But the Democrats retain control of both houses

The score: Nixon 521, McGovern, 17

Richard Nixon...drops loser's image

WASHINGTON (CP) — Richard M. Nixon buried his "loser" image for good Tuesday, gathering a national mandate of stunning proportions from American voters for another four-year term in the White House.

Nixon was re-elected president by a popular-vote margin of nearly two to one over Democratic challenger George McGovern, sweeping long-held Democratic bastions and Republican heartlands with almost equal ease.

Nixon out-pollled McGovern in 49 of the 50 states. The South Dakota senator managed to win only in Massachusetts and the District of Columbia.

As expected, American Party candidate John Schmitz didn't win any states, polling just one per cent of the vote.

In electoral votes—the system by which a president is formally elected—Nixon seemed certain of 521 out of the 538 votes, leaving McGovern 17.

Not since Franklin D. Roosevelt buried Republican Alf Landon by 523 to eight electoral votes in 1936 has there been such a margin.

DIDN'T GET CONGRESS

But despite their massive support for Nixon as president, the voters refused to give him the kind of Congress he had wanted. The Democrats retained their long-standing control of both the Senate and the House of Representatives, along with a substantial margin among state governors.

For every Republican candidate for Congress who was pulled into office on the strength of the Nixon sweep, another lost out, guaranteeing at least two more years of partisan tug-of-war between the White House and the Capitol over the content of U.S. budgets and legislation.

Speaking on national television and later at a victory rally in a Washington hotel, Nixon spoke of his "landslide" victory and said:

"The next four years will be the time we try to make ourselves worthy of that victory."

With the election over, he said, "it is time to get on with the great tasks that lie before us." Foremost among those tasks was to create the "greatest generation of peace—true peace—mankind has ever known."

McGovern was smiling and relaxed when he appeared before a loyally cheering crowd in Sioux Falls, S.D., to concede defeat.

PLEDGES SOME SUPPORT

Ending a 22-month odyssey, the 50-year-old senator promised to support Nixon's efforts for peace abroad and justice at home. But he also pledged to continue his opposition to the Vietnam war.

and domestic injustices, saying: "We do not rally to the support of policies we deplore."

For Nixon, two months away from his 60th birthday, it was a triumphant climax to a political career that began in California 26 years ago with a successful Congressional race.

After four years in the House and two in the Senate, he served eight years as Dwight Eisenhower's vice-president before losing narrowly to John F. Kennedy in 1960 in his first bid for the presidency. He lost a bid for the California governorship two years later, but rebuilt his political support and then won a hair-line victory over Hubert Humphrey for the presidency in 1968.

Compared with the exhausting round of campaign appearances scheduled by McGovern, which left deep lines etched in the Democrat's face, the president scarcely emerged from his office.

The burden of his campaign was carried by a long list of "surrogates" headed by Vice-President Spiro Agnew, who now becomes a leading prospect for the presidential race in 1976, the 200th anniversary of American independence. Nixon is barred by the Constitution from seeking a third term.

A CHANGE IN ATMOSPHERE

The Republican campaign focussed on Nixon as president, drawing on the prestige of the office. It praised his conduct of foreign affairs, particularly the trips to Peking and Moscow, and stressed the domestic tranquility that had come to mark his tenure compared with the disorder of the 1960s.

McGovern, who has said he will at least complete the two years remaining of his Senate term, but not make another bid for president, campaigned with increasing harshness against Nixon's conduct of the Vietnam war and the peace negotiations.

After upsetting all the polls and the experts by winning the Democratic nomination, his candidacy suffered a severe blow with the replacement of Thomas Eagleton by Sargent Shriver as vice-presidential nominee and was later hurt by apparent indecision, "radicalism" and lack of credibility.

By election eve, the polls were signalling a Nixon landslide. To the end, however, McGovern had insisted that he would win. His supporters kept hoping for a miraculous turn—a higher-than-average turnout of pro-McGovern voters, an excess of Republican confidence, or that the senator's own record of winning against the odds would continue.

None of their hopes materialized.

The vote all across the U.S. was unexpectedly light and the anti-McGovern vote proved overwhelming.

School board to try new bus routes

By WENDY McMULLEN
Record Reporter

LENNOXVILLE — Parents who attended a Lennoxville elementary school board meeting on Oct. 10 to complain about the routing of school buses on Jacques Cartier boulevard have had their problem somewhat alleviated. Marguerite Knapp, chairman of the school commission reported at an executive committee meeting yesterday evening.

Mrs. Knapp reported that a meeting was arranged with the parents concerned, Mr. MacLeay, the director general, and Mr. Hodge in charge of transportation. Mr. MacLeay persuaded the parents to try to accommodate themselves to a reversal of route which would avoid the children having to cross the busy Jacques Cartier boulevard but would not concede route changes which would increase the cost of transportation. Mrs. Knapp reported.

It was also agreed at the meeting that the bus would stop somewhat beyond the intersection of Prospect and Jacques Cartier streets to avoid the children getting off at a dangerous corner. Mrs. Knapp said the parents had agreed to try the new arrangement for a short period and make a further report if it was unsatisfactory. So far there had been no further complaints, Mrs. Knapp concluded.

The executive committee of the school board passed a resolution agreeing to the cost of $960 to convert a garage in the Lennoxville school to a changing room for the ice rink. The former changing room for the school rink was appropriated from the school for the new elementary board offices.

The committee could not, however, agree to the cost of plumbing for the changing rooms and the decision on whether the new building is to have washrooms has been passed back to the full school board to resolve. It was decided in any case that the conversion of the garage would only be a temporary arrangement until permanent changing facilities could be built.

The question of pupil insurance for children in the schools was passed to the various school committees for recommendations. From this year, parents are responsible for insuring their own children but in order to get a group policy the school must deal with only one company.

Hugh Auger, director general, asked the commissioners to decide to what extent they were responsible for the insurance companies who distributed information on their policies through the schools.

After some debate it was decided that the problem should be put to the school committees to see what the feeling was for next year. The resolution, made by Mr. Auger, was passed unanimously.

Hopes dim for hydro settlement

MONTREAL (CP) — Hydro-Quebec and union representatives met early today with government mediator Yvon Danereau in an effort to get contract talks going again.

Union and company spokesmen said both sides were trying to decide when and under what conditions talks would resume for a new contract to end the strike by the utility's 8,500 employees which enters its third day today.

The Hydro-Quebec spokesmen said a midnight check showed there were 110 power failures across the province affecting 45,000 people. Several hours earlier, 70,000 people had been without electricity.

Supervisory personnel are attempting to fix the power breaks left unrepaired by the strike of linemen, maintenance workers, engineers and some office personnel.

The spokesmen said the breakdowns would ordinarily be handled quickly by the workers.

Tuesday night's meeting was the first since negotiations broke off Thursday. The workers walked off the job Monday morning.

ESSENTIAL SERVICES

The Canadian Union of Public

Employees, which represents the strikers, is letting regional committees decide whether power failures constitute a danger to public health and safety and require emergency repairs.

The union has said it will maintain essential services at hospitals, water pumping stations and police and fire departments. The company says all hydro supplies are essential, especially with falling temperatures and home heating problems in November.

Today's weather forecast calls for cloudy conditions with rain or wet snow in many parts of the province and temperatures ranging between 30 and 40.

The major contract issue is wages. The union wants a three-year agreement with increases of 31 per cent for technicians, 19 per cent for office workers and 24 per cent for manual workers. Average weekly wages for the three groups now are $188, $129 and $160 respectively.

Hydro-Quebec has offered a lump-sum settlement for 1972 plus increases of nine, 6½ and six per cent for the next three years of a four-year contract. The company has said the offer is not final.

The Hydro-Quebec workers have been without a contract for 11 months.

NO DEBATE

In Quebec City, Jean-Noel Lavoie, national assembly speaker, turned down a Parti Quebecois request for an emergency debate on the strike, saying it would be premature.

Longest-lasting of the power failures has been in the Montreal suburbs of Cote St. Luc and Hampstead where 3,000 people have been without electricity since a power shovel severed an underground cable Monday.

Worst blackout of the day Tuesday occurred in St. Jovite, 65 miles north of Montreal, where about 15,000 homes lost power around supper time. The break was fixed during the evening.

Leslie Szabolcsi, whose westend Montreal home is without electricity, Monday used a fondue pot to heat his three-week-old baby's formula. On Tuesday he moved his family to a place with electricity.

Another Montrealer, Martin Halickman, has a generator roaring in his driveway. But he has had to have repairs four times since Monday and even then it does not produce enough power to operate the stove.

City studies mall for downtown area

By ALEX RADMANOVICH
Record Reporter

SHERBROOKE — The city of Sherbrooke will study the possibility of constructing an enclosed mall in the downtown area following a visit to Quebec by members of the downtown committee.

Councillors Romeo Bergeron and Romeo Quintal revealed at Monday's council meeting that they and other members of the fact-finding visit were very impressed with the Quebec scheme. They did not commit their efforts solely on the mall possibility but declared that the downtown committee will give the matter serious thought.

"We're not saying that such a project is feasible in Sherbrooke," they asserted, "But it is certainly worthwhile to examine its merits." Both men said they were very receptive to the idea.

In its report to council the downtown committee examined some of the reasons Quebec City officials gave for the mall's construction and related some of the technicalities of the project.

The committee's report focussed particularly on the need for action in the downtown area, a problem common not only to Quebec City but to Sherbrooke and many other growing cities. Basically, the main issue is the loss of vitality encountered in commercial areas constructed prior to the advent of shopping centres.

The committee noted that in Quebec City officials found the downtown area to be stagnant in terms of new investment. Essentially it was a case of the old commercial centre not realizing the potential which it possessed, the report said.

As a result of its loss of leadership in the commercial sector, the Quebec downtown area was paying less money in taxes to the municipality, resulting in a loss of revenue for the municipal coffers. The Sherbrooke committee suggested that the same situation existed here.

Three areas of taxation were affected: sales taxes, business taxes and land taxes. To alleviate the loss of revenue, Quebec City undertook a scheme which was intended to attract new investment to the downtown area.

Both Bergeron and Quintal expressed their amazement at the mall idea, not so much on the physical element of the mall, but on the financing and decision-making which made the project feasible.

The two councillors revealed that when the pilot study was undertaken in Quebec City there was much skepticism but once plans were drawn the Quebec council reached unanimous agreement on the go-ahead.

"The mall construction is financed by the municipality with borrowed funds at the present moment," Bergeron pointed out, "but after two years a special tax will be levied on the mall's tenants to recover the debt." There was complete agreement on this regard as well, he said.

Acting mayor Roger Gingues injected a somber note into the discussion when he suggested that perhaps Quebec City can undertake such an ambitious project because "They are closer to the Parliament buildings than we are."

Pulp Co. accused of blocking reopening

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of Temiscaming, Que., citizens accused Canadian International Paper Ltd. (CIP) Tuesday of blocking attempts to buy and reopen the company's pulp mill here.

The U.S.-owned company shut down the Temiscaming mill last May after 50 years as the town's only significant economic base. It said the mill could no longer operate at a profit.

The citizens group, comprising Mayor Paul Benoit, local merchants and unemployed members of the United Paperworkers International Union, say CIP management fears embarrassment if the mill is successfully reactivated.

