AFTERNOON AT SACRED HEART HOSPITAL.
"The happiest time ever" was the general verdict of those who were fortunate enough to be included in the holiday party at the Sacred Heart Hospital yesterday afternoon, when the children of the city and hospital had a jolly time together. This event was arranged because of the large number of people attending the annual gathering for the Christmas tree and entertainment held a week ago.

At one-thirty o'clock the orchestra and choir of St. Charles Seminary went to the hospital and under the direction of Father O'Grady, entertained both old and young with their playing and singing. Visits were made to several wards, where the students sang and chatted with the aged people; some played checkers with the aged men, and all joined in the "At Home" in a true holiday spirit.

Yesterday's event added greatly to the happiness of the inmates of the hospital, and completes for this year the observance of the holiday season, but the gifts sent to the aged and children, and the friendly intercourse between visitors and inmates, leaves many pleasant memories to be retained through the intervening months before another party will be due.

ANNUAL CONGREGATIONAL SUPPER TO BE HELD AT TRINITY CHURCH TONIGHT.

The morning and evening services in Trinity United Church yesterday were conducted by the minister, Rev. Dr. Lennon. He preached at the morning service on the subject, "What the Year 1929 May Bring to the World". Basing his remarks upon James 4, verse 14 and Proverbs 27, verse 1, he began his sermon by pointing out that these familiar verses from the Scriptures did not necessarily carry the added or minority meaning which they are usually invested.

There is a gracious side to the saying that we know not what a moment may bring forth, and the preacher viewed the year 1929 in the light of an optimist's interpretation of the text. In following out his purpose, Dr. Lennon spoke of the year as a possible "annus mirabilis" in respect to the scientific discoveries and inventions it might bring forth, the acute human problems, such as the creation of a warless world, which it might see solved or on the clear way to solution, and the religious revival, now so greatly needed, which it might witness.

During the service the choir rendered Hopkins' anthem, "Lift up Your Heads", and Miss Gladys Lennon sang the solo, "Song of Redemption", by Prothero. Both the Sunday School and the Brotherhood met at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. At the latter gathering, the minister reviewed, with great interest to the members present, the first chapter of Prof. E. A. Ross' famous book, "Sin and Society". Dr. Lennon gave the chapter a new title in reviewing it, calling it "New Sin and New Age". The Brotherhood intends to give some of its Sunday afternoon meetings up to the further study of this book, which has a remarkable social significance.

In the evening the sermon subject was "Unsuspected Sorrows", the sermon being based upon 2 Kings, chapter 8, verse 30. The choir sang the anthem, "Ere Another Sabbath's Close" at this service. The annual congregational supper and meeting of Trinity Church is being held this evening at 8:30 o'clock in the church tea room.

AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH YESTERDAY.

There were good congregations in St. Andrew's Church yesterday at morning and evening services of worship. In the morning the sermon was based on "Seeing One's Self," the preacher, Rev. J. C. Ordner, using the words of the Psalmist, "Search me, O God, and know my heart; try me and know my thoughts," which he considered the most courageous prayer in all the psalms, for it certainly required courage to ask God to "search one's inner life."

"No one would ask God to search him," he was honest and sincere, and all needed to offer that prayer," the preacher continued.

"Know thyself" was an ancient maxim, but no man can really know himself in the depths of his being unless God holds the lamp to shine in the darkness. Christ is the world's only light and only He can search us and show us to ourselves."

The minister quoted Ruskin's words: "Count yourself richer than day you discover a new fault in yourself," not meaning richer because the fault is there, but because it has been discovered.

Emphasis was laid upon the fact that "our faults are the cause of our failures," and a strong appeal was made in the words: "Let a man think,

CHILD WELFARE CLINIC ASKS FINANCIAL AID

Sherbrooke Ladies Will Call Upon Residents in Interests of Clinic Which Is Doing Splendid Work for Health of City and Vicinity.

The executive for the Child Welfare Clinic has completed arrangements for a campaign in the city to raise funds for carrying on the work so much needed, and from which there are such good results. Ladies interested in the work have signified their willingness to canvass for contributions, which may be given in three ways, sustaining membership at five dollars per annum; making a contribution of one dollar, or contributions as purse and desire to help will dictate.

Nest little folders have been printed, a gift from Mrs. E. J. Page, in which may be found information regarding the object of the Clinic and the progress made since its inauguration in Sherbrooke in 1920.

A free Clinic is held every Thursday afternoon in the Whiting Block, with a doctor, nurse and members of the committee in attendance.

In the statistics, which, by-the-way, were given in a previous article in the Record, show that 1,270 children have been enrolled in the Clinic since 1920; increase in attendance from 1920 to 1928 (annual) is 776, this fact alone showing the value of the work.

Sources of income: Government grant, city grant, membership fees and donations. The expenses for last year were $2,388.98, and the receipts were $1,944.97, leaving a deficit of $444.01.

The least has for its closing appeal: "We need your help to carry on this necessary work. You want Sherbrooke to be a healthy city."

With these facts in mind a cordial and responsive reception should be awaiting the canvassers.

of his family, let young people think of the work they might do for God, but in all this there should be remembrance of the great Master of our Destinies."

The evening service was also of a pre-communion character and the special music of the day was the solo "There is a Green Hill Far Away," sung by Mrs. Mackay, and the anthem, "Tarry We Here And Watch," rendered by the choir.

SUNDAY EVENING SONG SERVICE

Last night a fine song service was held at the Y.M.C.A. with a very good attendance. Mr. G. S. Sampson was the leader, with Mr. Leonard Brodie assisting at the piano.

