Cyprus upheaval brings new man to presidency

ATHENS (AP) — Glafkos Clerides, the long-time heir-apparent to Cyprus President Archbishop Makarios, suddenly found himself thrust into the presidency Tuesday in the wake of the latest upheaval on the Mediterranean island.

Filling the post is no novelty for Clerides. As president of the Cyprus House of Representatives since the island became independent in 1960, he has been the constitutional successor and acted as president on numerous occasions whenever Makarios was abroad.

It was this experience, and the fact he leads the largest right-wing Greek-Cypriot "unified party," that made many people regard him as the man most likely to succeed Makarios in an election if the archbishop ever decided to step down.

BRITISH TRAINED

A soft-spoken, pipe-smoking lawyer trained in Britain, Clerides, 52, has also acted in another important capacity since 1968. He was the sole Greek-Cypriot representative at the protracted negotiations with the leader of the Turkish-Cypriot community and vice-president of the republic, Raouf Denktash, to hammer out a new constitution.

As a result he has formed a working relationship with the Turkish side that no other politician on the island can match.

In the last three years, during the troubled period when the Athens military junta made repeated attempts to overthrow Makarios, Clerides has often been mentioned as acceptable to Athens as the archbishop's successor.

But Clerides, a dedicated parliamentarian, repeatedly made it clear he would never take over as chief executive unless he was constitutionally elected by the people.

For this he would only need a majority of Greek-Cypriots. The island's president, who must be Greek, is voted into office only by Greek-Cypriot electors. The Turkish-Cypriot minority—18 per cent of the population—votes separately to elect the vice-president, who must be a Turkish-Cypriot.

TERRORISTS UPSET

His reluctance to side openly with the Athens regime caused chagrin among the regime's henchmen on the island, the EOKA-B underground terrorists of the late George Grivas.

Clerides maintained he supported Makarios's compromise approach for the establishment of a truly independent and viable Cyprus state. Any attempt to achieve enosis—union with Greece—by force, Clerides believed, would lead to national disaster in view of the clearcut threats by Turkey to intervene militarily.

Clerides succeeds Nikos Sampson, who resigned after eight days in office. Observers believe Sampson was dropped by the regime here as completely unacceptable to the Turks, who would look more favorably upon the more-moderate Clerides.

But people knowing Clerides well said it was highly unlikely he would willingly agree to act as a junta puppet. They said he may have accepted to end the bloodletting following Makarios's overthrow.

Clerides served as rear gunner with Britain's RAF in the Second World War. He was shot down over Germany and was a prisoner of war for a couple of years. He is married and has one daughter, aged 23.

Farmers reject increase plea

OTTAWA (CP) — Prompted perhaps by obstinacy, but probably more by bad spring weather, farmers again have rejected government calls for increased crop production in an increasingly grain-hungry world.

Though prices and demand for most cereals and oilseeds continue high, recent Statistics Canada figures show that farmers are growing a traditional mix of crops and are leaving a good portion of cropland out of production in summerfallow.

They have planted 23.3 million acres of wheat this year—well below last year's 24.8 million—despite a spring call by Otto Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, for 28 million acres.

As a result, the country might be left next year with its lowest supply of wheat in more than a decade.

Summerfallow, estimated at 26.4 million acres, is sharply higher than the amount recommended by the government. Mr. Lang has said land out of production this year should have been cut to about 21.5 million acres, 25 per cent lower than last year, to allow a corresponding increase in crop production.

Farmers, however, who usually leave part of their land in summerfallow to benefit the following year from extra moisture stored while the land is idle, rejected the call.

They decided to leave a normal number of acres out of pro-

WET SPRING

Two economists with the agriculture department's marketing and trade division, J.S. Carmichael and B.W. Paddock, say farmers probably have been forced to cut production slightly and increase summerfallow because of the unusually wet spring.

"Planting was later than usual in the Prairie provinces because of a late snow-melting which was followed by prolonged rains," the economists say in a recent analysis of the crop situation.

"Following planting, hot, dry, windy weather made the topsoil very dry in parts of the southern prairies, and uneven germination of some crops was reported."

The two say it still is too early to predict how large the resulting grain and oilseed crops will be this year, arguing that the late spring could leave the crop "more susceptible than usual to damage by dry weather during the growing season, frost before maturity and poor harvest weather."

But if the wheat crop, for instance, averages 25 bushels to the acre, down from 26.1 bushels an acre last year, the total crop will amount to about 580 million bushels.

That is down from 609 million bushels last year.

When the Ontario wheat crop of between 17 and 20 million bushels is added to the total, wheat production in the country may be about 600 million bushels this year.

Add to that carry-over supplies of wheat of about 375 million bushels, and the country could have about 975 million bushels for disposal in 1974-1975.

Since about 180 million bushels are used domestically, only about 800 bushels would be available for export and carry-over the following year.

That is the lowest available supply of Canadian wheat since 1962-63.

Production of the other major grain and oilseed crops are likely to follow a similar trend. LESS

FOR EXPORT

Barley acreage, estimated at 11.4 million acres, is down from 11.7 million acres last year. Assuming an average crop of about 449 million bushels, lower carry-over stocks and domestic use of 350 million bushels, the country will be left with 300 million bushels for export.

Oats, the other major Prairie feed grain, on six million acres, is 300,000 acres less than last year.

Mr. Lang, earlier this spring, called for barley production on 13 million acres, and oat production on 6.5 million.

Oilseed estimates indicate that the crop may be up slightly this year. Rapeseed acreage, for instance, has increased two per cent from 1973 to 3.2 million acres.

Department economists, however, say that despite the increase, supplies will be sharply lower in 1974-75.

"Assuming an average yield of 17 bushels per acre, production would total 54.4 million bushels which, when combined with stocks of about seven million bushels, would give total supplies of 61.4 million bushels." Last year, supplies totalled 73.9 million bushels.

No settlement in sight at two Sherbrooke companies

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Strikes involving employees of two major Sherbrooke firms continue as pressure is mounted to force a settlement this week.

At Telemedia in Sherbrooke, where the 105 unionized employees have been barred from their jobs since June 20, the union continues to claim the company is making no effort to resume negotiations.

At Lowney's, also located on King street west, the company has begun legal proceedings against the union and numerous employees. The 700 employees there have been on strike since the beginning of the month.

The Telemedia employees, attached to the National Association of Broadcasting Employees and Technicians, (NABET), charged yesterday the company is blacking out all news of the conflict in Sherbrooke. The Telemedia conflict involves CKTS, CHLT-am, CHLT-fm radio stations and CHLT-tv.

The employees claimed the company is making no mention of the conflict on its news broadcasts and is limiting its form of coverage on the other Telemedia stations spread throughout the province. As usual, much as has been the case throughout the conflict, the company has refused comment.

At Lowney's the company's lawyers have begun legal proceedings against the union for allegedly disregarding the court injunction issued in Sherbrooke two weeks ago. The injunction limited the number of picketers at any entrance to company buildings to two and made it illegal for employees to block access to the plant, warehouses and inventory.

The company contends the employees have disregarded the law and ask that the union be fined $50,000. Other union members are also charged with the possession of dangerous weapons.

In both cases no negotiations are being held. Lowney's have undertaken a media advertising campaign while Telemedia management has made no public announcement.

Postal workers split

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations involving about 31,000 postal employees have been thrown into confusion by a decision of inside workers to break away from the letter carriers.

The breakaway decision was announced Tuesday when the Canadian Union of Postal Workers—the inside workers—said the majority of its membership voted to disaffiliate from the Council of Postal Unions.

The council, made up of the postal workers and the Letter Carriers Union of Canada, has a contract that expires Dec. 31, 1974. Disaffiliation in effect means that neither union has a contract.

Joe Davidson, president of the postal workers, said 12,607 members voted to disaffiliate and 1,902 voted against the idea. About 19,000 were eligible to vote. There were 108 spoiled ballots.

He said the postal workers probably will meet the letter carriers tonight to discuss what happens next and that the postal workers will apply for certification before the public service staff relations board at a date to be determined.

The letter carriers also will have to apply for certification.

He said the postal workers executive now must meet to decide policy.

GIVES PROTECTION

Asked if disaffiliation means the postal workers will be without a contract, he said "legally yes and legally no." There were sections in the staff relations act that would protect worker in this kind of case.

At any rate, the postal workers had been without contracts in the past.

Had the postal council remained intact, negotiations would have started by at least October. A mediator appointed after the April postal strike had suggested talks start in September.

Now, it is not known when negotiations can start.

Experience has shown that it can be months between certification of a union and its first application for that certification. In a recent interview, Mr. Davidson, explaining the disaffiliation move, said the postal workers wanted to merge with the letter carriers union into one big union, but the letter carriers had declined.

He said until a merger can be affected it is better for postal workers to go it alone.

In the past, postal worker conventions had given mandates to their executive that the council had vetoed.

"We think we can better negotiate for ourselves," he said.

He said he could see no reason for war or enmity between the two unions.

"There could be an amicable dissolution until a merger."

LITTLE TO SAY

Roger Decarie, president of the 12,000-member Letter Carriers Union of Canada, had little to say about the postal workers vote Tuesday, although in the past he has said that he thinks the postal workers are crazy to disaffiliate.

"I don't know what we'll do or when we'll do it," he said, adding he can say nothing at least until after tonight's meeting.

Montreal murders may be gang war

MONTREAL (CP) — Investigators for the Montreal Urban Community police department said Tuesday a recent series of murders in the city may be connected with gangland warfare but it is only "one of several theories we are working on in connection with the murders."

Investigations continue into the four killings since Saturday which brought to 23 the number of murders in the city this year.

Jean-Paul Arbour, 27, and Jacques Morin, 26, both described by police as underworld figures, were shot and killed by two masked gunmen in an east-end restaurant Sunday.

Shortly afterwards, Jean-Pierre Boiteau, 23, was murdered by three gunmen in his east-end apartment.

Police said the killers of Arbour and Morin were spotted leaving Boiteau's apartment that day.

Two men, also described by police as having underworld links, are being held in connection with the Boiteau murder, and a third is being sought.

Police have said they speculate the murders of Arbour and Morin are linked to several other recent underworld slayings that stemmed from a double-cross in the theft of more than $400,000 in bonds and securities from a post office truck last year.

A fourth murder, also involving an alleged underworld figure, was committed Saturday, although police say it has no connection with the other three killings.

Adamo Bucci, described by police as an illicit drug trafficker, was shot and killed in the doorway of a restaurant by two men who, witnesses said, were waiting for him in a parked car.

Six weeks ago, Claude Chamberland and Marie Perusse were found dead in their burned trailer in nearby Laval.

Last week a coroner's report stated that the couple had been shot dead two days before the trailer was destroyed by fire and that they suffered a violent death at the hands of more than one person.

Language bill— closure nearer

QUEBEC (CP) — The chance the Liberal government will impose closure to wind up debate on its official language bill came a little closer Tuesday.

Premier Robert Bourassa announced house leaders of the three parties in the assembly will meet today to try to reach an agreement on a time limit for clause-by-clause study of the bill in committee.

If no agreement can be reached, the government can then make a motion, with one day's notice, that the committee end its work and report to the assembly within a set time limit.

The premier said that if the Parti Quebecois continued its filibuster tactics, the government would have no choice but to cut off clause-by-clause study which has so far lasted one week and covered only the first article of the bill.

The education committee finally adopted the first article of the bill—declaring French the official language of the province—late Tuesday with the two permanent Parti Quebecois members of the committee abstaining from the vote.

The PQ had tried during four days of debate to amend that section to make French the sole official language.

Argument: Two people trying to get in the last word first.

Oil suppliers plan service reductions

TORONTO (CP) — The practice of including an annual furnace cleaning and emergency service calls in the price of heating oil is being discontinued by three major heating oil suppliers.

In some cases customers will be receiving a reduction in fuel costs. And most fuel oil users will have to pay for the service they require this winter.

Imperial Oil Ltd. has begun notifying its customers of the change while Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. did so in May. Texaco Canada Ltd. currently is notifying its customers but details of its new policy still are being worked out.

The suppliers said rising service costs and abuse of service calls by some customers had made the change necessary.

All three companies will continue to offer some type of furnace insurance package but former plans have been revised and vary from company to company.

SEES INEQUITY

An Imperial Oil spokesman said a lot of people are paying a bit more for service and not using it while some are using it more. "It's not equitable."

"We'd like the price of heating oil to reflect just that—exploration, drilling, refining—with no riders on it," he added.

Imperial, which supplies 25 per cent of the heating oil market, will reduce the price of furnace oil by 1½ cents a gallon from Sept. 1. The reduction applies across the country, except in British Columbia where furnace conditioning was changed to a pay-for-service basis two years ago and the price reduced by one cent a gallon at that time. The B.C. price will be cut by one half of a cent Sept. 1.

Imperial is offering customers outside of B.C. one free conditioning this year but next year there will be a charge.

The current cost of a conditioning is between $12 and $14. The cost of emergency service calls ranges from $9 to $14 an hour, depending on the locality.

Gulf, which supplies about 10 per cent of the market, introduced its plan June 1.

PRICE REDUCED

A Gulf Oil spokesman said it has lowered the price of its heating oil 1.3 cents for customers in most parts of Ontario, Quebec, British Columbia and the Winnipeg area of Manitoba.

He said there was no reduction in the Atlantic provinces "where prices are already a cent or more below its major competitors."

The Gulf spokesman said people are sensitive about rising oil prices and the change was "one way of keeping the lid on."

He said it is estimated the average user consumes 1,000 gallons of heating oil a year and the saving would be $13 in fuel costs.

A spokesman for Texaco Canada Ltd., said the company will continue its conditioning program until Dec. 31 but emergency service no longer will be included in the cost of fuel beginning Sept. 1.

NO DECISION YET

However, Texaco has made no decision about whether to reduce the price of its heating oil.

Shell Canada Ltd. cancelled a similar program in August, 1973.

W. J. Simmons, of Shell's heating sales department said the number of service calls per customer has dropped sharply since then.

The Shell service was stopped because "generally we felt there were abuses by customers. Twenty per cent of the customers were taking 80 per cent of the service calls. That's not really a desirable way to run a business."

When Shell introduced the changes, 1.3 cents a gallon was knocked off the fuel oil price.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices were higher in light trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange Tuesday as all sectors gained.

Volume was 888,500 shares compared with 852,700 shares at Monday's close.

Industrials rose 4.77 to 206.83, banks 4.67 to 245.21, the composite 4.14 to 195.71, papers 2.35 to 120.04 and utilities 1.71 to 129.71.

What stocks did:

	Mon.	Tues.

Totals	203	222

Most active industrial was Gulf Oil Canada, up 1/4 to $29 1/2 after trading 12,300 shares.

Most active mine was Beaver Mining, up eight cents to $2.70 on a volume of 68,000 shares.

Alcan, second most active industrial on a volume of 12,210 shares, rose 1 1/4 to $30 1/2 after the company reported consolidated net income for the second quarter of 1974 of $51.5 million (U.S.) or $1.50 a common share, compared to $21.1 million or 62 cents a share for the same period last year.

Celanese rose 1/4 to $6 1/4 on a volume of 4,175 shares after the firm reported net earnings for the second quarter of 1974 of $3,957,000 or 28 cents a share, compared with a restated $1,839,000 or 13 cents a share for the second quarter last year.

Oil issues made considerable gains as Texaco Canada rose 3/4 to $37 1/4, Pan Ocean Oil 2 1/2 to $13 1/4, Dome Petroleum 1 to $28 1/4, Pacific Petroleum 1 to $21, Shell Canada 1/2 to $14 1/4, Total Petroleum 1/2 to $8 1/4, Husky Oil 1/2 to $16 1/4 and Hudson's Bay Oil 1/2 to $27.

