

GROWTH OF METHODISMFIGURES GIVEN BY SUPERINTENDENT
CARMAN IN HIS ADDRESSAT THE QUADRENNIAL METHODIST
CONFERENCE AT LONDON.Rev. Dr. Shaw, Of Montreal, Appointed Secretary—Various Reports Presented.

(Special to The Herald)

London, Ont., Sept. 6.
The meeting of the quadrennial
conference of the Methodist Church in Canada strictly obeyed one of the injunctions in their book of discipline by beginning their proceedings on the stroke
of ten.Prior to the meeting of the delegates
there had been a couple of committee
meetings, one of which at the sup-perannation fund, was held in Toronto
yesterday. The details of the proceedings of the committee will be presented to the conference. It will report the funds in a flourishing condition, and there will be recommendations looking to changes in the manner of adminis-

ting the fund. The revenue amounted to $50,114, which is a considerable increase over last year.The invested funds exceed $200,000, being an increase of $30,000 on the investments of 1893. At the close of the present financial year 204 ministers, 151
deacons, and 22,000 members were receiving support from the fund.Another committee, that of appeals, began its sessions also yesterday in this city. But only one matter was taken up and did not reach a conclusion. It was the case of Rev. Mr. Ash, of the Bay of Quinte.
Conference who is charged with conduct unbecoming a clergyman.The meetings of the committee are held with closed doors.As Rev. Dr. Carman, rapped the gavel, he announced that the meeting was an annual business and, therefore, the brethren should attend to the more heavily important business first. The standing committee on temperance characterized
the liquor traffic as a decided evil, at once
open with effrontery and insidious in
artifice and in its conduct a good deal
between it and the Church of Christ.
There never was a time when public opinion
was so forceful, and the church must
continue resolutely to seek the extinction
of the rum traffic. A report would also
come of Sabbath observance and on transfers.
There had been several important cases
before the Court of Appeal.The quadrennial and decisions of much weight and value had been given. The influence of appeal in this regard was inestimable. It was of the highest importance to the church and discipline have but one meaning and voice
the Church. He had found instances where the discipline could at least be made plainer, and he quoted a number of instances. The work of the committee on the subject was dealt with briefly. The superintendent then referred to the work, revising it in detail, as to visits made.
British Columbia and Bermuda (a part of Nova Scotia Conference), might demand special legislation with regard to itinerancy.There was an incident at the opening of the conference session in which a good natured laugh in which the General Superintendent heartily joined. It referred to an occurrence of the afternoon. When the presiding officer had given his casting vote
to strike out the reference to tobacco
of the committee on temperance, he had discovered, to his surprise, that he had no jurisdiction in the matter and therefore
he withdrew his vote, leaving the tie as it stood, 83 to 83. As this vote was a motion to strike out the reference to tobacco, the negative prevailed, and the reference of the committee was "Temperance and Tobacco."The report of the Board of Regents of Victoria University, shows a gratifying improvement since the removal to Toronto.
Fourteen have graduated to the degree of
B.D. in the four years.The report of the Book Committee contains these references to the Montreal book room. This branch was established in the month of May, 1875, and although for the first five years it was carried on at a loss,
it has shown a gratifying increase for the last four years, every year yielding a profit. There has been an increase in the sales during the last quadrennium of $7, 619.30, and in the profits of $1,832.20, and the capital stock is now $6,968.56. The removal in April last to a more commodious store and in a better locality (2170 St. Catherine Street), is regarded by all as a good move.The report of the Wesleyan Theological College, Montreal, was presented by Dr.
Shaw. From this it is learned that the number of students enrolled the past
quadrennium has been on an average 700, and that these 12 per cent have taken the course in McGill University, 20 per cent, the course for the degree of B.D., 40 per cent, the course for licentiate
in theology, 67 per cent, the conference
course for probationers and 10 per cent,
preliminary or matriculation work. The average age of students on matriculation
has been 18 years, 10 months, and 15 days.
The number who have graduated in the licentiate course is 27, and for the degree of B.D. 22, of whom 15 have graduated in Arts. The financial condition of the institution may be briefly stated as follows. In 1890 the endowment fund was $31,720. It is now $68,000, real estate and equipment are valued at $62,000,
making the total assets $130,000, which are free of debt. The needs for current account will appear from the fact that last year's income and expenditure amounted to $8, 647.55. The boarding department is separately administered from the current account and in its last year's income and expenditure respectively were $11,299.56. The report closes with a feeling reference to the late Dr. Douglas and his work.The main incident of the afternoon's
proceeding was the reading of the address of the general superintendent, Bishop Carman,which dealt in detail with several matters of interest, and cursorily touched upon several others. In opening, the superintendent said he trusted they were assembled with one accord in one place, and he prayed that they might come from Heaven the promise of the Father and fill
all the house and all their hearts, not perhaps that they might speak in other tongues
than their own, but that they might restrain and wisely direct their speech in all
good counsel and in all brotherly love.
A decade had now passed since the constitution of the union of Canadian Methodism
and in the providence of God they were now
gathered in the fourth general conference.
Well might they bow themselves before
God in deepest humility, and at the same time rejoice in his holy will with gratitude
and ceaseless praise. At the ratification conference of 1883 the membership of the church was 169,803, now the membership is 260,692, an advance of nearly 100,000, or over 60 per cent, in the ten years, and an average of 9,000 a year increase over all losses for every year of the decade.In 1883 the number of Ministers and probationers was 1,633, now the number is 1,996. In 1883 the number of Sabbath schools was 2,706, the number of scholars, 22,434; scholars, 175,052; now the number of schools is 3,251; teachers, 30,807;
scholars, 252,540. In 1883 the missionary income was $193,703, and book room property stood at $149,002; now the annual missionary income has reached $249,000, an increase of nearly 30 per cent, and the property of the mission has increased to $231,- 580—considerably more than double in the ten years. At the union the superannuation and superannuation funds of all the churches amounted to $238,832, now the sum total is $279,857. In 1883 the college and educational property was valued at $903,719.73, now the value is $1,504,993.
What should they say to a showing like this? To whom should they give the glory? What does the Father above and the Judge of All say to this showing? An increase of over 60 per cent. What does the Father say on the spiritual barometer? Could they say 50 per cent. increase in piety
and brotherly love? Fifty per cent.
increase in zeal and liberality in devotion
and fidelity to God, in faith and power—might they not have done better? Were they putting away everything that hindered the work of God? There had been, thank God, very little among them to excite apprehension with regard to the orthodoxy of their theology.Several of the brethren present at the last general conference had been ennobled to their reward in glory—a Stafford, a Laird, a Gray, a Douglas,
a Ferris from the ranks of the ministers,
a Ferris from the laymen. The death of Rev. James W. Carman, the office of clerical treasurer of the Superannuation
Fund, which had been filled by Rev. W. S.
Griffith. The superintendent touched on the proposed union with the Evangelical Association, and referred to the growing spirit of unity. Correspondence had gone on in reference to the attitude of others had been done. The correspondence was submitted. The Ecumenical Conference was referred to, and especially the salutations at the conference from other churches.
The committee on Privileges, dealing with the question of precedence on State occasions, wherein it was held that precedence was given to the Church of Rome,
submitted their report, and it might be well
for the present conference to renew the provision for continued action, and possibly to open up the way to proceed
without reference to the attitude of other churches upon such questions. The standing committee on temperance characterized
the liquor traffic as a decided evil, at once
open with effrontery and insidious in
artifice and in its conduct a good deal
between it and the Church of Christ.There never was a time when public opinion
was so forceful, and the church must
continue resolutely to seek the extinction
of the rum traffic. A report would also
come of Sabbath observance and on transfers.

CAUSED A CRISIS

THE DISCLOSURES REGARDING
THE IRISH CONTRIBUTIONS.Mr. McCarthy May Retire—Timothy Healey Would Like to Succeed Him.Dublin, Sept. 6.—The Evening Echo, in its issue to-night, says it is able to state that the anti-Parnell section of the Irish Party regarded the disclosures regarding the check for 100 pounds given by Mr.
Gladstone to the Irish Parliamentary Party's fund as the most serious they have been confronted with since Mr. Parnell's death.
Indeed, it is not disguised that the future of the Party is gravely imperilled and that important events may transpire within a few days.The paper adds, "It is understood that Mr. McCarthy, the leader of the Anti-Parnellites, will be only too glad to profit
by the first opportunity to retire from the leadership and this, in fact, has been urged upon him by several of his colleagues.
In the event of Mr. McCarthy's retirement
there will be a determined fight for the leadership. Timothy Healey has set his mind upon being the leader of the anti-Parnellites and he is prepared to start a new Dublin daily newspaper with money supplied by a wealthy friend in order to push
his claims."The paper further states: "We doubt,
however, whether the Parnellites will benefit by the changes, as we learn that the McCarthyites threaten to make public certain financial negotiations on the part of the Parnellites, which will show that both factions are in the same boat."

BRITISH WARSHIP ASHORE.

Ringsarooma Struck off Reef Near the New Hebrides.Sydney, N.S.W., Sept. 6.—The British warship Ringsarooma, eight guns, a twin-screw cruiser of 2,575 tons, and 4,000 horsepower, detailed for service in Australian waters, is ashore on a reef off Mallicolo Island, New Hebrides. The British warships Dart, Lizard and Wallaroo have been ordered to the spot and the French cruisers Scorff and Lovatave have started for Mallicolo Island, in order to try to be of assistance to the endangered warship. It is believed that the officers and crew of the Ringsarooma are safe.The Ringsarooma is a third-class cruiser, commanded by Captain Samuel A. Johnson.
She was commissioned at Devonport on February 2nd, 1891, and is engaged in the protection of floating trade in Australian waters.The Ringsarooma is in a critical position,
and it is feared that she will become a total wreck.

CANADIANS CUT WAGES.

U.S. Commissioner McSweeney Has Evidence to That Effect.Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 6.—Special Immigration Commissioner McSweeney finished his investigation here yesterday. He heard any amount of complaints against Canadian labor. He said from the evidence given, he was satisfied that the Canadians had cut down wages 25 per cent. in this city. He believed that Congress would readily pass
an immigration bill covering all these cases.
His report will be made to the secretary of the Treasury early this winter and that report will recommend certain legislation to meet the difficulties in different parts of the country as they find.

opening of the evening session a cable
message was received from the Pope conveying his Apostolic benedictions to the association. To-morrow afternoon a special train will leave at 2 o'clock with delegates
who have accepted the invitation of the Halifax branches to visit that city. To-

NEWS FROM KINGSTON.

Tug Walker Floated—Killed While
Lighting His Pipe.(Special to The Herald.)
Kingston, Ont., Sept. 6.—The tug
Walker, which was fast on a shoal opposite Iroquois, was pulled off to-night. It appears that on Monday night her tow of six
light barges broke loose and drifted down
the river. The tug, while trying to pick them up, was overtaken and remained
there until another of the Company's tugs succeeded in getting her off.Miss Beaudry, daughter of Moses Beaudry, Grattan Township, whose clothing was ignited by an exploding lamp and whose body was frightfully burned, died on Friday last and was buried at Eggleston.Isaac Tuttle, father of Solomon Tuttle of this city, was struck by a train and killed
on the Adirondack Railway track. He sat down on the track to light his pipe, and
while doing this a train came on him before he had time to get out of the way. The body was brought here to-day.

ROUGH ON GOULD.

