Police await contact as kidnap drama drags

By ROBERT MacPHERSON (Record Reporter)
SHERBROOKE — Quebec Police are awaiting further contact today from the kidnapers of a local banker who are demanding $1 million for his safe release.

"We expect some kind of contact with the abductors sometime today," a police spokesman told The Record this morning.

He added there were no new developments overnight after the discovery of a van used by two armed and hooded men to abduct Charles Marion, 57, a credit manager at the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke-Est, from his cottage in Stoke late Saturday night.

There has been no direct telephone or personal contact with the kidnapers, police said yesterday. The only communication has been through two notes and messages broadcast by a local radio station.

Mr. Marion was abducted at about 11 p.m. Saturday, when the two men arrived at his cottage on the 11th Concession Road East, in Stoke, 15 miles northeast of Sherbrooke.

The men, carrying small arms and with dark hoods over their heads, took Mr. Marion hostage while they bound Aline Yergeau, 41, a secretary at the caisse. The abductors put her in a small shed on the cottage property before fleeing with Mr. Marion in his 1973 GMC van.

The following day, Mr. Marion's wife, concerned about the absence of the pair, roamed the cottage area. At about 7 p.m. Sunday, she heard a voice screaming from the shed. When she opened the door, she found Miss Yergeau.

Quebec Police were immediately notified while Miss Yergeau was admitted to Hotel-Dieu hospital in Sherbrooke for examination. She was released later Sunday, but could not be reached by reporters at her Lennoxville home yesterday.

A neighbor told The Record, "She's gone away somewhere."

No further word on Mr. Marion was heard until Monday morning, when a note was found in the night deposit box of the Caisse Populaire Ste. Jeanne-d'Arc, 1011 Galt Street West.

The note demanded $1 million for the safe release of the career banker.

A different note was found at a second location yesterday morning, but Quebec Police refuse to specify the contents or where it was found.

The receipt of the notes was acknowledged through local radio station CHLT, according to the instructions of the kidnapers.

The first acknowledgment, sent at 3 p.m. and 4 p.m. Monday, said: "Mr. C. Nebets wants Mr. C. Noiram to get in contact with him." The phrase was repeated three times during each of the two broadcasts.

Parliament ends controllers strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament ordered a halt to a three-day-old strike by the country's 2,200 air traffic controllers early to day with emergency legislation ordering them back on the job.

Air services crippled since early Sunday morning were scheduled to begin again within hours. The union predicted services in many parts of the country would be normal in 12 hours or less.

The bill received passage at 3:40 a.m. EDT after 12 hours of debate in the Commons and the Senate because of all party agreement to waive normal parliamentary rules and avoid prolonging debate. A bill normally requires several days to process.

Although there was unanimous agreement that the bill should not be blocked on procedural grounds, opposition members in both the Commons and the Senate said the dispute between the controllers and the government, their employer, was foolish and unnecessary.

Even the union said it had not been worthwhile.

LEADER BITTER
"I don't think the strike was worth it," said a bitter Jim Livingston, president of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association (CATCA), referring to the bill's imposition of the last government wage offer on the controllers.

"But it has left a legacy of bitterness that is probably going to make the members more militant," he said.

The strike was the third by the controllers since 1972, the second on contract issues. Last year, rotating strikes by controllers to protest government bilingual policy in air communication led to a full-scale walkout by the country's pilots.

The contract imposed on the controllers by today's emergency legislation expires Dec. 31 and negotiations for a new agreement are to begin within a few months.

Parliamentary critics said they failed to understand why the strike had occurred at all because there had been little difference in the basic wage positions of each side.

The dispute centred on a 4.6-per-cent additional increase for controllers being reclassified into higher categories.

Some critics blamed Transport Minister Otto Lang for failing to resolve the dispute through negotiation rather than legislation—the first used to end a strike by government employees.

Irish crowds cheer Queen despite IRA 'blitz' vow

BELFAST (AP) — The Queen arrived in war-torn Northern Ireland aboard the royal yacht Britannia today for a jubilee visit and what may be the two most dangerous days of her life.

The outlawed Irish Republican Army's Provisional wing has promised to unleash "a blitz to remember" and 32,000 police and troops were on full alert to guard the monarch and her family against any violence.

Thousands of Irishmen, women and children lined the coastline and cheered when Britannia loomed out of a low mist and anchored off Belfast harbor. A 21-gun salute greeted the royal yacht.

The Queen was accompanied by Prince Philip and two of her youngest children, Prince Albert, 17, and Prince Edward, 13.

It was the first time the 51-year-old Queen has been in an area where troops are engaged in active combat.

SEEKS UNITY
The IRA, which wants to unite predominantly Protestant Northern Ireland with the largely Catholic Irish republic in the south, sees the Queen's visit, marking the 25th anniversary of her reign, as a reaffirmation of British rule over Northern Ireland.

Five days of rioting, gun battles and terrorist acts by IRA sympathizers led up to the royal visit. On Tuesday, a 16-year-old Roman Catholic youth and a British soldier were shot dead.

Later in the day, a one-pound bomb exploded on the grounds of the new University of Ulster at Coleraine, where the Queen is scheduled to visit Thursday. There were no casualties or damage.

Northern Ireland's million strong Protestant majority, which wants to keep Ulster British, decorated its neighborhoods with festive bunting and Union Jacks to welcome the monarch.

The royal party will bypass Belfast during the jubilee visit because the city has been the centre of violence since 1969, when Northern Ireland's current round of sectarian fighting broke out.

When Elizabeth and Philip last toured Belfast, in 1966, a bottle was hurled at them and a concrete slab was dropped on the hood of their car. No one was injured in the incidents.

Unemployment leads to new dollar drop

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian dollar's fall to an eight-year low on New York money markets Tuesday was blamed by analysts on statistics showing an increase in unemployment last month.

At close of trading, the Canadian dollar was worth 92.86 U.S. cents, up fractionally from the 92.80 U.S. cents value it had fallen to earlier in the day.

This is the dollar's lowest level since November, 1969, and the first time since 1970 it has closed at less than 93 U.S. cents.

A Royal Bank official said figures released earlier in the day showing 8.1 per cent of Canada's work force unemployed in July were the "chink in the armor" Tuesday.

"That and the fact (the dollar) got through the 93-cent barrier. It's searching for a new floor again."

He said the market was "fairly quiet and fairly orderly," and that selling was both speculative and commercial.

HIT LO IN 1931
In its 119-year history, the Canadian dollar has often risen and fallen in value. It reached an all-time low in December, 1931, when it was valued at 80.08 U.S. cents.

By 1959 it had climbed to an all-time high of 105.75 U.S. cents, but soon began to fall and was pegged at 92.50 U.S. cents during the 1962 election campaign by then-Prime Minister John Diefenbaker.

Although it had a fixed value, it fluctuated slightly between 1962 and 1970, dipping to 91.74 U.S. cents early in 1968.

The Canadian dollar bounded upwards when the federal government floated it—allowed it to fluctuate in response to day to day pressures—in May 1970.

It was worth 4½ cents more than the U.S. dollar in the spring of 1974.

It has lost a total of about nine cents in relation to its U.S. counterpart since last year, including more than one cent in the last two weeks.

PCs to sue Liberals over uranium cartel

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Joe Clark announced Tuesday night that he has initiated steps to take the federal government to court to challenge the legalities of its participation in an international uranium price-fixing cartel.

Prime Minister Trudeau said earlier in the Commons he has asked advisers to review a 1976 cabinet order that the opposition feels restricts open debate—even the seeking of legal advice—on the operations of the cartel.

Clark issued a statement saying the Progressive Conservative party has retained Toronto lawyer John Sopinka as counsel "in respect of possible legal action arising from the government's involvement in the international uranium cartel."

The Conservatives, who have obtained documents from a U.S. court case about the cartel, say the operation may have violated Canadian anti-combines law and damaged Canadians because, for example, nuclear electric power stations had to pay higher prices for uranium.

WRITE TO MINISTER
Clark also said he and five other Conservative MPs have written formally to Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie seeking his consent, judged necessary by the cabinet order, for them to discuss material relating to the cartel with Sopinka.

The Progressive Conservatives have hammered the government for three straight Commons sitting days over its involvement in the cartel, especially the order it issued last fall to restrict release of information on the issue.

Trudeau told Sinclair Stevens (PC—York-Simcoe) that he has asked Justice Minister Ron Basford to review the order and to consider changes to ensure a free and open debate on the government's involvement.

The federal government said last year that it joined the cartel in the early 1970s to keep the price of uranium above production costs to prevent collapse of the country's uranium mining industry.

PM, kids on cross-Canada tour

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau set out Tuesday night on a week-long cross-country tour by private rail car with his three children.

As Parliament sat late into the night debating a bill ordering the country's air traffic controllers back to work, the private government car, equipped with sleeping and dining facilities, was attached to the westbound CN Super Continental.

A spokesman in the prime minister's office said the trip would include stopovers in three or four national parks along the route, including two days in Jasper National Park in Alberta.

"The prime minister wanted to show his kids Canada and give his kids a train ride," said the spokesman.

"It's an outdoors type of holiday using the train as a principal means of conveyance."

He said the prime minister had been planning the trip by private rail car for some time but had only decided to leave late Tuesday evening after he was assured the back-to-work bill would be passed.

Activities in the national parks will include hiking, mountain climbing and canoeing, he said.

A maid from the Trudeau residence was accompanying the children—

Justin 5, Sacha 3 and Michel, 21 months. Trudeau and his wife Margaret are separated.

The prime minister is scheduled to travel to Prince Rupert and will fly to Whitehorse for a meeting of the Yukon legislative assembly Aug. 17.

He returns to Ottawa Aug. 21.

PQ accused of inflexibility

QUEBEC (CP) — Opposition spokesmen accused the Parti Quebecois government Tuesday of inflexibility for refusing to accept any of the amendments proposed so far during clause-by-clause study of Bill 101, the Charter of the French Language.

The government side replied by accusing the Liberals of conducting a filibuster, zeroing in on Bill 101's education provisions to propose amendment after amendment.

"This is not a filibuster," said an angry Fernand Lalonde (L—Marguerite-Bourgeoys).

He said the Liberals have about 80 amendments to propose to the bill's 219 clauses and they are "all aimed at injecting a little more sense into the law."

Lalonde and his colleagues will have to work quickly if they want to introduce 80 amendments since there is talk of ending committee study of the language bill by the middle of next week.

A Parti Quebecois member complained privately that he and his colleagues had refrained from speaking on the bill during second reading debate (agreement in principle) so that it could be quickly referred to committee, only to find it stalled there by the Liberals.

Two opposition amendments aimed at broadening access to English-language schools were defeated Tuesday and a third seemed headed for the same fate when the committee adjourned for the night.

DEFEATED PROPOSAL
By a vote of 10-6, government members defeated a proposal by Fernand Grenier N— (Megantic-Compton) that would have allowed children who attended English-language schools unofficially last year to enrol legally this September.

Education Minister Jacques Yvan Morin said the amendment would have discriminated against parents who accepted the results of language proficiency tests administered under the Official Language Act, the law which Bill 101 is to replace.

New Hydro rates sought

QUEBEC (CP) — Energy Minister Guy Joron has asked Hydro-Quebec, the provincially run utility, to seek a one-year rate increase in anticipation of the government's white paper on energy.

Robert Boyd, newly-named Hydro president, had written to the minister last week notifying him the utility would seek higher rates for the next three years. Published reports said the rate hikes would range between 17 and 20 per cent annually during that period.

But Joron said in a statement Tuesday that Hydro should hold back on 1979 and 1980 rates until the government releases its policy proposals on energy in the form of a white paper, expected in the fall.

Northern pipeline issue to require compromises

Negotiations going to be tough

WASHINGTON (CP) — Despite President Carter's expressed optimism over a proposed U.S.-Canadian natural gas pipeline, an American official said Monday the two countries face hard, intense negotiations over the northern pipeline issue.

Commenting on the Canadian cabinet's decision to approve an Alaska highway route for the natural gas pipeline from Alaska, with significant conditions to benefit Canada, the official said the next step will be for the two countries to set up special negotiating teams: "It's going to be tough, I don't think there's any question about that."

Canada, he said, has many specific concerns it wants met while the United States wants the cheapest possible delivery system for the Alaskan natural gas.

"It's going to require compromise and accommodation on both sides and every time you get into things like that you lower the chances of political acceptability."

In Plains, Ga., Carter told reporters he is optimistic that U.S. negotiators can reach "some degree of agreement" with Canada in time for him to meet his Sept. 1 deadline for choosing between the Alaska highway and El Paso alternatives.

TALKED WITH TRUDEAU

Carter said he talked with Canadian Prime Minister

Trudeau earlier Monday about the proposed pipeline and that he thinks bilateral negotiations will start within about a week "if all goes according to schedule."

Among the conditions that have been suggested to the Canadian government are delaying the pipeline project until 1981 to allow social and environmental preparations in the Yukon, setting up a $200 million fund for Yukon development, paid by the pipeline interests, and lengthening the pipeline route to facilitate future construction of a pipeline for Canadian use.

Those conditions for Canadian acceptance of a pipeline through the Yukon, British Columbia and Alberta were recommended last week by a commission set up to consider the impact of such a project on the Yukon.

The U.S. official said the recommendations are not welcomed in the U.S.: "I think the reaction has been one of concern down here because obviously they increase the cost to the consumer."

If the Canadian conditions, as specified in inter-governmental negotiations to start shortly, are unacceptable to the U.S. government, the U.S. has the option of choosing the El Paso proposal to ship the Alaskan gas south in tankers, without crossing Canadian territory.

