If they are to be effective in NATO

Canuck troops need A-arms

HERFORD, GERMANY — (TNS) — Canada's 6,800 soldiers in Germany are among the finest troops in the world — but they are weak links in the defense of Europe, according to the general who will command them if a shooting war starts.

They need nuclear warheads for Honest John artillery to give them a balanced force that can shoulder its share, declares much-decorated Maj.-Gen. Jean Victor Allard, the first Canadian ever to command a British division, a soldier who backs his opinions with hard facts and logic.

"The Canadian Brigade couldn't be made entirely responsible for their portion of the front if war breaks out," he said. "Does one weaken the rest of the division to strengthen the Canadians because they have no nuclear arms?"

"NATO's entire force in Europe is based on balance, according to Gen. Allard. The Western powers must be able to meet a Communist threat from whichever quarter it comes.

If "he" — the hypothetical enemy — makes a conventional attack, we must be able to counter with strong conventional forces. We must be ready, too, in case the enemy makes a nuclear attack.

THE ENEMY WILL likely attack where we are weakest, so we must be strong in both places. "Canadians must realize that the country's professional soldiers aren't warmongers," he said. "We want peace as much as anyone. And I hope we never, never, never have to pull the trigger on the weapons of today."

"We are fighting and training for peace. I've been through two wars — World War II and Korea — and I don't want to add an atomic war to my experience. That's not the heritage I want for my children. "The people must put their trust in us to do the job we are paid for doing. We are specialists in defense. Why pay a specialist and then fail to take his advice?"

"The public must be made to understand that balance is our only hope for peace. We must maintain balance through a balanced force — conventional and nuclear."

"And if war in Europe does come, both sides will hesitate before using nuclear arms. We've got to be able to hold the enemy with conventional forces until things can be settled at the conference table."

GEN. ALLARD WEARS the Distinguished Service Order and bar. He won the decoration first in 1943, at Ortona, in the Battle of Arielli River, while he was temporarily in command of Canada's famous "Van Doo's."

He was wounded shortly after, but in 1944 took confirmed command of the regiment and less than a year after his DSO, he earned a bar for the decoration when his regiment broke through the Gothic line.

What's a French-Canadian doing in command of a British division? It's simple. Canada doesn't have any forces in the field at divisional strength, and senior officers need divisional command experience when they reach the very top.

The British appointed him so we'd have a young general with the best experience possible.

Separatist says Confederation doomed

Predicts Quebec to secede 'soon'

MONTREAL (TNS) — Quebec is going to secede and soon.

That's the burning belief of Pierre Bourgault, 24-year old newspaperman and propagandist for the separatist cause. In an interview notable for its frankness, Bourgault — whose fancy Paris-cut clothes match the elegance of his French — explained why he is convinced a Quebec breakaway is inevitable within the next few years.

There can be no true merging of the French and Anglo Saxon races," he says.

"As long as things remain as they do today the French Canadian feels inferior and is inferior."

"So we have to have our own state."

Bourgault, as editor-in-chief of L'Indépendance, is, as he puts it, "official spokesman" for Le Rassemblement de l'Indépendance Nationale Quebec's biggest separatist movement.

"At the outset," Bourgault says, "I want it clear that we have no sympathy for the terrorists."

"We deplore the actions of the FLQ (Front de Liberation Quebecois) and are confident that Quebec will secede from Canada by normal means."

"How can you explain the RIN's decision to raise funds to defend the FLQ accused?" he was asked.

"That is our moral responsibility. It's the responsibility of all French Canadians."

By JOHN WALSH

"For 200 years French Canada has been talking, talking, talking. Never action."

"Look," said Bourgault as we warmed up to his subject, "as recently as two years ago we were told to assert our independence."

"Premier Lesage and his government — all of them — told us stand on our own two feet."

"Be masters of your own house," they said. "And then, suddenly, there is a change, a slowing down — a change of heart, perhaps."

"Certainly the FLQ is wrong in its approach. But they were young, impulsive, and driven into violence."

"You know," he said, "there are always the impatient ones, the hot heads."

Bourgault is emphatic in that Confederation is doomed.

"It's sooner than you think," he said. "Some people say within ten years I say long before that."

The RIN editor said that the terrorists' bombings had struck French Canadians "with a shock."

"Many French Canadians who were sitting on the fence have suddenly come alive. They do not want violence, but this eruption has made a serious impact on them."

To Bourgault, French Canadians are now soul-searching, seeking out the reasons for this series of terrorist acts.

"The answer," he said, "is that young French Canadians are disillusioned with all this talk, all these promises."

"It's been promises by our governments, by the official and powerful spokesmen like the St. Jean Baptiste Society, and, last, but by no means the least, by our educators."

"It's been two centuries of subjugation."

Bourgault is frank and to the point.

"I speak English quite well," he said — and he does — "but in this interview I insist on speaking French."

"If I interview you, I'll speak English. If you interview me, it will have to be in French."

Later he showed his good faith. When the interview was over he had no hesitation in discussing other subjects in English.

Red China's feud with Mr. K seen going Mao Tse-tung's way

UNITED NATIONS, New York — (NEA) — Even the feat of Russia's space-woman cannot obscure Nikita Khrushchev's troubles as he gears for the July 5 meeting with the Red Chinese.

The Soviet Premier is still in control of the Kremlin and fighting doggedly to stay at the helm. But according to East European representatives at the U.N., he is facing a mounting array of problems which is laying into the hands of his bitter enemy, Mao Tse-tung. They see his efforts to muzzle Russia's restive writers and artists as only a symptom of a bigger political crisis in Moscow.

The violence of Red China's latest propaganda campaign against Khrushchev is seen as further proof that Mao no longer believes in a reconciliation with the Soviet premier. In the view of the East European diplomats, the Chinese leader is actually laying the foundation of a new Red International with headquarters in Peking.

The Chinese do not expect that any agreement will be reached at their July meeting with the Russians. They are playing for the support of revolutionary-minded Communists everywhere against the Khrushchev leadership.

Albania's newspaper, Zeri i Popullit, which is frequently used by Mao as a sounding board, even hinted in a recent editorial that the Soviet premier must step down before there can be peaceful co-existence in the Red world.

Peking's chief envoy to the Moscow conference, Ten Hsiangping, is a tough veteran of the Chinese-Soviet dispute over the "correct" interpretation of Marxist-Leninist doctrine. He made it clear in conversations with diplomats from behind the Iron Curtain that his aim is to convince "right-minded comrades" that Khrushchev is as dangerous as "revisionist" as Yugoslavia's President Tito.

Who are the right-minded comrades whom the Chinese hope to convince that the Soviet premier has betrayed the Marxist-Leninist cause? They are to be found, in the first place, among the top Reds of Asia, Africa and Latin America who are increasingly backing China against Russia.

In preparation for the Moscow meeting, Chinese propaganda now paints Russia as a white nation which, like imperialist America, has little sympathy for the colored people. Peking's propagandists claim that China shares with the undeveloped nations not only a common hatred of colonialism but also a common predicament of color.

Even Russia's East European satellites are restive. They are increasingly irked by Moscow's attempt to muzzle their economic, political and cultural life.

Romania, generally regarded as one of Russia's most servile satellites, is a typical example.

KENYATTA IN HIS GLORY

NAIROBI, Kenya — (TNS) — Seventy-year-old Jomo Kenyatta, the man described by a former governor of Kenya as "a leader unto darkness and death" on June 1 became Kenya's first prime minister.

Just before that, the bearded, leather-jacketed and beaded Kenyatta had stood on a table in the centre of Nairobi, and waved a bedraggled fly whisk in triumph as thousands of rain-soaked supporters clenched their fists in the KANU party salute and set up a thunderous roar proclaiming his victory at the polls.

For Kenyatta, beaming in the glory, it was the climax of a life story that almost ended a few years ago when he was convicted of managing the infamous Mau Mau organization.

There were many in Kenya who believed that Kenyatta, old, tired and worn out, would not survive seven years in prison. But "Burning Spear," as he is known by his army of supporters, denied his prophetic their day.

Sixty-three years ago, Kenyatta, then Kamau was a pupil at a Church of Scotland Mission. He was seriously ill and, but for two Europeans, would probably have died.

He soon forgot that he owed his life to two white men. In 1922, as a young employee of the Nairobi Town Council, he joined the Kikuyu Association, which was strongly anti-government and bitterly anti-white.

In 1929, he was sent to England to present the land grievance of his Kikuyu people, the tribe he subsequently led into the Mau Mau. He met with little success, but managed to visit Russia "to see the country."

Two years later he was travelling again. This time he stayed away for 15 years. He

Big Three test ban talks

Out of failure, success can come

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — No high official in Washington is kidding himself that the forthcoming American-British-Russian talks on a nuclear test ban will result in agreement and a treaty. Some administration sources put Undersecretary of State Averell Harriman's chances of success in Moscow at no better than 1 in 20.

This is perhaps the best answer to congressional and other critics who think that the conference announced in President Kennedy's June 10 speech on a new strategy for peace is an ambush and a waste of time. The rationalization for it is that any president would want to be sure that he had done everything he could to avoid a worldwide nuclear disaster. If the talks prove fruitless as expected, Russia gets the blame. What could follow would be of considerable advantage to the United States in one way, of considerable damage to both the communist and the free worlds in another.