Problem Is Often Emotional

Impotence: The Fickle Flesh

Impotence is usually due to some psychological factor which the individual cannot control.

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am writing you to see if you can help me or tell me what to do. When I want to have intercourse with my wife and am all ready, my penis goes soft and then I can't do anything.

Dr. Lamb

What would cause this? It is very unpleasant for my wife and also for me.

Dear Reader—Failure to maintain an erection for intercourse is impotence. It is a normal occurrence right after an orgasm. Most men have experienced this problem at other times as well. When a young man experiences this difficulty repeatedly, it is usually because of some psychological factor which he cannot control. That is why these cases need professional help. In the younger man it may be associated with inexperience and quite frequently from fear of failure in the sex act. The fear of failure has a powerful effect on a man's sexual ability. The truth is that sex works best when it occurs naturally without a need to prove one's self or turn in a performance record.

Sometimes a man is impotent with his wife but not in other situations. This is usually the result of unresolved emotional conflicts between the couple. When there is a great deal of hostility between married people, impotence may be the final result.

A woman who constantly refuses her husband eventually turns him off and he may be impotent with her. Also, the woman who constantly nags and abuses her husband is surprised to find then when she expects him to love her and be passionate with her that he is not able to do so.

Besides the situational and psychological factors that are important in causing impotence, there are a number of medical problems. High on the list in younger men is diabetes. It may affect the nerves that control the normal erecting mechanism and cause impotence. This, like all of the psychological and social factors, has nothing to do with male hormones or maleness in all other respects.

In older men there is a gradual decline in the amount of male hormone. This decreases the man's sex desires and may lead to impotence. A factor in some of these cases is the accumulation of fatty deposits in the arteries (atherosclerosis) that provide the blood supply to the testicles. This is the same kind of accumulation that occurs in the arteries to the heart that causes heart attacks, except in this instance it affects normal function of the testicles. This is very common in North American males and probably all of those countries that have a high incidence of atherosclerosis.

The testicles are among the first organs to be affected by atherosclerosis. With this process there may even be a reversal of the amount of male-female hormone in the body. The man who wants to retain his sexual capacity should embark on the same program advocated to prevent heart attacks.

In less frequent instances the arteries that supply blood to the penis are blocked with fatty deposits preventing the normal erection. These individuals also often have trouble with the arteries to their legs, causing cramping with walking.

The best thing you can do is to see your doctor and have a complete medical evaluation. If there are no medical factors that can be clearly identified as causing your problem, such as diabetes, then you should have psychiatric counseling to see if you can work out your problem. Often impotence on a psychological basis can be resolved in a relatively short period of time with competent psychiatric help.

If the problem is because you are getting older and there is a decrease in male hormone, a careful examination of these aspects can identify the problem and appropriate medicine can be given. Male hormone, however, doesn't relieve the problem of impotence in an individual unless there is a significant decrease. Along this line it is important to note that even mature men who have been castrated are often able to remain sexually active.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I understand there is a natural birth control method which involves a mucus secretion. Is the woman most or least fertile during this secretion. Please explain this method.

The Private Life

Dear Reader—The method is dependent upon the changes in the woman's secretions. As the time of ovulation approaches the normal woman's secretions change their characteristics to become clear and more liquid, somewhat like the characteristics of a raw egg white. After ovulation the secretions thicken and develop a more whitish characteristic. By noting this change in the characteristics of the mucus the time of ovulation can be determined.

Obviously, nature planned this mechanism to facilitate sexual relations at the fertile period. Some groups that have studied this method have stated that it is a very reliable means of determining the fertile period and can therefore be used for either birth control or as a fertility aid. I would like to say, however, that the method has not had sufficient study and trial to test its reliability as a birth control procedure and it seems to me that it is closer to an approximation than a precise timing of the onset of ovulation.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am 21 and have just started growing a beard. What can I do to make it grow faster?

Dear Reader—Twenty-one is a little late to start growing a beard and suggests significantly delayed maturity of the hormone system. This is sufficient reason to see a specialist in these problems or an endocrinologist. You can find one by contacting your county medical society or your state medical society and asking for the names of doctors who specialize in endocrinology. If there is nothing wrong with the endocrine system, then what you need to do is be patient. On the other hand if there is a disturbance in the amounts of normal hormones produced, many of these problems can be remedied with proper hormone treatment.

Don't start breaking agreements when they don't suit you any more

Dear P.D.: If the team members want to get together and change the deal for FUTURE wins, that's another story. But the disposition of this prize money has already been determined. So — divide the $1,000 (less the tax you must pay) and then it would be nice if they took you and your husband out for a night on the town.

Dear Ann Landers: Forgive me for asking a question about a topic you've dealt with frequently, but I need an opinion. The women who've written to ask if a face-lift is worth the expense and pain have already decided that anything is worth it if it helps them hang on to a husband or get a new one.

My question is a little different. Do you believe a face-lift will help me in the labor market? I have no qualms about my ability (I'm in the paramedical field) but I hear so much these days about youth that I wonder if I'd have a better chance for employment if I looked ten years younger. I was widowed a few months ago and am in my mid-40's. Thanks, Ann. —Undecided In Nebraska

Dear Undecided: The woman who expects a face-lift to take ten years off her age is in for a disappointment, unless, of course, she has some glaring cosmetic defect, such as prominent bags under the eyes or gross sagging of the jowls.

A supple, slim figure will go a lot further toward making a woman look younger than facial surgery. But of course it means giving up some of those gourmet delights and exercising regularly. Most women would rather have an operation. It's easier to put the burden on a surgeon.

New members sworn in at Stanstead council

By IVY HATCH

STANSTEAD—Roger Roy, a Pharmacist, and D.W. Prangle were sworn into the office of council seats at the regular meeting of the Stanstead Council held on Monday night, November 6. The third councillor, Roger Smith, had previously been sworn in.

A fine letter was read by Mayor E.J. Struthers from Howard Majury, who expressed appreciation for the cooperation of the council the seven years he had served as a councillor. He also wished the present Council the best of luck.

Joanne Poulin was spokesman for a group of young people who requested public skating rights at the college arena. Mayor Struthers said this will be given attention.

Delmar White, now the councillor with most years of service, was elected Pro-Mayor.

The following committees were appointed by Mr. Struthers: Roads and Garage, Don Prangle and Delmar White; Sewer and Health, Delmar White and Don Prangle; Relief, Roger Roy and Peter Beasie; Parks, Town Hall and Police, Delmar White and Roger Smith; Fire and lights, Peter Beasie and Arthur Gaulin; Finance, Roger Smith and Roger Roy; Building Permits, Arthur Gaulin and Don Prangle; Leisure, Arthur Gaulin and Roger Roy; Administration, Mayor Struthers and Industrial, Peter Beasie and Roger Smith.

Mr. Prangle said the new side walk under construction on the west side of Dufferin Road nears completion. This has been at a cost of $5,687.38. This figure includes drains and blacktopping of entrances. Part of the costs will be paid by the Bell Telephone Co. The company laid underground wires in this section.

The garbage collection day switch from Tuesday to Friday seems to be satisfactory with the citizens of the village.

A form resolution was read asking council to have a gas-line follow a route through a portion of Quebec. This request is to be studied before action is taken.

A new trailer bylaw is to be drawn up by Lawyer Rene Monty. The draft will be presented at a meeting of Council for possible amendments and adoption.

The sum of $50 was granted to the Border Chamber of Commerce for their 'Shop at Home' Christmas campaign and $25 was voted in support of the Legion Poppy fund.

A new mercury light is to be installed at the corner of Park street and Dufferin Road, with a second to be installed near Hackett Park.

A building permit was approved for E. Courtemanche to add a canopy on his business building at a cost of $250.

It was noted Jacques street is private and it is for this reason the village does not maintain it.

The levying of taxes came up and a question as to which year is being paid, 1972 or 1973, was also raised. This is an issue because taxes are collected one year in advance. No decision was reached on this issue.

However, it was agreed that because finance committee is composed of two new councillors, the committee would be given an opportunity to study this. They asked council for their budget figures for the 1973 year, setting a Nov. 20 deadline. This will allow time to draw up the budget and to set the mill rate at the December meeting based upon the budget.

Since Stanstead broke away from the joint police department with Rock Island it will cost the Village considerably more than in previous years.

An agreement has been made with the Rock Island Town Council to rent the control services at $100 per month. This means calls for police can now go through the control center as they did previously.

A constable has been hired to assist the Chief on weekends and at special times. There were extra police on for Halloween. It was agreed to amend the police bylaws to be in accord with sections 66 and 67 of the highway code.

Mr. Beasie said the Fire Chief has requested fire extinguishers be placed in the town garage and this will be done by Mr. Prangle.

As the hour was approaching 11:00 p.m., the meeting adjourned.

The Cabbage Patch: A great place for the small fry

By WENDY McMULLEN

COATCOOK — Parents of young children in Coatcook have a service available not usually found even in much larger centres—the Cabbage Patch day care centre which operates five days a week from 7:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the basement of St. John's Catholic Church in Coatcook.

As the centre is funded by a local initiatives project grant from Canada manpower, the cost for the service is only $2.50 per day or 50 cents an hour. This includes a wide range of supervised activities as well as a nutritious lunch, snacks and a diaper service.

Jeanette Vaillancourt, one of the three persons running the centre, enthusiastically described some of the activities for the children. "We have lots of things for them to do," she asserted.

There are toys for younger children and the older children make cut-outs and stick them in scrap books.

"We have a record player and they love to listen to children's records and they also have great fun dressing up in old clothes and pretending to be little old women or other characters. We tell them stories or talk to them too. It is so interesting to talk to the children."

LOVE TO DRAW

"They also love to draw," she continued. "We give them sheets of paper and tell them to draw their house or something and then we put them up on the wall."

afterwards. They are really delighted to see their work on display and very proud to point it out to their parents when they come in the evening.

We have outside activities too, she added. "We often take them for walks outside and of course they love to play in the snow."

At 11:30 a.m. the children are provided with a nutritious lunch and then from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. they sleep. The tiny children sleep in cribs but the older ones have heavy rugs on the floor to sleep on which they consider a delightful novelty.

Mrs. Vaillancourt emphasized that everything was approved and inspected by the government. "Parents like to bring their children here because they know that we are very careful to keep everything clean and provide good nourishing meals," Mrs. Vaillancourt said.

EVERYTHING CHECKED

"A nurse from the government comes in regularly to check everything and we welcome parents to come in and see what we are doing," she added.

The official name of the centre is the Roger Cote centre named after Father Roger Cote of the St. John's Catholic Church who founded the centre at the request of a group of young parents from Coatcook.

Mrs. Vaillancourt said the name "Cabbage Patch" was added "just for fun."

The Cabbage Patch is attended by about 15 children but Mrs. Vaillancourt said there is room for more.

At present only two English-speaking children attend regularly but Mrs. Vaillancourt and Mrs. Micheline Guymond both speak English.

All new comers are encouraged and made to feel welcome.

Blanchette named provincial court judge

SHERBROOKE — Guy Blanchette, QC, has been appointed judge of the provincial court in Sherbrooke, it was announced recently.