A source close to members of Congress who will be dealing with the pipeline issue said that if Canada places too many conditions on the pipeline, the rival El Paso project will benefit. El Paso plans to move natural gas through Alaska by pipeline, then to the rest of the U.S. by tanker.

SPEED A FACTOR

The chief interest in the U.S., he said, is "who can be the first with the gas."

He said if Canada stands by the recommendations of the pipeline inquiry, it would be "rather difficult to swallow."

"I would expect it would not make anybody particularly enthusiastic" if Canada followed proposals for a delay to 1981 in construction, or a $200-million compensation fund to be paid by Foothills.

He also said native land claims "don't have a damn thing to do with gas" and should not be a factor in any pipeline decision.

"Whether or not there's gas up there, the claims still have to be settled," he said. "I don't know if anybody would be that favorably inclined to a Canadian gas settlement that had the American gas consumer paying for the settlement of Canadian native claims."

EL PASO COMMENTS

Mike Holland, manager of El Paso's Anchorage, Alaska, office, said he does not see anything new in Trudeau's announcement.

He said the decision to approve negotiations with the U.S. means the two countries are "still searching for the basis of an agreement."

He said El Paso is not giving up the fight because "we don't see any indication that Carter will delay his decision" past the Sept. 1 deadline.

"We doubt that the various uncertainties surrounding the Foothills proposal can be resolved in time for a favorable Alcan decision by the end of the month."

But Stewart Udall, a Washington lawyer who represents Foothills, said he thinks the decision to negotiate is "good news for both countries."

"I'm confident that conditions favorable to both countries can be worked out," he said.

Udall noted that Canada "has not taken a hard line" on conditions attached to the pipelines, which means agreement might be reached "without considerable difficulty."

Canada's jobless rate jumped sharply in July

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of unemployed Canadians jumped sharply in July to 878,000, an increase of 64,000 from a month earlier, Statistics Canada reported recently.

The unemployment rate, adjusted for seasonal factors, rose to 8.1 per cent of the labor force from 7.7 per cent in June.

In June, there were 814,000 unemployed and a year earlier there were 775,000 jobless.

The actual unemployment rate in July was 7.9 per cent, compared with 7.2 per cent in July, 1976, and 7.5 per cent in June this year.

The federal agency said that five provinces showed significantly higher unemployment rates, with Quebec leading. The jobless rate in that province jumped to 10.3 per cent from 9.7 per cent in June.

The hard-hit Atlantic provinces showed a mixed picture in July. The unemployment rate eased to 15.3 per cent from 15.7 per cent in June in Newfoundland.

In Nova Scotia, jobless rates fell to 10.1 per cent last month from 11.1 per cent in June.

But in Prince Edward Island, unemployment rose to 9.8 per cent of the work force from 9.7 per cent in June, and in New Brunswick it increased to 12.9 per cent jobless from 12.8 per cent in June.

STILL LOWEST

The unemployment rate also rose in Alberta, to 4.5 per cent of the province's work force last month from 4.1 per cent in June. This was still the lowest provincial unemployment rate.

In British Columbia, jobless rates increased to 8.5 per cent of the work force from 8.3 per cent in June.

Unemployment declined in the five other provinces.

In Ontario, unemployment eased to 6.8 per cent from 7.2 per cent in June.

Manitoba's jobless rate fell to 5.8 per cent last month from 6.1 per cent in June. In Saskatchewan, the jobless rate was 4.5 per cent, down from 4.8 per cent in June and the same rate as in July a year ago.

The increase in the number of unemployed during July follows a decline in June, when the number of jobless Canadians declined by 10,000.

For the past 11 months, unemployment rates have been running significantly higher than a year earlier. July's rate compares with 7.3 per cent jobless in July, 1976. But it is still below the post-Depression peak hit in April of 8.3 per cent jobless.

The July figures show that young workers continue to be severely affected by high unemployment rates. For students planning to return to school in the fall, the jobless rate was 15.1 per cent.

The unemployment rate for men aged 15 to 24 was up to 7.4 per cent from 7.3 per cent in June. Women in the same age group showed a 9.3 per cent unemployment rate last month, up from 9.2 per cent in June.

Men 25 and over had a 5.1 per cent unemployment rate, the same as in June. For women 25 and over, the rate eased to 6.9 per cent from 7.2 per cent in June.

The number of people with jobs last month increased to 9,743,000 from 9,731,000 in June. Unemployment rates in major urban centres ranged from a high of 16.4 per cent in Chicoutimi-Jonquiere, Que., to 4.6 per cent in Hamilton, Ont.

Of the 878,000 unemployed last month, close to one-third - 251,000 - had been searching for work for more than 14 weeks, Statistics Canada said.

With Parliament resuming yesterday to consider legislation to end the air controllers' strike, opposition members can be expected to attack the government over the latest jobless figures.

Lates figures for inflation are to be published by Statistics Canada on Friday, and they are likely to show that prices have also escalated in July.

Dominion Textile profits up

MONTREAL — The following preliminary unaudited results for the year ended June 30, 1977, have been issued by Ronald H. Perowne, chairman of the board of Dominion Textile Limited.

Sales were $498,939,000, up from $475,420,000 the preceding year.

Earnings for the year were $1.87 per share before an extraordinary charge of 16 cents per share resulting from write-offs of leases and full amortization of assets relating to the double knit operations in the United States. In the year ended June 30, 1976, earnings were $1.23 per share.

The TSE 300 index was up 1.32 to 1,038.81 with gains in three of its four most heavily-weighted groups.

Indian government wants the secret to Coke's taste

NEW DELHI, India (AP) —

The Indian government had demanded that the American producers of Coca-Cola turn over control of their Indian operations and the secret to Coke's taste to Indians or get out of the country.

Accusing Coca-Cola of squeezing up to 400 per cent profit from Indian franchised bottlers, Industry Minister George Fernandes demanded that the company transfer its technical know-how and 60 per cent control to an Indian firm.

The announcement in the lower house of parliament Monday night was cheered.

Fernandes also said government chemists have perfected a formula for a substitute beverage which could provide employment for the 150,000 Indian Coca-Cola workers should the Atlanta, Ga., firm pull out.

Indian officials of the Coca-Cola Export Corp. said comment would have to come from their managing director, Kisan Mehta, currently in London for talks. But sources said Coke would probably opt to pull out rather than give up the secret that has made the beverage internationally popular.

PROFIT MILLIONS

With an initial plant investment of only $75,900, Coca-Cola had actual and claimed earnings of $11.5 million prior to 1974, Fernandes said - more than the foreign exchange it brought into India.

Last April, India's reserve bank ordered the local branch of Coca-Cola Export Corp. to convert itself into an Indian corporation within one year, with a maximum foreign equity of 40 per cent.

Fernandes said Coca-Cola agreed - but with the condition that the American side would maintain a "quality control and liaison office" in India to guard the "trade secrets", meaning the syrup formula.

The proposal was rejected, Fernandes said, because it violated the 1974 Foreign Exchange Regulation Act providing that technical

Voluntary restraint support endangered by Ottawa's tactics

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal efforts to win organized labor's support for voluntary wage restraint are being endangered by government tactics to end the current air traffic controllers' strike, the Canadian Labor Congress, CLC, warned Monday.

CLC President Joe Morris said that recalling Parliament to legislate an end to the controllers' strike "is bound to have a serious effect on our people's consideration of government proposals with regard to the determination of wage and price controls."

The government has been trying to get business and labor support for voluntary restraint as a pre-condition for ending the anti-inflation program before its scheduled expiry at the end of 1978.

The CLC is meeting later this week with representatives of employers and with its 114 affiliated unions to decide upon its response to the federal proposals.

In his statement, Morris said the CLC had warned the government previously that imposing controls would restrict collective bargaining. "Wage controls have abrogated the free collective bargaining system," he said. "We run the risk of reaching a stage where there will be no settlements between labor and management without government intervention."

He also criticized Transport Minister Otto Lange for his comments during the weekend that the government may restrict the right to strike for workers in industries where a shutdown damages the economy.

Morris said that "not only would such legislation grievously diminish the rights of public employees, but also might infringe upon the rights of workers in the private sector."

Hostage drama continues

Police find getaway vehicle

The second acknowledgment was sent at the same time and in the same fashion, although the content differed slightly.

The 4 p.m. message interrupted the regular San Diego-Montreal baseball broadcast on the French-language station. It began with an announcer saying: "We are interrupting for a moment to present a message in the public interest. Here is our reporter, Richard Desmarais."

Mr. Desmarais then repeated, three times: "Mr. Nebets wishes to speak to Mr. Noiram."

The two names are the reverse spelling of Mr. Marion and Claude Steben, the manager of the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke-Est who is apparently the addressee of the two notes.

Police yesterday issued photos and descriptions of Mr. Marion and his van, which was discovered at 4:45 p.m. yesterday in the parking lot of the Sherbrooke Municipal Airport, at least 20 miles' driving distance from the Marion cottage. Police immediately began checking for fingerprints, and there were no indications of violence in the vehicle.

The victim is 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighs 170 pounds, with brown hair and a receding hairline.

ESCAPE VEHICLE — This van, owned by the kidnap victim, 57 year old Charles Marion was used in the crime. It was recovered yesterday afternoon at Sherbrooke airport.

When he was kidnapped he was wearing jean shorts and a white shirt.

A police spokesman added Mr. Marion suffers from no ailments and is reportedly in excellent physical condition.

The Marion family cottage is on a small parcel of land located deep in the hills around Stoke on a dusty back road far off main roadways.

The main house is a small, white clapboard structure with the inscription, "Mon Repos" on the front.

There are two smaller red cabins in the back, including the one where Miss Yergeau was found.

A flock of domesticated geese waddled around the backyard when two Record reporters arrived late yesterday afternoon.

No one was home, but a man in his 20s — possibly Mr. Marion's only son — arrived with another man in a pick-up truck when the reporters were leaving.

He firmly but politely asked them to leave, which they did.

Earlier, reporters from Montreal news outlets were turned away by Quebec Police patrolling the road.

A helicopter was also being used to patrol the area yesterday and Monday.

Unemployment up More workers, less work in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Industry Minister Rodrigue Tremblay said Tuesday an increase in the labor force was at the root of Quebec's 10.3-per cent unemployment rate in July.

Tremblay told the Quebec national assembly that although unemployment reached 10.3 per cent in July, after registering 9.7 per cent in June, there were 47,000 more Quebecers working last month.

But the unemployment level was still "unacceptable," he said.

Tremblay said a province does not have the powers to stabilize the economy, adding that some observers say the federal government has failed to stimulate the economy.

"Measures for an economic recovery are necessary," he said, adding that passage of this government's bill to provide tax breaks for corporations had been blocked by opposition Liberals.

Bus committee to oversee route

SHERBROOKE (RM) — An agreement to create a public transport committee for Sherbrooke and Lennoxville has been prepared. The document, which is expected to be approved by both Sherbrooke and Lennoxville councils, defines the new committee as overseeing the operation of Sherbrooke Transit's bus route 18, which connects the two cities.

Piggery theatre premier

Pretzels: A pig in a poke

By BARBARA STEVENSON NORTH HATLEY — The Piggery Theatre's third production of the season, Pretzels, which opened last night, is a pot pourri of modern comedy and musical skits.

There is something for everyone to relate to whether it be the shock of a class reunion, the insecurity of shopping for cosmetics or the putdown at a party by a sophisticated snob. The quality of the skits varies, although the performance by the three stars attains a high level throughout.

Keeping the audience interested with the variety of topics and with the lively piano interludes by pianist Douglas Dahlgren, the evening's tempo moves at a fast pace.

Trudy Cameron provides the revue's highlight with her spontaneous, skillful portrayal of the housewife breaking out of her traditional role into a "song and dance vamp."

Though lacking the vocal depth of Maida Rogerson, she fills that role as well as others convincingly. She even manages to hold audience attention in the rather trite monologue of a single mother that contained little humorous impact or revelation.

Bruce-Eric Smith as the third performer and as choreographer filled his roles with excellence and dynamism.

The production, however, lacks unity. Although a rock and roll singing group opens and closes Pretzels, it provides no strong sense of overall unity to the production other than to set its modern tempo.

In comparison to the season's opening hit production, Two Score and More, Pretzels lacks a certain sparkle, a unity of purpose and quality, and a particular audience appeal such as nostalgia for another era.

However, last night's revue generally provides plenty of laughs in an entertaining addition to this variety-filled summer of Eastern Townships English language theatre.

Director of Pretzels is Burton Lancaster. The play continues until August 20 with curtain time at 8:30 p.m. It is written by Jane Curtin, Fred Granby and Judy Kahan with music and lyrics by John Forster.

Goodyear waiting on DREE

The fate of the B.F. Goodrich cellular rubber plant here is dependent on a decision by the Department of Regional Economic Expansion on what sort of funding will be made available.

Talks are continuing among the company, the government and a group of interested buyers, headed by retired Goodrich employee, Roger Smith.

The group met Monday in Montreal with representatives of Goodrich head office in Akron, Ohio. A final decision is expected Aug. 19.

Union acceptance expected

At a special meeting tonight, workers from Domtar's kraft paper mill here are expected to accept the last company offer to keep the plant open past the September 30 deadline.

Union members agreed Monday night to rescind the vote held last Thursday that rejected the same offer, 161-160.

A spokesman for the union estimates 350 members will attend tonight's meeting. Thursday's vote drew only 321 of 475 eligible workers.

Workers have been under increasing pressure from community groups and families to accept the company's non-negotiable proposal to extend the life of the mill.

The ad-hoc committee, composed of the mayor, union and business representatives, have recommended acceptance.

