Labor violence breaks out in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Police are holding about 50 persons today following labor violence Monday night at the strikebound United Aircraft of Canada Ltd. plant in suburban Longueuil.

About 130 riot squad police burst into the No. 2 plant at 2:30 a.m. EDT today after 50 demonstrating workers occupied the plant for four hours with 10 hostages and demanded an immediate settlement to the 16-month United strike.

Police would not say how many persons were injured or arrested, or the extent of the damage, but the hostages, including two women, were reported released without injury. Six police vehicles were overturned, some burned, and 13 cars in the company's parking lot had windows smashed.

During the occupation the occupiers refused entry to an executive member of the demonstrators' union, United Auto Workers, saying they demanded "the conflict be settled now... or we'll bust everything, everything."

One of the hostages, Jose Ledoux, a local radio station reporter, said there was "a brutal carnage" as police stormed the building.

Several hundred workers poured out of the meeting hall and marched to the nearby United plant and began pelting the plant's police guard with stones and attacking with lead pipes.

Provincial and municipal riot-squad police used tear gas and nightsticks to restore order, but during the fray, some 50 demonstrators gained entrance to the plant.

cupied the plant Jan. 4, 1974, to protest lack of progress in contract talks.

ALL LEVELS INVOLVED
All levels of government have been involved in the dispute.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau hinted that the federal government would take over the troubled company but later backed down on the proposition.

The strike has become a nightmare for Jean Cournoyer, Quebec minister of labor, who has frequently tried to intervene personally or through his department to arrange resumption of negotiations.

Even if the strike were to be settled quickly, some workers wishing to return to work may not have a job waiting for them.

At the beginning of this year, United Aircraft's three aircraft engine assembly plants in Longueuil, across the St. Lawrence River from Montreal, were operating with a staff of about 4,800, only 200 less than when the union went on strike.

About one half of the original 2,400 strikers already have trickled back to the job, while an estimated 1,000 workers are still on strike.

DONOR RECEIVES AWARD — Arthur Moore received a certificate yesterday afternoon from Sherbrooke Mayor Jacques O'Bready to honor him for giving blood for the 39th time. Shown above are Dr. Jacques Crepeau, president of the blood donor clinic, Mayor O'Bready, Mr. Moore and Lucien Blanchard, executive president of Sherbrooke branch of the Red Cross. The objective for the four day clinic is 2,000 donors. The hours of operation are 1:30 - 9:00 p.m. at the Belvedere St. Armory from May 12-15. Today is the City of Sherbrooke Day at the clinic.

Labor clean-up may hit other industries

MONTREAL (CP) — Proposed legislation aimed at cleaning up the Quebec construction industry could be extended to cover other industries, Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer said Monday.

At the urging of the Cliche commission, the Quebec government introduced a bill last Friday barring persons convicted of a violent crime from holding union office for five years after conviction.

Mr. Cournoyer said the bill and a second one, aimed at placing four unions under trusteeship, would receive second reading in the legislature today.

"It's to be expected" the law will be extended to cover workers and employers in fields other than construction, he added after meeting with officials of the Quebec Federation of Labor to discuss recommendations in the 603-page Cliche inquiry report, released last week.

Introduction of the legislation has sparked walkouts by about 5,000 construction workers in Quebec.

PEOPLE WRITHING

"There are people here writhing in pain, people with broken skulls just piled into corners and left there," he said over radio from the plant.

"The men said they were ready to surrender when police broke in. The riot squad just rushed in and started beating people blindly."

The violence started about 8 p.m. EDT Monday following a Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL) meeting to protest recommendations of the Cliche Commission report, aimed at bringing peace to the troubled construction industry.

BITTER STRIKE

The strike at United Aircraft, now officially named Pratt and Whitney Aircraft of Canada Ltd., has been one of the most bitter labor conflicts in Quebec history, characterized by violence and sporadic attempts at settlement that usually ended in chaos and frustration.

Of the many issues first presented to the company by 2,400 members of the United Auto Workers, Local 510, only a cost-of-living clause remains to be settled.

The union wants no ceiling placed on wage increases that would follow upturns in the cost-of-living while the company wishes to set a maximum.

The strike started after 1,500 day shift workers oc-

Longshoremen to return to work

MONTREAL (CP) — About 2,200 longshoremen decided Monday to return to work at three St. Lawrence River ports in the wake of a Quebec Superior Court ruling upholding federal legislation ordering back on the job.

About 5,000 construction workers, however, continued a work stoppage at major building sites in the Montreal area, including the east-end 1976 Olympic Games projects, to protest proposed provincial government legislation that would place four Montreal union locals under trusteeship.

And although all post office workers were on the job in the city following a weekend union meeting, 15 post offices in other parts of the province were closed when wicket keepers, members of the Canadian

Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), reported sick.

Fernand Boudreau, a member of the executive committee of the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA), said dock workers in Montreal, Trois-Rivieres and Quebec City who have been off the job since April 1 had agreed to return to work today.

SOME ADAMANT
In Quebec City, however, a union spokesman said about half of the 400 union members who attended a meeting Monday were reluctant to end the work stoppage.

Some members of the ILA's checkers' local here were back on the job late Monday.

ILA lawyer Phil Cutler said the union would appeal the ruling handed down Saturday by Chief Justice Jules Deschenes.

The longshoremen have accepted a conciliator's report recommending an increase in basic hourly wages to $8 from $5.10 over a three-year period, but are demanding they be guaranteed 2,080 working hours a year.

The report proposes work guarantees of 1,600 hours in Montreal, 1,400 hours in Quebec City and 1,200 in Trois-Rivieres.

Simon St. Pierre, executive vice-president of the Olympic organizing committee, said Monday the walkouts by Montreal construction workers, which have idled the east-end Olympic site, was critical although he did not know how many days' grace were available in the building schedule to make up for delays.

Unemployment unchanged

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment continued last month at its highest rate for the last 14 years, Statistics Canada reported today.

The national unemployment rate was unchanged in April from the 7.2 per cent recorded in March. It is the highest jobless rate since June, 1961.

A total of 795,000 were without jobs in April, down from the 840,000 jobless a month earlier.

On a regional basis, the Atlantic provinces experienced some improvement in their jobless rates. However, the rate moved higher in some of the Prairie provinces. It was little changed in Ontario and Quebec.

The Newfoundland jobless rate eased to 17.5 per cent from 18.8 per cent in March, leaving it still the province with by far the highest jobless rate. In New Brunswick, the rate went to 11.3 per cent from 12.2 per cent in March, but in Nova Scotia unemployment gained moderately to 8.3 per cent in April from eight per cent a month earlier.

Choice: more chemical food or starving in a clean world

OTTAWA (CP) — A seminar on the health effects of chemicals in foods was told Monday that modern man is at a crossroads.

"We can have more food through the use of various pesticides, and other chemicals, or more starvation in a clean and pure external environment."

Harding le Riche, a professor of epidemiology at the University of Toronto, made the comment and said this is a chemical age, and man must learn to make the best use of "these remarkable substances we have made."

Another speaker, Dr. John Higginson, director of the International Agency for Research on Cancer, agreed, but said the chemicals must be carefully screened for side effects.

Dr. George Borgstrom, a professor at Michigan State University, said that growing population and urbanization are putting heavy pressure on available food processing and marketing systems.

Waste and spoilage, accounting for between one-third and one half the food harvested, must be reduced. More beans and peas should be grown because they provide a cheaper protein supplement than cereals.

Dr. Le Riche said he feels more research money should be spent on the study of how unwanted chemicals affect people and food.

"They get very excited about minor matters like cyclamates, but tend to be very silent about radon in uranium mines, fluoride in fertilizer plants, lead in Toronto and asbestos in various places," he said.

Provinces want more say in communications

OTTAWA (CP) — A federal-provincial conference of communications ministers opens today in Ottawa, with Quebec leading the provinces in claiming wider jurisdiction in communications.

Federal Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier told reporters Monday he hopes participants will at least manage to agree on "objectives that are neither federal nor provincial, but rather Canadian."

Provincial ministers met Monday at Lake Beauport, in Gatineau, Quebec, across the Ottawa River from Ottawa.

The agenda provides for discussions of provincial and federal proposals, including Mr. Pelletier's offer of a committee of federal and provincial officials to provide better consultation between the two levels of government.

Quebec regards the conference as of primary importance, perhaps even involving the political future of the province's communications minister, Jean-Paul L'Allier.

Because communications in the modern sense did not exist when the British North America Act was drawn up, the field is considered a grey area constitutionally.

Ottawa traditionally has administered most communications matters through the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) and the department of transport, which directs federally-chartered organizations like Bell Canada and CN-CP Telecommunications.

Refugees flee to Brazil

RIODE JANEIRO (AP) — Thousands of Portuguese refugees, fleeing political and economic change at home, are streaming into Brazil to crowd into relatives' homes or hotels.

They are not being subsidized by the government. And although there have been no demonstrations, public clamor is mounting for Brazil to create special centres and stop "ignoring the problem."

Statistics on Portuguese immigration since the Lisbon dictatorship was ousted by an armed forces coup in April, 1974, are difficult to obtain. The Brazilian foreign ministry reports only a 20-per-cent jump in the yearly official immigration from Portugal of 2,000. Portuguese sources challenge the figures. Members of the numerous Portuguese clubs and associations say a conservative estimate on the new arrivals during the last year would be 40,000, many of whom did not register.

Antonio Champalimaud, who owned cement and steel works in Portugal, is expanding his cement business in the State of Minas Gerais. Bankers Pinto Magalhaes, Queiroz Pereira and Home de Melo are shopping around for investments.

US seeks release of seized merchant ship

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is working through third countries to obtain the release of a U.S. merchant ship seized by the Cambodians.

If diplomatic fails, President Ford's stern diplomatic language suggests military options remain open for recovering the vessel.

A White House spokesman said today U.S. military planes were keeping the captive ship under observation. Pilots reported that the ship had been taken under escort by two Cambodian naval vessels to the island Koh Tang, 30 miles off the Cambodian coast.

Some administration sources said the decision whether to use military force to rescue the Mayaguez and its 39 crew members will be complicated by this question:

Can the U.S. afford the appearance of weakness in Southeast Asia following the collapse of American-backed governments in Cambodia and South Vietnam?

White House lawyer Philip Buchen said neither of two laws restricting presidential use of military force would prevent Ford from calling on U.S. armed forces in this instance.

Warships from the U.S. 7th Fleet were reported to be moving toward the Gulf of Thailand where the unarmed Mayaguez was fired upon and seized by a Cambodian gunboat Monday.

LACKS DIRECT TIES
But administration sources said Ford hopes to recover the ship through diplomatic channels, apparently using China and other countries as intermediaries. The U.S. has no direct ties with Cambodia's new Khmer Rouge government.

Both Ford and State Secretary Henry Kissinger called the ship's capture "an act of piracy."

Ford said through a spokesman Cambodia's failure to release the ship "would have the most serious consequences," a phrase used only in grave situations carrying the possibility of military action.

Reporters travelling with Kissinger to St. Louis learned the U.S. has told Cambodia it will not allow extended detention of the ship.

There was no clear pattern of congressional opinion on how to deal with the seizure of the ship.

