Israel threatens to stop supply convoys

Israel reported that its air and ground forces shot down three Egyptian helicopters over the southwest coast of the Sinai peninsula early today.

The Israelis had hinted earlier that Egyptian violations of the ceasefire could endanger the United Nations supply convoys that Sunday began moving to Egyptian troops and civilians trapped behind the Israeli lines. But the communique reporting the helicopter incident said nothing about suspending the convoys in retaliation.

The Israeli command said its jet fighters were sent up to intercept the Egyptian helicopters over an Israeli position a few miles south of the Egyptian 3rd Army, encircled on the Sinai side of the Suez canal. The communique said the planes hit two of the helicopters and anti-aircraft gunners brought down a third.

The Israelis did not say whether there were other helicopters that escaped or what they believed the purpose of the flight was.

On the west side of the canal Sunday, 100 Egyptian trucks with UN drivers began passing through the Israeli lines 60 miles from Cairo with food, water and medical supplies for the 3rd Army and the thousands of civilians trapped in Suez, the Egyptian town at the southern end of the canal.

The first convoy of 10 trucks is reported to have reached the canal by midnight, but a UN spokesman in Jerusalem said at 7 a.m. that he had no word that it had crossed to the Egyptian troops on the east side.

CONVOY GOES TO SUEZ

Another convoy of 10 trucks pulled into Suez, where Israeli soldiers said there were 15,000 civilians.

The Israelis said Sunday that Egyptian artillery opened up on the first convoys, apparently by mistake. There were no casualties.

Advance units of the UN peacekeeping force also arrived at Suez and Ismailia and began making arrangements to bring in larger units to police the ceasefire. Of the 600 troops sent to Egypt temporarily from the UN peacekeeping force in Cyprus, the 200 Finnish troops were to be based in Suez, the 200 Swedes at Ismailia, which is at the midpoint of the canal, and the 200 Austrians will remain in Cairo as a reserve force, a UN spokesman there said.

UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim hopes to complete the recruiting of the new Middle East force of 7,000 men from 10 to 15 countries by Tuesday or Wednesday, a UN spokesman in New York reported. He said the first of these troops should arrive by next weekend.

Canada to keep peace

with military experts in the UN Secretariat.

The discussions are expected to resume today. The Canadian group, including five experts from the defence department and one from the external affairs department, may return to Ottawa sometime later today.

Sharp said in a statement Canada has been asked to provide "the logistic component of the force including, in particular, air support, transport communications and related logistic facilities."

A Canadian armed forces spokesman said a support force of between 1,500 and 2,000 men would be needed for a 7,000 man force but it was not known whether Canada is being asked to supply all the support force.

Israel, meanwhile, complained to UN observers of an Egyptian ceasefire violation for the first time since the truce was first proclaimed a week ago. The Israelis charged that an Egyptian commando platoon slipped across the Suez canal and attacked Israeli forces north of the town of Suez.

The Israeli command said the attack was repulsed, but it added that the sporadic fighting threatened to disrupt the supply convoys to the encircled Egyptians. This was taken in Tel Aviv as a threat to block future convoys if there were more Egyptian attacks.

"Every night there is firing—small arms firing—but it's nothing," a Swedish UN truce observer told Associated Press correspondent Edith M. Lederer at the ceasefire line on the Cairo-Suez road.

Bitter debate expected

House to discuss foreign investment

OTTAWA (CP)—MPs soon begin what could be a long, hard, and even bitter struggle when proposed foreign investment review legislation returns to the Commons for more debate this week.

The House must decide on the merits of 10 proposed amendments to the bill before it even starts final-reading debate. The bill would control takeovers of Canadian companies and screen expansion of foreign interests already here.

Government House Leader Allan MacEachen said Thursday that third-reading debate on the bill "would take us well into next week." Many MPs regard that as an understatement.

The bill also faces possible amendment in the Senate. The banking committee there began perusal of it last May.

Senator Saiter Hayden tabled a senate committee report on the bill about two months later. The report had some strong criticism of the proposed legislation. The report also contained more than 30 recommendations for amendments.

Should the Senate attempt amendments, the bill would have to be returned to the Commons for further approval—and more battles—before finally becoming law.

There would be no appeal of a decision by the foreign investment review board—a body of 15 to 20 officers which would be established by the bill.

The amendments would:

- Give first option to purchase a portion of foreign-owned firms to the Canada Development Corporation.
- Provide for foreign-ownership consultation with the province in which the investment takes place.
- Take into account provincial unemployment rates.
- Make public the decision of the review board within two weeks.
- Increase the fines and prison terms the bill proposes for non-compliance.

Cox testimony today

WASHINGTON (CP)—Archibald Cox, fired as special Watergate prosecutor, appears before the Senate judiciary committee today as lead-off witness at hearings into his ouster.

Meanwhile, the Nixon administration prepared to appoint a new special prosecutor despite a strong warning that a Nixon appointee would be rejected by Congress.

Congress this week will consider whether to pass a bill directing the courts to name a prosecutor who would be independent of the White House and not subject to dismissal by the president.

More than half of the Senate has taken the view that the courts and not the president should appoint a successor to Cox, fired by Nixon because he refused to abandon his court battle to seek Watergate-related

White House tapes.

Cox said in a television interview Sunday he had the impression some people in the White House had been troubled by the direction his investigation was taking.

He also supported the movement in Congress to appoint a new prosecutor who would not be subject to the restraints Nixon has said he will place on his choice.

Museum society

LENNOXVILLE — The regular monthly meeting of the Lennoxville Ascot Historical and Museum Society was held in Douglas Hall of the United Church. The president, Mr. W.S. Richardson, opened the meeting with an expression of sorrow on the death of a valuable member, Mr. John French.

A letter was read from Dr. Dennis Healy, principal of Bishop's University, thanking the society for a gift of money towards the Laurie Allison Memorial Fund.

Mr. Nelson Andrews reported that the following cemeteries had been listed during the summer: Gallup Hill Cemetery by Francis Paige, Trout Brook Cemetery by John Philbrick, St. Saviour Cemetery by Crystal Dapp, Ulverton Cemetery by Gordon Smith, Vail Cemetery by Norman Beach and Spooner Pond Cemetery, Husk Cemetery, Albert Mines Cemetery, Moe's River Cemetery by Nelson Andrews. 42 cemeteries are now on file.

The books bought in memory of Mr. Bartley Holtham have been suitably inscribed by Miss K. Atto and were laid on the table to be viewed by the members.

A pamphlet prepared for the unveiling of the town monument on Dec. 16, 1923, was presented to the society, a gift from Miss E.F. Molony.

Miss Geraldine Lane and Mr. Ronald Lane made a gift to the society of the original warrant by which Thomas Allen Stayner, Deputy Postmaster general of the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, appointed Elijah Warren as Deputy Postmaster of Lennoxville, Lower Canada, 1832. Elijah Warren was authorized to keep 20 per cent of the produce of this office.

Mr. Ralph Broadhurst, secretary-treasurer of the Township of Ascot for many years, addressed the meeting on the subject: Ascot, past and present. By means of many maps and minute books dating from 1830, a vivid picture was given of the change in the township from a rural area of some 80,000 acres to a residential municipality of some 5000 souls.

A question period followed during which many details were discussed.

Thanks of the members to Mr. Broadhurst were voiced by Mr. Gerald Frost.

Champlain board names new member

By MICHAEL ISAACS
Record Reporter

ST. LAMBERT — Gordon MacMillan, director of the technical-vocational program at the Eastern Townships Regional School Board, was named to the board of governors of Champlain Regional College at a meeting of the board here Friday night.

MacMillan was named to succeed Edward Perry in the seat which the latter was to hold until April 1974. Perry, former director-general of the Eastern Townships Regional School Board, and one of the five founding members of Champlain Regional College, had recommended MacMillan as a replacement.

Of the nine members of the board who attended the meeting only one dissented in the vote which appointed MacMillan.

Champlain's board, which numbers 19 members when it has every position filled, has been beset by resignations in recent months and now numbers only 13 members.

In other business, the board adopted by a seven to one vote a resolution which read: "This council recommends that the two assistant campus directors, academic, (on the Lennoxville and St. Lambert campuses) be classified as cadre personnel, and that the assistant campus directors, community, if they must be classified as professional personnel, be recognized by the board as executive personnel on the campuses, and that these personnel be changed to cadre before any other new cadre positions are filled at Champlain Regional College."

The cause for this resolution is the fact that the college's director-general, Fred Turley, has been unable to persuade DIGEC (The collegial branch of the department of education) that the college has need for more than the stipulated norm of 11 cadre positions.

As a consequence, and in order to meet the norms supplied by DIGEC, the board decided to reclassify the assistant campus directors, community, and thereby make room for the hiring of two assistant campus directors, academic.

The 'community' positions are those of directors of student services while the 'academic' positions are equivalent to academic deans. According to DIGEC, both positions are cadre; therefore, in order to reclassify the assistant campus directors, community, the college will be obliged to change the names of their jobs and, with the change in name, their job descriptions.

The explanation of the clause that reads that the persons reclassified "be recognized by the board as executive personnel" is that cadre positions are members of the administrative hierarchy while professional personnel are not charged with the same degree of authority.