INTERNATIONAL DOG TEAM

the ditch and turned turtle. There were two men in the sedan, both of whom escaped injury. It carried a Quebec license. Pulsifer succeeded in keeping his dogs under control, and waited for the two men from the sedan. During all the confusion, the lame in his right forward leg, rose to his hind legs, snorted a couple of times, and submitted to the reins.

The two men, who were riding in the sedan, spoke only French, a language of which Pulsifer has but little knowledge. They entered into an argument with the driver of the truck.

A hasty examination of the dogs showed that all had escaped injury. Ipar was the only one who showed any bad effects. He appeared to be lame in his right forward leg. Wishing to ascertain the exact extent of the dog's injuries, Pulsifer hurried into Granby.

Four government veterinarians were called in, whose names were O. Brunet, H. G. Hebert, J. A. Macell and G. A. Desmarres. Their examination disclosed that all the dogs were in excellent condition, with the exception of Ipar, who had slightly strained a muscle in his left shoulder.

A veterinarian named Brunet ordered an application of liniment, and stated that the dog would be able to proceed to Waterloo on Saturday.

To Leave Here Tomorrow For Cookcook

As to the general condition of the dogs, Mr. Brunet said that it was the opinion of the examiners that they were as fine looking dogs, both in appearance and health, that they had ever looked upon.

Driver Pulsifer stated this morning that Ipar had been placed near the front of the string in order to allow him time to recuperate from any possible injury, but that as he was apparently perfectly fit today he would be back in his old position of wheel dog on arrival in this city.

The dog team leaves this city tomorrow morning for Cookcook.

BANK REPORTS ARE DESCRIBED BY WALL STREET

Reports of Federal Reserve Bank
Interpreted as Making Higher
Rediscount Rate Even More Probable.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. — Wall Street is interpreting the reports of the Federal Reserve Bank this week as making a higher rediscount rate even more probable. Brokers' loans have mounted to within about $10,000,000 of the record high established December 5th although leaders of the reserve system have definitely indicated that they desire a substantial reduction in the total this year.

Also the efforts of the New York Reserve Bank to induce member banks to carry larger portfolios of acceptances appears to have met with little response, as the Reserve Bank slightly increased its own holdings of acceptances during the past week.

DR. READ GAVE SERMON ON TEN COMMANDMENTS

Second Sermon on Series "Some Questions" — Special Theme Last Evening "Do We Need to Revise Ten Commandments?"

At the evening service in Plymouth United Church yesterday, Dr. G. E. Read gave the second of the series of sermons on "Some Questions that Some People Are Asking," the particular theme being, "Do we need to revise the Ten Commandments?"

In opening the subject the speaker drew attention to the statement made by Dr. Barnes at the meetings of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, that "if the ten commandments are to be obeyed it should be only when their precepts and advice can be proved to square with the best natural and social science of today." Arguing that we do not know with certainty anything definite about God and therefore nothing about His will, Dr. Barnes seeks to show that there can be no such thing as sin as transgression against the will of God. "Sin is scientifically indefinable and unprovable, hence sin goes into the limbo of ancient superstitions such as witchcraft and sorcery." There can be only immorality or crime.

Dr. Read in dealing with these statements pointed out that in seeking to ascertain the validity of the ten commandments as a scientific basis for the social organism, we were fortunately able to follow scientific methods. We could test by experience their value to society. Experience showed that where the catalogue had been observed and revered society was held together in right relations. Where the opposite existed, there was no social security or peace. One had only to ask the question: "Which commandment can be abrogated without danger to society?" to discover how fundamental these ancient laws are to human well-being.

As to science demonstrating that there can be no sin, only immorality or crime, the preacher asked, "Can we make the distinction? Morality may have developed from custom, but men discovered that certain conduct was favorable to the social welfare, and eventually what was so established by experience became law. But behind that experience there was a conviction that there must be a standard of righteousness to which conduct should conform. Sir Oliver Lodge said some years ago that 'the higher man of today is not working about his sins at all, still less about their punishment. His mission is to do good for anything, is to do good and doing, and in so far as he acts wrongly or unwise he expects to suffer.' But Sir Oliver Lodge's 'higher man' is the man who has recognized the distinction between right and wrong and admits the possibility of sin, for he says, 'wifely sin, as has often been said, rebellion and lawlessness, the misuse and misapplication of natural powers.' This surely conforms to and confirms Christian teaching. 'Sin is lawlessness.' 'To him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin.' These statements are thoroughly in accord with the teaching of informed social science.

But even if we eliminate God from the question still the fact of sin remains, for the distinction between right and wrong is not created by Divine fiat. It is eternal, in the very constitution of the universe. And this distinction in civilized society is based upon the generally recognized principle of man's freedom to follow the right and overcome the wrong tendencies of life. Without that distinction there could be no order or security in society.

In conclusion Dr. Read drew attention to the way in which Jesus Christ referred to the commandments. He summed them up in the two greatest, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind," and "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself." The latter commandment was not in the Decalogue. In a certain sense Christ revised the Decalogue. If we are to attain to the highest moral excellence it can only be through passing from outward obedience to the love of God and our fellow men.

SASKATCHEWAN'S FINANCES ARE IN A GOOD STATE

(Canadian Press Despatch)
REGINA, Sask., Jan. 21.—

Drawing attention to an accumulation of cash surplus of $136,856.66, Mr. Patterson stated that the 1927-28 fiscal year cash receipts on revenue account totalled $18,495,462 and expenditures $18,449,632. The cash receipts for the year included $600,000 from liquor profits, the same amount as in the previous year. The only item of revenue in which there was any considerable increase during the year under review, as compared with the previous year, was "motor licenses," which yielded $750,000 more than the year before.