Chairman John Sparkman of the Senate foreign relations committee said, "We ought to go after it," and Senator James Buckley (Con.-Rep. N.Y.) urged "immediate punitive air and naval attacks on appropriate targets in Cambodia."

Quebec in focus

Jail sentences

MONTREAL (CP) — A Court of Appeal judgment Monday enabled execution of jail sentences imposed on three men by Quebec police commission's organized crime inquiry.

"Jimmy" Soccio, 69, Gerard Fontaine, 32, and Nicola Dilorio, 53, had been described at the inquiry as underworld figures.

Fares trimmed

MONTREAL (CP) — At Transport Minister Jean Marchand's request, Air Canada has trimmed proposed fare increases submitted to the Canadian transport commission for approval April 18.

The airline said in a statement it reduced some of the increases planned for short-haul domestic flights, although "the initial request would have established a fair and reasonable rate structure nationwide."

Fare for the Montreal-Ottawa route, for example, would be $23, down from the original $28 request. The fare now is $18. Victoria-Vancouver fare would be $21, down from $24. Current fare for that route is $16.

Reunification

MONTREAL (CP) — The reunification of Vietnam is the deepest aspiration of both the north and south sectors, Duong Thi Thoa, one of four Vietnamese delegates to an Asian studies conference, said Monday.

Reunification work would include a process of building roads, transportation networks, villages, cities, schools and hospitals, she said.

"In the last few years, North Vietnam received seven million tons of bombs," she said. "Our task—the women's task—is to fill up the 60-foot wide craters with dirt and start rebuilding on them."

Fed information

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. Justice Willard Estey declined Monday to launch an investigation into reports that opposition members of Parliament were secretly being fed airline information to use at an inquiry into Air Canada's financial affairs.

Douglas Henderson, representing the airline at the inquiry, said he strongly objected to a story last Friday by the Toronto Globe and Mail alleging one of the airline's 18 vice-presidents is among those feeding information to Progressive Conservative MPs.

"I can think of nothing so shattering to morale as a story such as that during the course of an inquiry," said Mr. Henderson. "It borders on the irresponsible."

MONTREAL (CP) — Volume was light at the close of trading Monday on the Montreal Stock Exchange, as prices edged ahead in most sectors.

Closing volume was 506,700 shares compared with 618,500 Friday.

Oils were lower, with Husky Oil off 1 to $19, Pan Ocean Oil 1/2 to $12 1/2 and PanCanadian 1/2 to $13 1/4, while Aquitaine was up 1/2 to $22 1/4 and Pacific Petroleum 1/2 to $24 1/4. Imperial Oil A was unchanged at $29 1/4.

Among speculative issues Belleterre Quebec Mines was up two cents to 75 cents on a volume of 25,150 shares traded.

JARVIS, Ont. (CP) — A question Ronald J. (Ron) Tipler sometimes asks himself is why so many Canadians don't seem to know about the major industrial developments taking place in the Lake Erie area of Haldimand-Norfolk.

"I guess I get the feeling everybody out there knows about us because I take so many people through our site every day," he said.

He mused over his date book for April showing almost daily assignments to handle group tours, ranging from school and church groups to engineers and politicians from around the world. They all want to see the biggest development of them all, the four-phase steel plant and industrial park project of Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Stelco).

Mr. Tipler is Stelco's community relations supervisor which means he works with local people, keeping them informed on what the company is doing and smoothing the way for the day when hordes of workers move in to take the jobs.

If all goes well, the influx will be completed in about 15 years, adding a quarter of a million new residents to the area and two new cities to house them.

ANOTHER RUHR?

So, why all the apparent ignorance about a development that will create a population of 1.5 million people and change pastoral Haldimand-Norfolk into another Ruhr or Pittsburgh?

Certainly, the townsfolk of Jarvis, Simcoe, Caledonia and Nanticoke, to mention only a few centres, are aware of it. They see it in the trucks that seem never to stop moving—3,000 truckloads of supplies a month delivered to construction sites.

They read and hear about land speculation—$2,100 an acre—and see surveyors and engineers pour in.

Stelco had to pay a reported $60,000 for one plain cottage in the way of dock construction when the owner held out for a high price.

How big is the Stelco development?

In terms of the world, not too big, said Alex Fisher, a Stelco vice-president.

By late next year, the new BIG FOR CANADA mill will be pouring 1.3 million tons a year, not in the same league as the Japanese who think in terms of five to six million tons in a single phase. Bethlehem Steel, in the United States, has a capacity of eight to 10 million.

However, the Lake Erie project is the largest ever undertaken by any steel maker in Canada. It will cost Stelco $700 million in the first of four phases and $2 billion on completion.

As now planned, when the four phases are finished in 1986, the Lake Erie mill will be producing 5.4 million tons a year.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market closed slightly higher Monday after profit-taking eroded much of an earlier gain. Trading was light.

The widely-based industrial index was up 27 to 186.17 after showing a gain of .78 at its high for the day. The index Friday gained more than a point with buying spurred by renewed hopes for an economic recovery, analysts said.

The western oil index, which gained more than 21 points in the last eight sessions, closed at 188.33, off 1.14 points from Friday's close, highest since July 26.

The gold index rose 2.15 to 384.65 and base metals .17 to Trading was light with 1.62 million shares changing hands for a value of $16.78 million, down from 2.06 million and $19.68 million Friday.

Ten industrial sub-groups gained and six declined. Chemical and communication indexes led the advance while trust and loan and pipeline indexes had the largest declines.

Bow Valley was traded actively and closed at $15 1/4, down 1/4. Bow Valley said that its board has approved an offering of one million common shares, principally in Canada but also in the United States.

Consumers Distributing was down 20 cents to $4.25. The company announced lower 1974 earnings and also said that May Department Stores of St. Louis has agreed to buy Consumers' 50-per-cent interest in Consumers Distributing Co. U.S., a partnership of the two companies established in 1973.

Melton Real Estate, which reported a drop in first-quarter earnings, said it will increase its semi-annual dividend to 10 cents from seven cents and declare an extra five cents with the June 30 payment. Melton was up 30 cents to $3, a high for the year.

Among the largest price changes, Northern Electric rose 1 1/4 to $25 1/4, Vulcan Industrial Packaging 1 to $8 3/4, Laurentide Financial 3/4 to $7 3/4, McIntyre Mines 1 to $51 1/2, Hudson Bay Mining 1/2 to $19 1/4 and Western Decalita Pete 3/4 to $5 1/4.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market absorbed the news of the Cambodian seizure of a U.S. merchant vessel with few visible shock effects Monday, finishing mixed in fairly active trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up about a point at mid-afternoon when the report of the incident in the Gulf of Thailand reached Wall Street, wound up with a mild 2.66 loss at 847.47.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock index advanced .08 to 90.61, and the New York Stock Exchange composite of more than 1,500 common issues was up .03 at 48.01.

NYSE volume came to 22.41 million shares, down from the heavy 28.44 million total recorded on Friday.

The market, evidently battling an undercurrent of profit-taking, made little progress during the morning.

After the lunch hour, the Dow began a gradual advance that brought it from a loss of about two points to a plus-one reading before the White House announced that a Cambodian naval vessel had fired on and seized the U.S. merchant ship Mayaguez, which it described as an unarmed container ship.

The budding advance ended at that point, but no heavy selling pressure developed and the market settled back into a drifting pattern.

Under other circumstances—without the evident optimism over the economic future that has been underlying the market for several months—the general view on Wall Street was that there might have been a substantial selloff.

One supporting factor was Friday's report of a big drop in business inventories in March. Commonwealth Edison, the day's most active issue, slipped 3/4 to $24 1/4. A block of 563,000 shares of the northern and central Illinois utility's stock traded near the close at $24 1/4.

Occidental Petroleum, also active, added 1/2 to $16 1/2 after a 1 1/2-point gain Friday. Late Monday morning, the company announced it had found a new natural gas field in California's Sacramento Valley.

Lockheed gained 1 1/4 to $87 1/4. On Friday, the company reported earnings gains for last year and the first quarter of this year and reported on a revised debt agreement with its 24 leading banks.

The American Stock Exchange's market-value index was up .04 to 87.43. In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite index lost .52 to 83.20.

Among Canadian issues on the NYSE, Campbell Red

Lake was up 1/4 to $28 3/4. Hiram Walker was down 1 to $29 3/4, Canadian Pacific 3/4 to $14 3/4 and Alcan 1/4 to $22 1/4.

Unchanged were Dome Mines at $47 1/4, Inco at $27 1/4, Massey-Ferguson at $16 1/4, McIntyre at $50 and Seagram at $28.

Dollar Close

MONTREAL (CP) — U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds closed Monday up 1/2 to $1.0350. Pound sterling was up 1 1/5 at $2.3795.

In New York, the Canadian dollar closed down 47-100 at $0.9662. Pound sterling was up 1-20 at $2.2990.

BELL EARNINGS DOWN
MONTREAL (CP) — Bell Canada Wednesday said its consolidated net earnings for the first quarter of 1975 declined to $45.7 million or $1.21 a share from $52.1 million or $1.41 a share for the corresponding period a year ago. The lack of growth in earnings reflects higher wage costs, rising expenses and higher taxation, said Robert Scrivener, Bell Canada chairman.

MINE OUTPUT DROPS
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Productivity in United States coal mines has dropped 38 per cent since 1969, largely because of stiff federal safety rules, a coal industry official said Wednesday. John Stratton, executive vice-president of operations of Gates Engineering Co. in Beckley, W.Va., among 1,100 delegates to the American Mining Congress' four-day convention, made his comments in an interview.

Federal closes doors as warning issued

MAGOG — Close to 2,000 workers in the province, but more particularly in the Magog region, will be without work for the next two weeks following a decision by Federal Packing Inc. to close their doors for that period.

The decision by the meat processing and distributing company, which is of great importance in the Eastern Townships, is the consequence of numerous seizures of damaged meat which originated from the company's producing plant in the last week.

Those searches, conducted by the Quebec Police Force's Estrie detachment directed from Montreal, produced such a sizable quantity of damaged meat that Health Minister Marc Lalonde called for an order recalling all the products made by Federal Packing. In all of Quebec, some 55 searches were conducted and approximately 100 tons of meat confiscated.

In confirming the news of the closing, a member of the company's direction said that in the course of the near future important decisions will be made and that light will be shed on the events that took place during past week.

The source also underlined that the publicity was untrue and that it is important that the facts be brought back into realistic dimensions.

Other than the 580 employees affected directly in Magog, hundreds of other workers in the region will be disrupted, including the small slaughter-houses which hold direct business with the company.

Commons discuss situation

OTTAWA (CP) — Gus Mitges (PC—Grey-Simcoe) asked in the Commons Monday what action the government contemplated against Federal Packing Inc. of Magog, Que., or against retailers that bought meat from the company.

He said 210 tons of bad meat—from dead and diseased animals, had been distributed. Mr. Mitges was a federal meat inspector before entering politics.

The federal health department issued an official warning Friday to consumers to be on the alert for tainted meat distributed by the company.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde was not in the House when the question was asked but Coline Campbell, his parliamentary secretary, said the question was taken as notice, suggesting there would be an answer at a later date.

