Claims financial conspiracy in Quebec

Bertrand blasts election polls

MR. LEVESQUE MAKES A POINT...

... AS PARTY MILITANTS CHEER LUSTILY

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand Sunday night blasted three Montreal newspapers and the influence of Power Corp. of Canada Ltd. for election polls placing his Union Nationale party a distant third.

Mr. Bertrand accused the three newspapers—one French-language and two English-language publications—of distorting the election picture "because they are anti-Quebecers."

"There is an evil conspiracy between the English financial circles of Toronto and Montreal to gain control of Quebec by backing the Liberal party," the 53-year-old government leader said in a campaign speech for Wednesday's Quebec general election.

He told a meeting in this community 30 miles north of Montreal that La Presse, The Gazette and The Star published recent polls "to protect their egotistic financial interests."

"The three newspapers published polls saying the Liberals would gain power Wednesday... but it would be interesting to see who ordered these so called polls."

NAMES INNER CIRCLE

Mr. Bertrand said that La Presse is part of Power Corp's financial circle and he named a number of its officers whom he says, are in the election sphere of influence.

—Peter Nesbitt Thomson, deputy chairman and principal shareholder, "who was former treasurer of the provincial Liberal party and now is involved with organizing the party's election fund."

—Claude Frenette, a company vice-president "who is one of Prime Minister Trudeau's advisers and also president of the federal section of the Quebec Liberal Association."

—Paul Martin Jr., son of the former external affairs minister, Paul Martin, who now is Senate leader and an influential Liberal.

—Claude Brunneau, "brother-in-law of Trudeau's cabinet

Highlights busy weekend

Levesque rally draws 4,000

Political campaigning in the Eastern Townships this weekend was highlighted by a mass rally at the Sherbrooke Sports Palace at which Parti Québécois leader Rene Levesque addressed 4,000 of his party's cheering faithful.

It was a typical PQ rally complete with highly-organized cheering squads who turned the applause on and off at the blowing of a whistle by the demonstration chief.

Although the rally was scheduled to get underway at 8:30 p.m., the separatist chief did not arrive until three hours later.

But the crowd was kept in good humor through the showing of movie recordings of Parti Québécois rallies elsewhere and speeches by regional standard-bearers.

And, of course, there was the passing of the hat — or fruit baskets — in which the supporters were asked to make their donations toward campaign costs. And they take appeared reasonably high judging from the number of bills in the baskets.

Greeted by loud and continued applause on his arrival, the separatist chief launched into one of his attacks on the existing parties, which he claimed did nothing to advance the interests of Quebec.

Only by gaining control of its own resources could Quebec hope to progress and remain the home of the French-Canadian people, he said.

Mr. Levesque will address another rally in the St. Charles Auditorium tonight.

Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa also made a whirlwind tour of the district on Saturday, the highlight of his visit being a rally at the Eden Theatre in East Angus in support of the Liberal candidate in Compton, Omer Dionne.

In his brief remarks, Mr. Bourassa

Three boys drown on raft in Coaticook River Saturday afternoon

By RICHARD SPALDING

WATERVILLE — Quebec Provincial Police in Cookshire today called for more volunteers and boating equipment to help trace the bodies of two of the three boys who drowned in the turbulent waters of the Coaticook River Saturday afternoon.

A QPP spokesman last night said the body of 13-year-old Michel Ouimet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Ouimet of 7036 Christophe Colomb, Montreal, was found Sunday afternoon caught in some branches about 1,000 feet below the bridge on Route 5, near Waterville.

Young Ouimet is one of the boys from Val Estrie college in Waterville who drowned after a group of five attempted to sail down the river on a raft.

The other two feared drowned are Raymond Cate, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Cate of Lachine, and 14-year-old Michel Remi, son of Mrs. Lise Masse from Otterburn Park, near Montreal.

The drowning incident started off as an afternoon hike in which a group of about 10 youngsters ventured through the woods opposite the college.

Haitian mutineers seek political asylum in US

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three mutinous Haitian coast guard ships that fired on Port au Prince showed up at the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, Sunday and asked for American asylum.

In reporting this early today, the state department said no decision has yet been made on the asylum plea and that the three vessels will be escorted to Puerto Rico where the case will be considered further.

The three small Haitian ships were to leave Guantanamo shortly after refuelling and are due to arrive at Roosevelt Rhodes naval station, Puerto Rico, Wednesday, the state department said.

The mutiny by the coast guard vessels late last week caused a crisis in Haiti, ruled by strongman President Francois (Papa Doc) Duvalier.

Trudeau denies intervention

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau Sunday described as "unfounded" Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand's accusation that the federal government is intervening in Quebec's general election.

Referring to a newsletter issued by the Quebec section of Canada, Mr. Trudeau said in a statement "these pamphlets are published under the sole responsibility of the federal Liberal party."

"These pamphlets are not previously authorized or censored by the federal government or the prime minister in particular as it should be the case in a truly democratic party."

"So far, the federal government has not intervened in Quebec's general election campaign." And it had no intention of doing so, "in spite of provocation from certain provincial politicians."

chief."

—Jean Simard, cousin of Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa. "With such a stacked deck, is there any wonder that La Presse publishes a poll favoring the Liberals?"

GRIT SUPPORTER

Mr. Bertrand dismissed the poll in The Star with the remark that the paper is owned by J. G. McConnell. "It isn't necessary for me to point out the constant support this paper has given to the Liberal party."

He said The Gazette, bought last year by Southam Press Ltd., now is part of an English chain of newspapers with headquarters in Toronto.

"It is common knowledge that Southam Press has always fully supported the Liberals at both the federal and provincial levels.

"Now, that it has a foothold in Quebec, Southam Press will continue its policies with even greater vigour."

Mr. Bertrand said the world of high finances will find out on election night that "Quebecers are not a herd of sheep that can be guided or manipulated by these polls."

"It is true that the Union Nationale does not have the support of English newspapers in Toronto and Montreal, nor does it have the blessing of the Power Corp. organization.

"But we do not want that kind of support, and we shun it with repugnance and tenaciousness.

"As premier of this province, I offer a purely Quebec government... which will vigorously oppose this shameful plot against Quebecers."

In Trois-Rivieres Saturday night, Mr. Bertrand said the federal government's claim that it spends more in Quebec than the province pays is not true.

C of C head charges neglect

SHERBROOKE — Claude C. the local businessman said: Genest, president of the Province of Quebec Chamber of Commerce, charged Thursday that too many of us are not doing our job in uniting talents, time and certain sums to promote the economic, civic and social well-being of our community. Speaking before a general meeting of the Sherbrooke C. of Commerce are not limited by any restrictions inherent in its nature; on the contrary, the Chamber can work in any areas affecting the public good." In our community, Mr. Genest said, what we need the most is an action group.

Georges Vaillancourt

Liberal Party Candidate in Stanstead County wants to make his position clear on several points:

ON THE SUBJECT OF ROADS:

The National Union says Stanstead County didn't get better roads over the past 4 years because this county didn't have Georges Vaillancourt says, "Isn't it a shame a party would use such low type bribery to collect votes?"

THE SOCREDS want to cut back on spending, and one sure way to do this is to stop spending on such luxuries as roads, would this be their solution?

Georges Vaillancourt continually states, "As long as there's Quebec money being spent for roads, Stanstead County will get its share, and I'll fight to the bitter end to maintain this principle!" He adds, "I've proved that I can get roads built in Stanstead County, as seen between 1960 and 1966, when the Liberals spent $17,000,000 over 6 years in Stanstead County on roads."

ABOUT ENGLISH-FRENCH DIALOGUE:

"My record speaks for itself, I've always used my electorate fairly and equal, I won't favor one language group over another, to be sure, and as in the past, I'll make sure the English minority in Stanstead County get fair treatment and be given their deserved and earned rights. I know of some politicians who won't do this, and I warn, don't let these men represent you - guarantee your future, vote Liberal!"

Georges Vaillancourt

Liberal Party Candidate in Stanstead County

AS FOR CANADIAN-QUEBEC UNITY and EDUCATION:

Georges Vaillancourt says he and his party want to stay within Confederation at any cost, and will fight for this principle.

On the subject of education, Georges Vaillancourt says bills 62 and 63 should be abolished, and the old English-French separate systems restored. He'll see that English speaking, like the Liberal Party intends, shall be fairly treated.

walked along a bushy path leading to a section of the river where a raft had been left behind from the previous year's activities.

Although Brother Dupuis had warned the boys against using the raft, a group managed to pull it off the shore and into the river.

Five youngsters got the raft as it started floating down the Coaticook River.

About one minute after the raft had hit the water, it broke up completely in the middle of the river.

Two of the boys, Pierre Tossel and Julien Audy, were able to save themselves from drowning.

At about 3 p.m. Saturday, some 100 people had gathered around the bridge on Route 5 in an attempt to catch the bodies of the missing boys.

At first, police disqualified the theory that the three might have drowned, but testimony collected from the two survivors led them to believe they had perished.

Aided by Sherbrooke firemen and a number of volunteers, Cookshire QPP searched the banks of the river between the scene of the breakup and the bridge, situated about two miles downstream.

It wasn't until about 3 p.m. Sunday that searchers found the body of Michel Oumet caught in branches below the waterfalls of the bridge.

Val Estrie college is a private boarding school for 90 boys, and dispenses education at the primary and secondary level up to Grade 9.

Anyone who would like to take part in the search is asked to report today to the Cookshire QPP at the bridge on Route 5.

Creds bring new new style to stump

LENNOXVILLE — Audio-visual instruction techniques, so long popular in the education world, were brought into the political arena Saturday night as Jean Loslier, Creditiste candidate for Stanstead County, gave a group of Lennoxville electors a lesson in Creditiste philosophy.

Using a projector and a pointer during his dissertation, Mr. Loslier ran through a series of press clippings, memoranda, pictures and stock shares as he attempted to convince the disappointing turnout of less than 50 persons that the Creditistes are going to make the Quebec government a viable economic concern.

He pointed out such things as the fact that about 40 per cent of Quebec families subsist on an income of less than $4,000 a year and that the debt of the City of Magog has tripled during recent years.

He took a few swipes at the established parties for their connections with high finance, saying that these parties are elected by the big financial interests and are then in turn controlled like puppets.

He flashed a picture of Rene Levesque on the wall and described him as a dangerous man who will ruin the province if he is allowed to carry out his separatist schemes.

He also called Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal a separatist as well as Liberal MNA Yves Michaud who bolted

Brome candidate attacks Montreal press for "scare campaign" during election

BEDFORD — Peter White, Union Nationale candidate for Brome County in Wednesday's Quebec election Friday launched a sharp attack on the Montreal English-language press for what he called their "scare campaign" during the current election battle.

Addressing a gathering of about 100 Union Nationale supporters in the town hall of this community 55 miles southwest of Sherbrooke, The Record President denounced the Montreal newspapers for their campaign on "lies and distortion about the government and the Union Nationale Party."

Speaking on behalf of Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand, who is contesting the riding which he first won in 1948, Mr. White said the publishers and owners of these newspapers and radio stations will have to bear a heavy burden of responsibility for their action once the government is returned to power.

"To listen to the English press one would believe that Mr. Bertrand is a separatist," he said. "One would believe that the only difference between him and the Parti Quebecois leaders is that the Premier would wait four years before separating."

This, however, is not the case, he said.

"Mr. Bertrand recognizes the need to define constitutional responsibilities in terms of provincial jurisdictions."

"Mr. Trudeau has put the question of constitutional reform far down on his list of priorities, but Mr. Bertrand is an impatient man and we must admire the moderate way he has approached constitutional discussions with the federal government."