Mr. Blanchette, from Chateaufort, is the son of J.A. Blanchette, a federal Member of Parliament for Compton-Frontenac from 1935-1958.

He studied commerce at the College of Arthabaska, then changed to classics and continued his studies at the Seminaire St. Charles and the University of Ottawa. He studied Law at McGill University and graduated in 1948.

In July 1948 he was admitted to the bar. He was appointed Queen's Counsel on August 8, 1963 and was provincial crown prosecutor from 1963-1966. From 1960-1972 he was federal crown prosecutor.

New club boasts winning group

SHERBROOKE (SMG) — Sherbrooke's newest nightclub, "La Place", opened its doors to the public on Monday night.

The low ceilings and tastefully decorated walls made the room which has a seating capacity of over 240, seem small and personal. The music from the jukebox fills the enclave without making conversation impossible. The highlight of the evening was the live entertainment — a band called The Young Raiders.

The club, for "young married couples and students" seems destined for success. Brightly painted panels provide a background for beautiful black light posters which give the place a distinct, young atmosphere. Seven or eight piece groups will star at La Place seven nights a week.

If the standard set by the Young Raiders is kept up, club patrons will have no complaints about the music. The band, from Kansas, played to a handful of people, most of whom found their mid-western drawl hard to understand.

Despite the lack of audience response during the first act, the Young Raiders put so much of themselves into the act that after the first interval there was some response from the floor. The group's attempts at French on stage probably helped.

Musically they were incredible — they deserve to be playing on the same bill as top-name groups. Their interpretations of Chicago and other well-known group numbers were at times as good as the original version.

There is no "star" of the group. The eight musicians work together, with perfect timing, to produce each number. The coordination is so good that there is one sound made by them, not eight. The band hopes more recognition will come its way, when it finally cuts its first album.

Joe Vargo, who runs "La Place", guaranteed that the standard would be kept up.

He books many American groups in Canada, many of which he will play in his club. He added that there was a possibility that he would get some well-known performers to play occasionally.

SHERBROOKE (AR) —

Recent figures released by city of Sherbrooke officials show that the value of construction permits issued up to and including October 1972 increased substantially over the same period last year.

The statistics also indicated that the total number of permits increased from 861 in the same period in 1971 to 1001 this far in the present year.

A total of $27,397,809 in permits has been issued this year compared to $16,195,206 a year ago. In effect this represents an additional $11,202,603 pumped into the economy over the 1971 figure.

October only figures reveal that the value of permits last month was only $246,745 higher than during October 1971. The main component of the 1972 October figure is a federal government project totalling $1,322,240 for the renovation of the post office building on Couture street.

If the federal commitment is subtracted, from the present October total, the value of construction permits is actually $975,495 lower than last year in the same month. Housing starts totalled 328 in 1972 in comparison to 266 last year for an increase of 52.

The value of residential permits, however, is lower this year than in 1971, with $8,398,800 last year and $8,285,000 comparatively in 1972.

Of the 328 housing permits issued 225 were for single-family dwellings while the remainder, including nine for 16-apartment dwellings or more, were for a wide range of sizes.

Says CTV reaches most of Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Murray Chercover, president and managing director of CTV Television

Network Ltd., told the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) Tuesday the privately-owned network now reaches 87 per cent of Canadian households with television sets.

Mr. Chercover, applying for a five-year renewal of CTV's broadcasting licence which expires next September, told a public hearing of the CRTC its viewing audience will exceed 90 per cent by next autumn if the commission approves the network's requests to expand into additional areas of the country.

In a 17-page submission, Mr. Chercover said expansion of CTV service to Sydney, N.S.; Sudbury, North Bay, Timmins, Thunder Bay, Kingston, Belleville and Owen Sound, Ont.; Saskatoon and Kamloops and Kelowna, B.C., within the last two years has brought a "warm and responsive" reaction from viewers.

The network's further expansion plans included southwestern Ontario, Brandon, Man.; Red Deer, Alta.; and Quesnel, Williams Lake and Prince George, B.C.

In programming, Mr. Chercover said, "CTV, without pressure of regulations, has been innovative and, we think, productive."

The network's daytime programs were winning increasing acceptance, it had initiated an early-morning service and its performance in the news and information field "has been, with all due humility, spectacular."

Its broadcasting schedule for the current season had been extended to 63 hours and 50 minutes a week from 47 hours and 50 minutes a year ago.

Several new faces on small municipal councils

EASTERN TOWNSHIPS (MB) — The municipality of Potton held elections yesterday for seats No. 1, 3 and 5 while in Hatley Village seats No. 2, 4 and 6 were contested Sunday.

In Hatley Village Reginald Martin doubled George Hartwell 65 votes to 33 while in the contest for seat No. 4 Otis Patterson gathered 68 nods to 31 for Beaven Bowen.

Bruce Johnson was acclaimed to seat No. 6 when no other candidate was nominated.

Only one of the three council seats in the municipality of Potton was contested at the polls. Howard Jewett defeated Ross Hamelin by a 115-vote majority to capture the seat for the area of Vale Perkins. The seat was formerly held by Eric Sullivan, who withdrew from the nominations.

Clifton Jersey and Porter Knowlton were renominated and returned by acclamation to their former seats. Mr. Jersey will once again represent Mansonsville village and urban areas around Lake Memphramagog.

Meanwhile, Mr. Knowlton is once again responsible for the area covering the road from the Mansonsville Baptist Church past West Hill and on to Dunkin.

The possibility of holding future elections on Sundays was seriously discussed by the Potton municipality council, a practice in most Quebec towns during the past few years.

Such a move would accommodate property owners who live in the towns on weekends only.

He told the annual meeting of the Quebec Institute of Chartered Accountants that favorable indicators include investment rates, government policies and an improvement in the province's political and social climate.

While there was strong growth in Quebec during the 1960s, he said, "the relative position of Quebec vis a vis the Canadian economy did not improve; it just about held its own until 1965 and deteriorated somewhat from 1966 to 1970."

While there are several reasons for the state of Quebec's economy "The most important seems to be the faulty structure of our manufacturing industry," which he said is too heavily concentrated in the labor-intensive category such as clothing, textiles and shoes.

Marcel Belanger, former chairman of the Quebec royal commission on taxation, predicted that during the seventies "contrary to what happened in the previous decade, Quebec could improve its relative position in the Canadian economy."

Mr. Belanger based his outlook on projections for economic activity in the 1970s in the United States and Canada and on an analysis of preliminary trends for the current decade.

The bald heads

For some time Ottawa and the West German government have been negotiating for the use of Camp Shilo by West German troops. Bonn would like the area for tank and artillery training and the Canadian government has been receptive. Ottawa, however, can make no arrangement with the West Germans without provincial consent. The federal government's lease of the land from the province comes up for renewal in December 1974 and the proposed agreement with the Germans is dependent on this renewal.

There has been opposition to the use of the Camp Shilo area by German troops from two sources. One has come from a segment of the public which cannot forget that the Germans were our enemies in the Second World War. This opposition, while understandable, is regrettable. West Germany is no longer an enemy but an ally, no longer a dictatorship but a democratic country whose leaders are good Europeans, good Atlantic partners, and whose armed forces are our allies within the Atlantic alliance.

It has become customary within the alliance to offer the use of facilities of one NATO country for trials and training to the forces of another. West German troops have trained in Wales, France and Holland — all countries which suffered grievously during the war from German attacks and, in the case of France and Holland, from German occupation. Reason suggests that, if similar arrangements can be worked out with Canada, this country should be equally co-operative.

Certainly, from a practical standpoint, the idea has much to commend it. West Germany is only a third the size of Manitoba and, with 60 million inhabitants, has found it increasingly difficult to find unused areas for military training. Like Britain, it has had to look for cooperation from allies who are more generously endowed, as far as geography is concerned, than itself.

The presence of German troops in Camp Shilo, moreover, would be a financial help to towns like Carberry and Brandon which would benefit from troop concentrations in the area. Reason and self-interest thus combine to suggest that, if the arrangement goes through, the West German troops should be welcomed. The opposition to this on emotional grounds is simply not valid in today's world.

More valid has been the opposition by conservationists who have been concerned about what the presence of German troops might do to the ecology of the region, especially the Bald Heads, that unique area, about three miles in depth, at the eastern end of the artillery firing range. This is Canada's only true desert. The problem for the conservationists has been how to protect the Bald Heads and still give the West Germans, or any other troops, the area they need for their exercises.

Officially the West Germans have as yet made no statement on whether or not the Bald Heads are essential to their purposes, but a spokesman for the German embassy has intimated that it has been a matter of serious concern. It was given consideration when an exploratory delegation from the German defence ministry visited Camp Shilo in August. A report submitted by the delegation recommends that the moving dunes should not be used for military purposes but should be excluded from the area in any raining projects, should the agreement with Ottawa go through.

This, while unofficial, is encouraging. If the West German attitude is as the embassy spokesman suggests, the preservation of the Bald Heads is virtually guaranteed. All that remains is for the provincial government to exclude the Bald Heads from the Ottawa lease which comes up for renewal at the end of 1974.

Change of policy preceded by upheaval?

WASHINGTON — There is a good chance that the great change of policy in Hanoi was preceded by a great political upheaval, including the severe downgrading of North Vietnam's crucially important first party secretary, Le Duan. This is not certain as yet, but the wisest American analysts consider that it is highly probable.

As usual in such cases, the evidence will appear trifling to anyone who is not a close student of North Vietnamese affairs. Perhaps the most impressive item is a recent photograph showing the party leadership at a public reception.

Prime Minister Pham Van Dong, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, Le Duan's bitter enemy and rival, Truong Chinh — these and all other leaders of consequence were conspicuously present, while Le Duan alone was conspicuously absent. The first party secretary's absence was significant, of course, precisely because the lineup of personages on public occasions is always a message telling who is who.

The photograph in turn underlined the further fact that Le Duan, usually most active, has not been publicly seen or heard from since Sept. 3. This is not surprising, either, since the North Vietnamese policy change undoubtedly dates from mid-September. And when a great mistake is acknowledged by a great change of policy, the principal author of the mistake is usually made to suffer for it.

In the case of North Vietnam, it is inordinately difficult, of course, to know for sure which leader was on what side in any given decision. It is widely supposed, for example, that Gen. Giap was a strong backer of the policy of huge North Vietnamese investments in the war in South Vietnam. Yet most of the inner group of experts instead believe that Giap was really an advocate of the doctrine of classical guerrilla war — which he wrote himself after the French defeat.

of fact

with Joseph Alsop

In the case of Le Duan, in contrast, there is no room for doubt about his role. The documents have consistently shown the first party secretary as the leading advocate of using North Vietnam's manpower and resources with an unsparing hand in order to aid the Viet Cong in the south.

With equal consistency, the evidence has shown Truong Chinh on the opposite side of the argument, in favor of putting the home front first, in fact. In addition, Le Duan is one of the two Hanoi Politburo members who comes from South Vietnam, whereas Truong Chinh is a northerner, and is Chinese Communist-trained, to boot. His name, a pseudonym, even means "Long March."

If Truong Chinh is up and Le Duan is down (or even out), it certainly does not mean that the angels of light have triumphed over the powers of darkness. Yet if this is really the way of it, the fact has immense meaning, nonetheless.