Another demonstration by the Russians that they do not want a test ban should make all the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance countries realize exactly what they are up against. It should unite them as they have not been united before.

Russian rejection of a test ban should also make it easier to bring into being the NATO Multilateral Force-MFL of submarine mines and surface ships armed with Polaris missiles.

The bad part of such a development is that it might bring on an all-out arms race between East and West.

By PETER EDSON

The MFL alone would cost the U.S. an estimated $15 billion. It would mean $100 billion U.S. defense budgets within a few years. The question is whether or not a test ban would be preferable.

IF A TEST BAN agreement should come through as long shot, there is no intention that the United States would relax on what is now believed to be its vast nuclear superiority. Plans for future testing would go right ahead. Development of antimissile missiles and anti-antimissile missiles would go ahead.

Then if the Russian broke the test ban treaty, the United States would be prepared to resume testing immediately. It would not be forced to lose six months as it did before when Khrushchev broke the Eisenhower moratorium on bomb testing.

In spite of U.S. nuclear weapons superiority — which is not to be confused with a missile gap in delivery systems — there is no assurance that American scientists would be first to develop new super-weapons that come after the H-bomb.

In the potential for proliferation of nuclear weapons development in the next 10 to 20 years by Red China, France, Germany, Italy, Sweden, India, Japan or others that have the know-how some obscure scientist may make the breakthrough. This is a development the United States must be prepared to match.

The key issue on test ban negotiations now is inspection of unidentified explosions. Chairman Khrushchev doesn't want any foreign inspectors in Russia, maintaining that they would all be spies.

He doesn't need any inspectors in the United States, for in the wide-open United States society the Russians need only about 5 per cent espionage to learn what they want to know.

News in brief

Water shortage

Sherbrooke residents were asked by the City of Sherbrooke today to cut the use of water to the strict minimum because of a shortage of water in several sectors of the City.

Director of City Services, Charles Langlois, told The Record Friday afternoon that the situation is "not dangerous". The lack of pressure in certain sectors is due to the increased use of water he said. Residents who usually sprinkle their lawns all day are asked to sprinkle them for a few minutes in the evening. He said the restriction would continue until after the first rainfall.

Pledges action

DUBLIN (AP) — President Kennedy pledged Friday that the United States will use all its power to force a world-wide pact to freeze the spread of atomic weapons.

In an appearance before applauding members of the Irish Dail (parliament), Kennedy recalled that it was Ireland which sponsored a United Nations resolution to stop the spread of nuclear arms and find a way to control them.

"I pledge to you that the United States will do all in its power to achieve such an agreement and fulfill your resolution," he added.

7 die in fire

RIO DE JANEIRO — (AP) — Firemen saved scores of office workers from a burning 21-story building with spectacular rope rescues Friday. The fire took at least seven lives and there were fears the toll may be higher.

Some of the victims leaped or fell to death during rescue attempts.

A survivor called the fire "a blazing hell."

Named in court

LONDON — (Reuters) — Britain's sex-and-security scandal erupted anew in court Friday with a flurry of charges and testimony involving big names — one of them titled — and suggestions of unnatural practices.

Two alleged prostitutes, Christine Keeler and Mandy Rice-Davies, testified they had sexual relations with resigned war minister John Profumo and the Third Viscount Astor of Cliveden, respectively.

They appeared as witnesses at the preliminary hearing of society osteopath Stephen Ward, 50, charged with living on the prostitution earnings of Miss Keeler, 21; Miss Rice-Davies, 18, and other women.

Sent to trial

MONTREAL (CP) — Three teen-aged students today were committed for trial on charges of public mischief endangering life and attempted arson in connection with an incendiary bomb attack at the Victoria Rifles armory during the night of March 7-8.

The three — Raymond Villeneuve, 19, and Alain Brouillard, 18, and Alain Gabele 19 — are among 13 persons facing a variety of charges in connection with terrorist activities by an underground separatist group called le Front de Liberation Quebecois.

Want tax cut

TORONTO — (CP) — The Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in a submission to Finance Minister Gordon, says the federal budget's withdrawal of sales tax exemptions on factory machines and processing materials used in the production of goods poses a serious threat to employment and should be cancelled.

The association also asks removal of the sales tax on building materials used in construction of new factories and plant extension.

BLANK SUIT COMPLICATES

You should never use Blackwood when you are void in a suit. But what do you do when your partner uses Blackwood and you are void somewhere?

The approval procedure is to jump right to six in the suit that shows the exact number of aces you hold unless you are afraid that your void suit is one in which your partner is strong. In that case you merely show how many aces you hold.

North's jump to six hearts showed two aces and a void suit. South assumed that the void suit would be clubs. It did not seem likely that it would be diamonds and obviously it wasn't spades.

A conservative South would probably have settled for the small slam on the theory that if East held the club ace there would be no real play for seven, but this particular South was an optimist. He believed that aces were always where they should be in this best of all possible worlds so South went right to seven hearts.

He did not like it when the king of diamonds was opened, but everything worked out nicely.

South took dummy's ace of diamonds, ruffed a diamond high, led a heart to dummy's eight, ruffed another diamond high, led the king of clubs just to see if the ace would cover an druffed with the deuce of trumps after West played low. Ruffed dummy's last diamond high, led his last trump over-taking in dummy, cashed dummy's last trump and paused while East considered a discard. At this point East was in a squeeze. He was down to six cards and had to jettison a spade in order to hang on to the ace clubs. This made all dummy's spades good and gave South his slam.

CARD SENSE

Q—The bidding has been:
South West North East
1 Spade Pass 2 Hearts Pass
3
You, South, hold:
Spades A-Q-8-6-5, Hearts 10-9, Diamonds K-Q-7, Clubs K-9-4.
What do you do?
A—Bid two no-trump. Your partner's two heart bid has shown at least ten or 11 points and you can play no-trump nicely.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Your partner rebids three spades. What do you do now?
Answer Tuesday

my's last trump and paused while East considered a discard. At this point East was in a squeeze. He was down to six cards and had to jettison a spade in order to hang on to the ace clubs. This made all dummy's spades good and gave South his slam.

Sub-miniature cameras discussed

Take your camera on the holiday weekend

How would you like to have 18 million people celebrating your birthday?

This would be a fair indication of your importance, Canada's confederation is being celebrated Monday, and what birthday would be complete without a few pictures?

The festivities will provide photo subjects ranging from parade to band concerts, from fireworks to antique cars, so, whatever your favorite subject is you will be able to exploit it to the fullest.

If you should be driving to out-of-town celebrations chances are that you will come across one of the Eastern Townships' historic covered bridges, some of which are older than Confederation.

SUB-MINIATURE CAMERA

Looking through some of the monthly photographic magazines, I see that there is a new interest, or I should say, a revived interest, in sub-miniature cameras.

This type of camera was invented during the First World War for espionage, developed during the Second World War, and forgotten about during times of peace. Perhaps the main reason the lack of interest is the fact that the film available to the amateur could not be enlarged to any great degree, and, therefore, had little practical use.

Camera talk by Doug Gerrish

The film size was approximately 9.5 mm. During their active days, the tiny cameras could be found in the tops of walking sticks, in lapel buttons, and disguised as watches. Some of these cameras, looking like the ones grandfather used to wear, or standard railroad watches, had the lens in the stem.

However, today's sub-miniature camera looks a little more like a camera and takes excellent photographs. The main asset is the lack of bulk, and the possibility of carrying it conveniently in a watch pocket.

Moderate-sized enlargements can be made using fine grain film and processing.

My personal opinion on all these sub-miniature cameras, however, is that they are not much good for any other purpose than that for which they were invented—and there are not many spies around now. The maximum enlargement practical is five by seven.

The film requires tremendous care and skill in handling. A five by seven print is only a reference of a subject, an eight by ten is a good picture of it, and a 16 by 20 is a god photograph worthy of the subject photographed.

Before rushing out to buy sub-miniature cameras, you should give great consideration to the practical use you will put it to.

Home owners plan to force referendum on zoning change

Property owners of the West Ward intend to force a referendum which they hope will stop a recently adopted zoning bylaw permitting the establishment of taverns in a part of their ward.

West Ward resident Roland Fournier told The Record yesterday that he will appear at the public meeting scheduled for city hall July 8 with a sufficient number (6) of property owners from his ward to force a referendum. Bylaw number 1321 would change a part of Galt Street West zoning status to commercial class 2 from class 1.

The change would permit the erection of taverns, hotels, night clubs, motels, liquor outlets, and dry cleaners between Laurier and Belvedere Streets along Galt.

Reason for the opposition, said Mr. Fournier, is that residents of the affected area consider that there is a tavern under construction and that this would be a bad influence on the youth of the community.

Mr. Fournier added that the approval of the bylaw would result in further traffic congestion in his area.

He said that some property owners in adjoining zones who also hold the right to vote in the referendum will back the rejection.

A petition bearing 500 names of opponents to the bylaw, according to Mr. Fournier, was submitted to city council. Council passed the bylaw Tuesday.