Among Montreal Stock Exchange issues to move higher were Grafton Group up 2 1/2 to $28 Cominci 1 1/2 to $29, Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper 1 1/2 to $21 1/4, Toronto Dominion Bank 1 1/2 to $36 1/4, Dofasco 1 1/2 to $30 1/4, Falconbridge Nickel 1 to $42 1/2, Domtar 1 to $25 1/4, Massey-Ferguson 1/2 to $17 1/4, Moore 1/2 to $51 1/4, Royal Bank 1/2 to $31 1/4, Dominion Bridge 1/2 to $42 1/4, Bank of Nova Scotia 1/2 to $35 1/4, Asbestos 1/2 to $17 1/4, Price 1/2 to $14 1/4 and Bell Canada 1/2 to $43.

Among speculative issues, Abitibi Asbestos Mining rose 11 cents to $2.01 after trading 37,899 shares.

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Expansion by forestry firms on a number of northwestern Ontario fronts will go a long way to help Premier William Davis meet his pledge to create 4,000 to 5,000 new jobs in the industry by 1980.

Great Lakes Paper Co. of Thunder Bay announced late last year it will spend $118 million during the next three years on a variety of projects including construction of a bleached kraft mill with an annual capacity of 250,000 tons and enlarging the firm's stud mill to produce 200 million board feet of lumber each year.

The firm has been issued an $8-million building permit for the stud mill expansion and work continues as well on a $10-million particle and wafer board plant to supply materials primarily for use in furniture, flooring and cabinets.

The $118-million expansion program is expected to add $12 million to the company's annual payroll of $28 million and produce 1,200 jobs for the area.

But Great Lakes is not the only company with major expansion plans.

In Atikokan, Pluswood Inc. announced last month the construction of a $17.5 million particle-board plant employing 131 persons. An additional 100 workers will be needed to cut 85,000 cords of hardwood used annually by the plant.

The annual product value of the Pluswood plant is estimated at $10.5 million and the plant will be in operation by early next year.

PROJECTS VARIED

Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper Mills Ltd. of Quebec has announced it will expand its Dryden, Ont., facilities as well as construct a kraft mill in Red Lake as part of a two-stage program valued at $253 million.

In the initial stage, new mill facilities will be built in both communities to increase Anglo-Canadian's sawmill capacity to 225 million board feet from 34 million.

Capacity of the Dryden Paper Company mill, a subsidiary of Anglo-Canadian, will be expanded to 750 tons daily from 630 tons by mid-1976.

A modern effluent control system will be built into the existing kraft mill by next year.

In the second stage, another building will be constructed near Red Lake, 100 miles north of Dryden, which will consist of a 900-ton-a-day kraft mill and expanded sawmill facilities.

Studies also will be started to determine the feasibility of building a fibre-board plant and a specialty chemical plant.

A wide variety of lesser, but still large projects are under construction in the district.

MacMillan-Bloedel aims to start production this year at a $9-million waferboard plant now under construction outside Thunder Bay which would employ 200 workers with an annual payroll of $2 million.

Newagaw Timber Co. Ltd. is constructing a $4 million sawmill complex at Mead, 220 miles north of the Lakehead, and Kimberley-Clark is constructing a $3.3-million stud mill, dry kiln and planer facility at Terrace Bay.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market's industrial index made its greatest gain Tuesday in more than six weeks to hit its highest level since June 18 and record its fifth consecutive rise. Trading was moderate.

The index, widely-based indicator of market trend, rose 3.12 to 190.81 while golds gained 1.67 to 516.52, base metals 1.07 to 81.70, a high since June 20, and western oils 6.66 to 192.44, its highest level since June 17.

Twelve sub-components of the industrial index gained while four declined. Industrial mining, banks and utility stocks made the greatest gains while trust and loan and real estate shares went against the trend.

What stocks did:

	Tues.	Mon.
Advances	271	191
Declines	161	180
Unchanged	222	222
Total	654	593

Volume was 1.79 million shares worth $19.51 million, both highs since June 7, compared with 1.43 million shares and $12.75 million

Monday.

Observers attribute both the gain and the higher volume to a rally on the New York market. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was sharply higher in moderate trading.

The Bank of Nova Scotia, Provincial Bank of Canada, Toronto Dominion Bank and Royal Bank of Canada all announced increases in their prime interest rates of one-half percentage point to 11 1/2 per cent following similar moves by both Bank of Montreal and Bank of Commerce. Scotiabank was up 1/4 to $35 1/4, Toronto Dominion up 1/4 to $36 1/4 and Royal Bank up 1/4 to $31 1/4.

ESB Inc. said it is talking with United Aircraft Corp., both U.S. companies, about purchase of ESB common stock at better terms than the recent offer by International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. of $28 a share. Inco, which rose 1/4 to $29, has filed suit against ESB seeking injunctions against false and misleading statements by its company president.

Trading in the shares of Madson Red Lake Gold Mines Ltd. was halted at the open at the request of the company pending the release of information. Madson last traded at $2.15.

TRADING RESUMES

The Ontario Securities Commission permitted a resumption of trading in shares of La Luz Mines Ltd. rescinding the cease-trading order of Dec. 7, 1973 following the release of information partly dealing with future plans. The stock lost 25 cents to $4.

Texaco Canada gained 2 1/4 to $37 1/4, Home Oil A 1 1/4 to $39 1/4, Cominco 1 1/4 to $29, Nabors 1 1/4 to $17 and Anglo-Canadian Pulp 1 1/4 to $21 1/4.

Hudson Bay Mining A was up 1 1/4 to $20 1/4, Rio Algom 1 to $26 1/4 and Dynasty 3/4 to $9 1/4. Canadian Superior rose 3 to $40 1/4, Pan Ocean 2 1/4 to $13 1/4 and McIntyre 1 1/4 to $31. Sigma 1/2 to $34 1/4, QCI Industries 10 cents to 60 cents and Seaway Multi-Corp. 50 cents to $3.25.

NEW YORK (CP) — John Shaheen says he believes somebody has "masterminded" the attacks on President Nixon — "very successfully so far" — with the objective of forcing him out of the White House.

The outspoken independent oil refiner, a close friend of the president, also agreed with suggestions that Nixon's enemies have done a psychological profile on him to exploit his weaknesses.

"I'm sure that's true," Shaheen said in an exclusive interview with The Canadian Press. "I don't point any finger at any one person, or any group. But I think that the events will bring some of it out. I don't think Nixon himself appreciates that all this is happening."

"The roof is falling in on him, and I don't think he quite realizes who's been up there with a sledge hammer breaking in the roof—a good strong roof, the presidency—and it takes a powerful lot of sledge-hammer blows to break down the American presidency..."

Shaheen also is a commissioner of the United States Information Agency and a member of the National Petroleum Council, an advisory body to Interior Secretary Rogers Morton.

"But I've never discussed the oil business with the president since the day he went into the White House," Shaheen said. "I wouldn't dream of it."

Before he was elected to the presidency in 1968, Nixon was Shaheen's lawyer for seven years, when the Shaheen Natural Resources Co. and the big new Come-By-Chance, Nfld., refinery were in their formative stages. Nixon also had a lawyer-client relationship with Joseph Smallwood, former premier of Newfoundland.

Shaheen's comments on Nixon's troubles revolving around the Watergate political espionage scandal were among the most explicit yet to come from a top member of the Republican business community.

The multi-millionaire oilman said that on balance the president "may be guilty of one-per-cent failure to administer his office properly."

Shaheen said Nixon has an uncanny ability to analyze. "It's a pity he doesn't have an equally uncanny ability to administer..."

"He's probably the best analyst that America has ever had in the White House. No question, the best analyst..."

MADE MISTAKES

The Nixon administration has "certainly made some mistakes," but they are not any different than the mistakes made by the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, Shaheen said.

"They didn't get flushed out. Nobody zeroed in on them."

Shaheen made these points:

—The presidential tapes are Nixon's private property. But he shouldn't have taped his White House conversations in the first place. And it was "ridiculous" to make public the edited transcripts.

—In no way should Watergate be condoned. At the same time, the Watergate investigations and the ensuing impeachment inquiry have become a "witch-hunt," a second French Revolution.

—One small faction is zeroing in on the president to get him out of office. While he did not name the group, he said it was not the press.

—Nixon picked some great men, including "this wonderful Henry Kissinger. But the president also picked some duds, young and green, in the mistaken belief they would be loyal to him."

—Nixon is basically an honest man who got caught up in events. He shouldn't resign because that would be an admission of guilt.

"If they want to impeach him, let them bring him right out in the open and have a completely fair trial."

Oil refiner feels Nixon attacks were "masterminded"

QUESTIONS MOTIVES

"This is a highly-motivated thing, this movement against Nixon. It just didn't happen. It's been orchestrated. It came out of one source because somebody was deliberately trying to bring him down, and with him bringing down the government..."

"This doesn't excuse the Nixon administration... If they did anything wrong they should be punished..."

"In no way is Watergate to be condoned. In no way is the break-in to be condoned. In no way are all the capers and tricks that the people around the president carried out to be excused."

"They should be punished. They're wrong for doing what they did. And many of them have been punished. But by the same token, some of the monkey business boys... in the previous administrations should have been found out."

So far, 33 persons have been convicted or pleaded guilty in Watergate-related crimes. Sixteen have gone to prison. Some of them were former White House aides.

Shaheen was asked whether his feelings about the anti-Nixon movement were a generalization at this point.

CALLING THE SHOTS

"Just a generalization of my feelings, but at the same time I think that this wasn't just a succession of events. I think somebody has masterminded it."

Montreal businessman is loser in Cyprus battle

LONDON (CP) — A Canadian family who sold their Montreal restaurant business to pay for a two-month holiday in Cyprus are heading sadly back to Canada after being flown out of the war-torn island with other tourist refugees in a Royal Air Force plane.

"It took me 20 years to make that trip," said Tony Kyriacou, 42-year-old father of four, who was born in Limassol in the south of Cyprus and had invested $8,000 in the vacation he planned to spend with his father and two sisters, who still live in Limassol.

Now Kyriacou wishes he had not approached the British military authorities in Limassol for protection when the Turkish invasion struck last Saturday, because he was not allowed to stay more than one night on a British base before being shipped out to England. He believed the trouble would only last a short time and then the family could resume its holiday.

"If I had had another hour before getting on that plane, I would have heard about the ceasefire," lamented Kyriacou, who was staying in a London airport hotel overnight with his wife Minerva, son John 18, and three younger children aged 13, 10 and 8. They were booked on a Montreal flight leaving London this afternoon.

REGRET LEAVING

All the family regretted leaving the island in such haste, but after the one night spent on the British base at Akrotiri, said Kyriacou, they were given a choice of: "Get on the plane or go down to the beach and sleep on the sand."

His son John, a partner in the restaurant business, said: "I'd go back right now. I wasn't scared at all. I wanted to see what it was like." This despite the fact that he came under fire at one point from a Greek soldier who "aimed right at us" and fired.

"I dove over a railing and the bullet went into my aunt's house," said John. "We got it as

There is somewhere someone who has been calling the shots on this thing, and has been moving toward the objective of eliminating Nixon and his government."

Could he say who it is?

"Well, I think we should wait until events develop a little more clearly. I think the straws are already indicating the direction..."

Perhaps the Central Intelligence Agency was the original operative?

"No, I don't think I'm even referring to the Central Intelligence Agency. I just think that the events will show as the weeks go by that this wasn't just an unrelated series of moves, and that it wasn't just a natural source of leaking and personalities that brought it out."

"Somebody saw the weaknesses and decided he could use these weaknesses to pull the statue down, to bring down the structure."

WORK OF ENEMIES

Asked about suggestions that a psychological profile on Nixon had been done by his enemies, and was being used, Shaheen said:

"I'm sure that's true. I'm sure he has the enemies and that's exactly the point I'm making... This didn't just happen. It was orchestrated, planned, conducted and executed. And very successfully so far."

"Someone is behind this thing... I don't see bogymen under the bed like an old maid. Some

Brokers to add on surcharge

TORONTO (CP) — Members of the Toronto Stock Exchange approved "by a substantial majority" a bylaw imposing a 17.5-per-cent surcharge on commissions for handling orders of more than $39,720, an exchange spokesman said Monday.

There is a sliding surcharge scale for orders of more than $20,000 to the maximum 17.5 per cent on $39,720. No surcharge will be imposed on orders of less than $20,000.

The increase, subject to approval by the Ontario securities commission will increase brokerage revenue by an estimated six per cent.

Members of the Montreal Stock Exchange also voted for the bylaw Monday.

The Vancouver exchange said it plans to follow the two exchanges' decisions.

The exchanges have described the surcharge as temporary and necessary in the face of falling revenue. The Toronto exchange said that for the three months that ended June 30 more than half its members lost money on their agency business.

Alberto-Culver said a Gillette claim that its product "rinses really clean," implied that Alberto-Culver's doesn't.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market, encouraged by a series of favorable developments, made a broad advance in stepped-up trading Tuesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 7.36 to 797.72 and gained held a one-sided 1.047-to-394 edge on losers at the New York Stock Exchange.

NYSE volume increased to 12.91 million shares from 9.28 million on Monday.

Brokers said the market headed into the session with some upward momentum after a late technical upswing Monday. Then, they said, it got additional boosts from several directions as the day progressed.

Just before the opening, Consolidated Edison of New York announced it was resuming dividend payments with a 20 cents-a-share distribution for the third quarter.

The company had jarred Wall Street a few months ago by suspending its dividend because of cash flow problems.

The impact of Con Ed's restoration of its dividend showed up in a broad range of other electric utility issues, with the Dow Jones average of 15 utilities climbing 1.69 to 69.85.

Con Ed shares, the NYSE's most active stock, were up 1 at $8 1/4.

Motorcycle gang held

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Four members of the Atome motorcycle gang are being held behind bars in Sherbrooke as they wait preliminary hearing in connection with a bank robbery in Sherbrooke last week.

The four, including the gang's vice-president, have been held since last Friday when the St. Joseph Caisse Populaire was robbed of approximately $9,800, according to municipal police detectives. Only slightly more than $7,000 of the stolen money has been recovered.

The motorcycle gang members facing charges are Patrice Simard, Ronald Sigouin, Daniel Lincourt and Guy-Francois Gauvin. The first three are residents of Sherbrooke while Gauvin comes from Ayer's Cliff.

All four were arrested only a few hours after the armed theft at the Caisse Populaire located on Belvedere street in Sherbrooke. According to police $2,700 was found hidden beneath Gauvin's shirt while $641 was recovered at Lincourt's residence. Another $2,500 was found near the club's hang-out.

Sigouin and Gauvin are charged with armed robbery while Simard and Lincourt are charged with being involved with the crime. Gauvin is also held on the charge of possessing a sawed-off shot-gun while Simard is alleged to have stolen the car involved in the robbery.

The four pleaded not-guilty to the charges in Sessions Court before Judge Thomas Toth Monday. They chose trial by jury.

None were granted bail. The Crown is being represented by Jacques Page while Raynald Fréchette, Francois Gerin and Daniel Hebert are on the side of the four persons charged.

Labor wars to be more severe

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor negotiations in the Canadian construction industry in 1975 will be more "intense" and "severe" than this year, and repetition of what happened in British Columbia, Saskatchewan and Quebec will "severely injure the economy of the whole nation," Toronto contractor Robert A. Bird told the Canadian Construction Association Monday.

He referred to lengthy strikes resulting from deadlocks between contractors and unions principally over a cost-of-living adjustment that was opposed by the association, which is composed of provincial affiliates.

Mr. Bird, chairman of the association, was addressing its annual meeting.

In his mid-year report, he said "this year we have had an extremely upsetting time, although it is really an off-year, relatively speaking, for collective bargaining."

He coupled his forecast of troubles next year with a prediction of intensified shortages of construction manpower.

LONG WAIT
He said: "These conditions are due mainly to increased buoyancy in the construction market—conditions which both construction management and employees have long awaited."

