de Gaulle as they sing the French national anthem together. The two were on a trip from Quebec City to Mont-

Sat. mail cut

OTTAWA (CP) — Sleet nor rain may not deter your mailman from making his rounds but after Feb. 1, 1969, he won't be coming on Saturdays.

Postmaster-General Eric Kierans announced Friday that Saturday home delivery is to end.

He said it involves closing post offices on Saturdays and stopping deliveries of letters and parcels and halting rural route deliveries. Special deliveries will continue on a seven-day-week basis.

Mail will continue to be processed and forwarded to destinations over the weekend in order to be available for delivery Monday.

Mr. Kierans said the move is prompted by the philosophy that the post office department "must operate within the limits of the revenue produced."

News in brief

Postponed

MONTREAL (CP) — The preliminary hearing of Charles Laverne Beasley, 22, alleged to have hijacked an Air Canada airplane, has been postponed for a second time at the request of the defence.

Lawyer Rolland Blais told Judge Emile Trottier Friday he is awaiting medical reports from Dallas, Tex., and he asked that the hearing be put off until Oct. 3.

Normal progress

MONTREAL (CP) — A Quebec City engineer who became Canada's fourth heart transplant patient Thursday night is making normal progress without mechanical assistance or drugs, the Montreal Heart Institute announced Friday.

The institute said Edouard Desrivieres, 51-year-old father of three girls, had been "totally incapacitated" for about a year before receiving the heart of 19-year-old Jacques Boudreau of Cap de la Madeleine, Que., a motorcycle accident victim.

Act of war

OTTAWA (CP) — It would be an act of war if the Canadian government tried to deliver food to Biafra without the approval of the Nigerian federal government, Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday.

His statement followed another clash in the Commons as Opposition MPs again urged the government to relieve starvation arising from the civil war raging in the West African country.

Quebecers pay Premier silent tribute

By DAVE BAZAY

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebecers by the hundreds Friday paid silent tribute to the late Premier Daniel Johnson, lying in state in the legislative assembly, as indications mounted that the premier's successor would be one of the cabinet's big backers of a strong Canada.

The people filed past the open coffin of Quebec's 20th premier at the rate of about 20 a minute as the province went through the first of five days of mourning.

ing that include a state funeral here Monday and burial ceremonies Tuesday.

The senior member of Mr. Johnson's Union Nationale government, Jean-Jacques Bertrand, has clearly taken charge of affairs as members of the party prepare for a special caucus Wednesday to appoint a successor to Mr. Johnson, who died Thursday.

The 52-year-old lawyer, justice minister in the Johnson government, led members of the legislative assembly in prayer before the coffin Friday morning when many of Mr. Johnson's cabinet ministers cried like children.

MRS. JOHNSON ARRIVES

The sad procession began at 11 a.m. EDT when the black-veiled widow of the premier arrived at the 17th-century French Renaissance style legislative building, accompanied by three of her four children: Marc, 21, Diane, 18, and Marie, 15.

Daniel Johnson Jr. and his wife were to arrive Friday night from France.

The Johnson women were all in tears. Mrs. Johnson sobbed softly, clutching the hand of Marie, who struggled to contain her grief as the two walked up a red-carpeted aisle between a provincial police guard of honor. Diane, crying openly, held Marc's hand.

In the ornate assembly chamber, Mrs. Johnson knelt before her husband's coffin, lifted the black veil and blew a kiss at the man she married Oct. 2, 1943. He died six days before their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Bertrand, who acted as premier during Mr. Johnson's 12-week absence after a mild heart attack July 3, briefly eulogized Mr. Johnson, then led a solemn assembly of MLAs in prayer. Among those weeping was Liberal Leader Jean Lesage.

Employees of the legislative assembly, led by Speaker Remi Paul in full Parliamentary regalia, were among the mourners.

If the pace of 20 people a minute was maintained throughout the day, more than 10,000 mourners would have filed past the bier before the doors closed at 10 p.m.

Cree chief splits civilization to make quest

NORDEGG, Alta. (CP) — Somewhere in west-central Alberta are the "four mountains" Chief Robert Smallboy is seeking.

The 67-year-old Cree Indian, fed up with civilization, has led 125 men, women and children of the Ermineskin Band into the mountains to start life afresh, following the ways of their forefathers.

