

Sherbrooke postal workers accept return to work appeal

Plan mail delivery Thursday

By DAVID WEBSTER
(Record staff reporter)

Sherbrooke letter carriers to-day voted to return to work. This development follows a last night vote by city mail clerks, also to return to their jobs.

The mail clerks started working as of 6:30 a.m. this morning. By the end of the afternoon all Sherbrooke postal services, except mail delivery, are to be running again, Assistant Postmaster Henri Grant announced this morning.

The 40,000-letter backlog of mail at the post office is relatively small and will be sorted out by regular staff by the end of the day, he added.

Mail delivery is to resume tomorrow.

Letter carriers, meeting at a King Street hall across from the post office, approved the return to work by 28 votes to 9, said Sherbrooke federated letter carriers' association president, Alain Beaulieu.

Fifty-two city mailmen belong to the group.

The decision reversed an earlier one taken last night. Letter carriers, then voted 23 to 12 to stay on strike.

"Ottawa has set down policy for mail employees that we've been awaiting for two weeks," said Mr. Beaulieu in explanation of the return-to-work decision.

Association officials stressed, however, that the decision was to call a 14-day truce, rather than end the strike completely.

"If the government doesn't make useful offers by then, the Postal Workers Brotherhood will hold a nation-wide postal workers referendum on whether to strike," asserted Sherbrooke association secretary, Yves Baillargeon.

(The Postal Workers Brotherhood, with which all postal workers are affiliated, did not call the strike. It started as a wildcat walkout in Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver and spread to other centres.)

The Sherbrooke Postal Employees Association (mail clerks) voted 21 to 9 to return to work, said their president, Herve Thibault.

This vote was taken at a joint meeting of mail clerks and letter carriers - at which the letter carriers voted to continue striking.

Post office officials in the other Eastern Townships centres of Magog, Asbestos and Thetford reported that, as of this morning, postal employees had not returned to work.

Mail, stored at the Sherbrooke post office since the strike began, may now be delivered to most centres said Mr. Grant.

However mail for Montreal cannot be delivered since postal employees there are still on strike, he added.

Tax policy declared 'punitive'

MONTREAL (CP)—A. J. Little of Toronto, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said Tuesday that any use of the tax act to "penalize" Canadians who place advertising in foreign-owned periodicals in this country is "punitive."

Mr. Little told a service club that there should be equity in the tax system and that every one in similar circumstances should be treated equally and fairly.

"When we use the tax structure to induce someone to put a plant in a certain place or to operate in a certain fashion, or when we use the system to penalize someone for doing something that the government doesn't like, this, it seems to me, destroys the equity that should otherwise be found in the act."

He cited the use of the tax system to penalize Canadians who place advertising in foreign-owned periodicals in this country by denying tax deduction or such costs.

"This is punitive and is something that ought not to be directed at the advertisers, but some appropriate legislation—if it is desirable at all—should be directed at the periodicals."

Government delays sanctions

Still hopeful of work return

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue Minister Benson said today there is no question of firing postal employees who defied return-to-work pleas from their leaders.

He said the government still is waiting to see what the postal strike situation will be after meetings scheduled for today in Toronto and Hamilton.

Vancouver postal employees are back at work, he said.

He said the government stands by its guarantee of no reprisals with respect to Montreal employees who voted unanimously Tuesday night to remain on strike in support of their demands for a $660-a-year pay increase. The government has offered $330.

Mr. Benson said today's 5 a.m. EDT (6 a.m. ADT) deadline attached to its no-reprisal guarantee had been suggested by the Postal Brotherhood's representatives. But the Montreal employees who didn't return to work by that time were still regarded as postal employees.

If they returned with "reasonable dispatch" everything would be all right. He said that by "reasonable dispatch" he meant a day or two.

Mr. Benson, chairman of the cabinet committee dealing with the postal strike, conferred with Prime Minister Pearson and the other two members of the committee, Postmaster General Tremblay and Solicitor General Pennington, before a scheduled cabinet meeting.

The meeting, originally called for 10 a.m. (11 a.m. ADT) was moved to 10:15 a.m.

Mr. Benson told reporters after his conference with the prime minister that he is in constant touch with representatives of the postal brotherhood.

He said he could not indicate when the government's plans are until the postal employees' meetings concluded in Toronto and Hamilton.

The government considered the strike still an emergency and it would remain one as long as one service was not operating.

Mr. Benson said the government has not formally considered calling Parliament to legislate an end to the dispute.

The question had been raised only as a possible alternative. It had not been intended as a threat to the striking employees.

He said he had no comment on suggestions that the post office might be turned into a Crown corporation, which would give postal employees immediate collective bargaining rights. That would be a government decision and it hadn't been considered by the cabinet.

On his way to the cabinet meeting Mr. Pearson repeated his denial of Opposition Leader Dietzenbaker's claim that the pay research bureau of the civil service commission had recommended a $660 annual pay increase.

Mr. Pearson said the bureau is not authorized to recommend pay levels but that it provides only comparative statistical data to the commission which all concerned.

then makes a recommendation to the government.

The prime minister said he has asked for the report of the research bureau to confirm what he has been told "formally and definitely—that no recommendation of any kind was made to the commission let alone the government."

Bill Kay of Vancouver, one of the postal employees' representatives, said the ideas of recalling Parliament or turning the post office department into a Crown company had been discussed by cabinet ministers.

Revenue Minister Benson, head of the cabinet "strike committee," was reported in an exasperated and get-tough mood after 4,000 strikers in Montreal and their allies in several other Quebec and Ontario centres voted to continue their walkout until they get a $660 pay increase.

The situation was further complicated when strikers in Vancouver, Victoria and other cities voted to return to work today.

Mr. Benson and leaders of the Canadian Postal Workers Brotherhood reached an agreement Tuesday to end the walkout at 5 a.m. EDT today, but many local groups defied the brotherhood's authority.

"Whom do you deal with?" Mr. Benson said in an interview. "The government can't deal with every postal worker in the country."

He said the government has negotiated in good faith with the brotherhood, but will face an "entirely new situation" if the strike continues despite Tuesday's agreement.

An informant in the postal association said the government has even raised the possibility of calling out troops if necessary to sort and deliver high-priority mail.

Officials of the brotherhood and of the three affiliated associations stayed up all night to issue appeals to the strikers to end the strike and allow the mediator, Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville, Ont., to recommend remedial steps to the government.

The brotherhood executive was to meet this morning for the third straight day to plot strategy.

Prime Minister Pearson said in a CBC television interview that the government will act on Judge Anderson's recommendations "in a way that will satisfy all concerned."

Would combine US-Canada plan

GENEVA (Reuters) — Western disarmament experts are trying to combine British and Canadian proposals for non-dissemination of nuclear weapons in an attempt to produce a single draft treaty, authoritative sources said today.

Delegates from the United States, Britain, Canada and Italy were considering British and Canadian plans which would be presented as one West-nuclear disarmament conference, which resumed here Tuesday after a 10-month adjournment.

In the opening session, U.S. chief delegate William Foster offered new American ideas on non-dissemination of nuclear weapons and banning of underground nuclear tests.

Sources said the aims of the British and Canadian drafts were the same and there was only a difference of approach.

The British proposal tries simply to bind nuclear powers not to transfer control of nuclear weapons to other countries.

The American also indicated that as part of any effort to prevent the spread of nuclear arms all governments should agree to accept the International Atomic Energy Agency's position on international inspection in Russian territory as a check against cheating in underground testing.

The newspaper says it learned life could be detected, this did not rule out the possibility that public-show craters gouged in plants such as lichens and algae the surface of the planet but no might exist.

Greek crisis

ATHENS (AP) — King Constantine today summoned Parliament into special session Friday, thus giving his new government time to rally support for a confidence vote. It had been expected the session would be held Thursday.

The monarch, 25, returned unexpectedly to Athens from his summer palace on Corfu Island to sign the decree.

A spokesman for Premier George Athanasiadis Novas said the king signed the decree during a conference with the premier. The spokesman gave no details of the conference.

The views of both Far Eastern leaders were in messages read at the opening session here Tuesday of the 11th World Congress Against Atomic and Hydrogen Bombs.

Heath assumes leadership

Acclamation on 2nd vote

LONDON (CP) — Edward Heath today formally took command of Britain's Opposition Conservative party and attention immediately focussed on how soon the 49-year-old bachelor would stamp the party with his individual aggressive seal.

Heath took over when nominations closed with no other candidates contesting the second-round vote for the leadership.

He won 150 of the 298 votes cast in the first vote Tuesday. Reginald Maudling got 133 and Enoch Powell 15. Under the party's complicated new voting rules Heath would have needed 45 votes more than Maudling for a clear win.

But Maudling, 48, former chancellor of the exchequer and the pre-vote favorite to win, withdrew from the contest and so did Powell, former health minister and strong right-winger.

