Its situation on Front street, overlooking the Bay and Lake, is convenient to the railway stations, and business part of the city. Commercial men from the Lower Provinces and tourists generally should recollect that this hotel is recognized by travellers everywhere as the finest in the Dominion. Parties having had the good fortune of once accepting the hospitalities of Mr. McGaw, manager, forever afterwards bear the house in the highest possible esteem. ly

Hardware! Hardware!

Special attention paid to Coopers' Tools; also, to Cabinet-makers' Hardware, Hair-Cloth, Moss, Curled Hair, Excelsior, Glue, &c., &c. Gas! Gas!

Lighting by gas was, not long since, a luxury only to be enjoyed by the dwellers in cities and large towns, but the inventive mind of man has given the world an apparatus whereby any householder can be his own gas maker. We refer to the Springfield gas machine, for which our townsman, Mr. Richard Patton, 742 Craig street, is the sole agent in the Dominion. This machine comes as near perfection as it seems possible to attain, and, naturally enough, is winning its way throughout the continent. The possession of one of these machines renders one independent of the whims, persecutions, and extortions so characteristic of gas companies now-a-days.

France.

Whether, under the Republic, France will ever attain to the position she occupied when Napoleon dwelt at the Tuilleries, is a question admitting of interminable discussion and speculation; but no one ventures to deny that McConkey's Cigar Store, opposite St. Lawrence Hall, contains a splendid assortment of smokers' requisites, particularly choice Tobaccos and Cigars. McConkey's stock of Pipes is something to see, while his sample room is quite a popular place of resort.

Napoleon Weeping.

The unfortunate exile who has seen the end of his Imperial Greatness, wept when he found himself so mercifully dealt with by his Antagonist and Captor, King William of Prussia. History seldom chronicles such leniency on the part of a Conqueror. Not so in Medicine, for the Great Shoshonees Remedy and Pills have no respect of any reigning disease in the human body, for this combined medicine roots out completely all acute and chronic maladies, and converts the system into a sound tabernacle for humanity to live in. Sept.

Highly Important.

The miserable apology for gas with which our model Company has lately furnished us, has driven many of our citizens to resort again to the old coal oil lamp, with all its dangers, dirt, and inconvenience. In this connection it is, therefore, highly important to know that by a lately patented invention, every man may constitute himself his own gas company, and supply his house with twice the light he gets at present for half the money. This is guaranteed. The machine is placed under ground, and consists simply of a tank for the reception of fluid, and a self-acting air-pump; it requires no fire, heat or attention, save occasionally to put in a new supply of fluid. It is non-explosive, inexpensive, and the ordinary gas-pipes can be used. There is now one of these machines in active operation on the premises of Mr. John Martin, plumber, 27 St. Antoine street, who is agent for the Dominion. Parties are invited to call and examine the best, cheapest, least troublesome, and safest gas machine ever invented. 260-ly

How do you do?

How do you do? Strange how friends meet,
You look a gent indeed;
I'm glad to see you, my old chum;
You're just the friend I need:
I'm in a fix, old friend, and
I am but a stranger here;
I want a pair of pants right off,
Jet black, that's sure and clear;
'Tis now eleven o'clock a.m.,
And I'm to dine at six,
And must appear in full toilette,
As 'tis with Mr. Weeks;
He's darling Emma's father, Jim,
You see why I'm in haste;
I want good stuff, good fit, come on,
You know the city best;
I guess you're right, friend G.; 'tis true
The city's known to me,
And of the tailors, one and all,
The A 1 you shall see;
Just come with me, now Mr. G.,
To Main street, No. 3,
To BOON & WOODWORTH'S we'll repair,
Where you will suited be;
The suit in which I stand they made;
It fits exact, you see,
And at the price you'll stare, my friend,
'Twas but a $12.00 fee,
And all who want suits, good and cheap,
Need only just repair
To BOON & WOODWORTH'S, Main street, 3,
And they'll be suited there.

BOON & WOODWORTH,
290 3 St. Lawrence Main street.

Citizens, Attention!

You may refute the assertion, but it is a positive fact, that owing to the wide circulation of that ever enterprising journal, the EVENING STAR, the success of the People's Store, corner of McGill and St. Paul streets, may be attributed; and the proprietor, Mr. P. Browne, now in particular, takes great pleasure in congratulating the proprietors on the decidedly improved appearance of the paper, which promises to become the leading exponent of public opinion, not only in the city, but in the Dominion.

All of us take a pleasure in enterprise; and why should we do otherwise? Is it not the fly-wheel of business of which all of us should be proud. We hear of new railroads, and of other enterprises, &c., and can any of them be more important than that of a leading newspaper, which, in itself, is more powerful than the sword? It has been often said by many who are dead to everything energetic, that it is useless to advertise; but the result of the People's Store can vouch otherwise.

P. B.

[We thank Mr. Browne for his kind remarks in relation to our new issue, and wish him all that success which every enterprising young man is deserving of.—ED. STAR.]

REMOVAL.—We would call the attention of our readers to the removal of Mr. J. F. Robinson, merchant tailor, from his old stand to more extensive premises, 329 Craig street, where he keeps, as usual, a large and varied assortment of Gentlemen's goods. Mr. Robinson prides himself specially on his style and fit; and it has got to be a bye-word: "If you want to wear a good-looking, well-fitting suit of clothes, go to Robinson's, 329 Craig street." 280-ly

L. KENNY Merchant Tailor, begs to intimate to his many friends, and the public generally, that he will open a first-class Merchant Tailoring Store, on or about the 8th instant, at Nos. 26 and 28 St. Lawrence Main street. Late reports by cable say that Roger Tichborne Orton has succeeded in obtaining the £50,000 bail. Rumor in the neighborhood of Craig street leads to the impression that Mr. CALLEN, the eminent merchant tailor, Nos. 225 and 227 Craig street, has kindly furnished the amount. At any rate he has an immense stock of clothing. His specialities are the Tichborne Coat, the Wagga-Wagga Vest, the Orton Trowsers, Ballantine Shirt, Coleridge Neck-Tie and the Bowie Collar. The Newgate Handkerchief is elegant. 74

C— C— C—.—Throughout the whole period of teething, children are particularly apt to be attacked by many troublesome affections, such as restlessness, sleeplessness, griping of the bowels, diarrhœa, dysentery, convulsions, and a host of other nervous complaints. In such cases, a dose or two of the Children's Carminative Cordial will afford immediate relief; and, by invigorating the whole system, prevent a repetition of the attacks, and, being entirely free from opium, can be administered freely, and with perfect safety, even in the hands of inexperienced persons. 60-tf

It is always poor policy, and sometimes bad economy, to put off till to-morrow what might be done to-day. There are many things which are the better for being done a while before they are wanted, and among these is the painting of Venetian Blinds, Signboards, and many other things. In a few weeks the painters will be so busy that many will have to wait their turn, with a good deal of impatience. Save yourself such annoyance by calling at MURPHY'S, 663 Craig street, and leaving your orders for painting, &c., a little in advance of your neighbors.

The Proof of the Pudding is in the Eating.

Truer words were never penned. In this age, especially, the public should never be led away by prejudice or other influences; the only reliable guarantee is actual inspection and trial. Take, for instance, Bitters; perhaps there is not another article of manufacture respecting which a greater diversity of opinion exists, with the single exception, perhaps, of the celebrated Deymann Bitter, which differs from anything of the kind in the market. Its efficacy in all cases of indigestion or loss of appetite is known and acknowledged both through Europe and the American continent, and it but requires to be once tasted by the most critical to be pronounced the best Bitter extant. It is kept by every respectable grocer.

PEN AND INK BARRICADES OF AN HONEST MAN.

Interesting Correspondence between Mr. Payne and the World.

Mr. Oscar R. Payne, who has just undergone a term of imprisonment in the Montreal jail for certain practices objected to by his late partner, "Capt." H. B. Noble, and the law, and of whom we some time since published a notice clipped from the Insurance Times of New York, has placed the subjoined manuscript in our hands. We give it to the public without a word of comment preferring that each place his own value upon it.

