Prominent Dundee Man Passes Away

Mr. Avila J. Saumier, Former Councillor, Was In His 55th Year

There passed away at the Hotel-Dieu Hospital, Valleyfield, on Saturday, October 16th, 1937, Mr. Avila J. Saumier, in his 55th year. He was the son of Isaac Saumier and his wife, Matilda Leblanc, now deceased.

Mr. Saumier was born in St. Anicet in 1883, one of a family of thirteen, ten boys and three girls. About thirty years ago Mr. Saumier moved to Dundee where later he married Malvina Myre of St. Agnes on Feb. 10th, 1918, who still survives him.

In 1929 he was elected to the Dundee Council Board, a position he filled very creditably and which he still held at the time of his death. An honest, hard-working type of citizen, fearless in his convictions, Mr. Saumier will be missed on the Council Board, in the community and in his home. He and his family followed the occupation of farming for the last number of years, a work in which he was still engaged at the time of his death. Mr. Saumier's health had not been too good for more than a year but it was not thought that his illness was serious until recently. He was removed to Valleyfield Hospital on Sunday, and the end came suddenly on the following Saturday.

The funeral service was held on Tuesday at 10 o'clock from his late residence to St. Agnes Roman Catholic Church. Father Boissonault officiated at the solemn High Mass. Interment was in the R. C. cemetery. He leaves to mourn his loss besides his wife, one son, Aldridge, at home, five brothers, Oslas in Dundee, John, St. Anicet, Alfred, Val D'Or, Que., Ernest in Cornwall, Ont., William, in Massena, N.Y. Five other brothers predeceased him several years ago. Living still are three sisters, Mrs. John Finn, Valleyfield, Mrs. William Quimet, Port Lorington, Mrs. William Quimet, Western Canada. The local Council Board acted as honorary pallbearers. The active pallbearers were, Messrs. Stewart McPhee, Peter Ferguson, Jos. Lalupie, Arthur Castaner, Dan Fraser and William Carriere.

Increase In Provincial Apple Crop Is Recorded

The apple crop in Quebec province this season will be about 10 per cent higher than had been estimated, according to reports received by W. J. Tawse, secretary of the Pomological and Fruit Growing Society of Quebec. "The Quebec crop was placed at 173,000 barrels for the year and it is going to be closer to 190,000 barrels, due to the much larger size of the fruit," said Mr. Tawse. "When there was a long hot spell in August there was a general feeling that the apples would be small and of poor color, but fortunately in September the weather turned and there was rain and cool nights and the result was marvellous color and splendid size. Lots of the fruit is 100 per cent color."

"The Hemmingford area suffered more than any other through hail, the storm in July caused damage to 2,000 bushels of the crop, and on August 13 there was another hail storm from the north-west, and that did so much damage that the fruit can only be graded as domestic and much of it was so badly ripped that 3,000 barrels will be wasted. There had been practically no pack, and everything has been sold in bulk. "In the Covey Hill area some growers were not able to pack on account of hail, but others had a very fine pack. Franklin Centre had no hail and a beautiful pack."

Mr. Tawse remarked that this year fully 70 per cent of the crop was sold in volume at low prices and the province was much direct from the orchards to the trucks,

"Living Religion" Theme of United Church Young Peoples' Convention Held at Granby

Delegates From Huntingdon, Orms-town, and Howick Attend Two Day Event—Young People Demand Practical Explanation of Religious Teachings—Embargo Resolution Against Japan Defeated—Regulated Ministers' Salaries Advocated

Taking as its theme, "Living Religion," the eighth annual Young Peoples' Convention of the United Church of Canada was held at Granby, Que., last Saturday and Sunday, attended by over 300 delegates from Montreal and surrounding rural centres. Three delegates from Huntingdon, Messrs. Claude Parker, David McCoy, and Melville McNaughton, were present, while Orms-town and Howick were each represented by one delegate.

Others from here who attended were the Misses Dorothy Davis and Dorothy Arnold and Messrs. Stanley Currie and Joe Brownrigg. Many exceptionally fine addresses were on the program for the two days while informal discussion periods contributed valuable ideas to the Convention.

The younger people present plainly showed that they were not too willing to believe many things that had been casually accepted in years gone by and several spirited discussions centred around the attitude and outlook of the church to present day events.

An idea that seemed to find many supporters was that of applying fixed regulations in regard to ministers' salaries. It was argued that too many men were in the profession for the money they could make and not for the service they could render. It was felt that a solution to this problem might be found in a central fund kept up by donations from all churches and out of which all ministers' salaries would be paid. Salaries of course, would be paid according to the circumstances and needs of each individual minister.

A resolution to apply an embargo on the export to Japan and China of war munitions and raw materials for their manufacture was also thoroughly discussed but it fell through for lack of support.

Among the many excellent addresses was one given Sunday afternoon by Miss Jean Ross, who is the young daughter of missionaries in Korea. Miss Ross's description of life in Korea demonstrated many

25th Wedding Anniversary Celebrated

Mr. and Mrs. Henri Boucher Feted by Friends On Happy Occasion

Mr. and Mrs. Henri Boucher of Huntingdon, celebrated on Friday evening their 25th wedding anniversary.

Among those who were present at the supper at night were Rev. Father J. A. Pigeon, parish priest; Rev. H. Charlebois, vicar at Huntingdon; Mr. and Mrs. Henri Boucher, Mr. Victor Leduc, Miss Alice Leduc, Messrs. Alfred Leduc, René Leduc, Pierre Boucher, Emery Myre, David Sauré, Lucien, Elie Goggin, Emile Legault, Mrs. Benoit, Mrs. Martin, Wilfrid Leduc, Misses L. and M. J. Boutin, Jeannette Tessier, Mr. Honoré Pigeon and many others.

An address was read during the evening and Rev. Father Pigeon and Charlebois congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Boucher. They were also the recipients of a silver purse and many beautiful and useful gifts. The evening was spent in card games, songs, etc., and all departed wishing the couple many more years of happily married life.

Mr. and Mrs. Boucher have been living on the plank road for the past 15 years. Before they married they were in the lumber business. He is the son of the late Moise Boucher of Huntingdon.

and never came near the market. Jobs were sent out with trucks and were being paid $3.50 a barrel for apples, without any expense for freight, packing or commission to the grower. Fruit dealers were also buying orchards of fruit, all the grower having to do was to grade his apples, fill the barrels and receive cash. This method of marketing had put a big crimp in the commission dealer's business, but considering the kind of crop that many growers had they were fortunate to find a market in that way, and it had created a big movement of fruit at reasonable prices, and stimulated consumption of apples.

The excellent price that the Quebec growers were getting for their apples was illustrated by a comparison between American and Canadian prices, as sent out in the market letter of the society to its members. The report states that the trucker demand was still taking the fruit in the different districts about as fast as it could be prepared and about two-thirds of the crop was now moved, many dealers being entirely cleaned up. Famous apples were selling at $3.50 per barrel, culls out; McIntosh $3.75 to $4; extra fancy box packed $2.25 to $2.35, delivered to Montreal; crates, Famous, $1.85; Scotts Winter, $2.50 to $2.75 per barrel, loose, at the farm.

United States markets were moving apples in volume at low prices and the province was much direct from the orchards to the trucks, (Continued on page 7)

Canada to Join Other Signatories to Nine Power Treaty Conference to Mediate in Sino-Japanese Dispute—Relief Expenditures Drop

By Spectator

Canada will join with other signatories to the Nine-Power Treaty in a conference on joint efforts to mediate the Sino-Japanese dispute, and will name representatives as soon as the place and date of the meeting have been fixed. Prime Minister Mackenzie King said this week.

Concluded in Washington in 1922 following a conference at which Canada was represented by Sir Robert Borden, the Nine-Power Treaty, Mr. Mackenzie King said, laid down principles it was hoped would lead to stabilization of conditions in the Far East. Parties to it were the United States, France, Italy, Japan, the countries of the British Empire, China, Belgium, the Netherlands and Portugal.

Recently the League of Nations suggested those countries party to the treaty initiate consultations concerning the conflict in China. It is expected the meeting will be held within a fortnight and the place and date will be announced shortly.

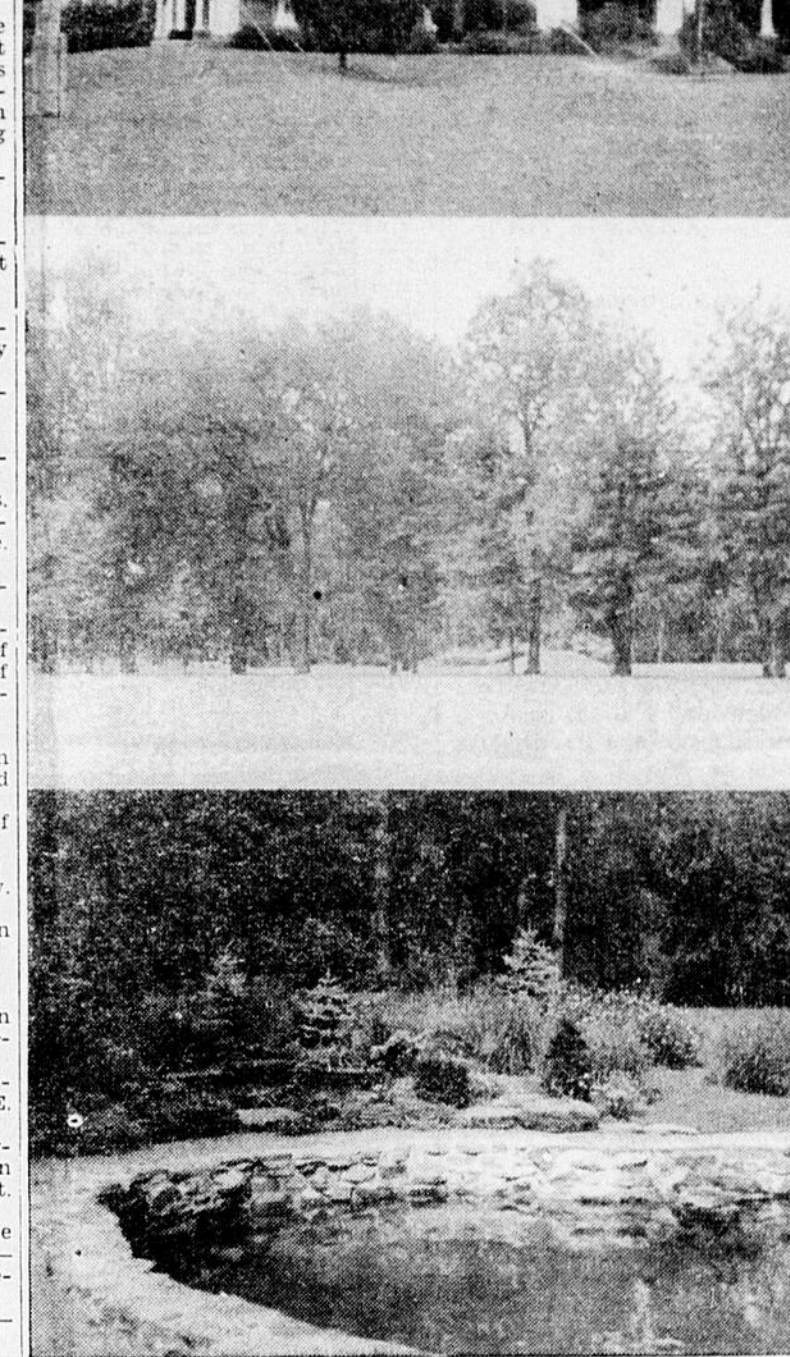

"The Government in common with others," Mr. Mackenzie King said, "have watched with deep concern the course of the present conflict as well as its repercussions in many quarters."

"Canada will endeavor to take part in a responsible and co-operative manner in the joint effort of conciliation which is to be made to deal with a very difficult situation. We are anxious that no developments should arise to prejudice or render more difficult the task of the meeting."