Better rail service promised

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will fulfill election promises of a state-owned passenger rail service if the two national railways do not improve passenger services voluntarily, Transport Minister Jean Marchand said in the Commons Monday.

State ownership is "a right we reserve and a right we will exercise in due course" if services provided by Canadian Pacific and Canadian National are not improved, Mr. Marchand said.

He told Les Benjamin (NDP—Regina-Lake Centre) that proposals for improving passenger service will be contained in the new national transportation policy statement to go before cabinet this month.

He said he conferred with presidents of both railways shortly after the July, 1974, election and was assured they were both "keenly interested" in maintaining passenger service. Yet, except for the CN Turbo

Local handlers strike, slow mail output

SHERBROOKE (BP) — Local residents can expect mail delivery as usual today, but the quantity of letters the carriers will be toting around is likely to be small, similar to yesterday.

Approximately 60 members of the Sherbrooke local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) didn't show up for work Sunday at midnight after they called in sick. The strike affects mail handlers and clerks, though wicket service was available yesterday.

It was the second time the local union members failed to turn up for work recently. Last Thursday, the midnight shift never reported, but the sorters and clerks operated as usual on the weekend.

Yves Lamontagne, the local CUPW president, stated yesterday that the workers would return to their jobs Monday at midnight but could not predict what the remainder of the week would bring about.

Yesterday, the postal carriers delivered what mail had been sorted locally on the weekend and today's delivery is expected to be even smaller. A spokesman for the postmaster said that some mail was received from Montreal on Monday but that it wasn't sorted.

Planting trees on autoroute

QUEBEC — To beautify the roads and highways of the province, the provincial department of forestry has given the roads department 774,685 trees to be planted on the borders of all the autoroutes in the province, including the Eastern Townships.

The planting of the trees will begin this week and will continue until the end of the month.

train and experiments by CP Rail with a light, high-speed commuter train, neither railway had invested money in new rolling stock or other improvements.

The government has not acted on election promises to nationalize rail passenger operations because it would be improper to do so before the railways had a chance to study the new transportation policy, Mr. Marchand said. "It is difficult to ask the railways to follow a policy that is not yet known."

More doctors turn thumbs down at government proposal

MONTREAL (CP) — Doctors working in Local Community Service Centres (LSCS) in Quebec Monday joined 3,000 general practitioners to fight provincial government contract offers they said are unacceptable.

The 20 LSCS doctors announced their solidarity with the Federation of General Practitioners at a Montreal press conference.

A spokesman for the 20 doctors said they have scheduled a meeting in Drummondville, Que., next week, at which pressure tactics will be discussed.

Preservation of their professional freedom and a collective agreement are the doctors' main concerns, the spokesman said.

The nine centres in Quebec were set up about three years ago to take pressure off hospitals.

Most of the 20 doctors have been working without a contract since their first one expired almost a year ago.

Doctors at the centres originally signed standard contracts drawn up by administrators and the minister of social affairs.

Youngsters take train trip to visit dairy in Montreal

By JOHN MCCAGHEY (Record Reporter)

ABOARD CANADIAN NATIONAL TRAIN 621 — The sun was hanging like a solid ball of fire as train 621, three rail diesel cars, inched to the station platform at Sherbrooke, Friday, at 6:30 a.m.

Sibling rivalry set the order of the day as a brother and sister argued who was going to sit next to the window. However, that was quickly settled with one on either side of the aisle, and the units then gradually accelerated through the St. Francis Valley.

In what appeared to be almost seconds at Bromptonville, cries of "see this Bobby" greeted the small cascade behind the Kruger Mill. Windsor was immediately distinguishable by its distinctive odor, and finally into Richmond.

Cries of excitement became the norm as 36 children ranging between six and 12 from St. Francis Elementary School en-trained for a trip to the Mont Hilaire Dairy, St. Hyacinthe. Teachers Hazel Carson and Elsie Morrill had their hands full settling the boisterous yet well behaved group, many of whom were on a train for the first time.

Mrs. Carson said this was their "big out-of-town excursion" although regular visits to points of interest in and around Richmond were quite normal.

The valley was a study in contrasts, bright sunlight on the water, suddenly into a medium mist, then a light mist, clear skies, then the rise to the top of the St. Francis escarpment and the approach to Montreal over the former St. Lawrence sea bed.

A very small voice was heard to say: "Don't tilt" as the train crossed the Yamaska River prior to entering St. Hyacinthe. Silence then prevailed as the school children disembarked to continue their visit to the dairy.

Otterburn Park, Beloeil, crowds of commuters casually showing their "flash cards" to the conductor as they settled down to read morning papers; St. Lambert and a five minute wait to go on final block for the approach to Central Station were bringing the trip to a conclusion.

Girders on the Victoria Bridge framed the STOL-Port as a Twin Otter approached from Ottawa, cars sped by the train and a next to final stop in the Wellington yard was made.

Two hours and 10 minutes elapsed as the 99 statute miles had unfolded before passengers' eyes. Then the mad scramble took place as the commuters headed for employment jostling to be first on the escalator leading to the station concourse.

Looking back the engineer was stretching, his foot finally released from the "dead man's switch," as he enjoyed a cigarette and a conversation with a station maintenance man.

Canadian farmers use imported help

OTTAWA (CP) — Many farmers find imported seasonal laborers more attractive than Canadian workers because offshore recruits are a more stable source of supply, federal manpower officials say.

The situation is occurring in spite of general policy that domestic workers must be given first chance at farm labor jobs, the officials said in a recent interview on the government's farm labor pool program.

Foreign workers have been brought in to supplement the domestic supply of seasonal workers and there has been a dramatic increase in laborers from the Caribbean in particular in the last two years.

In 1974, there were 5,342 Caribbean seasonal workers brought into the country for 504 employers. In 1973, there were 379 employers who used 3,048 Caribbean workers and in 1972, there were 187 employers who used 1,529 workers from the West Indies. Most of the imported workers in 1974 were from Jamaica.

When offshore labor is brought into the country from the Caribbean or Mexico—there were 195 Mexican workers here in 1974—they are contracted to producers.

When their contracts expire, the imported workers leave the country. The result is that most stay until their work is done.

PRONE TO LEAVE

But Canadians are more prone to leave their jobs, or to have a falling out with their employers.

"Employers feel more secure with a guaranteed work force. This is the attractiveness of the Caribbean workers. Farmers are sure they will stay for the contracted period," one official said.

This year, the manpower department has increased the number of farm labor pools—set up especially to find workers for farmers—to 54 from last year's 35. All provinces except Newfoundland will have offices.

There will also be some suboffices open for two or three months bringing the total of centres to about 70.

Last year, the pools found work for 17,000 farm laborers, officials say. Regular Canada Manpower Centres provided 75,000 seasonal workers to employers.

Between last May and August, 84,000 students a month worked on farms.

In 1973, a year in which critics charged that crops were rotting in the fields because of manpower shortages, the manpower centres alone found work for 72,300 farm laborers.

ONE CHANGE

One change in the farm labor pools this year is that the federal government will negotiate separate agreements with each of the provinces. There was only one national agreement previously.

"We recognize there are differences among the provinces—that their manpower and agricultural needs are different," said an official. "We are hoping for three-year terms to the agreements to facilitate planning."

The federal and provincial governments will pay grants totalling 50 per cent of the cost of seasonal housing to farmers. The farmer must pay the other 50 per cent.

Under the labor pool system, workers are paid the prevailing rate in various areas but not less than the provincial minimum wage that applies. Farmers pay wages to the pool in advance and the pool makes deductions for pension and unemployment insurance as applicable.

National Hospital Week

The Sherbrooke Hospital joins hospitals across the country in observing the 1975 National Hospital Week, May 11 through 17. Once a year hospitals honor the memory of Florence Nightingale, the English nurse and pioneer of hospital reform whose genius for administration was shown during the Crimean War, when she organized in face of considerable official opposition a nursing service to relieve the sufferings of the British soldiers who called her "The Lady with the Lamp." Her system was adopted and developed in all parts of the world.

This year's theme, "Your Total Good Health - Our Only Concern" focuses attention on the place of the hospital and good health care within the community. All too often, large segments of the general public think of hospitals only when they need them. Who of us, when we are sick, doesn't want the best care money can buy? When we're sick, the problem and the concern become both real and immediate.

In a larger sense, the hospital is a true community institution and a community resource. It doesn't just appear out of nowhere, and its concerns are as much with keeping people well as with restoring health. Not only is health care taking new, preventive directions to-day, but the hospital is more and more becoming the very centre of the community's health. By working to develop new methods of delivering appropriate quality care, establishing patient education programs, quality assurance mechanisms and cost containment techniques, the hospital and its medical staff are trying to make sure that when you are sick you can get the right kind of care at a reasonable cost.

Often in our busy every-day lives, we don't pay much attention to just what kinds of services your hospital provides or the problems it faces. That's probably natural: after all, we have more pressing and immediate concerns when we are well. Yet if each of us adopted this attitude, the care we need when we get sick would not be available. It takes a concerned community to shape its hospital's services to meet its needs.

A hospital, like an individual, builds its life on relationships. The relationship with the community of which it is a part is a vital determinant of its success or failure as a part of the government health care system. Your hospital's goal of quality health care is not a vague ideal existing apart from the people who may need its services.

The Sherbrooke Hospital has expressed concern for the community by responding to your health care needs, - by growing, developing, and evolving far beyond its initial designation. To-day, your community hospital is a centre for life. It's a centre for the individual who may need the care provided there, and beyond this, it's a centre for bolstering the social and economic life of the community itself. The social and economic well-being of the Eastern Townships community is dependent on the health of its residents. By helping to keep us well and helping us to recover when we are sick, the hospitals of this area contribute significantly to the economic health of our community life.

During National Hospital Week, we urge you to take another look at your hospital and to learn more about the full range of health care services that are available throughout the community. Take a few minutes to find out how closely the hospital is related to our community life. Think about the importance of your hospital to you!

German coalition scores victory

Against all predictions, Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's West German coalition scored a remarkable moral victory in Sunday's state and local elections.

The results in North Rhine-Westphalia and in Saarland go against all the earlier anti-coalition trends and seem to enhance the government's chances in the general elections only 18 months away.

Until now, all the political pundits and commentators, basing their predictions on earlier similar elections, had forecast a sharp move to the right in the next country-wide poll.

But although Schmidt's Social Democratic party actually lost one per cent of the vote in Westphalia, while gaining a similar amount in Saarland, the over-all trend was toward the moderate centre.

It is traditional that such regional elections go against the central Bonn government of the day during off-year elections, and no doubt Schmidt was braced for harsher treatment.

OPPOSITION LOSES

But the real losers were the Christian Democratic Union (CDU), the conservative opposition party, and the real winners were the liberal Free Democrats (FD), even though they still remain the junior partners in the Schmidt-led coalition government.

The elections came almost a year to the day after the resignation of Willy Brandt under the cloud of scandal centred in discovery of an East German spy in his official staff. Schmidt took over and while he is personally popular, and has played an emphatic role in international affairs, the West Germans tended to blame his coalition government for all their ills.

Unemployment and inflation—mild by comparison with all other Western countries—brought emotional reactions in West Germany. This along with a growth rate hovering around zero last year, and a record deficit in public spending, built into widespread disenchantment with the government.