NO MORE YACHTING RACES WITH
THE PRINCE OF WALES.Severe Comment on Rich Men who are not Certified Sportsmen.New York, Sept. 6.—The Herald's cable
from Hamburg says: "Early this morning the day when the Cape May Cup should have been raced for, and when it was still hoped that the race might be made, an early mail was put into the coffin of Mr.
George Gould's reputation in the sporting world, and by the time the telegram received
by the Prince of Wales:

"To the Prince of Wales, Hamburg—

"Have had heard taken off centreboard trunk. Found board quite gone. Knowing you would not like to race under such circumstances, have allowed Gould to withdraw his challenge."

(Signed) WILLIAM JAMIESON."

As everybody in the yachting world knows, Mr. Jamieson is the splendid amateur helmsman who stood at the tiller of the Britannia in all the races with the Vigilant,
and in those charge His Royal Highness
left his crack yacht to the vigilance of the reply sent was:"William Jamieson, yacht Britannia, Coves:"Telegram received. Quite approve your decision."

(Signed) ALBERT EDWARD."

It is no use beating about the bush in regard to the feeling which now exists on this matter. One thing certain is that Mr.
Gould will not find it possible to engage in any more of the kind of racing which he has, above all things, right good sportsman, and thoroughly English in that respect. As such he naturally regrets the unusual methods which have been adopted as regards the Vigilant.The Prince is perfectly ready and willing to meet any good American sportsman
who may bring crack yachts over here, but deprecates entirely such aliphid and unsatisfactory tactics as have been developed in the Vigilant-Britannia matches of yesterday, which, unfortunately,
instead of stimulating international yachting have caused bitter feeling. That supposed losing of the centreboard, which was only jammed, the excuses of a drunken sailor at the centreboard, and this final unpleasant incident, the centreboard did not come within the Prince's idea of what first-class
yachting should be.An American gentleman here to-day said,
reflecting very much the ideas of the Prince,
that in future it would be well in international yachting that an understanding
should be come to, that any American coming over here to challenge for first-class
yachts should bring with him a certificate from the New York Yacht Club that he is a representative yachtsman, so that in future no rich man who is not a sportsman would be liable to create uncomfortable situations, such as could not possibly occur in the case of a genuine yachtsman.The same rule could be applied to English yachtsmen going over to challenge the United States. It is to be hoped that the New York Yacht Club will at once take up the matter.London, Sept. 6.—The Westminster Gazette, containing the withdrawal of the Vigilant's challenge for the Cape May cup, says: "Mr. Gould cannot be considered to have come happily out of the Cape May business. He at first insisted that he would hold the Prince of Wales to the contest,
when it was a foregone conclusion that he would be compelled to accept the favor he declined to concede."The accident which is alleged to have caused the difficulty is not intelligibly explained on behalf of Mr. Gould. It is not surprising to hear that the news of the disaster went round in many quarters with derision. There is a suggestion of "sham-panty" about the matter of the accident,
which was at first kept dark, that does not commend itself to British notions."The New York Herald says editorially that it is a despicable wish will be an authority for the conduct of all
future yachting events of an international character more especially those between England and America.
And that there could be no fairer proposition than that a first-class challenge
should be made by a yachtsman coming over
to challenge in first-class races should bring
with him a certificate from the New York Yacht Club that he is a representative yachtsman. The same rule to be applied to English yachtsmen going over to challenge in the United States.

BREVITIES.

H. Singleton presided at the weekly concert of the Catholic Sailors' Club last night.
As usual there was a large attendance of citizens and seamen, and a first-class programme was rendered.The Montreal Field Battery will hold annual mounted parade on Saturday next.
They will start for the Drill Hall at 1:30 p.m. and proceed to the Lower Lachine road for shell practice and driving.Two houses were destroyed by fire at Outremont Wednesday night. They were in the occupation of Messrs. Poirier and Lapointe and caught fire at a late hour.
The loss is estimated at about $4,000.At the Temple Emanuel, Stanley Street below St. Catherine, an address will be given at 8 o'clock to-night on "Judaism's Mission." Miss Ella Walker and Miss Ada Moylan will sing solos.Some statues belonging to a coal dealer named Hayes and some sheels belonging to a man named Dubois, situated in Cape City of 219 St. Charles Borromeo Street, caught fire at about 11:25 last night, but the flames
were put out before much damage was done.An inquest was held at St. Anne's yesterday on the body of H. Duchesne who was drowned there Monday night. The verdict was accidental drowning.

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES MAY BE LABOR CONGRESS
DELEGATES.Discussion as to the Advisability of Forming a Labor Congress.Ottawa, Sept. 6.—At the meeting of the Trades and Labor Congress this morning,
the Committee on the President's address
reported as follows: "Having carefully examined the President's address we heartily concur with the suggestions and recommendations excepting wherein, he recommends that it behooves us to again
and again knock at the doors of the Government until our just and reasonable demands are granted. We believe that the time has arrived to stop knocking at the Government doors, and the time has now arrived to take such independent political action, as will leave the doors open to us all the time through the formation of an independent labor party."It was decided that in future labor
matters arising from the organization
presented at Ottawa by the head officers of the executive.Delegate Burlington, of Montreal, moved
the adoption of the clause relating to the forming of a labor party.He said that the laboring men had been tried with all along by the Government.Delegate Draper, of Ottawa, asked the Congress to proceed slowly in this direction.There was considerable discussion, but on motion of amendment presented by Delegate O'Donoghue, the President's address was adopted on a vote of twenty-nine to five.During the afternoon the members of the Congress visited the Printing Bureau and lunched at Rock Cliff Park.Ottawa, Sept. 6.—At the Trades and Labor Congress to-day at the forenoon session a resolution to amend the constitution,
fixing the hours of Congress session from 12 a.m. and 2 to 5 p.m., was voted down.A committee, consisting of Delegates Carri, Toronto; Plumb, Prescott; Beau-
dreaux, Montreal; Patterson and Legge, of this city, were appointed to bring in a recommendation relating to the formation of a Canadian organization that shall have power to issue charters and levy capital taxes to labor organizations.The resolution which was held over from yesterday to make Government employees
ineligible as delegates to the Congress was then brought up and caused a lively discussion.Delegate Smith of Ottawa, moved in amendment that only persons employed by the year by the Government be excluded from the Congress.Delegate O'Donoghue, of Toronto, said he had been an employee of the Government
for years, but his ideas on labor had not changed. Many looking for Government situations, and were not able to secure them, were the most dangerous.The meaning of the resolution was that a man
accepting a Government position was a fraud as a labor man. There was not a member of Congress who would not accept a good Government position if it were offered to him.Delegate John, of Quebec, thought that the Congress had no power to say who should be sent to it as delegates. This matter rested with the Labor Unions that sent the delegates.The resolution was lost by a large majority.The Trades and Labor Congress held an evening session, and discussed the advis-
ability of admitting the Patrons of Industry, the Grangers and the Single Taxers. The Committee to whom the replies from subordinate organizations were referred, reported that ten reports had been received
in all, six of which voted for taking in all three organizations, and one the Patrons of Industry and Single Taxers, while two were opposed to their admission, and one was indefinite. The question was then closed.On motion of Delegate Lafontaine, a resolution was passed calling for the abolition of the law permitting the seizure of wages
for debt in the Province of Quebec. He spoke disparagingly of Montreal lawyers.Delegates O'Donoghue and Carri moved a resolution that whereas the succession after death tax is recognized as a step in the direction of justice, be it resolved that in the opinion of this Congress the principle in the succession tax should be extended so that it should apply to the assessment of real estate and personality. The resolution was referred to the incoming executive.Delegate Langevin, of Quebec, moved,
and Delegate Little of the same place
seconded, a motion to drop the subject of the scheme, which the former had prepared for the settlement of the unoccupied lands of the Northwest.The scheme was in effect to send the unemployed people from the centres of population to the Territories and then have them
educated in the art of agriculture as well as
get a military training so that they could be called upon in the case of necessity to protect the settlers. In this the service of the mounted police could be abolished. The matter was referred to a committee and Congress then adjourned.

TRADES UNION CONGRESS.

Norwich, Eng., Sept. 6.—At to-day's session of the Trades Union Congress, Henry Lloyd, the representative of the American Federation of Labor, delivered to the delegates a message of good wishes from 800,000
American laborers, who, he said, believed that the time was ripe for the world's wage
workers to unite.CHARLOTTETOWN COUNCILLOR KILLED.Charlottetown, P.E.I., Sept. 6.—Charles R. Robertson, aged 46, a merchant tailor and councillor of this city, met with a shocking
accident at Kensington, at noon to-day,
which resulted in his death one and one half hours later. He was on his way to the Summerside races and alighted at Kensington. The train was moving when he went to get aboard and he missed the hand rail, falling on the track.The car passed over both legs, breaking and mangling the left leg near the thigh and badly cutting the right leg. The left leg had to be amputated and half an hour after the operation Mr. Robertson died.

MADMAN'S ANTICS.

William Brophy and His Escapades on Anderson Street.A man named Wm. Brophy, dressed only in a pair of trousers and supposed to be in a fit of "D.T.s," made things lively in the vicinity of 13 Anderson Street yesterday afternoon about four o'clock. Mr. Brophy was visiting at 13 Anderson Street and at the hour mentioned took an insane desire for brevity of costume. He tore most of his clothes off and rushed wildly into the street a few numbers down to No. 6 where
Mr. and Mrs. Feeley reside. Brophy broke seven panes of glass in Feeley's house, and smashed a glass door and finally got inside.
He seized Mrs. Feeley between her husband could stop the human beast.Then a fierce fight followed between Mr.
Feeley and the madman. Meanwhile policemen from No. 5 were on the spot. A terrible tussle ensued, for Brophy was wild and powerful. The patrol was called while Brophy was being bound hand and foot.
There was plenty of fun for Constables Mercier, Lafard and Belanger getting the man in the Patrol. Once at the station more fun began, for no sooner
was Brophy free in the cell than he danced
all kinds of gavottes, and tried to drink a glass of water with the back of his neck.
He tore up the boards provided for sleeping
purposes and bruised himself badly before he was forced to be quiet. He tore his scarce trousers into shreds and stood stark
naked. How the well dressed prisoner will reach the Central in decency is a problem for Kellar, Herrmann, or the police to solve.

AMUSEMENTS.

William Cartwright, one of the most popular songwriters in the United States
and an excellent comedian as well, will be seen as "The Tramp" in Edmund Collier's new play, "The Cross-Roads of Life" at the Queen's Theatre next week.
Mr. Cartwright has been warmly praised by the New York critics for his clever work.
His make-up is a study in itself. He will sing his best success here entitled
"Johnny, my Old Friend, go on." "The Cross-Roads of Life" will be presented with an abundance of scenery and some of the settings are promised to be the most elaborate ever seen in this city. The Shumrock Amateur Athletic Association will have their theatre night next Wednesday. Mr. Collier has many warm friends in the association and they are anxious to give him a send-off.A committee, consisting of Delegates

dreaux, Montreal; Patterson and Legge, of

DEFEAT OF WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Mrs. Stanton Discusses the Act of the New York Constitutional Convention.

I am asked how I feel about the action of the constitutional convention on the suffrage question.

Suppose I had had a fine estate left me with executors who, as prodigals, were in extravagance, dissipation, fraud and corruption rapidly depriving my children and myself of the means of future livelihood. Then suppose I had applied to the courts to vindicate my rights, to appoint new executors or to allow me to administer the estate. Then suppose my appeal was made to a small body composed mainly of very ordinary men, who said they could do nothing; that the case was not of sufficient consequence for the consideration of so august a body or even to submit it for adjudication to a more ordinary body, the people.

