Cooper was fatally cut with a knife.

The Prince of Wales is reported as saying that to begin such reforms as the Nihilists wish, the Czar must first dismiss thousands of dependents. Every one thus dismissed would became an enemy quite as dangerous as individual Nihilists. Even Nihilists themselves do not know the difficulties of the Czar's position, desirous as he is of promoting the interests of the empire and the people.

ANOTHER LAKE DISASTER.

CHICAGO, September 18.—There is no doubt but that the schooner "D. A. Van Valkenberg" foundered on Thursday night on Lake Michigan, and all hands were lost except Thomas Brennan. The crew consisted of Captain A. Keith, first mate, second mate R. Keith, and seamen Hennessy, Curtis, Brennan and an unknown man. The vessel struck the rocks. The crew took to the boat, which capsized. The vessel left here on Tuesday for Buffalo with 38,000 bushels of corn. Vessel and cargo valued at $33,000.

THE METHODIST CONFERENCE.

LONDON, September 17.—Bishop Paine, of Baltimore, presided at the Methodist Ecumenical Conference to-day. A resolution condemning the opium traffic with an addendum calling on the Government to deliver the country from the guilt of supporting it, was passed. Bishop Peck strongly advocated both resolution and addendum. Rev. J. Green, of the Southern Church, read a paper on the missionary work of Methodism abroad. Upon suggestion for a missionary conference to obviate rivalry and confusion between different Methodist bodies in the work of conversion, Mr. Reid, an American, said he had only been able to find one case of this kind. It should not go forth that there were dissensions.

SCENE IN THE FRENCH CABINET.

Accusations and Recriminations—Threatened Resignation of the Minister of War.

PARIS, September 18.—There was a stormy scene in the Cabinet Council yesterday. Accusation and recrimination were freely exchanged. In consequence of the attack on M. Farre, Minister of War, by M. Constans, Minister of the Interior, and by the press on the circular of the chief of the staff, directing an increase of the strength of battalions, M. Farre offered to resign, but as his resignation would entail the disruption of the Ministry, he reconsidered the matter, and it was decided that he should publish a vindication of his policy. M. Roustan, French Minister to Tunis, told the Council that the deadlock in Africa was due to their vacillation. Tunis should have been occupied to impress the Arabs. The circular referred to retains in actual service soldiers enrolled in 1876, contrary to the assurances of prefects on the eve of the late elections and to the financial law. M. Farre's colleagues advised the withdrawal of the circular, owing to public indignation, but M. Farre declined. M. Roustan told the Cabinet Council that 25,000 men would be wanted for the rest of the year to crush the insurrection. Tricky should be induced to abdicate, and Taib Bey should succeed him.

LAND LEAGUE CONVENTION.

The Land Act to be Tested, Not Used—Union Between the Laborers and the League—Hot Work for the Government—The Queen Abused.

DUBLIN, September 17.—Mr. Dawson, member of Parliament and Lord Mayor elect of Dublin, was present in the convention yesterday. Mr. Parnell intimated that the League would add to the fourth resolution a proviso that the money expended for law costs in test cases would be taken from that collected in Ireland, not from that collected in America. They proposed to test the Act, not to use it. He believed the Act would not stand the test. If it should they would be justified in whatever stand they took if they adopted the watchword "No rent" or assumed any other attitude. (Cheers.) It might very soon be their duty to assemble again. Mr. Dillon Egan, an American delegate, said the American-Irish acquiesced in the proposition that the Land Act should be tested, but he was certain that in the test it would fail. The resolution authorizing the Land League to select test cases to bring before the Land Court, provided no American money be employed, was carried. About a dozen delegates opposed the resolution, one exclaiming, "The English rule still." The fifth and sixth resolutions were then unanimously adopted. Mr. Justin McCarthy read a letter from Mr. Brennan to Mr. Parnell stating that the "suspects" in Kilmainham jail greet the convention, and say if the will of the country favors the policy communicated in the telegrams from the American branches of the Land League they desire that no consideration for their position should influence the decision of the convention. Loud cheers followed the reading. Mr. Parnell said the resolutions affecting the laborers would be taken up on Saturday.

Parnell's speech yesterday, in which he said they proposed to test the Land Act, not to use it, was a surprise. It seems to have been made because he became aware that there was a considerable undercurrent of discontent against the fourth resolution, the extremists fearing it would be interpreted as an acceptance of the Act. Parnell took elaborate pains to remove this impression. The country continues very unsettled. The system of intimidation continues, and serious outrages on property are continually reported. There is a very bitter feeling between people and police. One of the latter was set upon and murdered by a mob here on Thursday night when arresting a drunken man.

In the Irish National Convention Mr. Sexton read a telegram stating that the Illinois Branch of the Land League had passed a resolution declaring that the Land Bill is a palpable travesty of the indefeasible right of Irish people to the ownership of the farms they cultivate. Mr. Parnell stated that it had been agreed that the labor delegates should choose three men, one of whom the Land League would place upon its Executive. The Land League would also accept certain rules made by the laborers for local branch Leagues.

The National Convention adopted a resolution recommending all members of the League to use Irish manufactures, and empowering branches of the League to adopt measures to encourage native industries. Mr. Corr, of Newark, N.J., made a violent speech against sanctioning the Land Bill.

In the resolution of sympathy with the laborers, all the speakers spoke to complete the union established between laborers and other parties of the League. Mr. Johnston, the founder and Secretary of the Irish Laborers' League, said the laborers wanted to show the world that they could best attain their ends by joining hands with Mr. Parnell. All efforts to separate them would be futile. He had no confidence in the Land Act, and if the Government did not release the suspects, hot work would be made for them. He used abusive language concerning the Queen. The resolution was unanimously adopted, and also a resolution urging farmers to set aside land for the use of laborers, charging them the same proportionate rent as they paid themselves; authorising the establishment of industrial and labor departments in the Central Office of the League, and adding to the Land League's title the words: "And labor and industrial union." Mr. Egan, an American, moved that Mr. Parnell visit America in the coming Winter to place Irish affairs in their true light, and that Mr. O'Connor accompany him. Mr. Parnell said he could not possibly leave Ireland for a lengthened period. Mr. O'Connor might shortly. The resolution was adopted. Mr. Redpath regretted that Mr. Parnell had pledged himself that American money would not be spent in the purchase of bullets. If the League abandoned its original principles the Irish in America would not cease contributions, but would transfer them from Mr. Parnell to "O'Donovan Rossa." After a congratulary address by Mr. Parnell the Convention closed.

The Pall Mall Gazette says the significance of the fact that the Irish Convention has decided to give the Land Act a trial is not obscured by the passing of a dozen resolutions in favor of national self-government or the delivery of innumerable fiery invectives against England.

LONDON, September 18.—A Dublin despatch says it is evident labor movements are to be used to create a formidable organization, which at a favorable moment could be used to extort from the fears of the English Ministry the restoration of the Irish Parliament.

INTERNATIONAL RAILWAY BRIDGE.

Location of the Site.

MORRISBURG, September 17.—The site for the International bridge in connection with the Morrisburg & Ottawa Railway was located to-day. Mr. Keefer, of Ottawa, assisted by an engineering staff, comprising Mr. Finlay, contractor; Mr. Soare, C.E., of Ottawa, accompanied by Messrs. Farlinger, Munroe and Kennedy, of Morrisburg, examined the different locations along the river, and after a close inspection and the taking of several measurements of the river, it was found that the point at Mr. James Doran's across to Ogden's Island was the most desirable site on the St. Lawrence for a bridge, it being eminently satisfactory in every respect. The distance from the north shore across deep water at that point is only 400 feet, then a shoal and not more than seven feet depth of water to Ogden's Island. The spot chosen will be particularly favorable to Morrisburg and Waddington, as offering great conveniences to these places. At Morrisburg, the station can be brought in south of the Grand Trunk Railway line in the centre of the town, touching Waddington, also in the heart of the village. The Engineers conveyed their thanks to Mr. Munroe for his assistance, he being thoroughly conversant with all the peculiarities of the river in this section. While the Engineers were engaged in this work two steamers passed, one up and the other down, thus giving them a favorable view of the channel, and enabling them to select a spot that would not interfere with navigation.

BUSH FIRES.

KINGSTON, September 17.—The bush fires along the line of the Kingston and Pembroke Railway and for some distance on each side of it are raging fiercely, and destroying a large amount of valuable property. Skead's saw mill, situated about eight miles from the Mississippi, was consumed, entailing a loss of some thousands of dollars. At the head of Sharbot Lake five families were burned out, and compelled to take to the woods further back for shelter. The surveyors of the Toronto & Ottawa Railway, who were camped in the vicinity of Sharbot Lake, were driven from their quarters and compelled to take to the water for safety from the flames. Many of the roads are rendered impassable by the fire.

Bush fires are still raging in the back country behind Belleville. Barns belonging to John Plato, John McNamara and R. King have been destroyed, and bridges near C. Neal burned.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD.

The Case Extremely Critical, but not Hopeless—Return of the Chills—The Patient Growing Weaker.

LONG BRANCH, September 17.—Dr. Boynton says the President's case is extremely critical, but not hopeless. For several weeks he has at times made satisfactory improvement, but in each instance the improvement has been followed by a relapse which left him on a lower plane of vitality than before. Dr. Bliss tonight said:—"The chill this morning lasted 10 minutes, and was what might be called quite a chill. The President suffered considerably from the effect. No vomiting occurred and the patient experienced a reaction immediately after the chill subsided, by the appearance of fever. At 9:30 the pulse was about 120, and had been higher.

MacVeagh telegraphed Lowell the following:—"The President passed a comparatively quiet and comfortable day, but this evening he had another chill of less duration than that of yesterday, but sufficient to increase the very great anxiety already existing. He has also been growing weaker, and his present condition excites the gravest apprehensions.

ELBERON, September 18, 6 p.m.—At the examination of the President at noon to-day the temperature was 102, pulse 120, respiration 24. At 11.30 a.m. he had a severe chill, lasting half an hour, followed by perspiration. Since noon examination there has been a gradual fall of temperature with diminished frequency of pulse and respiration, so that at the evening examination the temperature was 98, pulse 102, respiration 18. He has slept most of the time during the afternoon, and taken nourishment at proper intervals. The cough has been less frequent then usual.

7.35 p.m.—The President had another chill shortly after the evening dressing. It is stated that it was quite severe, and lasted about ten minutes.

LONG BRANCH, September 18.—Mrs. Garfield has received the following from Parnell:—"Delegates assembled in National Convention of Ireland charge me to convey to you their deepest sympathy, and hope that the life of the President may be spared to you and his country."

THE EGYPTIAN CRISIS.

The Khedive's Position—A Temporary Peace Only — A Convocation of Notables.

CAIRO, September 17.—I saw the Khedive to-day in his reception room, the Venetian mirrors of which on last Friday reflected the troops recruited from the cannibal tribes in Central Africa, who had come to demand a Parliament and Constitution. After asking earnestly for news of President Garfield's health His Highness said:—"The height of my ambition and all I live for is the happiness and prosperity of all the people in Egypt, regardless of religion or of nationality. Since my accession I have taken as my model American civilization, which admits of no distinctions either of race or of religion. I have done all in my power to insure that those who live here may feel that they have a real home in Egypt. My task is beset with difficulties, which nobody outside this country can appreciate. With God's help, however, I shall succeed in overcoming them. Araby Bey has personally assured me of his loyalty." The Panislamist journal, the Hadjar, is suppressed. The real feeling here is hostile to the Europeans. The present arrangements only tend to fan the smouldering discontent. England will not back her threats with a military force. France is sulky. The Turks win. Prince Bismarck applauds. Consuls Wolff and Camanos are wide awake to American interests.

LONDON, September 18.—The Observer's Cairo correspondent says:—Colvin, the British Comptroller, is not very hopeful relative to the state of affairs there. It is feared in the best informed circles that the present arrangement is only a sort of armistice, and that the army is receiving encouragement from Constantinople.

Leading natives throughout the country are petitioning for a convocation of Notables. This was one of the demands of the Colonels. Cherif Pasha favors the scheme. It is stated that he intends voluntarily to grant what he considers the fair claims of the army. He will then arrange for the removal of regiments from Cairo.

THE FRENCH IN AFRICA.

Seriousness of the Situation—Conspiracy to Massacre Europeans Frustrated.

LONDON, September 17.—A Paris correspondent states that the public are becoming alive to the nature of the situation in Tunis, the seriousness of which is shown by the order of the chief of the staff that the strength of all battalions sent to Africa be 600. This, it is estimated, will cost from twenty to thirty million francs. Semi-official telegrams are distrusted, even Republican journals expressing distrust of General Logerot's ability to grasp the situation. It is also stated that he is hampered by instructions from home. Accounts of operations are conflicting. It is reported that the selection of the route for the advance on Mairman via Zaghouan led the French into a rough and difficult country, where water was scarce, whereas they might have found a better route had they advanced from Susa. Because of the scarcity of water, General Subatier's column advancing to the aid of Zaghouan was unable to effect anything beyond an indecisive skirmish. The French loss was not heavy, and generally they have a nominal advantage, but nothing to awe native resistance. General Correard, whose force was intended to co-operate with Subatier, is unable to make progress. French papers fear that, through general aimlessness, operations may become a serious disaster through the force being cut off in the interior. Meanwhile the state of affairs in Algeria is threatening. It is said that a conspiracy to massacre Europeans was narrowly frustrated by the recent arrests of Algerian Cairds.

THE IRISH TROUBLES.

Land Meeting—Traversers Released—Arrival of Mr. Forster.

GLONAKILTY, September 18.—Ten thousand people were at the land meeting to-day. Resolutions were passed affirming the principles of the League convention, and pledging those present to continue the movement until landlords were abolished.

DUBLIN, September 18.—Sheridan, one of the traversers jailed under the Coercion Act, has been released.

Mr. Parnell has gone to his residence in County Wicklow. Mr. Forster, Chief Secretary, has arrived in Dublin. He was not recognized by the few persons at the railway station, and no demonstration took place. John Givan and Thomas A. Dickson, members of Parliament, who preceded Mr. Forster to Dublin, have had an interview with him at the Castle for the purpose of urging the release of the "suspects" and Davitt. Mr. Forster said he was unable at present to give an opinion on the matter, but that it would receive his careful consideration, and that an official answer would be given early in the week.

CRIME IN CENTRAL AMERICA.

A Melancholy Record of Murder and Assassination in Santander.

PANAMA, Sept. 17.—La Ruz, of Bogota, of August 12th, gives a melancholy record of crime in the State of Santander. The list includes the assassination of Don Pedro Elias Mantilla, a distinguished politician; Mr. Ariza, a merchant of Bucaramanga; in Salazar it appears all the members of a jury which had convicted a man of a crime, for which he was condemned to six years in prison, were murdered; the Departmental Chief of Ocana and his Secretary are also said to have been killed during an election emeute. So the dismal record runs. The murder of Mr. Ariza was effected in a peculiarly original and diabolical manner. In the door-lock of his store dynamite was so placed as arranged that on putting in the key to unlock the door an explosion occurred, which put a sudden end to a useful life. At the same time a Santander paper states that Senor Mantilla was killed by some of his associates in quina speculations, on account of differences in settlements and divisions of profits.