HEATH ONLY ONE LEFT — That left Heath's name the only one to be put forth today when nominations closed for a second vote by the MPs. Although the nominator and second round remain secret, it was likely Maudling would put up Heath's name and Powell second in the name of party unity.

Next Monday there is to be a full party meeting to make the election formal.

Speculation quickly fastened on what Heath will do with the Conservatives' "shadow" cabinet — the men assigned as watchdogs to their counterparts in Prime Minister Wilson's Labor government.

Heath, the Tories' spokesman on economics and trade since last February, has had public pledges of support from both Maudling and Sir Alec Douglas-Home, whose surprise resignation set off five days last Thursday of party leadership campaigning for the leadership.

Douglas-Home has said he is willing to serve on either the front bench or as an ordinary MP. But as a former foreign secretary before taking over the Tory leadership 12 months ago, he seemed a natural choice for that post in the shadow cabinet.

IN THE DRIVER'S SEAT — Edward Heath, 49-year-old bachelor, dubbed the "poor man's choice," was today named leader of the British conservatives in a House of Commons party vote. He now is in line to become prime minister if and when the party regains control of the government. He is shown at the wheel of his car in London after his selection. ## Hellyer nearing target

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Paul Hellyer is rapidly nearing his goal—and more rapidly than originally estimated—of annual administrative savings of $100,000,000 by cutting the defence establishment.

When Mr. Hellyer took over the defence portfolio in 1963, the armed forces numbered 123,270. When integration of the command structure officially took effect last August they stood at 118,823.

Authorities say that at May 31, 1965, last date for which figures are available, the number of military personnel was 112,917 and still falling. The figure is the lowest in 10 years.

Mr. Hellyer's aim was to reduce the numerical strength of the services to about 110,000 by August, 1966, and thus save $100,000,000 a year.

Officials estimate this goal may be reached long before that date. The reduction may take the forces' strength slightly below 110,000.

Five US aircraft downed in raid on missile sites

SAIGON (CP)—Five United States Air Force fighter-bombers were lost on strikes Tuesday against two North Vietnamese anti-aircraft missile sites about 40 miles northwest of Hanoi, a U.S. military spokesman announced today.

The spokesman said three of the F-105 jets were shot down by "conventional ground fire" and two others crashed after colliding near their home base as they returned from the strikes.

Two of the pilots whose planes were shot down were presumed to have been killed, the spokesman said. The other was rescued.

The pilots of the two planes which collided were presumed to have been killed, the announcement said.

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—At the recent Moscow film festival The Great Race won third prize in a field of turgid dramas brimming with social significance. This is a noteworthy achievement of a movie that bears no message outside of a fervent plea for women's suffrage. The award also comprised a boost in morale for Blake Edwards, the boyish third-generation film maker who conceived, co-wrote and directed The Great Race.

You wouldn't think that Edwards needed such encouragement. Besides his current hit he had a pair of solid winners last year—The Pink Panther and A Shot in The Dark. But, like all creators of comedy, he suffers doubts as to whether his efforts are appreciated.

"It is a product of our system thinking that comedy is viewed as a frivolous way," he complained in his sumptuous office at Goldwyn studios. "People feel that it is a much lesser achievement than drama. I knew that thinking would prevail at Moscow."

"I was supposed to go to the festival. Then The Great Race showing was moved ahead and I couldn't get there in time. I was still going with Jack Lemmon when I read a report on the picture from Tass; it said grudgingly that people laughed, but the picture was not to be taken seriously."

"I cancelled my trip. I figured: Who needs it? I've got enough trouble with critics here. But then I got reports on the showing from Jack, Dorothy Provine, George Stevens Jr. and others at the festival. They said the audience roared and it was the only film to sell out the 6,000-seat house. They had to show it four times. Then came the award.

"I think my whole attitude toward comedy will be different now. I'm not going to make any more excuses, to myself or anybody."

Although Edwards looks like a movie juvenile—which he once was—he has the movie-making finesse of a pro. He came by it naturally.

His grandfather was J. Gordon Edwards, who directed the first Cleopatra and other Theda Bara films. His father is Jack McEdwards, studio production manager who now oversees his son's films.

"When I started directing I was advised by friends never to bring a picture in on schedule," Edwards recalled. "I did the first one at Columbia on schedule. On the next one I was six days over on a 15-day film, not to impress anyone, but because I tried to be conscientious. I was fired."

"But Universal was impressed by the picture and hired me. I did some Tony Curtis movies on schedule then. I went over on Operation Petticoat. They let me go. I went over on High Time at Fox because I was trying to fix an impossible script. Fox warned Paramount not to hire me for Breakfast at Tiffany's, but I got the job anyway."

Even his recent successes didn't end the spectre. Edwards said J. L. Warner once tried to fire him from The Great Race when the film advanced toward an $11,000,000 cost. "But I think he realized now it couldn't have been made for less," said Edwards.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

Jim Jacoby gets his father reminiscing today. He asks: "What is the most interesting ace-queen play you recall?"

Oswald: "It was in the first round of a Spingold Cup Tournament back in the days when sudden death matches were played. Margaret Wagar of Atlanta opened one spade and own hand and led the queen of spades just as if she didn't have a care in the world. West also had no cards. He ducked quickly on the theory that Maggie held queen-jack seven times and would not finesse. Maggie let the queen ride and picked the king and jack together on the next lead."

Jim: "A nice swindle, but also an example of perfect technique. With that combination the play of the ace brings home the contract if West holds a singleton jack or if West holds king-small and makes a mistake."

Oswald: "Incidentally, her team would have lost the match if she had gone down. As it was they went on to win the tournament."

Pharmacists study free drug plan for city's needy

The Sherbrooke Pharmacists Association will continue studying the idea of setting up a free pharmacy for needy people, says group president Jean Paul Thibault.

Such a unit would dispense drugs without charge and be sustained by the government.

The Quebec government is developing a medicare plan but has no project to pay for drugs people buy, he says.

Support for the plan was given by the Sherbrooke charity association (Caritas), president Jean Jutras. The association has supported the free pharmacy idea since it was brought up some years ago, he says.

Mr. Thibault says that The Quebec College of Pharmacists has been unofficially informed of the plan. Eventually talks may be held between the college and government officials, he adds.

Mr. Thibault discloses no plan to present a brief to the government. The idea is still in the discussion stage, he declares.

Study of it has been postponed for the summer but will resume in the fall when the vacation season ends, he says.

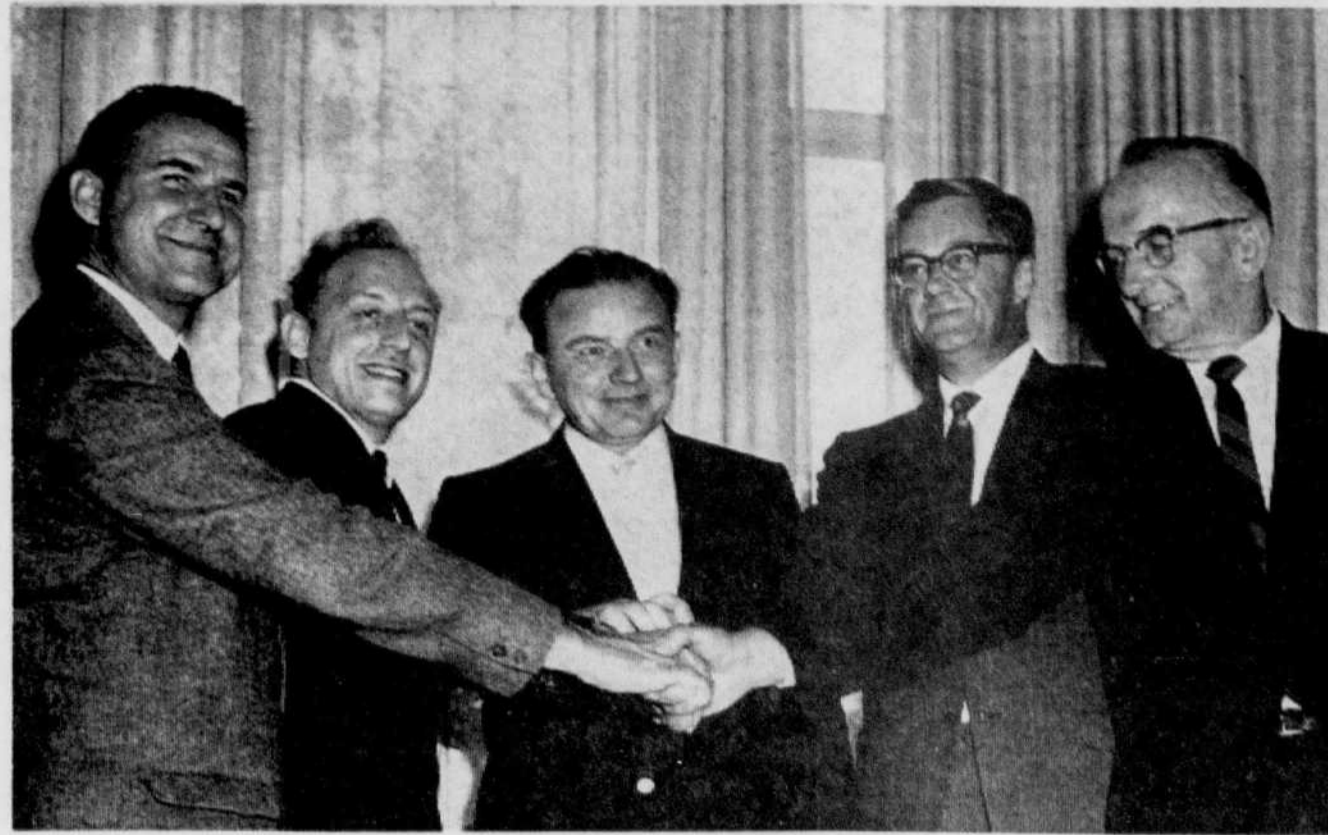

The Sherbrooke Pharmacists Association has some 20 members and represents most city druggists, he says.

