Sixty-Six Year

At Sherbrooke Fair

Attendance hits all-time record

Attendance at the five days of the Sherbrooke Exhibition hit an all-time record when the fair closed last night, 86,392.

With sunshine persisting through to the very last day, 5,922 passed through the gates Thursday.

With attendance totalling 20,000 more than last year's, fair officials had nothing to worry about, but closing day at the Sherbrooke Exhibition was marked by a certain cooling of the midway frenzy of earlier in the week.

While some rides and stalls were idling, however, there was one department of the fair that had almost heavier participation than it could handle. Ayrshire cattle, judged in the arena Thursday, made up the most crowded livestock class of the fair, with 210 entries.

Starting at 9 a.m., judging went well into the evening, as Ayrshire breeders from all counties paraded their stock before judge Donald Bradley of Lachute.

"The best Ayrshire show in the province... This is better than Quebec... This is turning out to be Ayrshire country... These were comments the arena onlooker heard as the sharp-horned red and white animals circled in the sawdust. Ride's Ranch Echoes Gay Boy, a massive bull belonging to Tom Ride and his son Jack of Hatley, carried off the grand prize and reserve grand prize for Ayrshire male, after having won in the senior section.

The junior champion bull was Stanley Mont's (Brome) and the reserve junior went to Chagnon and brothers of Barnston. Laurent Bousquet of Granby won the junior grand championship in cows, with the Chagnons again taking the Reserve.

In Holsteins, another heavily-entered class judged Wednesday, the outstanding showing was by Georges Rolland Gladu of Gladale Farm at Sutton. His ribbons included one for grand champion Holstein bull, senior champion bull, both champion and reserve junior cow, reserve senior and reserve grand champion cow.

In heavy horses, another Wednesday event, Roger Bolduc of Cookshire had the champion Belgian stallion, and A. Brouillard of St. Georges de Windsor the champion Belgian mare. Reserve championships went respectively to Louis Louis Maurice of St. Claude and Harold Robinson of Windsor.

The Quebec Percheron Breeders' Association donate a special prize for the Percheron class, and this year it went to L. E. Doyle of Magog. He also won a prize for the best pair of Percheron mares hitched to a farm wagon, while Willie Gaudreau of La Patrie took the prize for grade agricultural horses in a pair.

Champion Percheron stallion was Rosario Bernier's (Bromplonville) and champion mare Harold Robinson's. Lucien Gosselin of Weedon won the Belgian Breeders Association special.

Vagueness criticized

Board rules rapped

HALIFAX (CP)—A University of Toronto law professor Thursday criticized the regulations of government boards as being too vague on whether appeals may be made against the boards' decisions.

Prof. John Willis said the regulations should either expressly deny appeals or else expressly grant them and spell out the issues subject to appeal.

They should not be silent, as is the case with the regulations of the Board of Broadcast Governors, he said in a paper prepared for the administrative law section of the Canadian Bar Association.

There is "utmost confusion" on whether appeals are allowed on some boards and on what grounds, he said. The most common form of statutory appeal is on "questions of law and questions of jurisdiction" but it is not clear what is meant by questions of law.

"Where there is no statutory appeal, which is the more usual situation, the power of the court is limited to keeping the administrative authority within its jurisdiction."

He suggested that to eliminate many appeal cases where decisions are faultless in substance but get quashed "for immaterial deficiencies in procedure" the court should be permitted to disallow appeals when no substantial miscarriage of justice has occurred.

ENDS WITH ELECTION

The association's 44th annual meeting begins closing business sessions today and winds up Saturday morning with resolutions and election of officers. Justice Minister Fleming is to attend today, making his first contact with the legal profession since switching from the finance portfolio earlier this month.

A panel member, Dean W. F. Bewker of the University of Alberta Law School, supported a system by which payments for damages arising from auto accidents would be made automatically and with no attempt to establish the guilty party.

Comments from the floor and other panel members condemned the idea. Panelist W. L. N. Somerville said it would trade a well-established system of civil action for a set payment for specific injuries which for many individuals would be only nominal.

The association's plenary session Saturday is to consider a resolution from the maritime section urging the National Harbors Board to rescind a regulation requiring pleasure craft to give way to any vessel engaged in the commercial activities of a port.

But satisfactory

Response to Cuba sanctions 'limited'

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States sources said today American appeals to NATO allies to discourage Communist bloc shipments to Cuba have met with a limited but generally satisfactory response.

The U.S. brought up the Cuban question at NATO council meetings in Paris. It intends to do so again soon, in view of a new wave of Russian shipments.

A larger number of Western vessels now are reportedly carrying Russian cargoes to Cuba. President Kennedy said Wednesday the NATO Allies should consider what steps they could take to discourage this.

The U.S. appeal to its European allies is expected to continue in a low key, however, for several reasons.

One is that if Washington presents its concern over Premier Castro's regime as a NATO question, other NATO members may claim their pet problems also are affairs of the Atlantic alliance. Portugal, for instance, would have liked NATO help to save Goa from India.

Another is the touchy political, economic and legal questions posed in other countries by any prospective action against Cuba.

CHECK SHIPMENTS

U.S. informants said the Western Allies, in response to U.S. suggestions, have kept a watchful eye on shipments from their countries to Cuba. The Allies were said to have taken steps to help avoid transshipment of U.S. replacement parts to Cuba and to curb any flow of strategic goods.

But there is little expectation that the NATO flagships will stop calling at Cuban ports, and U.S. sources said the U.S. is not proposing this. Here are some reasons they cited:

1. The big maritime countries of Western Europe count on merchant fleets as major money earners and are reluctant to interfere with them.

2. It is assumed that the Kremlin would not entrust its weapons shipments to the holds of NATO ships. A number of Russian vessels are reported carrying the arms aid to Cuba.

3. The type of economic items being sent to Cuba are not believed to fall within the list of strategic goods banned by the West from shipment to Iron Curtain countries.

CHAMPION PIE BAKER — Peter Jamieson, 12, of Downsview Ont. baked his apple pie, entered it in the junior pie baking competition at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto and won second prize. It was the second apple pie he ever baked, although he regularly bakes cookies. Peter's brother, Sandy, 13, won first prize in the CNE orange cake contest. The boys' mother entered the chocolate cake competition but alas, did not win anything. (CP Wirephoto)

Lemire prosecution completed

QUEBEC (CP)—After calling 16 witnesses, mostly former Quebec liquor policemen, the Crown Thursday completed its case against Rosario Lemire and the defence case will begin next Friday after a one-week adjournment.

Lemire, 74, former Quebec district director of the defunct liquor police, is accused of allowing subalterns to make out false expense accounts as payment for work done at his home and summer camp.

It is the second of five fraud charges against him. Judgment on the first is expected Sept. 28. He was tried last month on a charge of taking $8,999 in illegal expenses.

The aura of the late Wellie Cote, former assistant director of the force who died Jan. 7, 1959, filled the court again Thursday.

Henri Bourgoin testified he was under "the constant and close domination" of Cote while with the liquor police. He said Cote did everything but draw a sketch of work to be done at Lemire's home.

Other witnesses testified earlier they worked at Lemire's home on orders from Cote, though some said they worked for Lemire off duty and voluntarily as repayment for being allowed to use his summer camp.

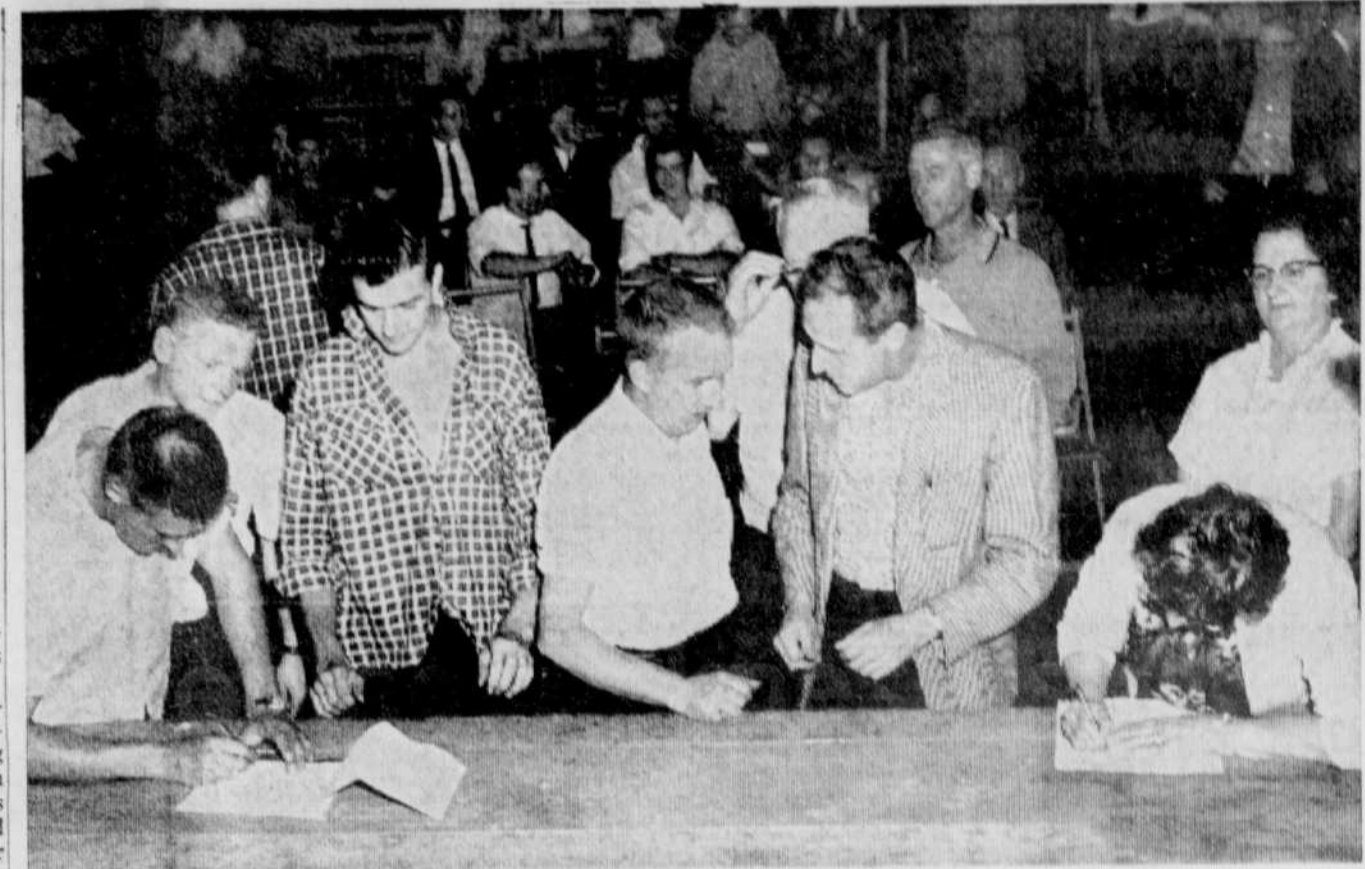

Bourgoin said the only false expense he put in for was for money spent doing errands for Cote, such as driving his family about town or taking members of the force on fishing or hunting trips.