Mr. Bird said the need for greater stability in construction labor relations is part of the larger picture of achieving greater stability in construction costs generally.

"The great majority of owners require a firm cost estimate for their projects in order to decide on the economic viability of proceeding," he said. "This is the economic reality of the market place."

"It also represents one of the principal services provided by contractors—construction expertise at a firm price. If higher costs are merely passed on to the owner as they occur, the results are inflationary—the

Airport here hopes to join STOL

SHERBROOKE (CC) — A quick air flight to either Montreal, Quebec City or Ottawa from Sherbrooke might just be around the corner. Many people of the region may think that will never happen but nearly a dozen of Sherbrooke's most influential persons are working to see that it does.

Even Sherbrooke council has agreed in principle to such a project. Today the Short Take-Off on Landing (STOL) service gets underway between downtown Montreal and Ottawa.

A total of 22 flights between the two cities will be available daily.

The Montreal-Ottawa project is only experimental but many interested individuals in Sherbrooke look at it as the major means of inter-city travel in the future.

"We didn't want to be left out," Andre Collard, head of the Sherbrooke Airport said last night. "We want to be one of the first cities to apply for the service. That is why we have set up a committee to study the possibility of getting that type of air service in Sherbrooke," he added.

Sherbrooke council Monday evening nominated Mr. Collard to sit on the committee working to obtain STOL service. The committee has already met once and another meeting is scheduled shortly.

Ulric Chaine, the past-president of the Chamber of Commerce in Sherbrooke, is heading the committee while the Regional Research Centre, attached to the University of Sherbrooke, is doing the analysis of the viability of such a service.

But there are at least one dozen additional active members. They include Albert Painchaud, director-general of the Eastern Townships Health and Social Service Council; Paul Camirand, of the Quebec Development Office; Marc Brenckmann, of the Transport Development Centre; Antonio Pinard, of the St. Francis District Cities and Towns Association; Guy Champagne, of the Eastern Townships Regional Development Council and Jacques Berube of Air-transit Inc., the company operating the first STOL service between Montreal and Ottawa.

The city initially became interested in such a project during early promotions for the STOL service between Ottawa and Montreal.

"A representative came to see us in order to explain the new service," Mr. Collard said. "After talking we came to the conclusion that such a service would be good for Sherbrooke."

"It would allow for much quicker travel," he added. "We all agreed that something should be done."

That is how the committee began to be formed. "The Ottawa-Montreal experiment should take a few years," Mr. Collard exclaimed. "We believe that after that we should be one of the first cities to ask for the service."

Mr. Collard has already tried the STOL system. "It works well and is a lot of fun," he said. "It takes only 30 minutes from downtown to downtown."

Planning is only in the preliminary stages. Much work has to be completed, Mr. Collard says.

But the interested individuals are going about in a professional manner. They have asked most of the major associations and organizations in the city to elect representatives.

Those representatives are expected to speak for the groups they represent. "We are in favor of such a project," Mr. Collard concluded. "All it takes is a lot of work."

Rail, planes compete in corridor travel

MONTREAL (JD) — The great train-plane-bus-air transit race sponsored by a Montreal daily to challenge the efficiency of the soon to be inaugurated STOL aircraft service between Montreal and Ottawa may create rivalry between Canadian National Railways and the air transit system operated by the Ministry of Transport.

It has become increasingly apparent CN are considering inauguration of turbo service between Montreal and Ottawa. The downtown to downtown trip on the existing roadbed would be no more than one and a quarter hours or 5 minutes slower than the STOL project.

The railroad service would not be hampered by foul weather and would offer amenities such as food and beverage services with the possibilities of lowered travel time if the quality of the roadbed is improved.

Provigo workers return to jobs

QUEBEC (CP) — About 75 of 225 striking Provigo, Provigain and Provifruit workers in Quebec City returned to work Tuesday following what they call "layoff threats made by management Sunday night."

The company obtained an injunction last Thursday ordering the workers, employed at stores and warehouses, back to work, but they refused to comply.

Jean-Guy Michaud, spokesman for the workers union, said

100 workers in the Chicoutimi and Sept-Îles areas were fired Monday while 42 warehouse workers in Quebec City remain off the job.

The company has refused to comment on the Chicoutimi-Sept-Îles situation although both management and the union say there have been no layoffs in the Quebec City area.

The union, affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions, is seeking a lump sum payment of $300 and a cost-of-living adjustment of $15 weekly retroactive to May 1, 1974. The company has offered a total payment of $475 to all employees.

Walkouts began May 14 when workers at warehouses in Quebec City, Chicoutimi and Jonquière and workers at three stores in Sept-Îles formed a common front to back cost-of-living adjustment demands.

The company refused to negotiate with the common front, preferring to deal separately with each town's employees, and it obtained the back-to-work injunction.

Sad, funny, real, honest

By MICHAEL ISAACS

Record Reporter

LENNOXVILLE — Lister Sinclair's The Blood is Strong, the third of three plays offered this season by Festival Lennoxville, opened last night before an enthusiastic and larger-than-usual opening night audience.

Set in Cape Breton during the 1840's, The Blood is Strong portrays the painful process of adaptation to a new lifestyle by an immigrant Scottish family.

Ted Allan's My Sister's Keeper, which deals with madness in human relationships, and Donald Harron's Adam's Fall, a farce about power-wielding during the War of 1812, opened July 9 and July 3, respectively. The three plays will be presented on a schedule of continuous rotation until the festival closes August 24.

Directed by Bernard Hopkins, The Blood is Strong features Sandy Webster as Murdoch MacDonald, Doris Petrie as Murdoch's wife Mary, Judith Hodgson as his daughter Kate, and Chuck Shamata as Kate's suitor, Barney Hannah. Hopkins, himself, also plays a prominent role in Adam's Fall.

Webster gives a strong performance in the lead role. As Murdoch, he portrays a Bible-carrying, strident, critical Scot who finds difficulty in adjusting to a Cape Breton existence.

He sets the mood of the play with his blustering short-tempered domination of his family and, eventually, of his environment. In Murdoch, Sinclair develops the character of an immigrant who wages constant internal battle while resolving the dilemma of either remaining in a new and unsettled country or returning to a native and well-known, though unsatisfying, homeland.

It is through him, at the end of the play, that Sinclair presents the work's most fundamental insight. At that point, following the death of his wife, as he waits for his own death, Murdoch acknowledges that home is where one has lived one's life, encountered one's trials, given birth to one's offspring and buried one's kin, and is not an illusory attachment to a location because it was the home of one's ancestors.

In so doing, he affirms forever the break from his Scottish "homeland", and attests to the unceasing human ability to adjust self and environment to satisfy need.

Pitted against him, and with him against Cape Breton, Murdoch's wife presents a more stable and realistic approach to their situation. Seemingly to know throughout her everyday existence what Murdoch is to learn only at the end of his life, she more evenly toils on to maintain their frugal farm life.

Doris Petrie portrays excellently the slight exasperation, quiet acceptance and considerable tolerance of the stoical woman.

By contrast, the couple's children, Kate and James, reveal the typically large resources young persons draw upon when adjusting to new situations. Unconsciously they adapt to Cape Breton, primarily because, as Kate notes, they have seen few fruits of their own labor ripen in Scotland.

Quite painlessly, the two youths become acculturated colonists of British North America. And, naturally, Kate's children likely will never have more knowledge of Scotland than that which they can glean from their mother's unclearly recollected and strangers' memories.

Chuck Shamata plays well the role of Barney Hannah. Barney, a native Canadian who becomes Kate's husband, presents an alternative to Murdoch's religious severity.

Superficially appearing to be a blunderer, he is really an ambitious and cynical, though good-humored, individual with a perceptive awareness of human nature. With Kate's assistance he rises, conceivably as a symbol for the country itself, from a bush hunter in Cape Breton to a successful Upper Canadian lawyer.

The Blood is Strong is a sensitive and enticing play. William Davis, artistic director of Festival Lennoxville, has described it as "a sad, funny, real, honest, warm, moving play." It is.

New Portuguese cabinet formed after long delay

The formation after a long delay of a new Portuguese cabinet top-heavy with young Turks of the military is generally being interpreted as a blow to the prestige of President Antonio de Spínola.

Having apparently been denied his first choice of new prime minister, Gen. Spínola finally accepted the nomination of Col. Vasco Gonçalves, the so-called "brain" behind the April 25 military coup that brought Spínola to power and ended 50 years of dictatorship.

The new 16-man cabinet includes seven military men and its appointment amounts to a takeover of the previous centrist civilian coalition by radical army officers.

As the Times of London comments editorially: "The radical young officers have sharply pulled in the reins and shown Gen. Spínola that he was put in office as their nominee, but not as their master."

Aside from the damage to the previously towering stature of the moderate Spínola, the long delay in forming a new cabinet has had a near-disastrous effect on a whole range of festering problems that beset Portugal at home and abroad.

OUT OF HAND

In the vacuum since the fall two weeks ago of the earlier cabinet under Prime Minister Palma Carlos a gloom has settled over the country's economic and business communities and the critical situation in its African colonies has got increasingly out of hand.

There have been race riots in Luanda, capital of the west African colony of Angola, and Frelimo, the Mozambique Liberation Movement, has been emboldened in that colony in recent weeks.

Because of uncertainties, the vital tourist trade has deteriorated, and a further blow came with publicity given to 14 deaths and 400 confirmed cases of cholera.

Aside from the military presence in the new cabinet, it also includes Communists and Socialists to give it an increasingly left-leaning thrust.

However, although Spínola is said to have been frustrated in his attempts to name Lt.-Col. Mario Miguel as new prime minister, Miguel did, significantly remain on as defence minister. Also, Spínola prevailed in his determination that a non-Communist handle home affairs, the portfolio responsible for formulating the constitution and election legislation.

These compromises tend to demonstrate, observers say, that Spínola has not been reduced entirely to the simple role of figurehead.

The optimistic view now is that with a stable government finally in place in Lisbon it will come to grips soon with the many problems that have sapped confidence at home and abroad in the ability of "the world's youngest democracy" to survive.

But if it does not quickly display a talent for assertive decision-making, observers warn, it will be impossible to avoid catastrophe in the colonies and an economic crisis at home.

The politics of energy conservation

By Ray Cromley

WASHINGTON (EAN)

Pity the poor businessman who wants to conserve energy. He may find it necessary to visit 80 different government offices to make certain what he can and can't do. He may find the regulations of one agency contradict the edicts of others. If he is a small businessman and must borrow the money to invest in an energy-saving device, he finds banks singularly uninterested; loans for energy saving contrivances are not on the current priority list. If the loan does come through, the rates are so high because of the government's tight money policy that our manufacturer may find the interest he's charged largely negates the fuel savings he is planning. Worse yet, he finds that the local tax collector, seeing that capital has been invested for energy saving, assesses the plant at a higher level, thereby increasing the taxes. By this time our businessman is tearing his hair out by the roots.

What is especially sorrowful here is that government experts tell us correctly that the energy crunch is real, and will get steadily worse in the next decade. And that the solutions must come from private business.

At the same time, and in almost the same breath, the government's experts say that it is much cheaper to save energy through efficiency than to produce new energy from the ground and process it for use.

In specific terms, the testimony of experts is that cumulative capital requirements for industrial and commercial energy conservation between 1975 and the year 2000 in 1970 dollars total $200 billion to $250 billion.

By contrast, it would cost about $350 billion in capital investment to produce an equivalent amount of oil, coal, natural gas and electricity.

Businessmen are bothered most by the contradictions in government policy.

Take this ridiculous situation: A sixth of all energy used in the United States goes for producing steam, mostly low-to-medium-temperature steam produced in boilers. This wasteful process utilizes only a fraction of the energy in the fuel. With a little more fuel, high-temperature steam could be produced to generate electricity and the waste steam from that operation used afterward as low-to-medium steam. This dual use would enable industry to get twice the value from every ton of fuel. This is done in some places but in many localities it is forbidden or legally very difficult for manufacturing firms to market this byproduct electricity.

The use of high-sulfur fuel has been largely banned because burning it pollutes the atmosphere. The bureaucrats apparently can't understand that such blanket bans don't make sense. Cement makers say their plants can use relatively high sulfur fuel without polluting the atmosphere because the sulfur dioxide combines with the free lime to produce a solid (not a gas) which becomes part of the cement. But like other industries they are prohibited from using high-sulfur fuel.

There are many other examples of such shortsightedness that these questions must be asked:

Are energy officials interested in meeting the crisis they talk so much about? Or are they involved in building an empire of government inspectors and a hierarchy of regulations interpreters?

