EASTERN TOWNSHIPS — Voters throughout the Eastern Townships opted for federalism yesterday, sweeping Liberal candidates to victory in all 11 ridings.

The massive pro-confederation vote stung both the Parti Quebecois who had expected close races in the urban areas and the Parti Creditiste who lost two incumbent MNAs in rural ridings.

Less than two hours after the polls had closed the outcome of most Eastern Townships ridings had already been determined. Liberal incumbent Georges Vaillancourt in Orford was the first to win re-election. Mr. Vaillancourt, who was minister of state responsible for municipal affairs in the last government, was declared elected shortly before 8 p.m.

As it turned out he won the riding by a 11,000 vote majority, the biggest ever in the history of the county.

But others were quick to follow. The victors were Gerald Deziel, in the new riding of St. Francois with a 5,000-plus margin; incumbent Gilles Masse in Arthabaska; Brome incumbent Glen Brown in the new riding of Brome-Missisquoi; Robert Malouin in Drummond, who replaced roads minister Bernard Pinard who opted out of provincial politics; Henri Lecours in Frontenac; Jean-Claude Boutin in Johnson; Omer Dionne in the riding of Megantic-Compton who upended Creditiste incumbent Paul-Andre Latulippe of the former Megantic riding; Yvon Vallieres in Richmond, ousting Creditiste incumbent Yvon Brochu; Richard Verreault who defeated Union Nationale incumbent Armand Russell in Sherbrooke and team-mate Gerald Deziel in St-Francois. Liberal headquarters throughout the region rejoiced in victory while other party headquarters were filled with gloom.

Sherbrooke winner Jean-Paul Pepin predicted a great resurgence for the Eastern Townships.

"We will make a great team," a jubilant Mr. Pepin exclaimed. "Together we can all work for the good of the Eastern Townships residents."

Cloudy today with rain beginning this afternoon and continuing Wednesday. High 45. Low tonight 35.

Quebecers reject separatism

VICTORY KISS — Liberal winner Gerard Deziel gets a victory kiss from his wife following his win in the new riding of St-Francois. For local coverage see page 3.

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa retained power Monday in a stunning electoral sweep and promptly proclaimed federalism as the choice of a "clear majority of Quebecers."

The Bourassa Liberals won at least 99 of the 110 ridings on Quebec's updated electoral map. The premier had described his party during the campaign as the only truly federalist party in the four-sided fight.

Rene Levesque's separatist Parti Quebecois became the official Opposition and increased its popular vote in the election, which saw all three opposition party leaders defeated.

Mr. Levesque went down to his second personal defeat. Gabriel Loubier, leading the Union Nationale in an election for the first time, and Yvon Dupuis of the Parti Creditiste, also a first-time leader, were defeated in their home ridings.

The one-mighty Union Nationale was obliterated and Quebec returned essentially to a two-party system, with the Liberals upholding federalism and the Parti Quebecois driving for an independent Quebec in economic association with Canada.

Those two parties made their first appearance at the Quebec provincial polls in 1970 when Mr. Bourassa toppled the Union Nationale regime of the late Jean-Jacques Bertrand.

When vote-counting paused early today, the party standings from Monday's election were:

Party	Elected	Leading	Total
Lib	99	2	101
PQ	6	1	7
Cred	2	0	2

Party standings after the last election April 29, 1970:

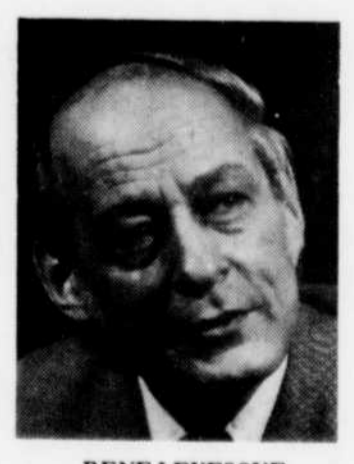

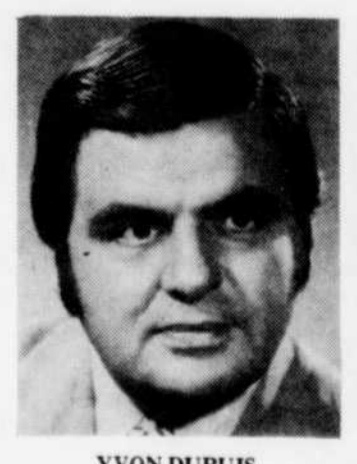

Liberals	72
Union Nationale	17
Creditiste	12
Parti Quebecois	7
Total	108

Mr. Levesque protested bitterly in 1970 that his party won only seven seats though it captured 23 per cent of the popular vote—second to the Liberals.

Mr. Dupuis said citizens rallied to the Liberals to avoid breaking up the federalist vote. The Liberals took 11 seats from the Union Nationale, 10 from the Creditistes and two from the Parti Quebecois, which in turn captured one seat from the Union Nationale.

Three party leaders defeated

MONTREAL (CP) — Defeated leaders of three major Quebec political parties reacted swiftly to the resounding victory of Premier Robert Bourassa and his Liberals in Monday's provincial election.

Mr. Bourassa himself pronounced the landslide a "victory of common sense" and a clear mandate that Quebecers prefer federalism.

But Rene Levesque, leader of the Parti Quebecois, said he feared the Liberal sweep would lead to excessive power in the hands of a single party.

Gabriel Loubier, leader of the now-defunct Union Nationale, said he felt much of the vote was not so much for the Liberals as it was against the Parti Quebecois.

Mr. Bourassa said the result was "certainly the greatest victory in Quebec history."

Bourassa: 'Victory of common sense'

MONTREAL (CP) — The Liberal sweep of the Quebec provincial election signalled "the defeat of the separatist option" and the victory of "the common sense" of Quebecers, the jubilant winner of the vote said Monday night.

Mr. Bourassa said the result was "a clear mandate that Quebecers prefer federalism."

Election needed in Lennoxville

LENNOXVILLE (CC) — The town of Lennoxville will be the site of a municipal election for the first time in nearly two decades.

Following nominations yesterday two persons — a man and a woman — had submitted candidature papers for the council seat left open with the departure of W.S. Richardson from the municipal scene.

Young shoplifters a bad mistake made

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Today I did something I could kick myself for. I was walking through a bookstore and spotted a book on sex. I am only 15 years old and was sure they wouldn't sell it to me so I slipped it under my jacket and walked out of the store.