They have been camping in tents since June on Crown land on the Kootenay Plains, 150 miles southwest of Edmonton, and have no desire to return to their reserve near Hobbema, 55 miles south of the Alberta capital. The nearest town is Nordegg, 35 miles east of their wilderness home where explorer David Thompson long ago found a pass through the Rocky Mountains.

Discussions with a reporter through interpreters took place in Cree and English in the camp tepee surrounded by wall tents in which the Indians lived. The tepee was reserved for worship twice a day, sessions on child-rearing and family life, and, as the chief put it, "a motel for distinguished visitors."

MEANING EXPLAINED

Only three of the eight councillors in the band followed the chief into the mountains, and the whole party totals about one-seventh of the group. Lazarus Roan, one of the three councillors, explained through an interpreter what the chief meant by the "four mountains."

"The chief wants the white man to give back four mountains where the Indians can live in peace. But the chief wants to choose the mountains. They will be good mountains with fertile land between them, and the mountainsides will have plenty of game animals.

"When he finds them he will tell the government to give them to us in exchange for what we left at Hobbema. We only want to live in peace and raise our children as we believe they should be raised."

For two days the Indians spoke of vice on the Hobbema reserve, and what they called political double talk and treaty-breaking by the whites. They also spoke of the good life they had found in the mountains, away from liquor and the white man's influence.

T. A. Turner, federal supervisor for the Edmonton-Hobbema Indian Affairs district, said later in an interview that most of the charges were unfounded but a few were true.

Others rated investigating.

Chief Smallboy said he had "washed his hands of government."

"I spent many years fighting for my people and trying to get government to hear us. Government would not listen and band council would not support the chief, so now we stay in mountains and let government come to us."

He spoke of the unhappiness he had left on the reserve, of drunkenness, prostitution, beatings, knifings, thefts, family disintegration, overpopulation and child neglect.

The unhappiness was caused by abuse of liquor, he said.

"Indians don't know how to handle liquor. The biggest majority would drink a bottle of whiskey that was in front of them and not say no to it."

"Most old people on the Ermineskin reserve did not want liquor privileges. But when the government took the vote, the young people wouldn't listen to us and voted to have it."

Indian government worries over ritual crime spurt

By RAM SUNDAR
CP Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — A recent spurt in ritual crime is causing concern to the Indian government and private social welfare agencies.

During the last six months several gruesome murders attributed to superstitious beliefs have been reported from the provinces of Maharashtra, Madhya Pradesh, Assam, Orissa and Rajasthan. These have been mostly confined to tribal pockets where more than 90 per cent of the population is illiterate but, surprisingly, a number of ritual murders have also occurred in and around Bombay, India's most Westernized city.

Indian police currently are investigating a series of murders in Bombay attributed to a follower of a mystic cult. Raman Raghavan, the accused man, is alleged to have killed at least 20 persons within the last four years as "offerings" to Aiyannar, his village deity.

Raghavan, a native of Madras in southern India, was arrested in late summer following a manhunt by some 1,000 police detectives. He is being held in a strongroom at the headquarters of the Bombay provincial police pending a wide-ranging investigation into his antecedents.

BLAMED ON CULT

The general belief in Bombay is that Raghavan is no ordinary murderer. He did not kill any of his victims for profit. What is more, he selected only homeless people as his victims.

Raghavan's weapon was an iron rod with three sharp points. It resembled the "trishul" or trident carried by wandering Hindu monks as a protection against wild animals.

Did Raghavan act alone or is he a member of a cult dedicated to human sacrifice?

Two senior police officers have flown south to verify a report that the headquarters of Raghavan's mystic cult is located in a temple 50 miles from the town of Tiruchirappalli.

One report circulating here says the cult has a membership of 80 with branches in several parts of India, particularly in the tribal pockets of Maharashtra and Madhya Pradesh.

Raghavan is said to have boasted to the police that he set out from his southern hideout with the "ambition" to kill 101 persons and offer them to his god. The figure 101 has some religious significance among tribal communities.

How many persons did Raghavan kill in all? Estimates vary. According to press reports published here, he may have claimed more than 40 victims.

His activities caused terror in Bombay's suburbs.

City welfare council wants more public participation

By RICHARD NUTBROWN
(Record Staff Reporter)

The role of the Welfare Council at the level of all the municipalities of the Sherbrooke region is to have the population participate, in the widest sense of the word, in social development and particularly to take the required measures to assure the community, resources of welfare and assistance of health and of leisure pursuits. All of these as may be deemed necessary.