Plane crash kills five

SELDOVIA, Alaska (AP)—Five men were killed and four injured critically in the crash of a twin-engine amphibian Thursday near this Kenai Peninsula town.

The dead were among eight cannery workers being flown to Homer for connecting Pacific Northern Airlines flights to Seattle.

The plane, a Grumman Goose owned by Decraft and leased to Cook Inlet Aviation, crashed in a timber area shortly after takeoff from the Seldovia airstrip.

Insubordination given as reason for dismissal of chief of police

By BERNARD BROWNRIGG
(Record staff reporter)

RICHMOND — Mayor Marcel S. Roy told over 200 citizens in the Municipal Town Hall here last night that Police and fire Chief Gerard Paquin was dismissed from his post this week because of "insubordination."

The mayor made the statement after he was asked by the citizens to take the stand during a Citizens' League meeting, and explain why the chief was dismissed.

Mr. Paquin was relieved of his duties, which he had carried out since 1955, Wednesday afternoon at 6 p.m. after council passed a resolution ordering his dismissal at its Monday night meeting.

Mayor Roy gave no details last night. They are expected to be given during council's next meeting Tuesday night at 7:30 in the municipal hall.

During last night's meeting, Jean Dion, who is circulating a petition asking that the chief be reinstated, said: "If council doesn't give reasons Tuesday night, we plan to call a referendum and oust city council."

He said the town was not satisfied with its present council and wanted its chief back.

Mayor Roy said it was hard for him to take the stand and say why the chief was dismissed.

"I regret the incident that happened after 6 p.m. last night (Wednesday) because I like the chief just as much as you do."

"We called a council meeting this afternoon during which I was given permission to give the reason the chief was dismissed," the mayor said.

Mayor Roy said Mr. Paquin received a letter at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon saying he would be no longer required after 6 p.m. Wednesday.

"The chief is a good man, father of a family and we don't want to hurt him."

"The municipal law protects him because it says council can't dismiss a police chief without giving any reasons to the public."

"After the police chief received his notice, he didn't come and ask us why he was relieved of his duties, because he wasn't interested enough to."

It is you, the public, who are interested and the reason I give you for his dismissal is insubordination," Mayor Roy said and left the meeting.

As the mayor left, people began to shout, "insubordination to who, and why?"

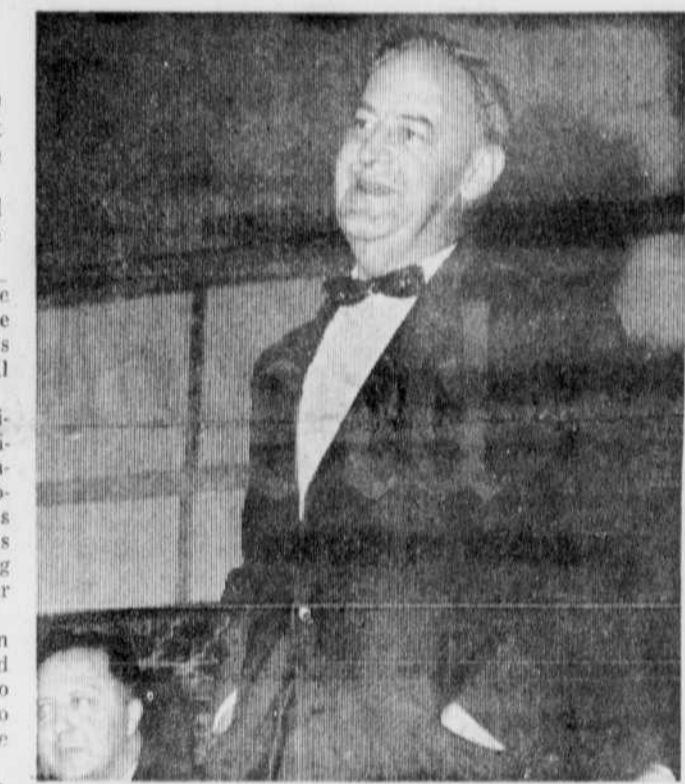

Before the meeting started, Lionel Pelletier, president of the Richmond Citizens League said his league was unable to put its full strength into its work because it is not fully organized and has not been approved by Quebec yet.

The Citizens' League was formed two weeks ago to study municipal and school problems.

Mr. Pelletier also made it clear that the petition being circulated by Mr. Dion was not the works of the Citizens League.

The Citizens League approved asking Mr. Paquin to attend the next council meeting and ask why he was dismissed.

Following the council meeting the League plans to meet and discuss the matter with the chief and the citizens.

Saliva, sweat tools against radiation

MONTREAL (CP)—A shy Finnish scientist, emerging from his Helsinki laboratory, has offered mankind saliva and sweat as tools in the grim war against radiation hazards.

With saliva and sweat, said Dr. Kai Setälä, 48, radioactive strontium can be secreted safely out of the body.

Dr. Setälä, a professor of pathology at the University of Helsinki, reported his discovery—made in experiments on cats and mice—at a session Thursday of the International Congress of Radiology.

Strontium, settling in the bones, is one of the most dangerous elements absorbed from radioactive fallout, either natural or man-made.

The technique of getting it out, he said, "is basically simple. It almost seems too simple after you've done it."

There are two key steps in the Setälä technique, one triggered by a parathyroid gland extract, and the other by a drug known as pilocarpine nitrate.

The gland extract gets the strontium out of the bones into the blood, he said, and the drug stirs up the salivary glands to the point where they absorb the strontium and secrete it with saliva and sweat.

Dr. Setälä said the problem was then encountered of making the strontium stay out, or, ordinarily it would be reabsorbed immediately.

It was licked by an ointment, derived from a salt of certain fatty acids, that trapped the strontium on the skin surface.

The ointment rendered the strontium insoluble in water and therefore easy to wash off.

Emerging from the congress sessions, Dr. Setälä seemed surprised to meet photographers.

"I'm not a film star," he said before being persuaded to smile for the cameras.

An all-out spraying campaign is on to try to eradicate the mosquitoes.

The encephalitis infecting this area is considered a mild form, but health experts say the fatality rate is estimated at 5 to 20 per cent.

The disease can be confirmed only by laboratory tests which take several weeks. This is why health officials used the word "suspected" in discussing cases.

The state health department so far has confirmed only one death and only 13 actual cases from the outbreak here.

Fighting may break out

Algiers awaits troops

ALGIERS (AP)—Algeria's capital awaits a show of force today—and possibly fighting—as troops backing Deputy Premier Ahmed Ben Bella's quest for power advance from western Algeria.

Telephone and telegraph connections between the central and western part of the new nation were cut late Thursday night.

Shortly before European settlers had reported by telephone that heavy convoys of Algerian regular troops, armed with Soviet and Chinese weapons, were moving along three highways toward Algiers and were about 150 miles from the capital.

It was not known whether they halted for the night.

The regular army's chief of staff, Col. Houari Boumediene, dispatched the units in obedience to an order from Ben Bella's political bureau to bring Algiers under the bureau's authority.

FOUGHT FROM MOROCCO

The motorized units apparently were part of the 32,000 men of the Algerian regular army stationed in Morocco during the war with France.

In the capital, guerrilla units of the rebellious wilayas military (zones) No. 3 and 4 vowed to resist.

They called on the population to pour into the streets "despite machine-guns" and oppose Ben Bella and his followers.

Politicians issued appeal after appeal for reason and conciliation to avert civil war. Some assured foreign diplomats that "everything will blow over."

"French military sources said they did not believe a major armed conflict was imminent. The French Army was keeping carefully to the sidelines.

Warned to improve grain

WASHINGTON (CP)—Stung by Canada's leadership in commercial wheat sales, the U.S. agriculture department today warned domestic growers to improve grain quality and purity or be left behind in the race for markets.

Edward F. Seeborg of the department's foreign grain service estimated Canadian commercial exports now surpass those of the U.S. by almost 50 per cent, mainly because importers no longer are willing to accept inferior or adulterated wheat.

"While Canada, our principal competitor, has zealously guarded the milling and baking qualities of Canadian Manitoba (wheat) through rigid government controls... the U.S. still uses grain grades and standards which are based upon physical characteristics," Seeborg says in a report in the September issue of the department's Foreign Agriculture magazine.

"Of the major wheat exporters, only the U.S. and Argentina fail to clean wheat before export... as a result, average U.S. wheat exports contain 50 per cent more unmillable materials... than wheat exported by some of our competitors.

"... Cleanliness must be equal to that of our competitors. Buyers are becoming more and more quality conscious and we need to recognize this by changing our grain standards to suit the buyer."

Seeborg says the U.S. still leads in total wheat exports, but about 70 per cent of exports in 1960 and 1961 were under foreign-aid programs that did not provide the U.S. with dollar income.

Two women shot to death

EDMONTON (CP)—Two women were shot to death Thursday in northeast Edmonton and police were holding a 28-year-old man for questioning.

The man was picked up by police after he arrived at an Edmonton hospital carrying a child and a suitcase.

Further details were not immediately available.

Florida resort area hit

Sleeping sickness strikes

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—An outbreak of sleeping sickness, an unusual disease that affects the brain and nervous system, has hit this Florida west-coast resort area.

Pinellas County officials have reported 108 suspected cases of the illness, formally called encephalitis, and say they suspect eight deaths have been caused by it.

Publicity about the illness has brought repercussions. Motel and hotel operators along the gulf coast beaches say they have received numerous reservation cancellations, although most report they are filled up for the three-day Labor Day weekend.