The minute I got on the street I felt a hand on my shoulder. It was the store manager. He asked to see the sales slip for the book. I knew I was caught. He "invited" me to come to his office, asked for my name, address and phone number. I begged him not to call the police or my parents. He said, "All right, if you promise never to shoplift again, we'll keep it between the two of us." I took an oath on my life. He said, "I believe you."

Ann, when I think of how close I came to wrecking myself over a rotten $1.95 book I could just die. How lucky I was that the manager was so understanding. Please print this letter for every kid out there who has ever toyed with the idea of lifting. It's a bumper — a real bumper — Lucky Fool.

Dear Lucky: Good letter. Good advice. Thanks for sharing.

Dear Ann Landers: As an amateur astrologer in my fifth year of study, I am accustomed to hearing people who know absolutely nothing about the subject tell me what a lot of garbage it is. These individuals are completely devoid of any knowledge of such elementary things as the Twelve-House System, the Ten Planetary Influences, Lunar Cycles, and so on. They feel they are eminently qualified to deride an art that dates back to the time of the Chaldeans.

In the face of such presumptuous arrogance, the only answer that seems to quiet the vehement clods is a quote from Sir Isaac Newton, who was a prominent astrologer in addition to his other pursuits. When asked why a man of his intelligence and scientific accomplishment believed in such "disreputable nonsense," he replied, "Because I have studied the matter. You have not."

Thank you for equal time, Ann — Sun In The Ninth House.

Dear Sun: Several readers have written to say, "A plague on all your houses," but I am not so quick to pass judgment on a subject that has so many supporters. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I married a man my parents didn't like. I was sure I could change him and that he would be the perfect husband. He has been married twice before and swore that he had learned from his past mistakes. Immediately after the wedding he got into a big argument with my dad. He was drunk and struck my father with his fist. Dad told him never to come into the house again I said "That means me, too. Goodbye."

When our child was born I never let my folks know. Dad died the following month without ever seeing his only grandson. I went to his funeral and nearly collapsed when I saw how old and frail my mother had grown in only two years. I was sure I had contributed to it.

My husband left me for another woman a few months later. I am back home now, living with my mother, trying my best to make up for the lost years, but it can't be done. Never — Olive Branch Withered.

Dear Friends: If ever a letter said it all, yours does.

Red-eyed Liberals jubilant in Sherbrooke

Local pequistes undaunted

By MICHAEL ISAACS
Record Reporter
SHERBROOKE — At the headquarters of defeated Sherbrooke Parti Quebecois candidate Jean-Jacques Lafontaine, the atmosphere was not one of overpowering defeat.

The reasons lay in the fact that Lafontaine had received more than 31 per cent of the popular vote in his riding and that the majority of the persons present at the headquarters were younger than 25 years old.

"After all, the total popular vote for the Parti Quebecois candidates across the province was 30 per cent and Lafontaine eclipsed that in his riding," explained a party member.

Further, Lafontaine himself was unwilling to admit total loss and was constantly pointing out that his own efforts were still those of an uninitiated politician.

The headquarters on Wellington street were crowded with nearly 200 supporters. Their attitude seemed far removed from despondency and they were already looking forward to their next election campaign.

For the vast majority of those present, the future still holds many such campaigns and that awareness made itself evident among the supporters through two attitudes — their satisfaction that the Parti Quebecois had increased its popular vote percentage and their recurrent contention that "Tomorrow we must be out in the streets organizing the riding for the next campaign."

leader of their party, moved to the microphone at his headquarters to speak on television, those present roared their enthusiasm for the party and quickly silenced themselves in order to hear the words of the leader.

The largest reaction to his words arose when he said: "What is really difficult to accept for Quebec is that for the next four years the province will have a government which has an overwhelming hold on power."

As he was saying the words a pequiste member of the Sherbrooke riding shouted: "The Liberals will form a totalitarian government," and was supported by jeers for the election results.

Throughout the night, once the results on a province-wide basis were known, a few party members were discussing the downfall of democracy and were drinking with sadness to what they claimed was the possible destruction of the democratic process.

On the whole, however, the Parti Quebecois members seemed to be looking towards the future with confidence that another election would bring more satisfaction to their party.

Lafontaine himself said: "In four years, there will be another election and I will be a candidate once more for the national assembly."

In Sherbrooke riding, Jean-Paul Pepin, the incumbent Liberal member, was returned to the assembly with a margin of more than 3,500 votes and a total of more than 15,000 votes cast in his favor. Lafontaine received over 9,000 votes in the riding.

SHERBROOKE — Red-eyed Liberal supporters awoke this morning sporting a hangover but still jubilant over the party's twin killing in Sherbrooke and St-Francois ridings.

Soon after Jean-Paul Pepin and Gerald Deziel were declared elected Liberal supporters stormed the Reform Club bars in a celebration comparable to a wild party.

The hundreds of supporters crammed every inch of the Club singing songs of victory and patting each other on the back. And they drank and drank.

Some of the party's supporters became so drunk they started walking through the crowd looking for pequiste spies. Some of the younger people there, who of course had hair that hung over their ears, were threatened with violence and told to leave the club.

But the acts of a few didn't dismay the crowd of enthusiasts anxious to glimpse the figures of the winning candidates.

The Liberal supporters, assembled early at the campaign headquarters on Minto street, sensed victory shortly after the polls closed.

Dancing and shouting, the supporters cheered as television results were broadcast. The comment often heard was "I told you so."

A wild roar erupted when the two Liberal candidates were declared winners.

Afterwards, as it became known that party leaders Rene Levesque, Yvon Dupuis and Gabriel Loubier had been defeated in their home ridings, the room burst with spontaneous cheering.

Whenever another party's candidate was elected the crowd jeered. But there was little time for sadness.

The Liberal sweep of the Eastern Townships and the landslide victory throughout the province left little time for it.

Many of the supporters headed to the nearby Royal Hotel to celebrate.

A parade was formed outside Liberal headquarters. When Pepin arrived the parade started, horns honking, proceeding throughout Sherbrooke.

"I have to thank the population of Sherbrooke for their support," Mr. Pepin said.

The Parti Quebecois asked for a referendum and we gave them one I don't think there will be any doubt left in anyone's mind that the people of Sherbrooke are federalists.

"They believe as I do," Pepin added. "The future of Quebec lies within Confederation and not outside of it."

Pepin, stating that he never doubted that he would win the election, also said the vote "showed that the voters of Sherbrooke believe in what I have been trying to do and have given me a clear mandate to continue."

