Four persons died accidentally in the Eastern Townships over the Victoria Day holiday weekend. Three died as the result of highway accidents and the other was killed when struck by lightning in Granby Sunday night.

Kenneth Lubecki, personnel manager of the Miner Rubber Co. in Granby was running from one building to another during Sunday evening's storm when lightning struck him and killed him instantly, Granby police said this morning.

Mr. Lubecki is the father of three. A coroner's inquest will be held into the death sometime this week.

A 33-year-old father of three was killed instantly Sunday afternoon when the car which he was driving left the road and crashed into a stone wall on the outskirts of Savage Mills, about six miles from Granby.

Marcel Labonte was taken to the hospital immediately and pronounced dead on arrival. Granby police said this morning that he lost control of his car while driving alone.

A one-year-old baby boy, was killed instantly in Tingwick Sunday morning when he was trapped under a car in the yard of his home.

Jacques Laroche, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Laroche was playing in his yard Sunday morning when a car driven by Leonard Perreault of Asbestos rolled over the boy.

Mr. Perreault had been in the house talking with Mr. Laroche and said when he

Over 70 candidates to enter

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
This is nomination day in 21 scattered constituencies from Newfoundland to the Yukon and the names of more than 70 candidates will be entered officially in the June 18 Dominion election contest.

These nominations are in ridings where a full month is needed to deliver election supplies because of distances to be covered and isolation of polls. June 4 is nomination day in Canada's 242 remaining constituencies, two of which elect two members apiece to the 265-seat Parliament.

A Canadian Press compilation indicates at least 71 candidates from five parties will seek seats in the ridings nominating today. Progressive Conservatives and Liberals have a full entry of 21 apiece; the New Democratic Party has 15 candidates, Social Credit 12 and Communists two.

Prospective candidates have until 2 p.m. local standard time to file their forms and pay their $200 deposits.

Members of the last House are seeking re-election in 19 of the ridings. Perrault Larue, PC member for Saguenay, is not standing again, while in the Yukon Mrs. Isabel Hardie is bidding for the seat held by her late husband, Liberal Mervyn Hardie.

Today's chuckle

PARIS (AP) — A terrorist plot to assassinate President de Gaulle—the second one to come to light in eight months—has been smashed, police announced Monday night.

At least 15 suspects are being held for questioning here and police are searching in France and Algeria for other members of the Secret Army Organization in connection with the abortive plot.

Arrests made in Paris, in the French Mediterranean port of Marseilles and in Algiers broke up the Secret Army conspiracy to kill de Gaulle during his tour of central France last week.

Police pictured the suspects as a desperate band of killers intent on removing France's strong-willed leader and plunging the country into chaos in an effort to block Algerian independence.

De Gaulle meanwhile stayed within the heavily-guarded Elysee Palace in the heart of Paris. He had no announced public engagements today, but was due to appear before several Paris crowds Wednesday in connection with the state visit to President Moktar Ould Daddah of Mauritania.

Police indicated the killers intended to incinerate de Gaulle with gas bombs, but the newspaper Paris-Prise said the assassins planned to pick him off with a high-powered rifle equipped with a telescopic sight. The newspapers said the operation was to be known as "chamois" (mountain goat) because of the long shot required.

Official and unofficial sources gave this account of the foiling of the plot:

Forty-eight hours before de Gaulle left on his provincial speaking tour Wednesday, police seized three Secret Army agents in Marseilles and two in Paris. From these five came the first hint that plans were afoot to assassinate de Gaulle during his provincial tour.

More details came with the arrest in Algiers of Francois Leca, a Secret Army agent wanted in the slaying of a military security officer. From long hours of questioning in the three cities, police built up a picture of the plot and obtained the names of the would-be killers, members of a Secret Army group called Delta.

Some 2,000 were freed from internment camps in Algeria before an announcement by Premier Georges Pompidou on April 27 that rest would be held until the Algerians account for French soldiers in their hands.

It now is generally considered a fact both by French officials and in Algerian circles in Tunis that few—possibly none at all—of the 193 French soldiers unaccounted for are still prisoners of war.

Algerian officials have stated that none remain in the hands of the large nationalist forces stationed in Tunisia but they cannot guarantee none are held by armed bands in isolated parts of Algeria.

Algerians release 4 soldiers

PARIS (Reuters) — Release by the Algerian National Liberation Army last week of four French soldiers taken prisoner in the Algerian war, admitted forlorn, in nearly 200 French families.

The men were released in Morocco, after unofficial reports from Tunisia had quoted the Liberation Army command as saying they hold no more prisoners, and the French government had stopped freeing Algerians captured in combat because the Algerian provisional government had not provided a list of those they held.

France still holds 1,800 Algerian combatants who, under the Evian agreements between France and the Algerian nationalists, were to have been released within 20 days of the March 19 cease-fire.

'Normal change' for time of year

Jobless down from March; is lower than a year earlier

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada at mid-April was 485,000, a drop of 75,000 from mid-March, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The decline in the jobless total between March and April was described as a "normal change for this time of year." It was 137,000 lower than a year earlier.

Last month's unemployment total represents 7.5 per cent of the labor force, compared with 8.7 per cent in March and 9.7 per cent in April, 1961.

Employed 6,007,584
Unemployed 485,560

TREND CONTINUES
The April jobless figure continued the trend of recent months—ranking about one-fifth below the unemployment totals reached last year when unemployment hit a post-war winter record in February.

The picture in brief, with estimates in thousands:

	April	March	April
Labor force	6,492	6,454	6,440

There was a seasonal rise in employment between March and April, mostly in outdoor activities.

Employment stood at 6,007,000, compared with 5,894,000 a month earlier and 5,818,000 a year earlier.

The labor department said the increase from the seasonal employment low in February "was well above the average of the past several years."

Almost half of the increase was in agriculture. In non-farm industries, the gain was mainly in construction although jobs in manufacturing also expanded.

Forestry employment declined slightly.

Employment increases between March and April were "well above the seasonal average" in Ontario, but a "little less than seasonal" in Quebec and the Prairies.

On a year-to-year basis, however, employment was significantly higher, with annual increases ranging from two per cent in the Prairies to five per cent in the Pacific.

HIGHER IN 2 AREAS
The unemployment rate—the jobless total as a percentage of the labor force—was higher the national 7.5-per-cent average in two regions, the Maritimes and Quebec, and just under the average in the Pacific region.

THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

2 opposing philosophies laid down by candidates

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
If differences between political parties are becoming more difficult to find, it certainly wasn't the case Monday night.

The main election campaign pitches came from national leaders of the left and right, without a point in common.

T. C. Douglas of the New Democratic Party and Robert Thompson of Social Credit laid down opposing philosophies of government in pre-recorded TV appearances on the CBC National Network's free-time political series.

Meanwhile, there was a holiday silence down the middle of the political road leading to the June 18 vote. Prime Minister Diefenbaker was at home in Ottawa and Liberal Leader Pearson flew to Toronto where he and Mr. Diefenbaker were due to resume action today.

Federal handling of the economy was the main theme of the TV speakers, who divided the prime 8:30 p.m. EDT period.

The socialist-minded Mr. Douglas called for a planned economy, planned by the government "not for profits, but for people." The NDP was inviting voters to join its "crusade against poverty, insecurity and human waste."

'END DEFICITS'
The right-winging Mr. Thompson advocated a balanced economy—"not a planned economy which means controlled deficit financing, the trend to increasing taxation and tax-supported welfare steps."

He said a socialist trend is creeping into the Conservative and Liberal parties, with the result that "we are backing into socialism as fast as the socialists themselves would walk into it."

Mr. Thompson said Canadians must reject the "something for nothing" myth of federal handouts which was eating at the foundations of free-enterprise democracy.

Mr. Douglas said the economy has not been keeping pace with that of other nations in the Western world and there is no excuse for the slowdown.

Canada had the manpower, the skills, the raw materials and the plant capacity for solid progress.

"What is it we lack in the present crisis?" he asked, and then supplied his own answer: Leadership, as supplied by government through democratic economic planning.

Such planning was already at work in Sweden, Norway, Denmark, West Germany, Israel and Great Britain. "Significantly, these are the countries whose economies are expanding."

Mr. Thompson said the economy has not been keeping pace with that of other nations in the Western world and there is no excuse for the slowdown.

Met with scepticism

Formosa plans made for China refugees

TAIPEI (AP) — Vice-President Chen Cheng met with the Nationalist Chinese government's special refugee committee today to begin planning for the resettlement of refugees from Communist China who are willing to come to Formosa.

President Chiang Kai-Shek's government set up the committee Monday after a storm of criticism because it had offered to take in only a comparatively few of the thousands of refugees whom British officials are barring from overcrowded Hong Kong.

It was generally believed, however, that most of the refugees want to remain in Hong Kong, close to their homeland, rather than come to comparatively remote Formosa. Many of the refugees already have relatives in the British Crown colony, which has taken in more than 1,500,000 Chinese since the Communists conquered the mainland 14 years ago.

Officials of the Hong Kong government had no official comment on the Nationalist offer, leaving that to the parent government in London. Privately, however, considerable scepticism was expressed.

"They have said the words but there is considerable doubt on the part of many that the words are going to be backed by an appreciable amount of helpful action," said one welfare agency official.

Space flight off again

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Forest fire smoke and haze and the possibility of heavy clouds threaten a fifth postponement of Malcolm Scott Carpenter's orbital journey, set for Thursday.

The widely-scattered fires are sending up great clouds of hazy smoke from the Everglades, 200 miles south of Cape Canaveral, and from a marsh area about 15 miles to the west.

The haze, spreading over much of southern Florida, threatens to block camera coverage of the launching of the Atlas booster rocket.

The problem is not serious for cameras on The Cape—but tracking cameras at Patrick Air Force Base and Melbourne, 12 and 25 miles to the south respectively, would have a tough time photographing anything through that many miles of smoke filled air.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is hopeful that predicted rains will disperse the fires before Thursday and that the approaching clouds will change direction.

Meanwhile, technical problems, which have forced four postponements, were reported overcome Project Mercury officials said the Atlas and capsule are ready to carry Carpenter, 37, on his intended three-orbit mission.

To buy surplus

CAIRO (AP) — A $28,000,000 agreement was signed Monday to provide the United Arab Republic with 400,000 tons of surplus United States wheat and flour. A cultural agreement also was signed between the two countries.

TAKE IT FROM KATHY

Dear Kathy: My friends tease me because I love English and want to major in it in college. My dad would like me to be an engineer.

Most people don't seem to think a boy can build a good future with just English as a background. I'm not sure what I would like as a career, but no other subject really interests me.

People say things like, "What do you plan to do, quote Shakespeare for a living?" I know it is difficult to become famous as an author and I don't like the idea of becoming a teacher, but there must be other possibilities.

I would appreciate any thoughts you might have on the subject.