Suppose a great political upheaval has in fact preceded what looks like a great change of policy, to begin with. It is then much, much safer to assume that the policy change is real.

This has direct bearing on the most vital question raised by Dr. Henry A. Kissinger's negotiations. That question, of course, is whether the North Vietnamese mean to cheat again this time, as they cheated so flagrantly and promptly after their Laos agreement with Gov. Averell Harriman in 1962.

Truong Chinh being up and Le Duan down further fits neatly with the course of the Kissinger negotiations, since the North Vietnamese began to get down to business in late September. On the one hand, Le Duan bears the heaviest responsibility for the sacrifice in war of at least a million of North Vietnam's young men — the equivalent of 11 million Americans. Yet if Hanoi does not cheat, this dire sacrifice will be in vain.

On the other hand, as above noted, Truong Chinh has always been an advocate of priority for the home front. And as soon as they got down to business in the talks, the theme of American aid to help reconstruct the home front became very important indeed.

There is another potential meaning, too, in the appearance of a political upheaval in Hanoi. If the appearance is not misleading, in fact, it is clinching evidence that we could not possibly have got a deal of the sort the Nixon Administration has now got, either four years ago or even four months ago.

But the claim that we could have got such a deal much earlier is also shown to be self-serving hogwash by a mountain of other evidence. And while the probability is clear that Truong Chinh is up and Le Duan is down, we must still wait for certainty.

Esprit lacking

Dear Sir:

It has been reported that the militia units in Sherbrooke will not be able to take part in the Armistice Parade on Sunday Nov. 12 because of "lack of funds."

It is a very dubious command that does not allow "funds" for the parade, and certainly a sad comment on the "esprit de corps" of the militia who would require payment to attend a parade in the heart of Sherbrooke to honour the dead of the armed forces they are supposed to represent, who fought for years to ensure the freedom they, the militia, now enjoy.

Sharon

She'd stand in her glory, her hair hanging low.
She'd smile in a sweet life, her beauty would glow.

Her voice, though it quiet, was the sounding of chimes.
And the fragrance about her, the sweet smell of pine.

Sharon was different, stranger each day.
But she could love too, in her own private way.

We'd meet on our corner, in our own little world.
Sharon would smile at me; her teeth were like pearls.

Her features were delicate, like the leaves on a tree.
And through deep blue eyes, the world she could see.

In a short while she left us, as sad as it seems.
But Sharon's still with me, she lives in my dreams.

All things must pass

By Jean Guy Carrier

OTTAWA (CP) — Amid the wooden crates and half-full cartons Harold E. Stafford strode, arms and hands waving, talking about how he could see it all coming and how he was just going to go away and now maybe practise a little law.

Like scores of other defeated members of Parliament, Mr. Stafford was in town Monday to clear out his office. And like the others he still was talking about how it happened, as if saying it aloud might make it a little clearer for him.

Mr. Stafford lost the riding of Elgin, in Ontario, which he'd held for the Liberals since 1965, by a wide margin.

"I was standing in the committee room," he said, spreading his hands to set the scene. "I knew from the first few polls that I wasn't going to make it."

SLIPPED AWAY

As he stuffed books and papers into cartons Mr. Stafford explained how he could feel before the election that it was all just slipping away.

"But the minute the election was over I was stopped on the streets," he says, and calls over to his secretary, lost behind more cartons in the corner. "Remember? Some of them were crying."

Mr. Stafford said he feels he was just beginning to know the job, but he's philosophical about leaving. To emphasize it he tells how the first murder trial he handled as a lawyer ended with the defendant hanging.

"People came up to me and asked why I didn't seem to feel sorry," Mr. Stafford told them it was a simple matter of not being able to do much about it.

"It's the same with this," he said, referring to his defeat.

GOOD EXPERIENCE

Even on the way out Mr. Stafford's time in the House will serve him well. He concedes that the exposure will earn him dividends in the future.

"The court cases will just come rolling in."

A few floors down, another West Block office was being emptied more casually by Perry Ryan, former Conservative member for Spadina. While carefully wrapping a statuette, picked up in Hong Kong, Mr. Ryan hinted at his eventual return.

"There will be another election and maybe..." He plans to stick around in any case. "I might make myself useful to the party, to Mr. Stanfield."

As for losing, "It's no great problem after 10 years in the House."

The knick-knacks, books and papers Mr. Ryan moved out of his office will be stored in the basement of a Toronto law office.

"It's easy enough to bring them back. I have a station wagon."

The rule is that members must vacate their offices within 10 days of the election.

Grant Deachman, former Liber member for Vancouver-Quadra, recalled how in previous years defeated members were "practically thrown into the street."

Things are more civilized now, he explained as he backed. "Now our effects are shipped home."

Mr. Deachman operated a public relations firm before his election to the House in 1963.

The business is long gone now, he said, "so I'm approaching the world with fresh thoughts."

The people who actually do most of the packing are the secretaries and executive assistants of the departing members.

The secretaries all are assured of being assigned to new positions, possibly as secretaries to new members. But the executive assistants are out in the cold.

LEFT DESPONDENT

"It's something you know and accept from the beginning," signed Jacques Vanasse, 35, executive assistant to former member Guy Leblanc of Rimouski, Que.

Mr. Vanasse sat dwarfed and despondent amid a confusion of tall cartons.

"I've got five interviews lined up between now and Wednesday," he said, explaining that he hoped to become executive assistant to another member.

"I'd even take a second assistant position, though it would drop my salary down from $9,800 to about $6,800."

BERRY'S WORLD

"Unlike Senator McGovern, my opponent WAS able to stir up a sense of outrage in voters..."

DARRELL LADD ABBOTT

ALICE INEZ LINDA BELL

Engagement announced

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Bell, Huntingville, are very pleased to announce the engagement of their youngest daughter Alice Inez Linda (Bunny) to Mr. Darrell Ladd Abbott of Oakville, Ontario, formerly of Lennoxville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Abbott, Bishop's College School, Lennoxville. A December wedding is planned.

Waterman-Searles wed

The marriage of Linda Mary, only daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Searles, of Derby Line, and the late Harry Searles to Lawrence (Larry) Waterman, son of Mrs. Marsha Waterman, Town of Derby, and the late Mr. Waterman took place on Saturday afternoon, October 28 at two o'clock in Stanstead South church, Rock Island.

Rev. G.W. Stokes officiated for the double ring ceremony. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Alice McHarg. The soloist, Tim Lewis sang prior to the entrance of the bride, "O Perfect Love" and during the signing of the register "We've Only Just Begun" and "Theme from Love Story".

The church was beautifully decorated in autumn tones with vases of orange and yellow mums at the front, orange and green leaves in each window and the guest pews were marked with yellow satin ribbons faced with autumn tones flowers while the family pews had white satin ribbon bows and flowers.

The bride was escorted down the aisle on the arm of her brother, Glenn Searles who gave his sister in marriage.

The bride looked lovely in a gown of chantilly lace over peau de soie, the bouffant skirt featured an insert of white silk organza. The bodice had a high collar and long sleeves. A semi cathedral train was caught at the shoulders of organza with an apron style of lace then a band and edge of lace.

She wore a Dutch fashioned lace cap which held in place her bouffant finger tip length veil of silk illusion. She carried a trailing bouquet of white mums, pink sweetheart roses which were looped with white satin ribbons.

Miss Pauline Hauver was maid of honor. She wore a gown of blush rose polyester crepe fashioned on Princess lines with a round neckline and leg-o-mutton long sleeves. At the high rise waist she wore a sash of multicolor polyester having a front bow, with the same worn as a bandeaux in her hair which held in place her blush rose chapel veil.

She carried a colonial of multicolored mums, miniature carnations and pink sweetheart rose buds.

The bridesmaids, Miss Laurel Waterman, sister of the groom and Miss Denise Dalley, were gowned alike in multicolored polyester styled identical to the maid of honor only with blush rose sashes and bows. Their head dress was a multicolored bandeaux and blush rose chapel veils. They carried nosegays of multicolored flowers.

Mr. Lennie Waterman was best man for his brother and the ushers were John Daudelin and Marcel Cote.

The gentlemen of the wedding party wore black tuxedo trousers, sapphire blue jackets, light blue ruffled shirts, the groom had a pink sweetheart rose boutonniere and the others tinted blue carnations.

Mrs. Searles, the bride's mother, was in a gown of sapphire blue polyester crepe having a yoke and ruffles at the V-neckline of silk embroidered sapphire blue scallops topped with a sheer embroidered sleeveless coat in full length. Her accessories were in silver and she wore a pale pink sylvium orchid.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Waterman, was in a gold-colored gown of brocade polyester trimmed with dark braid. Her accessories were in brown and she wore a yellow cymbidium orchid on her fur stole.

The reception was held at Kelley's dining room in Derby

WI meeting

KINNEAR'S MILLS — The Semi-annual meeting of the Megantic County Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Russell Rothney in Kinnear's Mills on Wednesday evening, October 18.

The president, Mrs. M. Nugent, opened the meeting with the Opening Ode, the Creed and the Flag Salute.

Seven members from Inverness and eight from Kinnear's Mills answered the Roll Call. One visitor, Mrs. K. Kelso of Inverness was also present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. E. Nugent, and Mrs. A. Little read the treasurer's report.

The president called on Mrs. A. Muir for an account of the Children's Fair, which this year was held in the community hall, Kinnear's Mills. Mrs. Muir reported that 13 children from Inverness and 14 from Kinnear's Mills participated.

There were 120 exhibits in the Garden Section and 122 in the School Section. In the Project Section there were 50 entries. The first prize for gardens was won by the Reid girls.

A pen desk set made at G.B. Trophée in Inverness, was given to Mrs. Lily Rothney as a souvenir. Mrs. Rothney will be greatly missed from this organization and all wish her good health and happiness in her new environment.

Mrs. Nugent read a letter from the Provincial President, Mrs. R. Beattie, who outlined the J.P. Coats', the QWI and Expo Quebec competitions.

A vote of thanks was moved for the work Mrs. Muir and Mrs. E. Nugent had done towards the School Fair and to Mrs. W. Graham and Mr. Willie Longmoore for judging the gardens. There was a special vote of thanks for the LOL Lodge for the use of their hall for the Fair.

The members voted to continue the School Fair for 1973 and revised the Prize List.

The nomination committee is to consist of Mrs. Victor Lowry, Mrs. Alice Kelso and Mrs. Ruth Graham.

A donation was voted to be given to the Andrew Johnson School for the Green and Gold Book.

The Misses Susan Rothney and Valerie Nuthbrown assisted the Kinnear's members in serving delicious refreshments at the close of the meeting.

WI Broadcast

On February 19, 1947, the Women's Institutes across Canada were observing the 50th anniversary of the founding of their organization which had taken place on February 19, 1897 at Stony Creek, Ont.

At the semi annual convention held in Montreal in January 1947, it was decided that the Women's Institute should be given more publicity in order to acquaint the public with the wide range of topics their interests cover. At that meeting the presidents of the 4 Counties of Stanstead, Richmond, Sherbrooke and Compton, arranged to contact radio station CKTS to see if they could be given a period of time on the air. Station CKTS graciously complied with their request, giving them a fifteen minute period every 3rd Thursday of the month at 2:30 p.m.