Proposals from various quarters that governments take certain courses as a means of discouraging aggressor nations or otherwise halting the conflict, the Prime Minister hoped, would be delayed pending action of the employment relief act.

Industrial recovery in Canada is being promptly reflected in the decrease of unemployment relief aid ordered in the eastern provinces and in British Columbia. Preliminary figures for the month of September, just issued by Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor, show a drop of 35 per cent. in aid to the non-agricultural classes.

During September 101,768 heads of families, exclusive of farm operators, were in receipt of material aid; non-agricultural dependents totalled 333,496; material help to 32,850 non-agricultural individual

Quebec Ayrshires Triumph At National Dairy Show Held at Columbus, Ohio

Two Carloads Sent From Quebec—One Carload Selected From Chateauguay Valley Herds—Ardgowan Valda, World's Champion Ayrshire Cow Owned By F. C. Biggs & Sons Was One Of Exhibitions Chief Attractions

The twenty-five head of Ayrshires which went from Quebec to the National Dairy Show plus two animals from Ontario made a very impressive showing at that event which was held at Columbus, Ohio, on October 9 to 16.

The Quebec exhibit was made possible through the assistance given by the Quebec Department of Agriculture, through the co-operation and work of a selection committee and last, but not least, as the result of an excellent spirit of co-operation on the part of all possible exhibitors.

The selection committee was comprised of Gilbert McMillan, Huntingdon, Que., as Convenor; Douglas A. Ness, Howick, Que., and Wm. Greenhalgh, St. Lawrence, Que. The three, with Rene Tremblay as representing the Quebec Department of Agriculture and with Frank Napier, as representing the Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association, also comprised the arrangements committee.

The National Dairy Show with the American and Canadian Ayrshire Associations co-operating made a magnificent special feature of Ardgowan Valda, World's Record Ayrshire belonging to F. C. Biggs & Sons, Glen Campbell Farms, Dundas, Ont.

The car-load which went from Howick and Huntingdon were in charge of Mitchell Ness and Alastair McArthur, whilst the car which went from the vicinity of Montreal was in charge of John Stead and G. N. Bell, and Wm. Greenhalghs also went as general supervisor.

Messrs. Gilbert McMillan, Douglas A. Ness and Wm. D. Forbes followed afterwards and took an active part in the showing of the animals. Others from Canada were R. Tremblay, Frank Napier, R. Brodie

Council Passes Resolution To Number H'don Houses

A special session of Huntingdon Town Council was held on Monday evening with all members present, Mayor Dan. Faubert presiding.

Three important resolutions were passed.

Mr. Hector Provost, representing the Shawinigan Water & Power Co. suggested that the residences in the Town be numbered. He stated that the company would supply numbers if the town would put them up. Mr. J. Aubin, town constable, offered to put them up. After a lengthy discussion, Aid. McWhinnie moved that the residences be numbered in the town.

This was seconded by Aid. Bailargeon. The Council also unanimously approved that the Town be numbered from East to West leaving some spare numbers should the town increase in population.

Represented by a member of their executive, Mr. F. J. Montie, the Chateauguay-Huntingdon Veterans' Association asked that the Council help them defray their expenses at their celebration which they intend holding on Nov. 11th. Moved by Aid. Bailargeon, seconded by Aid. Barrett that the Council donate the sum of $50 to the Parks Committee as this is a worthy cause.

The secretary read a letter from Dr. J. A. Patenaude, County Health Officer, informing Council that the condition of the sewers on York St. was disgraceful. Odors emerging from these are very dangerous for the health of citizens living on that street. Dr. Patenaude suggested that Council prepare a plan to be submitted to Dr. Lafreniere of Montreal for his approval.

Ald. McNair suggested a plan which might improve sanitary conditions on that street. Aid. LaLonde, chairman of the Water Committee, asked if the Council would not be in favor of having trap pipes installed. This work could be done in approximately three or four days.

Ald. McWhinnie: It would be preferable if the Council submitted both plans to an engineer and have the work done right, as this question has already caused Council enough trouble.

Mayor Faubert stated that he would go to Montreal this week and interview Dr. Lafreniere in regard to this question and ask his cooperation. The plan would then be placed before an engineer and the latter would take full responsibility, thus relieving any committee of the Town Council from any blame which might ensue.

Ald. McNair stated he spoke with Mr. Adam L. Sellar Monday afternoon, who asked to have the streets cleaned Saturday as newspapermen from Ontario and Quebec would then be in Huntingdon.

Improvements For Fair

ONE of the best things that ever happened to Huntingdon Fair occurred last week when an open meeting was called to get suggestions and opinions for improvements to the annual autumn show.

No business can go on indefinitely without support of its shareholders. If they lose interest the business soon goes on the rocks, and that's what was happening to the Fair. District residents who are members of the Fair—the exhibitors profiting by its successes and suffering by its failures, were losing interest.

The meeting was well attended—it stimulated a lot of fresh enthusiasm and will probably have far-reaching effects on the future welfare of the Fair. One of the best suggestions offered was that of organizing a local band which could supply entertainment during the Fair. Not only would such a move be a decided advantage for the Fair but it would be a decided asset to the town and district. A small sum of money, as well as several instruments are available for this purpose, so the organization of such a unit should not be too difficult a task.

The lack of such a band has often been deplored by both young and old and with the musical talent that is waiting to be developed such a venture is bound to receive a hearty response. Large sums of money have been paid out in the past to hire outside bands to come and play for special occasions. This seems a waste of money when some initiative would give Huntingdon a musical unit of its own.

We hope that the Fair management will see their way clear to call more of these informal discussion meetings. They are the source of many valuable ideas and can provide the answers to many problems that stand in the way of the growth and progress of the Fair.

"Fourth Estate" to Convene in Huntingdon

IN appreciation of the fact that the Huntingdon Gleaner has entered its 75th year of publication the Ottawa and St. Lawrence Valley Press Association is convening here on Saturday. It was the intention of the Association to meet in Huntingdon on Sept. 18th, the actual anniversary date of the Gleaner.

On Saturday, representatives from all weekly papers in the Ottawa and St. Lawrence Valley, as well as a few other publishers from other parts of the Province and Northern New York, will be here. We heartily welcome the publishers and accompanying guests.

Whilst the daily newspapermen have many problems to combat each day, the weekly scribes have problems confronting them every week of the year. In this Ottawa and St. Lawrence Valley the problems confronting each member of the "Fourth Estate" have a lot of similarity, therefore such a convention should prove beneficial to the newspapermen and at the same time provide an opportunity for sociability.

Kings County Record 50th Anniversary

FOR no apparent good reason, the province in the Dominion of Canada we hear least about is New Brunswick. If one wishes to know something about all sections of Canada they really have to read the weekly newspapers as well as the daily press. In the Province of New Brunswick they have a remarkably fine weekly paper at Sussex. This newspaper has just celebrated its 50th anniversary.

Our good friend Mr. Carey R. Davis edits the "Kings County Record." This Record chronicles the maritime news to a point of perfection. Of the upward of seventy newspapers we receive each week, the "Kings County Record" is the first to be perused.

The Record, like the Gleaner, has grown from humble beginnings, and today provides employment for a staff of 20 hands. The work for such employment is derived largely from outside sources, therefore the Record, besides being a wonderful newspaper mouthpiece for Sussex is an industrial concern to be esteemed. Our congratulations are tendered Mr. Davis, and may he long continue publishing the outstanding weekly newspaper for New Brunswick.

Paper Scarcity a World Problem

WITH the "freedom of the press" being attacked in Alberta our attention is drawn more and more to the press matters every day. To the press of Canada and the world at large a problem that is confronting one and all is that of the scarcity of newsprint in accordance with the world demand. Only a few months ago, paper was a glut on market, but not so now. In 1936 paper was delivered to this publication for $42.50 a ton, throughout 1937 it has been $56.50 and now we understand it is to be up another $10 a ton and a strong possibility that in the new year it will reach a high of $80 a ton.

Why this rapid advance in the price of paper? The demand for paper in the British Market has made the price of paper advance 33% in the past 18 months. The British Isles are demanding great shipments of paper and the further increase in price to Canadian consumers will be largely attributed to the big demand from across the Atlantic.

Another big reason why paper is advancing in price is that there is a scarcity of sulphite, resulting from expanding demands for it in other industries. Sulphite is the prime ingredient in explosives, now so much in demand. Sulphite is, of course, required as a bleaching agent used in the manufacture of chemical wood pulp.

To the reader of these lines the cost of paper means little, but multiply that little by the circulation of a newspaper and for a year at a time and the sum is considerable. The Gleaner annual newsprint consumption is twenty tons, which means the newsprint bill is $280 more today than in 1936. In 1938 the bill will be considerably more. The Montreal Star uses 15,000 tons of newsprint per annum. It is therefore a foregone conclusion that newspaper subscriptions, particularly the large metropolitan newspapers will have no alternative but to advance their subscription prices. They have already advanced their advertising rates twice in 1937, therefore the subscription rates will quite likely be the next source of increased revenue, due to advanced production costs. What is true of newspapers will be applicable also to magazines. Under the existing circumstances and predictions in regards to paper costs we believe our readers would do well to renew their subscriptions to their favoured publications now.

Density of Population in Canada

IN perusing the pages of the Canada Year Book we note that during the period 1851 to 1881 the principal center of expansion in Canada in regards to population was the Valleyfield area. From 1921 to 1931 the population increased noted in Canada were largely in our northern belts where mining has taken such great strides. When the next census is taken it is highly probable the mining north will again prove to be the principal source of attraction to our increased population. For the decade previous to 1921 Western Canada held sway, but the continuous drought of the past 8 years will find our Western population greatly diminished.

The density of population per square mile in all Canada is but 1.55 whilst in Quebec it stood at 3 persons. In Prince Edward Island, the most densely populated Province of Canada it stands at 47 persons per square mile.

In the United Kingdom the density per square mile was 490; Belgium, 697; Japan, 469; Germany, 360; Italy, 344; United States, 40.

Throughout the older countries of the world there is usually found an excess of female over male population, more especially as in most of these countries the census is taken on a de facto instead of, as in Canada, on a de jure basis. The causes of this excess of female population are: (1) the normally higher rate of mortality among males; (2) the greater number of males who travel; (3) the effects of war; (4) the employment of males in the army, navy and merchant marine; and (5) the preponderance of males among emigrants. In the newer countries of the world, however, the preponderance of males among immigrants results in a general excess of male over female population. These phenomena are exemplified for both the older and the newer countries.

In Canada there has been an excess of male population from the commencement of its history, the first census, 1666, showing 2,034 males to only 1,181 females. As the colony increased in numbers, the disproportion between the sexes became smaller, more especially since the French-Canadian population, after about 1680, was not reinforced by immigration from the old world. In 1874, when the English-speaking immigration to Canada for purposes of settlement was commencing, there were 54,064 males and 50,759 females in the colony. At the middle of the nineteenth century, there were 449,967 males to 440,294 females in Lower Canada, and 499,067 males to 452,937 females in the more newly-settled Upper Canada, and since Confederation the same phenomenon of considerable excess of males has occurred throughout the growing northwest. The great immigration of the first decade of the present century resulted in raising what is called the "masculinity" of the Canadian population (i.e., the excess of males over females per 100 of population) to the highest point in recent history, viz. 6.07 p.c. in 1911. The Great War, however, both checked immigration and took about 60,000 young Canadian male lives as its toll, with the result that at the Census of 1921 the masculinity of our population was only 3 p.c.—515 males to 485 females per 1,000 of population.

In 1931 there were 518 males to 482 females for Canada as a whole. It is interesting to note that the masculinity of the population has increased in the eastern provinces and decreased in the western ones, where it was formerly greatest.

Help Wanted!