In the nature of things how must a woman feel under such circumstances? Depressed, indignant, humiliated, anxious and apprehensive for the future. That is as I feel now.

The condition of our country, the disgraceful proceedings in Washington, the strikes, the terrible revelations of the wholesale corruption in our metropolises and in every department of government as well as in the business world, brought to light by investigating committees; the rapid concentration of wealth in the hands of the few—all this fills me with apprehension as to the safety and stability of a government composed of men alone. Women and children have equal rights and interests in this heritage left us by the fathers, and I am not willing to trust our future welfare in such hands as administer our government today.

If we stand parleying with such classes in power another half century, the mass of the people will have no rights, privileges or immunities for which to contend. We must prepare at once for political action and inaugurate a people's party. Rejected by Republicans and Democrats, our political aristocracy, we must cast our lot with the laboring masses, of whom many thousands joined us in our petition for the right of suffrage.

If we are to save anything from the wreck of our national fortunes, we must try some new methods of action at once. When 97 men can play football with the rights of half the people in the state, and that half meekly accept the abject condition of mere subjects in a so-called republic in direct violation of every principle of our government, the women of the Empire State might as well be under the czar of Russia as the American flag. We have pleaded our cause in congress and courts and the halls of state legislation, but failed thus far at every point. What next? The excuse of the 97 men who voted "No" was frivolous to the last degree. They said "the majority of the women of the state did not make the demand."

Have the majority of lawyers of the state asked for proposed changes in the judiciary articles?

Have a majority of the people in New York city asked for the proposed changes in the method of governing our metropolises?—Elizabeth Cady Stanton in New York Sun.

She Saved an Express Train.

Margaret MacDonald, a 19-year-old girl, station agent for the Lehigh Valley railroad at Warrior Run, Pa., a few weeks ago saved an express train from being delayed by a runaway engine on a down grade by her quickness and presence of mind. The train had stopped to take on an invalid passenger when she heard the noise of the approaching engine. Supposing it to be a train, she ordered a man to run back and flag it, but at the same time ordered the passenger train to start at full speed without waiting for the passenger. The latter order saved the train, for, although the runaway engine overtook it at the foot of the grade, the train was then under such headway that the shock was almost imperceptible.

Miss MacDonald applied for the place as station agent when her brother who held it resigned a year ago. While waiting to get a man agent the company allowed her to run the office, and so well did she attend to the duties that she has since been made the regular agent. The station is a most important one, being at the foot of the heavy mountain grade, where the single track converges into the many which lead to this city.—Woman's Journal.

Mrs. Bartlett's Distinction.

One of the brightest women in Washington is the wife of Mr. I. S. Bartlett, who is Representative Coffey's private secretary and a well known politician of Wyoming. Mrs. Bartlett enjoys the distinction of being the only woman in the United States to be voted for in a legislature for United States senator. She was given the house clerkship of the Wyoming legislature, and when that body engaged in a deadlock over the senatorship about a year ago the five Populist members cast their votes for Mrs. Bartlett amid great applause from the galleries. She is an intelligent advocate of woman suffrage and has contributed to the press articles on politics, sketches, short stories and translations, has made several political speeches and has recently published a book on the Wyoming cattle war.—Washington Post.

Should Women Vote?

The Chicago Advance, a leading representative of orthodox Congregationalism in the west, is liberal of the woman suffrage question. In an editorial entitled "Should Women Vote?" it quotes Lord Rosebery's definition of politics as "a living and ennobling effort to carry into practical life the principles of a higher morality, and in widening the franchise we have hit on the conscience of the community" and asks, "What if in this country in lifting the ballot to the hand of woman we should also hit on the conscience of the people to the decisive advantage of every humane and good cause?"

Preserves That Will Keep.

This is the preserving season, when forehanded housewives put up all sorts of fruits in sweetmeats which make the tea table attractive all winter. In some seasons and with many fruits there is little trouble in making these preserves keep, but at other times it seems as if the greatest care were bound to be defeated and all skill were naught. The sweetmeats will ferment and spoil.

A chemist of this city, who has been making a special study of the life and growth of ferment plants, says the remedy for this is double boiling. This must be done with a certain reason and system. If proper precautions are not observed, he says, you might keep right on boiling the things time and again all the year round, and still they would spoil. Boiling will kill all the ferment plants that are developed from the spores, but it will not kill the spores.

Spores of ferment plants require only from eight to twelve hours to develop. If they are left longer than this, the spores will have become new plants and in turn have deposited new spores. To get rid of plants and spores, therefore, the preserves should have first a good boiling and be set away in sealed vessels, and then about eight hours later be brought again just to a boiling heat. Treated in this way, the chemist says, no further trouble can occur unless new ferments get in from outside sources.—New York Sun.

Woman's Movement in Mexico.

Our sister republic to the south has been invaded by the movement for the enfranchisement of woman, and just now the movement is being discussed by the Mexican press with no little animation. The immediate cause of the present interest was the refusal of one of the city courts to license a young lady law student to practice before it. The writers of Mexico have long been urging the broadening of woman's sphere and advising ladies to enter positions which had hitherto been monopolized by the men. They were advised to become saleswomen, stenographers, bookkeepers, telegraphers, etc., and some two years ago, when a young lady graduated at a medical school and was admitted to practice medicine, the papers of the country had a good deal to say about the great advance in woman's work.

The great majority of them, however, indorse the opinion of the court, which does not want to see a female lawyer. They think that the legal profession is too near the ballot box, and that when women are allowed to practice law they cannot well be hindered from voting, which Mexico is a good way from being prepared for yet.—New Orleans Picayune.

Mrs. George Gould.

Mrs. George Gould has a new necklace that is positively dazzling and is said to contain some of the finest stones seen in England for a long time. It seems when the Goulds sailed to conquer English society Mrs. Gould, of course, had jewels, diamonds and necklaces, for that matter. These were quite well enough for America and Lakewood, but would not do at all for anything so grand as England. So the order was given for something that was a shade finer than any necklace Mrs. Gould was likely to meet, and the result is another feather in America's cap.

It also seems that we are going to lose the Goulds; that English society has fallen so deeply in love with pretty Edith Kingston that was, or she has found them so captivating, that the Goulds will not let their society laurels cool, and it may be a long time before New York society has the chance to take the Goulds by the hand and welcome them into the Four Hundred.

In October they may shine on the United States, but in a few weeks will pack up the family wardrobe, its jewel cases and silver cases, and come home to New York Journal.

A Unique Dress.

The latest addition to the fashionable wardrobe is an odd garment made with-out sleeves. It's a chic affair, however, and bide fair to be very popular. The first bodice of this description was born in France. It was made of black chiffon over black lace. Flimsy bows of the chiffon graced each shoulder. Those bows were the only semblance of sleeves which the bodice possessed. But, odd as the idea may seem, sets of sleeves were sold with it. They were all of some sheer material like chiffon or crepe/de chine, but made according to a variety of designs.

One pair of sleeves were of white chiffon ruffles and had a soft, billowy appearance very effective. Another pair were very bouffant scarlet puffs. The bodice is to be worn with different skirts, and the idea is to have the sleeves match the shirt in color. The Parisian modiste is certainly unique.—New York World.

Catharine Cole.

The friends—and she has scores of them—of Catharine Cole (Margaret Field) will be pleased to learn that late letters from Bavaria, where she is now under treatment for a nervous malady, bring encouraging news. The change, rest and treatment are all proving beneficial, and Mrs. Field, in letters written by herself, gives evidence of seeming hopeful of the results of the experiment with Father Knapp's remedies. The relatives of this gifted and greatly beloved writer are indulging in the hope that she will come home at least on a fair way to recovery.

The Wrongs of Women.

Mrs. Charles Henrotin, the wife of a Chicago banker and herself a leader of society, recently addressed a socialistic meeting of over 1,000 men and women at Kimball hall, Chicago, upon the wrongs of women wage earners and the advantages of the eight hour law, recounting the results of her investigations in printing offices, sweating shops and other places where the working day is practically without a limit.

RIGHTED AT LAST.

"You shall talk to her presently about it. Now look at the other house. Ah, there she is."

Mrs. Merton, according to her custom, was standing at her window, watering her geraniums.

Mrs. Payne looked long and earnestly at her. She rose from her seat and approached the window, evidently wishing to look over the blind. I pulled her back.

"Don't show yourself. Go as close to the window as you like, but keep below the blind."

I wheeled the table out of the way. She knelt down and peered through the interstices of the blind.

"Do you know her?" I asked eagerly.

"Yes, I know her. I remember her face, but I can't think where I saw her or what her name is."

"Look again and try."

I was kneeling by her side. Presently Mrs. Merton turned to speak to someone inside the room, and in so doing presented her profile to us.

"Ah!" said Mrs. Payne, with a sigh of relief. "Now I know. Dearie me! dearie me! how twenty years can change a body. No wonder I didn't know her."

"Who is she? Don't make any mistake. Don't tell me unless you are quite certain. A great, very great deal depends on it."

"Oh, I'm quite certain now," said she, moving from the window as if fully satisfied. "I can't think how I could have been so stupid."

"Well, who is she?"

"That's Mary Williams, Lady Estmere's maid as was."

CHAPTER XXII.

The plot thickened. The identification of Mrs. Merton and Mary Williams, the maid who had been in Lady Estmere's service when the catastrophe took place, removed any fear that I was not upon the right track. The only question was how to follow that track to its proper end.

The first thing to be done was to get rid of Mrs. Payne. If she saw her my opposite neighbor would most assuredly recognize her old-fellow servant and the suspicion her presence would arouse must defeat my ends. So I kept my guest a strict prisoner for the rest of the day.

I don't suppose she found the confinement very irksome, as she employed the time in going over my house and pointing out, for the benefit of my servant, all evidences of neglect and uncleanness. No doubt, she visited her sins of omission very heavily, for, as soon as her back was turned, I was informed that, if that lady was going to be mistress there, I had better seek another servant.

I suppose her tormentor's speedy departure made my domestic reconsider her determination for I heard no more about her going, although I was often reminded of Mrs. Payne's disgust when a cloud of dust arose as I displaced any article.

By the first train the next morning, before neighbors were astir, I sent Mrs. Payne back to her John. I wished to reward her for her trouble, but she utterly refused to hear of such a thing. It would be a proud day for her if anything she had done would benefit her old mistress and Master Valentine. I put her in charge of the guard, who promised at Bristol to see her into a through carriage for the north, and am glad to say she accomplished her journey safely.

Now for Mrs. Merton. How was I to get that confession from her? Should I attempt to force, cajole, or bribe her to tell the truth? I shrank from the last-named course, thinking that evidence given for a pecuniary consideration would always bear a certain venal taint about it. In whatever way the confederates may have tricked Sir Laurence Estmere, it would be well that nothing should damage the testimony of the one who confessed to it.

There were three methods of appeal—to the woman's fears; to her right feelings, if she had any; and lastly to her cupidity. The last method I put aside as one only to be used in extremities. Before I could decide which of the others to adopt, it was absolutely necessary I should know something of Mrs. Merton's character. I must establish myself on a footing of friendship with her.

I began operations through the school-boy. Acquaintance with a lad like this is easily made. I shrank from remarks about the noble game of cricket; a common practice together with bat and ball, an invitation to see my books and other few belongings, and we were like old friends.