Pepin, with 15,645 votes, carried a 6,000-plus majority over his closest rival Jean-Jacques Lafontaine of the Parti Quebecois. Rejean Giroux, Creditiste, and Marcel Cote, Union Nationale, trailed far off the field.

"I am not a man for speeches," Pepin added. "All I care about is the population of Sherbrooke. I will continue to do my best to bring to them a better standard of living."

Deziel, a first-time candidate in the new riding of St-Francois, was stunned by his overwhelming victory. The East ward councillor, who last night became MNA with more than 12,000 votes, outdistanced PQ nominee Robert Sabourin by more than 6,000 votes.

Unable to speak loudly because he had lost his voice Mr. Deziel reiterated his belief in federalism and promised to do his best to serve the needs of the population which elected him.

"I am not a great speaker," he said. "But I am an honest man, new to politics, who will do everything for the population of St-Francois.

Deziel's teenage daughter Denise was also thunderstruck by the victory. Walking around in a trance she kept repeating "I don't believe it. My father is an MNA."

Jean-Paul Pepin's wife was also happy for her husband. "We have absorbed much criticism which I don't think my husband deserved," she said.

"We found out that my husband's work was very much appreciated and that the voters of Sherbrooke believe in him and what he has tried to do."

Both Pepin and Deziel attributed their victory to a population which didn't vote for promises but for concrete projects undertaken by the Liberals.

They said they would work towards increased economic and industrial expansion, a regional government services headquarters under one roof, the completion of a belt route around Sherbrooke and the prolongation of the Trans-Quebec highway.

Robberies plague Lennoxville

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Several robberies have been reported by the Lennoxville municipal police over the last week.

Jerry's Pizzeria was the hardest hit by the thefts, with between $300-350 taken from the cash. Two males entered the establishment Wednesday, Oct. 24 at 11:35 p.m. wearing handkerchiefs over their faces and demanded the money in the cash register.

One member of the duo brandished a small revolver and appeared very nervous, police said. According to police, the men skipped town with a female accomplice. Local officials are still investigating.

The suspect drove into the station in a green 1965 GMC truck and requested that the attendant change a burned tail light.

While the serviceman was making the repairs, the man slipped into the office and removed $34 in cash. Once again the police have very good leads as to identity of the thief and are continuing their investigation.

A second robbery occurred Saturday, Oct. 27 at 9 p.m. at Pelletier Texaco on Queen St.

LENNOXVILLE (GH) — Joyce Cochrane will speak on Ozias Leduc and Sherbrooke's unknown art treasure tonight at 8 p.m. in Room 2, Nicoll's Building at Bishop's University.

Ozias Leduc was a great but little known Canadian artist born in St. Hilaire in 1864. He died in 1955.

Leduc was hermit-like and the only way to decipher the man is through his work. Leduc is especially noted as a church decorator.

One of the 30 churches he has decorated is the Archbishop's private chapel in Sherbrooke. Leduc taught Paul-Emile Bordoux his trade. Miss Cochrane described Bordoux as the leader of modern painting in Quebec.

Joyce Cochrane is herself an artist and teaches the subject at the University of Sherbrooke.

Brown wins handily

KNOWLTON (JD) — Glen Brown, the 17-year veteran on the hustings, swept to power with an unprecedented majority last night.

Mr. Brown, who represented Brome from 1956 through to redistribution in the new riding, had 12,185 votes with 128 of the 147 polls reported. At that time he had only lost three to pequiste Paul Doucet. They were in Cowansville.

His closest rival at press time was Georges Binette, Creditiste, 2845.

Mr. Doucet placed third with 2601. Union Nationale standard bearer Jean-Guy Choiniere had 1477 and independent Richard Paquette, 165.

During the previous provincial election Mr. Brown won 41 of 43 polls in Brome.

Mr. Brown, in an interview with The Record said: "I am most impressed with the reception accorded me by my French friends."

"You know my use of the language could improve. However, the response in Cowansville, Bedford, Notre-Dame de Stanbridge and Bonsecours proved language is no barrier in politics in the Eastern Townships."

"Their support was one a politician only dreams of."

Police, both municipal and provincial, said there was absolutely no trouble during election hours. At press time 17,729 of the approximately 27,000 voters had been accounted for.

A francophone Cowansville cab driver summed up the situation: "We couldn't trust the pequistes, that's why we voted red."

UN duo agrees

SHERBROOKE (AR) — Marcel Cote, Union Nationale hopeful in Sherbrooke riding, and Yves Dubreuil, his counterpart in St-Francois, agreed that voters treated the election as a referendum.

Both candidates saw the election as a rejection of the separatist option and a confirmation for Quebec's continued marriage with Canada.

Cote, only in politics for the last month, was not certain of his political future, although he expressed the opinion that the experience was worthwhile. "I certainly did not lose anything," he said in a television interview.

Dubreuil, also a newcomer to the political scene, expressed gratitude at being able to participate in an election campaign at his age. He is 28.

Neither local UN candidate fared well as was the case for the party throughout the province.

Creditiste has mixed feelings

SHERBROOKE (GH) — Rejean Giroux, Parti Creditiste candidate for Sherbrooke county, did not have much to say following his defeat last night.

He felt his party's poor showings were due to the fact voters were marking their ballots either for federalism or separation last night.

"I am saddened by the results but I am glad," he said. "I am not against separation, but I am totally for federalism."

Shattered diplomacy

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's intricately woven network of international relations has been badly shredded by the Middle East war.
 In Africa, where Israel once was solidly entrenched as a great friend of the emerging independent states, only seven black-ruled countries maintain diplomatic relations with the Jewish state.
 In Europe, relations with some countries have come under a severe strain for what Israel calls neutrality in favor of the oil-rich Arabs during the latest war.
 And at home, opposition parties have issued strong attacks against the Israeli government for allegedly not preparing for the war and for accepting a ceasefire before Arab armies were destroyed.
 Among the problems in Europe, only the barest formality of diplomatic ties still remain with France. Israel charged that Paris should have cancelled its contract to supply Libya with Mirage jet fighter planes after these planes allegedly flew missions in the war.

STOPPED SUPPLIES

Israelis also were bitter toward Britain, which imposed an arms embargo on the combatants, stopping the supply of spare parts for Centurion tanks. The move had no effect on the weapons flow to Arab countries not directly involved on the battlefield, Israel said.
 West Germany, declaring itself neutral, ordered the halt of the American supply of weapons to Israel through West German territory.
 But it was in Africa that the Israelis were stung the worst. "There is no question that we have suffered setbacks in Africa during the war," said an Israeli official who declined to be named. "We sincerely regret this, but right now we have more important things to think about than who likes us and who doesn't."