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Appeasers

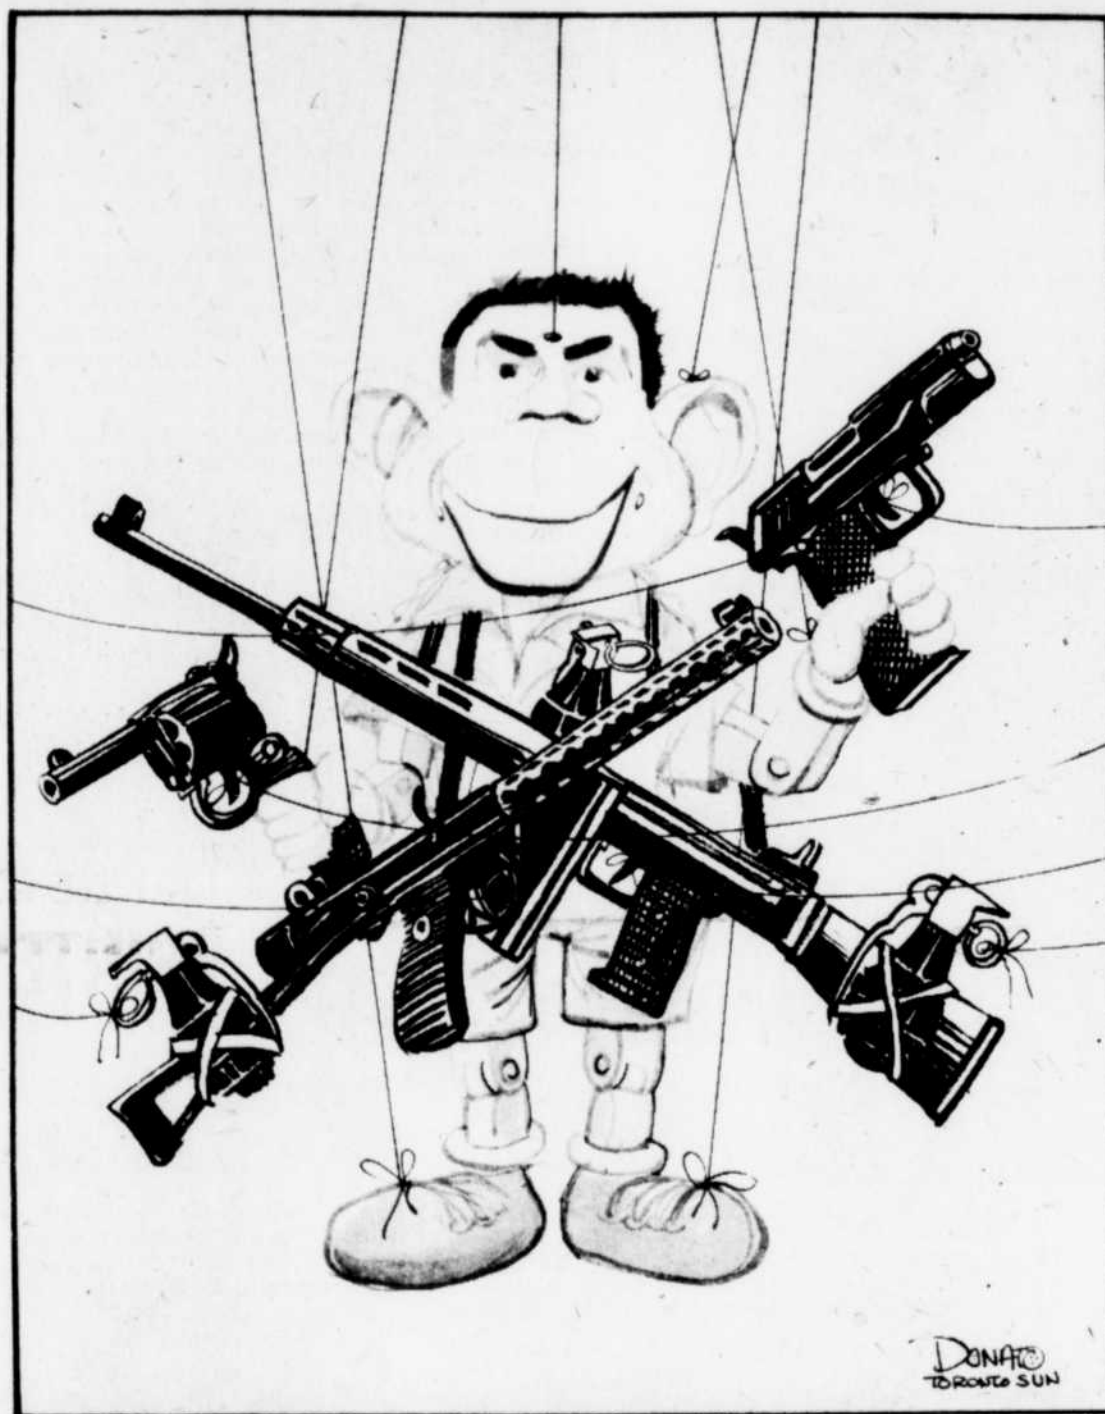

The international law of the sea conference now being held at Caracas is probably the most important conference convened in this century. Or at least it should have been. Its task is to rewrite the law of the sea — still based on the late 18th-century concept of a three-mile limit, that being then the range of a cannon ball fired from a warship. Today missiles carried by nuclear submarines can hit a target thousands of miles away, deep-sea fishing has become a huge industry upon which depends the livelihood of millions — both fishermen and consumers — and international trade, and indeed the economic solvency of the industrialized countries, have come to depend upon the freedom of the seas on which sail not only ordinary cargo ships but oil tankers that keep the industrialized world's economies alive. The question of free passage through straits — especially if the 12-mile limit is now adopted, a limit that would turn most straits into territorial waters — the issue of oil spills and the right to drill for oil in the sea are all problems that should have kept the delegates' noses firmly to the grindstone.

However, faithful to the pattern now impressed upon the parent body of the Caracas conference — the United Nations General Assembly, which officially convened it — the delegates have instead wasted much valuable time in irrelevant politicking. The conference has become dominated by the "African bloc" that can muster enough votes (made up of such "democratic" land-locked states as Uganda) to vote down any draft convention or approve anything they want. One of these irrelevant proposals was the invitation to the conference of the Palestine Liberation Organization as well as 11 other "liberation" movements. The 35 industrialized nations supinely abstained, although the United States went as far as to express its "regrets."

The states that have thus tried to appease a group of individual dictators have set a trap for their own future stability. Canada, which abstained with the rest of them, might see a next conference insisting that the FLQ be invited, while Britain might find her delegates sitting cheek by jowl with members of the IRA. Who knows, General Amin might even insist that representatives of the "Symbionese Liberation Army" be admitted as delegates at such conferences?

On the day that the Caracas conference, in clothing the terrorist organizations in a dubious mantle of respectability, thus twisted international law, a British source revealed the existence of a network of close co-operation existing among these "liberation" movements. All are armed by the Soviet Union, and Soviet Kalashnikov guns — used in the majority of recent IRA killings — flow freely from one group to another. In London, Palestinian terrorists have been assisted by members of the IRA, and Scotland Yard suspects that Arab members of Interpol have been leaking particulars of security arrangements to the terrorist groups.

A society, whether national or international, can only live by the rule of the law. Where an organization — such as the UN — specifically created to uphold this rule, flouts it, as has happened in Caracas with the abetment of the world's leading democracies, the prospects for peace and security are grim indeed. The appeasers, whether in London, Washington or Ottawa, would do well to look again at some fairly recent history.

PRESIDENT SAMPSON OF CYPRUS

Oil men tried to block war aid to Israel

WASHINGTON — Locked in the secret White House files is evidence that four American oil companies supported Arab interests against their own country during the Arab-Israeli war last October.

At the height of the fighting, the chairmen of Exxon, Mobil, Texaco and Standard of California signed a joint memo to President Nixon and rushed it by special messenger to the White House.

The memo, which was delivered on October 12, clearly was timed to influence the President against sending military aid to Israel. The oilmen correctly warned that Saudi Arabia and Kuwait would retaliate by cutting back oil production.

Added the memo prophetically: "There is a high probability that a single action taken by one producer government against the United States would have a snowballing effect that would produce a major petroleum supply crisis."

The President didn't read the memo, however, until after he had already ordered a massive emergency airlift to Israel on October 14.

The Arab oil producers struck back, one after another, with an embargo against the United States. The greatest of the oil sheikhs, Saudi Arabia's King Faisal, halted oil shipments to the United States on October 20.

The Saudi embargo was administered and enforced by the four American companies which together form the Arabian American Oil Company (Aramco). When King Faisal banned oil deliveries to U.S. military forces, the four companies scrupulously carried out the king's order.

The supreme irony is that the four Aramco partners had amassed hundreds of millions of dollars in tax credits and oil subsidies from the American taxpayers for the specific purpose of preserving Saudi oil for U.S. defense.

Yet Exxon, Mobil, Texaco and Standard of California, putting profits ahead of patriotism, didn't hesitate to withhold Saudi oil from the U.S. armed forces at the snap of King Faisal's finger.

Jack Anderson's

Washington Merry-Go-Round

The four oil giants were put on notice by the king at a secret meeting in Geneva on May 23, 1973. He had come to Switzerland for a rest after visiting Cairo when President Anwar Sadat had put pressure on him to use oil as a weapon against the West.

The king told representatives of the four American companies, according to an intelligence report, that he didn't intend to let Saudi Arabia's traditional friendship with the United States isolate his country from the Arab world.

Unless the Aramco partners brought pressure on the U.S. government to change its Middle East policy, he warned, they could lose their Saudi oil concessions. He called upon them to impress this message upon both the U.S. public and U.S. leaders.

"Time is running out," the king declared, emphasizing repeatedly that "you could lose everything."

With this warning still echoing in their ears, the oilmen became panicky when the United States showed favoritism for Israel during the October war. The four chairmen — J.K. Jamieson, Exxon, Rawleigh Warner Jr., Mobil, M.F. Granville, Texaco, and Otto N. Miller, Standard of California — drafted a blunt "Memorandum to the President" on October 12.

They turned it over to Aramco's politically potent counsel, John J. McCloy, who sent it by messenger to the White House staff chief, Gen. Alexander Haig.

In a covering letter, McCloy explained: "The chief Aramco shareholders with large concessionary interests in Saudi Arabia wish to have this brief memorandum summarizing the critical situation in regard to the flow of oil supplies from the Middle East placed in the President's hands as soon as possible."

The memo warned that "the Arab negotiators in Vienna have stated that their governments were angered by the speech of Ambassador (John) Scatt before the United Nations which they interpreted as a clear expression of support of the Israeli position."

"They also report that a request from the United States to King Faisal that he urge Arab combatants to retire to (the pre-attack) ceasefire line produced great irritation. We have been told that the Saudis will impose some cut-back in crude oil production as a result of the United States position taken thus far."

"A further and much more substantial move will be taken by Saudi Arabia and Kuwait in the event of further evidence of increased U.S. support of the Israeli position."

"We are convinced of the seriousness of the intentions of the Saudis and Kuwaitis and that any actions of the U.S. government at this time in terms of increased military aid to Israel will have a critical and adverse effect on our relations with the moderate Arab producing countries."

Raising the familiar cry of national security, the chairmen pleaded that "much more than our commercial interests in the area is now at hazard. The real stakes, they pleaded, were 'both our economy and our security.'"

Not long afterward, they joined in undermining U.S. security in the Middle East by cutting off Saudi oil to American planes and ships.

Footnote: We contacted the offices of the four oil chairmen. Their spokesmen contended that the memo was not intended to meddle in U.S. foreign policy but merely to alert President Nixon to the facts.

Debtors discover an honorable solution

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Like so many others in times of terrible inflation, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Cash of Bangor, Maine, have seriously overextended their budget.

Mrs. Cash says they listened to "too many smooth-talking salesmen" yak about how easy credit terms would be. They bought a new car, new furniture, "new everything" — and soon found themselves $6,000 in debt and unable to pay on demand.

Unlike so many others, however, the Cash family did not take the bug-out route away from their creditors. Solid people, with an admirable sense of responsibility and obligation, they are using a little known federal bankruptcy law which all concerned ought to favor. The law, called the Wage Earner Plan, couples the Cashes with the courts in a negotiated effort to settle all claims.

It works as follows: Badgered by creditors, threatened with suits, warned of garnishments, Mr. and Mrs. Cash applied for protection and assistance from a bankruptcy court. On application, a judge ordered an end to the harassment and assigned a caseworker to study the family situation.

Adding assets and debts, needs and actualities, the caseworker devised a new family budget and the judge ruled it valid. The Cashes had to give up an unnecessary automobile and agree not to open new charges, but were allowed to keep their home, adequate weekly expenses and dignity while paying off accounts at an over-all rate of $12 a week.

Says the couple now: "It's a wonderful thing. We aren't afraid anymore. We recommend it for anyone who's in trouble today."

The recommendation is justified. Unfortunately, it is also naive. Though economic statistics indicate hundreds of thousands of Americans are currently in deep financial trouble, only a comparative handful are finding relief in the bankruptcy Wage Earner Plan.

Slightly less than 19,000 people used the law (officially, Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Act) in the first eight months of fiscal '74; one federal judge believes "the figure is 10 times too low."

One reason so few people use the plan is that so few know about it. And one reason for that is that many of the officials who are supposed to pursue and administer the law are instead ignoring and even hiding it.

The government doesn't publicize it for fear big creditors will grumble, the federal bankruptcy judges don't push it because it is a complicated process often involving lengthy demands on their time, and lawyers often fail to inform clients of the alternative because it offers minimal attorney compensation.

The situation is so bad in some states, such as New Hampshire, that cases for the Wage Earner Plan are as rare as fingers on a worm. Many lawyers actually direct eligibles away from it by lying. They claim it will destroy a client's credit rating forever.

Other states — Maryland and Indiana, to name two — discourage Chapter 13 participation by insisting that courts reduce applicants into poverty (by, say, taking their homes) before allowing a debt-payment plan.

Maine, however, is one exception. Bankruptcy judges there believe the best way to protect debtors and creditors alike is to catch trouble as early as possible.

"If you wait too long," says Judge Conrad Cyr, "the family may be too far gone to pay anything; then the only alternative is straight bankruptcy where creditors wind up with maybe 10 cents on the dollar."

As it is, people in Maine are encouraged to bring their money woes to the courts early, creditors are receiving (if tardily) full balance, and some 90 per cent of those on the Wage Earner Plan are discharging their debts with honor.

The Maine plan succeeds because it dissociates bankruptcy from hoary stigma. Chapter 13 is a responsible plan and when it works right it affords a rare opportunity for people, capitalism and government to work in concert.

"We're not ashamed," says Mrs. Cash. "Why, some creditors are even calling to say they appreciate our business."

Players, officials must get used to new NFL rules

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — The game was scoreless.

With about 30 seconds left in the half, Houston Oilers' kicking specialist Finn Seeman trotted out for a field goal attempt from the opposition's 37.

Last year in the National Football League, the kick would have been successful with several yards to spare.

This year, it fell short by inches.

"The field goal kicker, he's going to have to be strong-legged if we're going to see some three points," said Oilers owner Bud Adams.

This year the goal posts are 10 yards deep in the end zone rather than on the goal line in the NFL. This new rule and others got what apparently was their first full-scale game tryout this past weekend when a squad of mostly rookies and some veterans from the Oilers' training camp beat San Antonio Toros 13-7 in an exhibition game.

"It's like it's 50 million miles away from you," Houston Coach Sid Gillman said of the goal posts' new position.

Earlier in the half, Seeman was not called on by Gillman when the Oilers' drove to the San Antonio 40 and then to the 44.

Both times, Gillman chose to punt.

FEARS INJURIES

Gillman sees more excitement in punt and pickoff returns but also worries about injuries in kick coverage. Twice, Oilers rookie Billy Johnson of Widener managed 12-yard returns on short punts which might have resulted in fair catches last year.

On punts this year, only two members of the punting team can run downfield before the ball is kicked. On kickoffs, the ball is placed on the kicking team's 35-yard line instead of the 40.

In last weekend's contest, all seven kickoffs were returned. None found their way into the end zone.

"Oh boy, what a premium for great return men," Gillman declared. "Get a little organization (blocking) and it's goodbye."

Another new rule brings the ball back to the line of scrimmage on an unsuccessful field goal try unless the receiving team tries to run with it on the field of play. That's what the Oilers did Saturday night after they blocked a field goal attempt.

EFFORT COSTLY
If Houston rookie Columbus Whittington had let the ball die, the Oilers would have had the football on their own 24. His six-yard return gave the ball to the Oilers on their 18, a net loss of six yards.

"It's very difficult when you have been conditioned for 15 years to pick that potato up to just leave it alone," said head official Adrian Burk, a Houston lawyer who has been an NFL referee for eight years.

Burk noticed good compliance with the new rule limiting contact between defensive backs and receivers, the so-called "chucking rule." Gillman said he dislikes the rule, which all but prohibits a bump-and-run defensive style. Gillman said the bump-and-run "is something a good pro should know."

He said his referees didn't fumble on holding penalties, remembering to mark off only 10 yards this season against the offending team instead of last year's 15.

Even so, "it will take the teams a while to adjust and it will take the officials a while to get used to the new rules."

Tough fight seen for Alouettes' owner

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes and Hamilton Tiger Cats open the Eastern Football Conference schedule tonight and both opposing coaches anticipate a tough fight.

Alouette coach and general manager Marv Levy said in an interview he is discounting his team's two pre-season victories over the Ticats as an indication of what they face in the league opener.

"We'll be playing against a much tougher Hamilton defence this time," he said. "Not only that, but they'll be in the game all the way this time."

The two victories, 23-17 and 41-10, should not be considered because "those exhibition scores mean zilch; absolutely nothing."

"One of the things we expect is for (Chuck) Ealey to roll out. We are also conscious of (Andy) Hopkin's running."

He's one of the quickest runners at finding a hole in the league.

"It's hard to tell anything until you're tested in a game that counts. We feel we have a good defensive team. Just how good it is we don't know. After all we haven't played a game yet."

Hamilton coach Jerry Williams said the Als are "the team to beat because they have the best balance of any team in the east."

"We're looking for both the pass and the run from the Alouettes," he said. "They're going to provide our toughest competition."

HAS FRESH TROOPS

Hamilton has eight new faces in the lineup this year, four Canadians and four imports.

"We were weak on the run last year but we hope to be better this season," with Fred Grambau and Ezil Bibbs manning the defensive ends positions, Williams said.

Alouette quarterback Jimmy Jones would add an extra dimension to their running game and put added pressure on the Hamilton defence.

General manager Ralph Sazio said the addition of Joe Critchlow at defensive tackle allowed the Als to stabilize their defence.

"Critchlow is as quick as (Jim) Stillwagon or (Granny) Liggins. He is the biggest plus on their team this year. And in Mike Widger, Carl Crennel and Chuck Zapiec, they probably have the best linebacking unit in the league."

Despite Montreal's improved defence, Sazio still picked Ottawa Rough Riders as the team to beat because of their stable quarterbacking.