On top of that, street demonstrations, increasing crime and then the outright terrorism of left-wing and anarchist groups left the country utterly perplexed.

PROMISES STABILITY

Taking this situation as their theme, the CDU promised that "We will restore stability," giving the slogan law-and-order as well as economic undertones.

In previous local elections the response was widespread, and the move to the right led commentators to start writing Schmidt's political obituary while looking to such figures as Franz-Josef Strauss, flamboyant advocate of German nationalism, anti-communism and firm law and order, as a likely leader.

But now the recent elections have indicated the German people will not be knocked off centre by the recent downturn in fortunes.

Eighteen months is a long time in politics, and Schmidt does not seem to have any easy solutions to the problems of inflation and unemployment, but, still, the electoral tide no longer is running in the opposition's favor.

And the chances that the next German government will be dominated by Strauss's brand of nationalism seem more remote than before.

Fine arts exhibit at Champlain impressive

By ROSA HARRIS
(Record Reporter)

LENNOXVILLE — Champlain Fine Arts students are to be highly commended for the effort and degree of professionalism evident in the exhibition of their work held at the Lennoxville Campus recently.

It is particularly impressive because the faculty itself is only two years old. The full range of fine arts courses displayed is a tribute to the skills of the teachers and the talent of the 35 students involved.

The entire exhibition was organized and run by the students themselves with the aid of the six teachers in the fine arts faculty. Art history, drawing, painting, ceramics, three dimensional design, technical drawing and print-making were all represented in a well-exhibited show.

"The level of work was remarkably high," David Morgan, a fine arts teacher at Champlain commented, "considering the students have only had first and second year training. Everyone who attended the show was impressed."

The exhibition of prints and ceramics was particularly strong, but in general the show was superior. Plans are underway for a similar show to be held next year.

"We're going to be striving for a more localized environment," Mr. Morgan continued. "This year part of the Fine Arts faculty was in Compton as well. Next year it will be held strictly on the Lennoxville Campus."

Even if the show maintains its current standards, it will undoubtedly be a success next year. If it improves, the faculty can be singled out as one of the best on campus.

1,800 islands of all shapes, sizes

1000 Islands, N.Y. and Ontario... Visitors to the 1000 Islands this season will not only be enjoying a relaxing change from daily routine, with a fun-filled, eventful, two-country vacation in beautiful surroundings, but they will also be participating in the area's preparation for U.S. Bicentennial and Canada's Olympic activities, both to take place in 1976. In this 50-mile stretch of the St. Lawrence River — from Cape Vincent, N.Y. environs and Kingston, Ont. on the west to Brockville, Ont. and Alexandria Bay, N.Y. on the east — lie some 1800 islands of all shapes and sizes, from verdant, rolling acreage to tree-studded rocks.

Each New York community is occupied in getting all its history-oriented attractions ready for a 1975 preview, and each Ontario neighbor across the river is putting its best foot forward in anticipation of the country-wide excitement to be generated by these two events and celebrated by guests from all states, provinces and many foreign countries. Starting a geographical tour on the New York side — just south of Cape Vincent is Sackets Harbor, with Association Island nearby, off Henderson Harbor.

Having been this year included in the National Register of Historic Places, Sackets Harbor Battlefield Museum is the focal point for 1000 Islands Bicentennial activity. A highlight of its 1975 season will be the Reenactment of the War of 1812 Battle between British and American forces on the anniversary date, July 19th. Three Canadian brigades will approach under full sail and "fight" the Sackets Harbor garrison "to the finish" for possession of the Harbor. All during the summer season there will be cannon fire drills and musket-loading demonstrations by authentically uniformed guards, as well as film projections of battle scenes reproduced by Museum personnel.

Arriving on the Canadian mainland a short drive west from Ivy Lea on 1000 Islands Parkway brings one to Gananoque, a quaint village where many British imports, as well as Canadian products, such as cheese, maple syrup and sugars, are on tempting display.

West on Highway 401 is Kingston, home of Old Fort Henry, Canada's "protection" in the War of 1812 against "invaders" from across the river who never materialized. C.O.R.K. — Canadian Olympic (Sailing) Regatta-Kingston — will take place July 19-27, with "Pre Trials" scheduled for Sailing Events of the 1976 Olympics (Montreal) to be held in Kingston.

Eastward on Highway 401 are many sites to lure picknickers to stay awhile and watch the river go by, with side trips to Lansdowne, to see the Fair on August 1-4 and to Rockport for a closer look at a small village church perched on the river bank.

The eastern Canadian limit of the 1000 Islands area is Brockville, a bustling community with Scottish overtones, evidenced by the 1000 Islands International School of Scottish Performing Arts, in session from June 30 to July 11, and the Annual Highland Games, on August 3.

Record Yester Years
20 YEARS AGO TODAY

SHERBROOKE — Employees of the Union Screen Plate of Canada, Ltd., (local 5041 United Steelworkers of America CIO-CCL) and the company will take their grievances to arbitration.

The company and union failed to reach agreement over interpretation and application of a seniority clause in the present agreement after several conciliation meetings in Montreal and Sherbrooke.

Arbitration proceedings will begin next Wednesday at the Court House. The board will include L.P. Brizard, director of Industrial Relations section of the University of Montreal; Jean Massicotte, company nominee; and Jean Gerin-Lajoie, representing the employees.

The seniority clause in the agreement is causing the difficulty. The union is questioning its interpretation by the company in the cases of two dismissals; three temporary layoffs and one disputed classification.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

COATICOOK — The town of Coaticook will take over the present power plants in the district, except what Penman's Limited have at North Coaticook, and in future operate and develop its own electric department.

This was the decision of the rate-payers of Coaticook in the two days voting that concluded last evening, when the power by-law which had already been passed by the Council was approved by the property owners by a majority vote of 126 and a majority in evaluation of $242,869.

The returns showed 235 rate-payers, representing a valuation of $556,452, in favor of the by-law, and 109 rate-payers, representing a valuation of $313,583 against.

This was the second time that the rate-payers have been called upon to go to the polls in the power controversy. It will be remembered that about a year ago a determined move was made to line up the interests and build an up-to-date dam about half way up the gorge to replace five of the old dams; then run a tunnel through the rock along the hypotenuse of the right angle made by the river to a power-house at the lower part of the town, under a head of 145 feet and giving over 1,800 horsepower, besides the 250 at the upper station.

Peaceful coexistence is costly

WASHINGTON — The diplomatic cables have brought reassurances from Moscow that detente is not dead.

The ruling Politburo not only has dropped hard-liner Alexander Shelepin but also has reaffirmed its support of party chairman Leonid Brezhnev's accommodation with the West. In deference to detente, the Kremlin has even refrained from unseemly crowing over the U.S. setbacks in Southeast Asia.

But, while detente has brought a welcome relaxation of tensions, the United States has paid a price that the American people haven't been told about. The detente has produced a technology drain from the United States to the U.S.S.R., which is costing the United States millions of dollars, thousands of jobs and some valuable scientific secrets.

Sen. Henry Jackson, (D-Wash.) has become so concerned over the economic consequences and potential security danger that he has ordered a full Senate investigation.

Here are the details: The new Soviet-American scientific cooperation has been largely one-way. Soviet technology lags years behind ours in the most important fields, including agriculture, deep sea exploration, computers, aircraft development and space science.

The Russians have little to offer and much to gain, therefore, from the technological exchange. With the active encouragement of the State and Commerce departments, American firms already have exported, or are planning to export, millions worth of technological information and products.

This has upset U.S. intelligence analysts, who believe the Soviets are trying to exploit American technology primarily for military purposes.

Finished products are sold to the Soviets, who often put them to military use. Several American firms are now bargaining to sell advanced computers and airplanes to Russia. These models are far more sophisticated than anything the

Jack Anderson's

Washington
JULY 1975

Soviets have produced

U.S. firms also sell licenses, which permit the Russians to build the products themselves. In such cases, the Soviets buy everything including the blueprints.

Valuable information is given up even before the contracts are signed. The Soviets dangle lucrative contracts in front of American companies. While the negotiations are in progress, the Russian seek detailed technical information and send engineering teams to inspect the U.S. plants. By the time they leave, as one source put it, "they have stolen the candy store."

American companies have also offered to build and operate plants for the Soviets. Several proposals are now under consideration, for example, to build huge, sophisticated airplane-manufacturing complexes in the Soviet Union.

Scientists, students and technicians are also exchanged. Under one recent program, 38 Russian students came to the United States to study science, engineering, business and computers. In exchange, 38 American students went to Russia and studied history, political science, sociology and literature.

At least half the Russians who come to the United States under the exchange programs report back to the KGB, the experts estimate. The FBI has quietly asked for additional agents to watch them.

Virtually every American male who goes to Moscow for more than two weeks, on the other hand, finds himself with a Russian girl friend who wants to "practice her English," intelligence sources told us. Most of them are believed to be KGB agents, who are quite versatile in English.

As an illustration of the technology drain, the Soviets are taking full advantage of the detente to catch up to the United States in computer science. This is the key, more than any other single factor, to America's overall technological superiority.

The Soviets are at least 10 years behind in computer development. They have produced only one computer of significant capacity, and it would take about 32 of them to equal one top-line American computer.

The Russians would be even further behind were it not for the advanced computers that the West has already begun to sell to the U.S.S.R. One U.S. firm, Control Data Corporation, has signed preliminary agreements to help the Russians build plants for the manufacture of computers and peripheral equipment.

The Russians have taken pains to insure that they will receive considerable technology in the bargain. One agreement, signed on Oct. 19, 1973, calls for the "exchange of scientific and technical information, documentation in production samples, exchange of delegations of specialists and trainees; organization of lectures, symposium and demonstrations of the production samples; (and) joint research, development and testing, exchange of research results and experience."

The Soviets are also eager to catch up to the United States in the production of wide-bodied jet transports. They have one on the drawing board, which is not due off the production line until 1980. Even then, it will be inferior to the American models now flying.

Holding out possible contracts, the Soviets have obtained detailed plans for wide-bodied jets from Boeing, Lockheed and McDonnell-Douglas. A team of some 40 Soviet specialists has also visited the plants of all three companies.

Detente may well be Henry Kissinger's crowning achievement, but it has been a headache for the FBI and CIA.

Stork Shower

STANSTEAD — The beige room of the Legion Memorial Home, Stanstead, was recently the scene of a delightful event when some 40 relatives and friends of Mrs. David (Brenda) Emslie gathered to shower her with stork gifts as she and David await the arrival of their first child.

Arriving with friends, the shower was a complete surprise to Brenda, as she was presented with a stork novelty corsage and escorted to a chair between her mother, Mrs. Francis Sisco and Mrs. Harold Emslie, the expectant grandmothers.

The gifts in the traditional colors were arranged on a table where the decor was in yellow and green. These included a wide variety of items and garments for the wee one, also baby scales, a car seat and a raggedy Ann-Andy lamp. After these had been opened and circulated, little Misses Laureen Webb, a niece, and Laurie-Ann Philips placed them on a table for display.

In her usual lovely manner, Brenda voiced her appreciation.

Buffet refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Larry Moss and Mrs. Michel Bolduc assisted by Mrs. Raymond Moss, Mrs. Terry Smith, Mrs. Gary Chamberlain and others.