TRADES UNION CONGRESS.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Previous to the closing of the Trades' Union Congress to-day a letter from the American Minister Mr. Lowell was read, thanking the Congress for the friendly and sympathetic feeling it had expressed relative to President Garfield. A resolution seconded by Birtwisple, Secretary of the Operative Cotton Spinners' Association, was passed, calling on Parliament for an act strictly prohibiting commercial corners.

THE TROY CITIZENS' CORPS.

How the "Gallant Sixth" Intend to Entertain Their Invited Guests.

The Sixth Fusiliers, commanded by Lieut.-Col. Robt. Gardner, who are to be the hosts of the Troy Citizens' Corps during their visit to Montreal, have completed all of their arrangements for making the stay of their American brethren-in-arms in the city as enjoyable as possible. On the arrival of the visiting corps at the Bonaventure depot at 1.30 p.m. on Monday, it will be met by the Sixth Fusiliers and the Montreal Field Battery, Col. Stevenson's, and escorted to its quarters at the Windsor Hotel. On Tuesday morning the Sixth have arranged to give their guests a trip down the Rapids on the "Beauharnois," and afterwards a visit will be paid to the SS. "Parisian." In the afternoon the corps will furnish the guard of honour to His Excellency the Lieut.-Governor on the occasion of his formally opening the Exhibition. They will also give an exhibition of their drill on the Exhibition Grounds. The visitors will leave the city for home at 3 p.m. Wednesday. The visiting party will number in all 190, 100 being members of the corps, 20 of the Old Guard, 25 honorary members and 20 invited guests, and a band of twenty-five. Among the invited guests will be General J. B. Carr and staff of the 3rd Division N.G.S.N.Y.; Asst.-Adjt. General McCann, of the State of New York, and General Stonehouse. The visiting corps is under the command of Major Ed. N. Green. The Sixth have decided to send a deputation as far as Rouse's Point to welcome their visitors.

A Perilous Adventure.

Capt. Smith of the steamer "Prince Arthur" noticed, as his vessel was coming down the current at the Victoria Bridge about dusk Friday evening, a gate floating down the river, on which were two children, a boy and girl. He was unable to come to and send out a boat to their assistance owing to the rapid current, but immediately on his arrival in port he communicated with the Water Police authorities, and Sergt. Nourie immediately despatched a man to Hochelaga to, if possible, save the children. Before the constable arrived, however, the children had been rescued from their perilous position by Capt. Denault, of a barge lying at Longueuil, who saw the gate on which the children were clinging floating past his vessel and put out in a boat to their assistance. They were brought to the city and were taken in charge by Mr. St. Hilaire, of Dufresne street. It appears that the children, who are the son and daughter of the toll-gate keeper at La Tortue, were playing on an old gate which had been thrown into the river, and were carried away by the current. The distance over which the children travelled on their crazy craft is not less than nine miles, and all down treacherous currents.

Important Legal Action.

Mr. J. H. R. Molson through his counsel, Mr. R. A. Ramsay, has taken an action against the Hon. T. R. Ross, Minister of Railways, Mr. Peterson, the engineer of the Q. M. O. & O. R. R. and Mr. Beemer to set aside the notice of the expropriation of his property as not sufficient. The land in question about to be expropriated is for railway purposes, and Mr. Molson claims that the time of notice has been too short, hence the action to set is aside.

Special Notice.

The new "Science of Life" far surpasses all previous editions of this great work. Embossed cloth covers, full gilt, contains a fine medallion engraving of the author, with commendatory resolutions of the National medical Association engraved on steel. Read the advertisement in another column.

A CONCEDED fact is that the Boston One-price Clothing Store is certainly not to be surpassed in their efforts to make our city as attractive and profitable as possible to strangers visiting Montreal during the coming Exhibition, as they have decided to continue their cheap sale for two weeks longer.

THE FLOOD.

Not Noah's, but one equally as disastrous as far as it went, as they know in Minnesota.

Lucy Fanchen, standing in her brother-in-law's door-way, looking out over the snow at the figure of a man who had just turned and waved his big hat to her, had no idea it was coming. Her black eyes were bright and her dark face warm with rich color.

"Lucy," called her sister from the little bed-room, "who was the man at the door?"

"Charlie Rosecoe," said Lucy, defiantly. "What is it to you, Colomb?"

"What is it to me! I'll teach you, miss; when Peter comes you shall go home and marry Joe Alm, as you have been told. You're not a Yankee girl, if you have been to their school, and you shall do as you are told. I'll ask old Gautiere to go for father Chevalier when he comes into the house."

"I don't care," said Lucy, still more defiantly; "you may get a dozen priests, if you like, I'll not marry Jo Alm, if he has a thousand cattle. Charlie is better with nothing."

"So foolish you talk! What do you know? You are to listen to what is told you, and you are not to talk alone with men at the door; it is not decent. You should go back to France, miss, and learn manners, and not to talk of your priests so disrespectfully. Fix the fire and come and take the baby, and let not Charlie Rosecoe come here once more."

Lucy filled the stove with corn. The railroads had brought but little wood yet, and that was so dear they still used corn, as they had done during the blockade. When she had done that she took the baby and sat by the window, rocking it and looking out on the snow where Charlie had passed out of sight. Old Gautiere had come in from the barn, where he had been to take care of the cattle and horses, and Colomb was telling him through the open bedroom door, of Lucy's rebellion. The old man muttered and Colomb scolded, but Lucy only looked more rebellious and defiant than ever, and gave them a sharp answer now and then, tossing her black braids about with every scornful movement of her coquettish head. The old man mumbled and muttered about the black night and that some one had told him the river was rising above there, but Lucy paid no attention to his words, and after once more renewing the fire, lay down on the lounge near the door of her sister's room, ready to answer any call during the night.

Sometime in the night, she did not know how long she had been asleep, she was awakened by a terrible crashing and grinding about the house. She could not tell what it meant; she had never heard anything like it. Colomb was screaming, and old Gautiere stood on the stairs, half-dressed and wholly terror stricken, muttering about the river.

The water began to pour in under the door, and almost while Lucy looked it rose ankle deep. She rushed to her sister's bed, and called to the old man. She had bound many an acre of wheat, and her arms were not weak, and with the help the old man could give her they dragged off the bed with her sister and the baby upon it, and by much pulling and pushing got them up the narrow stairway.

The grinding and crashing continued; they could hardly hear each other speak, and the water rose rapidly. Lucy could see it rising higher and higher on the stairs. She had hurried back and snatched the lamp from the table as soon as Colomb was safe up stairs. She had to wade through water to do it, and noticed that even then it was as high as the chair seats and was putting out the fire. She watched the water as it crept step by step up those stairs, and soon saw they would not be safe there. The only place of escape left was the attic, and that was a very small and low one; but they must take refuge there. She set her wits to work to plan a way to reach it. The chamber was unfinished; only a few loose boards lay on the beams overhead. Old Gautiere's bed stood near, and an old rickety table beside it. She placed the table on the bed and got the old man up on the beams; then she reached up bed clothes and a feather bed, and directed him to arrange a bed on the loose boards; finally she lifted Colomb till she had her where the old man could take hold of the quilts about her and pull her up.

They were not a minute too soon, for just as she reached up the baby and prepared to swing herself up from the old table, there came another and louder crash, the house rocked to and fro for a minute, the lamp went down with a crash, there was a rush and sweep of water, and they felt they were moving off. Colomb was shrieking and the old man fairly howling in terror. Lucy put her hand down between the beams below them; it struck into the water. It was as high as that then; it would soon be over at that rate. She thought of Charlie: where was he? He had gone straight on down the valley: he would be drowned. She cried out at that for the first time, but just then the house surged to one side and Colomb shrieked, and they all huddled down together in the darkness.

On and on they went, the house swinging to and fro in the current, the water dashing and splashing about, and the ice grinding and crashing outside. The old man mumbled his prayers and Colomb repeated hers, shrieking out now and then to some saint for mercy, or calling loudly on Lucy to stay near her. How long this lasted they could not tell, but after what seemed to them a life-time the house stood still. Where they were they did not know, but Lucy, digging open a little crack in the gable, could see cakes of ice all about, and beyond that the river running furiously by. A church was floating along with the current, and above all the grinding of the ice and rush of the water, she could hear the awful tolling of its bell. Down on the cakes of ice stood Colomb's best black cow, chewing her cud as if she were safe at home in her stall.

The hours passed on drearily enough with no food, no fire, no light, only the darkness and noise. It was day now, Lucy could see that, but the little attic was still dark. But it was some consolation to know they were standing still, and no longer in that crushing, crashing mass. Lucy widened the crack in the gable as the day passed on, and reported what she saw. A lot of wood went by out in the river—wood that had been placed on the river bank for the use of steamboats when the river opened. She knew what it was well enough, for she had seen some of the neighbors burning a part of it during the blockade. Trees went by, and pieces of houses, and a dead body rolled over and showed her its white, rigid face. She would not look again after that.

Night settled down at last, and that was worse than day; it was pleasant to know there was light outside even if they could not see it. Lucy did not sleep, the others slept a little, waking with frightened cries that made the night hideous. She was fearful lest they should start again and the house go to pieces in the mass of ice, but it stood firm, and then she began to fear they must stay there and starve. Perhaps the ice had frozen hard enough to allow her to get to the shore somewhere, for though the river was open, it seemed frozen solid where they were, which probably was not really the river, only where it had overflowed, and she resolved to try and get out in the morning.

When the first streak of light was visible, she began her work, but having nothing but her hands she was giving up in despair, when Colomb cried out that she heard voices. They listened. Surely there were voices, help had come. They shouted to let the rescuers know they were there and alive, but the voices were growing fainter and fainter: evidently they had concluded that no one was there and were going away. With all their united voices they called again and Lucy looked out through her little opening in the wall and saw them, two men, and one of them was—yes, it was Charlie Roscoe. She put her mouth to the opening and called with all her might: "Charlie, oh, Charlie! come back! we're here!" Then she looked again and saw they had turned and were running back.

"They're coming, they're coming!" she cried to Colomb; "it's Charlie, he'll save us"—but Colomb had fainted.

The men were not long in making an opening in the roof, for they were prepared with their axes for just such emergencies, having been out at work all night. They carried Colomb, wrapped in the bed clothes, across the ice to their boat, and Lucy led old Gautiere, trembling with fear and weakness, to the same place. They shouted in [illegible] but Lucy soon found work enough to keep her warm in helping the men to pull the boat against the strong current. Cakes of ice came rushing down, almost upsetting them at times, and long timbers swung around perilously near the boat as they went dashing down the river. Lucy asked Charlie where they were, and how far they had come. Below Vane, he told her, and they had come fifteen miles. Fifteen miles in a rocking, surging house, among those enormous cakes of ice—she shivered again at her rowing.

"Do you know that place?" asked Charlie. Lucy looked and saw a solitary house, standing amid enormous cakes of ice, so black from mud and sand covering them and contained in them that they looked more like cakes of black lava than ice. That was like no place she had ever seen.

"That is Glenn Island," said Charlie. She looked again, she could not believe it. Glenn Island was a pretty little town; she and Charlie had gone to school there, and it had churches, stores, schools and houses of plenty. It could not be.

"There is the railroad," continued Charlie, as they got back nearer their own home, or what had been home. Lucy could only see a vast sea stretching out on every hand, with a swift current in the centre and blocks of ice and mud here and there in every direction. Sometimes there was the roof of a house or barn, and a few cattle perched on the top of some straw stacks, or standing in the water half way up to their backs, the ice frozen so thickly about them they could not move. She could see no signs of the railroad; if it was where Charlie pointed, it was buried under tons of ice.

"Do you know this farm?" asked Charlie again.

Lucy looked and saw acres of land plunging into the river. Dead bodies of cattle lay here and there, caught among the cakes of ice, and a part of the harvester whirled by them in the water. No, she had never seen it, she was sure.

"That is Jo Alm's," said Charlie.

She caught her breath and looked again. All those broad acres and barns and horses and cattle, that her sister had talked of so often, gone. As she looked, she caught sight of a man wedged in between two large cakes of ice not far from them.

"There's a man, Charlie," she said under her breath, for the sight of him had sent a horror to her.

"It's Jo," cried Charlie, as the boat swung around so they could see his face, "and he's dead."

Colomb cried out at that and begged them not to stop, and indeed they could not in that swift river. How terrible it all seemed as they went on. Far off, the bluffs, like the banks of the sea, in the centre of which was their struggling boat, on every side roofs of churches, houses, barns, or wrecks of them all. The comfortable farms, that the year before had been covered with wheat, buried in water and ice, some half washed into the river, and many covered with a deposit of sand that had ruined them for years, at least. Cattle, horses, reapers, mowers, everything gone, and sometimes the owners, too, like poor Jo. Great trees were torn up by the roots, or cut off clean and smooth, some stripped of their bark, their large trunks seeming half human as they lay there ruined and helpless.

One was still standing, and perched in its branches were three women whom Lucy recognized as her former neighbors, Mrs. Ole Oleson, Mrs. Stark Starkson and Mrs. Peterson. Each had a babe in her arms and all called loudly for help. The men brought the boat as near as possible to them, and promised to send them help at once, but their boat was full. The women begged piteously. They had all got together in one house, they said, and when that was going had climbed into this tree and had been there all night and were so cold. Colomb knew their husbands were with Peter after wood, but she asked where Mrs. Oleson's other children were, and said they were in the River. Sarah slipped down into the water when they tried to get up in the tree, and Hans had dropped off in the night when she had fallen asleep just a minute.

Farther on Charlie pointed out a house standing on higher land than the others, where he told Lucy a family were upstairs, waiting to be taken off if need be, but allowing others in more danger to go first, and near by a man had lain in another house with both hands and feet frozen so badly the doctors were going to amputate them. At last they reached their destination, the great elevator where the owner, who had been rich the day before but was now a poor man, was doing all he could to make the people comfortable. They were soon among the other sufferers, some worse off than themselves, and the men who had brought them only waited to take a little food, then started out again with others.

Day after day and week after week, the flood continued. Skiffs and yawls were hastily built and parties of rescuers were out continually. One day they brought in a family who had lived days on raw chickens, the fowls having been driven to the house by fright; and another day it was two old ladies who had lived more than a week in their barn. Little children, only half dressed and consequently half frozen, were brought from all sorts of strange perches and their rescuers hae many a narrow escape while trying to save them. Huge barricades of ice, sometimes 30 feet high, must be crossed, and again swift, open currents and sometimes thin ice, on which planks were laid to make it more secure, or the boats were dragged across to reach another open place. Day after day, they brought them in, taking 60 persons from the roof of one large house and picking up others here and there, all half frozen and half starved and wholly destitute. The owner of the elevator drew up by means of pulleys a few cattle that had been saved, slaughtering them on one of the upper floors and feeding the people. They had no lights, for the kerosene and even the candles had given out everywhere the boats could reach, but they bore that quite patiently as long as they had some sort of food.

Peter returned with his neighbors, but came in a boat and their wood went on down the river. Neither he nor Colomb said a word more against Charlie's love making, though they saw it was progressing in the intervals he had from his work in the boats, and even old Gautiere could not forget that Charlie saved his life, and if he muttered it was only to praise him.

And Lucy and Charlie think the flood was not altogether without its advantages.—Springfield Republican.

The Manufacture of Salt in the United States.