Dr. Harry C. Oard, director of the county's communicable disease division, which is responsible for fighting the epidemic, resigned suddenly Wednesday without comment.

Sources close to the situation said Oard may have resigned because of pressure put on the health department by business and tourists interests in the county.

W. C. Ballard, health department director, said he has received numerous telephone calls critical of releasing figures on the outbreak to news media, but he added:

"No pressure that I know of was put on Dr. Oard to quit or to hold back information on the encephalitis epidemic."

Sleeping sickness is marked by nerve cell destruction, muscular weakness and lethargy.

Health officials say it is caused by the bite of a certain type of mosquito. It cannot be transmitted from one person to another. The mosquito gets the sleeping sickness virus from infected birds that migrate to the St. Petersburg area.

An all-out spraying campaign is on to try to eradicate the mosquitoes.

The encephalitis infecting this area is considered a mild form, but health experts say the fatality rate is estimated at 5 to 20 per cent.

The disease can be confirmed only by laboratory tests which take several weeks. This is why health officials used the word "suspected" in discussing cases.

The state health department so far has confirmed only one death and only 13 actual cases from the outbreak here.

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In a television season which, although it hasn't started yet, has a scarcity of new, fresh ideas, one hour-long show seems to be a standout: It's a Man's World. The word being passed along is that maybe the public will like it and maybe it won't, but it will at least react to this NBC series about four young men living on a houseboat in a mid-western U.S. college town.

The show's creator is Peter Tewksbury, who directed those durable Father Knows Best shows, and moved along to create, produce and direct My Three Sons. His trademark is creating young people — in television — who act like human beings, not "clowns."

"We give them dignity and a positive point of view," he said. The reason the four boys, ranging in age from 14 to 22, live on a houseboat, Tewksbury said, is to "get them away from authoritarian figures like parents."

AIMS AT YOUNG
Tewksbury, who is aiming his show directly at young people, thinks that perhaps the attention of the older crowd also may be caught and that the show may help them understand the puzzling younger generation.

Originally the series was called The Young Men, but that was abandoned for the new title, which Tewksbury doesn't like either.

"It's a desperation title," he said.

to be taken. South missed this play and wound up down two.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of going to three diamonds your partner has jumped to four hearts after your two no-trump bid. What do you do?

Show Business

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ken Maynard relaxed under the awning outside his trailer home and talked about the old days. "There was Tom Mix, Buck Jones, Hoot Gibson and me," he recalled. "They called us the big four of the westerns. We were all range cowboys and we had all come to pictures from wild west shows."

Ken's voice had a touch of sadness. This week he buried Hoot, whom he had known for 40 years in Hollywood. They had ridden the range together in a costarring series. They worked hard and played hard; back in the 1930s they cracked up a plane during air races.

"Hoot was hurt pretty bad in that crash," the old cowboy said.

Ken himself is knitting a broken shoulder and is once again rehearsing his roping tricks. He hopes to get back on the rodeo circuit before the season closes.

How did he break his shoulder?

"I should say that my horse slipped," he said with a hearty laugh. "But it was a darnfool thing—I fell off the top of the trailer."

Ken and his wife Bertha live in a cozy trailer near the centre of the city of San Fernando, 15 miles north of Hollywood.

Now a well-padded but still powerful 67, Ken spends many weeks of the year doing his roping act at rodeos and fairs.

A world's champion roper and bronco rider, he was starring in Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey circus when Fox brought him to Hollywood in 1922.

"I didn't know it at the time, but they brought me out as a kind of club to keep Tom Mix and Buck Jones in line," he said. "The boys were giving the studio trouble about options. Fox never used me, so I got out. I didn't have much trouble getting a job."

He became a star immediately and for 20 years appeared in one western series after another. His peak salary was $5,000 a week, but he netted as much as $8,000 a week when he was operating his own company.

Fabi will hire new men if strikers stay out

DERBY LINE - (Special) - Fabi et Fils have hired seven or eight new men to replace striking road construction workers in Vermont if the strikers are not back on the job by Tuesday, the beginning of next week after the Labor Day holiday.

These newly-hired men arrived by truck at the Derby Line office of the contractor Wednesday and were met by the pickets, who told them they were welcome to go in and talk to the company officials but not to start work. They left after a talk in the office.

Sam Fabi, general manager of the Sherbrooke firm, said Friday morning he is letting things rest until Tuesday in the hope that by then the men will have gone back to work of their own accord.

Mr. Fabi would not say what action the company would take if they had not returned to work by then. Fabi et Fils do not intend to have any further meetings with the International Union of Operating Engineers, (AFL-CIO) which is seeking recognition as bargaining for the men.

The company Thursday offered the strikers their pay for work up until last Tuesday, when the strike began. The strikers refused to be paid off in advance of Friday, their regular pay-day, but non-strikers accepted pay.

No work is going forward on the stretch of highway Fabi is building from Derby Line, Vt., to the Canadian border, except on overpasses handled by sub-contractors, whose workers the union is beginning to try to organize.

Meanwhile a number of grievances over working conditions came to light as other issues in the strike, which is principally for union recognition.

"When they lay a man off, there will have to be a reason for it," said Kenneth Wright, business manager for the union. Men have been laid off without reason or warning, he said.

Pickets on the scene at Derby Line told The Record the workers also want the company to supply face-protecting masks for men in the stone-crushing works. Each employee had had to buy his own mask until now.

The Fabi project in Vermont is nearing completion, and other strikers said that getting into a union would improve their chances for work on jobs elsewhere. The Operating Engineers, according to Mr. Wright, have organized every major out-of-state contractor which does work in Vermont except Fabi.

Pay, both sides agree, is not the contentious point in the strike.

The main issue is the union's insistence on an agreement to recognize it as representing the workers, and the company's refusal to sign one.

Mr. Wright described the task Operating Engineers have undertaken on the Derby Line project as one of "vertical organization", embracing every trade and job on the project.

Fabi workers normally work a regular week of 40 hours, and overtime at time-and-a-half beyond that. Some however, travel to the site from southern Vermont, and they complain that they cannot afford this commuting when there turns out to be only a few hours' work a day available.

Writ served on city to stop construction

A legal notice was served on the City of Sherbrooke Wednesday by Dewey Zaor, lawyer, demanding the stoppage of construction of an apartment house at the corner of Malouin Street and Jacques Cartier Boulevard in the North Ward.

According to the legal writ, on August 21st, 1961, the zoning bylaw for that area was changed from one in which one or two-family homes could be built to one in which apartment buildings could be constructed.

The point of legal contention is that the property owners in that area claim that they were not notified of the by-law change within the three days required by the city charter, Mr. Zaor said.

According to the charter, if six property owners in a zone which has had its zoning by-laws changed appear at city hall, they can demand a referendum, for that zone.

On November 16, 1961 a notice appeared in both Sherbrooke papers notifying property owners of the zoning change. This date was too late for the referendum to be called, Mr. Zaor said.

In January of this year, lot number 10-16 which is situated on the corner of Jacques Cartier and Malouin was bought by Gerald Grant from Comptoir de l'Estrie Inc., and soon after a building permit in Mr. Grant's name was issued for the construction of a $70,000 building.

According to the Sherbrooke registry office files the land and building are now owned by city Alderman Marcel Savard of the Sherbrooke city council. Change of ownership was registered Aug. 29, 1962.

According to the minutes of the Sherbrooke city council meeting of Aug. 21, 1961, Alderman Savard moved that the by-law change motion be adopted in three readings in one night. This was seconded by Alderman

Last voyage

MONTREAL (CP) - The small, 42-ton vessel Calanus, battered and worn after seven long years of scientific exploration in Canada's northern waters, arrived here Thursday to end what may possibly be her last voyage. Officials of the Fisheries Research Board of Canada said the Calanus will go into drydock for inspection and may have to be replaced.

Cecil Butters financial drive

Officials gather to discuss canvassing

MAGOG - (Special) - Campaign organizers and district chairmen heading the Cecil Butters Memorial Hospital drive for funds gathered at the Cabana Lodge in Magog Thursday evening for a banquet dinner and discussion.

James L. Reid, general campaign chairman, said the main purpose of the meeting was to allow his officials to ask questions and to explain the methods in which contributions could be solicited.

Mr. Reid said the need for funds was serious, and it was apparent that in order to gain full governmental support, the Butters institution organizers would have to build and equip the hospital first. The objective is set at $742,500.00.

Thanking those attending the banquet, Mrs. Butters said, "I thank you for the generosity you are displaying by giving so freely of your time to help us improve our hospital and provide such grave necessities as water and proper fire protection.

"I understand that the Eastern Townships have set as their objective $105,000 to cover the cost of the water supply. It would be wonderful if they could also secure for us the sprinkler system which will cost another $21,000.

All I can say is, thank you once again. God speed and success."

Art exhibition to open at Coaticook on Sept. 1

COATICOOK - (Special) - The first in a series of Fall exhibitions to be held at the Coaticook Art Centre will open Sept. 1st at 3 p.m.

