Group to support city candidates if any good ones

By PAUL WATERS
(Record staff reporter)

Sherbrooke's Civic Action League will support candidates at all posts in the October municipal elections if at all possible, president Dr. Zephirin Cote promised last night.

Speaking at a public meeting in the gymnasium of the St. Francis School, Dr. Cote said: "We are looking for superior men, men who will respond to the needs of the population and the city."

If these men can't be found, Dr. Cote said, the Civic Action League will stay at home and support no one.

However he told an audience of about 75 people that the League already has some names in mind and will try to get these men to run.

Applause, sustained and unanimous, greeted the statements.

Canadian gives park

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is receiving its most favorable publicity in years in Japan.

It's all because Herbert O. Moran, Canadian ambassador in Tokyo, likes baseball.

At least three Japanese daily newspapers report that Mr. Moran, appalled at the number of children who have to play in Tokyo streets for lack of playgrounds, ordered a parking area in the Canadian embassy compound converted into a baseball diamond for small children.

The compound lot now is known as "Embassy Stadium" and is the home grounds of the Akasaka Fighters, coached by Masaki Yuasa, 36, an embassy employee. They play visiting teams on Saturdays and Sundays.

"The baseball lot stays, no matter how many drivers find it difficult to park," says Mr. Moran, former chief of Canada's external aid program.

Top Mountie

OTTAWA (CP)—A senior RCMP officer who is less than two years from retirement has been appointed commissioner of the 7,700-man federal police force.

Malcolm F. Lindsay, who, at 59, is the same age as outgoing Commissioner George B. McClellan, will take over the $24,680-a-year post Aug. 15.

Though he will be only the 13th commissioner in the 94-year history of the RCMP, he will be the fourth since 1959.

Riot explodes

NEWARK, N.J.—(AP)—State police and national guard troops were called out today to stop a riot that exploded from one Negro slum district to every area of New Jersey's largest city.

"I am determined to restore law and order to every street in Newark," said Mayor Hugh Addonizio.

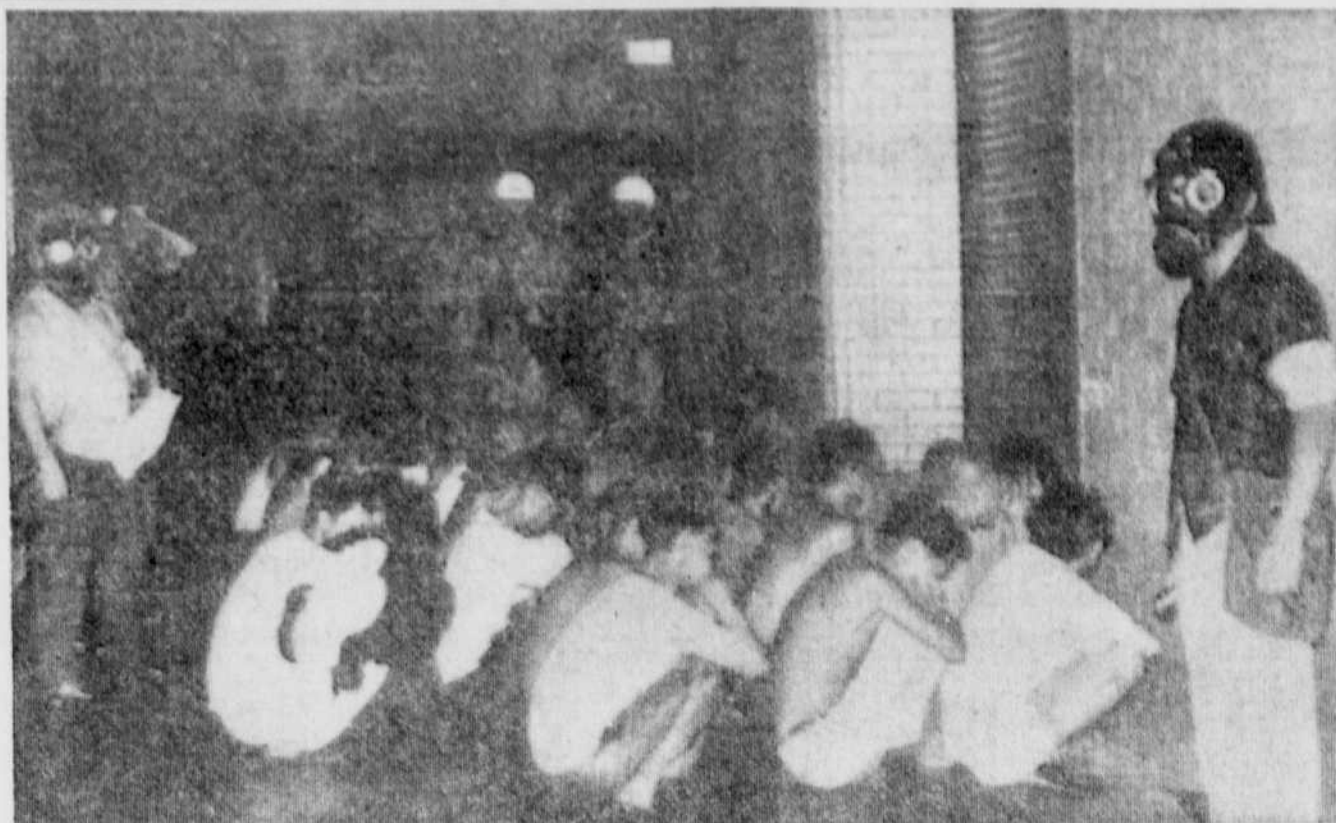

Attorney General Arthur J. Sills ordered 300 state policemen to Newark. Maj. Gen. James Cantwell called out the national guard but he did not say how many troops were involved.

OTTAWA (CP)—The wildlife boat is getting a severe rocking from the snowmobile explosion.

Delegates at the federal-provincial wildlife conference Thursday gave the motorized toboggans both praise and blame for their effect on hunting.

On the debit side was the use of snowmobiles to run animals until they drop from fatigue, their effect on species that might be headed toward extinction and the probability that they will be the death of some people who head into wilderness areas without proper preparation.

Hong Kong union 'arsenal' raided; two Chinese killed battling police

HONG KONG (CP)—Hong Kong police killed two Chinese today as they battled suspected Communist terrorists in a raid on a union headquarters stocked with explosives and incendiaries.

Arsonists also harassed authorities early today, setting two simultaneous fires in a Hong Kong telephone exchange.

Police raiding the union hall opened fire when pro-Peking Chinese in the building hurled acid, fire bombs and broken bottles at them. Two other suspects were severely wounded and a score received lesser injuries.

Police arrested 81 persons in the raid in which they were assisted by British troops.

Several policemen were burned by acid.

USE TEAR GAS

Police flushed out Chinese from the four-storey building with tear gas and wooden projectiles fired from special guns.

As the police advanced on the building, the Chinese rained bottles, dynamite and acid down on them. The Chinese finally barricaded themselves in a room behind iron grilles and sang The East is Red, the Communist Chinese song.

Police opened fire on the union headquarters after shelling it with tear gas.

A company of British regular troops moved in before dawn to reinforce police for the second time during the current trouble in the colony. They cordoned off buildings with rolls of barbed wire.

Police battled through slippery rivers of oil and water as they combed the union headquarters and were squirted with acid when they battered down the door of the barricaded room.

Shells swapped at Suez today in new fighting

(From Reuters-AP)

Egyptian and Israeli forces shelled each other across the Suez Canal again today in what some reports termed the most serious flare-up of fighting since the Middle East ceasefire five weeks ago.

The Egyptians say they destroyed an Israeli launch and a number of rubber boats in the waterway.

The Israeli Army reported that sporadic attacks by Egyptian artillery, mortars, tank and machine-guns began at sunset Thursday all along the canal.

The Israelis said they knocked out three Egyptian tanks while suffering several troop casualties.

An Egyptian communiqué said the Israelis fired first near Al Qantara with artillery and machine-guns. The communiqué claimed return Egyptian fire destroyed an Israeli tank.

UNDER HEAVY FIRE

Reports from El Qantara said the flare-up was one of the most serious since the ceasefire left Arab and Israeli troops facing each other across the canal at the end of their six-day war.

QLB land deal legal but public is loser

QUEBEC (CP)—A royal commission into a $2,122,351 land purchase by the Quebec Liquor Board reported Thursday that the public interest was not safeguarded in the transaction, but the commission found nothing illegal in the purchase.

The commission report, by Mr. Justice Arthur Smith of Quebec Superior Court, did not disclose the identity of land speculators who, said the judge, made "a prodigious profit," of more than $500,000.

The report, arising from a liquor board land deal in the Montreal suburb of LaSalle and also referring to a similar transaction in Ville d'Anjou, was tabled in the legislative assembly without comment by Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec.

Mr. Justice Smith, a one-man commission, found shocking what he described as "uncontrolled speculation" in land, the selling price of which was increased by more than 100 per cent in a matter of days by a juggling of options.

He identified the real seller of the LaSalle property as Canagro (Bermuda) Ltd., but was unable to determine the corporation's principals because of Bermuda laws which exempt firms from disclosing information as to identity of shareholders.

They Found Riches In The Rocks

(Twelfth Of A Series)

By WALT McDAYTER

Jacques Cartier could accurately be called Canada's first prospector.

When he and his French explorers sailed into the St. Lawrence in 1534, their eyes glowed at the sight of Indians bedecked in copper jewelry. Eagerly, they sought the source of this valuable metal, but search though they did, they never found the fabled Indian mines.