Three hurt in two accidents

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) — Three people were injured in two separate accidents in this district yesterday afternoon, both investigated by the Cowansville detachment provincial police.

Paul Rondeau, 26, of Adamsville, was taken to the Brome-Missisquoi-Perkins Hospital after the car he was driving went out of control and into a ditch in Adamsville at four p.m. yesterday. Also hospitalized was a passenger, Rosaire Royer, in his early twenties, of Sutton.

An hour and a half later, in Vale Perkins, a two-car collision sent the driver of one car, 63-year-old Gue' Metayer of 152 Percival Avenue in Montreal West, to the B.M.P. Neither the other driver, Alphonse Dirr, 44, of 8317 Stuart Street in Montreal, nor four passengers in his car, were injured. Damage to Mr. Metayer's car was $400, and to Mr. Dirr's $200, police estimated.

Meet on road to Maritimes

Promotion committees for the proposed Atlantic autoroute plan to present briefs urging government action on the highway.

The briefs on the $350 million 260-mile autoroute, to link the Maritimes with Quebec through Maine, will be submitted to Quebec, New Brunswick and Maine government officials this summer.

This information was revealed by Maritime and Quebec autoroute promoters, meeting at the Sherbrooke Social Club yesterday.

Present at the meeting were members of the Maritime autoroute promotion committee, Charles Moffatt, secretary-manager of the Maritime Motor Transportation Association (a truckers association); H. Stanley Dixon, warden of York County, New Brunswick; W. R. Brennan of the Prince Edward Island public utilities commission; and J. A. Rioux, president of the Fredericton, N.B. Board of Trade.

Members of the Quebec autoroute promotion committee present included Sherbrooke engineer L.G. Carignan, treasurer; Lin-Luc Bourque, Frontenac County Council secretary; Sherbrooke industrial commissioner Robert Belisle; and Sherbrooke chamber of commerce secretary, Henri Baudou.

Mr. Rioux remarked after the meeting that interest was high, both in the United States and Canada, over the highway. "It may be realized in three to ten years," he added.

Freight men's role in commerce explained

The duties of freight forwarders in export traffic were described to Rotarians yesterday in the New Sherbrooke Hotel at noon by Jack Dever, president of the Canadian International Freight Forwarders' Association Inc.

The trafficier calculates how much space is needed for cargo to be shipped, the loading period, and the destination. Speed is essential to his job.

If necessary he also makes up certificates of weight, of inspection, of marine insurance, and commercial invoices. He has a modern copier machine for photostats to aid his work, Mr. Dever explained.

Some forwarders charge per ton, others by the services given.

Mr. Dever noted that 1964 was a year to be proud of regarding Canadian exports. They rose 16 per cent over 1963 to eight and one quarter billion dollars while imports rose 16 per cent to seven and one half billion dollars.

A 700 million dollar credit balance, the highest ever in peacetime Canada, resulted. The deficit decreased 19 per cent.

Much of the export gain was due to the large Russian wheat orders. The number of manufactured goods exported was also significant that year.

Government policy in recent years has stimulated manufacturers to go to markets abroad, Mr. Dever noted. Additional employment for Canadians has thus been created.

To beat the heat is not their problem

They wear winter clothes at work on summer days

By PAUL WHITELEW
(Record staff reporter)

Not everyone in Sherbrooke is figuring ways to beat the heat at the office and plant this summer. Some workmen in Sherbrooke must don insulated parkas during the summer to protect themselves from below freezing temperatures.

These men are employees of Landsdowne Storage Limited in Sherbrooke and must don nylon insulated parkas and heavy boots to work in the below freezing temperatures of the huge refrigerators where fruit and candy goods are stored.

The cold isn't really hard to bear, if you're dressed for it, notes operations manager Garth Bishop.

It's actually even quite pleasant on hot days, he points out. But when winter comes, it's often warmer outside than it is in the freezers. One of the freezers is kept at 13 degrees below zero. Another, is kept at a cool four below. And others are kept slightly above the freezing point for certain products.

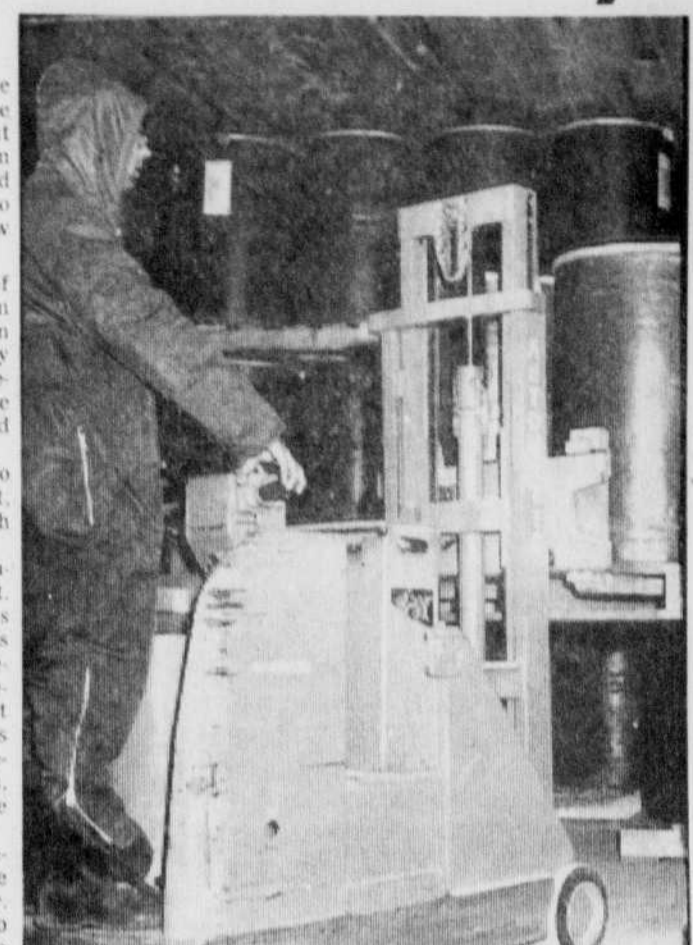

Coffee breaks, though, pose a constant problem.

One just can't leave the freezer and come out for a coffee or a soft drink, notes Mr. Bishop. If one had forgotten to remove the suit during the break, the suit would fill with frost immediately upon re-entry.

Suits must be removed when one leaves the freezer. Apparently the work in artificial freezing temperatures doesn't have any ill effects on health, says Mr. Bishop.

The only physical requirement for work indoors at the constant cold temperatures is an "average physical condition."

The average individual, says Mr. Bishop, can withstand the cold with the proper protective clothing.

Rolling tires damage cars

EAST ANGU — (Staff) — Two cars were damaged yesterday afternoon here, when a pair of large tires fell off a truck and rolled down Angus Street into the cars.

One of the cars was moving when struck and incurred $300 damage; the other was stationary and incurred only $50 damage, police said.

Driver of the moving car was Bertrand Labbe, 30, of 107 St. Pierre Street. The parked car was owned by Paul Thompson, 21, of Bury Road.

The General Faces the Future

Prime Minister must provide lead

Refusal of post office workers in Montreal and some other major Canadian cities to heed the advice of their Brotherhood leaders to return to work places a direct responsibility of Prime Minister Pearson to take effective steps to assure the resumption of normal post office services in this country.

For more than a week many important centres have been without any sort of mail service and the interference has caused serious disruption to the business life of Canada.

No longer can the Prime Minister shuffle from one excuse to another. He must take the lead in bringing about the return to work.