He predicted that it is unlikely that Quebec will separate from the rest of Canada no matter what happens by 1974, the deadline Mr. Bertrand has set for constitutional reform acceptable to Quebec.

Mr. White said Quebecers by and large are good Canadians and that to break up Confederation would be "the stupidest thing that could happen."

He said he thinks Mr. Trudeau himself will see the light by 1974 and the federal government will enter into serious negotiations with the provinces to create jobs, improve the nation's economy and to raise the level of government to what it is supposed to be.

He also added that there is absolutely no question of forming a coalition with the Parti Quebecois whom he called "a gang of separatists who want to break up our country."

He said the PQ's support lies mainly with voters between the ages of 18 and 25 who "have nothing to lose in the election and are ready to go after a will-o-the-wisp."

He predicted the separatists will get no more than two or three seats once the votes are counted and that their supporters will change their ideas "once they get into the real world."

"The English press," he said, "should wake up and realize these facts rather than scaring ourselves out of our wits."

Also addressing the meeting was Yvon Hamel, UN candidate for Rouville, who said the newspaper polls published during the current campaign are not to be taken seriously.

"The reporters can do what they want," he said, "but we're going to win the election."

PETER WHITE ADDRESSES MEETING

Double challenge facing Quebec — Dr. Goldbloom

EAST ANGLUS — A double challenge faces Quebec voters today — to make Quebec work and to make Canada work, Dr. Victor Goldbloom, Liberal MNA for D'Arcy McGee riding of Montreal in the last Assembly, told a Liberal party rally Saturday night.

To make Quebec work, he told the English-speaking gathering, both economic and political stability must be re-established and to make Canada work every Canadian, whether his language be English or French, must feel that this country for him is a land of understanding, a land of brotherhood and a land of opportunity.

Economic and political stability can be achieved only by a competent Liberal government composed of informed and responsible people, continued Dr. Goldbloom.

Creating new jobs, he said, will not necessarily make separatism disappear but will go a long way toward making it unnecessary.

He declared that Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa in his debates with Rene Levesque had drawn significant numbers of students away from the Parti Quebecois.

Its failure to reach youth was one of the major reasons for the striking decline of the Union Nationale, he added.

To halt the movement of young people from the rural areas to the cities, to Ontario and the United States, it is necessary for Quebec to create secondary industries to process raw materials and provide skilled jobs for the people.

The Liberal emphasis on the creation of 100,000 new jobs is deliberate, Dr. Goldbloom declared, because only through the creation of these jobs can the money be obtained to finance the programs public interest requires — education, pollution control, health, welfare and roads.

Thus, economic stability and the creation of new jobs are the key to everything this province wishes to accomplish.

"At the same time," he said,

"since we believe the federal system has been of great benefit to this province, we must do our part to make Canada work."

"Any Quebec government must express a Quebec point of view; this point of view may often differ from that of Ontario, British Columbia or Newfoundland, but this does not mean that we should endanger, or threaten to endanger, the unity of our country."

SHERBROOKE — A milestone in Quebec labor history was commemorated last Friday when the local branch of the CNTU announced the publication of a history of the 1968 East Anglus and Windsor pulp and paper strike.

The strike, lasting from July 18, 1968 to Jan. 22, 1969, involved 1,200 workers, both salaried and hourly, at two Domtar pulp and paper plants.

Pierre Vadeboncoeur, a labor lawyer and author of the first two chapters of the collaborative work, said that the book was written at the request of the unions to capture and hold the spirit that enabled the workers to hold out for six long months.

Two things must be considered by the electors of any county when they go to the polls to elect their representative to either the Parliament of Canada or the National Assembly of the Province — the quality of the program presented by each party and the calibre of each individual seeking their endorsement.

In the first respect the electors of Missisquoi are no different from those in the 107 other constituencies of Quebec. They have before them the policies and programs of the parties and the record of achievement of the Government seeking a renewal of its mandate.

But in the second respect they hold a unique position — they have been represented for the past several years by a man who now holds the position of Prime Minister of the Province, the most important elective office in this province.

In view of the important advantages accruing to the man who holds this office, it would be logic and common sense for the Missisquoi voters to return Hon. Jean-Jacques Bertrand to Quebec.

But Mr. Bertrand also has many other important qualifications that should assure him the confidence of the voters of his riding.

His personal honesty and integrity are beyond question. He is a strong supporter of the principle that Quebec must remain within confederation although demanding that certain obvious changes must be made in the constitution. Despite many difficulties within his own party, largely created by the untimely death of Daniel Johnson, he has been able to guide his administration along a progressive course. He has done much for his county without sacrificing the interests of the rest of the province.

Thus, in their own interests and for the welfare of the province at large the people of Missisquoi should return Hon. Jean-Jacques Bertrand on Wednesday with an impressive majority.

Atrocity, an old enemy

As if we had not already been given abundant proof that the war in Southeast Asia — it is no longer the Vietnam war — is not a simple matter of the good guys versus the bad guys, now come reports of something approaching genocide being committed by Cambodians against Vietnamese living in Cambodia.

Hundreds of bodies of Vietnamese have been found floating in the picturesque Mekong River. They were "caught in the cross-fire" between Cambodian troops and the invading Viet Cong or North Vietnamese, explains Cambodia — though what they were doing in a crossfire with their hands tied behind their backs remains unexplained.

This is nothing new under the Southeast Asia sun. Cambodians have been killing Cambodians for centuries, long before Communism appeared as an ideology.

Seven centuries ago Khmer kings of Cambodia collected tribute from much of what is now Vietnam, Laos and Thailand, but almost continuous warfare with their neighbors led to the Khmer empire's downfall.

In 1177, during a 30-year war with the Chams, or Vietnamese, the Khmer capital of Angkor was captured. Thai armies again looted the city in 1431, forcing Khmers to abandon the city and move their capital to Phnom Penh.

Over the ensuing centuries, Laotians and Vietnamese further reduced Cambodian territory until Cambodia appealed to Napoleon III to save it from Vietnamese domination. Cambodia became a French protectorate in 1863.

The new anti-Communist government of Cambodia has now asked the United States for weapons to defend itself. The temptation to seize this opportunity to further "Free World" interests in Southeast Asia will probably be too great for Washington to resist.

Meanwhile, in Saigon, capital of the U.S. ally, South Vietnam, anti-Cambodian riots are being put down.

"President Nixon, Sir — and I DON'T think it's to wish you happy second anniversary!"

WASHINGTON — There's this fellow at the National Press Club bar and he's always briefing me on what is going on in Southeast Asia.

"Did you hear that President Nixon is going to pull 150,000 more Americans out of Vietnam?"

"That's good," I said. "Well it's not exactly good," the fellow replied, "because he didn't indicate when he was going to do it. He did say it would be within the next year."

"That's not bad."

"It could be bad for the Democrats."

"How's that?"

"He might pull out 50 soldiers now and 149,950 just before the elections in November."

"I see," I said. "No you don't. Although the President said he would pull out the 150,000 troops within the next year, he also said he would be influenced by what happened in Cambodia and Laos."

"That's good," I said. "It could be bad. If the war spreads into Cambodia and Laos, we might be obligated to stay out there."

"I should hope so. Hey, why are the Cambodians killing the Vietnamese civilians?"

"Because they hate them."

"But doesn't that make it very embarrassing for us, since Cambodia is asking for U.S. military aid?"

"It doesn't help."

"I would think if we gave Cambodia military aid and they used it to kill Vietnamese civilians, the South Vietnamese wouldn't be too happy about it."

"They aren't dancing in the streets of Saigon. But killing civilians is the price you have to pay for freedom in Southeast Asia."

"What can the Americans do to stop the Cambodians from killing the civilians?"

"The best thing we can do is bomb the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos."

"I was going to ask you about Laos. What the hell are we doing there?"

"We weren't doing anything until Sen. Symington's committee shot off their big mouths. Our story now is we're preventing the Viet Cong from using Laos to get the upper hand in Cambodia."

"That's good."

"The only trouble is that the Royal Laotian Army is not very well trained at the moment and so we have to use Meo tribesmen as mercenaries."

"That's interesting. If the Meo tribesmen fight for Laos, won't the other Laotian be miffed?"

"Not if it helps South Vietnam."

"I almost forgot about South Vietnam."

"You see, things are much brighter now that the South Vietnamese can knock out the Communists' staging areas in Cambodia, which until recently were off limits to them."

"That's good."

"It's good only if Pnom Penh doesn't fall."

"Pnom Penh?"

"That's the capital of Cambodia."

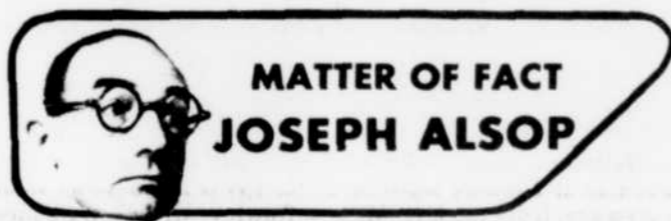

"What's to prevent Pnom Penh from falling?"

The man seemed disgusted with my ignorance. "Two Royal Army battalions from Thailand, stupid."

KIEN TUONG PROVINCE — Long Khot is a tiny district headquarters in this remote and rather empty province of the Upper Delta. Essentially, the place consists of two small, mutually supporting mud forts. Here you can all but throw a stone across the Cambodian border.

Last Dec. 3, the two forts were occupied by two little Regional Force companies, with a combined strength of less than 200 men, plus the South Vietnamese district chief, his U.S. adviser and enough Popular Force platoons to make up another 100 men in all. No wonder, therefore, that the place seemed a tempting target to the colonel commanding the North Vietnamese 88th Regiment.

The colonel had orders to lead his powerful unit across the Cambodian border, through Kien Tuong and into the richer heart of the Southern Delta. As guides, the colonel had the locally expert men of the 504th Viet Cong Battalion. He evidently decided that Long Khot could be easily overrun by two more of his own heavy battalions, plus his sappers and his heavy weapons company. This gave him in all over a thousand men, against hardly more than a quarter that number under Long Khot's district chief.

Patrol contact was made by the men of the Regional Force companies just before midnight; and the tiny forts at Long Khot were therefore on full alert when a heavy North Vietnamese artillery barrage opened at 3 in the morning. The district chief promptly called in artillery and night-air support.

An hour later, in the first assault-wave, North Vietnamese sappers seized the machine-gun post at the corner of one of the little mud forts. The RF company commander led a counterattack and sealed the breach in the perimeter after 10 minutes of bloody hand-to-hand fighting.

In a perfect inferno of fire, the North Vietnamese attempted two more assault-waves. The VC battalion evidently decided that retreat was only prudent, since none but North Vietnamese bodies were later found upon the wire. And when dawn came, the small force of Territorials at Long Khot had sent the better part of a North Vietnamese regiment reeling back across the Cambodian border, with losses so heavy that no further border-crossing was attempted until February.

DOUGLAS FISHER

Plan to protect our sovereignty

No previous speech by Mr. Trudeau has made such a favorable impression as his address last week to the Canadian Press.

The steps to be taken in the Arctic and the reasoning which support them combined nicely a modest nationalism and cogent reasons why we are asserting ourselves even though U.S. disagreement was expected, happened, and will be answered with steadfast persistence.

The past week has been witness to a great deal about the old U.S.-Canada dilemma. This issue is as old as the American revolution. It was the key to both the testaments of faith and the doom-saying which have dramatized the CRTC hearings last week and Monday.