A group of wives of Domtar workers sent a letter to the union executive saying that acceptance of Domtar's offer would be the best immediate solution.

The proposal, calling for layoffs, production increases and salary freezes has been criticized by the union as being unjustifiably harsh.

Hydro report incorrect

The Sherbrooke Record reported last week that Hydro Quebec would make the decision on whether to proceed with the proposed Fullerton Pond project by the end of this year.

In fact, Hydro reports they will only decide whether or not to continue their feasibility studies this winter.

If the utility proceeds with the studies, a final decision on the pumped power storage station will not be made before 1980.

Hydro does say however, that should the studies continue, residents in the area will have the opportunity to make their opinions known.

Pow, Enright plead not guilty in Gagnon murder

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Douglas Pow, 20, of West Brome and Phillip Enright, 18, of Bromont pleaded not guilty to charges of first-degree murder for their part in the slaying of Randy Gagnon, 16, of Abercorn at their arraignment here yesterday.

A pathology report produced at the coroner's inquest, revealed Gagnon died as the result of a single shot from a .38 calibre weapon at 1:30 a.m., June 11. His partially decomposed body was found at supper time June 15, by QPF Constables Marcel Lachance and Andre Lessard of the Cowansville detachment, on the Judd

Road, a cul-de-sac leading towards the United States border about three miles east of Abercorn. The body had been located by a search party in a QPF helicopter.

Judge Gerard Normandin

remanded the two suspects in custody pending preliminary hearing which was set to August 16. An arrest warrant has also been issued for Robert Grenier, 20, of Cowansville in connection with the murder.

Weedon asked to boil water

Residents of Weedon Center are being asked to boil their drinking water for 20 minutes after the provincial environmental protection service detected coliform contamination in the local waterworks system.

The municipality is currently cleaning the system, the service said yesterday. The warning will remain in effect until further notice.

Webster funeral held

MASSAWIPPI (RM) — Funeral services were held here yesterday for Lorne Stuart Webster, a long-time resident who died suddenly Saturday.

Mr. Webster, who was 68, was born Sept. 10, 1908 in Quebec City to Sen. Lorne Campbell Webster and Muriel Taylor.

After schooling at Selwyn House and Lower Canada College in Montreal, he graduated with a Bachelor of Commerce degree from McGill University in 1930, then joined the family fuel business.

At the time of his death, Mr. Webster was vice-chairman of St. Lawrence Stevedoring Ltd. of Montreal. He was also a director of numerous other concerns.

In 1940, he acquired Bonnyburn Farm in Massawippi, which he visited often with his family.

His death occurred at his summer home in Prouts Neck, Maine when he collapsed while playing tennis with friends.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Gregory Webster, his son, Philip, daughters Susan Riddell, Victoria Wanklyn, and Lucy Grossman-Hensel, and 11 grandchildren.

He also leaves a sister, Marion Taylor, and four brothers — Colin, Howard, Richard and Eric.

The funeral, conducted by Rev. Fred Tees of Sherbrooke, was held at the Massawippi Union Church yesterday afternoon.

Reservations accepted for country suppers before each performance.

Four people would sit on the committee — three from Sherbrooke and one from Lennoxville.

Sherbrooke councillor Jean-Guy Archambault, a member of the city's own public transport committee, said the new committee would allow Lennoxville to participate in negotiations with Sherbrooke Transit.

In the past, the privately-owned bus company has operated under a contract negotiated only with Sherbrooke. The current contract expires in December, and negotiations for a new one are due to begin in a few weeks, Mr. Archambault said.

In an interview with The Record, the Sherbrooke councillor said the city currently has no intention of assuming control of Sherbrooke Transit.

Putting local transit services under municipal control is not one of the Parti Quebecois government's current policy aims, he said, indicating it would be difficult to obtain provincial assistance in such a move.

Mr. Archambault also termed "realistic" a fare increase which went into effect on Sherbrooke Transit routes last Friday. The increase, which the company attributed to rising fuel costs, adds five cents to the price of a token or set of four tokens.

As it is applied, Mr. Archambault said, the increase amounts to slightly over one cent a ride if passengers bought tokens in groups of four.

In the youthful spirit of giving

For many, the hospital is a frightening and lonely place. Patients awaiting major surgery have little to cling to but the cold steel sides of their hospital beds.

But 13-year-old Vicky Nutbrown is working hard to bring a human touch to patients and to quell the loneliness and fear that so often accompanies illness.

Vicky is among 20 young people who are spending their spare time this summer to participate in the Sherbrooke Hospital's "Volunteer" program.

Although Vicky's work in the operating room involves clean-up and general errands, her special job is making patients more comfortable before their operations.

"Sometimes people have to wait 15 minutes outside the operating room," she said. "Most of them are really frightened and just having someone to talk to helps a lot."

Members of the Volunteer program are used to augment regular hospital services on medical and surgical floors and in the diet kitchen, operating room, medical records and emergency departments.

Steve Laframboise, 17, one of two male volunteers, turned down a paying summer job to work at the hospital. While most volunteers work an average 10 hours a week, Steve is at his X-ray-department job 40 hours each week.

"I'm looking at a career as a doctor, and I wanted to get a glimpse of my future," he said. "As a volunteer, I'm getting a general view of how a hospital works and I'm really enjoying it."

Volunteer organizers say the program is an asset to the staff, the patients and the workers themselves.

"There aren't many jobs, and instead of hanging around all summer these kids have chosen to do something worthwhile. For those interested in future medical careers, it gives them an inside look at a hospital," says Eleanor Cook, one of the group's co-ordinators.

"For those who aren't, it offers them a job, obligations, and responsibilities," said Mrs. Cook, who co-ordinates the program with Mrs. Rigmor Strom.

Whether Volunteers are running errands, preparing meals, or just talking with patients, their youthful presence adds a homey touch - all important when home can seem so far away.

Anti-smoking bylaw effective as constitutionality questioned

By MARLENE ORTON OTTAWA (CP) — After seven months, Ottawa's new and controversial anti-smoking bylaw seems to be working, in the sense that no one has been charged since it came into effect Jan. 1.

But although a number of other Canadian cities have copied the law or expressed interest in doing so, no one is sure just how strong it is.

That will be determined when it is tested in the courts.

Actually, Ottawa has had a non-smoking law since 1950—revised in 1974—banning smoking in stores occupied by 25 or more employees, but it was little publicized and largely ignored.

The new bylaw tightened smoking restrictions and forced proprietors of public places to designate no-smoking areas at the risk of being fined.

Smoking now is banned in all retail stores, patient-care areas in hospitals, banks, municipal offices, elevators, stairways, reception areas and public-service lines.

Taxi drivers have the right to prevent passengers from lighting up and taxi passengers have the same right with drivers. Violations of the bylaw carries a maximum fine of $1,000.

The ban has served as a model for other Canadian cities and towns wanting to control smoking.

Calgary's city council has asked commissioners to draw up similar legislation and Toronto has approved a non-smoking bylaw which goes into effect Oct. 1.

"We get inquiries from many other municipalities, mainly in Ontario, asking how we went about putting the bylaw into effect," said municipal information director Douglas Payne.

He said most callers are interested in public reaction to the bylaw.

"After all," said Edna Eisenberg, past president of the Ottawa-Hull Non-Smokers Association and the driving force behind the smoking ban, "we are trying to get people to change their lifestyle because for many years they have been used to smoking in public areas."

Mrs. Eisenberg, who began campaigning for provincial and municipal smoking bans in 1973, said her 2,000-member organization receives numerous requests from non-smoker groups across the country asking for encouragement and advice in approaching their local officials for a similar ban.

COMPLAINTS RARE

Police Inspector George Zhukow, whose morality squad is responsible for enforcing the ban, said the public seems to support the bylaw and his department rarely receives complaints about violations.

"There is no way the police constables could go into every store to see if people are breaking the law," Zhukow said. "The public has reacted well to the bylaw."

The only smoking violations in evidence, said Edith Dronshok, the city lawyer who drafted the bylaw, are found in places which do not post the mandatory no-smoking signs. "The bylaw has worked because the public has attempted to make it work," she said. "And that is why we have never made a prosecution."

Enforcing the bylaw still is a major issue and when the ban first went into effect, city councillors argued that it should be rigidly enforced by directing a police constable to the scene of the crime.

MAYOR TRANSGRESSED

Once Mayor Lorry Greenberg and several members of the press lit up at a council meeting. They were ordered to "butt out" by an alderman, who called police. A constable arrived minutes later to find a grinning mayor with an unsavory looking coffee cup. The alderman decided not to lay charges.

City Solicitor Don Hambling's major concern is whether the city had the legal authority to enact the bylaw.

He said the then minister of intergovernmental affairs, John White, approved the bylaw, citing sections of the Municipal Act respecting fire matters and public health, safety and welfare as proper authority. But Hambling still questions the constitutionality of the ban.

"I expressed the contrary opinion saying those sections do not give the authority, but do not of control decided to enact the bylaw."

Hambling said Toronto legal department officials have expressed the same concerns about the smoking ban.

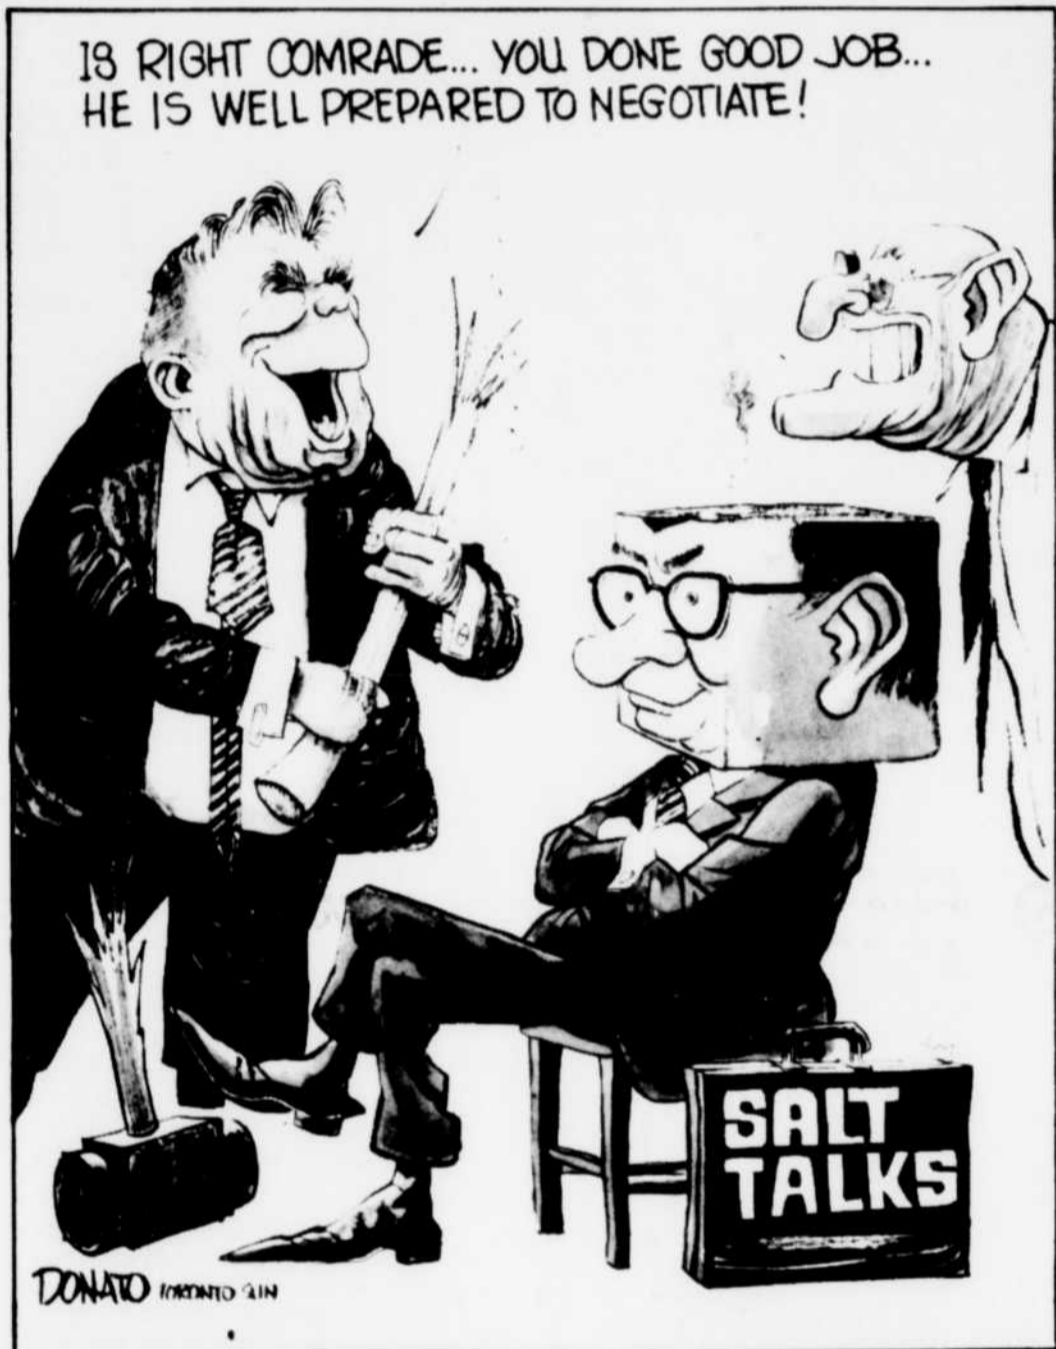

STATUS UNCERTAIN

"The only way to find out is to wait for a test case and we'll find out when someone takes it to the courts. But the courts have already said where there is a municipal law dealing with smoking, the city cannot rely on the fire section of the act for anything outside fire matters.