Sincerely, A Senior

Dear Senior: You needn't quote Shakespeare for a living just because you are well informed on the subject. Studying English involves a great deal more than that. Remember, the subjects in which you minor will broaden your background, too.

It's better to be a dedicated English major than a mediocre scientist, engineer or sociologist.

There are a tremendous number of possible careers for someone like you. Surveys have indicated that one

Ald. John Dupuis told town council some citizens complained about "objectional necking practices" that had occurred in cars parked at night around a town square. The necking would cease temporarily during police checks but resumed when police were out of sight.

Police Chief Crossman said if citizens would refer their objections to his department the offenders would be moved "within two minutes."

Candidates share platform

 (Record staff writer)

The four candidates contesting Sherbrooke in the June 18 federal general elections had the rare privilege Sunday morning of addressing a gathering which they believed was 75 per cent against the particular speaker. The unusual gathering was a meeting sponsored by the Personality Club of Sherbrooke at the Redemptorist Monastery Hall in the North Ward to which each of the candidates had been invited.

citizens were entitled to adequate social security. The Liberal party was pledged to preserve individual liberty, the expand employment by increasing foreign trade and the institution of a wide-scale public works program. In the field of social security, Mr. Joyal said his party was pledged to a scheme of contributory, supplementary old age pensions and the institution of a medical care program for all Canadians, in co-operation with the provinces. Mr. Steenland decried the situation whereby 580,000 workless and their families were compelled to exist on unemployment benefits that were barely half that required to maintain a reasonable standard of living. Mr. Steenland decried the situation whereby 580,000 workless and their families were compelled to exist on unemployment benefits that were barely half that required to maintain a reasonable standard of living.

Approximately 400 citizens gathered for the special event and indications were that the attendance was comprised almost equally of supporters of the four parties — Progressive Conservative, Liberal, New Democratic and Social Credit.

It had also undertaken 96 separate measures to aid the textile industry. Winding up, Gerard Chapdelaine said his Social Credit philosophy was that everything that was physically possible was financially possible. Thus, it was the duty of the government to operate the currency supply so that purchasing power would balance production. This did not mean inflation, he stressed as inflation occurred only when the money supply exceeded the supply of goods.

Boy's body is found at dam

BROMPTONVILLE — (Staff) — The body of nine-year-old Jacques Doyon, who fell into the St. Francis River in Lennoxville and drowned April 21, was found here Monday night at the Richmond Pulp and Paper Company dam.

The body was found by Napoleon Remillard, a night watchman at the company.

Mr. Doyon, the father, identified his son when he was removed from the water. Richmond police chief, Roger Begin said he thought that it was Sunday's heavy rains that had carried the body to the surface.

Booms that had been installed by the company last week prevented the body from being carried over the falls.

The language of mercy is eloquent

The Salvation Army never falters in its round-the-clock mission of mercy; it fosters hope where despair flourishes and brings comfort where anxiety thrives.

To continue this work, the Salvation Army is appealing to people in the Sherbrooke area to contribute to its annual financial campaign which this year has a modest objective of $6,800.

The Army's list of accomplishments is lengthy: it serves wayside ministries and open air missions; it offers comfort for the sick in hospital; it brings joy to youngsters by telling bedtime stories to them in children's homes; it helps to make old age a productive and enjoyable one by holding darning lessons.

The public, however, is perhaps more aware of the Army's work in times of disasters such as fires or floods. Many families have been able to recover from the tragedy of losing their belongings because the Sally Ann furnished the essentials of food and clothing.

Another public service aspect of the Army's activities is the help it offers new citizens, especially in maternity homes and hospitals. Immigrant expectant mothers who have found themselves in hospitals, cut off from their people, can thank the Salvation Army for its help — the language of mercy is a silent but eloquent one.

And, of course, there is Christmas time when Christian charity comes in the shape of a uniformed member of the Sally Ann carrying baskets of gifts and food.

To this dedicated group, the satisfaction of helping others brings its own reward. The community can share in this merciful work by its contributions.

Stringent meat regulations needed

The noise of the "rotten meat" scandal in Ontario has all but died down now, and on the face of it, it would appear the fringes of the case that impinged upon Quebec were of no great importance. In reality, however, the retail meat situation here is far from ideal.

Under present regulations, it is possible for poor, rancid and even diseased meat to be sold for public consumption, and there are many indications that it is often done.

One of the main problems involves the inspection of meat that is sold within the province. Meat coming in from outside the province — either from another part of Canada or from the United States — or destined for points outside Quebec is subject to stringent federal regulations which by and large are strictly enforced.

But in Quebec, uninspected meat can and does reach the public. As the Quebec branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada pointed out in a brief to Quebec Health Minister Courcier early last week, the familiar public markets of the province have received preferential treatment which exempts them from adequate inspection. While a civic inspector does inspect these markets, the brief points out, he is able to do a far from proper job of it. And, it may be added, in many communities, local meat inspection is a cursory, part-time thing. Those who have below-standard meat to market simply wait until he has made his customary brief rounds before bringing their product out for sale.

There is always the possibility, too, under existing provincial regulations of restaurants making private arrangements with individual farmers or slaughterhouses, the brief points out. In this way, uninspected meat can easily find its way to the public. At this point, the brief says, no one would be aware of the condition of the meat he is eating.

The Quebec provincial branches of the Association have suggested five lines of action the province might follow to improve the meat situation in Quebec:

- Compulsory provincial licensing and inspection of all abattoirs, slaughter houses and processing plants for meat and meat products for human consumption;
• Compulsory licensing of all dealers in dead, diseased or fallen animals, with annual accounting of numbers of animals bought and sold, the source of supply and destination;
• Compulsory provincial licensing and inspection of all rendering plants and processors ordinarily dealing in dead, diseased or fallen animals;
• Legislation to cover administration and enforcement of these regulations;
• A farmer who slaughters and butchers animals for his own consumption and not for resale should be exempt from the regulations.

These may be not the whole answer to the problem, and they may require modification, but they do represent a growing body of public opinion in the province for a drastic improvement in regulations governing the sale of meat in Quebec. It is to be hoped the Quebec government will give the CAC brief and the need it describes the careful consideration they deserve.

Other papers say:

UK Laborites depend on the Liberals

Some ruthlessly practical Labour politicians are ready to let the Liberals win the next election for them. Mr. R. H. S. Crossman has said: "It is only if he leads the Liberal Party into battle against Labour that I can prove myself Hugh's best friend." This and similar assessments start from the reckoning that for every Labour vote won by the Liberals 20 Conservative votes are also won. Thus, it is argued, the effect of the Liberal revival is chiefly to hurt the Government. Labour in this way might gain 30 or more marginal seats from the Conservatives. Add these to the seats that Labour hopes to win back anyway and Mr. Gaiskell will be in office.

The reckoning may be valid—so long as the Common Market does not upset all calculations, so long as the pendulum does not swing back to the Conservatives as fully as it did between 1957 and 1959, and so long as the Liberal revival does not gather too much momentum. None of these is a safe assumption. But, even discounting these doubts, the reckoning is a cynical one. Labour ought to try to win by its own merits. To sit back smugly, waiting for Liberal trumpets to bring down Conservative walls, would be miserably negative. A party whose leaders took that line would earn contempt — and might be rewarded with it. Consider the question as a wavering voter inclined to the Left may see it. The Liberal Party has few great leaders, no money, and little organization; but it is fresh and it is not tied to powerful interests, as the major parties are. It adopted many of the strongest points in Labour's policy before Labour itself did so. Before Labour it was against a separate British nuclear deterrent force, against excessive reliance on nuclear weapons, and in favour of action to prevent the spread of these weapons. Its industrial policy, which now has much in common with Labour's "Signposts for the Sixties," was reshaped soon after the 1959 election; and the Liberals are free from the irrelevant promise to renationalise steel. On economic growth, planning by consent, action against monopolies, and the status of individual workers, the Liberals have a good record. On education and social services the two parties have partly stimulated each other. Mr. Christopher Driver's article shows how far the two are moving on parallel lines. Why then, a wavering voter may ask himself, not support the party which is fresh? Why not go to the Liberals, who are unfettered by the block vote, by Labour's inner conflicts, and by the cloth cap mentality? On top of this, there is the Common Market. Nobody knows yet what terms the Government will get for Britain's entry, nor what stand Labour will take. So far its position has been equivocal—and this too may turn some people towards the Liberals. The Liberals' weakness lies in their lack of men, money, and organization. Mr. Grimond has few first-class men around him, whereas Mr. Gaiskell can call on a strong team. The Liberal Party's pitifully short of money, and political campaigns today are costly. Only in a few constituencies are the Liberals well organized; and some of their candidates are of poor quality. On all these counts Labour is the more attractive alternative to the Government. Even so, if it lets the Liberals lead the fight, in the end it may find Liberal momentum too much for it. (Manchester Guardian)

1962 will be top tourist year Expect 30 million Americans to succumb to Canada's charms

Responding to quaint travel poster lures such as The Fair-est Land 'Tis Possible to See and A Friendly Foreign Country, some 30,000,000 Americans will advance on Canada this year.

Prodded by the highly publicized scenic attractions north of their border, these tourists are expected to spend more than $430,000,000. Last year, publicity beamed at the world tourist market by the federal and provincial governments and transportation companies $7,200,000. The investment reaped $429,000,000 from the U.S. alone.

Other foreign tourists added $4,000,000 to make it a record year in spite of unfavorable weather.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press shows that all signs point to an even better year in 1962.

Pegging of the dollar at 92 1/2 cents in terms of U.S. currency is one indicator. Every American dollar spent in Canada will be worth $1.08 Canadian.

"I am sure more United States visitors will be encouraged to come here . . . and will spend more money," said Alan Field, director of the Canadian government travel bureau. "It also means, I think, that more Canadians will be encouraged to travel inside their own country."

Last year Canadian tourists spent $453,000,000 in the U.S. and $180,000,000 in other countries, a total of $633,000,000. The imbalance of $160,000,000 between what visitors spent here and what Canadians spent in other countries could disappear with the dollar devaluation.

For the first time the industry is eyeing seriously the European tourist. While Europeans annually spend an estimated $3,600,000,000 on travel, they have never left more than $50,000,000 in Canada.

Speaking to a convention of tourist promoters in Ottawa last fall, Resources Minister Dinsdale said it is "surely within our power to raise our overseas travel income to the $100,000,000 mark or beyond."

CP CROSS-CANADA SURVEY By ALEX MORIN Canadian Press Staff Writer To that end the government travel bureau has established its first overseas office in London.

Not all tourist directors approve of the heavy emphasis on attracting foreign visitors. Dan Campbell, Alberta Travel Bureau director, says: "We consider Canadian tourists just as important as Americans. . . . The Canadians who spend their money in this province don't spend it in the United States."

Tourist facilities are in a better position to handle a record number of visitors. Last year 8,261 rooms were added, bringing the total to 209,808.

The official opening of the Trans-Canada Highway in September will probably attract some tourists, particularly in British Columbia where ceremonies will be held. The Seattle World's Fair also is expected to boost tourist traffic in some provinces.