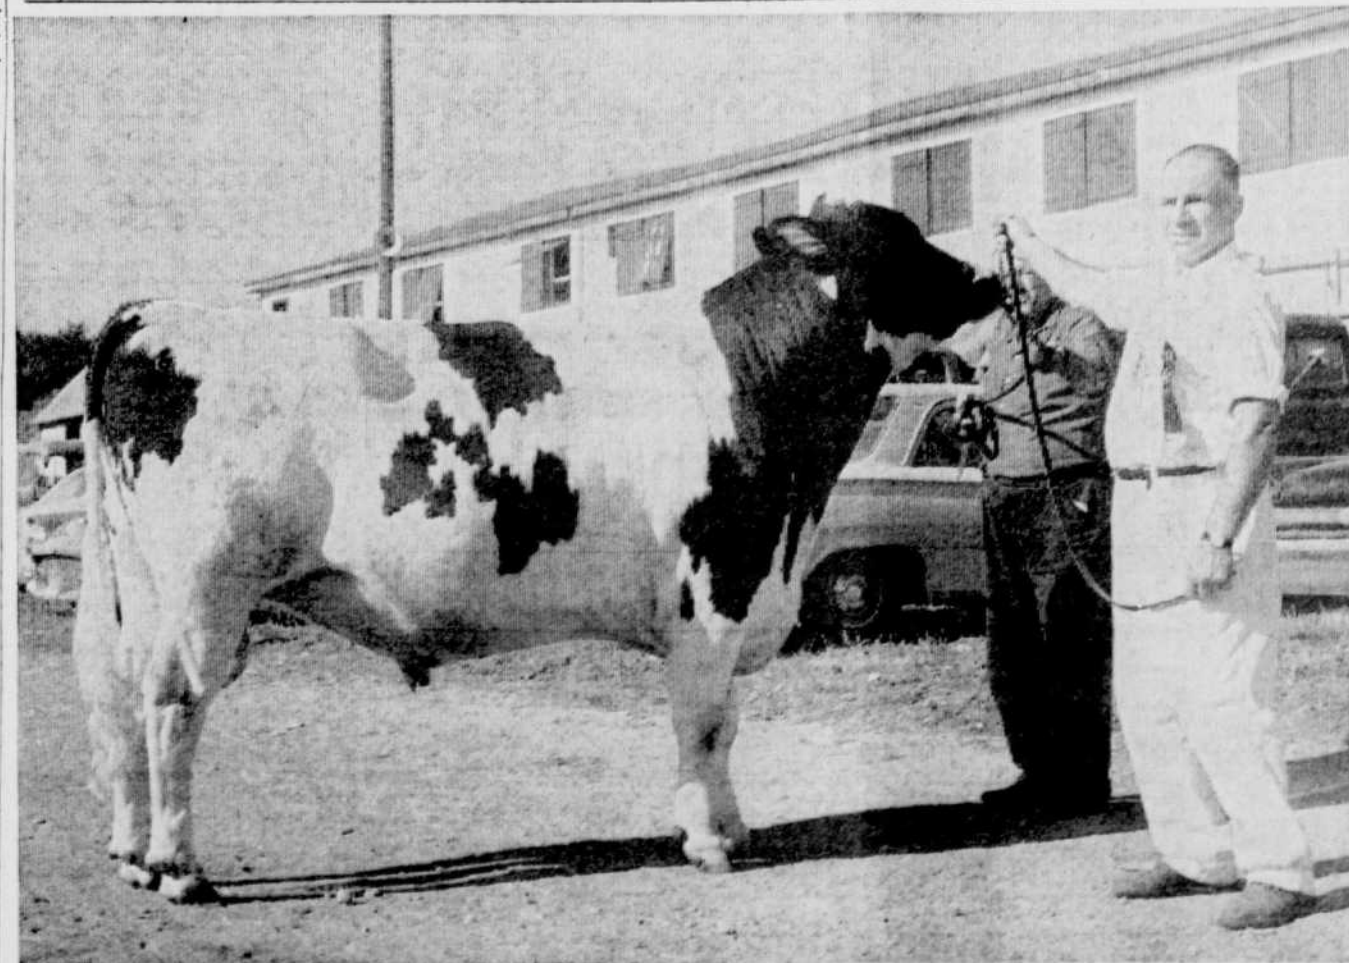

One of the two artists exhibiting at the month long showing will be Christiane Birs, in a display of ceramics and enamels. Born at Coaticook, Christiane Birs received her early education here, and at Waterloo. Later she studied painting at Montreal for a year and then enrolled at the Ecole des Beaux Arts at Quebec, receiving her diploma in 1954. For three years she has been instructing others in art in Montreal in the service of the Montreal Catholic School Commission.

The second artist, whose paintings will be shown, is from Drummondville. Olaf Bogstad, born in Norway, has lived in Canada for thirty-nine years. Twenty-eight years in Quebec. For the last 22 years he has been chief electrician for the Canadian Celanese Ltd.

Although Mr. Bogstad has always had an inclination to paint and sketch his interest in Community and Boy Scout work through most of these years has prevented him from realizing his ambitions and it was not until five years ago that he decided to take art seriously. As a member of the Drummondville Art Club, he has been guided in his work by various Montreal artists, including Alfred Pinsky and Louis Muhlstock. During summers he has attended the Summer School of Fine Arts at Southampton, Ont. His work has been shown on several occasions at local art exhibitions in Drummondville, but this is the first occasion he has exhibited outside of that city. Five of his paintings are presently entered at the Provincial Exhibition in Quebec City.

The show will be open to Art Centre members, and later the exhibition will be open free to the public all during September.

Secrecy and mystery out of place

The dismissal of the Richmond chief of police and fire, Gerard Paquin, is being attended by an untoward amount of secrecy and mystery.

And there are indications that the residents of Richmond are not entirely satisfied with the way the matter is being handled.

According to reports from the town, a petition is being circulated among residents asking for Mr. Paquin's re-instatement. By yesterday, said those supporting the petition, there were 300 names on the request.

In addition, members of the 12-man volunteer fire brigade are said to be threatening to resign from the department if Mr. Paquin is not taken back by the council.

Community councils, of course, have every right to dismiss municipal officers for good and valid reasons. Indeed, it is one of their duties to carry out such dismissals when the circumstance requires it.

But in this process, as in the carrying out of all public business, secrecy has no place.

The resolution to dismiss Mr. Paquin was unanimously passed, apparently with some suddenness, and with little or no explanation, by the Richmond council Monday night. The dismissal went into effect Wednesday night.

Since Monday's council meeting, both the Richmond mayor and the aldermen have declined to give reasons for their decision.

Mr. Paquin himself has said he does not know why he is being dismissed. This kind of a situation is an unhealthy one for two reasons.

First, because it arouses in the minds of those to whom council is responsible doubts as to the soundness of the decision. Rightly or wrongly, the feeling is that a council that does not tell why it does something — especially something so serious as firing a police chief with 12 years of service — is a council that has something to hide.

And secondly, the way in which the Richmond council has acted allows the wide circulation of wild rumours and unfounded speculation regarding Mr. Paquin. Surely, it is not the intention of the Richmond council to allow a man to be unjustly slandered by silence.

If the council was unanimously in favor of Mr. Paquin's dismissal, then its members must have felt they had good grounds. It is council's unavoidable duty to explain what those grounds were, and if they still feel the decision made was the right one, to defend it in a free and public atmosphere.

Last night's meeting in Richmond was a step in the proper direction. But concrete details are still lacking.

If a man did the odd jobs around the house only when he felt like it, they'd never get done.

Magog honors industrious citizens

For a town with a population of 16,000, Magog outshines many other communities its size—even larger ones—in drawing public attention to its achievements. The main reason for its success are the residents whose irrepressible energy and unflagging interest in civic and social affairs has helped to place the town in the limelight.

Germain Rivard, vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, could say with pride that "Magog had more national firsts per capita in 1961 than any other Canadian community."

He could support his statement by pointing to six residents who, in varied ways, contributed to enrich the community's life and publicize its name. Their efforts were recognized publicly this week when the C of C awarded them certificates and honored them at a banquet.

Their names and accomplishments deserve mention again.

Rev. Sister Gerard of Sacred Heart Convent founded the Notre Dame Girls'

Band. Mrs. Arlene Whittier established the Mount Orford Ski Patrol which won an international award in 1961.

Gerard Tremblay was cited because of the Memphremagog Conservation Club which he headed won first place among the province's fishing clubs.

Lorne C. MacPherson was mentioned for the unusual methods he used to promote National Wood Products Week. He paid his employees in negotiable wooden cheques and sent a huge facsimile to Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

Magog-born Miss Idola Simard was selected as Miss Canadian Textiles, 1961 and toured the country, promoting not only the textile industry but her home town.

Paul Hamel, a merchant, won a national contest on window decorations and dressing.

They are citizens who could serve as models for residents in other enterprising centres. It was fitting that they were thanked by their fellow-citizens.

The number of children a man has regulates the number of reasons why he can't do office work at home.

Other papers say:

Modern diplomacy has strange ways

The ways of modern diplomacy are strange. Once it was the custom that diplomats would exchange nothing but polite words in public. What they might do in private conversations with representatives of another country is another question. But publicly, the exchange was always marked with a politeness which may have been strained and cold, but was always polite. Heads of government could bluster and threaten, but unless it was a time of open war, the diplomats were largely non-committal in their public utterances.

There is much to commend the oldstyle diplomacy. It may have skirted the harsh truth, but it did keep nations from plunging into situations from which it is virtually impossible to extricate themselves. The mark of diplomacy in the present time is that almost anyone can become the spokesman of his country and hurl insults and charges against other nations. The result is a verbal vendetta which we have come to call the cold war.

It is unfortunate that this has occurred. What it means is that diplomats have become propagandists, and instead of seeking ways to agreement, they are busy concocting new weapons for the verbal warfare. They try to out-guess the other side in this respect, with the result that the possibility of achieving any unity of purpose becomes more and more remote.

One of the big sins of our time is to impute motives, to presume what is going on in the other person's mind. Admittedly, past experience is a reputable guide in this respect. Because the situation has not changed, it is quite easy to predict what this other person is going to try to do. But such out-guessing is a sin, because it serves only to stir up the unrest and distrust that in flames and drives apart.

What is needed is an objective approach from both sides, much more objective than has yet been tried. There needs to be a greater readiness to accept things at face value, and if there are reservations, to keep them quiet. We need some of that diplomacy of an earlier generation, for in losing it, we have strengthened the possibility that our verbal warfare may turn into a shooting conflict. Tightening up on bank overdrafts

National fiscal and monetary policies may appropriate the larger share of newspaper space, but we venture to say that the simple decision of the chartered banks to eliminate overdrafts on September 1 is among the more widely known measure of the moment.

Having read about this impending abandonment of an old English banking tradition in the more solemn financial journals of the country, we went around the corner to visit our bank manager the other day to confirm the news. He quickly did so, with explanation, we gathered, overdrafts are an administrative bother, although there was a complicated hint, in one of the aforementioned journals, that they were also unprofitable in the present condition of interest rates. However that may be, the complex paper work involved in honoring cheques momentarily unmatched by funds on deposit apparently not only involved the manager himself in an additional daily routine, but part of the time of two or three other employees as well.

We were suitably relieved to hear that the new rule would apply to corporate and government accounts immediately, but that individual depositors would not be so rudely handled — at least right away. Credit standing and reputation considered, the old practice would be tolerated, although we received the distinct impression that, some fine day in the not too distant future, the bankers probably will drop that habit, too.