However, in 1541 Cartier did find a vein of glittering gold metal, and a source of sparkling diamond-like gems. Excitedly, he loaded barrels and barrels of these nuggets and jewels onto his ship, and sailed them across the Atlantic to France. To Cartier's embarrassment, in France he was told that his barrels contained neither gold nor diamonds, but worthless boulders.

The gold was in Canada, all right, but the explorers just hadn't looked in the right places. In 1858, some prospectors probing the mountains of British Columbia were more lucky. On the sandbars of the Fraser river, there for the taking was . . . gold! The cry echoed across the continent, and one of the biggest gold rushes in history was the result. In 1896 George Carmack's discovery of giant nuggets on the Klondike sparked a similar rush, in the Yukon.

Almost as precious as gold is "black gold"—oil. In the same year that gold was found on the Fraser, the first oil well in North America was drilled, at Lambton County, in Ontario. It was at Turner Valley, Alberta that petroleum gushed in 1914, but the discovery that made Alberta the oil capital of Canada occurred at Leduc in 1947, bringing unparalleled prosperity to the province.

The Canadian Shield, a Precambrian rock formation covering almost 2 million square miles and stretching from Labrador to the prairies, is rich in almost every metal known to man. But the first major development in this area came about by accident. In 1833 laborers digging for the CPR at present Sudbury, in northern Ontario, chanced upon nickel and copper ore.

The rush was on! Prospectors flooded into the north. A large silver lode was discovered at Cobalt, followed by many other mineral finds, at Porcupine, Kirkland Lake, and extending into Quebec, to Rouyn.

Men became millionaires overnight, such as shopkeepers Noah and Henry Timmins. They gave up their little store at Mattawa, Ont., and before they were through these brothers would control the La Rose and the Hollinger mine, the second largest gold mine in the world!

Post-Expo job stampede prepared for MONTREAL (CP)—Expo 67 is working to avert a possible stampede to the unemployment lines by the fair corporation's thousands of employees when Expo ends Oct. 29.

"Phasing out" is the official term at Expo for the gradual dismissal of the men and women who built the fair and now run it.

But only about 200 employees were dismissed in the first two months of operations, a fair spokesman said Thursday. The stampede, if there is one, would come within 48 hours of closing day.

In that period, about 8,000 employees of the Expo corporation, plus 8,000 others who work for the various concessionaires and pavilion operators at the fair, will lose their jobs. Some of them have been working for Expo since 1963.

RELOCATION POINT The Canadian Corporation for the 1967 World Exhibition has set up a job relocation bureau for its people and has written hundreds of private companies, trade associations and professional groups, advertising itself as a vast and diversified labor pool.

Thursday, the fair celebrated Iceland's national day.

A 1,400-pound statue of Paavo Nurmi, a famous Finnish Olympic runner, was restored to its pedestal Thursday afternoon after having been toppled, apparently by vandals, early Wednesday.

About 4,000 of the Expo corporation's employees are high school and college students who perform most of the non-skilled jobs. The majority of these are due to resume their studies in the fall.

Some Expo employees say the job-hunting situation is complicated by the fact that their salaries are slightly higher than those paid by private industry.

Some employees who brought their talents to the fair from across Canada are settled in Montreal with their families and would not be willing to move elsewhere to work.

If they are willing to move, the Canada manpower service, working in co-operation with Expo's relocation bureau, is empowered to provide travel expenses for employees who have definite prospects of getting another job outside Montreal.

Moon prospector CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—Surveyor IV rocketed moonward today to hunt for iron with a magnet, shovel and revolving camera eye in a study of how the moon's craters are formed.

The robot prospector blasted off at 7:53 a.m. EDT aboard an Atlas-Centaur rocket, aiming to softly land Sunday on rough Sinus Medii, the central bay region.

In the undersea coal mines of Cape Breton, N.S., coal trains are often equipped with two-way radio phones to assure constant communications with the surface.

A former Magog boy, Lance Corporal Shane M. Those who observe the 30 mph limit on Highway 5 going through Massawippi are going slow enough to observe a picturesque sight... gay flowerboxes adorn the old highway bridge just before the turn-off to Ayer's Cliff (back road) ... St. Michael's Cathedral bells began to ring the other day as we were chatting on the phone to Toronto. "My goodness" (or words to that effect), said the phone, "what's that?" ... the bells could be heard in Toronto. Both the conductor and brakeman on the CNR passenger train that killed two boys three miles east of Acton Vale last Tuesday, were also on the train that killed a woman at South Durham some time ago.

A new series of Expo 67 postcards are being sold in Montreal at the Expo site in some kiosks at five cents each, in others, at seven cents each. But no one in Montreal seems to have reached the point of inflation that a Sherbrooke restaurant owner has. He sells the same cards for 10 cents for one, or three for a quarter. Says he of the merchants in Montreal who are selling the cards at lower prices. "Wait till they get the invoices!" Positive Sherbrooke hospitality... one day last week when an exchange student from Manitoba was shopping with his guest in Place Belvedere, a sales girl began talking to him in French. When she realized that he couldn't speak French and that he was an exchange student (his badge thus identified him), she spoke in English, and finished by saying she hoped that he would enjoy his stay here. To the dismay of all local girl-watchers, a new fashion trend seems to be creeping into the previously undisturbed world of miniskirts. They're selling shorts along with the ultra-minis and the fashion seems to be catching on. Oh, well, things had to stop somewhere, but the view will never be the same. The centennial committee of the Eastern Townships Tourist Council demonstrated last Tuesday that if there's a hard way to do something, they'll find it. They set up the finish line of the sixth lap of the 1st annual Tour de la Nouvelle France cycle race at the corner of Queen and Dominion Streets, one of the busiest intersections in the city. Motorcycles, transport trucks, and an army of motorists crossed the finish line along with the exhausted cyclists. Only the patient efforts of Sherbrooke's Finest kept the event from turning into a confusing debacle.

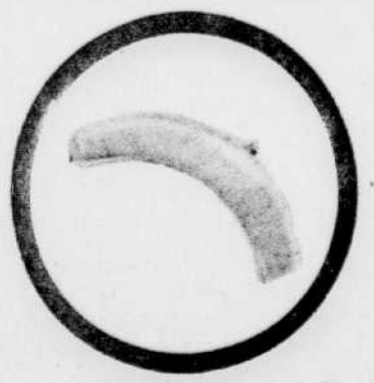

Highlight of the reception held by the Eastern Townships Agricultural Association on Wednesday to announce plans for this year's Sherbrooke Fair was a buffet supper featuring oodles and oodles of boiled lobster in the shell. ETAA officials advise that any exhibitors for the Sherbrooke Fair who have not yet received a copy of the prize list can order one by mail from the ETAA office at the Sherbrooke arena, or by telephoning 562-7585 in Sherbrooke. Whoops... those female bank employees at Rock Island with centennial two-piece dresses are at the Royal Bank branch and not the Bank of Commerce as reported here on Monday... but the girls at the Commerce look smart, too... thanks to J. Battalion, W.W. 1, Association, will hold their Annual Reunion in the Sergeant's Mess, on Saturday August 12, Hussars Armoury, William Street. A bridge will be constructed over the Hall River in Compton County joining the two sections of Highway 27. Say ET area must modernize and diversify Modernization and diversification were spotlighted last night as the two major tools to revitalize the Sherbrooke region's economy and to turn the Eastern Townships into a highly productive and efficient area.

At a special public meeting of Sherbrooke's Civic Action League, guest speaker Charles Gagne, secretary of the Eastern Townships Economic Council, pictured the Sherbrooke region as a sort of never-never land between the badly underdeveloped Gaspé and the dynamic growth of the Montreal area.

The provincial government, he said, tends to forget Sherbrooke, concentrating on these two main areas. The attitude is, he continued, that the region is prosperous and needs no help.

A poorly distributed population, a lack of diversification in mining and pulp and paper areas, and unmodernized farming were cited as the region's chief economic ills.

The population of the region, is concentrated too thickly in some areas and is too thinly spread in others. Mr. Gagne called for a re-constructing of the area somewhat along the lines of the Lower St. Lawrence Gaspé area which proposes to group the different localities around 24 major towns.

The chief obstacle to such a plan is the spirit of independence that exists in the separate localities. However, he said, people must cease to think of economic development in terms of localities and concentrate on regional development. The towns of the area, he said, should create a dialogue and cooperate for the economic good of the total interdependent region.

Dealing with the problems that affect each of the ET's major industries, Mr. Gagne said that traditionalism has held back agriculture and farmers must modernize their methods, their labor, their establishment.

On the forestry industry, Mr. Gagne said that the maior problem was a depletion of forest reserves and the competition from the vast forest reserves in Northern Quebec.

Domtar, he continued, has already opened a plant in Northern Quebec and although this doesn't mean at all that the company plans to abandon its ET operation, it shows that it is looking towards the north.

A common problem that faces textile, forestry, and mining, he said, is the lack of diversification. It is up to the region's population to attract new industries to places like Magog and Asbestos which depend too completely on one industry.

In the past, he went on, one of the region's major drawing cards for industry was an abundance of unskilled workers. Now the situation is changed and industry is attracted by highly skilled and well-trained workers.

New training programs are needed to provide the kind of skilled manpower which attracts industrialists, Mr. Gagne said.

The problems facing the textile industry are labor ones, the economist continued and they should be settled once and for all.

The situation is not a political football, he told the audience, but a problem facing the whole area.

Speaking on the creation of new industries, Mr. Gagne said that one of the most apparent was the tourist industry and he called for the exploitation of the ET's tremendous tourist resources.

Most of the ET's lakes, he said, are owned by private clubs like the Lake Brompton Lake. The lakes, he pointed out, are a natural resource and should be developed for the benefit of the whole population.