He was a bright, clever boy, as quick and ready, it seemed to me, at his books as at his sports. His society was no indication on his part; although, had he been the dullest and in the world, I should still have sought it, in order to fulfill my mission. Yet, for a while, I gathered nothing by it, except that I established a bowing acquaintance with Mrs. Merton, and that her daughter looked rather conscious, and as if she wished I would speak as I passed her.

One morning I met Charley Merton in the road. He looked rather sulky and downcast; so I asked him what was amiss.

"Mother's been scolding me. She says I ought to tag at Latin and Greek during the holidays. She is going to get some one to coach me."

"Well, that's all right; you oughtn't to complain!"

"I know I oughtn't," said the boy, penitently. "But it seems a jolly shame to have to 'twot' in this fine weather."

I laughed as I heard the old school word for "working." "Your mother wants you to get up in the school, I suppose," I said.

The boy blushed. "The truth is, Mr. Norris," he said, "there are so precious few of that mother says if I don't get a scholarship some day I shall have to be an errand boy, or something of that sort."

An idea struck me. I saw a way of establishing friendly relations with my opposite neighbor.

"Would you like me to come and coach you, Charley?"

"You, Mr. Norris? Why, you're a gentleman."

"Don't you want a gentleman?"

"Yes," stammered the boy. "But we want some poor sort of a chap, who won't mind small pay."

"I don't mind small pay. I shall see your mother about it. Come in with me now."

The boy preceded me, looking timid and puzzled. He showed me into a sitting-room, then went in search of his mother. In a few minutes she appeared, and bade me a stiff and rather embarrassed good-morning.

"I dare say your boy has told you why I have called," I said.

"He told me something, but I could scarcely understand him."

"I hear you want a tutor for him. I have come to offer my services."

She hesitated. "You are a stranger," she said.

"Yes, to you; but not to Latin and Greek. I took a high degree at Oxford. I am quite competent to teach a lad."

"But I can afford to pay so little."

"Never mind that, Mrs. Merton, money need not enter into the discussion. I have taken an interest in the boy; so, unless you positively object to the arrangement, I shall consider it settled."

Nothing strange. Intelligent people, who realize the important part the blood holds in keeping the body in a normal condition, find nothing strange in the number of diseases Hood's Sarsaparilla is able to cure. So many troubles result from impure blood, the best way to treat them is through the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla vitalizes the blood.

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills, assist digestion, prevent constipation.

Tourists wishing to visit the Saguenay will find the most delightful way to do so by taking the train leaving Quebec at 8.30 a.m. for Lake St. John and Chaudiere, connecting there with the commodious Saguenay steamers, thus seeing that wonderful river by daylight, and making a round trip unsurpassed for scenic grandeur.

THE WORDS OF MR. LAURIER.

The Liberal arraignment of the National Policy will not be silenced by the charge that Mr. Laurier in his speeches in the West has been using empty, however fine, words. In this charge there is an unconscious, if inevitable tribute to the influence which Mr. Laurier exercises upon his audiences in all parts of the country. His eloquence and his power of persuasion, all the graces of his personality, are ridiculed as if those attributes were in themselves blameworthy. The sneer which is manifest in every reference of his enemies to the power which he wields when he faces the people is of the strongest testimony to the existence of that power. But the Government rogues seek immediately to convince the people that the Liberal leader has been holding them under a hypnotic spell which must be dissolved when opposed by the cold reasoning of Government wisacres. This is not flattering to the intelligence of the Canadian people, but there has been in the past no little warrant for the Conservative assumption that that intelligence is a thing of which the Conservative party need not stand in awe.

It happens however, that that intelligence is very keenly alive at present, and if it would be won over again to the side of the Government there must be employed an argument infinitely better than simple sarcasm. For the condemnation of the National Policy is not heard in the mouth of the Liberal leaders alone. It is sufficiently evident in the showing of the census for ten years during which, at the mandate of the people, the National Policy was given fair and patient trial. It is manifest to every Canadian who knows himself to be taxed for the benefit of the protected manufacturer, and not for the government of the country. It has found expression in such a clamor for the reform of the tariff, which is the essential feature of the National Policy, as forced the Government itself to a seeming compliance. It has been expressed with a peculiar force and fitness by the very men to whom Mr. Laurier is at present addressing himself. Those men know that after a fair trial as any palatable fraud ever had, the National Policy has failed and failed miserably. When Mr. Laurier tells them so, he does no more than express concurrence with their own opinion. And the offer of relief which he makes them seems sufficiently explicit to satisfy them, which is more to the purpose than that it should satisfy his Conservative critics.

"Great as are his gifts as a speaker," says the Gazette, "Mr. Laurier has given no sign of possessing any ability as an administrator, and, after all, it is a wise administration, and not fine talking, that is needed to make a country prosperous." Here is the key note of the Conservative campaign. George Foster, the pedagogical and temperance lecturer, is fond of calling himself one of the "level-headed business men of the Government," and he includes in the category certain colleagues who claim to that intrinsically honorable title would be a theme of huge amusement among men whose record in the world of affairs has earned it for them. A perversion of the title, however, has often forced it into application to men who frankly confess themselves to be so. To that extent, at least, Mr. Foster and his fellows seem to be "business men" of the "level-headedest" sort.

In any case it has been their policy to represent the National Policy as a thing of awful sanctity. "Touch it and you profane the holy tabernacle of the Canadian industries. Interfere with it and you bring the fabric of Canadian business tumbling about your ears. It is the common policy of protectionists the world over. The determination of the rates of duties on imported goods, a matter in which the parties in Canada are at war to the death, is naturally supposed to require much technical knowledge of numberless mechanical arts, as well as a profound acquaintance with the conduct of business affairs. It is remarked by a shrewd critic of the protective system in the United States "that the beneficiaries of protection have assiduously confirmed this impression. They have generally replied to arguments in favor of lower duties by saying that such matters could only be understood by business men, and that arguments contained in books were only theoretical and were always despised by men of affairs. In this manner they succeeded for many years in having things their own way, and the public supposed the successive tariff acts with which the country was burdened were the product of a wise statesmanship."

The same critic refers to the recent exhibition of the methods of the protectionists in the United States, and says that these disclosures of the "true method of constructing protective tariffs have startled and disgusted many worthy people who are reluctant to believe anyone worse than themselves. It now appears plainly enough that there is no statesmanship required, nor any technical knowledge. All the theatrical 'business' of protection is done away with. The public has been taken behind the scenes, and had an opportunity to see how the actors look before they are stuffed and padded and powdered with the alluring promises of protection to American homes and the familiar protectionist humbug. It is not an acquaintance with mechanical processes, after all, that is indispensable in these matters, but an acquaintance with secret political methods."

It is against a Government which has profited by the employment of exactly similar methods that the Liberal party has declared war. The business men of Canada, of whom some love, and some hate protection, know exactly what he means when he proclaims that the Liberal party is pledged to give the people free trade. He means that the business men of the nation, and not the business men of a single class, would dictate the terms of a Liberal tariff. Business men know exactly what he means when he tells them this; and the weight of his words is not lost because those words happen to be such good and eloquent men are in the habit of using.

THE PATRONS WILL EITHER BUY OR SELL.

The influences adverse to Sir Oliver Mowat's Government in Ontario, the Mail being amongst the chief, are loth to give up the results of the late Provincial election as a source of consolation. The greatest of those sources, if not indeed the only one, is the attitude of the Patrons. The Mail, with a natural weakness for this sort of news, has promptly discovered that the Grand Vice-President of the Patrons, a Mr. Currie of Strathroy, made a speech at a picnic the other day in which he said that "Sir Oliver would have to give the Patrons what they wanted or give place to others who would."

There are people, too many of them unfortunately for the good of the country, who will take what they want from one party if they can get it, and if not will go over to the other party. It would not be hard to show that there is neither patriotism nor morality in this position; and scant cause as there is for the existence of the Patrons it is with reluctance that they should be so badly thought of that such a confession must be believed of them. It is well enough for those who desire to believe anything that will promise the end of Sir Oliver Mowat's rule to give unreserved acceptance to this Mr. Currie's statement of the purposes of his order; but we should like to have the political antecedents of this Patron Grand Vice enquired into before discounting the future of Liberal government in Ontario. Those who have given attention to Ontario politics whether Provincial or Federal have heard of the name of Currie from about Strathroy as having figured up on the division lists in both the Legislative Assembly and in the House of Commons on the Tory side. It may therefore with reasonable safety be assumed that this Mr. Currie now before us in a new character is a scion of the ancient and honorable house of Currie whose distinctions have arisen wholly from its faithful services in the Tory ranks. This assumption is open to adverse criticism, of course, but meanwhile, just for the sake of eliciting the truth, we take the risk that may be involved. The Patrons want not a few things that are wrong and foolish, and Sir Oliver has spoken, did speak before the elections, and may again speak before the meeting of the Legislature in terms unmistakably against several of their demands. There is therefore no reason to surmise that he will give the Patrons what they want in the sense in which the Grand Vice of the order intended, or in any other sense that is inconsistent with the principles observed and the policy practiced for the last twenty years. Mr. Currie, presumably being a Tory, speaks as a Tory for the Patrons, and with all the bias and the bitterness characteristic of the Tory when he finds himself far removed from office.

Mr. Currie, "to strengthen his case," says the Mail, charged that the Ontario Government officeholders were partisans, for that he was "dogged by twenty-five of them" during the present campaign. A case that required to be strengthened so urgently that such bad material as this charge is used in the strengthening of it, could not be made strong under any circumstances. Naturally enough Sir Oliver's appointees to office are Liberals, and were Mr. Currie not a Tory, and that before being a Patron, the Liberal officeholders would not be found dogging him. But we don't believe that Mr. Currie was so "dogged," but that he was drawing upon his imagination first to do Tory service to the prejudice of the Liberal Government, and second to magnify his own importance.

All circumstances considered there is much affinity and similarity between the Patrons, as represented by Mr. Grand Vice Currie, and the Populists of the Western States. Neither is strong enough to do anything on its own bottom, but both hope to "get what they want" from one party or the other. They propose to crush the party that will not yield to their demands, and to sell themselves to the party that will yield. From what those demands amount to in one case let us infer what they would amount to in the other. Research in the records of Congress and its committees discloses that the Populist members have proposed appropriations for almost all conceivable things, including the extermination of weeds, the lending of Government money to deserving poor, and, as the Gazette says, the advancing of almost every crazy and worn out idea by which the nation could be made to benefit directly individual interests. The amount of the appropriations thus sought is said to reach the inconceivable great sum of fifty thousand million dollars, or a sum exceeding all the money in the world by about eighty per cent. These latter statistical facts we get from the Gazette, and give them partly in order that our neighbor may be strengthened against the great temptation of joining the Mail in welcoming our Canadian populists to the Government of the country, if only in so doing they spifficate the Grits.

The projectors of the Deep Waterway Convention, which is to meet at Toronto shortly, have succeeded in creating a panic among the New York commercial bodies having relations with the canals of that state. The Executive Committee of the Canal Association has worked itself into a horrid fright over it; and has issued an address in which it says: "The impertinence of asking the people of the United States to join them in discussing ways and means for such an undertaking in part wholly upon Canadian territory—it is in keeping with the phenomenal brass which has characterized the entire dealings of the Canadians with Americans." However Ald. J. Enoch Thompson, of Toronto, may lament the failure of Canadians to enthrone upon his proposal to dig the canals twenty feet deep it should be a source of pride to him that he has succeeded so thoroughly in ruffling the tail feathers of the great American eagle.