The picture by provinces: NEWFOUNDLAND: Trade last year was worth $16,000,000 up $1,000,000. Tourist director O. L. Vardy said a healthy increase was reflected in the fact the CNR carried 65,000 passengers by ferry across Cabot Strait, a rise of 5,500.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND: A total of 231,000 tourists—40 per cent from the U.S., 60 per cent from other parts of Canada—spent $8,385,000 in 1961. The growing popularity of camping that worried resort operators was balanced by the over-all increase in tourists. Inquiries for 1962 are up 40 per cent. Those arriving at Borden by ferry will be met by pipers. Other attractions are a school of Highland dancing and piping at Cavendish and a fisheries exhibition at Souris.

NOVA SCOTIA: An estimated 195,600 Americans spent $24,486,000 in 1961 and 435,000 Canadian visitors spent $30,800,000. Travel bureau director Gerald Redmond says "1962 may well be the best year in Nova Scotia's tourist history."

NEW BRUNSWICK: Travel hit a record last year with 60 per cent of the 1,680,000 tourists coming from the U.S. Increased interest was shown in historical sites and extensive use was made of campsites.

QUEBEC: A tourist industry spokesman estimated the Quebec population was matched by 5,000,000 tourists, including those who came in 951,000 autos entering from the U.S. Religious shrines such as St. Joseph's in Montreal and Ste. Anne de Beaupre northeast of Quebec City are major attractions.

ONTARIO: The lion's share of the tourist bankroll goes to Ontario where some 20,000,000 Americans cross the border annually and spend about $300,000,000. Officials expect a five-per-cent rise in the number of visitors and the amount they will spend.

MANITOBA: Last year 776,000 Americans and 500,000 Canadians visited the province, about 98 per cent travelling by car. They spent $37,183,000 and authorities predict a 10-per-cent increase this year.

SASKATCHEWAN: The 175,000 Americans and 400,000 Canadians from other provinces in 1961 represented an eight-per-cent increase. The Saskatchewan travel bureau has set itself an objective of 200,000 Americans and 500,000 Canadians for 1962.

ALBERTA: The travel bureau reports that of the nearly 3,000,000 who arrived by car at national parks in the province last year, more than two-thirds were Canadians who spent an average of $150 compared with $250 for Americans. Sixty per cent of mail inquiries, which are running far ahead of 1961, are from persons who will be on their way to Seattle.

BRITISH COLUMBIA: Travel bureau director R. L. Colby describes 1961 as a year of records, with 1,763,000 American and 632,000 Canadian tourists representing a 14.5-per-cent increase. The Americans spent $70,000,000 and Canadians $25,000,000. Mr. Colby says he expects the World's Fair in Seattle to mean an extra 1,000,000 visitors to B.C. this year.

Takes direct hand in UN commission Canada active in human rights

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada is taking a direct hand in the United Nations commission that deals with human rights with the ideal of extending freedom to all mankind all, notably, womankind. Following election by the parent Economic and Social Council, Canada takes its seat Jan. 1 next in the UN Commission on Human Rights. Its mission will run for three years. It is Canada's first election to the body which has been increased to 21 from 18 members and which, ironically enough, has been organized and led by a Canadian since its inception in 1946. Pakistan and India are other Commonwealth members — along with Britain, a permanent member — and Canada sat in as an observer during a recent commission meeting that discussed such things as "the right of everyone to be free from arbitrary arrest, detention and exile."

Hampton, N.B. had been appointed dean of law at McGill University just before he was called in 1946 to organize the new UN division. "The UN's work in human rights has influenced our generation although sometimes in a rather subtle, intangible way," Humphrey, 56, once said in an interview. "I admit that our preoccupation with human rights is a symptom in itself that things aren't good. The UN's concern is largely the reflection of a pretty bad situation. "It's only when you look at the thing in perspective that you can feel you're getting anywhere. From day to day — no. But over a period of time — yes."

British nationality. Schwelb recalled that the commission's first task was to prepare an International Bill of Rights, paralleling on the international plane what some countries, including Canada, have on their own books. "Faced with the problem, we weren't sure what it meant," said Schwelb. Should it be a proclamation of principles, or an international treaty, legally binding on countries? "As is usual in UN affairs, the outcome was a compromise," Schwelb added. The bill was divided into sections, the first being the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. Although Humphrey — as an international civil servant — often works behind the scenes as compared with national delegates, it is known he wrote the first draft of the declaration. Accepted by the UN General Assembly in Paris in December, 1948, it proclaims that all human beings are entitled "to Protest vote UK Liberals next opposition?

Judging from the results of district and urban elections in Britain, there could be four major blocs going to the polls at the next United Kingdom general election — Conservatives, Laborites, Liberals, and perhaps most important of all, the anti-Conservatives.

Anti-Conservatives are a unique political group in that they don't particularly care who they vote for, so long as they vote AGAINST the Conservatives.

It is this group that was largely responsible for the wide gains made by the Liberals, and, to a less sensational degree Labor, in the recent elections. Angry at the Conservative's wage-restraint policy, budget, and likely entry into the Common Market, many voters cast their ballots not for a party of their choice but to protest against the Conservatives.

Since many of their numbers formerly supported the Tories, they were primarily anti-socialist in their political beliefs. This accounts for the fact that Liberals, leaning further right than Britain's socialist party, made slightly wider gains than Labor.

Britain's municipal elections do not necessarily prophesy what will happen in a national election. However, should this voting trend manifest itself in the next general election, which Prime Minister Harold Macmillan need not call until 1964, Britain could find itself with a curious political structure — a three party system in which all three parties are strong enough to be a threat to each other.

In the municipal elections, most of the anti-Conservatives preferred to cast their protest votes for Liberals rather than Labor. This is a reversal of what happened in 1945, when they voted for Labor and helped sweep the socialist party into power for the first time.

Prior to the 1945 election, the anti-Conservatives had three main issues to protest: They were unhappy with the way the Conservatives under Winston Churchill was dealing with the Jews in Palestine, and wanted free emigration for them;

Remembering how Franco had been "neutrally sympathetic" with Hitler and Mussolini, the Anti-Conservatives were indignant over Winston Churchill's attempts to draw Franco into a closer and friendlier tie with Britain;

Tired of war, they wanted definite measures taken to decisively deal with Japan. Naturally, these were not the only issues which decided the Labor Party victory. The British feared another depression would follow the war, and hoped a socialist government could ward it off.

The loudest voice for the anti-Conservatives at this time was the London Daily Mirror, with a circulation exceeding two million. The newspaper hammered the point that it didn't matter who its readers voted for, as long as they voted against Churchill. Since then it has become a Labor party supporter.

The Liberal Party, practically defunct since a party split in 1916, could draw very little support from the protest voters. Consequently, the anti-Conservatives in 1945 chose the Labor Party as an alternative to the Conservatives, and the socialists were swept in with a two to one majority.

As the defending Government before the 1951 general election, the Labor Party again set their platform on an anti-Churchill, Conservative foundation. Knowing that it had already attained most of its socialistic aims and had few great reforms to offer, the Labor Party did not emphasize what good a Labor Government could do for the country. Instead, they warned the voters of the harm the Conservatives could do if elected.

"I would tremble with fear all the rights and freedoms set forth in this declaration without distinction of any kind such as race, sex, language, religion, political or social opinion, property, birth or other status." A European convention — including all West European countries except France — was signed in 1950, based on the declaration, and this also embodies machinery to "supervise and guarantee" the rights set forth. A European court for this purpose, albeit circumscribed and limited, is in being. The declaration has frequently been invoked in General debates. It has affected national practices and been written into the constitution of new countries, notably those of the French community and — from the European convention — those of the Commonwealth.

Far more difficult to draft were international laws — conventions — on human rights, and it was not until 1934 that the commission came up with two covenants — one dealing with civil and political rights and the other with economic, social and cultural matters.

SCP president

Raps nationalization of hydro resources

KNOWLTON — (Staff) — G. L. Rattee, president and general manager of the Southern Canada Power Company Thursday criticized talk of nationalization of electric power companies in Quebec claiming that nationalization would increase costs of electric power to consumers, and disrupt the generally uniform rates for electricity in Quebec.

Mr. Rattee was speaking at the official opening of the new Knowlton Southern Canada Power store.

"Recently you have heard much of the supposed need for benefits to be derived from nationalization or socialization of electricity business. One of the reasons stated is that other provinces have done it, particularly Ontario, and most of the development of Ontario since 1905 is credited to this state ownership of electricity," Mr. Rattee said.

"Of course this is nonsense," he continued. "Ontario had and still has the advantage of central location and has developed for the same reason that Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and the other central and mid-western States have made such tremendous strides industrially and they don't have state ownership or government ownership of electricity."

"Summer residences in Ontario pay nearly double what Southern Canada Power customers pay. They pay a fixed charge of $20 per summer season, plus a minimum of $20 for making the total minimum charge $40 for six months. We (SCP) charge $10 per season, plus your consumption at very low kilowatt rates. And our average revenue for the summer is only $23.05 per residence — far less than the minimum charge in Ontario.

"We don't think the summer resident in Ontario is getting much of a benefit from Government ownership. Similarly with farm rates. The Ontario former pays much more than the SCP farm customer. For comparison, take the average use per Ontario farmer of 5,724 kwhrs per year for which he pays $115. For the same use, the SCP farm customers right here in the Knowlton area and over our whole system, pays $90 — or $25 less per year. In addition, the Ontario Hydro pays practically no taxes, whereas the SCP pays an average of $24.65 per customer in school municipal, provincial and federal taxes.

"Also, Ontario Hydro received, up to December 31, 1960, grants in aid totalling $115,000,000 as a direct subsidy of 50 per cent of

For and about Women

Coffee party a success

Time out for coffee was enjoyed by many housewives and business people amid the friendly and gracious atmosphere of St. George's Rectory, Queen Street, Lennoxville, when St. George's Women's Auxiliary held a very successful Coffee Party on Tuesday, May 15.

Mrs. T. J. Matthews, assisted by Mrs. L. V. Parent, the president, welcomed the guests to her home.

Coffee and tea were served in the dining room from 10.30 a.m. to 1 p.m. The lace-covered table was centered with white shasta mums, daffodils and heather in a crystal bowl. Daffodils, tulips and carnations were effectively arranged throughout the already attractive rooms where the guests were received.

The pourers were Mrs. L. M. Watson, Mrs. R. C. McFadden, Mrs. John Morrison and Mrs. R. Alto.

Mrs. E. L. Alto convoked the food and the kitchen conveners were: Mrs. W. H. Johnston and Mrs. W. H. Fisher. Mrs. E. Burton and Mrs. S. Pearson were in charge of food.

Publicity was taken care of by Mrs. L. Hewitt. Miss Delia Sterling was cash for and the W.A. members assisted in serving.

The members wish to thank all those who helped make this effort such a success.