The preliminary report of Special Census Agent W. L. Rowland on the salt industry of the United States, shows that the salt product has increased from 12,717,198 bushels in 1860 to 29,800,298 bushels in 1880. On this yield of salt, 888,968 bushels came from sea or bay water by solar evaporation, and 944,158 bushels from inland lakes or natural deposits from the same process. The amounts produced by artificial heat from subterranean brines were 8,853,821 bushels by kettle or pan process, and 16,115,351 bushels by steam evaporation process. Fifteen States and Territories have salt works, namely: California, Florida, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Nevada, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, Utah, Virginia and West Virginia. Michigan leads with 12,425,885 bushels; New York produced 8,748,203 bushels; West Virginia, 2,679,438; Ohio, 2,650,301; California, 884,443; Pennsylvania, 851,450; Utah, 483,800; Virginia, 425,895; Louisiana, 312,000; Nevada, 182,408. The other States named produced only small amounts. The total value of the salt product of the entire country during the census year was $4,817,636. In California, Florida and Massachussetts salt is made from sea water; in Louisiana rock salt is mined and ground. The salt industry employed capital to the amount of $8,225,740, and over 5,000 hands, whose wages amounted to $1,256,113. The wells number 539. The deepest wells are in West Virginia where they average 1,043 feet. The Ohio wells average 902 feet; Pennsylvania 884 feet; Michigan, 831 feet; Kentucky, 560 feet; New York, 324 feet; Virginia, 282 feet. The rest are shallow.—Scientific American.

On their Wedding Tour.

"To watch the newly-married couples who travel is one of the compensations of our arduous life," said an old hotel clerk, the other day.

"How can you tell whether they are newly-married or not?" inquired a reporter of The New York Sun, to whom this remark was addressed.

"Tell them?" ejaculated the clerk; "I can pick them out as easily as if they carried signs, 'We are just married.'"

"Yes; but how?"

"Well, in the first place, they are always most abundant in the Autumn and Winter. I don't know why it is, but such is the fact. One of the signs of a newly-married couple is their spick and span new clothes. Somehow, when people get married, they generally get as many new clothes as possible. The bride and groom have new hats, and new trunks and new dusters. Then, again, they spend money more freely. When a man is in his honeymoon, he generally feels as if he ought to be generous. He has a grateful sort of spirit, and throws his money around as if he wanted to show that the world has used him well. He has put by his money for the occasion, and is not afraid to spend it. He is specially anxious that the bride shall eat and drink of the best. He must have a room with a private parlor, and not up stairs very far, and with a good view. Sometimes he is a little chary of asking for these things, but when we suggest them, he always says, 'Yes.' Of course it is part of our business to suggest them. We consider that we have the same right to pluck a newly-married couple as an undertaker has to pluck bereaved relatives."

"Do they behave differently from other people?"

"I should—well, yes. The husband does not run off to the bar-room, or the billiard-room, as the old married men do. When the old married couple arrive, you may be certain that the first thing the husband does is to take a drink, or lounge about the billiard tables, telling his wife that he has some business to attend to."

"Are newly married people bashful?"

"That depends. The widowers and widows don't mind it, but the young people are a little coy. At Niagara Falls we had most of the new couples late in the season, when the regular boarders had left. I have seen as many as a dozen at a time file into the dining-room, trying to look as if they had not been married yesterday, but casting furtive glances about to see if they were suspected. The men were especially watchful, lest somebody should be ogling the brides. One day I thought we should have a fight in the dining-room. A strapping big fellow from the West, in a new suit of store clothes, sat down to the table with his bride, a buxom, brown-eyed beauty. She looked so fresh and rosy that she could not but attract attention, and she got it. Every gentleman in the room took more than one look at her, and she knew it. Of course she did not object. But the man began to get angry. He did not like to speak to the bride about it, because she was evidently not displeased. Finally he got up and walked to the nearest gentleman whom he had observed, and said:—

"'Look here, stranger, I'd like to know what you are staring at my wife for!'

"'Your wife! Allow me to congratulate you, my dear fellow. You have got the finest wife in the city,' said the gentleman addressed. 'The fact is, I thought she was your sister. Excuse me if I was rude; but if you don't want people to look at your wife, you really must never take her out in public. No offence meant, sir.'

"The bridegroom went back to his place, but he took good care at the next meal to put his wife with her face to the wall."

"Which do you think take to the new conditions most gracefully?"

"Women, by all odds. The men are always betraying themselves. They want to talk about it; they are full of the subject. Women are more artful, and have more adaptability to new circumstances. But, with all their arts, they can't deceive the old hotel clerk, and it is very seldom that we don't turn in a few dollars extra to the house on account of our knowledge."

"Another peculiarity of the newly-married couples who go to hotels," continued the clerk, "is that many of them live in the city. They always come equipped for a long journey. They have left the wedding guests with the announced intention of taking a long journey, conspicuously displaying, perhaps, their railroad tickets, and have been driven by way of the depot to a first-class hotel, previously selected. I knew one case where a bridal couple, to avoid detection, actually boarded a train and started apparently on a journey, but took at the next station a train back to the city, and stopped at a hotel a few blocks from home. Then the wedding guests were permitted to stay at the feast as long as they pleased, without disturbing anybody."

Dean Stanley's Will.

The will of the late Dean Stanley was proved on the 27th ultimo. The gross value of the estate is sworn at £84,291 6s. 2d., the net value being £83,948 2s. 1d. Mr. Edward Hugh Leycester Penrhyn, of East Sheen, Surrey, and Frances Jemima Drummond, wife of Mr. John Drummond, of Megginch Castle, are appointed executor and executrix and trustees. The late Dean's papers, manuscripts, and documents are bequeathed to the Rev. Hugh Pearson, Mr. Theodore Walrond, and Mr. George Grove, for disposal after consultation, if they think fit, with Professor Jowett, the Rev. Dr. Vaughan, and the Rev. G. G. Bradley (the new Dean of Westminster). Bequests and legacies are made to the Dean's two sisters, to other members of his own and his wife's family, to his servants and others, and various sums are bequeathed to charitable purposes. Among the bequests is the following: "To such of the unmarried daughters of the Lady Lucy Grant living at my decease as shall not have entered or become members of any religious order, house, or other establishment, Protestant or Roman Catholic, founded or established, or carried on for the reception of females or others, or known or reputed as such—the sum of four thousand pounds in equal shares, believing this to have been the wish of my dear wife." A sum of £3,000 is assigned in trust to the Dean and Chapter for "establishing or aiding a fund for the purpose of remunerating the guides who conduct strangers over Westminister Abbey, with the sole purpose of abolishing and putting an end to the payment of fees as at present made to such guides." In case Westminister Abbey shall cease to belong to the National Church as now by law established in England, "which, however," the late Dean adds, "I think is in the highest degree improbable," the fund thus set aside is to go to the Westminister Hospital.

The will is accompanied by a small memorandum book, about twenty leaves of which are occupied by written directions made at the instance of the late Dean, and signed by him as "correct" in 1876. The entries convey the wishes of the deceased as to the disposal of sundry property mostly of a private character, and including presents made by Her Majesty and the Prince of Wales to him and his late wife, Lady Augusta Stanley. The Bible "always used by the Dean" is set apart for Mr. Grove, and the books formerly belonging to Lady Augusta Stanley become the property of her nephews and nieces. It is stated that mementoes of the late Dean Stanley have been forwarded to various members of the Royal family. Her majesty has received a splendid case of birds.—Pall Mall Gazette.

An Heroic Boy.

Every year on the occasion of the National Fetes the Belgian Government makes a public distribution of rewards to persons who have performed remarkable acts of courage in good causes. Among those who were rewarded the other day was a little boy of nine, whose exploit may be contrasted with the behavior of the people who allowed the little girl to be drowned at Kensington Gardens. Genin, playing in a field a few months ago, saw a little girl fall into the Sambre. Without knowing who the child was, he plunged into the river, and after some trouble saved her. The child turned out to be his own sister. Not content with having rescued her from death, Genin, like a good-hearted little boy, wanted to shield her from the punishment she had deserved by playing too near the river, contrary to her parent's orders. So he took the blame of her disobedience on himself and received a beating from his father. The little girl, however, could not bear to see him suffer in this way, and afterward told the whole truth, which was corroborated by the evidence of an eye-witness. The facts then became public, and young Genin was summoned to Brussels at the fetes to receive a national recompense. He was of course loudly cheered as he stepped up to the platform, and M. Rolin-Jacquemyns, the Home Minister, in pinning a medal to his breast, called him a little hero.—St. James's Gazette.

WINTRY BLASTS ARE SPECIALLY FRUITFUL of coughs and colds. Children who romp out of doors during the cold season are very subject to them, and no household where there are children should be unprovided with an effecual safeguard against lung disease. Such a one is Northrop & Lyman's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, a preparation in which the former ingredient possesses the utmost purity, and where its well-known pulmonic properties are increased by the admixture of the lime and soda salts. Of these the basis is phosphorus, an essential constituent of the brain, the muscles and the blood, and long recognized by physicians as a strengthening and fortifying agent of surpassing efficacy. The waste of bodily tissue consequent upon lung, chest, and throat complaints is promptly checked by this time-honored remedy, and the irritation of the breathing organs arrested and overcome by it. The article has been pronounced by physicians the best preparation of its class, and this professional verdict has found an echo in the grateful acknowledgments of many who, despairing of aid from any source, have nevertheless sought and found relief from it. Persons whose chest and lungs are weak should use it as a preventive. Asthma, coughs, colds, spitting of blood, bronchitis and laryngitis are promptly remedied by it, and it also possesses properties as a blood purifier very manifest in various types of scrofula. Prepared only by Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, Canada.

EPPS'S COCOA.
Grateful and Comforting.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Consumption Cured.
GRAND RAPIDS, May 24, 1880.
MR. JAMES I. FELLOWS,
St. John, N.B.
My Dear Sir,—In gratitude for the benefit received by he use of your "Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites," I do most cheerfully add my testimony to its wonderful effects in permanently raising me almost from the grave. For several years I have been a great sufferer. My lungs were affected, and I was completely run down by general debility, so that my life was despaired of by many of those who knew me here in Grand Rapids. I had the best medical advice, but it availed me nothing, and I kept getting worse and worse. At last, I was induced to try your Hypophosphites, and in doing so was pleased to notice that it gave me almost immediate relief. At the time I commenced using them I weighed about 120 pounds, and coughed continually; now (eight months later) I have gained my weight and over, and I hardly think there is a man in Grand Rapids enjoying better health. In concluding this rather long testimonial, allow me, Mr. Fellows, to congratulate you on your Hypophosphites, for I think it the greatest of all medicines, and, my friends as well as myself, that it saved me from a consumptive's grave. Yours gratefully,
J. E. LEONARD, of Leonard Bros'.,

STATE OF VERMONT.

An Act to Equalize Taxation.

No. 78, of the Acts of 1880.

It is hereby enacted, etc.:

Sec. 1. All taxable property shall be set in the list at one per cent. of its value in money, on the first day of April of the year in which the list is made. The listers shall appraise each item of such property at such sum as they would appraise the same in payment of a just debt due from a solvent debtor, having regard to the current value of such property and the sales thereof, other than auction sales, in the locality where it is situated.

Sec. 2. The Secretary of State shall annually, on or before the first day of March, furnish, at the expense of the State, to the several town and city clerks, blank inventories sufficient in number to meet the requirements of this act, and in the most convenient form, with suitable interrogatories, to contain, when filled, a full statement of all taxable property, real and personal, of each taxpayer in said town or city. Said blanks shall be so formulated by the Secretary of State as to require, under oath, from each person and corporation such full information as to each class and item of his taxable property, real and personal, as will enable the listers, after a personal examination of all visible property, to appraise all of such property at its true value in money. Said blank shall also contain an interrogatory for a statement of the amount of stocks, bonds, or other securities claimed to be exempt from taxation under the laws of this State or the United States, owned by or held for its or their benefit.

Sec. 3. Said blank inventories shall also contain, when filled, a statement of debts actually due from said taxpayers on the first day of April, to the amount of deduction claimed; and no deduction shall be made in the list of any person by reason of debts owing by him, unless such statement includes the name and place of residence of each person or firm to whom he is so indebted, and the amount so owing by him to each person or firm, nor on account of his being an endorser or surety for another; nor shall any deduction be allowed a taxpayer on account of a joint indebtedness, except to the amount which he would be obliged to pay if all the persons jointly bound were to pay equal parts of the debt. And from any deduction allowed by listers on account of debts there shall be deducted the amount of United States government bonds and other non-taxable securities owned by the taxpayer claiming such deduction, and all debts due him from solvent debtors.

Sec. 4. Said inventories shall also contain the following oath: "I, , of , do solemnly swear (or affirm) that the above is a full, true and correct list and description of all my taxable property, both real and personal, and all property which should be set in the list to me, and that I have set down only such debts as I am unconditionally bound to pay, to the amount of the deduction claimed, that my answers to these interrogatories are correct, and that I have not conveyed or disposed of any property or estate in any manner, or created any fictitious debt for the purpose of evading the provisions of law, or affecting the value and amount of my taxable estate, so help me God."

Sec. 5. The town clerk to whom such blanks are furnished shall, with the aid of the listers, distribute at the annual meeting of their respective towns one copy to each person liable to taxation in the town, who may be present at the meeting. And if any person so liable fails to receive such blank inventory, in the manner aforesaid, he shall, if he resides in the town, apply to and receive from the town clerk or listers a copy of such blank on or before the twentieth day of March.

Sec. 6. If any person liable to taxation in any town or city, or the principal officer of any corporation situated in any town or city, resides out of said town or city, the listers or assessors shall forward to such person or to the principal officer of such corporation, if known, by mail, a copy of the blank inventory. And such person or corporation shall procure and fill out such a blank inventory, and complete the same in all respects as required by this act, and return it to said listers or assessors on or before the twentieth day of April.

Sec. 7. In case of corporations, the officer on whom it is by law required that writs shall be served, shall procure a copy of the inventory, and such corporation shall fill out such inventory by its president or other principal officer. In case of property belonging to a trustee, estates of deceased persons and guardians, and of property or estates not in the care or possession of the owners, the inventory shall be procured and filled by the person to whom the property is by law taxable.

Sec. 8. Every person and the president or other principal officer of every corporation shall on the first day of April in each year fill up said blank, and make complete and full answers to all the interrogatories contained therein, and shall take and subscribe the oath contained in the inventory, and deliver said inventory to the listers or either of them, on demand. The listers, and all persons now by law authorized to administer oaths, are hereby qualified to administer said oath.

Sec. 9. The listers of each town shall, on the first day of April annually, proceed to take up such inventories and make such personal examination of all visible property as will enable them to appraise it at its true value in money. In the case of each inventory which, in the opinion of the listers, contains a full, true, and correct statement of all the items of property for which the person or corporation filling out such inventory is taxable, they shall make an appraisal of such property according to law, and complete the list of such person or corporation.

Sec. 10.—If a person or corporation wilfully omits to make, swear to, and deliver said inventory, or to answer any interrogatory therein, as by this act required, or make a false answer or statement therein, or if the listers have sufficient reason to believe that an inventory does not contain a full, true, and correct statement of the taxable property of the person or corporation filling out such inventory, according to the requirements of this act, then said listers shall ascertain, as best they can, the amount of the taxable property of such person or corporation, shall appraise the same at its value in money, and shall double the sum so obtained; and one per cent. of the amount obtained by doubling such sum shall be the list upon which the taxes of such person or corporation shall be assessed.