Guy Champagne, Sherbrooke Regional Welfare Council director, said in a recent interview this role consists in grouping, orienting and aiding persons and organizations interested in welfare and assistance.

He said this means more specifically, consulting the general public and being consulted in the various phases of planning and of coordination. The role, he said, implies the functions of information, research and coordination.

"In its field," he said, "the Sherbrooke Regional Welfare Council would like to touch upon all questions relating to social development."

"It is not the intention of the Regional Welfare Council," he continued, "to become a superstructure absorbing and regimenting all the organizations in such a manner as to establish but one centre of de-camp for 150 young girls whose parents otherwise could not afford to send their daughters to camp, a family guidance centre, a home for un-wed mothers, help for new Canadians, prisoner's aid, Caritas, aid to the handicapped, and social service round out the Sherbrooke Regional Welfare Council's functions.

The operation of these services requires money, lots of money. For the 1966 fiscal year (figures are taken from the profit and loss statement presented at the annual meeting last April) the Welfare Council was $14,547.77 in the red. The Annual Charity Campaign, to run from Oct. 6 to Oct. 13, is one of the ways the Regional Welfare Council can offer the diversified services they now do.

From the 1966 Charity Campaign, $39,134.96 of the total amount received was given to the Council. Other revenues and interest brought the total cash receipts to $40,403.59. Cash expenditures for the year amounted to $54,951.36.

It must be understood, though, that several of the above mentioned services survive because of provincial government grants. Mr. Champagne said the Welfare Council is a private agency and therefore acts the same way toward government as does private enterprise. "The council is a watch dog," he said, "its function is to suggest modification to the heads of the different services."

"Have a Heart" is the Charity Campaign slogan. This year, even more so than in the past, the Maison St. Georges is in dire need of financial assistance. Government grants help but the financial aid of Sherbrooke's residents is one of the best ways of assuring the mission home's continuance.

Sam Stayman of New York, one of our great players, is particularly noted for his courage under fire and for scoring as much as possible on all occasions. His top on today's hand stood up against the whole field in Minneapolis and might well stand against the entire country.

Mrs. Stayman had plenty of courage also. Her double of one diamond was a modern negative double to show strength in the unbid suits. Sam's bid of four spades was based on his feeling that his partner would surely hold four cards in that suit.

He might have run to the reasonably safe five clubs after West's double but Mrs. Stayman redoubled and Sam was ready to gamble things out.

A diamond opening followed by a shift to clubs after cashing two diamonds would have led to a two-trick set but West had heard his partner's four heart call and decided to open the queen of hearts.

Sam won in dummy and discarded one of his diamonds. Then he thought awhile and decided to go after everything that was not nailed down. He cashed the other high heart to get rid of his last losing diamond.

Next came a low spade to his queen. West took his ace and led a diamond which Sam ruffed. Now Sam thought for quite a while. If West had started with four spades and

If there's a war she must go back

ON HER WAY—Shown above are three members of the Metodi family who one year ago came to Canada from

A few years before her birth, Israel became a nation, six years after her birth Israel fought for and retained her nationhood. Last year, while still a high school student, she dug trenches and was a communications officer in the Six-Day War.

Her name is Hasia Metodi and she is first and foremost an Israeli. Her eyes are bright but behind the dark brown pupils are memories.

After years of captivity her forefathers have carved the nation which now stands as a model of heroism and patriotism. Her tales of war are simple, included and true. In unrehearsed broken English she tells how the Israeli people formed a link which unfriendly neighbors tried, but could not break.

Menaced by war all their lives, the Metodi family have known little peace. For the first time in their lives the shadow of war does not hover over their shoulders, they live in Canada now.

Today, Sept. 28, 1968, marks Hasia's first year in Canada. "But if there is a war, I must go back. It's my country."

Hasia was born in Tel Aviv in 1950. During the Six-Day War she lived in Arad, a town near the Dead Sea. She remembers the morning war was declared.

"I was in school and the teacher told us to turn the radio on. It was June 5, I remember cause Robert Kennedy died one year after war was declared. It was about eight or nine in the morning.

"During the short war we went to school and learned, but most of the time we helped the town prepare for war. All day long the radio was on and we listened for news.

"When the planes came over we all went to the bomb shelters. It was dark and they placed us boy-girl, boy-girl. It was fun."

When the air raid whistle blew everybody knew where to go. After one day of war "my" father went to Jerusalem and joined the Army. Her father fought Germans, fought for independence, fought again in 1956 and went to the desert battlefields of the Middle East again last year.

