FORECAST LOWER TARIFF WHEREVER FOUND POSSIBLE

Ottawa Believes Considerable Change, Relieving Many Commodities

WATCH COMMITTEE

Conclusion of Investigators Will Be Big Factor in Decisions

OTTAWA, Sept. 7.—(From Our Own Correspondent)—The tariff inquiry which will start in Winnipeg a week from today is expected to be finally concluded in December, well before Christmas.

The Ministers leave for the West on Saturday night and Sir Henry Drayton will preside. With him will be Hon. G. D. Robertson and Hon. Dr. Tolmie. The Minister of Agriculture acts only tentatively pending the return in a couple of weeks of Hon. J. A. Calder.

The itinerary which has been outlined is considered to give sufficient time for the presentation of the views of all and sundry. Coming back in Ontario, the Commission will start in at Windsor on October 21st and the itinerary for Ontario and Quebec will be published in a day or so. Afterwards the Maritime Provinces will be visited.

With Parliament practically summoned for January 20th there will be none too much time for digesting the divergent views that will be presented. But the budget is likely to come only in March.

NO UPWARD TENDENCY.

The tariff inquiry, which will be exhaustive, will determine what tariffs and taxes are unnecessary and such as are found in that category will be lopped off.

There is no intention of raising the tariff and what revision there is will be downward, but the Government policy and the policy of its party involves the basic principle of production.

Such variations as are made, and they may be very extensive, will according to advices here have regard to the tariff both as a means of raising revenue and also as affording protection to Canadian industry.

The degree of such production will be for the committee and the Government to decide in the light of the inquiry. Where the impost is found unnecessary it will come off as stated, and the free list will be added to, but the underlying principle of the National policy will be sustained, however extensive may be the change.

NAVAL APPOINTMENT.

Commander Hose, of the Canadian Navy, is most prominently mentioned as successor to Admiral Kingsmill as director of the Canadian Naval Service.

An appointment to the position is expected this month. The two cruisers and two destroyers and two submarines presented by the Admiralty will arrive in a few weeks and at the present time the officers are being selected. The total establishment, officers and men, will be six hundred.

With the exception of a few seniors all will be Canadian officers selected from among sixty who are on the available staff.

U.S. SENDS OIL NOTE TO MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 7.—(By Ralph H. Turner, United Press.)—Mexico was understood today to have received a communication from the United States Government regarding the Carranza petroleum laws which threaten to create a delicate situation between the two countries.

Dr. Cuthberto Hidalgo, Acting Foreign Secretary, stated "officially" that no note had been received. His statement, however, was said to represent merely his official attitude, as the communication was reported to be couched in such strong terms that the Mexican Government was hesitating whether to officially acknowledge its receipt.

MAY RETURN NOTE.

Hidalgo conferred with President de la Huerta regarding the note last night, it was said, and a definite decision was expected today as to whether the note should be answered, or returned with the formal explanation to George Summerlin, American charge d'affaires, that Mexico considers the character or the representations such that they cannot be accepted. Unconfirmed reports indicated that the latter course would be taken.

According to unofficial information the communication protested against the Carranza decrees concerning oil development, which thus far are only provisional. Chief objectionable among these decrees was understood to be that which provided for development in Federal zones, principally river beds. American oil men protested that this would be unconstitutional as to land in rivers, depriving them of property, thus drawing oil from their rights on both sides of streams.

The communication was understood to have set forth that such concessions were in violation of the Mexican Constitution which provides that foreigners are for the time being debarred from the ownership of property. It was believed that the right with the assertion of the property rights of American citizens must be respected.

PARIS, Sept. 7 (Associated Press.) The conference of Ambassadors meeting yesterday afternoon under the presidency of Maurice Paleologue, general secretary of the French Foreign Office, examined into the various demands of Germany concerning eastern Prussia which aimed at organizing special guards to watch the Bolsheviki interned in Germany. An answer was prepared setting aside the demands of Germany, which, it is pointed out, has already placed sufficient guards on the interned men.

The conference also decided to refuse to comply with the German note requesting the sending of a neutral investigation committee to Upper Silesia. It rejected the claim recently made by the Berlin cabinet refusing to recognize the competency of the United States arbitrator, Walker D. Hines, in the division of river tonnage, alleging that the United States had not yet ratified the Treaty of Versailles.

The next meeting will be held Saturday.

DECRIES LABOR "ISMS" IN CANADA

Sergt.-Major McNamara's Speech Against Socialism is Exhibition Feature

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—A notable feature of the speaking at the Labor Day demonstration at the Exhibition was the advocacy of moderation and the denunciation of extreme measures on the part of Labor representatives. Sgt.-Major McNamara, Labor leader member of the Ontario Legislature for Riverdale, Toronto, was particularly denunciatory for Socialism and other Labor "isms". He strongly condemned Socialism and its kindred "isms" which he characterized as a "damnable curse" to the allied cause since 1914 and a help to Germany. Mr. MacNamara said he felt ashamed when he heard lectures of Soviet-ism preached in broken English on the floor of the Toronto District Trades and Labor Council. He urged members of unions to exercise their ballots at Labor meetings in order that sane and progressive principles would be adhered to.

Expressing indignation at unfavorable criticisms at labor meetings of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, Sgt.-Major MacNamara declared that "no state of Existing residence in the United States, Sam Gompers has never ceased to give through to his British nativity."

Controller Gibbons claimed that dozens of a better democracy followed the War had been shattered and that trade unionism still had the old fight on its hands to maintain a fair standard of living.

THE CRUCIAL DAY

Unless Men Return Tomorrow Lose Seniority —Expect Many Back

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(Associated Press)—The strike of 11,000 employees of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company entered the critical stage today, in the opinion of company officials. Unless the men return to work by tomorrow noon, they will forfeit their seniority rights and other privileges, in accordance with the ultimatum issued last week by Lindley M. Garrison, receiver for the company.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit officials said better service than at any time since the strike began was maintained this forenoon. Thirty-nine trolley lines, an increase of 12 over the largest previous strike number and 173 subway and elevated trains comprising 834 cars were operating, it was stated. A maximum of 602 surface cars was expected to be run during the day.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit agents who have been visiting homes of strikers said 3,500 men or 85 per cent. of those out, had promised to return to work tomorrow before expiration of the time limit set by Receiver Garrison.

James Sheridan, chairman of the strikers' executive committee declared however after a strikers' meeting this morning, it is a fight to the finish."

Striking car men manned 35 motor buses put into operation this morning by union locals. It was announced that more than 100 trucks would be placed in commission by night. A five cent fare was charged.

TRADE COMMISSION CHANGES UNLIKELY

Gov't Believes Re-establishment Not Necessary Under Present Conditions

OTTAWA, Sept. 7. (From Our Own Correspondent). — Though there are criticisms of the present staff and methods from some quarters, it was learned today that a reorganization of the Canadian Trade Commission service in London is not contemplated. The present plan is regarded as adequate.

With respect to the contention that a trade commission should be revived, it is pointed out that that Commission was essentially for war purposes, and its work is now being wound up. As peace conditions are reverted to it is held that the normal course of administration should also be resumed, and the staff both in London and the British Isles is considered adequate.

London cables quoting Canadian business men there as favoring the continuance of commercial credits as essential to the development of Canadian business abroad are not favorably regarded here. Credits expired last December, but for a variety of reasons, they were not renewed, nor is there much prospect of such a policy being re-established.

It was essentially an after-war help out to Europe. The view here is that if Canadian manufacturers want British and foreign business the way to get it is to go after it themselves, though the unfavorable exchange is undoubtedly a tremendous handicap.

BRITISH LABOR OUT TO AID MACSWINEY

Resolution is Passed Condemning Government for Holding Cork Mayor

FIERY LANGUAGE

Suggestion Made of Boycott Against British Trade Beyond the Seas

LONDON, Sept. 7—(By Percy Sarl, United News Staff Correspondent.)—British labor, six and one-half million strong, has taken its stand against the Government in the MacSwiney test, and Irish Republicans exhort the whole world to help them in their fight by striking at Great Britain's pocketbook through a financial, economic and industrial boycott.

Here is the situation:

The great Portsmouth conference of 950 delegates of the Trades Union Congress passed a resolution reminding the Government that organized labor would hold it responsible for MacSwiney's death, should he die.

J. H. Thomas, leader of miners, outspokenly told the delegates that their own Council of Action challenges the present form of British Parliamentary government.

Mr. Thomas also demanded full dominion rule for Ireland.

MacSwiney's wife addressed an appeal to sympathizers with the Irish cause, the world over, to take part in an economic boycott against Great Britain.

The same sort of appeal, but much stronger, was sent to Australia, Canada and South Africa by Art. O'Brien, President of the Self-Determination League.

A SERIOUS STATEMENT.

Opening the Portsmouth conference, Thomas told the delegates that their own Council of Action was the first united and determined organization ever to challenge the existing form of British parliamentary government. It was a dangerous undertaking to form the Council, Thomas admitted, looking back at the job, because it certainly struck at the traditional constitution of the nation. But he told his enthusiastic followers that the results had amply justified the risks.

THE IRISH RESOLUTION.

When the Irish resolution came up the congress suddenly showed excitement.

"Down tools," some of the delegates shouted, the traditional strike call of the British workman, and the cheers of the men rang deafeningly through the hall. Then the resolution was read.

"This conference views with horror and indignation the Government's decision to allow MacSwiney to die. We wish to remind the Government that rebellion was preached first in Ireland by those who are now condemning to death all others who are fighting for the freedom of their country.

"We, in the name of the whole organized labor movement, hold the Government responsible for MacSwiney's death, should he die, and remind the Government that such blind stupidity will render impossible any conciliation in Ireland.

The resolution was passed amid every sign of enthusiasm.

Thomas, the defiant leader, warned the Government that the Empire would be shaken by the struggle unless Home Rule were granted, shouting: "You can't dragoon a whole nation by the sword."

The congress had been expected to take up the case, but the country seems not to have been prepared for this to the exclusion of any consideration of the miners' strike. But the morning passed without any move toward resolution of the threatened walkout.

IRISH BOYCOTT PLAN

O'Brien's memorial to Ireland's sympathizers was about as strong a document had been penned for general circulation in the Irish trouble.

"The most effective instrument to combat Great Britain," he advised, "would be a strangling of her world-wide trade on which her life depends, similar to the marine insurance boycott instituted by American Anything affecting Great Britain's pocketbook would promptly engage attention."

While the present boycott is aimed at obtaining the release of Lord Mayor MacSwiney it would have further objectives for we hope it would ruin British trade.

MacSwiney's wife wrote in her boycott appeal: "I appreciate the messages and actions of my American [illegible] the effectiveness and [illegible] of British sympathizers [illegible] sympathy."

MACSWINEY MUCH WEAKER, IS REPORT

Brixton Prisoner Conscious and Able to Talk to Relatives

POSSIBLE PLAN

Rumor of Offer of Release if Murders Cease Causes Interest

LONDON, Sept. 7. (Associated Press) — Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, who has been on a hunger-strike since Aug. 12, and for several days has been in a critical condition in Brixton prison, was reported appreciably weaker this morning, but conscious and able to speak. Father Dominic, private chaplain to MacSwiney, said the prisoner was suffering intense pain in his abdomen and around his heart.

Regarding the statement made by Premier Lloyd George indicating that Mayor MacSwiney probably would be released if guarantees were given that the murder of police in Ireland would cease, Father Dominic said the Mayor had no authority to make any promise for the cessation of murders in Ireland as he was only an individual Sinn Feiner.

"If the Government is satisfied that murders are taking place," Father Dominic added, "why doesn't it capture the murderers and execute them."

MRS. MACSWINEY'S MESSAGE.

In a message to sympathizers with Mayor MacSwiney in the United States, Mrs. MacSwiney today said:

"I wish to express to all the Irish people and many sympathizers with Ireland's cause in America my deepest appreciation of the messages and cablegrams I have received from them ever since my husband started hunger-striking 25 days ago.

"In contrast with those among the English people who proclaim themselves sympathetic to elementary justice being done to my husband and content themselves with words and appeals, Ireland's sympathizers in America have taken their line of action in an economic boycott as shown in the withdrawal of policies from English Insurance companies and a refusal to handle English shipping.

"This is likely to bring home to the minds of Lloyd George and the English Government what may be the effect throughout the world of the doing to death of my husband in an English jail."

Mrs. MacSwiney, speaking to The Associated Press correspondent with composure and a rather defiant backward toss of the head, declared this morning:

"Yes, I am positive he will see his task through. Of course, it is only his conviction he is fighting for ideal that has enabled him to survive. I am fully reconciled to hearing of his death. His battle is mine, for it is one I took on myself when I married him three years ago while he was in England under a deportation order. Our lives since then have been mainly in evading my husband's arrest or waiting to be reunited through his release from prison. Thus, the role I now am playing is one to which I have long been accustomed."

Mrs. MacSwiney concluded with the same outward show of cheerfulness and resignation.

COMMENTS ON SITUATION.

LONDON, Sept. 7.— (United Press) As Lord Mayor MacSwiney lay in a comatose condition in Brixton prison on the twenty-sixth day of his hunger strike, Irish sympathizers awaited official confirmation of the report that Premier Lloyd George has at last proposed terms for his release.

London newspapers gave considerable editorial space to comment upon the MacSwiney case today, differing widely in their attitude.

The Post declared it did not believe MacSwiney's death would make the situation in Ireland worse than it is.

"There is not the slightest reason for believing that indulgence would produce any modification," the Post said. "Prisoners who have been released before have shown no gratitude. The present state of Ireland proves the policy of pardon is a failure."

The Telegraph said that this is the time to "abandon futile agitation started by partisanship."

"From the beginning even the most ardent Irish sympathizers have not claimed that MacSwiney was unfairly tried or unjustly punished," the newspaper said. "MacSwiney was a party to a reasonable conspiracy and exulted in his rebellion. By the law of every civilized state he was liable to execution. In almost any other country this probably would have been his fate."

The Daily News insisted that the majesty of the British people despise the Lord Mayor's release, and asserted that "The callous plot that MacSwiney is committing suicide to create martyrs" [illegible] civilized government [illegible] responsible for the lives of men [illegible] custody.

THOMAS OUTLINES LABOR POLICY AT TRADES CONGRESS

Reviews Industrial and Economic Selection and Foresees Hard Winter Ahead

LABOR DEMANDS

States Attitude on Russo-Polish and Irish Problems

PORTSMOUTH, Eng., Sept. 7 (Star Cable. Copyright.)—One thousand delegates representing nearly six and a half million trade unionists, assembled here yesterday for the annual congress. The president, J. H. Thomas, M.P., in his opening address, reviewed the trades union position during the past year.

Since the Glasgow Congress a year ago, over one and a quarter millions had been added to the membership of the various organizations. Referring to the formation of the Council of Action and the prospect of its early dissolution, Mr. Thomas said:

"It was called into being for one object only. It has no authority to usurp or extend the clearly defined mandate of the most representative congress ever held, but it was equally determined to see that the object for which it was elected, viz., the complete independence of Poland and peace with Russia, is carried out. Having done so it will be content with result of its labors." Mr. Thomas called for the evacuation of Mesopotamia and demanded the Arabs should be granted immediately the form of rule they desire.

The Dominion Home Rule solution for the Irish problem was again urged. Mr. Thomas stating that although his efforts to persuade the Irish Laborists to form the connecting link between the Government and that Sinn Fein had failed; he was pleased to note that the Dominion solution was rapidly finding favor in the most unexpected quarters.

PREDICTS HARD WINTER.

Regarding the industrial situation, Mr. Thomas feared the coming winter would be the hardest experienced for a great number of years. "Already there are thousands of unemployed and there are clear and unmistakeable signs of a break in the trade boom."

He warned those of the employing classes who thought this was a suitable moment for a stand-up fight with labor that the trades union movement was prepared to accept any challenge to the workers for industrial freedom and economic emancipation.

A telegram was sent to Mr. Lloyd George demanding the release of Mayor MacSwiney.

The agenda of business was then commenced, and resolutions on housing and minimum incomes were carried.

A noteworthy feature of first day's proceedings was the excellent oratory of the recently affiliated members of the Actors' Association. These sought trade union support for their agitation to improve conditions and wages of young people in touring companies and the congress listened with deepest sympathy to the stories of women and girls driven into white slavery through being stranded in towns far from their homes. Margaret Bodfield demanded that the Government embody in a bill the labor conventions recently adopted at Washington.

Other resolutions dealt with State care for the blind, an increase in the number of trade board inspectors and the reinstatement of policemen discharged as a result of last year's police strike.

COMMENT ON SPEECH

LONDON, Sept. 7 — (By Canadian Press Cable)—While no actual steps towards mediation of the coal dispute are yet apparent it must be significant that the stock markets opened this week quite firmly, even Home Rails, the cinderella of the markets, losing nothing. Some surprise was expressed that J. H. Thomas, the railwaymen's leader, in a presidential address at the Trades Union Congress at Portsmouth, breathed no word about coal, but confined the bulk of his address to the Russian and Irish policies of the organization. It would, however, be a mistake to look for the chief usefulness of the congress in its public proceedings. Rather is its importance to be found in informal discussions initiated for good or ill between those attending. Mr. Thomas generally is recognized as a moderate leader, although many, perhaps, would agree with several of this morning's commentators that his public utterances are apt to partake of the pontifical. Mr. Thomas, with many other trade unionists, including not a few miners' leaders, are suspected of being adverse to the issue of the nationalization of the industry being part of the present dispute. Concerning his remarks on the formation of the Council of Action he admitted it was not to form a part of the permanent trades union machinery. He acknowledged, in fact, it was a dangerous challenge to the constitution, but confessed no repentance. The Council of Action, he declared, was determined to see peace with Russia realized.

BOLSHEVIKI THROWN BACK ON DNIEPER, BUT GROUND LOST IN KUBAN

Anti-Red Army Making Progress in Crimean Sector—Poles and Lithuanians Deadlocked on the North with Polish Declaration of War Threatened—Little Military Change on Northern Section

WARSAW, Sept 7.—(By Associated Press.)—Bolshevik refugees from East Prussia to the number of 10,000 have arrived at Cassel, where they will be interned.

GENERAL WRANGEL REPORTED TO HAVE GAINED GROUND ON DNIEPER, BUT TO HAVE EVACUATED EKATERINODAR

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 7.—General Wrangel's counter-offensive in the Crimean sector is progressing favorably, according to despatches received here. He is reported to have thrown the Bolsheviki back upon the Dnieper River and to have re-occupied Melitopol (in the Province of Taurida, 140 miles east of Kherson.)

POLAND APPEALS TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS REQUESTING MEDIATION WITH LITHUANIANS IN DISPUTE

LONDON, September 7.—(By Associated Press).—The Polish Government has addressed an appeal to the League of Nations requesting its mediation in the Polish-Lithuanian dispute. Unless an improvement occurs in the situation Poland will be compelled to declare war on Lithuania, the appeal states. The communication declares an unprovoked attack had been made on the Polish troops by Lithuanian forces. The League of Nations is now considering the appeal.

ULTIMATUM TO LITHUANIANS TO CEASE ADVANCE OR POLAND WILL DECLARE A STATE OF WAR

A serious break in negotiations in which the Polish Commission were engaged occurred only a few hours previous to this announcement, and it was reported from Warsaw that the Commission had returned to the Polish capital unable to reach a settlement. The communication added that the Lithuanians had occupied Augustovo.

With the breaking off of diplomatic relations, the Warsaw Government sent a direct ultimatum to Lithuania demanding that she cease her advance. Otherwise, the message said, the Poles would consider that a state of war existed.

As yet there has been no formal declaration of war on either side. The Poles and the Lithuanians blame each other as the aggressor.

With Lithuania arrayed against Poland, the latter is placed uncomfortably between encircling hostile nations for both Czecho-Slovakia and Germany are passively inimical.

The latest wireless despatch from Moscow indicated that in the Brest-Litovsk region the fighting is continuing with "alternating success," and that fierce fighting is taking place along the River Bug.

PROPOSE STOPPING HOSTILITIES.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—(Star Cable. Copyright).—The Lithuanian Government has proposed to the Polish Government that hostilities be stopped and asks an immediate conference to discuss the question of the frontiers, but refuses to accept the Supreme Council's boundary and insists that the Lithuanian-Bolsheviki treaty, as signed, July 12, be accepted as the basis of negotiations, says the French Foreign Office.

Poland has agreed to stop fighting pending pourparlers and no further clashes have been reported.

CLAIM GERMAN TREACHERY.

The Polish Government has sent notes to the Allied Governments demanding that Germany be forced to follow the recognized warfare rules and disarm and intern the Bolshevik forced into East Prussia when the Warsaw drive collapsed. One hundred and twenty-eight thousand Bolsheviki troops are in East Prussia today, the Poles assert.

The Polish mission reports that a detachment of several thousand Russians recrossed the East Prussian frontier and re-attacked the fortress of Osowiecz Sunday, but were beaten off by the Polish cavalry. Many of the Reds were captured and the hulk were driven back into East Prussia again.

A Red force emerging from East Prussia re-captured Philipavo, and in trying to cut through and join the main Bolshevist forces were captured.

The Poles allege that the entire Third Bolshevik Corps in East Prussia has been neither disarmed nor interned and their horses have not been taken away from them. They say these troops are in a position to charge across the frontier whenever they wish.

The Germans reply that they have insufficient Reichswehr troops to guard so many Reds.

ALARMED ALLIED COUNTRIES.

PARIS, Sept. 7. —(By Edwin Hullinger, United News.) — While the latest reports from the Polish-Lithuanian front indicate that difficulties between the two countries may be straightened out the situation for a time spread renewed alarm through Allied countries for with Lithuania active arrayed against the Poles, that new republic would have been a host surrounded by enemies and ratification from this position would have been exceedingly difficult for her western European friends and backers.

The Exchange Telegraph Company, as authority for the statement that "hostilities are virtually over, and that peace negotiations will begin as soon as possible at Marienpol."

A communique issued by the Lithuanian Government yesterday declared that the advance was progressing and that several towns north of Suwalki had been taken, together with a number of prisoners and some war material. The Government at the same time announced its willingness to attempt bringing about an agreement with Poland.

LONDON, Sept. 7.— A Moscow official communication received here today says the Soviet troops have occupied Grubeschow (60 miles southeast of Lublin) and some territory west of that city and driven the Poles from Krystonow.

WRANGEL EVACUATES TAMAN.

CONSTANTINOPLE Sept. 7. — General Wrangel, the anti-Bolshevik leader in south Russia, has evacuated the Taman peninsular. It also appears that most of his landing expeditions on the sea of Azov and elsewhere have failed.

POLISH EMBASSY CLAIM.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(United News.) — That there is a "probable agreement between the Bolshevik Government and Lithuania to act together against Poland, is the charge made today by responsible officials of the Polish legation.

The complication caused in the Russo-Polish situation by the activity of the Lithuanian army is made the subject of an official statement emanating from the legation here, to this effect:

"In connection with the present movement of the Lithuanian troops, the legation of Poland wishes to lay stress on the fact that those troops like the Bolshevik armies, transgressed the so-called ethnographical line established on December 8, 1919, by the declaration of the Supreme Council of the Allied and Associated Powers relating to the provincial eastern frontiers of Poland.

"The Lithuanian troops already in the Polish territories occupying villages and towns, among others the city of Sejny, proving by this that they do not respect the Allied and Associated Powers' decisions.

"The activities of the Lithuanians, who lately made peace with the Bolsheviki and got from them the city of Vilna, proves without doubt that there is a probable agreement between the Bolsheviki and Lithuania."

Financial Boycott Hits Irish Capital

DUBLIN, Sept. 7.—(United Press.)—The first effects of the British Government's policy of withholding finance from Irish authorities until "seditious practices" in Ireland have ceased were visible here today.

The corporation of Dublin announced that it was compelled to reduce its expenditures, $1,000,000. This, it said, would be partially accomplished by withholding payment of 25 per cent. of the salaries of all officials and employes of the city for nine months, and by closing the municipal sanitorium, dispensary and alms house.

MACSWINEY MAY GO ON GUARANTY

Premier Reported to Have Said So if Murders Stop

ORDERED OUT

Medical Officer of Cork Prison Warned to Leave Country

LONDON, Sept. 7—A despatch to the London Times from Viege, Switzerland, quotes David Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, as saying if guarantees are given that the murder of policemen in Ireland will cease, the Premier is convinced that Lord Mayor MacSwiney and the other hunger strikers will be released from prison.

Other special despatches, tend to confirm the interview printed in the Times.

According to the Times, the Premier said that not a single one of the deluge of appeals for clemency offered the slightest assurance that such killings would be stopped. He added that the unconditional release of the imprisoned men would be disastrous to the morale of the Irish police and make Government in Ireland impossible.

ORDER DOCTOR TO LEAVE.

DUBLIN, Sept. 7—The acting medical officer at Cork prison, it is officially announced, received today a letter signed "One of the first brigade of the Irish Republican Army," ordering him to leave the jail forthwith and the country within 24 hours as his professional attendance on the hunger strikers "gives a tinge of legality to the slow murder perpetrated upon them."

In the accompanying statement from Dublin Castle, the Government emphasizes its sole responsibility, and says that the doctor had recommended the release of the prisoners on medical grounds which the Government could not accept and that the doctor's responsibility was confined solely to medical measures.

MACSWINEY'S SISTER'S LETTER.

LONDON, Sept. 7—Miss Annie MacSwiney, sister of the Lord Manor of Cork, has addressed the following telegram to Mr. Bonar Law, the Government leader, who yesterday announced that the Government would not release the Irish prisoner:

"Your letter reiterating that my brother is to die is an insult to freedom, honor, truth, and every democratic principle. Eighty per cent of the Irish people have asserted their right to the freedom you so fulsomely lauded in the case of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. Do you call the Poles rebels because they are determined to be free? Why then do you call the Irish rebels because they desire likewise? You and the people who elected you are causing the death of Terence MacSwiney and his comrades because they have a living belief in and will die for the ideals you pretend you fought for."

R.V.H. Psychiatric Clinic Contends with Many Difficulties

A visit to the psychiatric outdoor clinic, Royal Victoria Hospital, by the Star representative, revealed some interesting facts regarding the problems which are faced by the different social organizations in a large city like Montreal. The old idea of psychiatric clinic being a "nut" or "bughouse" clinic, where patients were merely stamped as insane or feeble-minded, seems to have passed away.

In the clinic at the Royal Victoria Hospital, which is conducted by five physicians, a psychologist, a trained social worker and a stenographer, one at once notices that the object is not merely to diagnose each patient, but to find the means of adjusting the patients to the environment in which they live, so that they can become useful citizens in the community. Mental disorders are no longer looked upon as incurable and patients suffering from such conditions are not only placed in institutions, but are regarded like any disorder with a physical basis. A complete history of each patient's complaints, family and personal history, home surroundings, family troubles, etc., is made by Miss Mitchell, the social worker, before the patient is brought to the clinic. With this history the physician then makes an analysis of the patient's mental make-up, as well as doing a complete physical examination. Often the environment of the patient cannot be changed as one would like it, but the patient's outlook on life can be so moulded that he is able to adjust himself to the environment.

A talk with Miss Mitchell disclosed some of the difficulties under which she and the physicians work. The old prejudice and fear of any kind of mental disorder has first of all to be overcome. If persons would only look upon mental diseases as they do upon physical diseases and consult a physician early when they begin to show signs of nervousness or anxiety, many patients that now have to be sent to a mental hospital could be cured. The word "asylum" is never used in conversing with a patient or his relatives. It is a term which has been replaced in all progressive communities by the term "mental hospital" or "hospital for mental diseases."

Another point which is not understood by most is that a mental examination has been found to be absolutely essential in practically all the juvenile courts of the United States and in Canada, except in the Province of Quebec. At the Juvenile Court in Toronto the chief probation officer is a trained psychiatrist and the judge consults him in the disposition of every offender. In New York State Sing-Sing Prison is being entirely rebuilt so that each prisoner is given a thorough mental as well as physical examination and then is placed in the department where his problems can be best solved.

The problem of the feeble-minded child as seen in the clinic seems to be a most serious one. Parents bring their children, complaining that they can do nothing with them. The boy cannot learn at school, plays truant, gets in with a gang, commits some petty thieving and finally ends up in the Juvenile Court. If there were special classes for these children, as they have in Vancouver, and where they have found that by such means truancy and juvenile delinquency has been greatly reduced, the boy or girl could be given special instruction and become a useful citizen.

The lack of institutions for the feeble-minded and epileptic is also seen. It has been proved that if these poor unfortunate children are given special instruction in institutions practically all of them can be placed in the productive class and not as they are now in the non-productive class. Also, the menace of increasing numbers of feeble-minded children being born in the world is removed. It is heart-rending to see a parent told that her child is feeble-minded and that nothing can be done for him because no institution has been provided for such patients.

QUEENSLAND LAND RENTAL DISPUTE

BIG LOAN INVOLVED

London Bankers Support Ranchmen by Refusing Loan to Gov't

KALGOORLIE, Australia, Sept. 7. (Star Cable. Copyright.) — Can the State change its land contracts and get away with it? This is the question asked here.

The Labor Government of the State of Queensland says yes, while the Queensland landowners and big ranchmen, who are affected financially by the new law changing contracts that have several years to run, backed by the London bankers, say no. The bankers back up their reply with a refusal to loan Queensland £7,000,000 ($35,000,000.)

Premier Theodore, for the State of Queensland, returning Sunday from London, says a special delegation of the political opposition, went to London and advertised the "Repudiation Act," thus keeping his State from getting the loan, to secure which he made a special trip.

The so-called "Repudiation Act" is a law permitting the new appraisal and taxation of the great state lands leased for trifling sums and for long terms to the great sheep herding interest.

The Labor Government claimed these interests, many of whom are London combines, were not paying the rentals, even if their leases had several years to run. For this reason the law permits a revolution and a higher rental. The grazers with their profits cut, naturally cried, "It is repudiation by a State of its own laws." According to the Labor views, the policies of the London bankers are merely chastising the Labor Government.

The Opposition claims that the bankers refused the loan on account of the alleged insecurity and faithlessness of the Queensland semi-radical Government: The Labor Government is angry because it has been refused the money and now threatens to bring forth a new man to handle the absentee landlords.

LATE GRAND DUCHESS VLADIMIR OF RUSSIA

CONTREXEVILLE, France, Sept. 7.—Grand Duchess Vladimir of Russia, aunt of the late Emperor Nicholas, is dead here, according to announcement. She was formerly Duchess Marie of Mecklenburg and was born May 2, 1854. She was married to Grand Duke Vladimir Alexandrovitch at Petrograd on August 16, 1874.

GRAND LATE DUCHESS VLADIMIR.

The Grand Duchess Vladimir was the widow of the late Grand Duke Vladimir, a uncle of Nicholas II, who until March 12, 1917, was Emperor of All the Russias. She was a German Princess and contrary to the custom of the Russian Court did not change her religion at the time of her marriage. She remained a member of the Lutheran Church until 1908, when her conversion to the Greek Orthodox Church caused a tremendous sensation in Russia.

Until that time her two sons, the Grand Duke Cyril and the Grand Duke Boris were disqualified from ascending the Russian throne, to which they were very close. If by any chance the Czar's son and his unmarried brother had died without male issue the rights of succession would have passed to the Grand Ducal family of Vladimir. By becoming a member of the State Church her two sons came into the line of succession. By the Russian revolution of three years ago everything of this nature, of course, went into the scrap heap.

The Grand Duchess was a beautiful and brilliant woman, and up to the time of the revolution was regarded as the cleverest of the Imperial ladies of the Russian Court.

The Grand Duchess was the Princess Marie Pavlovna of Mecklen-Schwerin, Germany and her marriage to the Grand Duke Vladimir took place on August 16, 1874.

IMPRESSED WITH WESTERN CROPS

C. C. Ballantyne Promises Ferry for North Vancouver

COAST DEVELOPING

More Ships Needed to Handle the Lumber Export

Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who has just returned from a tour of the Western Provinces, informed The Star that he was much impressed with the fine crops that are being produced.

"While in Calgary," said he, "I motored out with the well-known Mr. Pat Burns over thousands of acres of his grain-growing and ranching lands. Mr. Burns informed me that his crops this year never were better, and I was convinced of this by seeing them for myself. Mr. Burns claims that his wheat crop will run from 40 to 45 bushels to the acre, oats 80 to 100 bushels, and barley 35 bushels to the acre. The average throughout the Prairie Provinces would not, however, show such a high yield; but, taking the crops as a whole, they are very fine indeed."

"I also saw the crops when travelling over the CanadianNational westward and over the main line of the C.P.R. eastward, and as far as one could judge, they are,generally speaking, good, particularly so in Alberta and parts of Saskatchewan, and Manitoba."

"On my western trip I visited Winnipeg, Prince Rupert, Victoria, Vancouver, New Westminster and Calgary. I was very favorably impressed travelling over the Canadian National Railway from Winnipeg to Prince Rupert, this being my first trip over that route. Prince Rupert I found recovering from its inactivity during the war and this city and port has a bright future. The two large steel freight ships of 8450 tons each being built at the splendid shipyard there, when completed, will, so I was informed, both be loaded there. I fully expect that Prince Rupert will develop into quite a shipping port, as it has all natural advantages, and is five hundred miles nearer the Orient than any other Pacific port.

FISH CATCH GOOD.

"The fishing industry at Prince Rupert and on the Skeena River this year is most prosperous. The run and pack of fish throughout British Columbia this year is very good. I visited the modern fish cold storage plant at Prince Rupert, which has a capacity of 14,000,000 lbs. per annum. I was amazed at the traffic into Prince Rupert on the train that I was a passenger of, all coaches and the four sleeping cars as well as the passenger and tourist cars being jammed full, and I was informed that this was the case with every train. The magnificent rich valley that the National Railway passes through to Prince Rupert, while sparsely settled as yet, will in time take care of many settlers, I am confident. It is a good mixed farming and fruit-growing district."

"At Victoria, Vancouver and New Westminster I found business conditions, generally speaking, very flourishing. The two large steel ships that are just about completed at Victoria, I was informed, will have sufficient freight available there to enable them to load full cargoes for foreign countries.

"Vancouver, I found, since my last visit there eight years ago, had shown wonderful growth and expansion. Work has already commenced on the large new pier being constructed by the Dominion Government, and the future development and prosperity of this port is so evident that I am convinced a great deal of further expenditures will be found necessary to make the port of Vancouver, which is one of Canada's national ports, modern, and provide it with proper facilities. The present large Government pier there is being fully utilized by the Government's ships.

"North Vancouver is also growing very rapidly, and I have promised that a car ferry will be constructed at once to facilitate the transportation of the large number of freight cars from the north to the south shore. This ferry will be operated under the control of the Vancouver Harbor Commissioners. It will be necessary also for the benefit of the harbor to provide a large assembling wharf, which is so greatly needed for the growing export trade in lumber, and this is a matter that I am giving my careful attention to."

EXPORT TRADE IN INFANCY.

Speaking of export trade from British Columbia, Col Ballantyne said: "I am of the opinion that this is only in its infancy. In addition to the splendid C.P.R. fleet, the Dollard, Blue Funnel and other lines, the Government are at present running ships from Vancouver to Australia and New Zealand, and also to the United Kingdom. These ships so far have had no difficulty in obtaining large cargoes both ways. The Canadian Government Merchant Marine, which is the operating company, will put on a line to India on November 1, and have also under consideration running ships from B. C. ports to West Africa, to South America, and the West Indies. The Government, when all their ships under construction on the Pacific coast are completed, will have sixteen ships in commission, of 120,000 net tonnage, and these ships will all be operated from B. C. ports. Some of these ships are oil burners, and a number of them are being equipped with refrigerator space."

"I had many delegations wait upon me when at the coast, and I was particularly impressed with a large delegation of lumber men, who convinced me by their statements that Canada was losing a large amount of export lumber business owing to the lack of ships and facilities. The first of these handicaps is now being overcome by the Government providing ships, and the question of a large lumber assembling wharf will have the immediate attention of the Government. I expect all the Pacific coast ports to show development, particularly the port of Vancouver. It will be, in my opinion, in the very near future, one of Canada's most important national ports."

"Calgary and Winnipeg I found, in talking with business men, that they were all doing a good business; and the feeling generally throughout the West is one of optimism."

"I was well received every place that I visited, and the information that I have gained on my trip will be of the greatest benefit to me in the administration of the Department of Marine and Fisheries and of Naval Affairs."

"Since my last visit to the Pacific coast I was much impressed and gratified to note that, notwithstanding the large extensions which the C.P.R. have made to their hotel system, more particularly at the 'Vancouver,' now the largest hotel in Canada, and through the Mountains, that they had really much more traffic than they could handle. This is not only another evidence of Canada's growth and expansion, but a tribute to the splendid management and enterprise of this great corporation that all Canadians are so proud of."

THE CHARITY ORGANIZATION

The appeal for the relief of the Charity Organization is meeting with a fair response on the part of those who know what the organization means to Montreal. The fact is the organization could not be dispensed with without serious consequences.