"If the government had wanted to deal with a matter like smoking under the health and welfare section, they would have specified that in the Municipal Act."

Most non-smokers would not bring a smoker to court, said Mrs. Eisenberg. "But we hope smokers will realize the immediate effects of tobacco smoke on people with allergies, asthma, bronchitis and other ailments."

The onus is on store-owners and employees, rather than anti-smokers, to ask a smoker to put out a cigarette, she said.

Name change pondered for Anglican Church

MONTREAL (CP) — The Anglican Church of Canada will discuss a proposal to change its name to the Episcopal Church of Canada at its general synod which starts Thursday in Calgary, a spokesman said Monday.

Rev. Thomas Whitcroft, director of social services for the church's Montreal diocese, said in a telephone interview that Rt. Rev. Reginald Hollis, Bishop of Montreal, has requested the subject be discussed.

The Ottawa diocese of the Anglican church, which has jurisdiction in part of Quebec, recently passed a resolution supporting the name change and will introduce the motion at the synod.

Whitcroft said he thinks all six dioceses in Quebec will support the name change because "to the francophone ear the name l'Eglise Anglicane sounds like the name of an ethnic church or the English church."

He said delegations from Ontario and Western Canada may oppose the idea because they "may see it as just another infringement from south of the border."

The bishops may not want to follow the 200-year-old precedent of the church in the United States, which renamed itself Episcopal at the time of independence from Britain.

CITE EXAMPLES

Those who favor a name change argue there are two other countries where the Anglican church is known as the Episcopal church: Scotland, where the Queen is its spiritual leader, and Brazil.

If there is opposition to the resolution at Calgary its supporters may seek a compromise solution, Whitcroft said. This would involve retaining the present name but adding the words "often known as the Episcopal church" so local congregations would not be obliged to change their legal names of incorporation.

Thirty years ago the church changed its name from The Church of England of Canada to the Anglican Church of Canada.

In its submission to Quebec national assembly hearings into Bill 101, the province's proposed language legislation, the church said that while its first priests in Quebec in the 18th century spoke and led worship in French, "respect for and the need for co-operation with the Roman Catholic Church led us to limit our preaching in French."

"However, we are not an ethnic church and we look forward to the development of more francophone congregations."

The denomination's two largest congregations in the province are in Montreal with 58,000 followers and in Quebec City which has 16,000 followers.

Carter school-mate to control US spies

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House officials are sensitive about calling an old college classmate of President Carter the U.S. "intelligence czar," but CIA Director Stansfield Turner is getting unprecedented power over the country's spy community.

Under an administration plan announced recently to centralize control of intelligence operations, Turner will have authority over the budgets, goals and activities of the country's spy agencies.

The plan places Turner, a U.S. Naval Academy classmate of Carter, in charge of a special centre setting out the tasks of individual agencies. Turner also will head a National Security Council committee which will define the nation's intelligence needs.

Jody Powell, White House press secretary, said the plan, the result of a study that began last spring, gives Turner new responsibilities. But he said, "It retains with the department of defence the authority they believe they need to accomplish their mission and strengthens the role of the National Security Council."

In addition, he said, it gives the so-called consumers of intelligence information, government decision-makers, direction over the work of the spy agencies.

Carter's reorganization makes three major changes: - It establishes within the NSC a policy review committee, made up of the secretaries of state, defence and the treasury, and Carter's national security assistant, Zbigniew Brzezinski. The panel, headed by Turner, will assign and define priorities for intelligence agencies and analyze their work.

- It sets up a National Intelligence Tasking Centre to assign specific duties to the agencies. The centre will function under Turner during peace-time and under the secretary of defence during times of war or other crises.

Jack Anderson's

Washington Merry-Go-Round Corporate giants put the squeeze on

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

Corporate Pressure: Two corporate giants, General Motors and Procter & Gamble, have used their economic clout to block the establishment of the proposed Consumer Protection Agency.

White House sources tell us that both companies threatened to withdraw business from Blue Cross unless the medical insurer softened its support of the consumer agency. Blue Cross insures approximately 750,000 General Motors workers and about 50,000 Procter & Gamble employees.

President Carter has endorsed the Consumer Protection Agency, which would become the consumers' official advocate in Washington. But many corporations fear it would develop into a bureaucratic Ralph Nader that would constantly hound them. Business lobbyists have been swarming over Capitol Hill, therefore, to oppose the creation of the new agency.

But the Blue Cross Association, in behalf of its 84 million members, wrote a strong letter to President Carter on June 1 supporting the proposed agency. "We do not look upon the Agency for Consumer Advocacy as a potential opponent," declared the letter, "but as a partner in identifying consumer issues and meeting consumer needs."

We have checked out the next development carefully with trustworthy sources. They say that Blue Cross executives heard from both General Motors and Procter & Gamble.

According to these sources, General Motors threatened to withdraw some employees from Blue Cross insurance unless the association changed its tune. Procter & Gamble made a similar threat to invoke "economic sanctions" against Blue Cross, our sources say.

Spokesman for both companies vigorously denied that General Motors or Procter & Gamble had threatened Blue Cross in any way. An official Blue Cross spokesman acknowledged that several corporations, including General Motors and Procter & Gamble, had protested the Blue Cross letter. But he also denied that any companies had threatened to withdraw business.

Nevertheless, White House sources say that Washington representatives of Blue Cross called the White House consumer office and tried to water down the June 1 letter.

A Blue Cross executive told the White House sheepishly that the association was not supporting any particular bill. Yet the June 1 letter specifically mentioned the proposed Agency for Consumer Advocacy. The executive also said the Association could not speak for its 84 million members. Yet the June 1 letter emphasized the 84 million membership.

In the end, the Blue Cross official mentioned that the letter was being weakened to "placate" corporate clients. He also confessed that General Motors and Procter & Gamble had threatened economic retaliation.

TV TERROR — The average high school graduate, in addition to his formal education, has witnessed 18,000 murders on television. He has also had a ringside seat to "countless incidents of robbery, arson, bombing, forgery, beating and smuggling."

Yet the characters who cavort on the nation's television screens during prime time are more aggressive than ever. Not only has violence reached its highest level in prime time, it is even worse on Saturday mornings. Twice as much physical aggression is shown on the Saturday children's shows.

These are the conclusions of a confidential study by the House Communications Subcommittee. The release of the report has been mysteriously held up for weeks. Some committee members, say our sources, don't want to embarrass the network brass as they are lining up their fall program schedules. However, we have obtained a bootleg copy.

The researchers counted 42 antisocial acts per average hour on television. This amounts to one bad example for children every program minute. The violence level dipped slightly in 1974 but then soared 20 per cent during 1975-76, the study found. Much of the increase has come during the family viewing hours.

All three networks claim they have reduced the violent content of their programs. But the subcommittee found that only CBS had restricted violence. "The industry has not yet been able to come to grips with the problem," the report charges, "despite years of attention to it."

The study cites evidence that television definitely influences young minds. "Aggressive-prone children are susceptible to televised violence," the report charges. "The viewing of televised violence tends to reduce children's inhibitions against acting violently; some children may copy what they see."

Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., added a supplement to the report, warning that children have been injured trying to imitate the acts they have seen on the tube.

Footnote: Disputing the confidential findings, network executives strenuously maintained that violent "action programs" have decreased over the last few years. Less than 10 per cent of ABC's new fall schedule, for example, contains action shows, a spokesman contended. An NBC spokesman also claimed his network had reduced the violence content of its programs. CBS not only has cut out some police shows, but is the only network to monitor television programming in an effort to reduce scenes of violence.

Upcoming marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Aime Thibault of Lennoxville wish to announce the upcoming marriage of their daughter Anne to Mr. Peter Turpin, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.A. Turpin, also of Lennoxville, on September 3, 1977, at St. Antoine's Church, Lennoxville.

40th Anniversary

STANSTEAD (IH) — Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Barlow of Rock Island were the guests of honor at a small dinner party given by friends and held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brock, Stanstead, on July 24, the 40th anniversary date.

In keeping with the wedding anniversary ruby tradition, the bride of the 40 years, was presented with a corsage of ruby red roses, while the groom had a ruby red rose boutonniere.

The party to sit around the dining table included ten, and toasts were proposed to extend good wishes to Ken and Lora. A fruit cake, made by Mrs. Brock was decorated by Mrs. Horace Doyon with red roses and inscription on white icing.

After dinner a social evening and chatting was enjoyed.

Ann Landers says

Give him a chance

Dear Ann Landers: A long time ago you printed a letter from a man who lived in Oklahoma. He wanted to know if he could be buried in his 1939 Dodge. We laughed when we read that one and I was sure you made it up because you came through with such a clever answer.

Well, I want to apologize for my thoughts because I read just today that a woman in Los Angeles left a $2.5 million estate and a court commissioner is trying to decide whether or not to honor her request. She wants to be buried next to her husband in a lace nightgown, in her Ferrari ... with the seat slanted comfortably.

Now what was the answer you gave that man in Oklahoma? — Good Memory But Slipped A Cog

Dear Cog: I suggested that he be cremated and put in the ashtray.

The commissioner, however, might have a little trouble with my suggestion. The L.A. woman's next of kin could have something to say about it.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 13 years old and need some help. My problem is giving me headaches.

My father works in a school. Nearly every day he brings home something that doesn't belong to him — like rings, umbrellas, pens and so on. I'm sure he finds these items in school because they are not new and he would not be buying them even if they were. Who needs ten umbrellas?

Yesterday I went to the hardware store with my father and I saw him take a screw off a pipe and put it in his pocket. Next he helped himself to some washers for the faucets — just put them in his pocket. Then he BOUGHT some washers and paid for them. I couldn't believe it.

When we came home I took money out of my piggy bank and went to church and put it in the candle box. I'm so afraid my dad will get caught stealing I don't know what to do. Please help me.

— Sad Girl

Dear Girl: Have a quiet talk with your father. Tell him you think he should be turning the items he finds in school over to the lost and found. Explain that it bothers you when he brings these things home. Also tell him you saw him absent-mindedly slip some cheap items into his pocket when you went to the hardware store together. Give him a chance to come out looking decent. I bet he shapes up, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently a woman wrote to you and complained that whenever her in-laws are in her presence they speak their native tongue and she feels very uncomfortable. It seems her in-laws have been in this country for 15 years. Your advice was really terrible. You told her that she should learn some phrases in their language ("Hello — Goodbye — How nice! Isn't that too bad — thank you"). That would make them feel more kindly toward her (according to the maven of all time) and she in turn would feel less hostile toward them.

Such garbage! Why didn't you address yourself to the real problem? Something is out of kilter when people live in a country for 15 years and refuse to learn the language. Tell it like it is or quit telling it. — St. Louis

Dear Lu: What makes you so sure the in-laws can't speak English? Many people who were born and reared in other countries speak their native tongue when they are among "their own" because it is easier and they are more comfortable with it. Whenever possible I try to give the underdog the benefit of the doubt. It's a good approach. You ought to try it sometime.

Dear Ann: Your answer to the fellow who knew a lot of straight students on campus who were trying bisexuality for kicks was right on target. I'd like to thank you and add, amen, Sister.

One night I got bombed on beer and stoned on pot and went the other way with two other straights who were also bombed and stoned. We wanted to see what it was like. When we sobered up several hours later we were all sick to our stomachs and couldn't look at each other. It never would have happened had we been in our right minds. We all agreed it was stupid, nutty and something we'll be ashamed of for a long time.

Thank you for having the courage to deal with problems of this kind. Your advice is right on and you are performing a much-needed service.

Shalom From Colorado

Dear Shalom: Thanks for your kind words. I received precious few plaudits in response to that letter. Most people who wrote misunderstood my answer completely. They accused me of being condemnatory, vicious and mean to all homosexuals.

Strips can save lives (Reflectively) trim traffic fatalities

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK — (NEA) — It's a fine summer night, so you decide to go for a walk. You take your red sweater, in case the wind blows up, and your house keys and, oh yes, you should wear something white so motorists will see you on the road.

There, you're perfectly safe now.

Or so you think. The fact is when you get out there on that dark road — in your dark clothes and your light clothes — you've set yourself up for a hit better than the Mafia could.

According to HEW statistics, dark clothes disappear from sight at 55 feet at night, red fades away at 80 feet, and white becomes invisible at 180 feet.

Not especially earth-shattering, until you learn that a car traveling at 60 miles per hour requires about 250 feet to stop dead on a dry, flat road.

So unless you provide that driver with something he can see well in advance, you may end up a statistic for the National Highway Traffic and Safety Administration which reports that 8,259 pedestrians were killed in traffic accidents in 1976; almost half of them at night.

The remedy is simple enough. Wear a reflective trim, something made of microscopic glass beads or prisms which generate no light of their own (unlike fluorescent material, they won't glow during the day) but do reflect light focused on them — from headlights, for instance — for more than 500 feet.

Spend a few cents for reflective patches, strips or dots and sew them on jackets, back packs; stick them on the soles of your shoes (you'd be surprised how visible that is when you're in motion), backs of bicycle seats, your brief case, the inside of your car door, your pet's collar, and anything else that may hit the road at night.

If you don't want to bother with that, you can try to find items with inconspicuous reflective trims in sportswear and shoe departments, though it may take some looking.

International Shoes, for one, is marketing a line of men's, women's and children's jogging and walking shoes called Road Lites for fall, which came about partially because of a scare.

"I almost hit a kid driving down the road near my home," says Robert McElroy, general manager of International Shoe Co., "and it sprung my getting involved in reflective shoes."