With regard to the college's efforts to find a new director-general to succeed Fred Turley, it was announced to the board by Turley, as chairman of the executive committee, that the decision had not yet reached a decision on the possible composition of a selection committee.

He informed the board that the executive would be holding a special meeting on November 6 on that subject and would be prepared to present a proposal to the next board of governors meeting on December 7.

Turley announced through letter at the last meeting of the board that he would not seek reappointment for a second three-year term as director-general of the college because he "felt that (he) had successfully fulfilled the mandate given (to him) in 1971." His term is due to expire in May 1974.

The board also decided to make presentation to DIGEC for technology program offerings to begin in September 1974. The programs which the college hopes to offer include the third year of the special education and library technology programs at the Lennoxville campus, the third year of the marketing program and a two-year program in retailing at the St. Lawrence-Quebec City campus, the third year of the insurance and finance programs at the St. Lambert campus.

NORTH HATLEY — The Townships Playhouse Guild, presenting summer theatre at the Piggery here, netted their first production profits this season, Beverly Symons, the guild's producer said.

Profits made this year will pay off a bank loan extending from the previous season. The remainder will be used to recast the theatre's roof and renovate its interior, she said.

The guild incurred a debt in the previous season while producing a festival performed by La Poudriere, a Montreal acting group. The entire production was presented by the guild this year, Miss Symons said.

The guild presented three English-language and one French-language play this season. The three English plays were written by Noel Coward.

Attendance figures were: Private Lives, 1,885; Song at Twilight, 1,308 and Blithe Spirit, 2,076. The total attendance at the English plays was 5,268. The French production, La Coupe Stainless, drew 1,936. The season's total attendance was 7,204.

"The inaugural season was a great success both financially and as a solid foundation for the continuation of summer theatre at the Piggery," said Miss Symons.

The secretary of state, in addition to an original grant of $8,000, offered to donate an extra $4,000 to the Piggery should the theatre be able to match that amount through local donations. It was awarded in July, she said.

when about $4,700 had been raised locally.

Some 200 surveys asking what form of plays should be presented the next year were completed by audiences during the last week of Blithe Spirit, she said. The results were unanimously in favor of continuing in the same type of play or perhaps branching into musicals, Miss Symons said.

In addition to a roof coating, the theatre underwent other renovations, she said. The outside platforms have been sturdy and new railings have been built. New screens have been installed and ways of obtaining better air circulation are presently under study.

Miss Symons, producer of the Noel Coward Festival, has been re-hired for the next year.

Combustion employees accept latest offer

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Many employees still remain discontent as Combustion Engineering-Superheater of Sherbrooke re-opened its doors over the weekend.

Many employees began to return to work this morning with the rest expected to report back on the job Tuesday. A company spokesman said Sunday the whole operation could return to normal by the end of the week.

The employees, at a meeting held Saturday afternoon in the Notre-Dame-du-Rosiere church hall, voted by a slim margin to end their strike which had begun August 17 with a walk-out.

The 11-week-old work stoppage was ended when the 279 employees present at the meeting voted 54 percent in favor of accepting the latest company offer.

However, some employees are still discontent because only 270 of the 435 unionized employees were on hand to vote.

Details of the contract were not released but a company spokesman estimated the terms called for a raise of less than 20 per cent over the duration of the contract.

The company's final offer was hammered out last Wednesday at a meeting with the union's negotiating team.

After the vote Saturday the picket line was torn down. Sherbrooke firemen were called to the plant late Saturday night when the strike 'shack', situated outside the company fence, was set on fire.

According to company sources the employees did not receive much more than offered by the company before the strike. The contract calls for reduced working hours.

The company also guaranteed that no employee would lose his job during the contract due to work given to sub-contractors.

ET voters go to the polls

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Many of the Eastern Townships 331,157 eligible voters have already headed to the polls to elect MNAs in 11 ridings.

They are amongst the 3,762,709 eligible voters in 110 ridings across Quebec in the provincial elections. The campaign, the shortest in Quebec's history, came to a halt Sunday night.

Polls throughout the region opened at 9 a.m. and will remain so until 7 p.m. tonight. Candidates will be awaiting results at campaign headquarters.

As candidates await the decision of the electorate today party workers are busy trying to get as many people as possible to the polls. Baby-sitting services and car pool teams are operating in all counties.

Chief returning officers in the different ridings hope nothing out of the ordinary will take place today but still are not taking any chances. Guards and policemen are situated in each polling station.

Most of the polls are situated in schools or churches. All schools are closed for the day as well as government offices and services.

Companies must allow their employees to leave at 3 p.m. in conformity with election laws which state that employers must give employees at least four hours to vote.

No candidate in the ridings of Drummond, Arthabaska, Brome-Missisquoi, Frontenac, Johnson, Megantic-Compton, Orford, Richmond, Saint-Francois, Shefford and Sherbrooke is heavily favored to win his seat.

Major redistribution of election riding boundaries in addition to a first-time vote for the 18 to 21-year-old group have made predictions difficult.

Polls have shown that a great many voters were still undecided over the weekend. With the Liberals and the Creditistes expected to run neck and neck in the rural ridings and a close race expected between the Liberals and the Parti Quebecois candidates in the urban ridings, any candidate could win a given riding.

Over the weekend candidates were seen throughout the region meeting with voters and putting a last touch to their campaigns. Radio stations broadcast a continual stream of political announcements and newspapers were filled with candidates' advertisements.

Saturday on a television program hosted by Tele-7, the four political leaders faced a press conference during a one and a half hour special.

Liberal leader Robert Bourassa urged voters to cast their ballot against an "adventure" and to support his party if they were seeking "prosperity and continued progress."

Basing his talk on economics Mr. Bourassa outlined the success of his party in that field and urged voters to allow the Liberals to govern again.

Gabriel Loubier, leader of the Union Nationale party, closed a copy of his party's program as he pleaded with voters to "vote for the UN."

"We have a nationalistic, positive and realistic program for Quebec," he said. "If you are looking for a party between the stagnation of the Liberals and the independence stand of the pequistes, vote for us."

Rene Levesque, in an emotional speech, requested voters to give his party a chance. Not attempting to outline his party platform because he said voters should know it by now, Levesque talked of a Quebec developing the talents and the resources of its citizens.

Yvon Dupuis, on the other hand, had little to say about his party's platform. Instead he spent most of his time attacking the press for poor coverage of the Creditiste party.

The rest was spent blasting the media for not organizing a debate between the four leaders.

School scene

Film showing

LENOXVILLE (GH) — A film, primarily produced in Peru and Mexico disclosing archeological evidences supporting the Book of Mormon will be shown Monday, Nov. 5 at Bishop's University at 7 p.m. in the Day Students Lounge.

The session, sponsored by missionaries of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Later Day Saints, will also include a color slide presentation. The public is invited to attend.

During the film, resemblances of descriptions and events as described in the Book of Mormon will be compared with oral traditions and legends told among the Indian tribes of the area today, a church representative said.

Scholars and archeologists have been unable to fully explain the origins of the once-mighty Incan Aztec and Mayan civilizations, he said.

The church claims their writings, customs and architecture are remarkably similar to those of the Old World. They say evidences of Christian practices and beliefs have been recognized among these ancient peoples.

Who were these people? Where did they come from? Why did the great cultures and powerful civilizations they developed flourish so rapidly and disappear as suddenly?

Answers to these questions will be aired during the presentation.

Tax exemptions

Finance Minister Turner's plan to increase income tax exemptions 6.6 per cent in response to cost of living rises is said to be "designed to offset the effects of continued inflation."

That phrase sums up the federal government's failure to deal with inflation in any real way. Apparently it has given up hope of actually curbing inflation; it is content now to "offset the income tax collection indexing provision that was part of the budget last February."

The trouble with that policy is that more spending power fuels more inflation; it's like trying to put out a fire with gasoline. The Bank of Canada has been trying for months, by pushing up the interest rate, to slow down credit-based purchasing.

Meanwhile Parliament has been devising ways to hand out odd lots of cash, much of it to people who are hardly in the grip of privation.

Ignoring for a moment the fact that Mr. Turner's plan is economic nonsense, it remains to be said that even in its own terms the policy is a failure: it returns most money to people who need it least. A married man with two children and a $4,000 income will get $7 worth of tax relief; one with a $50,000 income will get $481.

A middle-income family of four whose breadwinner brings home $8,000 a year will get a $73 tax cut. That's less than $1.50 a week, and the family food budget alone will have increased by more than that in a year. So much for "offsetting inflation."

In individual terms the index, which will change tax brackets and exemptions each year from 1974 on, will merely complicate an already difficult tax system.

The increased spending power Mr. Turner is putting in the hands of the consumers will do little good in individual households, but it seems capable of doing significant harm when it all flows into the economy. The same can be said of increased family allowances.

Mr. Turner, with his claim that inflation is caused by circumstances beyond Canada's borders, has come close to abdication of responsibility for the national economy. Handing out money is all very well, politically, but is expected of government that it will try to assure the purchasing power of that money.

Peace prize

The announcement that the 1973 Nobel Peace Prize will be awarded to Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho is astounding.