MR. PAYNE SAYS A WORD OR TWO.

MONTREAL, March 25, 1872.

To the Public.

On the 17th of January last articles appeared in the city papers, said to have been copied from an Insurance circular published in the States, derogatory to the character of the undersigned, and having documents in my possession which it would be impossible for any person to hold had he been guilty of one-half the crimes that I am charged with, I think it my duty to place the following certificates in the hands of the people of Canada for their careful examination, asking only justice at their hands, that standard or boundary of right which enables us to render to every man, without distinction, his just due. This virtue is not only consistent with Divine and human laws, but is the very cement of civil society, teaching us to wisely judge and prudentially determine.

Very respectfully yours,
O. R. PAYNE.

MR. PAYNE DID NOT DEFRAUD THE ÆTNA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

MONTREAL, March 25th, 1872.

Memorandum for whom it may concern:

Seeing it stated that the Ætna Life Insurance Company had been defrauded out of several hundred dollars by Mr. Oscar R. Payne, through the San Francisco manager, Mr. Morse, I would say that both from the Secretary of the Company and from Mr. Morse, I have recently received letters, denying that either the Company or Mr. Morse ever lost a dollar by him. Mr. Morse states that his dealings with him, during the ten days he worked for him, were unexceptionably correct.

WHAT THE MASONS KNOW OF MR. PAYNE.

The Fraternity will excuse me for bringing Masonry into this controversy, but being openly accused in the public press of being expelled, blackballed, and of stealing the degrees, &c., I think it no more than justice to myself and family to present the following record of my standing in the Grand Lodge of New York, received this morning, and signed by a man well known in Canada. I will also state that documents are on their way, which will soon be published, from the presidents and secretaries of the 20 life insurance companies of which I am accused of swindling, all vouching for my honesty and integrity. Vice and intrigue may be victorious for a time, but glorious truth and justice, though crushed, will rise again, and her banners will float in the face of her accusers.

A PEEP BEHIND THE SCENES.

23RD ST., NEW YORK, Dec. 16, 1871.

Oscar R. Payne, Esq.:

Sir,—Yours of the 10th came duly to hand, and contents noted. The Mrs. Noble you speak of I think is Mrs. Sweitzer, alias Mrs. Rupert, alias Mrs. Capt. H. B. Noble. If she is the same person she has black eyes, very slim, imitates the Grecian Bend, a great talker, a good customer, but poor pay—her money always being in bonds where she can get it. Noble I know nothing of. By writing to Mrs. O. D. Whitney, on 8th street, you can hear more of her no doubt, as she knows the person I refer to to the tune of some $60 for dressmaking.

Respectfully, &c.,
MRS. A. C. SHERWOOD.

MR. PAYNE RESUMES HIS ADDRESS.

Fifty more letters of recommendation could be produced, but as space is limited, I will will close with a few explanations as to the late charge against me in the Montreal Courts, and abide by the decision of the public.

In July last I entered into partnership with H. B. Noble without inquiring into his previous history, and also thinking that he was my partner and not his wife, I ordered all goods, payed all bills, entered and passed all the goods at the Custom-House, Captain Noble simply writing a few letters to agents, and this he could not perform unless I wrote him a copy. Discovering that I had a cipher for a partner, and that the firm was getting involved, with

ONE DESPERATE EFFORT

I induced him to go with me and purchase a bill of jewellery of J. Nelson & Co., and sell it in Upper Canada at auction. We left Montreal with the goods. I had $30, but he had no money. We halted at Morrisburg, rented a store, and commenced our sales. I began to sell by auction at 7 p.m. We had $6.50 in the cash-box. I sold until 10 p.m. I sold $48 worth of goods, and with the $6.50 Noble should have had $54.50. When I made up the cash account, he had only $32, but made it up to $36 by a gentleman who came to me and said that he bought a hair-brush and gave Noble a one dollar bill in payment; Noble gave him two $2 bills, four quarters, and a ten cent piece in change. When we left this place, our board bill was $5.50 and his bar bill $7.90. When we arrived in Kingston we had no money.

RAISING THE WIND.

I borrowed of Capt. Dunlop $10, and gave it to Noble agreeing to pay Dunlop the first time he came to Montreal. We went to Napanee, and after selling two nights, and then making up our cash account, we had just money enough to get home although we had disposed of over two hundred dollars worth of goods. On arriving in Montreal I had five dollars that I picked up among the papers where Noble made change, and he had about 30 cents. We packed up our goods at Napanee, he took a trunk with some three hundred dollars worth in it, and I took a box with some two hundred dollars worth. I sent my box to Cornwall thinking to return there, and sell but after reaching this city I changed my mind and sent for it. I took it to my boarding house on Cathcart st. A few days after Capt. Dunlop called on me for his ten dollars. This I had agreed to pay the first time I saw him, I did not have the money, and sent him to Noble; but he refused to pay him a cent, and sent him back to me. I took my box of jewelry, and taking out one-half, took it to Mr. Cohen, and pawned it, received ten dollars, met Capt. Dunlop at Capt. Milloy's office, and paid it to him taking the following receipt.

MONTREAL, Nov. 6th, 1871.

Received of O. R. Payne, ten dollars money loaned Oct., 16. 1871, to the Montreal Manufacturing Co., to pay travelling expenses of Payne and Noble.

A. DUNLOP

For pledging this box of Company goods to pay this debt without asking Noble, although he at this time held one-third more property in his hands that I had in mine, and I holding a personal note against him for $189.12 over due (and not yet paid).

ARREST AND INCARCERATION.

I was arrested, and the Court held that under the new law I was guilty of larceny. Now I ask any candid business man to put himself in my place for one moment, and let me ask him a few questions. Suppose you had a partner unfit to do business. Suppose your firm was badly in debt, and it devolved upon you to see these debts paid. Suppose your partner had overdrawn his account some three hundred dollars, which you never expected to get. Suppose a particular friend of yours called on you for ten dollars, which you had given your word that you would see it paid, although the money had been spent by a drunken partner. Suppose at this time you had some of the Company's property in your hands,—would you think yourself guilty of stealing if you pledged some of those goods to pay this honest debt, even without asking your partner? The above are the outlines of the great Payne case, so much hawked about by the press.

A NOBLE PERORATION.

The Montreal Manufacturing Company now owes in this city and in the States over five hundred dollars. Now no one will deny but that Noble is liable for one half of these debts. Why does he not come up like a man and offer to pay his half—at least show a disposition to do so? Heaven has promised to bless one thing only in the material as in the spiritual world, and that is energy. With energy Earth obeys man as a willing captive; without it, it lords over him as an oppressive tyrant; and peace and happiness can never enter save into a head and heart that is capable of being made weary by energy. Although energy has brought me success, and success has produced error, a strong characteristic of littleness of mind, yet a truly noble and generous man feels no enmity towards a successful rival. Therefore when I have been slandered, and knew that my success was the only cause of this vindictiveness, I kept straight on my course, and knowing that they were set afloat by some false friend that had more time than character; for he that has no enemies is one of the vulgar and without talents, power or energy. And in producing the correspondence and in giving the description of our trip to Morrisburg and Napanee, I do not wish to insinuate any intentional wrong on the part of H. B. Noble. Far from it; for although the world seems to know him not, I think he is innocent, honest and harmless when left to himself; and as to enemies, he has none, nor would he harm anyone unless led on by a designing and evil adviser, and in such cases the weak-minded are the most dangerous. But I do not wish to insult misery, deride infirmity, nor ridicule deformity; the first would show inhumanity, the second folly, and the third pride.

In addition I would say to the citizens that I intend to remain permanently in Canada, and all private or Company debts will be paid, and every dollar of surplus money over and above the necessities of my family will be devoted to that purpose, trusting that with my feeble talents, energy and honesty of purpose my future course may meet with the approval of the good people of Canada, and that I shall not only obtain an honest livelihood, but help to develop and benefit my adopted country.