The shower cake, made and decorated in the color scheme of yellow with touches of green and flowers, by Mrs. Horace Doyon, was in the design of a knitted sweater, bonnet and booties.

Pot luck politics

Pass the bread, Monsieur le President

By Rosette Hargrove

PARIS — (NEA) — The latest game with Parisian hostesses these days is "Guess who's coming to dinner?" Giscard! Then the discussions start.

When the French president declared that every month he would share a dinner with a French family, most people thought this was just a gag. But it happened that he meant it and the Cuccianis family was the first to play host to the French president and his wife.

The secret was well kept, no journalists or photographers anywhere near. It was only the next day that the Cuccianis were interviewed, photographed and seen on TV.

The next time, said Giscard d'Estaing, he would select a family outside of Paris. Now housewives in the nearby provinces (counties) are wondering whether they will be the next to be so honored.

Helpful hints have been offered by all. First, the French are warned, you must make sure the president is really coming to avoid being the victim of a hoax. This happened to a Limoges truck driver, his wife and 11 children. A telephone call informed them of an intended visit by the president in three weeks. From then on a frenzied agitation reign in the family. The wife bought dozens of frogs' legs (this was supposedly one of d'Estaing's favorite dishes).

The evening came but no president showed up. Frogs' legs were on the family table for days after that. Madame d'Estaing sent them a large hamper of goodies to make up for their disappointment and some of the expense.

When the president said he intended to get nearer the people to learn what they were thinking he insisted he was a moderate eater and one of his favorite dishes was scrambled eggs.

The Cuccianis' invitation was one of 1,700. The family chosen next will receive a letter from the Elysee Palace fixing the day. All communications are to be made by letter or telephone with the secretariat and the warning to eager hosts is in no event should one take for granted a telephone call alone. This should be checked, not once but several times. The French also are warned not to believe any person who introduces himself as an envoy of the Elysee even and more especially, if he is dressed like a lord.

The president's secretariat asks for a maximum of secrecy. Otherwise the selected home will be inundated by onlookers and the president probably will not show up.

Other guests can be invited if the official permission is given. They, too, are expected to keep their mouths shut, and should be limited to three or four persons besides the family.

The menu? Very rich dishes are shunned by presidents and all V.I.P.s, but there is still a minimum meal to consider. In the event of any problems or doubts, one must phone the Elysee and ask for suggestions. Should the children be tucked away out of sight? Theoretically the answer is "no" but they are not to ask for autographs or use a flash camera.

Other tips circulated for possible hosts:

Don't think of redecorating the living room. Keep the atmosphere serene. Don't turn on accordion music to greet your guest, even though everybody knows d'Estaing is an accomplished accordionist.

How to dress? Monsieur should definitely wear a suit and tie and well-polished shoes. The word to Madame is: wear a simple, short dress, foregoing décolletés. Have shining hair, discreet make-up and nail polish. Far better to be under-dressed than over-dressed. Madame la Presidente dresses very simply.

Etiquette and protocol are reduced to the strictest minimum. D'Estaing should be addressed as Monsieur le President. He will be seated on the host's right and everybody should forget about etiquette, but he will not start to eat nor rise from the table before the hostess does.

Don't linger at the table, pass into another area for coffee if you are limited to a single living room. The president drinks wine but eschews cordials. Although he doesn't smoke, he won't mind a host lighting up a cigarette. Don't switch on either TV or the radio and don't say "so soon" when the presidential couple gets up to leave.

But during the brief conversation time Frenchmen are warned not to mention taxation or other controversial subjects. The president is rather a shy man but, it is said, he will talk about music, hunting, shooting, skiing or tennis. He also enjoys telling anecdotes. It is natural, advisers suggest, that a host should take advantage of this and be a good listener.

WI meeting

MELBOURNE — The May meeting of Gore Branch WI was held on May 3 at the home of Mrs. Galen Cootie with Miss M. Watt as assistant hostess.

Twelve members answered the roll call by each paying 15 cents to cover the cost of a box of cards to be sent from the branch as occasion requires.

The treasurer's report showed a good balance with two cheques outstanding. All bills were ordered to be paid.

Miss M. Watt had on hand the new county program booklets which were distributed to the members at a charge of 25 cents each.

Health and Welfare convener, Mrs. J. Griffith, reported the receipt of 600 cancer squares and 16 hospital shirts.

The Publicity convener distributed comparative tables of Celsius and Fahrenheit readings. A short discussion took place re various methods of conversion from one reading to the other. She also gave a short reading entitled Mixed Up.

Home Economics convener, Mrs. Julia Griffith, had received a very generous donation of drapery material and several members availed themselves of this opportunity to renew their window drapes.

Mrs. Irma Johnston, agriculture convener, read a list of DO's and Don'ts of Transplanting from which the listeners received many worthwhile hints.

Mrs. Lyall Newell, citizenship convener, reported delivering 14 ditties to the county convener for shipment.

Mrs. Gee, Mrs. Newell, Mrs. M. Griffith and Mrs. Husk volunteered to arrange for and serve the birthday tea at the Wales Home on May 22nd.

Mrs. M. Hughes was named a delegate to the convention at Macdonald.

Four ladies from the branch attended the county meeting held in St. Francis Elementary School on April 26. The president reminded the members that the branch is in charge of the sales table at the fall county meeting on October 18 and three members are responsible for taking articles to be sold from that table. Also during the summer each member is asked to bring an article for the sales table at the County Bazaar to be held in the Legion Hall on Sept. 20.

The next meeting will be held on May 27 at the home of Mrs. W. Gee.

The mystery parcel, donated by Mrs. M. Griffith was won by Margaret Cootie.

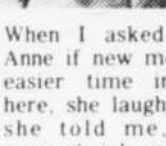

The meeting adjourned and a sale of slips and plants was conducted by Mrs. Johnston.

Following this a delicious tea was served by the hostesses.

Maternity benefits on the rise

By Joanne Koch

When I asked Swedish-born Anne if new mothers have an easier time in Sweden than here, she laughed. In Sweden, she told me, a pregnant woman's job must be held open for at least six months. An expectant couple is entitled to six months leave with full pay, divided any way they choose. The father might take two months and the mother three, either before or after the birth of the baby.

If she wishes to go back to work after her baby is born, the mother living in Sweden has several options. Excellent infant day care centers are available or a "day mother" can be hired with over half of the cost picked up by the state. Swedish employers must provide a certain number of part-time jobs so that mothers or fathers who wish to spend part of their time at home are not forced into low-paying, unskilled jobs.

While the U.S. is way behind Sweden in maternity benefits, we are making progress.

Public school teachers can no longer be forced to take maternity leaves as soon as they are in their fifth month, according to last year's Supreme Court decision (Wetzel v. Liberty Mutual). Surveys show that two-thirds of the country's schools are eliminating these mandatory pregnancy leaves.

In offices, banks, stores and classrooms, pregnant women are continuing to punch those time clocks right up to the ninth month. Aside from those special cases, such as the telephone installer - repairer in her eighth month who couldn't get her arms around the telephone pole, even women working at strenuous jobs are continuing until a brief time before delivery.

One feminist has claimed that "a woman who has a baby deserves disability pay just as much as a man who has a hernia." The Equal Employment Opportunities Commission has urged that pregnancy be treated as a temporary disability when it comes to computing benefits. But many insurance companies and employers disagree. Even the courts vary.

An important California case (Aello v. Geduldig) held that pregnancy is different than other disabilities because the woman has chosen it and she is healthy. Other decisions have supported pregnancy compensation, and some (significantly) Gilbert v. General Electric are still undecided.

Judith Lonnquist, national legal vice president of N.O.W., hopes that passage of the Equal Rights Amendment will finally insure coverage of maternity in all cases.

Until then, she gives us these rules of thumb: If maternity coverage is an employment benefit, the insurance company must pay the same percentage for maternity hospitalization as they would for other hospital bills. But be careful. There are no laws covering private policies. Many of them still cover only $300 of a $1,000 delivery bill. If pay is received for other types of leaves, the benefits must apply to maternity leaves, according to Ms. Lonnquist.

We're still a long way from Sweden, but let's raise our glasses of milk and say "Skol!" to those striving to give working mothers a fairer shake.

Ann Landers

Who's Who of depression victims

Dear Ann Landers: With your extensive coverage why don't you make more of an effort to educate people to the dangers of depression? If you printed a list of famous people who have had severe bouts of depression it would read like Who's Who.

Newspapers are full of stories about suicides and homicides. Lord alone knows how many deaths from "natural causes" were actually planned in advance.

The symptoms of depression are not always the obvious ones. In fact some depressed people can put on a very good front. The things to look for are changes in personality, sleeping habits, unjustified accusations, feelings of being persecuted and abnormal hostility. People who suddenly show these traits need medical attention.

I needn't tell you, Miss Landers, that there aren't enough psychiatrists to go around. Also, many medical doctors don't know how to recognize the signs of depression. They could use some refresher courses.

There are excellent drugs available that can help lift people out of depressions. A relative of mine who was very nearly non-functional is now on a drug that has made it possible for her to go to work every day and be a wife and mother.

Please enlighten the unenlightened. — Up With People

Dear Up: Everything you say is true, but I must caution my readers against believing that a drug can cure depression. Medication can be very helpful in getting a depressed person through a crisis, but to depend on drugs as a way of life is merely masking the symptoms and it does nothing to solve the problem.

For individuals who experience radical personality changes or go into emotional tailspins, I recommend first a thorough physical examination to make sure there is no organic or neurological problem. Then, if the doctor suggests drugs to help, I would say, "Fine, go ahead." Drugs CAN get the patient through the difficult period, but stick to the prescribed dosage and quit when the doctor says, "No more."

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are desperate for an answer. YOUR kind of answer. Short and to the point. What can we say when our two children, ages 22 and 24, say, "You had us. Now take care of us."

We don't know how to respond. We were unusually generous when we had very little for ourselves; now they expect us to continue and it's very difficult. Please advise.

— Stumped For An Answer
Dear Stumped: A couple of "kids" 22 and 24 need more than a short, pointed answer. They need a swift kick out into the world, which is what they should have had a long time ago.

Tell your two parasites that a birth certificate is not a lifetime guarantee that insures perpetual care. God helps those who help themselves.

Plans for the upcoming Arts and Crafts show to be held here May 23-24 were made, and home baking for the food table and helpers were solicited. Tentative plans for a picnic meeting in June were also made.

The afternoon musical program was given by Mrs. Donald MacRae, her daughter Mrs. Donald Wright and granddaughter Miss Mary Wright and consisted of piano and violin selections which were much enjoyed.

They were thanked on behalf of the members by Mrs. Page.

Mrs. Albert Parsons and Mrs. Wentworth Richardson, hostesses, were assisted by Mrs. Armand Gregoire and Mrs. Hattie Henderson did the honors at the tea table.

Pass 3 N T Pass Pass

Opening lead — 4 ♠

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The "C" in ARCH stands for Count your winners and losers. Sometimes the total doesn't come to 13. Thus you can count 11 winners after the spade opening. Two in spades and three in each other suit. The three in clubs come from the "R" for Review the bidding which marks East with the queen of that suit as part of his opening bid.