Each of the four counties gave three broadcasts during the year. From that time the WI broadcasts have been given by some member at one of these counties, every month. The first one was given by Mrs. Clayton Conley of Sherbrooke (who was at the time QWI president), on February 19, 1947. Without exception these broadcasts have been interesting, informative and inspirational.

Regrettably in 1970, Richmond and Sherbrooke Counties discontinued, leaving Stanstead and Compton to carry on, each to have 6 broadcasts alternately during the year. The broadcast on Monday, October 16, was given by Mrs. Lionel Allison of the Brookbury WI. Mrs. Allison discussed "Country Life Yesterday and Today". She recalled that in her youth country people were far more friendly than today.

She remembered the numerous social visits paid, husking bees, ice cream socials, paring bees and box socials. Mrs. Allison compared the house dances, which everyone, young and old attended to the parties today held at halls or hotels when "liquor flow much too freely for the health and welfare of some people". She also remarked on the community spirit that was so prevalent at the time.

Mrs. Allison concluded her talk with a poem: Yes I am my Brother's Keeper, by Alice E. Chase.

The next broadcast will be given on Monday, November 20, at 11:05 a.m.

Missionary Society meets

SCOTSTOWN — The October meeting of the Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mrs. Albert Murray, with the vice-president, Mrs. W.G. MacLeod conducting the meeting.

After the opening prayer, a poem on Thanksgiving was read by Mrs. E. Rudd. The scripture readings also related to the giving of thanks in all things, followed by a reading, given by Mrs. K.A. MacDonald.

The programme in the Glad Tidings magazine was used for this Thank offering service, and was led by Mrs. W.G. MacLeod. Mrs. D.A. Campbell acted as treasurer in the absence of Mrs. Burns MacDonald.

The nominating committee composed of Mrs. D.A. Campbell and Mrs. J.E. Nicholson will present a slate of officers for next year at the November meeting.

The meeting adjourned after the closing prayer given by Mrs. E. Rudd. The hostess served refreshments and social hour was enjoyed.

U.C.W. meeting

COOKSHIRE — Mrs. P. Gaudine presided at the November meeting of the U.C.W. of Trinity United Church, which was held at the home of Mrs. Earl Parker.

Miss Aleta Mackey was in charge of the Worship service. The U.C.W. Purpose was repeated in unison. Miss Mackey then read 1st Corinthians, Chapter 10, verses 24-33 (R.S.V.) and Romans 15, verses 2 and 3, and also two poems, in which happiness for others was emphasized. She then gave a prayer and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

The minutes were then read by Mrs. Burns and approved. The treasurer's report, given by Mrs. Parker, showed a good bank balance. Money was voted for the Mission and Service Fund.

Plans were made for the sale and supper which will be held on Saturday, Nov. 18, at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. respectively, in the church hall. The ladies were asked to put their own price on the articles they donate for the sale tables. Committees were appointed to plan the menu, and the serving of the food and the telephoning, and waitresses. The price will be $1.75 for adults, and 75 cents for children 12 and under.

The group was asked to plan for a church service either for Nov. 19 or 26. A nominating committee was appointed, namely, Mrs. O.C. Farnsworth and Mrs. S. McVetty, and they will bring in their report to the business meeting which will be held on Tuesday Dec. 12, at 7:30, in the church hall. A Christmas party was planned for Wednesday evening, Dec. 13, in the church hall at 8 p.m. Other ladies will be invited from St. Peter's Church, from Birchton and from Island Brook.

The president Mrs. Gaudine, suggested that the ladies try to do more visiting among the sick and shut-ins, and conducted a questionnaire on what the ladies had done and on what they might attempt to do. She also reminded them of the Leadership Workshop which will be held in Sherbrooke.

A study book on India is to be bought. Following adjournment, Mrs. Gaudine, showed slides of Russia, taken when she and her husband visited there recently, these were much enjoyed.

Mrs. Parker then served delicious refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Ladd of Knowlton celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary.

SAUSAGE SORCERY

The fall and winter party season is now in full stride. This means new and different food ideas these nippy nights to please the crowd. It can be easy with a minimum of "kitchen time" with these suggestions.

* Get your next party off to a good start... with a punchbowl surrounded by a variety of dunks and nibblers. Include this zippy dip: Mash 1/2 pound bratwurst pieces and stems, drained. Blend in 2 tablespoons each of mayonnaise and chili sauce. Add 1 teaspoon minced onion, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 4 drops of hot pepper sauce and 1 cup of sour cream. Serve with chips and crackers.

* Hot 'n' meat canapés go well at any gathering, no matter the occasion, and other times, too. Grind together 1/2 pound each bologna and cheddar cheese. Add 1/2 small onion, chopped. Blend in well beaten egg and 1 teaspoon mustard. Spread on party rye or bread rounds and broil until the cheese begins to melt.

* Start the day with a better breakfast. Home economists for Union Carbide Canada remind us that 12 to 14 hours usually elapse between the evening meal and next day's breakfast. Breakfast is needed to provide energy for the day's work. Meat in the breakfast menu is a power-booster. Cut summer sausage into thin strips and add it to scrambled eggs. Or try strips of pastrami or salami with grated cheese in your next omelet.

* Serve meaty appetizers with a cranberry juice cocktail before Thanksgiving dinner. Spread slices of cervelat with softened cream cheese and stack about 5 or 6 high. Chill well. Cut into wedges and serve.

* Turkey takes an encore in this chef's salad bowl: Toss two quarts of salad greens in a large bowl. Over the top arrange 1 cup of sliced turkey meat, 1/4 pound summer sausage cut in strips, 1/2 cup sliced Swiss cheese and 1 sliced hard cooked egg. Serve with oil and vinegar dressing. Four to six servings.

* Copies of the "Sausage Sorcery" recipe booklet may be obtained by writing Family Food Counsellor, Suite 500, 101 Bloor Street W., Toronto 181, Ontario.

South ruffed the third round of hearts and hummed softly to himself. If you had listened carefully, you would have noted the words were: "Where, o where is the king of diamonds? Where, o where can he be?"

Look at the hand. You can see his problem. If East holds the king, he can enter dummy with a high trump; lead the queen of diamonds and let it ride. Then he can play ace, king and a third club. The defense will win its third trick, but South will be able to ruff the fourth club in dummy and make his game.

Suppose West has the king of diamonds. The finesse will lose and eventually South will have to lose his fourth trick to the queen or jack of clubs.

South didn't hum very long because he knew where the king of diamonds was. West had opened the bidding with a heart with just seven high card points in that suit. Without the king of diamonds West could not hold more than 10 high card points and would not have made a vulnerable opening bid. As extra confirmation, East had passed the one heart opening. He might well have responded with the king of diamonds and three hearts to the queen.

Since he knew where the monarch was located, South proceeded to make his contract. He simply led his low diamond toward dummy. West did the best he could. He rose with his king and led a trump.

South won in his hand; cashed the diamond ace; played two more rounds of trumps to stop in dummy, and discarded his two small clubs on the queen and jack of diamonds.

WINTER PROTECTION OF ROSES IS NOT DIFFICULT

(Note to the Editor: As usual, we are repeating this information together with diagrams as there seems to be a constant new crop of novice gardeners who need and welcome these instructions. We have, however, included some additional information this fall.)

Wherever temperatures go below 15 degrees, roses need winter protection. All-American Rose Selections, a group of professional growers, hybridizers, and introductors of fine roses, have devised the following fundamental routine of winter protection which is practiced in their extensive test and display gardens scattered throughout the United States. They recommend that you use the same simple procedures in protecting your own roses. They are as follows:

Evergreen boughs, leaves, hay or straw, thrown over the mounds will prevent washing during the winter, but such added protection should not be applied until after the ground freezes.

Carefully remove mounds in spring when new growth starts. As far as possible, plant your garden with All-American Rose Selections award winners. They have a great deal of inbred hardiness, but even so, winters are unpredictable and winter protection is good insurance against loss.

USE OF POLYSTYRENE CONES (from New England Rose Society Bulletin)

Prune back the bush to accommodate the cone. Then place the cone over the bush and tightly seal the bottom of the cone with soil. Weigh the base of the cone down with more soil, gravel, stone or some other weighty material.

The cones with detachable tops (for ventilation) are best; with these on warm days in late winter the rose bushes can and should be given some air. The cones get like a miniature greenhouse with the warmth of the early spring sun. Mold can be a very serious, severe problem then — if unchecked it can cause death of the canes.

In the early spring, remove the cones when temperature gets above freezing. Keep them handy to put back as necessary, for the plants will be very tender and sensitive to sun and drying winds, in addition to cold.

LATEST INFORMATION ON PROTECTION — SPRAY-ON LIQUID PLASTIC COATING

The newest form of rose protection is the double spraying of the bushes. According to the National Sprayer and Duster Association, the first application is a good dormant spray which provides protection from insects and diseases. A liquid plastic coating is then sprayed onto the rose bush, making sure that thorough coverage is obtained. The plastic coating protects the canes from drying out during the dormant period. For best results, the dormant spray should be allowed to dry before the liquid plastic coating is applied to the bush. Either a compressed air sprayer or a small power sprayer can be used for these applications. Both the dormant and liquid plastic sprays are available through garden centers. In extremely cold areas, many growers also cover the base of the plant to protect the roots.

TRIM

1. TRIM — After a hard frost or two, but before the ground freezes, prune all canes of your hybrid tea, floribunda, and grandiflora roses back to 18". This makes it easier to work around them in providing winter protection, and prevents them from becoming battered by the wind and ice of winter.

SPRAY

2. SPRAY — Remove all dead stems, leaves, and debris, taking care to spray the entire plant and surrounding soil with a good fungicide and insecticide to prevent carrying over of disease and insects on and about the plant.

MOUND

3. MOUND — Mound a pile of loose earth up over the pruned plant to a height of about 12" and firm. Prune the canes of the roses so that only 4" to 6" of the tips remain exposed after mounding. The purpose of this mounding is to protect the plants from rapid changes of temperature and to guard the canes against winter wind and ice damage.

93rd anniversary of church

AYER'S CLIFF — The 93rd Anniversary of Beulah United Church was celebrated on Sunday morning Oct. 22.

Mr. Stanley Beerworth, lay minister of the charge, conducted the service. The Sunday School which attended the first half of the service, listened attentively to a story about faith told to them by Mr. Beerworth, as did the adults also.

The choir sang an anthem Hold Thou my Hand with Mrs. N. Pierce as soloist.

Mr. Horace Gardner of Dixville was guest speaker. Mr. Gardner was a former teacher here and has recently been ordained as minister of the Baptist Church. He chose as his subject The Promises of God and gave his listeners much food for thought.

At the close of the service, the Benediction was pronounced by Rev. Norman Cries, a retired minister of the United Church from Surrey, B.C., a visitor in the congregation.

MARSH WORLD by ANGUS SHORTT Ducks Unlimited

YELLOW RAIL — This small brown and yellow bird with short, chicken-like bill, is like our other rails, very secretive, haunting the shallow, grassy borders of marshes and rarely taking wing. Plumage in both sexes is similar; the upper parts light brown, the back with prominent dark stripes which are crossed by fine white lines, the underparts yellowish with dark barring on the abdomen and under-tail coverts. In flight the white wing-patch is a good field mark. The Yellow Rail is active at night. Its peculiar "tick-tick, tick-tick" call, closely resembling the sound of two small stones tapped together, will reveal its presence.