J.C. Penney is including a couple of boys' and girls' coats with reflective trims in their fall line; Munsingwear is offering T-shirts; Wonderalls is making a toddlers snow set, and so on.

Whatever you do, give yourself a chance against that car at night.

And give the driver a chance, too. Almost hitting a pedestrian is bad enough. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

KEEP SAFETY IN MIND when buying outerwear and when dressing for after dark. Reflective trims fit the fashion picture by day (left); after dark the brilliant reflection makes the wearer highly visible to motorists at a distance of up to 500 feet (right). Reflective trim by "Scotchlite."

Small child's "grow jacket" has cuffs which can be turned down as the child grows, available in blue, tan, berry and green. J.C. Penney ($19).

Teenager's Pacific Trails ski jacket is fur-lined with a hood, available in green, brown, navy and red. (From $24 to $30.) Mittens by Snow Country feature two reflective stripes on six fashion colors. Available at department stores nationally. ($2.99.)

LACED AND ruffled peasant peplum gown pleases both mother and daughter at bedtime. The puff-sleeved, square-necked blouse, made in soft crushed Caprolan nylon, tops a matching, softly-gathered ruffled skirt. By Slumbertogs.

Fashion and Beauty Tips

Mascara magic
When applying mascara to lower lashes, slip a tissue under them to keep the mascara off your skin.

Check for huggability
Looking for a turtleneck to wear under a shirt? Choose one that hugs the body, so it fits smoothly under that shirt.

Freckle find
The best camouflage for freckles is a foundation that's slightly darker than them, but not so dark that your complexion looks unnatural.

Nix on nicks
Soap and water go a long way to preventing nicks when legs are being shaved, and shaving cream helps most of all.

Break this habit
Never brush hair when it's wet — you're more apt to break ends then.

Not-so-big is better
Boots are as big as ever this year, but if you're short, avoid those that reach to the knee and choose ankleboots instead.

Let white lingerie soak

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — I have trouble keeping my white lingerie really white. Should they be washed with other pastels as some are not supposed to be bleached? Should I put them in the dryer? Any help you could give me would be appreciated. — JAYNE.

DEAR JAYNE — You failed to say so I am only presuming your underthings are nylon or polyester. Authorities suggest restoring whiteness by pouring one-half cup or more of a liquid cold water detergent that has a special brightener over the damp garments and work in thoroughly. Let them soak this way for about 20 minutes and put garments (with excess liquid from the soaking) in the washer with hot water. I only run them through the delicate cycle. Run machine about 10 minutes in all and have the rinse warm. Some things will take to a properly diluted chlorine bleach in the wash. Nylons have been known to absorb color from other things particularly if they are packed away with other colors. If all else fails to restore the desired whiteness, color remover could be used. I put such things in the dryer for a short time until dry but they could be rolled in a towel and ironed if desired. — POLLY.

WI meeting

ABERCORN - The August meeting of the Abercorn W.I. was held in the W.I. Hall, with a delicious lunch at noon with Mrs. Payne and Mrs. Hoyt as hostesses, on August 2nd.

In the absence of the president, 1st vice-president, Mrs. Haggerty, called the meeting to order, by all repeating the Collect, in unison. Seven members answered the roll call, by giving as many pennies as their waist measure. Motto: Hatred stirs old quarrels, but love overlooks insult.

The secretary, Mrs. Hoyt, read the minutes of the previous meeting, also June's, accepted as read.

Treasurer reported all bills paid, and a fair amount in the bank. It was decided that the treasurer send for two motto W.I. pins.

Conveners reporting - Agriculture, Mrs. Lahue - Some vegetables do not grow well, next to certain others, copies to be made for all members.

Citizenship - Mrs. Bleser - As a project, look into the background of your homes: who lived there, and the age, history, as many houses in this district are very old, and several generations of the same family have occupied the same home. Our W.I. Hall is well over 100 years old.

Publicity - Mrs. Garland read some items from the History of Abercorn W.I.

Mrs. R. Lahue was appointed to look for a refrigerator for the Hall.

Moved by Mrs. Wilkins and seconded by Mrs. Payne, that Mr. Lahue make us four sawhorses for our tables, carried.

Collection was $2.50.

Surprise parcel donated by Mrs. Gibson was won by Mrs. Haggerty.

Meeting closed with the Grace, next meeting in Hall on Tuesday, September 13.

UCW meeting

KINNEAR'S MILLS - A meeting of Kinnear's Mills U.C.W. was held in the Church parlor on Thursday afternoon and was opened by the President, Mrs. Alma Reid. Mrs. Sadie Jamieson led devotions using as the theme, "Linings of Silver". The devotions were closed by reading a "Prayer for Women".

The minutes were read and approved. The Treasurer, Mrs. Audrey Allan, reported on the supper held July 9, which was a success socially and financially.

A welcome was extended to a guest, Mrs. Myrtle Oliver, of Loretteville, a former member of this group.

A bale was packed to send to a Mission Hospital in Angola, Africa.

It was voted that $100.00 be given to L.O.L. 559 in appreciation for the use of their hall.

A request was made that the U.C.W. collect bread clips, as Kinnear's Mills W.I. collect the used postage stamps.

It was voted that a bill for $23.00 be paid for dishes that were purchased for the hall.

The meeting was adjourned and the ladies enjoyed a delicious lunch and a social chat together.

During this time, the President, Mrs. Reid gave a brief account of her trip to Vancouver, stopping en route many times to visit cousins in western provinces.

No saccharin for mothers

OTTAWA (CP) — Pregnant or breastfeeding women should not consume saccharin or products containing saccharin, an independent expert committee set up by the federal health department recommended Tuesday.

The committee, set up in March after the federal ban on the sugar substitute was imposed because tests on laboratory animals linked saccharin to cancer, also recommended that the government allow the artificial sweetener in minimal quantities in irreplaceable prescription drugs.

These drugs would have to taste so bad without saccharin that no patient would take them, the committee said.

"The only types of drug formulation likely to meet these requirements are those taken in liquid form or as chewable tablets," the health department said in a news release.

The committee also recommended the government gradually eliminate the use of saccharin in mouthwashes and toothpaste by Dec. 31, 1978, a year earlier than originally planned.

The health department said it will take the committee's recommendations into account when drawing up saccharin regulations.

The federal government will allow the sale of pure saccharin behind the counter in drugstores, as a non-prescription drug, for use by diabetics and others who must restrict their intake of sugar.

The sale of soft drinks, beverage mixes and beverage bases containing the sugar substitute will be allowed until Oct. 1, and the sale of other foods containing saccharin until Dec. 31.

Joyal annulment bid fails

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal backbencher Serge Joyal tried unsuccessfully late Tuesday to have the Commons annul an agreement which settled last year's language strike by air traffic controllers.

Joyal (Maisonrouve-Rosemont) also tried to persuade the Commons to declare the federal transport department as the only body responsible for implementing bilingual air traffic control.

Last summer's strike was called to protest proposals to use French at Montreal control towers.

Joyal put forward his changes in a proposed amendment to the governments emergency bill to end the current strike of controllers over a pay dispute.

The amendment, seconded by Louis Duclos (L—Montmorency), was rejected on the grounds that went beyond the scope of the government's bill. The bill received swift passage shortly afterward.

The 1976 agreement

among the transport department, the controllers and airline pilots, included a provision to establish a special inquiry into the safety of bilingual air traffic control.

Joyal quoted Senator Jean Marchand, former transport minister who quit the Liberal cabinet over its handling of the 1976 dispute, saying the inquiry was redundant because the transport department already had all the tools it needed to determine the bilingual air safety question.

Joyal said the agreement should be abolished if relations between the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association and the transport department are ever going to return to normal.

Joyal who later voted with his Liberal colleagues in passing the back-to-work bill, said he accepted the bill with "great reservations" because Transport Minister Otto Lang had threatened to withdraw the controllers' right to strike.

Lang should not have made such a threat, he said.

New "Sam" description out

NEW YORK (AP) — Police released a new, more detailed description and a new composite drawing Tuesday of the 44 calibre-killer known as Son of Sam.

Police described the man as clean-shaven, with dark almond-shaped eyes, dark wavy hair, a sensuous mouth, high cheekbones and an athletic build.

Police said the killer, who has slain six persons and wounded seven during the last year, is 25 to 32 years old, white, 5 feet 8 to 5 feet 9 inches tall and weighs 165 to 175 pounds. They said he was wearing a blue denim jacket, matching blue denim pants that were slightly flared, a bluish-gray shirt with a pattern of small kidney-shaped designs, and blue denim deck shoes with narrow white bands.

Police said his hair is combed straight back. Earlier descriptions had him with a sideparted hairstyle.

Embezzler too generous

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — His office colleagues were impressed when William Sibert, 30, a government clerk earning $10,000 a year, suddenly began treating them to lunches in various restaurants.

He also kept turning up at his transportation department office wearing new suits, and started boasting about his new luxury Lincoln Mark V Continental car, and a Mercedes he had purchased for his wife.

Finally, curiosity turned to suspicion, and last Friday government investigators decided Sibert had financial support aside from his relatively modest salary. He was charged with embezzlement in a cheque-altering scheme which, investigators said, may have diverted as much as $850,000 to his bank account.

He was arrested in Las Vegas with $59,000 in cash. Sibert was planning on quitting his job soon, an investigator said.

Israel refuses PLO

JERUSALEM (AP) — In one of its most-serious rifts with the United States over Middle East policy, Israel has refused to accept the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) as a partner in peace talks.

Prime Minister Menahem Begin on Tuesday night rejected U.S. efforts to bring the PLO into Middle East negotiations, reminding U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance that the PLO is committed in its charter to the abolition of the Jewish state.

"That organization, the philosophy of which is based on an Arabic Mein Kampf, is no partner whatsoever and never will be a partner to hold any talks," Begin said, referring to Adolf Hitler's anti-Semitic treatise Mein Kampf.

"Their aim is to destroy and annihilate our people," said Begin, speaking at a state dinner in Vance's honor. "Some say we are sensitive about it, and we are. It is logical to learn from experience."

In response, Vance urged the Israelis to take bold steps in the quest for peace although it may mean "uncertainty and change."

"We will never propose to you a course that will not include the means for assuring your security," he said. He did not mention the PLO by name.

CALLS FOR SETTLEMENT

President Carter and Vance and his aides have said the PLO may be approaching a decision to accept UN Security Council Resolution 242, which recognizes Israel's right to exist within secure borders and calls for a negotiated Middle East settlement.

In her leisure hours her fingers were kept busy creating beautiful quilts and rugs and other crafts which she gave to her family and to both churches, as well as others. Just shortly before her last illness she made a quilt and donated it to the Granitville church, and it sold for a sizeable sum. She was a historian and loved to chat about the early days at the Boundary, especially as she was latterly confined to her home so much, due to ill health.

Mrs. Buchanan celebrated her birthday on Saturday, Aug. 6, and we all hope you have many more. This following poem was written by Mrs. Stevenson, a resident at the Home, and expressed her feelings, as well as all the rest, to Mrs. Buchanan.

To:
Mrs. Buchanan
My love to you, and just a line
To tell you that this heart of mine
Appreciates your kindness true.
And often murmurs "God Bless You".

To brighten the corner where you are
Is surely what you do
We have a Dorcas of our own
What would we do without you?

And so God placed you here with us
Another one of His gifts,
A good example to us - you know
To tell you - I cannot resist.

Much love on us you do bestow
To copy - I have tried
It is the Master's touch, I know,
Selflessness - personified.

Your advice and love means much to us,
'Tis hard to express - in a way,
But our Father in heaven, has it all marked down,
So may you have a "Happy Day".

GEORGE K. MANN

of Stanstead
Following a lengthy illness, George King Mann of Stanstead passed into peaceful rest on Friday, July 22, 1977.

The funeral was held from the Cass Funeral Home, Stanstead, on Monday afternoon, July 25 at 2 p.m., Rev. Ralph Rogers, a friend of the family officiated, speaking in tribute of the late Mr. Mann.

The bearers were five grandsons, Richard Cooper, Robert Mann, Terry Cooper, Alan Parker and Wayne Smith, also Floyd Webb.

Interment took place in Crystal Lake Cemetery.

Mr. Mann was born in London, England, on November 22, 1893, a son of George King Mann and Minnie (Humphrey) Mann.

He grew up and was educated in England and was in the outbreak of World War I he enlisted in the Middlesex Regiment in England. During the conflict he was buried under shell fire in France and spent 12 months in a hospital in England for treatment of shell shock. In 1916 he was officer in charge of a group of Conscientious Objectors Transport from England to Ireland and in 1917 was back on the "front lines". At the time of the Armistice he was in Belgium and in February 1919 was returned to England with his honourable discharge.

In October, 1919, he was united in marriage to Nellie Howell, also of London, England and three months later, January, 1920, they came to Canada and to the home of Mrs. Mann's brother, William, at the Lake (Memphremagog) Shore, Beebe.

Shortly afterward they established their Canadian home in Granitville where Mr. Mann was employed by Brodie Stone Quarries. When World War 2 erupted, Mr. Mann went to Montreal to offer his services and enlisted in the Veterans Guards and was stationed in Sherbrooke until discharged as medically unfit.

With many of the young men employed at Butterfields in Rock Island, going into the service, Mr. Mann entered the employ of the Company, later to leave to work for Crystal Lake Cemetery Inc. then on maintenance at Stanstead College from where he retired in 1954.

During these years, Mr. and Mrs. Mann made their home in the Border community.