This does not mean the nationalization of lakes like Lake Brompton, Mr. Gagne continued, but means a greater exploitation of the ET's potential and the development of recreation areas like Mount Orford.

Economic development, Mr. Gagne said, depends on the cooperation of the towns in the area to stimulate a climate which will attract new industries.

The region, he continued, tends to think too much in terms of localities rather than regions while industries plan in terms of regions.

Mr. Gagne called on all public leaders to create a dialogue with the leaders of other towns in an effort to solve their common problems.

He called on Sherbrooke's two universities to not only provide education for the region's youth but to become involved in local economic problems and research for solutions.

Families waiting in North Hatley for arrival of canoeists at Expo

NORTH HATLEY — With a lusty cheer from 3,000 well wishers, four hearty Canadian "voyageurs" last April headed their 20-foot canoe into the Fraser River and towards the treacherous rapids and fast flowing rivers of British Columbia.

Beyond British Columbia, they would still have to test their skill and stamina against the many hazards awaiting them before they reached Expo 67 in Montreal.

These four men had just begun the first leg of a 4,500 mile centennial cross-country voyage from New Westminster, British Columbia to Montreal, that would retrace the route of Simon Fraser and the glamorous course de bois of early Canadian history.

Twelve main river systems, seven large lakes, 350 miles of bone weary walking, 160 portages, and 80 miles of skiing still lay before them.

The men are Ralph Brine, 43, father of five children, Donald MacNaughton, 39, father of three children and Dr. David Chisholm, 28, all of New Westminster, British Columbia and Jim Reid, 22, of Vancouver, British Columbia.

Backing up these centennial year canoeists in a support party to Mr. and Mrs. Edo CANOEISTS' FAMILIES — Ralph Brine, 43, and Donald MacNaughton, 39, both of New Westminster, British Columbia, embarked on a centennial cross-country canoe trip from New Westminster last April 1, with the hope of reaching Montreal this Saturday which is British Columbia day at Expo 67. Above, relatives and friends of the two men await their arrival at the North Hatley cottage of Mr. and Mrs. Randy Knapp. Front row left to right are: Mrs. Ralph Brine, Mrs. Donald MacNaughton, Miss Helen MacNaughton, Janet Brine, and Heather MacNaughton. Although the canoe was powered by a 20-horsepower outboard engine, it soon became apparent that their voyage was the farthest thing from a walk.

When the four men in their fire-engine-red canoe with the coat of arms of British Columbia and New Westminster emblazoned on either side reached Hell's Gate a very narrow section of roaring water, they couldn't possibly navigate the water and had to portage.

"Hell's Gate is probably the roughest stretch of water on the Fraser River and it certainly lives up to its name," Mrs. MacNaughton said.

But this was only the beginning. After a rather uneventful and refreshing celebration of crossing the Great Divide by dunking their heads in the waters of the Columbia River, the men soon found themselves headed for

Impaired driving is denied; Court's decision comes today

Sherbrooke Court of Sessions Judge Benoit Turmel is scheduled to deliver today judgment on Alexandre Paradis of St. Patrice Street in Magog who pleaded not guilty to a charge of impaired driving yesterday.

The postponement of a decision followed two hours of testimony by both defence and prosecution witnesses.

The charge against Paradis stated that he had driven his car while his faculties were impaired by alcohol and that he had driven into a car owned by Yvette Richard of Sherbrooke which was parked on St. Catherine Street causing $300 damage. The offence was alleged to have happened on July 3.

Defence Lawyer Louis Denis Bouchard rested his case on the testimony of Dr. Louis Philippe Pelouquin who told the Court that Paradis was taking tranquilizers for a nervous condition.

The tranquilizers, Dr. Pelouquin said, were non-drug types called valium. Although not drugs, the doctor continued, the tranquilizers did intensify the effects of alcohol.

On the stand Paradis told the Court that he had drunk only two six-ounce glasses of white Canadian wine. He admitted that the wine was quite strong but not nearly as strong as hard liquor.

Robert Lefebvre, a bartender, testified that Paradis had had two glasses of wine that afternoon and that when he left he appeared perfectly normal.

On this testimony, Mr. Bouchard built his case of "involuntary intoxication". Quoting from a case in 1966 where the accused was acquitted of a charge of impaired driving after he had drunk a small beer and a glass of gin after taking tranquilizers, Mr. Bouchard said it was not Paradis' fault that he seemed drunk.

Crown Prosecutor Andre

Langlais called two Magog policemen to the stand, Michel Lessard and Roch St. Jacques. The two policemen testified that they had been called to the accident and that at the time Paradis had seemed drunk and that his breath smelt strongly of liquor.

He also called two garage men who testified that Paradis had stopped for a minor repair to the exhaust pipe of his car on the afternoon of July 3.

Both men, Robert Cote and Laurent Beaudoin told the Court that Paradis had not acted normally. They said that he had not appeared well enough to drive.

Mr. Langlais said that if the tranquilizer that Paradis had taken was a drug when the offence included having the faculties impaired by drugs. If not he added, there was still the alcohol.

Yvan Tellier, 18, of Windsor was given a suspended sentence after he pleaded guilty to a charge of car theft.

Defence Lawyer Jacques Page appealed to the Court to be lenient. He said that the accused had taken a car belonging to Clement Bachand and had been involved in

St. Francis Cubs camp at Spooner Pond

RICHMOND — Cubs from the St. Francis district held a week's camp, recently, at the site on Spooner Pond, near Richmond. Some 200 boys and leaders registered from packs in Sorel, Drummondville, Windsor, Asbestos, Danville and Richmond.

With twenty-four tents pitched on the grounds the groups had an eventful week of fun and training.

On closing day, the cubs of the First Richmond Pack were presented with the Jim Leckie Memorial Trophy, for having attained the most points in the camp outing. Second placing was taken by Drummondville with Asbestos third.

Some 160 individual badges were also presented to the boys from all packs. Pennants from the "best kept tents" went to Richmond, tents number 15 and 14, taking first and third place, respectively. Danville tent number three took second place honors.

Six boys received their "Silver Stage" Swimmer Badges which is the first time that such an accomplishment has been achieved at the camp. These were: Gaetan Lemoine, Drummondville; A. Zimmermann, Sorel; Yves Fontaine, Sorel; Keith Hamilton, Sorel; Paul Beaubien, Richmond; Denis Beaubien, Richmond.

Bob Arseneau of Drummondville was appointed Camp Chief while Leroy Lyster of Richmond was Assistant District Commissioner of the St. Francis Valley District, assisted in the efficient operation of the camp along with individual leaders from the various packs.

During the course of the outing, a Centennial Dedication ceremony was held, officiated by Rev. R. A. Cameron and Rev. L. G. Westman.

The bell, which is located near the camp dining hall, and came from the first parish church in Richmond, was dedicated to the late Rev. Hugh I. Apps, a former padre of the Boy Scout movement.

The chapel was dedicated to the memory of James "Jim" Leckie, a past District Cub Commissioner who dedicated many years of service to the district.

The fire-place, in the camp building, was dedicated to Olaf Bogstead, a past District Commissioner and Scout, and Ian Hole, Stuart Griffin and Rene Lapierre, who were all very active in Scout work during their life-time.

2 insurance offices robbed

The Crown Life Insurance Company and the North American Life Insurance Company, both located in the Morin Building, 2727 King Street West were robbed overnight.

Approximately $700 was stolen from the Crown Life Insurance Company, according to Robert Belanger, Branch Secretary.

Hugue Morin, owner of the building, said the North American Life Insurance Company was robbed of about $112. Insurance company employees refused to confirm this amount.

Mr. Morin said the theft was discovered when the police made a routine check at 6:30 a.m. He said the thief apparently broke through the back door of the building.

When the police arrived they found burglary tools near the safe.

Quebec is not ready for medicare

It is apparent in the report of the Royal Commission on Health tabled in the Quebec legislature this week that the training of doctors in the province — and particularly French-language doctors — is in a sorry state.

The report describes the post-university training of interns and doctors as "primitive" and recommends radical revision of both the facilities and the techniques of medical education in the province.

It notes, for example, that there is not a single proper French-language teaching hospital in existence in the province, and says of Montreal's McGill University that its affiliation with the Royal Victoria hospital only "comes close" to providing a true teaching hospital for English-language doctors.

It is true, as the report notes, that a hospital now being prepared at the University of Sherbrooke Medical Centre on the Stoke Road will provide the kind of teaching facilities necessary to the training of 20th Century doctors. Meanwhile, the report says, Quebec is 50 years behind the times in its medical training program.

The situation is something that will need decisive improvement as soon as possible. But the report itself has an important bearing on other health developments that have already begun in this province, notably in the field of government hospital insurance.

It has for some time been obvious that in this province, indeed, throughout Canada, one of the chief obstacles to any further extension of government activity in the medical care field at this time is the shortage of both medical care facilities and qualified doctors.

In Quebec, it now appears obvious from the commission report that the situation is even more serious than has been generally believed. From the standpoint of medical personnel alone, it is clear that by any practical standard Quebec is not ready for medicare, socialized medicine, or whatever you want to call a more or less completely government-operated health service.

This in spite of the fact that both the federal and provincial governments have announced their intentions of initiating steps towards a medicare program within the next few years.

However politically desirable this may be, by any other realistic appraisal it would be economic irresponsibility to proceed further in this field in Quebec until such time as the teaching and training situation has been vastly improved.

When the worst comes to the worst, make the best of it.

Using the teeth in Expo regulations

It is encouraging to see that the provincial government and the courts between them are at last showing evidence that they mean business in controlling the victimization of out-of-town visitors to Expo 67.

In Montreal on Wednesday, a South Shore motel operator was fined the maximum of $1000 for overcharging a New York couple who came here in May to visit Expo.