She became tired now of talking about war. She was not thinking of her experiences for she had lost no one. But she remembered the stories her mother had told, stories of Nazi barbarism. She remembered her mother's parents were victims of the Third Reich.

She began to talk now about her teenage life in Israel. Since the birth of her brother, Sammy, she has cared for him. "In Israel this is what is done."

"In Canada the girls are not like in my country. When I was 13 my mother taught me how to cook, clean the house and care for my brother."

"I think, sometimes, my brother loves me more than my mother."

"Girls spend all day in the streets, here." She continued and mentioned Wellington Street, "all they do is try to catch boys."

Her mother is having a much harder time in Canada, though, than Hasia for she speaks Hebrew only.

Magoger fined $150 on four counts

Sessions Court Judge Roland Dugre, fined Claude Dion, 31, $150 and costs, in default 15 days, following Dion's plea of guilty to three charges, in Sherbrooke Court Friday, September 27.

Dion pleaded guilty to charges of simple assault, dangerous driving, and hit and run, in the township of Magog, September 25.

Crown attorney Stanley Steinman asked that the accused be given the benefit of doubt on the assault charge and said that it arose from a drinking bout in a Magog hotel. He added that the accused would have had an additional charge of impaired driving tacked on to the docket, had the circumstances warranted.

Mr. Steinman asked that the usual fines be imposed on the other charges. Judge Dugre fined Gagne $50 and costs, in default 15 days on the charge of hit and run and $100 and costs in default 30 days, to be served consecutively, on the dangerous driving charge, and suspended his licence for six months. Dion was granted one month to pay the fines.

Stanislas Morin, 47, Barnston, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving, September 26. Judge Dugre fined Morin $100 and costs in default 30 days, and suspended his driving privileges for three months.

The minimal suspension resulted from remarks made by Crown Attorney Stanley Steinman, who said "it was an exceptional case."

Judge Dugre dismissed a charge of assault against Mrs. Jeanne d'Arc Gagne, accused of assault on a former neighbor, Mrs. Bertrand Noel, in Sherbrooke, May 9.

Stanley Steinman produced three witnesses and Defence Lawyer Jean Cormier the accused. Judge Dugre said "the Court's time should not be wasted with trivial cases of this nature, and I have no intention of giving the accused a judicial record when the evidence is questionable."

"Urgent" questioning in Commons overdone

Technically the Opposition parties may have grounds for criticizing the decision of Prime Minister Trudeau to curtail the appearance of his ministers in the House of Commons during the question period.

In an effort to cut down the work load on the ministers and give them more time to devote to their departmental duties, Mr. Trudeau has ruled that with the exception of Wednesdays, only one-half the ministers need be in the House during the daily question period.

Opposition spokesmen regard this as an insult to the House and may be able to make a case, verbally at least, for their contention.

But when the nature of many of the questions directed to the ministry is considered it is difficult to justify the demand that an overworked minister lose valuable time awaiting possible questions.

For the most part they are not of an urgent nature and should be placed on the order paper, giving the minister an opportunity to prepare.

The more urgent can generally be answered by the Prime Minister or a parliamentary assistant promising to study the matter and report next day.

Typical of the "urgent" nature of many of the questions, in a single day during the past week the Ministers were asked for pronouncements on: Future plans of the government to stimulate employment; whether a minister received letters concerning layoffs at a Lauzon shipyard; whether labor unions should provide funds for house construction; jurisdiction over a railway line in British Columbia; when a president would be appointed for Air Canada; and what the government plans to do about the dangers of disposable bottles.

For such things, 15 or 16 ministers are expected to waste three hours weekly each.

The first thing to discount in some discount stores is the alleged savings on some of the merchandise.

Oh for a pumpkin pie

The countryman has an open mind on many subjects but when it comes to the question of pumpkin pie versus squash, he contends there is only one logical answer. The fact is that pumpkin has a certain intangible but recognizable quality that elevates it a notch above its cousin.

The spirit of autumn is inherent in a pumpkin pie correctly concocted of cream and the right proportion of tangy spices. Since the days of early pioneers, discriminating men have known this fact. This is not to say that squash has no place; a good squash pie is most acceptable.

Both squashes and pumpkins had their beginnings in Central or South America. Botanically, the experts claim there is no reason to distinguish between, although pumpkins have hard, ribbed stems and squashes soft flat stems. Captain John Smith ate a raw pumpkin in Virginia and wrote, "A fruit like unto a Muske Millon, but lesse and worse."