It is only explicable in terms of the world's vast collective relief at the withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam and the partial lifting, in that part of the world, at least, of the threat of war between major powers.

But it is hypocrisy to bestow so illustrious an award upon the U.S. and North Vietnamese diplomats who hammered out a negotiated settlement primarily to permit both nations to get out of the mess they themselves created.

Since when has the Nobel Peace Prize been given to the emissaries of nations who, in their own best interests, cease to pound away at each other?

The next logical step would be for governments to financially reward — and give medals to — muggers who decide to stop mugging, or impaired drivers who sober up.

The Nobel Committee shouldn't have dipped its fingers into Vietnam at all. American troops might have withdrawn, but nobody can say that war is over.

Now we have combatants who shrewdly concluded that their personal battle wasn't getting either of them anywhere, added to a list of Nobel Peace Prize winners that includes British and American Quaker organizations, Dr. Ralph Bunche, Dr. Albert Schweitzer, the United Nations High Commission for Refugees, Lester B. Pearson, the International Red Cross, Dag Hammarskjöld, Martin Luther King, UNICEF and Willy Brandt.

Eighteen times since 1914 the committee has decided that no individual or organization had done enough to warrant a peace prize that year. If Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho came out on top this year over forty-five other accepted nominees, the committee would have done better to make it nineteen.

Opinion from the French press

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Montreal La Presse: There seems to be no doubt that the Canadian mission to the People's Republic of China was a success. The trip by Prime Minister Trudeau was carefully prepared.

In this regard, Jeanne Sauve, minister of science, should be satisfied. A good ambassador, she prepared some of the agreements which were announced by the prime minister.

Although Canada was not the first democracy to recognize modern China—in this matter we were not among the first—the fault cannot be attributed in any way to Mr. Trudeau.

Once it was in his power to act, he took all necessary steps which China's existence had demanded for some time.

On the Chinese side, some of the sympathy which Canadians appear to benefit from comes perhaps from the similarities in the respective situations of our two countries.

The great Sino-Soviet controversy has not abated and the Chinese feel they live under the constant threat of Russian arms.

The improvement in relations with the United States has not turned that country into one of China's unconditional allies.

The result is that the country lives between two well-armed giants. This is a situation which Canada can easily understand, but which does not distinguish it from any other country (notably those in Europe) who reject the hegemony of the two super-giants. —Guy Cormier (Oct. 18).

Quebec Le Soleil: Quebec is drawing closer to the moment of truth. This is what one can call the Oct. 29 election. It is not just the election of a government for the next four years.

Something more important than the choice of a team is at stake since the results of the voting could determine the future of Canada and Quebec, according to whether the population decides more or less in favor of the status quo or leans towards the prophets of separatism.

The last week before the election must be one of reflection for all Quebec citizens who, before making a definite choice, are under the obligation to inform themselves about the programs of each party, the value of the men who are vying for the honor of representing them in the National Assembly and the realism or fantasy behind the promises they are making.

This has been a short electoral campaign, but one which has allowed the leaders of the four main parties to come into contact with a great many people and to present their programs and objectives.

The next few days will see a more frenzied and tenacious effort aimed at attracting the attention of those who have not as yet made up their minds. —Raymond Dube (Oct. 22).

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: The election campaign is entering its final phase.

Since the announcement of the election, observers agreed we would see a difficult campaign, even a mud-slinging campaign.

Premier Robert Bourassa launched an attack from the beginning, reserving his best barbs for the Parti Quebecois.

But this party, following a line of action which surprised its adversaries, seems to want to avoid all major confrontations, contenting itself rather with presenting a reassuring image.

With the presentation of its budget for an independent Quebec, the Parti Quebecois is giving the impression of not wanting to change anything. Non-political financial experts have even spoken of it as a classic budget.

The Liberal party, which doubtless counted enormously upon this famous document as a basis for its attack, now must look elsewhere if it wants to find a motive for scaring the voters.

The Union Nationale and the Creditiste party, after a slow start, have intensified the battle in recent days, attacking in particular the Parti Quebecois and its budget for Quebec independence.

It is desirable that Quebecers do not emerge divided from whoever wins the public's favor on Oct. 29. We must continue to live together for better or for worse. —Sylvio Saint-Amant (Oct. 15).

Ottawa Le Droit: For some immigrants, some of them new arrivals and others long-time residents, it is simply not a question of adapting or integrating. It is not they who must adapt to Canada but Canada which must adapt to them.

The majority of them simply turn their backs on Canada's dual cultural heritage. Above all they reject the French part of this cultural dualism.

Canada can be bilingual but its bilingualism must be English and their own language. On this point, the most adamant are the Ukrainians and other later new arrivals follow their lead.

Having misunderstood the federal multiculturalism policies, they claim the right for instruction in their own language if the language of instruction in their area is not their own.

In Ontario, the right for secondary schooling in French has only been recognized in the last five years.

During this time, in Ontario and elsewhere in Canada, immigrants, who are neither French — nor English-speaking, want to claim rights for their language which still are under dispute with regards to the French language.

To these unadaptable, discontented sowers of discord, one can always say go back where you came from. One can also ask them how the government of the country they came from would act if they came from —Marcel for official status for their mother tongue.

One can point out to them that their brothers who emigrated to the United States rather than Canada must be happy with only one language, when here they have a choice between two.

During heated debates on the flag or the national anthem, the most stubborn adversaries of such proposed legislation are always found among newcomers.

Faced with these facts, it is necessary more than ever to force immigrants arriving in Quebec to integrate into the French community, all except for the British, that is, who must be obliged to learn French just as English is obligatory for those who settle in other parts of Canada.

If the newcomers cannot accept this system, they are always free to return where they came from. —Marcel Gingras, (Oct. 19).

Electric rail?

CALGARY (CP) — Canadian Pacific Railway, studying the feasibility of electrification for the fifth time in its history, says it is only a matter of time before electric locomotives replace diesel-electric units.

CP Rail first considered electrifying its locomotives in 1895. Other feasibility studies followed in 1911, 1915 and 1924 but for one reason or another the railway never got wired to the idea.

Changing conditions and technological breakthroughs now have made electrification more attractive.

Laurie Tufts, CP Rail's supervisor of research engineering, says electric locomotives are far more powerful than diesel-electric ones-up to 10,000 horsepower compared with 4,000 for diesel-electric. Tests show electric locomotives could achieve traction levels 50 per cent higher than the locomotives now used by CP Rail.

Electric locomotives could be in service for 30 years, almost double the normal life of diesel-electric locomotives, and require less maintenance.

Mr. Tufts said Canada is developing the traffic density required to make electrification cost-efficient. Electrification needs heavy investments—an estimated $150 million to electrify the Calgary-Vancouver run, which may be one of the first sections to be electrified should CP Rail decide to go ahead.

"As diesel locomotive operators, we are the prisoners of a single fuel—oil," says Keith Campbell, Canadian Pacific's corporate vice-president in charge of rail operations.

"It is a fuel that is fast becoming a pawn on the chessboard of international politics."

With electrification oil would still be required, but coal, natural gas, hydro power and nuclear energy could also be used, giving the railway flexibility in time of need.

The economic and traffic aspects of the current electrification study were completed in 1971. CP Rail says electrification "could be feasible" for 640 miles of main line between Calgary and Vancouver, and 220 miles between Golden, B.C., and Sparwood in the Crows Nest Pass.

"This is the area which can benefit most from electrification because it is experiencing the fastest traffic growth rate and because of the special tractive advantages of electrically-powered locomotives in mountainous regions."

The site selected for a pilot project of the study is Ross Peak near Revelstoke, B.C., an area where the annual snowfall frequently exceeds 500 inches and snowdrifts are common.

A one-quarter-mile-long section of overhead catenary—the electrical wiring structure that would transmit power from plants to electric locomotives—has been constructed at Ross Peak. The test section is equipped with functional hardware, but is not being energized.

"We fully expect to have difficulty with the equipment because of the weather," says Robert Klein, CP Rail's director of technical research and development.

"But this is precisely why we chose this area. These would be the most difficult conditions we would encounter in the eventuality of electrification. Should we decide to proceed, it will be valuable to have experience in wintertime repair and maintenance of the catenary."

With all its advantages, what's stopping electrification? "A cost of perhaps $50,000 per track mile is a reason that speaks for itself in any investment analysis," says Mr. Campbell.

"I do not suppose that there is any major railroad in North America which could generate funds from internal sources at a sufficient rate to convert itself to electric traction within a decade without substantial injections of external funds."

As a multi-faceted corporation, Canadian Pacific also has to weigh all its rail operations against other interests. Since it has waited almost 80 years, it does not mind waiting a little longer before making the decision on electrification.

The current feasibility study is the most sustained by CP Rail. Feasibility studies have also started on two other sections of the railway—420 miles of mainline between Winnipeg and Thunder Bay, and 340 miles between Toronto and Montreal.

"The Winnipeg-Thunder Bay and Toronto-Montreal studies are in their very preliminary stage," Mr. Tufts says. "Both sections are experiencing traffic growth, although not as fast as the section between Calgary and Vancouver."

The dimensions of Canada and her relatively small population were two reasons Canada has not capitalized on electric locomotives the way they have been used in Europe and Japan. "In countries such as Switzerland, where there is dense traffic on a mountainous railway system, electrification was natural from the start," says Mr. Campbell.