According to evidence filed, a two-day stay at the motel cost the man and his wife $64.50.

The court proceedings which were conducted by a specially appointed Justice of the Peace are authorized by the Lodging Price Control Act passed specifically for Expo accommodation control.

There can be no doubt that the severity of the fine is designed to serve as an example to all in the accommodation rental business. In effect, it means what those connected with Expo have been saying since the fair was first conceived; that the event must not be allowed to become an occasion for fleecing visitors.

Virtually the only way to do this is to crack down — hard — on all convicted violators of any of the laws regarding Expo business. In the short time available, it is the only way to ensure that Expo does not become for some visitors to the province a bitter memory.

All states limit a woman's working hours except the state of matrimony.

Other papers say:

Roblin is a good PC candidate

There is increasing interest, not only in Manitoba but all across Canada, in the prospect that Premier Duff Roblin will seek the Progressive Conservative party leadership at the September convention.

Many advocates of Mr. Roblin's candidacy see him as a potential unifying influence in the national party, a "bridge" between the sharply divided eastern and western PC wings.

Unquestionably he would have strong western support if he allowed his name to go before the convention. The bilingual premier has also made a good impression in his speaking appearances in Ontario and Quebec. He has held himself aloof from the bitter internal rivalries which have beset the federal party and split it into factions. And as nothing succeeds like success, Mr. Roblin's record in political life is bound to have appeal for Conservatives in all provinces.

Saint John Telegraph-Journal

Of the six leadership candidates already in the contest, former Finance Minister Donald Fleming appears to have the edge at the moment. His entry has enlivened the competition. But as this newspaper noted at the time Mr. Fleming announced his candidacy, he has the possible disadvantage of being, in the critical public view, one of the time-worn Tory Old Guard. He does not possess the magnetism that surrounds some of the newer PC personalities who have been making names for themselves.

Will Premier Roblin throw his hat in the ring? Well known Canadian news commentator Charles L. Yach thinks so. And The Winnipeg Tribune, in an editorial feels it is important that Mr. Roblin announce his availability.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The first Olympic Games were held by the ancient city-states of Greece in 776 B.C., says The World Almanac. They were continued every four years until A.D. 394 when they were banned by the Roman emperor Theodosius. The modern Olympic Games were started by Baron de Coubertin in 1896. He succeeded in persuading nine nations to send athletes to Athens for the first meet.

VOICE from the Graveyard

French Canada says:

The bench as a political gift may be real Landreville issue

Montreal Le Devoir — The federal government is obviously embarrassed over the case of Leo Landreville. Should it or shouldn't it award him a pension for the rest of his days?

This embarrassment is easy to understand. Mr. Landreville is the Ontario Supreme Court justice whom a royal commission and a joint committee of the two Houses of Parliament considered unsuited to fill such a post because of a situation involving conflict of interest before he was appointed to the bench.

A motion to remove him from the bench was even prepared and there seems no doubt it would have passed. The justice thwarted this manoeuvre by submitting his resignation.

We are not familiar with the terms of the law involving judges. However, if the law provides that a justice removed from his post has no right to a pension, steps should be taken to apply this clause to the Ontario justice.

Mr. Justice Landreville cited his health among other things in submitting his resignation. We really want to believe these explanations but it appears to us... he clearly wanted to escape, through his resignation, the judgment of Parliament.

That is why, for all practical purposes, there is justification in considering his case as one of removal. Nevertheless, as doubts can persist on the suitability of such severity, the government should submit the whole question to Parliament. It is up to the latter to assume the responsibility of a final decision.

It would perhaps be interesting to go a little deeper into the problem and ask ourselves whether our present system of appointing judges is not the principal factor at issue in the drama being played around Mr. Justice Landreville.

Over all, the Canadian bench is of high quality. It probably compares favorably with that of any country. But the image of the judge in Canada has always suffered. People cannot forget that appointment to the bench is a sort of political gift.

The case of Mr. Justice Landreville should be the occasion to remove politics from our system of appointment. The government should agree to limit its choice to a list of candidates prepared and approved either by the bar or by a special council of judges, preferably by a council of judges since it would necessarily be made up of men who would not themselves be eligible as candidates.

— Vincent Prince, (July 11)

Quebec Le Soleil — One of the principal stands taken by the NDP during its congress at Toronto concerns particular status for Quebec. This plan is ambiguous and poorly defined and it remained so in convention resolutions which advocate the recognition of Quebec's right to a particular status.

It is not surprising that the formula tempts a party like the NDP. The CCF-NDP has been and remains the most centralizing of the federal political parties.

Special status, giving more powers to Quebec on the one hand while centralizing to a greater extent the powers of the other provinces on the other hand, opens for the NDP smiling perspectives which agree with the party's philosophy.

But one must wonder, if the provinces agreed to this pronounced centralization, whether the divergent paths taken by Quebec and become now does to English-speaking persons. That's an encouraging idea and one does not have the right to doubt its sincerity.

If the NDP had all the popularity its members currently claim for it, one could not be blamed for thinking that it could soon become the opposition party or even assume power at Ottawa.

This party is serious, it does not lack ideas or worthy men. It is called to play a useful role in politics and it cannot be underestimated. — (July 10)

Granby La Voix de l'Est — The Canadian government will not officially participate in the constitutional conference called by Premier Robert of Ontario at Toronto. In Mr. Pearson's opinion it is an "interprovincial affair" and the federal government is not at all obliged to participate in it. It will delegate observers, but these will be high civil servants.

Certainly it is displeasing to the prime minister of Canada to see Mr. Roberts take the initiative in this field but, under the circumstances, nothing justifies his so formal opposition to the participation of his government in a conference on the future of Confederation.

Mr. Pearson should agree to attend, just as the premiers of the provinces accepted his invitation to the federal-provincial conference next year.

Roland Gagne, (July 10)

Editorial viewpoints from the French-language press, prepared by The Canadian Press.

the other provinces would not lead to division of the country. Moreover, it is certain that the other provinces would agree to this increased centralization.

These sessions, viewed from French Canada, permit us to ascertain that the NDP, aside from its positions on the special status, is one of most open federal parties with regard to French Canada.

It asks, for example, that other provinces accord the same treatment to French-speaking minorities that Quebec now does to English-speaking persons. That's an encouraging idea and one does not have the right to doubt its sincerity.

It is not surprising that the formula tempts a party like the NDP. The CCF-NDP has been and remains the most

A Thetford Mines girl, Marie Poiré, tied with a Montrealer, Ethel Fohey, for the top place in the English Catholic High School leaving examinations commerce section, it has been announced by J. S. Desaulniers, superintendent of education. They received 93.1 per cent each.

The results in the various Eastern Townships schools were:

St. Theresa's High School, Drummondville: R. Bailey, 11; D. Rutherford, 11.

Our Lady of the Snow, Stanhope: M. Bellefeuille, 11; C. Berard, 1; C. Christmas, 11; L. Couture, 11; A. Masse, 1.

Our Lady of Mercy High School, Stanstead: D. Daigneault, 11.

St. Patrick's High School, Thetford Mines: P. Foy, 1; M. Poiré, 1.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

The extreme shortage of graduate nurses and nurses in training is shown by the fact that the Sherbrooke Hospital has been forced to close the third floor during the summer months. The administrator of the Sherbrooke Hospital, H. C. Allnutt, reporting on this condition, stated that the serious situation of nursing shortage could be faced in no other way during the summer when all staff nurses and nurses-in-training must be given their annual vacation. While the nursing staff was thus reduced, it was impossible to secure replacements and the third floor had been closed several weeks ago.

It is expected that the floor will be reopened in September, when the holiday season is over.

Mr. Allnutt pointed out that the shortage of nurses was prevalent throughout Canada. Several of the Montreal hospitals have been forced to reduce drastically their bed capacity this summer.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

The next annual meeting of the Stanstead Historical Society will be held at the Red Brick Schoolhouse, Stanstead, at two o'clock on the afternoon of Saturday, August 16.

Senator Norman Plant Lambert has consented to read a monograph on Ebenezer Peck who was elected in November, 1828 to represent Stanstead County in the Legislature by the Constitutional Act of 1791.

Harold Baldwin will read a paper on his late father, Willis K. Baldwin, member for Stanstead from 1917-1930.

Mrs. Maude G. Pellerin, of Hatley, knows the history of Charleston Academy, one of the earliest educational institutions in the country. She will give the meeting the benefit of her research study.

T. L. Gumbly will read the names of the members of pioneer families who have died since the last annual meeting.

Mrs. Wilfred Poapst will read a chronicle of outstanding events for the past year.

Israeli party leader

His plan: prosperous peace

By VINCENT DEVITT

TORONTO — (TNS) — Samuel Tamir is one of those constructive young Israeli politicians who wants to see Israel hold onto territorial gains so that the entire Mid-East may benefit.

A 44-year-old lawyer, he is the leader of the Free Centre Party in the Israeli Parliament.

He is visiting Toronto, New York and Washington to sound out opinions on the recent Arab-Israeli conflict and build support for his own party.

A blond, handsome, chunky man, he leads a party oriented to the West and free enterprise, that is increasingly upset with the way the old guard in power handles things.

Mr. Tamir wants the Arabs and the Jews to settle differences together at the conference table without interference from the major powers.

Essential to any agreement, he insists, is that Israel hold on to lands won in war.

"We are now 100 kilometers from Cairo, 70 kilometers from Damascus, and 50 from Amman. This will restrain the Arab leaders from aggression more than all the United Nations resolutions put together," he said.

"If Israel maintains this territory then the Middle East and the entire world will be closer to peace," he said.

Mr. Tamir is slightly puzzled at the sudden shift of world opinion from the justice of the Israeli cause to the side of the Arabs.