In the popular area of sports we have the irony, and for some the fret, of a country watching intently what's doing in Boston and Chicago. An experienced sportswriter like Jim Coleman predicts a minor hockey future for all Canadian cities.

We hear that minuscule forces are to establish a northern base at Yellowknife as the next step of a presence in the Arctic, not because of a Russian menace but because of the swing of American interests into the North.

The Canada Council was clobbered by Irving Layton and others for a panel which judged Canadian poetry. It included an American who teaches at UBC.

The Ontario Waffle group presented the Ontario NDP with a policy statement which spends more time on what is wrong with U.S. involvement in Canada than what is wrong with the Robarts Government.

Dennis Braithwaite, Toronto Telegram columnist, considers emigrating to the States if Peter Newman is right in his prediction that the 70s are to be the testing years for Canadian concern over American domination.

A group of Canadian railway workers makes motions to free themselves from what they allege is domination by U.S. union officers.

All this would be more exciting if comparable flushes of anti-American feeling or plain worry about Yankee encroachment had not gone before. It's something we're never free from.

It would be mean to suggest that the Prime Minister was taking advantage of it to build up his fortunes after a period in which they've been slipping. Give him credit. He could have been much more chauvinistic in his Arctic statement and the Government as a whole could have reacted more brusquely than it has to U.S. State Department notes. The majority of us would have approved.

It is likely, however, that the more important portent of a major plan to do something about our continuing U.S. problem was in a speech made by Herb Gray in Toronto a week ago. He's the minister charged with bringing in a plan to ensure our sovereignty and growth while containing foreign (i.e. U.S.) ownership of Canada. Mr. Gray has many virtues, but breavity in speeches is not one of them. His speech ran to 28 pages. He chose to give it to a minor audience. In other words, he was not looking for wide coverage.

He does not give details away about the nature of the forthcoming plan, but knowing his thoroughness and respect for detail one can be backed up by this conclusion: "... Policies can be worked out to ensure that we remain a sovereign state and at the same time fulfill the economic requirements of our people."

This is not so bland or innocuous as it seems. Remember what Mr. Pearson as prime minister told us: That we couldn't have the kind of autonomous economic control many clamored for without a 25 per cent cutback in our standard of living.

Mr. Gray stated that the new policy will be effective without forcing us into any such retrenchment. He outlined the many steps both the Federal and provincial governments have taken over the years to meet the American problem. Now, he says, the consensus has emerged that "This essentially reactive and ad hoc approach is no longer adequate." We must have "something broader and more systematic."

Mr. Gray identifies two concerns of recent months: That along with the benefits there are adverse implications for Canada in non-resident ownership of enterprises; and that the pace of penetration of the multi-national corporations is worrisome because of the immense leverage these awesome power concentrations have in dealing with governments of small countries.

These giants can play off country against country, province against province and province against the Federal Government. They can buy out competition, bury development prospects for years and administer prices in areas of the world in ways which national law cannot attack.

International co-operation of governments may in time master such problems but Canada cannot wait for this. It must act on its own and in concert with the provinces.

It is clear from the Gray speech that a major part of the new policy will try "to ensure that the necessary investment funds can be generated domestically." Another hint is a likely enunciation of "merger guidelines" in order to keep U.S. firms from buying out Canadian firms, a cannibalism which U.S. law restrains them from at home. His argument indicates he is planning measures to make sure we do not go cap in hand in the future to Washington in order to get an easing of U.S. laws that direct the behavior of U.S. companies abroad.

To repeat, Mr. Gray was discursive although implicit in his words for a very thorough policy development, something which is likely to be almost as controversial as the White Paper on taxation.

Yet, if it is clear and reasonable, it is likely to get a much more enthusiastic approval from the country. It seems we have about six or eight weeks to wait before we know the details.

Young farmers association being formed

A province-wide association of Quebec's Young Farmers' clubs is now well on the way to being formed.

The main aims of the association, which will unite the ten present regional federations of the clubs, are as follows: to give the Young Farmers provincial status; to coordinate and harmonize programmes aimed at practical an all-round individual development; to supply the movement with information; to keep in touch with similar associations, and promote the movement's progress and expansion through adequate financing.

These aims were announced during a meeting of a provisional committee of the proposed association. The committee had been set up a month earlier to study the procedures necessary to create such a body and request the funds to establish it.

In the ordinary course of events, the association should have its charter within a few months.

Several steps have already been successfully taken towards the province-wide grouping, and the department of Agriculture and Colonization, which has sponsored the Young Farmers for 40 years, is now endeavouring to redefine its attitude and position in view of the movement's progress.

To begin with, a special committee was set up consisting of two of the agricultural department's regional coordinators — Mr. Leonel Bombardier and Mr. Gaetan Lussier — and a young people's counsellor also from the department, Mr. J.E. Audet.

In January, the committee's report on the movement's situation was submitted with the conclusion that a reorganization was necessary.

In their report, the members of the committee also recognized the need for a type of self-governing association in rural areas, which, by a method of "learning through working", would allow young persons between 10 and 35 years of age to acquire a necessary addition to their academic, general and vocational education to initiate them into their role as future members of a democratic society, promote development of genuine local leadership, and occupy their leisure time profitably.

The committee also admitted the need for the agricultural department to synchronize its effort with that of the government's High Commissionership for youth, leisure-time activities and sports, and of the "Confederation des Loisirs du Quebec".

Entrusted with the coordination of the government's activities on behalf of young people, the "C.L.Q." would in effect be in a position to provide the Young Farmers with new facilities for action in the fields of promotion, communication, leadership training, and also with a number of other services.

The committee's report is now the subject of wide-scale consultation among the Young Farmers within the ten existing regional federations.

These consultations are arousing great interest and proving to be very encouraging. At their conclusion, it is to be expected that the provincial association will be founded and will eventually be affiliated with the C.L.Q., if its members so wish.

There are now some 7,000 Young Farmers operating in the 200 clubs of the 10 regional federations in Quebec.

Hatley family feted by friends at farewell party

HATLEY — A tea was held in the Vestry of the United Church recently for Miss Ida Perkins and Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Perkins, who are leaving soon to reside in Burlington, Ont.

Mrs. Dale Miller and Mrs. Ben Cunningham were in charge of the program. A sing song was enjoyed after which Mrs. Cyril Drew, president of the U.C.W., presented Miss Ida Perkins with a Life Membership Pin in appreciation of her devotion to the Church and her help in many ways to the U.C.W.

Mrs. Homer Cote read a poem, expressing the feelings of the Community at the loss of this family. Mrs. Charles Whitcomb presented the family with a purse of money from the Community.

The Board of Trustees of the United Church gave Miss Perkins a picture of the Church, in gratitude of her work as secretary-treasurer of the Board for many years. Miss Perkins, on behalf of the family, expressed thanks for the gifts and good wishes.

Tea was served and a pleasant time was spent in visiting.

Vermont spring festivals slated

MONTPELIER

Reluctantly, but at last, spring has come to Vermont. In May, the fragrance of apple blossoms fills the air and Vermonters join in nature's greeting of the new season with music, drama, art festivals and warm-weather sports.

For the enjoyment of residents and their visitors, the Vermont Development Department has listed more than 50 May-time activities in the spring, 1970, Vermont Calendar of Events.

Theater goers will have a good choice the first week in May. "The Long Christmas Dinner" and "The American Dream" are to be staged at Marlboro College, in southern Vermont, on May 1, and at Goddard College, in Plainfield, the following day.

The musical, "Knickerbocker's Holiday", will be presented at the Fine Arts Center in Castleton on May 6 through 9.

A new adaptation of "Alice in Wonderland" will play at the Wright Theater in Middlebury, May 7 through 9.

In Burlington, that same weekend starts a three-day Music Festival. The Vermont

Symphony Orchestra will be heard in Johnson on May 9 and at Lyndonville on May 10.

On the sports scene, St. Michael's College will confront Middlebury College in baseball on May 11, and in tennis on May 13, in Middlebury. Vermont Technical College will challenge Champlain College on the golf course in Burlington on May 14.

Barre attracts visitors on May 16 with the Vermont 4-H Show in the City Auditorium and a Spring Flower Show at All Souls Church.

Norwich University takes on Plymouth College in Lacrosse on May 18 at Northfield. Baseball fans can watch the University of Vermont against New Hampshire University at Burlington on May 18 and 19.

Memorial Day weekend will be fun-filled in Warren where the Regional Soaring Championships are to be held at Sugarbush Airport. A sidewalk art show will grace the grounds of Sugarbush Village and an 18-hole golf tournament for men and women will be played at Sugarbush Golf Course.

These and many more exciting events are contained in the spring, 1970.

Bruins slam door on Chicago

BOSTON (CP) — Boston Bruins reached the Stanley Cup final for the first time in 12 years Sunday, battling Chicago all the way for a 5-4 victory and a four game sweep of their best-of-seven National Hockey League East Division final series.

They now await the winner of the West. St. Louis Blues and Pittsburgh Penguins are currently deadlocked at two games each.

As Eddie Westfall put it: "Now we've opened the door, we've got to get through it. We're going to meet the best in the other division. We certainly are the best in ours."

The Bruins last won the Stanley Cup in 1941.

While out-shooting the Black Hawks 54 to 24 Sunday, Chicago was a far different club than the one that was easily handled by the Bruins in the first three games.

EXCHANGE LEAD
Boston opened a 2-0 lead after the first period, but Chicago rebounded into a 3-2 second period lead before the Bruin defences tightened again. The teams were tied 3-3 going into the final 20 minutes of regulation time.

The Black Hawks shot into the lead again early in the third period before the complexion of the game changed in Boston's favor.

The end came with less than two minutes remaining when Johnny McKenzie, the scrappy Bruin right winger, pounced on a pass in front of the Chicago goal and rifled it by a screened Tony Esposito.

"I never saw it go in. I just shot it," said McKenzie who was mobbed by his team-mates and was engulfed in the thunderous accolades of 14,835 partisan Boston fans.

Don Marcotte, Johnny Bucyk, Fred Stanfield and Ken Hodge were the other Boston marksmen. Dennis Hull tallied twice for the Black Hawks. Rookie defenceman Keith Magnuson, with his first NHL goal, and Bryan Campbell also scored for Chicago.

"You have to give them credit," said Boston coach Harry Sinden. "They lobbed a lot of shots at us."

"I told them (The Bruins) not to worry about scoring—if you don't score on a power play, a lot of times you'll fold. I didn't want this working against us."

DISPUTES GOAL
There were two power-play goals. The first by Bucyk, came late in the first period while Gene Ubriaco was off for tripping Hodge. Tony Esposito in the Chicago net threw down his glove and stick and tore off his mask to protest that the puck hadn't crossed the line.

Then in the third period, Westfall hooked Bobby Hull on a breakaway and while he was off, Campbell cracked in his first playoff goal on a play with Magnuson and Dennis Hull.

Of McKenzie's goal, Stanfield—who picked up an assist—said: "I knew he'd put it in. I couldn't shoot myself, it would have taken too much time to come around. I saw Johnny going in and knew we had it. I knew if we tied it up we'd win it."

Bucyk said: "I've waited a long time—it seems forever. I hope this is our year."

Bobby Orr was the sobering influence for the Bruins. In the second period alone, the all-star defenceman and scoring champion spent nearly 13 minutes on the ice.

"I didn't realize Orr was on the ice so much," Sinden said. "He handles the puck so much that you get used to seeing him with it."

"We didn't skate in the first part of the second period. It took eight minutes for us to get skating again. It happened early enough in the game that we were able to recover. If it had happened in the third period, we would have been in trouble."