Probably he will call a special session of Parliament to enact legislation outlawing the walkout, a move he should have made on Monday when it became apparent the strike was assuming national proportions.

But even if he does force a resumption of postal service by Saturday or Monday several unanswered questions will remain.

Why did the Government permit conditions to reach such a point that the only recourse left to the postal workers to assure receiving a hearing for their demands was to walk off the jobs?

Why did it refuse to follow the same course of action it imposes on private employers — that of meeting with employee representatives around the bargaining table in good faith?

And will adequate steps be taken to assure that a similar crisis does not arise in the future?

The demands of the postal workers, and several other categories of government employees for that matter, were not overnight grievances. They have been laid before the cabinet on several occasions but never received an adequate hearing.

The day has gone when it was considered a privilege to work for the Crown and that any remuneration for the work done was something the King handed out as a matter of courtesy, not as a matter of right.

Today the vast majority of civil servants perform definite duties and should have the right to negotiate as to the wages to be paid.

Another interesting question, which might never be answered, is:

Who was responsible for the blunder which saw postmen in Toronto and a number of other Ontario cities loaded with circulars to be delivered from door-to-door, leaving individuals of the need of the post office for extra workers?

As these circulars went out after the work stoppage was effective in a number of centres it is little wonder that many of the posties regarded them as a call for strikebreakers.

Probably they were legitimate advertising for permanent positions but the timing was certainly poor and did little to improve relations between the department and its employees.

Distillers are busily promoting so-called "soft" whisky. Now, when the old man weaves home, he can truthfully tell the old lady he stopped at a soft drink stand.

Determining future traffic needs

Like all other cities throughout the world Sherbrooke has its traffic problems.

And like most of them it is attempting without too much success to combat them.

This lack of achievement cannot be charged to the police departments or the other agencies held responsible for meeting the difficulties created by urban growth and the proliferation of the automobile.

For the most part of the blame rests with the lack of adequate overall surveys of the circulation problems.

Lacking complete information as to traffic trends, the best the responsible authorities can do is to grapple with a particular problem as it arises, oftentimes creating acute situations elsewhere.

For this reason the Sherbrooke City Council is displaying sound sense and good judgment in preparing for a complete survey of the local problems.

This is particularly important for Sherbrooke as the construction of a number of new bridges and the opening of new through arteries in the past few years has tended to change traffic habits of local citizens and visitors.

Furthermore the opening of new shopping centres and the movement of financial and commercial enterprises from the heart of the city also create new problems, either for the present or the near future.

Thus any study must not only cover conditions as they exist today but take into account the wide variety of developments which may occur in a progressive community for years to come.

This is beyond the capabilities of the ordinary municipal employee and must be entrusted to experts.

The readers say:

Labor court could end public strikes

Dear Sir: As one of millions of tax payers who depend on Ottawa to run our public services, may I express a few suggestions.

I believe it is high time our elected representatives considered seriously some form of legislation to control the continued rash of strikes the public has been subjected to in the past few months. It is not enough to say the strike is illegal and then appoint some one to investigate.

I suggest that a permanent commission or Court of Appeal be set up representing both employers and employees to which every organized group must submit their case, at least a month before any strike can go into effect. The ruling of this court would be final.

The ruling of this court would also have jurisdiction over any increase in salaries of public officials, including Members of Parliament and municipal officers who at the moment do not hesitate to increase their own stipend by as much as 50% without any recourse to the tax payer who must foot the bills. This is not what I would call a democratic way of doing things. It would appear that so far we have not received any more services for the extra millions of dollars being paid out. When organized labour sees this sort of thing going on what else can you expect. This is a very complex and delicate problem, with many angles. Wages must be very carefully balanced against ability and production. For example — we cannot have basic labour such as postal delivery people getting more than a technically trained man. It just does not make sense.

Civil servants and other government employees, particularly in regard to public services, well know that as things stand they have little to lose, with the government having little or no control over their actions. These employees are, as we all know, in a special class. In order to get into this category, in most cases, it is necessary to support the right political party and the right people. They also enjoy certain other privileges. Productive ability or education is not always a necessity as long as you can read and write.

As far as I can see our present federal government has not produced any more constructive legislation than the previous government, except a lot of talk and a flag, which has pleased no one except Mr. Pearson — so far, and so signs of uniting the country as it was supposed to do.

In the event of an election, who do we vote for? In my humble opinion both leaders have had great opportunities, made promises that they have not fulfilled and tried desperately to pass the buck for their mistakes. At the moment we are not on very good terms with our neighbours. What I think this country badly needs are a few good Statesmen. Surely we have in Canada men who are big enough and have proven their ability in today's world in industry, to put Canada in its rightful place.

We have in Canada vast unknown potential resources which no other country possesses (with the possible exception of Russia). We still have the only comparatively cheap power in North America.

I suggest it is time to forget "local" politics and work together for a bigger and better Canada; a country where every one pulls his weight and has a job without depending on unemployment insurance.

I believe on taking over any public job, every politician should carefully consider the late President Kennedy's remark on taking office — "Think not of what this Country can do for me, but rather what I can do for my Country." What a difference this would make, compared to what we have.

Yours very truly, K. B. JENCKES

Our UN ambassador

Quiet diplomat's quiet diplomat Canada's careful Paul Tremblay

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The phrase "quiet diplomacy" could have been coined especially for Paul Tremblay. For the last three years he has held one of Canada's top diplomatic posts, ambassador to the United Nations. But he has been seldom in the spotlight and at no time in danger of being described as colorful or controversial.

His whole operating code, in fact, seems directed to getting things done privately, avoiding the public clashes and tough stands that make the real negotiating more difficult. He sprinkles his conversation with such phrases as "preventive diplomacy" and "getting at the roots of war."

"When Tremblay encounters an obstacle, he doesn't try to batter it down—he looks for a way around it," says a colleague. So it was not surprising that Tremblay was unanimously elected to head the UN committee for International Cooperation Year.

Tremblay, 49, was born in Chicoutimi, Que., and has spent half his life in the diplomatic service — although he once thought seriously of becoming a scientist and still reads scientific books for relaxation.

He was trained as a constitutional lawyer and looks the part of a lawyer-diplomat: slim and impeccable, with a small moustache, dark-rimmed glasses and wavy, iron-grey hair.

In the sometimes-heckle world of UN diplomacy he moves unobtrusively, chatting easily in French, English or Spanish. He delivers most of his UN speeches in French and has been known to translate them personally.

His outlook on the UN is quietly optimistic. He concedes that the organization is going through a crucial time but feels that for both political and economic reasons it will become increasingly useful.

"We have reached the point where it becomes obvious that the global wars, the big wars, are to all practical purposes unthinkable," he says.

"They may happen — one never knows—but I think the possibility is becoming more remote." That means that the UN can become increasingly important in isolating the small wars, preventing them from becoming big ones.

PREVENTING WAR "At one point in history, war could be described as a continuation of politics through other means," Tremblay says.

"This does not make sense any more. Total war has become the very negation of politics because it leads to obliteration of friend and foe. Hence, a greater need in our time for preventive diplomacy than in any other period of history."

On the economic side, Tremblay sees important work ahead for the UN in meeting the problems of the new and underdeveloped countries.

He says that the "fundamental approach" of the Canadian delegation is to address itself to the roots of war—the search for security by the poorer peoples of the world.

The aim is to link aid with trade, ensuring that international trading arrangements promote the orderly development of the poorer countries. Tremblay calls this a "far more intelligent and dignified approach to foreign aid" than the concept of the handout.

He says it may be some time before results show, "but the main thing is that a start has been made."

ADVANCED TOGETHER

In a sense, Tremblay has grown with Canada's foreign service. He joined in 1940 when there were only about seven missions abroad compared with the present 85. The promise of that coming expansion was one of the factors that attracted him to the profession, although he says he joined without any great enthusiasm since he spoke little English at the time and didn't relish the thought of immersing himself in language study.

His family tradition was in law. His father was a lawyer, a great-uncle was a judge, "the house was full of law books," and there was considerable pressure on Tremblay to follow the tradition.

He recalls with a smile that when he considered alternatives, his family urged him to "become a lawyer first and then see what I wanted to do." He followed the advice, graduating in law from the University of Montreal in 1939. He was offered two scholarships to continue his studies and had even made liner reservations to go abroad when the war intervened.

Instead, he went into private practice in Montreal and studied constitutional law at McGill.

TWO TOOK EXAMS

The following year, he and his law partner "influenced each other" to try the external affairs department exams. The partner, Marcel Cadieux, now is undersecretary of state for external affairs.

Tremblay's first posting abroad was in Washington, where he worked under Lester B. Pearson, read science books on the side and at one point "debated very seriously whether or not to shift my field of interest to nuclear physics."