Cornerback John Williams is the only Hamilton regular on the 21-day disabled list while quarterback Sonny Wade and defensive back Tony Proudfoot are on the Alouette injury list.

The game at the Autostade is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. EDT and will be broadcast on the Eastern network of the CBC with Montreal blacked out.

Record number of entries for Henley rowing crown

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The Royal Canadian Henley regatta, which starts today, is the biggest in the 92-year history of the national rowing championships.

More than 1,000 oarsmen, scullers and oarswomen from 55 Canadian, United States and Mexican rowing clubs have filed 494 entries to produce 112 races spread over five days of competition.

As a result, the Henley will go to five days for the first time since the regatta began with five events in 1880. The record entry has forced Wednesday afternoon heats prior to the opening ceremonies.

"It's just fantastic," said Claude Saunders of Hamilton, regatta chairman for the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen. "I've never seen an entry like this."

"We've got crews in from the East Coast, from Mexico, from the western United States and just about everywhere in between."

What has pleased Saunders and his committee most is evidence that many U.S. clubs and colleges here in the past are back with "everything in the shellhouse this time."

"It's obvious that we're able to give them the kind of racing they want."

FEMALE INTEREST UP

The biggest increase in entries comes in women's events. There are six women's eights, 17 women's cox fours and six women's singles.

There are five entries logged for the Henley's newest race, quadruple sculls, and a special FISA lightweight eight exhibition Saturday has drawn six crews while an exhibition women's double the same afternoon will see four boats in.

As usual, the St. Catharines Rowing Club has the largest entry of the 55 competing clubs. The cerise and blue will send 55 boats to the starting gates in quest of a 14th consecutive Maple Leaf Trophy, emblematic of the Henley points title.

The championship single always draws top interest, and this year's event is shaping up as a classic.

Topping the entries are defending-champion Jim Dietz of the New York Athletic Club and 1974 Diamond Sculls champion Sean Drea of Philadelphia Undine.

Dietz has won the race in six of the last seven years and earlier this season defeated some of Europe's top scullers at the Nottingham International. But a week later he lost to Drea in a heat of the Diamonds at Henley and the Irishman, who sculled for Ireland at the 1970 worlds here, went on to take the title.

Battle of the unbeaten, WFL style

The rookie World Football League, plunging into the midst of its third week, will have four teams battling tonight to hang on to their unbeaten records. At least one is likely to fail.

A pair of undefeated teams—Birmingham Americans and Memphis Southmen—are matched in a WFL version of a showdown game. Neither club wants to play in the league's first overtime tie.

"They have a fine quarterback and two of the better running backs in the league," said Birmingham head coach Jack Gotta about the Southmen—the WFL scoring leaders with a 25-point-per-game average.

Quarterback John Huarte, who has 22 completions in 37 attempts for 342 yards, leads Memphis. Running back J.J. Jennings has a total of 17 yards rushing for the Southmen and John Harvey has 85 yards.

But quarterback George Mira, the latest WFL Player of the Week, has completed 22 of 44 passes for 299 yards for the Americans. His top receiver is Dennis Homan with six catches for 144 yards.

In other games tonight, unbeaten Chicago Fire plays Portland Storm, undefeated Florida Blazers meet Houston Texans and Southern California Sun faces Jacksonville Sharks.

Philadelphia Bell is at home to New York Stars Thursday night and Chicago—with three days of rest—plays the Hawaiians in another contest Sunday at Honolulu.

The Fire, tied with Birmingham and Memphis for the Central Division lead, will help winless Portland open its home season.

CARTER FEATURED
Chicago features quarterback Virgil Carter—33 of 62 for 371—and receiver James Scott, the WFL leader with 14 catches for 134 yards.

Strong-armed quarterback Greg Barton of Portland and runners Marv Kendricks and Clem Turner will threaten Chicago's perfect mark.

The Hawaiians, waiting in line for the Fire, have quarterback Norris Weese's fine passing. But they have the poorest WFL running attack.

The Blazers, atop the Eastern Division as the other unbeaten WFL team, are led by quarterback Bob Davis and runners Jim Strong and A. D. Whitfield.

Houston, 1-1, has rushers Jim Nance and Paul Gipson.

Southern California, 1-1, tied with Houston as the Western Division leader, pits its tough rushing defence against Jacksonville's Tommy Durrance, who leads the WFL with 184 yards on 48 carries.

Winless New York, with the leading WFL offence and the second-leading defence, will try to get untracked against Philadelphia.

Quarterback Tom Sherman of the Stars and Jim (King) Corcoran of the Bell have been preparing for a passing duel.

Evel will head off—up or down—as scheduled Aug. 27

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (AP) — Another roadblock has been cleared from Evel Knievel's motorcycle jump across the quarter-mile-wide Snake River Canyon.

The Twin Falls county commission granted a permit Tuesday for the gathering at the jump site for the week preceding the jump.

After several meetings, the commission granted the permit, contingent on the requirements being met by Aug. 27.

Knievel hopes to make the jump on Labor Day.

Part of the county's crowd ordinance was waived to allow a maximum of 50,000 persons at the site. Knievel must put up a $10,000 bond for the event and liability insurance to protect the county.

Knievel has agreed to provide 200 chemical toilets, 50 private security guards, an extension of chain link fence on the south side of the canyon for safety, physicians and drinking and bathing water for the maximum number of people.

Meanwhile, construction continued at the jump site and the ramp was expected to be completed this week.

Western Iron Co. officials from Butte, Mont., said the first half of the ramp and steel framework had been finished.

BIRCHTON — Mr. Carl Jackson motored to Cornwall, Ont., where he met his grandmother, Mrs. George (Mary) Jackson of Woodstock, and his aunts, Miss Mabel Jackson of Woodstock and Mrs. Pearl Goodman of Niagara Falls, Ont., and took them to his home in Franklin Centre. There, joined by Coleen and Sean, they arrived at Mr. and Mrs. Percy Jackson's on Friday for supper, and left Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Jackson, with Pamela, David and Patricia, joined the Jackson group on Saturday leaving on Sunday afternoon for their home in Tilton, N.H. This was the first time for several years that the brothers, Carl and Merrill had been together for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Lowry (Theda Jackson), with Christine, Kent and Garth joined the others for Sunday dinner and supper.

What a difference in the activity of the Jackson home when thirteen slept there Saturday night, and eighteen sat down for Sunday dinner.

It is interesting to note that Mrs. George Jackson will celebrate her 94th birthday, Thursday, July 25, 1974.

During Sunday supper a two-storey birthday cake, made by Theda and decorated in white, pink and green, bearing the inscription "Happy Birthday to grandma and great-grandma — 1880-1974" was presented to the guest of honour by her great-granddaughter, Christine Lowry.

Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fraser of Cookshire called to extend best wishes to Mrs. Jackson.

All good things must end, and on Tuesday Carl and his guests returned to Franklin Centre, and on Thursday, he drove his grandmother and two aunts to Woodstock, Ont.

Best wishes for continued good health go to Mrs. Jackson from friends in her old community!

Tomifobia

Sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Richard Vancour in the loss of her husband who passed away suddenly at his home on June 21.

Recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Aulis have been their son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rean of Pointe Claire; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gifford and daughter Christine accompanied by Mrs. Gifford's mother Mrs. Gilbert Aulis of Melbourne and Mr. Wallace Brevort of Kitchener, Ont.

manse while conducting the Vacation Bible School which was held the week of July 8. This year it was an all day school for one week instead of the half day for two weeks as has been in the previous years. On Friday evening the closing exercises were held in the church hall with several parents and friends present.

The children had a very fine program of reciting their Bible memory verses, short plays, singing and piano solos. The teachers gave the children certificates for their Bible memory work, attendance and for their workbooks and hand work.

After the meeting closed all looked at the fine display of the children's hand work. There was an average of twelve children attended daily.

Shelley MacKenzie and Ian MacAulay left on July 13 for two weeks at the Presbyterian Camp at Melbourn.

Mrs. John Winch of Grand Prairie, Alta., is spending her vacation with her parents Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Gordon. Mrs. Angus MacLennan and Mrs. Dan MacDonald of Sherbrooke spent a few days at the same home.

Mr. and Mrs. James MacLeod of Ottawa, Ont. spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. John E. Nicholson. Robert Nicholson of Sherwood Park, Sask., has returned to his home after three weeks with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Nicholson.

Kathy and David Ladd of Ottawa, Ont., are spending their vacation with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Ladd. All are pleased that Mr. Ladd is gaining after suffering from shingles.

Prairie Open first round

SASKATOON (CP) — Two Davis Cup veterans had difficulty Tuesday in winning first-round matches in the Prairie Open tennis championships, part of a national tour being staged this year for the first time.

Dave Brown of Port Credit, Ont., dropped the first set before rebounding to stop Rico Policarpo of Calgary 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, and Don McCormick of Vancouver withstood constant chatter by Lindsay Straney of Calgary to post a 6-4, 6-4 victory.

Brown, who went to Colombia in the 1973 Davis Cup competition, broke a losing streak that involved third-set defeats in the first rounds at Halifax, Granby, Que., and St. Catharines, Ont., in the first three steps on the tour.

McCormick is the leading Canadian point-winner in the race for a berth in a Grand Prix final to be held in Ottawa in September.

TOOK EARLY LEAD

Playing in heat of more than 90 degrees on the fast outdoor courts of Riverside Tennis Club, McCormick jumped into an early lead in both sets, but Straney's mixture of lobs and spins—and a constant stream of chatter—enabled the Calgary club teaching pro to keep the game close.

In other first-round men's matches, Bob Bardsley of Vancouver defeated Mike McLaughlin of Toronto 6-2, 6-1; Steve Whitehead of St. Catharines defeated Jean Claude Gosselin of Quebec City 6-3, 7-6; Dale Power of Toronto outlasted Dave Johnson of Vancouver 6-2, 7-5; Davis Cupper Chris Burr of Toronto defeated Francis Synaghael of Victoriaville, Que., 6-1, 6-1; Jim Boyce of Toronto whipped Guy Tytherleigh of Vancouver 6-0, 6-4; and Jean Caujolle of France had a tough time defeating Peter Pospisil of Toronto 6-4, 7-5.

Still struggling to get off the ground in the United States, soccer has been flying high in much of the world for some time — and so have its players. Martin Hoffman (above left) of East Germany, recently "headed" this point into the net to earn his country a tie with the Chilean team. Another "headed" shot (above right) by West Germany's Gerd Muller clinched his team's 3-0 win against Australia. Zaire's Tshimen Buhanga (below) executes an acrobatic leap to block a shot by Yugoslavia's Dusan Bajevic (left) in their recent World Cup match.

Braves' managing job

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Henry Aaron caught the Braves' front office by surprise Tuesday when he said he probably would accept an offer to manage the club "simply because there are no black managers in baseball."

"Tonight is the first time I've had any idea that Hank is interested in a managerial career," Braves' owner Bill Bartholomay said after Aaron's revelation during the all-star game.

The Braves, who Sunday fired Eddie Mathews as field boss, were to name an interim manager at news conference today.

The leading candidate for the job was Clyde King, a former San Francisco Giants' manager, but there still will have to be a permanent appointment made later.

In any case, baseball's home run king appears to have put the Braves in an awkward position for when they do choose a fulltime successor.

"I haven't talked to Hank since Saturday night," said Bartholomay. "Our relationship is such that the next time we talk we'll discuss the issue."

CHANGES MIND

Aaron spoke to reporters after published reports quoted Braves' general manager Eddie Robinson as saying he had excluded Aaron as managerial possibility because Aaron supposedly wasn't interested.

"Nobody speaks for Henry Aaron but Henry Aaron," said the Braves' outfielder.

"If they're going to use my name, I think someone should have come around and said, 'Henry, do you want the job?'"

"I have said time and time again that I don't want to manage, but I'd have to say that if they offered me the job I'd be almost compelled to take it simply because there are no black managers in baseball."

"There are lots of qualified blacks who are more qualified to manage than I am, but if the job were offered to me I would definitely have to think twice."

"It's an exciting possibility. It's exciting that he would consider managing. In the past he's rejected that as a future possibility," Bartholomay said.

Asked to name some blacks who might make good managers, Aaron mentioned Frank Robinson, Maury Wills, Jim Gilliam, Larry Doby and Bill White.

NL wins 7-2

Garvey named all-star MVP

PITTSBURGH (AP) — For some it was a busman's holiday. For a busman's son, it was a dream come true.

"The seeds were planted when I was four, five and six," said Steve Garvey of Los Angeles Dodgers, who was named the most valuable player in Tuesday night's all-star baseball game after leading the National League to a 7-2 victory over the American League.

"My father drove the team bus for the Dodgers in spring training and I got to know them all—Gil Hodges, Carl Furillo, Roy Campanella, Don Drysdale and Sandy Koufax."

"They all were all-stars and I always hoped that someday I'd be one. Gil Hodges was my idol and here I was playing his position in the all-star game."

Garvey's name didn't even appear on the computer ballot for this 45th all-star game, but fans responded with more than one million write-in votes to make him the starting first baseman.

TWO KEY HITS

Garvey responded by delivering two key hits and a sparkling defensive play during a full nine-inning stint as the National League continued its dominance over the American, winning its 11th game in the past 12. The NL now leads the series 26-18-1 after being behind 12-4.

Five NL pitchers held the American to four hits, causing losing manager Dick Williams to lament: "You can't do much with four hits."

Gaylord Perry, starting pitcher for the AL, retired the first five NL batters before Garvey singled in the second. Dodgers team-mate Ron Cey then drove in Garvey with a double.

In the third inning Garvey made a brilliant backhand stab of Bobby Murcer's hot grounder to end the inning.

The AL already had two runs in that inning and two runners on base.

In the fourth, with the Americans leading 2-1, Johnny Bench and Jimmy Wynn, another Dodger, singled. Garvey drove in one run with a double, and Wynn later scored on Cey's groundout.

Garvey played despite an ear infection sidelined him. But threatening rain cancelled the batting workout.

"My head was swollen like a basketball last week because of the infection," the 25-year-old former Michigan State football player said. "I couldn't sleep and I couldn't eat. I went to the emergency ward of the hospital to get a change in the antibiotics they were giving me."

Garvey arrived here Monday evening after getting clearance from his doctor. "I didn't want to miss this. I told myself I'm going and I'm going to play."

NL Manager Yogi Berra said, "I kept checking with Steve to see if he was healthy and he said he was okay."

In the AL dressing room, Williams said: "With a group like that—Cey, Garvey, Wynn and ear infection sidelined him. But threatening rain cancelled the batting workout."

Nedomansky leaves nothing behind, joins Toros for 5-year, $600,000 pact

TORONTO (CP) — Vaclav Nedomansky left little behind when he defected from his native Czechoslovakia last week to join Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association.

The Toros introduced Nedomansky at a news conference Tuesday and the 30-year-old world hockey star listed a furnished apartment as the principal asset left behind in his defection.

Interpreter Mike Bukovac explained that even a high-ranking hockey star such as Nedomansky lives from one week's pay to the next in Czechoslovakia and he left no bank account behind.

Nedomansky signed a five-year contract with the Toros reported to be worth about $600,000.

The 6-foot-1, 210-pound centre let the interpreter do most of his talking.

A former Czech national team captain and Most Valuable Player in the last world amateur hockey championships, Nedomansky said he had been trying for about the last seven or eight years to make the move to North American professional hockey.

He said a number of attempts had been made by National Hockey League and WHA interests to obtain his release from Czechoslovakia through official channels but these were always turned down.

He arrived in Canada as a landed immigrant last Wednesday after going through Switzerland. He was accompanied by his wife, Vera, and son, Vaclav Jr.

Asked why he chose the Toros, Nedomansky said he thought the WHA was "an upcoming league," he knew Toros coach Billy Harris and left wingers Frank Mahovlich and Paul Henderson and the salary also was a big incentive.