He said people appear to be losing sight of the two main issues in the conflict: the declared aims of the Arabs to exterminate the Jews and the Soviet intrigue for power in the Mid-East.

"People are forgetting what could have happened if Israel had lost. Most of the population would have been killed and scattered and the entire Mediterranean would have become a bastion of Soviet power. There would have been a global change. We fought for ourselves and the free world," he said.

"When a member nation talks about exterminating another member nation, then that nation should be expelled," he said.

"The Arabs lost a war of aggression and now they will have to pay the price."

He would like to see the captured lands become part of the state of Israeli citizens.

Moses went up from the plains of Moab to Mount Nebo, to the top of Pisgah, which is opposite Jericho. And the Lord showed him all the land. (Deuteronomy 34:1, RSV.)

PRAYER: God, our Father, in moments of disappointment and discouragement, help us to be patient and receptive. Teach us to have faith each day and to trust in the promise that all things work together for good to those who love and serve Thee. Fulfill Thy purpose in our lives this day. We pray through Christ, Amen.

RESEARCH FOR MP — Robert Morrow, 20, of Hamilton does research work for political sciences studies at Waterloo Lutheran University. (CP Wirephoto)

Parliament to consider hiring executive assistants for MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament this fall will take a close look at an issue close to every MP's heart—the possibility of hiring research staff or executive assistants for members.

No fewer than three separate private motions for this sort of program have come up so far this year, two from the Conservative side and one from the Liberals.

They've all been referred to the procedures committee, where the movers will have a chance to set out detailed proposals after Parliament resumes Sept. 25.

There does appear to be growing impatience among MPs about the need for more help and better facilities.

SEEK OFFICE HELP
Herb Gray (L—Essex West) has proposed a system under which each member would get one or more administrative assistants and more office space as well.

"It's obviously not satisfactory to have members sitting in the same room as their secretaries as we do now," he says. "Even small-town lawyers and insurance agents don't do that."

At least one MP, Conservative Heward Grafftey, has jumped the gun on the internship plan by keeping a succession of college students busy helping with constituency problems, research and public opinion polls.

His current aide is Robert Morrow, a 20-year-old from Hamilton heading into final-year political science studies at Waterloo Lutheran University.

He gets expenses and "a little bit extra" and so far has worked on everything from research on housing to organizing a political picnic in Mr. Grafftey's Brome-Missisquoi constituency.

Mr. Gray says this idea is fine as far as it goes, but suggests the intern would take about six months to learn the ropes and would leave just when he was becoming useful.

He favors fully trained career assistants, especially for MPs from the bigger constituencies and chairmen of the Commons committees.

Mothers' group meetings in Aberfan are successful

ABERFAN, Wales (CP)—The bereaved mothers of Aberfan have evolved over the months a system of self-defence against their gnawing sorrows.

Community leaders say the "first big lesson" of the Aberfan disaster was that the mothers who lost children could help one another over the aftermath simply by meeting regularly together.

"The meetings started with only a handful attending but have grown to 50 and more now," said Jean Gough, 36, who lost two of her four children, Gillian, 8, and Brian Michael, 9, in the disaster Oct. 21, 1966.

One authority termed the meetings a form of group therapy that the women have worked out for themselves. Each mother finds another whose suffering seems greater than her own.

The Aberfan disaster—in which 144 persons, 116 of them children, were buried alive by a coal-waste avalanche—has provided numerous case histories of extreme grief.

Bereaved persons say that others, no matter how sympathetic and compassionate, cannot plumb the depths of their feelings. This causes uneasiness between the two groups. Only a mother who has lost her child can comprehend the needs of another.

There is no "audience" at the meetings, which are held each Tuesday night. "If we feel like crying, we can have a cry—nobody thinks anything of it," said Mrs. Gough. "If we laugh, we don't feel too guilty."

HELPING OTHERS HELPS
The mothers discuss everything from keep-fit classes to a play group for pre-school children, and it is significant that women who were re-dered childless by the disaster are able to take part in the latter. No longer are there bitter questions about why some children should be spared and not others.

"The meetings are the most wonderful thing that ever happened," said Joyce Eileen Fudge, whose eight-year-old twins Daphne and Diane were in the disaster. Daphne died and Diane was saved, mourning her twin not so much with tears as with small heart-rending moans that might continue for an hour at a time.

Mrs. Fudge can talk of the meetings both as a giver and receiver. She was so busy helping in the beginning, she recalled that "you forget your own problems."

"You hear someone is ill, perhaps bitter, so you arrange for her to do something to help—get her involved, draw her out of herself."

Then came the twins' birthday, a day when the realization of their loss could be expected to bear crushingly on Mrs. Fudge and her husband.

"I suddenly realized the mothers were getting me involved, the same way as I had helped with others. Someone was around me all the day, unobtrusively, not obviously. I was on the receiving end. They didn't give us a second to think."

Some women initially were reluctant to attend the meetings because they are held at the Aberfan Hotel, which has a bar, and they would not ordinarily consider going there without their husbands. The success of the meetings overcame scruples.

The women of Aberfan are said to be less "house proud" than they used to be, and to be looking outward more.

Women who have lived all their lives in the village of 3,000 are suddenly finding new friends whom they had scarcely noticed until now.

"Their homes used to be their worlds," said one life-long inhabitant.

The first issue of the Aberfan-Merthyr Vale Bulletin—the Vale is Aberfan's sister village—carried an item on the meetings.

"Membership is growing," the mimeographed bulletin reports. "Fifty-three attended last week to hear a talk on 'children in families.' Further talks on 'normal problems of children' will be arranged. Also a talk by an Indian woman doctor on the 'changing role of women in India' will be scheduled."

"Other activities have included a demonstration by a beauty consultant. A talk by a fashion expert on clothes for those past the mini-skirt age will be given later."

Grafftey lauds Sutton

SUTTON — (Special) — The municipal council for centennial workers, civic, religious and educational leaders of this Eastern Township town of 2500, together to celebrate Canada's birthday were manifest in communities and towns from coast to coast, Heward Grafftey, federal member for Brome-Missisquoi told a gathering at the Sutton Town Hall, Saturday July 8.

Mr. Grafftey took part in the Centennial parade climaxing a week long Centennial program in which over 800 Sutton citizens representing more than 30 community groups joined.

An estimated 4000 spectators witnessed the parade sponsored by the Sutton's Businessmen Association.

Mrs. Gerard Poulin has returned from Kermis Hospital, St. Albans, where she was taken by ambulance on June 22.

BEDFORD
Mrs. Dorothy Sanpson, Montreal, spent the holiday week-end with her mother, Mrs. William Campbell. The former's son, Billy Sampson, is spending the summer in Bedford with his grandmother.

Mr. Charles Veysey, with his brother, Mr. Ami Veysey, both of Fruitville, B.C., who have been visiting their mother, Mrs. L. Veysey and other relatives in the district for some weeks, left on June 26 by plane from Dorval on their return to their homes.

The death took place in Montreal on June 26, of a former Bedford resident, Mrs. Hattie Funk, Mrs. Funk was for some years a resident of Bedford, living on Elizabeth Street. Due to ill-health she went to live some months ago with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Aiken, in Mansville. The funeral was held on June 29 in Montreal, with interment in Mount Royal Cemetery.

Québec family allowances

In response to many letters received by the Family and Social Welfare Department, this information is published to supplement that given in the folder which you received.

ENTITLEMENT TO QUÉBEC FAMILY ALLOWANCES.

- Québec family allowances are payable for children under sixteen years old as of April 1, 1967, provided they attend school if of school age, unless prevented from doing so by physical or mental disability; children aged sixteen or over are not eligible even if attending school, although they do qualify for schooling allowances until their eighteenth birthday.
- The fact that a child is outside Québec does not cancel the entitlement of mother or father, as the case may be, to an allowance for such child. Thus, an allowance may be payable for a child who lives outside Québec for educational or health reasons.
- It is not necessary to register new-born infants. The Department is automatically informed of births and takes them into immediate account.

PAYMENT OF QUÉBEC FAMILY ALLOWANCES.

- Québec family allowances are payable to the mother or the person taking her place, or to the father or the person taking his place; recipients must have had their domicile in Québec on April 1, 1967.
- Québec family allowances are paid in addition to those from the federal government. Some time after next July 1, if you qualify, you will receive a cheque covering allowances for April and May 1967. Twice yearly thereafter, on December 1 and June 1, you will receive cheques covering six months' allowances. Please note that introduction of the Québec plan has no effect on entitlement to or registration procedures for federal family allowances.
- The amount of Québec family allowances paid to the qualified person is based on the number of eligible children.
- Except for children who are wards of Québec in either foster homes or public charitable institutions, or under the Youth Protection Act, Québec family allowances are added to social assistance and security payments.
- Québec family allowances are not subject to income tax.

FORMS REQUIRED.

- If you receive a second application form, kindly complete and return it, even if you have already filed one. Payment of family allowances depends on your prompt attention to all forms sent you by the Québec Government.
- If you move, be sure to notify the postmaster of your change of address.
- The first Québec family allowance cheques will be mailed in stages beginning in early July. Since this is a large-scale operation, not all families will receive them at the same time.

INFORMATION ABOUT QUÉBEC FAMILY ALLOWANCES.

- Persons who have written to inform the Department that their applications were not made out to their satisfaction may be sure that their case will receive special consideration and that they will not lose any allowances to which they are entitled.
- Those who are still waiting for the English folder they have requested will receive it within a few days.
- Your folder on Québec allowances answers many questions which people have been writing to ask the Department. This text answers still others. If, after reading both, you need more information, write to:

Sutton holds talent show

SUTTON — (Special) — A capacity audience enjoyed a talent show sponsored by the Sutton Junior Chamber of Commerce at the High School, July 8.