Today's recipe

Duckling Italiana sets the pace for an Italian-style dinner. Now is the season for the gay Italian Spring festivals where foods are enjoyed with great gusto. Take a tip on enjoyment and give an informal dinner highlighting a festival of Italian-style foods. With today's convenience foods, even the long cooking sauces are ready for use right from a can so it is easy on the cook. For the duckling, a spaghetti sauce with mushrooms, seasoned with a chef's special touch, adds the true Italian flavor.

DUCK ITALIANA

1 (4.5 lb.) duckling, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1 (15 1/2 oz.) can spaghetti sauce with mushrooms, 1/2 cup beef bouillon, 1/4 teaspoon dried basil, 1/4 teaspoon oregano, 1/4 teaspoon salt.
Heat oven to 325° F. Have duck cut into quarters. Put duckling, skin side up on rack of roasting pan. Do not cover; do not baste; do not add water. Season with salt and pepper. Bake for 2 hours. Remove from oven. Put spaghetti sauce, bouillon, basil oregano, and salt in large skillet. Heat to boil, stirring occasionally. Add duck; reduce heat and cook gently for 30 minutes. Place duck on hot platter. Pour over sauce. Serve with cooked spaghetti. Makes 4 servings.

A nice big platter of sweet corn is sure to please

Plant-breeders have to be very smart indeed. They must list words like "heterozygosity" and "allelomorph" at an age when the rest of us are still drooling pabulum. There are "genes" and "mutants" and "mutants" and "factors" to fuss over; crosses and double-crosses to result in hybrids, dihybrids and trihybrids.

This is all very much to the good when it puts a nice big platter of hot sweet corn on the dinner table. It has been amazingly easy to improve strains of sweet corn. The excellence of the yellow sweet corn hybrids developed since World War II accounts for Canada's increasing consumption of this vegetable. Not only have botanists succeeded in increasing the sweetness of the corn, but they have "invented" varieties which flourish in winter months in sub-tropical fields. This has stretched the fresh sweet corn season so that it is now possible to enjoy corn-on-the-cob all year round, with May one of the peak months.

Sweet corn stars in almost any menu. It's delightful with steaks, pork chops, fried chicken or broiled seafood. And, of course, there are thousands of corn-eaters, who will just have corn-on-the-cob with a little more corn-on-the-cob, please.

Sweet corn is surely easy to cook. It needn't be boiled longer than 5 to 10 minutes, just long enough to "set" the milk. Or it can be broiled, real cook-out style. Pull back the leaves just far enough to remove the silks.

Then smooth them back in place. Some like to dip the ear into slightly salted water before placing it on the grill. Others omit this step. Allow about 20 to 30 minutes to broil corn in the husk over moderate heat.

ROASTED FRESH CORN-ON-THE-COB

Loosen husk on ears of corn only enough to remove silks. Pull husks back in place and tie with a strip of the husk if the husks do not stay in place. Cook over a slow burning charcoal fire 20 to 25 minutes, turning to cook uniformly. If desired, cook corn by this method in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees F.). The baking time is the same as for the barbecue grill.

YIELD: Allow 2 ears per person.

FRESH CORN BREAD

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup corn meal, 1/2 teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, 3/4 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup fresh corn, cut-off-the-cob, 1 cup sour milk, 1/2 cup water, 1/4 cup bacon drippings or shortening, melted.

Sift together flour, corn meal, soda, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add eggs, corn, milk and water. Mix only until all ingredients are moistened. Stir in bacon drippings or shortening. Pour batter into a hot, well-greased, 9x9x2" baking pan. Bake in a preheated hot oven 425 degrees F.) 25 minutes or until done. Serve hot with butter or margarine.

YIELD: One 9-inch square corn bread.

FRESH CORN AND TUNA FISH CAKES

2 cups fresh corn-cut-off-the-cob, 3 to 4 years, 1/4 cup boiling water, 7-ounce can tuna fish, drained, 2 eggs, beaten lightly, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper, 1 teaspoon minced fresh onion, 2 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs.

Cook corn in boiling water in covered saucepan 5 minutes. Remove from heat. Add drained tuna fish, eggs, salt, black pepper, onion and bread crumbs. Shape into 3-inch round flat cakes 1/2-inch thick. Brown on both sides in hot shortening. Drain on paper towels. Serve hot as the main dish.

YIELD: 6 servings.

FRESH CORN RAREBIT WITH BACON

2 ears fresh corn, 3 tablespoons bacon fat, 3 tablespoons flour, 3/4 teaspoon salt or salt to taste, 1/4 teaspoon powdered mustard, 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper, 1

Mount Orford Ski Club holds closing

MAGOG — At the Mount Orford Ski Patrol's closing banquet held last Saturday evening at the Cabana Lodge, Isadore (Bib) Simard received a national award, and Mrs. Arlene Whittier officially resigned as Eastern Townships Zone President of the Canadian Ski Patrol System.

The gathering climaxed seven years for the Mt. Orford Patrol, which was founded by Mrs. Whittier in 1955, and managed the group till now. In stepping down from her post, Mrs. Whittier was presented with a handsomely inscribed silver tray on behalf of the group by Patrol Leader Garth Fields.

Charles Catchpaugh and Bib Simard, newly appointed zone president and vice-president of the Canadian Ski Patrol System presented Mrs. Whittier with a retired jacket patch on behalf of the national association.

The highest award given by the C.S.P.S. each year to the past season's most outstanding patroller was presented to Bib Simard by the retiring zone president, Mrs. Whittier, who commended him on his enthusiasm and splendid performance of duties.

Denis Gerin, former MLA for Stanstead County stated his disappointment at seeing Mrs. Whittier retire, concluding by saying he hoped the patrollers would carry on with the same enthusiasm as always displayed by Mrs. Whittier.

Rolland Dion, a prominent Magog businessman and always staunch supporter of the Mt. Orford Ski Patrol gave highest praise to Mrs. Whittier.

"Your achievements are among the most outstanding of any group I know," Mr. Dion said, noting that the Mt. Orford Patrol was once named world champion first aid team in international competition and also placed second in the same competition of the previous year, 1960.

"You've brought more honour to Magog and the Eastern Townships than any other group has in the past fifteen years," Mr. Dion said, emphasizing that the patrol has also given the district, province and nation an immense amount of favourable publicity.

"These achievements of the patrol began with Mrs. Whittier's interest and contributions of time and funds, and you of the group all owe it to this marvelous woman to keep the association she founded very much alive," Mr. Dion concluded.

Quebec's Assistant Deputy Minister, and former minister of parks, Louis Gagnon, also a leading force for the Mt. Orford Patrol, arrived late for Saturday's banquet, but in time to extend congratulations to Mrs. Whittier, and to offer best wishes to the group and new local and regional executive.

Paul Albert, manager of the Mount Orford Ski Centre, speaking on behalf of the Compagnie Gestion de Mt. Orford, said he and the firm appreciate the responsibilities handled by the Mt. Orford Ski Patrol, and hope they shall have the group's support and assistance in the future as over the past seven years, Mr. Albert also complemented Mrs. Whittier for her past achievements, and said he hoped she would continue to work for the ski patrol.

The new zone president, Charles Catchpaugh compared a ski patrol with a service club, as they work for the good of skiers without any remunerations for their efforts.

"Patrols," he said, "are giving skiers confidence that they will be cared for in the event of an accident, which consequently results in more and more people taking part in this popular winter sport and pastime."

In presenting the patrol's silver tray to Mrs. Whittier, Garth Fields said he and the other members of the group are most appreciative of Mrs. Whittier's support, and hope she will continue to work with them.

Garth Fields was also introduced by Mrs. Whittier, who served as chairman of the banquet, as the Mt. Orford Ski Patrol's new instructor. Mr. Fields will work with other instructors, including Dr. John Bryant, in training the patrollers.

Mrs. Whittier presented her daughter Brenda, and Miss Jeannine Gagnon with gifts on their retirement from the patrol. Both girls have been active members of the group for several years.

Golstein given clean bill by committee

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran referee Ruby Goldstein apparently will be held blameless for his handling of the Benny (Kid) Paret-Emile Griffith world mid-dewight bout—a savage battle that resulted in Paret's death and a clamor to outlaw boxing.

Goldstein, three of Paret's handlers and the co-manager of Griffith all underwent questioning Monday at the first session of a three-day public hearing by a state legislative committee.

The committee will determine if boxing should be outlawed as a sport in New York State.

Manuel Alfaro, Paret's manager, along with trainers John Sullo and Joseph de Maria agreed that their shouts to Goldstein to stop the bout while Paret was being pummelled in the fatal 12th round went unheard because of the roar of the Madison Square Garden crowd.

They said this was the only way they could have indicated they wanted the bout stopped without getting disqualified.

NOBODY COULD HEAR — "There was so much noise," Alfaro said. "We were hollering to stop but nobody could hear us."

Game marks first for both teams, Marcel Durand at first base and Claude Prud'Homme on the mound

Left-hander Claude Prud'Homme faces the Coaticook Canadians tonight at the Park Avenue Stadium as the Sherbrooke Alouettes open the new baseball season. The game marks the first for both teams. Sunday's scheduled games that had St-Johns playing in Sherbrooke and Granby in Coaticook were both rained out.

The Als official home opening will be held next Sunday. One noticeable change in Sherbrooke's line-up for tonight has hard-hitting Marcel Durand at first base. The stocky infielder who signed his contract as a third baseman several days ago lost his position to Chet Wodjic last week but now seems to have stolen first base from Keith Peak.

Main reason for him being in the line-up however, is to make use of his heavy bat. Here is tonight's line-up: Prud'Homme pitching, Norman Jacques catching, Marcel Durand at first base, Frank Kurty second base, Chet Wodjic, third base, Claude St-Vincent, short stop, Jacques Monette, left field, Gilles Robichaud, center field, Jean-Marc Melancon will be in right.

Reports from Coaticook indicate that a recently signed 26-year-old righthander will be pitching for the Canadians. George Wonderland, signed Saturday, is expected to be on the mound. If he is replaced it will be veteran Billy Dupont facing the Larks.

It is possible that Lew Skinner, a first baseman by trade, will be in uniform for the Canadians tonight. The American colored player who was released by Sherbrooke last week has since been picked up and signed by Coaticook.

As was expected, both teams are putting a lot of hope in their rookies. The Als have three new infielders, two new outfielders and four rookie pitchers for nine new members. Coaticook has only six hold-overs from last year. They also have nine new players in their line-up.

Game time is 8 o'clock.

Jacksonville Suns have their lead cut to 3 1/2 games, Johnny Kucks stops them as Bisons post victory

The Jacksonville Suns, who who had been threatening to make a runaway of the International League race, were back on earth today after riding on air for a week.

The Suns not only had their eight-game winning streak snapped Monday night, but they saw their bulge over the Buffalo Bisons clipped to 3 1/2 games.