A charity which has struck at the chief privations of the poor, and has made their life in the heated season as nearly bearable as their poverty would allow, has been in operation in Philadelphia since the beginning of June. It is the Sterilized Milk and Ice Society, which was founded by Rabbi J. Leonard Levy, and of which the object is to furnish the deserving poor of the city with pure milk and ice at cost price. The prices charged have been for pure milk, four cents a quart; sterilized milk, one cent a bottle; barley food for infants, five cents a pound, and ice four pounds for one cent. Within the first six weeks of the existence of the Society its operations became so extensive as to necessitate the opening of five depots. A prominent Philadelphia physician declared at the inception of the charity that it was peculiarly worthy since, quite apart from the horrors of poverty itself, the poor suffered from a species of ailment closely resembling malaria and caused by the lack of diversity in their diet. That diet is said to consist almost entirely of bread and the provision of pure milk by the Society has removed a great deal of distress in Philadelphia. Arrangements for the supply of coal and wood during the winter are under way. The Society is supported by voluntary subscription and seems entirely worthy of imitation in all large centres of population.

M'GILL THREATENED.

Leaking Reservoirs Are Undermining Its Foundations.

The Water Committee met yesterday afternoon. The first business was the reception of tenders for water meters and general supplies. They were referred to the superintendent for tabulation.

Mr. Davis again made several reports showing the urgent necessity of repairs to the aqueduct ditches, fences and bridges. For these works $24,895 would be required. It had also been discovered that $4,500 would be required to complete the foundations of the new turbine wheel which was purchased some time ago. This was due to the fact that the surrounding masonry and woodwork was found to be seriously decayed. Samples of the rotten wood were even laid on the table for the inspection of members. Then if $9,200 more were given this year, Mr. Davis said he could make more repairs to the aqueduct, which if delayed till next year will cost 50 per cent. more and be a cause of serious annoyance. All these demands were referred to the Council. Next two letters were produced, one from the Secretary of McGill, Mr. C. H. McLeod, and one from Mr. Montagu Allan, in which it was stated that the water leaking from the reservoirs seriously threatened the foundations of the McGill buildings as well as those of the Allan residence. To carry off the water the proprietors have been obliged to make special drains.

Mr. Davis accompanied the letters with the remark that they confirmed the position which he had taken long ago, and that the amount required to make the necessary repairs were included in the report for $116,000 now before the Council.

"That is a serious state of affairs," said Ald. Nolan, and the reports were referred to the Council. The report of the superintendent on the suspension of Mr. Filtean was read, and, on motion of Ald. Leclerc, Aldermen Beauchamp, Costigan and Savigne were appointed a sub-committee to investigate the affair.

Mr. Avila Thomas, a temporary clerk who was discharged without notice, was given one month's salary.

Ald. Nolan then moved that Mr. Thos. Very be promoted to the position of chief meter clerk, which was carried. He then moved that Mr. Jas. Sheridan be appointed to succeed Mr. Very as clerk in the Water Department.

Ald. Proulx asked who Mr. Sheridan was.

"They are Irish," said Ald. Leclerc, "we have no business to meddle with that." Mr. Sheridan was given the job.

ANOTHER MIRACLE.

Mrs. Bourque of Montreal Cured at Lourdes, France.

News has just been received in Montreal that several of the invalids who left this city some weeks ago for Lourdes, France, have received considerable and astonishing relief at the holy shrine so graphically described by Zola.

The most remarkable case is that of Mrs. Bourque, the wife of Dr. Bourque and the sister of Dr. Durocher, both professors of Laval University.

Mrs. Bourque is the mother of eleven children, six of whom are still living. Some ten months ago she began to suffer from palsy-peritonitis. When she resolved to go to Lourdes, her husband, her brother, as well as Dr. Brennan opposed the idea, declaring that the trip would be dangerous. As she persisted the former two consented to follow her. She had to be carried to the Labrador, and remained in bed during the whole voyage. At Paris she was treated by Dr. Philippe, a specialist, but with no result.

When she reached Lourdes she was absolutely unable to walk, and was taken around in a rolling chair. On the 20th of August she took a bath in the holy waters at Lourdes, and on coming out she began to walk without any extraordinary fatigue. Until the last of September, which is the date of the last news received, she had been growing steadily better.

The oldest son of Mrs. Bourque, now 26 years of age, was cured at Lourdes six years ago, after having been treated in vain by Charcot and other celebrities of Europe. He is now in the Jesuit Order, and it was through his influence that his mother was induced to go to Lourdes.

Dr. Durocher and Dr. Bourque have been interviewed by the Catholic papers of Paris, and they are reported as being enthusiastic over this marvellous cure.

THE DIVINE RIGHT AGAIN.

Berlin, Sept. 6.—Emperor William, at the unveiling of the monument to his grandfather, Emperor William I., at Konigsberg, on Friday last said: "It was on this spot that King William openly stated before his subjects that he held his crown from God. This is also my own deepest conviction and has ever served me as a guide in all my actions."

Will.
You will be what you will be.
Let failure find its false content
In that poor word "environment,"
But spirit seems it is and free.

It masters time, it conquers space,
It coveys that boasted greater chance
And hides the tyrant circumstance
Uncrown and fill a servant's place.

The human will, that force unseen,
The offering of a deathless soul,
Can hew the way to any goal
Through walls of granite Intervene.

Be not impatient in delay,
But wait as one who understands,
When spirit rises and commands,
The gods are ready to obey.

The river seeking for the sea
Confronts the dam and precipice,
Yet knows it cannot fail or miss,
You will be what you will be.

—Edna Wheeler Wilcox.

Ah, not by outward shape of fear
Is the cunning devil known,
But the gambler's wife and the scroffer Smile.

Shall make his presence known.
—Horace Greeley.

MORE VICTIMS.

THE NUMBER OF FOREST FIRE DEATHS INCREASES.

THE FLAMES CONTINUE THE WORK OF DESTRUCTION.

Latest Reports Tell of More Villages Having Been Consumed.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 6.—A special to the Pioneer Press from Pine City, Minn., says: Corrected figures tend to lower rather than raise the total number of deaths. There are 233 buried in Hinckley graveyard, and perhaps a dozen more buried at other points in the vicinity, increasing the total to about 250, but the additional number here may be safely taken away from the liberal estimate allowed for those still uncounted, leaving the total between 375 and 400, where the Pioneer Press put it yesterday morning.

Mr. Webber's report of interments shows an increase over the estimates. All that have been brought in were buried, and his list shows 235. He said last night that possibly this is too low, as a few boxes were put in and recorded as containing single bodies before he learned that some boxes held more than one body. After he opened each box before it was covered, and counted the bodies.

The four trenches were rounded up and smoothed over and the traces of the work that has gone on there for the past few days, removed so far as possible. Dr. Norton, of Minneapolis, who went over to Mora yesterday, reported at Hinckley this afternoon that the total dead at that point was 234, and that all the missing were accounted for. This is an increase of but two at this point. No changes were reported from elsewhere. About $700 in cash has been received, nearly all from the smaller towns besides the subscription of $5,000 in cash to the relief fund.

FIRE CROSSES TO CANADA.

Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 6.—A Rat Portage dispatch to the Free Press says: The banks of Rainy River, on the side for the whole length excepting ten miles at the south, are one huge mass of flames. The Minnesota woods, where there are but few settlers, are all burning, and at Burwick the fires were so fierce that they jumped across the river setting the Canadian woods on fire. The Canadian side is well settled and the settlers are losing heavily.

On Saturday Mrs. Gansby and five children living on Grassy River were burned, excepting one boy, who took refuge in a well. A daughter, aged 13 years of age, had her head and feet burned on. Her father, who was some distance away, escaped with his face and eyes badly burned. George Wall's building was burned and the family was saved with great difficulty.

All settlers back from Rainy River have been burned out, losing everything. Mrs. William Bailey, of Fort Francis, in Canada, and Arthur Wright, a settler of Rainy River, was found on Sunday dead in bed.

FAMILIES ARE LEFT DESTITUTE.

Milaca, Minn., Sept. 6.—Late developments show that over fifty families in this vicinity are entirely destitute. A mass meeting was held last night and relief committees appointed who will go to the cities to-day for aid. The county commissioners have appropriated $500. The fires are still burning and great excitement prevails.

GIVING HOMES TO SURVIVORS.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 6.—President Hill, of the Great Northern, reports that 5,000 acres of good agricultural land for fire victims have been located. These lands are valued at $8 per acre, or $40,000 in the aggregate, and they will be given to the people for homes.

THE FIRES ARE STILL RAGING.

Duluth, Minn., Sept. 6.—Barnum, a lumber town, 35 miles down the St. Paul and Duluth road, is surrounded by forest fires and the inhabitants are anxious. Carlton and Kerkira are also reported still in danger.

MORE FIRE VICTIMS FOUND.

Duluth, Minn., Sept. 6.—The relief party which left here in charge of W. T. Bailey and George Ash to search the eastern line sent word that near Sandstone it found eighteen dead bodies in one dug-out, into which the victim had rushed, hoping to escape with their lives, only to find that they had jumped into a veritable furnace.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Sept. 6.—Fisher Meadow, near Estella, a small settlement, was wiped out yesterday. The fire is now running down Murray where danger is feared. Mayor Hines has telegraphed that the small towns in that vicinity are in ashes.

Carlton, Minn., Sept. 6.—Everything was burned at Cromwell except the schoolhouse. The fire came upon them without warning. The people saved their lives by getting into the lake; however, it is feared that many settlers lost their lives. Relief trains were sent from here at once and brought the people down. A relief committee was organized and the sufferers cared for.

THE WARSHIP'S SAIL AWAY.

[Special to the Herald.]

Quebec, Sept. 6.—H.M.S. Blake and the consort ship Partridge sailed away from the harbor at break of day. Their immediate destination is Halifax. The tourmaline remained behind and will not leave until the morning of the 17th inst.

THE CUSTOM HOUSE MADE A MISTAKE.

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—Referring to the decision of the United States Government as to the admission of Canadian lumber into the United States free of duty as prescribed by the new Tariff Bill and to the statement that an import duty had been charged at Georgetown, N.C. Col. J. B. Riely, United States Consul-General for Canada, says that the lumber in question was most likely admitted free after inquiries had been made. There is, he says, very little Canadian lumber shipped to Georgetown, and any little inconvenience that might have been caused was probably due to a misunderstanding on the part of the Customs officer of the new tariff regulation.

ARKANSAS REPUBLICANS ROUTED.

Little Rock, Sept. 6.—Reliable but incomplete returns from the State election indicates Clark's majority will reach 30,000. The Democrats have elected their State and county tickets in all except Nevada, Pike, Greene, Cleburne and Stone, in which the Populists have majorities. The Republicans did not carry a single county.

THE Y. W. C. A.

The ladies interested in the Young Women's Christian Association met yesterday to discuss the programme for the winter months. The meetings had been discontinued during the months of July and August, and when resumed this morning there was a large attendance to listen to the reading of the reports. After a general discussion on business matters the meeting was adjourned for a few days, when a definite programme for the winter will be decided upon.

THE NEIGHBORS ACCUSED.

The Kempville Farmer Says They Were the Robbers.