THE demand for trained help in Canadian business is becoming more and more urgent and as industrial expansion continues the demand will increase. There is a qualification, however, that will prove a serious hurdle to any young man who attempts to jump into a good position overnight.

That qualification is "experience."

It is practically impossible for young men who have been out of work for any period of time to get a good position without the help of special training. The man or girl without training is seriously handicapped in the search for employment—for it is around the skilled worker that industry revolves.

Employers are too occupied with getting their product on the market faster and cheaper than their competitor to bother with inexperienced men. Time was when a boy graduating from school had reasonable hopes of being taken on as apprentice at some large firm and learning the business that way, but those days have passed.

It has been proved that an adequate group of skilled workers is required in any business if that business is to absorb any unskilled workers. An industry with a sufficient number of skilled workers can operate, with the semi-skilled and the unskilled gathering experience and training as it goes along—but without that corps of skilled workers it cannot function at all. Thus a young man who expects to get into industry without special training lessens his chances 100 per cent because he makes himself available to the employer only for the apprentice type of jobs.

The Dominion Government has voted sums of money to help the provinces with this problem and six of the nine provinces have already planned campaigns to meet the situation. Only Quebec, Prince Edward Island, and New Brunswick are not yet ready to co-operate.

There are no hard and fast rules for the provinces to follow in their work of training youth. The young people are trained as far as possible so that they will be able to fit into the industries of their native province. In Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta emphasis is placed on agricultural training, and in British Columbia, a land of mountains and forests, special training is given with regard to forest conservation and placer mining.

The governments of these provinces have shown a good example and the right interest in the plight of their unemployed, but the movement must become nation-wide.

TORPEDES CROWD

A giant torpedo, fired from the destroyed Wrestler in practice, swerved suddenly at forty miles per hour and drove on to the beach with a terrific crash. Its speed carried it twenty yards up the shingle. Bathes saw smoke pour from the head of the torpedo, while its whirling propellers flung up showers of pebbles. The torpedo was later taken back to the ship by a landing party. Naval authorities said "it was fitted with a dummy head. No one in the vicinity was in any danger." This type of torpedo carries a device which gives off heavy smoke when the run is finished. They are worth, roughly, $10,000 each.

SUICIDE AT 99

A strange story comes from Sofia of a man who committed suicide at the age of 99 because he did not want to become a centenarian. He was Dimo Singuleff, of the village of Strashimirovo, Northern Bulgaria. Although he enjoyed good health and was active for his age, Dimo complained that he was lonely and that all his friends had died. Several times in recent years he declared that he was tired of life and would prefer to die. Seeing no signs of a natural end to his life he hanged himself in a stable within a week or two of his 100th birthday.

REAL BLUE BLOOD

A blue complexion possibly will be the permanent result of a Californian's attempt to commit suicide, physicians said. The 22-year-old Oakland youth, was found lying under a tree in Sequoia Park. Taken to Alameda County Hospital for observation, he said he had taken a large quantity of silver nitrate in an attempt to end his life. While his condition was declared not serious, physicians said the chemical would seep through his system, giving a purple tint to his skin.

PARALYSIS SERUM

Paralysis serum was rushed from Peterborough to Lindsay to treat the town's first infantile paralysis case and in doing so Provincial Traffic Officer Jarvis Massingham escaped serious injury when he was thrown from his motorcycle on his errand of mercy. Massingham, who met Traffic Officer L. McClure on the Lindsay-Peterborough Highway, was badly shaken up, but was able to proceed. The young woman was Lindsay's first victim of the disease, was reported on the road to recovery.

RATES RAISED

British Insurance Companies raised their re-insurance rate on the yacht Endeavour I, which was missing at sea for 11 days, to 40 per cent. In effect, they were waging only 3 to 2 that she would turn up safe. She eventually did. The British challenger in the 1934 race for the American Cup disappeared September 13 in a violent storm of Nantucket Lightship when she snapped her towline.

AGE INCREASES LOVE

Youthful wife of a 78-year-old farmer, of Stara-Kanizah, Jugo-Slavia, ran away with a younger man. The aged husband took a sickle and stick and went to fetch her back. In spite of his age he broke down the locked door of the lover's house, bound the lover with ropes, and locked him up in the attic. Then he carried off his wife and took her back home!

HANDICAPPED TAILOR

A tailor of Buffalo, N.Y. was awarded $4,500 damages, because he can't sit cross-legged any more. The victim, 73, is a tailor, and was injured in a bicycle-automobile collision.

SITDOWN STRIKE

MAN FOOLS POLICE

Hundreds of police in New York State are looking for a forger who turned the tables on his captors as they were taking him to gaol. The man, named Derrick, was on his way to prison, when he suddenly produced a revolver and disarmed his captors. Using them as protective hostages, he forced them to drive him through a succession of police traps. At a barn he tied up the police, and then vanished into the blue in their car.

FLYING MARE

Proverbial nine lives are attributed to an Elkhorn, Wis., horse owned by Roy Lauderdale who proved that the "flying mare" is not confined entirely to the wrestling ring. Struck by a car driven by K. H. Davis, the horse was hurled over the car, one hoof punching a hole in the top, and landed on the pavement behind. A moment later it was struck by another car driven by E. A. Murano, of Chicago. The horse still lives.

ENRAGED POLICEMAN

Enraged policeman saw his child run over in Kirkcaldy and felled the motor-cyclist with his fist. He was fined £3 at Kirkcaldy for assault. The police officer told the court that he saw the cyclist turn into a side street. He saw his child in front of the machine. "I did not think anyone could be so callous as to run over a child," he added. "It is more than a father can stand to see his own flesh and blood being knocked about in the street." The prosecutor stated that the accused ran to the cyclist, knocked him off, and stunned him with the blow.

UNIDENTIFIED WOMAN

An unidentified woman flagged a Southern Railway freight train at Bulls Gap, Tennessee, with her baby and prevented it from crashing into a boulder. Engineer Felix Plummer said he saw the woman standing on the track, frantically waving the baby up and down in her arms. He applied the brakes. Around the mountain the train crew found a huge boulder on the track. In the excitement the woman walked away.

MUCH MARRIED MAN

A man was married on February 13, 1933; bigamously married on April 1 this year; sentenced to six months' imprisonment at the Old Bailey. This is the history of a 28-year-old motor-driver, of Manchester. It was stated that he went through a form of marriage with a Jewess with whom he never lived, as her parents insisted on a Jewish marriage.

FIERY CROSS

A fiery cross blazed early in the morning near the farm home of Ray Sprigle, Pittsburg newspaper man who wrote a series of articles associating Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black with the Ku Klux Klan. Beside the cross stood a wooden obelisk on which were painted the words: "Kastigate the callous kalumniator Ray Sprigle."

SHARK HITS BOAT

Week-end holiday makers on board the Clyde passenger steamer Glen Sannox, on their way from Ardrossan to the island of Arran, had an exciting thrill when a basking shark crashed into the vessel and smashed two panes of glass in the saloon cabin. The Glen Sannox, a vessel of 664 tons, is owned by the L.M.S. Railway Company.

COLD BLOODED KILLING

Spurred advances caused a Paris butcher named Kosmola to lock himself in his icebox and shoot himself with a slaughtering pistol. When his frozen remains were recovered a notice was found pinned to his chest. It read: "I leave my body to her for whom I destroyed myself."

ROAST CHICKEN

Roast chicken—Let's begin with a 4 to 6 pound chicken, not more than a year old, stuffed and ready for the roasting pan.

You were practically unanimous in saying—add fat to chicken in some way. (We say rub or brush unsalted oil or melted fat into skin. Additional fat, bacon strips, etc., are optional.)

Very few ever considered placing chicken on a rack or trivet in roasting pan. Many cover the pan. We say three cheers for those who do not. Roasting means dry heat, cover and the chicken has steamed flavor. If you must cover, do so with cheesecloth dipped in fat as mentioned above.

Most of you preferred to use a moderate temperature, 350 degrees F. (We like it too for the bird will be an even golden brown, tender and juicy. If you do prefer high temperature, use 450 to 500 degrees F. for 15 minutes, then reduce to slow, 300.)

Water in the pan, adding it half-way through, or during basting. Most of you admitted it. (On this point we can be firm. No water please, ever. You don't need it if you use a rack in the pan. You roast with dry heat, use water when you want to steam.)

Do you baste? The majority do. (We say don't, unless the skin of the chicken has been broken. Then baste every half-hour with clear fat.)

Time: 25 minutes per pound for the 4 to 6 pounders, 30 minutes for the smaller ones.

DRESSMAKING

When cutting out material, it is a good plan to iron the pattern onto the goods. No pins will be needed, and the goods will remain uncrinkled.

When hemming a dress by hand, slip the hem under the presser foot of the sewing machine and lower the foot onto it. This will hold the material firmly so it may be held taut, thus enabling the work to proceed rapidly. When you wish to cut a long piece of cloth and there is no one by to hold the other end of cloth, clip it under the needle of the machine, then drop the needle through it to hold it. The cloth can then be held taut while it is being cut.

Dahlia's Whatnots

AT LAKE BERNARD

Leaving the Hull-Maniwaki Highway within half a mile of Brennan's Hill and turning to the left we followed the Lake Road to Paddy's Bay and were in time to eat supper on the cottage verandah. After a drive of 170 miles that cup which "doth cheer, but not inebriate" seemed unusually refreshing made from the lake water only a dozen yards away.

Some of our cottage comforts were a range with an oven after a cook's heart, spring beds in perfect condition, screened doors and windows, the latter with positively pretty lace curtains, and no end of handy shelves. One set of these formed a cupboard screened by a window-shade which worked like a charm. A simple idea for keeping a broom out of the way was to hang it handle down on two nails, one about 20 inches lower than the other and 8 inches over to the left. When you go camping be sure to take along some of those aluminum plates with three divisions.

The furniture was painted a cheery green and there were rockers and camp stools and a work table and stool exactly the height for comfort. A la all those magazine articles on how to furnish your kitchen. And there was an oil-stove for hotter weather which we two cooks disdained in our enthusiasm over the range and oven. On our menu were to be found hot biscuit, apple pudding, "pancakes," fresh trout and bass (thanks to the fisherman), while cream, eggs, and vegetables were easily procured. Nor did our quarters lack the touch of aesthetic. A row of decoy ducks were lined up on a shelf just as the tame ones march into a barn, while a bouquet of wild purple asters, flaming sumac, and autumn-tinted birch leaves graced our table, the base of the table being edged with moss. The crucifix above an interior door and a spray of blest palm drooping over the portiere recalled one to a sense of the serious side of life here and hereafter. Close behind the cottage which is near two others, rose a precipitous wooded hillside, in front lay the lovely lake, the lap of its waves ever pleading for your interest.

A pleasant walk brought us out to Mr. O'Rourke's home, in front of which was what Anthony Trollope would have called "a pretty palling" made of cedar saplings which also formed the gate of rustic design. Within this palling two objects vied with each other in interest, one a bed of most brilliant-hued petunias, the other a Toganburg nanny-goat aged 35 years. This is the same breed with which Mrs. Tyler won highest honours at Toronto Exhibition. She formerly owned shares in a goat-farm which proved a failure when this enterprising business woman bought out the whole stock, and ran the farm to advantage, exhibiting 75 animals at Toronto.

One day we packed a lunch and started off to climb to an eminence where the Hunter had enjoyed an extraordinary view of the country. On our way was Hughes Lake where a Miss Hughes lived alone, except for a dog and a number of cats. We admired her dahlias greatly. This lady has had an active and interesting life. When the transmission lines were erected, she, like her men neighbours, contracted for the clearing of two acres of solid bush, which she chopped herself. Further on Mud Lake with perilous quicksands was pointed out.