Richard Farda, another former Czech national team member, also will be joining the Toros later this year, general manager Buck Houle said.

"Farda has signed a contract and will be here before Sept. 20," said Houle.

Farda also defected via Switzerland but has been held up there by immigration proceedings and his wife's reluctance to leave Europe, Houle said.

Leading physical fitness authority Percival dies

MONTREAL (CP) — Lloyd Percival, one of Canada's leading authorities on physical fitness, died in hospital Tuesday.

Percival, 61, who operated the Fitness Institute in Toronto, had coached a number of athletes and teams and had written books on fitness.

Percival collapsed at a meeting at noon and was rushed to hospital where he was pronounced dead.

One of the most controversial figures in Canadian sports, Percival was outspoken about his theories on physical conditioning.

"I was in a controversial situation right from the start," he said in 1968 when he announced that he was withdrawing from amateur athletics to devote all his time to his Fitness Institute because the Canadian sports "establishment" was not ready to accept his techniques.

"I set out to study conditioning and training methods from all over the world and apply them to Canadians," he said.

"I was involved in controversy when I began training track people with weights. I was in trouble when I announced that putting ice on a charley horse was better than rubbing it."

CLEARED IN COURT

In 1966, the then head coach of the Don Mills Track Club was charged with giving his athletes stimulants. Almost a year later, he was cleared of the charges in court.

"That's been part of the problem, I guess," Percival said when he resigned his post with the Don Mills club in 1968.

"People think I have some secret methods and that I'm using them to promote myself. Always, I wanted only to promote Canadians internationally."

While Canadian sports officials may have ignored him, Europeans on the other hand were receptive to his ideas and the Soviet Union, in particular, made extensive use of his Hockey Handbook, published in 1950.

When the Soviets offered in 1968 to send two coaches to Canada as "advisers," Percival called it the "supreme insult of all time, especially to me."

"There is not a Russian alive who knows more about conditioning a team than I do."

TRIBUTE FROM ADAMS

The late Jack Adams, when he was coach of the National Hockey League Detroit Red Wings, said: "There is no question that Canadiansport in general has made shamefully little use of Percival's talents."

"Why? Because people don't want to be told—and Percival tells them."

Percival first began to realize the importance of good coaching and conditioning when, at the age of 16, he was beaten in the Canadian junior tennis championships.

He played several sports and during the 1920s attended a number of coaching schools in the United States and Canada.

In 1943, Percival started a national radio program called Sports College which he used as a vehicle for his developing theories.

He opened his $3.5 million Fitness Institute in 1968 and spent the last six years catering to professional and amateur athletes and anyone interested in his conditioning programs.

A spokesman at Royal Victoria Hospital said Percival was brought to the emergency department by police ambulance at about 2 p.m.

"Efforts were made to revive him but all emergency measures unfortunately were not successful and he was pronounced dead at 3:40 p.m."

The spokesman said an autopsy would be performed to determine cause of death.

Joe Taylor, a business associate of Percival's, said in Toronto Tuesday the fitness expert sold his share of the institute to his partner, Jim Gardner of Toronto, about a month and a half ago, to leave himself free for other projects and in order to establish a trust fund for his family.

Percival had been having health problems for the last two years.

He leaves his wife, Dorothy; his daughter, Janet, women's director of the Fitness Institute; and a brother, Alan, of Toronto.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete Tuesday night.

Littler teed-off about slow golfers

TORONTO (CP) — Gene Littler got 13 holes into a practice round Tuesday at Mississauga Golf Club, where he won the Canadian Open nine years ago, then picked up his ball in exasperation.

He beat back cancer a couple of years ago, but Tuesday he couldn't shrug off the slow play of those in front of him on the 6,788-yard par-70 layout where this year's Canadian Open begins Thursday.

"I don't know what we're going to do about this," said the veteran of 11 Professional Golfers' Association titles. "If it takes five hours to play a practice round, what's it going to be like when they're serious?"

"There seems to be a lot more slow players out there. . . . Maybe it's because everyone is marking off the courses these days."

BEAT NICKLAUS

Littler won the Open the last year it was played at Mississauga, beating Jack Nicklaus by a stroke. The Canadian Open is the only national championship that has eluded the Golden Bear who is making his first bid for this title since 1968.

Littler, who won the St. Louis Open two years ago after surgery for cancer of lymph glands, has only vague recollections of his victory here.

"I can't remember last week let alone five years ago."

When reminded he won with a 273, he replied the score was "incredible."

"That score will win here by five shots," he said of the 72-hole scramble for $200,000 in prize money that ends Sunday.

Littler is one of eight Canadian Open champions entered in the field of 150 that includes defending champion Tom Weiskopf.

Others are Gay Brewer, 1972; Lee Trevino, 1971; Kermit Zarley, 1970; Tommy Aaron, 1969; Doug Ford, 1959 and 1963; Art

Wall, 1960; and Arnold Palmer, 1955.

ALTERNATES READY

Seventeen Canadians are set to start the opening round, but several others are among the alternates if any of the regulars fail to show.

Veteran American pro Dave Hill withdrew Tuesday, making way for the first alternate, Andy Thompson of the United States, to get into the field.

One absentee will be Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., who won a berth last weekend by winning the Canadian PGA title at Calgary, but refused to compete because he said he lacked a proper set of clubs.

Another long-time competitor, Toronto's Al Balding, was offered an exemption after he failed to make the grade in qualifying play Monday but declined.

Gears, running in oil, and shafts drive the conditioner rolls on the new 1207. Gear drive requires very little maintenance—no belts, no chains. Molded rubber "crumpler" rolls provide the best of crimper and crusher action—aggressive feeding plus gentle conditioning. Look it over soon.

Canada leads T & F groups after day one

GWENT, Wales (CP) — Canada led in both men's and women's competitions after the first day of an international track and field meet Tuesday.

In the men's match, Canada rolled up 65 points to 51 for Wales while in a three-way women's match, the Canadians had 66 points, Scotland 35 and Wales 22.

Canadian men won six of 11 events while the women were first in three of five events.

Canadians were first and second in the men's and women's 1,500 metres, the men's javelin and the women's discus.

Paul Craig of Toronto ran the 1,500 metres in three minutes, 43.3 seconds, just a tenth of a second ahead of second-place finisher Peter Richardson of Fredericton.

In the women's 1,500, Thelma Wright of Vancouver won in 4:15.4, a Welsh all-comers record. Anne Marie Davis of Winnipeg was second in 4:17.7.

GUEST IS WINNER

Andre Lajoie of Montreal, competing as a guest, won the men's javelin with a throw of 240 feet. Phil Olsen of Nanaimo, B.C., was second with 221-1 and Rick Dowsell of Sarnia, Ont., was third at 215-7.

Carl Martin of Toronto upset Commonwealth Games gold medalist Jane Haist also of Toronto, in the women's discus.

Miss Martin won with a throw of 183-1½ inches, a Welsh all-comers record. Miss Haist, a former room-mate of Miss Martin, was second with 170-9½.

Glen Bogue of Toronto flashed home first in the men's 400 metres with a clocking of 47.2 seconds with team-mate Ron Jackson of Winnipeg third in 47.6.

In the 100 metres, Dave Roberts of Wales was first in 10.6 seconds, the same as Hugh Fraser of Ottawa who placed second. Marv Nash of Toronto was third in 10.8. Claude Montigny of Cap-de-la-Madeleine, Que., ran fourth in 10.9.

WANT IS FIRST

Dave Watt of Scarborough, Ont., won the triple jump with 49-11½ while Gerry Bell of Calgary was fourth with 43-10¼.

Dean Bauch of Vancouver took the high jump, clearing the bar at 7-0¾. Greg Joy of Vancouver was third with 6-7.

Canada won the men's 4x100-metre relay in 40.2 seconds and the women were first in 45.6 seconds.

Other Canadian placings: Men's hammer throw: Bishop Dolegiewicz, Toronto, second, 165-7; Borys Chambul, Scarborough, Ont., fourth, 101-9.

Men's 3,000-metre steeplechase: Graham Hutchison, Austin, Tex., second, 8:54.0; Dave Kerr, Toronto, fourth, 9:00.4.

Men's 400-metre hurdles: Dave Jarvis, Grimsby, Ont., fourth, 53.6 seconds.

Men's shot: Bishop Dolegiewicz, Toronto, second, 64-6½; Brian Caulfield, Scarborough, Ont., fourth, 60-6.

Women's long jump: Brenda Eisler, Vancouver, second, 20-6½; Diane Jones, Saskatoon, third, 18-10¼.

Women's 100 metres: Marjorie Bailey, Vancouver, second, 11:6; Patty Loverock, Vancouver, third, 11:8.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Couple questions their fertility

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My wife and I are desperately trying to have a baby. According to her temperature she has ovulation about 15 days after the start of her last period. We try to have sex, especially at that time. Our local gynecologist said that we should just relax and have sex at any time and if she is going to have a baby she will and if not, she won't.

Dr. Lamb

Well, that may be, but aren't there other factors that enter into it? The doctor said that we can do things to prevent having a baby, but nothing to have one. My wife takes medication. Would this have an effect on pregnancy? She is quite nervous.

Another doctor found she had a cyst or something inside. He wants to take X rays to make sure the fallopian tubes are not blocked. I understand that if a woman gives off acid it can kill sperm. Also, the thyroid can affect pregnancy. Are there other things that we might not be aware of that could prevent pregnancy?

I was checked for sperm, and the doctor said that it was all right.

DEAR READER — It appears that your wife is ovulating and that you have normal sperm. If you are not using anything that would interfere with pregnancy, that combination should result in a pregnancy. Usually doctors want to wait at least a year after a couple has lived together with regular relations before deciding there is a fertility problem.

Since sperm cells live about 72 hours, it follows that if a healthy couple has sex every other night there is likely to be sperm in the tube to cause a pregnancy when ovulation occurs. It is true that if the tube is blocked or if there is some other mechanical barrier then the union cannot take place.

Abnormal thyroid function can affect the ability to get pregnant, but this is common enough that I'm sure your doctor would have recognized this. And, some medications could cause problems, but usually they would prevent ovulation to start with.

Another possibility is the use of lubricants. Most of the common lubricants also kill sperm cells. A couple desiring a pregnancy should not use lubricants but depend only on nature.

Rarely, a woman is "allergic" to her husband's sperm cells. Her body destroys them. This rare condition can be helped by using a condom for a considerable period of time. In this interval a woman loses her allergic reaction and is then able to get pregnant after the condom is discontinued.

If none of these apply and you have tried for a year to have a family, then certainly a complete evaluation, including an evaluation of the tubes, is in order. Your wife could increase her chances of getting pregnant if the tubes were open by being put on a fertility pill that stimulates the ovaries to release a larger number of ovum. It is simple, the more targets there are, the more likely that a bullet will strike one.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Why do doctors prescribe Pre-marin after a hysterectomy for a patient who was told never to take birth control pills? I have a tendency to retain fluid, had a depression following childbirth and also have varicose veins.

I was told I was a perfect example of who was not to take birth control pills.

Isn't it true that the same hormones are in both Pre-mar and birth control pills? I would greatly appreciate an explanation.

DEAR READER — It does sound curious, but it isn't as bad as it sounds. Let me use an analogy to explain the problem. If a woman had an overactive thyroid the doctor would not want to prescribe additional thyroid. Now, if she had the entire thyroid gland removed surgically, the doctor would want to give her thyroid, because her body would no longer be manufacturing any.

The same thing applies to your question. Birth control pills do contain female hormones. This amount added to the normal amount already being produced by the woman's ovaries might be too much, or create problems in some women. It might make a difference what kind of pill is used, however.

With a hysterectomy, if the ovaries are also removed it is like removing the thyroid. The woman would no longer have a natural source of female hormones, so replacement hormones might be in order. This would not provide nearly as much female hormone as she would have gotten from that produced by her ovaries plus the birth control pills.

So, it is all very logical and in many instances is good medicine. Medicine that was dangerous before surgery now becomes important to maintain normal function.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 15-year-old girl and would appreciate some information on a matter which has been bothering me. I am afraid to ask anyone else because of embarrassment. Is it true that if you have sex after the first 14 days after your menstruation there is usually no way you can become pregnant?

Some girl friends have told me that this is a fact, at least for them, but I'm just trying to look out for myself. I have regular periods and am hesitant to take the pills. So, you can understand my need for an answer. I'd be ever so grateful.

DEAR READER — You are right to check it out. Your girl friends are using a form of the rhythm method, and it isn't all that reliable. It is just plain Russian roulette if the girl happens to be irregular. A girl is likely to get pregnant if she has sexual relations about 14 days before her next period. In other words, the menstruation is 14 days after ovulation, when the egg is released.

The relationship between ovulation and the next period is fairly fixed, but the interval between two ovulations may be entirely different.

The sperm cells may live for 72 hours, so if a woman has had sexual relations within three days of ovulation, there is a chance that she can get pregnant.

The big problem with the idea that one is safe for 14 days after menstruation is that if the girl ovulates early that time, and there is no guarantee that she won't, she could have sexual relations exactly when she is ovulating.

Young girls tend to be irregular at the beginning of their reproductive years.

Mansenville

Mr. F.A. McMahon was at his round barn near Traver Rd. on July 12 and fixed all cables to the inside rafters. He said he has to start all over again. He is not easily discouraged and intends to have someone look after it during the preparation of his marriage and during his honeymoon.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gardner were their daughter, Mrs. Gladys Boucher of Red Hook, N.Y., Mrs. Clara Peuker of Stanfordsville, N.Y., and their son Mr. Erwin Gardner of Morrisville, Vt. Sunday callers at the same home were Mrs. Ernest Boucher and son, Louis, of Abercorn.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gardner, Haydensville, Mass., spent the weekend with Mrs. Maybelle Cote and visited numerous other relatives and friends in the area.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Aiken, Dunkin, visited Mr. and Mrs. Roy Waldron of Scotstown on the weekend.

Mrs. Evelyn Macey spent a few days in Sawyerville and while there attended the wedding of her daughter, Mrs. Elsie Aulis to Mr. Michael Harbinson on July 6.

Callers at the home of Mrs. Macey and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Aiken were Mrs. Maud Merriam of North Troy, Vt., Mr. Mervin Merriam, Diane and Karen of Damascus, Maryland; also Mrs. Wyn McLane, Alan and Amy, all of Capaum, Mass.

Mrs. Georgette McDonough and daughters, Michele and Bernice, of Thornhill, Toronto, are spending the summer at the Shaggy Dog with her sister and brother-in-law, Eva and Ross Burnett. We wish them a happy vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddy Linton and their two children, William and Hazel, Strathroy, Ont. were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Hazel Jones and son. They stayed with Mrs. Linton's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Cote, for a week and visited others in the surrounding district. The little girl was named after Mrs. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence White and son, John, were Sunday dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bloomfield, South Bolton.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Willard and daughter, Kathie, have spent a 10-day vacation at Old Orchard Beach.

Mrs. Paul Turcotte and her sons, Mrs. George Williams and Dora, both of Frost Village, also Mrs. Vernon Manson of Bolton Center, travelled by car to Shrewsbury, Mass., on the weekend to attend the wedding of Mrs. Turcotte's nephew (her sister Rita's son).

Mrs. Doris McKelvey visited her brother Ernest and his wife in Sherwood Forest, Mass. Accompanying Mrs. McKelvey were Miss Barbara Perkins of Newport, Vt., and Mrs. Annie Bennett. Mrs. Bennett stayed two weeks with the family in Mass., while Doris and Barbara motored through some of the states and on to Regina, Sask., on a two-weeks vacation.

Mr. Geoff Birrell visited his wife and infant daughter in the BMP Hospital. Mr. Birrell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Birrell, arrived from Montreal, the day after the birth, likewise Mrs. Birrell's mother, Mrs. Nigel Roys, arrived from England.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul (Wilfrid) Brulotte returned home from the hospital, both feeling much better. We are glad to hear this of these very nice people.