HULL, MIKITA STOPPED
Sinden summed up:

"Two things we had to do in this series—stop Bobby Hull and stop Stan Mikita. And we did it."

Westfall had the job of checking Hull and held the Golden Jet scoreless in the series. "It's not a nice job," he said. "But it is a necessary evil. With a line like ours (Derek Sanderson, Wayne Carleton and Westfall), I hope they'll have to worry about what we'll do from now on. I hope we can participate in the offence a little now."

The Hawks and the Bruins played it close coming into this series. The Hawks got here by virtue of a four-game sweep over Detroit Red Wings and the Bruins came in with a six-game series over New York Rangers.

Boston defeated Chicago 6-3, 4-1, and 5-2 coming into the final game Sunday.

The only major penalty of the series came in the second period Sunday when Chicago winger Cliff Koroll tangled with Rick Smith, who went out with eight stitches to his mouth.

Less than a minute later, Bobby Hull got caught holding Phil Esposito and for two minutes the Hawks were short two players.

BRUINS STALLED
Chicago killed both penalties. The wild, sweeping action reached a climax in the third period.

Campbell put Chicago up 4-3 after four minutes on a power-play goal with Westfall off.

Then Phil Esposito fed a pass to Hodge who tucked it under a falling Tony Esposito to tie it up past the 13-minute mark.

The winner came five minutes later. Bucyk took the puck away from Doug Mohs behind the Chicago goal. It went loose and Mikita picked it up. Suddenly it was on Stanfield's stick. He fed MacKenzie.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Amon ends long drought

SILVERSTONE, England (AP) — Chris Amon of New Zealand ended seven frustrating years Sunday by capturing his first Formula One auto race, the Daily Express International for Grand Prix cars.

Driving a works-entered March car, he won the first leg of the two-part race and finished second to world champion Jackie Stewart of Scotland on the second test, winning the trophy on aggregate time.

Amon took the checkered flag only three seconds behind Stewart after winning the first race by nine seconds.

Although the race does not count towards the world championship, most of the leading Grand Prix teams took part to test their cars before next month's Monaco classic.

Amon's winning time in the first part of the race was 36 minutes, 7.7 seconds, or 126.39 miles per hour. Stewart won in 37:22.6 or 122.17 m.p.h. in the second. Both parts were over 26 laps for a total distance of 152 miles.

COURAGE WAS THIRD

Stewart was second over-all and Piers Courage of Britain in an Italian de Tomaso was third after finishing third in both races.

Amon, the favored in the race after winning the pole position with the fastest qualifying time, had flown here from Italy after placing fourth Saturday in the world sports car race at Monza.

Before Amon's victory, David Walker of Australia won the international Formula Three race in a Lotus, beating Ian Ashley of Britain in another Lotus.

In a special touring car race, Frank Gardner of Australia won in a Ford Mustang with Brian Muir of Australia second in a Camaro.

Athletic unions to meet

OTTAWA (CP) — Sports and national athletic associations are to be invited into the national administration centre for sports and recreation, Health Minister John Munro announced Saturday.

The 26 selected sports run the gamut from aquatics to wrestling.

Groups invited were: Canadian Amateur Sports Federation, Canadian Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, Canadian Federation of Provincial School Athletic Associations, Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union, Canadian Olympic Association and the Parks and Recreation Association of Canada.

Mr. Munro said these organizations will be eligible to receive federal assistance in the form of office space, secretarial help, office supplies and furnishings and common information services. There would also be full travel costs to annual and executive meetings and to national championships.

The organization also would receive 75 per cent of travel costs to selected world competitions and up to $12,000 annually to employ an executive director.

The minister said such aid depends on the decision of the organizations to locate their operations in the Ottawa administrative centre.

The sports and organizations were chosen on the basis of government and private studies into the need for a stronger administrative base for amateur sports in Canada.

More than 20 other sports were named as eligible for limited federal support.

Possible Olympic entry

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada could possibly compete in the 1972 Winter Olympic hockey tournament in Sapporo, Japan, the chief-de-mission for Canada at the next Winter Olympic games said Saturday.

Frank Shaughnessy told the annual meeting of the Canadian Olympic Association "there is a slight possibility that pressure can be brought... to accept a Canadian entry."

Shaughnessy said the possible pressure could come from the International Olympic Committee and the organizing committee at Sapporo to influence the International Ice Hockey Federation.

He said, however, it is not certain whether hockey will be part of the Sapporo Winter Olympics. A decision would be made at an IOC meeting in Amsterdam May 12.

Shaughnessy added that while the COA approved the decision to withdraw from the 1970 world championship, "we cannot continue to support any decision that will deny Canadian boys the privilege of representing their country at Olympic games."

Penguins nip St. Louis 2-1

PITTSBURGH (CP) — Pittsburgh Penguins again outchecked and outshot St. Louis Sunday night for a 2-1 win over the Blues and a tie in their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final playoff at two games each.

The two teams now move back to St. Louis for the fifth game Tuesday night with the sixth game back here Thursday. A seventh game, if necessary, will be in St. Louis next Sunday afternoon.

Rookie Michel Briere and defenceman Duane Rupp were the Pittsburgh marksmen before 12,962 fans—second consecutive record crowd. Andre Boudrias' second period goal gave the Blues a short-lived 1-1 tie.

The Blues, outshot 51 to 24 Sunday night, were beaten 3-2 in the third game of the series last Thursday night when the crowd here was 12,923.

Only the outstanding goaltending of Ernie Wakely of St. Louis kept the Penguins from piling up a higher score as the Pittsburgh forwards broke in alone time after time.

Al Smith handled the Pittsburgh goaltending chores in place of Les Binkley who is out for the rest of the series after suffering torn knee ligaments in last Thursday's game.

The Blues were without centre Frank St. Marseille who suffered a cut over his right eye in the Thursday encounter.

TRADE RUSHES
After an early rush by the Penguins, during which Wakely had to stop a couple of dangerous shots, the teams traded end-to-end rushes and both goalies had to come up with big saves.

Rupp started the scoring when he picked up a loose puck inside the St. Louis blue line and fired a backhand shot to beat Wakely.

Pittsburgh kept up the pressure and about five minutes later Wakely had to make a big save on a goal-mouth scramble, just after facing a Penguins breakaway.

The Blues' goalie was tested several more times when the Penguins had the power play. Pittsburgh then took an interference penalty, but the Blues' power, held up by the fierce Penguins' checking, managed only one dangerous shot at Smith. After killing off the penalty, the Penguins carried the play into the Blues' zone and went to the dressing room with a 1-0 lead.

The Blues had another power-play advantage early in the second period but again the outstanding checking of the Penguins kept St. Louis chasing the puck into its own end for most of the two minutes.

A couple minutes later, a fine rush by Boudrias carried the puck into the Penguins' zone. A scramble in front of the net followed and the puck came back to Boudrias, who snapped a quick shot past Smith to tie it for St. Louis.

BRIERE REPLIES
Briere wasted little time putting the Penguins back in front as he carried the puck in on the right wing around a Blues defenceman for a close shot that beat Wakely cleanly.

The Penguins had a few more chances at Wakely during a tripping penalty to the Blues, but failed to capitalize. The Blues then tried to open up but the Penguins gave them few chances and Smith stopped their few threats. Wakely, meanwhile, was kept busy as the Penguins came at him even while they were killing off another later penalty.

Both teams stuck to an open style of hockey in the third period with end-to-end rushes that put pressure on both goalies. About seven minutes into the period, Briere broke through the Blues' defence, but his stick was lifted and he failed to get a good shot at Wakely. The Pittsburgh forwards kept backchecking and came up with the puck for one rush after another into the St. Louis zone.

With less than seven minutes left in the game, both teams took minor penalties but Jim Roberts of the Blues got a misconduct for arguing with referee Lloyd Gilmour.

The Penguins continued to apply pressure and Wakely kicked out shot after shot as the Pittsburgh forwards broke in on the wing.

With less than a minute left, Wakely came out of the nets in favor of an extra attacker. But the Blues failed to get a good shot at Smith while the Penguins also missed a couple of opportunities at the open St. Louis net.

Expos split with Giants

The butterfly in Phil Niekro's knuckleball is back in business after taking an exasperating two-week vacation. Niekro's knuckler, normally one of the most puzzling pitches National League batters must face, was no mystery until Sunday when the Atlanta ace mowed down Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0 on a two-bitter. In his first four starts, Niekro and his flutterless flutterball had been racked for 30 hits, 11 home runs, a 7.78 earned run average and four straight losses. But Sunday, he pitched hitless ball for 6-2-3 innings and completely baffled the powerful Pirates. Elsewhere Sunday, New York Mets topped Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1, St. Louis Cardinals dropped Cincinnati Reds 4-1, Chicago Cubs whipped Houston Astros 6-3, Philadelphia Phillies edged San Diego Padres 3-2 and San Francisco Giants split a doubleheader with Montreal Expos, winning 11-1 before losing

The Giants destroyed the Expos with homers in the first game of their doubleheader, getting grand slams from Willie McCovey and Dick Dietz and bases-empty shots by McCovey and Bobby Bonds. Mike McCormick rode the outburst to a three-hit victory. Rookie Carl Morton earned his first major league victory for the Expos in the nightcap, with a double and triple by Mack Jones keying the Expo offense. Jones tripled and scored on Rusty Staub's single in the first and doubled home what turned out to be Montreal's winning run in fifth. Ken Henderson had a two-run homer for the Giants. Pinch hitter Rick Joseph tripled home the tying run in the eighth inning and scored on Tony Taylor's pinch single, lifting the Phillies past the Padres. Dick Selma, working in relief of winner Chris Short, blanked San Diego in the last two innings

Greyhounds lose 9-3

MONTREAL (CP) — Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds face elimination tonight when they meet Montreal Junior Canadiens in the fifth game of the best-of-seven Eastern Memorial Cup semi-final series. The Junior Canadiens, champions of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, smashed their rivals from the Northern Ontario Association 9-3 Sunday night before 5,342 fans to take a 3-1 lead in the series. The winner will meet Quebec Remparts in the Eastern final. Richard Lemieux, Robert Guindon and Gilbert Perreault scored two goals each for Montreal while Robert Lalonde, Michel Latreille and Pierre Brind'Amour collected one each.

MAY BECOME EXTINCT — Fears are expressed by wildlife authorities that the musk-ox may become extinct, although governments have imposed strict management principles on the animal. The shaggy-haired animal, together with various bighorn sheep, has had its numbers decimated by various other species such as the polar bear and Rocky Mountain factors.

Help arrives for Irish singles

By DENIS O'CONNOR

DUBLIN (AP) — Priests are playing cupid in a bid to get Irish eyes smiling again.

Traditionally, the Irishman is a reluctant bridegroom. The country's marriage rate is a low 5.5 per 1,000 population. Girls in Ireland are twice as likely as girls in Britain to remain spinsters. The cities all have more single women than men; Dublin's ratio is near 2 to 1.

"It is tremendously difficult for single men and women to meet in Dublin," says Rev. Michael Browne, who has become so nothing of an expert on Irish marriage problems. "The dance halls and beat clubs are taken over by teen-agers and there's almost nowhere for the more mature to meet socially."

In the more isolated rural areas, men outnumber women.

About 30 per cent of the smaller farmers are unmarried. Girls who have tasted city life don't want to go down on the farm.

Many of those who have crossed the Irish Sea, to work in Britain, don't want to return at all.

The octogenarian Archbishop Joseph Walsh, now retired, has said: "They are attracted by the bright lights of the cities in both Britain and the United States, but it's heartbreaking to see them go. So many never come back."