When one has no help at sewing, an easy way to make a skirt of the proper length is to smear the edge of a table or the machine with chalk. Put on the skirt, wrong side out, then turn around slowly against the chalk mark. As the chalk line will be below the hips, you will find that by measuring your skirt down from this line it will hang perfectly even.

A short time ago I went to a little party at a friend's and she had hit on a jolly idea for amusing us, which I think worthy of passing on to you.

Each visitor had been asked to bring a photo of himself or herself at as early an age as possible. These photos were put in a pile and we were asked to identify them. It took some time, for it was not easy to recognize a stately matron in that wee mite clad in nothing but a beaming smile, or the proud father of twins in a toddler with a bucket and spade, but we got lots of fun out of it. Try it at your next party.

MOVIE STARS—LOCAL AND FOREIGN

To my regret and disappointment I was unable to accept an invitation to the Montreal Women's Press Club to attend a Tea in honor of Miss Anna Neagle, British film star in "Victoria the Good," now running at His Majesty's.

A Birthday Party for a film star of even greater fame was being held the same evening in the Elgin Church Hall. Mickey Mouse and his friends just couldn't be ditched for an English rival. Especially as I was somewhat responsible for the attendance of Donald Duck! This leading character had to be right for the occasion from the tip of his beak right down to enormous webbed feet.

The new Walt Disney costumes for Mickey, Minnie, Donald, Three Little Pigs, Big Bad Wolf, and a huge birthday cake, gave the younger members of the Junior Old Time Orchestra an opportunity for effective pantomime, accompanying the chorus by older members. Miss Evelyn Purcell, who instructs the chorists, has, as usual, produced a charming hit with which to open the concert season.

Nevertheless, I would very much like to have had a close-up of this famous English Actress, whose recent film won the "Award of All Nations" at the International Film Exhibition in Venice early last month. There were fourteen competitors, including the United States. Fresh from her European triumphs, Miss Neagle is appearing in Canada prior to the gala premiere in Washington and at Radio City Music Hall.

L. S. B. Shapiro, writing for the Montreal Gazette, en route from Hollywood states that the greatest present need of the industry is for new plays and ideas. Unsolicited manuscripts, even under these circumstances, are returned unopened! Too bad. Otherwise I might be tempted to send on a few ideas.

The Country Kitchen

For instance, is the title of a book I have just been reading. It has a good title, unique but typical characters and appeals directly to the deepest and most sustained human instinct, physical hunger. Furthermore, it has the imprint of good literature, as an original Atlantic Monthly publication which has run into several editions.

All ye gals who have been struggling with pickles, jam and canning recipes this Fall listen to this! Della T. Lutes: "As a remedy for boredom, ennui or a flagging spirit, I can recommend nothing more salutary than a garden for production and a cellar for preservation of its harvest." And Press Women also take note!

"Not the cleverness of a well-turned verse, nor the glow of color in a glowing canvas, can more fully slake the thirst for creation than this rich provision for her family's needs satisfy the true homemaker."

Within the covers of "The Country Kitchen" you will meet with some good old-fashioned recipes and also make the acquaintance of such delightful characters as "Miry and her husband 'Life,' their only child, a daughter who tells the story of her childhood. Aunt Sophrony and Aunt Hanner. Cousin Adelaide was married to Big Jim, known as the best 'pervider' in the country." There is a delightful picnic at which Adelaide and Jim do the honors. "Adelaide in her cooking, had the touch of an artist, the skill of a craftsman, the taste of an epicure, the hand of a woman who cooked food as if she loved it. Yet she had 'nothing to do with' it. She had no sisters, no mixers, or beaters. But she had thick cream, both sweet and sour, she had plenty of butter, and more than all, she had standards."

"Life did enjoy his 'vittuils' as prepared by Miry. His adventures were worth following throughout the year, from his Birthday Party on New Year's Day, box socials, Sunday School picnic, Fair Dinner, Chicken Pie Supper, Thanksgiving and Christmas, or just every day living. Even if the scene is in southern Michigan, it is typical of country life almost anywhere east of the Prairies."

To any reader of the sterner sex who suspects his own household of needing stimulus in the culinary department, I suggest that he would make no mistake in putting this book on his Christmas list. It contains good reading! and good eating for either sex.

Ethics of Etiquette

Ethics of Etiquette

THE INFLUENCES OF ENVIRONMENT

There are some people who are never quite so happy as when they are roaming in wide open spaces, breathing the fragrance of flowers and trees, whistling a tune in response to the sparrows. Such people live life simply, with no thought for impressive formality, no desire for brilliant functions.

There are others with a marked preference for city life with its endless round of entertaining, with its bright theatres and gay hotels. They enjoy formality, find great pleasure in lavish entertainments and elaborate functions.

By all means, choose the environment in which you can be happiest. But learn to adapt yourself to every environment, so that you can be happy everywhere. And remember that environment has a tremendous influence upon manner and manners. Do not remain, therefore, for any great length of time, in an environment unsuited to your personality, in an atmosphere that keeps you from living your best.

Choose environment as you choose friends, with a regard for the influence upon your own character.

ETIQUETTE IN A LARGE CITY

Conditions in a large city are such that etiquette must be tempered with common sense to be adaptable at all. City life is a noisy, turbulent, restless life, with speed as the watchword. As someone has very cleverly expressed it, "We not only burn the candle at both ends, we cut it in two and set all four ablazing!"

In the city we are constantly thrown into contact with people of every type and class. The man in his business suit, the woman on her shopping tour, are obliged to mingle with strangers. It is here that manner, rather than manners, acts as an armour, a protection, against the rudeness of other people.

There is a spirit of give-and-take in city etiquette, a spirit of good fellowship. We see it constantly in the subways, on the street cars, in shops, and on busy thoroughfares. It is a spirit curiously free from formality and restraint, simple and impulsive as the kindness that springs from a child's heart.

To those who are not accustomed to it, city life is rude and unpolished, the people unkempt and discourteous. But this is only on the surface. The man who remains seated in a street car while a young girl stands in front of him may be a salesman who has been on his feet all day. If you are observant you will notice that he is the first to rise when a woman with a child in her arms enters the car.

We must remember that all things are relative, and in city life the rules of etiquette must be altered to suit conditions. Though cities are the centres where the best things are found, they are also the centres of greatest activity, where social trifles are often forgotten in the hustle and bustle of business affairs.

A good-natured tolerance, a kindly and courteous attitude toward everyone, and a spirit of genuine good fellowship will go a long way toward making life in the city more pleasant and agreeable.

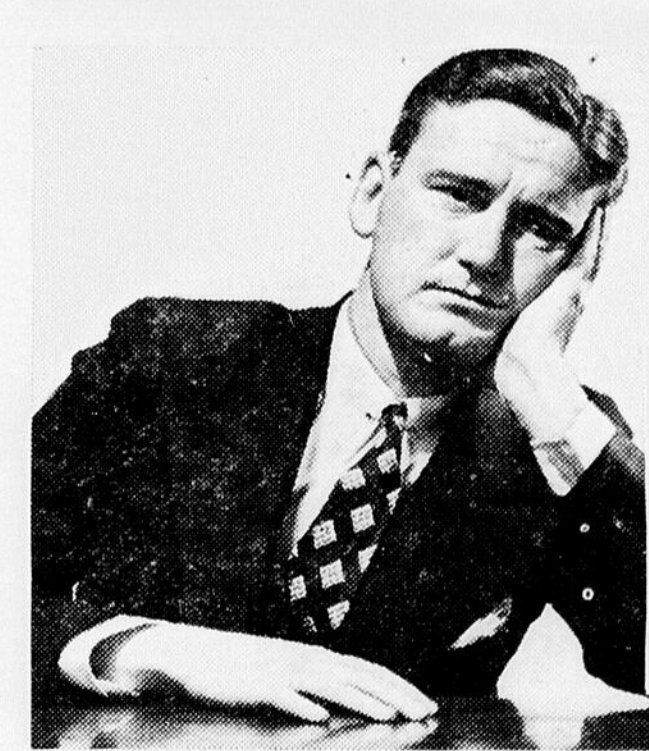

Edith: "Say, mamma, I want to ask you a question."

Mamma: "What is it now, Edith?" Edith: "When the first man started to write the word 'psalm' with a 'p' why didn't he scratch it out and start over again?"

SCHOOL NOTES

GIRLS WIN TROPHY
Girls of Huntingdon Academy have again won the Strathcona physical training shield open for competition among all schools in the Montreal area, according to Capt. C. E. Belanger, Cadet Officer.

Huntingdon Academy is the only school to win this shield two years in succession although Verdun High School have won it on two different occasions.

Following are the schools whose names are inscribed on the Trophy: Huntingdon Academy 1937; Verdun High School 1936; Verdun High School 1935; Verdun High School 1934; Verdun High School 1933; Verdun High School 1932; Verdun High School 1931; Verdun High School 1930.

The boys and girls basketball and track teams are practicing daily to get into shape for outside competition.

The boys will probably meet a city team on the gridiron when the girls will oppose a girls' team from the same school on the basketball floor. Although no definite date has been announced the games are set for the near future.

Principal Macmillan is still suffering from an attack of the grippe which has now developed into a case of acute laryngitis and during his absence the school has been under the charge of Mr. W. J. Miller.

Tested Recipes

Home Made Pickles

There are three main classes of home-made pickles: (1) sweet fruit or vegetable pickles; (2) sour pickles which include mustard pickles; and (3) the large variety of pickles in which the material is chopped finely. The following recipes contain examples of several kinds.

Cabbage Pickle—1 large cabbage finely chopped; 1 cup sugar; 1 tablespoon cornstarch; 1 pound butter; 1 tablespoon mustard seed; 1 pint of vinegar; 10 eggs.

Melt butter, add starch, then vinegar and well-beaten egg yolks, sugar, and seasonings. When slightly thickened, add cabbage. Boil ten minutes, stirring to prevent sticking. Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

Red Cabbage Pickle—1 quart vinegar; 2 tablespoons whole black pepper; 2 tablespoons whole crushed pepper; 2 cups sugar.

First remove outside leaves and stalk, cut across in very thin slices. Spread on a flat dish, sprinkle with salt, and let stand 24 hours. Turn into a colander and drain thoroughly. Place in jars or a crock and pour the above mixture over it while very hot. Cover and let stand a week before use. Spices may be varied.

Celery Sauce—6 heads celery; 1 cup sugar; 2 ounces mustard seed; 1 teaspoon turmeric; 1 quart vinegar; 2 quarts water; 1 pound mustard; 3 tablespoons salt.

Blend turmeric and mustard with a little vinegar. Mix all ingredients and simmer slowly 2 hours. Bottle while hot.

Pickled Onions—1 quart small pickling onions peeled; 1 quart good white vinegar; 1 teaspoon table salt; 2 teaspoons whole pepper corns.

Bring vinegar and seasoning to boiling point, remove any scum, put in onions, simmer for three minutes, or until onions are transparent. Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

Pepper Relish—12 large red peppers; 12 large yellow peppers; 12 large green peppers.

Boil vinegar, mix flour, brown sugar, mustard, turmeric, and celery seed in enough cold vinegar to make a paste, add to hot vinegar, and boil until it begins to thicken. Pour over vegetables, mix well and bottle.

Duplessis to Help Farmers Put Business on Sounder And Scientific Basis

Quebec Government will work hand in hand with the province's institutions of agricultural learning, planning to revamp the farming industry and place it on a sounder and more scientific basis. Premier Duplessis declared in a speech Tuesday of this week.

A congress of all teachers of agriculture in Quebec, called by the provincial Government, has been in session at Quebec for two days, studying proposals for the reform of farming and its re-establishment in a key position in the economic structure of the province.

Premier Duplessis pledged his Government's "every co-operation" in the work the educators have undertaken.

The Premier welcomed the renewed support promised by the church to Quebec farmers in their new role, and assured the farmers and their teachers they "can count on the administration of Quebec" for collaboration.