Kempville, Sept. 6.—Everybody hereabouts is excited over the comital diabolical crime by which an old man named John Swords, eighty-two years of age, was cruelly tortured and robbed by four men who broke into his house on the night of August 17th. The details he has now told over oath. At first he seemed afraid of further violence if he revealed the name of those he says committed the outrage, but on Thursday last Magistrate Sellack, Reeve Buchanan and A. C. Rutherford, barrister, visited the house and took the affidavit of the victim who is yet unable to leave his bed. In this affidavit he named four neighbors as his assailants. The parties mentioned deny any knowledge of the affair. A son, who would gladly have his father reside with him in California, has been sent for.

IT WILL COST $61,714.

Lagauchetiere Street Expropriation Commissioners Sign the Report.

The Expropriation Commissioners in the widening of Lagauchetiere Street from Cathedral to Windsor Streets have signed their report. The total cost of the improvement will be $61,714, of which $51,717 is paid by the proprietors, and $12,997 by the city. The proprietors' share is spread over the district bounded by Guy, Sherbrooke, Mansfield and St. Antoine Streets, and the rate of assessment was fixed at 1.15 per cent to 3.10 of one per cent, according to the benefit supposed to be derived from the improvement. There are no less than 1,800 proprietors assessed. The Canadian Pacific is assessed for $3,000, the Archbishop for $1,500, the Windsor Hotel for $1,800, and the city itself is assessed to the extent of $4,000 for the increased value given to Dominion Square by the improvement. Complaints will be heard by the Commissioners on the 29th instant.

AN AUTHORITY ON CROPS.

Mr. James Fair, of Clinton, Ont., Speaks of the Outlook in That Province.

Mr. James Fair, of Clinton, Ont., was introduced on "Change yesterday by Mr. H. W. Raphael. Mr. Fair, who is a large miller and is well informed on the crops, speaks encouragingly of the outlook for the leading cereals of Ontario. "Winter wheat," he said, "will average at least 25 bushels to the acre; in fact, I know of farms which have yielded 37 bushels. The continued dry weather has had a detrimental effect on peas and oats, and I am inclined to think that these lines will turn out rather light. There will be a heavy crop of roots and potatoes, grasshoppers having destroyed many of the principal lines. Apples will be about half a crop."

With regard to the question of feeding, Mr. Fair said: "Farmers are giving their stock a great deal of wheat. I think that deliveries of wheat at present are a little larger than they were this time last year."

For Perfect Fitting Shirts and Collars, Fine Neckwear, go to Kelly Bros., 1691-1697 Notre Dame.

THE FRENCH WARSHIPS COMING.

They Will Reach Here Friday or Saturday.

Mr. J. X. Perrault, who has just returned from Quebec, reports that the French warship the Neilly will be here Friday or Saturday next. Mr. Perrault was ordered to see acting Mayor Renaud this morning. While no definite programme will be arranged until the French sailors arrive here, it was decided that the city would be as hospitable on this occasion as on all others.

ST. GEORGE'S FUNERAL.

To Be Buried With Honors To-morrow Morning.

The Fire Department has decided to give St. George a public funeral this afternoon at nine o'clock. The Police Band will be invited to participate and a detachment of forty men in full dress will escort the remains. The funeral service will take place at the Catholic Church on the corner of Center and Island streets. The funeral procession will thence proceed along Center, Wellington, McGill Streets and up Beaver Hill Hill to the Catholic Cemetery.

ANOTHER AGROUND.

The Dominion Line Hamilton Hard and Fast at Contrecoeur.

The Dominion Line SS. Hamilton went aground at Contrecoeur yesterday at about 11.30. She was laden with 1,775 sheep, 310 cattle and a heavy general cargo, including 20,000 boxes of cheese and other perishable goods.

Captain Skrimshire, who is skipper of the ship, is one of the most careful seamen coming to port, and it is most unfortunate for him that he is only put in charge of the ship at the beginning of the season. L. Belisle was the pilot who also is acknowledged to be careful and clever; the morning was foggy and the ship was drawing 26 ft. 6 in. of water, while the channel is only 27 ft. 6 in. No water was reported in harbor, although she must have struck rocks. The ship is solid iron and will probably be lightened sufficiently to get off easily. Tugs and lighters were sent to get to the rescue.

Arrests This Morning.

A clerk named Samuel Longhead, living on St. Urbain Street, was arrested yesterday on a warrant, by Deputy High Constable Lambert, sworn out by Inspector Sweetman, of the Post Office, charging the accused with selling stamps without a license, and further, with selling stamps which had been tampered with, or in other words, cleaned. The accused pleaded not guilty, and was remanded until the 11th inst. for enquire.

Detectives Trempe and Arcand yesterday arrested a young man named Edward Collins, an agent of the Victoria Portrait Company, St. Lawrence Main Street. The charge against him was that of doing away with samples entrusted to his care. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded for enquire.

Cable Briefs.

London, Sept. 6.—The Government of New Zealand is urging Lord Rosebery to co-operate in a protest against Hawaii's annexation of Necker Island. Aldershot, Eng., Sept. 6.—During some experiments to-day a military captive balloon was struck by lightning and the electric field running down the wire broke down and injured three men of the engineer corps. They are not expected to live.

THE POLICE COMMISSION.

Ald. Robert, the Chairman, Objects to Outsiders Conducting the Enquiry.

HE proposition in yesterday's Herald—that three Judges should form the Commission to enquire into the working of the Police Force—is meeting with some opposition, but it comes principally from the Chairman of the Police Commission.

Ald. Robert was seen by a Herald representative, and asked what he thought of the proposal. He said: "I think very little of it. Nobody has any right to hold the investigation over the heads of the police. What are we there for? What kind of a commission would be asked to act in this matter. I don't propose that the whole police committee should conduct the investigation but at least two members with other aldermen appointed by the Council would form the commission. That something must be done I fully admit but we are the proper persons to do it."

CULPRITS SENTENCED.

Tom Taylor, the Housebreaker, Given Five Years.

Judge Desnoyers presided in Special Sessions yesterday, but had a small docket before him, although the sentences ranged on the heavy side.

The first prisoner arraigned was Michael Taylor, the man caught trying to break into Blumfeld and Sons' tailoring establishment, corner of Bleury and Craig Streets, by Constables Filiatrault and Bataillon of No. 5 Police Station. He was sentenced to 23 months' imprisonment.

Randall O'Connor, a thirteen-year-old lad, was given three years in the Reformatory on Mignonne Street, for house-breaking. This lad has already served three years in the same institution.

Thomas Taylor, the young man who burglarized many private houses during the temporary absence in the country, and stole valuables amounting up in the thousands of dollars, was given five years in the Penitentiary.

TROUBLE IN LAVAL.

Conservatives Wrangling Over the Appointment of a Registrar.

Trouble is brewing in the Conservative party of the County of Laval, and the chiefs may have some difficulty in keeping together the heterogeneous elements that threaten to separate.

The trouble has arisen over the appointment of a registrar for the county. Leonard M. P., Mayor of St. Rose, and Registrar of the County, did the short time ago. No successor has yet been named. His son, J. Emile Leonard, made application for the position, and Dr. Oulmet, of St. Rose, has also applied. Petitioners asking for the appointment of Mr. Leonard are in circulation, and the Leonard party say they were signed by the majority of the voters of the County.

Nevertheless, the candidature of Dr. Oulmet, who is a petit-cousin of the Hon. J. Alder, is favored by the leadership of the County, who the same day differ in their views from their constituents.

The Leonard partisans allege that Dr. Oulmet is not qualified for the position and that his practice as a physician would hinder him from attending to the duties of his office. Mr. Leonard, on the other hand, although young, is quite familiar with the duties of the office. He will be admitted to the practice of law in January, and he used to assist his father in his work. During the latter's sickness he had entire charge of the office. He has also rendered services to the Conservatives in political campaigns.

There is likely to be serious difficulty, however, in the camp, should the leader not accede to the wishes of the majority of the voters. The appointment will probably be made on Friday.

Hon. Mr. Mercier.

Mr. Mercier was somewhat improved yesterday. He had taken some nourishment, and his friends are hopeful.

Phillip Henry's Stock Sold.

The stock of Mr. Phillip Henry, the cigar dealer, was sold yesterday by Mr. Harry Stewart at auction. The purchaser is Mr. B. A. Bonas, and the price paid was 75c on the dollar.

Mr. Geoffroy May Run.

A political rumor is to the effect that Mr. C. A. Geoffroy, Q.C., will run for Parliament in the constituency left vacant by the death of the late Hon. Felix Geoffroy, M.P., for Vercheres.

A QUESTION FOR THE TORIES.

A Herald representative was asked yesterday to publish the following enquiry: "Is Mr. James Crankshaw, the revising barrister for St. Lawrence Ward, the same Mr. James Crankshaw that is president of the Sir John A. Macdonald Club, and if so, is he not the nominee of this political institution? Again—If this is so, is it just?"

A Naval Deserter Caught.

Detectives Lafontaine and Campeau arrested Henry Kelsey, a sailor belonging to the H. M. S. Toumaline yesterday as a deserter. The man pleaded that he was on furlough, but unfortunately for himself could not produce necessary papers granting him leave. He was locked up, and the authorities notified at Halifax.

Buying Up Canadian Gas Property.

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 6.—The Standard Oil Company has been negotiating with the Ontario Natural Gas Company with a view to buying the entire stock of the Gas Company. J. H. Stuart, of Kingsville, one of the stockholders, says the Gas company may sell to the Oil Company for $2,000,000.

A nit stock company has been formed by four well known lumber men of Essex County to operate in the Algoma lumber districts. The company consists of J. Haynes, Woodside; W. R. Rodet, Gesto; Raemer Wigle, Essex; and H. F. A. of this city. They want to secure the lumber limits of the township of Striker and part of Cobden Township and have purchased the property and mill plant of the Dunn River Mill Company in Algoma.

St. Henri Council Met.

St. Henri Council met Wednesday. Mayor Dagenais presiding, and a lot of time was wasted over several insignificant matters. With regard to the action taken in the Superior Court asking that the resolution buying the incinerator be annulled, the matter was referred to a Special Committee. The report of the third arbitrator in the question of expropriation of Mr. G. Lemelin, was presented, granting him $10,000. There was a notice of motion that the charter be amended for the vote of taxation to be imposed on peddlers.

ALTENBERGER HANGED.

He Murdered His Sweetheart for Her Money.

Jersey City, N. J., Sept. 6.—Bernard Altenberger was hanged at 10:05 o'clock this morning. The crime for which he was executed was the murder of Katie Rupp, committed on May 13. The two had been lovers in Rome, N. Y. Under promise of marriage, Altenberger induced the girl to leave home and come to Jersey City. Altenberger led the girl to the woods near the Snake Hill penitentiary on the pretence that he had friends living in that neighborhood, and that they would get married there. They sat down on a log at the roadside to rest. Altenberger took a revolver out of his pocket, and, standing about four feet away, took deliberate aim at the still trusting girl and shot her in the breast near the heart. Taking her watch, he walked away a few feet, turned back, and, regardless of her entreaty, shot her in the back of the head. Katie Rupp lay on the grass all night and was found next morning by two workmen. She was carried to Christ Hospital, where she died the next day. She died on the night of the 10th. After the arrest of the murderer he confessed the crime.

TO PUNISH LYNCHERS.

They Will Have to Answer for Shooting the Negroes.