SCALE PLANT FOR SHERBROOKE

— This is an architect's drawing of the over $700,000 scale manufacturing plant to be built on Roy St., Sherbrooke, starting next month. The 60,000 square foot building will be built for the Robert Morse Corporation, the new name of the Canadian Fairbanks-Morse Company. The present building was built in 1908 and has been sold to a supermarket chain. It was scrapped, the firm says, because new production techniques had made it obsolescent. The new plant will begin production in December on both the Howe and Richardson lines of scales, including static weighing machines, bulk weighing equipment and electronic control devices for proportioning batching by weight. The company is one of the largest industrial scale organizations in the world.

KENYATTA IN HIS

attended the London School of Economics and later, under the famous Professor Malinowski, studied anthropology at London University where he obtained a post-graduate diploma for his book, Facing Mount Kenya. The book is an idealized study of the Kikuyu before the coming of the white man.

A few years later Kenyatta was back in Russia, this time on a tour of Europe. He remained in Russia for nearly two years, studying political science at Moscow University and living at the Lux Hotel, which was maintained for foreign students under the auspices of the Comintern. In 1945 Kenyatta became president of the Pan African Federation in London and his general secretary was Kwame Nkrumah, now President of Ghana. At the time, with postwar demands for freedom sweeping Africa, Kenya and the Kikuyu recalled Kenyatta. He was their man. By this time Kenyatta was the most important African in political and intellectual circles in London. In 1942 he had married an English girl, a Cambridge graduate. They had a son, Peter. Three years later he left his wife and child.

His wife said afterwards: "Jomo always told us that if it came to the choice, his cause—the future of his people, that is—his people would come first. This was agreed between us... it was understood..."

As the thousands packing the centre of Nairobi recently shouted their deep-throated roar of jubilation at the elderly Kenyatta, it sounded as if all Black Africa had suddenly arisen and yelled in triumph. The whites as a body were not represented by any political body at the elections. It was a straight fight between two powerful African political groups.

Now the majority of white settlers have gone and it is difficult to say what the future holds for those whites who have stayed. Kenya is hopelessly split tribally. Hatreds run deep and there is intense rivalry between the political parties. Jomo Kenyatta should, at 73, be thinking of retiring from the political scene. But the indications are that his most testing years are yet ahead of him.

BIG THREE TEST

While the United States has a world-wide nuclear test detection system, which the Russians do not have, the U.S. needs inspection of unidentified explosions. Khrushchev apparently has been led to believe that the United States will ultimately sign a test ban treaty without inspection. But the often repeated report from the Russians that the former American disarmament negotiator, Ambassador Arthur Dean, had ever said that inspections are not important is officially denied. Anyway, the difference between three inspections a year which Russia might settle for, and the seven which the United States insists on as a minimum is considered important. What's wanted is a reserve of two or three inspections for safety.

The treasurer, Cde. Lorna Nixon, presented three bills which were voted paid, one of these being the semi-annual donation made to the Senior Branch.

The correspondence, read by the secretary, consisted of a letter of introduction from the New Recreation Supervisor at the Ste. Anne de Bellevue Veterans Hospital.

The reports of committees were as follows: Cde. Loretta Girard, newly elected convener of the ways and means, reported on the weekly bingos, sponsored by the branch for three weeks. On her committee are Cdes. Lorraine Stevens, Doris Stevens, and Hazel Semple. Cde. Girard also reminded the members that tickets on the Street Fair drawing, an outdoor barbecue grill, were ready for distribution.

Cde. Ivy Fuller, health and welfare convener, reported that flowers had been sent to the family of the late Mrs. E. McGovern.

Cde. L. Nixon stated that the usual amount of tobacco had been sent to the Veterans at Ste. Anne's and the Wales Home.

Cde. Verelda Dumont, the newly elected social convener, reported that she would carry on the monthly social bingos through July and August. Cde. Selina Aulis agreed to assist in September. Cde. Jean Trembley offered to act on the committee until then.

It was announced that the Teen Age dance, to be sponsored by the auxiliary would be held on July 13. Cde. Dumont to look after the canteen. Arrangements will be made for chaperons, as well as some one to be at the door.

On June 24, a joint meeting is to be held at the Memorial Hall, when Cde. James Cameron will be presented with the Merit Badge. All members of the Legion and Auxiliary are invited to attend. Arrangements for refreshments were made.

It was suggested that money would be solicited from the members, and doughnuts be sold at the refreshment booth at the Street Fair, would be bought from one person, rather than asking for several donations. The subject was left open for further discussion at the meeting before the Street Fair.

The president asked for volunteer workers to help in the Legion Booth at the Richmond Fair. At the close of the meeting, a drawing donated by Cde. Elsie Dunn, was won by Cde. Selina Aulis.

Refreshments were served in the lounge, the hostesses being, Cdes. Gladys Galbraith, Frances Cunningham and Lee Cunningham.

Brookbury Guild plans projects to aid cemetery

BROOKBURY — St. John's Guild was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harper on June 20, Rev. W. E. Walker opening the meeting with prayer.

The treasurer, Mrs. Harper, gave a report on proceeds from remnant sales and other activities.

It was decided to hold a drawing in the near future in aid of the cemetery fund, which is low, the objective being, to raise sufficient funds at least to pay the new caretaker of the cemetery. Anyone wishing to donate to the upkeep of the cemetery may contact Mrs. Harper.

The article for the drawing is a lovely hand crocheted pillow, made and donated to the society by Mrs. Judge, who is now residing at the Rosemary Rest Home.

A travelling apron is another effort to raise funds for this same project.

Members were asked to bring an article for the fall sale to the next meeting, which will be held on the 3rd Thursday of July, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Gaulin.