WIDGEON — Commonly called baldpate (from the white crown feathers of the male) the widgeon is a common dabbling duck found on marshes across the west. Ranging north into the Northwest Territories, Yukon and Alaska, it is rare east of Manitoba. The widgeon is an early spring migrant, arriving with the vanguard of pintail and mallard. The male is readily identified by his white crown and large white shoulder wing patches. Females are dull brown and grey with a much reduced, dull white wing patch. The nest is built in grasses or other cover on dry land usually, but not always, near water.

PORK AND VEGETABLE RICE DINNER IS COLORFUL AND NUTRITIOUS

Pork and Vegetable Rice Dinner is a delicious meal-in-a-dish. The wonderful cooking aroma will draw everyone into the kitchen, hoping that it's time to eat.

Pork is a flavorful, nutritious food all by itself—rich in protein, B vitamins and minerals. Brussels sprouts and carrots add splashes of green and orange, colorful contributors of more vitamins and minerals too.

The rice, cooked slowly with the meat and onion in bouillon, develops rich, full flavor. Topped with a delectable sauce, Pork and Vegetable Rice Dinner is sure to be a winner.

PORK AND VEGETABLE RICE DINNER

- 1 pound boneless pork, cut into 1-inch cubes

- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1 cup uncooked rice (not instant)
- 1 chicken bouillon cube
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 package (10 ounces) frozen Brussels sprouts, cooked and drained (about 2 cups)
- 1 cup cooked sliced carrots

Brown pork cubes well on all sides in butter or margarine in heavy frying pan over moderate heat. Add onion, 1/2 cup water and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Cover and cook over low heat 30 minutes. Add remaining 1 1/2 cups water, rice, bouillon cube, 1 teaspoon salt and pepper; mix. Cover; cook over low heat until pork is tender, about 30 minutes. The Second Forty—a forum about mature women.

FLIRTING HUSBAND

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

My husband and I have been married 25 years and are both 46 years of age. We have three children — all married — one grandson, and two more on the way. My husband has been a flirt as long as I could, but he has embarrassed me too many times in front of my girl friends. (He's always been that way whether we've gone out with friends or not. Then we'd always have an argument about it.) Now we don't go anywhere anymore and I've stopped seeing all my friends. I don't like staying home in solitude, seclusion and loneliness, rarely having visitors, because I like people and I like talking with my friends. I don't know what to do. I love my husband very much and have told him so over and over. The idea of divorce terrifies me. My husband doesn't want a separation or divorce either. He wants to have his cake and eat it. Although he acts so independent, he doesn't want me to be that way. Sometimes I'm sorry I married this man. I've tried to have confidence in him, but the only result is confusion and conflict. What am I doing wrong? How can he do all those things and still say he loves me? What kind of approach would be better for me? C.W.

Dear C.W.:

For one thing, you might stop telling your husband over and over that you love him. This probably makes him so sure of you that he thinks he can do anything and still have you accept him. However, a man who's been flirting for all those years isn't likely to change. Perhaps the flirting indicates he's really unsure of himself and always trying to prove he can be attractive to every woman he meets. But he evidently doesn't want his freedom; he wants to stay married to you. Perhaps he feels most comfortable with you, because you provide the stability he needs. As far as you're concerned though, withdrawing from the world is no answer. You should think about getting sociable again. Why not call your woman friends, and go see them on occasion, perhaps without your husband. That kind of independence on your part might do you both some good.

IRREGULAR AND EMBARRASSED

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

I'm 48 and have never had any signs of the change. But recently I've become very irregular in my periods and am not sure what this means. I don't have any other symptoms and am too embarrassed to ask my doctor about it. M.S.

Dear M.S.:

Since you're in the right age group, the irregularity of your periods might indicate you're going into the menopause. Doctors see women with such symptoms every day. After a checkup, the physician might find that one woman has a hormone deficiency requiring estrogen replacement, while another requires another form of treatment and a third perhaps needs no treatment at all. In any case, this is the kind of condition a woman should never ignore. So why not pick up the phone and call your doctor for an appointment?

WIVES NEED UNDERSTANDING — BUT SO DO THEIR HUSBANDS

By Alison Goddard

Washington, D.C. (MW) — Arriving at middle-age produces physical symptoms in some men, but most react psychologically, according to Dr. William Cooper. The doctor is a gynecologist, who treats their wives, but he has learned a thing or two about the husbands as well.

"I've had a number of men tell me they indeed had hot flashes, general nervousness, trouble eating and sleeping and other such worrisome symptoms," the physician declares. "But it's mostly the psychological impact that gets them. When a man reaches his late forties or early fifties, he may feel that things are closing in on him. Perhaps he sees no chance of getting ahead on his job, or of getting a salary increase. He may want to get away from it all. This is when you sometimes hear about a previously devoted husband and father running off with his secretary."

CERTAIN CHANGES

The wives, he maintains, need to recognize some of the men's problems at this time and play a supporting role. Meanwhile, the wives themselves are going through certain changes, which their husbands usually don't understand, the gynecologist points out. "The women are reaching the age of menopause and need some kindness and help — especially from their husbands. Yet, so often when the husband has problems, he may attribute these to his wife's menopause. What we really need in this world," the physician emphasizes, "is more understanding between those couples who've been married for years."

Dr. Cooper suggests that men as well as women in their middle years have regular physical examinations. "Everyone in the household will benefit," he adds, "if the husband takes care of his health needs and the wife has her menopausal symptoms treated."

ENJOYING LIFE

The gynecologist explains that if — after thoroughly examining the women — he finds no physical reasons for her symptoms other than a decrease in the level of the female hormones (due to the natural tapering off of her ovaries at that age), he'll put the patient on estrogen replacement. "Not only do the headaches usually stop with this treatment," he says, "but so do many of the other menopausal symptoms."

When a woman is free of these, he goes on, "she can start enjoying life and doing all those things she always wanted to, but couldn't when she was tied down with the children."

The husband who sees that his wife gets proper medical care can help increase harmony at home, Dr. Cooper believes. Some husbands want to be with their wives when they see and talk to the doctor. "Other men prefer to sit in the waiting room, since they're kind of embarrassed about being in a gynecologist's office. It just depends on the individual," he concludes.

William Cooper, M.D., is the author of "A Husband's Guide to the Menopause," published by Simon and Schuster.

U.C.W. meetings in the Townships

DANVILLE — The October meeting of the U.C.W. of Trinity United Church was held at the home of Mrs. J.W. Beliveau with fifteen members present. Due to illness, Mrs. Manville Williams was unable to attend and Mrs. S.J. Olney presided for this meeting. The Devotionals were taken by Mrs. Velma Snaden.

Final plans were made for the annual Fall Bazaar, which will be held on Nov. 17. Mention was made of the need of a slate of officers for the coming year, but that was left over for the next meeting. At the social hour Mrs. George Crowther poured at the lace-covered table in the dining room on which were the last roses of the season from Mrs. Beliveau's flower garden.

MANSONVILLE — A general meeting of the Mansonville and Vale Perkins Units of the U.C.W. was held on Oct. 19 in the church hall at Vale Perkins with 24 ladies present. The Pres., Mrs.

Keyworth George presided. Mrs. George Jewett led the worship service on the theme Love Is Kind which included bible readings from Ephesians 4, also prayer and hymns. The Treasurers of each unit, Mrs. Rupert Fullerton and Mrs. Ralph Knowlton gave a detailed report for the year to Oct. 18.

The final plans for the turkey supper on Nov. 4 included distribution of food lists to each member and tickets to those who will sell them. Plans were also made for the trip to Knowlton to tour the Clarendon Plant on Oct. 26 by members of the two units. Arrangements were made for the next meeting to be held for the Mansonville U.C.W. in the United Church parsonage on Nov. 16.

A program of a testimony from each member present, on the philosophy of life from past experiences proved very interesting, followed with lunch served by the Vale Perkins Unit.

DOLLARS & GOOD SENSE

Auto Financial Services

Dear Mr. Martin:

I want to start an investment program and am curious about the different kinds of mutual funds. Can you help me out?

Mutual funds are a very popular subject, one I wanted to review with readers anyway. A recent survey of the industry indicates that fund performance over the past year as well as over the past years has been pretty spotty. Some funds have been doing quite well while others have been lagging far behind the general market averages.

So the first thing to keep in mind about mutual funds is that while they do reduce your risk, they certainly don't eliminate it. With their great diversification and professional management, they do increase the opportunities for profit, but it takes a little homework and some shopping around to find the right fund for you.

All mutual funds should be thought of as long term investments, to be held over a period of several years. Likewise when studying past fund performance, go back 10 years to see how consistent they've been.

This is the type of investment that allows smaller investors to participate in the stock market indirectly by having shares in a joint venture which uses the pool funds to make purchases.

In my next column, I'll discuss different types of funds so you can judge for yourself which is right for you.

Readers' questions are welcome and should be sent to Box 5875 London, Ontario.

Many AGRHS students honored

LENNOXVILLE — The auditorium of the Alexander Galt Regional High School was the scene of the first Annual Awards Ceremony, on Wednesday, Nov. 1.

The event, attended by approximately 600 parents, teachers and friends, was organized to honor those students who achieved high academic and leadership status in the school during 1971-72.

The various awards were presented by the principal, Frank Boushel, various members of his staff and invited guests.

The school band, under the direction of Mr. John Pille, performed during the ceremony. Adding to the success of the evening was the excellent work carried out by the Awards Committee, headed by Mrs. Vicki Crook and the student hostesses.

Following the presentation of the various awards, the President of the Student Council, Kevin Boushel, introduced the guest speaker, Lee Heath.

Mr. Heath, a former teacher at Galt and now retired, spoke of education past, present and future. In his address, he not only entertained his audience with anecdotes of his earlier schooling, but offered some positive suggestions as to how the communication gap between the generations might be bridged.

To the students assembled, he offered the following guides for a successful life, namely personal integrity, practicality, and most of all, laughter.

Bishop's Gaiterettes set sights on national basketball title

By ALEX RADMANOVICH
Record Reporter

LENNOXVILLE—Basketball season has hardly begun and yet Bishop's University Gaiterettes have already set their sights on the Canadian inter-university women's basketball crown which eluded the girls in Saskatoon last year.

Bishop's girls have been preparing for over a month, eager to challenge all comers in anticipation of capturing the national title in a sport which they play with the same enthusiasm as any men's team.

Their drills are precise and the physical training is severe. Make no mistake about it, these girls take the cage battles seriously enough to devote all their spare time towards perfecting the skills which the game demands. If their past record is any indication, Bishop's Gaiterettes are determined enough to carry out their ambition.

Only last year the Gaiterettes walked off with the Quebec University Athletic Association Championship in their first year as a bona fide varsity team.

Their average age was but eighteen and yet they played with the poise of veterans.

One of the big factors in their success last season was that they always played up to the level of their opposition, a very unusual tendency for an inexperienced team. This year the Gaiterettes will be all the better with a full season behind them and an attainable goal in sight.