Twenty contestants and groups whose ages ranged from five to seventy-five, sang, danced, played musical instruments and gave readings.

Yvon Paquette, president of the Junior Chamber welcomed the audience and Lionel Cusson of Bedford, was master of ceremonies and contributed several musical numbers.

The winners of the junior section were, Miss Irene LeFebvre, Sons of Chopin, instrumentalists; Monique Bonneau and Marie Jose Barette, a dance team; Miss Chantel Bouvier, monologist; Les Juanelles, a quartet, which were also awarded the best junior performance by the judges.

In the senior section the award winners were, Mrs. Georges Dahlstedt, operatic selections, Miss Hugette Harvey, instrumentalist, Alfred Larouche, songs, Fernand Demers, songs and La Chorale de la Paroisse d'Abercorn who won the best performance award.

Prizes were presented by the following members of the Sutton centennial committee, Rev. Real Lareau, Bob Belanger, Stan Rough, Mrs. Sheldon Davis, Miss Donna Bonneau, Mrs. A. Larouche, Roger Cusson, Yvon Paquette and Adrien Keampt. Mrs. Y. Bombadier, Mrs. Shirley Cowan and Bruno Juiged the competition.

British costers slowly disappearing from market places

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's other royalty—the pearly kings and queens of the cockney market places—are slowly dying out.

Only eight families are left of the original 28 who can claim title to those elaborate costumes studded with thousands of mother-of-pearl buttons and the long tradition that started in London street markets before the industrial revolution.

The pearly king once ran the local Barrow market, protecting the regulars from bullies who thought they could put up their stalls wherever they liked.

The titles were handed down from generation to generation, but the practical need for pearly kings died out in this century when licensing laws were passed to protect the street market stall owner.

And now London's best-known pearly king and queen, Fred Tinsley and his wife, have announced their retirement. They said they had no heir to their "kingdom" which included the cockney "High Street," London's Old Kent Road.

In recent years, the Tinsleys, and other surviving pearly kings and queens, devoted themselves to charity work and to promoting such causes as tourism and "buying British."

It wasn't unusual for a pearly king and queen to pack up their elaborate costumes and go to New York to sing the praises of British-made gin and tonic.

HELPED WORTHY CAUSES

Nor was it unusual for them to donate whatever they made to charity. The Tinsleys estimate that in their 50-year rule they raised thousands of pounds for worthy causes.

The pearls take months making their costumes, sewing on each button by hand as part of the true royal cockney heritage.

But these unofficial monarchs are jealous of their heritage and disdainful of any publicity-seeking imitators.

One pearly queen, Mrs. John Marriott, says of the fakes: "There's a whole mob of 'em dating back to the 1930s, when everyone dressed up. These are the leftovers, and they're a disgrace to the real pearls."

Three English women help care for refugees

MR. AND MRS. DONALD STUART MCBURNEY.

WADI AL-DHALIL, Jordan (Reuters) — Three English women are toiling 12 hours a day in the heat helping care for Jordan four months ago and more than 4,000 child refugees of the Middle East war.

The children were among the thousands of all ages who streamed across from the west bank of the River Jordan into King Hussein's tiny country when hostilities ended.

They now are living in a camp set up here, part of a population of about 7,500, including many elderly people and women.

The three are Mary Hawkins of Salisbury, Jane Barnes of Taunton and Audrey Brunt of Louth.

"We are short of feeding utensils for the children and there are not enough tents to go round," said Miss Barnes, who is in her 20s.

"Some of the refugees arrived here with only the clothes they stood in. Most of the tents in the camp already house two families."

The three were working with the Save the Children Fund organization in southern Jordan when war broke out. They were transferred to a dispensary run by the fund at this camp.

Miss Hawkins, in her early 40s, helps to distribute milk each morning, sometimes with sugar and rice added, to more than 1,000 children under 14 years old.

"We are hoping that soon we shall be able to provide soup in the evenings," she said.

WORKED FOR FUND

Miss Hawkins was working in Jordan for the British Red Cross in 1948 when the first wave of Palestine refugees reached the country during the Arab-Israeli war. In 1950, she worked with the Save the Children Fund in Lebanon.

"I have also looked after refugees in Korea, Hungary and Algeria," she said. "I came to Jordan four months ago and worked in Kerak as a staff nurse until I was moved here."

Miss Brunt, also in her 20s, worked at Ma'an, in southern Jordan, for 18 months before being transferred here.

"We are working in trying circumstances," she said. "The refugees are living in difficult conditions, and we are trying to help them to look after themselves with the few belongings they managed to bring with them."

Miss Brunt said that one of her duties is to visit children unable to come to the dispensary. Due for leave in Britain this summer, she intends to return to Jordan for another two years.

The camp refugees receive a hot meal at noon each day. Other meals are mainly supplies from tins.

Jordanian security men run the camp, helped by about 35 Jordanian girl volunteers and a number of girl guides. There also is a medical unit run by the Jordanian ministry of health.

Rinse Garments in Shower

Taking a trip? Rinse drippy garments under the shower. Hang shirt, blouse of other washable items on a nonrust hanger. Turn on the shower and rinse. There is less chance of adding new wrinkles since you do not wring them as you would if you washed them in a basin.

DANGEROUS PLANT

Rhubarb is the most dangerous plant in the vegetable garden—not the stalk, but the leaf blades which can damage the kidneys.

Girl Guides to learn Canadian heritage

A fisherman, a Women's Institute, a drama group, a Kiwanis club and a weaving guild are all involved in showing 2,000 girl guides from 11 countries something of Canada's heritage.

The guides' major centennial project is a camp to be held on Morrison and Nairne islands in the St. Lawrence River July 15-25. About 1,400 Canadian guides, rangers and cadets will be there from all provinces and territories.

Their guests will be 104 guides and several leaders from countries that have contributed to Canada's culture—Britain, France, The Netherlands, Germany, Iceland, Denmark, the United States, Finland, Japan, Sweden and, it is hoped, Israel.

The girls will live in tents on the islands and guides and their families have offered hospitality to any of the visitors who may be able to stay on after July 25.

The emphasis will be on Canada's heritage.

A Toronto drama group helped plan a Stratford-style outdoor stage and portable scenery to serve two events.

One, called the Canada Tree, is by Prof. James Reaney of the University of Western Ontario. It's a sort of pageant of Canada's growth since 1867.

DIRECTING BY MAIL

Mrs. Woodburn Thompson of Richmond Hill, Ont., has been directing her cast of 102 by mail. "They've had a letter telling them they were chosen and another letter saying 'Please learn everything I've sent.'"

Another production, Women of Canada, has been organized by Mrs. R. H. Booth of Simcoe, Ont. Its sketches will demonstrate the guide laws in the lives of such women as Madeleine de Vercheres, Judge Helen MacGill and a Canadian pioneer known as Ma Perkins, who is said to have travelled 900 miles in a covered wagon with eight children to join her husband in the West.

The guides will live in sub-camps representing six areas of Canada, and that's where the fisherman and others enter the picture. Guides in each section will learn handicrafts associated with that area, and each will make her own souvenir.

A guide leader has been taking rope-twisting lessons from a fisherman in Lunenburg, N.S., and will teach the Atlantic sub-camp to make such things as shopping bags.

The Pacific sub-camp will learn totem pole carving, Indian bead work and burlap painting. Upper Canada will hook rugs. Lower Canada will do rug and wool weaving. The Far North will make Oopikis. Eskimos stencils and soapstone carving, the Prairies will make quilts.

Mrs. E. Cole Thurston of Waterloo, Ont., the camp commandant, says the Women's Institute at Riverside Heights near the camp will demonstrate quilting, the Carmen Forward weavers of Eastern Ontario will teach their skills and the Kiwanis club in Dunbarton, near Toronto, has made rug-hooking frames.

SLOW REACTIONS

If an emergency crops up at 60 m.p.h. the average alert driver will have covered 66 feet before his foot even starts to move to the brake.

Mr. Alphonse Maurice Rural Route No. 2, St. Magloire, Bellechasse County	Mrs. Claire St-Pierre 959 Esprit, Blvd. St. Joseph, Apt. 3 Montreal, Que.

This week, our travelling "tourist" has left congratulatory cards with these lucky Québécois. They are invited, along with two friends of their choice, to spend a day at Expo 67 . . . all expenses paid. This wonderful day will be followed by a gala dinner with Premier Daniel Johnson at the terrace-restaurant of the Québec Pavilion.

Our travelling "tourist" will continue his voyage through the province. He is looking for other Québécois who are putting their hospitalité into practice . . . by saying "Bonjour!" as often as possible. You may receive an invitation, too!

Glittering Monaco's royal family on way

Casinos, motor racing, stamps, a yacht-filled harbor, cacti, the sun and sea — Monaco means different things to different people. But to everyone it means Prince Rainier and Princess Grace, the royal couple who will represent the tiny South of France principality at its national day at Expo 67, Tuesday, July 18.

With them will be their three young children, Princess Caroline, Prince Albert and Princess Stephanie.

Tanzania also celebrates its national day during the week and other attractions range from Music Day to canoe championships on Regatta Lake.

Sunday July 16 is the date of a major sporting attraction, final lap of the inaugural tour of New France. The race will finish in the Autostade at about 14:00 after eight days of racing through the Province of Quebec, taking in such towns as Three Rivers, Quebec, Thetford Mines, Drummondville, Sherbrooke, Ste. Agathe and Montreal.

Sunday will see a big event in the lives of three young musicians, winners of the Jeunesses Musicales national competition. Andrew Dawes (violin), Annon Lee Silver (soprano) and Robert Silverman (piano) will perform at 20:00 in the Jeunesses Musicales gala at Salle Wilfrid Pelletier. They will be accompanied by the Montreal Symphony Orchestra.