Even so, we went away considerably cheered — our nationalistic emotions stirred not at all by the new knowledge that the no-overdraft principle is an American one which is enforced, without qualm, by branch managers from Honolulu to Hawaii. (Halifax Chronicle-Merald)

Only drugs not fully covered Saskatchewan medical care plan is most complete on continent

REGINA (CP) — Launching this summer of Saskatchewan's controversial medical care plan has provided the province's 920,000 residents with the most complete public health insurance services in North America.

The only health need not now covered fully is drugs although most drugs for hospital patients are paid for through insurance. Saskatchewan first moved into the public health field in 1911 with comprehensive free care for tuberculosis patients. Free mental health care was inaugurated in 1914.

In 1930 free treatment and diagnosis of cancer was instituted. In 1947 the present socialist CCF government began steps to provide a complete public health service by starting a compulsory hospital insurance plan.

On July 1 this year a compulsory medical insurance plan was launched. It was bitterly opposed by the province's doctors until an agreement on modifications was reached July 23.

Settlement of the dispute left four avenues open to Saskatchewan residents in seeking medical care.

They may go to a doctor working directly with the Saskatchewan Medical Care Insurance Commission which administers the plan. The doctor bills the commission directly and is paid 85 per cent of the 1959 fee schedule set by the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The patient may join a voluntary non-profit health group under which the doctor bills the voluntary agency with the agency paying him 85 per cent and collecting reimbursement from the commission.

The patient may go to a doctor practising outside the medical care plan, pay his bill in full and submit the bill and necessary information for reimbursement at the 85-per-cent rate from the commission.

He may deal with a doctor practising entirely outside the act and pay his own bill without recourse to the commission for reimbursement.

Settlement of the controversy over medical care came about only after concessions from both the doctors and government. The most significant government concessions were to permit doctors to practise outside the plan and to allow voluntary agencies to handle payments to doctors. But the fact remains that residents of Saskatchewan are compelled to pay taxes and premiums to finance the government plan whether or not they choose to be reimbursed by the plan.

Medical care is financed by personal premiums, a percentage of the sales tax—raised to five per cent last Jan. 1—and increases in personal and corporation income taxes. The plan is expected to cost $21,000,000 in its first full year of operation but will take only about $9,000,000 this year.

Since the plan was not scheduled to be in operation more than six months this year the government decided no personal premiums were necessary for 1962. The premiums, $24 a year a family and $12 a single person, will be collected for 1963 along with hospital insurance premiums in November.

The medical care premiums are expected to provide slightly more than $6,000,000 a year.

The annual hospital insurance premiums are $48 for a family and $24 for a single person over 18 and self-supporting.

The government quotes statistics to show that a family with an income of about $3,500 a year would pay $48.03 for the medical care plan. This is calculated on $24 for the premium, $18.75 as the medical care portion of sales tax (assuming the family spends about $1,250 on taxable purchases) and $5.28 in extra income tax.

Private medical insurance cost about $84 a year before the provincial plan went into operation.

Cost of the hospital insurance is $48 premium plus $18.75 as the hospital portion of the sales tax on the same $1,250 spent on taxable goods.

Thus total cost of the hospital and medical plans for a family with income of $3,500 would be $114.78.

and the $1,500,000 fire that swept the town in 1957, virtually ruined the economy of the town in northwest Nova Scotia.

A new project to get some of the unemployed miners and their families back on their feet has been launched by the provincial government. Earlier this year the government started an eight-week program to train 38 residents of Springhill as craftsmen.

With co-operation of a committee of Springhill businessmen, five instructors introduced 21 women and 17 men—all unemployed—to the manual skills necessary to earn money in wood refinishing, wrought iron work, wood-carving, weaving and knitting.

So far the project has cost the government only about $3,000 and the results have been "most promising and gratifying," says Ellis Roulston, supervisor of handicrafts for the province. "I'm very optimistic about the future of this project."

"If we can develop a handicraft industry in Springhill so that the men won't have to leave, much of the problem will be solved," said Mr. Roulston. "A co-operative of three or four men could become a centre for furniture refinishing, and there's a desperate need for that sort of thing."

"It would be an understatement to say that I have great hopes for this project," said Tom Taylor, suburban Halifax sculptor whose association with the province's adult education division prompted his dispatch to Springhill as "sort of an idea man."

The usual game of contract bridge was forgotten at the Lennoxville Golf Club, when bridge enthusiasts lined the greens to watch the lady shot-makers play a tomstonc competition. To most people on this side of the Atlantic the East-West conflict is little more than a bothersome bug which keeps on creeping on them from newspaper headlines and news bulletins. In the rush of the domestic worries of our affluent society, which has never experienced a direct threat from an aggressive totalitarian system, the whole thing tends to seem unreal or grossly exaggerated.

You can't really blame the "common man" in San Francisco or Vancouver or even in New York or Montreal, for neither feeling nor grasping the extent and intensity of the struggle. He is both physically and mentally too far from the tense line which divides the world into the realms of varying degrees of freedom and grim regimentation.

One has to cross the Atlantic—a jet-age journey of less than six hours—to begin to feel a general awareness of the deadly conflict. You sniff a mild dose of it in the easy-going atmosphere of England. It thickens the moment you cross the Channel, and its intensity mounts by leaps and bounds as you near the actual dividing line, the physical Iron Curtain of barbed-wire obstacles, watchtowers with concealed machine guns, and mine fields behind an endless 30-foot wide strip of ploughed land.

But to get the undiluted essence of the ugly reality of the East-West conflict, you have to go to Berlin. There, along the crude wall of bricks and cement blocks which cut the big city in half, you can't possibly avoid being deeply shaken by this fantastic monument to contemporary barbarism. Your mind still tries to dismiss the whole thing as a bad dream, but there it is, the naked, throbbing world crisis, right in front of your eyes. The jagged glass of broken bottles glistens in the cement layer on top of a high section of the wall which runs into a house with walled-up doors and windows. Down on the pavement there is a make-shift cross with the name of a woman who jumped from the third-floor balcony to her death on free soil. As you drive along the wall there are more such crosses. People bring flowers to soften the crosses' mute testimony of man's inhumanity to man in what passes for a period of peace or peaceful co-existence.

In Berlin, which could have become the prototype of co-existence of the two social systems which had several years for mingling in the street of the former German capital, the Communists finally found it necessary to wall in their helpless subjects. Now only the bricks in the windows of empty houses co-exist in peace with the crosses of those who died in their desperate attempt to escape slavery. Those who live behind the glass and barbed wire laced wall, which West Berliners call "the wall of shame", have no chance of co-existence with their kinfolk on the Western side. Even the water in the canals where the dividing line runs amidstream, has been made impassable by submerged wire fences. And those who try to get across or burrow under the barriers, provide practice targets for the innumerable guns on the Eastern side.

For a few months after the erection of the wall last August, patrols on the Communist side gained a reputation of being poor marksmen. In spite of concentrated fire on the escapes, few of the desperados got hit. Now few shots are fired that miss their targets. This change in East German marksmanship is due to two diabolical Communist measures. The Red authorities now pay 75 marks (some four dollars) for killing or wounding an escapee. However, unsure of the effectiveness of this incentive, they also treat every border guard who shoots and fails to hit as a political suspect. Hence the sharp increase of deaths along the wall and the canals in recent months. The guards now shoot to kill.

Apart from the intermittent Communist gunfire (which the city police on the other side is not permitted to reciprocate unless bullets start hitting West Berlin soil), the tension along the dividing line is manifested by a furious battle of words and wits across the wall.

At one point of the 30 miles of the barrier that divides Berlin I came across six Volkswagen minibuses, each mounting six loudspeakers on the roof, blaring music into the Eastern sector. A few yards behind the wall, which is patrolled on both sides by uniformed guards with sub-machine-guns at the ready, stood three huge army trucks, especially built for that purpose, making an infernal noise by playing brass pieces at top volume. Trying to shout a question proved useless amidst this indescribable din. In the middle of this battle of martial music, three of the minibuses of the Western side took off at top speed. Even a big Mercedes had difficulty to keep pace with them in the maze of suburban streets. After a few miles' race the minibuses stopped at another spot of the wall and within 30 seconds of their halt started broadcasting a news bulletin across the barrier. It took the Vopos (East German "people's police") ten minutes to find their opponents. In those ten minutes the whole bulletin, giving the day's news, was over and the Communists were greeted with cutting irony from the 18 loudspeakers on the Western side. The SAS crew ("Studio am Stacheldraht"—"studio at the barbed wire," as this West Berlin city—operated information service is called) has accomplished its mission of beaming uncensored news to the Vopos and the East Berliners who live near the wall.

Employment opportunities few

Springhill is still in doldrums

HALIFAX (CP)—Except for a handful of jobs made available by a few new secondary industries, employment opportunities at the former mining town of Springhill, N.S., have been few and far between during the last few years.

The 1958 coal mine explosion that killed 75 miners, following the 1956 disaster with 39 deaths, and the $1,500,000 fire that swept the town in 1957, virtually ruined the economy of the town in northwest Nova Scotia.

Anglican synod speakers

Urge more attention to religious basics

By CARL MOLLINS

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A distinguished bishop from Britain and a caribou hunter from Coppermine in the Northwest Territories share the spotlight during the eight-day Anglican church synod that closed here Thursday.

Both brought the same message in different ways — the first in the impeccable oratory of an acknowledged statesman in the church, the other in the Eskimo dialect of his people far above the Arctic Circle.

The message for the 34 bishops, clergy and laymen at the triennial assembly was a plea to look beyond the symbols and the jargon of religion and fix attention on the basics of Christianity and the world.

Rev. Stephen F. Bayne of London, former episcopal bishop of Seattle, Wash., and now roving ambassador of the world Anglican communion, told the synod not to waste time on "churchy" things.

"God is not concerned with churchy things," he said. "God does not spend much time in church—he is in the world."

Tall, white-haired and dignified in his purple robe, bishop Bayne tapped home his theme in low-key eloquence at the opening communion service, again during a discussion on mission work and finally at a service last Sunday.

FINDS WORLD TOUGH Alex Algiak, among the first Eskimo delegates ever to attend the synod in its 70-year history, said the church is dealing with troubled individuals in a tough world, where doctrinal dogmas and political squabbles seem irrelevant.

Squat, swarthy and perspiring in the southern heat, Alec delivered his message by telling a story through an interpreter to an assembly of churchmen who had just finished a heavy meal in a cafeteria at Queen's University.

"Perhaps you do not understand that in my country sometimes we have no food," he said as introduction to a story about hunting caribou after three days without a meal.