With the backbone of the team back for another season, the Bishop's squad can only improve. As well, three rookies have been added to bolster the returnees.

MANY LOCALS

Interestingly enough the 10-girl roster numbers 9 Eastern Townships natives, adding to the interest of local residents.

Torontonian Anne Williams is the only 'outsider' to crack the line-up, returning for a second season.

The Gaiterettes perform best when they play as a team but several individuals shine on their own merit. We'll leave star picking to the fans, however, and introduce the team in alphabetical order.

Guard Helen Castonguay of Sherbrooke is an excellent playmaker who has more confidence in ball-handling than the average female. Her driving ability makes Helen a constant scoring threat.

Sherbrooke native Sue Garand and Cowansville product Audrey Jones both showed marked improvement as the season progressed last year to a point where coach Dodie Goodwin could rely on them for extra punch when the going got rough.

Both are extremely aggressive and should contribute considerably to the team during the present season.

QUAA scoring queen Nancy Knowlton from Foster will be trying to defend her crown in the nine-team league. In addition to being a strong rebounder, Nancy is an accurate shooter from the foul line and from close in.

ADD BALANCE

Sherbrookers Micheline Skena and Pam Nutbrown should be reaching the point where they can be counted on to handle the ball effectively after a year of apprenticeship. If they evolve as coach Goodwin hopes the two guards will add necessary balance to the team.

Although her debut was shaky, Anne Williams emerged as a complete performer by season's end. Not only did she finish sixth in QUAA scoring but she also added strength on the offensive and defensive boards.

Three rookies have been added to the roster this year: guard

Lynda Fabi and forward Jo-Anne Nelson of Sherbrooke and forward Suzan Norrie of Ayer's Cliff. Once they adjust to the Gaiterettes' style it is hoped that they will help the team through the season.

At six feet, Jo-Anne is the tallest player on the team, and it is certain that her presence on the court will provide additional rebounding potential.

Together the ten individuals form an impressive collection and if they can get on the right track early in the season the Gaiterettes will be hard to beat.

Certainly they are a balanced team, a requisite for success.

This season Bishop's will play 16 league games and another 14 exhibition contests. The Gaiterettes will also compete in two tournaments, one at Loyola College in Montreal and the other on home territory.

The carefully planned exhibition schedule demonstrates unequivocally that coach Goodwin is trying to prepare her team for something more than a league title. During the course of the season the Gaiterettes will face some of the better women's basketball teams in the country.

Incidentally, the Canadian national championship will be played during the first three days of March at McGill University.

NCAA boycotts US Olympic talks

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Olympic Committee came under sharp criticism Monday from its first vice-president, who warned: "We can no longer act in a vacuum."

"We are being clinically scrutinized by an aggressive and probing press," Robert J. Kane, athletic director at Cornell University, told a meeting of the USOC executive committee.

"We can no longer tolerate tawdry politics. We can no longer treat our athletes as mindless chattels. If we don't put our house in order, someone else will put it in order for us."

The alarm was sounded at the first meeting of top U.S. Olympic athletes since the turbulent Munich Games, where the Americans were beset with mishaps, blunders and defeats that brought warnings of an investigation from Congress and helped provoke a sudden withdrawal of membership by the sprawling National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

NCAA representatives were conspicuously absent when the executive committee met at a midtown hotel to air its transgressions, discuss future plans and nominate new officers.

Kane, a long-time Olympic official who was chairman of preparations for the Munich Games, lost a bitter battle for the nomination as president, the post going to Philip O. Krumm, a retired businessman from Kinoshia, Wis., and Denver, who has been associated with speed skating.

Nomination is tantamount to election. The USOC will hold its general congress in Colorado Springs, Colo., in early February.

BLAST FROM NCAA
The NCAA, long embroiled in a battle with the Amateur Athletic Union for control of the Olympic movement in the U.S., announced Oct. 26 that it was withdrawing from the USOC family and accompanied its action with a blast at Olympic operations.

The NCAA, representing most of the colleges and universities in the United States, had four representatives on the executive committee, the same as the AAU. The sports federations have six members with one each on the 16-member committee going to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA), a small college group, and the armed forces.

Clifford H. Buck, outgoing USOC president, announced that a move was under way to hire a public relations firm in order to improve the USOC image.

Buck also said only the affidavit from the Brazilian referee was needed to complete the formal protest to the International Olympic Committee.

NHL to discuss series

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says Clarence Campbell, National Hockey League president, and Alan Eagleson, head of the NHL Players' Association, will meet in Detroit today to decide on the league's international hockey policy.

The newspaper says the two men will take their widely divergent viewpoints to the owners of the 16 NHL teams on what should be done about Russia's proposal for a four-game exhibition series in January.

Campbell is quoted by the newspaper as saying the series should be played because "whether or not it is to our advantage, the Russians are here to stay."

Although he is going to the meeting with "an open mind," Eagleson does not want the series played if it involves the league's four strongest teams, Montreal Canadiens, New York Rangers, Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks, the paper said.

"If they (the Russians) beat them, they can go home and say 'we're the world's best,'" Eagleson is quoted as saying, adding he might be agreeable to having the Russians play four of the league's weakest teams.

"If they beat Oakland (California Golden Seals) who cares," he said.

The newspaper also quotes Sam Pollock, Montreal general manager, as saying Canadian teams would not be involved.

HURT BY REACTION

Campbell also said the NHL has been hurt by adverse reaction in North America to Team Canada's conduct and that a January series under direct NHL control in co-operation with the players' association, could vindicate the league's reputation.

Eagleson said he has talked with some players, including Phil Esposito, the Bruins star centre, and the Canadiens' Yvan Cournoyer, who say they are not interested in another series with the Russians.

The emotional strain of such a series, Eagleson said, was such that maybe "a series of this kind should be played once every four years or so."

"Maybe not that far apart, but not every year," Eagleson said. Campbell said that "we can't pretend the Russians don't exist," and that the league must respond to the tremendous appeal the Russians have with the public on this continent.

Getting hungry?

Seven weeks ago I went on record as forecasting the Cowansville Voyageurs wouldn't last the season in their latest attempt to beat Richelieu Junior Hockey League competition with players whose desire wouldn't fill a thimble.

So during the first five games of the regular schedule I sat back and tried to suppress a few snickers as the Vees struggled to a single victory and plunged to the familiar confines of the league basement. Then when team president, Jean-Paul Leduc, assured me his sickly franchise would give everyone something to cheer about before long I thought it might be a hint they were ready to put the uniforms in mothballs.

In retrospect, it's extremely fortunate I didn't promise to eat my column if the franchise folded because I'd probably be choking on newspaper. Just when the words "I told you so" were forming on my lips, the Voyageurs shifted the machine into overdrive and showed them down my throat.

Would you believe that since the horrendous 1-5 start the juniors have set the league on its ear with an unprecedented six consecutive victories? Not only that they're actually in a three-way battle for the Richelieu circuit leadership? Sure brother, and the Los Angeles Kings are probably in first place as well, I suppose?

WHERE DID I GO WRONG?

Okay so you want to know where I went wrong? To tell you the truth I wondered the same thing Sunday night as I watched the Voyageurs steamroll Joliette 8-6 to vault into a first place tie and here's what I discovered.

First of all, in my defence, it must be pointed out the calibre of play in this year's circuit is somewhat weaker than that offered during the 1971-72 schedule. The total revamping of junior hockey in Quebec accounts for part of the reason and a flock of graduations from the Richelieu section makes up another portion.

Additionally, Richelieu teams play an interlocking schedule with the four Montreal Junior members and in games to date it's obvious the former group collectively are just a shade better than their Montreal counterparts.

But that's where the alibi ends. If you've watched the Voyageurs from the first day in training camp it's not hard to discover that one person overshadowed all the rest as the key to their astounding reversal of form.

When Johnny Mentis took over the coaching reins this season he took a group of spoiled brats from a hockey sense and taught them just how much discipline can contribute toward winning a game. One year ago this team would have looked at a 1-5 record and declare the season officially over. This year they stared adversity in the eye until it blinked.

SOLID COACH HELPS

It's not totally fair however, to shower Mentis with all the accolades because the fatherly-type pilot would probably be seeking other employment under any one of the club's previous board of directors. In the first year it was Roland Morisseau, a qualified junior hockey mentor, who was gone by Christmas after a clash with the hierarchy.

Next, it was Jean-Guy Charbonneau, who preached discipline but was never quite able to implement it. This, combined with discontent toward the team's executive mismanagement, sent him searching for better working conditions.

So Mentis is really the only coach who's had a free hand to make decisions without the noose being tightened around his neck by meddling management.

Next general manager, Jean-Luc Boucher, practically made a complete house-cleaning by weeding out the malcontents and planting new blood. In doing so he reached out and obtained the services of no less than seven players in the Granby minor hockey system. To show you how much this has paid off, five of the forwards obtained in the deal have accounted for nearly 35 per cent of the Vees scoring punch.

While the imported talent has considerably bolstered the Voyageurs' drive to the giddy heights of first place, let's not forget how much the return of Robby Steingruber and Rick Stowe has influenced this rise. When both were confronted with the option of sticking with school hockey or the Voyageurs last year, they chose the high school scene, and they obviously learned far more than they would have with last season's unstable juniors.

As a result, Steingruber ranks near the summit in the team scoring race, and Stowe, who made the transformation to defence in high school hockey, has given what was once the sorriest bunch of bluelines in the entire junior league an effective shot in the arm.

COACH BREEDS MATURITY

But everything still comes down to Mentis' ability to break down the immaturity which bred so much indifference among these youngsters for the past two years.

To begin he instilled some competitive fire under Alain Blanchet, who wasted away a year of potential with a nonchalant attitude during the 1971-72 campaign. Under Mentis' tutelage, however, the 18-year-old has blossomed into the team's top scorer with seven goals in 11 games.

Then there was the old problem of setting down netminder Yvan Brouillette whose over-exuberance with the Cowansville squad two years ago nearly earned him the unenviable title of most penalized player in the league. Despite a year's change of scenery with Waterloo Maroons, he still suffered as a result of his explosive nature in training camp and Mentis faced his first challenge.

Brouillette has taken a couple of foolish penalties in the heat of anger early in the regular schedule but he's also settled down to become the best goaltender in the entire league according to the most recent statistics. But most of all, he's sliced the Voyageurs' defensive record in half, and that probably best accounts for the club's turnaround.

What really impresses me, though, is the fact more than half of this year's squad will return next season and few of them have even begun to reach their potential.

On second thought, maybe I'll reconsider...

Colorado votes no, so Vancouver sees new game

VANCOUVER (CP) — As Colorado voters were snuffing out the Olympic flame in their state Tuesday night, civic officials here and members of the Vancouver-Garibaldi Olympic Committee were adding fuel to rekindle their bid for the 1976 Winter Games at Whistler Mountain.

"It's a whole new ball game now," said Mayor Tom Campbell when told that Colorado voters, in the U.S. federal election, approved a state constitutional amendment prohibiting use of state funds for the direct or indirect support of the 1976 Winter Games scheduled for Denver.

"The committee will go after the Games again," Campbell said.