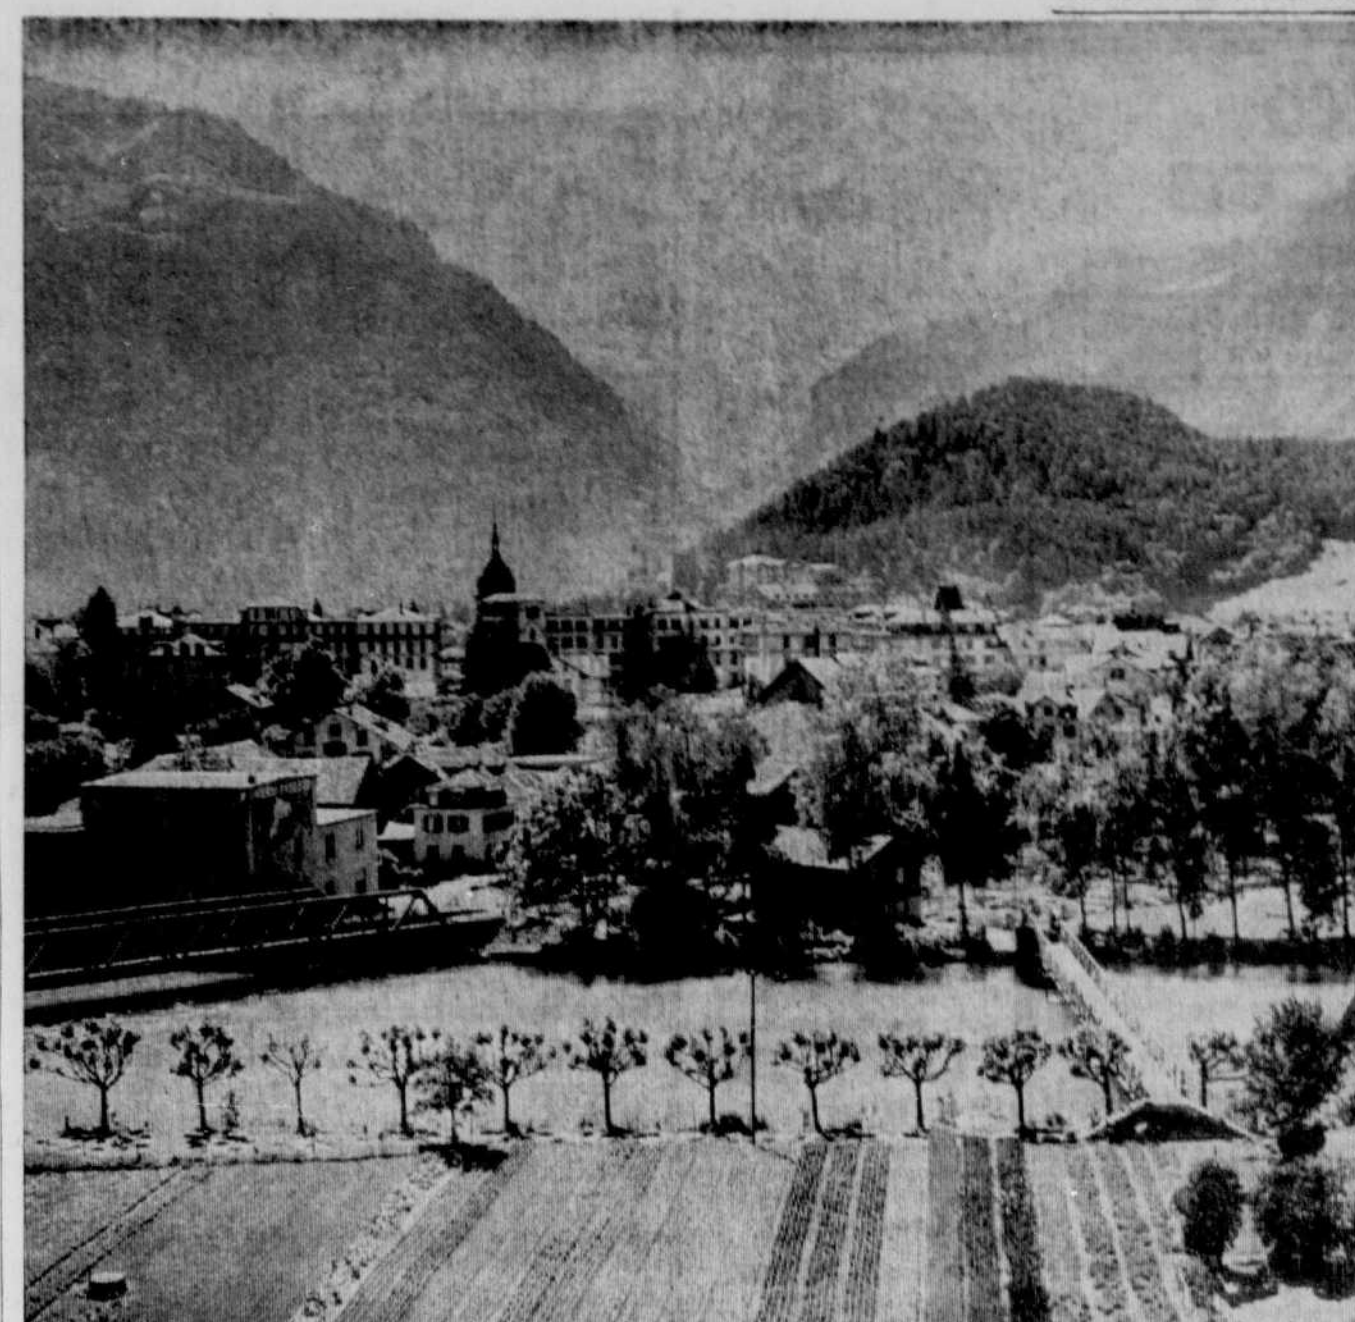

The travelling prize was won by Mrs. Newton McLeod, and donated by Mrs. Gaulin, thus Mrs. McLeod will be responsible for the next month's travelling prize.

The scientific nature of Christianity when seen as governed by God's immutable law, will be taken up at the services in the Christian Science churches this Sunday, in the reading of the week's Lesson-Sermon on the subject "Christian Science." The Golden Text is from Isaiah: "The Lord hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God." Relevant selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include: "Truth's immortal idea is sweeping down the centuries, gathering beneath its wings the sick and sinning."

Do you get the most from this paper?

Many women confuse "reading" the daily paper with extracting from it just the things that interest them. Then they wonder why their husbands know so much more than they do about what's happening in the world.

No one has read the newspaper thoroughly if she has fleetingly glanced at the front-page headlines, read the gory details of any sensational murder that catches the eye, and then turned to the women's pages.

So far as enlightening herself enough to discuss the news with her husband, she might as well not have opened the paper.

If she hasn't read any political news, or any foreign news, or looked at the scores on the sports pages, studied the financial page, turned to the comics, or read the editorials she doesn't know anything about the news — from a man's point of view.

"Don't you ever read the newspapers?" is a question men are always asking their wives.

And the answer is usually an indignant, "Of course I do."

"Then how could you have missed such — and — such?" the man wants to know.

Well, a woman can read a newspaper and still miss most of what interests a man. And many women read a paper just that way.

Any woman wants to be able to discuss the news intelligently with her husband had

Marriages

Nicole Coderre marries Dr. Jean Bergeron

The marriage of Miss Nicole Coderre, daughter of Mrs. Conrad Bolduc, of Lennoxville, and the late Jacques Emile Coderre to Dr. Jean Bergeron, son of Mrs. Joseph Bergeron and the late Dr. Bergeron, of Ste. Foy, took place recently in St. Anthony's Church, Lennoxville. Father Fernand Robert, of Megantic officiating. White and pink peonies were used to decorate the church and the guest pews were marked with white peonies and white satin bows. Mrs. Laurette Coderre-Brunelle was the organist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Georges A. Coderre, wore an elegant portrait gown of poul de soie, the bodice being appliqued with fine Guipure lace and seed pearls. Her veil of tulle illusion which followed along the lines of the long train was held in place by a small tiara of pearls. She carried a bouquet of Sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley.

The maid of honor Miss Christiane Coderre, sister of the bride was in a yellow Italian silk dress and carried a colonial bouquet of green and white tinted carnations. The bridesmaids, the Misses Josette Bergeron, sister of the groom and Armande Halle, were dressed identical in dresses of pink and turquoise, with colonial bouquets of carnations and poms.

The groom's mother wore a pink chiffon dress, with hat to match, pink stole and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother was attired in a dress of cafe-creme imported French lace and silk, small flowered hat, pink stole and a blue orchid for her corsage.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Beau Site, Deauville, where a buffet luncheon was served. The bride's table being decorated with the four-tier wedding cake. Pink and white peonies and white tapers in silver candelabra completed the decor.

Later the couple left for Atlantic City, the bride wearing for travelling a raspberry red imported Swiss linen suit, black Milan straw hat and black accessories.

Out of town guests were from Chicoutimi, Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec.

Bride elect entertained

EUSTIS — The Ladies' Guild of Christ Church, Eustis, entertained Miss Patricia Stafford, a bride-to-be of the month at a miscellaneous shower recently.

Mrs. A. Winget played the Wedding March as the guest of honor entered the room. She was then presented with a corsage and escorted to a seat of honor by Miss Shirley Humphrey.

The bride elect was assisted in opening the many gaily wrapped gifts by her mother, Mrs. L. Hetherington and the prospective groom's mother, Mrs. F. Gillam.

After the gifts had been admired, the bride-to-be graciously thanked those assembled for their kindness, and invited her friends to visit her in her new home.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening by the Guild members.

"Showered" by Magog friends

Miss Jean Whittier, a July bride-to-be was guest of honor at a pantry shower, given by her aunt, Mrs. Francis Bennett, and cousin, Mrs. Mitchell Minor, on Monday evening June 24, at the formers' home.

At the appointed hour of nine o'clock the honored guest was met at the door by her hostesses, and was taken completely by surprise when she was presented with a corsage and then escorted to a chair behind a table which was decorated in green and white, over which was suspended a large white bell.

The table was laden with attractively wrapped packages which were opened by Miss Whittier, assisted by her mother, Mrs. William Whittier and future mother-in-law Mrs. Z. Ducharme.

Following this, the bride-to-be was thanked everyone for the lovely gifts, and a pleasant evening was brought to a close with refreshments being served by the hostesses, assisted by the Misses Lorraine and Lynn Bennett and Miss Barbara Buzzell.

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY—When you beat separated eggs for a recipe, beat the whites first add a little bit of the beaten white to the yolks before beating them. Yolks will thicken more quickly and will not stick to the bowl.—MRS. N. J. M.

DEAR POLLY—When traveling with small children I put into a bag all the articles of clothing they will need to put on at one time, fasten the bag and put the child's name on it. That way there are no mussy suitcases, no lost socks and so on. Also it is a surprise for the children to see what they are each to wear on a certain day.—MRS. D. Z.

GIRLS—Several of you have written to ask how many nylon stockings it would take to knit a sweater. It would be impossible to say, as there are many things that would determine the amount—how tightly one knits, the size of the needles, the width the stockings strips were cut, the pattern or type of stitch, and he size of the sweater to be made.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Use your regular commercial oven cleaner to clean the outside of your CAST IRON skillets or pans. Use the cleaner according to the manufacturer's instructions.—MRS. H. T.

GIRLS—I prefer to use a cast iron skillet for frying chicken, and my skillets benefited from Mrs. H. T.'s hint. I left the oven cleaner on for nearly two hours, as the instructions on my cleaner read: I then washed off the accumulated black with vinegar in water, as the manufacturer recommended. It's wise to put a lot of newspapers under the skillets before applying the cleaner, so none of it touches the countertop or sink. Be sure to protect your hands with rubber gloves.—POLLY.

St. Mary's Guild, St. Paul's Church Garden party and tea proves a success

A very successful Garden Party, in the form of a Strawberry Tea, was held on the lawn of the residence of Mrs. H. J. Drew, Courcelle Street, on June 21.

The event sponsored by the St. Mary's Guild of St. Paul the Apostle and conyened by Mrs. R. Smith was previously cancelled the day before owing to inclement weather.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. C. Mayhew and Mrs. R. S. Jervis-Read. The cashier for the afternoon was Mrs. J. Evans.

Presiding at the tea table, which was arranged with a white linen cloth, centered with pink and white peonies, was Mrs. F. Dunn.