When you count losers you are looking at two aces and three spades for a total of five losers. This makes a total of 16 tricks. A further study shows that if you win the first trick with your ace of spades over East's king you will knock out one of East's aces. He will lead back a spade. West will let you win that trick. Then when you knock out the other ace, the three spade tricks will be taken against you before you can score your own tricks.

Now you come to the "H" or How can I make this hand?

The answer is you can make it by changing your count of both winners and losers. Obviously, when you Analyze the lead you assume that West has led fourth best of a five-card suit headed by the king or queen. Your Review of the bidding marks East with both aces. Thus, you let East hold the first spade and West the second one. Now the defense has two spade tricks, but can't get a third. You have time to knock out both aces and make your contract.

Art of mountaineering taught in city school

TORONTO (CP) — As the young men and women deftly inch down the vertical wall, suspended by ropes from a balcony, the scene resembles the action of daring cat thieves ready to pull a job.

The art of mountaineering is being taught to students of all ages. How to scale jagged rocks, descending a rock face and stopping a fall when the climber above plunges down the mountainside are all part of the class.

Brian Hibbert, David Moore and Orest Haras instruct in mountaineering courses in different schools. The first class started in suburban Etobicoke Collegiate in 1973. Since then, 400 budding mountaineers have been trained in the dangerous sport.

"Actually, mountaineering is 99-per-cent safe," said Brian Hibbert, 30, vice-principal of Hillcrest public school. "The one-per-cent hazard would be caused by either equipment failure or inexperience in using it."

TEACH PHYS-ED
Co-instructors Orest Haras and David Moore are both physical education teachers at Keiller Mackay Collegiate. The teachers show the different skills and safety techniques to the students. Students get additional lessons at Rattlesnake Point in neighboring Milton, scaling the rocks there. Different class members had their own reasons for taking the course. Veteran mountaineers tell about their world above the world, a perilous perch between heaven and earth.

For students John Freer and Hugh Magill, it was the acceptance of a challenge in their 40s—a quest for an adventure that could not be found elsewhere in modern life.

A father and son were showing family togetherness in their joint enrolment. Kim Ricketts, 21, a student at University of Toronto, said about climbing:

"You can get into trouble very easily while climbing. That's why I'm taking this course."

MORE WOMEN ENROL
When mountaineering courses were first offered, organizer Brian Hibbert noticed more males involved in the classes. Now, he said 40 per cent of the class are women and they may soon be in the majority.

Brian Hibbert said, "In the elementary stages of mountaineering, at least, women show a distinct superiority. The reason for this is our social philosophy. The male is supposed to be aggressive, stronger and always show courage. In mountaineering, the male has more at stake and more to lose in self-esteem.

"Once he gets on a rock in a tough situation he can be ashamed to admit he is afraid and refuse to ask for help. Every good mountaineer knows fear. There is nothing wrong with that as long as it is controlled."

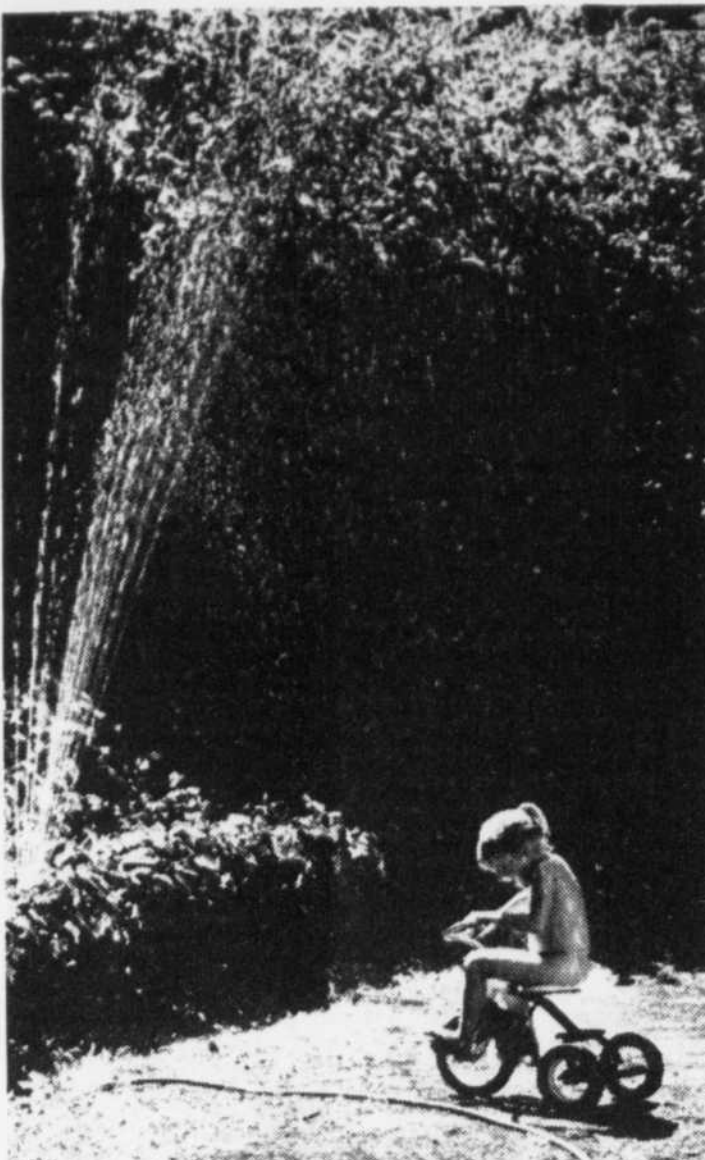

EASY TO INSTRUCT
He finds women easier to instruct because they have superior balance and rhythm, two essential requirements in climbing.

"Without brute strength to fall back on, they have to rely on the skills that are basic to mountaineering. They keep a good body position and they think their way up."

The one thing to be afraid of in mountaineering, the instructors say, is to climb with someone who insists he is not afraid.

Summer is a good time for mountaineering. The same instructors are conducting a 30-hour course of mountaineering instruction at Seneca College between June 10 and July 12.

"I'd guess you could say 'people who enjoy mountaineering are tired of what might be called the TV dinner society in which everything is laid on for them,'" said Hibbert. "They seek a challenge that is missing in this society as well as improving their physical development."

Richest diamond mine now museum

KIMBERLEY, South Africa (CP) — More than 150,000 visitors take in the world's largest man-made hole here each year.

The hole, with a surface area of almost 40 acres, is fascinating and vaguely threatening. It is, in fact, an open mine and probably the richest ever.

Between 1871 and 1914 three tons of diamonds were discovered. When production eventually stopped almost 30 million tons of earth had been taken out of the Big Hole. The mine had produced more than 14.5 million carats of diamonds worth $90 million.

Now there's more here for the visitor than just the Big Hole. An open-air museum has been built next to the mine showing the early history of Kimberley from the time when a boy, E. J. Jacobs, picked up the first diamond on his father's farm. The museum includes actual-size copies of the buildings of that time as well as actual buildings brought to the museum and rebuilt on the site.

It was here that Cecil John Rhodes made his vast fortune in diamonds—a fortune he used to settle Rhodesia and build his dream of a vast empire stretching from the Cape to Cairo. His portrait, together with other figures of the time, including Nicholas de Beer on whose farm the diamond mine started, hang in the museum.

Diamonds still are not a thing of the past in Kimberley. Four of the original mines still are working and along with two others that are close to Kimberley, yield around 3.5 million carats annually.

FOLLOW GEM ROUTE

Tourists can follow a diamond route that has been mapped out which cuts through Kimberley. The route, covering a little more than 400 miles, stretches from Potchefstroom in the north to Victoria West in the south. The Diamond Route is becoming increasingly popular with visitors.

In the northern Cape area semi-precious stones abound, including the famed tiger's-eye, found nowhere else in the world.

Another tourist attraction in this part of the republic is aimed at the millions of railway enthusiasts all over the world. The Steam Route puffs its way along an attractive course through some of the famed stops of another era.

Kimberley has in recent years started a drive on the tourist market. Last year a diamond carnival was held, with several other Cape Province towns joining in the promotion.

Kimberley is located in the centre of South Africa and Kimberley officials see this as making it ideal for tourism. Visitors can use the city as a base from which to explore the country's attractions.

But the officials are not leaving anything to chance. They're planning for the future to bring of the original mines still are working and along with two others that are close to Kimberley, yield around 3.5 million carats annually.

MEMORIAL CUP TRAIL

by
LEN O'DONNELL

KITCHENER — Sherbrooke Beavers' hopes of winning the Memorial Cup were crushed here Friday evening when they went down to a 10-4 decision to the Toronto Marlboros in the semi-finals.

The score was no indication of the battle. The Beavers fired a total of 17 shots at Gary Carr in the first frame while holding the Marlies to 10. In the middle session it was 14-13 for the Marlies but in the final frame, the George Armstrong squad took command while the Beavers held the upper hand in the cooler. They had 16 shots at the Sanza-Sauve duo while the best the Beavers could do was seven.

Referee Murray Harding of Winnipeg handled the game, and as in his first game, he handed out 11 penalties to Sherbrooke while giving only one to the Marlies. It seemed he has to prove something, but no one seems to know what. He had his eyes opened for the Beavers and thumbed them off at the least little things.

Despite this, the Beavers held their own for the first two periods and missed several good chances. It was 2-2 after twenty but the Marlies took over when Harding handed out two overlapping penalties to the Beavers and they potted three goals. Larose got one back and then Brisebois did also but that was it.

In the third period the Marlies got five goals, four of them with Sherbrooke players in the cooler, and that was it. Sherbrooke just couldn't get going although they were skating well but were obliged to force the play and this back-fired on them. It was hard to play short-handed the majority of the time, in fact 14 minutes out of the period.

Following the game the Sherbrooke dressing room was something to see. The majority of the players were sitting there with tears in their eyes. Nine of the team played their last junior game and Coach Delage along with Georges Guilbault were disappointed. It was something to witness.

"It is hard to take something like this. I know we have a better club all around but everybody has to give 100 per cent if you wish to win in this kind of hockey. Our defensive system really let us down and this was our strong point all season," stated coach Delage. "Our record for the season speaks for itself. We played 99 games to get here and then some of the boys just let down where it was the time to show what they could do," further added Ghislain Delage.

"Our key men just were not there and did nothing so you can understand how the rest of the players felt when they saw this. It was a damn shame for 14 kids who gave everything they had but it wasn't just enough. It certainly was a big disappointment for the executive and our loyal fans as well," stated Coach Delage.

The team was obliged to stay here for the final game on Sunday although General Manager Guilbault tried to pull out for home but the CAHA said no dice. There is a big fine in case a club leaves before the tournament is over so we had to remain," added coach Delage.

The club will stop over in Ottawa on the way home as guests of Irene Pelletier, MP for Sherbrooke. They will visit the "House On The Hill," as they say in the Capital, and meet Pierre Elliott Trudeau, PM, and then on home hoping to arrive early in the morning.

As for the newly formed association there seems to be plenty of confusion around here. Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players Association, said in Toronto, Friday, that the newly formed contract of the Canadian Major Junior Hockey League is a violation of both American and Canadian laws. It is a direct violation to anti-trust laws and could prove to be the end of junior hockey in Canada.