The Atlanta Crackers, behind the four-hit pitching of Johnny Kucks, whipped the Suns, 5-1, while the Bisons were rolling over the Syracuse Chiefs, 7-4, aided by three unearned runs.

In other action, Toronto and Rochester split a doubleheader, the Leafs taking the first, 5-4, in 10 innings and the Wings winning the seven inning nightcap, 3-0, and the Columbus Jets downed the Richmond Virginians, 5-2.

Kucks was backed by home runs by Fred Whitfield and Jerry Buechle. Both came with one on. Art Ceccarelli was the Manager Billy Rigney doing a fine job with Angels' pitching staff, club is up among top leaders

NEW YORK (AP)—The more you look at Los Angeles Angels' pitching—or lack of it—the more you wonder how Angels manager Billy Rigney does it.

To date, Angel pitchers have turned in only four complete games in 33 starts. Yet the club has won 18 and lost 15.

For this accomplishment, manager Billy Rigney should receive some kind of an award—if not for manager-of-the-year, then for his patience in refraining from taking a bat to some of his starting pitchers.

"Our starting pitchers have been having a little trouble going the distance," Rigney admits. "I think we've already used 119 pitchers in 33 games. At this rate of nearly four a game, based on a full schedule of 162 games, we should use . . . oh, perish such a thought."

Rigney, fresh from a doubleheader victory in Boston Sunday, brought his year-old club to New York for a single-game meeting with the Yankees tonight. A victory would put Angels one game behind the defending world champions.

PITCHING PHENOMENAL — "Our bullpen has been carrying the starting pitchers," said Rigney. "The pitching of our relief hurlers has been phenomenal. Ryne Duren, Jim Donohue, Jack Springand the others, they've all beengreat.

"That Duren is better now than he's ever been. And he's throwing strikes. I don't believe he's given up a run in his last three or four appearances. And he's been getting the big out for us."

Not all of Rigney's starters have been disappointments. Bo Belinsky, the colorful rookie, has been nothing sort of spectacular with three of the staff's four complete games, including a no-hitter and a two-hitter and a 6-1 record.

16 --- Hooking

Ben Hogan developed a slice to cure a hook. It isn't as easy as that, yet a hook is easier to cure. In the hook the ball behaves exactly the opposite of the slice, veering off to the left after a straight start. It is not nearly so prevalent among weekend golfers as the slice.

The basic cause of the hook is cutting the clubhead across the ball from inside to outside, just the opposite of the fundamental cause of the slice. A closed stance may cause this unless you compensate for it.

The most common contributory cause of hooking is having the left hand too far over to the right in the grip. This can make the wrists roll on the downswing and close the club face at impact.

Hooking, like slicing, may be caused by rushing too fast from the top of the backswing. If you neglect that slight pause at the top and won't wait for the shift of power to the left side, WRISTS ROLL on downswing. your hands will come down too far ahead of your hip. This will get the clubhead out ahead of the hands, causing the ball to hook. NEXT: Topping.

Burke Emery and Richardson sign for 10-rounder

HALIFAX (CP)—Burke Emery of Sherbrooke, Que., and Elair Richardson of South Bar, N.S., have signed for a 10-round rubber match here June 1. Emery, Canadian light-heavy-weight champion, and Richardson, the Eastern Canadian middleweight champ have met twice before and each holds a decision. The third fight, as were the first two, will be a non-title affair.

Quebec to host 1963 Alpine championships

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Amateur Ski Association announced Monday the 1963 National Alpine championships will be held March 9-10 at Mont Tremblant, Que.

The National Nordic championships were set for Midland, Ont., March 15-17.

Kimberley, B.C., was selected as the site for the junior championships March 1-4. Rae Grinnell of Manitowish, Ont., re-elected president of the association, was named delegate to the Federation Internationale de Ski.

A motion to have the association recognize the Canadian Ski Instructors' Alliance as the sole governing body of professional racing in Canada was rejected. Most delegates felt the FIS should rule on the issue.

Pepi Salvenmoser, an Austrian, was re-appointed coach of the women's national team. But no men's coach was appointed. Most delegates wanted to see a Canadian named and Verne Anderson of Rossland, B.C., was mentioned as a possible choice, but no action was taken.

Mickey Mantle improves fast

NEW YORK (AP)—Mickey Mantle's condition was so improved Monday that one club official said the New York Yankee slugger may accompany the team to Kansas City next Sunday.

Mantle, however, was not expected to return to the lineup for at least another two or possibly three weeks.

The switch-hitting star, who tore a muscle in his upper right thigh on the last play of last Friday night's 4-3 loss to Minnesota Twins, is expected to be released from hospital Wednesday. He will be on crutches for several days after that.

Mantle said he had no idea when he'll be able to play again but he added optimistically: "I'm a fast healer. I've had these tears before and I was never out too long. This one, of course, is worse than the others."

Romano paces Indians to top spot

Clutch-hitting John Romano and Chuck Essegian are prime reasons why Cleveland's surprising Indians hold the American League lead.

They led the way Monday night as the Indians overcame Baltimore Orioles 10-7 and took first place by half a game over the idle New York Yankees.

Romano supplied a pair of run-scoring doubles and a three-run homer with two men out in the ninth inning that won the battle.

Essegian, who heads the league's batters with a .402 average, rode in on both of Romano's doubles and was on base when the sturdy catcher connected for the clincher.

Minnesota Twins climbed to within 11 percentage points of the Yankees with a 5-3 victory over Washington Senators behind Camilo Pascual's pitching and hitting talents. Another good hitting pitcher, Jerry Walker, paced Kansas City as the Athletics dealt Boston Red Sox their seventh straight loss with a 10-5 triumph. Detroit Tigers beat Chicago White Sox 7-3. Los Angeles Angels were idle.

PLAY DOUBLEHEADERS There were five doubleheaders Sunday. New York beat Minnesota 4-3 then lost 4-2 in 13 innings. Cleveland split with Detroit, winning 7-6 and losing 8-6. Los Angeles grabbed two victories over Boston 5-3 and 1-0. Kansas City shut out Washington 1-0, then dropped the second engagement 7-5, while Chicago twice beat Baltimore by 8-3 counts.

In Saturday action New York edged Minnesota 2-1, Detroit defeated Cleveland 9-3, Los Angeles edged Boston 6-5 in 10 innings, Baltimore beat Chicago 11-6 and Kansas City defeated Washington 8-4. The Indians pounded Skinny Brown for a 7-0 lead in the first three innings Monday but the Orioles slugged back, getting a pair of homers from Jackie Brandt, one from Jim Gentile and a two-run triple by Brooks Robinson. Jim (Mudcat) Grant finally was routed in Baltimore's four-run sixth inning and Russ Snyder evened it at 7-7 with a homer off Barry Latman in the eighth. Winner Gary Bell struck out the side in the top of the ninth, then the Tribe settled it against southpaw Billy Hoest, the fifth Oriole pitcher. Willie Tasby got on with a walk. Essegian rapped his third single of the night and Romano drilled one into the seats. Essegian, who has been on six major league clubs and 11 minor league teams in 10 professional seasons, is the current standout of Cleveland's outfield platoon. He has been zipping along at a 500 pace for his last nine games, with 17 hits in 24 at-bats. Romano's five runs batted in gives him 26 for the season, tops for the Indians, and his three hits raised his average to .299. Pascual pitched an eight-inning game for his sixth victory in eight decisions, singled across the clinging run for the Twins in the seventh inning and batted across an insurance run in the eighth with another single. The Cuban right hander is hitting .323. Harmon Killebrew socked his ninth homer of the campaign off loser Dave Stenhouse, while Minnesota rookie Bernie Allen doubled twice and singled. Walker yielded 11 singles, a homer to Eddie Bressoud and four walks to the reeling Red Sox but the Athletics still coasted in. They took the lead for good in the fourth inning

Federal judge rules for NFL

BALTIMORE (AP)—A federal judge ruled Monday that the National Football League did not have a monopoly power to restrict competition and so owes the new American loop nothing for expanding into Dallas and Memphis.

The AFL had sought $10,000,000 in damages. It claimed the NFL possessed and used the power to exclude rivals.

U.S. District Judge Roszel C. Thomsen dismissed the monopoly claim with the statement the NFL "did not have the power to prevent or unreasonably to restrict competition."

He said the official publication of the AFL itself "asserted that never before in the history of sports has an organization gone so far so fast."

Judge Thomsen said the question remaining was whether the NFL had conspired against the AFL by granting franchises in Dallas and Minneapolis-St. Paul to increase from 12 to 14 members.

He hinted the AFL was entitled to no relief on that score either.

Indians' deal paying off

NEW YORK (AP)—Cleveland Indians pulled off a master stroke a year ago this month when they obtained journeyman outfielder Chuck Essegian from Kansas City Athletics.

A right-handed power hitter Essegian has been carrying the heaviest tomahawk for the Indians, who were deadlocked for first place with New York Yankees after Sunday's games.

Last week Essegian slammed six home runs among nine hits in 22 tries and drove in nine runs. The surge enabled him first place in the American League batting race with .385 and a tie for third in home runs with 10. He has 20 RBI in 23 games.

Essegian was acquired from the Athletics May 3, 1961 for pitcher Julius Grant. Chuck has played for four other big league teams, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Los Angeles in the National League and Baltimore in the American League.

Rookie Manny Jimenez of Kansas City, batting leader a week ago, dropped to second with a .370 average. He had eight hits in 24 times at bat and lost 12 points.

ADVANCES TO THIRD Al Kaline of Detroit Tigers advanced one place to third at .357. He collected 10 hits in 24 at bats and gained 14 points. Al Smith of Chicago White Sox is fourth at .348 followed by teammate Floyd Robinson with .343. The figures include Sunday's games.

Kaline had two homers and drove in six runs, boosting his leading totals to 12 homers and 34 RBI.

Harvey Kuenn climbed into the No. 1 spot in the National League batting race with a .358 mark. He had nine hits in 25 trips in last week's action. Billy Williams of the Cubs remained in the runner-up position at .342.

Vada Pinson of Cincinnati continued to lead in home runs with 12 while San Francisco's Orlando Cepeda has the most runs batted in, 42.

Dump Giants 8-1 with Davis getting 3-for-3 and Koufax's five-hitter, Cards run winning streak to five Tommy Davis, 23, slays Giants and feasts on National League left handers.

Davis Monday night paced third-place Los Angeles Dodgers to an 8-1 triumph over league-leading San Francisco Giants.

Charged with the task of providing power in a lineup that relies on getting most of its long-distance hits from lefthanded swingers, Davis got the job done against the Giants with a 3-for-3 performance that supported Sandy Koufax's five-hit pitching.

Davis, who led the club against southpaws last year with a .352 batting average, hit a double in the second inning and got the Dodgers rolling with a two-run homer in the fourth. He made it 3-0 with a run-scoring double in the sixth before winding up with a walk in a five-run eighth.