I have on hand receipts in full of the following Companies, the only ones I ever represented: New York Life, Etna Life, Guardian Life, Great Western Life, Knickerbocker Life, Washington Life, Mutual Life of Chicago, and St. Louis Mutual Life, but the space is too limited to insert them. I now think I have refuted to intelligent minds the slanders and charges brought against myself and family. And had they remained where they originated, in the Yankee papers, I should have treated them with silent contempt, as I always have done heretofore. So falls to the ground the "oft repeated assertion" that I swindled Life Insurance Companies.

Very respectfully,
OSCAR R. PAYNE.

NEW YORK STREET CAR THIEVES.

Nearly every night, just as the Circus or Academy of Music is dismissing its patrons, gangs of pickpockets jump on the Third avenue cars going up and down town. On Monday night, about 11:30, Officer McVay, of the Eighteenth precinct, was standing on the corner of Fourteenth street, and he saw one of these gangs take possession of the front and rear platforms of a car going up. He went towards the car and was watching the operators intently, when one of them suddenly raised his foot and kicked him in the mouth, splitting his upper lip, at the same time with a profane expression exclaiming, "What are you looking at?" Officer McVay pulled out his revolver and fired. The thieves jumped from the car and ran in all directions. The man who assaulted McVay, and whose name is James McConnell, was arrested by Officer Reed on the corner of Second avenue and Fourteenth street. The rest of the gang—which is known as Mundy's gang—escaped.

O'DONAVAN ROSSA is "turning a pretty penny" by lecturing on British prisons. When last heard from, he was in Lawrence, Mass.

"OSCAR R. PAYNE" is either a much-abused man or an arrant scamp. The biography by the Insurance Times, of New York, and copied by most Canadian journals, paints him in colors the most dark, while the long string of letters from parties far from obscure state him to be "honest and honorable," etc., etc. The question arises: why should a man who is "honest and honorable" require to arm himself with such a budget of documents certifying that he is really so? True, in these days, "honest men" are scarce, and perhaps it is not so surprising after all that when such a rara avis is captured he should be fully labelled. Possibly, we shall soon hear of "OSCAR R. PAYNE" occupying a niche in the temple of curiosities presided over by Mr. P. T. BARNUM.

THE season suggests the query: What are we doing to deserve the name of Christians? Christianity we interpret as something more than attending church and refraining from glaring vices. CHRIST did more than this, and by calling ourselves Christians we would have the world to know us as followers and imitators of CHRIST. Are we each doing unto our neighbor as we would that he should do unto us? Do we keep constantly before our mind's eye that notable word picture of the GOOD SAMARITAN, and the LEVI who passed by on the other side? Orthodoxy in church matters and "respectability" in every day life is hypocrisy and Pharisaism pure and simple, if the heart is not set upon following out in the merest minutiae the dictates of an unsullied conscience. Are we honestly discharging our duties as citizens, as parents, as stewards, as beings having immortal souls, who will one day have to render an account to the Supreme Judge? Are we using or abusing the talents entrusted to our care? Are we doing anything calculated to make the world a better world? shall we leave it a happier world than what we found it? How have we treated the prodigal son and the prodigal daughter? Have they been spurned, and given not a gleam of hope, or have we welcomed the penitents or tried to win them to a virtuous and honest life?—"Neither do I condemn thee: go and sin no more," so said HE whose name we take to ourselves—have we ever said these words to our erring brother or sister? It is not too late to begin the practice of true Christianity. A wide field exists at our very feet. May the remembrance of CHRIST'S sufferings impel each and all to emulate His life upon earth, and so show ourselves not wholly undeserving of the glorious name we claim—CHRISTIANS.

SOME little time back we instanced the manufacture of printing ink as an example of how home industry is discouraged in this Dominion, and referred particularly to Messrs BAYLIS, WILKES & Co., of this city, who have struggled to establish themselves despite the wicked opposition—we may say, persecution—of the Dominion policy. The Oshawa Vindicator lately took the subject up, and in its issue of Wednesday we find the following, which requires no comments:—

MONTREAL, March 25, 1872.

To the Editor, Oshawa Vindicator:

DEAR SIR,—We received a copy of the Vindicator of the 6th instant, in which you very kindly make our circular the text for an admirable article on protection to home manufactures.

We can assure you that we have had bitter experience of the truth of what you allege about the representations of agents of American and English inks, and we have also to pay 15 per cent. duty on all raw materials, while the manufactured ink comes in free, thus making us pay 15 per cent. for the privilege of manufacturing in Canada. We are not novices at this business, as our Mr. Baylis has been for twenty years a manufacturer of ink in London, and his father and Mr. Ingraham started the Illustrated London News, and made all the colored inks for its colored plates, and also supplying Punch, Daily Telegraph, and many other papers.

We have been in operation for two years, and felt so discouraged at our want of support that we seriously thought of removing to the United States, and shall probably do so unless we succeed better this year.

We remain, yours truly,

BAYLIS, WILKES & Co.

To this the Vindicator appends the following note:—

"Owing to the late hour at which we received the above letter we can add but little. The city of Montreal is humiliated because it has only two-thirds the population it boasted of, yet it elects men to the Dominion Parliament who legislate its industrial enterprises out of the country into the United States. How can any country prosper with such stupidity?"

WHEN Montreal does get efficient gas works the blessing will certainly be keenly appreciated by those who have been dependent for months upon the farcical "supply" wheezed out from the Griffintown laboratory. It is fortunate that our city is tolerably free from "light-fingered gentry" or the "dangerous classes," who pursue their avocation most successfully in the dark, otherwise our columns would daily tell of victimized tradesmen, garrotted pedestrians, and burglarized premises. To enter any store on Notre Dame street between the hours of 6 and 8 is to enter a place where, by the aid of numerous gas jets, darkness is made visible. If the reader looks into the hotels, he will see the guests each with a lighted candle at his elbow. And then it is to be remembered that if the almanac sets forth that LUNA is to show her face, or even the merest glimpse of it, not a solitary street lamp is lit, also that the almanac's predictions generally turn out "all moonshine," figuratively, but not literally. With darkness over the land such as is here indicated, social parasites of the shop-lifting, garrotting and burglarious breed might hold high revels, but, as we have said, Montreal is luckily tolerably free from such creatures at present. How the "consumers" will feel when they are called upon to pay for gas they never consumed, is matter for speculation.

We fancy there will be some tolerably lively scenes when PATERFAMILIAS reads that notwithstanding the many pounds of "best composites" that have been purchased and burnt, he is expected to pay as heavy a gas bill as usual. We see a fine time ahead for the legal fraternity. Actions and cross actions loom up plenteously.

It seems some months must elapse before we can hope for any improvement in the supply of this important item in our domestic economy. The gasometre for the new works is being constructed at Glasgow, where it will be erected, the various parts numbered, then taken to pieces and shipped to this port.

The new engineer, Mr. CATHELL, will leave London about the middle of the present month. As our readers are aware, Mr. CATHELS gives up the management of the Crystal Palace District Gas Works, Sydenham, England, to take entire charge of the Montreal Works. He is highly spoken of, and we have every reason to believe that if the Company provide the means and follow out his instructions our city will be as well supplied with gas as any city in the world. Meanwhile, we must try to bear up against the present affliction of twilight and dips and look forward to the "good time coming."

M'GILL UNIVERSITY CONVOCATION.

The convocation of the Medical and Law Faculties was held on Thursday afternoon in the William Molson Hall, Hon. Judge Dunkin, senior Governor, in the chair. On the raised dais were seated members of the Board of Governors and the Professors in the Faculty of Medicine, and Governors, Andrew Robertson, M.A., Q.C., John H. R. Molson, and Charles J. Brydges, Principal J. W. Dawson, Vice-Chancellor Fellows, Ven. Archdeacon Leach, D.C.L., L.L.D., Vice-Principal and Dean of the Faculty of Arts; G. M. Campbell, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine; P. R. Lafrenaye, B.C.L., Professor of Civil Procedure and Jurisprudence; Rev. H. Wilkes, Professor of Homiletics and Pastoral Theology in the Congregational College; John Reddy, M.D., S. B. Schmidt, W. E. Scott, Professor of Anatomy; Secretary, Registrar and Bursar, William C. Baynes. Professors R. P. Howard, P. R. Lafrenaye, C. F. Markgraf, D. C. McCallum, Pierre J. Darey, Robert Craik, G. E. Fenwick, Joseph M. Drake, W. Trenholme, W. C. Wurtele, Gonzalve Doutre, G. Armstrong; and Dr. Harrington, Lecturer in Assaying and Mining.