He decided against it and went on to posts in Santiago, Chile, and The Hague before returning to Ottawa. In 1954 he was sent to Paris as counsellor of Canada's delegation to the North Atlantic Council and the Organization of European Economic Co-operation. He worked there under Dana Wilgress and "received an introduction to multilateral diplomacy that came in handy at the UN."

In 1957 he returned to Ottawa as head of the department's defence liaison division and served on the Canada-U.S. committee on joint defence. Two years later he gained his first ambassadorship, returning to Chile.

Tremblay's scientific interest proved useful in 1961 when he was brought in from Santiago to serve on the Canadian delegation to the 16th UN General Assembly.

RETURNED AS CHIEF

The main Canadian project that year was a resolution calling for action to study and combat the dangers of radioactive fallout. Tremblay piloted it through the special political committee—so successfully that a year later he found himself back at the UN as head of the delegation.

At the Canadian mission's headquarters on the 28th floor of a Manhattan skyscraper, Tremblay directs a year-round staff of 35 to 40. During the fall Assembly session an influx of politicians and civil servants sends the strength up to 65 to 70.

Besides administrative duties and his main work at the UN building two blocks away, Tremblay has a heavy speaking schedule and attends an average of two social functions a day—a part of the job that often stretches his working day from 9 a.m. to 10 or 11 at night.

He and his wife, the former Gertrude Nadeau, an attractive Quebec City native who shares the ambassador's skill in languages, also entertain frequently at their Park Avenue apartment.

These demands leave Tremblay little time to spend on hobbies or with his children, Michele, 20, Helene, 17 and Pierre, 14.

But he still enjoys reading on science and tinkers with radio, hi-fi and photography, admitting that he has done "a bit of research in my spare time on three-dimensional photography."

The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room.

What can separate us from the love of Christ? (Romans 8:35, NEB)

PRAYER: Our kind and loving heavenly Father, we do not ask for the easy way, but we seek strength to endure the hardships that may overtake us. We ask in the name of Christ, who suffered upon the cross for our redemption, and taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

Wild Washington US capital is its crime capital

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — In a four-day period in Washington last December, a woman was fatally stabbed in her downtown apartment, three shopkeepers were shot and a 14-year-old boy gunned down a taxi driver on a dare.

The concentrated reign of terror was a stark illustration of the fact that the U.S. capital, for its size, is harder hit by violent crime than any other American city.

The 800,000 residents in the 72 square miles of this federal district are more likely to be robbed than those in any other major U.S. city. In relation to its population, Washington leads the country in robberies and violent attacks.

A record 132 murders were committed in 1964 by gun, razor, ice pick, baseball bat, tire iron, knife and scissors.

Protective agencies flourish. Sales of pen-sized tear gas guns are booming. There are classes in judo for women who want to protect themselves against attackers. And one finishing school includes instruction in screaming for help.

Citizens' groups have been formed in the District of Columbia and in the Maryland and Virginia suburbs where serious crime is increasing at a rate more than double the population growth. The main objective of these groups is mutual protection against burglaries.

It is worth noting that 1957, the year of the Mallory rule, was the post-war low point in Washington crime and that it has increased progressively since then.

The annual report of the Washington police department for the year ended June 30, 1964, showed a total of 28,469 offences reported, an all-time high for the district.

Crime was up 22.7 per cent over the previous 12 months and was 80.3 per cent higher than in the corresponding period of 1956-57, even though population of the district has barely changed since then.

In April this year there were 3,018 offences, 25 per cent more than in the same month a year ago, and it was the 35th consecutive month in which crime was up from the previous year.

Bride-to-be is feted at shower in Sawyerville

SAWYERVILLE — Miss Carol Rand, of Milby, formerly of Sawyerville, was honored on July 16 at a surprise pantry shower given by her aunt, Mrs. Earl Thompson, Orleans, Vt., at the home of Eton Thompson.

Upon arrival, Miss Rand was presented with white rose and for-get-me-not corsage, and greeted by some 40 relatives and friends.

A game was played; prizes being won by Mrs. Fred Robinson, Mrs. Lincoln Matthew, Mrs. Douglas MacKay and Mrs. Francis Williams.

Miss Cindy Forgrave presented the bride-to-be with a decorated shopping cart filled with gifts. She was assisted in unwrapping the packages by her mother, Mrs. Lyle Rand and her prospective mother-in-law, Mrs. Grant Forgrave.

The guest of honor expressed her thanks to those present, to those who sent gifts but were unable to attend, also to her aunt and to Elton Thompson.

Strawberry short cake and punch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Eric Bailey, Mrs. Ray Stoddard and Misses Cindy Forgrave and Kathy Thompson.

Among those attending from out of town were Mrs. Alan Williams, Bulwer, Mrs. George Parsons, Bury, the bride's grandmothers, Mrs. Russell Thompson, Massawippi, Mrs. Lloyd Hume, Ontario, and Miss Gloria Raymond, Montreal.

Bride-to-be is feted at shower in Rock Island

ROCK ISLAND — Mrs. Thomas Bowen and Mrs. Robert Fisher were co-hostesses for a delightful shower held on July 14, at the home of Mrs. Bowen, honoring Miss Sandra Smith, a bride-to-be of mid-August.

Miss Smith came to the house on a neighborly errand, and on entering was surprised to find about 30 relatives and friends awaiting her.

The chair for the guest of honor was decorated in white with yellow garlands and rosettes, over which a watering can was suspended with streamers falling to the back of the chair. Summer flowers completed the decor in the home.

Miss Bonnie Smith presented her sister with a corsage of yellow mums and baby's breath, while Sheila and Susan Bowen presented similar flower corsages to Mrs. Frank Smith, mother of the bride-elect, and to Mrs. Roy Mosher, the prospective groom's mother.

Sheila and Susan presented Miss Smith with a clothes basket, decorated in yellow and white, and piled with prettily wrapped and ribboned parcels. The basket was replenished a second time. Miss Smith opened the gifts assisted by Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Mosher.

Refreshments were served, in shower motif, with a miniature umbrella accented in each of the ribbon loaf sandwiches, to be kept by the guests as a souvenir. The shower cake, made and decorated by Mrs. Gaston Mongeau, was topped with a miniature bride in white, standing under a decorated parasol. The cake was cut and passed by the guest of honor.

Mrs. Bowen and Mrs. Fisher presided at the punch bowl, they were assisted in serving by Mrs. E. J. Barnes, Sharleen, Sheila and Susan Bowen.

Guests attending were from Massawippi, Hatley, Ayer's Cliff and Boundary Villages.

Churches join to honor priest at farewell tea

STANBRIDGE EAST — A farewell tea was held at the Memorial Hall on July 11 by the United, Anglican and Catholic Churches for Father Pierre Mongeau, who is leaving shortly for another parish.

The opening address was given by Mr. Trempe, delivered in both English and French. Father Mongeau replied in the same manner.

The guest of honor was presented with a purse of money, for which he expressed his thanks in both languages.

Other speakers were Raymond Giroux, head warden of the Roman Catholic Church, Father Minclette, priest of Bedford parish, Bruce Kidd from the United Church, acting for Rev. P. Macaskill, who was away on holiday, and Rev. P. D. Hansen, of the Anglican Church.

All speeches and Father Mongeau's reply were delivered in both English and French.

Afterward, the St. Anne's group served tea to the large gathering, Mrs. Theo. Loiseleur pouring tea and Mrs. Raymond Giroux, coffee.

Corman Thompson marriage

DANVILLE — The marriage of Caroline Faith Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Thompson of Danville, to Mr. Francis Dale Corman, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Corman of St. Catharines, Ont., took place on July 3, at 7:30 p.m. in St. Augustine's Church, Danville. Rev. George Robins officiated at the double ring ceremony and Mrs. Edith Boyd played the wedding music. Yellow and white daisies and snapdragon adorned the altar.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of dacron and cotton with bell shaped skirt, the fitted bodice featuring small puffed sleeves, her four tier veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a coronet of Alencon lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow shasta daisies and miniature white carnations. Mrs. John Batstone, of London, Ont., as matron of honor, wore a street length A-line dress in yellow dacron and cotton dotted crepe, with circlet and veil to match. Her bouquet was of white shasta daisies. Mr. Allan R. Wipper, of Toronto, acted as best man.

Mrs. Thompson, the bride's mother chose a two piece silk dress of pale green with a floral hat and she wore a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Corman, the mother of the groom, wore a beige brocade ensemble with beige hat and brown accessories. Her corsage was of yellow roses.

Following the ceremony a small reception was held at the Kebece Hotel, Asbestos. The table was centred by a two tier wedding cake, topped with a fresh gardenia, and flanked by candles and floral arrangements of smilax and daisies.

Later the couple left for a trip to New York and Bermuda, the bride wearing for travelling an off white and navy linen tunic dress, with navy accessories. Her corsage was an American Beauty orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Corman will reside in Toronto.