He told how, when he finally sighted some caribou, "my heart was like a waterfall," with excitement. How his rifle jammed and how, putting his faith to a test few sophisticated Christians would dare attempt, he prayed.

And then, "God told my mind to think of the right thing to do" to clear the rifle and get food for his family.

To probe US labor decisions

By ARCH MacKENZIE TORONTO (CP)—The federal shipping inquiry will take a good look at the question of the United States Labor Relations Board making decisions about Canadian ships picketed in American ports, Mr. Justice T. G. Norris said Thursday.

He warned counsel to prepare argument on the question, which arises from the export of a Canadian labor dispute to the U.S.

The Seafarers International Union of Canada (Inc.) has accused the Upper Lakes Shipping Company of a lockout because 1 a b o r contracts were switched to the rival Canadian Maritime Union.

In retaliation, while SIU picketing has been prevented in Ontario, American allies of the SIU are harrassing the Canadian ships with their Canadian crews.

Other details of SIU pressure were entered into the inquiry record Thursday.

Two Goderich, Ont., merchants said they had lost business for supplying Upper Lakes. They said the SIU had forced other lines to boycott the provisions.

THREATENED CHANDLER

Kenneth Elliott, a Hamilton ship's chandler, wrote the prime minister last year when a telephone caller warned that he and his truck would wind up at the bottom of the Welland Canal if he continued to supply an Upper Lakes vessel with food.

As a result, he said, the SIU had instructed ship cooks to make petty complaints about his supplies and demand credits to replace goods alleged to be faulty.

Mr. Elliott said he never had such trouble before but that it had eased up since the shipping inquiry began.

James Savoe, formerly a SIU member who shifted allegiance to the Canadian Maritime Union, testified he was given a job by a Quebec City detective firm retained by Upper Lakes Shipping. He said the agency personnel were his bodyguards because the SIU was after him.

But he said he had not been directly threatened by the SIU.

Propose ban talks continue

GENEVA (AP)—The United States proposed today that the three nuclear powers continue meeting during the fall recess of the disarmament talks to try to work out an agreement banning nuclear tests by the end of this year.

Arthur Dean, U.S. chief delegate, told the 17-nation disarmament conference his government believes it should be possible for the American-British-Soviet nuclear subcommittee to complete this task by Nov. 1 so a treaty could become effective by Jan. 1, 1963.

The disarmament talks are to recess from Sept. 8 until Nov. 12 while the negotiators report back to the UN General Assembly.

Joseph Godber, British minister of state, told the conference earlier today that Britain and the United States will not accept the uncontrolled moratorium on underground nuclear explosions proposed by the Soviet Union.

Godber praised President Kennedy for his qualified acceptance of the Soviet suggestion this week that all nuclear tests be suspended by the end of the year.

But Dean, speaking to reporters just before the session, emphasized that the Western powers will agree to cut off all testing only on condition that the Russians agree to the U.S.-British proposal for on-site inspections to guard against underground tests.

We who make whisky say:

DRINKING AND DRIVING DO NOT MIX

Fine whisky is a luxury and should be treated as such. And, knowing when to say "no" plays a great part in the art of sensible living.

Neither whisky nor any other alcoholic beverage has any place at the wheel of an automobile. This conviction must be shared by every thinking person who drives a car, particularly this Labour Day week-end when many holidaying families will be travelling on Québec highways.

If you expect to be at the wheel of a car this week-end, we say to you: Think before you drink. Don't drink before you drive.

Blueberry pie and muffins make scrumptious meals

By LOUISE MOORE

In digging up recipes for using the fragrant and flavorful little blueberry we wondered if the originator of some of those wild concoctions ever tasted plain blueberries and cream or a scrumptious blueberry pie made with berries freshly picked with the dew still upon them — dishes that make memorable eating.

You can have your old blueberry sherbets and blueberry salads. Give us blueberry muffins or an old-fashioned blueberry pudding made with slices of buttered bread — crusts removed — layered with sweetened stewed berries and left to chill in a mold until it slides out ready for a pouring of rich cream. Marvellous eating.

BLUEBERRY MUFFINS
Sift together 3 times — 2 cups pastry flour, 3 tsp. baking powder, ¼ tsp. salt and ½ cup sugar. Beat 1 large egg and combine with 1 cup whole milk and ¼ cup melted butter and ¼ tsp. vanilla.

Combine with dry ingredients only enough to moisten all dry ingredients—no longer or you'll have muffins with tunnels from here to there. Pour into greased muffin pan. Sprinkle tops of muffins with a little granulated sugar mixed with a whiff of cinnamon and bake in hot oven (425F.) 15 to 20 minutes or until done.

BLUEBERRY SQUARES
Cream a generous ¼ cup butter and gradually beat in ¾ cup sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Beat in 1 well beaten egg and ¼ tsp. vanilla. Mix and sift 1½ cups sifted pastry flour, ¼ tsp. salt, 1 tsp. baking powder and ½ tsp. baking soda.

Add to creamed mixture alternately with ½ cup thick sour cream. Pour into greased 8x8 inch pan and top with 1 cup prepared blueberries mixed with 2 tbsps. brown sugar ½ tsp. cinnamon and a little grated lemon rind.

Bake in moderate oven (375F.) 25 minutes or until done. Delicious served with butter or broken into pieces and served with sherried hard sauce—where are the scales?

BLUEBERRY PIE
Line a 9-inch pie plate with your very best pastry—rich and short. Combine 1 cup granulated sugar with 3 tbsps. flour, a few grains salt, a few gratings of lemon and orange rind or a pinch of cinnamon. Sprinkle ¼ of this over the bottom of unbaked pie crust shell. Put in 2 cups prepared blueberries and sprinkle another ¼ of sugar mixture over top.

Dot with butter and add another 1½ to 2 cups blueberries and sprinkle with remainder of sugar mixture. Dot with butter, using 2 tbsps. in all. Put on top crust with slits to allow steam to escape and keep the juice from bubbling all over the place. Crimp edges and bake in hot oven (425F.) 10 minutes then reduce heat to 350F and continue baking until pie is fairly oozing ambrosia. Serve slightly warm with or without ice cream. (TNS)

Bride elect entertained at shower

Miss Sharon Darby, a September bride-to-be was the guest of honor at a cup and saucer shower, held at the home of Mrs. B. Rachiele, Prospect Street, with Mrs. S. Gibson and Mrs. Rachiele as hostesses for the evening.

Upon arrival, the guest of honor was presented with a corsage of pink carnations and white baby mums, and escorted to a seat of honor.

To the delight of everyone, a baby carriage, decorated with pink and white streamers, was wheeled into the room, revealing many gaily wrapped gifts.

The bride elect in opening the packages one by one, expressed her delight, as each box, fifteen in all, revealed a very lovely bone china cup and saucer, everyone different in design.

After the gifts had been admired by all, the guest of honor expressed her thanks, and refreshments were served from the lace covered table, centered with a crystal vase of white and pink gladioli. A large white wedding bell and pink and white streamers completed the decor.

Assisting in serving were, the Misses Irene Cromwell, Joan Grady and Cynthia Wright.

Among those attending were Mrs. E. Darby, mother of the bride-elect, Mrs. S. Gibson, her grandmother and the prospective groom's mother, Mrs. G. Beerworth.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Cracking egg's tip keeps yolk where it belongs

DEAR POLLY — When separating egg whites and yolks for a cake, pie or what have you, it is so exasperating to have part of a yolk drip down into the whites. Whites with any yellow in them simply won't beat up stiff and it is the dickens to spoon completely out. To prevent this, break off the tip end of the shell and let the white drip through. Then really crack the shell to get the yolk out.

MARY T.
GIRLS—I couldn't wait to try this one, as I am a sloppy egg breaker. It is terrific. I used a table knife to crack off the end of the egg.

DEAR POLLY — I used to lose at least the last third of every box of paste shoe polish. Guess the kids just didn't

NEW READER
ALL YOU READERS — While we are thinking in terms of paste shoe polish, here is a favorite trick with my family. We polish furniture with brown paste wax shoe polish. After rubbing, the furniture acquires a beautiful soft patina. That is wax just as it comes—I am not sure what effect turpentine-softened wax would have on a furniture finish, so save that resoftened polish for shoes.

POLLY
DEAR POLLY — The brass finish on belt buckles often gets dingy and tarnished before the belt is worn out. Paint the new buckles with colorless nail polish and the brass shine is there to stay.

MRS. T. S. T.
DEAR POLLY — A decorator friend told me my living room table lamps were too low to be smart looking. My husband cut out square wood blocks—about four inches deep—to set the lamps on. The lamps are now higher and easier to read by, too. We painted the blocks black and glued them to the lamp bases to prevent accidents.

Little, kind remarks make life's brighter moments

Among life's brighter moments for a woman are:
Having guests ask her for the recipe of a dish she has served, and being able to say proudly that it is her own invention.
Being told she doesn't look a day over any age that happens to be 10 years younger than she actually is.
Having someone ask the name of her decorator when she has "done" her house without anybody's help.
Finding when she does buy a dress that she can wear a size smaller than she has been wearing.
Having a child who has been in the "Oh, Mother-er" stage for a long time begin to show respect for mom's opinions and suggestions.
Having a baby sitter tell her what well-behaved children she has.
Finally getting up the nerve to change her hair color and feeling like a different person every time she looks in a mirror.
Finding the dress she thought she couldn't afford on sale for half price.
Feeling well-dressed in an outfit she has made herself.
Finding exactly the right gift for someone usually hard to buy for.
Having guests call up the day after a party to assure her it was a wonderful evening.

Homeowner's use of curbs benefit both the house and the backyard

MR. FIX

A curb is not something useful only at the edge of a street. Most of the time that's about the only place you can find one. Ever find tire marks along the edge of the lawn, right alongside the driveway? With a curb on each side of the drive, it isn't likely that automobile wheels would slip over. A curb is useful along the edge of flower beds to keep dirt from washing loose, or along the edge of any area where there is a sharp change in the grade. Around walks near doors and basement windows it can divert water, thus avoiding flooding.

Fresh Start

A curb can be added even though the concrete work is in. If a walk, drive or patio slab is being freshly poured, the curb can be formed at the same time. The form around the outside should be high enough to allow for the extra height.

The board used in leveling off the concrete can be cut out at the end to allow for the extra height.