Since the fighting began, nine black African countries have severed ties since the latest war began.
 The Arab states "have consistently sought a peaceful and just solution to the Middle East problem," said a spokesman in Zambia, which broke ties with Israel on Thursday, apparently branding Israel as the aggressor in the latest war.

CHARGE 'BAD FAITH'

Israel is guilty of "bad faith," said an official in Nigeria, which also ended its association with the Jewish state Thursday.
 These countries joined Ethiopia, Tanzania, Gambia, the Central African Republic, Ghana, Madagascar and Cameroon and 13 other African countries which severed relations before the war. Senegal said it has "frozen" relations until after the war.
 Senegal broke diplomatic relations with Israel Sunday because it said "Israeli forces took advantage of the ceasefire to reinforce their bridgehead west of the Suez canal and encircle the Egyptian 3rd Army." It, Zambia and Nigeria joined Ethiopia, Tanzania, Gambia, the Central African Republic, Ghana, Madagascar and Cameroon and 13 other African countries which severed relations before the war.

"The Arab states have been putting a lot of pressure on the Africans," said another Israeli official. "And with all that oil revenue they have a lot of power. The war, in fact, has had no effect. It was just used as an excuse. We can't compete with Libyan money."

Some of these countries once considered Israel their best friend for providing the practical assistance they needed rather than the handouts of bigger, richer countries.
 Half of Israel's foreign aid budget of $10 million was earmarked for Africa last year, and black students were common on the streets of Tel Aviv or the fields of a kibbutz. The foreign ministry says it intends to maintain its aid programs in the few countries left.
 Israeli emissaries remain in Liberia, Ivory Coast, Sierra Leone, Kenya, Botswana, Lesotho, Swaziland and Senegal and in white-controlled South Africa.

Israeli power myth destroyed

In the aftermath of a war that has brought heavy losses and suffering, both Israel and Egypt claim military gains but the Israelis acknowledge that one legend that has died is that its forces can smash Arab armies effortlessly.
 "Both the Arabs and the Israelis have gained victories, but in a sense no one has won anything," said a respected Israeli military observer. "The Egyptians proved they could cross the canal, and probably that's all they wanted to prove."

"We did not destroy the Egyptian or the Syrian armies, as we said we would do. But we have shown the world that Israel's ideal frontiers, the only secure borders, are the ones that were carved out in 1967. This message has been written on paper stained with blood."

With an uneasy cease-fire on the fronts against Egypt in the south and Syria in the north, military leaders on both sides paused to conclusions. This is a rough summary of their thinking.

What is important, say the Egyptians, is that their army crossed the Suez Canal on Oct. 6, smashing the Israeli-Bar-Lev defence line.

Egyptians point to other political and psychological gains from this war:

- Great Arab unity.
- New economic pressure on Washington, applied through the decisions of Arab oil-producing states to cut production progressively until Washington persuades Israel to withdraw to pre-1967 boundaries.
- A new international awareness that the Israeli super-soldier, once able to defeat Egypt in six days, is a myth.

—Further isolation of Israel during the war as nine more black African states broke relations, including Ethiopia, which controls the southern entrance to the Red Sea.

—Revived big-power interest in the Middle East after six years of stalemate, prompting State Secretary Henry Kissinger to say Oct. 25: "The United States recognizes that the conditions that produced the war of Oct. 6 cannot be allowed to continue...."

ISRAELIS BLINDED

On the Israeli side, they lament that the much-vaunted "best intelligence service in the world" let them down in the war build-up. Nearly 200,000 Arab troops and more than 2,500 Arab tanks had moved up to the 1967 truce lines on the Golan Heights and the Suez Canal. But Israeli intelligence agents misread or misunderstood the signs.

Why did the Israelis fail to see what was coming?
 "Critics who agree on little else agree that it was due to blindness induced by the brilliant, almost incredible victory of 1967," said Israeli commentator Lea Ben Dor.

By some Israeli accounts the Egyptians poured perhaps 60,000 men and hundreds of tanks over the Suez canal after an artillery barrage. Facing them, according to the same Israeli estimate, were 20 strongpoints of the famed Bar-Lev line strung along the canal's 103-mile length.

In the north the Syrians launched a simultaneous offensive with up to 80,000 troops and 1,400 tanks pushing to regain the Golan Heights overlooking Israeli civilian settlements north of the Biblical Sea of Galilee.

Death on the dunes

SINAI DESERT (AP) — Trapped in that inferno of blazing sun and blowing sand east of Suez, the Egyptian 3rd Army needs desperately the water that flows through a pipeline now in Israeli hands.
 Even without a shot being fired, it would be difficult to imagine a more hostile environment for a cut-off army.

By day, temperatures rise to 120 degrees and the heat can actually be seen, more visible than a mirage, shimmering in waves off the rolling dunes and yellow rock outcroppings. Flies swarm over the wounded and cover the dead like a black blanket. Buzzards circle ominously in the cloudless sky or sit in a silent row on the ridge line of the wadis, the rocky beds of rivers that went dry millions of years ago.

Now that Israeli planes and artillery have blasted away the bridges so brilliantly laid across the Suez canal in the opening days of the Middle East war, the Egyptians can no longer reach the sweet water piped from the Cairo region to the west bank of the canal.

The eastern bank has no fresh water, and the nearest oasis is 100 miles further east at Nakhli.
 But even for a tank, the trip is treacherous over the shifting sands and crumbling dunes. The only road east is the narrow strip of macadam, cratered and pockmarked by three wars in a generation, leading to the Mitla Pass. And there is no place to hide in the vast empty Sinai from the ever vigilant reconnaissance planes.

LAND OF MOSES
 This is the wilderness where Ishmael, ancestor of the Arabs, led the nomad life of a social outcast and where Moses, the most revered prophet of the Jews, wandered for 40 years, yearning for the Promised Land.

Out there on the dunes an army is dying, 20,000 men cut off from food, water, medicine, ammunition, gasoline.

But there is no Moses to strike the rock and bring forth water, unless the sons of Ishmael bow down to the rock of Israeli determination and surrender.

In this harsh blaze of a land, camel caravans coming across the distant purple mountains from Jordan and Iraq always regarded the last leg to Suez as the most grueling. The indigenous Bedouin tribes, now vanished since the new war broke out, survive on their scraggly herds of goats, an occasional expendable camel or by throwing up nets at dawn to catch the tiny succulent song birds migrating to Africa.