At lunch time a beautifully decorated birthday cake suitably inscribed added to the enjoyment of this surprise gesture.

An expression of appreciation was extended to the host and hostess for a most enjoyable time by young and old.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY—Many times a plastic button with a shank back gets ruined in the washing so a good garment is spoiled or else has to have all new buttons because of that one broken shank. By heating a small nail, red hot, two holes can be punched through the button so it can be sewed on again and it will hardly be noticeable that it is fastened differently from the others.—MRS. I. S.

GRILLS—The nail may have to be heated two, or even three times, before it will go through a thick button. After the nail is started in, keep turning the button round and round to speed up the process. This button could be switched with another and sewed on the least conspicuous part of the garment and be even less noticed.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—My two children, ages 3 and 4, both wear glasses. To avoid laying down the glasses the wrong way and scratching the lenses, I made dolls to wear their glasses while they are asleep. Now they always know where to find their glasses and the glasses don't get scratched.

For each doll, I started with a block of wood about 3 by 6 by 1-inch. I covered the top half (the 6-inch length is the height of the doll) with the top part of an old nylon stocking, leaving a tail about one-foot long over the top. This was tied again. Snip the tops of these loops and shred the loose ends, with the scissors, to make curly hair. Pound nails in at an angle on each side for ears and one in front for the nose. The nose is covered with a small eraser. Glasses rest on these three nails.

For the eyes, I used paper re-enforcement circles and darkened the insides of the circles for pupils. The mouth is just a piece of red paper. Bottom half of the block is covered with flannel and a strip of ribbon tied around the "waist." A straight piece of fabric could be gathered and glued to the block. Arms were cut from light cardboard with the ends cut to resemble fingers and the other end bent to hold the arm toward the front of the doll. This is also covered with the dress fabric, leaving only the fingers exposed. A base of thin board will lessen the danger of the doll tipping over. I also made one of these to hold my hospitalized father's glasses.—MRS. G. E. M.

Tuck those fish away in ice to brighten early autumn days

This is the time of year when fishermen across the country sit happily in boats or by the side of streams — and have fun whether or not they catch any fish!

As far as it's at all reasonable, the fish should be cleaned and used as quickly as it's caught. But if luck is very good and the woman of the house will clear space in the freezer, some can be stored to brighten the days of early autumn.

FISHERMAN'S FRY

Fishermen have their own special method for frying fish. Here's the method given to me by a dedicated sportsman.

- Fresh-caught fish
- 2 eggs, slightly beaten
- 1/4 cup milk
- Flour mixed with fine dry crumbs of bread or corn-flakes
- Salt, pepper
- Butter, shortening and salad oil

According to the man whose recipe this is, small fish such as smelts are cooked heads, tails and fins still on. Medium sized fish like speckled trout and perch should not be boned or skinned. Large fish may be filleted or even cut in steaks. Prepare the fish according to its size.

Beat eggs slightly and beat in milk. Combine flour and crumbs in proportions of 1 part flour to 2 of crumbs. Season. Dip prepared fish in diluted eggs, drain, then coat thoroughly with the flour mixture. (For a heavier crust, you can repeat the dipping in egg, then crumbs).

Have a generous amount of fat—a mixture of butter, shortening and salad oil—heated in a heavy frying pan. Fry fish rather quickly until nicely browned on one side, turn and brown second side. Lower heat and continue frying just until fish may be easily flaked with a fork.

FREEZING FISH

Fish should be kept at zero degrees fahrenheit throughout storage.

The more quickly it is frozen after catching, naturally the better it is.

Clean as for cooking. Also remove fins, tails and scales. Rinse well in lots of cold water. Leave whole or cut in steaks or fillets.

Leaner fish such as halibut, yellow pike, lake herring, etc., should be dipped for 20 seconds in salt solution (1 cup salt to a gallon of cold water). This helps to firm the fish and improve its flavor.

Wrap in meal-sized packages, in moisture-vapor-proof wrap. Large fish may be glazed before wrapping, to encase them in a film of ice. First freeze solid, then dip quickly in ice water; a thin coating of ice will immediately form on the surface. Repeat several times, then wrap in moisture-vapor-proof wrap.

Fillets, steaks or small whole fish may be packed in freezer containers and the crevices filled up with cold water. Don't fill too full as the water will expand when frozen. Cover tightly and wrap in moisture-vapor-proof wrap. Freeze. Or freeze filled and covered containers, then wrap and store. (TNS)

Border Couples feted on silver anniversaries

DERBY LINE — Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bedard and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Buck were guests of honor at a family gathering and dinner in honor of their silver wedding anniversary.

The two couples had been invited to attend the family gathering at the home of Mrs. Bedard and Mrs. Buck's sister, Mrs. Alfred Bernard and Mr. Bernard in Winooski.

The dinner took place at Sunny Hollow restaurant with 36 attending. The celebrants were seated at the head table, which was centered with the anniversary cake, topped with two brides and grooms. Flowers completed the decor.

The couples of the silver years were toasted and presented with gifts of silver and money for which they expressed their thanks.

The party had been arranged by their children, all of whom were present, except Mrs. Harry Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bedard, who is in Hawaii, from where she assisted with the plans and sent congratulatory messages.

Attending were Mrs. Ronald Sylvia, Mrs. Bill Casper, Douglas, Danny and Jack Buck, the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Buck, Mrs. Delwyn Green, Pamela, Donna, Craig and Todd Bedard, children of Mr. and Mrs. Bedard, as well as the couples' sons-in-law and Leslie Wheeler. Mrs. Buck and Mrs. Bedard are from a family of ten children and all but one sister were present.

The marriage of France Raymond to Mr. Bedard took place on June 24 at Highgate Center, with her sister and Mr. Buck as bridesmaid and best man. Immediately afterward the marriage of Mary Jean Raymond and Mr. Buck took place with Mrs. Bedard as matron of honor and Mr. Bedard, best man.

The Bedards have been residents of Derby Line for 24 years and the Bucks for 25 years.

Friends honor bride-to-be at Stanbridge East

STANBRIDGE EAST — A bridal shower was given July 7 at the United Church hall in honor of Miss Carol Soule, a July bride - to - be.

Miss Soule, who had called to make some last minute arrangements, was met at the door by Mrs. Victor Sharman. She presented the bride - elect with a corsage and escorted her to a chair between her mother, Mrs. Cecil Soule and mother-in-law-to-be, Mrs. Ruth Boomhower, behind a table covered with gaily wrapped gifts.

The hall was decorated with pink and white streamers fastened to each corner of the table, with a large bell hanging in the center.

The guests were seated around a large horseshoe shaped table. After the gifts had been passed around and admired, Miss Soule expressed her thanks.

Refreshments were served with the bride's cake iced in pink with white trim and topped by a little doll, with a pink and white crocheted dress, hat and gloves. The cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Vic. Sharman, Miss Soule's sister.

Guests attending were from Bedford, Frelighsburg, Dunham and Stanbridge East.

Improvement Society meets at North Hatley

NORTH HATLEY — A meeting of the North Hatley Village Improvement Society was held in the community hall on July 13.

Mrs. H. Worrall and Mr. W. M. Dale consented to confer with the Town Council, regarding a parking lot for weekend use, to relieve congested traffic in the center of the community.

Two representatives from the North Hatley branch of Quebec Women's Institutes were present, to discuss with the Society the selecting and developing of Centennial theme for a community endeavor. The group voted to appoint two representatives to meet with a committee of local organizations, when such committee is formed, to discuss this subject in greater detail.

The date for the annual fall rummage sale was set for August 25.

GENERAL NOTES

Mrs. Mildred Moore entertained members of her former Sunday School class to a two-day visit at Old Orchard Beach. Mrs. Moore's young guests were: Gloria Burnell, Lynn - Anne Nutbrown, Louise and Sharon Rutherford, Rhonda Sharman and Debbie Ditchburn.

OBITUARIES

ARCHIE SAMUEL BACON, OF ROCK ISLAND.

ROCK ISLAND — The funeral of Archie S. Bacon was held on Saturday afternoon, June 26, from Cass Funeral Home, to Christ Anglican Church, St. Stead, for the service at 2.30 o'clock. Rev. R. W. Peirce officiated. The organ music was played by Mrs. Alfred Middleton.

The bearers were Rodney Bacon, Bernard Hodge, Lindsay Smith, all grandsons, and Melvin Bryant. Burial took place in the family plot at McConnell cemetery.

Mr. Bacon was born on May 4, 1873, a son of Simon and Mary (Corey) Bacon, who were pioneer families in the county. Mr. Bacon's grandfather, the late Moses Bacon, one of the first settlers at Bacon's Bay, Lake Massawippi was a son of Daniel and Esther (Jones) Bacon, who in 1800 settled on No. 1, 2nd Range of Hatley.

Mr. Bacon's father purchased a farm at Austin and it was on this farm that Mr. Bacon was born and lived most of his life.