Farmers would be wise to remain on the land, "which gives adequate returns for all the labor of its cultivation," the provincial Government head said, and he urged them to live by the moral teachings of their church "whose priests are our greatest farmers."

PATENAIDE IS SPEAKER

On his visit to the convention session, Premier Duplessis was accompanied by Lieutenant-Governor E. L. Patenaide, who urged Quebec agriculturists to keep in step with the fast-moving times and seek benefit from the discoveries of science.

"The farmers must accustom themselves to the new ways of farming and new ways of living," the Lieutenant-Governor suggested. "It is not enough to follow the ancient customs and traditions of their forefathers. They must profit from science and take all it offers."

The prosperity of the whole Dominion of Canada was dependent on agriculture, he said, insisting "the land is the happiest medium, and the most prosperous."

The congress of farming teachers, agronomists and educationists is the first of its kind in Quebec. The Agriculture Department called it to seek better and more advanced teaching of farming science.

Delegates have been discussing problems facing all branches of the industry and suggesting reforms. Most pregnant of discussion have been proposals to introduce scientific methods to treatment of agriculture.

Reforms Suggested

Suggestions for reform were left with the convention by Agriculture Minister Bona Dussault, Hon. Cyrille Delage, Superintendent of Public Education, and Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve.

Albert Rioux, deputy Agriculture Minister, and Jean Charles Magnan, head of Quebec's farming education service, who are in charge of the congress, are keeping before the delegates suggestions as to the most important work to be done.

Deputy Minister Rioux told the meeting there was need for field work by institutions teaching agriculture. He suggested appointment of "fellow-observers" by the province's farming schools to keep contact with farming students practicing their acquired knowledge on their farms.

Agronomists, he believed, should be given a list of young farmers going about agriculture scientifically and give the benefit of their advice regarding practical work.

Mr. Magnan led discussion in the convention's study of Quebec's agricultural teaching system, its re-organization, proposals for centralization of scientific instruction, the value of practical farming, the system of farming teachers' appointments, text books in use in farming colleges and methods to perfect instruction.

Letters To The Editor

Huntingdon, Oct. 18, 1937

Huntingdon Gleaner:

Montreal papers try to make out that the action of Premier Duplessis in reinstating the Protestant Board of Public Instruction makes everything lovely again. Of course the letter of dismissal was sent in a very rough fashion.

The Provincial Treasurer took the responsibility for the action but in this area both the friends and political opponents of the Hon. Mr. Fisher are well aware that he never did anything as crudely as that. At the same time nearly everyone agrees that while it was done in the wrong way it is high time that the whole educational system was thoroughly investigated and that this should not be done by those who have spent a lifetime on the Board without any visible action.

People want to know why certain public officials consider our system obsolete; why certain subjects are in the curriculum and certain others omitted; who benefits when the school books are changed so frequently and why books are placed on the course of study which will not be off the press until some weeks of the school year have gone by, and a number of other things.

The suggestion has been made that a Royal Commission be appointed to investigate everything. This seems a very desirable action.

Yours truly,
H. R. CLOUSTON, M.D.

FARM MINERALS NEED MINERALS

Some of the Symptoms of Mineral Deficiency

The blood which courses through the arteries and veins of a living body is the vital, cleansing stream which transports nutrients to the body cells, tissues and organs and carries away poisons.

Water, a compound of hydrogen and oxygen, preponderates in food and in the body structure. Blood is 90 percent water; living bone is half water, and the whole animal body is three-quarters water. The rest may be reduced to dust, or to a handful of ashes if burned. The ash contains the important minerals which are essential to life. They are chiefly calcium, phosphorus, magnesium, sodium, potassium, iron, sulphur, chlorine and iodine. Inorganic salts of these elements are carried by the blood, and the invigorating properties of the blood may be impaired by an inadequate supply of some of these minerals when the food ration of the animal is deficient in them.

Calcium and phosphorus are needed in considerable quantities for bone-building. The metabolism of fat and carbohydrates is dependent on phosphorus, the substance in which most soils, and consequently the crops grown thereon are deficient. Chlorine goes to form hydrochloric acid in gastric juice. Lack of iron in the blood results in anaemia, a disease so prevalent in young pigs, while lack of iodine is often a cause of hairlessness in these, rotting of calves and lambs, and joint-ill of foals. All the minerals noted are essential to animal health and productivity, though the functions of some are imperfectly understood at present. Other symptoms of mineral deficiency are rickets, stiff joints and bone malformations, sterility, loss of appetite, depraved appetite and unthriftiness generally.

For the purpose of calling attention to the advantages of cheese as an item of food, and at the same time to give information about the many ways of serving this very fine concentrated form of milk, National Cheese Week was instituted in Canada in 1934 by the Dairy Industry of Canada. This year (1937) National Cheese Week will be held from October 29 to November 6 inclusive.

Tennis Stars In Action at Valleyfield

A crowd estimated at approximately 300 witnessed some sensational tennis matches at the Valleyfield Arena on Monday evening when well known players from Montreal were present and offered a first class exhibition in games with Valleyfield stars.

The first match on the program featured Jerry Philbin and G. Whitehead, playing against Albert Leblanc and Camille Doucet. The combination Philbin-Whitehead, after a hard fought game came out victorious by the score of 6-5.

In singles between Laird Watt and Roland Longtin, the former won from his opponent by the same score as the previous contest 6-5. This was the most exciting match of the evening with both players displaying great form.

In the doubles, Watt played with McNeil and Roger Durvage with P. Longtin. Play was very fast in this set and only the breaks decided the result of the issue. The final score was 6-4 and 8-6 in favor of the English-speaking Stars.

The crowd gave the players a good hand on different occasions, especially in the final match between the Montreal players.

A reception was held at Tourist Club after the games in honor of the visiting players.

Obituary

The late Mrs. Bernard Eastman

Not in the enjoyment of the best of health for some time, but able to be about until she entered Cornwall General Hospital on Tuesday, Oct. 12, Mrs. Eastman, widow of Bernard Eastman, died at that institution Saturday morning, failing to respond to treatment administered. Her death came as a shock to friends in Cornwall and the township, where she was particularly well known, many being unaware of her illness.

Mrs. Eastman was born in Ormstown, Que., 13 years ago last May. She is a daughter of William Reeves, her maiden name being Janet Amelia (Nettie) Reeves. She came to this section 50 years ago and, following her marriage to Mr. Eastman, lived in the Eastman household at Cornwall Centre until 13 years ago, when she and Mr. Eastman retired and came to Cornwall to make their home. Mrs. Eastman was active in the affairs of women's organizations in St. Paul's United Church and was a diligent worker in the W.C.T.U.

Mr. Eastman died December 12, 1936. She is survived by a son, Harold Eastman; two sisters, Mrs. Jas. Gardner and Mrs. Sarah Fawthrop, both of Cornwall. Another son, Lloyd Eastman, was killed overseas during the Great War.

Our imports of linen, linen yarn and thread last year were valued at over $9,000,000, nearly half of which came from the United Kingdom alone, according to the External Trade Branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Department of Trade and Commerce.

The art of turning flax fibre into cloth has been practised for at least 8,000 years. Egyptian nobles wore shirts of sheersheet linen, the Greeks and Romans valued linen as a rare and costly material. Today it is still an aristocrat among fabrics. The principal linen weaves are the plain weave used for clothing and embroidery; linens, twill weaves for heavy fabrics and satin weaves for damask table linen. Today most linens are bleached by chemicals, but the best quality linens are still grass-bleached.

Do You Put On The Brakes When Going Up The Hill?

We have all laughed at the story of the novice automobile driver, making his first trip over a mountain, who put on the brakes when the car went up the steeper grade, to keep it from slipping back down the mountain.

We laugh—yet let us take care that we do not apply this same principle to our business. When the going seems rough and the road steep, we must be careful that we don't jam on the brakes, stop dead, and sit there praying the brakes will hold.

CANADA'S PENITENTIARIES
Canadian penitentiaries are rapidly becoming regarded as industries—partly to manufacture some government material but mainly to remake men into good citizens fully qualified to take their places in the world of work.

There are seven penitentiaries administered by the Dominion Department of Justice, the two largest being at Portsmouth, Ontario and St. Vincent de Paul, Quebec. The other five are at Dorchester, New Brunswick; Collins Bay, Ontario; Stony Mountain, Manitoba; Prince Albert, Saskatchewan and New Westminister, British Columbia. There are, of course, many other correctional institutions such as industrial farms.

Kingston Penitentiary at Portsmouth may be regarded as a standard. It has an excellent library, hospital, workshops, a school, a large farm and two chapels. The inmates are housed in clean, well-furnished and well-lighted cells, compelled to keep themselves clean and tidy, fed in their cells, given shortened sentences for good behavior, franted a hear on each complaint against them, taught to read and write, encouraged to read good books and magazines and to pass high school and college examinations or taught one of the 15 trades.

The lash is not used for the purpose of discipline. It is used under two conditions only—when the court so orders in the sentence and when the Minister of Justice grants permission in a very extreme case of insubordination. Chaplains conduct religious services.

Despite the increasing population of the Dominion the number of inmates in these penitentiaries has shown a decline in recent years, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The latest figures show an average penitentiary population of less than four thousand.

FRUIT GROWING A COMPARATIVELY YOUNG INDUSTRY

In certain sections of Canada, the climate and soil are eminently adapted to fruit growing, and the Annapolis Valley, the Niagara Peninsula and the Okanagan district are world famous centres of fruit production. Experimental shipments of apples from the Annapolis Valley were first made in 1861, but up to 1890 the annual production of apples by Nova Scotia rarely exceeded 100,000 barrels. After that there was a pronounced increase in acreage and production until two million barrels were harvested in 1919. Last year one and a half million barrels were produced.

In Ontario, where the commercial production of all varieties of fruit has reached its highest development, apples have been grown for about two centuries, but commercial orcharding has developed only during the last sixty years. The building of railways made the industry possible.

In British Columbia, commercial fruit growing is of comparatively recent origin growth in production having been particularly rapid since 1910. From 1891 to 1921 the acreage expanded from 6,000 to 43,000 acres. Last year the farm value of Canadian fruit production was over $18,000,000. Half of that was due to apples, with strawberries second at almost $2,000,000, raspberries third at over $1,000,000, according to the Agricultural Branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Department of Trade and Commerce.

A report on the subject was issued recently by the Education Branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Department of Trade and Commerce.

Facts of Interest to Movie Fans

Even though they know every rule in the book of etiquette, you can depend on it, your favorite movie stars don't always follow them.

As Joan Crawford, for instance, who is one of the most popular hostesses in town, and one of the most correct. She's high perfect as a guest too, with her easy assurance, her friendliness and her humorous conversation.

She's a lady too but at the same time she's a shoe-shedder—and she admits it. She has a phobia about shoes. She'd rather not wear them at all, but since she has to, she sheds them as often as possible.

Spencer Tracy has a habit which has necessitated many shame-faced apologies on his part. When he picks up a match box to light his cigarette he unconsciously puts the box in his own pocket. That isn't so bad in restaurants or night clubs where they have only paper matches. But every now and then Spencer will return home from a party to find he has come off with a little something in his pocket or pocket which his hostess especially prized.