That gave Davis seven hits in 12 at-bats against the Giants this year and nine runs batted in for the three games with San Francisco. It also boosted his average to .311 and gave him nine homers and 38 runs batted in, second highest in the league.

CARDS EXTEND STREAK

The defeat left the Giants 3 1/2 games in front of the Dodgers and the runner up St. Louis Cardinals, who ran their winning streak to five games with a 4-1 victory over Philadelphia Phillies. Pittsburgh Pirates belted Chicago Cubs 8-4 and Houston Colts edged New York Mets 3-2 in other games. Cincinnati Reds and Milwaukee Braves were rained out.

In Sunday action Pittsburgh beat Cincinnati 8-2 and St. Louis edged Los Angeles 4-3. Houston and San Francisco split a doubleheader, the Colts winning 6-5 and losing 7-4. Chicago took a twin bill 6-4 and 11-2 against Philadelphia and New York swept two games against Milwaukee 7-6 and 9-6.

On Saturday lefthander Ken MacKenzie of Gore Bay, Ont., picked up his first victory of the season as New York edged Milwaukee 6-5. MacKenzie, beaten once this year, came on in the sixth inning with the Braves leading 5-2. The Mets gave him four runs in the eighth.

Meanwhile, San Francisco belted Houston 10-2, St. Louis clobbered Los Angeles 8-1 and Philadelphia defeated Chicago 7-5.

Stan Musial collected his 3,431st hit, the most ever by a National League, in the Cardinals' Saturday triumph. Musial got his hit, snapping a tie with Honus Wagner, in the ninth inning when he singled off Ron Perranoski.

Davis, who was hitting .314 last year when forced to the sideline by a back and neck wound up at .278, homered Monday night off Billy O'Dell.

Winnipeg Alderman Danzker comes up with new idea to lay foundation for development of pro baseball

WINNIPEG (CP)—An idea is growing that could bring professional hockey back to Winnipeg and lay the foundation for further development of pro baseball.

Spearheaded by energetic and ambitious Alderman Mark Danzker, the idea involves formation of a Winnipeg Sportsmen's Club and envisages as many as 2,500 members.

His idea has already received approval from Winnipeg Enterprises Corporation, an organization partly sponsored by the city that operates both the Winnipeg Arena and the Winnipeg Stadium.

There already is a baseball club operating in Winnipeg and playing in the class-C Northern League, but pro hockey was withdrawn with collapse of Winnipeg Warriors of the Western League in 1960.

Danzker, who brought the Goldeyes baseball team to Winnipeg in 1954 and owned the club until 1957 when he sold it to a private corporation, would not say whether the proposed sportsmen's club would, or could, take over the Goldeyes or what league a hockey team might enter. But he said he foresees no problems once the club is organized.

DUES $24 ANNUALLY The alderman, a city representative on the Winnipeg Enterprises Corporation board, said plans now call for a $300 initiation fee spread over six years and a $24 annual membership fee.

SHARES NEGOTIABLE "Winnipeg has no athletic club of any sort and I think a city of 500,000 should support one."

"People like to rub shoulders with athletes and sporting people. The only problem I can see is holding the membership down to 2,500."

"Every athletic organization in the city will be invited to have representatives in the club. In this way it truly will be a city-wide organization."

Al Johnston, Montreal pro, who won $20,000 Hot Springs Open, fails to qualify for U. S. Open

NEW YORK (AP)—Al Johnston, Montreal pro who won the $20,000 Hot Springs Open Sunday, was a major casualty Monday as nearly 2,000 golfers went through preliminary qualifying tests for the U.S. Open championship in coast-to-coast eliminations.

Johnston shot a 36-hole total 74-73-147 at the Hot Springs, Ark., eliminations, where more than a dozen of the top golf tourists were among those competing for 26 berths. It took a 36-hole total of 145 to make it at Hot Springs, where James Campbell of Hobbs, N.M., led the field with 69-66-135.

Such well known players as Bruce Crampton of Australia, South Africans Bobby Verwey and Harold Henning, and U.S. pros George Bayer, Tommy Jacobs, Pete Fleming, Bert Weaver and Buster Cupit managed to survive but Marty Furgio and Puerto Rico's Juan Rodriguez joined Johnston on the sidelines.

Frank Boucher recommends lifting 'red centre line' from hockey

Introduced it 20 years ago when head of NHL's rules committee, loop in Saskatchewan to try out new rule

OTTAWA (CP) — The man responsible for putting the red line in hockey wants to get rid of it.

Frank Boucher, now commissioner of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League and a veteran of 29 seasons with New York Rangers, was head of the National Hockey League's rules committee when the centre stripe was first introduced more than 20 years ago.

Monday delegates to the annual meeting of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association approved a Boucher-inspired rule change which would use the red line only to determine "icing the puck" infractions.

The delegates decided to have a Saskatchewan league try out the rule next season. If it improves the game as much as Boucher says it will, then it probably will be adopted for all CAHA leagues the following season.

The change must first be approved by the joint rules committee composed of members of the CAHA and the NHL. Delegates to the annual meeting urged that "strong pressure" be exerted on NHL representatives to allow the experiment.

MOVES BLUELINES

Under the new rule attacking players can pass from their own zone to the opposing team's blueline. The rule also moves the two bluelines six feet towards each other.

Explaining the proposed change, Boucher said:

"The red line was introduced in 1940 because of the five-man gang attack that kept a weak team penned in its own zone for long stretches. The puck then had to be carried out and attacking teams could keep five players in the opposing end and concentrate on checking the puck carrier."

Because forward passing now is permitted in all zones, Boucher says the red line "has outlived its usefulness."

Delegates also approved a second Boucher rule change which allows only the fouled player to take a penalty shot. A red line 12 inches in width and 10 feet long is placed 30 feet from the net and the player must fire before going beyond the line.

KEEP LIMIT SAME

Delegates turned down a British Columbia request to extend the junior age limit to 21 years. The limit now is 20.

There was good news in Secretary-Manager Gordon Jukes' annual report.

He said the CAHA registered 143,000 players in 1961-62, the largest total in its history. There also was "a substantial increase" in the number of players who continue in the game after the age of 18.

And after several years of huge deficits, Jukes reported a loss of only $29 in the year ended Dec. 31, 1961. Income during the year was $49,774. Today, the third day of the five-day meeting, the delegates are expected to deal with Canada's representative at the 1964 Winter Olympics.

President Jack Roxburgh says he will ask the CAHA not to send a team until the Olympic oath is changed so as to make a distinction between professional players and those who play the game but do not make their livelihood from it.

LANDS BEAUTY — James Hosking of Sherbrooke is seen with the 12-lb. gray 32" trout he landed yesterday in Lake Masawippi. The 15-year old fisherman used a moose-look wabler on a six-pound test line while spinning.

Bobby Hull raps length of NHL hockey schedule

OTTAWA (CP)—Bobby Hull, Chicago Black Hawk's prolific goal-getter, says the National Hockey League season is too long.

Hull, who last season tied the Rocket Richard and Bernie Geoffrion record 50-goal performance, estimated the Hawks played 100 games in the season including exhibitions scheduled games and the playoffs.

"And that's simply too much hockey," said the 23-year-old Hull, here to appear as the mystery guest on a television quiz program.

He said the season should be cut to 30 games — without cutting the salaries of the players. He said the owners can afford a shorter season.

"I'll bet Chicago made over $1,000,000 last year," said Hull, a five-year veteran of the NHL with 151 goals and two scoring championships under his belt.

"We were very tired against the Toronto Maple Leafs in the finals," he said. "After that rough semi-final against Montreal Canadiens, I guess we just didn't have enough left."

Hull, top goal-getter in the NHL last season, says he has no bonus clause in his contract for goals. "I'd much rather command a higher salary and be without it."

The business-like left-winger said his contract does call for a match for the team for any league bonuses he gets and estimates this earned him $12,000 last season.

Hull is part owner of a farm at Demorestville, 10 miles north of Picton, Ont., and says he is toying with the idea of buying a bowling alley in Chicago.

To crack down on next title fight-Gudelsky

DETROIT (AP)—Talk of a heavyweight title bout produced more talk but no heavyweights for Detroit boxing fans Monday night.

A gate of only 200, including many who thought they would see world champion Floyd Patterson at ringside, turned out for a local card. Patterson did not show.

The promoters were the same pair, Leon Saddler and Elisha Gray, who said they have guaranteed $750,000 for a Patterson-Sonny Liston bout next September.

Michigan Boxing Commissioner Dave Gudelsky said he has not seen Liston, Patterson or Patterson's manager, Gus D'Amato.

Gudelsky said he will confront the fighters with proposals for the strictest restrictions ever clamped on a world title bout.

INCREASE PAUSE
He said there will be a 90-second instead of 60-second pause between rounds. The commission's doctor will be empowered to stop the action in the middle of a round and call off the fight.

Gudelsky's tone indicated D'Amato will not have anything to say about who referees the fight.

Saddler and Gray said their guarantee arrangement is $500,000 for Patterson and $250,000 for Liston. Saddler said the tentative agreement for the rental of Tiger Stadium is for Monday, Sept. 17.

The new rules mentioned by Gudelsky result from the recent death of world welterweight champion Benny (Kid) Parot.

Alfred Pellan, artist with definite ideas

Resigned from group which gave him grant

By JACQUES TREPANIER

MONTREAL (CP) — Alfred Pellan, one of Canada's best-known artists, has definite ideas about what a painting should look like—ideas that have led to his resignation from the Quebec Arts Council.

Himself the first recipient of a Quebec government bursary to study art in Paris, Pellan quit the 28-member body that recommends similar scholarships for young Quebec artists, musicians and writers.

He elaborated on the "personal reasons" behind the decision in the attic studio of his century-old home in suburban Ste. Rose.

Although he admits to the surrealist influence of Picasso on his own work, Pellan has no liking for abstract or non-figurative painting.

"As far as I am concerned, non-figurative art is a blind alley. Worse than that, it's a provocation."

"Whenever I look at a non-figurative canvas, I feel the urge to complete the work."

YOUNG ARE STRIVING

Art was decadent the world over. However, young artists were not to blame for trying to do "something new."

"What I don't like is the painter who scorns figurative art. Non-figurative art is too premature."

Pellan's own work has won him

vided into two periods—before and after Pellan.

Presenting the arts council side of the story, a high government official who asked that he not be identified said Pellan had no reason to reproach the arts council in submitting his resignation.

He added that Pellan has certain distinct inclinations in art that he has expressed with considerable talent but that his figurative inclinations clashed with the non-figurative ones of cer-

Yale students join nudist's camp to find why people join and stay

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—It was for science and for a future book, so two pre-medical students at Yale took off their clothes for the summer months.

And the two students claim that the information they gathered at five nudist camps in southern California is the first obtained by use of scientifically respectable methods.

The study last summer was one of eight undergraduate research projects supported by grants of $600 each from Yale, with funds from the National Science Foundation.