Availability of indigenous oil at competitive prices in North America during the 1930s also influenced the railway to switch to diesel locomotives from steam locomotives, rather than to electric locomotives.

In 1971, CP Rail conducted electric locomotive tests in Norway and Switzerland under mountainous track conditions resembling those in Canada.

Even when CP Rail decides on electrification, a complete changeover would take a long time.

"When we do our planning, we think 15 years ahead," Mr. Tufts said.

Mixed feeling about housing

OTTAWA (CP) — High interest rates are slowing galloping home prices to a canter in some large cities.

But the news is unlikely to cheer prospective home-buyers who still find that single-family houses are out of their reach.

It's like telling a patient he is dying of cancer, not heart failure.

Middle-income earners hoping to buy a house for the first time are squeezed by soaring interest rates and purchase prices and are being pushed out of the market.

Some housing experts predict another boom in demand as soon as mortgage rates start dropping again. So the "housing crisis" for those seeking single-family homes remains.

The situation varies across the country but in all large cities house prices are up considerably from last year. They have been rising steadily since the mid-1960s but the increase has been sharper this year.

Statistics Canada reports that shelter costs rose 7.2 per cent between July, 1972, and July, 1973, the largest increase in four years.

INCOMES HIGHER

Incomes rose 12.5 per cent in the same period, much faster than shelter costs. But shelter figures include apartment rents, which have risen less rapidly than single-family house costs.

In addition, the shelter figure does not separate urban from rural costs. The crisis in housing prices is considered more severe in cities than in rural areas.

For example, the average cost of houses sold in Vancouver under the multiple listing service jumped to $39,400 in July from $33,000 in January. This is a boost of 19.4 per cent in seven months.

A spokesman for the Greater Vancouver Real Estate Board said these figures are probably low because most higher-cost homes are sold under exclusive listing by one real estate agency rather than the multiple listing service.

Multiple listing allows a homeowner to list his home for sale through a number of real estate agencies at the same time. The service is operated across Canada by 74 local real estate boards.

Sales through the service account for about 35 per cent of the residential market and include some commercial properties.

REPORT RISES

Vancouver is one of the three or four hardest-hit cities in Canada. But, all major cities surveyed by The Canadian Press reported large price increases this year.

The Toronto Real Estate

Board said in late August that the average price of houses sold under multiple listing increased by only $99 in August compared with increases of $1,317 in July and $2,190 in June.

However, the average price of houses sold in Metropolitan Toronto was $38,603 in the first eight months of 1973, up from $32,513 at the end of 1972. That is an 18.4-per-cent rise.

The board said steady increases in mortgage rates have helped bring about more "realistic pricing" of houses.

But a one-per-cent climb in mortgage rates between April and August discouraged many middle-income earners from buying at a time when prices are levelling off.

A sampling across Canada reveals much the same story everywhere.

Multiple listing figures comparing the first six months of 1973 with the same period last year show an average price increase of 1.7 per cent in Halifax, 6.8 per cent in Saint John, N.B., 3.1 per cent in Ottawa, 23.6 per cent in Toronto, four per cent in Winnipeg, 18.5 per cent in Regina, 10.2 per cent in Edmonton and 28.9 per cent in Vancouver.

In some cities real estate agents claim price changes have actually been greater since multiple listing figures do not include all house sales.

SHORT OF DEMAND

A major reason for rising prices almost everywhere is a shortage of single-family homes to meet demand.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. has been reporting a steadily declining number of newly-completed unoccupied units despite housing construction at record levels.

Canadian Real Estate Association statistics indicate that houses are being sold more quickly now than they were three years ago. The 1970 ratio under the multiple-listings service was 3.3 listings to each sale but that was cut to 1.8 in the first half of 1973.

The vacancy rate is low in most cities. It is 1.7 per cent of all housing in Halifax, less than two per cent in Toronto and about the same in Ottawa.

The apartment vacancy rate in Winnipeg is about 3.9 per cent but less than one per cent in Vancouver. A rate of 3.4 per cent is considered adequate.

Why have housing prices raced out of control? There are dozens of reasons, local and national, including some outside the control of Canadians.

Together they have helped create a climate of frustration among potential home-buyers

Bradley-Brown wed

SCOTSTOWN — On Saturday, Oct. 20, 1973, the marriage of Trudy Lynn, daughter of Mrs. W.H.R. Bradley and the late Major W.H.R. Bradley, and David E. Brown of Guildford, Surrey, England, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Brown of Sark, Channel Islands, took place quietly at the home of the bride's mother at 1240 Pebble Road in Ottawa, Ont., the Reverend John Hartley of Trinity United Church officiating. The rooms were tastefully decorated with bronze and white mums, and the dining room was transformed into a chapel with tall standards of white mums and white tapers. Suitable recorded music was provided by Mr. Art Mumford, and Ave Maria was played during the signing of the register. The bride entered the room on the arm of her uncle, Mr. R.A. MacAulay of Toronto, Ontario. For the occasion she chose a paleblue floor-length gown of double knit, fashioned with circular skirt, a rib-knit top featuring a V-neck and rows of knitted ruffles forming the short puffed sleeves. Her hair was dressed with tiny blue and white flowers, and she carried a single long stemmed pink rose. Her only ornament was a pair of diamond earrings. The bride and groom were unattended and Master Todd Mumford carried the ring on a blue silk cushion trimmed with blue satin. The bride's mother was gowned in a floor-length dress of printed silk in shades of cerise, blue and white on black ground, and complemented with matching cerise shoes a d handbag, the groom's parents were unable to attend. Following the marriage, a reception was held at the Hayloft, where the bride's table was centered with a tiered wedding cake. The toast to the bride was very amusingly proposed by Mr. John MacAulay, to which David very fittingly replied. Later the bride and groom left for London, England, where they will take up residence, the bride travelling in a double knit trouser suit of coffee brown, saddle stitched in butterscotch, and topped with a butterscotch leather coat and Canadian lynx hat. Her outfit was completed with coffee-brown leather accessories. Trudy and David are both graduates in photography and will pursue this career in London, England.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB POPULAR THERAPY Thin blood after coronary?

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
 Dear Dr. Lamb — Nearly every farmer near us is being doctor for heart trouble. The various doctors each have their own method. My husband's doctor is thinning blood with Panwarfin. My husband must have his blood tested every week. The medicine is then adjusted to thin the blood more or to thin it less. It makes it necessary for my husband to be around to have his blood tested every week. Another man in a nearby city has a doctor who makes fun of Panwarfin. He says one aspirin tablet each morning and another each evening is all that is necessary. He says if a person uses the aspirin his blood does not have to be tested once a week. My husband would like very much to change to aspirin if that does the work. He would like your opinion about the treatment. Dear Reader— Panwarfin or Coumadin is commonly used to treat patients during and after their heart attack. I believe the majority of practicing heart specialists do use it, and I think it is well used medicine to prevent blood clotting in most patients. So, I approve of your husband's treatment. Not everybody can take Coumadin or any other medicines used for this purpose, for example, the person with a history of bleeding ulcers.

The value of using anti-clotting medicines is debatable. You can find well recognized authorities who are for it and others who believe it has no value, or that the problems it causes outweigh any advantages that may be obtained. This is an opinion, but I do believe that anti-clotting medicines should be used during the acute heart attack and started as soon as possible in the hospital. Then, unless there is a reason not to do so, I would prefer to see patients stay on such medicines at least a year after the attack has occurred. Beyond that period of time I am less concerned about its use.

Aspirin does have some anti-clotting effects. If you take large doses it can cause bleeding from the digestive tract. However, one ordinary sized aspirin tablet in the morning and another in the evening is not enough to greatly decrease the clotting tendency of the blood. It might prevent excessive clotting tendencies in some people. For any medicine to be effective in preventing blood clotting problems it must significantly prolong the clotting time mechanisms, and to tell if it is or is not effective the blood has to be tested. I would guess that your friend's doctor is not very impressed with the value of anti-clotting medicines in general for the treatment of heart attacks. There are some other advantages to your husband being seen regularly. The doctor can see how well he is sticking to his post heart attack program, and this may encourage your husband to do so — just as the person on a diet is more likely to stick to the program if seen frequently by a doctor. It sounds to me like your husband has a conscientious, capable doctor. If he wants to get the full advantage of what his doctor can do for him he should stick with the program, needles and all.

Als blanked but clinch playoff berth

By STUART LAKE
OTTAWA (CP)—The only thing for certain in the wacky Eastern Football Conference today is that Ottawa Roughriders will finish first and that Montreal Alouettes will make the playoffs.

Third-place Toronto Argonauts could finish second or out of post-season play altogether. Hamilton Tiger-Cats can only finish third and to do that they'll have to beat the Alouettes while the Argos lose to Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the final weekend of regular play.

The Riders left their fans chanting "We're No. 1" Sunday by blanking the Alouettes 16-0 while Hamilton dropped a 34-25 decision to Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina.

The standings Ottawa 18, Montreal 15, Toronto 14, Hamilton 12.

If Hamilton and Toronto were to tie for third place, the Ticats would get the last playoff spot because of a regular-season edge over the Argos.