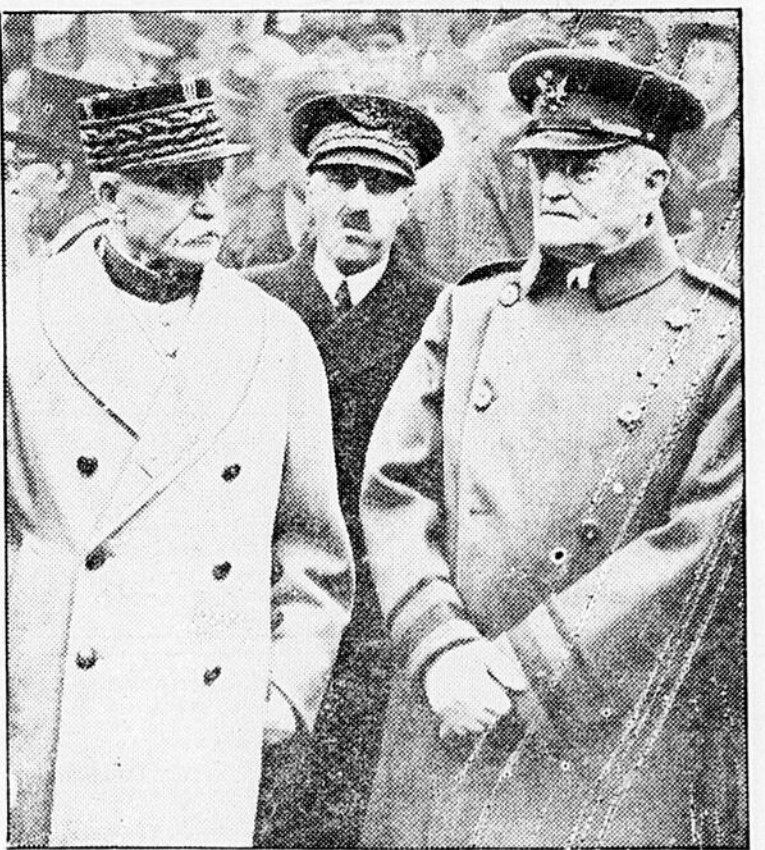

Then Carole Lombard is inevitably late for parties. She doesn't really plan things that way, but something always happens at the last moment—something that makes her tardy. Her friends know this and have tried to cure her of it in a joking way.

If you are one of those who have not been able to grow up from that adolescent habit of nail biting you will be pleased to know that two young ladies have achieved fame and fortune in spite of it, namely, Anita Louise and Olivia de Havilland.

UNABLE TO IDENTIFY HIMSELF

Loss of memory of a young man, clad in grey flannels and sports jacket, is interesting authorities. He is in his thirties, strolls the grounds of Warren-road Hospital, Guildford. He has lost his memory, and efforts to identify him have so far been unsuccessful. He was found unconscious by the roadside at Ripley on July 27, and was taken to hospital in an ambulance. He recalls the name of Carroll, mentions Chichester, and thinks he was companion-chauffeur to a man named Carroll. He last recalls driving a chocolate-colored American car to some flying field, where he was to join his employer and fly to France.

The concert given Friday evening in Covey Hill Town Hall, under the auspices of Rev. Mr. Belbin's three congregations was a very successful and interesting event, marked by a good attendance. The pastor acted as chairman and the programme was put on by Mr. Billy O'Reilly, known to radio fans as Little Jimmy. A pleasing variety of musical and other features was offered. His performance on the bagpipes being particularly admired. Home-made candy was sold and the proceeds amounted to about $33.

Letters from Mr. W. R. Perry express the deep impression made upon his mind by the Grand Canyon of Arizona. It is 200 miles long, up to 20 miles wide, and 4,800 feet deep, i.e. more than 3/4 of a mile in depth. The sure-footed mule is the only means of locomotion about this scenic marvel, and strong men, undertaking the ride have been known to quail with terror as they realized there was no turning back once started on the trip. Mr. Perry dilates upon the beauty of the trees and flowers, and of the mountains of California. He has been through Hollywood twice, gazed on the Pacific Ocean, and stared at Jack Dempsey's home. He renewed his friendship with an old Havelock boy in the person of Mr. Geo. Simpson, and has met Mr. Wm. Cleland's son John.

Mr. Kenneth Meyer, of Ottawa, who has spent some time at the home of his cousin, Mrs. C. C. Waddell, has been making farewell calls and was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Waddell before leaving for his home.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Loudon and George and Mrs. L. A. Waddell made a trip to the city last Tuesday. Master Randall Loudon returned home with them.

Farmers everywhere, but in Scotland especially, have a reputation for grumpiness—or meanness—which one North Country man has done his best to uphold. A Scottish ploughman approached his master to ask for a holiday. "I'm needing a day off," he said. "The farmer looked at him incredulously. 'A day off!' he exclaimed. 'Aye, a holiday,' said the ploughman. 'I hav'na had a holiday since months.'"

"Awa, man!" said the farmer. "Ye're aye getting holidays. Damn it, it's nae sax months since ye had your two meenutes' silence."

GIRLS WHO HAVE NO BOY FRIENDS

Quick Easy Way to Get Charm

Girls who don't attract boy friends wonder why. Beautiful, perfect features are not the reason. Cleopatra and famous women were often ugly. Have nice skin, plenty of animation, and watch out for your figure—you'll be surprised how popular you are. So many girls have poor complexions—no life—their figure slipping, and don't realize it. Take "Fruit-a-tives," and you'll soon be amazed how different and how attractive you've become. It purifies your blood, makes the skin pores work, gets rid of waste and poisons, gives you new energy, prevents flabby tissue from forming. "Fruit-a-tives" gives you new charm. 25c., 50c.

A Tip to Merchants Who Wish to Sell Goods

Modern merchandising promotions today are inefficient and incomplete unless they include liberal use of newspaper advertising space . . . It is through the newspaper in the hands of readers, relaxed and at ease in their homes, that attention to the merchandise you have for sale can be had . . . The thrifty shoppers . . . which means the keen shoppers . . . know quality and they know price . . . and they are always in search of information concerning items they plan to buy . . . So the tip to you, Mr. Merchant, which you will always get from the buyer's reactions, is . . . a liberal use of newspaper space to get your sales stories across.

Chapter 3

"You poor child!" Miss Lockwood said, as Gloria turned from the kitchen with her breakfast tray, to find her sitting open letters at the dining-room table. "You've had to take things very much as you found them, I'm afraid. I'm trying to get two good maids—I've been promised one for this afternoon and the other tomorrow, but it's frightfully hard just now, when all the resorts are opening up. And my being taken ill just at the wrong moment. I was tired to death and starving, and at this wedding I ate everything that was handed to me. It was the lobster I think. If people knew how sick people get at their weddings they'd serve milk toast and baked apples instead of the messes they do!"

With her red cheeks and crisply curled silver-gray hair, with her amusing manner and pleasant voice, she really was charming. Gloria felt an instant victim and began to see that the Lockwood Sanatorium might have advantages that more strictly managed places often lacked. Caroline Lockwood, despite her gray hair, was only forty-one, she was witty; she was extremely affectionate, really loving her old charges, and trying to keep them happy, and she had a quick, simple way of solving their problems that made life bearable and even interesting.

She wanted Gloria to keep her books for her, answer her mail, get the house running on a budget. Nobody seemed to know where the money went. It was disgraceful to scramble about this way, and Miss Lockwood did not propose to stand it. Barbara Wilson was a completely reliable and a completely shiftless person; why, in old Mrs. Weber's day, Miss Lockwood said, sometimes the income from the place ran close to $6,000 a month. The house must be filled again and a thousand things must be done. Miss Lockwood must have noticed what ought to be done.

"What I'd like to do is to put up a temporary camp," Miss Lockwood said. "And then tear all this down and build a new building here—a cream brick, modern, sanitary hospital where we can handle a hundred and ten persons. We can take only fifty-four now."

Gloria listened, almost impressed. She hoped that she was entirely impressed, but there was just a little residue of doubt left in her mind, and her honest desire to like Miss Lockwood and believe every word she said could not get a secure footing because of it.

"We promised them a surprise."

GOOD YEAR

Miss Lockwood was saying, "Now what'll it be?"

Gloria could only look at her with a blank yet sympathetic smile.

"My dear, anything at all. They are children. That's what you have to remember; they're simply children! Never give one of them anything you can't give them all. Do you drive?"

"Oh, yes; my car's parked right out here in the side garden."

"Yes, but you mustn't use your car, this gasoline is on me. I'll tell you what you do, you go to market and pick them up anything you see that seems cute."

"As, for example, chocolate bars?" Gloria hazarded.

"Chocolate bars are wonderful; they'll adore them! All right, you go to market. It's Barbara's job, but she's all wrought up over this Salt Lake City plan. She'll not stay, she'll come right back—all my people do. But she needs a change. Do you know that I think you're almost the prettiest person I ever saw?"

The last came unexpectedly and abruptly, with a smile from Caroline Lockwood's bright eyes. Gloria laughed and flushed, and went away without any response, but deep in her heart she was pleased and interested and busy. "And that," she said to herself, "is a lot more than most of the girls are, even if things are rather odd here!"

Her father and mother came at about eleven o'clock. She had thought they might and had prepared Miss Lockwood for their call. Her employer met them sensibly and pleasantly, explained that these were at a rather "between stages" point at the Lockwood Sanatorium, and then she showed her most charming side to them. Even Gloria, with a sort of wonder, thought her parents just a trifle simple in that they accepted the situation with simple faith, without enthusiasm. It was not for her to deceive them; they presented, went away, agreeing that Gloria should try the experiment for a month at least.

During almost every hour in the days that followed her own feelings fluctuated between the extremes of satisfaction and despair. It was delightful to awaken in the morning, independent and needed; breakfast was amusing; the mail and newspaper always brought a certain element of interest into the day. But after that came several bad hours.

The old persons in some cases could not, and in others did not, take adequate care of their rooms. They were almost as bad as children in creating disorder, and Gloria and Miss Lockwood were busy all day, hanging up coats and sweaters, putting away games, straightening chairs, wiping out bathtubs, carrying many plates and magazines and newspapers.

But in the afternoon matters quieted down. Almost all the old persons took naps or sat idly dreaming with open eyes under trees. Gloria could take a bath, dress freshly, lie down for a doze herself, or walk down to the village and take in a movie. As she and Ida arranged the menu together, supper was always what she liked, and in the evening there were the radio, long animated talks with Miss Lockwood, if she were home, and a good-night look at the stars in the sky.

and the lesser stars caught in the wide darkness of the bay, and the satisfied thought: "Well I'm getting away with it!"

Gloria attempted to persuade Miss Wilson to stay, it was no use. Ida, carrying all the work of the household, threatened to go away, too. Miss Lockwood rejoiced and invited Gloria to rejoice in that her dear old Larkin was coming back. Mrs. Larkin turned out to be one of her own sort, handsome and young and prematurely gray, full of fine definite plans for running the house, but with the besetting weakness that took her and Miss Lockwood off on some mysterious mission for two or three days every week.

When Gloria went home for her first overnight holiday she was so tired and so confused that she was meditating capitulation. Her father and mother knew of the Lockwood Sanatorium only what they had seen on that brief call and what she told them; but, after all, Dr. Merriam had spoken of her to Miss Lockwood, and Dr. Merriam was an old friend of the Herfords. If they knew the truth about it, Gloria reflected, they would bring her home.

"It's an old-fashioned place but it's nice," Mrs. Herford said. "Had enough of it, sweetheart?" the doctor asked his daughter at dinner.

If he had asked her this a few hours earlier Gloria's answer must have been a weary affirmative. She had come home so tired that she could not have held out for another minute. But she had had a bath and three hours' sleep now; Babs Hungerford and the two Howland boys had come to dinner. Gloria was wearing a new evening gown. Her spirits were completely restored; she had gotten her mother an extravagant big bottle of her favorite bath salts and her father a five-dollar book; these presents were at their places at the table. Gloria laughed excitedly as they discovered them.

"The very first thing I've ever bought for you two with my own money."

"But you've had about enough of it, haven't you?" Gloria's father repeated.

"Oh, no; I'm going back."

And the next day she drove back to Sausalito, drove slowly and with distaste in her heart, but steadily enough, back to the Lockwood Sanatorium.