Sec. 11. If a taxpayer whose list has been made up by the listers under the provisions of the proceding section, appeals from the action of the listers to the selectmen, said selectmen shall have no power to grant him relief, if it appears to them that he has wilfully violated any of the provisions of this act.

Sec. 12. A person who wilfully swears falsely in violation of any of the provisions of this act, shall be guilty of perjury, and punished accordingly.

Sec. 13. Each lister before entering upon the duties of his office shall take and subscribe the following oath:

"I————, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will appraise all the personal and real property subject to taxation in the town of ————, so far as required by law, at its true value in money, and will set the same into the grand list of said town at one per cent. of its true value in money, and will faithfully discharge all the duties conferred upon me by law; so help me God."

And if the listers violate such oath they shall each be guilty of perjury and punished accordingly. The oath shall be filed in the town clerk's office.

Sec. 14. If a lister accepts the inventory of a person not made out and sworn to as provided in this act, or neglects or refuses to appraise and set in the list each item as described in each inventory filed up conformably to the provisions of this act, he shall, for each inventory so received, and for each such refusal or neglect, forfeit to the town or city where he resides the sum of two hundred dollars; and any taxpayer in such town, in the name of the town, may sue and recover such penalty, for the benefit of such town.

Sec. 15. The listers in each town shall arrange in alphabetical order the personal lists of all taxpayers, and lodge the same in the town clerk's office on or before the 25th day of April of each year, for the inspection of the taxpayers of such town.

Sec. 16. All real estate shall be appraised and set in the lists in 1881, by the listers, at its true value in money, on the first day of April in that year, and such appraisal shall be made in connection with the annual list and completed and filed at the same time as required by law for annual lists. No equalization of such appraisal by any equalizing board shall be required, and it shall be substituted for the last quadrennial appraisal, and continue in force in lieu thereof until the next quadrennial appraisal is made.

Sec. 17. In making the next and all succeeding quadrennial appraisals, listers shall conform strictly to the requirements of section one of this act.

Sec. 18. The Secretary of State shall cause to be printed upon the back of the blank inventories, this Act, and such other portions of the law relating to the making up of the grand list, as he may select.

Sec. 19. All Acts and part of Acts, inconsistent with this Act, are hereby repealed. The Secretary of State at the time of furnishing blank inventories to listers in towns shall also furnish them in sufficient number to the tax commissioners, for unorganized towns and gores; and such commissioners in taking the list shall be governed by all the provisions of this Act relating to listers in towns; and persons liable to pay taxes in such unorganized towns or gores shall be subject to the same duties and liabilities as are in this Act provided in case of taxpayers in towns.

Sec. 20. The provisions of this Act shall in no way be construed to apply to the taxation of deposits of savings banks, savings institutions, and trust companies, otherwise taxed.

Sec. 21. This Act shall take effect from its passage.

Approved Dec. 22, 1880.

LAW RELATING TO DEDUCTIONS.

There shall be deducted from the list of the personal property of each person the amount of all debts due from such person, over and above the sums due him from solvent debtors; provided always, that any person claiming a deduction on account of his debts, shall answer all such interrogatories, in regard to debts due or owing from him, as shall be propounded to him by the listers, as provided in section twenty-nine of this chapter.

Section 50, Chapter 88, General Statutes, page 524.

Reformed Episcopal Church Synod.

On Thursday evening the Synod of the Reformed Episcopal Church, in Canada, met in the basement of St. Bartholomew's Church at 8 o'clock. Present, nine delegates, the Rev. Mr. Luckly, Messrs. Mills and Horton, were unavoidably absent.

The Rev. Dr. Ussher occupied the chair, and opened the meeting with reading and prayer. The committee on credentials having reported the delegates were cordially welcomed to their seats by the chairman. The following resolution was read.

Resolution of the general Synod of the Reformed Episcopal Church in the United Kingdom, otherwise called the Reformed Church of England. 12th July, 1881:

"That this Synod hereby cheerfully, cordially and unanimously grant to the Synod of the Reformed Episcopal Church in Canada, otherwise known as the Reformed Church of England, full powers to revise the Prayer Book, Constitution and Canons of our Church for the Dominion of Canada, provided that nothing appear therein which shall be contrary to the Declaration of Principles of the Reformed Episcopal Church, adopted December 2nd, 1873, and reaffirmed at this present meeting of its general Synod.

"(Signed),
"B. HORACE WARD,
"Secretary."

The minutes of last meeting having been read and approved, the following resolution was moved by Mr. Middleton, seconded by Mr. Brown:

Resolved, That we gratefully acknowledge the true Christian liberty accorded by the General Synod of the Reformed Episcopal Church of England to the Reformed Episcopal Church in Canada, otherwise known as the Reformed Episcopal Church of England, and hitherto working under the Constitution and Canons, and using the prayer book of the said Church, to enjoy complete self-government, and while it looses us from the letter of the English law, and permits us to have our own Revision of the Prayer Book, also Constitution and Canons, thereby giving us that freedom requisite for the government of a Colonial Church, it ties us more closely in the spirit, as is becoming to the national relationship between Canada and the United Kingdom, daughters of the one great Empire.

Reports of the work of the several churches in Canada were most encouraging. Rev. Dr. Ussher was elected Bishop for Canada.

The report of the Committee on Revision followed, of which the following is a synopsis:—

An addition to Declaration of Principles. No. 2, Restoring the word concurring Episcopacy not being of Divine right.

The term Primate was abolished, and some changes in connection therewith made in the Preface.

In the order of Morning and Evening Service the rubric was altered to make it imperative to wear the Black Gown in the pulpit.

The necessary changes were made to suit the Dominion of Canada.

In the declaration of God's mercy the words absolution and absolveth were omitted. In the Apostles' Creed the clause "He descended into Hell" was left out, and the word Catholic changed to Universal. In the prayer for the clergy, all Ministers of the Gospel were substituted for bishops and curates. These, with a few minor alterations in the Litany and Communion service, closed the revision of the Prayer Book. The following resolution was then adopted:—That we, as the Reformed Episcopal Church of Canada, do continue to use the Prayer Book of the Reformed Episcopal Church, otherwise known as the Reformed Church of England, with such changes inserted therein as we have been led to vote upon and adopt at this Synod, and no further changes shall be made by this or any succeeding Synod until the revision of the Old Testament Scriptures have been placed before the public.

The Committee on Constitution and Canons reported, and several important changes were made as follows:

Canon 5, Title 1, Section 1.—This Church not being in sense a new Church, but the old Church of England Reformed, it is desirable that no stumbling blocks be placed in the way of our return to the Mother Church, should a scriptural revision of the Book of Common Prayer be made, thereby making such reunion possible and desirable;

Therefore, it is required that all Ministers from sister churches shall be received as members, and then ordained according to the Episcopalian form, Deacon and Presbyter, respectively, such ordination being distinctly understood to in no way signify the now validity of former orders, but simply to declare them uncanonical, and by this conferring, avoid a possible source of difficulty, and shall no way interfere with occasional pulpit exchanges.

This requirement is in support of decency and order. See Canon 6, Section 3, Title 1.

Such Presbyter shall produce his letter of orders from his former church, duly signed, and also such satisfactory evidence of his good standing and religious character, as well as the propriety of his motive in leaving the said church. He shall also give adequate proof by examination, if required, and competent testimonials of his literary and theological acquirements in accordance with Canon 4, Section 1, Title 1, and shall sign the declaration contained in Article 8 of the Constitution, together with the other printed forms. In the Appendix required by the Church, any minister of any Evangelical Episcopal Church who has been duly confirmed and ordained Deacon and Presbyter, and has made himself familiar with the services of the Church, shall not be reordained except he so desire it, but shall be received as directed by Canon 4, Section 1, Title 1, by depositing his letter dimissory.

The Synod was adjourned to meet again in Montreal the first Thursday in June.

PUBLIC OPINION.

SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE.

Major Leader.

To the Editor of THE STAR:

SIR,—Ireland gave a chivalrous soldier of fortune to history when young Leader, of Cork, first joined Her Majesty's Thirtieth Regiment. Good looking, athletic and a thorough Irishman, Leader carried with his presence the aspect of a man who was born for adventure. He had most of the failings and most of the virtues of his people. Open-hearted, generous and reckless, he was always ready to cross a break neck country, lend his last shilling to a friend, and then stand as much dunning as ever fell to the lot of Oliver Goldsmith or Lord French. When stationed at the Royal Barracks, Dublin, Leader used to drive his pair-in-hand, and went the pace as joyfully as if his ancestrial property had not just been sold in the Landed Estates Court, and he never appeared to realize the fact—that he was almost penniless, with little but his pay to keep him, and with the habits of extravagance which young Irishmen of good families too often contract to their own ruin. Gradually the crisis came. Leader got into the hands of the money-lenders; his rooms were stocked with wines of the choicest brands; he had his box at the opera, his four-in-hand for the Curragh races, and his hunters that would follow even the Gales of Blazers over a six-foot wall. But the end came. One day he was missing. No one knew where he had gone; but a letter to his commanding officer told the story—he had gone to France to join the army, and he succeeded. He paid all his private debts, with the money received for his commission, never paid the money-lenders a shilling, made presents to his friends of cases of champagne, wrote jocose letters to his brother officers, and left to commence the career of a Soldier of Fortune. I was one of the very few who knew he was going, for I admired the reckless, generous fellow who was far more sinned against than sinning. I did not meet Leader for five months, and I too went to France, when one day at the fight before Montbellard, where our regiment was drawn up in line of battle, and the shells were hopping around us, I saw a staff officer ride along the lines and heard him ask our Colonel, "Where are the Irish?" I knew the voice at once, and sure enough, it was Leader, who was attached to Bourbaki's staff, and as he jumped from his horse, there were two men who shook hands as heartily as ever two friends could. But we had to move to the front, and that meant parting, and so we bade each other good bye, with a stern promise that if we pulled through we would see each other again. For three days we kept hammering at Montbellard, fighting all the time, and then began that disastrous retreat toward the Swiss frontier. Hungry, in many cases shoeless, in all, wet and miserable, we huddled along the road for four or five days as hard as our weak and emaciated frames would carry us. Leader had pulled through and we were pushed under the walls of Bosoneau, and still I had not seen him. One day I obtained permission to enter the town and when near the gate I met a staff officer riding furiously towards the camp. It was Leader, carrying the news that Bourbaki had attempted to commit suicide. That was the last time I ever saw him. When the war was over he remained in the French army until the Carlist war broke out, and as his ardent spirit thirsted for military renown he went across the Spanish border and offered his services to the Young Pretender as he has been called. They were accepted and Leader was attached to the staff, having brought excellent testimonials from Bourbaki. All through the Carlist war Leader served with gallantry. He was present at eight or ten pitched battles, was wounded two or three times, and I have before told of his journey to Ireland in the vain endeavor to raise an Irish legion. He was rotten-egged in his native place and he returned to the service of Don Carlos and served with distinction throughout the remainder of the campaign. In France he won the Legion of Honor, under Don Carlos he won the Golden Fleece, and I heard of many stories of his bravery and his valour in action. At last the flag of the Pretender was lowered and Leader once more crossed into France, returned to Ireland but ever willing to sniff the battle from afar. He was still the same jovial, overgrown boy, but somewhat steadier and stronger and bronzed and bearded like the Pard. At last when the Russo-Turkish war broke out Leader was in London, and his friends persuaded him to turn his sword into a pen, and so he did, going to Turkey as one of the specials for the London Daily News. His writings bore no evidence of great literary merit, but they were evidently the work of a soldier, and his criticisms on the Turkish army were of considerable interest and value, but his time had come. He died of fever at Adrianople, and a year afterwards I visited the spot and found, on a small mound, in the Christian Cemetery, yet almost under the shadow of tall minarets, a little wooden cross, and I read on it the name of my friend.

"ELEGANT."

The History and Etymology of the Word Is the American use of it Correct?—An Interesting Letter by Mr. George Murray B. A. Oxon, on the Subject.

To the Editor of THE STAR:

SIR,—Allow me to add a few observations to to your short article on the word elegant, and also to the remarks of your correspondent, Mr. R. W. Boodle.

The Latin elegans (in some MSS. eligans) is probably (as we learn from Cicero) a collateral form of eligens, the present participle of eligo, I pick out or choose. In the ante-classical period elegans was used in a disparaging sense to denote a fastidious and luxurious person. In classical times it was applied to anyone who was choice, tasteful and elegant. It was also used for things that were choice and graceful. Its usage in the best English authors corresponds closely to these Latin meanings. In "The New World of Words, or Universal English Dictionary," compiled (in 1657) by Edward Phillips, gent, one of Milton's nephews and pupils, elegant is defined as "handsome, neat, spruce, gay, curious, delicate, eloquent." In Bailey's "Universal Etymological English Dictionary (1726) its definition is, "Eloquent, handsome, fine, neat." Richardson says of the word: "It is choosing, or picking out with care, judgment and taste, and thus, discerning, critical. Also, used as equivalent to chosen with taste, &c., and thus, excellent, highly wrought, or polished, as opposed to careless, slovenly, coarse, or gross." It will thus be seen that the word lego, I choose, always appears in the correct use of the word elegant, whether applied to persons or to things. The term appears to have been first used in the 17th century. It is not, I believe, found in Shakespeare, though the noun elegancy occurs in Love's Labor Lost, Act iv. Sc. 2, where Holofernes, the schoolmaster, speaks of "the elegancy, facility, and golden cadence of poetry." The adjective is employed once only, by Milton, in Paradise Lost, Book ix. 1018, when Adam says:

"Eve now I see thou art exact of taste, and elegant, &c."

In this passage the word evidently means "choice or nice in selecting."

So also in Young's Night Thoughts, night V.:

"These, choicely culled, and elegantly ranged,
Shall form a garland for Narcissa's tomb."

In the same way, the well-known book title, Elegant Extracts is equivalent to choice selections. The American use of the word, however, is far too indiscriminate, and should by all means be avoided. The writer of an article in Blackwood's Magazine, entitled "Inroads upon English," asserts that Americans speak of "elegant butter, elegant water, elegant cabbage, &c." Richard A. Proctor, the astronomer, writes as follows in a paper on "English and American English," which appears in the Gentleman's Magazine, of August, 1881: "The use of the word elegant for fine strikes English ears as strange. For instance, if you say to an American, 'This is a fine morning,' he is likely to reply, 'It is an elegant morning,' or perhaps oftener by simply using the word 'elegant.' It is not a pleasing use of the word."

I fail to see that Mr. Boodle's interesting quotations from Dr. Johnson, at all justify the American misuse of the word, nor can I believe with Mr. Boodle that it is an instance of "survival" on American soil. On the contrary, it must be considered merely an American eccentricity, though it may perhaps be compared with the wearying use of the word "iligant" in most stories of Irish life.