The average Egyptian fellah, recruited from impoverished slums of Cairo or Alexandria and Nile Delta farms, is little prepared to lead the life of a desert sheik, even in desperation.

The nights afford scarce consolation. When the sun goes down, about 5 p.m. this time of year, the flies go away and the mosquitos start pestering. But the wind comes up and a dense, chilling fog rolls in from the Gulf of Suez and the Red Sea, dousing everything in a thick condensation of dew and dampness.

Wild desert dogs invade the garbage pits and sit in a greedy circle around the encampments where the tankers sleep in the sand beside their vehicles. The smell of blood makes the dogs howl all night, taking up the night vigil turned over by the wheeling buzzards.

Water is just over the next dune at the great canal that divides the land in peace and war. But with the Israeli army controlling the pipeline, it might as well be as near as the most distant star burning over the desert.

The Israelis had been caught off guard. Their lines collapsed against the Egyptian onslaught that had been planned for years and was carried out with the precision of a military textbook.

"They kept saying they would cross the canal. We laughed at them but they went ahead and did it. The Egyptian victory stands to this day," an Israeli war analyst said.

In the north the Israeli forces were pushed back across the Golan Heights—one of their most prized trophies of the 1967 war—by Syrian units that advanced to within three miles of Israeli farms in the green valleys below.

On the sixth day, after quick mobilization, the Israelis reported some success. Its forces broke through Syrian lines and started sweeping about 20 miles along the road to Damascus.

In the Sinai, a great tank battle raged as the Israelis turned their counter-attack south.

"The Egyptians were across the canal in force, stronger by far than we were, but they stopped to think," one war analyst said. "Then they were lured into a giant setpiece of tank warfare, which is a very special part of our own repertoire. The losses were heavy on both sides, however."

GROUND GAINED

By the time a second UN Security Council proposal for a ceasefire took hold Wednesday, the Israelis had moved beyond Suez city to the port of Ras Ababiya and claimed to hold an estimated 1,200 square miles of Egyptian territory stretching north to Ismailia.

In the north the Israelis stormed Mt. Hermon and recaptured strategic outposts over the Golan Heights. Three hundred square miles of Syrian territory were left in Israeli hands, Israeli military officials estimated.

Hussein emerges strong as ever

AMMAN (AP) — Jordan's resilient King Hussein has come out of the Middle East war with new problems but still as strong as ever, experienced political observers here say.

"He balanced the requirements of Arab unity with safeguards for the country's vital and often conflicting interests," one observer said. "Jordan took a fighting role, but lost only a handful of casualties, took no Israeli reprisals and did not see one Israeli soldier on her soil."

But Jordan could again become a target of hard-line Arabs because of its low profile in the conflict, particularly for not exploiting the early Arab military success by opening a third front along its 250-mile border with Israel.

During the first week of the war, Hussein, supported by Queen Mother Zein and his brother Crown Prince Hassan, agonized over whether to commit troops to the struggle.

WANTED ACTION

Premier Zeid Rifai and his influential uncle, Abdul Moneim Rifai, the ambassador to Cairo, wanted immediate and strong Jordanian action. They argued that passively holding down Israeli forces along the Jordan Valley ceasefire line was not enough.

At the end of a stormy six-hour cabinet meeting about a week after the war broke out, Hussein decided to send about 8,000 troops with tanks to the Syrian front. But he never committed his entire 75,000-man army.

The Palestinians who make up about three-quarters of Jordan's population remained calm, but some intellectuals spoke of the need to increase Jordan's role.

No demonstrations, placards or petitions were reported, partly because most of the hard-line Palestinians were either killed in the 1970 civil war or forced to flee to Syria or Lebanon.

HOPEFUL PLAN

To help resolve the Palestinian problem—which seems likely to be an important part of any peace talks—the Jordanians still have hopes for Hussein's plan to federate the east and west banks of the Jordan River under his Hashemite crown, but with Palestinian autonomy on the west bank now occupied by Israel.

If this could be worked out, hundreds of thousands of Palestinians who fled in 1967 when Israel seized the west bank could return home. The west bank also would provide a home for some of the Palestinians who in 1948 fled their homes in what now is Israel proper.

But the important problem of Jerusalem remains. Most Jordanians want a full restoration of Arab rights in the city, entirely controlled by Israel since 1967. The Israelis are determined to turn the entire city—sacred to Jews, Moslems and Christians—into the Israeli capital.

Fully Registered Bonds in denominations of $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $25,000 are available in two different forms. The first form is registered as to both interest and principal, and interest is payable annually by cheque — in this form the Bond does not have the special Compound Interest feature. The second form is also registered as to both interest and principal but does offer the special Compound Interest feature. However, in this case, payment of accumulated interest is deferred until redemption of the Bond.

Price of gasoline may rise by six cents per gallon

By DAVE BLAIKIE
OTTAWA (CP) — soaring crude oil prices in Venezuela and the Middle East could boost gasoline prices east of the Ottawa Valley by six cents a gallon before the end of November.

This was the bleak assessment of one federal source Monday after a staggering 56-per-cent weekend increase in the base price the Venezuelan government uses to calculate oil taxes.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald refused to guess how much prices will rise, or how fast, but warned eastern consumers to prepare for major increases in the months ahead.

There is "really no choice" but to pay the higher prices if consumers are to be supplied with enough oil to meet their needs, he said.

The government source, who asked not to be named, said it will cost about two cents a gallon at the retail gasoline level to offset the cost of Venezuelan price increases announced in September and early October. Another retail increase of about four cents a gallon will be needed to cover the latest increase, he estimated.

This would push premium gasoline prices to about 70 cents a gallon in some areas and shove the price of regular gasoline past 60 cents for many consumers.

Mr. Macdonald said the government may approve price increases before the end of the week to cover the September and early-October import cost increases.

FOLLOW ARABS

Venezuela, taking its cue from Arab states, bounced its base price for taxing purposes to $7.25 a barrel from $4.65 during the weekend.

The result will be an increase of roughly $1.30 a barrel in the cost refiners pay for Venezuelan crude at Montreal, Mr. Macdonald said. More than half of the 800,000 barrels of oil imported daily to eastern Canada comes from Venezuela.

Consumers living in and east of the Ottawa Valley rely almost totally on imported oil. All areas to the west of the valley are supplied by Alberta crude.