Memphis, Sept. 6.—The investigation into the lynching of six negroes near Millington, this county, is being pushed with vigor. The grand jury returned five indictments late yesterday afternoon, and more will follow to-day. Among those indicted are Detective W. S. Richardson, who arrested the negroes, and led them into the hands of the mob; A. Atkinson, the man who drove the wagon on the night of the lynching; Jeff. Laxton, a merchant at Kershaw, who is supposed to have been the leader of the mob; Mike Strickland and Jim Sissley, members of the vigilantes. Reports from Kershaw and Millington state that the lynchers have become alarmed over the firm stand of Governor Turney and Judge Cooper, many of them making preparations to leave this country. A sheriff's posse went to Kershaw last night for the purpose of capturing those suspected of complicity in the lynching before they escape.

Cholera in Maryland.

Cumberland, Md., Sept. 6.—John P. Walther was taken from an emigrant train suffering with what appeared to be a well developed case of cholera. He was isolated in a house outside of the city limits, and the other occupants of the car locked in the coach and forwarded to Pittsburg. The man died in great agony last evening. Walther and his fellow passengers arrived at New York yesterday on the North German Lloyd steamer Elbe from Bremen.

One of the passengers says Walther was attacked with severe diarrhea and vomiting two days before the vessel arrived, but that the ship's surgeon gave him medicine which braced him up sufficiently to pass inspection at New York. The authorities have telegraphed to Pittsburg officials to intercept and quarantine the ship. Physicians who have been through an epidemic of cholera are positive that Walther's was a true case of cholera, but were undecided as to whether it was of the Asiatic nature.

LADY'S WILD LEAP.

Got on the Wrong Train and Jumped Off Too Late.

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—A painful accident occurred on the C.P.R. express for Montreal yesterday morning. Among the passengers on board was Miss Marchand, of Aylmer, a young woman 20 years of age. She was going home, and was under the impression that she was on the Aylmer train. After passing the Hull Station she perceived her mistake and without appealing to any person jumped from the rapidly moving train just after it crossed the Chelsea road. She went tumbling over the embankment and was soon afterwards picked up by parties who noticed the awful plunge. The young woman presented an awful appearance. She was unconscious and blood was oozing from several wounds. Friends took her to a Hull residence and a doctor was summoned. One of her legs was broken and she is seriously hurt internally.

CONSTABLE IN TROUBLE.

Because He Would Not Arrest a Man at His Own Expense.

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—At the next Assizes Assistant County Crown Attorney Lees will move for an order to strike out the name of Harry Head from the list of county constables. The reason for this action is that the constable refused to effect, at his own expense, the arrest of a party guilty of attempted murder, at Eastman's Springs. Mr. Head asked that some assistance be given him, but this the authorities declined to do. In the face of this refusal he did not think it prudent to drive fifteen miles and attempt, alone, the arrest of what might prove to be a desperate character. Those informed say that Judge Ferguson who resides at the Assizes, after hearing the circumstances of the case, will not consent to have the order for dismissal granted.

READY FOR DISMANTLING.

Mr. Howard Gould's Parting Remarks About Vigilant.

Cowes, Sept. 6.—As the Vigilant was being towed from here towards Southampton today she passed within a few feet of the Britannia and the sloop's crew, led by Capt. Hall, gave her rival three hearty cheers which were just as heartily replied to by the crew of the Britannia.

Southampton, Sept. 6.—When Vigilant arrived here this afternoon she anchored near Spithead. She had already begun the work of dismantling for the winter. While Capt. Hall was in search of the best winter quarters for the sloop, Howard Gould said it is a pity to think that Vigilant has had her last race. "But I fear it is a fact," he said, "many of the crew will return to the United States on the New York on Saturday next. Capt. Hall and the remainder of the crew will probably sail for New York a few days later." Reviewing the yachting season as a whole, Mr. Gould said: "We have nothing to complain of except the wind. We did not appreciate, and I think few Americans do, the difficulties and peculiarities of these courses until the races are over. The number of turns and peculiar conditions of tide and wind in each place are really appalling, but in spite of the fact that the Vigilant is not adapted for these courses, I am satisfied in my own mind she is faster than any boat here."

OPENING UP.

We are daily opening up large shipments of Ladies' Fall Jackets and Capes, likewise Dress Fabrics, imported direct from all the leading European centres of fashion.

Long experience, ripe judgment, and trained taste, have been skillfully brought to bear in the personal selection of these deliveries by our buyers who expressly visit the old world's markets twice a year for this purpose.

This "Fall"

we have determined to out-pace all former records in low rates, and accordingly these goods will be offered to the public at prices to defy competition.

Furthermore,

"in the interval of waiting" for the finishing touches to be put to our new store on St. Catherine Street, we are still dispensing Removal Sale Bargains with a liberal hand.

No lady who desires to economize, and to make the most of her money, can afford to overlook these "chances" in Dry Goods. As they are likely to remain open only a few days at most, an early "search-expedition" throughout the various departments is counselled.

English Charities Dump Unfortunates on Canada.

The London Sun, of August 23, has an interview with a man whose experience with Montreal was not encouraging. His name is Joseph Lawson; and he is a Londoner. He is a builder's laborer, and last January, being out of employment, applied to the Mansion House Relief Committee. He was taken on the Abbey Mills relief works, but, as a condition, was obliged against his will to give a pledge that he would go to Canada. Mr. Tolson Smart, the secretary of the committee, represented to him strongly the wisdom of emigrating and held out flattering prospects for him on this side of the ocean. Accordingly, at the end of May, Lawson broke up housekeeping, sold his goods, and with his wife took ship for Montreal. He was supplied with railway and ocean passes, a certificate from Mr. Smart recommending him as a deserving man, a letter of introduction to Mr. Marquette, emigration agent, of this city, and an order for £3 to be cashed on arrival here.

Then says the Sun, the disillusion came quickly. Mr. Marquette, being applied to soon let Lawson know that he was in no way responsible for finding him work. He intimated that others from the Abbey Mills who had arrived earlier were still unemployed, and made the encouraging suggestion that this new comer should "jump the freight cars and go through the country." Lawson tramped the streets of Montreal begging for work, and in his journeyings found that with about one exception the score or so of Abbey Mills men were all in the same hapless case. In vain he appealed to Mr. Marquette. That gentleman's office was besieged by disappointed immigrants, and on one occasion the police had to be called upon to prevent a disturbance.

He wrote to Mr. Smart, but got no answer. In July Lawson got a chance to work his way back to England in a cattle ship, but he was obliged to leave his wife behind, and she has since been virtually dependent on her kind-hearted landlady.

"Such," says the Sun, "is the plain unvarnished tale of Lawson's experience of Mansion House philanthropy. The Sun, which has warmly espoused the cause of relief works, and strongly approved the action of the Mansion House Committee in relation to the Abbey Mills experiment, is reluctant to make public this serious criticism. If the foregoing story be true, and corroborative evidence is not wanting—it would appear that the Abbey Mills experiment was used as a species of feeder to East-end emigration agents. That fact demands some explanation. Anyway, the Sun hopes by publicity to prevent the repetition of this disastrous and seemingly reckless experiment in emigration."

TO DIVORCE AN ASTOR.

J. COLEMAN DRAYTON PROCEEDS AGAINST HIS WIFE.

The Bill of Particulars Filed in the Case.

New York, Sept. 6.—The domestic troubles of Mr. and Mrs. J. Coleman Drayton are to be aired in the Divorce Court. Mr. Drayton began a suit for divorce June 27, but the fact only leaked out to-day. Hallett-Allop Burrows is named as the co-respondent, which is not much of a surprise after the scandal which was aired so extensively a comparatively short time ago. The papers are now on file in the New York State Court of Chancery in Trenton. Mrs. Drayton is in Europe, and her mother, Mrs. William Astor, is in Newport. It is not known that any answer will be made to his, although Drayton asks the unreserved custody of his four children. Drayton's bill of particulars is long and specific. He names Hallett-Allop Burrows as co-respondent, and accuses his wife of infidelity with Burrows upon different dates between January and August, inclusive, 1891, in New York city, at the "Pallette," a cafe and a resort in 54th Street, at 374 Fifth Avenue, at Bernardsville, N.J., in October of the same year, and at St. Pancras, Midland Hotel, London, between January 9 and January 20, 1892. He asks for a complete dissolution of the marriage and the custody of the children.

RECONCILIATION POSSIBLE.

The Vanderbilts May Arrange a Truce—The Daughter May be a Duchess.

Paris, Sept. 6.—Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt is at Schwabach with her three children. General and vigorous efforts are being made by Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt and other members of the Vanderbilt family and by intimate friends of both parties to bring about at least a formal reconciliation. It is, indeed, now considered probable that this will be effected.

Danefield, Schott Murray's famous place on the Thames, had already been engaged by Mr. Vanderbilt at the time of the rupture, but Mrs. Vanderbilt should return to America, and endeavor to secure Mr. Murray's consent to sub-letting the property. This Mr. Murray declined to permit, and Mrs. Vanderbilt remained there until a fortnight ago. It is, therefore, not probable that the Duke and Duchess of Fife made a visit to Danefield, although the statement that they did so was published in the London papers. Royalty make the most careful inquiries through officials of the household before any such visit, and such inquiries could not have failed to elicit information of the trouble between the Vanderbilts. Moreover, the absence of the master of the household on such an occasion would be considered an unpardonable affront.

The young Duke of Marlborough has recently paid a visit to Danefield, and gossip is rife in London and Paris as to the possibility of a marriage being arranged between him and the eldest Miss Vanderbilt, Consuelo, who is now a very pretty girl of nearly eighteen. It is well known that the Duke will not be able to keep up Blenheim unless his present income is very largely increased by marriage or otherwise.

It had been intended to introduce Riss Vanderbilt into society the coming winter in either London or Paris, but whether or not there is a reconciliation it is very probable that Mrs. Vanderbilt will shortly return to America.

Watching Germany's Soldiers.

Königsberg, Sept. 6.—Emperor William, the King of Saxony, and Prince Albrecht of Prussia, were present early this morning at the military manoeuvres about South Altenberg.

THE MOLSONS BANK.

[Special to the Herald.]

Toronto, Sept. 6.—The Molsons Bank are negotiating with Alexander Manning for the erection of a big building on the old site of Brown's lively stable, near the Canada Life Co. building, the bank to occupy the lower floor when the new City Hall, at the head of Bay Street, is finished. Mr. Manning will erect a great office building on the present site of the Molsons Bank on King and Bay Streets.

Henry Irving Remembers the West. New York, Sept. 6.—The first contribution to a fund for the relief of the sufferers by the fires in the Northwest received at the Mayor's office came by cable from Henry Irving, and was accompanied by this message:

"To the Mayor of New York: 'I beg that you will use $5000 cable herewith for a forest fire relief fund, with my deepest sympathy.'

Acting Mayor McCallum announces that he will receive money for the fire sufferers, and will forward it as soon as a committee to receive and distribute it is properly organized.

Liberty Bell Going on a Tour.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—The new Liberty and Peace bells, which rang so often during the World's Fair, is to make a trip throughout the country. Invitations have been received from the governors of every state in the Union to ring the bell in the principal cities.

The Czar's Health Unsatisfactory.

London, Sept. 6.—A despatch to the Daily News from Vienna, states that a letter received in that city from St. Petersburg, says that the Czar's present illness excites public attention as much as did his illness seven months ago, when a catastrophe was expected. His Majesty usually strongly objects to medical treatment, but he is now accompanied by Dr. Zechin. The Hurty read in the church on Sundays now contains a passage referring to the Czar's health which was added last January when he was ill.

Fishermen Rescued.