The late Mr. Bristed, a brilliant American scholar, asserted that "even the best spoken American contains appreciable variations from the true English standard." He speaks also, in the same essay, of "the amazingly paradoxical assertion that the educated Americans speak better English than the educated English themselves. When it comes to talking," he continues, "the most refined and educated American who has habitually resided in his own country, will, in half a dozen sentences, use at least as many words that cannot fail to strike the inexperienced Englishman who hears them for the first time." Elegant, in its misused sense, is surely one of these words.

Mr. Lowell, in the preface to the second series of the Biglow Papers, also admits: "Whether it is the want of culture (for the highest outcome of culture is simplicity), or for whatever reason, it is certain that very few American writers or speakers write their native language with the directness, precision and force that are as common as the day in the Mother Country." To the same effect are the observations of Mr. Marsh in his lecture on "The English Language in America." He writes: "We do not discriminate so precisely in the meanings of words, nor do we habitually, either in conversation or in writing, express ourselves so gracefully, or employ so classic a diction as the English. Our taste in language is less fastidious, and our licenses and inaccuracies are more frequently of a character indicative of a want of refinement and elegant culture than those we hear in educated society in England."

It would be easy to make out a long list of words, (many of them Americanisms) now improperly used by almost all writers and speakers in Canada, which should be strictly tabooed for the future. Such a list, I have been told, was prominently displayed in the office of the New York Evening Post, by order of the late William Cullen Bryant. To such readers of the STAR as may be desirous to study the subject of Americanisms, &c., I will mention the names of the following books and essays: Bartlett's Dictionary of Americanisms, Professor De Vere's "English of the New World," Grant White's "Words and their Uses," also his "Every-day English," and papers on "Americanisms" in the Galaxy and the Atlantic Monthly Marsh's 30th lecture in his work on "The English Language," Lowell's entertaining introduction to the 2nd series of the "Biglow Papers," besides the following essay papers in various periodicals, viz., "Americanisms" in Blackwood, April, 1861, "Inroads upon English" in Blackwood, October 1867, "On some popular Americanisms" in the Broadway, No. 6, February, 1869, some articles by the Rev. A. C. Geikie in the Canadian Journal, 1857. "The English Language in America" by Charles Astor Bristed in the Cambridge Essays, 1855; and lastly the paper by Mr. Proctor on "English and American English in the Gentleman's Magazine, August 1881.

SECRETS OF THE STABLE

MYSTERIES CLEARED UP!

—:o:—

Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars Saved in Horse and Cattle Flesh!

—:o:—

In tens of thousands of Stables throughout Europe and America, there are fine looking Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Swine, fed at trifling expense, at which the ordinary uninitiated stockkeeper stands amazed. By personal knowledge, he knows that his neighbor does not feed his stock so abundantly, or care for them so attentively, yet he sees his neighbor's animals fatter, sleeker, healthier, and in every way more satisfactory. Persistent enquiry and close observation, reveal the fact that in the stables of the knowing ones takes the place to a very large extent of grooming, extra feeding and petting. By a judicious use of

DICK'S BLOOD PURIFIER!

DICK'S BLOOD PURIFIER!

A horse, cow or smaller animal, will look better with half the feed, and half the attention, keep healthier, live longer, and sell better, than animals that get all the feed, and all the attention that money can procure. A horse discreetly coursed with and fed on straw, will do better than ninety per cent. of the horses that get all the hay they can consume. Lean animals are made fat, and fat animals are made fatter, by the moderate use of

DICK'S BLOOD PURIFIER!

DICK'S BLOOD PURIFIER!

No living man would keep a horse or cow, or sheep or pig, poor or sick, if he knew how soon and cheaply it can be put into condition by the use of

DICK'S BLOOD PURIFIER!

There are constantly coming in from all parts of the continent, emphatic testimonials, praising Dick's Blood Purifier.

One Man Writes:

"Seeing one of my horses out of order over a year ago, a neighbor advised me to get a couple of boxes of Dick's Blood Purifier, mentioning that he kept it in his own stable constantly. I sent to the druggist's, but found he was out of it. In the meantime, I borrowed a half box from my neighbor, and used it until I could get a supply direct from you. Before the half box was exhausted, the animal's spirits improved, his coat commenced to turn glossy, and he showed a healthy appetite for even the most inferior kinds of fodder. I continued the treatment until two boxes were consumed, and then suspended for a month, after which I administered a box and a half, when I sold him to a buyer who dropped in. I realized $160 for the animal, for which I would have gladly accepted $50 three months previously, and all the difference gained by spending a couple of dollars on four boxes of Supplementary Exhibition.

The proprietors of the Montreal STAR were urged to place one of their new printing and folding machines in the Exhibition. No doubt, one of these wonderful works of mechanical skill would have proven a great centre of interest in Machinery Hall, but the risk involved in moving it was too great. Strangers to the city, however, will have permission to visit THE STAR press-rooms on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8 to 6, and on Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays from 4 to 6. These machines have been visited by thousands of people who have been greatly edified and amused. They print, cut and fold the various editions of THE STAR at a speed of nearly forty thousand copies an hour.

THOSE of our readers who are interested in the study of language should read the very learned letter of Mr. George Murray, B.A., which appears in another column. Taking as a text our own remarks on the word "Elegant." Mr. Murray goes into the question of Americanisms generally, and concludes a most interesting paper by furnishing a complete list of papers and books on the subject.

AMERICA is an armed nation—armed to the teeth. Every American has his shooting iron and most Americans carry them. In such a country deaths by violence must be frequent and the returns prove that the crop grows larger every year. The law about carrying firearms is free and easy and we see the result every day in the year. But there is one peculiar feature in it—Quakers are never shot and Quakers never shoot, and the reason is because Quakers do not carry firearms. Now, if the people would do as the Quakers do, on this one point at least, the United States would have fewer criminals preaching sermons from gallows trees and exhorting their friends to beware of drink and—revolvers.

ANOTHER character has been assailed by historical research, and Jeanne D'Arc, the heroic Maid of Orleans, is said to have died, not as a martyr, but as a respectable married woman and the founder of a family. She was not burned at the stake, say her commentators, and the picture galleries of the world but represent a fictitious scene when they exhibit the youthful martyr standing amidst the flames which are licking up her life blood. Well we hope the commentators are right. It may not matter much to Jeanne now, but for the sake of our humanity, we would be glad to know that the heroic peasant girl from Lorraine was not burnt alive by order of English Earls in the fifteenth century.

SOME time since we said that two Ottawa papers were in the habit of prying into private affairs in their desire to advance political purposes. One of the papers to which we referred was the Free Press, and now that journal challenges us to "prove" our statement. We cannot well accede to the demands of the Free Press, because we do not keep the files of that paper. We remember, and remember distinctly, the prying tone our contemporary used but we do not remember nor can we quote the words. Pending an opportunity to search the files of our contemporary the charge must be withdrawn for the present, but we shall take the earliest opportunity of putting our finger on the stain and then perhaps our contemporary will be satisfied.

THE Royal Military College has opened again, and the students are once more bending over their books or learning the mysteries of practical gunnery in the College yard. The Government organs make the usual predictions about the "good results" to be expected from the students, and they applaud the management and all its surroundings. As for the prediction of good, all we can say is that we hope our contemporaries will not be disappointed, and as for the "management," we are equally hopeful that it will be all that military science, literature and art can well commend. But let us not forget that of the number of students who left the College last year, only about one-third remain in Canada, and no matter how "good" the results of the "management" be, it will not compensate for a similar loss at the end of the next session.

Equalization of Taxation.

In another column we publish in full the Act passed by the Legislature of the State of Vermont for the purpose of equalizing taxation so that each and every one might bear his just proportion. Taxation has been so onerous in the United States that the people have been forced to study the question closely, and the result of this study, so far as the State of Vermont is concerned, is the Act referred to. In the Province of Quebec, taxation is felt to be a great burden, notwithstanding we are annually confronted with a deficit which is added to the consolidated debt, from time to time, in the shape of new loans. It is hardly to be expected, therefore, that we shall escape the imposition of further taxation in the near future, and it behooves us to take the subject seriously into our consideration. Perhaps an examination of our circumstances, in comparison with those of other Provinces or States, will show that the extra money can be raised by an equalization of taxation, without adding materially to the burdens of those who are already groaning under them. The subject has been mooted before in this Province, and the (now) Hon. Mr. Lynch brought it up in the House. The Government of the Province promised to give it their attention, but that was the last of it. It should, however, not be forgotten; and we trust our publication of Vermont's law will serve to stimulate the people to a serious consideration of it.

THE EXHIBITION.

Durham Cattle—The Working Dairy—Cheese—Butter—Notes.

The rain this morning has cooled the air, and laid the dust, consequently, if it clears up the grounds will be in excellent order for this afternoon and to-morrow, which is to be the principal day. The Exhibition, except in the new grounds is now in very fine form, and anyone who wishes to be instructed as to the industries of our country can not find any place where they can spend several hours a day for two or three days to more profit.

CATTLE—DURHAMS.

The show of Short Horns comprises about 50 head, and though by no means so large as that of the Ayrshires, includes some excellent cattle. Good exhibits of this breed are made by G. Whitfield, Rougemont; Senator Cochrane, J. L. Gibb, Compton; Andrew Scott, St. Laurent, and others.

The Whitfield farm shows seven head, three bulls and four cows and heifers. Royal Laird, the four year old bull, is a magnificent animal in almost every respect. He is a mixed roan in color, and, taken altogether, has some very fine points. He has a mellow, extra nice handling skin, a straight back, a fine brisket, and is well ribbed up. He is a strong, heavy animal, without any coarse points whatever. Marquis is a bull calf, lately imported from Scotland. He is a rich roan color, has very nice smooth points and promises in every respect to be an excellent animal to breed from. Of two two-year-old heifers, Florette and Young Baroness, the former is the larger and the latter has, perhaps, the finest points, though both are excellent. Florette is a very heavy animal for her age, is a good handler, well ribbed up, has a good brisket, a pretty and nice head, straight lines and must make an extraordinarily heavy and fine cow. She was imported from Aberdeen, Scotland, on the 21st of June last. Young Baroness has extra fine points in every respect. She is a good handler, has a fine brisket, a straight back, a fine and pretty head and promises to be an extra beautiful cow. She, as well as Florette, is of a red color and was imported from Aberdeen. Good Luck is a four-year-old cow of a strong and good build. She is red with white spots. She has very good points, is a well topped, healthy looking animal. Nancy Lee, a yearling heifer, is a nice, rich roan color and promises to be a very fine animal. She is a nice handler, has a nice head, with well set horns, is strong and healthy looking and has generally very fine points. The Duke of Rougemont, a three-year-old bull, is white without a spot. His color is very rare and gives him a beautiful appearance. He is well proportioned and strongly made.

The Cochrane exhibit of Durhams comprises six or seven splendid animals. Two bulls each named Barrington, are especially noticeable. The older, a bull about six years old, is a dark, rich red color with very fine points, and is without doubt, a splendid bull to breed from. The younger Barrington, a yearling bull is nearly a counterpart of the other, except in size. He is a nice handler and has a fine points. Beatrice, a three year old roan heifer, is a very cleanly built animal. Laura, a roan cow, has a good head, is fine topped and is a strong healthy animal. Surmise Duchess entered for a fat cow, is indeed and it is hard to see how any animal can be more so. The Marchioness, of Barrington, a two-year old heifer, and Adelard, of the same age, are fine animals. Mr. W. T. Benson, Cardinal, J. L. Gibb, Compton, and others also show fine Durham stock. The former has two handsome bulls, one three years and the other a bull calf.

THE DAIRY EXHIBIT.

The show of dairy products is much larger than that of last year. It is provided with plenty of room, having all of Manitoba hall at its disposal, and consequently is shown to much advantage. It attracts a large number of visitors, not only of those from the country districts, but also great numbers of townspeople. The latter class are specially curious about the and examine it attentively and minutely. They have discovered the answer to the question of the city young lady who wanted to know "which cow gave the buttermilk," and are no longer completely in the dark as to the mysteries of butter and cheese-making. The working dairy occupies a spacious shed, which has been built on the rear of Manitoba Hall for its special accommodation. The operations are carried on in a square space in the centre surrounded by a railing, around which the visitors stroll and sigh for buttermilk and fresh curds. The apparatus used consists of a patent milk cooler, a milk stand, a cheese press, all of the make of Messrs. Childs & Jones, of Utica, New York, and a Blanchard churn, which is driven by a small six-horse power engine with an upright boiler, made by E. Leonard & Sons, Toronto. The whole affair is scarcely our idea of a model dairy, although the mechanical operations are carried on fairly well. The greatest drawback is the presence of too much heat and numbers of those concomitant evils flies. The heat comes from the engine, the crowds of people looking on, and the sun's rays peeping through the illy-made shed in many places. Consequently the fault lies with the arrangements made by the committee and not with the direct management of the operations. The management however must be blamed for a slight lack of neatness and cleanliness in carrying on the work which certainly would not be tolerated in a well-conducted creamery or in the dairy of a thrifty, neat housewife. These remarks apply to the dairy as seen on Saturday afternoon, and it is expected and to be hoped that it will improve later on. They are made on the supposition that the principal object of the committee in exhibiting such operations is to impart the useful knowledge of how a model dairy fitted with the latest improvements is conducted.

CHEESE.

The cheese exhibit is very large, comprising some 500 boxes or about 30,000 lbs. It is placed all round the wall of the Manitoba building and makes a rich display. It comes largely from this Province, although Ontario and the United States are well represented. The Eastern Townships, of course, sends the largest exhibit and also the best, since the sweepstakes prize, open to America, goes to Rougemont. The show of dairy cheese is small and poor, being hardly considered by the judges worthy of any prize. This lack was, however, more than made up by the factory cheese, which was pronounced by several judges to be the finest lot ever got together in America. A gentleman who attended the New York State Fair this year said that he saw nothing so good as it there, and this was admitted by two American gentlemen who acted as judges. The exhibit was put and kept in good form, and Mr. J. H. Ireland, of Brompton Falls, Que., who had charge of both it and the butter, was given much praise by the judges for his admirable management.

BUTTER.

For butter there were, like for cheese, two sets of prizes offered, the first open only in Quebec and the second to all Canada and the United States. There was a large exhibit under each of these heads of competition and both of creamery and dairy-made butter or an amount of about 30,000 lbs. in all. The greater part came from this Province, although Ontario was well represented and some was sent from the States. The first prizes were, however, given to exhibitors in this Province. Messrs. Boden & Wilson, of Montreal, carried off two second prizes and the sweepstakes' prize was taken by W. J. Haire, of Barrington, Que. The show was pronounced by some exhibitors to be much larger than that of last year and to be of fine quality considering the difficulties to be met in making good butter during such hot weather as has prevailed for the past two months. Mr. A. W. Landon, of Brockville, an experienced butter buyer, when asked his opinion of the exhibit said that as far as quantity went it was a creditable one, but that with the exception of a few tubs, the quality was inferior, not nearly so high as he had expected to find. There was much which was artificially colored, and should in his opinion be debarred from competition in consequence; still more that was wanting in keeping qualities, and considerable was poor in texture and flavor. The exhibit, by the way, was kept in two of Siasons' patent dead-air space glass refrigerators, and kept admirably too. The refrigerators have been described before, and it will be sufficient to again mention that their peculiarity is, that their sides are made of double panes of glass with a thin space of air between. This air forms one of the best non-conductors of heat that can be had. The ice is put inside, but at the top which is the only sensible place to put it, since cold air descends. These refrigerators have worked admirably in keeping the butter firm and fresh, and in the opinion of all who examined them are about perfect. The air inside of them with a very little ice is kept at a temperature of slightly over 50° on the hottest day.