Applying recognized anthropological techniques—after doffing their clothing—the two students sought to find out why people join nudist camps, why they stay in, and the backgrounds of people who become nudists.

Fred Ilfeld Jr., one of the students, said most practitioners of nudism won't reveal their identities to each other. They prefer to use only first names, or even pseudonyms.

Another interesting finding, Ilfeld said, is that nudists have an almost puritanical fear of liquor and sex in the camps.

"One of the unwritten rules of nudism," he said, "is that no one ever touches anyone else, except to shake hands. And liquor in any form is universally banned from camps."

But Ilfeld said the research indicates "there is some sexual basis for nudism. The 'look-but-don't-touch' idea shows there is something more to it than just comfort."

Nudism seems to be a family affair, the student research showed, and the bachelor finds it difficult to be admitted to California, Washington and Oregon. Ilfeld said. People who are unsure of themselves, he said, try to reduce this insecurity by converting others to their views. The nudist, Ilfeld said, usually conceals his practice from people who know him in the outside world. "Your next-door neighbor might very well be a nudist," he said.

Rambler American Custom 4 Door Sedan Rambler Classic "400" 4 Door Sedan Rambler Ambassador "400" 4 Door Sedan

When other major manufacturers have so many sizes and models why does Rambler offer only 3?

The market has been flooded with cars of every shape and size. There are small cars, compact cars, medium-size cars and large cars. In spite of this, our competitors continue to add new models each year. We feel they know the public wants sensibly-sized cars but are reluctant to drop existing lines. We have no such problem.

We went into this field because we knew the kind of car you were looking for. And we continue to build only sensibly-sized cars because we believe in them. We offer only three Ramblers. The economical American, Canada's lowest priced compact, the all-purpose Classic with $1,000 worth of extras and the luxurious Ambassador V-8 that gives you top performance. We believe that from these three you may choose the car you want and need.

From the introduction of our first Rambler, we have stressed maximum usefulness to the user. Our guiding policy has been "no change for the sake of change". And this included costly styling changes. Rather than add to the variety of models and sizes, we have concentrated on major improvements.

This year we added self-adjusting Double-Safety brakes, found only on Cadillac among North American cars. And we have provided a factory installed battery and coolant, both guaranteed for two years. In addition, we have been able to substantially reduce our prices while giving you these extra values.

For an outstanding example of sanity in the showroom, visit your Rambler dealer soon. Take a test drive in Rambler, Canada's best all 'round car value.

Quebec Corporal assigned as chef for Katanga leader, Moise Tshombe

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP)—President Moise Tshombe of Katanga patted his bulging waistline with obvious satisfaction and laughingly said to his temporary personal chef: "I'm as fat as a thief."

Tshombe was saying goodbye and thanks to Cpl. Roger Larabie of Hull, Que., and Petawawa, Ont., a Canadian Army cook, himself a well-fed 200-pounder. Larabie took the remark as a compliment for he had cooked during the Katanga president's stay here for political negotiations with Congo Premier Cyrille Adoula.

The unusual assignment came as a surprise windup to Larabie's six-month tour of duty with the Canadian contingent of signallers in the United Nations force in the Congo.

UN officials, in charge of assuring Tshombe's safety and comfort while a guest at UN headquarters here, asked the Canadians to provide a chef for the Katanga leader.

"I had three hours' notice to set up the kitchen and prepare the first meal for Mr. Tshombe and his entourage," Larabie said. "That first day I thought I would go crazy. When I walked into the kitchen everything was still in crates—the food, cooking utensils, pots, pans, tableware, everything. It took me 20 minutes to find a glass in the boxes so I could pour Mr. Tshombe a glass of beer. He brought his own supply of Katanga beer with him—40 cases."

Larabie said cooking for "Monsieur le President," as Tshombe's aides refer to him, was hard work—his shortest working day was 16 hours—but also a cook's delight. "He ate everything I cooked for him, and sometimes asked for second helpings. One day I made tomato soup and he liked it so much he had three bowls and has four children."

before going on to the next course.

"He is a good, hearty eater and was always most appreciative."

UN officials had high praise for Larabie.

"We're very sorry to see him go," one of them said. "He couldn't have done a better job. For that first meal he had to serve dinner for 34 and he did a marvelous job."

APPLAUDED COOK

The menu included a steak and a cake iced in the white and green colors of Katanga. When the cake was brought into the dining room Tshombe led the applause for Larabie and afterwards sent him a bottle of scotch as a token of appreciation.

The supplies made available to Larabie were of the best. Once when Tshombe asked for mushrooms, and there was none in Leopoldville, the UN sent a special helicopter to Brazzaville, capital of the former French Congo, across the Congo River from here, to pick up a case.

When Larabie left to return to Canada, the Canadian contingent assigned Sgt. Royal Dupuis, 37, of Vancouver and Ottawa, another army cook, to replace him in Tshombe's suite at UN headquarters. Dupuis' wife lives at Oromocto, N.B.

Larabie, son of one of Hull's best known policemen, "Big Tom" Larabie, now retired, was second cook at an Ottawa (Lord Elgin) hotel when he joined the army in 1953. He was not allowed to complete the course at the army's cooking school because instructors felt he knew more about his job than they could teach him.

He was promptly sent to Korea and later served in West Germany in 1958. He was stationed at Petawawa, Ont., before being sent to the Congo for six months. Larabie is married and has four children.

Commission to be established to find out cause of riots

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (CP)—They refer to the day of the riots as "Black Friday."

It started as other days had that week, with workers gathering on the sun-baked Parade Ground, near Government House in downtown Georgetown, to continue noisy but non-violent protests against a government budget imposing heavy taxes on the working class.

By the time darkness fell Feb. 16 with suddenness typical of the tropics, this British Colony on the South American mainland had lived through the worst day in its turbulent history. Six persons had been killed and 200 injured; more than 80 business concerns had been destroyed by fire, and the British Army had been called in to restore order. Damage and loss caused by fire and looters were estimated at $30,000,000.

A commission is to be established to inquire into the cause of the riots. It is not known whether it also will be asked to study damage claims from businessmen. Many hope it will be made up of people from outside British Guiana to assure impartiality.

TAX IS BLAMED

Everyone appears to agree that the start of the troubles can be traced back to the first budget presented by leftist Premier Cheddi Jagan following his re-election last August. His 1962-63 budget called for a $9,000,000 increase in the tax load on the working class. In addition it proposed a five-per-cent compulsory savings plan for all workers earning more than $100 a month.

The powerful Trades Union Council considered the budget unfair and called on its members to stage a two-hour protest strike at 2 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 13. But workers in commercial establishments jumped the gun and staged an unofficial walkout Monday, Feb. 12. Many business firms were obliged to close.

U.C.W. holds bulb, slip sale

CLEVELAND — At the May meeting of the New London U.C.W. held at the home of Mrs. Hazel Taylor in Richmond, a bulb and slip sale netted $12.

A card of thanks was read from Mrs. Flora Monahan, of Edmonton, who had received a gift. Other thank-you notes were also read.

After the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held on June 12 at the home of Mrs. Russell Sloane, in Richmond.

cause of lack of help. The strikers gathered outside government buildings and were soon joined by hundreds of other workers and by the unemployed. "Jagan Must Resign" demonstrations were staged throughout the day and were resumed on a more vigorous scale the following day.

ANGERED BY THREAT

While the strikers were holding a public meeting Tuesday, members of the civil service decided to join them to protest the government's refusal to give them better salary and working conditions. When word reached the Parade Ground that the civil servants were threatened with dismissal for having left their jobs, the Trades Union Council and its affiliates decided on general strike action.

Almost every service in the community was paralysed. Governor Sir Ralph Alnwick Grey issued a proclamation Wednesday night, Feb. 14, banning demonstrations and public meetings within a half-mile of government buildings. Premier Jagan announced his willingness to make concessions in his budget to meet the workers' demands.

The next day, however, the strike continued. Forbes Burnham, leader of the opposition People's National Congress, and Peter D'Aguiar, leader of the smaller United Force party, led the strikers through the "forbidden half-mile" to test the governor's proclamation. Riot police stood by helplessly.

USED TEARGAS

Then came "Black Friday." At mid-morning, strikers marched to the government-owned Electricity Corporation in an effort to call out men they considered to be strike-breakers. As the crowds grew, strikers hurled missiles at the riot squad men in front of the building. Police replied with teargas bombs.

When Trades Union Council officials heard of the clash, they immediately summoned the strikers to return to the Parade Ground to continue their non-violent protest. However, when the strikers began reassembling there, riot squad men again peppered them with teargas.

Amid a feeling that police were being used to break their strike, the tension that had been building up among the workers all week suddenly erupted and the riot was on. Many fought pitched battles with police, using bottles, bricks and other missiles. The rioters spread into the business district, setting fires and looting as they went.

FLEW IN TROOPS

The situation was brought under control only with the help of British troops quickly flown here from Jamaica and the United Kingdom.

The day was one school children will probably have little difficulty recalling. They had a holiday that day, one given them in honor of Prince Philip who came here at the outset of his South American tour.

As the city of 130,000 licked its wounds, the government instituted some measures to bring about peace. Price controls were imposed on items in short supply due to rioting and looting. Budget changes were made.

With Jagan supporters holding 19 of the 35 seats, the budget passed safely through second reading—approval in principle—only to be defeated on third reading, usually just a formality.

Its defeat was explained by the fact that six of Jagan's followers were absent for May Day observances. Jagan said he saw no reason to accede to opposition demands that he resign.

Also in question was what effect the riots would have on Premier Jagan's hopes of winning independence for the colony this year.

Alfred Wright marks birthday at Thetford

THETFORD MINES — Although confined to his bed the day of his 80th birthday which placed a damper on the get-together planned for Alfred Wright by his neighbors, friends and relatives, on May 8, he was 'at home' to them, and a quiet birthday was not without a birthday cake.

Mr. Wright came to Thetford in 1926 from near Inverness. An employee of Johnson's Co. for many years, he retired from his post as watchman in 1953. His wife died in 1949.

During their younger days, Mr. and Mrs. Wright had a square dance group formed of their family. With their seven children, each would take a turn playing an instrument, with Mrs. Wright, at the piano; they played for many a square dance, and Mr. Wright, in addition to playing his favorite music, would perform a sprightly step-dance.

Picturesque windmills are the traditional landmarks of Holland—one of 68 countries served by KLM.

What you should know about KLM reliability and the careful, punctual Dutch before your next flight to Amsterdam, Paris, London or any of 40 other European cities

Many experienced air travelers believe that KLM is pre-eminent in air travel. They know that KLM has a world-wide reputation for remarkable efficiency. They know that from the ground up they will get the flights, service, comfort and hospitality that only KLM know how to offer every one of their passengers. Read many other remarkable facts about KLM.