HON. S. N. PARENT, EX-PREMIER OF QUEBEC, DIES AT HOTEL DIEU

Hon. S. N. Parent, late ex-Premier of the Province, and retired lawyer, passed away at the Hotel Dieu Hospital at nine o'clock this morning after a long illness. Relatives of the deceased were present at the Hotel Dieu Hospital this morning and stated that the body will be sent by C.P.R. to Quebec City this evening.

The late Mr. Parent is survived by his widow, nee Clara Gendron, of Quebec; four sons, Albert, of Ottawa; George, member of the Federal Parliament for Quebec City; Paul and Charles of Montreal, and by four daughters, Evangeline, wife of Thos. Legris, of Chicago, Ill., Corinne, wife of A. J. McMajor, of Ottawa; Gabrielle and Simone, of this city.

The arrangements for the funeral, which will be held in Quebec, have not yet been made.

HAD AN ACTIVE CAREER.

The Hon. Simon Napoleon Parent served as Prime Minister of the Province of Quebec from 1900 to 1905. He also served as Mayor of the City of Quebec for a long period and later as Chairman of the National Transcontinental Railway Commission. While in public life he was noted for his great energy and his remarkable business ability.

He was the son of Simon Polycarpe Parent, and his wife Lucie Belanger, and was born at Beauport, near the City of Quebec, on September 12, 1855. He received his education at the Quebec Normal School and at Laval University, and graduated as a Licentiate in Laws, with the Lorne gold medal and the Tessier prize, in 1881.

He was called to the Bar of the Province of Quebec in 1881 and at once commenced the practice of his profession in Quebec. He was appointed a K.C. in 1899.

Mr. Parent was elected to the City Council of Quebec in 1890, and served as an alderman for four years.

In 1894 he was elected Mayor of Quebec and occupied the civic chair until 1905. While Mayor of the city he showed immense energy and initiative, and was largely instrumental in securing the construction of the new City Hall.

PRIME MINISTER OF QUEBEC.

An active Liberal in politics, he was elected to the Legislative Assembly as member for St. Sauveur, and held that seat until 1905.

In 1897 he entered the administration of the Hon. F. G. Marchand as Commissioner of Lands, Mines and Forests — later Lands, Mines and Fisheries—and discharged the functions of that office with striking ability until 1900. Premier Marchand pronounced him to be one of the most industrious administrators of modern times.

As Commissioner of Lands, Mines and Fisheries, he called the first convention of sportsmen, which laid, in 1900, the foundation for the North American Fish and Game Protection Association. He always took a lively interest in outdoor sports of all description.

Upon the death of Mr. Marchand, in 1900, Mr. Parent was called upon to succeed him as Prime Minister of Quebec. He held that high office until March, 1905, when he retired, and was succeeded by Sir Lomer (then Mr.) Gouin.

While his chief aim as Premier of the Province was to continue the policy inaugurated by his former leader, Mr. Marchand, of maintaining the equilibrium between receipts and expenditure, his progressive program in municipal affairs contributed greatly to the improvement and prosperity of the City of Quebec than that of any other.

OTHER ACTIVITIES.

Mr. Parent took a very active part in initiating the construction of the Quebec Bridge, and held office as President of the Dominion Bridge Company from 1897 to 1908. He also served for a number of years as a director of the Quebec Railway, Light and Power Company, and of the Quebec and Lake St. John Railway.

Following his resignation of office as Prime Minister of Quebec, Mr. Parent was in 1905 appointed chairman of the National Transcontinental Railway Commission, an office which he held until 1911, when he resigned. Since then Mr. Parent had made Montreal his headquarters and occupied himself with various business affairs of importance.

In 1902, Laval University conferred upon Mr. Parent the honorary degree of LL.D., while in the same year the University of Bishop's College, Lennoxville, conferred upon him that of D.C.L.

In 1877 Mr. Parent married Miss Clara Gendron, daughter of Ambrose Gendron, of Quebec.

CONCRETE BEDS FOR GERMAN CANNON

The work of preparing concrete beds for the ten German cannon presented to the city is proceeding apace, and it is expected that they will be ready for delivery by the end of the week.

Two of these pieces are destined for the Cartier Monument, two for the Dollard Monument in Lafontaine Park and two for Dominion Square, while two more will be placed on either side of the war memorial at Notre Dame de Grace and two in front of the market at Maisonneuve.

Referring to the two pieces for Notre Dame de Grace, Alderman Dixon points out the two guns numbered 12,500 and 22,955 have been specially designated for Notre Dame de Grace. "They were claimed for our ward," the Alderman proudly added, "because they were captured by boys from Notre Dame de Grace."

The British Senior Trade Commissioner, Capt. E. J. Edwards, who has been visiting Newfoundland, which is in his area of operations, is expected to return to Montreal this week-end, probably Friday or Saturday. He is to return via Halifax, N.S., and St. John, N.B.

NOT KNOWN WHO STARTED SWITCH

Relative of Man Killed in Stone Crusher Says Victim Feared the Work

The inquest into the death of Camille Lorion, 47 years of age, of 239 de Boucherville street, Longue Pointe, who was crushed to death whilst at work repairing a stone crusher at the Montreal East plant of the Canada Cement Co., on Saturday afternoon last, was adjourned this morning by Coroner McMahon until Thursday morning to enable the court to secure further witnesses in the case. Evidence by the deceased's relatives and various employes of the Canada Cement Company concerned was heard by the coroner's jury and the details of the accident explained.

Medical evidence given by Dr. MacTaggart, medical expert of the court, was to the effect that, amongst others, the injuries from which deceased died were a fracture of the skull and a crushed left side. Death, according to Dr. McTaggart, was due to asphyxia and the fractured skull.

Hormisdas Lorion, of 237 de Boucherville street, Longue Pointe, brother of the deceased stated that he was also an employee of the Canada Cement Company. He stated that he knew nothing of the accident which caused his brothers death as he had not been present at the time, but stated that Camille had previously told him that he was repairing a stone crusher, which was about nine or ten feet in circumference. He had been summoned to see his brother at the hospital shortly after the accident, but the inured man was already dead. He knew that his brother had been previously employed on the same crusher in which he met his death.

Joseph Doufour, of 248 Curateau street, Longue Pointe, brother-in-law of the deceased, also gave evidence. He stated that he was also an employee of the Canada Cement Company but that he was not present at the time of the fatality. He stated that his brother-in-law had previously told him that "he was afraid every time he was ordered to repair that crusher."

Adolphe Beauchamp, of 460 Azilda street, Tetreautville, the foreman of the department of the Canada Cement Co., in which the occurrence took place, stated that deceased was one of the men in his charge. On the morning of the occurrence, when they had started work at 7 o'clock, he had observed that a large sign had been placed over the stone-crusher in question by the foreman of the gang which had worked at the plant over-night. Realising that it was out of order he had ordered the deceased, who was a machine repairer, to see to it. He stated that Lorion had asked for some help and was given the assistance of Charles Lussier, another employe. Whilst the repairing was in process the foreman stated the sign card on which a warning to leave the connections alone was inscribed in English and French, was left on the machine. It was hanging near the piece of machinery in a prominent position.

When he had had occasion to pass by the crusher shortly before the accident, Beauchamp stated, the card was still in position and the men were busily at work. It was whilst he was out of the room in a shack nearby that the accident occurred. He rushed into the plant, when told that one of his men had been injured, and found that both Lussier and the deceased, Lorion, had been badly crushed in the machine. In the excitement of caring for the injured men he had failed to note whether the card referred to was still in place. He was positive, however, that the machine was not in motion when he appeared on the scene.

UNAWARE WHO STARTED IT.

The foreman was altogether unable to explain how the machine had been started. He explained to the jury that the stone-crusher was controlled by an electric switch some distance from the machine itself, but stated that he was positive that anyone at the switch would have been able to see the warning card from there had it been in the position in which he last saw it. He stated that he had heard after the occurrence that an English employe named Fox had started the crusher in motion, but was unable to state this himself.

Amele Ledoux, of 246 Hector street, an employe of the Canada Cement company, stated that he was working near the stone-crusher at the time of the fatality. All of a sudden, he stated, he saw that it was in motion, and, knowing that it was under repair at the time, signalled to three men, who were at the time standing near the switchboard, to cut the current off. Questioned as to the identity of the three men whom he observed at the switchboard, he stated that he was positive that one of them was the employe Fox. His ideas regarding the other employes were not positive.

When the men who had been with Fox were called in the court this morning it appeared that they had not been warned to give evidence. Fox, himself, was present but was not called upon. The coroner adjourned the case until Thursday morning next in order that the jury might hear the evidence of the men who were at the switchboard at the time of the occurrence before rendering a verdict.

Enquiries at the Montreal General Hospital this morning elicited the information that the condition of Charles Lussier, the other employe who was injured, is improving, and that he is expected to survive.

PUBLIC SPIRIT IN MUNICIPALITIES

After Mayor Beaubien's Address Delegates Visit Harbor

SEE CEMENT PLANT

Hon. L. A. Taschereau to Speak at City's Banquet Tonight

An address by Mayor Beaubien on "The Platform of the Union" opened this morning's session of the convention of the Union of Municipalities of the Province of Quebec.

Mayor Beaubien dealt at some length with the importance of efficiency in municipal administration, and the valuable work of the Union in encouraging and developing honest and efficient management of public affairs by municipal authorities.

Every municipality, he said, ought to be like a corporation of which each citizen is a shareholder. The task of the municipal official was to see that the municipality was developed so as to render the citizens' interest in the city or town or parish the most profitable possible.

Every effort should be made to make the property in the municipality render the biggest possible profit to its owners. The development of the municipality should always have in view the need for industries in the community. No effort should be omitted which would encourage industry, and allow the manufacturer every chance to make the utmost legitimate profit.

The object of the Union was the encouragement and development among municipal authorities the most efficient and public spirited administration of public affairs. It was particularly important at this time, when municipalities were invited to borrow extensively from the Government, to give attention to the need for careful administration. If that borrowed money was not efficiently administered, it would simply represent a further addition to already overloaded taxation.

After a few brief and complimentary comments on Mayor Beaubien's address by various delegates, the session was adjourned, the members proceeding at 11 o'clock to view the Harbor of Montreal on the invitation of the Harbor Commissioners. At noon they were entertained to lunch by the Canada Cement Company, and at 12.45 p.m. made a tour of inspection of the Canada Cement Co's. plant. At two p.m. they proceeded to view an exhibition of modern and practical method of fighting fire, given by ex-chief Tremblay, of Montreal.

At 4 p.m. the convention will reassemble at the City Hall to hear an address by B. Michaud, Deputy Minister of Roads for the Province of Quebec, on the subject of Roads, followed by a general discussion, and addresses by E. P. Sampson, secretary-treasurer of Outremont, on Municipal Finance, and Mr. J. Duchatel, city engineer, of Outremont, on Public Works.

The delegates will be the guests of the city at a banquet in the Place Viger Hotel at eight o'clock this evening, when the guests of honor and speakers of the evening will be the Hon. L. A. Taschereau, K.C., Prime Minister of the Province of Quebec; the Hon. W. J. Mitchell, K.C., Provincial Treasurer and Minister of Municipal Affairs; the Hon. J. L. Perron, K.C., Minister without Portfolio, and the Hon. L. A. David, K.C., Provincial Secretary, with several other important personages of the province.

RACING PIGEON REACHES PEMBROKE

A racing pigeon has arrived at Permboke, Ont., and is being cared for by P. A. Switzer. He writes to The Star "we have a pigeon here. It came on September 1. Initials and number on leg band are 'E.M.S. 3709.' Will care for it till we receive further instructions."

This may be one of the pigeons of the Montreal Homing Pigeon Association, which has recently been holding several races from Ontario points. It may be recalled that a wounded pigeon was recently returned from Watertown, N. Y., through the columns of The Star.

GREENFIELD PARK GARDEN EXHIBIT

The Greenfield Park Horticultural Society held its sixth annual exhibition of flowers, fruit and vegetables on Saturday afternoon and evening. The display was exhibited in the Royal George School, Springfield Ave. and was pronounced by the judges, Messrs Wiltshire and Gaguey to be one of the best shown this season. There were a large number of entries both of flowers and fruit, and competition was very keen. A special prize donated by R. S. Chalmers Esq., for the best-kept variety vegetable garden was won by F. Gregory, while A. E. Green made the best showing in that for the silver trophy presented by the town. Each of these prizes however, must be won three years in succession before becoming the property of the competitor.

BACHELORS STILL FIGHTING TAX

Defence Committee Will Take Up Cudgels Shortly

"The Bachelors' Defence Committee is still in existence, and will shortly make itself heard," was the statement of E. D. Twite, secretary of the league, to the Star this morning. "I have had several enquiries of late," he remarked, "and the members are still resolved to stand firm and refuse payment which is due on September 1st." In spite of the statements of the civic officials that a large sum is being realized from the regulation which requires that all bachelors over twenty-four must pay the sum of ten dollars annually, Mr. Twite stated that he did not think much money was being received—in fact he claimed he had reliable information to the contrary.

No notice has been received from the Bachelors' Defence Committee for the taking of further proceedings since their action was dismissed some months ago," stated their attorney, R. C. Stackhouse, K.C. "However, the fact that the tax is objectionable to a large section of the community has been brought to the attention of the civic authorities and it is hoped that they will take measures to relieve the situation without further pressure."

"Many members of the committee have been enjoying vacations in the country and for a few months, he stated, little interest has been taken in the defiance of Montreal bachelors to the civic decree that they should pay the ten dollars. "The unmarried men of Montreal object to being thus licensed like the lower animals," Mr. Stackhouse continued, "and to being classed as renegades All men would like to get married, but they are frequently prevented because of obligations to support their families."

The impression conveyed was that any single men left in the city were unfortunate rather than culpable. In some cases Mr. Stackhouse said epileptics had been notified that they owed the city ten dollars, and another brought to his attention had been that of an idiot who was also required to pay. Frequently poverty should secure the single man freedom from the tax, and in this connection Mr. Stackhouse cited the pathetic instance of a furnace man who was forced to pay the sum required.

ALLEGED LIQUOR OFFENDER FREED

Mr. Justice Bruneau handed down judgment in the Practice Division of the Superior Court this morning, maintaining a petition for a writ of certiorari presented some time ago by Ludger, hotel-keeper, 64 St. Gabriel street, seeking to offset a judgment rendered by Judge Bazin in the Court of Special Sessions on May 26 last, and condemning him to three months in jail for an alleged third offence in selling liquor without a license.

When the case of Trudeau was disposed of in the matter above stated, the accuser was not present in court, and direct evidence as to the fact that it was the accused's third offence was not made except through documentary proof. Jos. Cohen, counsel for a writ of certiorari, claiming among other reasons, that alleged previous convictions against Trudeau had not been legally adduced.

Mr. Justice Bruneau, who heard the case, maintained Trudeau's contention. The learned justice said in his judgment that the failure to make proof of Trudeau's alleged previous condemnations constituted not only a grave injustice and a serious irregularity, but also removed to the Judge of the Court of Special Sessions all jurisdiction to condemn the petitioner to jail without giving him the option of a fine.

The Court said the petition was well founded and should be granted, with a recommendation to the Crown to pay the costs. The condemnation against Trudeau is declared quashed.

REPEAT SOLDIERS' CONCERT.

The entertainment given last week at the Catholic Sailors' Club under the auspices of the South Shore towns of St. Lambert and Longueuil will be repeated by request at the same place on Wednesday. The chair will be taken by W. A. Phelan, K.C., and the program will be under the direction of Miss Frances Dalby of St. Lambert, with the assistance of the S. S. Minnedosa and other ships in port.

WANT QUEBEC AND ONTARIO IN 'PHONE FIGHT TOGETHER

Toronto Controllers Face Same Situation with City Council as Administrative Commission Here—Chairman Decary in Toronto Today

The rift within the lute which manifested itself recently in connection with the fight of the Quebec and Ontario municipalities against the Bell Telephone Company's application for increased rates seems to be widening, and has spread to a division between the Toronto City Council and the controllers of that city.

Chairman Decary of Montreal Administrative Commission is in Toronto today, consulting with the authorities there with a view to smoothing matters out if possible. The idea of the controllers of Toronto, like that of the Administrative Commission here, is to keep the municipalities together, and to present a united front, putting forward a collective case against the Telephone Company which would cover all the arguments and objections of all the municipalities interested, and prevent them from appearing in conflict one with another when the case comes to be contested.

On the other hand, the tendency has manifested itself both here and in Toronto for the City Council to stand aloof from such collective action, and want to fight the battle on their own initiative. The argument put forward recently at Montreal City Council was that the committee appointed by the Administrative Commission did not represent the people of Montreal, that as business men they represented only one side of the public interest, and gave no guarantee of having the interests of the public more at heart than those of the company.

Something similar would appear to be occurring in Toronto, and the movers in the promotion of the collective action which was decided on at a recent meting held in Montreal under the auspices of the Union of Canadian Municipalities, are making every possible effort to prevent an open schism which might result in Toronto or Montreal dripping out of the collective fight, or only supporting it half heartedly.

COMMISSIONER'S VIEW.

One of the Montreal Commissioners pointed out this morning that the case would be decided by the board on the strength of the evidence presented by the municipalities and other interested bodies. Such evidence would necessarily be highly technical, and it was difficult to see what influence the remarks of a mayor and a couple of aldermen with no technical knowledge of the subject could have on such a decision. They might even adversely affect the issue, by conflicting in their evidence and contentions with other municipalities contesting the application from a different point of view.

Another prominent figure in the city hall was quite emphatic in his disapproval of the attempt to divide the ranks. "It amounts to this, he said, "that the people who are dependent on the public support for their positions are bound to keep in the limelight and will not hesitate to make political capital out of this or any other suitable occasion. They are naturally antagonistic to controllers or commissioners, looking upon such institutions as an interference with their prerogatives, and if they can popularize themselves in an open contest with the executive body, it will suit their purpose immensely to do so."

DIFFERENCE IN RATES.

It is also pointed out that the slight difference between Toronto and Montreal rates has always been a bone of contention between the two cities. At the last hearing, Montreal asked that the rates for the two cities be made the same, and Toronto contested this request energetically. This point inevitably comes up again, now that the new schedule proposes to put the two cities on the same footing as regards telephone rates.

The point of view of the special committee appointed by the Administrative Commission here, is that while the Telephone Company is entitled to any increase which is fair and equitable and justified by the investigation, the measured rate, however, is not equitable, they maintain, especially as it is only to be applied to five cities, and then only to the business community. If the measured call system is just, they say, why not make it applicable all over the company's system, and to private as well as business telephones? The only answer they can see is that the loss of business through private phones being given up would make it unprofitable, which they interpret as evidence of the inequitability of the whole proposal.

The result of Mr. Decary's visit to Toronto will be awaited with much interest, and it is expected that the meeting of the executive committee of the municipalities, which is scheduled for Friday next, will open up interesting possibilities.

IMPERIAL PRESS DELEGATES.

Senator Casgrain, director of the Canada Steamship Company, leaves tomorrow for Prescott to meet the Imperial Press Delegates and to accompany them in their splendid steamers to Quebec. The delegates take water at Prescott, saying adieu to the railway people, and will be afloat on the rest of their journeying.

TO PLAN FOR CONGRESS.

A special meeting of the Board of Trade Council is being held this afternoon to formulate plans in connection with the approaching congress at Toronto of the Imperial Chambers of Commerce. It will be recalled that the Chambers of Commerce are to visit Montreal as well, and a program of entertainment will be arranged.

GENERAL MEETING.

Rosemount G.W.V.A.—The Great War Veterans' Association of Rosemount will hold a general meeting in the New Veterans' Hall, Masson St., Thursday evening next, at 8 o'clock. There will be a distribution of Princess Mary's gift boxes.

SAILORS' ENTERTAIN.

The Social and Athletic Club of the R.M.S. Gramp have arranged a special program for the entertainment of seamen and their friends at the Sailors' Institute. They will have assisting them some of the boys from the Minnedosa, Tunisian and Cassandra.

QUEBEC STATUE TO CARTIER UNVEILED BY TWO PREMIERS

Hon. Mr. Meighen Pays Tribute to Great Figure of the Time

LESSON OF PAST

Vision of Statesman Ever Needed—Quebec Pays Its Homage

QUEBEC, Sept. 7.—(Star Special.)—Quebec yesterday paid its homage to Sir George Etienne Cartier, one of the Province's greatest sons, at the ceremony of the unveiling of a monument to Cartier.

The Hon. Arthur Meighen and the Hon. L. A. Taschereau represented the Dominion and the province respectively, and each delivered an eloquent appreciation of the virtues, strength and far-sighted statesmanship of Cartier, and pointed with pride to the record of achievement of Canada since the days of the Fathers of Confederation, placing Cartier as one of the leaders among the Dominion's pioneer statesmen.

There was a large and enthusiastic crowd present, and the references to French Canada's part in history met with instant appreciation.

The 22nd Battalion furnished a guard of honor, and the R.C.G.A. band also attended at the site of the old Parliament Buildings, where the memorial statue stands.

A feature of the proceedings was the reading of a letter from Miss Hortense Cartier, daughter of Sir George Etienne Cartier.

E. W. Villeneuve, president of the Cartier Centenary, Montreal, read the letter, which says:—

Dear Mr. Villeneuve,—It was very gratifying to me to learn that arrangements have been made for the unveiling of the monument to my father in the city of Quebec, on the 6th of September next.

I much regret that I cannot be with you on that occasion; for I have still many pleasant recollections of the hospitality of the people of that city when it was our home during father's lifetime, and it would have been a joy to me to have been with you for the proposed ceremony. However, I will be with you in spirit on that day, and I would ask you to convey in my name my grateful thanks to the Government of the Province of Quebec, to the city of Quebec and its citizens for thus joining to erect a monument to honor the memory of my dear father.

With my best wishes for your every success, I am,

Faithfully yours,
HORTENSE CARTIER.

Cannes, France, July 15.

Mr. Victor Chateauvert, president of the local committee, presided, and it was Hon. L. A. Taschereau who unveiled the monument. The speakers were Mr. Victor Chateauvert, Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Hon. Judge L. P. Pelletier, Hon. Arthur Meighen, His Eminence Cardinal Begin, Dean Shreive, Hon. Antonin Galipeault, Minister of Public Works, Ferdinand Roy, K.C., batonnier of the Quebec Bar; C. H. Cahan, K.C.; E. W. Villeneuve, and Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice.

THE PREMIER'S ADDRESS.

Hon. Arthur Meighen, who was given a cordial reception, spoke as follows:

"This occasion affords me the opportunity of paying to the memory of a great Canadian the tribute of a few words of humble admiration. It is 106 years today since George Etienne Cartier was born; it is more than 47 years since he died. Time has corrected the prejudices and melted the animosities that obscured the vision and prevented a just estimate on the part of his own generation, and we can see how clearly now the manner of man he was.

"His life labours and character are now a treasure prized by the whole people of Canada. He was a political pioneer; he was one of the founders of Canada as we have it now. He cleared the forests and levelled the cliffs—and got together the timbers for our Canadian home. Some things that he did have been undone. But the way is clearer, and ultimate success is more certain because he lived.

LEADER AND GENIUS.

"Cartier was a great leader; but he is better described as a great genius. He was a genius, not so much for leadership as for command. He was a dominant, forceful personality—a man of sound judgment and unbending will, a man of ideals and visions, but more emphatically a man of sane and practical talent in the every-day work of statesmanship. His industry and perseverance, his patient preparation, his dauntless resolve, his indomitable patriotism were unsurpassed in his own time. Because he had these qualities and employed them to the full, Canada became a real Confederation. Sir John A. Macdonald, too, played a great part, a vital and essential part. Without Cartier, or without Macdonald, Confederation under the circumstances of that time could not have been brought about.

WAS BORN TO COMMAND.

"I have said that Cartier was a man born to command. His long ascendancy over his fellow-countrymen was not due to the absence of other formidable men. He followed rather than accompanied Papineau and Lafontaine, but he excelled both in the volume and value of his achievement. In his own time there were Chauvain, Sicotte and Cauchon on the one side, and on the other, Dorion, Fournier, Laflamme and Laberge. There is always room for variation of estimate, but I believe it is generally conceded the name of Cartier is now resplendent above them all.

FAVORED BRITISH CONNECTION.

"Cartier grasped firmly these guiding principles from which he was resolved never to part: First, British connection; second, responsible government in full effectiveness; third, federal co-operation instead of legislative union, the working together, rather than the merging of French and English in Canada. On these fundamentals he laid hold, and by them he stood unfaltering throughout his life.

"Fifty years ago there were public men in Great Britain who regarded the colonies as a burden, and sent forth invitations to the Dominions to erect themselves as independent states. Cartier's vision was larger than theirs, and at his hands these men received prompt and emphatic rebuke. Time has vindicated more fully than he could ever have anticipated the wise judgment of this far-seeing French-Canadian. The Federal system has, it is true, developed difficulties, but time has demonstrated that the Federal system was the only system that could possibly have met with success.

"It is well worthy of note to-day that the opinions of Cartier were moulded and confined by events of his own time that bear very close correspondence to the waves of unrest and upheaval against which civilization is contending today. The program of the French Revolution of 1848, has in all its extreme and impractical proposals a counterpart in the world of today, a counterpart far more widespread and dangerous. The program of the revolutionists of 1848 was reflected in a body of opinion in Canada and this body of opinion wanted all kinds of changes, including an elective judiciary and even annexation to the United States. Against such tendencies Cartier threw the force of his tremendous personality and because he did two generations since have pronounced him blessed.

VISION ESSENTIAL ATTRIBUTE.

"To see the future clearly and unmistakably as from an eminence all their own, that is the peculiar attribute of great men. To direct the trend of legislation and national activity in the line of the vision so obtained is the life and work of statesmen.

"Sir George Etienne Cartier today is known as one of the founders of his country because his vision was true; because his labors were practical and effective. As early as 1858, when Prime Minister of United Canada, he placed this announcement in the Speech from the Throne: 'I propose, in the course of the recess, to communicate with Her Majesty's Government and with the governments of the sister colonies on another matter of very great importance. I am desirous of inviting them to discuss with us the principle upon which a bond of Federal character, uniting the provinces of North America, may perhaps hereafter be practicable.'

FOUGHT FOR UNION.

From 1858 to 1867, he availed himself of every circumstance to press toward the goal he therein set before his eyes. The idea of union had already taken such a place in his mind, and to its guiding principle, that of Federal union, Federal, rather than legislative union, he adhered immovably to the end. The energy with which he pursued this proposal, the greatest of his life, the wisdom of the manifold decisions which he made looking to its consummation, the confidence he inspired, not only in his French-Canadian compatriots, but in even more remarkable degree among his English-speaking fellow-citizens, there are now in extraordinary degree conceded and are part of the history of our country.

"The practical statesmanship and industry of Cartier are reflected as well in a large volume of useful measures that stands to his credit on the legislative balance sheet of this Dominion.

"He attacked the Land Tenure problem in Quebec, a big and complicated question, and he attacked it with success.

"His contribution to the passing of useful education legislation is as well one of his titles to gratitude.

"That statutory foundation of our militia system is due to Cartier as well. The codification of the civil law of this province was his labor also—a labor that brought him little gratitude at the time, but that is now considered to have been many times worth while.

CARTIER'S SERVICES TO WEST.

"Speaking as one who has lived for years in Western Canada, I should mention the part he played in the acquirement of a vast domain in that country from the Hudson's Bay Company. Indeed it is worth remembering that the bill for the establishment of British Columbia as a province and of Manitoba as a province were each introduced and conducted by Cartier and there can be no doubt that much of the labor necessarily given in building up the framework of their provincial constitutions was contributed by the great French-Canadian. Incidentally, it is recorded that two French-Canadians the Verendrys, father and son, were the first white men to see the 'Shining mountains' now far-famed as the Canadian Rockies.

"Cartier, like all men, made mistakes, but the main decisions of his life were right. It is characteristic of him that he made his great decisions without much consultation with friends and out of the wealth of his own experience and guided by the dictates of his own conscience and intellect. Speaking of one important step in his life, he said:

"'With regard to this matter, I have not sought the advice of my countrymen, nor of my political friends. I confess that in all important acts of my life, of my political career, I have not consulted anyone.'

GRATITUDE OF NATIONS.

"Possibly it is some encouragement for us now to reflect that although now the summation of Cartier's life work is placed by universal acclaim, high and indeed among the very highest in the records of our public men, entitling him to a place in the grateful memory of his country and to ceremonies such as we are now performing in various parts of the land, in his own time he was subject to assault and calumny as persistent and as bitter as was ever levelled at politician's head. He was denounced in some parts of Canada as a bigot and he was denounced in his own Province as secretly designing the Anglicization of his people. Both allegations are now conceded to have been flagrantly and cruelly false. A newspaper in this Province once denounced him as 'the supporter of monopolies, of the seigneurs, the upholder of well-paid Government situations, a breeder of corruption, the enemy of justice, the champion of illegal measures, the apostle of servitude, the partisan of passive obedience, a human conscience-vendor, a Tory Minister, a jobber.' That pretty well covers the whole field of vilification.

TIME HAS VINDICATED HIM.

"But time has done its work. Cartier himself never lived to witness, and very few men do live to witness, the fair and final judgment of his country after the smoke of misrepresentation has lifted and the passions of controversy have subsided. But the favorable verdict of posterity is something a thousand times worth while and the ceremonies of this afternoon are one of a multitude of manifestations of how sincere and how universal that favorable verdict is.

"Cartier toiled and he did not toil in vain, for friendship between English-Canadians and French-Canadians, for friendship securely based not on racial amalgamation or an impossible uniformity but on mutual confidence and respect, for the conquest of sympathy over prejudice, for the triumph of good will. Let us strive to bring to full fruition the vision of Cartier and of the Fathers of Confederation. Let the aspiration of Lamartine be ours.

HON. MR. TASCHEREAU'S TRIBUTE.

In this old Quebec, which is the heart of Canada, and where the traditions of the past, and the memories of those who have served the country are kept saved, it is more than justifiable to erect a monument of granite and bronze to this well-known statesman, who so actively contributed to the creation of the Canadian Confederation, and who in his person did so much to assure our province the privileges to which she is entitled. I sincerely thank the president and the members of the committee for inviting me to unveil this statue.

Quebec did not wait till the acts of Sir George Etienne Cartier were sanctioned by half a century of existence to mark his affection and render him homage, but paid this homage in full.

Not only did Sir George Etienne Cartier protect and foster the interest of French Canada, but in his remarkable Parliamentary career won the respect of his English colleagues.

HON. HUGH GUTHRIE LEAVES TO ATTEND BRUSSELS CONFERENCE.

OTTAWA, Sept. 7. — Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Militia, left Ottawa last night for England. He will represent the Canadian Government at the International Financial Conference in Brussels on September 23.

THE AGRICULTURAL FAIRS ARE NOW IN FULL SWING

PRESSMEN VISIT ONTARIO MINES

Delegates Display Keenest Interest in Chief Northern Industry

TIMMINS, Ont., Sept. 7—Inspection of the Hollinger Mine furnished delegates to the Imperial Press Conference with diversion in their Canadian tour yesterday. Having seen the agricultural treasurer of Canadian soil, they witnessed the underground wealth in gold of Northern Ontario. They rose at dawn to visit Timmins and were given a hearty welcome on behalf of the town by Mayor McInnis, who assured them of the friendliness of all Canadian people for brothers from overseas. The town was in holiday mood and the delegates were given a demonstration of good will from the towns-people as they left at 11 o'clock yesterday morning after several hours spent around the mines. Moving pictures of the workings of the mines, furnished by the Ontario Government began the day at 8 a.m.

Acknowledging the mayor's welcome, J. Penn, a New Zealand delegate, reciprocated good wishes and humorously urged that the visitors be weighed and assayed before entering and after leaving the mines. Answering the mayor's hope that British capital would be invested in Timmins, Mr. Penn expressed the conviction that British capital could be secured readily for any sound ventures in Canadian mining. The party visited New Liskeard and Cobalt later in the day.

COBALT, Ont., Sept. 7—A bridge-whist drive was in full swing yesterday between Timmins and Cobalt aboard the Canadian Pacific Imperial Press special. The participants numbered among them Lord and Lady Burnham, Sir Frank and Lady Newnes, Sir Elmsley and Lady Carr of London, Messrs. MacDonald and Marshall, also of London, Mr. and Mrs. Fairfax of Australia, and many other distinguished guests of the Canadian Press.

On Saturday and Sunday nights a song festival in the observation cars furnished the entertainment of the evening, and developed a classic taste among the guests. Faust and Verdi, Baife, with the works of the more modern composers, formed a large part of the program.

A special dinner last night on the Canadian Pacific dining car was a continuation of the closing festivities of the Imperial Press tour through Canada.

HELD CELEBRATION.

A feature yesterday in the tour of the Imperial Press Conference, delegation was the celebration of the anniversary of the birthday of Miss Billington, the only lady delegate to the conference who represents the London Daily Telegraph, was compelled to attend two birthday parties. The Press Party being split into two special trains, Miss Billington came in for a jollification on each train, and was presented with a memorial by her colleagues.

COLCHESTER FIGHT ON IN EARNEST

McCurdy and Dixon Nominated at Lively Meetings

TRURO, N.S., Sept. 7.—Hon. F. B. McCurdy and Captain Hugh Dixon, were nominated here yesterday to contest Colchester county at the coming election as representatives of the Conservative and Farmer parties, respectively. The Conservatives held a largely attended nomination meeting in the Princess Theatre last evening at which the principal speakers were: Hon. F. B. McCurdy, Hon. G. Robertson, Minister of Labor, and Dr. Edwards, M.P., for Frontenac.

The speakers were heckled by C. P. Blanchard, a Truro "farmer," and Mr. McMillan, a representative of the farmers from Ontario. The suggestion that the meeting be made a joint affair in order to allow Messrs. Blanchard and McMillan to address the meeting was acceded to but the lateness of the hour at the conclusion of Dr. Edwards' two hour speech prevented Messrs. Blanchard and McMillan from speaking.

OPPONENT NOT FORMIDABLE.

OTTAWA, Sept. 7. (Canadian Press)—News of the nomination of Dr. A. F. Emery as Liberal candidate to oppose Hon. R. W. Wigmore, in the St. John election on September 20, was received with some surprise here. It was thought that Mr. Wigmore would receive an acclamation, as there appeared little prospect of a Liberal candidate entering the field. In Government circles the opinion is that Dr. Emery will not prove a formidable candidate. It is pointed out that he was at the foot of the poll in the last general election, when three candidates were in the field, and in a straight fight against Mr. Wigmore, he is conceded little chance.

The nominations in Colchester, where Hon. F. B. McCurdy is opposed by Captain Hugh Dickson, M.C., Farmer-Labor candidate, were just as expected. Although Government supporters appear to think that Mr. McCurdy will carry the seat, the fact that two farmers were returned in the provincial elections tends to make the result doubtful. The constituency is largely rural.

Expected Release of Strike Leaders Did Not Materialize

WINNIPEG, Sept. 7.—There had been an impression locally that the imprisoned strike leaders would be released from jail yesterday, but the delivery did not materialize. In one case, it seemed more noteworthy than others, for the daughter of George Armstrong, M.L.A. was married here. The family had expected the father to be present, but no word even came of any clemency from Ottawa for any of the labor leaders.

NINE CHARRED BODIES RECOVERED FROM FIRE

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Sept. 7.—Nine charred bodies had been recovered at noon yesterday from the ruins of a fire which destroyed the Houston Hotel and opera house and burned two blocks of dwellings and business houses.

Five bodies have been identified.

Many persons were burned or injured in escaping from the burning hotel. All the dead were believed to be from Oregon.

Mrs. Mary Campora, to whom a baby girl was born last Friday, threw the infant from a third-storey window into the arms of spectators, then jumped. The baby was uninjured, but Mrs. Campora sufferious hurts.

COX FAVORS SELF-DETERMINATION

Replies to Question Put to Him at St. Paul Meeting

ST. Paul, Minn, Sept. 7—ment that he favored appli the principle of self-determ Ireland was made by Gov at his public meeting here in response to a question by the audience.

"If elected President," asked, "will you recognize republic?"

"I am in favor of the applic the principle of self-determina Japan, in China, in Persia, in and in Ireland," was the Gove reply, after several passages wit inquisitor. The reply drew loud plause and ended interruptions.

Governor Cox spent a strenuo day. He made several speeches, at tended the Minnesota state fair, where he drove a race horse around the track, attended several receptions and closed his visit to the state tonight with another address in Minneapolis.

ST. JOHN FAIR

ST. JOHN, N.B., Sept. 7.—Twenty-one thousand people passed through the turnstile at the exhibition grounds yesterday to view the arts and crafts, the livestock, agricultural, mechanical and other exhibits which go to make up St. John's fair and exhibition.

The exhibitors have outdone themselves this year, and each has a display pleasing and attractive. The livestock department is not as large as would be ordinarily expected, but by today it was thought all stalls and pens will be filled.

The kennel show, which opens today, will be one of the big features, as prize-winners from all over Canada are entered.

"Oh, I Didn't Know About That!"

"IT is unfair! My telephone bill will go up three hundred per cent.," said a big user of our service.

"Have you considered the proposed reductions in equipment charges?" he was asked.

"What do you mean 'reductions;' I never heard of any?"