He was twice married; his first wife was Mary Oriette Cass and they had four children, Florence, Mrs. Reginald Hodge, Julia, Mrs. Carroll Smith, Olive, Mrs. Arnold Hopps, and Harry. Mrs. Bacon died on November 11, 1922.

The second marriage took place on August 27, 1928, to Armina Stone. In 1950 Mr. Bacon retired and they came to Rock Island to reside.

Mr. Bacon liked people, he possessed a keen mind and could tell many interesting tales of days gone by. He was highly respected by all who knew him.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bacon have been much interested in the Stanstead Historical Society and have contributed many historical items to the museum.

Mr. Bacon had been in failing health the past three years. His death occurred on June 23 at Lowell's Nursing Home in Hatley, where he had been a patient for a few weeks.

Among those attending the funeral were Mrs. Archie Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Hodge, Cookshire; Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Smith, Rock Island; Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Hopps, Magog; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bacon, Sherbrooke; Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Bacon, Montreal; Mr. Ralph Cass, Mr. and Mrs. Wellman Smith, Ayer's Cliff; and others from Magog, Austin, Graniteville, Bolton, and the Boundary Villages.

DR. ARTHUR CORCORAN, OF ANN ARBOR, MICH., Formerly of Waterloo, Que.

ANN ARBOR MICH. — Dr. Arthur C. Corcoran, 55, of 1121 Aberdeen, a staff member at Veterans Hospital here and professor of internal medicine in the University's Medical School, died of a heart attack July 5 at Franzenbad, Czechoslovakia, according to word received here.

An internationally known authority on hypertension and heart disease, Dr. Corcoran, who had been victim of previous heart attacks, had been invited by the Czech government to take part in coronary patient rehabilitation research at Franzenbad. He left Ann Arbor on June 19, and was reported to have suffered a heart attack in London on the way to take part in the three-week study.

Dr. Corcoran, the author of 249 publications on hypertension research, was appointed U-M professor of internal medicine in July, 1964 and joined the VA Hospital staff the next month. Although his work was mainly at the hospital and he received no pay from the U-M, the government requires that all hospital doctors be on the University faculty.

Born on Aug. 27, 1909, at Waterloo, Quebec, Dr. Corcoran was graduated from Loyola College High School, Montreal, in 1925. He received his bachelor's degree from the University of Montreal in 1929, and his doctor of medicine degree from McGill University, Montreal, in 1934.

Immediately before coming to Ann Arbor, he had served as head clinical investigator and director of education at St. Vincent Charity Hospital in Cleveland for two years.

and at Montreal General Hospital. He served a residency in metabolism at Montreal General Hospital.

Dr. Corcoran served as consultant to Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C., from 1946-58, as special consultant in Korea to the U.S. Army Surgeon General in 1953, and was a member of the editorial boards of "Current Contents," Philadelphia, and "Aggregologie," Paris, France, from 1961 to the present.

He was a past president of the American Society for the Study of Arteriosclerosis, served as chairman of the American Heart Association research committee, was past president of the Handerson Medical History Society, was on the editorial board of the Cleveland Academy of Medicine, and was a member of several other professional groups and organizations.

Dr. Corcoran was the author of the recent book, "The Mirror Up to Medicine," for laymen as well as physicians and was co-author with Dr. Page, a member of the board of the Council for the Advancement of Science Writing of the well-known book, "Arterial Hypertension — Its Diagnosis and Treatment."

Survivors include his wife, Mary Elizabeth; his mother, Mrs. James A. Corcoran of Montreal, Quebec; a son, James, who is a student at the Harvard University Law School; a daughter, Mrs. Claire Sumner, who with her husband is serving with the Peace Corps in Guatemala; and a stepson, Kevin P. McCollough, who graduated from Yale University last month and will be enrolling in the U-M Graduate School of Business Administration in the fall. Private funeral services were held in Waterloo, Que.

NORMAN S. HEYMAN, OF KNOWLTON

KNOWLTON — On June 8, 1965, at the B.M.P. Hospital, Norman Sanford Heyman died in his 51st year.

Born at East Farnham January 1, 1915, he was the son of Mabel Heyman and the late Benjamin Heyman. His wife predeceased him June 4, 1959.

Mr. Heyman is survived by his mother; two brothers, Donald, of Spencerville, Ont., and Robert Sutton; three sisters, Mrs. Olive Cartier, Bolton Centre, Mrs. J. Akins, Waterloo, and Mrs. Eric Jones, Sutton.

The funeral was held at St. Paul's Church, with Rev. T. E. R. Nurse officiating, on June 11 at 2.30. The hymn sung was "Unto the Hills."

Pleads not guilty to car theft

SWEETSBURG WARD — A Cowansville man appeared at the Sweetsburg Court of Sessions on Monday charged with four accusations of car theft and possession of stolen car parts.

Robert George of River Street pleaded not guilty to all four charges when he appeared before Judge Patrick Delaney who set the date for a preliminary hearing on September 13.

The accused is charged with stealing a car valued at $2,500 owned by Gerard Charlemagne on May 4 at Montreal. On July 13 Mr. George is charged with the possession of a transmission and a motor of a car which were stolen and valued at $1,000.

On May 8, in Danville, the accused is charged with causing damage for a value of $1,000 to the property of Gerard Desmarais and on May 7, he is charged with stealing a car owned by Gerard Desmarais and valued at $3,000.

The accused had appeared last Wednesday at the Sweetsburg Court House but his lawyer Guy Arsenault was absent.

Two Granby youths pleaded not guilty to charges of causing damages in Cowansville during the gasoline strike and will appear for a preliminary hearing on September 13.

Daniel Richer and George Laramee appeared before Judge Delaney on Monday at the Sweetsburg Court of Sessions and pleaded not guilty to causing damage near the Bockus gasoline station.

The two young men were arrested July 7 near the Bockus gasoline station where there was a disturbance created when the gasoline station owner refused to close his business and join the strikers.

The case of two Montreal brothers charged with stealing a $175 telephone from Bolton Centre will be heard at the next session of the criminal assizes.

After a preliminary hearing at the Sweetsburg Court of Sessions Monday, presiding Judge Patrick Delaney ruled that there was enough evidence to hold a trial.

Alcide and Claude Fournel are charged with stealing a Bell Telephone Company phone from a Bolton Centre telephone booth on the night of June 17th.

On June 28th the brothers appeared at the Sweetsburg Court House before Judge Jean Louis Pelouin and pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Judge Delaney set the bail for Alcide Fournel at $300 cash or $950 in property while his brother Claude had a bail set for $2,000 cash or $5,000 in property.

Claude Fournel had a higher bail as lawyer Claude Noiseux who was acting for the crown said he had perjured himself in a testimony that he gave.

Apparently Claude Fournel made a different declaration of the incident before the court on Monday than the one he made at the police station when he was booked.

At the preliminary hearing on Monday several witnesses took the stand, including a Bolton Centre hotel owner.

Donat Beaulieu, 55, owner of the Hotel Beaulieu, testified that he saw the two brothers at his hotel on the night of the incident.

A Bell Telephone official, George Gauthier, 37, took the stand to verify that the telephone booth at Bolton Centre was tampered with.

CABLE LAYING — This is a familiar scene in Cowansville as the Bell Telephone Company is laying an underground cable system along South Street towards Dunham from their office. The cable route stretches for about one mile and will take another two weeks to complete. (Record photo by Studio Lavigne)

Cowansville projects move on schedule

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) — The million dollar Cowansville artificial lake and cultural centre is on schedule and progressing step by step.

The final plans of the half a million dollar centennial project cultural centre are presently being approved and work will begin by fall of this year.

The artificial lake project which will cost an estimated half a million dollars is proceeding step by step and within a couple of weeks the first stage will be completed.

The first stage of completing the lake is the western section around Mackinnon and Desourdy Streets. Here a bridge and dam project is well under way and the bridge part linking Mackinnon and Desourdy Streets will be completed within a couple of weeks.

The bridge part will be completed first and will link Mackinnon and Desourdy Streets. The tender to build the bridge and dam were awarded

Once the bridge is completed a dam will be added to the bridge which will control the flow of the two mile artificial lake. The dam section is expected to be completed by the end of October.

With the completion of the bridge and dam, work on the cultural centre which will be located at the western part of the lake is expected to begin.

This step by step approach is being taken to complete this million dollar project because of the size of the project and the expense involved. "Otherwise it would be a fiasco," a town official said.

Once work on the cultural centre has begun, some other smaller projects will be completed, such as constructing a protection to the Main Street in front of Gaudreau Motors property, buying land near the projected lake, rerouting the present Bell Telephone cable near Church Street and building another bridge at the eastern end of the lake which will be an extension to the projected South Boulevard.