Secretary Baynes read the minutes of last convocation.

Dr. Campbell, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, read the report. The total number of students during the past session was 138:—Ontario contributing 73; Quebec, 55; Nova Scotia, 2; Prince Edward Island, 2; New Brunswick, 1; and the United States, 5. Thirty-six students had passed the primary examinations, those deserving honorable mention being Alguire, Hill, Carmichael, McConnell, Ward, Patterson and Osler.

The Dean then distributed the prizes:—Gold Medalist (for having received the highest number of marks in Primary, Final Examinations and Thesis), Hamilton Allen; Senior Prizeman, G. Starke; Special Prizeman, W. Osler. In Botany, W. Caldwell and E. B. C. Harrington. In Zoology, C. R. Jones. Best collection of Plants, B. Wales. Practical Anatomy—Senior Class, R. C. Young; Junior Class, A. C. Sinclair.

The names of the medical students were read out in batches by Dr. Craik, and at the conclusion of each list the students named advanced in a body and repeated the "obligation" in Latin, after which they were "capped" by the Principal and received their insignia of standing, enclosed in a neat box. Those taking the degree of M.D. were as follows:

Hamilton Allan, West Osgoode, Ont.; Arthur A. Browne, Kingsley, Quebec, E. T.; William H. Burland, Montreal; W. L. Copeland, St. Catherines, Ontario; D. C. Cram, Almonte, Ont.; G. McGill, Farewell, Oshawa, Ont.; G. W. Gerouor, St. Laurent, Q.; P. Z. Hebert, St. Constant, Q.; H. Hetherington, Melbourne, Q.; R. Howard, St. John's, Q.; A. E. Mallory, Cobourg, Ont.; L. T. Marseau, Napierville, Q.; Peter McLaren, B.A., Lanark, Ont.; J. Morrison, M.A., Waddington, N.Y.; J. T. Munro, Rocksborn, Ont.; W. Nelson, Montreal; W. R. Nichol, St. Mary's, Ont.; W. Osler, Dundas, Ont.; O. J. Pegg, Simcoe, Ont.; W. Robinson, Markham, Ont.; H. Ross, Embro, Ont.; W. J. Sharpe, Simcoe, Ont.; G. Starke, Milton, Ont.; A. Stewart, Hampstead, Ont.; O. D. Wagner, Dickinson's Landing, Ont.; W. E. Waugh, London, Ont.; Leonard St. John, St. Catherines, Ont.; Geo. H. Christie, Lachute. The two latter being but 20 years of age, were unable to receive their degrees till another year has passed; though they acquitted themselves in their examinations most honorably, they are debarred in conformity to a college regulation.

A very clever young student, Mr. Kelly, the prospective gold medalist, and of the highest standing in all the departments, was unfortunately called away by the severe illness of a near relative immediately after the opening of the examinations.

Mr. H. Allan wore the laurels, being adjudged the pre-eminent prize—the gold medal.

Mr. G. Stark was second prizeman, and received a valuable edition of "Howe's Surgery," in five volumes. To Mr. William Osler, of Dundas, was allotted a special prize, he having collected a large number of microscopical preparations, described as being quite equal to any imported specimens; these he presented to the Faculty. His prize consists of works, in which he is allowed his own selection, to the extent of five guineas. The recipient leaves shortly for London, England. Thirty-six students passed their primaries; of these, eight deserve special mention. Mr. F. G. Sheppard, son of Captain Sheppard, of this city, was the prizeman.

Peter McLaren, B.A., gave the valedictory, expressing the most cordial feelings towards their professors, and stating that whatever difficulties might in the future cross their respective paths, they would, from the faithful and valuable instructions from them received, be forewarned, and if these were sedulously attended to, be certainly fore-armed. He also alluded in terms of the deepest regret to the unavoidable absence of a respected class-mate, Mr. Kelly, who was unfortunately prevented from being present, and claiming the honors, his undoubted due.

Dr. Drake delivered the address on the part of the Faculty. He earnestly advised the graduates to do nothing unprofessional, to take careful notes of all their cases, a habit he assured them though slightly irksome at first, would be anything but unpleasant when grown familiar by custom; and, finally, to read up carefully the leading medical journals of the day, and keep pace with the discoveries of the age. Self-interest, he reminded them, would cause their conduct to be regulated so as leave their reputation unsullied by anything disgraceful, and thereby their good name be tarnished and their practice depreciated. His remarks were most heartily applauded by the graduates.

Prof. Laflamme read the award of prizes and honors in law:

Similar ceremonies to the preceding were performed respecting the law students. The valedictory was given by Wm. Guild Cruikshank, and the address, filled with valuable advice, on the part of the Faculty, by Prof. Wurtele.

Hon. Judge Dunkin, Senior Governor, said he deeply regretted the unavoidable absence of the Chancellor of the University, who was detained away by the transaction of business it was impossible for him to leave. There were several things, he said, upon which they could congratulate themselves—at considerable expense they had almost finished the erection of a building to accommodate the medical Department, and this improvement gave him great pleasure. He sincerely hoped that the day was not far distant when they would be in a position to have a Law Hall in the vicinity upon the College grounds, a place to which it was in all justice entitled. He remarked upon a fact flattering to the present graduating classes, that not one of the number had failed in his examination. This occurrence so rare, was no less creditable to the class than to the University with which it was connected.

Nothing was more censurable than the practice of allowing students to take degrees unworthily, but he was perfectly convinced that the Medical Faculty had never sinned in this respect. He hoped the graduates would ever be mindful of their heavy obligations to their Alma Mater, in having been instrumental in starting them in careers. He trusted they would ornament and, in return for this favor, do her all the good offices in their power. He reminded them that the main strength of a university lay in its students, and assured them that he was not its greatest benefactor who made magnificent monetary donations, but that all could assist by laboring to fill its halls with students, and by speaking in its favor. Small presents, collections of works, or portions of libraries, would also be most acceptable. It was well that they possessed a medical library; it would be better if this was larger. They possessed a comprehensive library beneath, but he only wished that the shelves could not hold the books, and that its steadily increasing size should compel them to extend their accommodation. It would be also a matter for congratulation if a law library was founded.

It was worthy of remark that the Law Faculty had been recently reorganized, and was now in a most efficient state. The number of students was steadily increasing, but how much better would it be if the Professors, instead of devoting their leisure hours and time snatched from the active duties of their profession, were salaried sufficiently to enable them to devote their whole time and energies to the task. Several chairs had been of late endowed, and he hoped sums would be soon donated to the establishment of permanent professorships in the Law Faculty. The resources of the College were far below their desires, and he hoped these would be added to as became the most wealthy and prominent city in the Dominion.

Dr. Wilkes then pronounced the benediction, and the assemblage dispersed.

WASHINGTON, March 28.

The House has passed the Chicago Relief Bill, with an amendment that the law shall not apply to lumber.

A delegation from Texas, headed by Senator Hamilton, waited on the President this morning in relation to the Mexican subject on the Texan frontier. It is represented that on a recent date a party of 40 regular Mexican troops, in uniform, crossed the Rio Grande at a point above Brownsville, arrested the United States Custom Inspector, together with a number of citizens, and held them until they had crossed into Mexico with a drove of 500 or 600 stolen cattle. It was further represented that the depredations on stock alone by raiders from Mexico into Texas during the last six years reach from $6,000,000 to $10,000,000.

An amendment was made in committee to the section of the Tariff Bill reducing duties on cottons, woollens, silks, earthenware, glassware, &c., 10 per cent., and was concurred in. Yeas, 32; nays, 17.