This concert acts as an overture to Music Day at Expo, Monday July 17. Choirs from all over the world will sing in band shells throughout the day and, at the 10:30 opening ceremonies at Place des Nations an international choir of 2,000 singers will entertain. The same choir will sing in the French Pavilion at 15:00 and again in Place des Nations at 17:00. Expo visitors can hardly fail to be swept up in the spirit of song and the climax of the day comes at 20:30 in Expo Theatre when The Land of Smiles, with Giuseppe de Stefano, has its first performance.

Tuesday July 18 is Monaco's national day. Expo's Commissioner General Pierre Dupuy will welcome Prince Rainier and Princess Grace to Place des Nations at 11:00, after which the official party will tour the site.

NEXT WEEK AT expo

will tour the site visiting the pavilions of Canada, Quebec, and the United States. The Expo visit forms part of a holiday in North America which started when the couple arrived in Montreal, July 12.

Another distinguished visitor to Expo during the week is Britain's Lord Mancroft, who held cabinet posts under Sir Winston Churchill, Sir Anthony Eden and Sir Harold Macmillan. At 20:30 on Wednesday July 19, in the Du Pont Auditorium, he will give a Maclean-Hunter Lecture on the subject "Sharing the common-wealth." Lord Mancroft is presently deputy chairman of Cunard Line Ltd., president of the London Tourist Board, and a member of the British National Export Council.

The following day, Thursday July 20, is Tanzania's national day, at which the guest of honor will be the country's second vice-president, Mr. R. M. Kawawa. The usual national day program will be followed, with the morning flag-raising ceremonies at Place des Nations highlighting the ceremonies. The official party will tour the site and lunch in the Pavillon d'Honneur with Commissioner General Dupuy.

Present at the ceremonies more and more visitors are using as a place to get away from the crowds. A stroll beside Regatta Lake discloses pens with buffalo, beaver, deer and many other animals to delight the children, while geese and ducks swim on the stream in the middle of the park.

At 20:00 in Salle Wilfrid-Pelletier the National Youth Orchestra of Canada gives its first concert of the World Festival. Conducted by Brian Priestman, they will play works by Berlioz, Freedman and Elgar.

Every day at Expo, the World Festival of entertainment presents a large and varied program. Saturday July 22 is no exception. At Place des Arts the Montreal Symphony continues its opera season with "Faust" and La Comedie de Saint-Etienne which had its North American premiere on Tuesday July 18, can be seen in a performance of Moliere's "L'Avare". At Expo Theatre there will be the last performance of the "Land of Smiles" and in the Autostade "Flying Colors," starring Maurice Chevalier, can be seen at 18:00 and 21:00.

On the Expo grounds of course, there is the usual feast of free entertainment with discotheques, films, concerts in band shells and marching bands — all at no cost at all to the visitor.

PRESENT BOAT — Fifty members of the Oddfellows and Rebekahs of the Sherbrooke area gathered at the Ayer's Cliff site of the camp for crippled children yesterday to present a boat to the camp on behalf of the lodge members. In the boat, left to right are, M. Bown, Noble Grand Myrtle Rebekah Lodge; Sandy Kemp of the camp; D. Marsland, waterfront camp director; H. Bury, grand patriarch; Connie Brooks of the camp, and O. Kinkead, Princess Rebekah Lodge 4. Standing on the shore are, J. Mead, left, and A. Douglas, camp director, right.

FAMILIES —

a gruelling workout in the Rockies.

Here, they had to ski 80 exhausting miles across the mountains with 70 pound backpacks lying heavy on their backs. They were forced to ski for five or six days while the camper truck driven by the Hemmes, and the station wagon driven by Bill Gifford, had to take the canoe.

"At all times the canoeists and support party attempted to remain in contact by walkie talkie, but there were days when they were completely isolated from each other," Mrs. Brine said.

While crossing ice floes in Alberta and pulling the canoe behind them, the four men fell through the ice into the frigid water. "By hanging onto the canoe which remained on the ice behind them they were able to reach solid ice again," Mrs. MacNaughton said with a noticeable sigh of relief.

The excellent physical condition of the men plus the canoeing experience of Brine and Reid, probably helped the men recover quickly from this accident. Brine has done a lot of camping in British Columbia, and Reid, a University of British Columbia student, travelled down the Mackenzie River last summer 3,000 miles to the Arctic Ocean.

A humorous incident occurred when the four men and the support party reached Banff National Park. Mr. Hemmes, who was the photographer during the trip, decided that this was a wonderful opportunity to get a few shots of the wild life. After setting up his 16 mm movie camera and tripod he became absorbed looking for some good shots. In fact, he became so absorbed that he didn't notice a mountain sheep saunter up to the other end of the camera and casually peer through the other end at the startled Hemmes.

"With Edo's white beard and the white sheep, it must have been quite a sight," Mrs. Brine laughed.

Dr. Chisholm is an official courier of Her Majesty's Mail. He is responsible for the safety of 2,000 letters that have been carried by canoe all the way from New Westminster.

Playboy Club

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's first Playboy Club opened for a special press preview on Thursday night, 24 hours before a gala floodlit opening when guests will pay $50 a head.

The latest addition to the club chain — there are 15 in the United States and one in London — is a lavishly-renovated five story downtown building close to McGill University.

Inquest held

MONTREAL (CP) — At least two physicians are expected to be among the material witnesses at a coroner's inquest today into the deaths of two single women, one of them a school teacher, who are alleged to have died of infection following rejuvenation injections. Police said Thursday that the first death occurred a week later, the second one about two weeks ago, and the third last Saturday.

How to buy a good used car

Take to the road and see how it runs

One in a series

More than two-thirds of all cars sold are used cars. This means there's a big choice available whether you're looking for a first car, a second car or a replacement for your present car. Decide what your needs are. Don't buy by price alone if another car comes closer to meeting your particular needs. Here, then, are some ideas on what to look for once you've decided what you want. Keep it for reference and look for more good advice in the rest of the series.

Road Test — This is the most important and decisive test of all to check out the car's performance. If possible, take a familiar route until you get to know the car. By the time you return from a road test, you should know the used car well.

Control — Check its manoeuvrability. Get to feel the car's response. When you see it's safe to do so, increase your speed and test the car on a sharp corner. If it corners in a steady, well-balanced manner, it means the shock absorbers and springs are in good shape.

Acceleration — Stop the car and test its acceleration by taking it up to 40 miles an hour. Acceleration should be steady. The performance should be smooth. If not, the ignition system or carburetion may need checking.

Braking — First, stop the car at 20 miles an hour, then 30 miles an hour and finally at 50 miles an hour. If the brakes squeal and chatter or if the car swerves, the braking system needs attention.

Balance, Alignment — Take the car over a smooth stretch of road. If the front end hops, the front wheels may be out of balance. If the front end vibrates, the wheel alignment may be out.

Suspension — If possible, take the car over a rough and bumpy road for a further check on the car's front and rear-end suspensions, the springs and shock absorbers. If the front end whips up and down freely or the rear end bounces on the rear axle, the springs or shock absorbers may need replacing. A good used car will ride steady. It won't jump from side to side and the steering is easy.

Gauges — Finally, another look at the instruments to make sure the gauges are all working properly. Watch that the temperature reaches normal or doesn't go too high. The speedometer should move up the scale evenly as you accelerate. Make sure the odometer is measuring off the miles. If the direction signal warning light isn't working, chances are the signals aren't working either.

Your awareness is your protection. When you know what to look for, you can buy with confidence. This series has been developed to help build your confidence in used-car buying.

Of course, an even better way to gain confidence is to talk to a Chevrolet-Oldsmobile OK Used Car Dealer. He has the choicest used cars available — reconditioned and selected to meet the highest used-car standards. You can be sure that they will stand up to this recommended inspection. Your Chevrolet-Oldsmobile Dealer's reputation rides with you. That's why, when you buy an OK Used Car, you know what you're getting into.

DO-IT-YOURSELF

Few garden tools are needed

The least important garden tool you can own is the very specialized one—at least in the beginning.

A few tools carefully chosen will take care of every yard and garden job imaginable. You couldn't possibly store all the different garden tools offered but basic implements are the ones to get, the ones you cannot do without.

Aside from a lawn mower, the tools you will most need are for digging, raking, cultivating, cutting and perhaps transporting.

Do not confuse a shovel with a spade. A shovel has a rounded blade, is used for loading or unloading sand, soil, gravel, etc. Iron rakes and lawn rakes are the two general types. Although there is a variety of each, one of each is sufficient. The iron rake is used in the garden for raking and breaking the ground before seeding. Whether you get one with straight or curved teeth makes little difference.

Lawn rakes are about 18 inches wide and are made of either bamboo or metal. They

A pronged cultivator, like a spading fork, is best for stony ground. Combination hoes, a straight blade on one side and a double-pointed hoe on the other also are available.

There are many pruning tools and most of them are pretty useful—but until you know what special jobs you may encounter, you can get by with a couple of basic items.

Grass shears will cut the loose bits of grass that stand up high around trees, posts and curbs. Most lawn mowers just do not cut close enough to such objects. For pruning rose bushes and similar plants, you will need pruning shears. There are two kinds: an anvil-type in which the cutting blade presses into a thick anvil of softer metal; and one that has two blades that close over each other like scissors. The latter cuts closer, the former makes a neat bite. The choice is a matter of personal preference.

Hedge shears are larger scissors—type shears for cutting thick hedges.

If you do a large amount of gardening or yard work, consider a wheelbarrow or garden cart. Get one big enough to cut down on the number of trips—at least three cubic feet capacity, or even four.