The Bell Telephone Company and the American Company

THE relationship between the Bell Telephone Company of Canada and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company consists of:—

1. stock —the American Telephone and Telegraph Company owns thirty-one per cent of the Bell Telephone Company's shares.
2. contract—the Bell Telephone Company owns a contract by which it has access to patents and the A. T. & T. supplies research products and other assistance on a sliding scale of payment.

The stock relationship has existed since the Canadian company began in 1880. The contract was made in 1923. Each of these is highly important to telephone users in Ontario and Quebec and each will now be explained.

how stock relation began

ALEXANDER Graham Bell invented the telephone after experiments in Brantford and Boston and obtained the patent in 1876.

He gave the Canadian patent to his father, Professor Melville Bell.

He kept the United States patent and made a trust agreement with three other men in Boston, who had helped him. The three other men were Watson, Sanders and Hubbard. The trusteeship was formed in Boston in 1877 and was called the American Bell Telephone Company. Its purpose was to develop Bell's basic idea for commercial use.

In Canada, the telephone was taken up as a side issue by telegraph companies and by several local companies which either obtained a patent license from Melville Bell or did not worry much about patents.

This situation became very confused. Those who had faith in the telephone saw the need of uniting these divergent activities and Hugh C. Baker, of Hamilton, secured a charter from the Dominion Government incorporating the Bell Telephone Company of Canada.

Mr. Baker's object was to bring the various Canadian companies together and to buy the Canadian patent from Melville Bell.

But the money to do this could not be raised and Melville Bell sold his Canadian patent back to the American Bell Telephone Company which, by this time, was becoming firmly established.

money is finally provided

AS owners of the Canadian patent the American company sent the late C. F. Sise to Canada with a view to uniting the various Canadian groups in one strong company which could take over the patents and develop the business.

Mr. Sise found that while these things could be accomplished $400,000 would be required, and only about two-thirds of this money could be raised in Canada. Most Canadian investors still regarded the telephone as what the London Times had called "another American humbug".

Finally the American company agreed to supply the necessary third of the $400,000. Mr. Baker agreed to turn over the charter of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada and Mr. Sise undertook to bring the divergent groups together.

He accomplished this at the end of 1880 and the Bell Telephone Company of Canada began its career.

development since 1880

THE American Bell Telephone Company is now the American Telephone and Telegraph Company. With its associated companies it operates the Bell system throughout the United States, with over fourteen million telephones.

In Canada there has been similar development. The late C. F. Sise who organized the company and became its president nine years later, built the system from nothing to 248,000 telephones. His son is president of the company today and the system has grown to over 700,000 telephones.

Throughout this amazing growth the stock relation between the two companies has remained almost the same. There has been no attempt on the part of the American company either to increase its holding to a controlling interest or to withdraw its support.

The telephone system in Ontario and Quebec today is owned by 15,800 shareholders.

Of these, 95 per cent live in Canada and own 62 per cent of the total shares.

The American company holds 31 per cent of the shares and the ownership of these shares is divided again among the American company's 450,000 shareholders.

The Bill before Parliament

THE Bill which the Bell Telephone Company is bringing before parliament is an amendment to the company's act of incorporation, to allow the company to seek new capital from investors for extension of the telephone system.

Previous advertisements have given the details of this situation and of the relationship between the telephone company and the Northern Electric Company. This advertisement tells of the relationship with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The remaining 7 per cent of the stock is held in the British Isles and other countries.

The average individual holding is 27 shares, which yield an income of $216 a year. The largest individual holding is 1510 shares, which is one quarter of one per cent of the total.

effect of stock relation

THE Bell Telephone Company is thus an example of a great enterprise which has become thoroughly democratized.

Although it has become one of the largest institutions of the country, it has never exploited the public, nor has it itself been exploited for the benefit of either individuals or groups.

It is controlled today by an increasing body of Canadian shareholders and managed by Canadian directors to serve the Canadian public. And it is serving the public at rates which are the lowest in the world for comparable service. To these circumstances the stock relationship with the American company has contributed with three definite advantages for Canadian telephone users:

1. It has been a source of new money for development.
2. It has been a safeguard against exploitation.
3. It has been a source of experience and advice.

1. a source of new money

THE growth of the telephone system has depended on the willingness of shareholders to invest more money in it through purchase of new shares.

The American company, as a shareholder, has never failed to respond. In good times or bad, whenever new money has been needed, it has consistently subscribed for the full amount of new shares allotted to it.

For each share thus subscribed the American company has paid full par value, or over par, and in this way has supplied for the development of the telephone system in Ontario and Quebec approximately one-third of the new share capital required.

2. safeguard against exploitation

DURING the forty-eight years of its history the telephone company has not been overlooked by the type of promoter who seeks to profit by securing control of large companies. There have been several attempts by such groups to secure control of the telephone company.

Had control passed to such a group the probable plan would have been to re-capitalize the company, to issue bonus stock or to distribute to shareholders such funds as the profits on the plant sold to western provincial governments in 1907 and 1908 which, instead, have gone into new plant.

Any one of these things would mean increased cost of telephone service in Ontario and Quebec, and the management would be powerless to prevent them if a change in control took place.

But each attempt to exploit the telephone company has failed. It has failed because the substantial holding of the company's shares by the American company has been in the hands of men whose interest in the telephone business is the progress of the industry and not its financial manipulation.