The total vote of Mormons in Utah, on the ratification of the State Constitution, is 25,324, probably one-half cast by women. A memorial against admission is being signed by all the Gentiles and occasionally by Mormons. Six to eight thousand signatures are expected in a few days. The Gentile newspapers here are agitating the question of the possibility of a civil war in Utah as the result of admission, but the Mormons deny and ridicule the idea.

WASHINGTON, March 28.

Much surprise is expressed here at the statement made by the London Times in reply to the letter of ex-Consul General Freeman H. Morse, to the effect that the presentation of the rebel cotton loan before the mixed convention here was without the sanction of the British Government. The answer to this statement, that it is not true, in view of the undoubted character of the note now crossing the ocean in reply to the note of Secretary Fish's real facts in relation to the presentation of the cotton bond claims, cannot be too emphatically stated. These claims were presented before the commission, not only with the full knowledge of the British Ministry but by authority of that Ministry. The case was so extraordinary that it was immediately brought to the attention of the Administration, and the British Ministry was immediately requested to withdraw the claims as they clearly did not come within the scope and purpose of the treaty. This request was refused by the British Ministry. The English Consul was advised to press the claims and did so until they were ruled out by the Commission itself. These are facts of history. The public speeches of Mr. Gladstone in so far as they hint at the contrary being true, as they very broadly do, are as inexcusable in the impressions they convey as the statement of the London Times. On the 26th which was the day upon which the claims could not be filed before the British and American Claims Convention, unless by permission. In each case for the cause shown a very large number of memorials were presented. Four hundred and twenty-one British claims were filed up to that date and at the Session to-day fifteen additional claims were filed. It is thought that the number including all claims on both sides will amount to about five hundred. The American claims number eighteen only. The Commission adjourned over until the 3rd of April next. It is understood the commission will soon adjourn until September, and that during that month the Session will be held at Newport, R.I.

General Cortena having ventured into the southern part of the State of Nuevo Leon, 700 men were detailed to pursue him by General Maranga. They had defeated him on the 24th at Morelos, and were in hot pursuit of his routed forces, who were retreating towards the State of Tamaulipas for safety.

It is stated here that Generals Trevino and Nurogo are preparing to advance on this city, with their united forces, at once, leaving Generals Guerra, Marango and Martinet to oppose the Government forces in the States of Zacatecas, San Luis, Corpurda and Nuevo Leon.

CAMARGO, Mexico, March 26.

General Nurogo officially announces to the army the receipt of a telegram, through General Trevino at Monterey, from General Garcia at Saltillo, informing him of the complete route of General Rocha's forces near Zacatecas by Generals Donoto, Guerra and Marango, and their pursuit beyond Zacatecas, and the recapitulation of that city by the revolutionists.

Forced loans are exacted in this city and Monterey on foreign merchants, and those who do not pay within 24 hours are threatened with expulsion from the country.

THE GREAT WEST.

Few people really realize how many acres are unoccupied in the great West. There are eleven Territories, two or three of which are twice or three times as large as all New England; and it is a small Territory that is not at least ten times as large as Massachusetts. Colorado is thirteen times as large as Massachusetts, while Dakota and Arizona are half as large again as Colorado. The eleven Territories contain over one billion and a quarter acres, exceeding by nearly two hundred thousand square miles the aggregate Territory of all the present admitted States of the Union. The Territory of Alaska contains 365,529,600 acres.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND POLITICS.

(Summerside Journal, 24th.)

The House of Assembly, after sitting a week doing nothing, broke up on Monday last, amidst great noise and confusion. The Government had not a majority to support them in carrying on the business of the country, and the Opposition did not know how to displace them. The epithet of "able men" would be a misnomer as applied to the sixteen members who formed the Opposition in the late Assembly. Mr. Davies himself acknowledged his want of parliamentary knowledge, although, he said, he had been there long enough to know more, if he had given his attention to it. If all the speeches made, and all the abusive words uttered, during the seven days' existence of the late Parliament of this Island, were published, the people would feel ashamed of their Representatives. We do not excuse any party; both sides of the House took part in the debates. Some of the members seemed to forget not only their Christianity but their morality. We have a right to expect better things of the Representatives of the people, and we hope when the new Parliament is convened, that there will be no more of this disgraceful conduct one towards another. If the men whom the people select to represent them are rogues, liars, swindlers, hypocrites, &c., &c., where in the name of common sense are we to look for honest men? The conduct of his honor the Speaker, the Hon. John Yeo, was gentlemanly and forbearing, and other hon. members would do well to take a leaf out of his book.

WHEELER'S COMPOUND ELIXIR OF PHOSPHATES and CALISAYA constitutes a new era in popular medicine, as it is seldom that a purely scientific preparation, compounded on physiological principles, is offered to the public. Being composed only of ingredients that enter into the formation of the system, it is perfectly safe under all circumstances, and may be taken with benefit wherever there is nervous prostration and general debility from whatever cause. COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

Before Judge Monck.

March 28th.

At the afternoon sitting the following evidence was given in the murder trial.

Francois Xavier Petelle, his wife and daughter, whose testimony only referred to incidental circumstances attending the death of Paradis.

Frederick Robert having failed to appear, a warrant for contempt was issued.

Dr. Brossard, of L'Assomption, deposed, that he had made the post-mortem examination of deceased on the 29th of September last. There was nothing extraordinary about the body. In the internal examination he found two small black marks below the left eye as if made with a man's knuckles; on the right side of the face there was a minor excoriation from which some blood must have escaped.

Beneath the scalp, at the back of the head, there was a clot, containing about 20 ounces of blood, mixed with watery infusion; this came not from the main substance of the brain, but from the membranes. The lungs were congested, but not severely. The heart was empty of blood; the stomach was perfectly healthy, containing a gill of pinkish fluid; the liver was of abnormal size, and was slightly congested at its base; deceased was to all appearance very healthy; he believed death was caused by the blows received and excitement; the latter alone might have caused the apoplexy from which Paradis died.

Cross-examined.—It was improbable that the blows proved in Court had caused death.

This testimony was corroborated by Drs. C. A. Lantin and Duncher.

This closed the case for the prosecution.

The first witness for the defence was

Dr. E. G. Prevost, of Sorel—From the testimony previously given as to the blows received by deceased from prisoner, he did not believe death could result.

J. Bpte. Taschereau testified that deceased (whom he knew well) suffered frequently from headache and dizziness; had also drank heavily, at least a quart of liquor a day.

Cross-examined.—Had not been intimate with deceased for three years.

The Court then adjourned.

March 30th.

The Court opened at 10:30 a.m.

Dr. Brossard was re-examined by the Court.—Did not believe that the wound on the right side of the head had been made by the shut fist. This opinion was corroborated by Dr. Lantin.

Dr. Rottot, Professor in the Victoria College, occupying the legal chair, deposed.—He had made many autopsies; had heard the medical evidence in the case; did not believe that death could have been caused by the blows deceased had been proved to have received; explanatory of his view he said when death is caused by blows on the head, the brain is found in an unnatural condition, and full of coagulated blood especially at the parts where the blows were received; this was not so in the present case, but the symptoms were on the contrary those of death by apoplexy, a natural death; neither was the skull of deceased fractured, as must have resulted from death by violence; the clots of blood found did not necessarily indicate any extreme violence.

Cross-examined.—The congestion and collection of blood at the rear of head of deceased was similar to that resulting from apoplexy, the blow was not of a nature to cause death; hemorrhage could be caused without a rupture of blood-vessels; he believed death to have been principally owing to previous excitement; having heard evidence of Marchard relative to the habits of deceased, he believed these had given rise to the apoplexy.