"When we originally made a bid for it we felt we had the best site available in Canada. We'll be a little rushed for 1976 now, but we can do it."

Opponents of the 1976 Games in Denver cited economic and ecological reasons why the Games should not be held there. Without the tax money, the International Olympic Committee (IOC) will have to move the event to another location.

READY FOR GAMES

Bob Hindmarch, acting president of the Vancouver Games Committee, said: "We're definitely interested in the 1976 Games, and also in the 1980 Games."

"We were in touch with the B.C. government today and in the very near future we'll have a meeting with Lands and Forests Minister Robert Williams to make further plans for the Games."

"We already have in writing from the federal government the promise of financial assistance, and our original bid for the Games stressed that it would be ecologically sound because it would ensure the orderly development of Whistler Mountain."

"The choice of site now is back with the IOC and it should be decided in the near future."

Backstrom back, Kings beat St. Louis blue

By IAN MACLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

There was a time in the not too distant past when Ralph Backstrom almost quit hockey. More recently, the future of Los Angeles Kings has been in doubt. Fortunately, both have survived their depressions and the Kings are currently on an eight-game winning streak that has moved them four points atop the National Hockey League's West Division.

Backstrom scored the winner in their latest conquest, 3-2 over St. Louis Blues Tuesday night, and moved into second place in the NHL scoring race with teammate Butch Goring.

Goring, who assisted on the first Los Angeles goal by Jim Peters and engineered Backstrom's winner at 7:15 of the third period, now has picked up a point in the last 10 Los Angeles games.

SHARE SECOND

Backstrom and Goring have 22 points apiece and are deadlocked with Rod Gilbert of New York Rangers and John Bucyk of Boston Bruins, three behind points leader, Buffalo Sabre centre Gilbert Perreault.

It was the only game scheduled Tuesday night.

The Kings go after No. 9 in Atlanta tonight against the Flames while Montreal Canadiens entertain Toronto Maple Leafs, Vancouver is in New York with the Rangers, New York Islanders are at Chicago Black Hawks, Philadelphia Flyers at Pittsburgh Penguins and California Golden Seals at Minnesota North Stars.

Backstrom was a disconsolate figure midway through the 1970-71 season when he jumped Montreal Canadiens and headed home to Kirkland Lake, Ont.

There were rumors of friction with then coach Claude Ruel which neither side denied. Speculation was that Backstrom would only return to the club if he was traded to a west coast franchise.

JOINS KINGS

Several weeks of talks ensued, following which the speedy centre returned to Montreal and was shortly thereafter dispersed to Los Angeles in a straight trade for Gord Labossiere.

The Kings were a sinking ship and continued to founder, finishing out of the playoffs the last three years, going through a succession of coaches, and drawing at the gate only when some of the old established NHL teams visited Jack Kent Cooke's plush Forum in suburban Inglewood.

The Kings showed little signs of awakening early in the 1972-73 schedule behind rookie coach Bob Pulford. But in recent weeks they've put it together and during their current win streak—a record for expansion teams—have outscored the opposition 37-11.

Seals getting new coach again

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Charles O. Finley announced that his California Golden Seals of the National Hockey League accepted the resignation Tuesday night of coach Garry Young.

Finley, at a news conference, said Fred Glover, a Seals' executive who previously was fired by Finley as coach, would take Young's job on an interim basis.

"It may be three or four games," Finley said. "It may be 10 games, 20 games, the balance of the season or until we find someone to take over."

Finley said Young resigned for health reasons. He had undergone lung surgery three months ago and he said at the news conference, "the coaching pressure was more than I bargained for."

Young joined the Seals' organization as general manager last year and after Vic Stasiuk left the California coaching job following the season, the Seals searched all summer for a new bench boss. When no one was found, Finley gave the job to Young.

Glover, who coached the Seals from 1968 through 1971, coached Los Angeles Kings last year and then went back to the California organization in a front office capacity this fall.

Glover's first game behind the bench will be today against Minnesota North Stars. The Seals are last in the NHL's West division.

Young gave up the general manager's job shortly after he was appointed coach. Glover held that position in an acting capacity this season.

A Seals source said Young would be returning to his Oshawa, Ont., home to convalesce.

Glover said: "I didn't plan to coach. I was very happy in the job I was doing and hoped to continue strictly in that area. But as Mr. Finley said, 'You can't pick a coach out of the air at this time of year.'"

Finley said Glover will continue "as executive vice-president, general manager and coach at the same time until we are successful in finding a coach."

Holy cow! It's donkey basketball!

By BRUCE PORTER
LENNOXVILLE —

The senior Alexander Galt soccer players were defeated by Richmond Regional in overtime of the league finals but the big story yesterday was the Canyon Bros. Circus astonishing Donkey Basketball show.

More than 1400 persons turned up at AGRHS gymnasium Tuesday evening to witness the "Battle of the century" between the Galt students and staff in which the latter made a great comeback from a 6-0 deficit to tie the students 6-6.

Kevin Boushel counted the first fieldgoal of the evening part way through the first period. Gary Guillette and Tim Bronson tallied for the students in the second quarter to give them a 6-0 half-time lead.

The last stanza saw Gordon MacMillan score twice while John Haller scored with less than a minute left in the contest for the staff.

At half-time, a Donkey Derby was held, which consisted of three girls on donkeys starting at one end of the court making their way to mid-court to pick up a box on the floor without getting off their animal.

The event was held three times with Kathy Fidler, Kim Stansbury and Heather Ross winning the stuffed animal prizes.

TWO DRAWINGS

Two drawings were also held at half-time. Robbie Champoux was the first winner while Richard Wagner collected the second prize.

Animal-keeper and trainer for Canyon Bros. Circus, Paul Sackett, commented that this was their trip to Canada and that he couldn't be more pleased, adding that to his knowledge, this was the largest crowd to watch a show this year.

Sackett, a three year veteran with Canyon Bros., said "I haven't been called 'sir' since I was in the army," he said of the students. "It really feels good. These are great animals to work with because they are very responsive," he added.

Also travelling with the show is Walter Emerson, who has been in the entertainment business since the 1940s when he started with the Barnum and Bailey circus. Emerson, along with his brother, Ralph, own a large animal farm in Newington, Conn., and his late brother, George, was considered the world's foremost authority on wild animals.

One of George Emerson's first motion pictures was "Beau Geste" and his last picture was "Dumbo" which starred Jimmy Durante and Doris Day.

HOLDS TITLE

Mr. Emerson now owns the 100-year-old title for Canyon Bros. Circus, which originally ran up and down the Mississippi River valley by boat and, with the invention of railroads, travelled by rail stopping at every little village on the route from Chicago to New Orleans. Emerson declared after the game, "The thing that impressed me is the report between the faculty and students at Galt, but what impressed me even more, is that you have 29-year-old Physical Education department head. I think it's marvelous."

"Everybody here was absolutely great - very warm and sincere - and I'm more pleased about the fact that this is the largest crowd ever to assemble in the gym."

Rod McKell, an organizer of the show and coach of the senior boys' hockey team, which the show benefitted, said "I am really pleased how everyone came out. It's good for school spirit and senior hockey as all the players worked hard to get the show off the ground."

He added that unfortunately about 100 people were turned away because no more space was available for seats. But he thanked all who attended and helped in any way. Tim Bronson at the end of the game, thanked the spectators.

The Donkey Basketball show will appear at the Laval University winter carnival in January and will play a return engagement at Galt next November.

LOSE IN OVERTIME

The senior soccer squad faced RRHS in the final playoff game and lost in double overtime. At the end of regulation play, the score was 1-1, with Alan Webb tallying for Galt. The 10 minutes of overtime was played with neither team scoring.

Penalty shots were then taken and that led to the AGRHS downfall. Coach Rod McKell noted, "We played great soccer but we lost to a good Richmond Regional team."

"I was impressed by the way we played soccer and it was disappointing to lose but RRHS were deserving winners."

As it was, the season ended in a three-way tie for first place — the playoffs were a real battle. The AGRHS team record for the season was five wins, four losses and a tie.

WHA teams almost even

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The World Hockey Association may not be North America's fastest drawing card, but the fledgling league can hardly be accused of not providing a balanced diet.

Three points separate the top four teams in the Western Division and four points the first five in the Eastern sector after Tuesday night's contests.

Alberta Oilers set up a logjam atop the west by beating New York Raiders 4-2 at Edmonton while Houston Aeros nipped the hometown Chicago Cougars 3-2.

Fewer than 6,000 fans witnessed both games.

Tonight the Raiders are in Los Angeles against the Sharks and Winnipeg Jets, who share first in the west with Alberta and Los Angeles, visit Quebec Nordiques.

DRAWS 3 ASSISTANTS

Jim Harrison picked up three assists at Edmonton, engineering the winning and insurance goals by Al Hamilton and Steve Carlyle that broke up a 2-2 game in the third period in front of 2,816 fans.

Alberta's Bill Hicke and Norm Ferguson of the Raiders exchanged first-period goals. Ron Walters put the Oilers ahead with the only goal of the second period. Craig Reichmuth knotted the score for New York early in the third period which was delayed at 19:19 when Ron Anderson of Alberta and Ted Scharffe traded punches. Both players drew fighting major penalties.

At Chicago, where 2,943 saw the Cougars suffer their ninth setback in 12 games, Ed Hoekstra and Jack Stanfield scored their first goals of the season to break up a 1-1 stalemate in the third period.

COUGARS TAKE LEAD

Rosaire Paiement put Chicago ahead 1-0 at 12:31 of the second period, a goal matched about four minutes later by Ted Taylor.

Hoekstra, at 2:33 of the third, and Stanfield at 6:26, moved the Aeros into a 3-1 lead before Reg Fleming closed out the Cougars' scoring with less than three minutes remaining.

Cleveland Crusaders, who jumped into an early lead in the Eastern Division, have 17 points but now are followed at one-point intervals by New England Whalers, Quebec, New York and Ottawa Nationals.

Remparts nip Beavers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec Remparts nipped Sherbrooke Beavers 5-4 Tuesday night to stretch their season's record to 15 wins and no losses and maintain a two-point lead over Cornwall Royals for first place in the Quebec Junior A Hockey League.

The Royals defeated Trois-Rivieres Ducs 5-2. The Remparts have 30 points and the Royals 28, putting them well ahead of the other seven teams in the league.

Jamie Bateman's goal at 13:16 of the third period provided the Remparts with their win. Sherbrooke started strong, building up a 3-0 lead early in the first period before Quebec came back with three opening-period tallies and one in the second for a 4-3 lead going into the third period.

Sherbrooke scored at 12:19 of the final frame, but Bateman found the range 57 seconds later for Quebec's victory.

Andre Savard with two goals, Yvon Dupuis and Daniel Beaulieu also scored for Quebec while Pierre Laganier, Mario Desjardins, Marcel Labrosse and Francois Rochon replied for Sherbrooke.

In Trois-Rivieres, two-goal performances by Brian McCullough and Bob Chase sparked Cornwall. Bob Murray added the other marker.

Guy Crevier and Daniel Dubuc replied for the Ducs.

The score was tied 2-2 after the first period and Cornwall led 3-2 after the middle frame.

The next league game is Thursday night when Laval Nationals travel to Cornwall.