I am of the opinion there will be plenty of discussions on this matter before it comes to a head. I am sure that the NHL and the WHA will not stand for it. In fact, the squabble has already started. I can't see Clarence Campbell sitting down at the same table as the WHA for a "common draft" as Joe Kane of the new group wants it. Kane, a Toronto lawyer, drafted the new constitution and all week the leagues have been holding meetings but at no time was a representative of the CAHA on hand, although there were plenty around these parts. Anyhow, it will be interesting to follow from now on till the end.

Well, folks, that is about it. It was a pleasure giving you the inside look of this "Memorial Cup Trail" and I hope you enjoyed it. So until it rolls around again and as coach Delage and manager Guilbault said, "We will be back again next year."

IOC to be presented with optimistic reports for Olympic Games today

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Olympic Committee in Rome will be presented today with an optimistic report on preparations for the 1976 Olympic Games.

The report, released at a news conference Monday by the Olympics organizing committee, paints a rosy picture of progress towards the July 1976, opening date. The report, touching all aspects of the preparations from financing to press coverage, was prepared before a walkout by construction workers last week paralyzed Olympic building site.

Should the work stoppage continue for a long time, final costs could rise, Simon St. Pierre, executive vice-president of the organizing committee, told reporters. He remained confident, however, that the Games would begin on schedule.

He said he regretted that the progress report would be presented perhaps only a day before settlement of the labor halt, a result of union reaction to Quebec government legislation to put four Montreal union locals under trusteeship.

The organizing committee's report said that in general, "construction is adhering to critical deadlines" on all projects. In fact, work on the Olympic Village, which will house the athletes, "is ahead of schedule," despite a seven-week strike of iron workers last December and January.

That strike also interrupted all construction at the east-end site and precipitated rumors the Games would be delayed or moved to another city.

The report predicts that the outer structures of the village may be completed before the end of 1975, allowing more time for interior work.

Although the report did not say the Olympic coin program was not yielding the returns anticipated, it did say the program has "felt the impact of the world economic situation and the labor disruption at the Royal Canadian Mint."

Flyers worried, Islanders are confident

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Philadelphia Flyers may resort to their ultimate weapon in tonight's deciding game of the Stanley Cup semi-finals against the miracle men from Long Island. That would be Kate Smith singing God Bless America. But New York Islanders goalie Glenn Resch isn't worried.

"She seems like a nice old lady. I'd like to meet her some time. But unless they give her skates and a stick I won't worry about her. And it's a tribute to us if they have to dig down that far."

The flyers usually win when they invite the singer to open proceedings in the Spectrum. A notable example was their sixth-game victory over Boston Bruins which won the cup for them a year ago.

They had hoped to hold Miss Smith in reserve for an important game in this year's final round against Buffalo Sabres. But, having lost three in a row to the Islanders after taking a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven semi-final, the Flyers are obviously worried.

"There's nothing I can say to the players," said Bobby Clarke, who is both the captain and heart of the defending champions.

"I'm not Knute Rockne—everybody knows the situation. If a guy isn't going to come out and play his best in the seventh game he's not worth much to the hockey club, anyway."

"It's easier to lose a series when you've never been in it. But to get a three-game lead and lose it—you have to be a little worried."

After Sunday's 2-1 loss in Uniondale, N.Y., Philadelphia coach Fred Shero did not appear too concerned.

"We were never overconfident in this series," he said. "We're not that good." Shero added that the most important thing is to keep his players relaxed and concentrate on the positive aspects of their efforts.

If the Islanders win tonight's game they will make Stanley Cup history, becoming the first NHL team to erase 3-0 series deficits on two occasions. They did it in the quarter-finals against Pittsburgh Penguins—the first time since 1942 when Toronto Maple Leafs dropped three before winning four against Detroit Red Wings in the final.

The Islanders, in only their third season in the league, have been dubbed a Cinderella team. But it's not their fairy godmother who's keeping them in the series—it's a combination of close checking and good positional play, not to mention the inspiration of their coach, Al Arbour.

They have held the Flyers to two goals in two games and, more important, have limited the champions to two powerplay goals in 25 penalty situations. In fact, Philadelphia hasn't scored on its last 20 power plays against Resch and the defensive efforts of Ed Westfall, Lorne Henning and Bill MacMillan.

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) — The sudden rise of New York Islanders has generated so much publicity that it frightens Denis Potvin, who is staying in town this summer to promote the team.

"It's really unbelievable," said the Islander defenceman. He ducks the sports pages because he fears all the nice things writers are saying about him might go to his head—at the wrong time.

Underdogs like the Islanders provide the copy that sports editors dream about. The Islander success so far in the playoffs has earned the club the title of "hockey's miracle workers," and this scares Potvin.

The job is not yet completed for the Islanders in the trail to the Stanley Cup and it might not be this year. No matter how slim their chances were, they stuck in the chase, and tonight they can take a giant step in the deciding semi-final game against the defending champion Philadelphia Flyers.

STAR OF COMEBACK Potvin, of course, has been one of the stars of the Islander comeback, and the man who spearheads the Islander power play, one of the factors in the Islander showing in their best-of-seven series against the Flyers.

"You know, you read the papers," Potvin said. "I actually try not to do that. You get a little too confident and over-aggressive if you read about yourself."

Coach Fred Shero of the Flyers was asked about the aura of invincibility his club was supposed to have before it was pierced by the Islanders.

"We never thought that way," Shero said after the Islanders won 2-1 here Sunday against the Flyers to deadlock the semi-final series 3-3.

"We're not born that way. We know everybody is a challenge and we work just as hard, no matter who it is." But the Islanders have been more than a pain in Shero's side.

They ended Philadelphia's unbeaten string at 21 games, snapped an eight-game playoff winning streak and ended the Flyer record of having won 13 consecutive playoff games on home ice.

EVEN IN GOALS In six games, the Flyers have outshot New York 171-144, yet they are even in goals scored at 15 apiece. The Islander power play produced six goals, the Flyers got only two, plus one shorthanded goal.

In the nets, Glenn Resch has outshone Bernie Parent, the Flyers' Vezina Trophy winner. Bernie has allowed 11 goals in four games, Resch 10 in five, Parent is 1-3, Resch 3-1.

Parent hasn't said much about his right knee, injured during a pre-game warmup April 29.

Wayne Stephenson spelled Parent in the first two games and won 4-0 and 5-4. Bernie had a 1-0 shutout in the third game but very little work. Then he lost the next three by 4-3, 5-1 and 2-1.

Islanders hope to join Miracle Circle

If New York Islanders complete their second miracle comeback in a month by defeating Philadelphia Flyers in tonight's deciding game of the National Hockey League semifinals they will become part of a proud tradition.

They will add a new chapter to the story of New York's sporting miracles of the last quarter century.

The first, and still most memorable, was the 1951 National League baseball playoff between New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers which was decided by Bobby Thomson's dramatic home run.

Another was the completely unexpected 16-7 Jets' triumph over Baltimore Colts in football's 1969 Super Bowl.

And a third was the 1969 World Series victory by the Amazin' Mets over the heavily favored Baltimore Orioles.

The Islanders have already performed one minor miracle—coming back to beat Pittsburgh Penguins four in a row after losing the first three games in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup quarter-final.

But there was a precedent for that. Toronto Maple Leafs had performed the feat against Detroit Red Wings in the 1942 final.

NEVER DONE TWICE

No team has ever come back twice from three-game deficits but the Islanders have a chance to do that by knocking off the defending-champion Flyers in Philadelphia tonight.

If they manage it, the Giants, Jets and Mets will have to move over for another legitimate miracle.

Actually, Thomson's homer was only the crowning touch to a miraculous comeback.

The Giants had been 13½ games behind the Dodgers on Aug. 11, 1951. The next day they launched a 16-game winning streak and won 37 of 44 games to finish in a tie with Brooklyn.

Each team won one game in the best-of-three National League playoff. The Giants, playing at home in the Polo Grounds, came to the bottom of the ninth in the deciding game trailing 4-1. They scored one run and had Whitey Lockman on second and pinch-runner Clint Hartung on third with two out. That's when Thomson hit his homer to send the Giants into the series.

They ran out of miracles at that point, however, losing to New York Yankees in six games.

In the 1969 Super Bowl, played at the Orange Bowl in Miami on Jan. 11, quarterback Joe Namath seemed the only person willing to give the Jets a chance to defeat the Colts, who had lost only once that season. In fact, Namath "guaranteed" victory, though few believed him.

IT WASN'T CLOSE

Before 75,337 fans, Namath converted the skeptics by completing 17 of 28 passes for 206 yards to give the American Football League its first victory over the National Football League. And it wasn't really close. The Jets built up a 16-0 lead before the Colts' Johnny Unitas directed them to their only touchdown late in the fourth quarter.

If Sabres' Rick Dudley can play in Stanley Cup he will have to thank Islanders BUFFALO (CP) — Thanks to New York Islanders, winger Rick Dudley will have a chance to play in the Stanley Cup finals.

Dudley, a 31-goal scorer for Buffalo Sabres during the regular National Hockey League season, has been out of action since April 27 when he injured his left knee in the opening game of the Sabres' semi-final series against Montreal Canadiens.

"The knee has been a lot better in the last couple of days," Dudley said Monday. "I'm real lucky because of the fact the Islanders have extended the series. It's given me a lot of extra time."

The Islanders lost the first three games of their semi-final with Philadelphia Flyers but have extended the series by winning the last three games. The seventh and deciding game is set for Philadelphia tonight.

On Thursday night, when the final series starts, the Sabres would have had a week's rest.

Dudley, who plays lacrosse during the summer, was a member of the National Lacrosse League champion Rochester Griffins last year. He has also played on amateur lacrosse championship teams in Canada as well as with Cincinnati Swords when they won the American Hockey League championship in 1972-73.

"They were tremendous thrills," Dudley said of his previous championships. Clarence (Tubby) Sch-

"But you don't get too many chances to play in the Stanley Cup."

"We (the Sabres) were figured to battle it out with California for the last playoff spot this year. Some people even put California ahead of us. Then things just started to jell together for us."

"It's got to be a bigger thrill when you win and aren't favored."

The Sabres, who defeated Montreal 4-2 in their best-of-seven semi-final last Thursday, were even rated as underdogs in the series against Canadiens despite the fact they finished with 113 points during the regular season, the same as Montreal.

Sports briefs

Ted Lindsay, guest speaker at the CAHA's Memorial Cup dinner Tuesday night, took a swipe at the two major hockey leagues for their policy of removing young players from junior ranks before they are ready for pro play.

Lindsay, a former National Hockey League star with Detroit Red Wings, blamed "the short-sighted, over-anxious, greedy elements of hockey" for threatening the entire structure of Canada's national game. He said the pro leagues are doing their best to "rape junior hockey."

Gordon Jukes of CAHA has sent letter to IIHF asking to stop pro teams not in line

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Gordon Jukes, executive director of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA), has sent a letter to the International Ice Hockey Federation asking the IIHF not to allow North American professional teams which do not have an agreement with the CAHA to play exhibition games in Europe.