FURNITURE CONTINUED.

Henry J. Shaw & Co. as usual are to the front, and have, without exception, the largest and most creditable exhibit in their line of business. One very beautiful set of drawing-room furniture in green silk and gold is for finish and good taste unequalled by anything in the Exhibition. They also display a black walnut bedstead, the carving of which is very rich. Ebony sets, piano stools in ebony and toilet sets form also part of their exhibit.

The Spiral Lock Spring Mattress Company of Montreal are the only exhibitors in the line of goods they manufacture. Their mattresses are already well known to the public, and are well worthy of an inspection. Mr. C. Breullet has a handsomely carved sideboard of black walnut on exhibit. Baker & Julien have something quite new in the way of a folding cabinet combining a folding bed, washstand, wardrobe, mirror desk and book-rack. The best description we can give of it is that in a large room by means of this combination, three or four persons may have entirely separate apartments containing all the comforts included above.

Messrs. M. G. Edson & Co. exhibit Wilson's improved physicians' and surgeons' chair. It is especially adapted to gynecological practice and is adjustable to almost any position. It has upwards of 100 different changes, which are all effected by one handle at separate shafts with screw motion.

Messrs. D. Tees & Company have always something new to lay before the public, and exhibit the first desk manufactured in Canada with patent folding front. They have also a fine display of office and school-room furniture.

The Oshawa Furniture Company have been disappointed in not being able to finish the special lines which they were manufacturing for the Exhibition. The salon they have arranged for the reception of their exhibits is chic in the extreme and is worthy of all praise, while the few articles they exhibit are exceedingly chaste.

BOATS.

The entries in boats are limited to two. A life boat constructed by Elisee Jacques, of St. Jean Deschaillons, P.Q., appears to be a remarkably sea-worthy looking craft. She is built of zinc in air-tight compartments. A Rob-Roy canoe from Ontario forms the second entry in this class.

Cooper, Fairman and Company, Montreal, exhibit a portable fire-escape, the invention of C. A. Gregory. Illustrations are given daily of its modus operandi, which appears to be excellent.

EXHIBITION NOTES.

The first exhibition of horse jumping took place on the grounds on Saturday. A very large number of people watched it. The competition will be continued to-day at three o'clock and to-morrow at the same hour, when the prizes will be awarded.

Mr. Thomas Brown, of Petite Cote, was injured on Friday, being gored by one of his own bulls in a stall on the east side of the Exhibition grounds. He is recovering.

The judges have not awarded prizes in smoke-consumers yet, since, for some unavoidable cause, one of the entries has not arrived, and also because the facilities for trying them on the grounds are not good. It is expected that most of them will be brought and tried on engines in the city and there visited by the judges.

We would call the attention of the Exhibition Committee to the great want of more seats or benches of some kind scattered about the grounds for visitors to rest upon. Numerous complaints have been made by visitors that they can find no resting places.

Sub-Constable Charbonneau pluckily arrested a half tipsy man who was jostling and insulting passengers in the main building on Saturday. The man was conveyed to the police station by four men.

The Belgium exhibit, the part of it already arrived, is arranged and looks very well. Messrs. de Laet and Francois are entitled to much praise for the energetic manner in which they have tried to get this exhibit up in time.

Professor and Miss Hand, of Hamilton, gave their second pyrotechnic display on the Montreal Lacrosse Grounds, on Saturday night. A much larger audience than on the evening of the first display was present, and there was a noticeable improvement in the quality of the fireworks.

The Prize List.

The following is a continuation of the list of prizes so far as completed by the secretaries up to the present moment. The awards in classes IV, XII and XVII, as also those in the dairy exhibit, were given in our issue of Saturday:—

SPORTING NEWS.

The Turf.

ONTARIO JOCKEY CLUB RACES.

In the first day's racing at the Fall meeting of the Ontario Jockey Club, held at Toronto, the Ladies' Purse, three-quarters of a mile, was won by Dr. Smith's "Vici" in 1.18½, "Simoon" second, "Mark L." third and "Lady D'Arcy" fourth. The Merchants' Plate, mile and a half, fell to "Disturbance," "Lady D'Arcy" second; time, 2.48. The Jockey Club Stakes, mile heats, were won by Mr. Forbes' "Bonnie Bird" in two straight heats, "Long Saw" second, Mr. J. P. Dawes' "Kinkead" third; time, 1.48½ and 1.47½. The steeplechase was easily won by Mr. Dawes' "Rose," Mr. Forbes' "Barley" finishing second.

BIG TROTTING RACE.

The $10,000 match which took place at Beacon Park, Boston, on Thursday last, was witnessed by an enormous concourse of spectators, variously estimated at from 15,000 to 20,000. "Santa Claus" took the purse; his record being 2.23.

The Montreal-Toronto Lacrosse Match.

The match on the Montreal Lacrosse Grounds, on Saturday afternoon, between the Toronto and Montreal Lacrosse Clubs, was witnessed by one of the largest crowds which has been on the grounds this season. The teams were composed as follows:

Torontos—Burns, Ross McKenzie, Hubbell, W. Bonnell, Garvin, Hughes, Martin, Smith, Crown, Donaldson, R. Mitchell and Dwight. J. Massey, Captain.

Montreal—W. Kay, W. Aird, G. Aird, R. Elliott, W. Elliott, Paton, Craven, Hamilton, Griffin, Lawson, Paterson, Grant. J. K. White, Captain.

Messrs. McHenry and Green acted as umpires, and Mr. Carruthers as referee.

In the first game the play was remarkably even, and the ball showed no particular tendency to either end of the field. W. Aird got in some splendid play, and made several capital runs down the field, while Patterson and Griffin also worked with considerable success for the home team. Sam Hughes and Crown did about the best play on the visiting team. The first mentioned of the players managed to get a splendid overhand shot for goals, but Kay, the Montreal goal-keeper, was on hand, and caught it and threw it down the field. After a few minutes more play, the ball alighted about the centre of the field, and Geo. Aird and Donaldson made a dash for it, and in the struggle Donaldson was disabled, and his place had to be taken by a brother of Garvin, already on the field. As foul had been called, the ball was faced in front of the pavilion, and being drawn by the Toronto man, was soon down in front of the Montreal goals, where a scrimmage took place, and the ball was tipped through by Crown, after 15 minutes actual play

THE SECOND GAME.

At the beginning of this game the Montreal men got in some really fine play, and they succeeded in keeping the ball well down at their opponents goals, notwithstanding a series of magnificent runs made by Bonnell. After about five minutes play the ball was thrown behind the Montreal goals, and Way leaving his goals made a dash for it along with Ross McKenzie. The Toronto man secured the ball and dropped it in front of the Montreal goals, where an exciting scrimmage, in which no less than ten players were mixed up, took place. As the scrimmage was at its height the umpire, Mr. Green, called game and play was stopped. The game was allowed by the referee, although the Montreal men as well as numbers of the spectators expressed the opinion that the ball did not go through.

THE THIRD GAME.

From beginning to end of this game, the Western men had it all their own way, and after about half a minute's play, the rubber was tipped through the Montreal goals by Hughes, thus winning the match for the Torontos in three straight games. The result of the match, which was a disappointment to many, was undoubtedly owing to the bad play done by the Montreal men as a team, as the individual play of the members of the home team was far better than that of their opponents.

Cricket.

An eleven composed of a junior team of the M. C. C. visited Ottawa on Saturday and had a good day's batting with the Ottawa C. C. The game was played at the Rideau Hall grounds. Our Montreal boys played well "all round," as the following score will testify:—

M. C. C. VS. EASTERN TOWNSHIPS.

A large number of people witnessed this interesting match played on the grounds of the M. C. C. on Saturday afternoon. In this match the Montreal men again well sustained the credit of their club and although they gained an easy victory over the visiting club still a large amount of good play was exhibited on both sides. The Montrealers ran up the telegraph to 196 before their last wicket fell to the bowling of Kidd of Chambly. Messrs. Badgley's 59, Browning's 34, and Walker's 21, were well played innings. The second venture of the Townships team resulted in 56 for 8 wickets, Mr. Dickson (not out) contributing 24. Two clever catches by substitute (Mr. Clamps) were heartily applauded. The Montreal Cricket Club team left for the West on Saturday night to try concl

PRESIDENT GARFIELD.

His Condition this Morning Still Unfavorable.

ELBERON, 7 a.m., 19th September.—The President passed a very comfortable night. He is far better than was expected, and is now sleeping.

ELBERON, 9 a.m.—Official.—The condition of the President this morning continues unfavorable. Shortly after the issue of the evening bulletin he had a chill which lasted fifteen minutes, a febrile rise following, which continued until midnight, during which time his pulse ranged from 112 to 130. Sweating then followed, and was quite profuse. The cough, which was troublesome, during the chill, gave him but little annoyance the remainder of the night. This morning at 8 a.m. the temperature was 98.8; pulse, 106 and febrile; respiration, 22. At 8.30 another chill came on, on account of which the dressing was temporarily postponed. A bulletin will be issued at 12.30.

CITY ITEMS.

—On Saturday morning John Murray received a severe cut on the head from a stone. Dr. Kannon dressed the wound.

—A horse while drawing a load of wood off St. Mary street, fell and broke its leg. An end was put to its sufferings by shooting it.

—Two gentlemen hired a carter to drive them from the Exhibition grounds to Craig street on Saturday. At the end of the journey he demanded a dollar. They thought this an imposition and drove to the Police Station and lodged a complaint, but having engaged him outside the city limits the authorities could not interfere, the gentlemen took their departure, remarking that it was a funny law.

Discharged.

The young man Henry Swanson, arrested for stealing a gun from Mr. Brand, was discharged by the Magistrate, as it was his first offence.

The Swimming Match.

A great deal of interest has been taken in the swimming contest arranged to take place between John Williams, the champion swimmer of the harbor, and William Roberts, a seaman of the SS. "Parisian," who has won several races in England." The start was made from the floating bath on Saturday afternoon, at four o'clock, and the course was to the Jacques Pier, about a mile distant. The result was a decisive victory for Williams who came in fully 100 yards ahead.

Victoria Square Fountain as a Swimming Bath.

A gang of roughs got together on Victoria Square shortly after twelve o'clock on Sunday morning, and among other larks which they tried for their amusement, one of them, either for a wager or from pure bravado, stripped and went swimming in the fountain. He paddled around some time to the interest of the on-lookers, and then got out and resumed his garments. The scene would have been even more interesting had a policeman come along and taken possession of his clothes.

FIRE AT COTE ST. LOUIS.

The Provender for the Cattle at the Exhibition Destroyed.

A large shed containing $3000 worth of hay, on Rabain street, at Cote St. Louis, caught fire shortly after 11 o'clock last evening, and before the flames could be got under control the shed and its contents had been destroyed. An alarm sounded in the city brought out the Northern section of the Brigade, but nothing could be done by them, as there were no hydrants. The St. Jean Baptiste and Cote St. Louis steam fire-engines were, however, placed at an old flooded quarry some 500 yards distant and two good streams of water were obtained, and, as nothing could be done to save the burning buildings, were brought to bear on the three adjoining houses, which were in danger. Notwithstanding the precautions taken, a terrace across the street ignited, and it was only through the greatest exertions that they were saved. The shed and its contents were owned by Mr. A King, Commission Merchant, of Commissioners street, and the hay and grain which were destroyed were being used for feeding the animals at the Exhibition, for which Mr. King has the contract. There was only a small insurance.

Canada Gazette Notes.

The Canada Gazette contains the following: Judges Sprague, Burton Patterson and Morrison have been appointed Judges of the Supreme Court of Judicature and of the Court of Appeal of Ontario, the first-named to be President of the former and Chief-Justice of the latter.

Donald McGregor, of Merrigomish, Nova Scotia, has been made a sub-collector of Customs, and Alexander Chaisson, of Rolls Bay, and James Aitken, of Moulagire Bridge, P.E.I., preventive officers in the Customs.

Jos. Bickerstaff, of Toronto, is gazetted a landing waiter and searcher in Her Majesty's Customs.

The 20th of October has been proclaimed by the Governor-General a day of general thanksgiving.

The following cadets have been admitted to the Royal Military College of Canada:—James Moren, Charles Almon and John Laurie, of Halifax; Donald Grant, of Montreal, and Chas. Hodgins, of Toronto.

Letters patent incorporating the Nova Scotia Glass Company have been issued.

THE BEST PIANOS IN THE WORLD.—It has long been conceded by European makers that the best pianos are made in America, and that the best American pianos are made by Chickering, Steinway, Gabler, Dunham and Haines.—A. & S. Nordheimer, 211 St. James street, are sole agents for these splendid instruments, which they pronounce without hesitation as being superior to any others manufactured. The most liberal terms are given by this firm for purchasing by monthly or quarterly investments.—Witness, Dec. 30th, 1880. 220 tf

Smoke Consumers.

To the Editor of THE STAR:

DEAR SIR,—Our attention was called yesterday to an advertisement in Monday's issue of the Witness in the form of a correspondence which purports to be signed by an engineer, and who, we understand, to be Messrs. R. Mitchell & Co.'s fireman, which contains a certain amount of unfavorable criticism on Hutchinson's Smoke Consumer, and which seems to have been found necessary to promote another machine intended to be brought in the market. Now, we challenge the competency of Messrs. Mitchell & Co.'s fireman to give public any opinion on our Smoke Consumer in face of the fact that we hold the best of testimonials from the most competent engineers and scientific men in the United States and Canada as to the merits of our Smoke Consumer and Fuel Economizer, and also that Messrs. R. Mitchell & Co., the employers of the correspondent in question, have themselves given us the testimonial which we append.

Yours, &c.,
W. S. HUTCHINSON.

Montreal, September 15th, 1881.

MONTREAL, 22nd February, 1881.

MESSRS. W. S. HUTCHINSON & Co., City,

GENTLEMEN,—We have had in successful operation in our factory, "The Hutchinson Smoke Consumer and Fuel Economizer," for some months past. It affords us pleasure to recommend it very highly, it burns 95 per cent. of smoke at least, and saves fuel, never gets out of order, does not injure the boiler or furnace and is easily operated.

Yours respectfully,
ROBERT MITCHELL & Co.,
Montreal Brass Works.

AUCTION SALE OF VALUABLE FREEHOLD PROPERTY, IN THE TOWNSHIP OF NORTH PLANTAGANET, COUNTY OF PRESCOTT.

Under and by virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage which will be produced at the time of sale, there will be offered for sale, at 26 Rideau street, in the City of Ottawa, on

Wednesday, 21st September, 1881,
AT 1.30 P.M.,

Those certain parcels of land in the said Township of North Plantagenet, being composed of Lots 9 and 10, in the 1st Concession of said Township, with the broken fronts thereof, containing 400 acres more or less, and also the west half of Lot 18 in the said 1st Concession, containing 100 acres more or less, excepting a building lot of 100 square feet and a right of way heretofore sold.