TURNOVERS HURT
The Riders took full advantage of four Montreal turnovers to clinch first place before 26,734 home-town fans.

A stubborn Montreal defence twice stalled Ottawa within the Alouette five-yard line. But Montreal coughed up the ball twice on fumbles, once on an interception and once on a fouled-up third down punt.

One of the fumbles came at the Als 10-yard line when Montreal decided to gamble on third down with inches to go. Defensive back Dick Adams gobbled up the ball fumbled by Larry Smith and went on to a touchdown. What made the play a heart-breaker for the Als was that moments before Montreal had taken over the ball when a third-down Riders gamble from one-yard out failed.

It marked a great comeback season for Ottawa, which lost its first four games of the schedule. "It is a great, great feeling," Ottawa coach Jack Gotta said after the game.

Secretariat exits winner

By GORDON GRANT
CP General Sports Editor
TORONTO (CP)—Secretariat bid goodbye to horse racing fans shortly before 5 p.m. EST Sunday, about 45 seconds after the super horse waved goodbye to the rest of the field in winning the Canadian International Championship Stakes.

Running a comfortable second to Kennedy Road, owned by Mrs. Art Stollery of Toronto, Secretariat shifted into passing gear three furlongs from home and won going away in two minutes, 41.4 seconds, four-tenths off the record on the Marshall turf course at Woodbine race track.

His handy win—he was 6½ lengths up on second-place Big Spruce—was a great ending to a sensational career. The three-year-old chestnut colt, a son of Bold Ruler, has been syndicated for $6,080,000 and will stand in stud at Paris, Ky.

The Riders now are idle for three weeks while the last playoff spots are decided and the semi-final game is played.

Ottawa Kicker Gerry Organ whose three field goals helped him establish a Canadian Football League mark for the most field goals in a single season—31—said it was a dream come true.

"But the record was basically unimportant," he added. "The championship was what counted."

KEELING OUT

Ottawa quarterback Jerry Keeling also had to come out of the game in the second quarter when he was hit hard after completing an 89-yard pass to Hugh Oldham.

A 20-mile an hour wind gave both teams trouble throughout the game. The Alouettes held the Riders to nine first downs and a total net offence of 259 yards, 172 passing and only 92 rushing.

The Montrealers got 15 first downs and a total net offence of 330 yards, 196 of them rushing.

"We had intended to pass more than we did," Montreal coach Marv Levy said.

CAME UP SHORT
"But field position was the problem. We'd get six or seven yards on first down and we'd come up short a yard on second-down plays."

Keeling completed seven of nine passes for 131 yards before he was forced to retire. Rick Cassata came on to complete two of 11 throws for 41 yards.

A favorite target was Oldham who grabbed three throws for 136 yards.

Montreal's George Mira was good on 14 of 24 throws for 142 yards. Johnny Rodgers caught three for 34 yards.

Steve Ferrughelli of Montreal was the top rusher with 74 yards on 10 carries. Ottawa's Jim Evenson got 52 on 19 carries.

Organ also converted Adams' touchdown to bring his season's scoring total to 123 points, and a probable second EFC coring title in a row.

Montreal also might lose the services of running back John Harvey who had his ankle injured after he fumbled in the fourth quarter.

GLAD IT'S OVER
"Certainly we'll miss campaigning such a wonderful horse, but I'm certainly glad it's over," said Penny Tweedy, owner of Secretariat.

Secretariat went out a big winner, boosting his earnings by $92,755 to bring his bankroll to $1,316,808, the fourth best ever for a thoroughbred.

Only Kelso, Round Table and Buckpasser earned more, but they also ran more often than the magnificent Big Red.

Sunday when he made his move, the crowd of 35,117 roared its approval—this was the Secretariat they had come to see and make a 1-to-5 favorite despite the fact he had never gone 1½ miles before.

Gaiters fail to make playoffs

By BRUCE PORTER
Record Reporter

MONTREAL — Any hopes of a playoff berth were crushed Saturday as the Bishop's Gaiters were defeated 23-17 by Loyola College in QUAA football action.

The game saw more turnovers than the Pillsbury Dough Boy ever envisioned, with Loyola capitalizing on the larger part of them.

Bishop's Mike Munzar was nailed for four interceptions, one of which was called back on a penalty. Loyola's Neal Greeley had only two passes picked off by Bishop's.

The Gaiters also collected three Warrior fumbles, but that advantage was nominal in the final analysis.

Wade Clare picked up Loyola's first touchdown on a 49-yard run. Mike Lapensee booted the convert. Lapensee also kicked a 38-yard field goal in the same quarter to give the Warriors a 10-0 halftime lead.

The second quarter had some ticklish moments. The play was very chippy and the referees went on a penalty free-for-all, mostly against Bishop's.

Greg Brown tried unsuccessfully in the second quarter for 44-yard field goal which hit the uprights and bounced to the ground.

Mike Bookalam went for a 55-yard dash on the second play of the third quarter for a TD, with Brown making the convert for Bishop's.

The Warriors then struck back for a TD of their own, but it was called on yet another penalty. Lapensee struck for his second field goal, this time from 27 yards out.

Brown missed his second field goal attempt from the 45-yard line, which again hit the goalpost. By this time, Bish fans were getting perturbed by the ridiculous announcer who quipped that it was another "very wide" attempt.

Brown finally made good on his three point try from 12 yards away in the fourth quarter.

Munzar then completed a 63-yard pass and run toss to Phil Oughton to give the Gaiters a 17-13 lead with only a few minutes remaining.

The high-strung Warriors weren't to be denied for the second game against the Gaiters this year, and immediately romped downfield on two passes to the Bishop's two-yard line.

The Gaiters, unable to pull off the brilliant goal-line defense that they had shown in their 28-24 victory, held the Loyola squad for one play before the TD was made. Greeley snuck over from the one for the major, with Lapensee socking the point after.

With only 1:25 remaining in the game, Bishop's had little time or chance to make a last ditch effort to salvage a win.

Lapensee put on a bit of icing to Loyola's cake with a 20-yard field goal, which sewed up the point scoring for the Warriors, as well as second place in the standings.

The season for the Gaiters drew to a close with the completion of the contest, but with more experience for the same team, next season promises to be more productive in the way of wins.

Bombers score first in WFC

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Blue Bombers registered a first in the Canadian Football League Sunday but it wasn't something to be happy about.

The Blue Bombers became the first team in the league to drop out of the playoff picture when they lost a Western Conference game 22-17 to British Columbia Lions.

The rest of the WFC playoff puzzle will have to wait until the regular season ends next weekend, with the third and last playoff position up for grabs when the Lions face Calgary Stampeders. A victory by the Lions, who now trail Calgary by two points, would give them third place because they would have two wins in three games with the Stampeders during the season.

Already assured of a playoff position—although first and second place still are question marks—are Saskatchewan Roughriders whose 34-25 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Regina Sunday put them in first place, two points ahead of Edmonton Eskimos.

The Eskimos, who can take first place with a victory over the Roughriders in Edmonton next Sunday, were defeated 14-10 by Calgary Saturday night.

GOES THROUGH MIDDLE
Johnny Musso popped through the middle of the line for a six-yard touchdown at 11:20 of the final quarter to give the Lions their victory Sunday. It was his second touchdown of the game.

The winning play followed a successful fake punt by the Lions and a costly rough-play penalty against the Bombers.

Ivan MacMillan accounted for eight of B.C.'s points with two converts and a pair of field goals. Guthrie boomed two long singles with the help of a 20-mile-an-hour wind.

Bob Larose got the only Winnipeg touchdown on a six-yard pass from Don Jonas in the fourth quarter. Jonas kicked two field goals and a convert while Walt McKee added a field goal and an 83-yard single.

Both clubs accumulated close to 400 yards net offence but not until the final 20 minutes could Jonas or B.C. quarterback Don Moorhead move their clubs in for a major score.

Hamilton was left in the Eastern Division cellar when the Roughriders broke loose for three touchdowns in the final free-wheeling quarter Sunday.

COULDN'T MATCH PLAYS

The Tiger-Cats managed two touchdowns in the final quarter but couldn't match spectacular long pass-and-run plays by Saskatchewan.

Bob Pearce set up one Rough-rider touchdown with an 80-yard pass-and-run play while Bobby Thompson set up another with a similar 94-yard play.

Terry Bulch scored two touchdowns, both in the final quarter, on one and two-yard runs. Tom Campana took a 40-yard pass from Ron Lancaster for the other final-quarter Saskatchewan touchdown.

Thompson scored a second-quarter touchdown on a 46-yard pass from Lancaster while Steve Molnar ran two yards for another third-quarter touchdown. Jack Abendschan converted four of the five Saskatchewan touchdowns.

Canadian skaters tops

CALGARY (CP) — Lynn Nightingale of Ottawa and Toller Cranston of Toronto captured individual gold medals in the first annual Skate Canada competition which ended Saturday before about 6,000 fans.

The pair paced Canadians in an impressive display that provided five of nine medals for the host country at the invitational competition.

Miss Nightingale staged an acrobatic free-skating performance to complete a surge she started after finishing a dismal seventh in the compulsory-figures segment of the three-part competition.