Mr. Mann, after coming to Canada, joined the Great War Association which was later to become Stanstead Frontier Branch, No. 5 of the Royal Canadian Legion. A few years ago, Mr. Mann was honored when made a life member of the Stanstead Legion Branch.

Mr. Mann had a "green thumb" and enjoyed spending time in the garden; the past few years, at their home, the flowers have been a showpiece display, he enjoyed reading, and as his work often included carpentry, he also, as a hobby, made and finished furniture, many of the pieces are in his and his family's homes.

It was the request of Mr. Mann that in lieu of flowers, memorials be given to the Haskell Free Library which had supplied him with books during his leisure years and this was done with several memorials given in his name. However, his wife placed the Veterans poppy along with his great-granddaughters, Angela and Valerie Smith's roses, another arrangement from the Military Police Base, Barrington, Nova Scotia where Mr. Mann's grandson-in-law was stationed and another arrangement from Mr. and Mrs. George Hood. This was shown the esteem in which Mr. Mann was held in the community.

Survivors include Mrs. Mann, their family, George and Lena Mann of Ville d'Anjou; Douglas and Nellie (Mann) Cooper, Stanstead, eight grandchildren, two great-granddaughters and a brother, William Mann of Lake Shore, Beebe. Another daughter, Rose Mann, died in 1950.

To attend the funeral, in addition to the immediate family, were Debbie and Cathy Mann, Ville d'Anjou, Robert Mann, Dollard des Ormeaux, Richard and Terry Cooper, Stanstead, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Parker, Greenfield Park, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Smith, now at Camp Borden, Ont. William Mann, Lake Shore, Beebe and other relatives from New Hampshire, Granitville and Beebe and friends from points of the Eastern Townships and Boundary Communities.

Captures provincial title with 7-6 victory over Rosemount

Sher-Mont All-Stars Vancouver bound

By STEVE BELL
(Sports Editor)

DORVAL — In every fairy tale, there's a hero and Sher-Mont's 7-6 victory over the Rosemount All-Stars last night not only gave them the Provincial Major Little League baseball title, but also Sherbrooke its newest — and youngest — sports idol.

Pierre Lacoursiere was just another right fielder until he stepped up last night to relieve starting pitcher Stephane Duplessis in the top of the fourth inning and systematically eliminated Rosemount's scoring threat to keep intact Sher-Mont's single run advantage.

Lacoursiere gave up only one hit in two and a half innings at the mound, struck out five and walked only one. "Stephane just didn't have it tonight, stated a tired but happy coach Andy Boisvert after the game. "When I went out to talk to him he told me he was having a hard time."

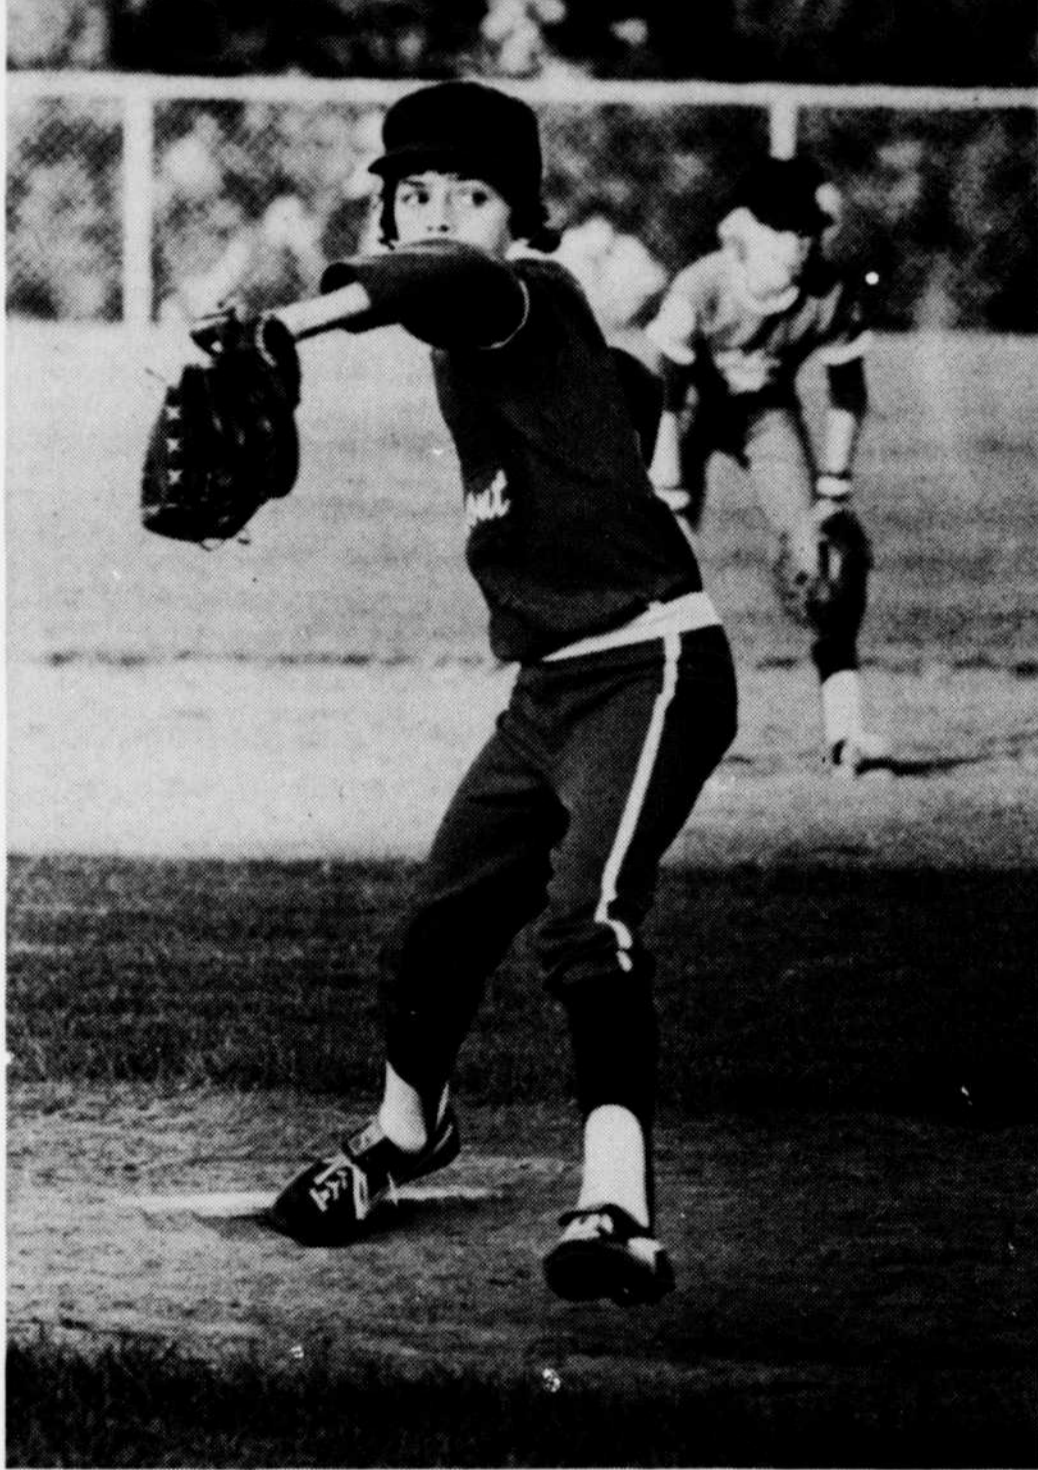

"We had prepared Pierre for something like this," said Boisvert. "He pitched exceptionally well. "I told Pierre to throw a lot of curves and low balls when he first went to the mound," added Boisvert, "but he began throwing sidearm and as a result he started to have some trouble."

But Pierre Duquette, our catcher, went out and told him to start throwing overhead again. After that he had no problems at all."

EARLY LEAD
Rosemount jumped to an early lead by picking up two runs in the first inning, taking advantage of a disoriented Sher-Mont infield. Pierre Bourque and Christian Triquet scored, both on sacrifices.

But Sher-Mont, while somewhat lacking on the field, proved deadly at the plate, retaliating in the bottom of the first inning with five runs of their own.

Michel Duclos scored Sher-Mont's first run on a single by Pierre Lacoursiere. Duclos started the batting line-up with a triple and the momentum carried the team to 5-2 lead going into the second inning.

SHERBROOKE'S NEWEST SPORTS HERO — Pierre Lacoursiere saved the day and put the Sher-Mont All-Stars in the Canadian Major Little League baseball championship with his superb performance at the mound last night. Pierre pitched the last two and a half innings in relief of Stephane Duplessis, and successfully kept Sher-Mont's single run advantage intact for the win.

Harold Ballard all smiles after meeting

NHL decides against merger

NEW YORK (CP) — Harold Ballard was all smiles as he strolled casually out of the fourth floor room where he and his fellow members of the National Hockey League board of governors decided not to expand to accommodate six World Hockey Association teams for the 1977-78 season.

Ballard, the owner of Toronto Maple Leafs, had won his war while Ed Snider, president of Philadelphia Flyers and one of the prime NHL backers of an association with the WHA, scowled after losing.

Eleven floors above, the WHA applicants sat in shock but expressed determination to keep their five-year old league going as viable opposition to the NHL. They were annoyed and visibly disappointed.

"But it's a good thing for everybody," said Ballard, who had expressed his unhappiness with the expansion or merger plans in Montreal in early June.

"I won. It was always in the bag. It was very easy."

"Naturally I'm disappointed," said Snider as he strolled to the elevators down the long corridor. "I don't know what the vote was. It was a secret ballot."

Whatever the vote was, and there was some indication that as many as seven governors were against expanding, it was obviously short of the three-quarters approval required for such a plan.

SEEMED SET
Not all that long ago, it appeared the NHL was well on its way to accommodating the WHA teams. Everyone was told at a news conference in Chicago June 25 that the NHL board had voted to ask its fact-finding committee to pursue negotiations with the WHA with regard to expansion of the NHL by no less than six WHA teams in time for the coming year.

At that time, there appeared to be only one governor—Jack Kent Cooke of Los Angeles Kings—against the merger.

However, the issue was finally decided following a four hour session Tuesday after the finance committee had examined the applications of Quebec Nordiques, Winnipeg Jets, Edmonton Oilers, New England

Whalers, Cincinnati Stingers and Houston Aeros.

"We understand the governors didn't even vote on our applications," said Bob Graham, chairman of the board of the WHA's Winnipeg Jets. "Naturally we are shocked with this decision. It was unexpected."

Rejean Bruneau of Shawinigan, Que., won the 10-kilometre walk in 50 minutes 47.1 seconds with Hermann Beaulieu of Dolbeau, Que., second in a race that brought Newfoundland its first individual medal ever in Games competition.

Gordon Follett Jr., 19, whose father is also a walking competitor and was given the honor of presenting the medals, finished third in 53:36.6.

Ontario determined to regain team title

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Ontario came to the third Canada Summer Games determined to regain the team title it lost to British Columbia in 1973 and it might be on its way to success.

A strong showing by a water-skiing family from Mississauga and three gold-medal performances by track and field athletes helped push Ontario into first place Tuesday after two days of competition.

But a swimming accident may put a damper on the province's hopes of winning all six water-skiing medals.

Judy McClintock, 13, and her 16-year-old brother Joel won the women's and men's tricks competition Tuesday with brother Jim, 15, placing fifth.

But Judy went swimming with a group of Quebec athletes Tuesday night and suffered a cut on her foot when she stepped on a rock. The foot was bandaged and she was ordered to rest.

Water-skiing coach Cam McArthur said he expected Judy to be ready to perform today in the slalom, in which she would normally be the favorite.

Other Ontario gold medals Tuesday were won by Desai Williams of Toronto who took the men's 100 metres in a time of 10.54, Mike Forgrave of Barrie who won the men's 400 metres in 48.53 and Osmond Sargent of Toronto who set a Games record of 15.23 metres in the men's triple jump.

British Columbia, which edged Ontario by 6½ points in the 1973 Games in Burnaby, B.C., was the only other team to win more than a single medal.

Theresa Lenardon of Trail took the women's long jump with a leap of 6:00 metres and Sara Neil of Vancouver won the women's 800 metres in 2:11.2.

"Most improved team"

Padres drop Expos 8-3

MONTREAL (CP) — Gene Tenace, who worked with Dick Williams when both were in the employ of Oakland A's in the American League, drove in three runs on two home runs to propel San Diego Padres to an 8-3 victory over Montreal Expos in National League baseball play Tuesday.

"I'm not happy with the way I'm hitting," said the Padres catcher, who went 2-for-5 after entering the game hitting .228. His two circuit shots lifted his season home run total to 13.

"I'm sure I can do better than that. In my last four seasons I've finished strong, and that can happen this year too. I've got 100 bases on balls, and that shows that I don't get too many good pitches to hit."

Dave Winfield drove in two runs with a single in a four-run sixth inning for San Diego. The Padres' other runs scored on an error, a sacrifice fly by Jerry Turner and a bases-loaded walk to Mike Ivie.

"I had a big lead and I just wanted to keep the ball in play," said winner Dave Freisleben, 5-5. He yielded to reliever Rollie Fingers with two out in the eighth inning and saw Fingers record his 25th save.

THINKS EXPOS BETTER
"I think the Expos are the most improved team in baseball," Freisleben said. "They have a big league lineup out there with (Tony) Perez, (Dave) Cash and those rookies."

But Expos manager Williams saw through Montreal's inadequacies. "We're not getting the big hits when we need them. We're leaving a lot of men on base and we haven't had too many hits with two out and men in scoring position."