3. a source of experience

FOR over forty years, from the beginning of the company in 1880 until the making of the service contract in 1923, the American company extended to the Bell Telephone Company of Canada the results of its experience in some of the services now provided by contract.

These services were extended without charge because of the friendly relationship and the financial interest between the two companies dating from the circumstances of 1880.

Some of the services are described in the paragraphs below relating to the contract. They represent saving in costs for telephone users and increased efficiency in operation.

effect of contract relation

THE other part of the relation between the Bell Telephone Company of Canada and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company is the contract, made in 1923.

Prior to 1923 there was no definite service agreement between the two companies. The Bell Telephone Company received some services from the American company but, as stated above, it received them through goodwill and without charge.

The associated companies in the Bell system of the United States were receiving similar service but they were each bearing a share of the cost.

Prior to 1923 some of these associated companies had pointed out that an arrangement under which they paid for these services while the Canadian company paid nothing was unfair.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company agreed with this view and advised the Canadian company that services could no longer be given free of charge.

The executive discussed the question fully with heads of departments and decided that the services rendered by the American company were too valuable to be abandoned. Accordingly they negotiated with the management of the American company and the contract of 1923 resulted.

The contract is terminable, at the option of the Canadian company at the end of 1932.

The advantages which the Bell Telephone Company has secured by the contract are:

1. use of all products and developments of Bell research laboratories;
2. rights to the use of all inventions;
3. experience in operating methods.

In return for these the Bell Telephone Company pays a fee which was approximately one and one-half per cent of its gross revenue and has since been reduced.

The value of these services is indicated in the paragraphs below so far as their highly technical nature will permit.

1. products of research

THE research laboratories of the Bell system in the United States, operated by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, are the largest industrial research laboratories in the world.

A staff of five thousand is engaged in solving operation problems or in seeking improvements. They are the men who have made it possible to speak across the continent and over the Atlantic and who now are raising the curtain on the new miracle of television.

The Bell Telephone Company's contract gives the services of these five thousand workers. It means that for each three employees engaged in operating the system in Ontario and Quebec there is one seeking constantly to improve it.

No single company could hope to support such a research organization as this. It becomes possible only through the co-operation of a number of companies.

In these research laboratories men work on problems both great and small. Their object is always to find a better and more economical way.

One important example of the results they achieve is the "loading coil," which transmits messages over wires fine as hair. It used to be necessary to have heavy wires, increasing in size with distance, and the heavy wires were costly. The loading coil has saved millions of dollars in telephone costs.

The loading coil now in use was evolved by research workers from the formula of Dr. Michael Pupin. It illustrates the fact that without such laboratories few patents would have any practical value, because a patent—like the Pupin formula—is usually but the germ of an idea.

The development of cable is another illustration of what research has done for telephone service. Conduits beneath city streets now carry 1200 pairs of wires in a single duct where the limit once was 50 pairs.

Beneath the pavement of Yonge Street, Toronto, and St. Catherine Street, Montreal there are conduits which have served without replacement since 1891 because the high development of cable saves enlargement of ducts. And with increased cable capacity has come also better quality of transmission.

It is by such things that the research clause of the contract means money in the pockets of Canadian telephone users. The telephone becomes more valuable to the user every year by its improving efficiency and because it is constantly being connected with thousands of new telephones. But this development does not bring increased rates because increasing costs are largely offset by the economies which research produces.

2. use of all inventions

THE American Telephone and Telegraph Company, after fifty years of development, controls over 5,000 patents which cover every phase of telephone operation.

The service contract of 1923 places the American company under obligation to take out Canadian patents on new devices which the Canadian company may wish to use or protect.

This patent service is provided under the contract. And if the Canadian company decides to terminate the contract provision has been made to continue all patent rights.

3. experience in operating

BECAUSE the telephone is constantly improving and because the system itself is constantly growing larger the methods of operation in every department are always changing.

Changes in methods of operation come about through trial and comparison and sometimes the process of experiment is costly and difficult until the best method is found.

By its contract with the American company the Bell Telephone Company is relieved of a great deal of this cost and difficulty. The contract gives the Bell Telephone Company a steady supply of reports and statistics regarding new methods tried out by the associated companies of the American system. In this way experiments which might be unsuccessful and even disastrous are avoided.

When a change in method is made by the Bell Telephone Company it is to a well tested method of which the merits have been proved and the services of specialists from the American company's staff are available, by the contract, to assist in making the change.

An example is the change from the manual to the dial system. The perfection of the dial instrument is a mechanical miracle, but it is not enough. The method by which the change could be effected without disrupting the whole system is almost equally important. For an operating company to find such a method by experiment would be a costly and troublesome process. The Bell Telephone Company secured the best method after it had been proven and has had the services of experts to put this method into practice.

In every department of the system, commercial, traffic, plant, accounting and engineering, scores of similar examples could be given, some great and some small, all contributing to the efficiency and economical operation of the system.

protection for telephone users

EACH of the three main points secured by the service contract is to the definite advantage of those who use the telephone system in Ontario and Quebec.

And the stock relationship, by which the American company lends its strength to the management of the Bell Telephone Company but has no control of the company's operation, is a protection for the telephone users and an assurance against manipulation.

BIG DOUBLE BILL

THE GAY ADVENTURES OF A HENPECKED HUSBAND!