Cranston held off a brilliant challenge by longtime rival Ron Shavers of Cambridge, Ont., in the men's events.

Miss Nightingale stormed past Jean Scott of Renfrew, Scotland, who finished fifth in the world championship this year at Bratislava, Yugoslavia. Miss Nightingale was 10th in the same competition.

Cranston finished second in Saturday's free skating, only decimal-points behind Shavers, but won the over-all title by virtue of his large margin in compulsory figures on opening night Thursday.

Shavers took his first chunk out of Cranston's margin Friday by capturing top honors in a short compulsory-skating program. Deficiencies in compulsory figures have been blamed for Cranston's failure to capture a world championship during his career so far.

Almost as impressive as the two Canadian winners were the dance team of Louise and Barry Soper of Vancouver.

The Sopers finished second behind the winners, Hil Green and Lynn Watts of Streatham, England, in all three segments, but defeated two other teams rated ahead of them in the world.

The Sopers finished ninth in the 1973 world championship while Green and Watts combined for third. The Russian entry of Irina Moseeva and Andrei Mininkov, third here, placed ahead of the Sopers at Bratislava, Yugoslavia, as did Diana and Martin Skotnický of Czechoslovakia.

Barry Soper, who helped the husband-and-wife team with his poise Thursday during difficulties with their music during practice, said after the official results were posted that the appearance of the pair on the judges' stand for a medal was their first such appearance in international competition.

"It gives us a big incentive," he said. The Sopers have set a tough objective for themselves—they hope to finish in the top five in the 1974 world championships at Munich, Germany.

Perreault breaks leg in Sabres' win

By GLENN COLE
 Canadian Press Staff Writer
 The 15,848 fans at Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium sat in stunned silence and stared at a patch of ice below.

There lay their idol, Gilbert Perreault, after he collided with team-mate Mike Robitaille, who had been dealt a solid check by Brian Spencer of New York Islanders with five minutes gone in the second period.

The smooth-skating Buffalo Sabres' centre had to be removed on a stretcher. And, for about the next eight weeks, the Sabres will be without Perreault, who suffered a broken left leg in the Sabres' 5-2 win over the Islanders.

Elsewhere, New York Rangers were hammered 7-2 by Pittsburgh Penguins in New York. Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs battled to a 1-1 tie. Minnesota North Stars tied 3-3 with Boston Bruins and Philadelphia Flyers nipped California Golden Seals 2-1.

Saturday, the Rangers dropped a 3-2 decision to the Islanders while Montreal Canadiens defeated the North Stars 4-2. The Bruins edged Toronto 3-2. Philadelphia blanked the Penguins 6-0 as Bernie Parent recorded his third shutout. Detroit Red Wings nipped Los Angeles Kings 3-2 and St. Louis Blues tied Chicago 4-4.

VERSIONS VARY
 There were divergent opinions on how Perreault's injury occurred. Linemate Richard Martin said he felt it happened because Perreault's skate caught in the ice while Robitaille said he thought the leg broke when he fell on his team-mate.

Perreault and Gerry Meehan scored within the space of 14 seconds for the Sabres in the first period to offset goals by Lorne Henning and Andre St. Laurent.

Jim Lorentz scored what proved to be the winning goal at 4:28 of the middle period. 34 seconds before Perreault's accident.

In New York, the Penguins held a 5-1 lead at the end of the first period and drove starting goalie Gilles Villemure from the game.

Al McDonough and Lowell MacDonald scored a pair of goals for the Penguins, who had just scored 19 times in seven games this season before their visit to New York.

Meanwhile, the Rangers announced they had acquired winger Jack Egers from St. Louis in exchange for Glen Sather and a player to be named later. Egers started his professional career with New York but was traded to the Blues in a multi-player deal Nov. 15, 1971.

TIES THE GAME
 In Chicago, a goal by Mike Pelyk at 4:13 of the third period gave the Leafs their draw with the Black Hawks. Dennis Hull scored his fourth goal of the season for Chicago in the second period of a game dominated by goaltenders Dunc Wilson of the Leafs and Tony Esposito of Chicago.

Wilson was credited with 25 stops and was particularly sharp in the second period, blocking shots by Hull, Pit Martin and Jim Pappin.

Minnesota remained the only winless team in the NHL after their sixth tie this season in Boston. Centre Murray Oliver and defenceman Tom Reid scored in the third period with Reid's 30-foot shot zipping past Ken Broderick with 2:38 remaining in the game to tie the score.

The North Stars, who are 0-4-6 on the season, still have not won a game in Boston Garden since they joined the league in 1967. Their overall record is three ties and 14 defeats.

Orest Kindrachuk and Bill Clement scored shorthanded goals in the first period as Philadelphia defeated California for their sixth win in nine starts. Craig Patrick spoiled Parent's bid for his fourth shutout with a goal at 15:07 of the final period.

League action resumes Tuesday with Detroit at Toronto, the Rangers at Vancouver to play the Canucks and St. Louis playing host to Los Angeles.

Visiting teams win in WHA

The so-called home ice advantage only worked for Edmonton Oilers in World Hockey Association action Sunday.

The Oilers took a 7-5 win over Vancouver Blazers—Edmonton's second triumph in a row over the same club—to strengthen their first-place lead in the West Division.

"We play better on the road because most of the other rinks have bigger ice surfaces," said coach Billy Harris, whose Toronto Toros lost at home 3-2 to Chicago Cougars.

It was the sixth game without a win—including two ties—for the Toros in Toronto's Varsity Arena.

"Both Winnipeg and Vancouver are bigger and that allows players like Wayne Carleton and Pat Hickey to fly," Harris said.

NORDIQUES WIN
 In other games, Quebec Nordiques took an away-from-home 3-2 win over Houston Aeros and Los Angeles blanked the Golden Blades 2-0 in New York.

Saturday's results were: Edmonton 6, Vancouver 2; Minnesota Fighting Saints 5, Winnipeg Jets 2; New England Whalers 3, Los Angeles 1; and Cleveland Crusaders battled to a 2-2 overtime tie with Houston.

The results left New England leading the East Division with 15 points, three more than Quebec and Cleveland. Edmonton has 12 points in the West, followed by Winnipeg and Minnesota, both with nine.

Ron Clime scored twice for the Oilers who won their sixth game in seven starts. Their only loss was Oct. 19 when the Blazers beat them 3-1.

Danny Lawson, the league goal-scoring leader last year with 61, got three in a losing cause for the Blazers to raise his total to 11—best in the WHA early this season.

GARDNEE TOUGH
 The Oilers outshot the losers 50-34 and would have scored more if not for netminder George Gardner, who joined Vancouver late last week in a trade with Los Angeles for Ron Ward.

Bob Whitlock's goals, his third of the year, at 8:31 of the final period gave Chicago its win over Toronto before 4,521 fans. It was Chicago's ninth game this year—all on the road—and the win gave the club a 4-4-1 record, good enough for fourth place in the East.

Hockey Gaiters lose

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — The Bishop's University ice Gaiters were handed their first loss of the current exhibition season on Saturday night by the University of Quebec Three Rivers Patriots, in a game which ended in a 4-1 decision.

The Gaiters started off on the right foot when Dave Dussault slammed a drive past Richard Nault at 9:38 in the first period. Eric Iverson and Ted Moysey assisted on the play.

At 15:45 however, Jocelyn Pothier evened the score for UQTR.

The Gaiters are still wondering about the puck that trickled through Nault's legs and appeared to cross the goal-line. Whether it did or not will never be known, with the referee ruling it no goal but the loss of momentum from the moment on was in evidence.

Jacques Boucher kept the UQTR ball rolling in the second period, on passes from Francois Laquerre and Luc Tardif at 11:01.

Third period tallies were made by Delisle, assisted by Andre Argouin, while Tremblay was aided by Tardif and Pothier.

Coach Al Gray is still looking for the best two goaltenders of three for the regular season, and switched Kim Ellis for Bruce Hodge halfway through the second period.

Ellis stopped 27 of 28 shots on him, while Hodge made saves on 17 of his 20. The Patriots' Nault and Benoit stopped 38 of the 39 shots by the Gaiters.

The Gaiters went out hitting hard but cooled slightly when they were hit back by the Patriots.

Though the Bish contingent had many fine scoring chances, the goalpost was hit twice, the UQTR goalies came to the rescue and foiled the Gaiters.

NFL roundup

Minnesota Vikings emerged Sunday as the National Football League's only unbeaten team through seven games, defeating Los Angeles Rams 10-9 while New Orleans Saints and Philadelphia Eagles pulled off major upsets.

Fred Cox kicked a 15-yard field goal and Fran Tarkenton tossed a nine-yard touchdown pass to Chuck Foreman to give the Vikings a 10-0 lead and Minnesota's ferocious defense made it stand up, limiting the Rams to David Ray field goals of 30, 35 and 47 yards.

Foreman rushed for 84 yards and capped an 80-yard drive with his scoring catch that turned out to give the Vikings the winning edge. Nate Wright and Jeff Wright, meanwhile, intercepted two John Hadl passes and Carl Eller blocked Ray's second-period field goal attempt from 32 yards out.