The archbishop and six West of Ireland bishops set up a Marriage Introductions Bureau at Knock in County Mayo two years ago. The Anonymous Bachelor Club in Limerick followed last year. A third bureau has been founded at Kerry.

In its two years the Knock bureau has received 1,150 applications.

"No definite promise can be made that all who apply will find a life partner," warns an explanatory leaflet, "but all who register can rely on the bureau taking a keen personal interest in them and doing its best to help."

Rev. Michael Keane, who operates the Knock bureau, estimates that the West of Ireland has 32,000 single men of 20 to 45 and only 15,000 girls in that age group.

Identity of applicants is kept secret until they consent to its disclosure to a prospective partner. Once the mutually agreed introduction is made, the bureau steps back. No applications are accepted from persons under 21 and the bona fides of overseas applicants are carefully studied.

Some girls are reluctant to return to the spartan life they remember—as children on remote farmsteads. The bureau stresses that electric power, modern plumbing, and television have changed that picture.

Education —

From authoritarian to open school

TORONTO (CP) — The view from the front of a classroom has changed extensively in the last few years for many teachers.

Students have greater freedom—except, says one teacher, greater freedom to fail. Parents are demanding, expecting schools to cope with rapidly changing values and problems, including drugs.

At the same time the teachers are using new ways as educational theory and practice changes. School systems are in a state of flux that ranges from authoritarian to "open school." Traditional teaching methods and lines of authority are no longer providing a reliable base on which to work.

Two teachers and an administrator in Toronto say they like the new freedom and the new kids. But they say teaching has become a more demanding profession than it was.

All three men interviewed asked that they be anonymous. All of them work in the Metropolitan Toronto system. CHANGE WAS SLOW

The administrator began classroom teaching about 10 years ago. He says he knew exactly what was expected of him by school authorities. One of the first things he had to do was establish discipline, and himself as an authority figure.

"There was a heavy emphasis on academic content. Knowledge seemed universal and essential. All kids needed it and there were certain ways to impart it."

Change came slowly and so sometimes secretly until three or four years ago.

"Things came together all of a sudden and an open commitment to change became obvious."

He says students now regard the teacher as a human being rather than as an authority figure. The teaching approach has changed so that students are encouraged to learn rather than be taught, and the teacher has become the primary learner.

"This has been very hard on teachers. Many teachers feel they can only get vague help from above. There is a general reluctance to make a judgment."

"Kids will test, and they have. The radical student now is tolerated. Everyone has a voice, which is desirable, but there hasn't been any change in accountability. The principal is still accountable for his school, the teacher still accountable for his class and the students still pass or fail."

"The general feeling for teachers is you're damned if you do and damned if you don't."

DEVELOPMENT LAGS

He says experimental techniques and greater freedom have come into use before there have been standards set and training available for their use.

"We really did not establish criteria to decide which children should have freedom. Most children need some kind of exposure to all the teaching methods."

"There has been a tremendous lag in development in teacher training and practice."

"Certain staff and students do their best work in a very controlled environment, others need freedom."

"What I think has to be is that we somehow have traditional classes and methods combined with the ultraprogressive. Even in an open school there must be easy access to an authoritarian arrangement, and vice versa."

He and the teachers say parents compound the difficulties by expecting too much, and the wrong things.

"The natural question today is 'What is the school going to do?' The school is expected to attend to every social crisis, drugs, pollution and, as the church's effect has slipped, to values and ethics as well. We are also still expected to provide students with technological skills, with vocational preparation."

CAN'T MEET IT ALL

Teachers are frustrated, he says. "You can't meet it all. The educator who is honest has to arrive at the conclusion that he just doesn't always know what is right."

A spokesman for the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation says there is a great deal of confusion about what teachers can and should do about the particular problem of drugs. At the same time there is an increasing recognition that they should do something.

More requests for information for both teachers and students are coming from schools. More seminars, lectures and drug check lists are being supplied, but recognition and understanding are not the whole answer.

What if the classroom teacher suspects the student in the third row is using drugs at school? What if he suspects he is selling them?

If he is right, what action does he take? Does he talk to police, parents, the student, the school nurse?

If he is wrong, can he be sued?

No matter what he does, will he get backing from school authorities and parents? How will students react?

It is the dilemma with the highest explosive potential, but the questions it poses are typical of many that today's teacher must try to answer.

Rene Levesque Parti Quebecoise Has appeal to both sides

By DAVE BAZAY
QUEBEC (CP) — The leader of the Quebec independence movement is an energetic, headstrong man with the personal makings of a model Canadian.

Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois in the April 29 Quebec election, has well-developed French and English sides to his personality.

He speaks French and English with a fluency unmatched by other politicians at Quebec City, but says:

"My French side isn't really at home in English Canada. It's a question of feeling foreign and knowing that it won't change."

But if Mr. Levesque feels like a foreigner in English Canada, he says he doesn't feel like an alien among English-speaking people.

Complicated?

Not for Mr. Levesque, who says:

"I don't have the same complex in the United States. I don't expect people to understand if I start being my French me."

The French and English sides of Rene Levesque were shaped in a small railway town in the poverty-stricken Gaspé Peninsula.

He was born Aug. 22, 1922, at New Carlisle, where about 75 per cent of the population was English-speaking.

His father was a lawyer, in partnership with an Irish Canadian who became Mr. Levesque's godfather.

He now describes his godfather as "a self-made millionaire, a plunderer of the Gaspé, a handit."

DOESN'T FEEL ALIEN

New Carlisle didn't make Mr. Levesque a separatist.

"There's one thing I got there: I never feel alien with an English-speaking person."

As a child, Mr. Levesque was a bookworm and a loner, with great admiration for his father who died when he was 14.

"For the times, my father was a fairly cultured guy. He had his own little library. I rarely saw a man more open-minded and tolerant."

Without a father, Mr. Levesque developed a strong spirit of personal independence that characterizes him to this day.

One of Mr. Levesque's New Carlisle schoolmates says:

"Rene was excessively brilliant, extremely sure of himself. He made us jealous. When we played cowboys and Indians he read thick books."

Described by a former teacher as "a charming student," Mr. Levesque also had the reputation of a tough fist-fighter.

Mr. Levesque recalls those days by saying: "I was mostly either reading or being obnoxious. For a lightweight, I was usually in there."

He obtained a BA at Laval University here, working part-time as a reporter and announcer for local radio.

From 1943 to 1945 he was overseas as "a very junior war correspondent," covering campaigns in France, Germany and Austria.

In 1946 he returned to Canada to continue his career as a broadcaster. In 1951, he covered the Korean War.

WAS TV PERSONALITY

By the late 1950s Mr. Levesque had become one of the most popular television personalities in French Canada.

As animator of a television documentary known as "Point de Mire"—Target—he provided background reports on current events around the world.

He got into provincial politics in 1960 and became one of the leading reform members of former premier Jean Lesage's Liberal government.

During six years of the so-called Quiet Revolution, Mr. Levesque held three portfolios—public works, natural resources and welfare.

In 1962 as resources minister, he led the drive for state purchase of several private hydroelectric companies.

Mr. Levesque mobilized his formidable talents as a communicator to help sell the nationalization idea in the 1962 election campaign.

Rumpled, but ever-ready

By DON MacPHERSON
MONTREAL (CP) — Roland Morin, 40-year-old leader of the Quebec New Democratic Party, expects to have "a lousy golf season" this year following the April 29 Quebec general election.

A former member of the Quebec staff of the United Automobile Workers of America, he says he will be too busy continuing the organization work started in the current election campaign to get in much time on the links.

Elected interim leader by the party council March 22—10 days after Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand called a spring election—Mr. Morin acknowledges the party's problems in organizing for its first Quebec campaign.

Premier Bertrand's timing caught the party without a leader or campaign organization.

"It cut short our time to organize the campaign, to choose candidates and to build our organization," he said.

The party is running only 14 candidates, all but two in Montreal-area ridings, and Mr. Morin sees the campaign as an opportunity for the NDP to "offer our policies" and begin building its organization.

Roland Morin NDP

"I believe we're running the best team of candidates, even though it's the smallest—or perhaps because of that."

Mr. Morin himself is running in Montreal Marguerite-Bourgeoys, held by Claire Kirkland-Casgrain, former Liberal minister of transport and communications.

A short, stocky man with a dark moustache and sideburns, he has gone through his long campaign days with a slightly rumpled appearance and the air of a man always on the move.

He first became involved in politics while a student at a

The Leaders Camil Samson Man of energy and oratory

By JACQUES BOUCHARD
QUEBEC (CP) — Camil Samson, 35-year-old leader of the fledgling Quebec Creditiste party, is a man of the people who impresses his supporters by the physical force of his character and his gifted oratory.

His political election style is reminiscent of the good old days of electioneering.

When he speaks at a meeting nobody sleeps. He can bring his audience to a fever pitch, arousing long ovations.

The six-foot Mr. Samson often has only two meals a day—a light lunch and a suitable supper in the evening. He frustrates his advisers who want him to eat three square meals a day.

At 35, Mr. Samson is the youngest of the main party leaders contesting the April 29 Quebec general election. The other parties are the governing Union Nationale, Liberals, Parti Quebecois and New Democratic Party.

He is married to Gisele Tardif and they have three children, Louise, 13, Daniel, 9, and Mario, 3. Because of family demands, Mrs. Samson has not continually travelled with her husband during the current campaign.

HIRED BY COMPETITOR

Mr. Samson loves the outdoors. But he gave up his first job as a wood measurer because he also loves meeting people and wanted to become more active in society.

So he started selling insurance and then cars. He was hired as a car salesman in Rouyn, Que., by a competitor of his political idol, Real Caouette.

Mr. Samson had joined the Social Credit movement in 1957, and a year later stayed with Mr. Caouette when the latter founded the federal Ralliement des Creditistes.

In 1963 and 1965 Mr. Samson was a Creditiste candidate in two federal elections, losing both times. In 1966 he campaigned in the Quebec provincial election as a candidate for the separatist Ralliement National in Temiscamingue riding. He was also defeated in that vote.

Mr. Samson says he is not a separatist. But he found in Ralliement National, now disbanded, an economic doctrine closely akin to Mr. Caouette's.

Last June he became president of the Rouyn-Noranda Chambre de Commerce, and with fierce determination injected new life into the group.

Leader seldom smokes or drinks. He is always well dressed, but conservatively.

Mr. Samson had a poor childhood. It still manifests itself in his concern for the welfare of his fellow citizens.

When he was 12 his father tried farming near Rouyn-Noranda after moving to the northwestern Quebec area from Shawinigan.

The Quebec wing of the Ralliement des Creditistes was formed in January this year—the first thrust by the Creditistes into provincial politics—and Mr. Samson became its president. Two months later he was elected party leader, despite a manoeuvre by Mr. Caouette to have Yvon Dupuis boosted to the leadership.

Mr. Samson is seeking election in familiar Creditiste territory—Rouyn-Noranda riding.

HAD POOR CHILDHOOD

He enjoys swimming and dramatics, and is president of a theatre group known as La Poudre.

This is what I stand for

"Time and time again I have reaffirmed my belief in a strong Québec within a United Canada. This is my position and the position of our party.

As a resident of the Eastern Townships, I have seen English and French speaking Canadians live, work and play together in friendship and progress. Our accomplishments together have been used as models for the rest of Québec and Canada.

I gave you my pledge in the past—and honoured it—that I would govern Québec with firmness and fairness. When disorders have erupted, I have not hesitated to act swiftly to put an end to them. So long as I am Prime Minister of Québec, the rights of all citizens will be fully respected.