Quebec, Sept. 6.—The American line steamship Ohio, which arrived here yesterday, brought two French fishermen who had been rescued off the banks of Newfoundland. They had left the wreck of their vessel, in a dory, five days before they were taken on board the steamer. The fishermen said that the sixteen men who remained on the wreck must certainly have been drowned.

Gloucester, Mass., Sept. 6.—The ship Emily F. Whitney brings four men picked up in a small boat August 17, in a starving condition. They were part of the crew of the fishing schooner Maria of St. Pierre, Miq., which foundered on August 13 on the Grand Banks.

JAPANESE ALARMED.

They Fear Execution and Are Flying From China.

Shanghai, Sept. 6.—The alarm among Japanese continues to spread and they may now be said to be flying, as there seems to be little or no protection for them here. They insist that two surrendered prisoners were executed immediately after they were given into the hands of the Chinese authorities. This report, however, has not been confirmed.

POINT ST. CHARLES NEWS.

The funeral of Fireman St. George took place yesterday at the residence of the victim of the Minneapolis accident two years ago. There will be representatives from the two Point fire stations, Nos. 9 and 15, and from Police Station No. 9. A large number of private individuals have been invited to the funeral.

The vagaries of the Curran Bridge will never end. When it was successfully turned by electricity everyone thought that all trouble was at an end. But yesterday and to-day the old system turning by hand was resorted to, because of some breakdown in the machinery, and the blocks are as bad as ever and the delays as vexatious.

The complaints regarding the disgraceful condition of the asphalt roadway on Wellington Street, between the bridge and the subway, are well founded. The department has not had a sweeping machine or even one in for weeks, and the mud is an inch deep on it. The asphalt between the street railway tracks is being torn up for some inscrutable reason, and consequently adds to the bad appearance of the street, while disorganizing the car service and interfering with vehicular traffic.

Watson Symons, who has been taking an extended tour in British Columbia and along the Coast, has just returned, looking exceedingly well.

The Rev. Thomas Hall, who has been the pastor of the Point St. Charles Congregational Church during the three years of its existence, is about to resign his charge. He made his resignation known to the congregation on Wednesday evening, but no action will be taken by the church for some time. Mr. Hall's reasons are entirely personal, and if he leaves it will be to the great regret of the congregation.

Court of Queen's Bench.

The trial of Edward Higgins, charged with being a pick-pocket, was continued yesterday at 10 o'clock, but after an adjournment lasting over one hour, in which Crown Prosecutor Quinn contended that he had the right under the new code to call evidence in rebuttal to the evidence of the Crown's contention and adjourned the proceedings until two o'clock in the afternoon to admit of his procuring the necessary witnesses.

At the resumption of the trial, the Crown prosecutors put in their rebuttal evidence, which on the whole was of an incriminating nature against the prisoner. Higgins, A. E. Harvey, counsel for the accused, then made an eloquent maiden address on behalf of his client. Crown Prosecutor Quinn replied. The jury after a few minutes deliberation came in with a unanimous verdict of guilty.

Wilson Goes to Europe.

New York, Sept. 6.—Congressman Wilson sailed on the steamship Paris, and said he was taking the trip for his health, and was not taking a vest-pocket full of tariff along, and would avoid even hearing the subject if possible.

The Cholera Scourge.

Brussels, Sept. 6.—According to Journal de Bruxelles there were new cases of cholera and eleven deaths at Liege yesterday.

London, Sept. 6.—A despatch to the Times from Vienna says the projected military manoeuvres in East Galicia have been abandoned, owing to the prevalence of cholera there, and fears that troops might contract disease. The despatch adds that a telegram has been received from Trieste, declaring that notwithstanding the denial made by local officials 12 deaths from cholera have occurred in Maribor.

The P. T. Barnum Estate.

Bridgeport, Ct., Sept. 6.—The supreme court decision in the case of C. Barnum Seely against the executors of the estate of P. T. Barnum is practically a victory for the executors. Their claim that they could not pay Mr. Seely the $50,000 a year from the profits of the Barnum & Bailey show was rejected. The domestic trust created by the late P. T. Barnum, which had been performed services which entitled him to the money was sustained, and the tribunal is advised to act.

Mr. Seely's services were not accepted by the management of the circus, and the tribunal, which consists of Mr. Barnum's daughter, Mrs. C. E. Robinson, training, training, training, and H. E. Bower, will now be compelled to say whether he shall receive the money.

Reading the Record.

While the unfortunate news of the grounding of the steamship Haverford was being told at the Dominion line office, yesterday, a telegram from Captain McAuley was received, stating the R.M.S. Labrador passed Cape Point at 12.25. She was reported tearing up the river at a pace which would make a fast service boat blush, and she will be in port tomorrow night. She sailed only last Friday from Liverpool and her mails will be on board only six days. If nothing happens all previous records will be broken by two hours.

Found a Gold Mine.

Kingston, Ont., Sept. 6.—A rich gold belt has been discovered in the Township of Sharbot Lake, a junction station on the C.P.R. James Starke, a wealthy capitalist, has received an option on the property, and to-day shipped three tons of gold ore to England for inspection. The ore assays $120 of gold to the ton.

Where Will St. Louis be Tried?

[Special to the Herald]

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—Mr. Enard, counsel for Mr. St. Louis, who furnished the English syndicate of the Curran bridge, is in the city. Mr. D. H. Henderson came up from Montreal on the same train. It was from Mr. Henderson that the greater portion of the timber used in the crib and false works was purchased.

Mr. Henderson has a claim for payment for the material supplied. It is reported that Mr. Enard has other and more important business on hand for his client, Mr. St. Louis, namely, that he is here in connection with criminal proceedings which, it is said, the Government has decided to take against the contractor in connection with the alleged frauds whereby the cost of that structure was enhanced about twofold.

The most that Mr. Enard expects to get from the Government is that the trial takes in Montreal and not in Ottawa, as was the case in regard to the Connolly brothers.

It is all right enough talking about good and bad, but in the present case, as far as the market can be had from Ross, 20 Chaboull Square. His 30 Cuban's are very good. Try them.

A JURYMEN THREATENED.

His Employer Does Not Want Him to Lose Time of an Inquest.

The inquest on the body of Matt. Creagan, of 43 McCord Street, who was killed on Monday afternoon by a G.T.R. train on Wellington Street, was resumed yesterday afternoon at the Morgue, before Coroner McMahon.

O. Desmarais, of Greenfields, Greenfields, was present as representing the family of the deceased, and E. C. Beckett represented the Grand Trunk Co.

Further evidence was called to show that Mr. Creagan was driving down Osborne Street on Monday and his horse took fright at the corner of Wellington Street. A G.T.R. train was backing slowly along the track, and the horse attempted to pass the train. A collision ensued, Mr. Creagan being thrown across the track. The train was moving very slowly at the time, and the bell of the engine was ringing distinctly.

The Coroner intimated that it would be necessary to again adjourn the case, as the witnesses were still further adjourned until to-day at two p.m.

One of the jurymen intimated to the Coroner that his employer had threatened to discharge him if he lost any more time by attending the inquest. The Coroner said he was very sorry, but he could not release him from serving on the jury.

Robidoux-Clerk Case.

Nothing new transpired in the course of the Alton F. Clerk inquest yesterday afternoon. Mr. Lowe continued his evidence in cross-examination, and his statement as to the transactions in Street Railway shares was not completed until this afternoon.

PARKER-CLIFF.

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—At seven o'clock this morning at the residence of the bride's father on Queen Street, Miss Laura Cluff and Mr. C. A. Parker, of the firm of Parker and Forbes, were married by the Rev. Mr. Benson, of the Dominion Methodist Church.

Good Duck Shooting.

Professor John Parker, Bleury Street, got back yesterday from a pleasant shooting trip up the Ottawa. In company with Mr. Thomas Kelly, of Carleton Place, he got the largest bag of ducks in Ottawa this year, no fewer than fifty-eight duck falling to their guns in a couple of days. Mr. Parker reports sport in that region as much above the average. Duck are exceedingly plentiful, and the shooting is splendid. He expects to return in a week or two.

St. Cuneo Council.

Mayor Henault presided at a meeting of the St. Cuneo Council last night. The Secretary was authorized to ask the Royal Electric Light Co. to see that the town was better supplied with light. The Secretary was also instructed to write to the Consumers' Gas Co., requesting them not to supply any more gas and to take off their mains. It was decided to instruct Mr. A. Adam to represent the Corporation in negotiations with the gas company.

Young Women's Christian Association School of Cookery.

Housework has this advantage over all others; it brings into play a wider range of brain and muscle than any other woman's occupation. It is learned intelligently, and within reason, it is a magnificent educator. It generates all the virtues, which constitute strength of character; the resolution, foresight, perseverance, judgment, keen perception which give one control of circumstances. It is a constant cultivation in this line of women's work, and more thoroughly than anywhere else, when it is well done.

It is only when done, as it too often is, with no system, no notion of time, in dirt and confusion, that the girl herself creates a useless, restless, and impatient temper, that is the most fearful, hope-forsook occupation in the world. Every effort should be made to prove the intimate relations between the cultivation of domestic ability and the cure of poverty, vice and disease, as a motive to bring all women into the work.

As women, we should have authority to see that in every institution where women are confined, there should be thorough and permanent courses of training in household capacity, where the utmost precision was required in the management of the kitchen, and with a diploma at the end.

These institutions we have insisted on, because we have here material to work on, and demonstrate the value of training; and at first, it would be so difficult to get hold of it anywhere, but whatever we decide, nothing but training, training, training, help our present conditions; a wholesale effort to create a wholesale supply of domestic capacity in place of the drop in the bucket which exists to-day.

The Young Women's Christian Association is prepared to take up any classes that may be demanded. Miss Miller, graduate of the Boston Cooking School teacher, JEAN SINCLAIR, Hon. Secretary.

Homeopathic Hospital.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Homeopathic Hospital met Wednesday at the hospital, 44 McGill College Avenue. The ladies present were all delighted with the appearance of the building which has been put into proper condition. The plumbers, carpenters, painters and others have wrought a transformation, and the pleasant rooms are now ready for any gifts which friends may send in. As soon as the hospital appointments are in place, the ladies will have an "Open Reception," so that Montreal's generous public may see this Homeopathic Hospital. The Committee will have several attractive features for the evening, which will be fully advertised. In the meantime the Woman's Auxiliary will meet every Wednesday morning at the hospital, where the Lady Superintendent, Miss Thompson, from the Children's Hospital, Ottawa, will take charge of all donations.

The Vice-Royal Ball.

Quebec, Sept. 6.—The Vice-Royal ball, given in the Citadel last night was a grand affair. Fully five hundred persons were present. The music was furnished by Lieut. Governor Chapleau, Lord Swansen, Major General Herlihy, Admiral Hopkins, of the British fleet, and the Admira of the French fleet.

For the old days are never so sweet
As the old days of my grief.

MARINE ACCIDENTS.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—The first boat-

Yacht went to the rescue of the sunken Viking ship last night, and after an hour's pumping, brought her to the surface again. Muddy water was all over everything and lines and sails were discarded. It is thought she can be rehabilitated.

Chatham, Mass., Sept. 6.—There is a large unknown three-masted schooner sunk off here. It is believed that she ran on the rocks during the fog last night.

Fire Island, Sept. 6.—The German steamship, Captain Jorgensen, from Hamburg for New York, went ashore at 5 o'clock this morning at Belpoint, L.I., fourteen miles east of here, and remains aground. The passengers and crew are still on board the steamer.