Helene Francis X. Chadwick-Bushman

Say It With Sables

NEWS REEL — COMEDY

THE STAGE AND SCREEN

THE PREMIER

The popular comedian, Sydney Chaplin, with Nancy Riggs, will open in "Skirts", which, along with "Say It With Sables", starring Francis X. Bushman and Helene Chadwick, will be the feature pictures in the double bill at the Premier Theatre today, tomorrow and Wednesday.

According to advance criticism, "Skirts" furnishes many laughs. It deals with the well-worn theme of a young husband enjoying his first vacation from martial cares.

Francis X. Bushman in "Say It With Sables", takes the role of a wealthy banker who breaks with the gold-digging, sable-loving adventures to find a suitable mother for his motherless son, a role assumed by Arthur Rankin. Miss Chadwick portrays the part of the step-mother.

As a special attraction for Thursday, Friday and Saturday next the Premier Theatre management will offer the great French film, "Napoleon".

Napoleon Bonaparte, one of the most romantic figures in all history, lives in vivid and unforgettable fashion in the great epic film titled after him, that was produced in France by his own countrymen, in the identical surroundings, in which fate cast his brilliant and ill-starred life.

The cast is a large one, for all the prominent personages of that period, a period rich in historical names, are represented.

At the head of this remarkable cast is Albert Dieudonne, who plays the role of Bonaparte. Opposite Dieudonne, in the leading feminine role, is Mile Gina Manes, who enacts the character of Josephine de Beauharnais.

On Sunday next the screen attraction at The Premier Theatre will be "The Rose of Kildare", Helene Chadwick and Pat O'Malley have the principal roles in this picture.

It is the story of an Irish Nightingale whose marvelous voice carries her far from her native shore and whose love for the boy of her youth remains undimmed through all their paths are devious and bitter the strange lands, but in the end they are brought together through a romance that springs up between her daughter and his son.

THE GRANADA

The officials of The Granada Theatre, which was formally opened here on Friday last, have announced that they will present three changes of programmes weekly, the days being Sundays, Tuesdays and Fridays.

Today they will offer Lon Chaney in "While the City Sleeps", along with a comedy and the first number of the new series of "The Collegians".

On Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday a double bill will be offered, comprising "A Woman of Affairs", with John Gilbert and Greta Garbo, and "Brotherly Love", starring Karl Dane and George K. Arthur.

Another double bill will be offered on Friday and Saturday, with several acts of Keith Vaudeville as an added attraction. The pictures will be "Loves of an Actress", with Pola Negri in the leading role, and Glen Tryon in "How to Handle Women".

Renee Adoree and Conrad Nagel will be seen in "The Michigan Kid", and Clara Bow in "Three Weeks' Ends", on Sunday and Monday next.

FORTY-NINERS, KLONDIKERS AND US
The Pacific Coast has long had peculiar attractions for the gold seekers.

Today, gold seekers still flock to the Pacific Coast, flock there, not for metal, but for the gold of its glorious health-giving holiday air and its warm hearted sunshine. They flock to golf on its matchless courses, to ride on its splendid roads, to sport on its beaches, to revel in the exotic splendor of its palm trees, to sniff the scent of piney forest or of orange groves, to thrill to the lure of totem-poled villages or of venerable Spanish Missions.

All up and down the Pacific Coast, in British Columbia, in California, are countless joyous havens for the vacationist and all are out within easy reach by Canadian National Railways' train service.

The journey itself by this favored route is an epic of travel luxury on all-steel equipment and with radio-equipped observation cars.

To the Coast via Winnipeg and Vancouver, returning by way of Chicago, or vice-versa, is a very popular routing.

MRS. HENRY CARSON, ULVERTON, QUE.

ULVERTON, Que., Jan. 21.—Relatives and friends widely saddened to learn of the death of Bertha Jane Lyster, beloved wife of Henry Carson, which occurred at her home here on the afternoon of January 11th, 1929. The deceased was born in Lisgar, Que., on January 26th, 1868, and was the second daughter of the late William and Isabella Lyster.

On June 24th, 1923, she suffered a stroke of paralysis, since then being an invalid and tenderly cared for by her husband and daughter, Leila. The late Mrs. Carson, who was a member of Holy Trinity Church, Kirkdale, was of a cheerful disposition, a kind and loving wife and mother, a friend to all in need and bore her long illness with Christian fortitude.

The funeral was held on Sunday, January 13th. Prayers were said at the house by Rev. H. R. Bursey and the funeral procession left for Kirkdale Church at 1:30 p.m., where the service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. A. J. Oakley, who spoke comforting words to the bereaved ones on the presentation of the dead. Mrs. A. Cross presided at the organ, while the choir sang by request, "Forever With the Lord," "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," and "Nearer My God to Thee." MR. ROBERT MURTAGH, DRACUT, MASS.

RANDBORO, Que., Jan. 21.—This community was greatly shocked to hear of the sudden death of Mr. Robert Murtagh, of Dracut, Mass., which occurred in Sherbrooke, Que., on Monday, December 24th, of heart failure, from which he had suffered for the past eight years. Mr. Murtagh was on his way to spend Christmas with his sister, Mrs. Adeline Dube, and Mr. Dube, while in the American consulate office inquiring about the import duty on several Christmas presents which he wished to take back with him, he suddenly fell to the floor and expired within one or two minutes without regaining consciousness. Dr. Stenning and Mr. Lord were called at once and arrived within five minutes of the time Mr. Murtagh suffered the attack, but life was extinct when they arrived. Coroner Bachand arrived shortly after eleven o'clock and decided an inquest unnecessary. The body was removed to his late residence in Dracut, Mass., on Monday night, December 24th.