This farm is situate in a well settled section, fronts on the River Ottawa, and is in every respect a desirable property. The vendors understand that the property, excepting 50 acres, is all cleared and well fenced. The soil is a heavy clay loam, in a good state of cultivation. A small stream, sufficient to run a small mill, flows through the lots. There is a Post and Telegraph Office in the store on the property, also three Barns, Stable, small Dwelling House, Wharf, &c.

Ten per cent. of purchase money at the time of the sale. For further particulars apply to CITY NEWS.

A great many cheap excursion trains are expected to arrive from the West during the early part of this week.

One would think that S. Carsley would make a display at the Exhibition, but the leading Drapers in England and the best Dry Goods Houses in the United States appear to avoid that sort of thing.

The only place or store in Montreal that we know of where all people are treated alike and served at the same prices and on the same terms is S. Carsley's, of Notre Dame street, and this is what numbers of people say is one great reason of his unprecedented success.

The President seems to have gained but little by the removal to Long Branch.

S. Carsley claims to be selling Kid Gloves of a very superior make at much below regular rates. His 45c two-button Gloves are said to be marvels of cheapness.

Our Canadian weather prophet should be on hand at the Exhibition to give the thousands of farmers and others who visit the city an opportunity of shaking hands with him.

It has been said that Messrs. A. T. Stewart & Co.'s establishment in New York is one of the most wonderful sights in the United States. But, considering the population of Montreal as compared with New York, also the short time our leading dry goods firm has been in business, it is a question whether S. Carsley's business is not even more wonderful than Messrs. A. T. Stewart & Co.'s.

Straightforward, fair, honest trading is a vital point with all large, successful firms all over the world. Such firms watch the value they give as carefully as a doctor writes out a prescription. S. Carsley has been known to lose thousands of dollars on goods rather than allow bad value to be offered to his customers.

THE TORCHLIGHT PROCESSION.
Programme for To-morrow Evening.

The procession will meet on Champ de Mars at 7.30 sharp. When formed will march to Notre Dame street, thence to St. James, through Victoria square, up St. Antoine, up Windsor to Dorchester, up Mountain to Sherbrooke, thence to St. Denis, down St. Denis to Craig, and will then disband.

All the reels and steamers of the City Brigade will turn out, accompanied by the Brigades of St. Jean Baptiste, St. Louis, St. Cunegonde and St. Henri.

The Salvage Corps, with head lights, will proceed first; then Holland's Silver Cornet Band; the divisions of the city will be kept together, East, Centre and West, so that there will be no confusion in case of an alarm. Should any alarm occur, the division from which the call is given will at once leave the procession to where it is wanted. In such case the procession will continue without the division so called to duty.

Narrow Escape of a Montreal Lady from Drowning.

An accident took place at Chambly Basin at four o'clock, yesterday afternoon. Mrs. David Crawford, of Montreal, was in a boat, with two of her relatives, when suddenly the frail embarkation capsized, and Mrs. Crawford remained in the water about fifteen minutes, clinging to the side of the boat. Fortunately the young man who accompanied her was a good swimmer and managed to sustain her, until people from shore came to the rescue. Their arrival was timely, for a moment later, we should have had to deplore a fatal calamity.

Flowers and Fruit.

A visit to the Victoria Rink at three p.m. to-day showed that the Horticultural Exhibition is in full preparation and that the opening to-morrow will be very brilliant. The entries figure nearly 1,500, nearly double that of three years ago. The display of grapes—outdoor, especially, will be the largest and most varied ever made in this Province. This is Montreal's favorite show and its success this year is confidently predicted.

PRESIDENT GARFIELD.
Severity of the Last Chill—The Situation Decidedly Gloomy—The Worst Fears Exterminated.

ELBERON, September 19, 9.50 a.m.—The rigor of this morning lasted nearly twenty minutes and was quite severe. The President is reported as having slept a little since it subsided, but is now awake. He has taken a small quantity of nourishment. The frequency of the chills occasions grave anxiety. Dr. Bliss is of opinion that if the rigors continue forty-eight hours the President cannot live, and it is quite possible he will be carried off.

10.40 a.m.—Dr. Agnew says the situation at this time is decidedly gloomy and could not well be worse. The President has not rallied as usual from the effects of the rigor. Much excitement prevails, and the worst fears are entertained and justly so.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 19.—Dr. Bliss is reported as saying: "You can be certain of one thing,—no patient of mine will ever be buried until after he is dead." Members of the cabinet now here held a consultation last night. It is stated that they were informed that at no period has the President's case been so serious as now, and if the surgeons cannot control the rigors his death will be a question of a very short time. Secretary Blaine has telegraphed he will come at once. It is said the President remarked when he awoke on Saturday from the sleep which followed the chill. "I suppose these folks in New York have had another scare."

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—Prayers were offered up for the President's recovery yesterday in nearly all the churches here and in Brooklyn.

ANOTHER RIGOR FEARED.

LONG BRANCH, September 17, 12.30 p.m.—Dr. Bliss, at noon, said the President is more comfortable, and a reaction has takon place. The pulse is now about 118; temperature about normal; respiration about 20. It is very probable the pulse will decline still more. There is danger of another rigor occurring towards evening. Much anxiety was caused by the fact that the temperature does not rise above normal, which indicates that the vitality of the patient is growing gradually less. Dr. Bliss thinks that probably the pulse will go down to about 106 between now and evening. Members of the Cabinet are exceedingly anxious.

DECIDEDLY CRITICAL.

LONG BRANCH, September 19.—Dr. Bliss states that the President's situation is decidedly critical. No doubt, the rigors are the result of extended complications in the right lung, aided by the exhausted condition caused by blood poisoning. Dr. Boynton says the chills may continue some time without serious results, but it is not possible to make any predictions as to the course the disease will take next.

AGNEW SAYS THERE IS NO HOPE.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 19.—This is the anniversary of the battle of Chickamauga, in which General Garfield was in the hottest of the fight. Dr. Bliss says the President called for a hand-glass after the morning dressing, and said: "I cannot understand why I am so weak, when I look so well." Dr. Agnew is reported as saying there is no hope. The Attorney-General, in behalf of the Government, has notified the Telegraph Company that he desired complete control of the wire at Elberon for his own messages. Dr. Bliss is reported as saying he did not believe the President's death would occur to-day under any circumstances, but he would live three or four days, possibly a week or ten days.

THE QUEEN'S SOLICITUDE.

LONDON, September 19.—Mr. Lowell received a telegram from the Queen expressing the grief of herself and family at the discouraging accounts regarding President Garfield, and requesting that all intelligence concerning his condition be forwarded immediately to Balmoral.

OFFICIAL BULLETIN.

ELBERON, Sept. 19, 12.30.—Official—The chill from which the President was suffering at the time the morning bulletin was issued, lasted about 15 minutes and was followed by a febrile rise of temperature and sweating. He has slept much of the time, but his general condition has not materially changed since. Temperature, 98.2; pulse, 104.

FROM OTTAWA.
[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE STAR.]

RETURN OF THE PREMIER.—OTTAWA, September 19.—Sir John Macdonald arrived at 2 a.m. yesterday. He was present at the forenoon services at St. Alban's Church. The presentation of the citizens' address to Sir John A. Macdonald will take place in the City Hall, which is being nicely decorated for the occasion. Sir John, accompanied by the Hon. Mr. Mousseau, will leave to-morrow afternoon for Montreal.

"You will not answer me?" she sighed.

"What should I answer, Minnie?" tenderly whispered her lover. "I assure you, again and again, that I run no risk of the degrading lash; severe and merciless as our military laws in some respects are; they do not visit a slight offence like mine with so infamous a punishment. I appeal to this lady," he added, turning to Lady Jane, "for whose generous care of you and sympathy I can never express myself sufficiently grateful, if I have incurred the slightest risk of the lash?"

"Not the slightest risk," repeated her ladyship, "Talbot himself assured me so."

Minnie looked first at the speaker, then at Gus. The eyes of the former, she saw, were dimmed with tears, which admiration of the prisoner's firmness and pity for his youth had wrung from her, upon her lover's lips was the same faint smile. But she no longer trusted to that, it was in the expression of his dark eye—its veiled agony struggling with affection—she read an answer. The fearful truth flashed upon her as suddenly as the scathing lightning strikes the oak, nor was its effect scarcely less fatal: with a piercing shriek, she pronounced the word "Death!" and glided rather than fell at the feet of our hero.

It was sometime before the united efforts of Gus and her friend could restore Minnie to a consciousness of the misery which, like a blight had fallen upon her. So entirely had the idea taken possession of her imagination, that not all the assertions of the prisoner, or the soothing promise of Lady Jane, could shake her conviction or impart a ray of hope.

"No—no!" she sobbed, "you would deceive me with your cruel kindness, "he is doomed to die—to die for me, who would have given my life a hundred times ere a hair of his dear head should fall. Wretched girl! doomed to be the destruction of those who love me, but I can die with him! Their cruel laws cannot prevent my heart from breaking—they cannot hinder that! Thank heaven, they cannot hinder that!"

It was not in human fortitude to support a further pang. The grief of Minnie was far more terrible to her lover than the certitude of death. He could have met his fate with a smile of proud defiance. Vainly his despicable enemy would have searched in his proud eye for a glance of fear or a look of supplication; but the tears of her he loved, the agony of her deep-drawn sighs, the convulsive sobs which wrung her tender breast, which rose and fell like the waves of a placid lake when ruffled by the tempest's breath, were too much for manhood to endure. Despite his resolution, he mingled his tears with hers.

"Minnie," he said, "be calm—for my sake be calm! send me not before my judges unmanned by womanish tears! Were it even as you suppose—which I am far, very far from anticipating—I have no fear of death. Life at best is but a dream of mingled cares and passions—toils and sorrows. You, I know, will not forget the playmate of your youth: you will visit the woods—the free, happy green woods—again; sit beneath the trees where we have so often sat and sung together—each murmuring breeze will bear my voice to you—each wild bird's song remind you of my love!"

"Cruel!" sobbed the unhappy girl: "cruel! to think that I could survive you! No, Gus—no; the first time I felt that I had a heart was when it trembled at your voice—it knew no other music. How often has it ceased to beat as I listened for your step, then bounded with delight as it drew nigh? its chords, its hopes, and feelings are so entwined with yours, that both must throb or break together."

The entrance of Corporal Watkins checked the reply upon the lips of our hero. There was something sacred alike in the sorrow and love of Minnie. He could not bear that curious or vulgar eyes should witness it.

"Now," demanded Lady Jane, "what brings you here?"

The subaltern touched his cap respectfully, and replied, that he expected the officer on guard to make his rounds in a few minutes, and that should he take it into his head to ascend the tower to assure himself of the safety of the prisoner, both he and his men would be severely punished.

"I will not leave you," said Minnie, desperately; it will be sweet to die together: we may forgive them then, Gus,—may we not?"

The captive's only reply was to press her yet more closely to his breast.

"A few minutes," replied Lady Jane, hastily, "and we will descend."

The corporal reluctantly withdrew; he would have preferred seeing them descend, then he would have been sure; perhaps he knew by experience what a woman's few minutes meant.

As we observed in a preceding chapter, the speaker was a person of considerable tact. An ordinary mind under the circumstances, would have expressed its sympathy in useless consolation; but although Lady Jane's life had been calm and happy, she felt that there were sorrows that no consolation could reach.

"Minnie," she said with forced calmness, "we must return."

But Minnie, like a true child of nature, only clung the closer to her lover.

"It is useless to dissemble; Gus is in danger of his life."

"I know it," exclaimed the poor girl, "and you would separate us!"

"I would save him!" continued the generous woman. "The crime of which he has been guilty—although honor may applaud it, and every female heart bless him for it—by military law is punishable by death."

Like a tender flower suddenly crushed, Minnie's head sank upon the breast of the prisoner, who regarded the speaker with a glance of reproachful surprise; but with the tact of her sex, she felt that she had taken the only way to recall the fleeting energy of her young protegee's heart—her own bled the while she inflicted the wound.

"I have already written to the commander-in-chief, who is an old friend, in his favor: my husband will be one of his judges. This is not all," she added; "I have hopes of being able to effect his escape."

The last word recalled the life-blood to the cheeks of Minnie. Escape! it was life, hope, happiness!

"Escape!" she murmured; bless you! bless you! accomplish that, and not a single hour of my life but shall be a constant prayer for your happiness; you will save two lives in one. You hear, Gus!" she added, half mad with joy at the idea; "there is hope! Escape! you heard the word, kneel and bless her!"

Our hero's eyes sparkled at the thought. Once free, he felt that there would indeed be a struggle for life, the chance, the hope, that Minnie spoke of.

"To insure it," said Lady Jane, "it is necessary to lull the suspicions of his enemies; it is the moment for action, not for vain regrets. We must leave him."

Her companion looked at her mistrustfully; she fancied that it was but a well intended deceit, to spare them both the pangs of parting.

"Do you doubt me?" added Lady Jane, reproachfully; "or do you prefer the gratification of indulging in a selfish sorrow at the sacrifice of the only chance of safety which remains for him?"

She had touched the right cord. With a sudden energy, which a few minutes before she seemed incapable of, the poor girl declared herself ready to depart.

Free Masonry is astir with emotion in England. The Prince of Wales has just issued, under his sign manual, his warrant for the formation of a new lodge of Free Masons, to be called "The Gallery Lodge." This lodge is to be confined exclusively to journalists and gallery reporters, and his Royal Highness has sanctioned the appointment of Mr. H. Massey as first Master, Mr. F. Bussey as first Senior Warden, and Mr. Thomas Nushell as first Junior Warden. The want of such a privilege has long been felt.

The tenants of the Duke of Cleveland are said to intend to present him with a round robin for a reduction of twenty-five per cent. in their rents, and if refused will all give up their farms in October. The Duke is worth about $750,000 a year, and owns about the fifth largest landed estate in England. He is childless, and his wife (Lord Rosebery's mother) has an income from her first husband. At his seat, Raby, carriages drive right into the vast baronial hall. The Duke is the direct descendant of the renowned Sir Harry Vane.

It is not generally known that Cardinal Newman early in life had some thoughts of devoting himself to a journalistic career. When he was a young man at Oxford, in anything but affluent circumstances, he made such an impression upon the directors of the Times by some letters on education which he contributed to that journal under the nom de plume, "Catholicus," that he was offered an engagement on their staff at a very handsome salary; £1,800 per annum is the figure that report says was mentioned. "Shall I be free," asked the young man, to whom this tempting offer was made, "to say what I think." The reply was in the negative.

Burton ale and gruel was what lately cured all Lady Chesterfield's cattle at Bretby of foot and mouth disease. The heir to Bretby is Lord Porchester, eldest son of Lord Carnarvon. His deceased mother was the only daughter of Lady Chesterfield. The famous Chesterfield House in London was sold by the late Lord, who died early of the fever which so nearly proved fatal to the Prince of Wales.

A very curious seal has been found on Wash-common, the scene of the first battle of Newbury, September 20, 1643, near the spot where the Falkland Memorial is erected. The seal is circular, and made of brass, measuring one inch and eight-tenths in diameter. It bears the device of a skeleton, with the surgeon's knife in the dexter hand, and an hour-glass on the sinister side. The legend with which it is inscribed is as follows:—"The Sosciety · and · Loyalty · of · Chyrvrgeons · Hall · London." This seal is supposed to have been used by the surgeons belonging to the Chirurgeons' Company of London, attached to the Royal Army at Newbury, and it was probably lost in the encounter.