Curbs built later should have forms and separate excavation. If you live in a changing climate, dig down below the frost line — which may mean digging 18 to 24 inches — for best results. Make the bottom wider than the top.

Heavy Curbs

A heavy curb, one for the edge of a drive, should be 6 or 8-inches wide at the top, 9 to 12-inches wide below ground.

A curb for a walk or flower bed can be three inches wide at the top, five inches below ground. Since frost damage isn't likely with such a narrow curb, going down 10 or 12 inches may be enough.

Where the earth along the sides of the ditch is firm, forms will be needed only above ground. But if the sides crumble, build forms the full depth of the excavation.

Use two-inch lumber, brace with stakes and build the curb in five or six-foot lengths, separating them with tar paper.

Other Materials

If the thought of handling concrete keeps you from building a curb, consider other materials.

You can set flagstones, concrete blocks and similar material on end in a narrow excavation. Thick blocks of concrete or even marble can be made sturdier by filling the joints with mortar.

Heavy stones laid evenly along the edge of a path or drive will protect planted areas. Railroad ties or logs make a picturesque edging and if set in a slight excavation and staked, aren't likely to be shifted easily. (TNS)

B.C. girl runs mobile barnyard

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some city children don't know a calf from a colt or a goat from a deer.

But 19-year-old Sharon McArthur is out to change all that. Her summer job is running a mobile barnyard. She drives a truck and "barn" trailer from one shopping centre to another. The truck and barn were supplied by a dairy firm which thought up the idea. The animals come from Sharon's family's farm in nearby Cloverdale.

She carries two goats, Sandy and Sue; two pigs, Curly and Squeak; two rabbits, Peter and Pepper; two calves, June and Blossom, and a mother hen and chicks—Matilda and family. One youngster asked Sharon if she caught the "deer" herself. The child was pointing at a goat.

Children try to feed the animals everything from balloons to candy. Sharon, a 4H member, attends University of British Columbia where she has completed her first year in home economics.

YOUR GARDEN HEADQUARTERS

Variety is provided by color changes

By MARGARET E. DOVE
Toronto Telegram News Service

While it is true that the perennial border, once planted grows and flowers faithfully for years without a great deal of additional attention, the gardener usually likes to provide some variety to the basic planting each year by introducing color changes.

This is accomplished by the addition of annuals and a few perennials not already in the herbaceous border such as perhaps the hybrid varieties of astilbe which thrive in half shade.

HEIGHT VARIES

These attractive plants come in colors ranging from white and pink to rose, dark red, crimson and lilac. They are in bloom from mid-June through August, their heights varying from 5 feet to the dwarf chinensis pumila growing only 1 foot tall.

If bright splashes of yellow are lacking in the border now, this color can be provided by planting the perennial sunflower heliopsis incomparabilis or H. Golden Feather or H. Light of Laddon.

These plants bloom throughout July, August and September. H. incomparabilis growing almost 5 feet tall, has attractive daisy-like semi-double flowers 1 1/2 inches across on long wiry stems; the flowers are invaluable for cutting and excellent for drying.

Gray and silver-leaved plants add great charm to the border and as well will bring any conflicting colors into pleasing relationship.

WIDE CHOICE

There are quite a number from which to choose; Stachys (rabbit's ear) thrives best in full sun and it is a tidy plant with soft silvery gray leaves; S. lanata has spikes of carmine flowers and S. macrantha produces whirls of rosy purple flowers.

The plants are grown chiefly for their foliage, so interesting for the foreground of a border, and they should be divided every three years.

The artemisias (wormwood) are well known garden subjects. Artemisia Silver King

MAPLE GROVE

Mr. Jerry Maybe, of Saint John, N.B., was a guest of Mr. Lyle Cruickshank, for a few days during the week and with him spent the weekend in Waterloo and Montreal.

The dial telephone service did spin into reality at Leeds and vicinity on Aug. 16. The figures 174, followed by four other figures, will be common to each phone in Leeds, Kinner's Mills, Lemesurier, St. Pierre de Broughton, West Broughton, Wilson's Mills and Maple Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Baskin and sons, Robert, Weldon and Danny, of Nitro, visited the C. Cruickshank family.

Mr. Edgar Nugent has returned from a week with the Paul and family from Chomedey, where she Montgomery family.

with slender branching stems and leaves of frosty silver-gray, provides accent and height, growing 2 feet tall. A. Abrotanum (old man) is a shrubby plant with aromatic lacy gray foliage and A. piedmontana (old woman) has finely cut gray-green leaves. These three artemisias all multiply and spread rapidly; in a year's time one clump should provide enough plants for several groupings in a border.

SOFT APPEARING

Artemisia Schmittiana (silver mound) is compact and mound-like, growing about 5 inches high and 12 inches wide; the soft appearing fern-like silvery gray foliage is beautiful in the border's foreground.

A. lactiflora (milk-flowered artemisia) is quite unlike the other artemisias in appearance. It grows 5 feet tall, has attractive light green foliage and long panicles of pearly buds opening at this time of year to creamy fragrant flowers.

All the artemisias seem to withstand drought and heat, need no special cultural treatment and appear insect and disease free.

Colfax Rebekahs will cater for lodge banquets

KNOWLTON — Colfax Rebekah Lodge, No. 29, met in regular session on Aug. 16, with an attendance of 23.

In the absence of the Noble Grand, Sister Eleanor Roberts, the meeting was presided over by Sister Jessie Boyd, P.N.G. and Right Supporter of the Noble Grand.

It was decided to serve the banquet for the I.O.O.F. district meeting, taking place in Knowlton in October. As the District Deputy Grand Master, this and other arrangements for the banquet were left in the hands of the refreshment convener and her committee.

Brother Harry Wing also asked the sisters if they would prepare and serve a supper for the I.O.O.F. and Rebekah bowling teams, which all were in favor of doing.

Floor work to be presented at the annual Rebekah district meeting in Farnham on Sept. 28, was discussed and several suggestions made. The hope was expressed that a suitable Obligation Ceremony might be displayed.

It was announced that the visit of the president of the Rebekah Assembly, Sister Doris Drouin, of Montreal, would take place in October, on the same evening as installation of officers. Special arrangements for this evening will be worked out during the month of September.

A drawing at the supper hour in aid of the Kitchen Fund, was won by Sister Mabel Crandall.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed.

Als rally to down Granby, Coaticook edges Drumville 4-2

Take 3-2 lead in series, meet Saturday in Granby with return tilt here Sunday evening at 8.30

Alouettes staged a rally to nip Granby Knights 6-2 and take a 3-2 lead in their best-of-nine series while the Coaticook Canadiens pulled a surprise by knocking over Drummondville Royals 4-2 to take home an important lead in their battle. At St. Johns the Pirates eked out a close 6-5 win over the Beavers to stage off elimination.

On Saturday evening the Als travel to Granby for their next encounter and will return home for a Sunday evening fixture. On Sunday afternoon the Pirates will tangle with Acton and the Canadiens and Royals will square off in a Sunday double bill if necessary.

John Elias, who opened for the Knights, failed to last the distance and Coach Pratte rattled on both his top hurlers Cartwright and Burack to complete things. Al Hooker went the whole way to earn the decision for the locals.

Hooker gave up only five hits but seemed to have trouble with finding the plate as he issued eight walks which is unusual for him. He retired four at the plate. Good support by his mates helped him over his rough spots. Poole picked off two runners at different times to relieve some pressure.

The Als didn't get to Elias until the sixth when they managed to shove three runs across the plate. Elias issued five walks with them figuring in the scoring. The Als kept driving once they got out in front and managed to tally two more in the seventh and finished up with one in the eighth.

The Knights were the first to tally when they got a run home in the third and sixth for a 2-0 lead before the Als struck. Walks got Elias in trouble. Fine defensive work by the Als kept the Knights away from the plate.

Sherbrooke got nine hits off the three Granby hurlers with two doubles and three singles in the sixth and seventh innings to settle the issue.

Timely hitting by the Canadiens paid off although the Royals collected nine compared to 11 by the visitors. Bill Nagle paced the way with a homer for the winners. Canadiens jumped into a 3-0 lead in the third while the Royals moved within hailing distance in the sixth when they registered their two runs. Coaticook completed things in the ninth with a single run.

Injured finger on Rote's passing hand big question with Wirkowski, Als travel to Hamilton on Monday

An injured finger may hold the key to Toronto Argonauts' success Saturday in seeking their first victory of the season in the Eastern Football Conference.

The sprained digit, the index finger on the right hand, belongs to quarterback Tobin Rote, whose reputation is staked on his passing ability. With the handicap, Rote's passing accuracy is questionable.

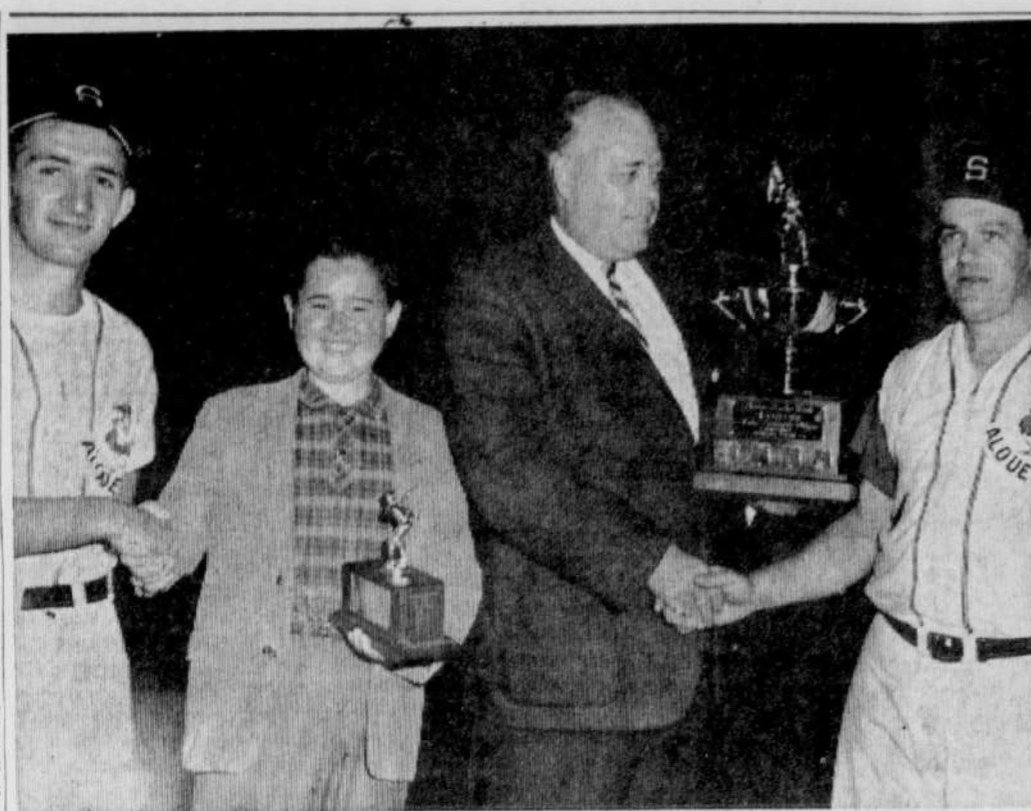

Toronto coach Nobby Wirkowski was expected to decide today whether Rote calls the signals against Ottawa Rough Riders Saturday. If Rote is on the sidelines, veteran Tom Dublinski is figured as the probable replacement with Pete Hall in reserve.