The late Mr. Murtagh was born in Leeds, Megantic County, on March 19th, 1868, and was the son of the late Robert Murtagh and Mary (Rooney) Murtagh and was one of a family of twelve children. His parents came to Randboro, Que., in the year 1878, and settled on a farm where Mr. Murtagh always lived with his parents. In 1915 his father died and Mr. Murtagh carried on the farm till his health failed and he had to give up farming in 1929. He sold his farm and with his family moved to Dracut, Mass., where he has since resided.

Mr. Murtagh was united in marriage to Miss Josephine Boisvert, of Lynn, Mass., on October 14th, 1907, in Sawyerville, Que.

The funeral service was held on Thursday morning, December 25th, at a high funeral mass was celebrated at nine o'clock at St. Louis Church, Lowell, by Rev. Denis Boisvert, of Lynn, assisted by Rev. Joseph Tremblay, as deacon, and Rev. George Labonte, as sub-deacon. The choir under the direction of Mr. F. F. Grogan, sang Abbe Perreault's funeral mass. Solos were sung by Messrs. Ed. F. Grogan, Ruth Desrosiers and Mrs. Idola

Campbell. As the body was borne from the church, the choir sang De Profundis. The casket was covered with beautiful flowers, silent tokens of sympathy and esteem from friends from all parts.

The bearers were Messrs. George Murtagh and Edward Murtagh, Alphonse Belliveau, Homer Bergeron, Wilfred Bergeron and Homer Boisvert, Jr. Burial was in the lot in St. Joseph's Cemetery, where Rev. Boisvert read the committal prayers. Among those from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murtagh and son, Byron, of Islington, Mass.; Mr. Edward Murtagh and Mr. George Murtagh, of Framingham, Mass.; Mr. Alphonse Belliveau, Mr. Edman Belliveau, Mrs. Josephine Normandeau, all of Concord, N.H.; Mr. and Mrs. Homer Bergeron and the Misses Blanch and Alma Bergeron and Messrs. Romeo and Rena and Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Bergeron, all of Pelham, N.H.; Mr. Homer Boisvert, Jr., of Concord; Mr. Homer Boisvert, Sr., and Mrs. Delvina Boisvert and Mrs. Rosetta Simard, all of Lynn, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith, Mr. Henry Smith, all of Manchester, N.H.; Mr. and Mrs. Emile Paradis, of North Andover.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, Josephine Boisvert Murtagh, and four children, one son, Leo, and three daughters, the Misses Irene, Alice and Blanch, all of Dracut; two brothers, James, of Spooner, Wis., who was unable to get there, and Thomas, of Islington, Mass.; three sisters, Mrs. Eliza Shallow, of Whitefield, N.H., and Mrs. Alice Daman, of New Haven, Conn., who are spending the winter in Florida and were unable to get here for the funeral, and Mrs. Adolphe Dube, of Sawyerville, Que., who on account of sickness could not attend. Besides he leaves a number of other relatives to mourn his loss. His parents predeceased him some years ago. The sympathy of the community goes out to the bereaved family. Mr. Murtagh will be greatly missed in his home. He was a kind husband and a loving father and was never so happy as when in his own home with his family. He was liked by all as he always had a pleasant word for every one and he made many friends while in Dracut who will miss him. He was always ready to help in sickness or trouble of any kind and the large funeral testified to the high esteem in which Mr. Murtagh was held by all who knew him.

MISS MARION MABLE WATT, SOUTH DURHAM.

SOUTH DURHAM, Que., Jan. 21.—On Thursday, December 27th, 1928, this community was saddened by the news of the passing away of Miss Marion M. Watt, at the Sherbrooke Hospital. Miss Watt was born in this place on July 27, 1887.

The remains were brought here on Monday by C.N.R. train at 9:22 a.m. and were met at the station by a large number of relatives and friends who wended their way to St. James' Church where they were met by the Rev. Mr. A. J. Oakley, who conducted the services. The hymns "They Will Be Done," "We Love Thee, O God," and "Peace, Perfect Peace," were sung by the choir.

The bearers were Messrs. H. V. Hughes, Roland Montgomery, Candis Cote, Kenneth Armstrong, Jas. Ward, and Max Hughes, who tenderly laid her to rest in St. James' Cemetery, beside her mother, who predeceased her twenty-three years ago, last July.

The late Miss Watt was the only daughter of Mr. James Watt and Melissa Mills. Her kind, cheerful disposition and beautiful character endeared her to a host of friends.

Before going to Sherbrooke to live, Miss Marion was an active worker in St. James' Church. The beautiful floral tributes were silent tokens and showed the high esteem in which she was held by all. To Mr. Watt, brother brother Raymond and sorrowing friends sincere sympathy is extended by the community.

Friends from a distance were Mr. W. Kincaid, Mrs. J. Blackburn, Mr. J. Mitchell, of Sherbrooke; Mrs. Robert Nelson and Mr. Prout, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Richmond, Mr. Allie Watt, Mrs. Parks, Mr. J. J. Johnson and Miss Ester Cross, of Richmond, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Watt, of Montreal.

TWIN ACTS OF KINDNESS
The teacher related the story of the shepherd who, finding a lamb astray in a blinding snow storm, took off his coat and wrapped it round the little creature as he carried it back to the fold. "Now," said the teacher, "who can tell me of a similar act of kindness?"
"I can, miss," piped up one youngster. "I've often heard father say he was going to put his shirt on a horse."

in the market last year. We said Steel was headed for 200. We continue to adhere to that statement.
Important copper interests outside of the Anaconda Copper have for the last two days been substantial buyers of Anaconda Copper. It promises to be a sensation in today's market. We would buy it at the market for an advance of at least ten points.
Davison Chemical is now working in a position similar to that which developed in International Nickel when control of the latter turned over in the hands of the English and Canadian. It now develops that associates of Sir Geddes and Lord Derby have become interested to the extent of approximately $10,000,000 in Silica Gel and Davison Chemical.