A severe shock of earthquake has been experienced in the mining district of Teversal, in Nottinghamshire. In one of the pits belonging to the Stanton Iron Works Company the miners were so alarmed by the shock and the accompanying noise that, thinking an explosion had occurred, they rushed to the mouth of the pit. The clerks in the colliery office also experienced the shock; and Mrs. Clarke, wife of the managing director of the Company, hearing the rumbling noise, imagined that the wind, which was blowing strongly at the time, had damaged the roof of the house. In the Pear Tree Inn, Fackley, bricks were removed from the chimney, and a similar result was noticed in a house at Teversal. The station master at the latter village, while sitting in his house, was thrown from his seat by the shock, and a quantity of plaster was detached from the ceiling. There was no explosion in the mines or other circumstance which might account for the phenomenon, and from an upheaval of the floor of one of the pits it is clear that the cause of disturbance was below the workings. One of the pits is 430 yards deep.

Ornamental Planting.

BY WILLIAM C. BARRY.

[Extracts from an Essay Read at Dayton, O.]

One of the first and most important considerations connected with ornamental planting is thorough drainage of the soil. Few people are aware of the importance of this operation, and many gardens and grounds which have been planted at considerable expense afford little or no satisfaction, in consequence of lack of attention to this important work. Planters should understand that trees and plants cannot thrive in undrained soil, unless it is naturally dry, which is rarely the case.

Experience has taught those who have planted extensively and observed closely, that all trees and plants thrive best in a dry, deep, porous soil. The roots of such trees strike deeper, the stems grow stronger, and the young wood ripens up perfectly before the cold season sets in. It is of the greatest consequence that the young growth should ripen well, for if it does not, a severe Winter is certain to kill it back, as is the case generally, if not always, with trees and plants growing in undrained or wet land. The hardiest trees and shrubs will not root well in wet soil, and though they may live for a while, they go sooner or later. Conifers and half-hardy trees particularly cannot endure such treatment, and a dry Summer or a severe Winter quickly puts an end to their existence.

Deep drainage, while it carries off the superfluous moisture, so injurious in its results, has also the effect to render the soil warm, friable and porous, allowing it to be worked more thoroughly, and preventing injury from drouth. Cultivators have learned that well drained, deeply-worked land resists the drouth remarkably by absorbing all moisture in the air. Many are deterred from draining on account of the expense. Good tile drains, sunk three to four feet in the ground, and about twenty feet apart, with a good fall and proper outlet, can be made at a moderate expense. After draining, the soil should be well plowed and stirred to the depth of eighteen inches, and properly enriched.

ERRORS IN PLANTING.

The effects of judicious ornamental planting are greatly enhanced if the grounds are well laid out. In city and village gardens one of the mistakes most frequently committed is that of planting indiscriminately, leaving no breadth of turf, and destroying the lawn without realizing any effects from the plantings. If we look about us we shall see how often this occurs; yet it seems very strange that gentlemen who have spent thousands upon a house would be willing to sacrifice beautiful grounds by careless planting. The same attention and care which are bestowed upon the house should be devoted to the garden, in order that the house and its surroundings may present one harmonious whole. Another common error is that of planting trees which attain large size, in small lots. A tall elm or Norway spruce, or other large tree, is very much out of place on a small lawn. There is no excuse for errors of this kind, for there are numbers of trees of secondary size which can be employed with advantage.

WALKS AND DRIVES.

Walks and drives should be so constructed that a few moments after the heaviest shower we can go over them without the slightest inconvenience. If garden walks are not properly made with stones and a good coating of gravel, it will be necessary to deny ourselves the pleasure of many a ramble through the garden. Walks with graceful curves are on the whole most appropriate for small grounds. They lend a charm to the garden which straight walks do not. The walk from the street to the house must often, of necessity, be straight. This divides the lawn immediately in front into regular parts, requiring a certain style of formal planting, in order to preserve harmony. If, instead of a straight walk, a curved one be started at one side of the garden, the lawn will be irregularly divided, enabling another and more pleasing style of planting to be employed. The curves of the walk must be long and easy. It will sometimes require a good deal of labor to make the curves easy and pleasing. The walks should first be marked out with small stakes, and the curves must be arranged and re-arranged, until they are satisfactory to the eye. A proof of easy curves is the facility with which they may be traversed, either on foot or in a carriage. If the curves are abrupt and difficult the edges of the grass will suffer by being trampled upon, either by horses or foot passengers. Walks with curves are often badly designed, the curves being very difficult, thus spoiling the effect of good lawn planting. Straight walks, planted on either side with large growing trees, present a majestic appearance; on large, level grounds they may be introduced with fine results; but curved walks are best adapted to ornamental planting—being more natural.

THE LAWN.

Since the introduction of the lawn mower, the lawn has come to be regarded as the great feature of a garden. When it is well kept there is nothing more beautiful or pleasing than a broad, open space of turf, and in the planting and arranging of trees it should be our endeavor to keep the lawn as open as possible. This can be accomplished by arranging the trees and shrubs in borders or belts around the margin, with a fine specimen tree occasionally standing alone in a prominent position, where its beauties can be seen to the best advantage.

BORDERS AND SHRUBS.

Many gardens are too much exposed. It has recently become fashionable to remove fences, and grounds thus opened might as well be public property. There is no seclusion or privacy, and every movement about the garden can be observed. One of the charms of a garden is the air of seclusion which should prevail there. To secure that privacy which all who are fond of gardening certainly desire, we would suggest the planting of a border inside the fence. This border can be varied in depth, according to the size of the garden. It should be a little higher than the lawn, and the outer line should consist of graceful curves. In this border can be planted a variety of shrubs, dwarf conifer, hardy plants, etc., but no trees. The shrubs and conifers should be planted irregularly, from three to four feet apart—the taller ones nearest the fence, and the dwarf subjects near the margin. For a border six feet in depth I would suggest two rows of shrubs, the first consisting of the larger growing ones, like weigela, deutzia, forsythia, Japan quince, viburnum, cornus variegated, red dogwood, Tartarian honey-suckle, lance-leaved spiraea, syringa, althæa, calycanthus, plum-leaved spiraea, barberry, dwarf spruce, dwarf pine and juniper. For the second row, deutzia, gracilis, mazereon, pink, dwarf and golden-leaved syringa, tree peonies, dwarf double flowering almond, prunis triloba, dwarf weigela, fortune's dwarf, white spiraea, plumed hydrangea, spiraea thunbergi, juniper squamata and tamarisk-leaved juniper. The outer edge can be formed of funkias, dwarf phlox, Japan spiraea, evergreen candy-tuft, perennial flax, forget-me-not, lungwort, soapwort, sea pink, sweet violets. Between the shrubs near the front may be planted lilies, tall phlox, and occasionally a hollyhock.

All the shrubs and plants which I have named are perfectly hardy and if properly pruned can be kept of moderate size and good form. This selection will furnish a constant succession of bloom from early Spring till late in Autumn. The border should be lightly forked every Autumn, and all the plants contained in it will be much benefited thereby. In small gardens this border may be omitted altogether, and those who desire the gardens more exposed can instead of a fence plant a few shrubs irregularly—allowing the grass to grow quite closely around them. When fences have been removed along an entire street or avenue, the lines of each lot may be marked by planting shrubs in this way, relieving the lawn of that nakedness which would otherwise prevail. Shrubs grown in a cultivated border thrive much better that they do grown in grass, and the border is therefore preferable. Borders like the one above referred to may be formed at the sides of the garden, concealing division fences, if there be any. In these borders a great many varieties of shrubs may be employed, which during the Summer will afford an unlimited amount of pleasure. In the smallest garden this mode of planting may be adopted, leaving the centre of the lawn open without a single tree or shrub. Fine effects may be produced if neighbors would unite and form a double border instead of fences, planting the taller shrubs at the centre, and the smaller ones at the outside, varying the sky outline by the introduction of a tree at intervals. In these side borders it is always well to employ shrubs that will not become too large, though any shrub, by proper pruning, can be kept small. This is the great advantage we have in dealing with shrubs, and when we find that they become so large as to conceal too much, they can easily be cut back. While a certain amount of privacy is very desirable, it is not pleasant to be too much confined, and in arranging these borders this point must be kept in view.

In medium-sized places a few trees may be planted on the lawn. These should have a position at the side, rather than in front, as the view from the windows of the house should never be interfered with. Often only a single tree can be admitted—perhaps a handsome cut-leaved birch, oak-leaved mountain ash, purple beech, cut-leaved beech, Youngs' weeping birch, or weeping cherry. All of these form beautiful specimens, and if a little care is bestowed upon them, each one when it attains age will be a picture in itself, always attractive and pleasing. Sometimes shade is required, in which case it is necessary to plant large-growing trees within twenty feet of the house. I know of no tree which affords shade so quickly and withal is so handsome as the superb elm. Groups of dwarf conifers may be introduced on lawns, such as the dwarf Norway spruce, the lovely juniper, compact arbor vitæ, tamarisk-leaved juniper, dwarf pine and golden yew. All of these are hardy, and when planted three together irregularly, or in the shape of a triangle, from three to five feet apart, will in time look pretty. In small grounds it is difficult without seeing them to say where these groups should be located. The situation must be studied and nature imitated as far as possible. Thus far I have not referred to flower beds in lawns. It is a common practice to make beds of geraniums in the centre of a lawn. If the style of gardening which I have suggested be carried out, a flower bed of this kind would be out of place. Geraniums and other bedding plants may be employed to advantage close to the house, and can be cultivated either in beds or in borders. A fine border of mixed plants, consisting of tea roses, heliotrope, double feverfew with coleus and centaureas intermingled, presents a beautiful appearance, and is very useful for cut flowers. Being near the house they are easily accessible, and do not detract from the beauty of a lawn. The edges of groups and borders of shrubs are beautified by the use of such plants. We cannot admire great masses of geraniums, but employed as they should be they enliven a garden and may be considered indispensable.

GROUP OF SHRUBS.

So far my remarks have referred more particularly to small or medium-sized gardens, such as are usually seen in cities or villages. It is my intention now to say a few words on the grouping and massing of shrubs and trees, a mode of planting suited to large gardens and grounds. In the selection of trees and plants too much stress cannot be laid upon their being perfectly hardy. Half-hardy or tender trees frequently give great dissatisfaction. Besides, the list of perfectly hardy trees and shrubs is so large that there is no necessity of using tender trees or shrubs, or those which have not been fully tested. For all sections of our country I know of nothing which will give more satisfaction than hardy deciduous ornamental trees and shrubs and a few conifers. The northern climate is so severe that many of the finest conifers, being tender, cannot be employed. With extra care and protection they may live for a time, but not long. After considerable experience with half-hardy trees and shrubs I have come to the conclusion that planters who are unwilling to give such subjects extra care had better not introduce them to their grounds. All those who live in cold climates and plant tender stock run considerable risk. It therefore becomes necessary for those living in severe climates to make use of such trees and plants only as are capable of resisting great cold. There is no lack of this class of trees, and if planted judiciously every desirable effect may be realized, just as well as if the most expensive and unreliable half-hardy conifer or shrub were used.

Groups of shrubs are well adapted to place in the hollows of the curves of walks. Masses of shrubbery thus arranged impart a variety to the landscape and are in imitation of nature. In placing groups upon the lawn care must be taken not to interfere with the view from the windows of the house, as it is from this point that pictures in our garden will be most frequently inspected. It should be our aim to form pleasing views from all of the principal windows, and if this object is kept in view from the outset, many serious errors will be averted. To group shrubs so that they may appear natural and informal is somewhat difficult. Stiff groups have an artificial appearance, never please the eye, and the effect is always unsatisfactory. Their outlines should be irregular, with swells and projections, not round and regular, as such masses frequently are. It is customary to give masses a circular or oval shape, with the tallest plants in the centre and the dwarfer ones at the outside. Extreme regularity of outline is thus attained, a result quite the contrary of that which ought to be aimed at. We should attempt to copy nature, making the groups resemble some natural ones which we have no doubt seen. While the taller shrubs should form the centre of the shrubbery, it will often be necessary to produce irregularity by planting them at intervals near the edges among the dwarfer subjects, thus producing an uneven sky outline. The bolder projections and swells should have the larger shrubs, while the smaller and narrower parts should be planted with the lower growing shrubs, thus balancing nicely the various portions of a group. Single specimen trees will form a valuable adjunct to such a group when placed at its salient points. A number of desirable lawn trees can thus be employed without interfering with the open lawn and the views across it. There are some shrubs which, on account of their peculiar foliage, are especially valuable in groups.

PRUNING OF SHRUBS.

Many persons trim and shear them into regular shapes, imagining that regular outline adds to their effect and beauty. While symmetry and regularity of form are to be admired in a shrub, this quality should never be gained at the expense of health and natural grace. Each shrub has peculiarities of habit and foliage, and we should aim to preserve them as far as possible. Judicious pruning, to secure health and vigor, is necessary; but trimming all kinds of shrubs into one form shows a lack of appreciation for natural beauty, to say the least. Weigelas, Deutzias, Forsythias and mock orange flower on the wood of the preceding year's growth, hence these shrubs should not be pruned in Winter or Spring, but in June, after they have finished flowering, when the old wood should be shortened or cut out, thus promoting the growth of the young wood, which is to flower the following season.—Ill. Cultivator.

EXHIBITION 1881.

Having been awarded Eight First Prizes and Diplomas of Honor at the Dominion Exhibition, Montreal, 1880, for my Instruments, which have thus been proclaimed superior to all others, I propose this year remaining Hors Concours, and holding an Exhibition of Pianos and Organs at My Piano Rooms, to which my friends and the Musical Public are respectfully invited.

I shall have in Stock from 75 to 80 American, Canadian and European Pianos and Organs, selected with great care, and at greatly reduced prices for the occasion.

Intending purchasers would do well to profit by this favorable opportunity to secure a First-class Piano or Organ at a great reduction. One Price Only!

PROVINCE OF QUEBEC, DISTRICT OF MONTREAL.—IN THE SUPERIOR COURT FOR LOWER CANADA.—No. 1,252.—The Ninth day of September, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one.—Present: The Honorable Mr. Justice TORRANCE.—The Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada, a body politic corporate, having its principal office in the City and District of Montreal, Plaintiffs, vs. Dame Mary Jane McCormack, wife separated as to property of Joseph H. Nichols, Broker, of the same place, and the latter to authorize his said wife to these presents, Defendants.—It is ordered, on the motion of Messrs. Duhamel & Rainville, of Counsel for the Plaintiffs, in as much as it appears by the return of Adrien Lavigueur, one of the bailiffs of the Superior Court, on the writ of summons in this cause issued, written, that the Defendants have left their domicile in the Province of Quebec, in Canada, and cannot be found in the District of Montreal, that the said Defendants, by an advertisement to be twice inserted in the French language, in the newspaper of the city of Montreal, called La Patrie, and twice in the English language in the newspaper of the said city, called THE STAR, be notified to appear before this Court, and there to answer the demand of the Plaintiffs within two months after the last insertion of such advertisement, and that upon the neglect of the said Defendants to appear and to answer to such demand within the period aforesaid, the said Plaintiffs will be permitted to proceed to trial and judgment as in a cause by default.