Individual tables were placed at intervals under the trees and the guests were served a delicious strawberry tea by the members of the Guild.

The kitchen conveners were Mrs. R. Smith, Mrs. J. R. Hebert and Mrs. A. Morrison.

Fancy aprons and knitted articles were pegged to a clothes line and were sold by Mrs. A. Edgcombe and Mrs. I. Richards.

During the afternoon a drawing for a Serva-table was held, the winner being Peter Smith.

This event which is looked forward to by many of the residents of Sherbrooke was made possible by the gracious hospitality of Mrs. Drew who kindly opened her home for the occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Delmer Fearon, of Lennoxville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Darlene Beverly, to Mr. Bain Ervin Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur K. Rogers, of Birchton. The wedding will take place on September 7, 1963, in St. Patrick's Church, Sherbrooke.

Approaching marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stanley Atkinson, of Waterloo, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Joan Monica, to Mr. Dwight Jay Chapman, of Waterloo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gordon Chapman, of Waterloo. The marriage will take place on July 13 at 2.00 p.m. in St. Luke's Church, Waterloo.

RUBINSTEIN PLAYS SCHUMANN: Carnival, Fantasiestücke (RCA Victor stereo LSC 2669) — In these two well-loved works of Schumann, Artur Rubinstein demonstrates he is still a giant among pianists and among musicians. Carnival is a masterpiece of vibrant, lively playing. Fantasiestücke, largely more subdued in mood, is played with that incredible spontaneity few but Rubinstein can manage.

OFFENBACH OVERTURES: Orpheus in the underworld, La Belle Helene, Bluebeard, The Grand Duchess of Gerolstein, Le Mariage aux lanternes; the London Philharmonic Orchestra, Jean Martinon cond. (RICHMOND mono B 19098) — Played with zest and precision by the London Philharmonic, these frothy, saucy overtures are as fresh as ever. Orpheus in the Underworld and La Belle Helene are probably the best known in this collection, but the other three, cast in the same sugary mold, are equally as enjoyable.

The Grand Duchy of Luxembourg has issued a silver 100-franc coin to commemorate its founding in 963 by Siegfried, Count of Ardenne and first Count of Luxembourg. While this tiny country of 90 square miles has 1,000 years of history as a separate entity, it has not always been a Grand Duchy, nor has it always had the independent status it enjoys at present.

It was declared a grand duchy in the 14th century, but until 1890 it was variously a part of the French, Spanish, Austrian and Dutch empires, and at one time it was a part of the Holy Roman Empire. However, it has had its own coinage since the 12th century, although many issues have been similar to the types current in the empires to which it was annexed.

There is an abundance of iron in the country and a favorite design on many issues of Luxembourg coinage has been an iron worker; frequently iron has been used for the minor coin of the country. The first coins of the present Grand Duchess Charlotte in 1921 were of iron.

The Grand Duchess, who has reigned for 44 years, is portrayed on the present commemorative wearing a tiara and earrings, and around the portrait is the legend "Charlotte Grande Duchesse de Luxembourg 1963." On the reverse are crowned arms and the value.

From the photographs of the Grand Duchess which have appeared in the press recently, it would appear that the portrait on the present coin is a faithful likeness, but the coin is not nearly as attractively as previous commemoratives.

In 1946 there was a silver issue of 20, 50 and 100 francs commemorating the 600th anniversary of the death of John the Blind which had a bust of John on one side and on the other, a plumed knight on horseback — a very attractive design.

While the spelling of the name of the country on the 1963 coin is the one commonly used, some previous coins of Luxembourg have had the spelling "Letzeburg," which is the official state name.

Confederation series

Story of Ontario's frontier period

The story of the hard years of the frontier colony which was to become Ontario is told in Gerald M. Craig's Upper Canada, The Formative Years 1784-1841.

(McClelland and Stewart.)

The book is the first of a 17-volume history of Canada to be published between now and 1967 as the Canadian Centenary Series, written by distinguished Canadian historians and covering Canada's history from the early voyages of the Vikings to the present day.

Dr. Craig, professor of history at the University of Toronto, writes of a time when the relationship between church and state, the claims of imperial unity and colonial responsible government caused the early settlers more worries than the wilderness they had to conquer.

He writes with clear insight into the characteristics of such opposing forces as the Family Compact, which ran the colony through so many of the early years, and of the rebel William Lyon Mackenzie.

While he credits the Family Compact with an aim which "was not an ignoble one," Dr. Craig tells of the ruling clique's "open contempt for the rising tide of democracy."

SCORNED PEOPLE'S CLAIMS "Government did not, in their view, derive its authority from the consent of the governed, but from the king, from history, and from religion."

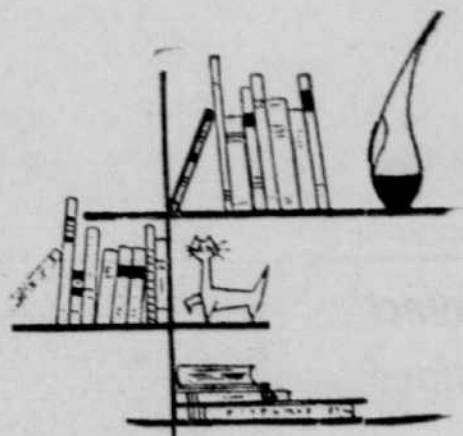

Of Mackenzie, he writes: "He was a perverse, angular, cantankerous man. He was entirely unsuited to the life of politics, unable to work with colleagues toward an agreed objective. But he was also more than this. . . . With complete disregard for personal gain or advancement, he put himself unreservedly at the disposal of the plain people of Upper Canada."

STAMPS-PICNIC

Yes, these two words do go together, the annual picnic of the St. Francis Collectors Club, and all collectors are welcome, will be held at the home of Philmar on Saturday the 6th of July during the afternoon. There will be displays of stamps, a barbecue with hamburgers and hot dogs, ice cream and strawberries. Bring along the family and enjoy a day at Dixville with your fellow collectors.

Thoughts for this Dominion Day.

Some time ago, in the course of a conversation with a well-known Sherbrooke authority on Eastern Townships history, I was asked this question: "Do you know anything about Philip Gosse?"

Shamefacedly, I had to admit I didn't.

My gentleman questioner kindly bolstered my sagging intellectual conceit by assuring me that if he had asked 100 people in the Eastern Townships that question, he doubted if more than one or two could answer it. Not even native Eastern Townshippers would know, he consoled me. So not being a native, I felt better.

But the question still haunts me if only because it is so symptomatic of our times.

To me it typifies the lack of background information from which most of us suffer, in all too many fields. A lack of basic knowledge which may not only cheat us of such things as civic, national or family pride, but even, at times, prove dangerous.

I think a case in point is the potentially inflammable situation in Canada today.

CONFEDERATION

How often lately have we heard people declaring with great authority that "confederation has failed."

And yet if you asked these same people the equivalent of the Philip Gosse question "Do you know anything about confederation?" — I wonder how accurate would be their answers.

How much could they say about what confederation was intended to do, what it promised, that it hasn't produced — or won't yet produce?

In short if the people who shout the loudest that confederation has failed had to make specific examples of its failures, they might be hard put to do so.

Anyone who doesn't know about Philip Gosse could hardly set himself up as an authority on the history of the Eastern Townships.

By the same token I submit that anyone who knows as little about confederation as most of us do, has a pretty untenable position from which to argue that it is a failure.

Just as being a native of the Eastern Townships doesn't ensure knowledge of Philip Gosse; being a Canadian doesn't make anyone an authority on confederation.

Therefore my Dominion Day wish for this year is that more Canadians study confederation and less Canadians knock it.

BACK TO GOSSE

P.S. — Do you know anything about Philip Gosse?

To spare frustration I quote these lines from GLIMPSES INTO THE PAST by Bertha Weston Price on the subject.

"Between the years 1835 and 1838 there lived at Compton Village in the Quebec Eastern Townships a young Englishman, by name Philip Henry Gosse. . . . like many other Englishmen, filled with the spirit of adventure, he settled on a farm in Compton County, somewhere in the neighborhood of Compton Village and what is now Waterville. He was not farmer, rather a biologist, but he tried to blend the two, but must have had lean years, for he wrote to his people in England about 'living, at times, on buckwheat and pig's meat'."

However, despite his hardships, he survived with "various claims to remembrance," among them being a book he wrote entitled THE CANADIAN NATURALIST, and a marine aquarium he invented.

Elegant but dull

PATCHWORK CHILD by Brooke Astor, Harper and Row, 224 pp.

The best things about this book are the title and the final chapter.

As a youngster I was very much intrigued with a grown-up friend's reading habits: he invariably turned to the end of a story or novel and read backwards to the middle, then began at the beginning to meet his characters half way through. Perhaps he could not stand suspense.

It is not a method one would normally endorse, but readers of Patchwork Child might be well advised to begin this autobiography at "A Family Note" on page 217, as it is the most interesting chapter in the book, telling of Brooke Astor's antecedents.

Not even her childhood of a Queen Elizabeth or a Winston Churchill warrants 216 pages devoted almost entirely to—in this case—not too perspicacious — observations at three, or eight, or 15.