Past Profits in Steel Advance
NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Considering the rapidity of the advance in steel in the past week even though it has not reached our objective, we believe that it is entirely logical to accept past profits in the stock around 190.
Congoleum has reacted enough and consumed enough time since it established its new top to inaugurate another phase of its advance in preparation for its absorption of Johns Manville. Purchases of the stock below thirty is always recommended and at the present time you are warranted in buying it at any figure under its 1929 top.
Anaconda has reacted a third its gain since it was recommended, which is the orthodox amount of reaction before passing through a new top. Continued purchase of the issue is recommended, while it is available below 125.
I expect Anaconda to assert its dominance in the copper group quite as emphatically as steel has in the steel group, and believe that part of the steel profits should be put into Anaconda while it is obtainable below 125.
The International Convention finished so that profits should not be accepted here.
Certain developments which were looked for in the New York transactions last week did not materialize, but they will do so in the early part of this week, when I believe you will have your last opportunity to enter these three issues at prices below their thus far high points of the year.

TRADING FORECASTS

Moves in special issues are expected to characterize today's market with the list as a whole displaying uncertainty.
J. S. Bache and Co.: Undoubtedly, moderate setbacks in deserving securities will meet heavy purchasing orders from a great number of powerful investment trusts, a constructive factor of considerable importance.
Hornblower and Weeks: We expect more definite response among independent steel and favor Vanadium and Republic especially. We would buy New Haven and St.

Paul again.
Summary: Crude rubber stocks in London in past week increased 541 tons to 23,547 tons.
American International Corporation offers $35,000,000 twenty year convertible 5 1/2 p.c. debts at 105 to yield 5.10 p.c.
New orders for fabric structural steel in Dec. 64 p.c. of capacity, against 61 p.c. in Nov., making 1928 total 71 p.c. against 68 p.c. in 1927.
A. D. Thompson resigns as president of United Gas Improvement Co., Executive function will be present be exercised by J. E. Zimmerman, chairman of executive committee.
Pittsburgh Coal 1928 profits $469,473 after depreciation and depletion but before interest and federal taxes against loss in 1927 of $1,108,500 after depreciation and depletion.
Thirty industrials 8055.98 up 1.82; twenty rails 154.41 up 0.80.

NO DRASTIC CHANGES IN BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY
NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Practically the first half of Jan. has passed without any drastic changes in business and industry. While the volume of trade in some lines has receded from the previous high level, business in general is good with indications that an early revival will soon take place in the particular lines that are now going through their dull period. There has been a further gain in steel output with production schedules running at about 88 per cent capacity at Chicago and 85 p.c. in the Pittsburgh district. The recent annual automobile show here in New York attracted considerable attention in the motor car industry and optimistic reports from the manufacturers indicate that the new year has gotten off to a good start in this field.

GENERALLY PROFITABLE
Business is not such a dull thing as is generally supposed—it is full of interesting adventures.
"If stocks continue to advance," remarked a trader, "our Federal Reserve Board will have to apply the brakes."
"Seems to me the brakes need new linings," replied the Room Wit, "the greater the pressure the faster they advance."—Wall Street Journal.

MANY CHANGES IN CLEVELAND TEAM LINE-UP

Will Present One of Most Thoroughly Overhauled Teams in American League.

(Associated Press Despatch) CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 21.—The Cleveland Indians will enter the 1929 campaign non-committal on their prospects, but hoping for the best from one of the most thoroughly overhauled line-ups in the American League.

"We hope we have a better club than last year," was the only comment forthcoming from Billy Evans, general manager of the Tribe, and he admitted that the Redskins could fare much better this season and still not be much of an improvement over last year's seventh place outfit.

Outside of the moundsmen, only the veteran Charley Jamieson in left field, Carl Lind at second base and Luke Sewell behind the bat will be found in their customary positions as the Tribe now stacks up on paper. First base is George Burns, George Uhle, Homer Summa and lesser lights-of the Tribe of other years.

The seemingly eternal hunt for a successor to Tris Speaker has resulted in the purchase of Dick Porter from Baltimore and Earl Averill from San Francisco, both slugging outfielders, who cost $48,000 each. With the sale of Summa to Philadelphia and the release of Gerkin, Langford and Averill, the way is paved for Porter and Averill to patrol the outfield with Jamieson.

Jolie Tucker, of New Orleans, Charley Dorman from Tyler, Texas, and John Gill, from Decatur, may help.

Lind will be back at second, but an otherwise revamped infield will find Sewell shifted from short to third, Johnny Hodge moved from short to first, and Taverner, obtained with pitcher, Kenneth Holloway from Detroit for George Uhle, is slated for short. Rookies will include first baseman Glenn Bolton, from Terre Haute; shortstop John Burton, a team-mate of Bolton's; and Ray Gardner, of New Orleans, who was the Southern Association's leading shortstop last season.

The catching department will remain the same—Luke Sewell, Myatt and Aubrey.

Hudlin, Miller, Miljus, Grant, Shaute and Underhill are hold-over hurlers available to Manager Roger Peckinpaugh. He looks for further assistance from among such players as Holloway, Jimmy Zinn, who in five of the last six years has won twenty or more games a season for Kansas in the American Association; James Moore, of Little Rock, who led the Southern Association in pitching last year; and Wesley Ferrell, who pitched twenty victories last year for Terre Haute. All the newcomers are right handers.