Mrs. Larkin, who had been doubly busy in Gloria's absence, welcomed her abstractedly. Her eyes were bright and her face was rather pale; Gloria noted a certain restlessness in her manner. She said she was glad Gloria was back; Caroline had to go right to the city; she would come home on the late theatre boat; would that be all right? Would that be all right? Caroline had to see a friend—yes, a very sick friend—poor thing—subject to these terrible attacks—

Gloria knew what the matter was; she felt chilled and dismayed. Right? Would that be all right? Caroline had to see a friend—yes, a very sick friend—poor thing—subject to these terrible attacks—

Innovations At Coming Motor Show

Changes in Transmission And Suspension—Longer Wheelbases

"There is nothing like success to attract success and this is why the organization of this year's Montreal Motor Show is much easier than ever before," states Mr. E. A. Everson, Treasurer of the Montreal Automobile Trade Association Ltd. and President of Mid-Town Motor Sales Ltd., Buick, Pontiac, Cadillac and LaSalle distributors.

"The Sun Life Building is chosen again as the home of the National Motor Show of Eastern Canada, to be held November 20th to 27th, 1937."

"Once again," says Mr. Everson, "architects and engineers in technical co-operation will assemble their highly specialized knowledge to satisfy a 'clientele' which is ever seeking higher perfection. We may rest assured that cars of 1938 will surpass the present models, not only in style and performance, but also in comfort, in roadability, and above all, in safety. Yet, notwithstanding these higher standards, they will sell for less money and will represent a sound investment on account of their economy of operation."

"Many new inventions have been tested in the past few months. 'Rumors' circulating in Detroit presently indicate that the chassis of new models will have a longer wheel-base without increasing the overall length of the body. Bodies were first lengthened to place the motor farther ahead and to obtain sloping rear-ends. This year, chassis will be lengthened to give more stability to these longer bodies."

"Another detail which should increase comfort is the transformation of suspension systems. Rumor indicates that many have been deeply modified. In certain cases, manufacturers have gone so far as to adopt four-wheel independent suspension.

"Yet, the transformation of paramount importance and the one which will characterize more distinctly the year 1938 is in regards to transmissions. Confidential information indicates that transmission levers will be eliminated in some of the makes or, if maintained, will be under a different form. The trend is definitely towards automatic or semi-automatic transmissions and interesting studies may be made in this regard at the coming Motor Show," states Mr. Everson.

Dr. John Fulford Rolit, well-known Westmount dentist, died suddenly Saturday morning of a heart attack at his home in Montreal.

Dr. Rolit was born at Lakefield, Que., on May 26, 1869. He was the son of the Rev. Canon Rolit and of Mary Dixon, and grandson of Rev. Charles Rolit, missionary priest in the dioceses of Montreal and Minnesota, of Cogan House, Hull, England.

He started his education at St. John's School, Montreal, and later went to Bishop's College where he graduated in 1897. He had practiced his profession continually since that time.

The Electric Washer

Six Helpful Hints on How to Use it

One
Soak the clothes 15 minutes in cool (60° F.) water, either clear or soapy. Never soak them in hot water because hot water sets some stains. However, you may want to use soapy, lukewarm water, which soaks out more soil, thus keeping the hot wash water clean for more loads. Brush very dirty spots with a soap solution before soaking. Fill the machine with the soft or softened water.

To make it easy: A hose that fills the machine costs little, saves many a backache.

Two
Hot water is such an excellent bleach that when we wash by machine we use water as hot as we can get it (140° to 160° F.). Unless the clothes are badly yellowed, this hot bath takes the place of boiling. And the water for each load should be hot. Replacing some of the dirty water in the machine with a palful helps to conserve a limited hot water supply.

To make it easy: A thermometer that tells you accurately the temperature of the water.

Three
The quantity of soap is important—just enough to create the two-inch standing suds necessary for best results in washing. So experiment with a measuring cup and ruler to find out exactly how much you need for the water in your locality. Soap should be thoroughly dissolved, as bits clinging to a garment and ironed into it cause yellow spots.

To make it easy: To create a suds and completely dissolve the soap, run the machine a few minutes before adding the clothes.

Four
Wash the clothes—five minutes for slightly soiled clothes, seven to ten minutes for moderately soiled ones, and fifteen minutes to remove the most stubborn dirt. Longer washing periods drive the dirt back into the clothes, thus defeating your purpose. For best results, change the wash water often.

To make it easy: Your machine will do a better job if it is not overloaded. The manufacturer usually recommends a load that is the equivalent of four to six sheets.

Five
For rinsing: cleanliness: three rinsings. First, in a small amount of hot (115°-120° F.), soapy water. This soapy rinse (about half as much soap as for the wash water) helps to remove remaining dirt. Next, rinse in a large amount of clear, lukewarm (100°-110° F.) water; then in a large amount of clear, cool (70°-80° F.) water, with or without bluing.

To make it easy: Fold the clothes evenly when you put them through the wringer. And release wringer rolls after each wash day.

Six
Starch helps to keep cottons crisp and clean. And it penetrates the fabric more evenly if used while quite hot. Then hang the clothes in the sun that they may bleach while drying. Before adding another load of clothes to the machine, be sure that the water is hot, soapy and reasonably clean.

To make it easy: Buy a machine that has a pump to eject the water. Removing and cleaning all inside parts each wash day keeps washing machines in good condition.

Social Evening.
The Women's Missionary Auxiliary held a social evening in the Presbyterian Church school room Thanksgiving night. Progressive games were played at six tables, the winners being Mrs. R. C. Baird and Clarence French, with consolation prizes going to Hazel French and Geo. Elder.

Y.W.A.
The October meeting of the Presbyterian Young Women's Auxiliary was held recently at the home of Mrs. Archib. Rowat. The meeting was conducted by the President, Mrs. George McIntyre, and the lesson, "The Chinese in Canada" was given by Mrs. Rowat. The young ladies spent the afternoon in quilting or other work for their sale of work which they plan to have on St. Andrew's Night. A delicious supper was served by the hostess.

Ladies' Aid Meeting.
The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Shearer, with a good attendance of members. The treasurer, Mrs. George Elder reported the sum of $100 was cleared from the recent supper put on by the Society. Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. John Ross, Mrs. T. Ross and Mrs. D. F. Grant. After the ladies had gone, Mrs. Shearer served a chicken supper to a number of the men of the village, to assist the finances of the Society, which was a decided success, both in the pleasure afforded those partaking of the delicious supper and the amount realized.

The Willing Workers' Mission Band, having received an invitation to visit Ormstown Band on Saturday, through the kindness of their leader, Mrs. Leslie Elder, a number were able to attend, viz., Arlene Grant, Betty Hampson, Jean Hutchings, Helen Foers, Phyllis Forster and Katherine Rowat. Other members who attended were Thelma, Helen and Basil Kelly.

taking Wealthy at 45 cents per 100's in Michigan. The best McIntosh were bringing from 75 cents to $1.25 per bushel. The Peru Fameuse, coming to Montreal cost 40 cents for the fruit, crate 20 cents, domestic 40 cents, duty 15 cents, excise 4 cents, freight 16 cents, netting the grower about 60 cents to 70 cents on the Montreal prices.

Ontario points reported many sales with Spys, McIntosh, Golden Russet, No. 1, at $4.25 per barrel; domestic $3.50 to $3.65; Snows at $3.35 or $1.10 a bushel; Starks, Fallwater, Pippins, Baldwin No. 1, $3; Domestic, $2.50; Nova Scotia fruit, chiefly No. 3 Windfalls, were moving slowly to Montreal $2.50 to $2.75 for cooking varieties, with McIntosh and Fameuse $3 to $3.25. Exports to the British market had been too heavy with resultant low prices. Relief buying would take 150 cars in British Columbia. Prices on Snows were $1.15, plus 62½ cents freight to Montreal; with Grade C selling at 95 cents.

GAS STORAGE
Mr. Tawse remarked that growers were keenly interested in the experiments with gas storage that were being made at the Central Experimental Farm to ascertain the correct percentage of carbon dioxide gas to be retained in the sealed chambers to preserve the fruit in proper condition for six months or more. In England show that the storing of apples in their own gas gives them a longer life when taken out of storage, and the fact that the temperature is maintained around 40 degrees gives the fruit a much better flavor, because fruit loses its flavor with low temperatures.

Incidentally the pomological secretary sent a note to the members that the long range weather forecast was closer this year than expected and that the 1938 forecast called for one of the wettest summers, so that members should be possible before the ground freezes.

see that this street be swept every Saturday in the future, even if the Corporation man has other work to do.

The Secretary of the Town was ordered to have all business taxes of plumbers, painters, etc., collected. Moved by Ald. Barrett, seconded by Ald. Baillargeon that these business taxes be collected.

Mayor Faubert asked the Council if they wished to keep the Town Constable on for the winter months as he is entitled to know if he is to be employed during the winter or not. After information on his past activities Ald. Lalonde moved that Mr. J. Aubin be given thirty days notice. The Police Committee, however, did not see why he should be discharged as they had no sufficient grounds to do so. Consequently it was moved by Ald. Barrett, that he be re-engaged until May first, 1938, at the same salary. Seconded by Ald. Lunan.

The Council then adjourned.

Guests were present from Montreal, Longueville, Chateauguay, Abbotsford, Lacolle, Plattsburg, Roussin, Point, Champlain, Moers, as well as a large representation from our own community. HEADACHE AFTER HEADACHE

Now She's Free From Them

A woman writes:—"I would like everyone who suffers from headaches to try Kruschen Salts. Before taking Kruschen I was seldom free from a headache. But since I have been taking it regularly I have hardly had a headache, for which I am very thankful. I have been taking a small dose of Kruschen every morning in a glass of warm water, before my breakfast, and I feel so well."—(Mrs.) A.E.D.

How do you deal with headaches? Do you just take something to deaden the pain, without getting rid of the trouble which causes the pain? Headaches can generally be traced to a disordered stomach and to the unexpended retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. Remove these poisons—prevent them from forming again—and you'll never have to worry any more—because that cause. And that is just how Kruschen Salts bring swift and lasting relief from headaches. Kruschen aids Nature to cleanse your body completely of clogging waste matter.

Cocktails Won't Help You In Examinations

When preparing for examinations, don't take cocktails or highballs, is the advice of Dr. Frederick R. Rogers, director of physical education at Boston University.

In a bulletin issued by the university's bureau of publicity, Dr. Rogers is quoted as saying: "Just before an examination it is legitimate to take some stimulant, especially if the exam is early in the morning. It is certain that lump sugar gives almost immediate physical energy. For some students coffee is a good stimulant.

"Experiments show," he continued, "that alcohol in any form gives immediate energy followed by a period of depression greater than and lasting twice as long as the stimulation." A highball or cocktail is worthless in preparing for a two-hour examination.

TYPEWRITERS

The first recorded plan of a typewriter was set forth in an English patent granted to Henry Mill in 1714. His machine, he said, "would impress letters, one after another, as in writing." However, there is no record showing that he completed his machine. The list of type-writing pioneers include Progin of France, Wheatstone of England, and several Americans, but the most successful of all was Christopher Sholes, a printer and newspaper man who built his first model in 1867, when he was 48 years of age. Sholes continued improvements to his model, assisted financially by James Densmore, a Pennsylvania business man, who became his partner. In 1873 Sholes sold his patent rights for $12,000 to the Remington Company, which manufactured firearms, sewing machines and farm tools. Densmore also turned over his rights but on a royalty basis and in the course of years obtained royalties of more than a million dollars. Sholes died in 1890 when he was 71; he had lived to see his important invention come into general use.

The typewriter has been a great boon to business generally as well as to writers of all kinds and is an essential part of the equipment of all well appointed offices. It has provided employment for a large army of women who seem to possess in great degree the qualities that make good stenographers and typists. There are in Canada 62,000 female stenographers and typists according to the last census.

The production of typewriters in Canada in 1935 was close to 16,000 machines. There were over 3,000 exported and nearly 5,000 imported. Among the imports were special typewriters for the use of the blind in this country.