	PRESENT Yearly Rental	PROPOSED Yearly Rental
Private Branch Switchboard	$ 66.00	$ 48.00
4 Trunk Lines to "Central"	132.00	132.00
13 Extension Telephones	357.50	140.40
1 Generator Circuit	33.00	no charge
Total Rental	$588.50	$320.40

The difference, $268.10 will pay for 6,703 outgoing messages. Add the 1,200 outgoing messages to which he is entitled under the proposed basic rental, and you have 7,902 messages a year that his present expenditure for telephone service will buy. This volume of telephone traffic added to his free incoming calls, means a reasonably busy telephone equipment. With proper supervision and the application to his telephones of the same efficiency that characterizes other branches of his business, the cost of his service is in his own hands.

"Oh, I didn't know about those reductions in equipment rentals," said our subscriber when we had figured it out for him as above!

Can it be that there are other big users of telephone service who have overlooked these reductions?

We believe that when the full facts are understood, the absolute fairness of message rates for business telephones will be conceded.

MONTREAL POLO CLUB RETAINS GRENFELL CHALLENGE TROPHY

Inter-City Polo Games the Last for the Canadian Championship, Were Most Successful—Major McDougall Was Slightly Hurt

Montreal and Toronto polo teams played yesterday afternoon for the Grenfell cup championship on the gounds of the Back River Club, and excellent polo was witnessed, Montreal successfully defending their title but with a much more strenuous effort than is revealed by the score.

There was a record attendance, and fully a thousand visitors found their way out to the Bois Franc grounds. Polo is such an exhilarating game to watch, and there is so much good riding and so many beautiful ponies, that no doubt more people will in future make it a point to go out. There is probably no finer or cleaner sport, and the exhibitions of horsemanship are worthy of any cowboy. A visit to these grounds in itself is a pleasure, they are beautifully located, and kept in perfect condition. Such an expanse of well cut turf is an uncommon and lovely sight.

Play did not commence till four o'clock, which seems late until one learns that it is to avoid the midday heat. That is ample reason, for polo is too strenuous. But once started it was kept strictly to time, and the result was an interesting afternoon's sport, over in ample time to keep evening engagements, and it is a pity that more sporting events are not run on similar strict schedules.

The game was held under the auspices of the Montreal Polo Club, and since the Grenfell challenge cup represents the Canadian championship it was to be expected that Toronto and Montreal would put up a most exciting battle, which they did. Montreal was much better mounted, and their ponies the faster, but Toronto players said their ponies were new to polo, and had not long been playing, so that they will no doubt improve. The pace was fast, and players did not spare themselves, and many cheers went up for what seemed almost miraculous strokes, back-handed strokes in particular appearing brilliant, and causing many favorable comments. If any player may be mentioned, it is perhaps Major Hartland B. MacDougall, Montreal, who is a fine player, and who moreover punished the ball to such purpose that he smashed several sticks. He has a tremendous drive, and was one of the best mounted men too. In the last chukka it was unfortunate that his pony tripped and fell, throwing him somewhat heavily, but he was quickly on his feet again, and after a couple of minutes' breathe remounted and finished the game.

The timekeeper was Major Ingpen, and umpire, Major Col. Ross.

At the opening of play Montreal won the toss and at once assumed the offensive, but Toronto managed to get the ball away and G. Beardmore scored the first goal for the visitors. It was a good start, but not maintained for in spite of strenuous work Toronto did not get through again till the sixth chukka.

In the second chukka Major MacDougall scored Montreal's first goal and in a rough and tumble in front of Toronto's goal a pony put the ball through, this making 2-1 for Montreal. In the third chukka B. Ogilvie, who did some excellent work in the match, scored a third goal for Montreal, repeating with a fourth in the next chukka, quickly followed by one from G. Ogilvie. After halftime the fifth chukka opened with both sides refreshed and doing their best, but no score was made, though the sixth chukka made up for it, Harold Bickford first scoring one for Toronto, soon followed by two for Montreal, by G. Ogilvie and F. Beardmore. In the seventh chukka Allan Case, who had been doing great work for Toronto, scored their third goal, the last of the day. In the last chukka, marred by Major MacDougall's fall, there was no scoring, though possibly Montreal felt satisfied to let it stand at 7-3 in their favor, thus securing cup and championship. A return match will be played some time in October, in Toronto.

THE POLO TEAMS THAT COMPETED FOR THE GRENFELL CUP

R. ST. LAWRENCE YACHT CLUB W... UP OF THE SEA...

The sailing schedule of the R... Lawrence Yacht Club was brou... successful ending by the annual ... end cruise up the Lake of Two ... tains. Leaving their anchorages ... Lake St. Louis on Saturday, the ya... assembled at Hudson in the even... Many of the boats did not arrive ... quite late as the wind became very lig... about 7:15 p.m. and most of the wind ... jammers were towed in. A masquerade ... dance was being held at the Hudson Yacht Club and the visitors spent a most enjoyable evening.

Sunday morning the wind was very light from the southeast and the trip to Jones Island was a slow one. In the afternoon a little breeze came in from the southeast and most of the boats were out for a sail in the vicinity of Jones Island. As the breeze held true four of the boats sailed down to Hudson and spent the evening there. The majority anchored off Jones Island and a big bonfire was lighted on shore, round which the crews of the boats gathered and spent the evening. On Monday (Labor Day), the boats returned to their respective moorings and as there was a fair breeze most of the day the boats made good time and the majority reached home before nightfall. A feature of the cruise was the presence of the three big yawls Thorella IV., Thiore and Jellicoe. A good number of boats turned out and taken as a whole the cruise was a great success. Amongst those taking part were:

Sailing yachts—Thorella IV., Wm. C. Finley, flagship; Thiore, A. F. Robertson; Jellicoe, Sea Scouts; Otter, A. Hamaker; Tohra, J. S. Parke; Coquette, G. S. Hamilton; Bluemouse, Shearer; Geraldine, Dr. J. H. Parke; Gudrun, A. S. Poe; Kelpie, J. McGowan; Sunbeam, F. Mead; Baby Thorella, J. Mickles.

Power yachts—Lotus, H. Routh; Dagmar, Mr. Stevens; Monica, W. A. Mace.

In addition to these boats a number took part, but did not follow the fleet all the way.

RIDEAU DEFY THE C. C. A. IN HERN TROPHY MATTER

Send Man to Compete in Unsanctioned Race—Suspensions Will Result No Doubt in Effort to Keep Professionalism Out of Canoeing

Notwithstanding the refusal of the Canadian Canoe Association to sanction the race on account of the donor of the cup being a professional sportsman the Riley Hern canoe marathan was held yesterday. In discussing the action of the donor and trustees of the cup, C. G. Wilkinson, Rear Commodore of the Canadian Canoe Association told the Star that the action in defying the C.C.A. authorities would in all likelihood result in the suspension of the Rideau Aquatic Club, Tressidder, and all the officials and trustees who have been members of the association. In regard to his own action in the past he said:

"Much as I regretted to hurt any one's feelings or spoil anyone's pleasure, and while I have the greatest respect for Mr. Hern personally, my only course in view of the existing constitution of the Association was to decline to recommend to the Commodore in my capacity as rerresentative of this district that a sanction be given to the race."

Mr. Hern's backers claim that the action of the Rideau Club means a break up of the C.C.A., and the formation of the new body by Ontario and Toronto clubs known as the Eastern Canada Paddling Association.

The officials of the race yesterday were:

Starter: Bob Stevenson.

Judges: Gordon Hodge, Howard Strachan.

Clerks of course: Russel Hare and M. Gauthier.

Tressider made his start, wearing the Rideau colors. As there were no other entries, the trustees decided to award the trophy to Rideau by default. The presentation was made by the donor of the cup, in the presence of a large number of sporting enthusiasts and the trustees.

The trophy remains in the possession of the Rideau Club until next Labor Day, when it will again be competed for.

At the St. Rose Boating Club last evening a gold watch and chain was presented to "Jimmy" Baker, secretary of the club, in recognition of his services to the club. The presentation was made by the president of the club, Riley Hern.

In officially running this race, the gauntlet has been thrown down to the C.C.A. The Riley Hern race was officially sanctioned by the C.C.A. last year and successfully contested. This year the C.C.A. through C. A. Wilkinson, rear-commodore, refused the necessary sanction on the ground that the donor of the trophy, a professional sportsman through his celebrated career as a hockey player was president of the St. Rose Boating Club which latter club on that account was turned down in its application for membership in the C.C.A.

Trustee J. M. Gardiner, in a statement to The Star, said:

"The action of the Eastern Division, which I maintain is not in accordance with their constitution, is inexcusable. Last year the race was run and won; we had a splendid entry list and every one seemed to be satisfied. This year the proverbial nigger in the woodpile appeared on the scene, and the refusal of the sanction was laid to technicalities. However, despite the C.C.A., the cup has been won by a C.C.A. club and a C.C.A. paddler—one of the strongest. The next move is the C.A.A.'s.

ALL STARS START WELL BUT LOSE LACROSSE GAME

The game yesterday at the Shamrock grounds between the All Stars and the Shamrocks proved a win for the "Green Shirts" by 11 goals to 8. The All Stars led off with a rush, and had the score doubled before the Irishmen took their right bearings. When the "boys in green" got going, it was easy sailing. Eddie Farney, notwithstanding his injuries, was in the lineup. Jimmy Walsh made his appearance with the team and was in great shape. Herbie Campbell was present at the match, but did not figure in the line-up. Nate Penny missed an easy chance in the third quarter to score, when, with an empty net, the ball was fired far wide of the mark. At times the All-Stars' home had the big defence of the Shamrocks on the jump and for a while kept the gallant alderman from Verdun busy in picking them out. The tricky work of the Shamrock's home, with Penny, Butler, J. Walsh, W. Welsh, Egan, Tommy Ryan, Ellard and Roberts, proved too much for the defence of the All-Stars. The first goal scored for the Shamrocks was a pretty piece of work, "King" Brady getting the ball on the defence, went down the field like a deer, and passing the whole All-Star defence, sent a hot one past Barry. Fred Scott, Langevin, Secours, Henry Scott and "Dare-Devil" Gauthier showed wonderful speed, fine stick-handling, and demonstrated to the spectators that they still know all the tricks of the game, and used them as in their palmiest days. Financially, the venture was far below expectations, as only a small-sized audience was present. Unless the other ventures necessary to raise the amount required to finance the trip to the West be not more successful, then it is questionable if the challengers will be able to go at all. The game was one of the cleanest on record, and deserved to be better encouraged.

The juvenile game previous to the senior match between the Excelsiors and the Variety team proved a win for the latter by 13 goals to 1. In the first half the Excelsiors held their own, and had the Variety lads guessing, but when the purple, white and green got going it was a runaway. The checking was fast and furious, the passing and intercepting good and for over an hour the spectators watched the youngsters perform and were delighted with their performance. While every player did his best on both teams the work of Blackstock, McGarrity, Murphy, Kelly, McCormack, Burke, Kervin, Walt Thornton and Paquette of the Variety team, and Clarence Jones, Flood, O'Neill, Feron, Slattery of the Excelsiors, call for special mention. Captain Tom Burke scored five goals and Merrill Paquette six for the winning side.

NOBLE AND MURPHY MEET HERE TOMORROW

Following the announcement yesterday that Tony Stapleton had been injured in training and would be unable to meet Jack Kid Thomas tomorrow night, an interesting match was closed for a meeting between Tommy Noble the crack British featherweight and Willie Murphy, the rugged little Irishman who fought Young Lewis here recently and made a great hit. These two will hook up over the ten-round trail at the Arena tomorrow night, making a double-header with the ten-round bout between Billy Baker, the English featherweight, and Mickey Delmont, of New York, the pair who furnished such a sensational battle last week.

There are a number of interesting battles coming on. For September 17 the Mount Royal Arena has closed with Corporal Jack Bloomfield, who knocked out Eugene Brosseau here last night, to fight Johnny Howard, who recently outfought George Chip here. Mixer Mitchell, the Syracuse fighter, who gave away twenty pounds to Aleck Decoteau last night and whipped his big opponent in every round, is likely to meet Jack Kid Thomas at the Regal A. C. in the near future. Both fighters said today they were willing to meet at any time.

The quarter-mile Ontario championship was won by Elson McKay, of Toronto, defeating F. Rollens of Belgium, and G. Wright, of Toronto.

GRIER WAS THE ONLY CANADIAN TO REALLY QUALIFY AT ROSLYN

W. J. Thompson Has a Chance Today Because He Was in a Tie Game—British Amateur is Out of the Running

ENGINEERS' ROSLYN, L.I., Sept. 7.—(United Press).—Cyril Tolley, the sensational young Oxonian English golf champion, was one of three Englishmen who failed to come through in the qualifying round of the National Amateur Golf Champion Monday. Tolley had been ill for several days and made little attempt to practice over the course. A tie for the gold medal developed at dusk between Bobby Jones, of Atlanta and Fred J. Enright, Jr., of Boston, at 154 strokes. For the last three places in the championship division of 32 there was a tie between seven men who were to play off at 8:30 Tuesday morning. These seven are Harold Weber, Toledo; W. J. Thompson, Canada; Reuben Bush, New Orleans; Albert Leckel, Chicago; Sam J. Graham, Greenwich; John N. Stearns, Jr., Nassau; Hamilton Gardiner, Buffalo.

The championship draw came through well, although the composition was not quite definite owing to four byes which were to be determined by the play-off.

The upper half was F. C. Newton, Boston, versus Chick Evans, Chicago. Gardiner White, Nassau, versus Reggie Lewis, Greenwich; C. B. Grier, Canada, the Dominion champion, versus Robert Gardner, Chicago, runner-up in the last British championship; W. C. Fownes, Jr., Pittsburgh versus Bye No. 2; Robert McKee, Souix City versus E. P. Allis, Milwaukee; Oswald Kirkby, Englewood versus Clarke Corkran, Baltimore; Davidson Herron Pittsburgh, the present champion, vs. Peter Harmon, Scottish American; Maurice Risley, Atlantic City vs. J. Wood Platt, Philadelphia.

The lower half was Francois Ouimet, Boston vs. Richard Hickey, Atlanta; Meredith M. Jack, Philadelphia vs. Bye No. 3; Philip Carter, Shinnecock Hills vs. Maxwell Marston, Philadelphia; Thomas Armour, England vs. George Hoffner, Philadelphia; Frank W. Dyer, Upper Montclair vs. J. Broz, Pittsburgh; J. Simpson Dean, Atlanta vs. Bobby Jones, Atlanta; Jess Sweetser, Siwanoy vs. D. E. Sawyer, Siwanoy, the Metropolitan champion; Fred J. Wright, Jr., Boston vs. Bye No. 1.

In addition to Tolley, the Englishmen who failed to qualify were Roger Wethered and Lord Charles Hope, Thomas Armour, in the lower half being the only one to qualify.

C. B. Grier was the only Dominion player who positively saved his skin, although W. J. Thompson has a chance to get in on the play-off.

Among the cracks who fell by the wayside by one stroke at 166 were Jesse Guilford, Boston, who has held both Massachusetts titles; Thomas Sherman, Utica; Warren Corkle, Baltimore, former Princeton star; William McLuckie, last year's Canadian champion; J. G. Anderson, who was twice the national runner-up; J. A. Gammons, Providence leader and G. H. Turpin, ex-holder of the Dominion title.

TOOK DEMPSEY ONLY THREE R'NDS TO STOP MISKE

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Sept. 7.—(United Press.)—Jack Dempsey still sat firmly upon the world's heavyweight boxing throne today, with his crown untilted by efforts of Billy Miske, St. Paul contender, here yesterday.

Miske, who in previous encounters had weathered sixteen rounds of Dempsey's onslaughts, was laid low in the third round of the schedule ten-round match. Dempsey shot through a right to the jaw after one minute and thirteen seconds after the third round started, adding another to his list of knockout victims.

Dempsey, nine seconds before, had floored the contender with a left hook. Billy arose, dazed and benumbed and before his guard was in place, the champion ended Billy's ambition.

The damage that ended the scuffle in the third round was done when the "human thunderbolt" reached Miske's ribs, just under the heart, with a stinging left jab in the second round. Miske, lifted off his feet, was neatly set down five feet from the champion. His face plainly showed pain and thereafter he was weaker and less effective.

The attendance was officially estimated at 11,500. Total receipts were placed at $134,904, of which Dempsey received 50 per cent. and Miske 25 per cent.

As 12,000 persons, crazed by enthusiasm, gave way to long pent-up enthusiasm, while hundreds nearest the ring strove to batter their way through the cordon of constabulary to lift the champion to their shoulders and carry him triumphantly from the scene of victory, Dempsey bent over the prostrate form of his opponent, tenderly raised his still unconscious rival, and deposited the limp hulk in the chair, and while the challenger's seconds dazedly administered the first aid to their beaten idol, Dempsey stood by. He seemed to regret that he had been forced to drive over the crushing blow that had scattered Miske's long-cherished championship aspirations never to be recovered.

When he opened his eyes, after Jim Dougherty, the referee, had tolled off the fatal ten and his dazed senses had cleared sufficiently to permit him to grasp what had happened, Miske realized that his work had been in vain, that the goal he had set for himself had been removed beyond reach.

The end came suddenly, but it was not unexpected, the way had been paved for it. The crowd had been prepared for it. It had been anticipated momentarily.

Toronto Holds the International Gold Cup

TORONTO, Sept. 7. — Heldena II., owned by Fred. Miller of this city, having won three straight motorboat races, became the holder of the International Gold Cup for displacement boats. The final race was a close one with Speeder II., and Leopard V., hot contestants. The winners' time for the 30 miles was 54:18.

Pitiful Performance of Once Brilliant Middleweight Gave Impression Career in the Ring is Finished—Former Admirers Clamored for Knockout

The many friends of Eugene Brosseau, "Gentleman Gene," will regret to hear that it looks as if his star had set as a professional boxer. He apparently has failed to recover from the unfortunate chance blow which it is said, some months ago, paralyzed certain nerves; and those who saw him last night all expressed the fear that he would never be himself again in the ring, while at the same time agreeing that it might have been more advisable to have postponed his reappearance, thus giving him more time to recuperate.

In the meantime, he may be assured that if there is the slightest possibility of a complete recovery of his old powers, the best wishes of the Montreal sporting public are his.

The Monument National was crowded to its capacity last night to witness his return, after he had been defeated last May by Mike McTigue in Halifax. When Brosseau stepped in the ring he was given a tremendous cheer, and everybody expected to see him a better man than last year, but to the great surprise of the crowd "Gentleman Gene" went down to defeat, Jack Bloomfield punching him into submission throughout the seven rounds of the scheduled ten-round bout.

There is no doubt that it was not the Brosseau of yore. He not only lacked speed but had not enough strength to land a good punch, and his defence was gone. Unless he stages an unlikely come-back, Brosseau's career as a boxer is ended.

It was a sad spectacle as right from the first round Bloomfield started jabbing rights and lefts to Brosseau's face without receiving a punch in return. From then on it was plain that Brosseau was a beaten man. Brosseau tried to come back with a left hook, but missed it and as he came in Bloomfield met him square on the face and Brosseau's mouth started to bleed. In the second round, Gene showed lack of confidence and Bloomfield began dancing around him and punching him at will, and from then on it was only a matter of time when Bloomfield would score the haymaker. Each round it was noticed that Brosseau was getting weaker and all the steam and vim had left him and when the sixth round ended Brosseau collapsed in his corner. When he came back gamely in the seventh round Bloomfield opened up on him with a shower of rights and lefts to the jaw and Brosseau was helpless. The crowd cruel and changeable as always and as always siding with the upperdog no matter how often they have acclaimed the loser in the past, fiercely clamored for Bloomfield to give their former idol his coup-de-grace, but one of his friends, they say it was Art Ross, saw Brosseau was beaten and threw up the sponge, thus giving Bloomfield the fight through the technical K.O. route.

The semi-final was the feature bout of the evening, when "Mixer" Mitchell of Syracuse defeated Descoteaux of Montreal in eight rounds. Descoteaux started well in the first round, by scoring vicious rights to Mitchell's jaw, but from then on to the end of the scheduled eight rounds, Mitchell landed on his opponent with rights and lefts to the face continually and had it not been for Descoteaux physical condition he would have been knocked out in the second round. Mitchell is a shifty and very clever boxer and packs a good punch with both hands, and if matched with a clever opponent should make a nice bout to watch. It is understood that Jack "Kid" Thomas will box him in the near future.

The first preliminary on the program was between Kid Sherman and Kid Morris a colored boxer, who had fully twenty pounds in weight and a foot in reach over Sherman but with all this advantage Sherman held his own with him and earned the decision, in four rounds.

The second preliminary was between Joe Shears, the well known local boxer and Kid Marshall another local boy. This bout went the scheduled six rounds with Marshall having the better of it.

Brosseau stated to The Star that it was the first blow that reached him which took the heart out of him, but he thinks he will yet be able to come back.

Watching the Scoreboard

Ring and Fischer pitched the Reds to two holiday victories over the Cardinals, 5 to 3 and 4 to 2.

Ford's triple beat the Giants, 1 to 0 in the first game. The Braves weakened before Nehf's slant in the second, and lost 5 to 0.

The Cubs and Pirates went 50-50. The Terrible Terry put the Cubs in front in the morning 5 to 2. Cutshaw was hitting everything in sight after lunch, and helped the Pirates to a 12 to 1 victory.

Shorty Hodge registered a two-hit game as his debut in the big league. Seven passes forced him to go ten innings before he gave the White Sox a 5 to 4 decision over the Tigers. The White Sox also took the morning game 6 to 2.

Mails kept the Indians in front by winning from the Brawns, 7 to 2 in the morning. Elmer Smith doubled thrice in the afternoon, and figured largely in the Indians' big end of a 6 to 5 score.

Thormahlen and Shawkey had an easy time with the Athletics, holding them to five and three hits. The Yankees captured both 4 to 1 and 5 to 0.

SPION KOP FAVORITE; KING'S HORSE OUT OF IT

DONCASTER, England, Sept. 7.—The Doncaster race meeting, of which the St. Leger stakes is the big event, opened today before enormous crowds.

Spion Kop, the Derby winner, was expected to start a favorite in the feature race, which will be run tomorrow. King George's entry, Lemonade, was withdrawn. The King did not attend today, as had been planned.

GRAMPIAN VS. NOMADS.

A very interesting and exciting game was played last evening between the Grampian and Nomads on Nomads ground. The sailors were minus two of their stars players. Nomads played in splendid form after their hard game on Saturday with Dominion Bridge, and had the edge on the sailors, winning out by two goals. Although beaten the sailors have challenged them on their return trip to this city. After the game Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Hendry entertained both teams to a very enjoyable evening, partaking in the good things of life. A. Deacons, on behalf of Nomads, and W. Ballantyne, on behalf of Grampian, thanked their hostess of the evening for the manner in which she entertained them. After the singing of the National Anthem, the evening came to a close in the wee hour of the morning.

BOWLED FOR BENEFIT CHILDREN'S MEMORIAL

Skip W. M. Irving carried his rink to victory in the lawn bowling tournament held by the Westmount Lawn Bowling Club yesterday afternoon as a benefit for the Children's Memorial Hospital. The rink skipped by Irving defeated the quartette headed by A. E. Gallagher, winning by a single point, the scores being: Irving, 14; Gallagher, 13. In the final of the consolation, the rink skipped by G. E. Cheese won from the F. H. Gardner rink by a score of 18 to 3. The tourney realized a nice sum of money.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

IT NEVER LASTS.

Where are the unctuous excitable gents
Who vowed that till clothing came down,
They'd prove they had courage and hard common sense
By wearing blue jeans around town?
You will see them parading all over the lot
Wherever you happen to go,
Arrayed in the best that the tailor has got
At a hundred and fifty a throw.

You'll find it, if you ask, they're consider'bly higher!

Where is the sturdy unterrified crew
Who swore that till meat took a drop,
They never would order a steak or a stew
Or a roast or a joint or a chop?
With fat filet mignons and saddles of lamb,
That cost them a quarter a bite,
Chateaubriand steaks and Virginia ham
They are filling themselves every night.

And has meat shrunk in price since they made their complaint?
Go ask of the butcher. You'll learn that it ain't!

Where is the angry and talkative crowd
That said that if liquor stayed up,
And said it in accents that rang rather loud,
They never would take one more sip?
You'll find them in alleys that lead to a slum,
Where bootleggers slyly resort,
Providing themselves with inferior rum
At thirty-five dollars a quart.

And have prices gone down for hard liquor and such?
Well hardly! They're selling for three times as much!

BUT THERE NEVER IS.

If there was as big a howl about a sugar shortage as there is about a gasoline shortage there never would be any sugar shortage.

CRICKET FINAL FOR CUP WILL BE FINISHED SAT'Y

The final for the Challenge Cup of the Montreal and District Cricket League was played at Verdun September 6 (Labor Day), resulting in the game being unfinished. Although the game was scheduled to commence at 1:30 p.m., it was not until 2:15 p.m. that Lachine, having lost the toss, were led into the field by F. Smith. At this time Thompson and Wallace, of Lachine, had not arrived on the ground. Whatever may have been the counter attraction in the cricket world of Montreal, it certainly did not detract any from the Verdun one. The Verdun grounds are beautifully situated, and a record crowd saw Williamson and Bowen open the West Indian batting, to the bowling of Wilson and Clarke, of Lachine. Williamson is not the same as of old, and was bowled by Clarke for the proverbial duck. With Bowen and Leshly together, the game took on a different complexion. Bowen survived a catch, in fact, at this point the Lachine team seemed to suffer a bad attack of nerves, or was it as one wag put it, that "the Indians had put butter on the ball." The fielding, to say the least, was very bad, and the Indians took every advantage of it. Frick came on in the place of Wilson, and immediately bowled Leshly, who had played a good if rather lucky innings of 24. Bowen, after his first chance, played a great innings, although he was lucky in not being run out. His partner, Dr. Holder, had to retire owing to the fact that the batters had not crossed. Byar came in and immediately started to hit. Byar had some luck, but hit along merrily. C. Wallace came on, bowling for Lachine, and immediately bowled Bowen for a well played 42 runs, a great innings outside of his early chance. J. Jones hit up a merry 19 before being caught by Thompson. The catch by Horsfall which dismissed Byar was a fine one, and deserved the applause it received. Pullar played carefully, but was never very comfortable. Swift failed to score, but Spooner and Ashby made things lively for a while, taking all chances. Spooner's effort was a great help to his side, his 28 being a clean, hard-hitting display. The West Indians were all out 175, O. Wallace showing the best bowling form, taking 4 wickets for 31 runs, although all bowlers in the large crowd present must have no doubt given Geo. Clarke their silent sympathy. Clarke bowled exceptionally well, with poor support in the field. There is no doubt that if all the offerings had been accepted from Clarke's bowling, the score of 175 would not have been reached. Lachine started their heavy task with Wilson and Thompson, both batters playing with the utmost confidence. Thompson, however, was clean bowled by Byar, when he had made 8. Wilson was caught at the wicket after he had made 15 by good cricket. Williamson, who had succeeded Thompson, continued to play steady cricket. Santos survived a confident appeal for leg before, but did not last long, being caught by Bowen at cover, a particularly fine effort. O. Wallace and Williamson played out time, taking the score to 91 for 4 wickets, leaving the game in a very interesting state. It would be very difficult to say with which team the advantage lay. The game will be finished on Saturday on Verdun ground, continuing at the point at which it was decided to discontinue owing to the failing light.

The defeat of McGill by Westmount leaves Westmount in a very strong position for the league championship. This must be very gratifying to the executive of the Westmount C.C., with the trying time at the commencement of the season, and the fact that they lost the services of their two last year's regular bowlers, Wallace and Beacock, not forgetting the lamentable decease of the late Albert Anthony, one of the best all-round players Montreal has ever seen. Beacock seems to have dropped out of cricket altogether. This is rather to be regretted, and it is hoped that he will be back in the game next season.

Johnny—Santa Claus.

She was a telephone girl and had connected the subscriber with the wrong number.

Naturally, he thought he was through to the local theatre for which he asked, and being in a hurry, he promptly asked for a box for two.

"But we don't have boxes for two!" said a startled voice at the other end of the line.

"Isn't that the Hilarty theatre?" he demanded, crossly.

"No," was the reply. "This is Snatchum, the undertaker."

Mrs. Lushe was always trying to reform her husband, who was undoubtedly a hard case. One evening she came home from the pictures and burst excitedly into the sitting room.

"There, John," she said. "I've always told you what would happen to a man who drank! I've just seen Mr. Tippleton staggering into his house with his face all bruised, and his clothes simply covered with mud. That's the result of too much liquor!"

John looked casually up from his paper. He wouldn't have been at home except for the fact that this happened on a Thursday and Friday was payday.

"As usual, you're wrong, my dear," he replied calmly. "That was the result of too little liquor. If the poor chap had only had more, they'd have had to send him home safely in a cab!"

REDDY MACDONALD WAS OUTPOINTED

HALIFAX, N.S., Sept. 7. (Star Special) — After fifteen rounds of the poorest exhibition of boxing seen in a local ring for some months, Tommy Robson, of Malden, Mass., was awarded the decision over Reddy Macdonald, of Glace Bay, by referee Tom Foley. The bout was the feature event of the Trades and Labor Council's Labor Day boxing tournament, attended by over two thousand. The bout was more of a wrestling match than a boxing show. Occasionally the men would open up, but not for long, and the referee was kept busy throughout the fifteen rounds parting them. Macdonald took a good beating. He landed some good blows on Robson, but several times Roddy appeared to be near out. The men fought with what appeared to be eight ounce gloves instead of six, and thus their blows were not effective. Officials claim that they were six ounce mitts. Macdonald was much heavier than on his last appearance locally, and at times showed a little speed. The first few rounds Robson had the advantage, landing some nice ones and ducking a number of Macdonald's dangerous swings. From the fifth round on Macdonald did better and made an even break in several of the following rounds. At the last Robson had blood coming freely from Macdonald's face.

Robson easily outpointed his opponent, and while he did not appear to be up to his usual form, he demonstrated that he had improved since his appearance here last year. He did much of the leading, while Macdonald frequently tied him up. The bout was a poor one and the decision was favorably received by the majority of those present.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1920.

THE PATRIOTISM OF PEACE.

IN greeting the Conference of Canadian Clubs yesterday, Sir Arthur Currie, principal of McGill University, expressed the Canadian viewpoint on many present-day problems. His knowledge of Canadians was gleaned where no disguises were worn, on the field of battle, and he showed in this address, as he has shown in others, a rare understanding of the Dominion.

Few public men have summed up the vital duty of the hour more pointedly than Sir Arthur Currie did in saying:

> "The Good Book teaches us that the laborer is worthy of his hire, but it also teaches that by the sweat of our brow do we eat bread."

The greatest evils of our time will be overcome only when the whole people learn to respect both these eternal truths. It will not suffice to concentrate on the first and neglect the second, nor yet to reverse the process and think only of getting out the labor. When the time comes that a fair balance is held between the two in shop and factory, office and farm, and when the justice of it is apparent to all, the demon Unrest will have perished.

Canada's greatest soldier has been in touch with patriotism. He knows it better than most who delight to speak the word. He has seen great proof given of the sentiment. He has been privileged to use the forces of sacrifice.

Once again, Sir Arthur Currie invokes the gold-pure Canadian spirit that he knew in the war. He urges his countrymen to remember how great a trust was given into their hands. He seeks to have a clearer expression than has come yet of the peace-time patriotism on which the stability and safety of Canada depends. To one so familiar with the war-time patriotism, the contrast between sacrifice and selfishness is vivid indeed.

Sir Arthur Currie's messages to the troops in the field have taken place with the soul-moving military papers of history. And now in another field of endeavor, facing again high responsibilities and baffling problems, he retains both the right and the ability once more to move his fellow-Canadians into action.

"BACK TO THE LAND" — THEORY AND FACT.

ONCE again the well-worn subject of the depopulation of the rural districts and the steady popular trend toward the cities is up for discussion. The Union of Municipalities of the Province of Quebec has been giving some attention to the matter, but, as is usually the case, has arrived at no definite conclusion.

There is nothing new in the condition complained of. In almost every country in the world the same general tendency is noted and deplored, but the matter becomes of peculiar significance in a country like Canada, where the basic industry of all is, or should be, agriculture. The last decennial census showed an actual decrease in certain rural areas of older Ontario and an urban increase so disproportionately great to prove that rural districts were failing to hold their own, not only where older populations were concerned, but also in the equally important phase of immigrant population from abroad.

The two types of life are, of course, fundamentally different. If the balance between the two is to be maintained at a healthy level, it is obvious that the attractions which each offer must be about equal. That is to say, if the young Canadian is to choose whether he shall live in town or country, his choice is pretty sure to be determined by two considerations—financial security and pleasant surroundings. If town life is more attractive and profitable than country life, it will naturally be chosen by the majority. Similarly, if the country holds out prospects of greater profit and surroundings of even equal attractiveness, rural depopulation need not worry us.

Unfortunately, the Canadian farmer has not hitherto enjoyed either the profits or the comfort to which his type of life entitles him. It has become a popular catch-word about the streets of our towns and cities to call the farmer a profiteer, and to express our willingness to change places with him if we could. As a matter of fact, not one city dweller in five hundred would go "back to the land" if he had the opportunity to do so. Love of rural attractions is a popular pose with us in the cities, which but few of us would translate into action. During the last five years the Canadian farmer has undoubtedly done well. But there was a long, long time before this when he did not, when life on the average Canadian farm was modified slavery for a hopelessly inadequate return, and even today a farmer who makes even a moderate success of his farm works harder and for longer hours than does the city man who pretends to envy him.

We can talk until we are tired about rural depopulation and the sad consequences of the trend to the cities, but until farm life in this country competes on an even footing in so far as profit and pleasures are concerned with city life, the population will continue to trend cityward and the farms of Canada, the backbone of Canadian prosperity, will remain undermanned.

SCHOOL DAYS

THE school holidays are over and if Shakespeare be our mentor and our mirror of boyish hopes and sentiments hundreds of schoolboys in Montreal and elsewhere "with shining morning face" have already crept "like snails unwillingly to school."

The normal boy of today would smile at the idea that the return to school was marked on his life's calendar with a black mark.

If he has a shining morning face, it is because his eyes and his smile are the reflection of a heart that goes singing all the way. The class in which he assembled today was not presided over by a dominie on a raised platform, armed with a painfully titillating collection of birch twigs, which the teacher of Shakespeare's day used so freely to drive his lessons home. Schoolrooms are no longer stuffy and ill-ventilated, cold in winter and asphyxiating in summer. The schoolmaster or mistress is no more the sworn enemy of the boy, "dressed in a little brief authority," and too often anxious to demonstrate that authority by the display of petty tyranny and obstinacy. The methods of Wackford Squeers would raise a smile rather than a riot in the schools of today, and Dame Dorothea would earn as little respect from her pupils as did Sgaharella from Leonor.

Many a boy stayed awake last night thinking of the opening of his school today, but it was not through fear of punishment or through brooding over "weary days of toil to come." He wondered whether Charlie had improved in baseball pitching during the long holidays, and whether their friend, Johnny, had swum the fifty-yards test that made him a swimmer in the Scout world. In the half dreams before morning he hoped they would hear more this term about the nest that the kingfisher builds, the splendid journey of MacKenzie across Canada, or more about those far distant lands where the hippopotamus trumpets in the swollen rivers and the lion wakes the lonely traveller at night.

Boys of today are interested in their studies and in their games. They are interested in their teacher and with the loyalty of boyhood admire his talents and his sincerity. And because they know that the coming days will open up new vistas of delight in the acquirement of worth while knowledge they got to school twenty minutes before the bell rang this morning and swapped experiences with the chaps with whom they will wrestle mentally in school and physically on the playground during the coming months.

THE VALUE OF EFFICIENCY

A METHOD of increasing the efficiency of civic employees has been adopted in various American cities which is well worthy of consideration here. It having become patent in these places that large sums were yearly lost through incompetent civic employees, prominent citizens decided to call meetings in the mayoral chambers and see what steps could be taken to remedy matters. These gatherings created much interest and were very largely attended.

Experts explained that facilities were needed by which employees might equip themselves for positions of greater skill and higher responsibility entirely apart from City Hall facilities. Plans were formulated for founding municipal night schools.

The heads of civic departments heartily approved of the scheme; the schools were inaugurated and very soon hundreds of civic employees were enrolled as pupils. The result of this move has been a decided awakening among civic employees generally, and a distinct ambition has become discernable to serve more intelligently, and to grasp more thoroughly the intricacies of difficult departmental work.

Much has been done by the Administrative Commission here to improve the civic service, but very much yet remains to be accomplished. It has been very clearly realized by the Commission that it is no easy task to jack the various departments up to general efficiency. No stone should be left unturned to accomplish this. With a payroll that consumes nearly a third of the entire revenue efficiency is undoubtedly paid for, and a just return on the big investment is a matter of vital importance.

GROSS NEGLECT.

AN Ottawa girl, spending her holidays on the farm, was shot and killed by a neighbor of her host as the result of a harmless prank. Despatches from the locality declare that the man who used the gun is weak-minded, having been generally regarded as such for a long time.

The time may come when something less than the taking of innocent life may be sufficient to awaken the community to the danger of harboring individuals incapable of responsibility. Why should these characters be permitted to remain at large until they have picked out their victims?