The impact on heating oil prices was unclear but corresponding increases seemed likely. One Ottawa dealer, selling heating oil for 28 cents a gallon Monday, predicted the price could go to 35 cents within a month. It was 19 to 20 cents a gallon two years ago.

At 35 cents a gallon, the cost of filling a 200-gallon tank would rise to about $70 from $56.

For eastern consumers, the developments brought an abrupt end to the five-month petroleum price freeze announced by the government in September and agreed to by all major oil companies.

Gulf Canada Ltd. abandoned its commitment to the freeze by announcing a one-cent-a-gallon boost in the price of all fuels produced at its Montreal refinery.

Mr. Macdonald said the companies are not bound legally by the freeze, but would be breaking their promise to act unilaterally without federal approval. The voluntary freeze is scheduled to end Jan. 30.

Although eastern increases are unavoidable, Mr. Macdonald said, the freeze still will apply west of the Ottawa valley.

He said no eastern increases will result from the latest Venezuelan increase until existing stocks are used up.

A spokesman said the first tanker loads at the new price level will arrive from Venezuela about Nov. 10 and about the end of next week from the Middle East.

DROP TAX?

In other developments, Mr. Macdonald met privately Monday with four Alberta cabinet ministers to discuss a series of energy matters.

Both sides hinted afterward that the 40-cent-a-barrel crude oil export tax imposed by Ottawa Oct. 1 may be dropped for another measure more acceptable to the province.

Alberta has denounced the tax as the most discriminatory federal action ever taken against a province.

Both Mr. Macdonald and Don Getty, Alberta intergovernmental affairs minister, said alternatives were discussed. But neither would indicate what they were.

In the Commons, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said there are indications that Canada may escape war-related oil sanctions taken by Mideast producers against pro-Israel countries.

New Democrats pledge to press for increases in CPP

By KEN POLE

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democrats plan to press for increased Canada Pension Plan benefits despite a Commons ruling Monday that the plan can be amended only by the cabinet.

House Leader Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) told the House Monday night that his party intends to ask Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde to make further changes when amendments to pension legislation go to the welfare committee for clause-by-clause study.

Mr. Knowles called the proposed amendments excellent and said "as far as I can ascertain, I think a pretty good job has been done." Mr. Lalonde "need not look for much trouble in getting it through."

However, he hoped the minister could be persuaded to lower the pension eligibility age to 60 from 65 because if the person "is out of the labor market, that is a fair way to do it."

Mr. Knowles also wants equal rights for housewives. They do not receive pensions under the plan.

'SHOULD CONTRIBUTE'

The veteran NDP pension spokesman said a husband's wages should be counted as joint income if his wife does not work and she therefore should be entitled to contribute to the pension plan.

Parts of the legislation applying to the public service also need amending, he said, especially sections applying to the widows of public servants.

A man collects a 100-per-cent pension on retirement and, if his wife dies, he still collects full pension. If he should die, however, the pension is cut to 50 per cent.

"The sense of that," Mr. Knowles, "really escapes me."

The bill Mr. Lalonde will take to committee contains none of these changes but Mr. Knowles said he and other opposition MPs will press for their inclusion despite Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux's ruling.

Mr. Lamoureux endorsed the government claim that the bill is a money bill and, as such, can be altered only to cabinet.

CALLS REFORMS URGENT

Mr. Lalonde said the bill contains the most urgent reforms to the Canada Pension Plan.

It gives retroactive cost-of-living increases to persons retired since 1967 and whose pensions previously were restricted to two-per-cent annual increments. This means a maximum 20-per-cent increase in pensions for those who retired in 1967 and a minimum eight per cent for those retiring this year.

Earlier Monday, the Commons completed second reading, approval in principle, of the annual Canadian National Railways financing bill.

This bill, which now goes to the transport committee, would provide $230.5 million for CN capital spending this year and up to $75 million in the first half of next year.

It also would permit Air Canada to borrow up to $140 million to discharge obligations due between Jan. 1, 1973, and June 30, 1974, and would approve the issue of $32.1 million in Air Canada debentures from July 1, 1972, and ending Dec. 31, 1976.

Israelis press for PoW lists

Israel pressed Egypt and Syria Monday for prisoner-of-war lists and a prisoner exchange as the Israeli government came under fire at home for letting supplies get through to the stranded Egyptian 3rd Army.

Premier Golda Meir held up plans to return 2,000 wounded Arab PoWs until the Arabs come up with a list of Israelis they captured in the war. Maj-Gen. Shmuel Eyal said the Israeli government believes Egypt is holding about 350 Israelis and Syria about 100. He says Israel is willing to trade the 7,000 Arabs it captured for them.

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said Egypt informed UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim that it will give the prisoner list to the International Red Cross, but there was no immediate comment from Israel. Al Ahram said Egypt made the promise while stressing to Waldheim "the necessity of Israeli troops withdrawing" to their positions when the first UN ceasefire went into effect Oct. 22.

An Israeli military delegation led by Maj-Gen. Aharon Yariv met Monday for the third time with Egyptian officers at the ceasefire line on the west bank of the canal, and an Israeli spokesman said they discussed the prisoner situation. More such meetings were expected, the Israeli command said.

ACTION CRITICIZED
Many Israelis criticized their government for permitting relief supplies to reach the encircled Egyptian troops along the southeast side of the Suez canal. Some said the plight of the stranded troops should have been used as a bargaining point to get the PoW exchange arranged.

UN drivers Monday took 100 truckloads of food, water and medicine through Israeli lines six miles north of Suez on the west bank of the canal, and Egyptian amphibious vehicles began taking the supplies across the waterway. A UN officer said the total shipment will last the estimated 20,000 Egyptian troops about a week, but there was no word of moves toward arranging another supply operation.

The Jerusalem Post said all 120 persons who responded to its opinion sampling believed that the prisoner lists should have come before the supplies were let through.

Maj-Gen. Chaim Herzog, the Israeli state radio's authoritative commentator, reported: "There was American pressure on Israel to give a concession to the Egyptian forces to prove to the Egyptians that they—the Americans—can deliver the goods, which the Russians can't do."

SAYS FORCE HOLDING
Egypt's official Middle East news agency, in its first reference to the 3rd Army since Israel announced last week that it was encircled, said Monday that the force was "valiantly standing firm" and that its supply bridges across the canal were intact.

The agency also denied a claim by Israeli officers last week that Israeli forces on the west bank of the canal were occupying most of Suez, the town at the southern end of the waterway. It said the town's defences had repelled "all enemy attempts to attack it after the Oct. 22 ceasefire ... forcing the enemy to withdraw from its outskirts."