Brooke Astor's youthful observations began first in her grandparents' house in Washington, D.C. Then came Hawaii, a moonlit paradise with devils lurking; Panama, an inferno where a man named Goethals was digging a canal; Peking during that fascinating period when revolution was prodding the Imperial City out of an exotic and feudal age.

As can be seen, the background was fascinating, but the life itself, at least the third described in this book, was pedestrian. Certainly it leaves the reader with no overwhelming desire to read the other two-thirds, should the author be disposed to continue the "saga" of Patchwork Child in further books.

What future for grads of Dominion Festival?

OTTAWA — The 1963 Dominion Drama Festival finals are over and another crop of eager young Canadians will be aiming for careers as professional actors of playwrights.

If past performance is any guide, about one-tenth of the festival participants eventually should turn professional and a handful might gain international fame.

Richard MacDonald, national director of the Dominion Drama Festival, estimates that approximately 150 performers in past festivals have carved out successful stage and screen careers.

The majority of the others found their way into business or the professions but retained their interest in amateur drama.

Festival alumni include such well-known personalities as Lorne Greene, Gratien Gelinas and John Colicos.

Greene, born in Ottawa 48 years ago, did not win any festival awards but appeared at the 1934 and 1937 finals. He went on to become a CBC newscaster during the Second World War, a stage and movie actor and now stars in the popular American television series Bonanza.

Gelinas, the Montreal actor, director and playwright, acted in one of the plays presented at the first finals, held in Ottawa in 1933. He now is the central figure of a bilingual theatre company in difficult but successful heart operation on forty-pastish, rather unattractive Lillian Munson and forgot about her: unfortunately, she did not forget him. He gave her freedom from the fear of death and from pain, freedom to live a normal life.

The operation has released a dynamo that will consume the doctor or destroy him and everything he loves, including his practice, unless he deals with this peculiar kind of blackmail quickly and drastically. Like most men caught in so untenable and provocative a situation, the doctor's fear of scandal forces him to do everything but the sensible thing.

Crooked cops and red-handed robbers

DEATH OF AN ANGEL by Clay Richards, McClelland and Stewart, 175 pp., $4.25.

A not-to-be-taken-too-seriously suspense novel, Death of an Angel demands little of the reader — no clues to remember or suspicious moves by the butler.

It is set in the Tombstone Saloon, New York City in the 90s, the hangout for the Whoots, an exclusive club of cargo hijackers, bank robbers, and finally bomb-planters who blow up the sure-to-win candidate for Mayor of New York, Frank Hobson.

The plot wastes no time in getting underway. Within three and half pages, a millionaire former gang member, and "the peoples' choice," gets his coup-de-grace, and because the lethal package is delivered by mail, the postal department steps into the investigation in the person of Grant Kirby.

Kirby sets himself up as a bank robber from Chicago and then wrangles his way into the club via slugging a sadistic policeman, declining the favors of gang leader Red Rock's woman Maggie, pulling on his knuckle dusters, and accounting for himself in a gang fight.

At a celebration dinner of gangsters, the socially proper bank president, also candidate for mayor and obviously a "bad guy," recognizes Kirby as a postal detective. Then to compound the hero's difficulties and step up the tension, the daughter of the murdered Hobson also recognizes him, and threatens to expose him right there and then in the den of wolves if he doesn't assist her in acquiring a "broader knowledge of life."

The angel is a not-too-bright gangster whom Kirby befriends, and who takes the knife intended for Kirby in the menacing moments of the denouement.

There is a good hodgepodge of crooked cops, a beautiful red-haired mistress, the top of society using the lower strata for political gain — a grown-ups' cops and robbers story for fast reading.

ATHOL RETALLACK

Canadian book store for Paris?

PARIS — A group of Canadian and French representatives interested in promoting literature has suggested that a book shop devoted exclusively to Canadian books and official publications be opened here.

The idea was discussed at a recent luncheon at the Franco-Canadian Institute, arranged by Rene Garneau, minister in charge of cultural affairs at the Canadian embassy, and Robert Elie, cultural representative of the Province of Quebec in Paris.

The meeting, devoted to a better distribution and appreciation in France of books by French and English authors in Canada, was also attended by several French publishers, journalists and literary critics.

Several speakers also suggested more frequent contacts between Canadian publishers and authors with French publishers and critics.

The meeting was presided over by Andre Bourin, editor of Les Nouvelles Littéraires, the oldest literary newspaper in Europe.

The good side of John Dillinger — the lessons he taught the law

THE DILLINGER DAYS by John Toland, Random House, 371 pp., $6.50.

Whether we want to accept the fact or not, it remains clear after reading this book that the great criminals of the 30s and the crimes that they committed form an integral part of the American historical scene.

John Dillinger and others like him, principally Baby Face Nelson, Clyde Barrow and Bonnie Parker, Ma and Dock Barker, Machine Gun Kelly and their various aides grew out of prohibition, when there was widespread disregard for the law, and into the Depression when employment of any kind was almost impossible to find. The time was ripe for a crime wave.

State and Federal laws were pathetically outdated, and law officials in many expanding urban areas were incompetent to begin with, not to mention the fact that they were ill equipped, and were unable to keep pace with the fast cars and the advanced firearms that began to make the criminals' life easier.

To make matters worse, the American citizen had little respect for the law, a hold-over from prohibition, and he held his government in no higher regard. The resulting crime wave which rolled across the American Midwest in 1933-1934 not only captured the imagination of the public, but also made idols of the criminals involved.

As the author points out, John Dillinger was indeed a criminal, but to most Americans he was more a Robin Hood, modern-day Roman hero, than a scowling felon. He was, they said, only recovering from the bankers what they had stolen from the people.

His lopsided grin, his straw-hat, his gallantry towards those whom he robbed, his dare-devil escapes from the scenes of his crimes and from his captors, his harassment and humiliation of the officers of the law who tried in vain to apprehend him, created a tremendous impression on the old and the young of both sexes throughout the country.

In The Dillinger Days, John Toland follows careers of the great criminals of this era, but primarily he deals with John Dillinger, whom he considers to be the inspiration of the age.

It is interesting to note that in the final analysis the author points out that some good did evolve from this time of terrorism. State and federal law agencies were made aware of the fact that they would have to modernize and work together in the future to prevent a recurrence of crime on such a large scale.

Even so, Mr. Toland reminds us that "society still hasn't found any satisfactory answers to the problems of those who seem doomed to steal. Crime has not decreased since the Dillinger days. In fact it has increased several hundred percent and now costs America $60,000,000 a day."

YOUNG DOCTOR'S ORDEAL BY BLACKMAIL

Edith Begner draws very clever character studies: The young doctor, ultra-puritanical in background, distressed by what he feels are carnal and revolting thoughts, the logical target for what becomes Lillian Munson's violent and obscene lust.

In the middle is Eric's lovely and pregnant young wife, whom he protects from any but the most careful lovemaking, while she longs for him to express what she believes to be a normal and beautiful part of their lives in more virile fashion.

Eric's situation is not eased by his lawyer, a pompous man who does not believe his client innocent of an affair with Lillian Munson, and by the doctor's nurse, whose stupidity endangers more lives than one and eventually her own.

Doctors, ministers, lawyers and sometimes teachers can become the innocent targets of neurotic women and their fantasies, and very frequently become involved through their ignorance and fear of scandal, as does Edith Begner's Dr. Purvis. Anyone who has had dealings with a Lillian Munson will recognize the truth of Red in the Morning: anyone who has not can learn not to pass hasty judgements and perhaps to recognize possible danger.

Collecting

Townships

The record price paid for an unused two-cent "missionary" stamp from Hawaii at a recent auction in New York has caused many collectors to look once again at the possibility of making money from stamps.

The unique stamp was part of the fabulous Burrus collection, and this gentleman paid $15,000 in 1921. It sold for $41,000.

At first glance it would seem to be a reasonable conclusion that a good profit was made. However, it took 42 years to reach this figure. The average yearly increase was 2.42 per cent. People who deal in investments will tell you that this is not a very high rate of return. The same $15,000 placed in a bank at 3 per cent interest would have returned $51,900.

Stamp collectors collect for the pleasure to be found in this hobby, and so the monetary gains cannot be assessed strictly in accordance with the foregoing figures, and at the same time we must consider the high values to be realized when stamp collectors call it a day. Very few hobbies can offer this salvage value.

Two new stamps from Malaya were issued on June 26 to commemorate the Cameron Highlands hydro-electric scheme. This electrical development will do much to bring about the industrialization of the Malaya peninsula.

The original plans were drawn up in 1941, but the Japanese destroyed the plans and so the entire scheme was delayed until 1948. Once again the effort was delayed because bandits made off with the engineers' drawings. However, the authorities did finally manage to start in 1959.

Kenya commemorated the inauguration of the University of East Africa on June 28 with a set of two stamps.

This will be a Federal University composed of Makerere University College in Uganda, the Royal College in Kenya and the University College of Dar-es-Salaam in Tanganyika. This new set of learning will serve many of the growing needs of the new African nations at this most exciting juncture of East African history.