Davide Pinsonneault, son of the prisoner, aged 10 years, knew Mdme. Huot; was at her auberge when Paradis' death occurred; arrived there in the afternoon with his father and Euclide Demers; corroborated previous evidence as to the meeting of Pinsonneault and Paradis, the drinking, and subsequent conversation; when Paradis rose to leave the room, his father placed a hand on his shoulder, and in a friendly manner asked him to remain; Paradis became angry and struck his father, threw him on his knees, holding by the left hand his throat, and striking him with the right; to his father's entreaties to release his hold the deceased responded, "Je ne vous lacherai pas;" when Paradis was dead he saw that one of his father's fingers was badly cut, and bleeding. Here the prisoner was brought before the jury on application of his counsel to exhibit the cicatrice, the place where the wound had been; the blood from the cut had fallen upon the face of deceased; when deceased fell, he struck against the wall, along which a bench extended, near the door; he then rolled a short distance on the floor, where he lay on his back having the appearance of a dead man; did not say afterwards before Mlle. Petelle—mon pere a l'esprit d'un chien. Cross examined by the Attorney-General—was present all the time of the fight. Demers did not see Paradis fall; the time occupied in the struggle was not more than a minute; after the fall of deceased. Madame Huot and her daughter entered the bar.

Euclide Demers testified—Had never heard prisoner say, "J'avais une revenge et il faillait faire ce comp-la." If he had said it, would have heard it. Did not see Mlle. Petelle at the time it was alleged to have been uttered.

J. Bte. Champion, Cure.—Knew prisoner, who possessed a good character, and a kindly disposition. Also knew Paradis, who was slightly corpulent. Often met him under the influence of liquor.

Cross-examined.—Believed deceased was of a peaceable nature.

Alexandre Richardson, deposed.—Knew deceased and prisoner; the latter was not vindictive or revengeful.

Simeon Gagner, testified.—Had known prisoner several years. Lived near the residence of deceased, who was of heavy build. Deceased had told him he had a secret disease. He also drank heavily.

Cross-examined.—Saw deceased last in the July preceding his death; he was frequently intoxicated; deceased had not informed him of the nature of the disease.

Felix Labelle deposed.—Knew the prisoner for 20 years; was peaceable and honest.

Several other witnesses were examined, who corroborated previous evidence as to deceased's drinking habits and size.

M. Barbeau, a member of the coroner's jury at the inquest, stated—Had signed the inquest papers in lieu of the foreman, who was unable to write; remembered the verdict; it was not "Murder with malice premeditated," as stated in the coroner's papers; remembered it was his opinion that no malice existed on the part of the prisoner.

Joseph Germain deposed—Knew deceased; was in his employ five months, and at the time of his death; knew that he was subject to frequent attacks of dizziness; had experienced several last summer to his knowledge.

This closed the case for the defence, and the Court adjourned.

RICHARD WHITE, Esq. (of T. & R. White.)

PROSPECTUS.

The increasing cost of Fuel is yearly becoming a matter of the most serious importance to the citizens of Montreal. In a climate so rigorous as ours, this question becomes, next to food, a vital one. Indeed it may be said that the one is as important as the other

The sufferings experienced by the poorer classes during the winter from an insufficient supply of fuel can hardly be over-estimated while the cost has been gradually increasing almost putting it without the power of many to keep themselves and children from perishing.

To counteract, in some degree at least, the amount of suffering which exists in this City every winter, it is proposed to form a Joint-Stock Company, for the purpose of selling fuel at such a price, which, while returning to the Shareholders a good remuneration for their investments, will at the same time furnish the public with an opportunity of supplying themselves with Wood and Coal of the best qualities, and guaranteed both as regards measure and weight, at a moderate advance on the cost.

In order to assist the working classes to lay in their winter supply of fuel with least inconvenience, and to encourage habits of saving and forethought, it is proposed to receive weekly deposits during the summer and autumn months, for which Wood or Coal will be supplied; and as a further inducement to depositors, a discount of five per cent will be allowed on all their purchases. Shareholders in the Company will also be entitled to a discount on their purchases of five per cent.

ESTIMATED REVENUE.

The annual consumption of Wood in the City of Montreal must exceed 150,000 cords. With the inducements which this Company will present, it may safely be estimated that sales will easily be effected to the extent of 10,000 cords per annum, which, at a profit of $1 per cord, will yield a revenue of	$10,000
Added to which, Coal, to the extent of 5,000 tons, could be disposed of, yielding a profit of $1 p r ton	5,000
	$15,000
Expenses of Management	10,000
Yielding a net profit of, or at the rate of 10 per cent on the gross capital.	$5,000

It will thus be seen that three objects of considerable importance will be obtained by the organization of this Company.

1st. Fuel will be supplied at the lowest possible rate, and with guaranteed weights and measure.

2nd. A large class of our fellow citizens will be benefitted by the means proposed, which will enable them more easily to provide themselves with their winter's supply of fuel by a system of gradual payments.

3rd. The Shareholders, while effecting this object, will obtain a good return for their investments.

The affairs of the Company will be managed by a Board of five Directors, to be elected annually.

The Capital will, in the first place, be Fifty Thousand Dollars, divided into Shares of Fifty Dollars each; operations to commence as soon as the capital is subscribed for, and ten per centum paid thereon. Not more than half the capital will be called up at present.

Applications for Shares will be received by MR. ROBERT WATSON, at the office of WATSON & LINDSAY, Merchants Exchange.

It is likely, however, that the affair taking place on Monday may come off pleasant.

— On Thursday evening, as Sergeant Nelson of the Recorder's Court, was passing through the Court room to close the doors for the night, he was alarmed by a cracking in the ceiling. Knowing the rottenness of the building, he was expecting the descent of the roof, but was considerably astonished to see a man's leg protrude through the ceiling. Fearing that the man might be hurt if he came down in this sudden manner, Nelson told him to hold on till he got a ladder. The man was extricated, and this morning the only symptom of the fresh evidence of the rottenness of the building that remains is a newly plastered patch in the ceiling. The man had been working on the roof when he went through.

COAL-DEALERS TAKE WARNING.

On Thursday, at the instance of Mr. A. Doutre, Messrs. Copland & McLaren were fined $10 for a breach of the city by-laws regarding the deliverance of coal. The law requires that each load shall be accompanied with a certificate of weight from a public weigher; in this case the ticket was furnished, but it was a private one, not from the public scales, hence the fine.

Mr. Huntingdon, M.P., will give an address.

PROBABLE FATAL SNOW SLIDE.

Thursday afternoon while a servant girl was pushing a baby's carriage along Cathcart street a huge mass of ice and snow precipitated itself from an adjoining roof, striking the girl on the head and prostrating her, injuring the child, and smashing the carriage. The sufferers were carried into Dr. Sewell's residence where they received every possible attention. The girl's head is fractured and her recovery is considered doubtful. The infant's injuries are also very severe.

EASTER SUNDAY AT THE GESU.

To-morrow, Easter Sunday,—at the 10 a.m., service, the choir of the Gesu will sing Haydn's First Mass, in B. flat, complete,—the principal soli being rendered by Madame Boucher, Mesdemoiselles Jacques and St. Jean, and Messrs. Beaudry, Finn, Laurent and Piche.

During the Offertory, Mons. D. Ducharme, organist of the Gesu, will perform Battiste's organ transcription of the beautiful Easter anthem:—O filii et filiæ.

During the Benediction, at the 8 o'clock evening service, the choir will sing O salutaris, Baritone Solo, by Gounod; Regina Cœli, chorus, by Dessane; and Tantum ergo, Trio and chorus, by Rossini.

MUSIC FOR THE MILLION.

The concert given by a class of thirty of the Sunday-school scholars of the Chaboilles Square church, Inspector street, was largely attended, and the young lady singers did themselves great credit. Their singing was much admired, and the large audience frequently showed its appreciation and pleasure by its hearty applause. The young ladies were all dressed in white, and presented a somewhat novel and imposing appearance. The chair was occupied by Rev. S. Massey, and addresses were given by H. A. Nelson, Esq., Superintendent of the School, and Rev. G. H. Wells.

The concert is to be repeated next Monday evening. Admission, 10 cents.

EASTER MARKETS.