"Suez still is in Egyptian hands."

The view from here

with Terry Scott

"How about making another of our deals?" I questioned Bill Busted, while sinking into a chair in the Massey-Vanier phys. ed. office.

"What would you say to a Balor Moore-Reggie Smith exchange, even-up?"

"No, that's out," responded the Red Sox' biggest booster this side of the Montpelier foothills. "One thing we don't need in Fenway Park is another lefthander."

Bill Busted and I have been playing the general-manager game for a few years now and both of us are in complete accord that there could well be more baseball trades this winter than stock market transactions.

Hell, if some of the swaps we made last winter would have been for real, our ball clubs would have had a serious shot at swigging some of that champagne last Sunday. Instead, we're stuck with a couple of also-rans.

Still, I can hardly wait for this year's inter-league trading period, because nothing recharges the optimism battery more than a change of faces. It fills you with a fresh injection of promise while the snow blankets last season's failures.

TWO OR THREE LEAKS

Since Jim Fanning is going to have to plug at least two, and possibly three leaks in good ship Expos before next April, why not do a little scouting for him just to see who might be available?

It's not so secret that catching looms foremost on the shopping list. If you could combine John Boccabella's defensive talent with Bob Stinson's bat the search would be necessary, but each has a separate specialty.

Likewise, since Terry Humphrey and Barry Foote aren't prepared to make a shambles of major league pitching, an import appears the only solution.

A scan of major league rosters, Jim, shows that there are two ballclubs who might dangle the commodity you're looking for. In Pittsburgh, there's Milt May, a there 24 years old yet a proven major leaguer who's been wasting his time for three years as Manny Sanguillen's stand-in.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers boast a promising 25-year-old in Steve Yeager, who'll never improve by watching Joe Ferguson carry the bulk of the catching load.

NEED DESPERATELY

Who will you have to part with to gain the item you so desperately need? Well, for Milt May, it would have to be a top-notch starter like Steve Renko or one with the potential of a Balor Moore in a package deal, since the Pirates are in desperate need on the mound.

The Dodgers would only be interested in a Mike Marshall to solidify their bullpen, and again a multi-player deal may be in order, perhaps something similar to the three-for-one transaction with the Mets.

The next thing on the list is centrefield, where the club has never had a permanent performer since its inception, and apparently they aren't ready to concede that a platoon of Boots Day or Jim Lytle and Ron Woods is the answer.

Hence, it's shopping time again, and the best bargain might be found in Cincinnati, where 28-year-old Bobby Tolan has been shoved into the doghouse. There's no question that Tolan is a better ballplayer than he demonstrated last season, but past leg injuries may label him a gamble.

Again, it's the depth of the Pirates and Dodgers' organization which offers the tidest package. In Pittsburgh, Gene Clines was so confident he was coming to Montreal in a trade last May that he went apartment hunting, but no deal was consummated. His name will almost certainly sneak into the conversation again.

DODGER SPEEDSTER

On the west coast, the Dodgers have a speedster named Von Joshua who's been forced to divide his playing time among a handful of other glowing prospects. Just 25, he's the type of ballplayer that Gene Mauch covets.

While on the coast, how about a hard look at 22-year-old Gary Thomsson, who may have to be content with a part-time role for the next decade before he cracks an outfield that consists of Bonds, Maddox, and Matthews.

Just in case Ron Hunt can't get his knee to respond to the rigors of everyday baseball, a second baseman may have to be included on the list of imports.

The Expos have already led a possible candidate get away when the Pirates dealt Dave Cash to the Phillies, but the move also left incumbent Denny Doyle on the list of expendables. Doyle had the finest season of his career in Philadelphia with a .273 mark, but Fanning has already gone in record as saying, "we can do better than that."

DANDY COMBINATION

I hate to be repetitious but perhaps he has his eye on the Dodgers who've got a dandy combination at the keystone position. It would take an overwhelming deal to pry Dave Lopes from the Dodgers, but it's a certainty that 25-year-old Lee Lacy could be had for a lower price.

Apart from that the Expos only alternative is to reach into the American League, where a pair of 30-year-old-plus veterans are about all that might be available — the Yankees' Horace Clarke and the Angels' Sandy Almoar.

It's highly conceivable that none of the names mentioned will be decked out in funny hats next April, but it's also extremely doubtful that Jim Fanning will stand pat as he tries to bridge the ever-closing gap between second division and bona-fide contender status.

Hey, why not solve all three problems at once? How about a deal with the Dodgers involving Mike Marshall and Ron Fairly for Yeager, Joshua and Lacy???

Passes 1,000-yard rushing mark

Simpson powers Bills' victory

BUFFALO (AP) — Coach Hank Stram of Kansas City Chiefs said: "Incredible was the best way to describe it."
 He was talking about O.J. Simpson who cracked the 1,000-yard barrier and broke a 39-year National Football League single-game rushing record as Buffalo Bills whipped the Chiefs 24-13.

Simpson, all-America Heisman Trophy winner from Southern California, reeled off 157 yards rushing to increase his total to 1,025.

For O.J., the output was a seven-game NFL record—54 yards more than Jim Brown posted for Cleveland Browns in 1963. Simpson set another mark, carrying 39 times to better by one the number of carries by Harry Newman in 1934 and Jim Nance in 1966.

"I really don't think about records," Simpson said in the dressing room. "Instead, you've got to run and that's what I'm doing. You don't run for records. You just run and the records come."

SEEKS BROWN'S RECORD

But Simpson, pointing to Brown's single-season high of 1,863 yards, seemed to be kidding.

"We got 1,000 in the first seven games and we'll go for another 1,000 in the next seven," Simpson said.

The "we" referred to by Simpson were his team-mates, especially the young, aggressive offensive line which has been paving the way for his groundgaining.

For Coach Lou Saban, it was a big game.

"We had to win one pretty quick."

Buffalo kicked off, the Chiefs missed on a pass and then fumbled. Middle linebacker Jim Cheyanski recovered for the Bills on the Chiefs' 15.

Simpson carried the ball four consecutive games, scoring from the one-yard line at 2:33.

The Bills kicked off again. On the Chiefs' third play, Cheyanski intercepted Len Dawson's pass, returned it 31 yards and Simpson scored from the four. Time: 3:37.

Buffalo clinched the game with three field goals. John Leybold booted them from 31, 17 and 8 yards.

"We reduced the size of the field to 15 yards the first time we had the ball (when Buffalo recovered the fumble) and four yards the second time (Cheyanski's interception)," said Stram.