Now, as we enter the last days of this important election campaign, I ask for your support to continue my work on behalf of Québec for the betterment of all Quebecers.

You can support me and what I believe in by voting for your Union Nationale candidate.

As you have placed your trust in me in the past, I now place my trust in you for the future.

Bridal showers

SCOTSTOWN — A recent bride, Mrs. Larry Goodin, the former Valerie St. Laurent, was guest of honor at a shower on April 10 in St. Alban's Anglican Church Hall. The hostesses were the ladies of the church.

On entering the hall, Miss Nancy Coleman presented Mrs. Goodin with a corsage of gold ribbon and silver money. She was escorted to a table and seated with her mother-in-law, Mrs. Mick Goodin and her aunt Miss Heather MacAulay.

Following the playing of several amusing games, Canon W.H.M. Church congratulated Mrs. Goodin and presented her with a money tree.

Mrs. Goodin thanked Canon Church for his good wishes and everyone for their lovely cards and gifts.

L.A.C. Larry and Mrs. Goodin left by air for Germany on April 22 where they will live for three years.

After the ladies served refreshments they all wished Valerie and her husband a safe landing in Germany, and a long and happy married life together.

ISLAND BROOK — Miss Penny Dutton honored her sister, Miss Patsy Dutton at a miscellaneous shower.

Penny pinned a kitchen gadget on her sister upon entering the house, and seated her at a table loaded with beautifully wrapped gifts. Mrs. Dutton and Mrs. Goode were seated on each side of the bride-to-be and assisted her in unwrapping her gifts. They were passed around and admired. Miss Patsy thanked everyone and invited them to visit her.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by her sisters and young friends. A beautiful cake decorated in white and pink with a doll and umbrella in the centre was made by Mrs. A. Goode of Bury.

Guests were from Island Brook, Bury and Cookshire.

Hairpieces

And how to buy one

EDMONTON (CP) — In Western Canada, a woman wants to walk into a store, buy a wig, put it on and walk out looking beautiful, says a leading wig manufacturer.

However, it's not that easy, said Jack Khorsandi of Toronto, owner and president of the Classic Wig Centre.

"When a woman goes shopping for a wig she should shop for it in as many places as she would when looking for clothes," he said in an interview.

In Edmonton to promote sales of a synthetic-fibre wig he designed, Mr. Khorsandi said women should go to a hairdresser to help set the wig and touch it up for the first few months after she buys it.

"But after a while it becomes as easy and natural for her to look after it as her own hair."

WIGS ARE USEFUL. He said a woman's own hair is always more beautiful than a wig, but the hairpieces are extremely useful for emergencies and for travelling.

He cautioned that there are many cheap, synthetic wigs on the market—as well as many good ones—and it is for this reason that shopping carefully is essential.

"Some wigs you can spot a mile away. A woman should look in the mirror . . . and if the hair looks wiggy she should take it off."

A woman should look for a wig made of dyneel of the modacrylic fibre, he says.

"You can sleep with these on, throw them in a bag, even wash the floor with them and, with a little light brushing, put them on your head."

Synthetic wigs became popular in Canada about a year ago and now sales have reached about 40,000 a week—and this with a $35 to $40 price tag.

NEED LOOKING AFTER. He said that human-hair wigs are more expensive to buy than synthetics and that only a professional hairdresser can look after them, at a cost of $10 to $15 a time.

The synthetics, on the other hand, can usually be washed at home although he warned that heat damages them.

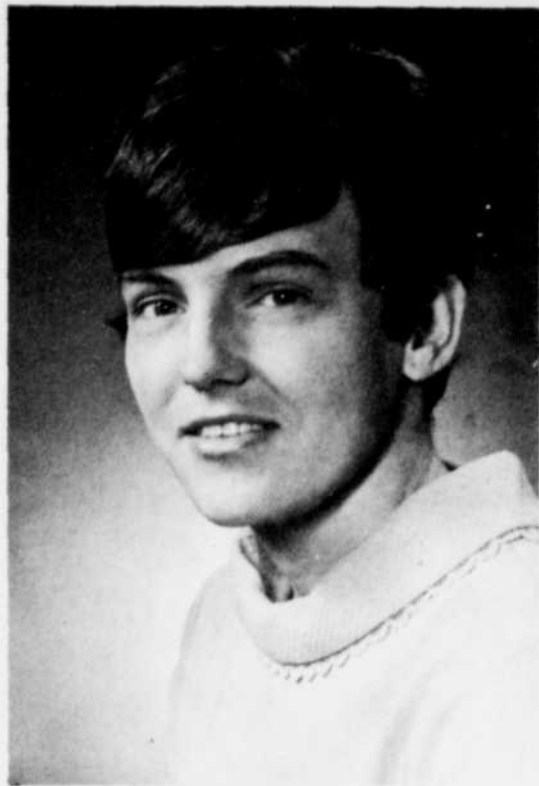

"I always say to wash them in cold water. If I say 'cool' water, women are likely to use warm. And, for heaven's sake, if you are wearing one, don't stick your head in the oven to take out the roast. If you do, the heat ruins the wig and you might as well throw it in the garbage."

Western Canadian women were more conservative and cautious about buying wigs than easterners.

"Here the reaction is usually 'We'll wait until someone else tries it.'"

Fashion

"I cook as I design, everything is thrown in"

MONTREAL (CP) — Designer Elvia Gobbo has reversed the usual trend: The 28-year-old American-born designer invaded Canada to start a fashion boutique. She felt there was a big gap in the Canadian market for fashionable sophisticated clothes.

Three years ago she made the big leap to the wholesale trade, forming a new company called Luv Originals with a partner from another dress house to look after the business end.

Elvia says a firm like Luv must project farther ahead in fashion thinking and trends than the average company. So while most houses are predicting the mid-length won't arrive before fall, Elvia already has 30 midis in her summer collection. One midi is a zippered red cire with epaulettes and short sleeves and is dramatized by a two-inch white cire belt with large silver buckle. Underneath are white canvas pants.

Born in a small upstate New York town, Elvia has a background of northern Italy.

She claims the great Titian as an ancestor, and several of her uncles are artists. She loved clay modelling as a child but soon decided she wanted to be a fashion designer.

WON FIRST PRIZE

At the famous Traphagen School of Fashion in New York she took illustration design and studied the history of costume for two years. And it was there she met the young Montreal designer known as Lionel.

After graduation, when she won first prize for the best design, she worked as illustrator and assistant to Anne Fogarty, one of the best-known New York designers of smart young clothes. Then Elvia became a designer for Mr. Mort, also of New York, and it was at this period that Lionel suggested they open a boutique in Montreal. The idea, to provide a new designing image, appealed to Elvia.

The boutique, on fashionable Sherbrooke Street, was a success, but soon Elvia saw the wider possibilities. Luv Originals has more than justified her faith. In less than three years it has become a million-dollar business.

Not only is Luv sold across Canada but it is bought by such New York stores as Lord and Taylor, Bonwit Teller and Bloomingdale's. Last year Luv negotiated a tie-in with a California company to produce and carry some 20 styles from the Luv line.

Elvia has made Luv's salon as individualistic as she is herself. One end wall is done with repetitive Canadian Pacific posters as wallpaper. In front are high circular-backed wicker chairs like thrones. All around are gaily patterned cushions.

LIKES TO COOK

Elvia likes to cook. "I cook as I design," she says. "Everything is thrown in. It's a do-it-yourself effort."

She likes to entertain at home with small dinner parties. "But they must be different. I was doing Italian dishes but now my friends are on the Italian kick, so I'm going on to something else."

Like her clothes, Elvia's bachelor apartment in the centre of the city is bright and young. The living-room is papered in bright cobalt blue with white bamboo squares.

There's a long red cloth on the T-square dining-room table pushed against the wall when not in use, and several red cushions.

The antique Dictoire day-bed is covered in a black-and-white floral chintz and there's a zebra-skin rug. Four white lacquered Queen Anne chairs with leather seats add

How the whole child learns

HALIFAX (CP) — When does alienation begin? When does a child begin to drop out of life?

Dr. Paz Bartolome, an assistant professor of education at Dalhousie University, thinks the alienation process begins typically in the sensitive, early years of childhood.

"Many young people have lost touch with their natural environment," she says. "Through a sense of disconnection and for other reasons, they may resort to smoking pot and to various sensation-seeking experiences. Few have been taught from early childhood how to appreciate the significance of, for instance, a simple stone, a leaf, or other wonders in their surroundings."

She thinks money should be spent on the outdoor environment of schools — providing fountains, trees and other amenities — proportionate to funds being used for buildings, even if it means modifying expenditures for interiors.

"It is necessary to create these environments so that early in life children acquire a sense of oneness between themselves and their surroundings."

STARTS STUDY CENTRE

To discover more about how the "whole child" learns best, or fails to learn, Dr. Bartolome has started a child study centre as an integral part of the program in Dalhousie's education department.

The centre, which began last January, serves teacher-trainees specializing in early childhood education and is a testing ground for educational theory.

Emphasis is on observation. Students are told in lectures that children can learn basic mathematics through play, and in the child-study centre this assertion is put to practical test.

A teacher-trainee shows a child how to use beads with number sequences. After repeated and independent attempts, the child learns the correct sequence of numbers and their properties, through playing with the beads.

"Students are often amazed to discover that classroom theories do, in fact, work in practice."

Sherbrooke Hospital Alumnae Association

The Sherbrooke Hospital Alumnae Association held its monthly meeting on April 21 at the Norton Residence.

Mrs. Richard Burroughs, president, opened the meeting with 14 members in attendance. The members were informed that the executive had granted two of the hospital graduate bursaries from the E. Frances Upton Bursary Fund.

A letter was read informing the alumnae that the hospital will not be accepting applicants for first year training in September. This is in keeping with the provincial plans to phase out schools of nursing and to teach diploma nursing courses in CEGEP's.

Plans pertaining to the Graduation Banquet and Dance, being held May 9th at the Le Baron Motel were discussed. Miss Helen Litowsky stated that Les Beaulieu's Orchestra had been acquired for the dance.

Raffle books for the fifty dollar bond were distributed among the members.

News is being compiled by Miss Frances Whittle for the yearly Newsletter.

Mrs. Burroughs introduced Mr. Paul McKenna, florist, who gave a demonstration on floral arranging. With apparent ease he made beautiful bouquets which were auctioned off among the members.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Ernest Taylor, Mrs. Earl Lavallee and Mrs. Raymond Cathcart.

The doorprize was won by Mrs. Robert Hopkins.

Team probes causes of blindness

MONTREAL (CP) — For more than a year a 10-man team headed by Dr. Sidney Lerman has been delving into the molecular mystery of cataracts and corneal diseases—two of the most common causes of blindness.

Surrounded by complex and expensive equipment, the McGill University team is devoting long hours focussing on the eye at the molecular level.

Dr. Lerman, Montreal-born and a graduate of McGill, is an established expert on the biochemistry of the eye. He came back from the University of Rochester at the end of 1967 to direct McGill's first eye research program—one of only a handful in North America. He is also professor of ophthalmology and biochemistry.

The doctor and his associates, who include four permanent researchers, three research technicians and two post-graduate students, are concentrating on the molecular makeup of the proteins of the cornea—the protective covering of the eye—and the lens.

In particular, they are investigating the cause of cataracts and the molecular basis of aging in the human lens by studying the structure of lens protein.