People notoriously unfit for the common duties of citizenship are not treated with sympathy, but with brutal neglect when they are allowed to drift into open crime. Until these mental defectives are taken care of, both for their own good and in the public interest, a weight will rest upon the public conscience.

THE WORLD'S PRESS

Heading for a Heated Port.

The Bermuda Colonist: If but a very small portion of the wishes for his future career, uttered by the skippers and crews of dinghies during last Thursday's races, ever come into operation, the skipper of the steamer that left the wharf side at Hamilton and went across the course of the race at a critical moment, will most assuredly be a most unhappy man.

The Widow's Mite.

Al Nizam of Egypt: In Asia Minor a poor Greek lady died, leaving a cow, which she willed to the University of Athens. It is not strange, therefore, that a nation which supports its glory in this fashion, becomes strong and mighty. As for us, the wealthy spend their money on their pleasures, and on their death their sons follow their example. As to useful services to our country, what we pay for them is against our will.

The Important Middle Class.

London Daily Telegraph: The secret of our prosperity is to be found less conspicuously in the foresight and courage of the Capitalist and the skill of the workman than in the trained intelligence and arduous and unremitting labors of those who constitute the middle class. We do not underrate the value of Capital or the achievements of Labor, but it cannot be doubted that the most important element in the community consists of those who occupy the midway position between the extremes.

Helping Tenant to Get Justice.

The Daily Mail: The new Rent Act has now been in operation for six weeks, and those affected by it are settling down to the new conditions which it imposes. It is an honest attempt to treat landlords and tenants fairly, though, as a natural consequence of the cause of its existence, it leans to the side of the latter. A well-behaved tenant, save in very exceptional cases, is given security of tenure; while the increases of rent permitted are the minimum necessitated by the growing expenses of the owners of house property.

The Individualists.

New York Globe: If revolution ever comes in this country it will be over some tangible grievance, like the tax on tea or the slavery traffic, not for a general and comprehensive scheme to make the world better. We are not a revoluting people. We care a lot about what hurts us, but we do not really care much about theories and institutions, except as they affect us particularly. We may talk for or against the constitution or the single tax, but what we really care about is whether or not the world treats us right according to the rules of the game that actually prevail.

The Common Sense of Neighborliness.

London Daily Chronicle: Life is bearable on anything more overcrowded than an uninhabited island only where there is a spirit of give and take. A man who finds great delight—to take an illustration that may be variously adapted—in keeping a cock that crows throughout the night watches, must be prepared to eliminate that cock from the scheme of things if it annoys his neighbors. It is not only the law, it is also common sense; for without some such spirit of subordination our personal inclinations to the common good, life in community would be impossible.

Never Despair—A Timely Sermon

The Daily Express: Don't despair just because things don't seem to right themselves as quickly as you expected. To give way to despair is precisely the most useless thing you can possibly do. It is the nature of despair to blind us to the way of escape, even when the way is fairly obvious. Just keep on the alert, watching for a chance to come when you yourself, however insignificant you may seem to be, can do something to help. You may remember that once a mouse was able to release a lion from the net in which it was trapped. The chance of helping may come to you. Behind all the clouds that rise from the still seething world gleams the same sun that shines on Paradise.

Prohibition and the Public.

New York World: Every month that passes increases the resourcefulness of the venders of illicit liquor and multiplies the output of kitchen stills. With the opportunities for breaking the law enormously augmented and with scant attention paid by a large element of the population to the moral question of its violation, what else was to be expected? The very conditions invite the abuse of liquor consumption, and it was inevitable that its worst evils should increase under an enforcement which could not be made effective if its agents were multiplied tenfold. The country is having an object-lesson in the futility of attempting to make the public observe a law for which it has no respect. It is a painful lesson, but it does not improve matters to get excited about it.

Cost of Living Going Up.

The Westminster Gazette: The "cost of living" figures do not improve. We have all our old doubts as to whether these statistics are compiled on the right lines, but if their principle is wrong it does not give a wrong result in comparing one month with another. It can scarcely be doubted that August and the succeeding months will show a further rise, and that the winter will involve fresh hardships, particularly as the harvest promises no superabundance. Behind this is the shadow of further unrest, and a fresh and fruitless chase of wages after prices. The first cannot catch up the second, because, until there is a great increase of production, the second depends on the first. But the situation makes economy by the Government ever more urgent.

Restricted Immigration.

Times of India: The war has left a great restlessness behind it—a restlessness which finds expression in the cinema and in mobbing Mary Pickford rather than in hard work in the lonely prairie. Unless, therefore, British emigration is carefully influenced, it is much more likely to find its way to the factories of the United States and Canada or the bloated towns of Sydney and Melbourne. The British are a curious people; they can show in South Africa and Adelaide the most successful examples of State-aided emigration in the world; they can also show an immense amount of promiscuous emigration. If, therefore, the surplus population is to be directed to the lands awaiting development, it will only be through careful selection of the emigrant; the provision of passage conditions consistent with the self-respect of the emigrant and his family; and easy settlement on arrival.

This, Our Life.

I had the invitation of the King
To go into his House, and, innocent
(Young as I was), I let his servants bring,
And helplessly received, the gifts he sent.
These were they: Feet, hands, eyes and right-of birth;
The clothing and condition of a man;
The strange and ancient liberty of earth.
These I must hold, and use them as I can.
Feet bring fatigue; hands, pain; eyes, too much sight;
Birth, rapture, that declines in doubt and sighing;
The vaunted, vast, and everlasting right
Of living is the liberty of dying.
"O Lord, have you no other gifts?" I call.
But He moves silently about His Hall.

—Harold Monro, in The Westminster Gazette.

THE EDITOR'S MAIL

This column is reserved for brief letters, the Editor having the right to condense or make excerpts from those too long for insertion. All letters must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not necessarily for publication. They should be written on one side of the paper and addressed to "The Editor's Mail." The Star is not responsible for opinions expressed by the writers, and does not guarantee the return of unused manuscripts.

A CORRECTION.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—In my letter you published Wednesday, about the Victoria Bridge fire, the typos made me say that the coperas and alum would be transformed with the wood into iron, aluminum and "lignire." I wrote it lignin. Lignin, which is the basis of those longitudinal wood fibres, easily separable into smaller fibres. Those of each kind of wood exhibiting cross sections peculiar to itself, which would lead one to think that the woody fibres are bundles of regularly formed crystals. ALLEN G. INGALLS.

FOOD GOUGERS.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—I saw a letter in your paper, in which the writer showed that cucumbers were sold in ordinary restaurants at a profit of one thousand five hundred per cent. That restaurateur is a "piker." Tomatoes cost wholesale two pounds for five cents. Portions of same sold in some restaurants weigh not more than three ounces. Same are charged to customers, fifteen cents. This figures out a profit of two thousand five hundred per cent. That is not profiteering. It is highway robbery.

PUBLIC BAND CONCERTS.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—As a lover of music and an old bandeman myself, would you permit me to add a word of appreciation to the band that gives us such splendid performances in Westmount Park on Monday evenings? In my opinion there are very few, if any, other bands in the city that can equal them for good playing and purity of tone, but it beats me to know how they got such names as Lorrini and Ossenbach, as the composers of the Wm. Tell Overture and the Bohemian Girl selection. Those two names were printed opposite those two compositions on a Monday evening's program. Perhaps some one can enlighten me.

J. C. S.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—I have seen so many letters of late appear in The Star on cruelty, that I thought I could give a few hints on how it might be stopped.

First—Stop all boys under 20 years of age from driving. 2nd, no heavy draught horse, single or double, allowed to be trotted or run. 3rd. Stop overloading, so many pounds to a single and same to double. Most carters in this city draw by ton, which has a great deal to do with cruelty. 4th. I would suggest that some of those writing about cruelty to animals dig down in their pockets and help S.P.C.A. to put a few more inspectors on the street.

EX-FOREMAN CARTER.

SUGAR.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—Have been reading with great interest the various letters regarding the sugar controversy appearing in your paper. I see a couple of manuscripts in August 31st issue evidently written by warm friends of the refiners. If either of these gentlemen shared in the 28 per cent. dividend paid today by one leading refinery, I wish to congratulate them most heartily. After their specious outbursts of wisdom, I feel sure they will have no hesitation in accepting this emolument, as they can have the deep satisfaction of knowing it was well earned. The sugar shortage is undoubtedly terrific. Supplies are getting so low in the United States, that today I see one of the leading refiners announced a reduction in wholesale to 16 cents a pound. While yesterday the market for raw sugar was so bare of offerings the price of 9¼ cents was realized. I also notice in the back page of tonight's Star sugar retailing at 5 lbs. for $1.06. This is slightly different from the figures quoted by your correspondents. During the past year Canada has exported sugar freely to the United States. The United States have now a huge surplus of refined sugar, the Government should therefore grant import licenses to Canadian importers and let us get some cheap sugar.

CONSUMER.

CONSOLATION.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—There recently appeared in your columns a letter "Teaching Kindness," signed B. M. The idea was very correct. Would B. M. write again stating some facts about the "Band of Mercy" she refers to: rules for membership, place of meeting, etc.?

Continuing this subject, do you not think before effectual training can result and this reign of affectionate care and love begin by man and child in the world of our dumb friends—do you not think that the heart of the parent; priest, teacher, commissioners of education, perhaps, especially the makers of the moving pictures, etc., must be filled with an intense love for animals themselves.

We who long for that glad day and often feel discouraged that even by our influence exerted "everywhere, everyhow and everywhen," we move, we can do very little to bring this about—let us remember there is "One who loves all His creatures; One who feels the tiniest hurt in the tiniest insect; One who has said He will do anything according to His will. Let us, who pray, as we present our daily supplications ask that He will, in His wise way, soften the hearts and illuminate the minds and free wills of these above-mentioned moulders of minds.

His arm can reach to the uttermost parts of His world and He is also the Omnipotent One.

Let this encourage and comfort us.

WATER TAXES.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—I desire to protest in the name of the water consumers of the city of Montreal, against the excessively high water tax bills which are being sent out just now to tenants and which demonstrates very clearly how illogical and stupid is our system of water taxation based on rentals particularly this year when rents have been raised from 25 to nearly 100 per cent. Why should our city government have the right to impose upon a tenant just because a greedy landlord has raised his rent 50 per cent? This method is simply absurd and constitutes an injustice not to say an extortion which every honest citizen should resent. Why should a tenant who pay a $30.00 rent pay twice as much as the man who pays only $15.00? In many cases he cannot afford it as well, for the higher rent tenants are very often school teachers, bank or office clerks whose salaries are much inferior to the working classes occupying cheaper quarters generally. Water is a natural and indispensable product and it should be supplied the citizens at the lowest possible rate. Meters should be installed in every home or else a reasonable rate established in conformity with the members composing each family. We would then have a system based on equality and justice. I will now relate my own experience, knowing that of many others must be similar to mine. In 1918 I was occupying the very same tenement that I am living in today. My water tax bill for that year was $14. In 1919 it was $18 and this year over $22. I presume if my rent goes up again next February, my water tax for 1921 will be over $25. How can the tenants of Montreal expect fair play and protection against the greedy proprietors, the bad service and exigencies of the Gas and Electric Companies, and other combines, from a city government, who so deliberately imposes upon the public? It seems to me that the consumers of Montreal have already enough to endure and put up with, without our city officials joining the ranks of the profiteers.

No wonder our city government named a tenement commission last spring without any legal power and which turned into a complete failure and a farce in a few days. That's the kind of protection the wage earners are getting from our richly paid city officials. Our present water taxation system may be a good scheme to raise money, but it certainly cannot be considered as an honest or business-like proposition. There are many other grievances tenants and consumers have to withstand and which should deserve the attention of our Federal, Provincial and city governments. "Money is the powerful lever which moves the world and which maintains and assures the enactment of certain laws and there will be no peace until the wealthy think of not only acquiring more wealth, but also of giving justice to the weak and the oppressed. This applies to those who govern as well. Patience and injustice are so very bitter that neither can be tolerated for ever. Notwithstanding all these facts I am pleased to note that everything goes on peacefully in our midst and I sincerely hope harmony will continue to exist between all factions. Let those who endure and suffer in silence strive in a loyal way to improve their conditions. Success comes to those who wait and persevere.

"It is difficult for Canadians not acquainted with agricultural conditions on the other side to realize the importance we attach to our live-stock resources. "The power to regulate imports is taken under the Diseases of Animals Act, which is the main statute bearing on the subject, but it is a completely unjustified inference that all store sheep and cattle included must necessarily be under a cloud of suspicion."

KEEN DEMAND FOR ALBERTAN CATTLE

Keen demand for Alberta cattle on the United States markets is the report of A.A. Walters of Walters and Dunbar, Livestock Commission Merchants of Chicago. This demand expected to increase in about thirty days, when farmers have harvested their corn. "Canadian cattle," Mr. Walters declares, "are pre-eminently suited for furnishing purposes. They will withstand the winter better than those from the Southern States and there is no doubt that stock raisers on the other side of the line will be able to absorb at good prices all the feeders and stockers that Alberta can supply."

BRITISH GARRISON FORCED TO WITHDRAW

Armored Train Crew Captured by Mesopotamian Insurgents After Stiff Battle

LONDON, Sept. 7.—A Mesopotamian communication received by the War Office yesterday says that the garrison of the camp at the St. Mawason railway station, previously reported as besieged, was withdrawn to the town of St. Mawason, September 2.

In the course of this operation an armored train broke down and was rushed by 4,000 insurgents. The train crew made a resolute defense and are said to have inflicted 500 casualties on their assailants, but were finally over-powered and are reported missing to the number of forty, including two British officers.

A field gun, a Lewis gun, three machine guns and forty boxes of ammunition were lost with the train.

Hair Curling Troubles Are Over—Read This!

Have you heard about the newest way to keep the hair in curl? If not, by all means, cut out these simple directions and try this wonderful method. Procure a new tooth brush and a few ounces of plain liquid silmerine from your druggist. Apply enough of the liquid with the brush to moisten the hair from roof to tip just before doing it up. You will be quite astonished when you find you have such lovely waves and curls. They appear altogether natural, instead of having been artificially acquired. Best of all, the waviness will last very much longer than it would otherwise. Your hair, of course, will have more "body" and fluffiness than where the drying, singeing, waving iron is used. It will appear glossier and livelier, for silmerine has proved equally desirable as a dressing for the hair. You'll find it pleasant to use, and it will leave no sticky, greasy or streaky trace.

SAY IT WITH FLOWERS.

I have been going with my girl friend until six months ago, when we had a little misunderstanding which we did not think would last so long, and I now feel lonesome without her and would do anything to win back her affection.

In order that you may be more informed I will give you the facts as clear as I can remember them. I was nineteen years and she was eighteen years old at that time (1919) and everything was running along smoothly without any difficulty whatever to understand each other. Then came the storm, I was called upon by my employers to work at Quebec. I was going out at nights just like I was while in Montreal and we corresponded for about three months and then I noticed in her letters a tone of independence not shown in her previous letters. I made up my mind to go and find out what was brewing in Montreal, and on my arrival was surprised to find her going out with another boy. She had heard from a supposed girl friend of hers who had been in Quebec incognito to me and the whole township, that I had been leading an awful and disgusting life and that she had better cut out all relationship with me, otherwise her reputation was lost forever. Of course, this was a ladder of lies after lies, for I was as good as anybody can be in any place, but I admit there was one thing happened which could have been avoided in time, but was not. On returning to work, I found a letter on my desk and on opening it, found a G.B. (Grand Bounce) advice taking effect on the day of receipt.

Now this girl is very dear to me, and I would do anything to get her back to me if possible, but she is so stubborn and she has such a stiff-necked pride that she will never consent to forgive and forget, even after she has found out the truth about me. She is going with another young man, and I have grounds for thinking that she does not love him and she is trying to make me jealous-mad over her in order to make me suffer, but she is only coming back on me, for I tried the same treatment on her but could never know what effect it had.

How can I win her back, Miss Currie, as I am very anxious to see her again and as her birth anniversary is nearing, would you think it wise to send her a nice flower bouquet with the words "From One Who Still Thinks of You" on my card?

"A BROKEN-HEARTED HE-MALE"

Ans:—By all means send the bouquet.

QUOTATIONS.

Please tell me from what piece of poetry the following quotation was taken and by whom it was written:

"Let me sit in the house by the side of the road." X. Y. Z.

THE MOTHER-IN-LAW.

A Little More Patience With Mother.

Oh, may be she seems to grow queer
As the days go gliding away into years,
And may be you tire of her strange little ways,
And don't understand her tears;
And maybe the things that are down in her heart,
Are things that you know nothing of—
Old mother, still striving to keep up her part,
So tireless and tender her love.

A little more patient with her, till the end
More thoughtful, and careful, and sweet.
She's been such a comrade and teacher and friend,
In the storm, and the strife and the heat.
And maybe the things that she thinks of today,
Are far from your knowledge, your ken—
Old Mother grown feeble and grey,
But when has she failed you—say when?

To cheer her and love her along;
And the echo of many a song:
And maybe she dwells in a world far apart,
From your petty and trivial things—
Old Mother with something still left in her heart—
That looks out of the window and sings.

"Shattered Nerves" should speak to her mother-in-law and tell her how she feels about it. It would be kind of the mother-in-law to speak kind words to her daughter-in-law. Also to make things pleasant, as she has her home there. She should not find fault with what her daughter-in-law doth, or interfere, as the wife is the mistress of her own house. Much better to be pleasant to each other, try to bear one another's burdens, and to fulfil the law of Christ. Remember to have a kind feeling to all mothers, remembering our own mothers may be or have been living with a son-in-law or daughter-in-law.

MOTHER-IN-LAW.

ITALIAN DILIGENCE.

I saw in The Star of the 25th some one wanted a recipe for Italian tomato paste. I am sorry I cannot give the exact recipe but I thought I would write and tell you what a lot of trouble and patience it requires. And as an English woman who lives on a street where there are many Italian families, I cannot but express my opinions. I find the Italian women are never tired and their one thought of providing for the winter is wonderful. Now in the first place about the Italian paste. I am going to speak about an Italian woman who lives very near me. She bought twenty boxes of tomatoes, her idea is to do as many as possible at a time, first she washes them and then with a sharp pointed knife removes all skin and hard centres, cuts them up, sprinkling them with salt, leaves them for two or three hours, after which she drains all the liquid off. Then they are boiled four or five hours, after which they are strained through a fine wire sieve two or three times until every portion of skin and seed are removed, leaving a very thick substance. Then comes the drying out and it is spread on boards with 1½ inch sides and kept in the sun (it usually takes three or four days) and by constant stirring with wooden spoons, it becomes a very thick substance, which can be rolled into balls, the rolling being done with the hands, which are constantly dipped into olive oil, after which they are put into wide necked bottles for the winter. Now the Italian woman that I have watched doing this has six little children and I was so surprised at the cleanliness of her house and she invited me down into her cellar and I was surprised at what I saw. Bottles of red and green peppers, beans of all kinds, all of her own growing, as she has an allotment. What impressed me mostly were the mushrooms (the field sort) strung on string; also the dried peppers and most of all I saw a barrel of young dandelions preserved in salt. Now I asked the woman if she did any preserving and she answered, very little, as they believed in good soups and bread. Can you wonder why you see such healthy children? I hope you will not find this letter too long.

HER HOME.

Does place of residence matter in securing a position or in keeping company with a young man? In order to settle an argument I would like to have the same answered by some of your readers. My father claims that if a fellow loves you he will come to see you no matter what the place is like. I claim, from experience, that when a person has not a nice place it discourages them, particularly when they see it the first night.

I have had to live in a house which has really no proper entrance—in fact, some people have asked me if it was not my back entrance. The reason I remain is that father has to live where he works and therefore gets a dwelling, such as it is. I have had to go to shows alone and whenever I have been asked to a dance I have had to refuse because I know that no young man would care to be seen going in the place. In fact, whenever speaking to a business man or to a friend my house comes before me like a nightmare and I act nervous and in fact, make mistakes in speaking, which it is not necessary for me to make, as I have been well educated. I am a little over 20 and yet I have never been to a party or a dance, although I have been invited to quite a few by people who thought I was much better off than I am.

We are home-loving girls and have spent a few hundred dollars, which otherwise might have gone in the bank, on interior decorating, but the entrance still remains a "staggerer."

Do you not think that when a man marries and has a family he should look forward to giving his children a decent home? Also do you not think that the wealthy people should, if not through duty, then through pity, give the poor people working for them a clean and decent dwelling, or else help them with rent in some decent local ity, since they are the ones who uphold large families and salvation of babies? It would be far better to let the little ones, such as myself, die rather than let them live to suffer for want of enjoyment and a good home.

In case any of your readers should misunderstand my own position I would say that I hold a very good office position, but same was obtained by mere luck and is being held only by very hard work. Even in obtaining a position I have had to run around about twenty or twenty-three offices when certain people could have recommended me to a good position and save me much humiliation, but they seem afraid I would get too well off. However, as far as position goes I am quite satisfied now.

I trust you will be good enough to bring this to the attention of your readers so that some people will realize when they meet a girl of my type that it is not one's fault because they live in such a place. I must admit that I lead a dreadfully lonesome and monotonous life (work and sleep) and would give anything to have a few real friends.

BROKEN-HEARTED.

Ans.—I think it is possible to rise above one's environment. Don't let self-consciousness keep you from having the good time to which your youth entitles you.

SILK SWEATERS.

Please tell me how to wash an old rose silk sweater, and also a pink scarf with stripes of white, pink and green. I washed it once before in "Lux" and when it dried, the pink seems to color the white stripes, so I would like to know what is the best way to place the scarf to dry. It is a very expensive sweater and I am afraid to take another chance. 2. Is it alright to wear white shoes, and a white hat (straw) for a trip at the beginning of September, as I have nothing but a velvet hat and it is too heavy, it seems. What is best to bring with me re clothes, as I only go for a few days, at a private family?

MACKAY.

Ans.—1. Wash in gasoline. 2. Unless the weather is very warm, I would wear velvet hat and dark shoes. Take an afternoon gown, morning frock, several blouses and a kimona, boudoir cap, bedroom slippers, as well as necessary toilet articles.

HIS LETTERS.

Although I have been a reader of your page for a considerable time I have never written to you for advice as I am doing now. I will be as brief as possible, as I do not wish to be found guilty of taking up too much of your precious time. This is my story: About six years ago I went to school with a boy with whom I became very good friends and also with his family. About one year later they left for another part of Canada and this boy and I corresponded with each other regularly up till about eighteen months ago, when I did not receive a letter from him for six months which did not explain his silence. I answered it and I have never heard from him since last summer. Now although there was nothing serious between us this boy was a very dear friend of mine and also of the family and I miss his letters very much. I have written him several times, asking to explain the silence, but do not receive an answer. Now what do you think is wrong? And what do you suggest that I do? I do hope you will be able to help me a little and hope to see my letter soon with your reply. Wishing you every success and please may I write again.

LONESOME EIGHTEEN.

Ans.—I am afraid he has forgotten you and has become interested in someone else. I would stop thinking about him.

MEN ANNOY HER.

I saw a letter on your page the other night from a young lady working in the Drummond Building, who has been troubled by men speaking to her on the street.

Now tonight I have seen another letter on the same subject, wherein you say the young lady was entirely to blame. Maybe she was, but may I say, that everyone who is annoyed by this sort of thing is not.

I have been troubled by it very much myself during the past month. I don't claim any good looks, nor do I use my eyes to attract attention. My one idea has been to go the straightest way home.

Men have spoken to me and made advances to me on the street and what can one do but walk straight on? Which has been my policy up to now. You advised this other lady to complain to a policeman. But kindly find one of St. Catherine street between Peel and Guy. That is where I have been so much annoyed and I have failed to find one yet.

But, suppose you do meet a "traffic" cop which are all we can boast of, by the time you go up to him and complain, your gentleman will be a couple of blocks away. Suppose you describe him to the cop, as wearing a navy blue suit and straw hat. How many more men are dressed the same? Is the cop going to leave his corner to hunt him up for you? No. Then what satisfaction can one gain from that? It is all very well to sit back and say, "Well, young lady, you were encouraging the man." But just change places with me for one evening between eight and nine o'clock and see.

There are far too many of that class of men around, and there does not seem to be any way to prevent it.

I think the best policy for we girls who must go out unescorted is to carry a gun or a heavy stick.

For my part I am going to beat up the next man who speaks to me on the street. It appears we have to defend ourselves nowadays.

ANNOYED.

BORROWING.

I am a maid in a small hotel, and I am annoyed beyond reason with that "Pest, the borrower." Have you an electric iron? Can I borrow it? Can I borrow your ironing board? Can I borrow a piece of laundry soap? Can I borrow a needle and thread? Can I borrow your scissors? Can I borrow your brush and comb? Can I borrow your shoe polish? Can you let me have some pins? Can I borrow a clothes brush or whisk? Never again! I never have any thing people want to borrow. It is the only way to get rid of such a "pest." Very seldom the same one asks the second time for any thing.

Ruined my ironing sheet, broke my scissors, never return my soap or needles, and to put the finishing touch to it all never even paid for any of it.

They never seem to think of the time I have to take from my work doing those errands for them, or that they are taking my hard-earned money, we all have enough to do to keep ourselves supplied, without being encumbered with a nuisance always borrowing. Take a tip from me, never have any thing anyone wants to borrow.

RUSTY.

"FOR FRENCHY."

I wish to return sincere thanks through the medium of your page to one person who signed herself "Frenchy," and who sent me some valuable advice in answer to my question about layer cake some few weeks ago. Also thanking you, Miss Currie, for your own advice to me, which was very helpful, too, but your correspondent "Frenchy," solved the problem completely by telling me about using the greased paper. I followed the instructions minutely and was certainly well pleased with the result. Again thanking you both.

MRS. JOSEPH YEOMAN.

CANNED TOMATO SOUP.

A very easy and useful way of preserving tomatoes is to can tomato soup. Wash the tomatoes, and cut out the stem end and any sort of blighted spots. Boil them without water, adding unions and celery tops, and, if desired a few young carrots. When they are soft mash them through a sieve fine enough to retain the seeds. If they are thoroughly mashed there need be very little waste, merely the seeds and skins left. Season the strained pulp with salt, and if desired sugar to taste: boil it fifteen minutes, and bottle it hot in sterilized bottles. When the bottles are cool, dip the cork ends in melted paraffin wax to seal them.

Flour and fat, butter, margarine, or beef suet, may be added to this soup before the last boiling, in the proportion of two level tablespoonfuls of each to a pint jar of pulp. The fat should be melted, the flour stirred smoothly into it, and the tomato pulp added, and the whole boiled. It is claimed that the flour and fat aid in preserving the soup and that the soup is ready to serve when merely heated. But experience proves that the soup keeps perfectly well without the flour and fat, and some people may find it more convenient to have it clear to use with meat stock in a clear red soup, or with milk in a tomato bisque, or alone as a thin sauce for rissoles. It is also convenient to use with macaroni and cheese or with bread crumbs and eggs to make a tomato scollop.

A Matrimonial Test

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A class in sociology at the Ohio State University recently registered the preferences of its members, including boys and girls, for those qualities desirable in a husband and a wife.

Probably more young folks, as well as their mammas, their cousins and their aunts, are studying this than any other problem, not excepting the League of Nations and Woman Suffrage.

Hence I made up a list of qualities myself, and just for fun, submitted them to about a dozen young people I know, and got their estimates, which I herewith pass on to the reader. Try this list out on your friends and discover—Oh, several things!

The desirable qualities are graded thus:

Absolutely essential	10
Very essential	9
Highly valued	8
Valued	7
Valued, but not highly	6
Indifferent	5
And on down to	0

That is, for instance, Comradeship, if marked 10, would indicate that you positively would not marry one who would not be a good comrade. If 9, it would mean that while important, you could get along without it. And so on.

Business Ability	9-7
Same Race	10-10
Same Nationality	6-0
Good Family	8-7
Affection	9-10
Intelligence	10-8
Desire and love of children	9-8
Comradeship	10-10
Domesticity	7-9
Good Taste	7-8
Optimism	8-7
Harmony of Tastes	7-7
Keenness (Quickness)	8-6
Dancing	1-1
Card Playing	0-1
Education	8-9
Sincerity	10-10
Fairmindedness	10-9
Religion	6-5
Strength	8-8
Sympathy	8-9
Cheerfulness	9-8
Loyalty	10-10
Thoughtfulness	9-9
Fame	7-0
Decision	9-8
Good Health	6-9
Personal Charm	8-9
Pretty Face	0-8
Same Age	5-7
Same Height	4-5
Strength of Will	8-6
Interest in Partner's Work	7-9
Refinement	8-9
Dignity	7-6
Humor	8-7
Executive Ability	6-6
Love of Music	8-9
Love of Art	7-8
Love of Literature	5-7
Neatness	6-9
Honesty	9-9
Industry	9-4
Good Temper	7-8
Self Control	8-9
Economy	6-8
Frankness	7-6
Discretion	7-8
Money	6-2
Patience	7-8
Liberality	8-8

These are the estimates as averaged from the answers given by about a dozen people of both sexes.

Suppose you and your June-spice test one another.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE.

I'd rather be a Could Be
If I could not be an Are,
For a Could Be is a Maybe
With a chance of touching par.
I'd rather be a Has Been
Than a Might Have Been by far;
For a Might Have Been has never been,
But a Has was once an Are.

THE HISTORY OF YOUR NAME

(By Philip Francis Nowlan.)

CAHILL

VARIATIONS—Lowe, Quick[illegible] hill.

RACIAL ORIGIN—Irish.

SOURCE—A given name.

Historical record is the ba[illegible] cluding Lowe and Quick[illegible] tions of the Irish family [illegible] Cahill, for, strictly speaki[illegible] are not the same name at al[illegible] both Lowe and Quick, when [illegible] origin, are traceable back to t[illegible] person.

The Irish form of the family [illegible] is "O'Cathail," which, it shou[illegible] remembered, is not pronounced [illegible] a "th" like that in English, but n[illegible] like the English spelling which ac[illegible] ally is used in representing it.

For the most part the "O'Cathails" were descendants of or followers of Cathal, the son of Conor, nicknamed "Conor na Luinge Luaithe," or "Cornor of the Swifter Sailing Ship," a chieftain prominent in ancient Irish history.

Subsequent to the English conquest of Ireland the native families in many sections were compelled by law to adopt English surnames. As a rule they did not pick them at random, chosing rather an English translation of the Irish family name or an English name which sounded as much as possible like it.

In this manner some of the O'Cathails adopted the name of Quick, from the Irish word of that meaning in the title of the historical "Conor na Luinge Luaithe," while others adopted the name of Lowe from its similarity in sound to "Luaithe."

Tomorrow—Hayward.

A woman was famous at the local market for her ducks, but one day she sold a tough bird to her neighbor, Brown. As Brown paid a big price for the duck, he called on the vender right away with anger in his eye.

"What do you mean by selling me such a duck as this," he said, "especially as I am one of your oldest neighbors?"

"Why, was there anything wrong with it?" inquired the stall keeper.

"Wrong!" exclaimed the other, "Why, it wasn't good at all."

LITTLE RABBIT IS CARRIED AWAY.

All n... out of heart whate'er befall;
cash in... may not turn out bad at all.
—Striped Chipmunk.

Rabbit's litte son had not so CALVIN... one wee little hope left. Here nity H... caught by a terrible giant from Calvin... here could be no escape. He CAMP... lipless and hopeless. His little 4th... was thumping so with fright to ... it seemed as if it was trying to a h... ple... its way out through his ribs. HIR... he ventured to struggle a little, th... the hand of Farmer Brown's boy ...sed a little tighter around him and ...er that he didn't struggle any ...ore. It wasn't until a long time after ...hat he realized that that giant had taken the greatest care not to hurt him. At the time he was too frightened to think of that.

"Not quite half grown. The little scamp must have run away from his home in the Old Briar-patch."

At first the little Rabbit kept his eyes closed. Somehow he didn't feel that he could open them and look at that terrible giant. But after a few minutes he did venture to open them. A face such as he never had seen before was very close to his own. It was a freckled face and though it frightened him terribly it somehow didn't seem like a cruel face. As a matter of fact it wasn't a cruel face. It was one of the best-natured faces in all the Great World. A smile was making all the freckles run together until they seemed like one big freckle, and in the eyes was a look of pity and understanding and kindness, though the little Rabbit was too frightened to show this.

"Not quite half grown," said a voice. It was the voice of the terrible giant. "Not quite half grown. The little scamp must have run away from his home in the Old Briar-patch. Certainly Peter Rabbit didn't bring him way up here and leave him. This is no place for him. He isn't big enough to take care of himself, and if some one doesn't take care of him he'll be gobbled up by some of his hungry neighbors. If I leave him here Bowser, the old rascal, will sneak back here the first chance he gets and even if he doesn't catch him will frighten him almost to death just as he has done this morning. I ought to take him back to the Old Briar-patch. Yes, sir, that is just what I ought to do. But I can't do it now. I've got a lot of work to do and the Old Briar-patch is too far away for me to go over there now. I don't see that I can do anything but take him home to keep him out of trouble until I can find time to take him back to his own home."

Farmer Brown's boy gently stroked the little Rabbit and somehow that touch made the little Rabbit feel better. With each stroke of Farmer Brown's boy's fingers a little bit of that terrible fear left him. It was just as if that fear was something that could be rubbed off and that those gentle fingers were taking it off with each stroke. The little Rabbit could not have told you why but in his heart was growing a feeling that this giant was a friend after all. He was still frightened, but he was no longer so sure that something terrible was about to happen to him. There was something about the warmth of that hand that held him that was friendly. It stopped the shivers of fright which had been shaking him ever since Bowser the Hound had discovered him.

Farmer Brown's boy stroked him a few times more, then turned toward home, taking the little Rabbit with him. Peeping down from the hand that held him the little Rabbit saw Bowser the Hound trotting along behind and somehow he was glad that he was right there instead of down under the stones of the old wall with Bowser trying to get at him. And so the little Rabbit was carried away.

"ARGUE" AND "AUGUR."

(Copyright, 1920, By The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

In an article describing an important international conference the following expression was noted: "The course of action taken by the delegates does not argue well for the success of the conference."

This should have been: "The course of action taken by the delegates does not augur well for the success of the conference." The word "argue," which is in common use, means to give reasons for or against; to debate about; to discuss, etc. To augur means to foretell to phophesy concerning; to foretoken; to give signs of, etc.; as in the sentence, from "Ivanhoe," by Sir Walter Scott: "Have you never found your mind darkened like a sunny landscape by the sudden cloud, which augurs a a coming tempest"

The error noted has its origin, as in the case of "resource" and "recourse," "exorcised" and "exercised," etc., in the similarity, in spelling and pronunciation, of words.

FASHIONS FOR TODAY

The little blouse shown in the sketch is an early fall sports model made of a rather heavy ribbed silk, trimmed with embroidery in contrasting color. Collar and cuffs may be made of self fabric or of heavy satin in contrasting color, or they may match the blouse, touches of embroidery giving the necessary trimming. As will be noted, this blouse is semi-fitted, simulating to some extent a hip length sweater. The use of ribbed silk—faille, tricot and similar weaves—contributes very materially to the sweater effect.

Fitted blouses are being featured both in sports and the more dressy models. The latter are quite basque-like, usually with long or three-quarter fitted sleeves and high collars. They are shown made of velvet and also of figured silks and brocades. It is not likely that these basque blouses will be general favorites, but they constitute one of the comparatively few new fashion notes heralded for the coming season.

To wear becomingly one of the fitted basque-like blouses a woman must have a figure showing a definitely nipped-in waistline, and this type of figure has been growing fewer in numbers each season for many years. The straight boyish figure is the one most frequently seen and most sought by mankind, and this figure appears at its best in the straight line garments that have held sway for several seasons and are again in the lead for fall and winter.

While the hip-length blouse is by all odds the leader in next season's styles, whether of the fitted or loose type, some houses are still showing a few very long blouses to be worn over slips rather than separate skirts. As a matter of fact, if they were shown by dress houses and in dress departments rather than with blouse collections, they could more easily pass muster as dresses. One recently seen reached to within a couple of inches of the edge of the skirt or slip, was made of sheer material—Georgette or chiffon—and featured a full pleated ruffle attached at about the hip-line to an otherwise straight, loosely hanging blouse.

MISSING ACCOMPLISHMENT.

"It is a strange thing," said the professor. "I was shaved this morning by a man who really is, I suppose, a little above being a barber. I know of my own knowledge that he studied at Heidelberg and spent several years in other foreign educational centres. I know, also, that he has contributed scientific articles to our best magazines and has numbered among his intimate friends men of the highest social standing. And yet," soliliquized the professor, "he can't shave a man decently." "By Jove," exclaimed young Rounder in astonishment, "What is he a barber for, with all those accomplishments?" "Oh, he isn't a barber," said the professor, yawning, "You see, I shaved myself this morning." — San Francisco Argonaut.

A fussy bachelor engaged a cook, whose professional skill was conspicuous by its absence. He bore up bravely for one dyspeptic month against her culinary experiments. Then he hinted that her talents were wasted upon him and she departed.

Shortly afterward she applied to him for a reference. He gave it thus:

"Mrs. Muggins was employed by me for one month as cook. Left on account of illness—my illness."