These figures are supplied by the Manufactures Branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Department of Trade and Commerce.

PRISON SAFEST SPOT

Scotland's safest spot during air raids will soon be Barlinnie Prison, Glasgow, where the 120 warders are daily being trained in air raid precaution measures by Mr. J. R. Peddie, head warden of the prison. In addition, every cell is now equipped with a gas mask. Peddie has undergone a thorough course of training at the air raids precaution school at Fallowfield, Gloucestershire, and on his return to Barlinnie he immediately set about organizing a course for his warders, who are now attending lectures four nights a week. The next job will be to tell the prisoners what they are to do in time of an air raid.

MAKING FRIENDS

Be friends with everybody. When you have friends you will know there is somebody who will stand by you. You know the old saying that if you have a single enemy you will find him everywhere. It does not pay to make enemies. Lead the life that will make you kindly and friendly to every one about you, and you will be surprised what a happy life you will live.—Charles H. Schwab.

WHICH WAY DO PIGS' TAIL CURL?

Pigs tail curl has been occupying great minds of the Agriculture Department at Washington. It straightened out that periodically puzzling porcupine problem—Does the pig's tail curl to the right or left? "The answer," said J. H. Zeller, of the Bureau of Animal Industry's swine division, "is that there are few things so consistent as the inconsistency of the pig's tail curl." Mr. Zeller went out to the government's experimental farm at Beltsville, Md., and counted 200 many sized and deviously colored pigs and took a quick but systematic count. The result was: Ninety-eight rights, ninety-eight lefts, four borderline cases. So ends—the government hopes—this pig tale.

"It's high time this town had a modern dance orchestra," declared Miss Betty Smith, 19-year old daughter of Herb Smith, editor of the Essex County Gazette and County Advertiser, as she passed Mr. Picobac a heaping saucer of ice cream at the gala night of the Essex Centre Boosters' Club. "The time has come—and overcome."

"What's the matter with this orchestra?" laughed her Dad, winking at Mr. Picobac.

"Fiddle fiddle . . . jiggety diggety," scoffed Betty in disgust. "Old time fiddling is all right for old timers like you and me, Herb," said Mr. Picobac. "But flaming youth is on the march today. I'll vote for your side, Betty. Nothing is too good for Essex Centre."

"Attaboy," said Betty. "And I'll tell all the young men I know what I think about Picobac."

"What DO you think about it?"

"It's a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke," quoted Betty, laughing.

"So it is," agreed Mr. Picobac, chuckling. "All they have to do is try it."

A Few Canadian Winners At National Dairy Show

Quebec Ayrshires Triumph At National Dairy Show

in the aged bull class with Le Moines Point Enterprise, and therefore, beat out at least three U.S. Eastern and Western champions of this year.

Four of the six first prize winners in the bull classes, therefore, went to Canadian exhibitors while one of the other two, Alta Crest Round Up, winner in the 2 year old class, is by Auchinbrain Royal Charlie former herd sire for H. A. Swart, Simcoe, Ont. The junior champion male was Netherhall Swanky Dan, Imp., first prize senior yearling for Teitz & Sons, of Wisconsin. This bull is a grandson of Nethertown Swank, Imp., a well-known Canadian winnership contests.

Most of the Quebec female entered figured very well in an exceptionally strong female section, which was said to constitute, along with the bulls, the strongest Ayrshire show seen at a National Dairy Show in the past ten or twelve years.

Amongst the Canadian winners were: Heifer calves (12)—1 and 5, W. C. Pitfield on Saragay Lucky 3rd and Saragay Fidelia, the former by the prize winning Glen Campbell Sea Breeze (son of Glen Campbell Fidelia) and the latter out of that great winner Glen Campbell Fidelia; 9, R. The Holstein Show

Whilst there were no Canadian Holstein herds forward several Canadian-bred animals of that breed took leading places. Four cows by King Toitilla Acme and bred by W. S. Two of the four Sensation Zilla of Baker Farm and Sensation Matchless of Baker Farm were respectively first and second in a class of 38 aged cows.

Percheron Show

The National Percheron Show and Percheron Type conference was run concurrently with the National Dairy Show and brought out what was said to be the strongest show of Percherons ever seen. One of the two judges was Carl Roberts of St. Adolphe, Manitoba.

The senior and grand champion male was Corlaet by Sir Laet, owned by W. B. Murray, Wellington, Ohio. An attractive offer was made for this horse by Gilbert Arnold of Grenville, Que., but up to the time we left his offer had not been accepted.

Mr. Arnold purchased Gerard Laet, first prize two year stallion for Michigan State College in a class of

ROUGHAGE FOR THE DAIRY COW

In planning a ration for the dairy cow, contrary to what many dairymen think, especially those who are now in the business, the most important part of the ration is the roughage. We speak of roughage as cheap as compared with grain. In one sense it is a cheap feed. On the other hand, if it has to be purchased it is relatively more expensive than grain.

Most dairymen do not grow enough of the right kind of roughage for their cows. Many depend too much upon cornstalks and timothy hay. While this sort of roughage is not to be despised, it is not what the dairy cow ought to have.

She needs legume hay, especially so when silage is fed. Alfalfa, when soil conditions are right, can be raised more economically than any other legume.

When a dairy cow is fed 30 to 40 pounds of corn silage a day and all the alfalfa or clover she can eat, it is a comparatively easy matter to supply the grain ration, even if part of it has to be purchased.

Most dairymen make the mistake of not providing silage for Summer feed. On the average it is just as necessary to feed silage from the middle of July till the middle of September as it is to feed it during the Winter months. Every dairy farm of consequence should have a Summer silo about 10 feet in diameter. This is not absolutely necessary, if one can carry over 15 or 20 feet of silage in the bottom of the silo that is used during the Winter season. Such silage is well compacted and is not apt to spoil, even if only a thin layer of it can be used daily. In some years it may not be necessary to feed silage in Summer. In that case no harm will be done, for it will keep for another year or two years, if necessary. Fresh corn can be put on top of the old silage without difficulty.

A MIRROR

The heart of a wise man should resemble a mirror, which reflects every object without being sullied by any—Goldsmith.

KNOW THE HABITS OF FARM WEEDS

To Apply Best Methods Of Destroying Them

The importance of knowing the habits of any weed lies in applying this knowledge to the eradication of the plant. For instance, it would be useless to summer-fallow a field in order to kill an annual weed like the pigeon grass, which can be kept from spreading by any method that will prevent it from bearing seed. Whether the root is removed from the ground or not is of little consequence if no seeds are allowed to form.

On the other hand it would be equally unwise to attempt to destroy quack grass by preventing it from bearing seed when, in many cases, it really spreads more rapidly by root stocks than by seed. Hence to intelligently eradicate any weed one must know its life period and its habit of growth.

Perhaps one of the best means of successfully combating weeds is by rotating the crops grown upon the infested fields.

A good rotation, especially for the dairy farmer, is one requiring four years. Are four years of persistent work enough to kill all weeds? They would be, were it not for the great length of time during which weed-seeds may lie dormant in the soil only to grow and reproduce their kind when turned to the surface. Instances are known of weed-seeds growing after having been buried for ten, and even more than forty years! Hence the need of continued rotation.

CHILD SWALLOW NEEDLE

Anxious doctors at the Cook county hospital in New York were watching the course of a needle Nila Jean Kratzel, 3 years old, swallowed in her home. X-ray photographs were taken at thirty-minute intervals and everything was in readiness for an emergency operation. Dr. Ole C. Nelson, assistant warden of the hospital, said they hoped the needle, which lodged in the child's intestines might be eliminated naturally, but if the X-ray pictures showed it had punctured the abdominal wall an operation would be performed. The annual Thanksgiving supper of Kensington United Church was held in Kensington Hall on Thursday evening, October 14th, and was a decided success. Supper was served from 5:30 p.m. and upwards, of 300 partook of the bountiful supper provided by the ladies, a large number being present from the neighbouring churches, as well as Malone, Huntingdon and Ormstown. Miss Purcell with her Junior Orchestra was present and contributed largely to the evening's entertainment, while Rev. J. H. Woodside acted as chairman, and after a few well chosen remarks called upon Rev. Mr. Nimmo and Rev. Mr. Lynn, who gave short addresses. The ladies of the W.A. made ready sales in their booth while the Mission Circle contributed to their funds in selling homemade candy. The proceeds of the evening amounted to $159.00. Much thanks is expressed by the Kensington people to Miss Purcell and all those who helped to make their supper such a success.

The members of Kensington Y.W.A. motored to Huntingdon on Saturday afternoon and were hospitably entertained by Mrs. David Booth at her home. The meeting was conducted by the President and twelve members and invited friends were present. Arrangements were made to have a social evening at the end of October at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Tannahill. At the close of the afternoon a hot dinner was served by the hostess, Mrs. Booth, assisted by her sister, Mrs. Ovens and Miss Jessie Ovens.

Miss Marion Merson, Huntingdon spent the week-end with her friend, Miss Marjorie Elder.

Mr. R. Mansfield and sister, Miss B. Mansfield, Montreal, are spending a holiday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Donnelly.

Mrs. Mamie Lowe, Atlantic City, is spending some weeks at the home of her brother, F. J. Donnelly.

Dr. C. Gordon, Charles Gordon, M.D., and Mrs. R. W. Lavery and baby, Esther, Huntingdon, motored to Madrid, N.Y., on Sunday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Mark Alford. Mr. and Mrs. Ira Gordon, daughters, Helen and Ellen, Cornwall, were also present. Mrs. D. K. Gordon who spent the past week visiting her daughter, returned home with them.

The monthly meeting of the W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. A. Goldie with a good attendance. The President, Miss Johnston, presided over the devotional period and W.M.S. business, and in the absence of Mrs. Middlemiss, Mrs. Trainer was appointed to conduct the Ladies' Aid meeting. A delicious supper was served by Mrs. Goldie, assisted by Mrs. Williams.

The second lot of horses brought from the west by Mr. McRae went under the hammer on Monday afternoon at the farm of the late Isaac Cain, seventeen animals being disposed of. The sale attracted a large crowd but bidding was somewhat slower than at the first sale, the top price being $139 for a four year old filly. Indications are that the demand has been pretty well met in this section, several car lots having already been disposed of.

BIRDS AND INSECTS

Canada spend large sums each year on various methods of controlling the insect pests which attack farm crops, native forest plants and forests. The destruction, on a large scale, of plant life by insects is perhaps more noticeable in the semi-arid regions of the west than elsewhere. Periodically in these regions various species of grasshoppers and crickets reach plague proportions and devastate vast areas. Efforts to control these insect plagues are very materially assisted by the work of birds.

Where such conditions prevail many species of birds feed exclusively upon these destructive insects which can be secured with practically no effort. This food supply is then abundant and many more young birds reach maturity than is the case when the food supply is relatively scarce.

Amongst the bird enemies of grasshoppers and crickets are the Crows, Swainson's Hawk, Sparrow Hawk, Meadowlark, Brewer's Blackbird, Red-winged Blackbird, Yellow-headed Blackbird, Lewis's Woodpecker, the Magpie and many others. Even Swallows are known to feed upon the small, undeveloped grasshoppers according to the Natural Parks Branch of the Department of Mines and Resources.

Most of the birds mentioned are either useful or harmless but in the case of the crow it is well known that part of the diet consists of birds eggs and young birds. There has been much discussion concerning the economic status of the crow, whether the harm caused by destroying other bird life is balanced by its good offices in destroying insect pests or whether the bird's bad habits outweigh its good ones. Many biologists believe that the number of other birds destroyed by crows is compensated for by the destruction of harmful insects.

The destruction of birds' eggs and young birds by crows is very largely done during the early part of the breeding season when insect food is relatively scarce. Subsequently the crow turns its attention towards more easily obtained insect food as this becomes available.