ODDS AGAINST CHIEFS

"Any time you're playing a squad that is in an emotional frenzy like Buffalo was—and motivated by their fans—and you give two touchdowns away at bat, you're in trouble."

The Chiefs' two touchdowns followed Buffalo mistakes. Quarterback Joe Ferguson's fumble was recovered by the Chiefs on the Bills' 43 and, four plays later, Wedell Hayes scored from one yard in the second quarter.

Punter Spike Jones dropped a fourth-down snap from centre in the fourth quarter and the Chiefs got the ball on Buffalo's two. Quarterback Pete Beathard sneaked into the end zone.

Buffalo now has won five games—one more than in all of last season—and dropped two. The Chiefs return home with a 3-1 mark.

Finley will appeal fines

NEW YORK (AP) — The other shoe finally fell Monday for Charles O. Finley in the form of $7,000 in fines, but the headstrong, maverick owner of the Oakland Athletics vowed he wouldn't take the punishment lying down.

"I will appeal two of the fines," the Chicago insurance executive said from his home in LaPorte, Ind. "It is grossly unfair."

Thus baseball is headed for another fight between the head man of Oakland's World Series champions and the game's commissioner, Bowie Kuhn.

Finley said he is appealing to baseball's six-man executive council, consisting of the two league presidents, Joe Cronin of the American League and Charles Feeney of the National League, plus four club executives—Walter O'Malley, Los Angeles Dodgers; John McHale, Montreal Expos; Calvin Griffith, Minnesota Twins, and Bob Reynolds, California Angels.

Kuhn said Finley must appeal to the commissioner, that the commissioner is the final authority. The executive council would be unlikely to go against the commissioner.

KUHN MAKES IT FORMAL

Kuhn announced the fines in a formal one-sentence statement from his office, verifying what had been anticipated for days and what became common knowledge a day in advance through leaks.

The commissioner's statement merely said the fines were for conduct during the World Series and it remained for Finley to disclose the specifics of his set-down.

He was fined $5,000 for his conduct in the Mike Andrews case, Finley said, $1,000 for an "embarrassing" announcement made over the loud speaker at the Oakland Coliseum during the series, and another $1,000 for arbitrarily turning on the stadium lights when his team was at bat. The latter is the prerogative of series umpires.

Finley's troubles started when the National League turned down his request to activate a 25th player to bring the Oakland roster to full strength. Finley proceeded to tell the fans about it at the opening game, and the fans booed loudly.

Kuhn said he announced embarrassed New York Mets.

ERRED TWICE

In the second game, Mike Andrews, a reserve Oakland infielder, made two errors that let in three runs, costing the Athletics the 12-inning game.

Andrews was left off the team plane, which flew to New York for resumption of the series. The next report was that the infielder was being placed on the disabled list with an injured shoulder.

The commissioner told Finley that Andrews could not be placed on the disabled list.

In a New York news conference, Andrews said Finley had "lied" about his injury.

METS OBJECT

The lighting incident also occurred in the second game. With Oakland batting in the bottom of the ninth of a tie game, Finley ordered the lights turned on at the Coliseum. The Mets objected. The lights were turned off, then turned back on at the start of the next inning.

Finley said he had no comeback on this. He was wrong.

The $5,000 fine, the maximum, is double the amount Finley was fined last year when he awarded $5,000 bonuses to outfielder Joe Rudi and catcherfirst baseman Gene Tenace for performances in the second game of the Series against the Cincinnati Reds. He was hit with a $2,500 fine.

Baseball law forbids incentive payments during the World Series.

Davidson leaves WHA for football

CHICAGO (AP) — Gary Davidson, the pied piper of new pro sports ventures, Monday resigned from presidency of the World Hockey Association to concentrate on his projected World Football League.

The debonair 39-year-old promotional whiz tendered his resignation as the WHA opened a two-day meeting, saying: "It would be impossible to combine both jobs."

Davidson is president of the new football league planned for 1974 in opposition to the National Football League, just as he founded the American Basketball Association and World Hockey Association as rivals to long-established pro circuits in those sports.

A WHA successor will be named within two months, with Davidson leaving his resignation open-ended until the selection is made by a screening committee headed by owner Nick Mileti of Cleveland Crusaders.

WAS NO PRESSURE

Davidson denied his departure was forced by some WHA owners unhappy by his dual role.

"It was my idea to resign," he said. "I had planned to resign at the end of my contract in May, but with my full involvement in the World Football League and the desire to help select the new president, I asked my resignation be accepted as soon as possible."

It would be "awkward" to list any top candidates at this time, Davidson said, indicating he still is running the WHA show by announcing an executive committee revision and appointing the four-man screening committee.

Bill Hunter of Edmonton Oilers and Howard Baldwin of New England Whalers were added to increase to six members the executive committee, with Jordan Kaiser of Chicago Cougars named chairman.

Davidson said James Browitt would remain the WHA administrator "with broader authority."

HUNTER IN RUNNING

It earlier was reported that Browitt, Hunter, Baldwin and series umpires.

Finley's troubles started when the National League turned down his request to activate a 25th player to bring the Oakland roster to full strength. Finley proceeded to tell the fans about it at the opening game, and the fans booed loudly.

Kuhn said he announced embarrassed New York Mets.

In the second game, Mike Andrews, a reserve Oakland infielder, made two errors that let in three runs, costing the Athletics the 12-inning game.

Andrews was left off the team plane, which flew to New York for resumption of the series. The next report was that the infielder was being placed on the disabled list with an injured shoulder.

The commissioner told Finley that Andrews could not be placed on the disabled list.

In a New York news conference, Andrews said Finley had "lied" about his injury.

The lighting incident also occurred in the second game. With Oakland batting in the bottom of the ninth of a tie game, Finley ordered the lights turned on at the Coliseum. The Mets objected. The lights were turned off, then turned back on at the start of the next inning.

Finley said he had no comeback on this. He was wrong.

The $5,000 fine, the maximum, is double the amount Finley was fined last year when he awarded $5,000 bonuses to outfielder Joe Rudi and catcherfirst baseman Gene Tenace for performances in the second game of the Series against the Cincinnati Reds. He was hit with a $2,500 fine.

Baseball law forbids incentive payments during the World Series.

Weaver top AL boss

NEW YORK (AP) — Earl Weaver, who remodeled Baltimore Orioles from a slow, slugging team into a fast, opportunistic club that recaptured the 1973 American League East Division pennant, was chosen today as AL manager of the year.