HEALTH TALKS

By JOHN B. HUBER, A.M., M.D.

FROM COW TO CONSUMER.

Now, the gist of this argument, which I presented yesterday, is, that it applies to many a community in Canada and the United States. If the mothers of families cannot get pure milk for their babies and children in their own community, they are very easily going to find ways of buying their milk from other places, where the dairymen are more up-to-date, and (I have to say it) more humane. And so even a doctor without any business head to him can see that it is poor (because very unprofitable) business for any dairyman, or any community in which dairying is a paramount industry, not to insure its patrons or its people pure milk, produced under the very best methods and conditions available. Also I happen to have studied political economy to a certain extent in college; and I have learned that the most profitable business methods are those by which everybody concerned, all around, is satisfied.

Now, my farmer friend whom I mentioned yesterday, a family man himself, with children of his own very dear to him, would not wantonly have anybody else's children suffer by reason of negligence on his part. Besides, he had a pretty good business head. So he listened attentively to the points I made. And then he invited me to go and inspect his plant. And this I did.

I found a very general degree of excellence about his dairy. Everything demonstrated a very conscientious effort to make good, and all in the right way, according to this farmer's lights. And I went away a little puzzled. Until a day or so afterward I met the cart in which his milk was being peddled about the island. It was a very warm afternoon, especially along the inland roads. And then I came upon the reason why some cottagers had been finding my friend's milk bad. It was not being refrigerated in its passage from his dairy to the consumer; and during transit it had become a first class culture medium for all sorts of disease-breeding germs. Which latter certainly do thrive and fatten and multiply in milk. When the conditions suit them they find this medium ideally congenial.

And then it was born in on both myself and on my good farmer friend that the passage of milk from the cow to the consumer is made up of a chain of many links, each link having to be carefully examined — that even the best milk has to be safeguarded against vicissitudes if it is always to reach the baby's bottle pure and sweet. Some of these links I will mention another day.

All inquiries addressed to Dr. Huber in care of the "Health Talks" department wil be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicked reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question. —The Editor.

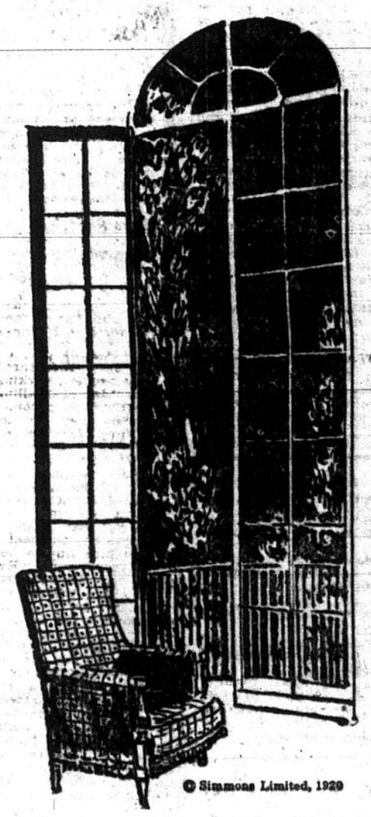
Can You Do More Work by Neglecting Sleep



© Simmons Limited, 1920

WHEN a man finds himself up against more than he can do, his solution may be shorter hours instead of longer—more sleep instead of less.

There is no greater help to good work, and keen enjoyment in doing it, than plenty of that deep, sound sleep that wakes a man up feeling alive all over.

When a man finds that he is not sleeping properly, he should look to his bed. No one can sleep soundly unless his bed is noiseless and steady; his spring resilient, and his mattress and pillow invite perfect relaxation.

Just as the sleep-inducing Spring is a Simmons "Waldorf," of specially tempered spring coils. Fine Springs that fit the contour of the body and support the spine in a straight line, insuring perfect circulation and restoring the energy used up in the fatigue of the day.

Simmons Felt Mattresses are the result of twenty-five years' study of equipment for sound, natural sleep. Made of pure, new cotton in clean, sun-lit factories. Used in thousands of fastidious Canadian homes.

And Simmons Pillows, which rest the head and neck exactly as they need to be rested.

It is a specialist in Twin Beds—a pioneer in that fine modern principle of a separate bed for each sleeper.

Simmons Metal Beds, Brass Beds, Springs, Mattresses, Pillows, Day Beds and Children's Cribs are the most sought after sleeping equipment in leading stores of this community.

The prices are little if any higher than for the ordinary.

And when you are selecting your Simmons Beds with an eye to their appearance in the room, you will see that Simmons has for the first time established beautiful and authoritative design in Metal Beds.

TORONTO PARADE SLIMLY ATTENDED

Labor's Non-Participation a Deliberate Rebuke to Radical Leaders

QUIET ELSEWHERE

No Demonstration at Winnipeg—Saskatoon Lively—N.B. Turnout

TORONTO, Sept. 7. (Star Special.) Less than 3,000 men participated in the Labor Day parade yesterday. This slim attendance does not seem to have been caused by any evidences of decline in loyalty towards trades union principles, but rather to an undercurrent of dissatisfaction with the leadership that has associated the trades union movement with Soviet and Socialist propaganda.

Out of some 30,000 trades union adherents in Toronto less than 10 per cent participated in the celebration.

Spokesmen of the International Labor movement severely scored and condemned Sovietism, Socialism, the One Big Union and sundry isms that are seeking to disrupt the parent organization, in forceful addresses at the exhibition yesterday. They also sounded a clarion note to all organized workers to rally round the old standard of the International movement, overthrow the opposing forces, and continue in the van of progress in the interest of home and country.

RAIN MARS OTTAWA PARADE.

OTTAWA, Sept. 7.—Undeterred by the almost continuous downpour of rain which fell till after 11 o'clock, the annual Labor Day parade of the trades unionists of the Allied Trades and Labor Council yesterday morning through the streets of Ottawa and Hull brought out nearly 2,000 workers.

MONSTER PARADE AT MILLTOWN, N.B.

MILLTOWN, N.B., Sept. 7.—This side of the St. Croix river, one of the boundaries between Maine and New Brunswick, had its first Labor Day celebration.

Heretofore, Woodland, Me., just across the river, had a monopoly on Labor Day festivities as it alone in this valley had labor organizations. Now the cotton mill has its textile union and it carried out a monster affair yesterday. There were parades, sports, band concerts, the day closing with a grand ball. There were several thousand visitors for the celebration.

QUIET AT WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 7.—Labor Day was celebrated here purely as the last of the public holidays of the summer. There was no demonstration. Shops, factories, warehouses and offices were closed and those who stayed within the city took to the parks and amusements. Most of the citizens went to the lake resorts.

BIG DAY AT SASKATOON.

SASKATOON, Sask., Sept. 7.—The largest Labor Day celebration in the history of Saskatoon was held under cloudless skies here this afternoon. Rotary and Kiwanis clubs members drove their automobiles in the parade and carried the women and children to the picnic at the exhibition grounds. A big programme of amateur sports was staged.

ITALIAN EARTH SHOCKS.

ROME, Sept. 7.—A slight earthquake shock was felt yesterday afternoon at Milan and Genoa.

Times Understands Hardinge to Go as Ambassador to France

LONDON, Sept. 7. — The London Times understands that Baron Hardinge, of Penshurst, will succeed the Earl of Derby as ambassador to France in November.

Baron Hardinge has served officially at Constantinople, Berlin, Washington, Paris, St. Petersburg and many other capitals. He was Governor-General and Viceroy of India and Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

Iced "Primus Tea" Is Fashion's Decree

Iced tea is now served at meals and at every social function during the hot summer months. Iced tea actually quenches thirst, refreshes, stimulates, besides tasting wonderfully good and being wonderfully good for health also.

But in order to be the real thing, iced tea must contain good tea and be rightly made.

Made the following way, iced tea will be delicious and fragrant

Take one teaspoonful of tea for every two cups. Pour on fresh boiling water and allow to infuse five minutes. Decant the liquor off the leaves, bottle it and place it on ice as soon as sufficiently cool. To serve, pour into tall glasses, partly filled with chopped ice. A slice of lemon should float on the surface of each glass, sweeten to taste with sugar syrup previously prepared.

Always ask your grocer for "PRIMUS TEA," the brand "Primus" insures uniform flavor and guarantees purity.

IMPORTANT TOPICS ARE DISCUSSED BY CANADIAN CLUBS

...n Annual Meeting Opened in Montreal Yesterday—Notable Address by Sir Arthur Currie—Hearst Publications

CALVIN... nity H... Calvinified resolution concerning CAMP... ation of Hearst publication in 4th, ... and relating to the better- to M... films reproduced in Canadian a... and an interesting address by ...ir Arthur Currie, principal of McGILL University, marked the first day of the eighth annual meeting of the Associated Canadian Clubs, in Montreal yesterday.

After calling the meeting to order and delivering a short address of welcome, Pres. Birks presented General Sir Arthur Currie who made a notable speech. After expressing his strong appreciation of the work of the Canadian Clubs throughout the Dominion, Sir Arthur went on to say that there was a race problem, and a great one, in this country, but that, the French-Canadian and his English-speaking compatriot should and could live side by side working for the common health and prosperity of the Dominion.

Sir Arthur touched on the industrial and economic problem, on the general unrest and social agitation so great throughout the country, and also upon certain moral problems which confront us all today.

"I am glad to be identified with welcoming to Montreal such an influential group of my fellow-country men," he said, "To me it is appropriate that you should meet in this city, so closely identified with our history from its earliest days, so representative of our country's progress and prosperity, the place where the two great races in Canada meet and blend, and the home of McGill University. It is a matter of gratification to me also that you are conducting your conferences in one of the halls of that university. During the past year I have enjoyed the hospitality of many Canadian Clubs, a kindness which I have too often repaid by indifferent addresses. Yet despite the consciousness of that fact, I regret that circumstances over which I had no control forced me to decline many invitations from other clubs.

NO SOCIAL PREJUDICES.

"I have a sincere admiration for the aims and objects of these clubs and a profound appreciation of the value of the good they seek to accomplish, especially do I admire the democratic principles which govern membership in these organizations. It matters not whether a man or woman be rich or poor, employer or employee. He may be Protestant or Catholic. He may belong to the Liberal or the National Liberal Conservative party, the Labor party, the Farmers' party, the Returned Soldiers' party, or any other party, so long as he is a Canadian and capable of taking an intelligent interest in public affairs. It is a commendable thing that these clubs are non-political and non-sectarian, that special prejudices do not exist nor class distinctions prevail, as members of Canadian clubs we meet simply as Canadians, with a sincere desire to learn all possible concerning Canada's history and traditions, her resources and her possibilities, her problems and her responsibilities to herself, the Empire and to mankind in general. As members we are proud of the Empire to which we belong, cherishing and claiming as our own all the traditions that go with the British flag. We seek to develop a proper conception of Canadian citizenship, and we do not regard Canadianism as something antagonistic to the welfare of our Empire, rather do we believe that the greatest contribution Canada can make to the prosperity, the happiness and the future welfare of that Empire is to develop, to the greatest possible extent, our country along sane, moral and God-fearing lines."

He paid the highest tribute to all the soldiers under his command at the front and placed the credit for Canada's victories to "discipline, training, organization and sheer hard fighting." This same discipline and self control, with diligence and increasing work, would win for Canada the victories of peace.

THE CANADIAN TYPE.

After a concise history disclosing the early settlement of Canada and the undivided spirit for the defence of Empire shown throughout that history, Sir Arthur went on to say that these conditions had produced a distinctly Canadian type, mentally alert and independent, spiritually fearless and confident in God's mercy as men are who daily come in contact with the forces of nature. A close observation of the Canadian on the battlefields and a comparison of him with soldiers of other nations had confirmed him in this belief of a new and true type of man formed by the admixture of races, the manner of life, the climate, the soil and the environment. Canada was as much a nation five years ago as she is today but the war had made her conscious of her nationhood.

PROPER SPIRIT NEEDED.

"We have a democratic form of government that is one of the people by the people and for the people" he continued. It is the only form of government consistent with liberty and justice and progress, but the form of government matters little if the proper spirit is lacking. Legislation must be in the interests of the people and not in the interests of any particular class alone. A government representing only one class is not a democracy but an autocracy. Legislation should be judged rather on a standard of what is right rather than on what is expedient. We must insist on an honest government, but for an honest government we must have honest people. In the past we have, with apparent complacency, viewed the corrupting of constituencies by unnecessary public works, the favoring of contractors who in return have made large contributions to political funds, a tariff in favor of the minority, and other practices detrimental to clean public service.

Our leaders must be men of sound judgment of clear vision and of high ideals. They must not be swayed by passion or by prejudice, not hurried in action by ill-considered popular enthusiasms. They must be men of integrity and of courage and be willing to stand or fall by what is right, when they so act it is our duty to loyally support them, irrespective of whether we voted for them or not. Criticism of our public men is justifiable only so long as it is fair and just and moderate. There is too much tendency these days to abuse the man we call the politician. In fact, the term has almost become one of reproach. From the instant disparagement of the legislator, it is but a short step to the contempt of the law. Contempt of the law leads to anarchy and chaos. Public virtue in citizens will soon inspire public virtue in governments.

CANADA'S RACE PROBLEM

"That there is a race problem in Canada today is not to be denied. A large part of our population is French Canadian, but that does not mean that it is un-British. On more than one occasion the French-Canadian has played a large part in preserving Canada as part of the British Empire and he would do so now. I have no confidence with that section of our people who try to proclaim the French Canadian as lacking in loyalty, and I have equal impatience with that section" of the French-Canadian people who speak of Quebec as downtrodden or as suffering any injustice from the hands of her English-speaking compatriots. The French-Canadian has many qualities much to be admired. He is thrifty and industrious, home-loving and God-fearing. True, he loves his language and his traditions, but I find no fault with him for that, rather do I respect him for not being indifferent to the value of these things. There is no reason why the French-speaking Canadian and his English-speaking compatriot should not live in harmony with each other, each loving his home and his country and both contributing greatly to his country's happiness and prosperity. No, the racial question in Canada is not one in which the French-Canadian is concerned. Rather does it concern those others of our population, some English-speaking and some not, who have come to this country to extract what wealth they can in the shortest possible space of time, who care not for the British traditions, who, while enjoying the protection of British law, have no conception of the obligations of citizenship, who do not love this land and to whom service to their fellow-man means nothing. These people are un-British and un-Canadian and their assimilation through our schools and social agencies calls for judicious, firm and wise leadership."

He also regretted the intense spirit of criticism of public leaders and politicians to such an extent as almost to give the word politician a certain stigma, for "the constant disparagement of the legislator, it is but a short step to the contempt of the law."

"There is another social problem deserving your earnest attention and that is the physical condition of our race," he continued. "The war disclosed that a disappointingly high percentage of our people were incapable of performing military service on account of physical infirmities. A study of these disabilities show that in many cases they are preventible and, if not preventible, the danger can be greatly minimized. Over-work, over-crowding, underfeeding, tuberculosis, syphilis, child welfare, are matters that should be the concern of all classes. There is much to be done and an avenue is here opened for the application of practical effort. The physical condition of Canadians as a whole stands high in comparison with other peoples. It is vital to our country's welfare and our own happiness that we keep it so."

"There is just one national problem to which I desire to make brief reference. A new era has dawned for Canada. By the unfaltering courage of our soldiers, by their splendid and generous sacrifices, Canada's name stands high on the world's Roll of Honor. Linked with their action on the field of battle is the magnificent contribution to the successful prosecution of the war by the people at home. The combined efforts of our people have won for Canada recognition as a nation admired and respected in the concert of nations. Some there may be who claim that Canada was just as much a nation five years ago as now. If that is the case, all I have to say is that the consciousness of that fact had not come home to us. It is with us to-day and the rest of the world is conscious of the fact as well. We must see to it that with this realization of our place we proceed to develop the spirit and the ideals that lead to true national greatness.

CANADA'S CHALLENGE.

"That is the challenge which comes today from the mighty line. God grant us grace to give the countersign. Throughout the war the people of Canada showed a patriotism, a devotion to duty, and a willingness to sacrifice second to none. Canada entered the war solely because the Mother Country had accepted the challenge. Love of country, pride in traditions, were the factors which influenced her not to hesitate in taking the fateful step. Now patriotism is a good thing and should not be regarded merely as a war time virtue. It is more necessary to-day than ever. Not the so-called patriotism usually associated with waving the old flag, not the patriotism of the jingo, but the patriotism, the love of country which inspires in our people, not only willingness to defend our country in time of danger, but a determination to put forth every effort to ensure that Canada becomes the strong, sober, industrious, God-fearing country, worthy of the best traditions of our race and of the sacrifices that have been made in her behalf."

WORLD'S EYES ON CANADA.

In conclusion General Currie said that the eyes of the world were upon us, that what Canada had won in the war in the respect of all nations she could hold forever by the exercise of that self-control which enables us to do the right thing, to work hard and to be willing to sacrifice man's dearest possession—life itself.

A resolution was then passed for the sending to H. M. the King and to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, an assurance of the continued loyalty of Canadian Clubs.

A record resolution, which also passed by a unanimous vote, was that to send to Premier Lloyd George, in view of the persistent rumor of his expected visit to the Dominion, which has been affirmed and denied by the press on several occasions, a cordial invitation to visit and address the association at the various cities at which he will stop.

The treasurer of the association then read the minutes of the seventh annual conference, and offered his report, which was unanimously accepted.

WINNIPEG NEXT.

Winnipeg was selected as the site for the next annual convention, on the cordial invitation of the club in that city, tendered by R. Craig, K.C., provincial vice-president, after which a nominating committee was appointed, consisting of Mrs. A. H. Shaw, of St. John, N.B., and Mrs. R. Craig, of Winnipeg, J. K. Ellis, K.C., of Vancouver, A. Courtney Kingstone, of St. Catharines, and Mr. Mackenzie, of Montreal.

An address was then given by the Rev. Herbert Symonds, D.D., rector of Christ Church Cathedral, welcoming the delegates and dwelling on the functions of the association. This was followed by a few words from the following delegates, telling of the work of the club in their own cities, and of the difficulties encountered, and the steps taken to remedy such difficulties: J. M. Ellis, K.C., of Vancouver; R. Craig, K.C., of Winnipeg; Major E. P. Brown, of Toronto, J. C. Sutherland, of Quebec, Mrs. Lamont, of Alberta, Mrs. Shaw, of St. John, and Mrs. Atherton Smith, of Digby, N.S. The great cry from all the clubs was concerning the extreme difficulty of securing speakers. The smaller cities were to some extent handicapped from acquiring the well-known local men to speak, because those very men were so well known that their greatness was largely diminished by proximity. Plans were discussed for securing well-known men from overseas, among whom the names of Brig.-Gen. Seeley and Col. Younghusband were mentioned.

The meeting adjourned for luncheon at one o'clock, the men lunching at the Mount Royal Club as the guests of President Birks, and the guests of Mrs. G. H. Duggan.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The afternoon session opened at 2:45 p.m., and after an address by Col. Chas. R. McCollough, hon. president, on the "Functions of the Canadian Clubs," some important resolutions were passed.

HEARST PUBLICATIONS.

Probably one of the most important of these was that for the suppression of the Hearst publications and services. Major E. P. Brown, provincial vice-president of the Toronto Club, draughted the resolution, which was passed unanimously, in the following form: "In view of the virulent anti-British propaganda of some of the Hearst publications it would be a matter of recommendation to the Dominion and to the Canadian Clubs to take apt measures to effectively counteract such propaganda."

This was not passed, however, been proposed and passed upon as being unsatisfactory. The discussion was precipitated by the following resolution, submitted by the Hamilton Canadian Club, and endorsed by 31 other Canadian Clubs:

"The Canadian Club of Hamilton viewing with alarm the spread of anti-British sentiment in this country by the free distribution throughout Canada of the Hearst publications and news services, respectfully requests that the Association of Canadian Clubs take such steps as may be necessary to have banned by the Government the following papers issued by the Hearst interests."

This was presented by the Hamilton delegates, who said that the only clubs that had not endorsed the resolution were Winnipeg, Calgary, Saskatoon, London and Montreal.

R. W. Craig, Winnipeg, said this was wrong because the Winnipeg Men's Canadian Club had unanimously endorsed the resolution although the women's Club had not. Mr. Craig in a somewhat impassioned speech called attention to the secret Hearst propaganda directed to foreigners in the Canadian West, especially an anti-British pamphlet, "The poison in America's cup," which was being secretly circulated, and doing much harm among the foreign element. The pamphlet, he said, had been originally intended to stir up anti-British feeling among the Irish and German peoples in the United States, but had been used for the same purposes among newly arrived foreigners in the Canadian West.

J. R. V. Dunlop, of Vancouver, followed along the same lines, saying the Canadian Club there had investigated, and found a strong Hearst anti-British propaganda being carried on. He declared that the Hearst papers, magazines and services, especially the films, were "vile and anti-British and should not be allowed in the Dominion," although he admitted that some papers published in Canada were nearly as bad, and should be treated in the same way as the Hearst publications.

President H. B. Mackonzie, of the Montreal Canadian Club, said his club had not endorsed the resolution, because in this metropolitan city there were several peoples, and the people here probably took a broader and more tolerant view of things than some others. He referred to some of the Hearst publications, such as "Good Housekeeping," and suggested that the resolution was rather sweeping.

Other suggestions were made, those taking part in the discussion being: Mrs. E. Atherton Smith, of St. John; Mr. Thom, of Regina; Mr. Sutherland, of Quebec; Major E. P. Brown, of Toronto; Mrs. G. H. Duggan, Montreal; B. K. Sandwell, Montreal; Col. McCullouch, Hamilton; W. M. Birks, Montreal, and Mrs. A. R. Howell, Montreal. Finally the motion given above was introduced by Major Brown, of Toronto, and after the various sub-amendments were withdrawn proved satisfactory.

Another resolution, also unanimously passed, was for the betterment of the films to be shown throughout Canada. The resolution read as follows:—

"Resolved that the association desires to go on record as being heartily in accord with all movements tending to raise the standard of motion picture entertainments in Canada, with a view to encouraging British and Canadian sentiment and clean ideals of family life. The association urges a closer co-operation between boards of censors and citizens in order that the public may have a fuller understanding of the wide-spread influence of this universal form of recreation, which is undoubtedly doing much to mould the sentiment of the rising generation."

B. K. Sandwell was the principal speaker last evening at the banquet tendered to delegates to the conference of Canadian Clubs by the three Montreal organizations, the Canadian Club, the Women's Canadian Club and the Young Men's Canadian Club, in the ladies' room of the St. James Club. In addition to amusing his audience with his humorous remarks, Mr. Sandwell presented several economic facts for consideration. The effort to prove that Hearst and other propagandists were responsible for troubles in Winnipeg and elsewhere he considered not altogether satisfactory. He expressed his belief that they were due to careless and erroneous thinking on the fundamental principles of Canada's economic conditions.

With regard to the magazine situation, Mr. Sandwell deplored the fact that the American magazines and papers, which were often more than half advertising, were freely admitted into the country, while, with the exception of paper, all supplies for the production of literature in Canada were taxed. The result of admitting American magazines and papers, he said, was that not only were Canadian writers driven to the United States to earn a living but the public through the reading of American advertisements were encouraged to buy outside of Canada, thus helping to continue the depreciation of the Canadian dollar. There was good material for literary work in the Dominion, the speaker was convinced, for a number of editors and writers for the American publications were Canadians. He hoped that the Canadian Clubs would be able to do something towards the encouragement of a good literary production in Canada.

The hosts of the evening, H. B. Mackenzie, Mrs. Campbell Lane and L. I. McMahon, presidents of the three Montreal clubs, each in turn welcomed the guests and said a few words on the aims and significance of the Canadian Clubs. A vote of thanks to the hosts of the evening was moved by Major Brown of Toronto and Col. McCullough of Hamilton.

Among the out-of-town delegates to participate in the conference were:—Vancouver — J. N. Ellis, K.C., provincial vice-president; R. S. Somerville, president. Calgary — C. F. Adams, K.C., provincial vice-president; J. W. Hugill; Mrs. Lamont, president. Yorkton—J. A. N. Patrick, K.C. Winnipeg — R. Craig, K.C., provincial vice-president; G. H. Davis; C. C. Ferguson; Mrs. R. DEATH COMES TO JOHN MACFARLANE

The death occurred yesterday morning of John MacFarlane, at the residence of his son, D. H. MacFarlane, 611 Sydenham avenue, Westmount, at the considerable age of 79 years.

Mr. MacFarlane, who was born at Fort Erie, Ont., came to Montreal when a boy, and on completing his schooling at Montreal High School began his life-long connection with the paper manufacturing industry of Canada by working as clerk with several paper firms. He finally joined the paper manufacturing firm of Angus and Logan, which, in due time, developed into the Canada Paper Company, Limited. He organized a branch in Toronto for the latter company in 1880, staying there for eighteen months, and later became a partner in the firm, finally attaining the presidency, which he held up to the time of his retirement in 1912.

Mr. MacFarlane was identified with Westmount for many years, and took keen interest in its affairs, having acted as mayor and school commissioner. He was a director of the Mount Royal Cemetery and of the Montreal Water and Power Company, and a member of the Montreal Board of Trade.

Three sons survive him, Douglas MacFarlane, now at MacDonald College; Arthur MacFarlane, of New York, and David H. MacFarlane, architect, of Montreal, and two sisters, Mrs. C. G. Godwin, of St. Anne de Bellevue, and Mrs. F. B. Francis, of New York. His wife died in 1914, and a fourth son, Capt. J. R. N. MacFarlane, of the Canadian Forestry Battalion, died in London from influenza after three years' service.

LATE BARONESS MACDONALD

LONDON, Sept. 7.—(By Canadian Press Cable.)—Baroness Macdonald, of Earnscliffe, widow of the great Canadian Premier, Sir John Alexander Macdonald, died on Sunday, it is announced.

Susan Agnes, Baroness Macdonald, of Earnscliffe, was the daughter of the late Hon. Thomas J. Bernard, a member of the Privy Council of Jamaica, and his wife, Theodora Foulks Bernard.

She was born in Jamaica on August 24, 1836, and received her education in England. She came to Canada with the rest of her family in 1854, two of her brothers becoming members of the legal profession in Ontario.

On February 16, 1867, she was married to Sir John (then Mr.) Macdonald, as his second wife. The marriage was solemnized at St. George's Church, Hanover Square, London, England, the distinguished Canadian statesman then being in the British metropolis in connection with the passing of the British North American Act. The officiating clergyman was Bishop Fulford, the first Metropolitan of the Church of England in Canada. On July 1st following the distinguished statesman was created a Knight Commander of the Bath.

Following Sir John's death, which took place at Ottawa on June 6, 1891, Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, to whom Lady Macdonald had been presented in 1867, sent her an autograph letter, expressive of her sympathy. Her Majesty was further graciously pleased, in recognition of Sir John Macdonald's eminent public services to Canada and the Empire, to raise his widow to the peerage by the name style, and title of "Baroness Macdonald, of Earnscliffe, in the Province of Ontario, and Dominion of Canada.

While in Canada her ladyship found time to co-operate in many religious and philanthropic enterprizes; and in 1889, headed a movement for the establishment of an art museum and industrial college, as a memorial of Queen Victoria. She also wrote many interesting articles for the British press on Canada and its resources.

She was presented to the late King Edward and Queen Alexandra in 1902, and was present by invitation in Westminster Abbey at the coronation of Their Majesties in that year. In the same year she took charge with Lady Strathcona, of the Canadian stall at the Imperial Coronation Bazaar. Many years ago she disposed of Earnscliffe, the property at Ottawa, from which she took her title, and went to reside permanently in England.

She was the mother of one child, the Honorable Mary Theodora Margaret Macdonald, born at Ottawa in 1869. One who was intimately associated with Lady Macdonald in Canada has described her as "a woman of remarkable individuality, rare gifts, and striking personality, who charmed everyone by her vivacity as well as by her intellectual powers." There is no heir to the title.

Sir Hugh John Macdonald, of Winnipeg, is a son of Sir John Macdonald and his first wife, who was Isabelle Clarke, daughter of Alexander Clark.

Gustave Francq Expresses Thanks on Behalf of Committee for Support

"Our Labor Day parade yesterday was an absolute record, and an unqualified success. Not only did members of the unions turn out in strength—there must have been twenty to twenty-five thousand of them," said President J. T. Foster, of the Trades and Labor Council, "but the public also turned out in much greater numbers than we expected to watch the procession." Mr. Foster was much gratified and very pleasantly surprised at the number of unionists, remarking that it was a good answer to their critics. He says some people criticize the central authorities here for not being sufficient religious, and others claim they are not advanced enough in views, but he feels that such emphatic support as was given yesterday is ample answer to such critics that labor men in Montreal prefer sane and moderate leadership.

At Dominion Park there were crowds, in the afternoon, and Mr. Foster said that in every way it was a most successful day, and the threatening weather did not in the least interfere with its great success.

BOY SCOUTS CELEBRATE.

At Lachine, scouts co-operated with Labor organizations, a joint parade being held in the morning. Prominent in this procession were the Lachine Fire Brigade, the Lachine Scouts Band, Mayor Ranger and aldermen. Floats got up by the labor people were greatly admired. In the afternoon, the procession formed again, this time headed by the brass band of Vickers' Scout Troop of Montreal, and sports were held at Lasalle Park, where arrangements made by the field committee were pronounced admirable. Scouts and labor organizations shared events and a feature was the exhibition boxing of Kid Lewis and Russell. Another feature was the presentation to the scouts, from the Sons of England, Rose of Lachine, of a cup to be awarded annually to the most efficient boy in the Lachine Troop.

At St. Lambert, the field day was crowned with a banquet at night, held in the Chateau Beauclair and given by the local committee. Mr. Warren, chairman of this committee, presided, and there were present Mayor Gordon, J. A. Stiles, Dominion Secretary for the Scouts, and H. A. Lordly, Provincial Secretary. Many prizes were awarded for sports held in the afternoon, Patrol Leader Bentley winning the reward for the Scout holding the greatest number of points. The troop band was in attendance.

LABOR MEN'S THANKS.

Gustave Francq, president of the Labor Day committee, wishes to express on behalf of the committee their sincere thanks to the citizens who so kindly decorated their places on Labor Day, and to all others, who, by contributing prizes for the picnic, loaning their vehicles for the floats and the parade or who in other ways helped to make the splendid success of the celebration.

The following numbers are the winners for prizes for attendance at the picnic and those holding these numbers will be awarded the money by calling at the office of the Labor World. No. 2 St. Paul St., East.: No. 5894, $20; 939, $10; No. 3640, $5.00.

NEW YORK'S BIG DAY.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—A triple anniversary featured the Labor Day exercises here yesterday, for it was not only Labor's annual holiday, but also the sixth anniversary of the first battle of the Marne as well, as the anniversary of the birth of Lafayette. The principal celebration in Greater New York was held in Brooklyn where there was a parade of more than 10,000 workers. Striking employes of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company were given a place of honor in the line, many of them wearing uniforms of the army, navy and marine corps.

In the parade was a large number of banners, a majority of which were devoted to labor subjects, while some bade inscriptions expressing Irish sympathy. The parade terminated at the Lafayette statue in Prospect Park, where appropriate exercises for the three anniversaries were held. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic candidate for vice president, was the principal speaker.

The Socialists selected the day for holding a series of protest meetings, the principal speaker at which was William D. Haywood, leader of the I. W.W. He is out on bail after having been convicted and sentenced to 20 years imprisonment for violation of the Espionage Act. He devoted his speeches mostly to a defence of the I. W.W.

Labor Day, usually one of the largest of the season at Coney Island, had the smallest number of Labor Day visitors in eight years.

OPEN MUNICIPAL CONVENTION HERE

MAYOR'S WELCOME

Ask Government's Share in Loss Entailed by Building Workingmen's Houses

Several addresses and papers dealing with the difficulties to be overcome in municipal administration were heard at the convention of the Union of Municipalities yesterday.

G. E. Marquis, of the provincial statistical bureau, read a paper dealing with the flow of country dwellers into the cities; fire prevention was discussed by Oscar Morin, Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, and Eugene Leclerc, an insurance authority from Quebec; J. E. Laberge, of the City Health Department, spoke on Hygiene, and T. J. Lafreniere, of the Superior Board of Health, discussed water distribution, while Mayor R. Prieur, of Pointe aux Trembles, secretary of the union, gave a review of the union's work during the past year.

Mayor Mederic Martin welcomed the guests in a suitable speech and then asked the conference to adjourn for the rest of the morning in view of the Labor Day celebrations.

Mr. Marquis advocated the formation of colonization centres in the rural districts, as a means of alleviating the discomforts of a settler's life.

Mayor McLagan, of Westmount, expressed his enthusiasm for the union and its importance, and Mr. Lafrenier followed with a description of the systems in vogue to purify drinking water, and spoke of the mortality resulting from impure drinking water.

A campaign is being launched to prevent loss by fire, Mr. Morin informed his hearers. It was better to spend money preventing fires than to spend money putting them out.

Mayor Beaubien, welcoming Mr. Morin to the convention, spoke appreciatively of all the Government had done for the Union.

THE HOUSING QUESTION.

The housing question stood out prominently in the proceedings yesterday evening and occasioned a lively discussion.

Thomas Adams, Federal town planning advisor, opened the debate, by explaining certain points regarding the housing law and the loans by the Government. Only a municipality could borrow money to build flats and rent them, Mr. Adams explained, as otherwise profiteering in rents might be carried on with Government money. He described what had been done and was being done in England in this respect, and expressed the opinion that the Canadian system was a better one. The Province of Quebec, however, had been backward in taking advantage of the facilities offered under the law.

Mayor Bouchard, of St. Hyacinthe, pointed out that no one wanted to invest private capital in housing. In his own city, no one could be induced to build houses for rent. St. Hyacinthe had already appointed a housing commission and prepared the site of the proposed new erections, but no money was yet forthcoming from the Provincial Government. Mayor Bouchard insisted that the Federal, Provincial and Municipal Governments should all share in the loss entailed by building working men's houses. One third of the loss should be borne by a loan from these Governments at a low rate of interest. In Belgium, where this system was practised, the rate charged was 3 per cent, and a movement was on foot to reduce it to two per cent.

St. Hyacinthe was willing to bear its share of the loss on these terms. If all houses were built by the municipality direct or by a municipally appointed commission, speculation would be eliminated. He disagreed with Mr. Adams when the latter said private enterprise could do the work more cheaply than a public body. Experience in St. Hyacinthe had shown that the municipality could do such work more cheaply than contractors.

If public authorities did not start building, the landlords in the country would start to force the rents up, just as they had been doing in Montreal, Mayor Bouchard concluded.

FOUR DIE FROM WELL GAS FUMES

One Man Goes Down to Recover Meat—Others Follow

EDMONTON, Sept. 7.—Four fatalities caused through gas fumes were reported to the Provincial Police on Sunday and Monday. On Sunday afternoon, Thomas Lewis, George Caughlan and Elbert Christe lost their lives at Mellowdale, about eighty miles north of Edmonton, in an effort to recover a portion of fresh meat which had fallen down the shaft of a dry well forty-five feet deep. Lewis made the first attempt to recover the meat, and when he did not return his nephew went down to investigate. When he also failed to come to the surface, his wife became alarmed called in a neighbor, Christe, who also went down and not returning, Caughlan's wife summoned further help. Neighbors lowered a lantern, which was extinguished by the gas fumes when ten feet from the surface. The fourth fatality from gas fumes occurred at Tofield, about 40 miles from Edmonton, on Monday, when James Easton lost his life while endeavoring to free a drill in the well which he was putting down. The drill stuck whon forty five feet from the surface.

APPROVE CANADA'S STATUS IN LEAGUE

Viscount Cave Says Position Most Pleasing to British People

WINNIPEG, Sept. 7. — Viscount Cave, who is a visitor here, in an interview stated: "Canada's status as a nation as a result of her place in the League of Nations, is entirely acceptable to the British people and the general feeling in England is one of extreme friendship of Canada. They are desirous of seeing Canada secure her full rights as a nation, at the same time co-operating to the fullest extent in making the British Empire secure."

Viscount Cave said England is fast recovering from the war. The housing problem, which for many months had been an acute one, is now being handled to the general satisfaction of all, he said, but it would be some time, he declared, before a sufficient number of houses would be available.

Labor troubles have been prevalent, but the Government has been generally successful in settling them satisfactorily, he declared. The transport workers' strike was a deliberate attempt to hold up the country, but this danger had been averted.

TWO AMERICAN NAVAL AVIATORS KILLED

Were Viewing Tennis Finals When Seaplane Crashed to Earth

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 7.—Two aviators were killed yesterday afternoon when a naval seaplane in which they were flying crashed into to ground a short distance from the Forest Hills tennis courts and within view of the crowd watching the finals in the national all-comers' title tournament.

The aviators had been circling over the courts when their engine suddenly stopped and the plane dropped, plunging into the ground just across the railroad tracks from the tennis courts.

The bodies were identified as Lieut. J. M. Grier, U.S.N., and Sergt. Saxe, of the United States Army, both stationed at Mitchell Field, N.Y. They left the field this afternoon to take aerial photographs of the tennis matches.