Bill McClard, who joined New Orleans at midweek, kicked field goals of 35, 43, 30 and 37 yards and Archie Manning tossed a nine-yard touchdown pass to fullback Bill Butler, carrying the Saints to a stunning 19-3 victory over Washington. Curt Knight's 35-yard field goal in the fourth quarter kept the Redskins from being shut out.

Quarterback Roman Gabriel threw two touchdown passes and scored once on a sneak as the Eagles stunned Dallas Cowboys 30-16. The Eagles posted 27 points in the first half as Gabriel hit Harold Carmichael with touchdown passes of six and 10 yards and dove over from the one and Tom Dempsey kicked a pair of field goals.

HILL LEADS WAY
 And Houston's futility continued. Ike Hill's 95-yard kickoff return capped a three-touchdown explosion in a 95-second span which swept Chicago Bears to a 35-14 victory over the Oilers, who suffered their 18th straight regular-season defeat and seventh this year.

In Sunday's other games, Pittsburgh Steelers defeated Cincinnati Bengals 20-13 but lost starting quarterback Terry Bradshaw with a broken collarbone. Detroit Lions clawed Green Bay Packers 34-0. Atlanta Falcons smothered San Francisco 49ers 17-3. Denver Broncos dumped New York Jets 40-28. Miami Dolphins mauled New England Patriots 30-14. St. Louis Cardinals downed New York Giants 35-27. Oakland Raiders beat Baltimore Colts 34-21 and San Diego Chargers tied Cleveland Browns 16-16.

Reserve quarterback Terry Hanratty, who succeeded Bradshaw, connected on a 51-yard touchdown pass to Ron Shanklin with 50 seconds left before halftime, wiping out a 6-3 Cincinnati lead and pave the way to the Steelers' victory.

Altie Taylor rushed for 160 yards and a touchdown and Steve Owens and Mel Farr also ran for a touchdown apiece for Detroit while the Lions' defence limited Green Bay's total offense to just 89 yards.

Atlanta quarterback Bob Lee threw to Ken Barrow for touchdowns passes of 51 and 22 yards to beat the 49ers.

JOHNSON CONNECTS
 Charley Johnson passed for touchdowns of 15 yards to Gene Washington and 21 to Riley Odoms, then Steve Ramsey broke the back of a third-quarter Jets' rally with a 76-yard bomb to Haven Moses in Denver's victory.

Miami, stung by two New England touchdowns in the first quarter, rallied with the help of three field goals by Garo Yepremian and touchdown runs by Mercury Morris and Larry Csonka.

Jim Hart fired four touchdown passes, including three to fleet Mel Gray, as the Cardinals snapped a four-game losing streak and handed the Giants their fifth setback.

Ken Stabler tossed touchdown passes of 27 yards to Mike Siani and nine yards to Bob Moore while picking apart Baltimore's defence for 25 completions in Oakland's triumph.

Ray Werschling's 16-yard field goal with 30 seconds remaining gave San Diego its tie with the Browns.

Tonight, Kansas City Chiefs face Bills in Buffalo.

Expos add to roster
 MONTREAL (CP) — Jim Fanning, general manager of Montreal Expos of the National League, announced Saturday the promotion of three young players to the club's major league baseball roster.

He also announced several player moves which bring to 39 the number of players on the club's current major league winter roster. The maximum is 40.

Fanning said waivers have been asked on veteran infielder Bernie Allen for purposes of unconditional release.

The contracts of pitchers Mickey Scott and Denis McSweeney and outfielder Clyde Mashore have been sent outright to the organization's AAA club at Memphis, Tenn., he said.

The three players to be promoted are pitchers Don DeMola and Robert (Chip) Lang and outfielder Jerry White.

DeMola, a 21-year-old right-hander from Commack, N.Y., pitched for West Palm Beach of the class A Florida State League and Quebec City of the class AA Eastern League after being signed at the beginning of the 1973 season as a free agent.

Lang, a 21-year-old right-hander from Pittsburgh, was 8-5 with a 3.62 ERA in 22 games with Quebec City in 1973.

White, also 21 and a resident of San Francisco, spent the 1973 season with Peninsula Whips of the class AAA International League. He batted .276 in 112 games with the Whips.

Abortions not often repeated

By GLENNIS ZILM
OTTAWA (CP) — The decision to have an abortion is an agonizing one that few women can endure to repeat, says Lore Perron, national director of a pregnancy distress service.

"Few, very few, are repeat-ers," says Mrs. Perron. "It's a once-in-a-lifetime thing because the emotional strain is so great."

"No woman makes such a decision lightly."

She and her co-workers at Arcal, the Association for Review of Canadian Abortion Laws, have counselled more than 1,000 women. They dismiss reports that some women consider abortion a method of birth control and have had several.

"It's hogwash," says Niki Bergen. "Sure, it happens occasionally, maybe three times in a thousand."

But for the normal, healthy woman, "once is more than enough," says Mrs. Perron. "They just wish it never had to happen at all."

Every woman—not to mention the husband or other man involved and perhaps a family of younger girls—has to go through a difficult emotional experience while making the decision, she said.

PROBLEMS NUMEROUS

There is anxiety over whether it is right or whether they should consider keeping the baby. They have to face numerous individual problems, including family finances.

"We see a lot of married women with families. They have three children already and another one would really strain the finances. Such women feel a commitment to the children already existing."

About one-half the women who come to the Arcal clinic here are Roman Catholic, she said. These also have religious feelings they must resolve.

"The counsellors don't try to make the decisions. All we do is try to see whether the woman can live with the decision she has made. We must make as sure as possible she won't fall apart."

Mrs. Perron said that in most of the thousand women she has seen personally the pregnancy was "an accident."

"It annoys me when parliamentarians say there is no need for a woman to have an unwanted pregnancy. No contraceptive is 100-per-cent perfect."

"As well, the ignorance about sex and about pregnancy is appalling. A lot of women simply don't know how not to get pregnant."

METHODS FALLIBLE

Mrs. Perron said this is particularly true of teenagers.

"They come in and say they can't get pregnant because it was only a couple of days after their period and they should have been in the safe period. But most women can conceive at any time of the cycle."

The rhythm method of birth control is based on the preise that a woman avoids intercourse during the time when she usually releases the egg, about 14 days before her menstrual period. At other times she is considered safe. But one gynecologist advises that "couples who practise this method are usually called parents."

Before politicians decide abortion laws are too liberal they should be certain that everyone knows how to prevent unwanted pregnancies and that contraceptive methods are freely available to everyone," said Mrs. Perron.

"But we'll need these educational programs for a whole generation before we start denying women a way out. The present educational programs just aren't stopping unwanted pregnancies. Just look at the numbers of girls coming to the clinics."

SOME METHODS FAIL

Mrs. Perron said they also see a large number of women who have had their birth control method fail. Either because of human error or mechanical failure, about 20 per cent don't work.

"Then you have a woman who has been trying birth control and now she's pregnant. What do you do?"

In Canada, the social pressures against abortion often add to the woman's distress, Mrs. Perron said. Even the need to have her case presented to a committee of three people at a hospital is distressing and time-consuming.

Abortions are safest if done before 12 weeks, she said. It often takes four weeks before the woman knows she's pregnant, then another four to see a doctor, get the pregnancy confirmed and get herself ready to make a decision whether to keep the baby.

That leaves just four weeks to find a hospital and a doctor to do an abortion.

HOSPITALS RELUCTANT

Many hospitals are "regressing" about doing abortions, she said. For one thing, they usually have to be treated as emergency surgery, which disrupts operating-room schedules.

Because of problems in Ottawa, Arcal often sends those who can afford it to New York.

"It's so much quicker. They have some good, clean clinics—licensed ones—where they do nothing else and so they do it well. They have good doctors who take all the sensible precautions, such as blood tests, as a matter of routine. And because it can be done quickly, it's usually within the 12-week period and safer."

Although she is head of a group that assists women to get abortions, Mrs. Perron isn't really pro-abortion.

"Abortion isn't the answer; education is. But you can't stick your head in the sand and ignore the real problems that exist while you get education programs in schools and decent, active family planning clinics going."

"You have to help those who need your help now."

Inflation plagues single-family homes

By BOB DOUGLAS
OTTAWA (CP) — Rising land labor and material costs, worldwide inflation, higher personal aspirations and the post-war baby boom all play a part in driving up prices for detached, single-family homes, say housing experts.

Some economists, including Prof. N. H. Lithwick of Carleton University, say the housing problem is only one thread in a complicated web of urban issues that should be tackled as a whole. But most experts agree that land costs are a prime cause of rapidly rising prices for single homes.

Land prices have risen more than 87 per cent since 1961 while total dwelling costs have climbed about 58 per cent for houses financed under the National Housing Act (NHA). Land is clearly an increasing part of the total cost.

The average lot price in Toronto is about $25,000, up $7,000 in the last two years.

While plenty of raw land is available, municipalities have complained that the cost of providing such services as sewers and water has slowed development at a time when demand is rising, thus helping boost prices.

SINGLES DOWN

Land costs have undoubtedly encouraged developers to move away from construction of single-family homes. In 1961, 65.4 per cent of all dwellings were single-family detached houses. In 1971 this figure had dropped to 59.5 per cent.