At an early hour this morning the usual stream of sight-seers and purchasers began to flow through the principal and suburban markets. Crowds of admirers circled round two huge sides of Ontario beef, suspended in St. Ann's market in front of Messrs. Lanctot and Roy's stalls; an affixed ticket informed the public that their combined weight was 3,016 lbs. net. Great attention was also given to a fine specimen of the porcine genus weighing 723 lbs. net, at Mr. Fischer's stall. As for the rest, luscious sirloins of beef were numerous, hung in the most tempting profusion, flanked by porkers, stock and rounded. The decorations were tasty, and gave a lively air to the scene. In the Bonsecours market, Mr. Reinhardt bore off the palm with a huge hog, having a net weight of 656 lbs. This was "raised" on Logan's farm. Mr. Fullum was not behind-hand, and exhibited the magnificent quarters of a fine animal he recently purchased in the Guelph market. Ontario fed-beef is plentiful.

A more excellent supply of first class viands cannot be found than at the stall of Mr. Wm. Ryan, Stall No. 40, St. Ann's Market. Handsome gaudy flags or fanciful ornaments are needed to attract attention, for it can be seen at a passing glance that the meat is of the very best quality and dressed in the most approved manner. The supply, too, is most bountiful.

The several markets were gaily decorated with flags, roses and colored pennants. The exhibition is very good, and sales are made with celerity.

NORA'S CRIME;

OR,

THE CAPTAIN'S REVENGE.

"I want you, my deary; come up stairs."

A light step came springing fleetly up, and a bright little elf, with a ragged dress, unkempt hair and bare feet, bounded in. Two big bright eyes fixed themselves straight on the veiled lady, in a wide, wondering stare.

"This is the little girl, my pretty lady. This is Amy."

Granny Grant shut the door and stood close to her visitor, her glistening eyes fixed greedily on the gold coins. The lady put out her gloved hand, drew the child near, and gazed long and earnestly in her face through her lowered veil.

It was a pretty face—undeniably a pretty face, despite dirt and sunburn—with regular features, dark grey eyes, brown curly hair, rosy cheeks, and a gipsy skin. But not one look of her own statesque beauty, not one look of handsome Earnest Hope, it all its bright prettiness.

A cold chill of nameless fear fell on her heart.

"Woman!" she said, facing suddenly round, "is this my child? Better for you you were dead and in your grave than dare deceive me.

Granny Grant recoiled with uplifted hands of fear.

"I ain't deceiving you. It's the very child Mrs. Evans gave me ten years ago. If you don't believe me go away. I'm fond of Amy, and Amy's fond of me, and we'll never part."

"Who named her Amy?"

"I did. I had a little girl of my own once of that name, and she died. Mrs. Evans called her a queer name—Maldetta, I think—but I didn't like that, and I changed it. If you dont believe me you can leave her. I don't want to part with Amy."

"I must believe you, and I will take her. Wash her face, and dress her in the best you have got, and make haste. I want to leave Alcester to-night."

The old woman obeyed. She drew Amy into an inner room, and presently emerged with the child washed and dressed, in her Sunday best, and strange to say, old Granny Grant was crying.

"I'm fond of Amy, and Amy's fond of me, and it's very hard to part! Oh, deary me! I never thought I would have to give up my Amy."

"Let these console you," said the veiled lady, pouring the golden shower into the horny old palm "Come!"

She arose, took the child's hand and drew her out of the room. She had not given her one kiss, no spark of motherly love had lit up in her cold heart. Little Amy, with wondering eyes, submitted to be led to the carriage and driven away. They were just in time for the train and soon Alcester lay far behind them.

That night, as the midnight hour struck, little Amy lay asleep on the most luxurious bed wherein she had ever reposed. And with a shaded night-lamp in her hand, Amy's mother stood bending over her, gazing earnestly on that childish face. The rounded cheeks were flushed, the bright brown curls were tossed over the pillow, the thick lashes veiled the radiance of those bright gray eyes.

Long and earnestly the mother gazed; but no look of motherly love softened the cold beauty of that pale, fixed face.

"A pretty face," she said; "but no look of her father, no look of her mothe. They are a fair Saxon race, the Hatherlys'. Will she look like them? Is she my child, I wonder—my very child, or did that old hag deceive me for the money? I shall never know, I suppose, nor does it much matter. I have little reason to love Ernest Hope's child. She is only a stepping-stone on my way to fortune—the heiress of boundless wealth. Sleep, little girl, and your childish dreams should be bright; for let your father and mother be whom they may, you are the heir ess of the haughty Hatherlys, the heiress of Ravensdale."

CHAPTER VIII.

"A bleak and dismal day—ominous and overcast—and a black, bad night! And, oh! how the slow, slow hours drag on! Only half-past seven, and they cannot be here before nine. Was ever a day so long as this?"

She was quite alone—the stately and handsome old lady who made this impatient complaint, walking up and down the long drawing-room—a spacious and lofty room, with a carpet of velvet pile, in whose yielding roses and lilies the feet sank. Massive carved chairs and sofas, dark, rich papering, heavy silken hangings, and priceless pictures in magnificent frames, made the room sumptuous with glowing color. A grand piano stood in a recess; white marble statuets, on black marble brackets, gleamed everywhere; flowers in slender Parian vases perfumed the air; alabaster lamps shed a soft, shimmering light over all, and a wood fire crackled cheerily over the marble hearth; for the August night was raw and rainy; the wind howled up from the bay in long, lamentable blasts, and the rain beat clamorously outside those purple silk window-curtains. A wild night, dark as Erebus, and with a chill breath of winter in the howling sea-wind.

Up and down, up and down, the old lady walked, her black satin gown rustling softly, and a diamond star fastening a point-lace kerchief on her bosom, blazing like a sun in the mellow lamp-light. Up and down, up and down, in a fever of impatience, glancing every second moment at her watch, or at the buhl clock ticking on the marble mantel. Sometimes she sank for a moment into the violet velvet depths of a gilded fauteuil—but only for a moment—the feverish impatience within her would nowhere let her rest. As some wilder blast would dash the rain frantically against the glass, as the long, sullen roar of the angry wave on the beach below, as the surging rush of the tossing trees, awoke the deafening diapason of the tempest, she would start up again and resume that restless march.

Time and trouble had dealt very gently with Mrs. Hatherly, of Ravensdale, the proudest old lady in the principality. Her sixty years had silvered her once golden hair, had planted crows' feet under the proud blue eyes, and deepened the lines around the trim, patrician mouth. But those sixty years had left her stately and upright, and handsome still; and not all the tears those clear blue eyes had shed for her lost son had dimmed their eagle brightness.

"Is it ominous, I wonder?" she thought. "Superstitious people might think so. She comes to me, to her future home, my discarded son's wife, heralded by darkness and tempest, wind and rain. But I am not superstitious, and I shall love my son's wife and child for my lost son's sake. Philip! Philip! my son! where in all the wide world are you this dreary night?"

She stood before the fire with clasped hands and passionately yearning eyes. Above that marble mantel hung an oval portrait—the portrait of a blue-eyed, fair haired, handsome lad, in Highland dress, his gun on his shoulder, his dog at his heels—Philip Selwyn Hatherly at sixteen.

"My bright-haired, true-hearted, handsome boy!" the mother passionately cried; "and to think that I, your own mother, should be the first to cast you adrift in the wide, pitiless world! because you married the girl you loved! My boy! my boy! my repentance and atonement come late, but, heaven helping me, I will be a true mother to the wife you loved. The pride between the 'bitter bad' Hatherlys will never stand between me and my love for you again."

Her forehead dropped on the cold marble; the proud old eyes filled with tears, big tears, that gathered and fell slowly. Ah! she she had loved him so dearly, so deeply; she had been proud of her princely son, and her own cruel decree had driven him forth, a wanderer and an outcast for ever.

The buhl clock softly chimed the hour; the embers fell softly through the shining grate. Outside the rain beat, and the wind blew, and the awful voice of the angry sea sounded high over all. A terrible night for a journey—a terrible night for Philip Hatherly's wife and child to come to their new home!

Suddenly Mrs. Hatherly started. Over the surging of the trees, over the uproar of wind, and waves, and rain, the sound of carriage wheels rolling along the gravelled drive caught her listening ears. Yes, they had come! Impetuously the old lady flung open the drawing-room door, and swept out into the wide, lofty, lighted hall. A manservant threw open the house door, and Mr. Quilton, followed by a lady and a little girl, strode in.