When the plane crashed hundreds of tennis spectators rushed from the grand stands and over to the crumpled machine. Police had difficulty in forcing their way through the crowd after ambulances arrived. Sergeant Saxe's body was pinned down by the wreckage and it required some time to remove it.

"STUNT" FLYER KILLED.

DETROIT, Sept. 7.—Myron L. Tinney, former United States Army aviator, fell 500 feet to his death late yesterday while performing aerial acrobatics at the state fair grounds. Tinney's "stunts" were similar to those performed by Omer Locklear, who was killed several weeks ago.

In an attempt to catch a rope ladder on which he was to climb from one plane to another flying above him, he missed his hold and plunged from the top of his machine. A crowd estimated at nearly 200,000 witnessed the accident.

Tinney was in the flying service at a Texas training field when the war ended.

Was Former Speaker of Hazen Government

NEWCASTLE, N.B., Sept. 7. — Death removed one of New Brunswick's foremost men, Saturday, when Hon. Donald Morrison died after an illness of two weeks, at the Miramichi Hospital. He was a strong Conservative and unsuccessfully contested this constituency for the Local House in 1895 and again in 1899. He was elected in 1903 and again in 1908 and became Speaker of the House in the Hazen Government, resigning to contest the county for the Federal House in 1908. He was unsuccessful as he was in 1911. In 1913 he was appointed Inspector of Fisheries, which office he held up to the time of his death.

ROME, Sept. 7. — Premier Giolitti has ordered a strict inquiry into the circumstances a number of officers from Fiume obtaining control of the steamer Cogne, with a valuable cargo consigned to the United States, and diverting it from Catania to Fiume. It is said the Premier intends to punish those responsible for the act.

CORNWALL FINES FOR LIQUOR INFRACTIONS

Damien Papineau, Montreal, Arrested Together with Auto Load

CORNWALL, Ont., Sept. 7.—(Star Special.)—In the police court yesterday, Damien Papineau, of Montreal, was charged by License Inspector Foster with having liquor in a place other than his private dwelling. Papineau was caught by the Provincial staff with a Hudson auto loaded with liquor on the road about ten miles east of Cornwall, and he and the car and contents were brought here. The driver claimed he was hired to bring the load to Cornwall, and the charge was dismissed by Magistrates McLennan and Pollock, and the car was returned to the driver, but the liquor was confiscated and will be sent to the License Commissioners in Toronto.

There were 25 cases in the car.

The inspectors visited the east end later in the day and came across 29 cases hidden in a field of corn. They issued a summons for Alex Tessier, and he paid a fine of $500 and costs for having liquor in a place other than his private residence. On a similar charge, D. Tanguay contributed $200 and costs; and J. Sauve, J. J. McLennan and W. J. Warner paid fines of $200 and costs for public intoxicants.

Provincial Inspector Broddy, of Toronto, laid a charge against J. T. Carey for running a gambling scheme at the fair and he was fined $100 and costs.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 7.—George Mohen, 24 years of age, of Dakotah ... ment twenty-two miles southwest of Winnipeg, washed his ... line Saturday afternoon, when he had finished work on a threshing machine. ...stern Business Still Good But Falling Off in West

ARTICLE XVIII.

By F. A. Carman.

There has been a good deal of attention paid of late to the automobile business with a view to backing up certain theories as to the tendencies of business and of morals. Some people have pointed to the large sums spent in motor cars as evidence of extravagance to the point of moral degeneracy. Others have instanced the same facts as evidence of the great prosperity of the country. Others have been expecting shortly a decline in purchases of these "luxuries" as an indication that the great purchasing wave which has been sweeping over the world has reached its crest.

The facts in the case just now would appear to be of a somewhat mixed character. The figures as to the imports of automobiles and parts for the first three months of the current fiscal year—April, May and June—make very interesting reading. According to these figures, which are taken from the records of the Federal Bureau of Statistics, there has been a decided falling off in the import of passenger cars from the United States, which is, of course, the chief source of supply outside of Canada. There has, on the other hand, been a considerable increase in the imports of "freight automobiles", or motor trucks. And finally there has been a large increase in the imports of "parts" of cars which are assembled into the completed car at a Canadian factory.

The figures are these. The number of passenger automobiles imported in the three months period fell from 3,623 in 1919 to 2,970 in 1920. Curiously enough the figures as to values show an increase from $3,103,000 to $4,295,000. This is probably due partly to the general rise in prices but probably in part to the purchase of higher class cars.

For the same periods the number of "Freight automobiles", (or motor trucks) imported rose from 626 to 757 and the values from $906,000 to $1,572,000.

Imports of automobile parts in the three months of 1919 were valued at $2,482,000 for the same period in 1920 the value was $4,403,000.

The facts in regard to the sale of automobiles in Canada during the present season appear to be, like the import figures, of a mixed character. Business in eastern Canada is stated by those in touch with the subject to have been very good, and there has been a large increase in the sales of some firms at least. Just lately, however, owing to financial stringency there has been some falling off in sales and consequent cancellation of orders. West of the Great Lakes the sales are said to have been heavily hit, though they are now reported in well informed quarters as picking up.

"There has been no drop at all in sales in the Province of Quebec," said Mr. J. O. Linteau, general manager of the Legare Automobile and Supply Company. "The spring allotment of cars by the manufacturers to this province, and to Eastern Canada generally, has been fully absorbed, and the prospects are that increased orders will be placed for next year. In the West, however, there was a heavy falling off in sales during the first part of the summer, but of late the business has been picking up and now that we have a big crop sales are likely to be much encouraged."

AN EXPLANATION.

Mr. Linteau gave an interesting explanation of the import figures quoted above.

"They show," he said, "the growth of the manufacture of cars in Canada. You will notice that the importation of "parts" has increased heavily. These "parts" are imported to be "assembled" in complete cars at Canadian factories. The importation of completed American cars has fallen off, but the importation of the "parts" from which cars are fabricated in Canada has grown greatly. This side of the business is bound to continue to grow too. As a matter of fact the General Motors Corporation is now building a big new plant at Walkerville, which will be in full operation next spring."

Regarding the future of the automobile business Mr. Linteau is optimism itself.

"There has been a tendency in certain circles," said he, "to regard the automobile as a luxury. That is quite wrong. The automobile is a necessary to efficient business. It means more business done in a given time and it means greater production. A farmer can now come in from Ile Jesus quite comfortably in the morning in time for market and be back home early the same night. I have been informed that as soon as they get connection with the Montreal-Quebec highway, the farmers from Joliette will come in to the Montreal market. The important point is to get good roads. We have a good highway now from Montreal to Quebec and next we need one from Quebec to Sherbrooke and thence to Montreal. With good roads the farmers will invest largely in cars and the result will be seen in an increase of agricultural production."

Just at present a slackening up of the automobile industry has been reported from the United States, and this would appear to be having its counterpart in Canada. In the United States this slackening is stated to have been brought about through contraction of credit by the Federal Reserve Board, and it is matter of common remark among automobile men that a similar policy has been pursued by the Canadian banks. As a result of this financial stringency, which is due to a general policy of "selective curtailment" not confined at all to the automobile business, there has been some cancellation of orders of late but it is stated that this is merely a temporary condition. In fact, it is understood that the larger motor car organizations have made arrangements which will fully take care of the financing of their business and restore the marketing of cars to normal conditions.

EMPLOYE GAVE OUT A TRADE SECRET

Condemned to Pay $100 Damages and Costs

In the Superior Court Mr. Justice Guerin rendered judgment condemning Siegfried Sanders to pay the Berliner Gramaphone Company, Limited, $100 damages and the costs of an action of that class, for having divulged a trade secret employed by the plaintiffs to the Brunswick Balke-Collander Company, a rival and competitor of the plaintiffs.

Sanders worked for the Berliner Gramophone Company, Limited, for years and received a salary of $250 a month. In the course of his work Sanders, the company said, acquired in confidence knowledge and information respecting the making and methods of a special machine by which the company was able to successfully compete with rival manufacturers.

They alleged that, after he left their employ of his own will on September 1, 1918, Sanders revealed full information and details regarding the machine in question to his new employers, who were thus able to acquire a similar machine and reap a profit at the Berliner Company's loss. The company estimated its loss at $10,000 and sued Sanders for this amount, at the same time asking that defendant be enjoyed not to make any further disclosure of the knowledge he acquired of the plaintiff company's business during the course of his employment.

Defendant denied all these allegations and claimed he had not acquired from the plaintiffs any knowledge which he did not possess previously. Therefore he divulged no trade secrets, and the plaintiffs' action, he claimed, was unfounded.

Mr. Justice Guerin found against defendant who, the court said, had grossly abused his former employers' confidence. The court, however, said it was impossible to determine what special damages, if any, were suffered by plaintiffs in their business owing to the defendant's fault, as the evidence did not throw any light on the subject. Plaintiffs were justified, however, said the court, in reaching the conclusions of their declaration, and the evidence justifies the court in setting the seal of its disapproval on the defendant's conduct by condemning him to pay $100 damages. And further, the defendant is enjoined "not to directly or indirectly or in any way make known to any person, firms or corporations any of the special processes of special machinery which he has learned from the Berliner Gramophone Company, Limited, during his employment."

Use Cocoanut Oil For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

CLAIM FOR $54,000 WAS DISMISSED

Mr. Justice Guerin has non-suited in the Superior Court the Canadian Last Block Company Limited whose instance was taken up by Alexandre Desmarteau, liquidator for plaintiff company, in an action against Narcisse Lord and Pierre Trahan, of St. Johns, Que., for $54,346 damages alleged to have been suffered through seizures being placed upon plaintiff's goods and salaries by defendants.

Messrs. Lord and Trahan were the principal proprietors of the St. Johns' Improved Last Block Company, and they sold their business to the plaintiff company, receiving payment in debentures. The seizures were made through alleged failure of the plaintiff company to meet the interest dues, but they could not be sustained because the plaintiffs had given the Royal Bank of Canada a prior privilege claim on their properties.

The court found the plaintiffs had reason to believe that the plaintiff company had not honored its obligations towards them, and to believe that they had a right to seize the effects on which they considered they had a privileged claim under their contract of sale.

The action was dismissed, with costs.

ALD. LAWTON SELLS LAND.

Ald Lawton, who it will be recalled was the defendant in unsuccessful quo warranto proceedings taken to unseat him on the ground that he was in debt to Verdun municipality for taxes, has now sold the real estate which constituted his qualification to act as alderman. It will therefore be necessary to elect a new alderman, and possibly Verdun council meetings will be less interesting, as Ald Lawton was accustomed to take a prominent part in them.

The coal mines of Nova Scotia employed 13,000 men and during the year 1919 produced 42 per cent of the total cost production of Canada.

Millions of Smiles

Now show beautiful teeth—this is why

All statements approved by authorities

Look at people's teeth when they smile. Many teeth are dingy and discolored. All one's attractions are marred by them.

Other teeth now glisten. For millions of people now brush teeth in a new way. Twice a day they fight the film which dulls them.

Your teeth are coated more or less if you brush them in old ways. See the difference when you brush them in the new way for a while. Ask for this ten-day test.

You must combat film

Brushing does not clean teeth if it leaves the film. It removes some debris, but it does not end the teeth's great enemy.

Millions find that well-brushed teeth still discolor and decay. Tooth troubles have been constantly increasing. Now modern dental science finds the reason in a film.

New film is viscous. You can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. Then, between your dental cleanings, it may do a ceaseless damage.

The ordinary tooth paste does not end film. A soapy tooth paste makes it more viscous. So brushing teeth in old ways has left much film intact. Its daily removal has in late years been a major dental problem.

How film ruins teeth

It is this film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film, and very few escape them.

Dental science, after painstaking research, has found new ways to combat film. Able authorities have proved them by clinical and laboratory tests. Their efficiency is now beyond all question. These methods have with millions revolutionized teeth cleaning.

These new factors are combined in a dentifrice called Pepsodent — an ideal tooth paste which complies with all the new requirements. Leading dentists everywhere advise it. To prove it quickly to all careful people, a ten-day tube is being sent to everyone who asks.

Five quick effects

Pepsodent brings five desired effects with every application. Some are at once apparent, and all soon show their benefits to teeth.

One ingredient is pepsin. Another multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva to digest starch deposits that cling. Another instant result is multiplied alkalinity of the saliva to neutralize mouth acids.

Two factors directly attack the film. One of them keeps teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily adhere.

Thus with every application Pepsodent combats the teeth's great enemies in new and efficient ways. Both in Europe and America it is fast bringing a new era in teeth cleaning.

The way to know it is to try it. The first application reveals some new effects. A few-day test is most convincing. See these effects, read the reasons for them, and judge this new method for yourself.

If it brings you whiter, safer, cleaner teeth, tell others about it. There are few things more important.

Film makes teeth dim and dingy

You may not realize it, but remove the film and see how teeth look then.

Compare your teeth now with the teeth you see after this ten-day test. It will be a revelation.

Every woman owes this to herself.

Few children escape

Children's teeth seem most susceptible to film-caused attacks. Very few young folks escape them. Dentists advise the use of Pepsodent from the day the first tooth appears.

Old methods have proved inadequate. See what the new way does. Right tooth protection in early years means much in years to come.

IRELAND WON THE LABOR DAY INTERNATIONAL

Ireland won the Labor Day international yesterday afternoon, defeating Scotland by three goals to nil. Over 2,000 spectators witnessed the Irishmen score a victory by superior merit. More than one change was made from the original selections. Kane and Flannagan displaced Cree and McElligott on the Irish side, and Powis came in for Jimmy McKay for Scotland. It was conceded before the start that Ireland had out the best eleven, and there was much wagging of heads among the Scots' supporters, fearing that with Andy Clarke, Montgomery, Dick, Craigie and Adam Rae away in Toronto, they stood a poor chance of winning, but there were also others that expected a close encounter and ample excitement for the spectators. Alas for Scotland's hopes, the team finished badly, and while two of Ireland's goals were of the fortunate kind, there was no doubt as to the better eleven. Except the backs, Ireland excelled. But to the game itself:

The afternoon was ideal for football, no sun turning out to hamper the vision. Scotland went off with a dash that had the crowd roaring, and it can be truly said that the first twenty minutes of play produced form equal to anything seen this season. Simpson held good command of his wings, and once, had Powis been a little smarter to accept a pass in front, Scotland might have scored. When Ireland got going, which they often did, the forwards showed better method. McCarthy fed Johnny Rooney as a mother does a child, and Johnny's centres, which McCarthy, like a tactician, was waiting for them. They came all right, as Gray and Ure are aware. Robertson saved more than one. Irwin was in good trim, and Powis played well to him. Irwin gave Riley a hot one to save, but most of the Scots' shots went wide. The ground appeared very slippery, players continually falling. After Lowe had missed a chance to score, Rooney received and running well up, forced a corner, which he placed beautifully. McCarthy headed, and the ball was returned, but "Mac" connected again with his cranium to such good effect that Robertson was beaten all over. Score:

Ireland, 1; Scotland, 0.

It was what could be called a goal full of quality. Scotland's halves were woefully weak, though now and then they showed what they could do. Jimmy McLeish tried his hardest, and Simpson also, but sure enough, an Irishman would be in the way. Neither Dodd nor McCullough were too safe, both skying the ball. Irwin was ever prominent. He dropped a beauty, which Riley caught at the post, letting the ball fall, with Powis on top of him. Powis missed a great opportunity. The referee gave a goal kick, but it looked as if Riley had put over the line.

The Irish soon returned, Flannagan bringing Robertson to his knees from a neat pass by Cameron. Robertson was penalized for carrying the ball, and exciting play took place, as the free kick was only a few feet away from Scotland's goal. Robertson saved smartly. Ireland came again, and McCarthy found an opening, or at least the ball did, passing into the net with little more to spare than its circumference. Robertson couldn't see it coming, and it is scarcely to be expected McCarthy thought his shot would land a goal. This happened just a few seconds before the whistle blew for half time. Score:

Ireland, 2; Scotland, 0.

The second period offered small comfort for Scotland's backers, for they saw their representatives outclassed except Gray and Ure. Gray's play was the feature of the match. The lengthy Belfast man had a tough pair to tackle in Kane and Rooney, but his coolness in greatest difficulties was a pleasure to witness. Never flustered or flurried, Gray robbed them repeatedly, though occasionally Rooney had his revenge. Topping was, however, the favorite with the crowd. Dickson scored Ireland's third goal with a high shot, Robertson letting the ball slip through his fingers and it spun round into the net. This practically marked the end. Scotland did press, Lowe missing a splendid chance to score, but Ireland, with the big lead, did much as they liked. Harry Dodd has rarely played such an erratic game, kicking out time and again, as if his team had only a goal lead. McCullough improved, but as a pair they were away behind Scotland's. Ireland's strength lay in the half-back line, Topping, Hughes and Dickson proving a rare trio, and McCarthy appeared in his element. This can end the story of Scotland's defeat.

Final score—Ireland, 3; Scotland, 0.

Teams:

Ireland—Riley, McCullough, Dodd, Topping, Hughes, Dickson, Cameron, Flannagan, McCarthy, Kane and Rooney.

Referee—F. W. Wainwright.

KILBY'S DOGS WON AT TORONTO SHOW

TORONTO, Sept. 7. (Star Special.)—The dog show at the National Exhibition opened yesterday with 700 of America's best dogs benched. Montreal is well represented in the terrier classes, Irish Terriers were judged yesterday, and M. S. Kilby, of Montreal, cleaned up in both sexes. In the dog class Mendon Mulligan won the puppy novice for Canada.

In home-bred and winners and in bitches the imported Roughan Winnie won the limit and open and winners. No other Montreal terriers have been judged so far. Wirehair fox terriers will be passed on by Leonard Brumby today. Jas. F. Strachan has four, including Ridgeway Dark Bay. Henry Whitley's Short Cut is here, and Alf. Lepine and Chas. Powesland are also showing large classes of bulldogs. They faced Freeman Lloyd yesterday, but no Montreal dogs were amongst these, which is unfortunate, as some of the recent importations would have done well. In Airedale terriers, Int. Ch. Tintern Tip went through to winners dogs, defeating a quality entry. Ch. Polain Maxine was not shown. Cloycliffe Milady was the winning bitch.

TORONTO WON MATCH FOR CARLS-RITE CUP

TORONTO, Sept. 7. — Toronto's All Star soccer team defeated Montreal All Stars at Varsity Stadium by a score of 1 to 0, but as Montreal had already won at home by 2 to 0, the Carls-Rite Cup, trophy for this contest, goes to the latter.

The opposing teams were as follows:

Montreal—Smith, Hill, Clarke, Ray, Montgomery, Craigie, Wourtez, Dick, Angle, Stott and B. Smith.

Toronto—Halliwell, Campbell, Brooks, Acourt, Jones, Martin, Hurst, Marshall, Griffiths, Grant and Munroe.

The only score of the game came near the end of the first half. A foul against Hill, of Montreal, just outside the penalty area, was beautifully placed in the net by Jones, who completely fooled Smith with a dropping shot.

End to end play opened the game, with Toronto dangerous on approaching Montreal goal, while combination work by Angle and Dick kept the Toronto backs on edge and caused Halliwell many anxious moments. Early in the first half Grant just missed the Montreal net. Monroe, on Toronto's left received numerous passes from Grant, but did not make very good use of them.

Stott and Smith played a combination game on the left for Montreal which was the best seen here for a long time. It frequently outwitted Campbell, but Halliwell, in goal, was a tower of strength.

In the opening minutes of the second half, Marshall, who put a a great game throughout, almost scored for Toronto. In the latter part of this period the play on both sides became ragged.

A benefit match played on Labor Day between Rosemount and Rosemount Rovers resulted in a win for the Rovers by the score of 2-1. Hallworth scored for Rosemount and Ferguson and Fulme for the Rovers. The draw for the bulldog was made at half time, Chas. Holmes, ticket No. 457, was the winner.

In the first round after they had been sparring for about a minute and a half, Dempsey set himself and drove one of his famous pile-driving blows to the body. The blow landed just under the heart. The grunt the challenger emitted could be heard all around the ringside. He winced with pain and fell into a clinch. Tenaciously he held on while the referee tugged and pulled, trying to break them. It looked then as if the end had come, but Miske weathered the storm and managed to last out the round.

He went to his corner a badly hurt man, his handlers worked valiantly over him, but he never fully recovered from the effects of that blow, and it was the punch that decided the bout. It robbed Miske of everything he had but his gameness. It sapped his strength and weakened his legs. Speed—the asset he placed so much reliance in—had deserted him. Pain robbed him of his judgment of distance. Gamely he stuck to his task as long as nature could stand up under the terrible punishment that Dempsey administered. But after that blow was whipped home Miske was a beaten man. And he knew it. For the first time during his long career in the ring he had been hurt badly. He realized then for the first time what power Dempsey can generate in his blows. It made him cautious, so cautious, in fact, that later, at the start of the third round, when he found Dempsey's jaw with a snappy left hook and shook the champion, the blow was not delivered with as much power as he would have put behind it had he been willing to step a bit closer before driving it home. Had he been willing to take that one chance, dangerous and desperate as it would have been, Miske might have hurt Dempsey so badly that the finish would have been postponed. He might have prolonged his stay in the ring.

In the second round Miske went down for the first time. As they came out of a clinch Dempsey stepped quickly forward and sank a right into Miske's ribs under the heart. The challenger dropped in his tracks. He struggled to his feet at the count of five. Dempsey hesitated for a brief second and lost a chance to end the bout with another punch. Miske fell into a clinch and held on.

As the pair met in the third, Miske shifted from a position with his left hand extended to one with his right hand forward and unleased a left hook to the jaw that would have done credit to a much fresher athlete. It landed flush on the champion's chin, taking Dempsey wholly by surprise.

He gazed dazedly out over the vast throng. He did not realize that, stepping lightly toward him was Dempsey, poising himself to deliver the finishing blow.

The punch crashed over Miske's left shoulder. There was nothing to impede its progress. The challenger was beyond the stage of being able to make any effort, no matter how futile, to block it. It landed and Miske dropped to the floor with his right arm curled under his head. There he lay like one dead, while the referee's arm slowly rose and fell as he droned off the count.

After the knockout it was reported that one of Miske's ribs on the right side had been broken by the terrific punch he received in the first round. Fitzsimmons, the promoter, had him examined by two physicians, before they left the arena, and they agreed there was no fracture. His ribs were bruised and his jaw was very sore, and he had a terrific headache. Otherwise he was none the worse for his experience.

Scattered in the great throng were hundreds of women, their summer finery lending the needed touch of patches of color to the scene. They cheered and applauded as heartily and almost as loudly as their male escorts. The so-called weaker sex has progressed even farther than merely getting the vote. Many of its members have learned boxing, and what once was regarded as the exclusive precincts of man have been invaded by women. The female fans were out in force yesterday and they were a welcome addition to the gay spectacle.

MONTREAL SWIMMING CLUB HAS WIND-UP

The Montreal Swimming Club wound up its 45th annual season of handicaps by holding the regular half-mile race yesterday at St. Helen's Island. The result of the contest was as follows, the handicaps allowed being placed after each name: 1st—C. Foran, 1½min.; 2nd—John Kerry, scrh.; 3rd—E. Percy, 3 min.; 4th—J. Stutaford, 2½min.; 5th—H. Garlick, 5 min.; 6th—C. Schneider, 5 min.; 7th—A. Dubois, 5 min.

The last three were juniors ranging in age from twelve to fourteen years and the creditable showing they made earned them even more applause than the seniors. The prizes for the season's series of weekly handicaps were presented on behalf of the club by Chris H. Goulden and William Gathercole.

Paul Gravel had the honor of winning the Terry Lewis trophy for holding the season's highest aggregate of junior points. John Kerry was called upon to present the "Kerry Trophy" and in presenting it to Ed. Vernot, to be later handed over to his son George he related how proud the club felt for the fine showing made by George at Antwerp. He also referred to how much of George's success was due to his father's expert coaching and he concluded by thanking him for at all times giving the same free advice to so many other members of the club.

CONNAUGHT PARK HONORED BY THE GOVERNOR-GEN'L

OTTAWA, Sept. 7. (Star Special)—Connaught Park was honored yesterday afternoon by the presence of royalty for the biggest day in its history. The Labour Day program was witnessed by the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire who with a party of guests from Government House occupied the Vice Regal box. These with Their Excellencies were: Lady Rachel Cavendish, Lady Beresford, Lord Minto, the Earl of Dalkeith, Captain Lloyd, Captain Kinneard, Lady Violet Henderson, Miss Orr Ewing and Lord Richard Neville. The Governor-General and party were met at the entrance to the club lawn by Hon Senator Belcourt and others of the Connaught Park directorate. Afterwards they visited the club house and His Excellency witnessed from the judges' stand the running of several of the races. Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, was present, together with Hon. A. K. McLean and a party of members of the House of Commons. The club lawn and the general public enclosure were taxed and the crowd proved both the largest and the most fashionable that Connaught Park has ever welcomed. Rain fell in the morning and things looked dismal, but the good luck, which has followed the Jockey Club this season, continued and the skies cleared beautifully in the afternoon. Over ten thousand people thronged out to the park. So numerous were the motor cars that extra parking fields had to be opened.

The feature of the Monday card was the Labor Day handicap for $1,500, which went to C. I. Wilson's Flibbertygibbett. The longest priced winner was Apple Jack, a rank outsider, which won the first race and paid $71.20. Seagram's Sweet Bouquet showed his heels to the Canadian breds and Jim Thorpe outlasted the favorites in the steeplechase.

The Ottawa meet closes tomorrow and the majority of the horsemen here will ship to Montreal for the Blue Bonnets' meet, which opens Thursday. William Northey, secretary of the Montreal Jockey Club, was here and arranged for the shipment of the thoroughbreds to Montreal. Messrs. Richard and Beaudry, of the Dorval Club, were also visitors and they too met with great success in canvassing for entries for the Dorval meeting.

Ross' Lion D'Or Won Another Race

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. — Lion d'Or the colt which J. K. L. Ross purchased last spring for $20,000, added another victory to his long list of triumphs at Belmont Park in what was probably the most severe test he has yet been put to. He won the Fall Highweight Handicap at six furlongs over the straight course, and in a driving finish came home a neck in front of G. W. Loft's On Watch, while J. E. Widener's Naturalist was third, but a neck further back. The Ross colt had to have both speed and courage, for he carried 134 pounds against a field of topnotchers.

In addition to the feature there was a handicap at a mile and a sixteenth, which brought a victory for S. C. Hildreth, who has had much less than his usual portion of success this year. His Mad Hatter turned the tables on E. R. Bradley's Best Pal, and won a close decision over J. E. Widner's Pilgrim, Best Pal finishing third among the four starters.

LACHINE POLICE WON.

Two wins were registered yesterday at Dominion Park, Lachine, by the tug-of-war team of the Lachine police force, composed of Chief Durocher, Constables Quenneville, Proulx, McKenzie, St. Maurice, Chartier and Champagne. The team defeated the Copper Products and Caughnawaga Indians.

LADIES SWAM IN VERDUN RACES HELD YESTERDAY

Great crowds lined the dyke and packed the wharf to witness the annual gala of aquatic sports, offered by the Verdun 500 Swimming and Social Club, at Verdun yesterday. All of the events drew out a good entry list and the contests were well battled for in mostly all cases. Jimmy Giles was the hero of the day by winning two firsts, two seconds and two third places. His work throughout stamps him as a coming swimmer who will always be well up in the first rank.

The wharf to boom race resulted in confusion at the finish. The swimmers started out thinking it was a wharf to wharf swim, but this year they were supposed to touch a boom and this mixup resulted in making Eddie Duclos and Miss Agnes Vautier, of the M.S.C., lose their place and permitted other swimmers to be counted ahead of them. The prizes were presented by Alderman Louis Rubenstein immediately after the races.

The results were as follows:

VALOIS CREMATED MORTGAGE WITH SOLEMN RITES

The Valois Boating Club is at last free from all encumbrances. Last night, with an imposing ceremony to punctuate the occasion, the mortgage deed of $1,000 was burnt publicly.

The club was started thirty-three years ago by a few Valois residents, and has shown a record of steady progress ever since. Each year a regatta is held, which is fully as popular an event as any upon the lake shore. Every Saturday there is a dance for members and their friends, which is always well attended, for the club house is large and the floor good, and the music of the best.

It became necessary a few years ago to purchase a lot upon the shore, in order to protect their shore rights. As the club had not sufficient funds at the time, the money was lent on mortgage by one of the members. The redemption of the mortgage has been the objective of the club throughout this season, and last night, in the last week of the season, the mortgage was finally paid off and the deed burnt.

There were about 300 people at the dance, and after the eighth number the room was cleared, and Eckstein's band played the funeral morch. Led by this year's president, holding aloft a banner composed of the mortgage deed and two pieces of crepe, a solemn procession of past and present officers marched round the room. The mortgage was then burned amid vociferous applause.

TILDEN CHAMPION U.S. TENNIS NOW

NEW YORK, Sept. 7. — William T. Tilden, 2nd, of Philadelphia, is the tennis champion of the United States and of the world in general. His victory over William M. Johnston, the former national titleholder, at the West Side Club, Forest Hills, yesterday afternoon, stamps him as not only the greatest of all living tennis players, but, perhaps, the greatest of all time. It was a victory, however, completed only after five of the most terrific sets ever staged on a turf court, scored at 6—1, 1—6, 7—5, 5—7, 6—3.

The Tilden-Johnston struggle will go down on the records as the most astounding exhibition of tennis, the most nerve-racking battle that the courts have ever seen.

Williams and Johnston played five sets of mechanically perfect tennis. Tilden and Johnston played five acts of incredible melodrama, with a thrill in every scene, with horrible errors leading suddenly to glorious achievements, with skill and courage and good and evil fortune inextricably mingled, and with a constant stimulus to cheers, groans and actual hysteria, so far as the spectators were concerned.

Armed with his wonderful forehand drive, his aggressive volleys, and his stubborn determination never to say die, the former champion for five sets resisted a dazzling versatile game that theoretically should be rated at least 25 per cent ahead of his own.

It is by his service that the Tilden of today will chiefly be remembered, for time and again it came to his rescue when all else failed. But he had also a marvel of a backhand drive, a newly developed asset to his game, an offensive, not a defensive stroke, and one which scored equally well across court or straight down the line. Johnston's backhand, except for its accuracy of placement, was largely a defensive weapon.

But the Californian fared quite differently in the matter of volleying. Here he was distinctly Tilden's superior. Not only was he able to volley balls that would have knocked down an ordinary player, and to reach low, well-placed passing shots that could scarcely be seen in their flight, but he turned a majority of these extraordinary gets into actual factors in his attack, either scoring outright or forcing a defensive position, which ultimately brought him the point.

SUCCESSFUL FIELD DAY.

East Greenfield Athletic and Social Club held a field day yesterday afternoon and a social dance at night, the sporting events being keenly contested and the social a most enjoyable one. The following were the winners. Flo McGivern, Jean Arnott, J. Gregory, V. Manning, Minnie Galley, Pharos Barker, W. Arnott, H. Stott, Gladys Goods, Marjory Goode, E. Gillespie, M. McLellan, Alice Pearce, W. Gillespie, J. Littlejohn, D. McIntosh, E. McKinnell, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. McIntosh, Spriggs, Souter, Mrs. McGivern, Mrs. Cox, Robinson, McLellan, Wright, A. Gregory, R. Harris, Blleen MacGivery, A. Gregory.

Won the Pike's Peak Automobile Climb

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., Sept. 7—Otto Loescke, driving a Lexington Special, won the Pike's Peak automobile hill climbing contest here yesterday. The unofficial time was given at 22:25 2-5. Arthur Cline, in another Lexington Special was second in 22:30 4-5.

Ralph Mulford, title holder in the 1916 hill climbing contest here, was wrecked at the fourteen mile post by skidding off the road. He was uninjured. A blinding snowstorm began shortly before the hour for starting the contest. A high wind was blowing and there was a marked drop in temperature. Eighteen cars took part. They were divided into three classes, according to piston displacement.

CONGRESSMEN IN JAPAN WANT TO SEE EVERYTHING

ct to Being Requested ot to Attend Jazz Functions

JAPAN'S HOPE

kuma in Address Wishes Same Chance Conceded America

TOKIO, Sept. 7—(Special Star Cable—Tribune Copyright.)—The American Congressional Party, now being entertained in the Japanese Capital, finds itself up against a neat question in diplomacy.

The eighteenth Amendment does not apply in Nippon, and the way to Tokio was a long and delightful one. By special trains and boats the party drew near to the Capital, and now an anti-climax looms. Geisha girls and Saki, et al., are the cause.

For in Tokio each member of the party received letters. Brows wrinkled when individual requests from a local temperance society asked each member of the party to refuse to drink alcoholic beverages.

But when a new deal found each solon in possession of a suggestion from a group of Christian workers that the party should refrain from attending functions of Japanese Jazz, words struggled for expression.

"Why, that's what we came to Japan to see," said one congressman, and this seemed to voice the general sentiment and several regretting audibly that so far on their trip the Geishas had been noticeable only by their absence.

Anyway the geishas are here; so is the saki; so are the congressmen.

Marquis Okuma entertained the party yesterday at his residence here and during his address he urged that America and Japan should co-operate in the saving of China and the fusing of her belligerent provinces into a united country.

HOPES FOR SOME CHANCE.

He also hopes that America would give Japan the same chance to show good intentions toward Coreans and Siberians that Japan gave America with regard to the Hawaiians and the Filipinos, where the American desire to uplift a backward people was recognized by Japan.

Congressman Osborn, of Los Angeles, responded saying that while Washington had warned America of entangling alliances, there were cases where it was impossible to let go of the bears tail. This might be such a case he said.

This situation may afford Japan a chance to work with American and the other powers, within legal limits for China, Congressman Osborn concluded.

The members of the party are enjoying their visit in Japan keenly, and are being given the fullest opportunity to see whatever they desire to see in the country—even Geishas and Saki.

German Railway Workers Blow Up Allied Munition Train

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—A train, loaded with food and munitions for in the inter-Allied occupation troops in Upper Silesia, was stopped yesterday at Erfurt by railroad workers. The railroad workers uncoupled the munition car, which they blew up. They permitted the remainder of the train to proceed. The Minister of Frankfort discharged the guilty persons.

ITALIAN STRIKE DYING DOWN

ROME, Sept. 7.—The newspapers yesterday say that Sunday passed everywhere without disturbances in Italy. The Epoca reports that at Turin two airmen dropped Socialist leaflets over the city, but that on the appearance of Government airplanes they fled.

The police during the day took energetic measures to protect public buildings in Turin and placed small guns about the Royal Palace there. It is alleged that the workers of Genoa are tiring of the struggle.

THREE MEET DEATH AT NIAGARA FALLS

Big Rock Slide Smashed Upon Cave of the Winds

GORGE ACCIDENT

196,000 People Attended Exhibition Yesterday—U.F.O. Picnic

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—(Star Special)—At Niagara Falls, N.Y., yesterday, three persons were killed and two injured, when a slide of shale rock sideswiped and forced out the fourth bridge in the Cave of the Winds. Hundreds of tourists who were in the cave had narrow escapes from being crushed by the falling rock, of which it is estimated that five tons fell.

The dead are: A. Hartman and wife, Louise Hartman, of No. 4, 118 Avenue, Brooklyn, and Miss Clara M. Faust, of No. 2, 658 Norwood Avenue, Pittsburg, Pa. The dead and injured were members of a group of tourists who were being shown through the cave by Rufus Robinson, a guide. They had almost completed the circuit of the four bridges, and were approaching the old Biddle stairway to come to the top of the bank, when the slide occurred. The noise of the falling rock was drowned by the roar of the falls. Miss Faust was to have been married within a few weeks to T. W. Lee, who was injured.

WIFE'S NERVOUS FAMILY.

For the third time this season a tragedy was narrowly averted last night at the G.T.R. level crossing a mile south of Aurora. Mrs. E. B. Thompson, of Toronto, with her husband and child beside her, was motoring quietly north on Yonge street. Prevented by the steep embankment to the west of the street from seeing the approaching train, the motorists received no warning of danger until the train was almost on top of them. With the front wheels across the rails, Mrs. Thompson stalled the motor. Before they had time to jump the train had struck the automobile and tossed the front part of the car slightly off the track without injuring any of the passengers. The train stopped and took the Thompsons on to Barrie, and today Mr. Thompson returned for the wrecked motor.

SCORES C.N.R. APPOINTMENT.

The Chatham U.F.O. Picnic was held at Paincourt, Ont., yesterday. Messrs. J. J. Morrison, secretary of the U.F.O.; A. B. McCoig, M.P.; and R. L. Brackin, M.P.P., were the speakers. Mr. Morrison spoke chiefly of the work of the U.F.O., pointing out the progress which had been made in the organization since its inception. The organization, he said, was purely national in its aspect. Mr. McCoig criticized the appointment of Dewitt Foster as a purchasing agent for the Canadian railways. He recalled the horse deal which Mr. Foster had put through for the Government, an investigation of which had caused him to resign his seat. He criticized the Government for appointing him to a position where he would have control of the expenditure of millions of the people's money.

SMASH ON GORGE ROUTE.