Allan and Linda Jewett were at Hill Haven for the weekend with the family. Cheryl also came home for the weekend from Montreal.

Mrs. James Wilkins has now returned home from hospital after having had an operation and reports she is doing fine. May good health remain with her.

Twin sons, Ronald and Donald, of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Schoolcraft spent part of their holidays with their parents. Miss Donna Barland from Kitchener where the twins live, accompanied them. She is Ronald's girlfriend. They group also vacationed with the twins' aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carson of Glen Sutton. On Sunday, the Carsons held a back yard barbecue in honor of Don and Ron with some of their friends in the Mansenville area whom they had not seen for a long time.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Dubuc of Newport, Vt., were supper guests of Mrs. Dubuc's mother, Mrs. Bernice Hamelin and Mr. and Mrs. John Schoolcraft of Sherbrooke were dinner guests recently. Recent callers were (another daughter), Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bryan of Lennoxville. Mrs. Pearl Greenham and Mrs. Hamelin spent a day with the Dubucs in Newport.

Miss Debbie Heath, Lachine, spent the weekend with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Kevan Heath and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Bowers of Toronto, spent the weekend with Mrs. Bower's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Clark and family. Many of the area called on the couple while they were here.

Mrs. Eleanor Grayton and Miss Kathy Graham, Montreal, were Saturday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. H.C. McLean, Highwater. Sunday night supper guests were Mr. and Mrs. E.R. Hill of South Burlington, Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Morse, Claremont, N.H., and Mr. and Mrs. Max Morse, North Troy, Vt., spent an evening with the sister of the two men, Mrs. Maybelle Cote. Mr. and Mrs. C. Morse are vacationing at their camp in Jay, Vt.

Mrs. Sydney Jersey and two daughters, Susan and Sandra, spent a week in Asbestos with Mrs. Jersey's mother and sister.

Sister Florence Dodier from Laprairie Les Soeur de Charite, and her father, Mr. Polycarpe Dodier of St. Isadore d'Auckland, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Labranche and family. While here they made separate visits to all the married children of the Labranches.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilles Labranche and three children, Jacqueline, Christian and Karen, visited Mrs. Labranche's father Richard Davis of South Bolton in the Sherbrooke Hospital on Argyle Ave. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Labranche also visited Mr. Davis.

The Misses Pierrette and Fleurette Labranche took a jet to London, Ont. and then a taxi to Tillsonburg, to visit their brother and his wife, Jean-Yves, where they also saw their brother, Roger, who left the previous week with Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Davis who accompanied him.

The Davis' returned home by train a week later. Mr. and Mrs. Joe Labranche (another brother of Jean-Yves) and their children, Joanne, Susy and Andre, went by car and stayed several days with Jean-Yves. Victor, who had planned to go to Vancouver, changed his mind while enroute by car and also ended up at Jean-Yves' home.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Davis, North Stratford, N.H., visited Mrs. Davis' sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Labranche. They stayed with Mrs. Davis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Davis, Bolton Center, a few days and called on Mrs. Davis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Szabla of Montreal who are vacationing at their cottage here, and others in the area.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Church and grandson, Clayton Church of Conn., spent a week at Sunset Valley Campgrounds. While here they called on Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Clare Bedard and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clark. Callers of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Clark were Guy Perkins of Cowansville, and Malcolm MacDonald of Scotstown.

Miss Nancy Cote and Miss Cindy Magoon, both of Waterloo, spent a few days with Nancy's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Thayne Hamilton.

Miss Mary Cote, Nancy Cote's sister and daughter of Philip, is in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Fifth Floor, Sherbrooke, Que. Cards and letters will be most appreciated. We sincerely wish her a quick return to good health.

Mrs. Martha Campbell and daughter, Marcelle, St. Hyacinthe, and her other daughter Mrs. Denise Marchi and son Roger both from St. Jerome, were weekend guests of Mrs. Rita Marcoux and her son. They attended the wedding of Rachel Marcoux and Lawrence Cote.

Mrs. Frances Rioux from Montreal also here to attend the same wedding, was a guest of Mrs. Henrietta Marcoux and family.

Weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gabriel McDuff and family, were Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Leclerc of Drummondville. While here they attended the Cote-Marcoux wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Mario Marcoux of Asbestos spent the weekend with Mr. Marcoux' father Robert Marcoux in Dunkin and attended his sister Rachel's wedding.

Deepest sympathies are extended to Miss Annie MacDonald and her brothers, Norman, Peter and Forest and to other relatives and friends, in the loss of a dear sister, Marion of Massachusetts.

Sincere sympathies are extended to family, relatives and friends in the loss of a beloved mother, Mrs. Ina Westover of Glenbrook which is a well-known vacation spot on the lake. Mrs. Westover will be missed by many.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Aubry and two sons of Irberville, visited Mrs. James Wilkins for a day after bringing her home from the Sherbrooke Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Leader of Greenfield Park, have been staying at their farm in Dunkin. Mr. Leader has been transferred to the St. Hubert Army Base from Borden, Ont. Guests at the same home were his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Leader and family, Hespeler, Ont.

The Private Life

Tickling maniac drives her crazy

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Please settle our first fight. Bud and I have been dating for four months and I really love him. The problem is that lately he has become a tickling maniac. At first I thought it was funny, but now he's driving me crazy.

Last night he actually tied my hands and held me in a chair while his best friend took off my shoes and hose and tickled the bottom of my feet with a feather for what seemed like an eternity.

When they finally untied me I used some language I didn't know was part of my vocabulary. They were shocked — and so was I.

Now Bud is mad at me and says I made a big scene over nothing. I claim that what he did was not normal. He says I'm the one who is loony.

It took me months to get this guy to notice me and ask me out. This first fight is killing me.

What do you make of it? — Still Rattled

DEAR STILL RATTLED: Your "dreamboat" has a streak of sadism an inch thick and a yard wide. To tickle for fun, for a few seconds, is O.K. But to tie a girl's hands and invite a buddy in as part of the act is pretty sick stuff and you'd better recognize it now before the dingbat graduates to whips and chains.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am having an argument with a friend and when I tell you what my question is you will know why I have to write to you. No way could I go to anyone else.

Is it possible for a human being to get pregnant by an animal? All I need is a yes or a no. I will take your word for it. — No Name No City Please

DEAR N.N.C.C.: The answer is NO. And you can take my word for it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a registered nurse who has worked in some of the finest hospitals in town for several years. Due to some personal problems I went to pieces and had to spend a few weeks in a mental institution. The diagnosis was "depression."

Recently I applied to the hospital (in which I was a patient) for a part-time job. I was able to supply excellent references and a very impressive work record. One of the questions on the application form was, "Have you ever received psychiatric treatment for an emotional breakdown?" Of course I answered honestly.

I did not get the job and I later learned that no one even bothered to check with the people whose names I gave as references.

There is no question in my mind as to why I wasn't hired. It was because of my "psychiatric history."

From now on if I ever see that question on an application form again, I will not answer truthfully. What a shame to put such a stigma on one who has had help with an emotional problem. And how dreadful to make liars out of people. Will you comment please? — Smarter Now

DEAR SMARTER: I believe that question should be declared illegal on all job application forms. Actually it does not weed out the unstable or incompetents. It serves no useful purpose whatever.

I consider individuals who have had psychiatric therapy or professional counseling "extra special." It is evidence that the person recognized he had a problem he couldn't handle alone and was willing to do something about it.

Boundary rock-a-thon a success

BOUNDARY — "Rock, Rock, Rock Around the Clock" was the theme song for a most successful rock-a-thon held on Thursday, July 11 in Rock Island under the canopy of the old Canadian Customs building.

Many people in costume rocked the entire 12 hours, from 10 a.m. until 10 p.m. with a five minute break each hour. Someone was always around for snacks and at the supper hour, Nicole Beaulac and Ms. Mitzy Beach barbecued hotdogs donated by Pellerin's Meat Market in Stanstead and rolls from Bouchard's market in Rock Island.

From 5 until 6 p.m., Edouard Girard, mayor of Rock Island; Roland Rodrigue, mayor of Stanstead; Hugo LaPenna, mayor of Beebe; Lorne Ogilvie, President of the Three Villages Swim Project Inc.; and Howie Meeker, Stanstead College Howie Meeker Hockey School, and TV personality with NHL, rocked the hour and collected money.

This project, for the benefit of the Boundary Villages and Derby Swimming and Water Safety school, was a decided success and it is anticipated some $1500 was added to the treasury. After all the money has been collected, a report via the newspapers will be published.

The project was the thought of Nicole Beaulac, one of the swim instructors, and she organized it, giving many hours of her free time to do so. The last half hour of rocking, three cheers were given her in appreciation, also to the head supervisor, Ms. Beach. Music to rock with was supplied by Brunelle Furnitures, Rock Island.

The rockers were well sponsored by individuals, some as much as $5.00 per hour down to 10 all adding up to the total successful sum.

The committee deeply appreciates the cooperation of the people in the areas, the Public Works Dept. and Oscar

Legion L.A.-Branch 242

NORTH HATLEY — The Royal Canadian Legion Ladies Auxiliary, United branch 242, North Hatley - Waterville, held their regular meeting on Monday evening, the night before the Community Hall was destroyed by fire.

The president, Mrs. A. Fortin was in the chair and opened the meeting. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. A. Ditchburn and the treasurer's report given by all Committee Chairmen.

Plans were made for catering for a dinner on August 10.

Plans were finalized for the Welfare Bingo to have been held at the Community Hall on July 12, but since the fire, was held at the Legion Home on the same date.

The president of the Senior branch, Mr. G. Gauthier and Mr. A. Fortin, Sgt.-At-Arms, attended the meeting and asked the Ladies Auxiliary to assist in entertaining the delegates of the Provincial District Council Convention to be held in North Hatley early in October. All members brought in little gifts of cheer for a sunshine basket for Mrs. Ruth McKinnon who recently underwent a serious operation at the Montreal General Hospital and is now recuperating at her home here.

Delightful refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. J. Ditchburn and Mrs. A. Ditchburn.

The hostess gifts were won by Mrs. A. Fortin and Mrs. W. Beland.

The next meeting will be held at the LEGION HOME ON MONDAY, AUGUST 5, members please take note of the change of date and place.

The Community Hall will be greatly missed as this building was in use practically every evening during the winter by local organizations.

81st birthday party held

BIRCHTON — During the first days of the month of June, 1893, two young mothers anxiously awaited the arrival of a child, Mrs. James Riddell, her first-born, and Mrs. George Hurd, her second. Both couples, and interested neighbours too, wondered which home would first welcome the newcomers.

On June 8, Julia Hurd arrived to join her brother, Alonzo, several years her senior; and ten days later, June 18, Rufus added joy to the Riddell household.

The happy homes were but a short distance apart, close neighbours, on the beautiful hills of Maple Leaf, many miles distant from the clamour of the modern-day world and a couple of miles from the busy country village of Randboro, at that time busy with farming, sawmills, stores and lumbering.

Rufus' mother was the late Lilla Leggett, and Julia's was Achsah Hodge. For many years now, Mr. and Mrs. James Riddell and Mr. and Mrs. George Hurd, with many of their relatives and friends, have been peacefully sleeping in the beautifully-kept Maple Leaf Cemetery.

On June 18, 1974, Rufe's nephew, Odell Winslow, took Rufus, their cousin, Victor Masters, and Billy Burgess, who spent many years at the homes of Jim Riddell's families, for a motor trip through familiar countryside on to Colebrook, N.H., to see Mrs. Clarke Swail, whose husband was a Randboro youth at the turn of the century.

When the travellers neared the Sawyerville Elementary School, about 8 p.m., Odell remarked, "I think the Conservative member is holding a political rally here this evening. Would you, Uncle Rufe, like to drop in for a few minutes?"

Unsuspectingly, Uncle replied, "I think I would, and I'd be able to see some more old friends. Let's go in!"

When Uncle Rufe was ushered into the gym, he was dumbfounded to see some two hundred people, young, elderly, and in-betweeners awaiting him there. When he had been boutonniere'd with a white carnation, he was supported by his sister, Mrs. Gertrude Winslow, wearing a corsage of deep pink tiny roses with green sprigs on her floor-length bluish dress.

Many were the "Happy Birthday" greetings amid much merry laughter, conversation and many recountings of laugh-provoking incidents of the more than three score years. There were also twinges of sadness at seeing that many of the faces of former times were missing. But, c'est la vie. It was heart-warming to see the almost same birthday neighbours greeting each other when Julia clasped Rufe's hand as she came into the reception line.

Musical suitable to the tone of the gathering, provided by Mrs. Harris Nugent and her two sons, Dannie and Kim, Glen Coates and Clem Lowry, compelled a goodly number, even some of the over 70's and 80's, to trip the light fantastic toe. Grandmother Gertie Winslow enjoyed dancing with her daughter, Mayotta, with her granddaughter, Truddy Winslow Lassenba, her daughter-in-law, Muriel Nugent Winslow, and with others.

Other closer relatives in the gathering included Odell Winslow, Arlene and Miles; Stanford and Zita with three of their daughters, their husbands and families; Marjorie Winslow Savage and Earl; Norman Winslow and Muriel; Mayotta Winslow Taylor, Grant and Gary; Leamon and Sadie Lowd, Gerald, Catherine and Scott Lowd; Truddy and Brian Lassenba; Rupert and Terry Winslow; Ross Winslow and Janet, and others.

Present among Rufe's golden-age friends of yesteryears to wish him well and swap memories were Julia Hurd Hunt, Blanche Hunt, Mabel Seale Morrison, a schoolmate, George and Mary Loveland, Mamie Matthews, Jim and Millie McBurney, both in the 80's, Pearl Chaddock Flaws, Vic Masters, Mac Blue, Nettie Speck Locke and Harold and Myrtle Thompson Murray. (Readers, fill in any non-intentional omission of names.)

After some time, Art Bennett as master of ceremonies invited Rufe and his sister to join him and the musicians on the platform where they received standing ovations while Art did some recalling of yesteryears, years before Rufe went west in 1952, and of the kindnesses shown the Bennetts at the time of their accident in the Calgary area by the Riddells and the Lowry folk.

A delightful surprise for the guests of honor and for many in the audience was when Tommie Painter, Ernie's son, was asked to come to greet Rufe and Gertie with a handshake and a bow for the audience. It was a problem to recognize the one-time dark-headed mischievous boy in the snow white headed mature man. Rufe graciously thanked the M.C., expressed his pleasure of the happy occasion, and with the assembled folk, extended an expressive clapping of hands of appreciation to the orchestra. Then the musicians played some special for the guest of honour for old time's sake including Midnight on the Prairies, In the Good Old Summer Time, Home on the Range, After the Ball, Till We Meet Again and others which stirred many a heart, and brought tears of nostalgia of former days.

The assembly then went down to the dining room where the guest of honour, with Rev. Gordon Simons, Odell, Victor Masters, Gertie, Ruth Riddell, Stanford and Zita, Winnie and Art Bennett were seated at the special table. The table was attractively decorated with two birthday cakes made by Mayotta and expertly decorated in blue and white by Mrs. Harold Robertson and with blue tapers and red peonies. On the wall and directly behind Rufe, in large letters in blue and silver was inscribed, "Happy Birthday, 81, Uncle Rufe."

After Grace by Rev. Simons, delicious refreshments amid plenty of chatter, were served under the kitchen direction of Norman and Muriel Winslow, Truddy and Arlene and others, assisted by Billy Blair and Billy Lassenba with the tea and coffee pots. The cakes were cut by Rufe, and distributed by Grant Taylor and Rupert Winslow.

Then in a few well-chosen words, the M.C. called on Lloyd French, mayor of Rufe's old home town, to make the presentation of gifts. This Lloyd did in his quiet, unassuming manner, wishing Rufe, on behalf of his many relatives and friends, good luck in the years ahead!