Garden carts are more expensive but put the load right on the wheels and not on the arms as the single-wheeled wheelbarrow does. They do not tip either, but are smaller than wheelbarrows.

Your tools are as good as you keep them. They must be sharp, free of rust and clean. File edges of hoes and spades, and sharpen all cutting tools regularly. Store carefully. Put them away clean and with a light coating of oil.

Country notebook

By WALKER RILEY

Macdonald College

Rudi came in jubilant from the College fields tonight. After struggling for the last three weeks, like everyone else around the country, to get a few loads of hay in between rainstorms, the weather finally gave him a break.

By one o'clock, the hay was ready to rake. His crew stuck with him, and the hay rolled in. Before they quit for a late supper, 2300 bales were in the barn. By my figuring, that's close to sixty tons, and that's a lot of hay, especially when you consider the field is two miles away, across the Trans-Canada Highway, at the back end of the Morgan Arboretum.

Rudi's crew was made up of one man raking, one man on the baler, one man hauling, and three at the barn. Equipment included three tractors, a rake, a pick-up baler with a bale thrower, three wagons with 20 x 8 x 8 basket racks, and an elevator at the barn. The long haul, he said, was the limiting factor. He is shooting for 3000 bales next day.

In contrast to this efficient, mechanized teamwork, I can't help remembering my own struggles to fill the barn at home, alone. The year I bought the buckrake for the front of the tractor I figured my problems were solved. And they were, for the fields close to the barn. It was a messy, but highly efficient way to get hay from the window to the mow. On a good day, I could average a ton an hour, three buckrake loads per ton. And a good day was one in which I did not run one of the wooden times into a groundhog hill and have to go the spruce swamp for a replacement.

Buckraking, too, had an element of real sport. The sight of a mobile haystack propelling itself down the centre of a peaceful country road in a sea of dust at a steady 14 knots was enough to send the hardest tourist scurrying for the ditch. That too was the year we installed a shower bath.

But some of our hay fields were seven miles away. Three loads a day, three hundred and thirty bales, was the absolute limit. One load after morning chores ones in the afternoon, and one before dark in the evening. Handling bales alone, was plain bull work, and the only fun was learning to double-clutch the tractor up the long hills and how fast you dared let it roll down the other side with a two-ton load of hay chasing you.

But I must admit that a bathing suit always hung on the tractor headlight. The road ran irresistibly near the lake at one quiet point.

In spite of the weather, Rudi has 7000 bales in the College barns, (July 6) and two small silos full of haylage. He says he should be finished. The corn looks exceptionally good characteristically, the wireworms attacked only one field. It was replanted June 3 and is now a foot high. The other fields, planted May 8, are three feet high.

Narrow corn rows have had a lot of publicity the last year or two. But don't be in too great a hurry to trade equipment yet. The specialists may if you are practicing all the other production techniques to the ultimate (early planting, plenty of fertility, weed and insect control, right hybrid, etc.) and you have to buy new corn equipment anyway, then you can consider narrow rows.

Trials conducted at Woodville, the C. D. A. station in the heart of the Ontario corn country, failed to show any yield advantage for the narrow rows. The two-year mean yields for row spacings of 19 28½, and 38 inches for seven hybrids were 114.6, 116.6 and 117.5 bushels per acre. Mean grain yields for plant populations were 115.9 bushels per acre for 18,000 plants and 116.6 for 24,000 plants.

Word from our observer at the old home farm is that the winter wheat is well headed and beautiful. The thin patches have filled in, the chemical weed control worked, and the weather, perfect.

Next week, we shall be at the old farm watching it ripen. Country Notebook therefore takes a holiday until the harvest is in.

See you again in August.

Sherbrooke Daily Record House Plan of the Week

One of the advantages of this trim split-level plan is that it will fit nicely on a modest lot and still offers the added extra of lower level garage and recreation room plus a laundry and extra laundry. The main level has three bedrooms, with a dual bath opening from the hall and the master bedroom.

The L-shaped living-dining areas form a spacious entertaining space with a smart bow window and fireplace to distinguish them. Square foot area for the main level is 990 square feet. Plans for CN-8827 are available from Progressive House Plans, 48 West 48th St., New York, N.Y. 10036.

Richmond

Mrs. J. P. Dunn was called to Sherbrooke on June 27 by the death of her brother-in-law, Mr. Luc H. Roy.

Mrs. Eva Donahue has returned from Goreham, Me., after visiting her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Sprague and Mr. Sprague.

Mrs. Harland Morrill has returned from Warwick where she was a guest of her daughter, Mrs. Edgar Martel and Mr. Martel.

Recent guests of Miss Edith McCourt and Mrs. Elizabeth Epps were: Mr. W. T. Epps and daughters, Rae and Gae, Mr. Douglas Thorgood, Notre Dame de Grace, Mr. Thomas McElroy, Ayer's Cliff. While here Miss Rae Epps and Mr. Thorgood attended the St. Francis High School, graduation.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Coles and family, Cowansville, are spending a few weeks at their former home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Ames attended Expo for a day.

Recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Elwin Ames were Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Dunbar, St. Thomas, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Bothwell Skilken, Tucker Hill, Conn., Mr. and Mrs. John Vallee, Montreal. While here Mr. and Mrs. Vallee attended St. Francis High School dance.

Mrs. Hartley Melver, Danville, was a recent guest of Mrs. Annette Malboeuf.

Friends are extending congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Alan McCourt on the occasion of their 18th wedding anniversary. Mrs. A. Griggs and son, Mr. Graham Griggs, of Sherbrooke spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hills.

Friends of Mr. D. R. McLaughlin are pleased to hear that he returned home from the St. Louis Hospital, Windsor, and is convalescing at his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Errol Taylor entertained 40 exchange students of St. Albert High School, St. Albert, Alta., and Richmond students from St. Francis High, Notre Dame High and Ecole Notre Dame. A pleasant evening was spent and refreshments served. The students were entertained by several other residents of the town and surrounding country.

45 gather to fete bride-elect at Ayer's Cliff

AYER'S CLIFF — Mrs. Mable Cooper, assisted by Mrs. Fred Palmer of Rock Forest, on June 23 entertained about forty-five friends and relatives of Miss Diane Cass in honor of her approaching marriage. The decorations were in pink and white and the flowers used were Russell lupins and iris.

The guest of honor was greeted by Mrs. Cooper who presented her with a corsage and escorted her to a decorated chaperfield where she was seated with her mother, Mrs. Gordon Cass, and the prospective groom's mother, Mrs. Donat La Chapelle.

The gifts, presented by Mrs. Cooper, proved to be many and included a complete cooking ware set, presented by all her old friends and neighbors of Libbytown.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, assisted by friends of Miss Cass. The bride's cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Cooper.

Among those present were guests from Beebe, Derby Line, Vt., Sherbrooke, Stanstead, Heathton, Way's Mills and Libbytown.

Professor Bell started our most precious tradition—helping people

The photo shows Professor Bell 'communicating' with Charlie Crane, a Canadian boy both blind and deaf, who must talk with his fingers.

Today, you know Alexander Graham Bell as the inventor of the telephone. But to himself and his family, his profession was that of "Teacher of the Deaf."

In his search for better teaching methods, he probed the mechanics of speech. His investigation of the vibrations of the larynx—the creation and transmission of sound, of words—led him to invent what we now know as the telephone. It was only incidental to his real life's work.

This work was to help people—particularly the handicapped. And that is a tradition which we at Bell Canada, do our very utmost to keep alive.

You'll find evidence of it in special telephones for the handicapped, in an artificial larynx for people without vocal cords, and in everything we do to help you communicate with one another.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

TRUMP COUP

NEEDS PLANNING

One difference between the expert and the good player is that the expert makes occasional plays that don't appear to mean anything at all. Often they don't, but once in a while it turns out that the peculiar play makes it possible for the expert to make a contract that otherwise would have gone. The six club contract is a good one. South loses a diamond but the odds are that he won't lose any other trick. Specifically, if clubs break 3-2 or the jack is singleton he wraps the slam.

up. If the jack of clubs is guarded three times in the West hand or the clubs break 5-0 there is no way for South to make his contract.

With four clubs to the jack in the East hand there is a possible trump coup. Good players know how to work a trump coup but only expert players prepare for the coup just in case it may be needed.

diamond continuation, goes right after trumps he finds out about the 4-1 break but he can lead a spade to dummy's ace, ruff a spade, lead a heart to dummy's king and ruff another spade. He will have shortened his trumps to the same length as East but he won't be able to get to dummy again for the key play.

The expert doesn't know that trumps aren't going to break, but he knows that they may not and he gives himself that extra chance. At trick two he leads a spade to dummy. Then he ruffs a spade and goes after trumps by playing the ace first and low to the queen next. Now he gets the bad trump news but he can handle things. He ruffs another spade to be down to the same number of trumps as East. Then he cashes his last diamond and Harry continues with three rounds of hearts stopping in dummy. Now he leads another spade. East must trump and South makes his contract.

Q—CARD SENSE—
Q—The bidding has been:
West North East South
Pass 1 ♠ Pass 2 N.T.
Pass 3 ♠ Pass 3 ♠
Pass 4 ♠ Pass 4 ♠
Pass 6 ♠ Pass ?

You, South, hold:
♠ A Q 2 ♠ K 9 4 ♠ A Q K 3 7 6
What do you do?
A—We have painted our selves into a corner. Pass is probably correct but in expert circles you might pass the buck about seven to your partner by bidding either six hearts or six trumps or you might take the bull by the horns and go to seven clubs.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of bidding four clubs over your three spades your partner bids four diamonds. What do you do now?