"HUSKING TIME"

Lucille Loubler CONSUMER AFFAIRS Here is a cooking method that will give you corn on the cob with a rich and "different" flavor.

For 12 cobs, pour in a large saucepan, 2 cups of water, 1 cup of milk, 1 teaspoon of sugar, no salt and bring to a boil. Cover and boil quickly for 15 to 20 minutes. You will find that corn cooked this way tastes so good that you'll adopt this method once and for all.

- Do not keep corn leftovers in the refrigerator. (cold will harden the corn.)
- Leftover corn can be easily reheated. Simply simmer in boiling water for 10 minutes.
- Never add salt to corn while cooking.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Stop the presses! Tabloid journalism hits Granby

GRANDY — Shylocks, suicide attempts and drug dealers are all part of a routine day's work for the ace reporter-photographer team of Guy Leclair and James Lambert of the tabloid daily, "Le Reveil" in The Aces, a CBC-Radio-Canada production being filmed on location in Cowansville and Granby.

Created by former Montreal newspaperman Victor Beaulieu and produced by Rene Verne, it revolves around two newsmen working for a tabloid whose content leans toward the sensational.

Series co-star Alpha Boucher, a 12 years television veteran who portrays cameraman Lambert, told The Record that the newspaper in the series is not based on any particular publication. "It could be in Sherbrooke or Granby as well as in the suburbs of Montreal," he said. The producers said there were distinct advantages in filming a television show in the Eastern Townships area.

Set designer Jacques Desrosiers said that there was a greater ease in obtaining permission to shoot at certain locations and that there was a high degree of co-operation from the cities and municipal agencies involved. "It's very nice," said Mr. Desrosiers, "especially because the people are nice."

Filming has taken place at Le Castel Motel in Granby and at the Health Club and Coco Bar in Cowansville. Future locations include the Brome-Missisquoi-Perkins Hospital and the Sweetsburg Ward court house.

"Les As" was launched with a successful pilot episode earlier this year in order to test viewer reaction to the possible series. Once it seemed that the show would be well received, plans for further filming went ahead and exterior locations that would match sets already constructed in the Montreal studios were sought out. "I've been on nearly every street in Granby," asserted set designer Desrosiers.

Story and photos by Nelson Wyatt

Capturing the flavour of a newsmen was another tall order to fill and Mr. Desrosiers told the Record that he toured offices in Granby, Joliette and Sherbrooke before he settled on the details that would give "Le Reveil" its own distinctive style.

Meetings between Radio-Canada personnel and city officials in both Cowansville and Granby followed and permission to film the towns was granted.

Mr. Desrosiers and actor Marc Legault, who plays the scribe Leclair, are no strangers to this area, having filmed the Montjoie series for five years on location in Granby and Bromont. "We've been here before," said Mr. Legault.

The 39 episode drama series, a first for creator Beaulieu, will premiere on Tuesday, September 20 at 8:30 p.m.

During the filming of one episode shot at Le Castel Motel a woman was at the brink of committing suicide by leaping from a five-storey building.

With screaming sirens and flashing red lights, local police were able to get in on the act. The two Granby officers involved, Constables Jacques and Fournier provided their driving skills and squad car to the production company under the eye of Chief Joseph Couture.

A small group of hotel guests recruited to provide a crowd of onlookers to the incident watched as our intrepid news team beat the cops to the rescue.

The episode was — as is common with most productions of the big and small screens — shot in different sections to be edited together at a later date into one cohesive program. Starring actress Jacqueline Gauthier, who has been involved in television work for approximately 15 years and who played the depressed girl, and Mr. Legault, who came perilously close to the rooftop's edge in trying to talk the young woman down.

Journalism as a topic for feature presentation has increased in recent years with the success of films such as All the President's Men starring Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman, Network with William Holden and Peter Finch, The Front Page with Walter Matthau and Jack Lemmon.

Though American networks have presented such newspaper dramas as The Andros Targets, The Name of the Game, Mobile One and Kingston: Confidential, Canadian efforts in this sphere have to date been limited to Fit to Print, a comedy pilot aired recently and McQueen, the story of a Toronto investigative reporter played by Ted Follows, in the late sixties.

OUT ON A LIMB — Actor Marc Legault, who portrays newsmen Guy Leclair in the new CBC-Radio-Canada series "Les As" tries to talk a suicidal young woman

(actress Jacqueline Gauthier) down off a rooftop in this scene from one of the series' episodes filmed in Granby at Le Castel motel recently.

Riot squad expected

Music in the Meadows down but not out

By NELSON WYATT
(Record Reporter)

SUTTON — The ill-fated "Music in the Meadows" rock concert slated to take place on the weekend may not be dead yet, although would-be spectators will be facing patrols of Quebec Police Force riot squad members.

The concert, promoted by local resident Georges Alfano and his Iron Horse Production Company, was scheduled to provide two days of music on a 160-acre property at the rear of the Iron Horse Saloon in Sutton Junction. Featured performers at the August 12 and 13 event, were to have included Nanette Workman, Boule Noire, Fussy Cussy and Tungsten Steel.

The idea was quashed when local residents, fearing vandalism and other acts from the crowd petitioned Sutton Town Council and the Township of Sutton municipal council for a ban on the event. Both bodies passed resolutions against the concert and sent letters to the Department of Justice in Quebec City objecting to the festival.

The stepped-up security precautions come after a decision by the Sutton Police and members of the QPF on measures to handle the concert when it did begin, with a force of over 500.

Asked if he expected problems in the aftermath of the concert's cancellation, Sutton police Chief Duplin told the Record, "Yes, I do," based on the experience of the QPF in their handling of other, previous rock concerts. He said that larger number of people might appear to collect on their tickets. Mr. Alfano told the Record in a recent interview that only three tickets has been sold in two weeks but Chief Duplin stated that as of last Tuesday, police figures on the sales totalled 4,000.

Chief Duplin said the co-operation of the public is essential in preventing any outbreaks of trouble. He asked that anyone seeing any suspicious groups or criminal acts contact the Sutton Police at 538-2200.

"We need the co-operation of the public to spot trouble between now and next Tuesday," he emphasized.

Mr. Alfano was out of town when the Record attempted to contact him and was unavailable for comment.

Approximately 5,000 to 20,000 people were expected at the "Music in the Meadows" concert which, besides the music, included three days of free camping in the price of admission. A large stage had been constructed on the roof of the Iron Horse Saloon from where the bands would perform.

According to Chief Duplin, plans changed, following the receipt of a letter at QPF headquarters in Montreal from Mr. Alfano which stated that the festival was being cancelled due to a lack of proper sanitary and first aid facilities as well as a proper government permit.

Preventive patrolling by a helicopter, a fleet of motorcycles and between four and 12 two man squad cars will begin this week.

The men will come primarily from the QPF regional headquarters at St. Jean, but reinforcements are standing by in Montreal and Drummondville, as well as the local detachments in the area at Cowansville and Granby.

In addition, a special communications network has been set up at the Sutton Municipal Police headquarters that can link and relays calls between the Sutton police and the QPF if trouble arises.

Deal—the classic Iago—casts doubt in Johnny's mind about Kathy's faithfulness.

The rest is history, as Shakespeare wrote it—or re-wrote it from earlier tales—and as Verdi adapted it for his internationally-renowned opera, Otello.

Catharines, Ottawa, Montreal, Kingston, Waterloo and Toronto.

Its sponsors hail the fact that this is the first big travelling show to originate in western Canada and tour east. After the Toronto engagement, Nov. 15 to Dec. 10, there will be a Christmas break for the cast, after which the tour could well be resumed.

Co-author of the show is Ken Mitchell, writer, actor and teacher who now is in the English department of the University of Regina. He and Gary (Humphrey) Walsh began putting Shakespeare's Otello into a contemporary prairie setting.

Otello becomes Johnny Roychuck, a rugged truck driver of Ukrainian descent who falls in love with the boss's daughter, Kathy.

Love endures for a time after they marry and move into an apartment, but then Johnny's closest friend, Jack residents of 22 villages from the Arctic Ocean south to the Alexander Archipelago who have been getting television since January, thanks to a $2-million state-supported experiment.

Dr. James Orvik of the University of Alaska's Centre for Northern Educational Research said it appears that "meetings—the town council or school board meetings—suffer tremendously because of TV. Television creates a tremendous audience out there almost immediately."

AFFECT CULTURE
Orvik is taking part in a study of five villages with television and five without to determine the "replacing effects" of television on traditional Eskimo and Indian culture.

The study will help the state decide whether to expand satellite broadcasts to 80 additional villages. A poll by the state office of telecommunications found

Company to own equipment

CRTC changes cable policy

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) has apparently bowed to political pressure by reversing part of its long-standing policy on the ownership of certain cable TV equipment in Manitoba.

In decisions released Monday, the CRTC seemed to give in to pressure from Ottawa and Manitoba to allow the provincially-owned telephone company to own all the basic equipment needed to deliver cable TV signals.

The decision now allows the Manitoba Telephone System to own cable amplifiers, used to boost TV signals along the cable. Previously, the CRTC had demanded that all cable operators across the country own their own amplifiers.

However, the CRTC held firm on the issue of ownership of cable drops, which are used to deliver the TV signal from the main cable to a residence.

Monday's decision leaves the ownership of this equipment in the hands of cable operators.

But the CRTC also said for the first time that cable operators must share with other companies the use of the drops.

This opens the door for a host of new types of electronic services to be provided by cable, but leaves the cable operators with the final say about the kinds of services that may be offered.

The issue over the ownership of cable equipment in Manitoba has been nagging the CRTC for about three years and has blocked the development of cable TV in the province.

The issue came to a head last year when the CRTC rejected three cable licence applications that would have allowed the Manitoba telephone company to own the disputed equipment.

Following those decisions, federal Communications Minister Jeanne Sauve and the Manitoba government struck a landmark agreement that gave the provincial phone company the right to own the equipment.

Mrs. Sauve also had cabinet set aside the three controversial cable licence decisions, which was the first time the cabinet had ever exercised that power.

Broadcasting observers have said the Manitoba ownership issue is highly significant because it challenged the CRTC's right to make decisions that are free from the political arena and challenged Ottawa's power to make federal-provincial communications deals that were respected by the CRTC.

VIEWED AS PRELUDE

The Manitoba pact is viewed as a prelude to Ottawa giving the provinces a larger role in communications matters. Quebec does not acknowledge Ottawa's claim to have jurisdiction over communications, while Saskatchewan is trying to bypass federal control on communications by setting up a closed-circuit pay TV system.

Manitoba had interpreted the pact with Ottawa to mean that it had the right to regulate a number of services that can be delivered by cable, but which the province considered to be non-broadcasting services.

These include such services as a grocery price guide, TV program listings and wire service news print-outs.

But the CRTC ruled that those particular services are part of the broadcasting system, and therefore are federally regulated.

However, such services, known in the trade as alphanumeric services, will have to be decided in future on an individual basis because it is too complex an issue to arrive at a blanket definition of what is part of broadcasting, the CRTC said.

In one of Monday's decisions, the CRTC gave approval in principle to the Greater Winnipeg Cablevision Ltd.'s application to start such services as a grocery price guide listing and a TV programs guide.

But full approval was deferred until the cable company works out a deal with the Manitoba phone company about how to broadcast those services to make the maximum use of unused channels that do not require a converter to be received.

The CRTC also renewed the company's licence until March 31, 1982, subject to that and other conditions.

Other Manitoba decisions released by the CRTC Monday include: —Approval of Portage Community Cablevision Ltd.'s application to start a cable company in Portage La Prairie.

Entertainment briefs

Capra extravaganza set

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The film accomplishments of Frank Capra will be the subject of an NBC-TV Big Event to be produced by Columbia Pictures Television.

The program will highlight scenes from the Capra movies, including It Happened One Night, Mr. Smith Goes to Washington, Lost Horizon, Mr. Deeds Goes to Town and You Can't Take it With You.

Beatles film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Beatlemania goes on. Universal announces it has acquired the Robert Stigwood production, Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, for domestic distribution. Peter Frampton and the Bee Gees will star in the film, based on an original story by Stigwood and Henry Edwards, featuring the lyrics of John Lennon and Paul McCartney.

Elvis sued

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Singer Elvis Presley, the City of Tampa and one of its police captains have been named in a lawsuit by a woman who claims she was assaulted by the officer at a Presley concert in 1976. Orchid Ward, of Tampa, claims she was grabbed around the neck and thrown into another person by Capt. H. B. Maxey as she approached the stage of Curtis Hixon Hall to catch scarves thrown by Presley.

The suit, filed Tuesday in Hillsborough Circuit Court, says Presley was at fault when he invited fans to approach the stage.

The suit says Mrs. Ward suffered a physical handicap as a result, but did not describe any specific injury.

Rare Lenin film

COPENHAGEN (Reuter) — A rare film of Lenin and the Soviet Red Army, found on the seabed by a fisherman, has been restored by Danish television and prepared for broadcast in the near future.

The film, which includes glimpses of the Soviet revolutionary in his living room with his wife and cat, contains shots of the leader from as early as 1919, two years after the Communist revolution in Russia.

A year ago the film was plucked from a fish net by cod fisherman Laue Iversen in the North Sea. It lay in a round can encrusted with barnacles and covered with seaweed, which Iversen turned over to Danish television archives.

After months of cleaning the film, re-cutting it and finally copying it, film technicians were able to make most of the film usable.

Tomlin signs pact

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lily Tomlin, film-maker. That will be the comedienne's new title under a contract just signed with Universal Pictures.

The contract calls for Miss Tomlin to write, produce and star in two pictures over a three-year period.