A raw pumpkin may not be a gourmet's delight, but a fully ripe pumpkin, cooked and amalgamated with cream and spices, has a quality one cannot find in a squash pie. A pile of golden pumpkins ripening against the south side of the old weather-grayed barn, is more than an appealing picture. It is a promise of Olympian flavor that the ancient gods did not know.

We know a confirmed bachelor who always gets shesick on a cruise ship.

FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room

Love must not be a matter of words or talk; it must be genuine, and show itself in action. (1 John 3:18, NRSV)

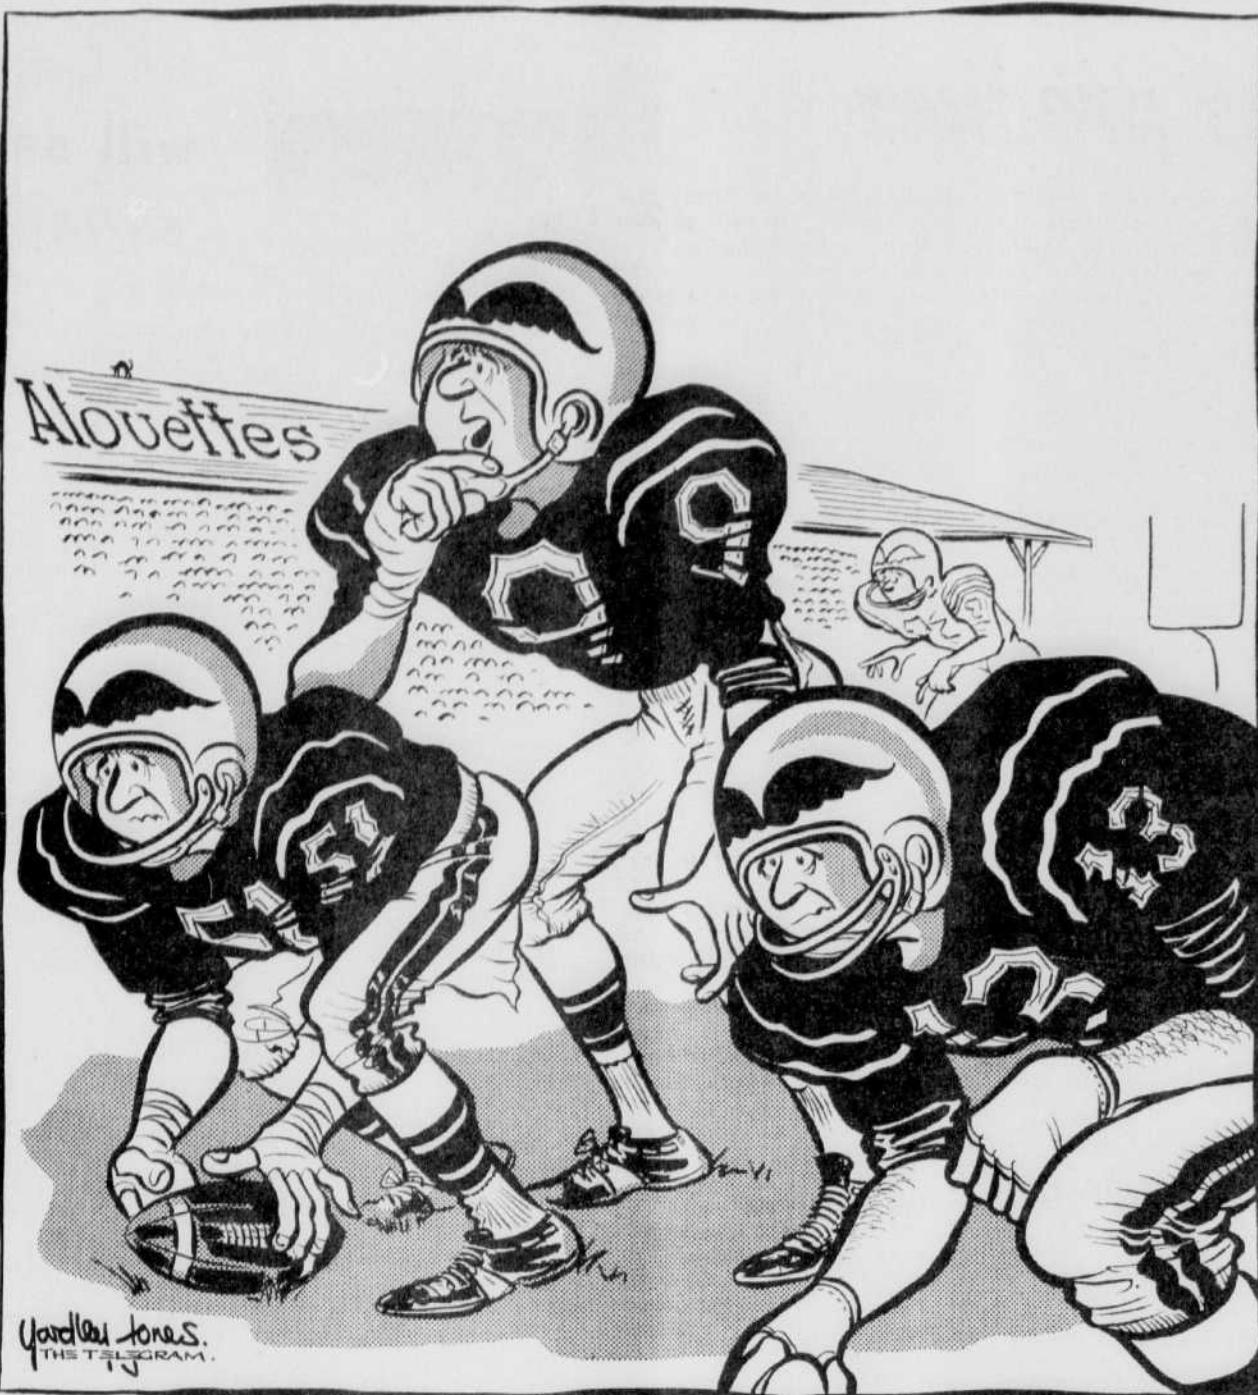

PRAYER: Help us, Lord, to walk our appointed way with quiet faith, humble spirit, and gentleness of love. Because even as we easily disturb our peace, give us the power to overcome Thy spirit working in us. Amen.

Perspectives and Prejudices Love today is very ambiguous, hippy giving petals to cops?

By REV. J. A. DAVIDSON

In his little book, Christian Morals Today, Bishop John A. T. Robinson says this: "In Christian ethics the only pure statement is the command to love: every other injunction depends on it and is an explication or application of it." That statement has been much quoted in recent years as an expression of the basis of the Christian ethic.

And that is indeed the teaching of the New Testament. Love has the primacy in the Christian ethic. Love is the fundamental dynamic of Christian morality. But in the New Testament love is never merely a matter of feelings, but is, rather, an active and uncalculating, often sacrificial, determination of will, a determination to serve the real needs and the real good of other persons.

But, unfortunately, we have played rather fast and loose with the notion of love, and today it is heavy with ambiguity. Perhaps it is a useful exercise to take a look at a few of the quainter ways in which love, as the basis of ethics, is understood in our society, as a warning against the ambiguity into which we can so easily fall.