Rufe, deeply moved, voiced his appreciation to all who had helped make the day and evening of his 81st birthday, June 18, 1974, such a memorable occasion, and invited all to visit him and Laura and Jim when in the Calgary area where a warm welcome would always await them.

The friendly goodbye handshakes were a fitting ending to an evening so full of visiting, reminiscing and jollification. Memories are invaluable treasures!

DR LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Quickie diets cause problems

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a 17-year-old girl and have a weight problem. A year ago I weighed less than 100 pounds. Now I weigh 138 pounds. To get under 100 pounds I went on a diet which my parents thought was a sensible diet, lots of protein, no desserts, lots of vegetables and fruits, only the good things for me, I thought. Three months later I was slim, but had developed a foot drop. To make a long story short, I was in and out of doctor's offices and hospitals several times before they decided it was caused by a sudden weight loss.

After that I started eating normally, plus started taking vitamins to correct the foot drop. I also got a job after school. Right now my foot drop has been corrected, but I am overweight. My grandparents seem to think that my job has something to do with this problem. The place where I work is a quick food take-out establishment and 75 per cent of the food prepared is fried. My grandparents claim that being around all that cooking oil has caused it to penetrate my body, causing me to be overweight. I am trying to diet again and cut down on my eating, but have had no success. Your help will be greatly appreciated.

DEAR READER—No, you won't get fat from cooking oil penetrating the body. The only way calories penetrate the body is by way of the mouth on their way to the stomach. You can't inhale calories either.

If your foot drop was because of weight loss, it must have been associated with lack of thiamine (vitamin B₁) or from pressure on nerves to the leg in some mechanical way. The latter seems unlikely. Thiamine does help in such problems. A number of overly restricted diets are deficient in thiamine. A young, active girl, often still growing and developing, should never be on a diet that causes her more than a steady weight loss of two pounds a week — and a loss of only one pound a week is much better. It's slow but safe and trains you how to eat so it doesn't come back.

Try again, but be sure you are still getting enough calories to lose weight only gradually and that your diet contains enough vitamins and minerals. For more information on losing weight, write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019, and ask for the booklet on losing weight. Send 50 cents to cover costs.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I have read that certain vitamins can make your hair return to its original color. Can you tell me what this vitamin is and how much to take to obtain the desired result, or even some improvement in the color? I have also seen a doctor on T.V. who said that his brown hair was a result of his taking vitamins, otherwise, it would have been white.

DEAR READER—This idea is completely without scientific foundation. There is nothing in any vitamin that will return your hair to its natural color. About the only way the man on T.V. could have brown hair because of taking vitamins would be if he was wearing a wig after having lost all of his hair from taking toxic doses of vitamin A.

Dr. Lamb welcomes questions from his readers, but because of the volume of mail he cannot answer personally. Questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns. Write to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Loves her but can't stand him

YOU will be uncomfortable sharing a double bed with him in your daughter's presence.

As a compromise, get a twin-bedded room and ask them to move in a cot. You can occupy the twin bed next to your husband and Edna can sleep on the cot.

Dear Ann Landers: May I say something to "Phone Weary," the person who was furious because she was pestered by telephone solicitors?

I wonder how many people realize that a large percentage of phone solicitors are physically handicapped, or old folks struggling on a pension, or young mothers with small children who can't get out of the house? They are just trying to make an honest living.

I'm a widow with two young children. I receive a small check from the government, but with the cost of living so high I must supplement my income by doing this sort of work. It's not pleasant to listen to the abusive language we get when we annoy someone. Phone soliciting isn't fun. We do it because we MUST. Thanks for a chance to speak out. — Another Blistered Ear Lobe

Dear Lobe: Happy to oblige. It's like the old story about the two men seated across from one another and there's a number written on the middle of the table. "It's a six," insists one observer. "You're crazy," yells the other. "It's a nine." It all depends on where you're sitting.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60664.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Be more conscious of your appearance than usual as you may be judged when least aware of it.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You can make astonishing gains under current planetary rays if you avoid scattering your forces.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Be tactful, but try to find out what is going on behind closed doors. Some surprises probable.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Accelerate the tempo or you could get lost in the shuffle today. The pace is fast and furious.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Try to avoid a confrontation if you can, especially if you aren't prepared with answers yet.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): Listen carefully to what sounds mysterious. Someone may in reality be trying to tell you something.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Finish pending projects rather than initiate new ones. This pertains to both personal and business matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Plow through the confusion with sound thinking. Scorpio intuition is under fine influences now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Be up and doing early. The lie-abeds are the losers as the action starts in the morning hours today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): If the joke is on you, be a good sport and laugh about it. Don't waste time trying to get revenge.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Don't take the blame for mistakes made by associates. Don't volunteer information but answer questions.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Join forces with those who have a stake in the common project. Listen to all viewpoints expressed.

Engagement

Mrs. Ardye McCoy of Danville, Que., announces the engagement of her older daughter, Diane Julia, of Verdun, Que., to Mr. Robert James Bate, son of Mrs. Mary Bate of Verdun. The marriage is to take place on Saturday, August 10 at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. McCoy, Danville.

50th anniversary

RICHMOND HILL — Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Healy of Richmond Hill celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary on June 15, 1974.

Mass was celebrated at Holy Family Church at 2 p.m., officiated by Rev. Monsignor J.R. Moisan of Sherbrooke, at the request of Mr. and Mrs. Healy.

The couple of the Golden Years were escorted to the Altar by Mrs. Healy's brother Mr. H.J. Mulvena and Mrs. Mulvena of Winnipeg, Man.

Leslie Healy and Florence Mulvena were married on June 18, 1924, at St. Bibiane's Church, Richmond, by Rev. Father Pierre Labrecque, now deceased.

All the assembled guests proceeded to the Legion Hall, Richmond, where congratulations and good wishes were extended to the celebrants by relatives and friends. Many cards containing gifts of money as well as other gifts and flowers were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Healy. After all were seated, Rev. Father Edmund Doran, assistant priest at Holy Family Church, asked the Blessing.

A buffet luncheon was served to nearly 100 guests by the Melbourne Ridge W.I.

The head table was graced by a four tiered anniversary cake with gold candles in crystal holders on each side and banked by a beautiful basket of flowers, also a gift.

Seated at the head table with Mr. and Mrs. Healy were Rev. Father Doran, Mr. and Mrs. H.J. Mulvena, Mr. Gerald Skerry, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Evans, niece and nephew of Mr. Healy, Mrs. John Bowman and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Redburn.

A toast was given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Healy, Mr. Healy, in a few words, thanked everyone for coming to help him and Mrs. Healy celebrate their anniversary and also asked Mr. Jacques Lepage to address all their friends of the French language, which was done very nicely.

Relatives and friends were present from Unnipeg, Man., Allendale, N.J., Montreal, Longueuil, Asbestos, Danville, South Durha and Kingsbury, as well as from Richmond and surrounding district.

Mr. and Mrs. Healy received a framed plaque of congratulations from Prime Minister Pierre E. Trudeau, as well as a telegram from Governor General Jules Leger, as well as long distance phone calls from relatives in Saskatchewan.

UCW meeting

CLEVELAND — The New London U.C.W. held their July meeting in the United Church basement.

A quilting was held with seven members and one visitor present.

Mrs. Royce Taylor placed flowers in the church on July 14. A pot-luck dinner was served at noon and tea later in the afternoon by the hostess, Mrs. M. Husk.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. John Hawker.

In the early days of contract any world ranking would put Ted Lightner (inventor of the Lightner slam convention) among the five or six best players in the world. Today, age has moved him out of that select class but among players over 80 he is surely entitled to the number one ranking.

Sitting East at New York's Regency Club, he played his ace of clubs at trick one and noted the fall of South's queen.

He asked himself the key question: "How can I beat this hand?" Then he led his king of trumps!

Let's look at his analysis. Obviously, South had several hearts. Four looked like the most probable number and Ted decided to play him for that. South would have to do something about any little hearts. If trumps weren't led South would be able to ruff two of them. A trump lead would stop one ruff.

Would the king of trumps play cost Ted a trump trick? Only if South didn't bother to ruff a heart. In that case all South's small hearts would be losers. If South ruffed a heart he would have to do it with the queen of trumps and Ted's lost trump trick would come back.

Without a trump lead, South would simply ruff two hearts, discard the last one on the king of clubs and make the game. After the king of trumps lead, South had lots of options but they all added up to down one.

David Carradine finds fame, drops fortune

By Dick Kleiner

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — The goal for most actors is a hit TV series. Some are honest enough to admit this truth. That's the dream because it represents what seems to be an actor's dream — a chance at great gobs of fame and fortune.

David Carradine has that hit series. ABC's Kung Fu. The only problem is that he is now, he says, deep in debt — "about $100,000 worth."

This is surprising because Carradine is far from being a spendthrift. His life style is hardly extravagant (he and Barbara Seagull (nee Hershey) live with extraordinary simplicity and luxury is a word that doesn't enter their vocabulary).

What has pushed David Carradine over the financial edge is his desire to be a movie-maker. Virtually alone, he has made three movies, and he has financed them himself.

The first, just about to be released, is "You and Me," the story of a bike-gang member and a small boy befriends. It has its flaws but is certainly an interesting piece of film. Carradine did everything in it, even to writing and performing the music.

Two other films will follow. "A Country Mile" has been cut, he says, but still needs work and then will come "Around," which he says is presently being edited. All three are being distributed by a young team of film men calling themselves Film-Makers International.

DAVID CARRADINE not only stars in, but directed and composed the music for "You and Me," his first independent film.

"Making those movies," he says, "has pushed me deep into debt. But it was something I had to do."

He says he found that he prefers acting.

"I get more gratification out of acting than directing or making movies," he says. "I hope some day to play a monolithic role. Something really heroic."

Carradine is one star who isn't into the star trip at all. The fact that he's the idol of millions is of absolutely no interest to him.

Take fan mail. Most actors revel in it, answer it, some even weigh it to see if it gains or loses from week to week. Not Carradine. He sticks the letters in his office bathroom and they provide reading material for the men who work with him on his films.

"My job is only to act," he says. "If I can reach people by my acting that's all I'm supposed to do."

Music is important to him. He's done the songs for all three of his movies. He says he studied piano when he was six "like all little boys." And he sang and once, when he was appearing on Broadway, he was booked on The Ed Sullivan Show. That was in 1966. But he never made it.

"I began listening to myself," he says. "I realized I sounded like Jack Jones and he bored me. I cancelled out of the Sullivan show. I learned the guitar and got somebody to coach me in rock. I've been doing it ever since."

If you see "You and Me," you'll also hear David Carradine, the singer.

Salty Talk
Salt has been valued since ancient times; the word salt, meaning "pertaining to salt", is derived from the fact that soldiers of the Roman Empire were paid either with lumps of salt or an allowance to buy salt, giving us the expression that people "are not worth their salt".

Picture This Alexander G. Bell envisioned a "phonograph", a device which would translate sound waves into a meaningful pattern of curves on a smoked glass. This device of a "picture phone" is now being realized, some 70 years later, in larger cities.

Edna M. Corey
Mrs. Edwin Bellingham was the hostess recently at a Tupperware party with Miss Gail Nichols of Cowansville as the demonstrator.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bellingham and Laura spent a week in their trailer at Ste.
Scholastique.

Mrs. Donald Stollaker and Mrs.
Frank Corey entertained at afternoon tea in honor of the 80th birthday of Miss Winnie Douglas.

Rev. Mark Hull and Mr.
Douglas Hull of Burlington, Vt. were guests of Miss Winnie Douglas and Mrs. H. Douglas.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Reil have motored to Vancouver, B.C. to visit their daughter Mrs. Robert Allan and Mr. Allan.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm
MacLeod of East Sandwich,
Mass., spent a few days at the Frank Corey home. Other recent guests were Mr. and Mrs.
Gordon Milford and three children of Fabreville and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lodge and son Lawrence of Montreal.

WI meetings

DENISON MILLS — The July meeting of the W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Harold Beard on July 5, when six members answered the roll call — the pros and cons of Women's Lib, and the responses were all different.
While some women must work to support families, they should have equal pay for equal work.
But it was felt that women had lost much respect in being too aggressive and a gentle lady is still respected by all.

The Sunshine collection amounted to $1.32 and Mrs. A.
Stevens was the winner of the mystery prize.

Some ditty bags have been made and it was decided that all members bring in two to the August meeting and a contest to be held on the best decorated one.

The top for a baby quilt has been completed and sold to Mrs.
C. Brock.

Several members are working on applique quilt blocks; these are to be brought into the August meeting.

Mrs. Mary Patrick reported on the card party held and that a goodly sum was realized after all bills were paid.

Mrs. Patrick, welfare and health convener, spoke of receiving reports that some druggists do not date prescriptions; also some doctors charge for examinations, no one knew the answer at this time.

Mrs. Arthur Stevens led a very interesting discussion on plant diseases and what to use to have healthy house plants. The conclusion was that now we have at least two bugs instead of one for each different plant.

An auction sale of wrapped articles was held at the close of the meeting and nearly seven dollars added to the funds.

A very delicious salad supper with all members acting as hostesses was served with Mrs.
John Beard as a guest.

Mrs. Harold Beard and daughter Linda served the guests and several gentlemen joined at the supper hour.

Mrs. A. Boreham will have the August meeting, date to be decided later.

FORDYCE — Mrs. Evelyn
Vaughan and Mrs. Irene Williams entertained the July meeting of the Fordyce W.I. at the home of the former in West Brome.

There were seventeen members and four visitors present including a friend of Mrs. Vaughan, Mrs. Sylvia
Courtright of British Columbia.

The roll call was, "What would you recommend as a good public relations gesture?" Most answers gave the opinion that members should show in their lives that they are more helpful, happier and better citizens for being WI members.

Pennies for Friendship were collected and one birthday contribution made.

There was some discussion on the August meeting which will be a trip to Sherbrooke.

A drawing was won by Mrs.
Syberg.

The convener reports were most interesting.

Agriculture: Mrs. Cedric
Dougall, Market for W.I. Rose.

Citizenship: Mrs. Marjorie Jenne, Queen Mother in Canada.

Welfare and Health: Mrs.
Borden Ingalls, Laughter Helps Keep You Well.

Mrs. Olive Rubens was the special guest and in her very charming manner told of her pleasant associations with the Women's Institute. She read and recited several of her own poems from her publications Moments to Remember and More Moments to Remember. A few of the selections were, comparisons, Museum, and The Bridge of Friendship.

Mrs. Irene Williams ably thanked Mrs. Rubens.

As Mrs. Evelyn Vaughan is leaving soon to make her home in Malawi, Africa, a suitable token of remembrance from the branch was presented to her by Mrs. Merlin Lewis.

The hostesses served delicious refreshments.

MELBOURNE — The regular monthly meeting of the Richmond Young Women's Institute was held on July 2nd at the summer home of Mrs. Ruth Sullivan in Denison Mills. The president, Mrs. Marion Jameson welcomed three guests and the members opened the meeting by repeating the Mary Stewart Collect. Twelve members answered the roll call by naming "Ways to Protect Your Health".

A letter was read by the Citizenship Convener, Mrs.
Marjorie Abercrombie from Canada Save the Children Fund, thanking the W.I. for the Handi Bags.

Plans were finalized for the Abercrombie-Gifford wedding to be catered to on July 6.

Mrs. Lyla Beattie is to attend the Richmond Fair as the Richmond Young Women's Institute representative.

The members purchased their Q.W.I. pens and orders were taken for the West Island Cook Book.

As there was no further business the president Mrs.
Jameson adjourned the meeting.

Mrs. Joan Brock, Welfare and Health Convener then held a contest of scrambled words on diseases, which was won by Mrs.
Marjorie Lancaster.

Lunch was served by Mrs.
Sullivan assisted by Mrs.
Bernice Wilkins.