"Heavens! what a night! How do you do, Mrs. Hatherly? Here we are at last, despite the united forces of sky, earth, and Hades. Allow me, madam, to present Mrs. Philip Hatherly, and our little Miss Amy."

But madam, without waiting for that formal introduction, had pushed past the lawyer, and clasped her son's wife suddenly in her arms.

"My own dear daughter!" she said, kissing the pale, beautiful face, "welcome home!"

Perhaps the loving greeting was something so very new to Mrs. Philip Hatherly, something so very unexpected, or perhaps she was hysterical, but the handsome head fell upon the stately old lady's shoulder, and she broke out into weeping. Mr. Quilton pushed up his spectacles, and looked on as though hardly able to believe his own eyes.

"Bless my soul!" he mentally ejaculated; "I never had such a good opinion of Philip Hatherly's marble consort before."

"My dear! my dear!" the old lady murmured, softly, kissing the hidden face, and her own voice tremulous. "I have been a cruel mother in the past, but I am going to be very good to you. My lost darling's wife must ever hold the foremost place in my lonely old heart now. And this is my little girl—my Philip's child—my own dear little granddaughter—our pretty future heiress! Come here, my dear, and kiss grandmamma."

The child shyly advanced. She had been standing behind her mother—not clinging to her, as is childhood's wont, but standing a little apart, looking on with shining, solemn gray eyes. Mrs. Hatherly took her in her arms, and kissed the shy little drooping face again and again.

"Philip's child! Philip's little daughter! Oh, my darling, you must love grandmamma very much, to make up for all she has lost. But come in! How selfish I am, keeping you standing here in this chilly hall! Ah! how long the hours have been to-day! How impatiently I have waited for this moment! I am a very undisciplined old woman. I am afraid—as impatient and impetuous as ever, Mr. Quilton."

"Impatience and impetuosity are family failings, madam," the lawyer answered, coolly. "I don't expect you will ever outgrow them."

He followed her into the long drawing-room, brilliant with firelight and lamplight, and the little girl uttered a low cry of surprise and delight at sight of all this hitherto unimagined splendor.

"Pretty, isn't it, Amy?" Mr. Quilton said; "better even than that gorgeous hotel mamma took you to, and whose radiant glories you cannot forget."

"Amy has been used to very little splendor in her short lifetime," said Amy's mother, speaking for the first time; she has early learned the hard lesson of poverty and privation."

"But all that is at an end now," the old lady interposed, gently. "My dear, let bygones be bygones. Our pretty little Amy will speedily forget the hard past in the bright present. Whom is she like? Not you, my dear, and not her father."

She was looking earnestly, wistfully, in the small face, trying to trace some resemblance to her idolized son, and trying in vain. She glanced at the mother; no, the bright little rosy face, with its commonplace prettiness, was not in the least like that pale and perfect beauty.

"Amy is like my family," Mrs. Phillip said, answering that look; "but she is not like me, and not at all like her father."

"So I see." Mrs. Hatherly laid her hand on the bell as she spoke, with a cold feeling of disappointment at her heart. "But you are all three tired and hungry, I am certain, after your long and disagreeable journey. Your rooms are ready, and your luggage taken up, and dinner waits. Susie, show these ladies to their apartments. Mr. Quilton, you know your own room. The dinner-bell will ring in twenty minutes."

Susie, a bright country girl, curtseyed, and led the way up a grand sweeping staircase, along a richly-carpeted and pictured corridor, and into a sumptuous chamber, fit for a princess. A fire burned on the hearth, wax candles stood lighted on the toilet-table; carpet, curtains, easy-chairs, and pictures were all perfection. The bed stood in a curtained recess, hung with curtains of rose silk under misty lace.

Truthfulness is a corner stone in character; and if it be not firmly laid in youth, there will always be a weak foot in the foundation.

NORA'S CRIME;

OR,

THE CAPTAIN'S REVENGE.

This most thrilling, exciting, and finely written novel is the story of a most curious impersonation, and is perfectly natural and truthful in its narration. Two girls—daughters of a country clergyman—fall in love with two young men—one a poor artist, who has nothing but his handsome face to recommend him; the other the heir of a rich inheritance, who is travelling under an assumed name. The story opens with the elopement of Nora and Ernest Hope—her handsome lover—and her subsequent abandonment by her heartless husband, who is assured by the attendant physician that her recovery from her accouchement is impossible. Hope leaves his wife and goes to London, where his handsome face gains him the love of a rich heiress, whom he espouses; but, on his wedding night, an unseen hand levels a pistol at him, shoots him in the face, and his beauty is ruined for ever.

Meanwhile, Blanche, the other sister, marries Charles Selwyn, who is discarded by his family for the mesalliance, and, in a fit of desperation through want, he commits a robbery, and flies the country.

Blanche, the discarded wife, is taken ill, and is carried to a hospital; believing that she is about to die, she writes to her sister Nora—who is engaged as a governess—sending her her certificate of marriage and wedding-ring, and asking her to come an see her before she dies. Nora did not go and years after, when she saw an advertisement for the wife of Charles Selwyn, she conceived the idea of passing herself off as her own sister, and so taking the post of honor in an old and honorable family. She carries out her impersonation successfully, and even passes herself off on her sister's husband—who meanwhile has been serving in the army in India, and has gained the rank of Colonel,—and seems to be in a fair way to attain the summit of her ambition.

But—

> "The best laid plans
> Of mice and men
> Aft gang agee";

and so Nora's Nemesis, Ernest Hope, turns up in the person of Captain Clopin, and frustrates her wicked schemes.

The story is worked out with wonderful fidelity to nature; and the pure, simple character of Blanche is brought out with great distinctness as compared with the dark brooding of Nora. The fate of the two principal actors in this thrilling story conveys an excellent and healthy moral. Although crime and iniquity may flourish for a time, yet the sure retribution of God will overtake the evil-doers and so, in the fate of Nora and Clopin we see the truth of the proverb verified, that "Evil works its own destruction."

What we have shadowed forth is a mere sketch, and does not in the least portray the beauties or inner plot of the story, which we are assured every one will find pleasure and profit in reading. It will be continued in the EVENING STAR from day to day till completed, with illustrations every week. The STAR may be procured from any news dealer in the city.

MORE LIGHT!

The want of sufficient light has long been a great inconvenience to Retail Shop keepers in Montreal. The Stores have heretofore been constructed without the least regard to healthful ventilation and the admission of light.

MR. A. A. MURPHY,

having experienced many of the evils resulting from this neglect, has now made arrangements to have a new Store built, adopting all the most modern improvements in lighting, heating and ventilation.

This Store will be erected on that magnificent site, 437 & 439 NOTRE DAME STREET (immediately opposite St. Helen street), and will be opened as a first-class Dry Goods Store during the coming autumn.

In the meantime, the valuable Stock now held in the

RAILWAY ADVERTISING

COMPANY,

OFFICES: 243 ST. JAMES STREET, MONTREAL.

This Company has the exclusive right of placing advertisements in the Cars and Stations of the Principal Canadian Railways for a term of years.

This method of advertising in the Cars and Stations upon Railways, has become a popular one in England and upon the Continent, and is only in its infancy in America, but we hope, by doing the advertising well and attractively, to make it a permanent institution of the Dominion, and give to the public who may patronize us, a valuable consideration for their money.

The Advertising in the Stations will be done handsomely and attractively in large frames, containing from 3 to 12 cards each. The frames will be of Black Walnut and Gold, and each card to be glazed separately, with a gold moulding between.

The Advertising in the Cars will be done in small gilt frames, containing from one to four cards each, and placed conspicuously in the Passenger Cars on the different sections, or either section, as may be desired by the advertiser.

We are also prepared to place Advertisements furnished us by parties desiring to furnish their own Advertising Cards, in the Stations on the line of the roads represented by us, at reasonable rates.

Advertisements will be also inserted in any other medium in the Dominion of Canada on favorable terms.

For rates, &c., apply at office, 243 St. James street, Montreal.