Mrs. George Shaw, of this city, believes that a miraculous influence saved her from death by falling down a 50-foot embankment into the Niagara River yesterday afternoon, when a car on the Gorge route crashed into the string of five cars on one of which she was travelling. Mrs. Shaw was sitting on the last seat of the last of the five cars.

"I looked around and saw a car approaching us at a terrific rate of speed," said Mrs. Shaw, in reciting her experiences. "We could not jump off, and when I picked myself up I found I was standing on a ledge 18 inches wide overhanging the river. One false move and I would have crashed down the embankment." Seven persons were injured in the accident, none of them seriously.

FAIR HAS RECORD GATE.

With a total attendance of 196,000 the C.N.E. yesterday achieved a new record in point, both of attendance and interest. Nature was generous. Weather, desire, transportation, and accommodation all combined to make it one of the supreme occasions in the forty-two years' history of Canada's National Fair. It was Toronto's day at home.

The dominant note in the speeches at the directors' luncheon was firmly against Socialistic tendencies. Labor leaders made an appeal for sane and constitutional methods of reform. Later on the Plaza, Sergt.-Maj. MacNamara, M.P.P., declared that the one hope of enlightened Trade Unionism was in the support of the principles upon which British institutions had been founded. He declared that the doctrines of Sovietism, Bolshevism and Socialism were as much the Allies of Germany as were the doctrines of Pan-Germanism before the war.

ANOTHER NIAGARA WRECK.

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Sept. 7.—A score of persons were injured in the lower gorge of the Niagara River yesterday afternoon, when a trolley car ran off an open switch. The accident happened within a few feet of the spot where the disastrous wreck occurred three years ago.

All the injured were removed to hospitals. None are hurt mortally.

MAPLELEAF

MOTOR TRUCKS

Built Like a Bridge

TAKE a look at the business end of a Mapleleaf truck. The lines of its rear-axle housing will remind you of a steel bridge. It has the same appearance of grace combined with tremendous ruggedness.

This resemblance is not merely accidental. The Mapleleaf rear axle is designed to carry heavy loads with as much indifference as a big bridge does.

The axle shafts are of the same big, husky designs. They are made of the strongest steel alloy known and revolve in the wheel on roller bearings. There are ball bearings in the worm gear and differential too.

When you put your foot on the pedal that controls the axle brakes, something grips—and grips hard. The emergency brake is of the "safety first" pattern. Large enough to stop the wheels dead at any speed.

You ought to see this axle. You will have a great respect for the truck of which it is a part.

ITALIAN CITIES REPORTED QUIET

Government Hopeful Industrial Crisis May Be Adjusted Soon

(By Camillo Cianfarra, United Press.)

ROME, Sept. 7.—In the face of prospects of a general strike, Government officials appeared more optimistic last night regarding the acute industrial situation, which to date had resulted in seizure of 149 factories by locked-out metal workers.

Executives of the Socialist party adopted a resolution to appeal to all Italian organized labor to proclaim its solidarity with the metal-workers. This was the outstanding development over Sunday which was tranquil so far as any physical disturbance was concerned.

Despite this action by the Socialists, confidence was expressed in Government circles that the acute situation soon would be adjusted. This optimism resulted from a proposal by Minister of the Treasury Meda that manufacturers should indirectly grant the workers increased wages by organizing in each city co-operative stores where food would be sold at cost. The employes are to discuss the plan in Milan today.

The Ministry seemed to carry the assurance that the workers would agree to this proposal. In most quarters, however, doubt was expressed that the manufacturers would acquiesce, since the scheme contemplated granting a temporary increase until the co-operative stores were established.

A report was circulated that representatives of the manufacturers meeting here, informed Labor Minister Labriola that negotiations would not be re-opened while the workers occupied the plants.

Radicals who have seized factories in the greater metal manufacturing centers of Italy make no attempt to disguise the nature of the movement. It is purely Bolshevistic in character, and it has the establishment of the Socieis patterned after the Russian Government, as its purpose.

The "Red Guards" occupying the factories are not only equipped with machine guns and rifles, but many of them wear steel helmets. The workers generally wear Soviet badges.

In the seized factories a brand of Russian discipline is maintained and lolterers, looters or pliferers are punished by special tribunals chosen by the "proletariat." One factory in Turin, it is said, in addition to other means of defense, boasts two tanks, manned by former soldiers.

While reports coming in from the various cities where rioting and seizure of workshops have been in progress are somewhat vague, it is said on good authority that Soviets have been established at Milan, Turin, Genoa, Naples and Bologna.

He improves the shining hour and impresses upon an important person that he is in possession of an "estate."

Easily Understood :

1st. Deposits are made yearly. This is what you are saving, and at the end of 20 years the Canada Life guarantees the return of every dollar paid in.

2nd. Your life is insured from the day you make the first deposit,—for $5,000, or whatever amount you decide.

3rd. Dividends are paid at stated intervals in addition to the return of all deposits at the end of 20 years.

4th. These dividends may be used to reduce the amount of your yearly deposits, or be allowed to accumulate at interest for 20 years.

5th. The cash value of Policy and Dividends represents a valuable asset, useful in business, and your "estate" is protected by the insurance.

6th. At the end of Twenty Years you can draw out all you have paid in, along with the accrued dividends—you can draw a Special Cash Guarantee, together with the Accumulated Dividends, making a substantial sum, and leave the $5,000 Policy fully paid for and continuing to earn Dividends as long as you live—this Special Cash Guarantee may be applied to increase the amount of your policy to more than $7500.

---or---

An Immediate Estate

The great advantage over any other form of investment is that a small percentage paid yearly creates immediately an estate of $5,000, or more.

These active, progressive years of life in which you are earning the most money are the years in which premiums can be more easily met.

LINER ARRIVES CLOSE TO RECORD

Empress of Britain Docked Noon Today at Quebec —Liners Leave

Although not yet in thorough order after completely refitted in drydocks, besides being converted to oil, the C.P.O.S. liner Empress of Britain has beaten all lower gulf records this week-end. She completed her voyage from Liverpool to Quebec at noon today in six days flat. This is only one hour below the new record set up by the Empress of France, and is three hours better than the pre-war record which was set up by the Empress of Britain.

The Empress of Britain, which blazed the trail for the new oil burners which will ply the St. Lawrence next year has many notable passengers on board including half of the Canadian Olympic team. It was never anticipated that the reconditioned liner would make anything like an approach to the speed record set up by the empress of France, until she had made several voyages at least. It is now considered certain that the "under six day" run to Quebec will be the routine time of all the new liners plying the St. Lawrence in the future seasons. When it was known during the lower gulf run that the first of the Canadian oil burning liners was only one hour behind the record, on her initial trip, the progress of the Empress of Britain was watched with the greatest interest.

There was very little delay in picking up the pilot at Father Point and a later wireless to C.P.O.S. headquarters here announced that the Empress captain expected to reach Quebec at noon today. The liner entered the gulf by the Belle Isle strait route and from then on clipped hours off the expected arrival time. The ship left Liverpool 5 p.m. September 1st, while the Empress of France, which also arrived at Quebec at the noon hour over a week ago, left Liverpool at 6 p.m. on the day of departure.

THREE LINERS LEAVE.

Three passenger liners are leaving in the next three days for British ports. Two leave tomorrow namely the Sicilian from Montreal for Glasgow, and the Empress of France from Quebec. On Friday the C.P.O.S. liner Grampian will leave here for Southampton and Antwerp. Many Montrealers are booked for all three liners. The advance passenger lists give the names of the following:

ON EMPRESS OF FRANCE

Hemmell, W. Wright, C. P. Beaubien, Miss M. Sutherland, Mr. Archie and Mrs. McFarlane, Mrs. and Misses S. and A. Beaubien, Howard Barringer, Mrs. M. A. Goodchild, Miss Birks, Mrs. A. E. Stepen, A. Drynan, D. Maitland and Mrs. and Master Guy, A. Rushton, Miss J. Murray.

In the second cabin are L. Knowles, C. W. Campbell, Mrs. Geo. Hodges, Mrs. E. Baxter, Rev. E. C. Spaven.

ON SICILIAN

J. W. Kay, Mrs. F. Tod, James MacMillan and Mrs. MacMillan, Miss C. Rooney, Jos. McDonald, W. C. Paterson, R. McVittie and Mrs. McVittie, Mrs. Paterson, A. Reid.

ON BOARD GRAMPIAN

Leaving here Friday for Southampton and Antwerp are the following Montrealers; Rev. George Seuws, Rev. Victor Boutiet, E. Girardot, Mrs. A. C. Marsh, Mrs. D. L. Strachan, Mrs. K. Dallison, G. Skinner, Dr. L. Gerin-Lajoie, Dr. E. Dube, Dr. J. A. Mignault, Dr. L. P. Senecal, Rev. Father Langlais, Rev. M. Sabourin, Rev. G. Proulx, Misses A. C. and F. L. Walker, J. Rivard, D. Eussiers, L. G. Godin, Mrs. Marie Markowska and Master Markowska, Albert Galipeau, P. Brauer, Jean Thierry, M. Bruerm Nalen Sewaya, Mrs. Alamaze Helle, Mrs. A. Zakab, E. M. Wolcocks, B. J. Dupuis, F. Vezina, P. Rieux.

One passenger liner is reported in from the trans-ocean trip today, namely the C. P. O. S. liner Pretorian, reported at Belle Isle. She is due at Quebec Thursday and in Montreal the following day. The Pretorian carries a full passenger list from Glasgow, also a general cargo.

ANOTHER VICKERS LAUNCHING.

Another large cargo steamer, the fifth of the present season, will shortly be launched from the yard of Canadian Vickers Limited here. She will be the third vessel built this year by the company for the Government and she will be christened the Canadian Commander.

The new vessel will be launched in two weeks time and will comprise, like the Canadian Victor, every modern device known to up-to-date shipping, including a refrigerating plant which will tremendously widen the scope of the freighter's cruising radius.

The Canadian Commander is of 8,400 tonnage and represents the largest class of freighter under C.G.M.M. control.

Vessels of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine are now in considerable numbers in both the Atlantic and Pacific oceans and the location chart at C.G.M.M. headquarters here will shortly show other freighters in the Indian ocean.

The Canadian Victor, recently handed over to the company her builders, the Canadian Vickers Limited is now en route to Liverpool with a full cargo. She will be followed soon by the Canadian Conqueror, also a Montreal built vessel which is expected to make her maiden voyage at the end of this month.

Although the trades is of recent date there are now four C.G.M.M. freighters in the Pacific in the Ausia trade, namely the Canadian Inventor, Canadian Importer, Canadian Exporter and the Canadian Prospector.

STOCK MARKET TONE STRONG---NEW PAPER DEVELOPMENT

SOME FURTHER GAINS SCORED IN LOCAL LIST

The Montreal Stock Exchange opened this morning showing a continuance of Friday's strength and during the first hour the market was fairly active and prices made further good advances. Most of the strength was based upon orders which had accumulated over the long week-end from Friday night to this morning, but after they were taken care of, the tone became slightly less buoyant and prices failed to maintain their high levels. The reactions which occurred to the 12:30 p.m. closing were not large, but were of sufficient weight to indicate that the market had not yet developed to the stage where public participation would prove to be a factor in market expansion.

The active pulp and papers were again features. Spanish River common opened at 117, rose to a high of 118¾, and closed off from the high at 117¾, a net gainer of 1¾ points. Spanish River pref. opened at 127½, rose to 128 and closed firmly at 127¼, a net gainer of 2½ points. Wayagamack was strong in the early session opening at 135. It later reacted to 133¾, leaving the stock with a net gain of 1¾ per cent. Laurentide was less spectacular but moved up in sympathy with the other issues. From 115 bid, buyers advanced their ideas to 117 where the first sale occurred. Another point was gained but lost to the close at 117, leaving a net advance of 1½ points.

Abitibi opened at the high of the morning at 80, eased fractionally closing at 79¾, a net gainer of 1¾ points. Brompton started out at the high of 73, eased a point but closed firm at 72¼, up ½ point net.

Dominion Bridge was one of the features of the mornin's business, the stock showing the first substantial recovery recorded in some time. It recently declined to around 84. This morning it opened at that and rose an additional point leaving a net advance of 2 points on a small turnover.

Other points of interest in the market included a falling off in Iron to 58, a net loss of 1; while Asbestos was down ½ at 65; Cement unchanged at 51; Canners unchanged at 55; Power up ⅛ at 80¾; Gass up ¼ at 67½; Breweries firm at 66 to 66¼, up ¼; Steamships Ry., 28¾ to 28, down ¾; Steel of Can., 69½ to 69, down ¼; Riordon, 200, unchanged; Sugar, 138 to ½, up ⅜; Toronto Ry., 41¾, down 1¼; and Steamships pref., unchanged at 78¼.

POSITION TO DOMINATE SHIPPING RATE MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 7 (Special to The Star.)—A British shipping correspondent says that the sudden return of its fleet by the United States Shipping Board to the export coal trade clearly demonstrates that the board is in a position to either "bull" or "bear" the American freight market, and as its policy is apt to change from day to day, the operation of this state-owned fleet, as long as it exists, will remain a menace to all foreign private shipowners. Should the present American shipping board policy be maintained for the rest of the year, however, we should see a distinct improvement in all freights from America, including coal, grain, and cotton, while if there should be a strike of British coal miners the factor would also send up rates temporarily, as the United Kingdom would have to compete with Europe both for American and other foreign coal.

The Norwegian foreign minister announces that his Government, cooperating with other nations, is preparing a protest against the Jones Navigation Act adopted last June by the American Congress. The protest will be forwarded shortly to the United States Government.

Strict enforcement of the Jones act, it is asserted, will greatly hamper Norwegian navigation ,especially ships engaged in transportation of fruit from the West Indies to New York. A large fleet of Norwegian vessels is engaged in this trade, and these vessels, it is stated, are of little use for other purposes. It is declared that freight service between the United States and Norway also would suffer severely by strict enforcement of the act.

Who's Who in the Street

John Cameron, of Edmonton, Alberta, is one of Canada's best known Western financial men, having had a long and wide association with the West during the most vital period of growth and development. He is president and managing-director, Gainford Collieries, Limited; and chairman, provisional directors, Canada Northwest Loan and Mortgage Company, Limited. From 1871 to 1876 he was a partner in the firm of Cameron & Mode, general merchants, Vankleek Hill, Ontario, and from 1876 to 1881 a partner in the firm of Cameron & Company, general merchants, Winnipeg. He went to Edmonton in that latter year, and for the following ten years was a partner in A. Macdonald & Company ,buying out the latter's interest and continuing in the business until 1896. Since that date he has been connected with the development of Western coal fields and real estate. He was first president of Edmonton Board of Trade, and has been closely associated with the building up of the school systems of that city.

Cuban-Canadian Co. 9-Months' Report Soon

In their September number of Investment Items, Royal Securities Corporation says that the annual report of the Cuban Canadian Sugar Company for the nine months ending June 30, 1920, is now in the hands of the auditors and should be available to the company's shareholders on or about October 1. Reports received from Cuba indicate that the company's operations during the past year have been most successful and profitable, and that the earnings shown for the nine months' period will be most gratifying to the company's shareholders.

Arrangements are being made to obtain a largely increased cane supply for the mill during the coming crop, so that it is expected that the company's output for the 1920-1921 crop should be in the neighborhood of 180,000 bags, as against the 141,000 bags produced during the year just ended.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 7.—State control of price and production of coal will be assumed in Indiana this week under a new state law.

An effort to restrain the State from taking over control of the mines having failed, the State Coal Commission was preparing to assume immediate charge. Threat of a coal shortage and prevailing high prices caused this action.

ADVANCE AGAIN MARKED COURSE IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Resumption of trading on the stock exchange today after the prolonged recess was attended by an irregular continuance of last week's advancing movement. The chemical shares were the most noteworthy features as a result of the recent merger of several of the leaders of that industry. Barrett Company made an initial gain of 4½ points and National Aniline rose 5⅝, but General Chemical, which figured prominently in the consolidation, lost 8 points. Oils, steels and equipments, noteworthy Royal Dutch, Crucible and Baldwin were firm to strong, but rails were little changed.

Substantial advances were registered by most leading issues at the stock market opening. United States Steel at 89½, was off ¼; General Motors, 21 3-8, up ¼; Southern Railway, 28⅝, off ¼; Baldwin, 109 ¼, up ⅜; Royal Dutch New York, 85½, up 1⅝; Studebaker, 62½, up ½; Pan-American, 90⅜, up ½; Crucible, 123½, up 1; Bethlehem B, 77½, up ½; Reading 93¼, up ⅜; Texas Company, 50½, up ½; Mexican Petroleum, 169¾, up ⅜.

Trading broadened and became more active soon after the opening, oils, especially the Mexican group, assuming leadership. Houston and, Sinclair Oils also were strong and steels were mainly representative, Bethlehem, which rose 2 points on reports of excellent earnings for the current quarter.

Coalers were featured by Pittsburgh and West Virginia, in which buying was reported by interests identified with the company.

Call money was freely offered at 7 per cent, but completion of arrangements for payment of the Anglo-French loan exerted no visible influence on foreign exchange.

Around 1:30 p.m. the market was strong and quiet. Prices of leaders follow:—

TAKES HOPEFUL VIEW OF GENERAL OUTLOOK

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Announcements that woolen mills will reopen about the middle of September and that conditions are growing more favorable in the cotton trade, have combined during the past week with good news concerning the business situation to afford an encouraging view of the autumn outlook, says Henry Clews & Co. in their weekly review.

The Federal Reserve Board's review of conditions, as of September 1, shows steady progress toward the restoration of a normal basis of business, and while such progress is possibly less marked in finance and banking than elsewhere, it is clear that these branches of activity must eventually feel the influence of better conditions in other directions.

A striking indication of the improvement in some branches of the investment market is afforded by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, which found by an investigation among representative member banks that Liberty Bonds and Victory Notes bought by the customers of these banks over a recent three months' period exceeded those sold by about one-half. The bank also reports that a large portion of the recurring issues of Treasury certificates is now taken by private investors who hold the certificates in most cases up to maturity.

The continued reports of good agricultural conditions have also united with the better industrial prospects to strengthen the conviction that there will be a maintenance of buying power and improvement in the distribution of wealth during the coming months.

The Government's cotton crop estimate, although showing a low condition percentage of 67½, may be discounted to some extent by reason of the showing made by reliable private estimators who have put the figures somewhat higher.

It should be remembered that the Government's report at this season is usually unduly pessimistic, but even at that it would point to a crop of but little less than 13,000,000 bales, a forecast which was evidently recognized by the cotton market in the somewhat lower prices registered immediately after the announcement although subsequent improvement restored values.

LONDON MONEY RATES

LONDON, Sept. 7. — Bar silver 59½d per ounce. Bar gold, 115s 6d. Money, 6½ per cent. Discount rates, short bills, 6⅝ per cent; three months' bills, 6⅝ per cent. Gold premium at Lisbon, 140.

SUGAR MARKET QUIET

NEW YORK, Sept. 7—The raw sugar market continues quiet and steady. Sales reported, wire Shearson, Hammill & Co., on Friday last consisted of a lot of 2,500 tons Peruvians, centrifugals, for shipment this month, at 10 cents c.i.f to an operator. The refined market is quiet. The American and Warner Co.'s continue to withdraw, and list prices of other refiners are unchanged.

Sugar opening, Sept. 7, 1920—Sept., offered, 10.50; Oct., 9.85 to 10.40; Nov. offered, 10.50; Jan. offered, 10.25; Feb., 9.75 to 10; March, 9.75 to 10; April, 9.75 bid; May, 9.85 bid; June, 9.85 bid; July, 9.88 bid; Aug., 9.90 bid.

Opinions from Wall Street

E. and C. Randolps: H. K. Evans wires—Easing in the money is not to be expected. On the contrary money is pretty sure to be tighter in October than it has been at any time yet.

Pynchon and Co., wired Craig, Luther and Irvine—Money outlook is better, but announcement of issuance of $400,000,000 treasury paper, some of it at 6 per cent, is an indication that real ease cannot be expected for some time.

Hayden, Stone and Co.:—Stock market always offers opportunity. So far this year it must be admitted opportunities have been chiefly on bear side of industrials; henceforth, until railroads have rediscounted earnings sufficient to yield 6 per cent on their valuations, opportunity, in our opinion, lies in this department, while in investment field, there are remarkable opportunities for rearrangement of bond maturities.

B. C. Forbes—Those who can analyze correctly outlook for different railroads, should be able to reap handsome profits when the merging program is put into operation.

Chandler Brothers & Co.—Railroad securities are cheap. Far cheaper than they are ever likely to be again in our time and generation.

Shonnard Mills & Co.—Real opportunity lies in railway list which begins to reflect management by their owners and with freight and passenger rates high enough to accomplish physical and financial redemption from mistakes of past ten years.

Logan & Bryan—We think stock market will do better and favor long side of rails.

Topics of the Street

Although the total turnover on the local stock exchange this morning was not as great as that of Friday morning last, trading in individual issues showed more activity. Again Spanish common was the feature, the market starting out with but little trading in any other issue. Later, however, activity in Brompton was also a feature.

Trading in these stocks and in the other principle issues amounted to 6,728 shares as compared with 6,864 on Friday morning, a decrease of 136 shares, and the individual trading was as follows: Spanish common, 1805 shares, Brompton 1210 Spanish pfd. 882; Brazilian, 518; Abitibi, 360; Wayagamack, 290; Laurentide, 272; Steel of Canada, 215; Quebec Ry. 200; Breweries and Asbestos both 125; Montreal Power 119; Dom. Canners, and Dom. Glass, both 100 shares.

The stock markets re-opened this morning, following their long week-end rest, with comparatively little change in tone from that which ruled at Friday evening's closing. In the local market the Friday strength was continued well into the morning, but there was comparatively no change in the general market situation, and following the initial activity, the tone of the market became quiet.

Technically, the local position—as has been pointed out in these columns on several previous occasions—is sound. It would seem that the only incentive needed is the assurance that all the business offering could adequately be financed. This, however, does not seem possible at the moment. Money continues scarce, and the fear still exists that the needs of the West for crop-moving purposes will be reflected in the money markets of the East.

The above is a brief resume of conditions surrounding the Montreal stock market when it re-opened this morning. Other and less immediate influences are also but little changed from last week. The domestic situation in the United States is at an extremely doubtful stage. Liquidation of inventories, which has been general for some months past, is being continued. Commodity prices continue to decline, and big buying power is still staying away from Wall Street.

Various market experts maintain that commodity prices must certainly go lower, and the time has not yet come when the most hopeful view of the general situation can be taken. The European outlook is clearing graudally. The menace of the Bolsheviats has been removed for the time being, at least, and the Irish situation is not at the moment making much impression on conditions on this side.

During the next few days there will probably be announced at least one new issue of pulp and paper securities. As outlined in another column, the Dryden Pulp & Paper Company has been purchased by Montreal interests, who have organized a new company to take over the properties and plants, which latter are to be enlarged to the capacity for which they were originally intended.

A local syndicate is also said to be contemplating new financing in connection with the company. This financing, while not yet definitely announced, will probably take a somewhat different form from that usually associated with pulp and paper company issues. At the present time, the only obligations outstanding in connection with the new enterprise are $1,500,000 of bonds, which continue in English ownership. The new financing will probably raise the company's outstanding issues of bonds and common stock to around $5,000,000.

A number of dreadful things that at one time or other in the last six months have threatened to take place have not materialized. Bolshevik Russia has not over-run Poland. There has been some coal shortage, but not so severe as anticipated. The cotton crop has not been has been restricted, there has not been, as yet, the squeeze feared. It must be admitted, however, that the banks are entering the fall months in a very straightened condition; discounts and notes are at a new high mark. Credit will, no doubt, be found for essential business, but there will be none for expansion or doubtful enterprises. There will be no surplus of loanable funds until there has been additional industrial liquidation and a further period of saving. "Easy money" in the near future is almost inconceivable.

The country is passing through a period of readjustment without anything approaching panic, the letter continues. In some lines the pruning has been rather sharp and severe, a good many paper profits have disappeared. Though there has been a distinct let-down, it has not assumed the proportions that would entitle it to be termed "depression." It must be admitted, however, that there is little in the industrial outlook to inspire enthusiasm in the shares representing these lines of industry. While admitting that liquidation may have discounted the greater part of the readjustment, this is not equivalent to saying that, speculatively, there is as yet any inducement to replace lines of industrial shares. Speculation thrives on prospects of increasing earnings. It is difficult to see how this can be anticipated, industrially, for a long time to come.

Notes of Exchange

Organizers of the Sample Fair, which will be held in Barcelona late this autumn, have arranged with a steamship company to transport free of charge exhibits from New York and other American ports. An endeavor is being made to make the exposition a rival of the famous Leipzig Fair.

The movement of dried peaches for 1920 from California is well under way. On the basis of the price for dried peaches fixed by the Peach Growers' Association, which handles the bulk of the State's production, the first two carloads which have already moved out of the Fresno packing houses are valued at approximately $25,000. The dried peach crop suffered no damage by the recent rain in the San Joaquin Valley, according to J. F. Niswander, general manager of the California Peach Growers' Association, who declared that there would be no injury to any practically dried, well cured peaches even though the fruit was not stacked during the rains. Any freshly cut fruit exposed to the moisture would be saved from harm by resulphuring, he added.

NEW FINANCING EXPECTED FOR DRYDEN PULP CO.

Montreal interests have purchased, it is stated here, the controlling interest in the Dryden Pulp & Paper Company, of Dryden, Ontario. The company is to be reorganized along the most modern lines. The concern has heretofore been in control of English interests. Among the plans entertained by the new company which has secured control of the organization is to give the mills the output for which they were intended.

The present mills have a capacity of 45 tons of sulphate pulp, 15 tons of building paper, and 15 tons of kraft paper each day. The new company will add considerably to this output and will give the mills, in addition to the above, 40 tons of groundwood and 50 tons of board per day, thus rounding out in large measure, the diversification of the company's output.

It is understood that a local syndicate, headed by Greenshields & Co., members of the Montreal Stock Exchange, have carried on the financing for the new company, and that a new issue of securities will shortly be placed on the market. This financing it is stated will be along lines different from those usually associated with pulp and paper company financing.

For several reasons, including the exchange situation, the English interests have not been ready to provide the company with the necessary capital to complete the plant. It is understood that the Canadian interests, on the understanding that they would provide this capital, were able to purchase the property at approximately its pre-war valuation. The English interests will retain their holdings of the $1,500,000 six per cent. bonds now outstanding.

The company holds 1,157 square miles of timber limits adjacent to Lake Wabigoon and Eagle Lake, in the Kenora district of Ontario, between Winnipeg and Port Arthur, containing a large stand of accessible pulp wood.

The company was originally formed as a lumber and power concern. It went into liquidation in 1913, when the lumber business went into depression. Additional capital was secured and the sulphate mill was completed.

The company's capitalization was scaled down to a low figure under the reorganization. The lumber and paper plant was gradually developed out of earnings, and additional timber holdings and power sites secured. The additional powers have been partially developed and the mills brought up to a present productive basis.

The sulphate pulp goes largely to the paper mills in the Fox River Valley region in Wisconsin and in Mnnesota. The building paper goes into the chief western Canadian market, which is the chief market in this country for that product. Kraft paper is sold in western Canada and throughout the world under the Dryden trade mark.

Among the directors of the reorganized Dryden enterprise will be included, it is understood: W. A. Black, vice-president and managing director of Ogilvie Flour Mills and a member of the Abitibi Pulp and Paper board; J. B. Beveridge, who has for some time been associated in the chief executive capacity of the company; J. J. Greenshields, K.C.; J. H. A. Acer, director of the Laurentide Power Company; Senator Lorne C. Webster and Dan. McLachlin, president McLachlin Bros., Limited, of Arnprior, Ontario.

Grain Market Holds Firm at Winnipeg

This market holds surprisingly firm, the entire list is in favor of heavy business going on. It is thought the demand for cash wheat is to take care of old business as very little new business is being done, at the slightest improvement in the demand for wheat or coarse grains believed the market would respond and prices go better. The majority of the flour tradecare inclined to a bearish view based on increasing receipts. Fine weather and lack of buying interest. If our weather map should change and unfavorable weather set in the whole list would quickly harden, in my opinion, or on any improved demand.

Says Speculators are Cause of Sugar Slump

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The following is a view expressed by a prominent member of the trade here on the causes of the drop in sugar prices:

"Recent developments have shown that speculators alone are responsible for the sudden change in the sugar markets. Speculators have been caught with large stocks, and have been turning much of it back to their refineries with instructions to sell at any price that could be obtained.

"It is this temporary condition that has resulted in the sudden drop in sugar prices, and also accounts for the spread between the prices that have been asked for holdings of the speculators and the regular stocks of refineries.

"Intimate close to the American Refining Company state that there is nothing in the sugar situation that warrants the present drop outside of the fact that speculators have been caught with more sugar than they can finance. The view offered is that when these holdings have been absorbed, refined sugar will again sell considerably higher than at levels now being quoted."

COMPLAINANT WAS ROBBED AGAIN

Assaulted and robbed on Dominion square, July 20, Ruth Garcia had her assailant and the woman whom she states on this occasion robbed her of a diamond necklace valued at $1,000, brought into court on Thursday last for trial, the cese being adjourned until September 14, owing to the absence of material witnesses.

On Sunday night Garcia again complained to the police that she was sitting in her room at 336 St. Dominique, when two men and a woman called on her. They asked for refreshment and were given one drink each. Then she said, she remembered nothing and concludes she was drugged.

When she came to she found a bracelet, set with diamonds, which she values at $1,000, and a diamond ring, valued at $2,000 were missing, also her visitors. The matter has been placed in the hands of Detectives Tierney and Forget.

BRITISH PRINTERS ARE STILL OUT

LONDON, Sept. 7.—(Special Cable to the Star)—Seven hours of deliberation by the ministry of labor has failed to settle the typographical dispute. The joint industrial council adopted resolutions of regret that the typographical association was unable to give adequate assurances that satisfactory steps would be taken to terminate the difficulties at Manchester and Liverpool. The council urges that the trade union take immediate and effective steps toward conciliation.

AFFILIATION WITH CHINA CAN. CLUB

Subject of Forming Canadian Clubs in Schools Discussed

CLUBPIN NOT WANTED

Proposed to Found Drummond-Papineau Educational Memorial

The morning session of the second day of the Conference of the Association of Canadian Clubs, meeting at the New Medical Building of McGill University, produced one definite decision and opened up a large field for debate in several other important channels. The resolution adopted was that granting the Canadian Association of China affiliation with Dominion Clubs. This was regarded as a far-reaching step, embracing, as it does the farthest point of the Empire, and linking those Canadians who live on the other side of the earth with those at home in carrying out the good work and high aims of the association.

Other subjects which arose and met with some discussion were the advisability of inaugurating the Canadian Club idea in the schools throughout Canada. The question of having a national club pin for all members of the association, and a suggestion from Col. McCollough for what would be known as the Drummond Papineau Scholarships in memory of those two young men, Guy Drummond and Talbot Papineau, who laid down their lives for their country. The latter suggestion met with universal approval but no definite steps have yet been taken in regard to it.

With reference to yesterday's leading resolution, that concerning the ban to be placed on the Hearst publications, an interesting side light was given and a suggestion made by Mrs. Hendry of Toronto, to the effect that in banning the Hearst publications some effort should be made to fill the void created by such action. An effort should be made, said Mrs. Hendry, to encourage Canadian literature to take the place of the Hearst publications, which fill so large a space on all our news-stands at present.

The meeting was called to order by President Birks, who proceeded to read a number of telegrams from various persons and associations congratulating the Canadian Club on the splendid work of its organization. He then read the following paragraphs from a letter to the Association from S. Perry Westaway, Secretary of the Canadian Association of China at Shanghai.

REQUEST FROM CHINA.

"The Canadian Association of China organized by approximately thirty charter members on February 16, 1920, in the office of the Canadian Trade Commission, Shanghai, is proceeding to secure further organization in other ports throughout China, along lines and with a similar object as expressed in a copy of the constitution and by laws enclosed herewith.

Object:—The object of The Canadian Association in China shall be to foster good fellowship among Canadians in China and to promote the interest of our country in every possible way.

Eligibility to Membership: — All Canadians resident in China shall be eligible to membership in the Canadian Association of China.

In many ways we are similar to the Canadian Clubs but necessarily have to make such variations as is essential and necessary considering our non-residence in Canada. It is our desire to do all that is possible to assist our Government in co-operation with its representatives in China in furthering and stabilizing Canadian trade in this country.

We desire if possible to receive recognition from and become affiliated with the Canadian Clubs thereby giving us Home connection and a body to whom we might forward any resolutions, therein upholding the work of the Canadian Trade Commission, whose correspondence is addressed to The Canadian Trade Intelligence Department at Ottawa.

Col. McCollough proposed that this request be granted, and the motion was seconded and unanimously passed.

The subject of a Canadian Club pin was then discussed, but met with general disapproval. A pin which was made for the Vancouver club, and sent on to be examined was passed around, but the general feeling seemed to be that the Association of Canadian Clubs needs no such emblem to either signify its existence to the public or to encourage enlistment therein or to in any way further the good work already being carried on by this Association.

CLUB IDEA IN SCHOOLS.

The next subject to arise was a suggestion from Col. McCollough for the inauguration of Canadian Clubs among the children of our schools. Taking as an example the Canadian Club now in existence in the Memorial School of Hamilton, he suggested that the idea be tried out gradually as an experiment among the clubs in individual cities and not as a wholesale resolution adopted by the Association and controlled by it.

Mr. Sutherland, of Quebec, made a strong speech, in which he said that the schools were already overburdened with duties imposed by various associations, which interfered with the regular school duties and caused more difficulties to be met by the already heavily burdened school instructors.

The Rev. Herbert Symonds then spoke, having been on the school board of this city for thirteen years, saying that he considered the plan feasible in the higher grades of the High School in Montreal, and that he would be glad to place the subject before the president of the School Board.

The resolution was turned over for next year's meeting, the subject being considered too immature for an immediate decision.

At 11.30, Pres. Birks was called away from the meeting and Mrs. G. H. Duggan took the chair.

Col. McCollough gave a short address, speaking with affection of his association with Guy Drummond and Talbot Papineau during the war, and offering the suggestion that the club give something as a memorial to the memory of those two brave men.

A scholarship, to be known as the Drummond-Papineau scholarship, was mentioned, but the association was unable to form any definite decision in regard to the fittest way to pay their respect to the memory of those fallen soldiers.

T. Kelly Dickinson, secretary and treasurer of the association then read his report for the year, which met with general approval. He deplored the fact that the smaller clubs do not keep sufficiently in touch with the head of the association, so that the latter can bulletin there reports and mail them to all the clubs, thereby stimulating a general interest between all branches.

The remainder of the session was taken up with a general discussion of the treasure's report and of the functions of the club in general, with a willingness expressed on all sides to undertake greater and more far reaching work than any previously undertaken. The meeting adjourned at 1 o'clock for luncheon.

PREMIER RETURNS TO CAPITAL.

OTTAWA, Sept. 7.—Hon. Arthur Meighen, Prime Minister, arrived in Ottawa from Quebec at noon to-day.

POLICE COURT WAS CROWDED TODAY

List Included All Charges from Speeding to Burglary and Theft

Fifty cases were on the list at the Police Court this morning and the corridors and court were crowded to suffocation. In the court where Judge Leet occupied the bench, the heat was terrified and combined with the fetid air the crowd and various noises it was almost impossible for anyone to follow the procedure. Lawyers and others were forced to work under great difficulties.

The large docket included nearly every manner of case, from driving an automobile without the necessary permit to the more serious charge of burglary and theft. Two men, Theodore Richer and Leon Ranger, who gave an address on St. Lawrence Boulevard, were accused by Detectives Walsh, Thibeau and Morel of having broken into the premises occupied by Burnaby's Drug Store, at 500 Roy street, and stolen $50 worth of perfumes, and also with having robbed the store of George O'Neil, 812 St. Lawrence street, of $68. The detectives who made the arrest told the court that when they arrested the men they found the goods alleged to have been stolen in their possession. The case was remanded.

DEPORT "CON" MEN.

Michael Case and Robert Walsh, who both admitted these were not their correct names, and claimed the United States as their native land, were entertaining a soldier to a little game of chance on the C. P. R. train running between Montreal and Toronto. Investigators Morrow and Hull, of the C. P. R., became interested in the game, with the result that the two men were placed under arrest when they arrived in Montreal, charged with being "con" men. Judge Leet ordered that the pair be deported back to the land of their birth.

Accused of having assaulted Henri Benoit, of St. Hyacinthe, some six days ago, during which time the complainant was in the hospital recovering from his injuries, three men, Raoul Bouchard, Armand Tupin and Raoul Mongeau were arrested last night by Detectives Gorsky and Pelletier. The trio appeared this morning and were ordered to appear for enquete September 13.

A report came into No. 6 Police Station about 1.10 a.m. that a man was breaking into the premises of the Lithuanian Club, 1044 St. Catherine street east. A constable was immediately despatched to the place and found a man who gave the name of William Sankus in the building. The constable states that when he arrived on the scene the accused was attempting to open the cash register. He will explain his midnight prowlings to the judge next Monday.