Construction expenses also rose, the cost of building materials increasing 43.3 per cent and labor costs 110.4 per cent between 1961 and 1971.

The total number of households shot up to more than six million in 1971 from about 4.5 million in 1961, creating a demand for more housing. With marriages rising to 200,000 in 1972 from 129,000 in 1962, there were more young couples looking for homes.

An economist in Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. said CMHC was surprised by the large number of "non-family households" formed in the 1966-71 period. They expected an average annual increase of about 50,000 but the actual figure was about 60,000.

He suggested single young people are more affluent today and move into their own apartments instead of living with their parents. All these factors increase the demand for housing.

BUYER AGE DROPS

Prof. Lithwick, author of a comprehensive federal report on housing and urban problems, also said in a recent interview that young couples want to buy their own homes at an earlier age than their parents did. CMHC figures reveal that the average age of NHA borrowers dropped from 34.5 years in 1963 to 32.2 in 1972.

He expects strong demand for single-family homes until the impact of the post-war baby boom has dropped off.

Prof. Lithwick said housing costs are also influenced by matters that are also influenced by matters that are outside Canada.

Rampant inflation around the world spurs interest rates. Canada is particularly influenced by U.S. factors. When U.S. rates rise, Canadian investment money flows south, leading to higher rates for money here.

Nations with strong currencies, such as Japan, are buying more construction materials from Canada, where the relative value of the dollar is declining. This helps increase the cost of these materials here.

There are local factors, too. For instance, a CMHC spokesman in Vancouver said municipalities are upgrading their servicing requirements for land, contributing to higher costs.

FREEZE LAND

He said the controversial British Columbia Land Commission Act, approved by the B.C. legislature last spring, has had "at least a psychological effect" in prompting higher land costs. The act put a freeze on development on agricultural land in outlying areas of Vancouver.

There was ample raw land not affected by the freeze but it was more costly to provide services.

Housing costs are high on the Halifax peninsula because there is no room to grow. The Greenbelt, a ring of untouched land around Ottawa belonging to the federal government, restricts growth of the national capital.

Municipal zoning frequently calls for better housing than in the past, partly to increase municipal property-tax revenue.

Single-family homes built today generally look more attractive than houses built 15 years ago. But only those in higher-income brackets can afford to buy them.

FEWER OWNERS

Some developers and real estate agents say that only six per cent of families are able to buy new, detached, single-family homes compared to about 28 per cent in 1961. This figure, however, is disputed by some CMHC economists.

There is also the impact of speculation, which he said adds to the final price tag of houses without benefit to the public.

So, a platter-full of problems faces anyone brave enough to look for a solution to the housing crisis for middle-income families.

Written drivers test not sufficient proof

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing about a problem that must be pretty prevalent now that people are living longer and every effort is being made to keep oldsters in good health and involved in the mainstream of life.

Dad is 76. He has been driving a car for over 50 years. He has had a few minor accidents, bent fenders, a sudden meeting with a garage door and the like, but nothing to speak of. In the last two years he has been very lucky. His eyesight is failing and his reflexes have slowed up considerably.

I've asked him to give up driving and suggested several alternatives. He becomes furious and accuses me of trying to make an old man out of him.

He loves his independence and I hate to hurt his pride, but when I think of him driving a carload of white-haired ladies to church I get weak in the knees.

Last month I thought my problem was solved when he told me he had to get his license renewed and would be taking a "test." Unfortunately, it was only a written test and he passed with flying colors. What now? — Worried

Dear W.: I get this same letter every week at least ten times. Only the signatures are different.

The solution lies with the state legislatures. Some already have made the driving test a mandatory part of the renewal procedure for citizens over 65. ALL states should do so.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been thinking about the woman whose doctor had prescribed tranquilizers to "relax" her. She impetuously took an extra pill before going to a wedding reception. To her shame, she burped out an excessively warm compliment to the bride. Immediately after, she felt like a fool.

You assured her that a genuine compliment is always appreciated and you admonished her to stop chastising herself. But you ignored the central problem which the writer also chose to pass over.

People who are on tranquilizers should be aware that the medication might affect their judgment. Some pills tend to make people talkative and uninhibited. They sometimes say things they wish they hadn't.

It is important for the doctor to hear about all side effects, both physical and psychological. Unless the patient informs him he cannot know.

Please, Ann, retrace your steps and advise the woman to tell her doctor that the extra pill loosened the hinges on her tongue. — Corpus Christi

Dear Corp: Thank you for the suggestion. I've retraced — and here's your letter.

Dear Ann Landers: Come out of the clouds, for Lord's sake.

and get down here with us humans I am sick to death of your holier-than-thou attitude toward women whose husbands give them a well-deserved belt in the mouth.

Don't you know that a man can be pushed to the brink and something's got to give? A crack in the teeth can be a wonderful tension-breaker. It's also a lot healthier than keeping all that anger bottled up.

My husband hauls off and slugs me every few months and I don't mind. He feels better and so do I because he never hits me unless I deserve it. So why don't you come off it? — Real Happy

Dear R.H.: If you don't mind a crack in the teeth every few months, it's all right with me. I hope you have a good dentist.

monds and I could duck twice if declarer finessed twice. Then with the third finesse I would take my king and leave dummy's ace high and dry.

Things started out perfectly. South won the heart lead and finessed a diamond. It worked! He returned to his hand with a club and repeated the successful diamond finesse. I was able to duck with confidence because my partner had played the deuce and then the trey of diamonds. He would have high-logged with an even number.

Then my balloon exploded. South returned to his hand with a club and cashed two more cards in that suit. My partner discarded the nine of diamonds and there was my king exposed to the world in his unprotected state.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Your partner continues to three no-trump. What do you do now?
Answer tomorrow

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Waldemar von Zedtwitz, one of the greatest bridge players of all time, loves to show today's hand as an illustration of how the best laid plans can go completely wrong.

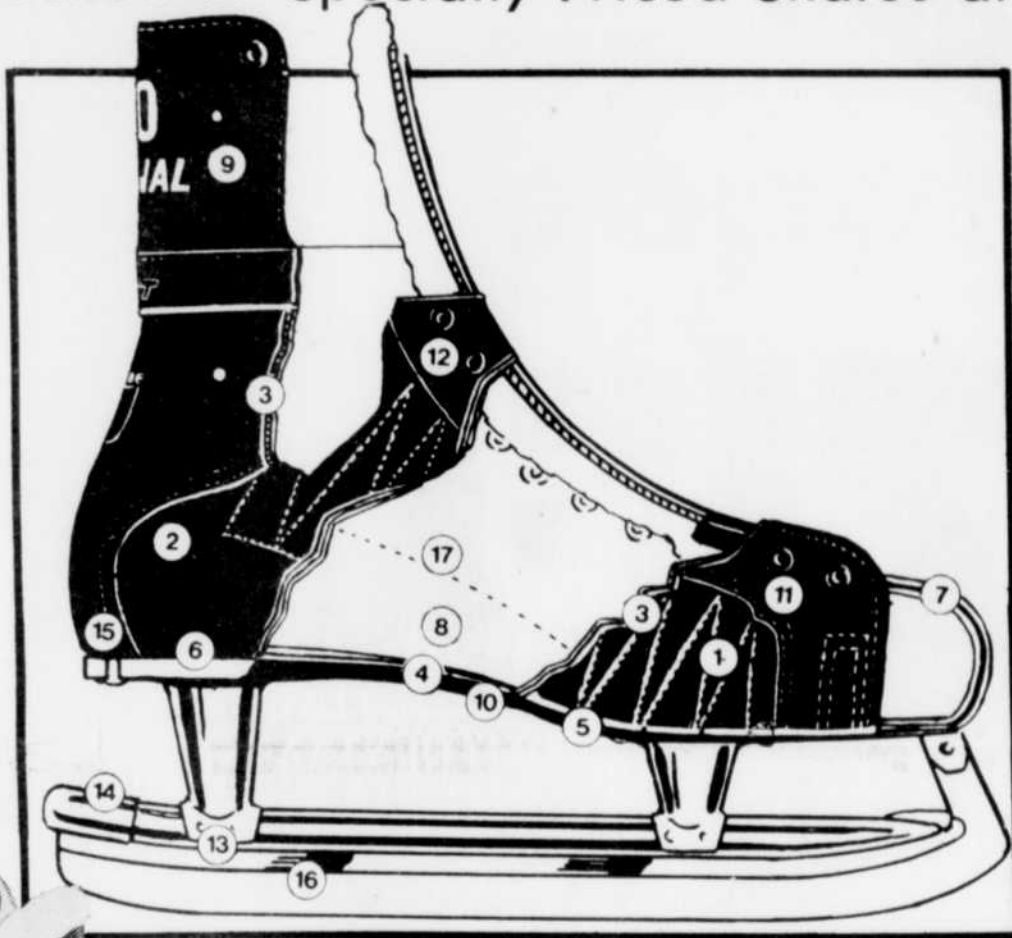

The game was match point duplicate and the standard result was three no-trump made with an overtrick. Against Wally there were two overtricks and we will let him tell his own sad story.

As soon as dummy hit the table I saw the chance for a most unusual play. Give my partner exactly three dia-