1. A DC-8 jet is an intercontinental jet. It has a hundred subtle refinements. KLM engineers installed what years of experience have taught them are the most reliable navigational, radar and communications equipment.
2. When a KLM jet gets up to 40,000 feet it uses only 55 percent of the total power of all four engines. If your captain has to fly around a storm, he has plenty reserve power to help him catch up on his schedule.
3. After its yearly overhaul, a KLM DC-8 jet is put through a thousand mile test flight before it goes back to work.
4. A senior KLM pilot describes the DC-8 jet this way: "This is a complete new concept of flying from what we knew in the past. From the word 'go' this aircraft exceeded our expectations. Enthusiasm for flying this aircraft never wears off. It is always a joy to fly and one is constantly made aware of its tremendous capabilities."
5. KLM's 44 year-old president, E.H. van der Beugel describes his company's operations as a continuation of "the centuries-old Dutch tradition of providing the world with the best available transportation".
6. KLM gets your reservations through fast. An automatic telegraph message center is working at KLM's home base, Amsterdam Airport. During the year, the center will handle about five million messages automatically; half of these are for KLM.
7. KLM makes special provisions for priests. Portable altars are either available at several KLM destinations or can be requested in advance from KLM.

Search for key to life leads scientist into new mysteries

MONTREAL (C.P.)—Dr. Hans Selye's restless search for the key to life has led him into a mysterious world where rats can be made to shed their skins like a moulting snake, where the young are made old and just possibly—vice versa.

For 14 months the famous scientist and his assistants have been pushing into unexplored territory. The result, he says, already is the most amazing he has come across in 35 years of basic research into life.

The sight that brought this exclamation from the gentle-spoken, white-haired researcher who 25 years ago gave the world the theory of stress, was two rats of the same chronological age.

As a result of careful experimentation, one rat looks—in Dr. Selye's words—like a senile old man of 90.

Its skin is wrinkled and blotchy and its back is hunched. Its movements are slow and feeble, its feet look like arthritic-crippled hands. Its arteries are hardened and eyes coated with cataracts.

OLD AGE INDUCED

Chronologically, the rat is young; biologically, it is dying of deliberately induced old age.

The other rat?

Under the same experimentation with only one more step added, it is bright, alert and vigorous. Its skin is smooth and supple, the muscles firm and eager. Dr. Selye says some of his assistants swear it is healthier and a better specimen than any of its untreated contemporaries.

The experiment is one aspect of a new research program Dr. Selye is conducting with Dr. Ralph Sirebel under the imposing title of "calciphylaxis."

He doesn't know where the research will lead—basic research aims only at answering life's ever-present "why," leaving it to other studies to find out how to apply the findings for the benefit of man—but already several bodies have shown great interest in the program.

One is the Canadian Cancer Society, which sees in the research a possible pointer to new aids in containing cancers or even offering a clue to a cure.

HAS WRITTEN BOOK

Dr. Selye talked to a reporter about the research program just before going to Rome to outline the experiments in aging to a scientific congress.

He also has written a book entitled simply Calciphylaxis, published today by the University of Chicago Press. The book reviews the experimentation to date and theorizes about where it will lead.

Calciphylaxis essentially means abnormal sensitivity to calcium deposits.

Calcium, of course, is essential for a healthy life. As an animal—including man—grows old, however, calcium can collect around arteries, hardening them. It can gather at joints, crippling them.

The experiments in calciphylaxis actually had their origin in some of Dr. Selye's first research work, 35 years ago in Vienna.

Working with a vitamin D derivative, he noted that if a pregnant rat were injected with this substance, some of the litter could be born with broken bones and hard calcified patches on the skin.

Interested in another aspect of the work, he didn't pursue the finding.

"Why, I'll never know," he says.

RECALLED EXPERIMENT

Recently, however, an assistant at the Institute of Experimental Medicine and Surgery at the University of Montreal came across essentially the same phenomenon. Pointed out to Dr. Selye, the sight triggered the memory of that 35-year-old experiment and he was off, chasing another elusive "why."

Dr. Selye and his co-workers soon found that, by carefully controlled injections in experimental animals, fantastic results could be obtained.

Basically, an animal is injected with what is called a sensitizer—usually a vitamin D derivative.

After a certain time, the animal is injected again with what is called a challenger—a mineral salt or albumen.

The challenger collects calcium deposits in the part of the body where it is injected.

The research has been pushed to the stage where calcium can be made to collect in a specific part of the body, forming a lump of calcified tissue, or it can be scattered in minuscule particles throughout the body.

One result of the work so far is that the calcium can be made to collect in the skin of a rat, turning it into a hard, shell-like case.

The rat will shed this shell, revealing underneath it a new skin and fur. The new skin does not show any trace of any scars or blemishes that were present in the old skin.

Curiosity about what would happen if only the sensitizer were injected, without the challenger, led to the discovery that a rat can be prematurely and deliberately aged.

Dr. Selye suggests—and he emphasizes that it is no more than a theory—that under the influence of the first injections, the rat's body becomes abnormally sensitive to calcium.

For some reason, as yet unknown, the calcium prefers to collect around arteries and joints—crippling the rat's metabolism. Almost overnight, the animal is old.

Injections of the challenger, Dr. Selye theorizes, gives the calcium other places to collect, since the challenger seems to be more "attractive" to calcium.

By collecting excessive calcium in minute particles throughout the body, it can be disposed of as bodily waste.

Does this mean that aging can be delayed, or even that an old organism can be made young?

No one, least of all Dr. Selye, pretends to know the answers.

But Dr. Selye gives the impression of a man who is going to try to find out.

Britain's best secretary poses problem for boss

LONDON (CP)—A Canadian-born businessman has discovered that having Britain's best secretary working for him has its drawbacks.

William Layzell, managing director of a firm manufacturing office machinery, was delighted when Mrs. Kay Hawes was selected over 2,000 others last year. He gave her time off to take advantage of her prize—a two-month working holiday touring the United States.

But Mrs. Hawes, 31, was in the U.S. less than a day when she became ill and had to return home. It was five weeks before she was able to return to work. She suggested that the runner-up in the contest should make a free 14-day holiday on the Mediterranean for himself and his wife.

But so far Layzell has been too busy to get away.

MELBOURNE —

Mrs. Muriel McWilliams and Miss Amy Bothwell, of Montreal, were weekend guests of Miss Nellie Burrill and Mr. Fred Burrill. Other guests were the Misses Pat Whitworth and Diane Holtzman, of Ottawa, and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Kniffon, of Montreal.

AIR SERVICES

Of the 489 commercial air carriers operating services in Canada in 1961, there were 292 Canadian, 197 Commonwealth and foreign.

'Flying saucer' rides low over land or water

LONDON (Reuters)—A British boat-builder who lifted a model "flying saucer" off the ground a few years ago by blowing air downward under it is seeing his dream of a new form of transport coming true.

Christopher Cockerell carried out many of the tests in the back yard of his home in north-east England. Out of his experiments was born the "hovercraft," which generates a cushion of air on which it can ride low over land or water.

Cockerell foresees a day in the not too-distant future when 10,000-ton versions of these air-cushion vehicles will skim over the Atlantic from Britain to North America in 30 hours; or when a jet-propelled air-cushion craft will carry 150 passengers the 227 miles from London to Paris in 60 minutes.

What seems more immediately feasible is the possibility of a passenger and car ferry service of 1,000-ton air-cushion craft skimming over the English Channel to France in 20 minutes, making it competitive with the present air ferries.

One of the major problems in developing large ocean-going types is in getting the vehicles to ride rough seas. Experts think that the answer may be found in wave-riding at high speed, or in fitting flexible "skirts" to absorb wave shocks without upsetting the stability of the vessel.

British experts believe Britain is at least two years ahead of the United States, her biggest potential competitor, in this field of transport.

The Russians are interested in developments of the hover principle generally while Canada has inquired about its possible use on the Great Lakes.

The Australians think that it may be suitable as a cattle ferry from the remote outback to seaports, and South American and Asian countries foresee its use on their great rivers.

African countries consider that it has potentialities for opening up parts of the continent lacking roads.

Dawson City

Residents look to best summer since discovery of gold

DAWSON CITY, Yukon (CP) Spring creeps slowly into this Yukon gold rush capital as it prepared to celebrate its 60th anniversary of incorporation as a city.

After a long, cold winter—during which it cost $775 a month to keep electric heaters on the 31 fire hydrants—excitement is mounting as the 800 residents look to a summer busier than any since the days when gold lured adventurers from many countries.

The people who live here the year round will be outnumbered by visitors with 1,000 expected to be here for each day of the Gold Rush Festival July 1 to Aug. 24.

The Palace Grand Theatre (it was called the Auditorium Theatre when built in 1899) is getting the finishing touches as workmen complete its restoration for the world premiere of a new musical based on Ben Johnson's "Volpone."

The festival was originally planned for seven weeks but sponsors say they have added another week to accommodate an unexpectedly heavy demand for tickets.

"Advance bookings have been unbelievable," said Tom Patterson, founder of Ontario's Stratford Shakespearean Festival and planning consultant for the Gold Rush Festival.

"In little more than a month we've received 25,000 inquiries and bookings from Peru, Australia, England, Germany, Sweden, Africa and from all over the North American continent."

The boards of the 501-seat theatre, where such greats of other eras as Douglas Fairbanks Sr. once told, will come alive again with a cast headed by veteran comic Bert Lahr. The book is by Ian McLellan Hunter and Ring Lardner Jr., music by Robert Emmet Dolan and lyrics by Johnny Mercer.

The musical isn't the only attraction. There's still gold here although no one will get rich from it. Arrangements have been made for visitors to tour the gold fields and try their luck at panning. They'll be permitted to keep what they find.

"Sixty-four years ago people from all over the world filled the streets of Dawson City and found treasure in the Klondike streams," said Mayor Jim McCausland, a 58-year-old Irishman.

"We hope to see the streets overflowing again during the Gold Rush Festival. We will show our visitors a living picture of a famous era in the history of Western Canada and the United States."

For those who prefer more of the Klondike atmosphere than can be had in hotel or motel there will be a tent city. Those who sleep in the tents will get scrolls as honorary sourdoughs.

Residents hope the festival will restore some of the glory of the old Dawson City which has seen some hard times since it had its first mayor, Henry Macaulay, a businessman and canoe-racing champion from Victoria.

He and his five-member council were faced with the problem of administering an isolated, gold-rich community that then had a population of 25,000, of whom 85 per cent were Americans.

Although the city now is celebrating its 60th birthday, it was governed by the commissioner of the Yukon under territorial bylaws from 1906 to 1950. This was made necessary by a declining population and the overlapping of territorial and municipal offices in the community.

In 1950, three years before the capital of the Yukon was moved to Whitehorse, a mayor and council were elected.

Today there are 75 businesses, including five hotels and beverage rooms, two banks, a greenhouse, five cafes and two garages.

The chief commodity for sale, however, is history—the saloons where fortunes were won and lost; the fashionable shops that once sold Paris and London fashions; the outdoor museum of mining equipment from the past, and streams with such names as Bonanza, Last Chance, Gold Run and Gold Bottom.