The lake is planned to hold at least six million cubic feet of water and the deepest part of the lake will be about 20 feet. The length of the projected lake will be about two miles long. The narrowest point of the lake will be 600 feet and the widest about 10,000 feet.

ed as yet as the lake is not completed.

But these plans call for the installation of a water pump at the dam. The pipe line will either follow along the Yamaska River to South Street for residential use or follow Davignon Street to the industrial park for industrial use.

These plans are being discussed as the artificial lake will create a water reservoir of about 30 million gallons of water.

Other ideas being discussed presently but not all definite are such plans as prohibiting motor boats and stocking the lake with fish.

The idea of prohibiting motor boats on the lake was raised as the roll of the artificial lake in Cowansville is not yet complete by stated. If motor boats are allowed on the lake, some people maintain, water pollution will be the result, and residents will not be able to swim.

There are many Cowansville citizens who would like to see the lake stocked with fish to create a new attraction here. But both these ideas are only at discussion level.

It was also pointed out by Cowansville Mayor Roland Desourdy that the lake and cultural centre will "permit the solution to the problems of youth in our town."

Although the role that the million dollar project will play in Cowansville is not definite, one thing is for sure. Once this project is completed life in Cowansville will be changed.

Grand slam by Scotty Laforge gives Twins upset over Red Sox, Indians, Senators tie 5-5 in LL

A grand slam home run by Scotty Laforge, catcher for the Twins in the Sher-Lenn Little League, ended the Red Sox' hopes of an easy game, and handed them a 7-5 loss at the Parade Grounds last night.

In the other game played, the Senators and Indians battled to a 5-5 deadlock after five innings of play, as the Rotary club sponsored Indians posted one run in the fourth and three in the fifth to match the five of the Senators earlier in the tilt.

The Red Sox, with only two games remaining on their schedule, must win their next two games in order to clinch the 1965 title. They are closely pursued in the league race by the Legion's Tigers who have four games on the schedule left, which could put them in a tie for first.

In two games slated for this evening at the Parade Grounds, the Orioles and Senators battle, while the Twins host the Yankees on the other diamond. A win in any direction means a change of status in the fourth and fifth positions.

SUPREMACY IN THE FIFTH The grand slammer, which found its way between center and left field in the fifth inning, was the deciding blow to the favored Red Sox, and showed that other supremacy reigned on the playing field.

Senicourt sprinted from the pack at the 77-mile mark of the 132.8-mile stage from Levis, Que., across the St. Lawrence River from Quebec City, to this city 75 miles east of Montreal.

At the 88-mile mark the French rider had a four-minute advance on the main pack and was almost two minutes ahead of a group of five riders strung between him and the main group.

However, some five miles later Senicourt got a flat tire on a rough road just outside Weedon, Que.

The flat tire allowed the second breakaway group to catch up with him. The second group was composed of Henri Paulowski of Belgium, Stanislaw Pawlowski of Poland, Hendrikus Peters of Holland, Richard Alfred Goodman of England, and Pierre Dandre, racing for the Quebec team.

Dandre slipped on the side of the road and flipped into a ditch but got up immediately and continued on to finish fifth.

Casey may be back on feet by weekend NEW YORK (CP)—Indomitable old Casey Stengel, his left hip held together by a metal ball following successful surgery for a displaced fracture, looked forward today to being back on his feet and walking with the aid of a cane by the end of the week.

Stengel, who'll be 75 Friday, was expected to remain in Roosevelt Hospital for three weeks.

The 45-minute operation Tuesday was described as not complex but, because of Casey's age, a serious one.

Casey's wife, Edna, flew from her Glendale, Calif., home to be at her husband's side before the operation.

Stengel suffered the injury early Sunday morning following a party of oldtimers of Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants. The Mets had honored the oldtimers at Shea Stadium Saturday afternoon.

Wes Westrum, the Mets' pitching coach is managing the club in Stengel's absence. Warren Robinson, manager of Buffalo Bisons—the Mets farm team in the International League—will take over the coaching duties in New York.

Warren Spahn hurls beauty, but loses game; Cardinals blank Giants 3-0, Reds lose 9-7 Lou Brock broke for first time after he had struck out, and the ball evaded catcher Tom Haller.

When Haller tried to pick it up, the ball wasn't there. Umpire Augie Donatelli, trying to get out of the way, had kicked it.

That fiasco in the third inning Tuesday foreshadowed the kind of night Warren Spahn was in for.

Brock didn't score—Spahn picked him off—but the 44-year-old southpaw still lost a four-hitter 3-0 as St. Louis Cardinals defeated San Francisco Giants in National League action.

The complete game was the first since June 11 for Spahn who is making a determined effort to prove he still can win. He hasn't won since May 25, but he certainly can expect more chances at improving on his record as the winningest left hander in history.

Spahn, now 4-13 with a nine-game losing streak, whittled his earned run average from 4.57 to 4.40 while watching his week-old teammates go scoreless for the first time in a month.

The performance was in great contrast to his first start with the Giants after leaving New York Mets. Cincinnati Reds rocked him for three runs in only 2 1/3 innings last Thursday.

Elsewhere Los Angeles Dodgers outlasted Cincinnati 9-7 in a wild game. Milwaukee Braves whipped Houston Astros

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Claude Senicourt of France Tuesday won the third day's run of the 1,500-mile Tour du St. Laurent bicycle race.

Friends honor bride-to-be at Beebe shower

BEEBE — Miss Mary Haselton, a popular bride-to-be, was guest of honor at a large, well-attended shower at Wesley United Church, on July 14. Pink roses and white candles were used throughout in the decor.

Upon arrival, Miss Haselton, who was taken completely by surprise, was presented with a rose corsage, as was her mother, Mrs. W. B. Haselton and aunt, Miss Helen Haselton who assisted her in the opening of the ribboned packages, placed on a table, before the bride elect.

The guest of honor expressed her thanks for the gifts and pleasant evening.

Refreshments were served with Mrs. W. B. Haselton and Miss Helen Haselton presiding at a lace covered table, to pour tea and coffee from silver tea candelabra flanked by pink roses in silver vases.

The bride elect and Miss Joan Haselton, Miss Joan Dwyer and Mrs. Gordon Rowe, three of her future attendants, were seated at the decorated gift table.

The bride's cake, iced in white, trimmed in pink, and in the form of an open book, was placed on a side table. Following the refreshments, Miss Haselton cut and passed the cake to the guests. The cake was made and decorated by Mrs. V. Lepitre.

Guests attending were from St. Thomas, Ont., Watertown, Mass., the Lakeshore area, Granville, Pierrefonds, and Beebe. The hostesses were Mrs. George Wilkinson, Mrs. Winnifred Rollins, Mrs. Lawrence Goodsell and Mrs. Harry Costello. They were assisted in serving by Miss Viola Moranville, Mrs. G. Labere, Misses Gail Rollins and Diane Rogers.

Ulverton UCW clears $79 at ice cream social ULVERTON — The United Church Women held their regular meeting in the church vestry on July 15. One visitor was present.

News flashes from around the world

MONTREAL (CP) — The Royal Bank of Canada laid claim Tuesday to $16,515.50 found in the possession of Lucien Rivard when police arrested him July 16 in a hideout near Montreal.

The bank, in a civil action against the city of Montreal, alleged that the money was part of the loot taken in a holdup 16 months ago of a postal truck. The take from the holdup included $615,819 in cash.

The bank stated that Rivard came by the money "illegally and without color of right from the perpetrators or conspirators and accomplices of the said crime, or from the receivers thereof."

DOVER, Del. (AP)—Treasure hunters will be allowed to seek the wreck of the 18th-century British sloop, DeBraak off Cape Henlopen, provided the U.S. navy has no objections, Governor Charles L. Terry Jr., said Tuesday.

A special commission held hearings in June on the application of D. and D. Salvage Co. for an exclusive permit. The sloop, sunk in 1798, is presumed to have carried a fortune in gold and jewels.

Terry said he decided to grant a one-year exclusive permit with the condition that the state get 25 per cent of the net value of any cargo and all items of historical interest.

Approval is contingent, however, he said, on the navy saying the hunt will not run afoul of any of its plans.

The DeBraak is believed to have been carrying the cargo of three Spanish treasure ships she had captured before she went down in a storm.

The Doctor Says

Q—What causes hardening of the arteries? Is there any cure?
 A—Hardening of the arteries is caused by the infiltration of fat into the arterial walls. In the advanced stages this is replaced by calcium salts. The result is not only a loss of elasticity in the arteries but also a narrowing of the channel. Although these changes are permanent, the function of the diseased arteries will be taken over by other arteries in time, provided the progress of the disease can be stopped.

This is accomplished by cutting out cigarette smoking if you smoke; having your doctor bring your blood pressure down if it is high; bringing your weight down to normal if you are overweight; getting rid of excessive nervous tension (sometimes the most difficult part of the treatment); eating