The lens is composed of two-thirds water and one-third protein. The relative proportions of the two and the structure of the protein are responsible for the way in which light passes through the lens.

FOCUSING ON THE EYES — Dr. Sidney Lerman uses complex equipment to examine a patient's eyes at his laboratory at McGill University in Montreal. Dr. Lerman heads a 10-man research team investigating the cause of cataracts and corneal diseases.

In the normal eye almost all of the protein in the lens is soluble, but there is also a small amount of insoluble protein formed in some unknown manner.

The amount of insoluble protein increases with age to almost half of the total protein content of the lens in persons 50 to 60 years old.

The insoluble material decreases the elasticity of the lens. The shape of the lens is normally adjustable by muscles so that the eye can focus on both distant and near objects. When the elasticity is reduced the lens shape can no longer be adjusted as easily.

The same insoluble protein also causes cataracts. When the insoluble substance increases to as much as 65 percent, the lens becomes clouded and light cannot enter the eye. Total blindness may result in time.

SURGERY NEEDED

The treatment for focus disorders is glasses, while the only treatment for cataracts is surgery—removal of the lens. The patient can later wear bifocal or trifocal glasses and see as well as before.

What Dr. Lerman's team hopes to discover is exactly what happens to the proteins causing the lens to become clouded and why this chemical change takes place.

Furthermore, the researchers are looking for the molecular reason for the rejection of some corneal transplants. The scientists want to know why in some cases the grafted cornea clouds up and becomes useless. The protein structure is again seen as the key.

In the laboratory a black box called an amino-acid analyser costs $20,000, but it can do in three days what a group of skilled researchers would take a year to do.

WIDER AND DEARER — Canadian men are expected to spend about $20,000,000 on neckwear this year, double the amount spent five years ago. The average price for today's wide, colorful ties (left) is $4 to $5 dollars compared to the $2 for the narrow, subdued ties (right) of two years ago.

Wider ties bring boom

TORONTO (CP) — The spring blooms in downtown Toronto are tied around businessmen's necks—great swathes of gaudy colors that cost up to $12 apiece, disguised as neckties.

"The neckwear business is going out of its mind," says Allen Horsman, men's-wear buyer for a major department store.

"I've never seen anything like this year. "Price is secondary. What sells is style and color."

The style comes from such notables as Yves St. Laurent and Christian Dior. And there's lots of room for color on a tie five inches wide.

As recently as two years ago the average price of a tie was $2. Today it's $4 or $5, and Horsman says selling ties at $7 and $10 "is no problem."

Six-week pre-marriage trial suggested

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP) — It should be more difficult to get married. There should be a six week waiting period between licence and wedding, and compulsory pre-marital counselling. The state should take at least as much interest in marriage as it does in divorce.

These ideas were part of a private member's bill drafted in British Columbia. The bill has not been presented in the legislature—and may never be—but it reflects opinions held by many people alarmed at the divorce rate and at current suggestions that the traditional family unit is out-dated.

In a Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press, social workers, clergy, lawyers and people married or about to be were asked what they think of an enforced, counselled pause for thought on the way to the altar.

The consensus is that it might be a good idea, but would never work.

Dr. Frank Fidler of Toronto, marriage secretary in the guidance council of the United Church of Canada, says a long waiting period "could be an advantage."

"It does eliminate the impulsive marriage program that some people embark on. But there would have to be some provisions for waiving it under adequate authority."

JUST WON'T BOTHER

Asked if he thinks making marriage more difficult would cut the number of divorces, Dr. Fidler says he thinks it might, but not necessarily for the best reasons.

"Some people wouldn't bother to get married at all. They'd just live together. That's a speculation, of course, but observing what has happened in other cultures, I think if you make marriage too difficult people just won't bother."

Waiting periods now vary from none to eight days.

Newfoundland has no waiting period, unless one is imposed by a church, but an examination of the provincial laws relating to family life is in progress. A justice department spokesman says legislation should be drafted in one or two years, and may include a waiting period of 10 days.

Quebec has no marriage licences as such, but a couple wanting a civil marriage service must collect certificates proving marriage eligibility and wait 20 days while the intention to marry is posted in the courthouse. A civil marriage costs $75 during the week, $100 on weekends.

A married couple in Montreal say people wishing to be married should be able simply to sign a paper saying that for purposes of children and property they are to be considered husband and wife.

If they decide to dissolve the marriage, the courts should not be able to veto their divorce application.

DRAWNS FINE LINE

Lawyer Raymond Ayoub says the state should be permitted to legislate marriage requirements if it has the power to legislate divorce laws.

"However, there is a fine line between that and interfering with a person's civil rights. For example, a man could hypothetically be refused permission to marry on 20 different occasions during his lifetime."

A British Columbia lawyer, Neil Fleishman, says:

"I welcomed the changes in the law last year, and I think the state should get out of divorce altogether."

"All marriages are a gamble—people are either going to get married or they're not. Ninety-five per cent of counsellors and psychiatrists need examining themselves. Who would watch the watchers (if counselling were compulsory)?"

In Edmonton a social worker and a minister are on the other side.

Donald Storch of the Family Services Association says: "Before you can get a licence to drive a car in Alberta you have to take a course. Why not the same for marriage?"

Rev. Ian Macmillan of St. Paul's United Church says he believes the divorce rate would drop if marriage were more difficult to achieve. He says people should be charged for getting married and be given divorces for nothing.

An engaged man in Saskatchewan says it probably wouldn't hurt to make people wait a month to get married. He says it takes two weeks to a month to get out invitations and otherwise organize the wedding anyway.

He says he thinks counselling would be a waste of time.

"If I wanted to get married to a girl badly enough, all the counselling in the world wouldn't change my mind."

Lawyer John Barry in Saint John, N.B., agrees in principle.

"Pre-marital counselling should not be made compulsory. They've taken away too many rights of individuals.

"However, there should be some institution of this sort for those wanting it."

Canadian churches are officially on record as being in favor of provisions for effective preparation for marriage and counselling for those in marital trouble. Six denominations presented a joint statement on divorce law reform in 1967, to that effect.

ROOTS IN LEVITY

The conference of Roman Catholic bishops in Canada presented a brief to the government committee on divorce, saying: "Social science confirms that the majority of family problems that end in divorce have their roots in the levity and lack of forethought with which many, especially younger people, approach marriage.

"It is the responsibility of civil authority to seek appropriate laws to prevent such situations."

Gordon Killeen, an Ottawa lawyer, says he approves of counselling, but there are not enough counsellors to go around.

"The provision in the divorce law regarding reconciliation is more or less a dead letter because of this."

PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS NOTICE TO SCHOOL BOARDS, TO EMPLOYERS AND TO EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS

Polling-day shall be a holiday [all school personnel included] in the schools under the direction of any local or regional school board in the electoral district where a poll is held. (Section 186).

Every employer, on polling-day, must allow every elector, [every functionary or workman of the Government included] in his employ the necessary period of leave, so that he may have, during the time the polls are open, at least four consecutive hours to vote, in addition to the time ordinarily allowed for the midday meal; the employer must not make any deduction from the salary of such elector or subject him to any penalty by reason of this absence during such hours. (Section 262-1).

The Government offices will close on the general polling-day, Wednesday, April 29, 1970, at 3 P.M.

Every educational institution, on polling-day, must give leave to students who are electors. (Section 262-2).

Mrs. W. H. M. Church and Mrs. Bea Atkin attended a meeting held recently in St. Peter's Anglican Church, Sherbrooke, to make arrangements to be held in St. Peter's Church Hall on May 9. Dr. and Mrs. John MacLeod and Debbie, Sherbrooke, accompanied by Miss Jennifer Brumwell, Montreal, were recent guests of Mrs. John MacLeod.

Mr. Charles Gordon, Jr., Lennoxville, was calling recently on his aunt, Mrs. Findlay MacLeod. Mr. Donald MacLennan, Sherbrooke, spent a day at his home here. He was accompanied here by Mr. and Mrs. Alexander MacIver and Kevin, Sherbrooke, who were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Mackenzie.

Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Gordon and Mrs. Colin Henderson visited Mrs. Angus MacLennan in Sherbrooke recently. Mrs. Gilbert Doherty has returned home after visiting Mr. and Mrs. Al Harvey and family, St. Jean, and Mr. and Mrs. Brian Beers and family Lennoxville.

Miss Margaret Buchanan and Mrs. C. C. Taylor, Drummondville, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Buchanan. Other guests were Mr. Malcolm MacLean, of Derby Line, Vt., Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Gauthier, Bury.

Mr. Lyford Elger spent the weekend with his son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Irving Elger and family in St. Therese. Friends are extending congratulations to Mrs. Gilbert Doherty, who celebrated her 82nd birthday on April 16. Mrs. Dan MacDonald, Sherbrooke, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Gordon. Mrs. Murdo MacAulay and Miss Heather MacAulay, who spent two weeks with Mr. and Mrs. O. St. Laurent in Brantford, Ont., attended the Goodin - St. Laurent wedding on April 11. They accompanied Mr. William MacAskill, Randy and Lori, home on April 13. Mrs. William MacAskill remained for two weeks with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. St. Laurent. Mrs. MacAskill will visit Mr. and Mrs. Don MacAskill while there.

Friends of Miss Bonnie Morrison are sorry to hear that she is a patient in the Sherbrooke Hospital. Her father, Mr. Donald Morrison, has been confined to the house. Mr. Robert Nicholson is replacing Mr. Morrison at the Customs office at Chertville, during his absence. Mr. and Mrs. Eric Rowsell, Christine and Keith, Watford, Ont., spent a few days with Mr. Rowsell's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Matheson.

L.A.C. Larry Goodin and his bride, the former Valerie St. Laurent, Brantford, who are on their honeymoon trip, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Mick Goodin and visited other relatives in town. L. A. C. Goodin and Mrs. Goodin left on April 22 for Germany, where he is stationed.

Mrs. Dewar Scott accompanied Mrs. B. H. Baker and Mrs. Charles Parkin, Lennoxville, to Burlington, Vt., where they spent the weekend. Before returning home, Mrs. Scott spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Murray McArdle in Montreal.

Mrs. Wendell Beattie, Kent and Lori, Lennoxville, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. John D. MacDonald and family. Mr. and Mrs. Nick Nicholson of Sherbrooke were recent guests of Mrs. Glen Coleman.

Mansonville
The Guild of St. Paul's Anglican church met on April 14 at the home of Mrs. Andrew Cote at Vale Perkins with a good attendance of members and a couple of visitors. At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Cote served lunch assisted by Mrs. Cecil Wallis. The next meeting will be in the Parish Hall on May 12 at 1:30 p.m.

On April 16 at approximately 3 p.m., Mr. Eugene Farrell, who was returning from his work at the Monticello Eobbin Co., saw smoke pouring from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gaulin, situated about a mile from Mansonville, on the Vale Perkins Road. Mr. Farrell turned in the alarm. Mrs. Gaulin, not at home at the time, was visiting her mother, Mrs. Edmond Ducharme in the village and had her little son with her. The firemen did everything possible, but were not able to save the home. What was not destroyed by fire was ruined by smoke and water. It made a sad sight for two young people who worked hard to build their home, and who moved into it only a matter of six months ago. It is not known how the fire started. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Weir Park on Lake Memphremagog gives review at annual meeting

BEEBE — The annual meeting of the Weir Memorial Park at Lake Shore, Cedarville, on Lake Memphremagog, was held on April 13 at the Beebe Council rooms.