Postal history of Canada: It is worthy of note that one of the reasons for the unrest in the American colonies in 1775 was the operation of the postal system by the government in England and the transfer of all revenues to that treasury.

The new American government appointed their own postmaster-general in 1775, and this forced the Canadian authorities to cease sending mail to New York for furtherance to England on the packet boats. The capture of Montreal and the siege of Quebec completely disrupted the mail service, and Findlay, the Canadian postmaster-general, had to reorganize the system completely after the cessation of hostilities.

The local transport of mail was quickly set up, but the problem of getting mail to England was not so easy. This had to be left to the small boats that arrived at Quebec and to the dangerous and long overland route to Halifax via Temiscouata.

It is worthy of note that one of the famous "Bishop" postal markings was in use at Quebec from 1776 to 1798. The first paid handstamp was used at this office in 1772. (To be continued.)

Stamp collectors will be looking for the usual Sede Vacante set from the Vatican and for the set that will commemorate the coronation of Pope Paul. The Sede Vacante set consists of three stamps and features the Papal coat-of-arms.

It is noted that the St. Francis Collectors Club has finalized plans for its annual picnic. This should prove to be a gala event, and will offer all collectors an opportunity to meet each other.

Jacques Hebert

King of the $1 book

MONTREAL (CP) — Jacques Hebert, seven years ago, wrote a book that disturbed people. It also launched him on a career as one of Canada's most successful publishers.

The book, Coffin Etait Innoce, attempted to show that Wilbert Coffin, a prospector hanged for the slaying of two United States hunters in Quebec's Gaspé Peninsula, might not have been guilty.

The book sold 12,000 copies in six months, and Hebert realized what he had stumbled onto. "The $1 book made us," he says, "and the $1 book is our backbone."

Les Editions du Jour, the publishing house he has headed for two years, turns out about one book a week during the publishing season—each aimed for a sale of 10,000 copies. Sixty-three titles published so far have sold a total of 700,000 copies.

They are cheap only in price. Hebert aims for books that not only entertain but inform and arouse.

STRESS IDEAS

"Most of these books are basically ideas," he says. "If they are timely ideas, that is good. If they are well written, that is better."

Hebert sees Quebec as undergoing a reappraisal of its whole way of life and its position within Canada, and his books reflect the struggle of thoughts. He has published books criticizing the influence of the Roman Catholic Church in Quebec education, and one by a priest defending it. He has published an expose of conditions in an insane asylum, a papal encyclical, a history of the 1942 conscription crisis, a practical guide to family spending and Dr. Marcel Chaput's outline of the Quebec separatist movement.

Despite the furious rate of publication he finds no lack of talent in Quebec. His desk bears a stack of manuscripts three feet high, and sheaves of letters and proofs.

He moves through this apparatus jumble as calmly as the speaks. Much of the calmness may be the result of a trip to India—one of his many voyages abroad—when he was immensely influenced by the Gandhi philosophy of non-violence.

LONG CAMPAIGNER In his journalist days Hebert was known as a "fighting newspaper man." Today, at 40, he has a family of five children and has lost much of his hair, but none of his fighting spirit.

Born in Montreal and educated at St. Dunstan's University, Charlottetown, and in the commerce faculty of the University of Montreal, Hebert took to newspaper work as a feature writer for the Montreal weekly La Patrie and daily Le Devoir.

In 1954 he founded his own weekly, Vrai, using it to fight the regime of the late premier Maurice Duplessis. It was in 1954 that he began his attack on the Quebec government over the Coffin case, charging justice was overlooked in the intention to punish someone—anyone—to show that the government was concerned about the safety of tourists.

SPARKS DEBATES "Nobody paid much attention," he says. "I have found that not many people listen to these things in the newspapers. But after I wrote the book, it sold so well, there was a great deal of discussion everywhere."

He formed Les Editions de l'Homme in partnership with a printer to print the book himself, after no publishers would handle it.

His greatest publishing triumph with Les Editions de l'Homme came with Les Insolences du Frere Untel, by Brother Jerome, then an obscure teacher in the Christian Brothers school at Chicoutimi. Witty and elegantly written, the book satirized Quebec's revered institutions and Quebecers' speech. More than 120,000 copies were sold.

Les Editions du Jour, which Hebert founded in 1961 after breaking off the partnership has never been able to duplicate the astounding success of Frere Untel.

White Sox had previous to the Indian uprising got two runs in the second and five more in the fifth. Indians in the top of the fifth took the lead coming up with four big runs this made it a 10-7 ball game and it finished this way as Mario Simard, the Indian hurler kept the White Sox off the score sheet in the last three innings. Simard's pitching and brilliant outfielding were the feature of the Indian victory. Young Raymond Ordeau's catch in deep rightfield in the sixth inning kept the Sox from adding to their score. Wayne Hussey with three hits and Gary Connors with two stood out for the losers.

In the Yankee Twins tussel it looked for a while like the Yankees were going to chalk up their second win of the season as they had a 7-1 lead at the end of two innings. They added one more in the top of the third. Twins in their half of the third got back into the game as they tallied three runs on three hits. Yankees got their last run in the fourth. Twins came up with one in the fourth two in each of the fifth and sixth this made it a nine all ball game. Crosby Cotton with four hits Ronald Sitter and Steven Mitchell each with three were the Yankee stars. Louis Hendy who had four for four and Lonnet Bonduant with three hits were the Twins best.

At this meet there will be athletes from Bedford, Sweetsburg, Cowansville, Sutton, West Brome, Foster, Knowlton, Granby, Sherbrooke, Lennoxville, Rock Island, Stanstead, Beebe and Ayer's Cliff.

REMEMBER WHEN

Twins bomb the Senators, near AL lead

LITTLE LEAGUE OOP

by "TED" ANDERSON

Tigers' defeat last week does not seem to have upset them. They came right back into the winning column and have at the moment the league title in their grasp.

Red Sox are still at their heels but in the games they played this week they did not look too impressive. The Tiger Red Sox game slated for Monday should be one of the better games, but with the Tiger power, Moon Mullin's boys could win this one looking round.

Senators and Indians are beginning to show improvement. The youngsters who are playing their first year in Little league ball show more baseball savvy with each game they play. Both Bob Morin and Johnny Dowling have newcomers in their teams that promise well for the next couple of seasons.

White Sox Yankees and Twins are running hot and cold Gary Connors and Wayne Hussey of the White Sox are showing up well in their games. Yankees have Crosby Cotton, Robin Langlois, James Daigneault al going along well and one of their rookie's Steven Mitchell is showing improvement in each game.

Around this time of the season All Star teams are talked about and what players are in the running for a place on the team. Looking over the players in the Sher-Lenn Little League during the first half of the season, there is not too much of All Star material around. The league is not too strong but there are a few players around whom a team to represent the league could be built.

This is not probably the players who will be chosen but anyhow it might be built along these lines. Pitching or shortstop Jacques Guay, Tigers. Catching, Pierre Cana, Yankees. At first base Luc Plourde, Tigers. At second base Alex Cook, Senators. At third base Denis Gingras, Senators.

Out fielders could be drawn from Daniel Gagnon, Claude Houle both of Tigers, Robin Langlois, Yankees, Pierre Plante, Tigers, and a couple of eleven-year-olds, Bertrand Raymond Red Sox and Luc Fleury of Indians. Consideration might be given Wayne Hussey of White Sox or James Daigneault of Yankees.

Any how this is our slant of men who may be picked for All Stars and hope we are right in naming a few.

Mario Simard did a wonderful job the other night in his defeat of the White Sox. Once this youngster takes more time between pitches he will be a force to be reckoned with. Other stars this week include Denny Raban and Bertrand Turcotte who have been on a hitting spree in the last few games.

Monday Red Sox and Tigers meet at East Hatley in the afternoon, this is a regular league game.

Playing from Sherbrooke are Denis Brosseau and Mike Desfosse.

OUTDOOR CANADA

I've recently returned from a 3,000 mile wilderness trip, during which I enjoyed all the comforts of home.

I traveled by trailer. And let me tell you, this trip really sold me on these pneumatic-tired land caravans. I've never enjoyed such ease in the wilderness before.

Day after day, we'd pull into a trailer park, hook up the body on the jacks, and within minutes dinner would be on the table without the worry of setting up tents and the chores of tent camping.

CAMP COMFORT

Now this doesn't mean I'm giving up the tent. Life in exchange for the comfort of a trailer, but I did learn a few lessons from that trip. Lessons that I feel sure may be of value to readers contemplating camping vacations but lacking the skills or experience necessary to make that type of holiday a smart idea.

If you know nothing of camping, that first trip with the family can be pretty rough. And I'm sure many women are opposed to camping because they fear they will not enjoy this type of holiday.

But in a trailer, most of this is bypassed. You have all the comforts of home and can enjoy bug-free days in wilderness areas, with no thought about being rained out or waken at night by a skunk poking his nose into your tent.

Our trailer on the trip I've just completed was fully equipped.

THE WORKS

We had two double bunks, plus a hammock. And the trailer was fitted with a gas stove and oven, a fridge, wash-basin, wardrobes, storage space for clothes and gear, and there were fly screens and bugproof protectors fitted on all windows and the door.