The Indians, alone among all big league teams, will remain in their training camp until they start north for the spring. Believing that a heavy practice schedule takes more from the team than it adds to the treasury, the Tribe's managers will hold them in New Orleans until the first game. There they will meet all comers but will do no travelling.

KEEN CONTESTS SEEN IN N. H. L. OVER WEEK-END

Pittsburgh Chalked Up Two Victories—Canadiens and Rangers Staged a Scoreless Draw at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Jan. 21.—By scoring two victories over the week-end the Pittsburgh Pirates improved their chances of eventually getting into a play-off berth in the American section of the National Hockey League. The Pirates are now seven points behind the third place Detroit Cougars.

The pair of Pirate victories were at the expense of Detroit and the New York Americans. Both victories were shut-outs. They beat Detroit three to nothing and the Americans two to nothing.

In the game with Detroit the Pirates displayed a brand of hockey that swept everything before it. They combined great team work with an iron-clad defense that left the Cougars practically helpless. Roger Smith scored one goal, while Milks accounted for the other two.

The clash at New York finished with action from start to finish. It was a combination of fast and open hockey. Fourteen penalties, including two majors, were handed out by the referees.

The two goals of the match were counted in the middle session. Milks scored the first one right after the start of the second frame, while Frederickson got the second. Shortly after scoring his goal Frederickson collided with Leo Reisse and sustained a badly gashed cheek. The wound required five stitches to close.

Detroit Downed Leafs Detroit, atoned somewhat for their defeat at the hands of the Pirates by whipping the Toronto Maple Leafs by two to one at Detroit Sunday.

The Leafs had a slight edge on the territorial play, but found the Cougar defense practically unbreakable. Hay put the visitors in the lead. The Leafs got back into the running in the second period when Bailey scored on a pass from Cox. Just before the middle session ended Carson Cooper scored what proved to be the winning goal.

The Chicago Black Hawks suffered their seventeenth loss of the season on Sunday night when they were blanked by the Boston Bruins at Chicago. The first goal was two to nothing. The Hawks will play their future games at Detroit and Buffalo owing to the fact that their contract with the Chicago Coliseum has expired.

The Bruins scored a goal in each of the first two periods. George Owen, the former Harvard nine letter man, scored the first and Gainer accounted for the second.

A Scoreless Draw Canadiens and the New York Rangers battled through seventy minutes of breath-taking hockey to a scoreless draw at Montreal on Saturday night.

The Canucks outshot their opponents thirty-six to twenty-one, but the best they could get out of their margin in drives on goal was an offside counter in the third period. Joliat and Lepine combining to get the disc past Roach. Lepine was offside on the play, however. Only one penalty was handed out during the game.

Montreal Maroons and Ottawa Senators staged one of their typical games at the capital Saturday night. The two teams spent twenty minutes to a one all tie.

The two goals were scored in the last period. Clancy tallied first for Ottawa, but the Montrealers knotted the count shortly after on a play by Stewart.

The tie result was a fair indication of the run of the play. Maroons excelled at combination play, but the Senators had the speed and back-checking ability to smash up many dangerous looking rushes of the visitors.

The standings to date are as follows:

Canadian Section
Teams	W. L. D. P. A. P.
Americans	11 7 7 29 25 29

ALGOMA BISHOP WAS PREACHER AT CAPITAL

Right Rev. Rocksborough Smith, Formerly of Bishop's College, Present at First Pontifical High Mass in Diocese of Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Jan. 21.—Speaking from the pulpit of St. Barnabas Church yesterday morning, on the occasion of his first visit to Ottawa, the Right Rev. Rocksborough Smith, Lord-Bishop of Algoma, made a notable appeal for courage and perseverance in connection with the spread of the Catholic revival in the Church of England in Canada.

Briefly reviewing the accomplishments of the Oxford movement in restoring spiritual life and vigor to the Church in England following the decline of the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries, the Bishop spoke with hopefulness of the future. There were, he said, four principal considerations in the minds of those who sought to forward the Catholic cause in the Church today: the general restoration of the Eucharist to its primitive place as the centre of Christian worship; a right appreciation of the function and dignity of the three-fold ministry of the Church; due regard to the value of beauty in worship, as seen in conformity to the Church's ceremonial precepts; and, most important of all, an increase of that true evangelism which emphasizes not one or another part of the Christian Gospel, but the entire Gospel in all its implications.

An interesting feature of the service was that it marked the first time in the history of the Diocese of Ottawa that a Pontifical High Mass has been sung with full Eucharistic vestments, such as are now worn, not only in many Anglican churches in Canada and the United States, but in England as well, where a number of the cathedrals, among them York Minster, have revived the ancient use in common with a large number of parish churches. The richly embroidered chasuble, dalmatic and tunicle were lent for the occasion by the Sisters of St. John the Divine in Toronto. The ritual, the Rev. H. W. Browne, was the celebrant with the Rev. T. A. Jarvis as deacon, and Donald Jones as sub-deacon. The Bishop, who wore cope and mitre, was attended by George Pepper and Montague Reed; Ernest Day was master of ceremonies. The music of the Mass was Nicholson in C, sung with descants; in the evening the Bishop again participated and preached. He leaves today for Montreal, where he is engaged to preach next Sunday, and the following week will go on to Lennoxville, where he was formerly Dean of Divinity in the University of Bishop's College.