Hugo LaPenna was returned as president, vice-president is Lloyd Bliss and the secretary-treasurer, Wilbrod Duchesneau. Directors and representatives of the communities are: E. J. Struthers, mayor of Stanstead; Roger Roy, Stanstead; Tony Houle, Ogdon; Hubert Pepin, Rock Island; Lloyd Bliss, the Boundary Rotary Club; and James Wilson for Beebe.

The usual grants will be solicited for the maintenance of the Park. The question of charges to the public was discussed and will be decided upon at the next meeting to be held at the Park about mid-May and the opening date established.

With lake property fast becoming private, the public is fortunate to have this section open. During the year a sum of money was bequeathed to the Park and will be used towards making improvements until it is one of the most desirable recreation spots in the area.

Melbourne Ridge Institute votes $25 to fire victims

MELBOURNE RIDGE — The April meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Albert Smith, with Mrs. Donald Fowler as co-hostess. Roll call was answered by naming an odd word and giving its meaning. Nine children were also present. An Easter card was received from the Bear River, W. I. N.S. expressing good wishes, and was admired by the members.

The treasurer, Mrs. F. Roster, gave a favourable report and said that $25 had been donated to the fire victims of the Green Gables Apartments in Richmond. It was agreed that $5 be given Mrs. F. Roster for the use of her home on many occasions, and for taxi expenses.

Education convener, Mrs. S. Johnston, read an interesting article on Lulu, a doll for retarded children; home economics, Mrs. A. Smith, read an article, entitled Twenty years as a Seamstress; welfare and health convener, Mrs. E. Wilkins, about Food and Drug Labels on Acid.

Mrs. Norbert Danneau will continue as custodian of the grounds and the restaurant and Mr. Houle, the building. The financial statement was reviewed. The revenue for last season totaled $2,443.75; and expenses to operate the summer months were $2,494.96.

The business meeting following adjournment of the annual session and plans are to make marked improvements to the building and to improve the lighting system by installation of a higher watt entrance and possibly a vapour light for the grounds.

Members were pleased to have Mrs. Kenneth Johnston join the group. Agriculture convener, Mrs. L. Driver, asked for suggestions for the School Fair from members and it was decided to have a class for double petunias and a class for last year's begonia bulbs.

It was decided to cater to a wedding in August. Plans were also made for catering to a wedding in May. Mrs. Neil Fowler was the winner in the Maple Sugar Contest. An auction was held with the proceeds going to the Cheer committee. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Elmer Crack in Richmond. Lunch was served by the hostesses.

East Farnham

Mrs. Ruth Smith, Montreal, was calling on Mr. and Mrs. Luther King.

Montreal, and East Farnham, has safely arrived in Algiers, Africa, for a two year interim with I.B.M. of Canada. Mrs. Barrand (formerly Juliette Rouillard) and two children, expects to leave about May 1 by air to join her husband there.

Third hand high is taught us from our bridge player's cradle. The reason why this play is usually correct is that third hand should generally attempt to win the trick or to force a high card from fourth hand.

The common exception to third hand high occurs when you hold two cards higher than the first two played that bracket a card in dummy.

Usually the bracketing cards are quite close together, like the king-10 to bracket a queen or jack.

In today's hand, Sidney Lazard of New Orleans set some sort of bracketing record when he played the eight-spot on dummy's six. It not only set some sort of record, but it also set declarer, who would have made his contract if Sidney had risen with the ace.

The eight-spot play was eminently correct. Sidney was looking at 21 high-card points in his hand and dummy. Declarer was one of those 16-18 no-trump bidders who never varied.

This left a maximum of three for West and Sidney assumed those three points were the king of hearts. If they weren't, the hand was going to make whatever Sidney did, unless West had led from a six-card suit, in which case either the ace or eight play would succeed.

If West did hold the king, Sidney would set declarer one trick less if the opening suit were a six-carder, the same number of tricks if it were a five-carder, but if the lead were from four to the king, as it was, Sidney's play would win and the ace play would lose.

Animal Dreamers
It is probable that most of the higher mammals dream. Sleeping dogs, cats, apes and horses make sounds and movements similar to those of sleeping human beings, and it is reasonable to believe they are dreaming.

BOB BELL on the COUNTRY SCENE

BOB BELL

Tra La La... 'tis Monday and the start of another week. I find it hard to have the "bliss" on Monday at this time of the year, but if I try hard enough... I can get a half-blah on some Mondays. Anyhow... time to get down to the column here and say something.

We're off to Wheeling West Virginia again next month to see Jamboree. And you'll get a sample of that fine institution this week with the Doc Williams Show hitting the Townships. Headlining the show that we'll see will be Carl Smith, currently riding high with "Pull My String and Wind Me Up."

The date of the trip is Friday, May 22nd, leaving at noon from Lessard's in Lennoxville, to Buffalo, New York, for overnight. Then down to Wheeling from Buffalo, Saturday morning, getting in there around one P.M., in time for Saturday night. The Jamboree is now in the old Capitol Theatre building, and is much more comfortable than the old place.

On Sunday, we'll take you for a look at Oglebay Park and Museum on the outskirts of Wheeling. This place is positively breathtaking in beauty, and of course the museum is very interesting. Sunday night, there'll be supper and a party, (the supper on me) back at the hotel and we'll head back Monday morning. If you'd like to join us, call me or drop off a line and we'll send you all the info. It'll be a real fun time, and your company as a country music fan will enhance the trip too. Keep smilin' and keep it country.

Butters Hospital Staff fetes nurse at going away party

AUSTIN — A going away party was given by the staff of Butters Children's Hospital in honor of Mrs. Fancel, R.N., who gave eight years of service to the hospital. She was very much liked and will be greatly missed by those who know her.

Dancing added to the pleasure of the evening. Music was played by the Lee Brothers of Orford, also Mrs. Grace Lee, Sr., who played the violin, which was much enjoyed.

Many gifts were received by the guest of honor, also $100 in money. Mrs. Fancel thanked them wholeheartedly. She moved here some eight years ago from the Maritimes, and plans to live in Stratford, Ont., with her two sons, who are employed there.

Lunch was served by members of the Butters Hospital Staff.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Three Fungi or Molds Are Causes of Ringworm

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—What causes ringworm? Is it contagious? How can I get rid of it?

A—This disease may be caused by three fungi or molds—the trichophyton, microsporum or epidermophyton. They are commonly found in most environments and, although they may be transmitted from person to person, they usually gain a foothold only in areas where the skin is chronically moist—between the toes and in the groin. The treatment of all three types is the same. Half-strength Whitfield ointment applied locally twice a day is still one of the best remedies but several newer fungicides are available. Recurrences are common.

Q—My daughter gets itching blisters on her hands and feet. They heal, only to break out in another spot. She has had several different drugs but nothing helps her. What do you advise?

A—This sounds like a typical case of ringworm. If the drugs your daughter has used have not helped her, one of these prescription drugs should do so—undecylenic acid, tracetin or spirotracin.

Q—I have had a fungus infection of my fingernails and toenails for 10 years. I have taken Fulvicin all that time but now the disease is coming back. A skin specialist prescribed cortisone but it didn't help. Is there any cure?

A—Since it is almost impossible for any drug to reach the fungus when it is under the nails, Fulvicin, a brand of griseofulvin, is usually prescribed. If this does not help after four or five months, tolnaftate (Tinactin) should be tried.

Q—Our doctor says my husband has a fungus infection of his skin. Is this a form of cancer?

A—No.

Q—Is it possible for a woman, 56, to become pregnant if she still has menstrual periods?

A—Yes, if they are truly menstrual periods and not uterine bleeding of another type. Menstruation at that age is extremely rare and should be investigated.

Q—Is it necessary for a woman to reach her peak or have an orgasm to become pregnant?

A—No, that's what artificial insemination is all about.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

ASTRO-GUIDE By Ceean

Tuesday, April 28
PRESENT—FOR YOU AND YOURS... A festive day, even though it is not a universal holiday. You'll enjoy the company of friends and relatives as social situations are under fine rays now. Accede to the wishes of the majority rather than insisting on doing things your way if you would have a harmonious domestic atmosphere.

The Day Under Your Sign

- ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19)—You may have to say no to a request for a loan, although you'd like to comply.
- TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—You may have to do a little dodging to get at the true facts, but they're available.
- GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Clear up misunderstandings early in the day, so that the holiday isn't spoiled for all.
- CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Good day to entertain at brunch at a lively place. A festive mood prevails.
- LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—A phone call from someone who couldn't join you for the holiday brings great happiness.
- VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Although most people are in a gregarious mood, you may prefer to spend the day alone.
- LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23)—A deeply moving personal experience may make this an unforgettable day.
- SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—You'll enjoy mingling with the crowd, observing the finery—others and your own.
- SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—You may feel dissatisfied with what you took so long to search for. Don't fret!
- CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—Conversation took so long to search for. Don't fret!
- AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Conversation took so long to search for. Don't fret!
- PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)—Some tension denotes, but it should clear up as the gaiety of the day takes over the household.

Danville

As it was the afternoon for the ladies of Danville to act as hostesses at the Tea at the Wales Home, Richmond, Mrs. L. G. Westman and Mrs. A. M. Carr accompanied Mrs. Harold Laxson there, for that pleasant duty. Eagerly looked forward to by residents there, especially when it is their home town supplying the hostesses, it makes a pleasant break in the routine of the Home, as well as the opportunity to seeing friends they have not met for some time. There were not quite as many guests as usual at the weekly tea, due to the fact that many were moving into new quarters and had found it an exhausting experience.

Rev. L. G. Westman was in Montreal to attend the Quebec Education Show at Place Bonaventure. It was sponsored by leading publishers and was an interesting experience for those fortunate enough to attend it.

Our opponents pretend that they have the true figures pertaining to taxes in Quebec Provincial debt, and the data related to taxes in British Columbia and Alberta, and they say, we of the Social Credit lie about situations in these western provinces. We assure you, we are wrong, in the facts, but if our opposition are so sure we are wrong, what is the truth? They just won't face the facts, because the other three parties contesting this election know we are right, and they just can't face the truth!

We ask, how can the other parties opposing us explain why Social Credit governments have been in power since 1935 (35 years) in Alberta, without ever being once defeated? Let the other parties explain why the Social Credit has formed British Columbia's government since 1952 (18 years) without ever being defeated. The electorate of B.C. and Alberta have the answer, which is Social Credit.

We ask you, judge for yourself!

Quebec is not a province like the others!

Here in Quebec we have the highest taxes in Canada.
Here in Quebec we have the highest number of unemployed in Canada.

Who caused Quebec to be so unlike the other Provinces?

The Union Nationale and the Liberals!
From 1960 to 1966 the Liberals boosted our taxes by $72,000,000.00.
From 1966 to 1970 the Union Nationale boosted our taxes by an additional $333,000,000.00.

Do you wish to continue allowing these parties to conduct their dance of millions?

The Liberal Party is ruining us in Ottawa and in Quebec. In Nationalizing Electricity, Rene Levesque, then member of the Liberal Party, borrowed $700,000,000.00 from the United States, which is now costing us $50,000,000.00 a year in interest alone. He then told us that our electricity bills would go down, but as you would expect, they have gone up instead!

Mr. Parizeau now running for le Parti Quebecois, incidentally, was the economic advisor to Mr. Daniel Johnson and Mr. Lesage, and he contributed toward putting Quebec in this economic slump!

A VOTE FOR THE CREDITISTS ON APRIL 29TH WILL BE A VOTE:

- For a money reform that makes sense!
- Against of the old parties controlled by high finance!
- To establish better patronage administration by deputies not committed to high finance!
- For a guarantee Quebec will not separate from the rest of Canada!