Rote suffered the injury Aug. 18 in a game against Hamilton Tiger-Cats. It bothered him last week against Winnipeg Blue Bombers when the finger puffed up so badly he was unable to pass properly in the Canadian Football League interlocking battle.

"It's worse now than it was a week ago," Rote said Thursday. "It's swollen more."

The Tiger-Cats and the third-place Montreal Alouettes are idle until Monday, when they meet in Hamilton. Hamilton quarterback Bernie Faloney will be back in action for the first time since he was injured Aug. 18 in a game against Argos.

Hawaiian-born Joe Francis is expected to replace Sandy Stephens in the Montreal quarterback slot against the Ticats.

Yanks open important series on Monday

Joy was unrestrained in Baltimore when the Orioles swept five straight American League games from the mighty New York Yankees last weekend.

"If we played like that all the time, we'd win the pennant," said general manager Lee MacPhail.

The Orioles don't play like that all the time and they are tied for fifth.

The lowly Washington Senators clipped the Orioles 3-2 Thursday night for the third time in four games since the Yankee sweep.

In the only other league game, Chicago White Sox widened their fourth-place lead to two games over Detroit Tigers by beating the Tigers 5-4.

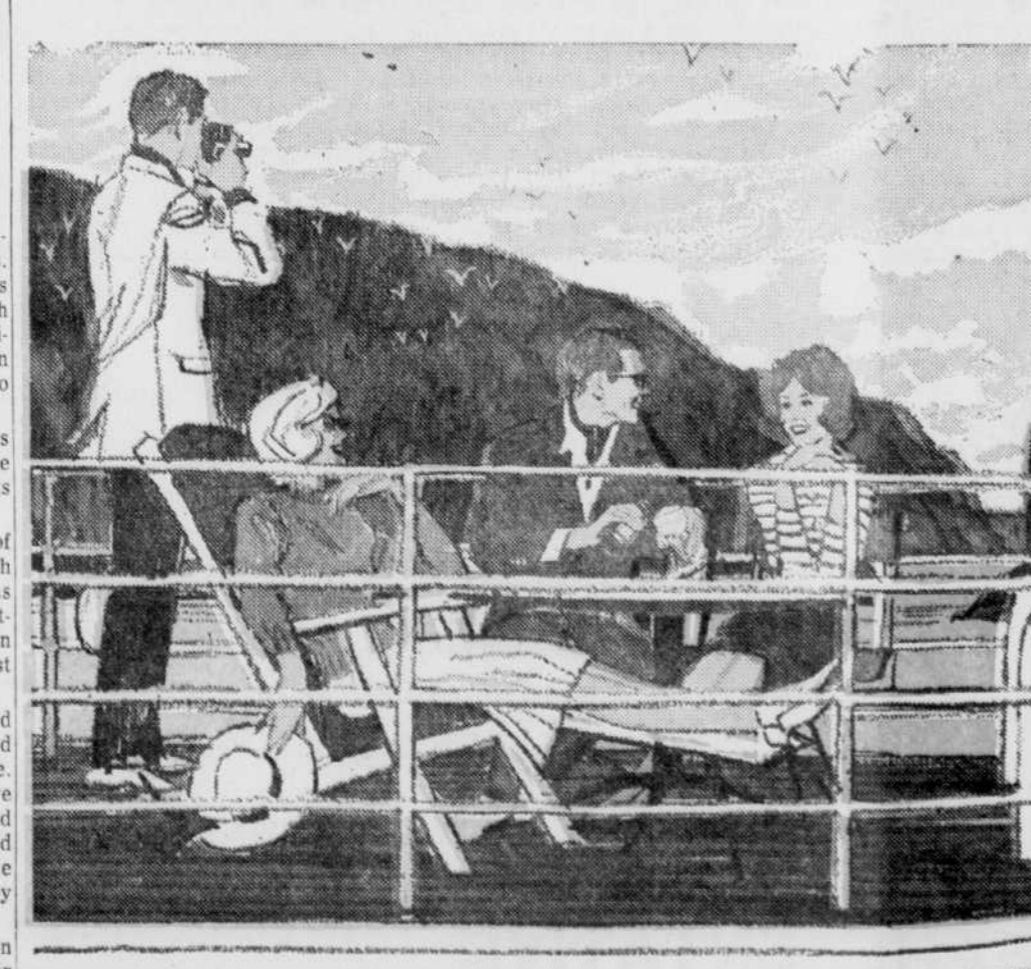

The Yankees, whose chances of blowing the pennant are really taken seriously only by the second place Minnesota Twins and third-spot Los Angeles Angels, open the final month's drive in the league race by entertaining Kansas City Athletics tonight.

The Yankees, says New York manager Ralph Houk, are putting pressure on the contenders in their own fashion.

"The closer they get to us, the tougher it gets on them," Yankee ace Whitey Ford (13-7) will go against Ed Rakow (12-14). The pesky Athletics beat the Yanks in three of five recent games. The Twins, two games back of New York, go against the Red Sox at Boston, with Dick Stigman (9-3) facing Bill Monbouquette (11-12).

Jim Brosnan saves game for Reds in ninth over Dodgers, Giants win as Mays clouts homer No. 40

Author-pitcher Jim Brosnan has just about finished his research for another literary effort. An appropriate title might be "Whew!"

Brosnan got a first-hand look Thursday night when he trudged out of the bullpen in the ninth inning and preserved a 5-4 win for Cincinnati Reds over the league-leading Los Angeles Dodgers. The triumph kept the Reds within range of the Dodgers in the National League race.

The third-place Reds led 5-0 behind Jim O'Toole's five-hitter when the Dodgers rallied in the ninth. Three runs were in, one man was out and the bases were loaded when Brosnan, who has written stories entitled The Long Season and The Pennant Race, got the call.

Duke Snider was the first batter against the 33-year-old relief specialist. He was called out on strikes. Maury Wills then beat out a hit, making it 5-4 and leaving the bases loaded. Jim Gilliam stepped up, worked the count to 3-2, then lifted a soft fly to centre field.

"Whew!"

WINS 13 STRAIGHT

The victory left the Reds 5½ games behind the Dodgers, who are 2½ in front of the second-place San Francisco Giants. The Giants closed ground as Jack Sanford posted his 13th straight victory with a 2-2 decision over Milwaukee Braves on homers by Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda and Jim Davenport.

While the pennant race was grabbing the spotlight, some other noteworthy achievements were recorded:

Mays' homer was No. 40 of the season, marking the fourth time in his career that he has reached the 40-mark and starting veteran hurler Warren Spahn down to his first August defeat in three years.

Pittsburgh Pirates clipped Chicago Cubs 5-3 and again had to call on relief ace Elroy Face. He responded with his 21st save of the year. Chicago second baseman Ken Hubbs played errorless ball for the 72nd game — one game short of Bobby Doerr's record.

Philadelphia Phillies used Don Demeter's grand-slam homer and a run-scoring single by Roy Sievers for five runs in the eighth inning to beat New York Mets 8-7. The Mets used five pitchers in the inning and tied a major league record.

O'Keefe Medal Play Championship draws classy field of 60 pros at St Hyacinthe, Joe Leblanc entered Competition will be real hot Saturday and Sunday, September 1-2, at the St. Hyacinthe Golf Club, when 62 Professionals from all corners of the Province fight it out for the celebrated "O'Keefe Trophy" and the attractive purses which total $4,000.

This year the stake is bigger than ever, thanks to the points system which could perhaps allow the winner of the Medal Play to qualify for a second trophy as well as another purse of $500. In fact, this tournament, which is the most important of the "O'Keefe Circuit" events, might well produce surprising results, since the points here count double. This means that a pro who seems far behind over the season's play still has a chance to clean up if he wins this coveted championship.

Needless to say, the present leaders, such as Jack Kay, Jean-Guy Perard, Stan Horne, Joe Leblanc, Jack Bissegger, Gerry Proulx, Normie Hunt, Franco Sirriani, Doug Dalziel and Phil Giroux, should make a maximum effort to stay ahead of their rivals.

At the same time, enthusiasm of the other players indicates that the victory might be fiercely contested, and that the spectators' gallery can expect both shocks and thrills throughout the play. Among others, St. Hyacinthe Club Pro Jean Giroux will be worth watching, as in a practice round he shot a 3 under par, 67.

Charles Payan, club president, emphasized that every effort has been made to keep the course in perfect shape, and experts do not hesitate to class the green here as among the finest in Quebec.

In the order of teeing-off, the last trio to go will include champions Stan Horne, pro from Islesmere, Joe Leblanc, Sherbrooke pro, and Jack Kay, the Pinegrove professional and winner of the "O'Keefe Medal Play Championship" last year.

BOWLING LEAGUES ORGANIZED — Jean Louis Dupuis, centre, is seen discussing plans with bowling officials for the coming season. In the photo are, Hubert Raby of the Raby Alleys, Gene Gingras, Jean Louis Dupuis of O'Keefe's, Jean-Marie Glaude, president of the Hotel Employees Bowling League, and Rudy Gamache, president of the Licensed Grocers League. A special meeting has been called for Sunday afternoon at 1.15 p.m. at Hotel Normandie and all players, ladies and men, are requested to be on hand. (Photo by Gerry Lemay)