Reems demands payment

NEW YORK (AP) — After three years of litigation for his role in the movie Deep Throat, actor Harry Reems said Thursday he has decided to ask the courts to require the U.S. government to pay his legal defence bill.

Reems was convicted in U.S. District Court in Memphis in 1976 on charges of conspiring to transport obscene materials across state lines. The conviction was overturned on March 25, but the indictment against Reems has not been dismissed, he said.

The case has cost Reems more than $97,000, and he said Thursday his lawyers will file a motion in the federal court in Memphis asking that the government pick up the tab.

Reems' legal defence fund has raised about $80,

SEND ME A ROSE

Hospital is a lonely place
Where life and death perform their race;
Some walk out with a happy smile,
Others remain a rubric in the file.

Send me a rose to cheer me up
To say, "I think of you."
Say with a flower "I love you, dear,"
It's the nicest way to do.

Each petal of a lovely rose
Could chase the fear and dread
As I count them slowly one by one,
Pages of the life we've had.

Send me a rose as a surprise
For no apparent reason;
It takes so little and gives so much
In any time of season.

It has a symbol all its own
As the Special Day we wed,
But please, don't send me a bouquet —
No! Not when I am dead.

MRS. ALFRED SEGUIN,
Beebe, Que.

VESPERS

All is hushed, and calm, and still,
Red the West with setting sun;
As we kneel on Vesper Hill,
All our daily lessons done.

Prayers arise from every heart,
In the silence of the night;
Thanking God for victories won,
Asking strength to do the right.

Then the music of the hymns,
As the organ gently swells;
And the voices softly singing
Like the tone of far-off bells.

Now the speaker tells us how
Jesus in Gethsemane
Prayed as never man has prayed,
"Let this cup now pass from me."

Great drops on His forehead bled,
But as sinks the setting sun,
To the Father He has said,
"Not my will, but Thine be done."

Jesus to the mountain top
Every morning went to pray,
Showing us that we should too,
Seek His presence every day.

We in reverence leave the hill,
And peace doth our way attend.
Breathing deeply of the pure air,
Which His presence seems to lend.

MRS. MARJORY PINCHIN

MAKE BELIEVE

Let's make believe that you and me
Are living in a world that is free
From the pollution of mercury
And other factors ruining our ecology,
From the sufferings of people because of apathy
By those who are power hungry.

Let's make believe that you and me
Are living in a world that is free
From unnatural foods made chemically
And inflated prices causing many to worry,
From the injustices dealt to the poorly
By those who make laws for the rich, differently.

Let's make believe that you and me
Let's make believe that you and me
Are living in a world that is free
From racial inequality
And the hydrogen bomb and threat of warfare,
Biologically,
From seeing our young in the clutches of vulnerability
By those called "Pushers" who enrich the underworld greedy.

Let's make believe that you and me
Are living in a world that is free
From the un-Godly
And the atrocities,
From the world-wide hunger, strife and warring continually

Let's make believe, let's pretend, that you and me
Are really free!

MARIA BRAY

ODE TO LOUIS BRAILLE

Many years ago a boy was born
Whose mother tongue was French,
And his father did apprentice him
To help him at his bench.

So proud this lad of fourteen years
To work at his father's trade,
That heart and soul he applied himself
To the leather goods he made.

Then one day, as he worked alone,
He met with misfortune grave
Misguided but once was his father's awl,
And his vision could not be saved.

Ingenious was this cobbler's son,
And very tenacious too;
And he would not yield to his handicap
As humans are wont to do.

Instead, he laboured for folks like himself
Till an alphabet he chanced to find,
And the tool he used to write his braille
Was the awl that had rendered him blind.

Over the years, his system has changed,
And modifications have been done,
But blind people everywhere will always remain
Indebted to this shoemaker's son.

Devon Wilkins Wilkinson,
Highwater, Que.

OLD MEMORIES OF NORTH HATLEY

North Hatley the gem of the Townships
Green mountains facing the west
Our popular little summer resort
Where the old and the young come to rest.

Some have called it "Little Switzerland"
Its beauty is so renowned,
But we who have lived here love it
For the memories and joys that abound.

And here lies Massawippi
The lake with the Indian name,
Without this added attraction
North Hatley would not be the same.

From Dreamland Park in the moonlight
The band begins to softly play
When we hear the shriek of the locomotive
As the train roars in on its way.

And over the shimmering water
The golden moon looks down
On little boats drifting idly
In this beautiful and picturesque town.

North Hatley the gem of the Townships
Snuggling in the valley close by Shadows falling on Massawippi
Under the starlit sky.

LAUREL MERRILL BENSON,
Cambridge, Mass.

GOD'S GOODNESS MALACHI 3:10

Am I asking for too much?
"Put me to the test" said God,
Obedience to Him brings its reward,
It's no secret what He can do.

Heaven's windows open wide,
When our faith in Him is found
He can deck the tables of the world,
With more than enough to go around.

Let us have rest periods unto the Lord,
Pauses that really refresh
Share your blessings with those in need,
And you'll find you will be blessed.

God's answers come cascading down
When we try to do His will,
His fatherly hand is open wide
And your needs He will always fill.

He longs to do so much for us,
How can we spurn such love?
So come to Him and trust in Him,
Our Saviour and our God.

Lord, we marvel at Thy Word;
Help us to know it better
Renew our faith and trust in Thee,
Whose goodness faileth never.

Sher-Lenn Fifty-Plus Club News

FUN FOR ALL — About 125 turned out for the Quebec Farmer's Association annual picnic, held this year on the Stanstead farm of Steve Brus. (Record photo by Ivy Hatch)

Ayer's Cliff Club holds picnic

STANSTEAD (1H) — The annual picnic of the Ayer's Cliff Club of the Quebec Farmers Association was held Sunday, August 7, at the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Brus and family, Route 143, Stanstead.

Many of the members got into the act to cook hot dogs and hamburgers. Beverages included white and chocolate milk, coffee and Kool-aid of every color and flavour and the picnic included a wide assortment of cakes and squares made by the womenfolk. Mr. Brus had been in conference with the weatherman and a perfect day was provided. After all had eaten their fill of goodies, some of the men and women played horseshoes, while others went off to see some new Holsteins which Mr. Brus has added to his herd. A card table was produced and a pack of cards and some played 500 while others chatted and relaxed.

Douglas Johnston, club president, spoke a warm welcome to about 125 on hand from babies to Warren Grapes, the Fieldman from Sawyerville. He thanked the Brus family and all helpers for making it such a great get-together. He called a short meeting to ask for volunteers to work in the club snack bar August 26-27-28 at Ayer's Cliff Fair. Several volunteered their services and the young farmers said the club could count on them. A number of women volunteered to make donuts to be sold at the canteen.

The months of June and July were programmed for the summer weather and the beginning of vacations, nonetheless it was an active programme... with Bingo on the first Wednesday, and whist on the third Wednesday of June. The winning whist table was captained by Miss F. Molony and the players were Mrs. N. Cowan, Miss G. Parrock and Mrs. M. Tector. The travelling prize was captured by Mrs. Ethel Martin, one of our very senior members and our most efficient registration chairman.

On June 8th, a dessert luncheon was held, with prizes awarded for the bridge and '500' marathons which had begun in the late winter months. The winners for bridge were Mrs. M. Holland and Mrs. F. Beattie and for '500', Lewis Delfosse and Miss Evelyn Bradley. The door prize was won by Mrs. I. Price.

June 13th was the last day for instructional handicrafts until the fall programme. A salad luncheon was held and during this lunch hour Miss Alene Morrison expressed the grateful appreciation of everyone to Mrs. Alberta Clark and Mrs. Eva Sawyer for the continuing success and popularity of the Monday handicraft meetings. Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Sawyer have been the tireless and efficient leaders and instructors to so many 'all thumbs' members as well as bringing new and profitable handicraft ideas into the group with or without instructors. Mrs. S. Gaulin was presented with a going away gift at the luncheon, as former coordinator and an artist in her professional sphere. Mrs. Gaulin will be missed by everyone. She will be conducting an art school in Ontario. The Sher-Lenn wishes her every success especially knowing her talents and how she made artists from those of us who could not even dream of sketching... let alone trying our luck in oils!

On June 14, a tour of museums was taken, in St. Johnsbury, Vt. It was a most pleasant trip and the various stops and tours proved most interesting. Wednesday, June 22nd was most active, with the Senior Adult Fellowship Club of Cowansville joining us for our noon hour lunch and coffee time. They left for a guided tour of Sherbrooke which they told us was most interesting.

It is always the pleasure of the Sher-Lenn to welcome out-of-town senior citizen groups. The Second Winds presented their final concert following the noon hour, the choir will resume practices in September.

The selections presented by the Second Winds were: Memories, the theme song; Carolina in the Morning; Tip Toe Thru The Tulips; Keep on Hopin'; with recitation by Mrs. V. Hutchinson; Mother McCree, solo, Mrs. May Povey; Echo

Song, with most unusual vocal effects; Sweet and Low, vocalist Mr. Robert Blake; A medley of I'm Looking Over a Four Leaf Clover and Happy Days are Here Again. Closing theme song Memories.

At the close of the concert the Second Winds presented Mrs. Blanchette and Mrs. Hunting with an orchid corsage for Lois and perfume for Annie, a token of their appreciation of all Lois and Annie have given towards the success and pleasure of the choir. The Second Winds are very rapidly becoming a senior citizen's choir of outstanding quality and having a truly pleasurable time doing it.

During the afternoon a raffle was held. A member of the Cowansville Club drew the first ticket, and Lois Blanchette won the pillows, and, with another Cowansville member drawing the ticket, with the name of Jean Jamieson, a hand painted bottle was won.

Along with oils and charcoal, pastels, the art class also does bottle painting and design works, and this raffled bottle was an example of their work. They will hold an art show and sale in the near future.

A picnic was held at Ly-sander Falls on June 28. This is a very lovely area of Quebec and the members enjoyed the coolness and shade within sight and sound of the falls and rapids.

The Sher-Lenn Fifty Plus Club were the guests of the Bury Athletic Association for the July 1st celebrations. Mr. Lars Hansen extended an invitation to the Sher-Lenn on behalf of the Bury Athletic Society, and, with their kind provision of transportation, many of the Sher-Lenners were able to attend this most outstanding celebration of Canada Day. Transportation being one of the main problems of all senior citizens clubs, this generous courtesy was most gratefully appreciated.

On July 5, the Sher-Lenn travelled to St. Paul's de L'Île aux Noix for a picnic and tour of Fort Lennox. The history of this site is of great interest to residents of this area, and the restoration of the fort is progressing further each year towards complete restoration of this most historic site. The only fault of this trip could be found in the too short ferry ride to and from the island!

The Sorel Island Cruise on July 26 was again a pleasant trip. A strong wind kept many within the enclosed part of the ship, but it was a most interesting and beautiful cruise. A tour of Tracy and Sorel was made before returning to Sherbrooke/Lennoxville. So much of this area of Quebec holds such history and local interest, a truly beautiful country to explore and to know.

June and July brought all sorts of weather, but every Tuesday designated for a Sher-Lenn trip was perfect. Bingo was held on July 6th and a raffle was also held on this day. Maple syrup, donated by Mrs. Dorcas French, and drawing made by Mrs. Frances Neill, saw Miss Alene Morrison and Mrs. Jennie Bench win the syrup.

Whist was held on July 27th, with the winning table captained by Mrs. Annie Wilson and the players were Mrs. C. Coates, Mrs. M. Morrison and Mrs. M.R. Morrison. Mrs. Wilson also won the travelling prize.

The programme for August, September and October holds several trips, and other attractive events, as well as the resuming of regular handicraft, art and choir meetings.

THE LIGHTHOUSE KEEPER

The lighthouse stands in a far off place
Unshaken by the storm;
The light beams over across the way
To guide men safely home.

Several may be lost or foundering
—Or there may be only one—
Still the keeper, never sleeping,
Ever constant watch is keeping,
From his station high and free
He will look out for you and me.

DO YOUR BEST

When you're up against a problem,
Do your best.
When there seems to be no answer,
Do your best;
This will take a lot of will,
But life's not always all up hill,
Grit your teeth, and hold your chin up -
Do your best

If your best friends turn against you,
do your best,
Maybe they don't really hate you,
Do your best,
True forgiveness is a virtue,
To harbour anger only hurts you -
So wipe the slate, and overlook it,
Do your best

To keep your head above the water,
Do your best,
If your finances begin to totter
do your best,
So to keep ahead of "Pa Time's" sickle
Don't just work for dimes and nickels,
Forget yourself, and think of others -
Do your best.

SMILES

There are forced smiles, false smiles and flirtatious smiles.
There are sweet smiles, loveable smiles and happy smiles.
There are teasing smiles, courageous smiles and wistful Mona Lisa smiles.
But the important smile... ah yes, the important smile is the sincere smile that costs nothing, but oh my, it is worth such a lot.

A lovely smile can welcome a newcomer to town,
To take fear out of a tiny tot
Or wipe away a frown.
An encouraging smile will lend comfort to the sick and elderly,
Also brighten up the darkest corner in someone's life.

An understanding smile can put a song into the heart of the lonely
Or ease the pain of innermost strife.

An honest smile can create a new and everlasting friendship,
And also remove negative thoughts and pangs of hardship.

The habit of a true smile is blessed to the giver
And strengthens inner peace for the receiver.

A warm smile will expand a glimmer of hope
In those who find it hard to cope
With little injustices and daily problems in the making.
There are people who slowly die inwardly every day.

Thus a sincere smile, a kind word, an understanding heart...

Yes! even an "I will remember you when I pray".
Will prevent the thin thread from breaking
And kindle the flickering flame of life with a new spark.