That's a pretty good rig, especially for the man with a young family who's wife is opposed to roughing it.

And you don't need to buy a trailer to find out this type of life is one you will enjoy.

You can rent a 14 to 16 foot model for as low as $50 a week. These will sleep up to 6 persons.

There is usually an additional $10 fee for the fixing of a trailer hitch to your car and this hitch is removed when you return the trailer.

DRIVING

Any competent car driver will quickly learn to handle the rig on both highway and back-trail. The only trouble I found at first is in reversing and backing the rig into a parking spot. But on the highway, modern trailers handle so well, it's easy to forget you have a fully equipped house following close on your tail and you have to watch this when on a corner or when passing another vehicle.

On hills, it pays to use the correct gears. Don't punch down on that gas pedal, but smoothly change down and take it easy on any steep slopes. On rough side roads, you will find the trailer handles better than your own car.

The smart trailer camper will give the rig a good trial run around local roads before the family gets aboard and you head off on your vacation.

These days there is almost unlimited space for trailer camping. You can make a tour camping at nights in proper parks, or pick a good place beside a lake, and stay there for the whole of your holiday.

CAMP EARLY

But be warned, it's always best to camp early each day. Don't just keep going on into the late evening, hoping to find a better place along the highway. Get a campsite book from the provinces or states you intend to visit and make sure you pick a place to stop that is an easy drive away.

There's nothing worse than landing into a park after dark and having to fumble around getting set up. After all, this should be a holiday from care and worry.

I know many people who feel this type of camping vacation is phoney. They feel you have to rough it to have a good time. Nonsense camping is fun no matter how you do it, and I've had my share of tough camps.

Now I'll settle for comfort and know the wife and youngsters are having a good time, too.

Mantle's fracture will probably take longer in healing, he says

NEW YORK (AP)—It now develops that the cheering news concerning Mickey Mantle's rapid recovery from a broken foot was nothing more than wishful thinking.

The Yankee star, in New York Friday for whiplash and ultrasonic treatment of the injured limb, doubted whether he would be able to run, let alone play, by July 11, the day of his predicted return to duty.

"The foot feels real weak," Mantle told reporters in the clubhouse Yankee Stadium, where he had reported for his treatment. "I don't see how I'll be able to play in two weeks. It will be at least 10 days before I can start running. Right now I can hardly walk."

The switch - hitting slugger, who suffered the fracture on June 5, wore a regular loafer shoe with a steel support on his left foot. The front of the shoe had been cut open to ease the pressure. The steel plate is to keep the foot firm.

ANKLES HURTS

"My ankle hurts worse than the foot," complained Mickey. "It's stiff and sore. Maybe I pulled some ligaments in addition to the break."

Mantle will be eligible for league play July 5 when his 30-day disability period expires. When Dr. Sidney Gaynor, Yankee club physician, removed the cast Wednesday, he announced that the foot was healing surprisingly fast and that it was possible Mickey would be ready before the all-star game July 9.

Flanagan, 36, who announced his intention to retire as an active player last April, will continue as coach of the Reds. He had been player-coach for two seasons, leading the Reds to the A.H.L.'s Eastern Division championship last year. He previously had played with Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League.

Now I'll settle for comfort and know the wife and youngsters are having a good time, too.

Harmon Killebrew's batting eye is back in focus and suddenly Minnesota Twins are being like pennant contenders.

With Killebrew supplying much of the muscle, the Twins clobbered Washington Senators in both ends of a doubleheader Friday night, romping home with 11-4 and 10-3 decisions and moving within 1 1/2 games of the American League lead.

Killebrew's contribution to the carnage was three singles, two doubles and his 17th homer of the year for five runs batted in, raising his batting average to .280. That was his high for the year and, coincidentally, the closest the Twins have been to the top since the first week of the season.

The Twins remained in fourth place, three percentage points behind Boston Red Sox who rebounded from six innings of hitless pitching by Al Downing to push across three runs in the seventh inning and one in the eighth to edge the league-leading New York Yankees 4-3.

The second-place Chicago White Sox balked another at attempt by former team - mate Early Wynn to gain his 300th victory but lost 4-3 to Cleveland Indians when Willie Kirkland's squeeze bunt pushed over the winning run in the ninth inning. The result left the Yankees with a margin of seven percentage points.

Leon Wagner clubbed two home runs and two singles, driving in four runs, as Los Angeles Angels won the opener of a doubleheader over Detroit 8-3, but the Tigers pulled out the second game 8-3 with a seven-run outburst in the eighth inning highlighted by Rocky Colavito's homer.

And Russ Snyder's ninth-inning homer gave Baltimore Orioles a 2-1 decision over Kansas City Athletics and made Steve Barber the league's first 12 game winner.

Killebrew, out of the line up for three weeks early this season with a knee injury suffered in spring training, has been on a bit of a tear the past two weeks—and so has Minnesota. The Twins have won 10 of 13 in that span and hammering Harmon has collected 22 hits in 51 at bats, with seven homers and 13 runs batted in.

He had plenty of support as the Twins made it seven straight over the Senators with a 24-hit barrage. Jim Hall had four hits, including two triples, while Earl Battey, Vic Wertz and John Goryl all homered.

Frank Malzone delivered Boston's winning run against the Yanks on an infield hit with two out in the eighth following a walk and Carl Yastrzemski's single. Red Sox relief ace Dick Radatz was the winner for a 7-1 record.

Spahn still on top; hurls a three-hitter

The sun seems to be standing still for Warren Spahn, supposedly in the twilight of his career.

Now 42, the ageless left hander of Milwaukee Braves brought back memories of his early days Friday night when he retired 19 men in order and would up with a three-hitter and the 33rd victory of his career in a 1-0 triumph over Los Angeles Dodgers.

Not since Aug. 21, 1948, when he was a young, strong south-paw gaining his 30th victory had Spahn beaten Dodgers at their home field. In the intervening 15 years, the late-starting Spahn had recorded 298 victories but had been unable to beat Dodgers at Brooklyn or Los Angeles.

His latest effort, a brilliant performance in which he did not allow a hit until Jim Gilliam bounced a single past third base with one out in the seventh, brought his 1963 record to 11-3 and gave him the 58th shut-out of his 9-year big league career.

The victory also kept him heading toward his 13th 20-victory season, while dropping the second-place Dodgers 1 1/2 games back of National League leading St. Louis Cardinals who remained on top by downing Houston Colts 9-2 as Curt Flood drove in four runs with a trio of singles.

Third-place San Francisco Giants got a two-hit pitching job from Juan Marichal and two relievers but needed Chuck Hill-ler's tie-breaking single and homers by Willie Mays and Willie McCovey in the eighth inning to defeat Cincinnati Reds 7-3.

In other games, Chicago Cubs edged Reds for fourth place by leading Philadelphia Phillies 4-3 on Ron Santo's 11th inning homer and Pittsburgh Pirates used Bill Virdon's two-run homer as the key blow in a 3-1 triumph over New York Mets.

Besides Gilliam's single, the only other hits off Spahn were an eighth inning Maury Frank Howard and Maury Wills' single in the ninth. Braves got the game's lone run off Don Drysdale, 9-9, in the first inning on a single by Lee Maye, a walk to Eddie Mathews, Hank Aaron's single and a sacrifice fly by Joe Torre.

Flood produced most of the power for Cardinals while George Altman knocked in two games with a triple and a sacrifice fly and Julian Javier extended his hitting streak to 11 games with a single and double. Five Colt errors and four unearned runs made it easy for them.

Bob Gibson, who brought his record to 7-3 with a six-hitter, Dick Drott, 2-6, took the loss. Vada Pinson got the first hit off Michael, a two-run homer with two out in the sixth. Pinson's eighth inning single—Reds' only other hit—chased Marichal and an error by winning pitcher Billy Hoef enabled Reds to tie at 3-3. Hiller, Maye and McCovey then took over against Al Worthington, 2-2. McCovey had two homers for the night.

Defenceman Fern Flaman Moved off the ice after 19 years into Providence Reds' front office

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP)—Fern Flaman, a standout defenceman in 19 years of professional hockey, has moved off the ice and into the front office as general manager of Providence Reds in the American Hockey League.

Flaman, 36, who announced his intention to retire as an active player last April, will continue as coach of the Reds. He had been player-coach for two seasons, leading the Reds to the A.H.L.'s Eastern Division championship last year. He previously had played with Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League.

"It was tough last year when I was playing and coaching," Flaman told reporters Thursday. "After a rugged game or a heavy practice session, you don't feel too much like talking. You'd rather just sit down and relax. But next year should be different."

Although his intentions are to be strictly a bench coach, Flaman, a native of Dysart, Sask., said he plans to stay in top physical condition in case of an emergency.

Hall of Fame star, Baker dies at 77

TRAPPE, Md. (AP) — John Franklin (Home Run) Baker, a baseball slugger of the "dead ball" era, died Friday at the age of 77.

The Maryland farm boy led the American League in home runs four consecutive years 1911-14 and finished with a 12-year career batting average of .308. He was named to Baseball's Hall of Fame in 1955.