The letter, dated May 5 and addressed to IIHF president Bunny Ahearne, asked the federation to support the CAHA by withholding permission "until such time as the North American professional organizations have established a suitable relationship with your IIHF North American members, mainly to CAHA and the AHAUS (Amateur Hockey Association of the United States)."

The National Hockey League's agreement with the CAHA for payment of development fees for drafted junior players expired at the end of the season. The World Hockey Association has stated it does not intend to sign a pro-am agreement with the CAHA for development fees.

The letter, a copy of which was given to the Canadian Press by Jukes, says the WHA has "reneged on its agreement with the CAHA and has refused consistently to have an agreement with the AHAUS."

"This has resulted in an complete breakdown of relationship between professional and amateur hockey in North America because the National Hockey League has now been forced to take some action in order to protect its members."

Jukes said in his letter that the IIHF approval of such a team's proposed European tour would be similar to "comforting the enemy."

Jukes said he is aware of only one proposed trip to Europe by a Canadian professional team—by Winnipeg Jets of the WHA to Sweden for training and exhibition games.

Gordie Howe does it again, Aeros dump Nordiques 7-2

QUEBEC (CP) — Gordie Howe, the legendary 47-year-old right winger with Houston Aeros, says there was friendly persuasion from certain quarters for him to retire after the club won the World Hockey Association title last year.

But today the Aeros are glad he decided not to listen.

Howe was the dominant figure Monday night as the Aeros trimmed Quebec Nordiques 7-2. The victory enabled the Houston club to win its best-of-seven final series 4-0 and skate off with the Avco Trophy for the second straight year.

With his two sons—left winger Mark and defenceman Marty—Howe figures Monday night's victory should be his swan song as a player.

With 100 points to his credit last season and 99 in this season's regular schedule, Howe scored his seventh and eighth goals in 13 playoff games this year to help sink the Nordiques.

In addition, he added an assist on one of the two goals scored by right winger Frank Hughes, performed as part of the Houston powerplay unit and helped out in the role of penalty-killer.

SCORED ONCE

To keep the Howe name on the scoresheet, son Mark also contributed a goal and gained an assist on the first goal scored by Hughes.

Defenceman Marty, who missed the first three games of the series because of tonsillitis, was used sparingly.

In addition to the three goals scored by the Howe family and the two by Hughes, Gordon Labossiere and Larry Lund added one each. Left winger Rejean Houle scored a pair of powerplay goals for the Nordiques.

Following a vote by writers covering the series, Gordie Howe Trophy, awarded to the outstanding player in the playoffs, had been won by Houston's rookie netminder Ron Grahame.

Grahame had a spectacular playoff as he won 10 straight games and recorded a record three shutouts.

Gordie said he thinks he will stick to a decision he made earlier to retire.

"Some people said maybe I should have quit last year, but then others asked me to play this season," he said. "I knew we had good team spirit, so I decided to stick."

He said he is slated for a front-office job next season. He would assume the job as president of the Aeros if a proposed change of ownership takes place.

The crowd of 8,426 gave the Aeros a standing ovation after the final buzzer sounded Monday night.

Coach Jean-Guy Gendron said the first game of the series in Houston, when his club went through a series of upsets because of a mix-up in accommodation arrangements before bowing 6-2 to the Aeros, had "killed" his team.

"But I never thought we would lose four in a row," Gendron said. "It's not an excuse, but we missed J. C. Tremblay."

The Nordiques played all four games without Tremblay's services. The veteran defenceman was sidelined by calcium deposits in his right shoulder, a condition that caused the shoulder to stiffen.

Bernie Parent is top NHL outstanding player and receives $10,000

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Goalie Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers received a $10,000 award Monday for being judged by computer analysis to be the outstanding player in the National Hockey League in the 1974-75 season.

Based on the computer analysis, Parent was the most productive and consistent player in the NHL. Every statistical area of his goaltending play was recorded, computed and then applied against a mean standard of excellence for goalies.

Parent, the computer said, exceeded the standard by a larger margin than any other player at any other position.

Parent accepted the honor during a practice session for tonight's seventh game against New York Islanders in their Stanley Cup semi-final.

"Maybe if I'm lucky tomorrow night (against the Islanders) we could use the computer as goaltender," he said.

Parent, who won the league's Vezina Trophy this past season as the best goalie, had the lowest goals against average (2.03), the most shutouts (12) and the most victories (44).

He had a saves percentage of 91.7 and was one of two goalies to play more than 4,000 minutes. He compiled a productive efficiency rating (PER) of 67.2 in the computer study.

Beavers to be feted today

The City of Sherbrooke will have the opportunity of honoring their "Beavers" today as a day of receptions and a giant parade will take place.

Mayor Jacques O'Bready and members of the City Council will receive the Beavers and members of the executive and the press at a private get-together at the Armand Nadeau Pavillion at Jacques Cartier Park at 1:30.

Following this the party will move to CJRS on King Street where another reception will take place and at 3:30 a giant parade will be formed outside the station to move through the City streets.

The Beavers, who represented Quebec in the Memorial Cup playdowns at Kitchener, where they lost out to Toronto Marlies and the West representatives, New Westminster Bruins.

will arrive at the Amedee Roy Stadium where they will be presented to the fans by Serge Martel, Jocelyn Pelletier and Pierre Phaneuf.

Following the Fan-Club will play their share in the celebration by entertaining the Beavers at a banquet at the Grand "R" Hall. At 8:30 a dance will be held and admission charge will be fifty cents for the general public.

On Monday the Beavers stopped-over at Ottawa on their way home. Irene Pelletier, MP for Sherbrooke, received the executive at a special gathering. Later the team had the opportunity of attending the House in session. Following this Prime Minister Trudeau congratulated the team and wished them the best for the future.

Sandra Post is still favorite

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — The glamor and excitement of the women's pro golf tour still doesn't seem to have caught up to Sandra Post, whose seven-year pro career has suddenly taken a turn for the better.

For example, Miss Post was amazed when, on returning here for a visit at her parents' home, she began receiving numerous requests for interviews and, as a result, she saw her family for "a total of about five minutes" during the first 24 hours of her stay.

But she's not complaining. "I think it would upset me more if nobody called."

And she shook her head in amazement when she recalled how one magazine writer recently spent five days interviewing her for one article.

But while Sandra refuses to take herself seriously as a celebrity, she is very serious about playing winning golf.

After a promising start in 1968 when she won the LPGA championship in her rookie appearance, her career hit the doldrums about four years ago. But after recovering from the emotional upheaval of her divorce in 1972, she has worked her way back to the top and last December she won the Colgate Far East tournament in Melbourne, Australia.

Her score ranking on the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA) tour four years ago was about 40th.

Last year, she was ranked 10th and earned more than $50,000. This year she already has $16,000 in official LPGA earnings and she is seventh on score ranking. "I got my determination back and I started working really hard," she said of her comeback. "And I gained a lot of confidence. I believe in my ability now. That's the important thing."

Tom Watson walks off with top money in Byron Nelson tourney

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Watson, who blew a chance to win this title a year ago, turned back Jack Ewing with a solid six-under-par 65 and scored a two-stroke victory Monday in the rain-delayed $175,000 Byron Nelson golf tournament.

Watson took the second title of his four-year pro career with a 279 total, 15-under-par on the 6,957-yard Preston Trail Golf Club course.

Last season, Watson was tied for the lead after 67 holes of this tournament—then hit one in the water.

From a nine-man scramble when the day's play started Monday, Watson and Ewing moved into a share of the lead and made it a two-man fight at the turn.

Playing in front of Watson, Ewing was tied for the lead going to the 16th hole.

But the hard-hitting Ewing drove into the right rough, missed the green with his approach, chipped over the green, chipped back and oneputted for bogey.

That gave Watson the lead alone.

BIRDIED FINAL HOLE

Bob E. Smith birdied the final hole for a 67 that moved him past Ewing and into second alone at 271.

Ewing's 67 gave him a 272 total and third place.

Veteran Rod Funseth and Larry Nelson were one more stroke back at 273. Nelson had a 68 in the steamy, spring weather and Funseth shot a 70.

Australian veteran Bruce Crampton, a winner last week in Houston, could do no better than par-71 and was tied at 274 with one-time Dallas fireman Dwight Nevil. Nevil shot a 67.

George Knudson of Toronto had a closing round 70 for a 275 total and $4,393.

Johnny Miller, a three-time winner this season and pre-tournament favorite, struggled to a 74 that left him tied for 35th at 281.

Watson collected $35,000 from the total purse of $175,000.

Pat Scanlon paces Expos to 11-1 win over Braves

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos discovered Monday night that they have had a tiger sitting on his tail.

Pat Scanlon came off the bench because regular third baseman Larry Parrish was ailing and Scanlon responded to his first starting appearance by collecting two hits, including a three-run home run, in helping the Expos to an 11-1 win over Atlanta Braves in National League baseball action.

"I felt good hitting early," said Scanlon, who also drove in a run with a first-inning infield out.

Scanlon, who had two hits in six at-bats going into the game, said his homer that keyed a five-run third inning came on a timely swing. The ball stayed fair to the foul pole down the right-field line. "THE ONLY ONE"

"Heck, a ball like that I usually hook," the left-handed hitter said of the inside fastball. "The swing I had at that ball was the only one I could have had and kept it fair."

Manager Gene Mauch said he decided to start Scanlon after a game Sunday against Houston Astros. "It was in the training room when I saw Parrish's knee and thumb. He's banged up a little. But they're all here because we know they can do some things."

The Expos scored two runs in the first, another in the second on Gary Carter's second homer of the season, and chased Braves starter

Carl Morton, now 5-3, with the third-inning offensive. It was the former Expo's first loss in seven decisions against his old club.

Winner Steve Rogers, 2-4, picked up his first victory in five lifetime decisions against the Braves. He scored a fifth-inning run, drawing a walk, advancing to third on a single and coming home on a fielder's choice.

Tony Scott drilled a seventh-inning single to score the other Expo runs, and Earl Williams led off the ninth with his third homer of the season to account for Atlanta's only score.

Reliever Jim Brewer hurls Dodgers to win over Cards

Reliever Jim Brewer of Los Angeles Dodgers probably couldn't pitch four innings every day, his manager, Walter Alston, says. But he certainly could, and did, Monday night.

The left-hander, usually called on for shorter relief stints, entered the game against St. Louis in the seventh inning and scored a victory as the Dodgers defeated the Cardinals 6-4 in 10 innings.

"This is probably the longest I've pitched in three years," Brewer said. "I thought I might get to pitch around the fifth inning when they called down to the bullpen."

But it was the seventh when Brewer was summoned to the mound, replacing starter Andy Messersmith who became sick with the flu. Messersmith said he had the illness for the last two days and that "I went as long as I could."

In Monday's other National League baseball action, Montreal Expos beat Atlanta Braves 11-1 and New York Mets defeated San Francisco Giants 3-2.

The Cardinals, down 3-2 entering the bottom of the ninth inning, reached Brewer with a run to stay alive. Bake McBride, running for Ted Simmons who singled, advanced to third on a pair of infield outs and scored on Ken Reitz' single to left.

But Los Angeles wasted little time retaking the lead by coming up with its second three-run inning of the game.

Tom Paciorek hit a two-out single off Mike Garman in the 10th to break the tie and Rick Auerbach followed with a two-run single.