Charlie Sing, 48, of 39 Cote street, was arraigned charged with selling drugs. Trial was set for September 15, bail in the sum of $500 being set.

A man giving the name of Rirehie Jeffrey, no address, was arrested by Detective Bogli while attempting to dispose of some blankets alleged to have been stolen, in a second-hand store on Craig street. The goods were valued at $200 and were said to be the property of the Grand Trunk Railway.

DR. C. A. COTE, OF TADOUSAC, DIES

After a long illness, Dr. C. A. Cote of Tadousac passed away in hospital in Quebec City in the early hours of Friday morning. For the past year his illness has been recognized as incurable and at the beginning of the week when he suddenly took a turn for the worse his family in Tadoussac were notified. Dr. Cote has practiced medicine for many years and was well known, particularly along the north shore of the St. Lawrence, where he was sent by the Government before settling finally in Tadoussac.

Dr. Cote was the son of the late Augustin Cote of Quebec City. He is survived by a wife, nee Mary O'Brien, daughter of the late Judge F. H. O'Brien; three sons, Paul, Robert and Raymond Cote; two daughters, the Misses Charlotte and Suzanne Cote; two brothers, Jules Cote, N.P. of Cowansville, and Emile Cote of this city, and one sister, Mme. Crepault, of Cowansville.

MONTREAL WILL BE PROBATED.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Sept. 7.—The will of Mrs. Mary Jane Doney Jones, late of Montreal, widow of Hon. Thomas R. Jones, probated here, discloses an estate of $15,100 real estate and $1,840 personal. Dr. J. R. Campbell, K.C., M.L.A., of St. John, and W. Thomson, of Montreal, are executors.

MONTREAL WILL CHANGE TO STANDARD TIME AT 2 A.M. ON OCTOBER 24

On Sunday morning, Oct. 24, at 2 a.m., all the clocks in the city will be set back an hour, and Montreal will rise once again according to standard time.

This announcement was made today in the office of the City Clerk. It was stated that the change would probably take place at the same day and hour in all sections of the Dominion where daylight saving has been adopted.

Last year October twenty-sixth was the date settled for a return to sun-time, but as Sunday is the most convenient day to skip an hour, since fewer working people are affected, the return to standard is made two days earlier this autumn. Two o'clock is better than twelve to set back time pieces and so this hour has been chosen, but the majority of householders will not wait until the re-setting of official clocks before moving the hands back.

When asked whether daylight saving was likely to be enforced in the city next year, a civic officer answered that it was a matter of conjecture. "It all depends on the railways," he stated. "But they still use the old time, it was objected. "Yes, but the majority run according to daylight saving hours," he replied. "If they will co-operate we will probably set our watches back again next spring."

ECREMENT NOW AWAITING TRIAL

Buffalo Commission Returned But Finding Will Not Be Made Public

Arthur Ecrement, who has appeared in court often of late to answer various charges brought against him, the largest being that of conspiring to defraud Michael Connolly, of Montreal, out of the sum of $125,000, appeared again this morning. The hearing only lasted a minute or so, being merely a form of procedure, before the accused goes to trial. The statement taken today was on the charges brought against the former notary and ex-member of Parliament by O. Patenaude, boat captain of 1112 St. Andre street, accusing Ecrement of securing by false pretences the sum of $5,250.

The commission headed by Judge Bazin, which went to Buffalo last week to take further evidence in the Connolly charges against Ecrement returned to Montreal on Saturday. The finding of this commission will not be made public until the trial on the Connolly charges takes place.

Ecrement is still confined to Bordeaux jail, and while waiting for his hearing today was kept in the cells at the court house.

CHARGES FATHER WITH ASSAULT

Latter's Lawyer Claims That Son Was Real Offender

D. C. Falstrault, 74 years of age, was arraigned in the Recorder's Court this morning charged with assault on his son. Alderman Lyon W. Jacobs, K.C., who appeared for the defence, asked that the old man be released and that the case be postponed. Recorder Semple directed that the trial be postponed until September 15 and that the accused be released on personal bail.

Lyon W. Jacobs stated to the court that about two weeks ago he was visiting a client in the cells, when this old man appealed to him for help. He heard the man's story and decided to take up the case. He claimed that Falstrault went to his son's house to get a pair of shoes about a month ago that he had left there, when he was set upon by his son and severely beaten, and that the son afterwards ducked his father's head in a pail of water. He was later arrested by his son, charged with assault and was recommended for a medical examination by the attorney for the prosecution.

The accused was examined by Dr. Channion and pronounced perfectly sane. J. Jean appeared for the prosecution.

BUSINESS MEN'S CLUB TO APPEAL

In the Practice Court this morning Mr. Justice Bruneau allowed the writ to issue returnable within six days on a petition presented by Jos. A. Mercier, K.C., acting on behalf of the Business Men's Club of Montreal, 22 McGill College avenue, for a writ of certiorari directed against L. H. Boisseau and J. T. Finnie, collectors of the provincial revenue, and Judge F. X. Choquet, called in the case.

The petitioners were recently condemned by Judge Choquet for an infringement to the Prohibition Act. They claim the condemnation and convictions were illegal and irregular.

The dead woman is Miss Rosalie Beaudoin, 28 years of age, of 962 Notre Dame street, the other occupants of the automobile were: M. Adelard Beaudoin, deceased's brother, of 1428 City Hall avenue, who owned the car, and who escaped with a few bruises and shock; Mrs. A. Beaudoin, his wife, who suffered from shock; Miss Therese Beaudoin, sister of the deceased, living with her at 962 Notre Dame street, who escaped with shock and severe contusions, and M. Herbert, the chauffeur of the car who lived at 1428 City Hall avenue.

Relatives of the victim in the city state that the party left here yesterday morning at 6:30, bound for Quebec City and the neighbouring countryside. They had planned to be away four days at the least. From news which has already reached the city it is thought that the chauffeur of the car was blinded by dust on the road and lost control of the car as it was travelling at a high rate of speed. The four occupants of the car who escaped serious injury are thought to have been thrown out as the car overturned.

Miss Rosalie Beaudoin, who was the youngest member of the party, suffered serious injury, from which she died fifteen minutes afterwards.

Relatives here stated this afternoon that the whole party will return to the city tonight. The body will be brought back to Montreal for burial.

TWO ROBBERIES ON ST. PETER STREET

Two robberies on St. Peter street, between Craig and St. James streets, were reported to the police department to-day. The United Photograph studio, which was broken into some four months ago, was entered once more, and also the premises occupied by the Empire Typewriter Company.

In both cases entrance was gained to the buildings by the burglars cutting a pane of glass in the rear window, making a hole large enough to put an arm through, then releasing the lock.

In the premises of the United Photograph Studio, only eighteen cents in cash was stolen. The typewriter company did not suffer any loss, the money left on the premises at the close of business Saturday, having been hidden in a ledger.

CHARGE CONSTABLE WITH ASSAULT

Arraigned before Recorder Semple this morning charged with being drunk and insulting people on Craig street, Leo Legault, a hunchback, was found guilty of the charge and sentence was suspended.

Legault sprung a surprise on the court when he accused Constable Clairemont of No. 5 station of brutality and alleged that the constable beat him in the patrol wagon on the way to the station. He furthermore produced the shirt and collar he claimed he wore at the time. They were all covered with blood and the accused, who argued his own case, had cuts on his body.

Recorder Semple in rendering judgment, stated that it was one week since the man was assaulted and that he had been unable to appear in court owing to his injuries. "I know Legault very well", stated the Recorder, "so do not think I am sympathizing with him. He has been here many times. There has been some mistake somewhere, the man has been brutally treated. His shirt and collar are covered with blood, his face is all cut. There is absolutely no necessity for this."

The man was arrested about a week ago by Constables Tourville and Maloney. Constable Maloney stated that he was riding on the box beside the driver of the patrol wagon, and Constable Clairemont was in with the accused and another prisoner. He heard a commotion and did not see any blow struck, but when he turned around the accused was bleeding. On arrival at the station the prisoner put in a charge of assault against the constable.

MUCH BAD FISH SEIZED BY CITY

The Food Inspector's Division of the Health Department reports that 206,952 lbs. of foodstuffs have been confiscated from the beginning of the year till the end of August. Of this total, only 15,930 lbs. were confiscated last month.

The largest seizures were made in fish, of which 106,160 lbs. were confiscated. The other seizures are as follows: beef, 23,880 lbs.; veal, 23,718 lbs.; various meats, 22 157 lbs.; vegetables, 14,484 lbs.; pork, 10,721 lbs.; mutton, 4,114 lbs.; fruits 1,773 lbs.; game 945 lbs. Most of the confiscations have been operated in butchers' shops, though some have taken place in railway stations, or quays, in restaurants and in depots.

"Take it From Me" a Welcome Departure From Hackneyed Form

MOST musical comedies are more or less alike. In most the music is reminiscential. You seem to recall the popular ditties of the previous musical comedy you heard. The average plot is so slight as to be almost imperceptible. The average chorus is worse than poor. It is therefore refreshing to come across a musical comedy which constitutes a departure from the sterotyped brand, one in which there is more than a semblance of coherence about the plot—one does not expect logic or even plausibility—and in which the score does not immediately bring back memories of the last half dozen scores.

"Take It From Me" is a good entertainment. It is designed to entertain, and it fulfils the object of those who produced it. The plot is visible, ingeniously developed along clever comedy lines, and rich in original ideas. There is dancing considerably above the average and the work of the chorus is also spirited and a welcome constast to the sloppy performance of so many chorus bodies in musical comedy.

* * *

There are three musical numbers which stand out, and two of these are superior, both musically and in regard to scenic and lighting embellishment, to much so-called "popular" material. The general staging and setting of the production will challenge comparison successfully with the best of its kind, and the costumes leave nothing to be desired. They are graceful, colorful, dainty, and original, and the girls obviously understand how to wear them. The lighting throughout is admirable—a model of what lighting should be in musical comedy entertainment.

There is nothing notable in the score, but it is both adequate and unhackneyed. The strong feature about the show is its comedy, which is insistent, continuous, and at times uproarious. It kept a large audience laughing almost incessantly last night. The prologue, I am inclined to believe, might with advantage be eliminated, and its purport explained in the course of the dialogue shortly after the opening of the first act. With this amendment, I would say that "Take It From Me" entertains effectively, and is to be commended, moreover, because it is wholesome in tone and devoid of the taint of suggestiveness. There is no harm in a show of this kind, and if you want a good laugh after a hard day's work, you will get it in full measure.

* * *

Tom Eggett, a young spendthrift, is left the job of making good in the direction of a huge departmental store after one year's management, failing which it becomes the property of the former manager. Finding the latter has the whip hand, Tom decides to wreck the business instead and to that end enlists the services of two of his chums and a "movie" queen. The possibilities will be obvious to the most infantile intelligence. They are exploited to the utmost by Edgar Gardiner, Richard Mack, John E. Hennings, Charles Welsh Homer, William Balfour and Harry Burnham. Mr. Hennings is a dexterous eccentric dancer, and a resourceful comedian, and Mr. Mack ably supports him. Mr. Gardiner fills the role of Tom naturally, and dances exceptionally well.

Miss Alice Ellis contributes a diverting caricature of an elderly forewoman. Miss Marjorie Sweet burlesques the movie queen with vigor and picturesque effect. Miss Beatrice Bradner makes a pretty picture and acts naturally in the role of the attractive private secretary. A dainty dancer, a graceful and resourceful comedienne, Miss Arline Gardiner is always welcome on the stage. Her sister, Helen, portrays the society fiancee with due pose, poise, and heartlessness.

* * *

Those who want amusement can get it from "Take It From Me." Those who look for second-hand lilting melody and imitative material won't find it. The verdict of the individual upon this entertainment will depend upon his mood, his digestion, and his prejudices. Given normality in all three, he is likely to enjoy himself. The basis of entertainment is comedy, and if you cannot find comedy in "Take It From Me," then Mark Twain was a pessimist. S. M. P.

Miniature Musical Comedy Dominates The Princess Bill

The condensation of musical comedy is an art. It is not often successfully achieved. But at the Princess this week there is an act entitled "A Young Musical Comedy" in which Billy Abbott and a number of girls succeed in giving a very attractive and picturesque entertainment. The girls play the violin and dance to their own music, and the effect, with clever lighting and dainty costumes, is one not often seen in vaudeville.

There is this merit to the act. It signifies an effort to break away from the hackneyed and the commonplace, and for that alone certain faults may well be overlooked. It is cleverly conceived and in its execution no small amount of talent has been expended. The results are encouraging.

* * *

Princess Radjah, formerly seen here several years ago, presents Oriental dances which depend for their success upon a certain subtlety of rhythm and a certain indefinable quality of suggestion—by no means offensive or improper—which are not always conveyed with either grace or ease. In the instance under review, there is evident a definite mastery of rhythmic line, and no little appreciation of the sense of rhythm in motion.

* * *

Eddie Ross, the blackface banjoist and monologuist, is as ingenious and as original as ever. His banjo playing is always worth hearing. Smith and Troy in amusing patter; Alexander, in syncopation—for those who can find anything but a cacophanous din in it; Duval and Symonds, in noisy version of "Their First Quarrel"; Margot and Francois, in surprising feats on stilts, and the Les Genis Girls, who are genuine aerial artists, complete a bill which will provide variety for all but the very exacting. S. M. P.

Variety Program At St. Denis Pleases

A packed house generously applauded last night the variety program at the St. Denis. Graham's Marionettes charmed the audience with their quaint little songs and dances, and Martelli sang popular songs and deceived everyone to the last as to his sex, receiving showers of applause when at last he whipped off his borrowed plumes and revealed his close-cropped and distinctly masculine head.

Blanche Archambault made a happy selection from her extended repertoire, and merited the hearty applause and recalls which fell to her lot. The Ballyhoo trio turned somersaults galore and tied themselves into fearful knots in the course of a contortionist act, and Ramsdell and Deyo gave a clever display of up-to-date dances.

Amusing Farce at The Orpheum Makes Good Entertainment

"Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," this week's play at the Orpheum, is called a comedy of youth, and well sustains its description, for none but the inexperienced could commit so many amusing faux pas. Marital misunderstandings, responsible for so many comedies and tragedies in this life, make up much of the ground-work of the play, but above all the hero-worship of Angelica Irving (Helen Robinson) and jealousy of her perfect devil of a husband, Reggy.

William Naughton is a very successful husband of the young curate type, with hair plastered down, parted in the middle, and weak, watery eyes, always looking upward in a vain hope of escape from his troubles, who has had a dreadful past and a perfectly thrilling reputation for success amongst the ladies wished on him by Jeff Hayward (Bobby Reed). His wife Angelica is perfectly sure he is irresistible and that no woman but herself could reform him, and she sees scheming women on every hand trying to inveigle her man from her.

* * *

Miss Marjorie Mason is a new member of the company, a dainty ingenue, with delightful golden curls, and a peaches and cream complexion(and is such a taking little thing as Nita Leslie that it is hard to see how she "fell" for such a bear of a husband as her Freddy, Harvey Leslie.

Miss Margaret Knight plays a society news editress, always looking for scandalous tit-bits for her paper, and last night was so fresh and breezy that her advent on the stage made it seem as if a different play had come on. It is her mission, as Polly Hathaway, to frame up a compromising situation which will prevent Reggy's wife from realizing she has far from a dangerous bad man for her husband, and it takes Polly some exceedingly hard work, and a most strenuous two-minute kiss, to infuse even the beginnings of a little life into him. "Look at him—no, you look at him; I can't."

Jean Bedini Show At Gayety Draws Capacity Audience

The "standing room only sign" greeted patrons of the Gayety Theatre yesterday, who came late and were desirous of seeing Jean Bedini's production of "Twinkle Toes". Those who were fortunate enough to secure seats were well rewarded, the production being one of the best seen in Montreal this season. New costumes, scenery and everything that goes to make a burlesque show were in evidence, sprightly singing and dancing by the pretty bevvy of girls making up the chorus being a feature attraction.

The comedy, of which there was plenty, was provided by Tom Smith and Ralph Austin, comedians of no mean ability, who are well known to the public. Many opportunities have been given this talented pair of comedians by the producers to introduce original witticisms and funny situations, and all are highly appreciated.

* * *

The show is staged in two acts, with eight scenes, each displaying a wealth of color. Dainty Edna Nickerson sang and danced her way into the hearts of the audience quickly.

Featuring the performance is what might be termed the "Jazz Quintette," composed of five young men, who, judging from their actions; are thoroughly imbued with the proper "jazz" spirit, and able effectively to convey their feelings to the audience.

* * *

A specialty, given by Shea and Carroll, was well received and well acted, although Shea could cut a few of his rather spicy jokes without hurting his act in the slightest.

In former years burlesque houses have catered entirely to the male sex, but after a long up-hill fight the management of the Gayety now numbers among its regular patrons a large number of women, who attended yesterday's matinee in force.

"Twinkle Toes" leaves nothing to be desired to a lover of burlesque, and no doubt will draw well-crowded houses for the remainder of the week.

Impersonations Main Feature of Loew's Leading Act

The vaudeville offering at Loew's this week includes "The Mimic World of 1920," with a strong cast of pretty girls. A selection of songs and dances, also impersonations of the Dolly Sisters and other favorites of the musical comedy stage,are given by the members of the company. Owing to the baggage car containing the troupe's costumes being lost, the performance had to be rendered in the players' street costumes.

Other acts on the program were the Dailey Brothers, in a clever acrobatic and tumbling act, and Carter and Buddy, two clever dancers.

The feature picture-play is "Sand" with William S. Hart, in a new role, that of telegraph operator on a railroad, though he does not desert his old part of cowpuncher entirely and the play gives him plenty of opportunity to show some very clever horsemanship.

COX REPRESENTATIVE BEFORE COMMITTEE

CHICAGO, September 7.—The Senate Committee investigating presidential campaign expenditures reopened its sessions here today. E. H. Moore, personal representative of Governor Cox, and principal witness at today's hearing was prepared, he said, to give the committee "all leads" and information the Democratic candidate has concerning the Republican campaign fund.

Mr. Moore declared he was prepared to furnish the names of men who "could give the most minute details concerning the Republican fund raising plans."

CASUALTIES RESULT FROM EARTHQUAKE

ROME, Sept. 7.—Very marked earthquake shocks were reported this morning from points in Tuscany. Casualties had resulted, the reports stated, and the authorities have sent aid.

The points from which shocks were reported were Castelnuovo di Garfagnana, Pieve Fosciano, Castiglione di Garfagnana and Villa Collemandia, all in Tuscany.

A shock lasting about five seconds was felt at 7.55 o'clock this morning in Milan and Genoa, according to despatches from those cities.

MUSIC

How much more there is in making gramaphone records than meets the ear can be learned from a talk with Rosario Bourdon, the Montreal musician, who is now allied with the Victor Company in New York as orchestral conductor and director. Mr. Bourdon, who is a step-son of J. B. Dubois, is spending holidays in Montreal, and has given an interview to The Star. He first came into prominence in the United States as a 'cellist; but has lately abandoned solo playing for the larger work of directing the playing and singing of other people.

Speaking of making records, Mr. Bourdon mentioned that it was necessary, in orchestral pieces, to re-arrange the music and the parts, as what would ordinarily sound all right might sound all wrong when reproduced through the mechanism of the machine. The position and grouping of the players is quite different to the positions taken by them when they play straight to an audience; and once the machine is started, they must take the greatest care that no extraneous sound, such as the scraping of a chair or a whispered word, mars the music. Then, after the music stops, the performers need to remain stiff and taut, scarcely daring to breathe, until the disk is finished, as any little movement would show in the reproduction as clearly as ever the notes did. Mr. Bourdon cited one instance in which the husband of a prima donna capped an aria she had sung with "bravos" and hand-clapping, thereby spoiling what would otherwise have been a beautiful reproduction of her singing.

Moreover, some notes seem to show more clearly than others. There is an E flat, for instance, that always stands out with a peculiarly harsh tone, worrying players and conductor. Often, too, in getting a song or orchestral piece to sound as it should, the music will be repeated before the horn until the nerves of performers are worn to fiddlestrings, and what makes everything harder is that there is no applause—where the artist would receive immediate recognition on the concert platform or in opera, he is rewarded in the Victor rooms with only a deadly, but necessary, silence.

"But it is all very interesting," says Mr. Bourdon.

AT THE MOVIES

The resourcefulness and quick action of the principal characters in "Stop, Thief!" shown at the New Grand this week, brought forth waves of merriment from a large Labor Day audience. Tom Moore and Hazel Daly as professional thieves determine upon matrimony and an honest life, but after the marriage license is secured they find themselves without funds to pay the minister. One last haul is decided upon and the pair, disguised as lady's maid and detective, are added to the Carr establishment during the wedding festivities of the elder daughter.

The thieves collect the booty, but are unable to get away with it, and are forced to hide the missing articles in the clothing of the members of the family and guests. When jewelry, bonds and money are produced in the search which follows, father, bride and bridegroom are convinced that they are the victims of kleptomania. A triple wedding concludes the play. The deftness and resourcefulness of the crooks when hard-pressed held the audience, and the many ridiculous situations provoked gales of laughter. The bill also includes a Christie comedy and a special musical program.

* * *

"The Battle of the Blood" might well be another title for "The Adorable Savage," a film from Ralph Stock's novel, which is showing at the Holman Theatre for the first part of this week, for it deals with the struggle which goes on in a girl's soul between her native and white blood. Love is the deciding factor in her ultimate decision to return to the land of civilization. Edith Roberts, as Marama Thurston, the daughter of an American copra planter in the Fiji Islands, plays a wonderful part. Her type of beauty is exactly suited to the film, in which she acts the part of a half-cast native.

* * *

The film is not without its imperfections. Fiji is shown as it may have been many years ago, and the modern wharves and docks which exist in two of the world's finest natural harbors, Suva and Livuka, have not been used,—most probably because the film was made many thousands of miles from Fiji. The native costumes and the huts of the inhabitants, too, resemble those of the Hawaiian islanders rather than of the southern Polynesian, and to those who have visited the scenes which the producer has intended to portray, many other inaccurate representations are apparent.

* * *

The picture in itself, however, is good and the plot well developed. One can hardly see Edith Roberts in a production of this kind without falling in love with her. She is well supported by an excellent cast, which includes Jack Perrin, as a youthful American, and Dick Cummings, who plays the part of the villian. The rest of the Holman program this week includes Eddie Polo in the "Vanishing Dagger," and a screamingly funny comedy.

SAYS HARVESTER ANTI-TRUST CASE MAY BE REVIVED

Federal Trade Commission Recommends Reopening Action

FARMERS' PROFITS

Notwithstanding Profiteering on Machinery Declared to Be Same

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.— (By Associated Press)—Declaring prices of farm implements in the United States to have been increased without warrant through "concerted action" of manufacturers and dealers, the Federal Trade Commission in a report made public last night recommends reopening of anti-trust proceedings against the International Harvester Company and institution of judicial proceedings against implement manufacturers and dealers.

The Commission declares that its investigation, which was ordered by the Senate, disclosed that in the period between 1914 and 1918 prices paid by farmers for implements advanced 73 per cent with the greater proportion of the increase coming in 1917 and 1918. This increase, the Commission asserts, was larger than warranted by the advances in the costs and expenses of the manufacturers and dealers, and resulted in unusually large profits.

FARMERS' PROFITS SAME.

Notwithstanding the increase farmers of the United States, according to the Commission's report, "were not prevented from making as much profit as before because the prices of farm products increased to an even greater extent."

The report adds that, however, that if present implement prices are maintained while prices of farm products, high implement costs "may well become a factor in preventing the farmer from making a fair profit."

"The partial dissolution of the International Harvester Company in 1918," declares the Commission's report, "did not change the dominating position of that company in the harvesting line, and will not do so while the McCormick and Deering plants and the steel business remain united under its control either directly or by common ownership of stock."

RECOMMEND SEPARATING PLANTS.

The report adds that it is necessary to separate the McCormick and Deering plants, "because, according to judicial decision they were illegally combined in 1902, and because it is these that have given the International Harvester Company its dominating position in the harvesting-machine line. By their volume of output, their low cost of production and reputation in the trade, the possession of these two plants and brands make effective competition from other manufacturers illusory."

The International Harvester Company in a statement signed by Cyrus H. McCormick, chairman of its board of directors, says:

"It should be noted that the report does not find prices or profits in the farm implement industry excessive, exorbitant or unreasonable, yet the Commission's figures on manufacturers profits greatly exceed this company's net earnings.

"The Commission might well have added in its report that if farmers were allowed the same rate of compensation per hour for labor of themselves, and of their families that the manufacturers pay for the production of farm implements, it would be evident that the farmer needs all of the advanced price on farm products to make a decent living. The advance in prices in both cases is due to causes beyond the farmers' or the manufacturers' control.

"The Harvester Company has never colluded with any competitor in fixing or maintaining prices."

HELP!

Shake-up Coming In Cincinnati

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 7.—Evidences of a shake-up and more strict measures of discipline on the Cincinnati team are seen in the asking of waivers on Pitcher Harry Sallee and the fining of Pitcher Walter Ruether and Catcher Nick Allen for failure to keep in condition to play. Manager Moran is determined to have better behaviour on his team and Cincinnati fans welcome signs of his determination.

Sallee, on whom waivers have been asked, attribute his failure to pitch successfully this year to the new rules which prohibit the use of rosin to dry his hands when pitching. This is his thirteenth season in the National League and unless some major club claims him, which is not likely, he will be made a free agent. Reuther, a great winner last year, has been going poorly of late.

Manager Moran had hoped to have Pitcher Lynn Brenton and Infielder Sammy Bohne, bought from Seattle, report at once, but Seattle does not want to let them go as long as it has a chance to win the Pacific Coast League pennant.

CONNAUGHT CUP GOES TO HAMILTON

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—Hamilton Westinghouse takes the Connaught Cup. After a series of drawn games they defeated Britannia, of Winnipeg, two goals to one, the odd goal being scored in overtime.

The cup final, played at Varsity Stadium, was the best game seen in Toronto for many seasons. Howell of Winnipeg, was injured early in the game and when overtime had to be played, he did not appear on the lineup and the Brits played a man short.

Winnipeg scored their goal well on in the first period, when a foul against Craig, of Westinghouse, was placed in the net by Stewart. The score was evened ten minutes after play began in the second half, when Gilvear bulged the Brits' net.

Although Thombs, left wing of Westinghouse, had now changed to centre, and was making all kinds of trouble for Winnipeg defence, Westinghouse attack had no luck around goal.

The deciding goal was scored by Gilvear soon after the overtime period began. In the first period play was mostly in Britannia's half of the field. They only broke away occasionally, but on such occasions they were dangerous. Coombs, in goal, was not called on to clear too often, which was probably lucky for Westinghouse, as Britannia's forwards were on edge and always dangerous when they approached. In this period McLean, of Winnipeg and McEwan, of Hamilton, collided, and McLean was somewhat knocked out, but after receiving attention was able to continue.

The teams:

Winnipeg—Herman, Wardrope, Cassidy, Jim Wilson, Joe Wilson, McLean, Watson, Robertson, Howell, Stewart and Don.

Hamilton—Coombs, McEwan, Craig, Ure, Burns, Gardiner, Gilvear, Jones, Pascoe, Pilkington and Thombs.

Referee: W. Murchie, Toronto.

MOTOR HOLIDAYS GREATLY ENJOYED OVER IN ENGLAND

August Has Been Huge Automobile Carnival With Many

TRUE ROAD TRAVEL

All Romance and None of the Horrors of Old Days

It has lately become the fashion to say of each holiday time that it is or has been a motor holiday. It is really a redundancy. Motoring is now so much a part of our lives, that to label this or that holiday as specially motoring is almost equivalent to speaking of holidays twenty years ago as railway holidays. Whether we drive 60 h.p. cars of the most fashionable type or pay our shillings to form a charabanc party, we all motor in one way or another, and as it is by far the best, easiest, and in some ways the cheapest form of transport for man and maid, it would be surprising if holidays were even contemplated without motoring entering largely into their scheme, says a motoring correspondent in the London times.

Yet the numbers of public and private cars on the roads this summer, from 40-seated coaches to side cars, are so immense that one may be forgiven for once more speaking of a motor holiday. August, 1920, has been nothing more nor less than one large motor carnival. I have lately been touring over the North of England, the middle and East Coast of Scotland, and down the Great North Road to the South Coast, a fairly comprehensive survey of Great Britain, totalling some 3,000 miles in four weeks' driving, and except in the more remote districts of Scotland and Cornwall I have never seen such an unending procession of motor vehicles on extended joy rides.

REAL JOY RIDES.

And what real joy rides they are! This year the most travel-loving nation in the world has realized what treasures of scenery, what heart-stirring associations, what health-giving pleasure is to be found on the broad highway, and instead of being segregated as in pre-motor days in numbers of definite areas like concentration camps, they flow over her friendly bosom, from Land's End to John o' Groat's, from Dover to the Lakes. The hotels are striking evidence of this new ebb and flow. People do not take rooms for more than a few days now.

Perhaps motoring is hardly the term to describe a journey of the new long-distance charabancs. It is true road travel in the style of the 18th century, with none of its horrors, and all of its romance. The latest public touring cars have a kind of enclosed rumble behind, seating half a dozen people who mistrust the optimism of the barometer, with a large "boot" below for luggage—and it is no mean luggage which is packed there. In two cars I saw the other day, which were on their way from the Midlands to Cornwall, there were several impressive steamer trunks heaped round with suit cases and gladstones of generous size. Clothes and comforts for a fortnight's wandering take up a deal of room, but there is no stint of space in the latest cars.

REGARDLESS OF WEATHER.

Whatever the weather may be, people are very wise to take their holidays on the road. There can be no holiday quite so satisfying as one which gives you for a change of air and scene a thousand square miles or more of any county you choose to visit. Trains tie you to their fixed and immovable routine and their unimaginative time tables. With the buying of a railway ticket you sell yourself to the dullest kind of travel.

It is not even real travel, any more than the crossing from Boulogne to Folkestone is a sea voyage. You must leave at 10:52 and passing stated localities arrive at 3:10—no earlier though it may be later. The thing is absurd and bears the same relation to the romance proper to all high adventure as does the drive in a taxi to the station. And if you miss the hide-bound contrivance, your day, your temper and possibly your holiday is put out of joint at once. A train is a commercial convenience not a vehicle of pleasure. The motor holidayist knows none of these horrors. He has, may be, his own troubles, but they are in themselves adventures and will in any case, whether they are mild or terrific, furnish very satisfactory topics of conversation long after the holiday is a thing of the rosy past. Who would gossip of the unexpected and disastrous punctuality of the 10:52, or tell sad tales of standing room only in the luggage van of the 4:30, or recall with dimmed eyes that five hours' wait on the platform at Swindon? If so dreadful a bore existed, he would soon expire by want of audience.

The world and his wife are on the road this year, and many a pair and party are covering their 500 or 1,000 miles a week. The new motorcycle tourists are among the boldest of them, a cycle and sidecar often carrying father, mother, and a youngster with luggage for all three precariously strapped on behind. The other day I was watching a string of cars of all kinds creeping painfully up a tremendous hill in the West Country, long, terribly steep, slimy with red mud, and thoroughly dangerous. In the midst of the uproarious procession was a motorcycle, whose sidecar held a mother and an infant of uncertain age, but obviously quite new within the last six months. It slumbered placidly in its mother's arms amid the terrific clamor of racing engines and the inevitable stoppage of the machine on the steepest pitch, and the subsequent agonies of restarting did not bring a twitch to its eyelids. On a gradient of 1 in 4 it slept on, impervious to scenes and sounds which would have sent its father into fits at the same age. The motor baby is a wonderful animal and a very remarkable feature of life on the roads this year. Yes, it is certainly a motor holiday when Young Hopeful comes, too.

The Orderly Sergeant

MILITARY NEWS AND VIEWS

Soldiers' Insurance.—In Saturday's Star I published in detail the salient facts about the Soldiers' Insurance scheme of the Government. I hardly think that those who secure and study that summary of the proposals for insurance need ask further questions, but if anyone simply must ask something more I will be only too glad to publish the correct answer. Any such inquiries should be sent in an envelope addressed: The Orderly Sergeant, Daily Star (Insurance). Correspondents should not write on both sides of the paper; they should not forget to sign legibly name and address; nor should they forget to inclose a stamped envelope if they want a private answer.

Above all things, "be brief."

I have also a very limited number of insurance application blanks which I will send to the first who write for them. Remember, please do not call for these forms, but write at once as above directed and inclose a self-addressed and stamped envelope.

Some further details.—Under the Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act, any returned soldier may obtain life insurance up to the amount of $5,000, without undergoing any medical examination whatever, and at rates substantially lower than those charged by ordinary Insurance Companies which operate on a commercial basis.

While the object of this legislation is primarily to provide insurance for those who cannot obtain it otherwise, the privileges of the act are open to all returned members of the Forces, provided they are living in Canada. Every one, male or female, who has served in the Canadian Forces and every one now resident in Canada, who has served in the Imperial or Allied Forces, provided he lived in Canada before the war, can take advantage of the act. Widows of soldiers, who have died after discharge from a cause not connected with war service, are also eligible to obtain insurance under the act. Widows of men who died on service are not included as they are provided for by pension.

The rates are so favorable and the terms of payment so easy that the scheme should appeal to all, even of those who can insure elsewhere, while for those whose physical condition has prevented them from doing so, it will be a god-send.

The object of the Government is to enable the returned man to provide for his immediate dependents. There is, therefore, no provisions for endowment policies, or for policy loans, and there are rather strict limitations placed on the persons who may be named as beneficiaries. The insurance money payable is unassignable and is not liable to the claims of creditors of the insured or the beneficiary.

An outstanding advantage of the scheme is that should the policy-holder become totally disabled he will at once be able to get the benefit of his insurance, which will be paid to him direct in annual instalments of one-twentieth of the amount of his policy. By taking out a $5,000 policy under the act, the returned man can, therefore, not only provide for his family in the event of his death, but can assure himself of an income of $20 a month for twenty years in the event of his meeting with an accident, or suffering an illness which leaves him totally incapacitated from earning a livelihood.

Policies may be obtained under the act for whole life, (premiums payable during the entire life time of the insured), and on the limited payment plan covering periods of ten, fifteen and twenty years, or by payment of a single premium. One-fifth of the amount of the policy will be paid in a lump sum and the balance applied at the option of the insured, either as a life annuity or as an annuity certain for five, ten, or fifteen years, or for life.

The entire cost of administration of the act is to be borne by the Government, and it has therefore been possible to reduce the premium rates to a minimum. The scheme is a most generous one and affords returned men an exceptional opportunity to provide for their dependents.

The premium rates are graduated according to the age of applicant for insurance. The maximum age at which insurance may be obtained is 65 years. Specimen monthly premium rates for applicants from 18 to 35, for $1,000 insurance, are:

Plan	Age 18	Age 25	Age 35
Whole Life	$1.04	$1.24	$1.70
Limited Payment (10 years) ...	2.48	2.86	3.58
Limited Payment (15 years) ...	1.82	2.10	2.68
Limited Payment (20 years) ...	1.54	1.76	2.26
To age 65	1.08	1.30	1.86
Single Premium	237.72	273.12	340.98

RECORD TOBACCO SALE IN LIVERPOOL

At the Army and Navy Canteen Board's tobacco sale conducted by the Wholesale Grocers' and Provision Merchants' Alliance in Liverpool recently enough cigarettes were sold in ten minutes to give every person in the city five, and in five hours enough were sold to give two cigarettes to every person in Great Britain.

The hammer fell during the day on 80,000,000 cigarettes, and in the first ten minutes of the sale 40,000,000 Turkish and Virginian were knocked down at prices ranging from 12s to 17s. 6d. per 1,000. The lots were, however, for export trade only.

The total value of the goods on sale was about £500,000.

THE ORDERLY ROOM MAIL BAG

The Orderly Sergeant, Daily Star:

Sir,—Respecting the inquiry in your columns of the 2nd inst., of the next-of-kin of 178022, Pte. Philip Edward Hanna, 87th Battalion, who was killed in action near Lens, August 15, 1917, the following appears on my records:

With all good wishes for the continued success of your popular and educational columns in Military matters,

S. Whittick

OIL REPLACING COAL ON VESSELS

Everyone who knows anything of the conditions prevailing in the stokehold of an ordinary steamship will welcome the enterprise of British shipping companies in converting their system of firing from coal to oil.

A lead has been given among the ocean greyhounds by the conversion of the Aquitania and the Olympic. Burners are arranged to spray heated oil under pressure into the boilers, and the mechanism is so simple and reliable that one man can look after twelve burners. In comfort and cleanliness there is no comparison between the two systems, and there are many other advantages connected with economy, convenience, and saving in space.

Twenty-five million feet of lumber, in round figures, bought by British buyers during two weeks, is stored at various points along the railway lines of Nova Scotia and cannot be shipped owing to the great scarcity of bottoms. This lumber will shortly be gathered in Halifax and stored here until vessels can be secured to carry it to Britain.

Electrical Fixture Prices

A fixture at 7.50 may be cheaper than the very same quality and make of fixture at 5.00.

If the one at 7.50 has the sockets, the holders, the lamps and the wire in it, the price is much better than the 5.00 one which hasn't the fittings.