1. In the manner of the popular happiness-is device, love can be described as a hippy giving a large flower to an irate police officer. How about that? The hippy movement, let us admit, is to some extent a serious judgment on the lovelessness which characterizes so many of the relationships among persons in our society. But there is in it a strong tendency to caricature love. I find it very difficult to discern the love in the sneer lovingly toward his family and toward those with whom he works each day.

3. Then there is the kind of love that goes about doing others a bit of good, always doing it rather conspicuously and always looking back over its shoulder to see if it is being properly appreciated both by those to whom the good is done and by any bystanders. This kind of love is desperately concerned to make a good impression — especially the sort of impression that improves the reputation and enhances the ego. The ambiguity here was sensed by Martin Luther King: "A man may be self-centered in his self-denial and self-righteous in his self-sacrifice."

4. Finally, in this rather dreary catalogue, there is the game which, taking a lead from Stephen Potter, I would call "loveliness". This is a matter of moral blackmail. The impatient mother says to her child, "If you really love Mummy you'll eat up all your carrots." This game, of course, can be played, and is played, in all kinds of intimate little situations: to play it you merely charge with lovelessness the person who will not go along with your wishes and demands and desires.

The New Testament doesn't define love, but in the 13th Chapter of Paul's first letter to the Corinthians you can find a portrait of the man who lives the life of authentic love. It comes through very clearly when read in one of the modern translations.

The Nazis as rather stupid but fairly harmless people.

Let us enlighten them, but let us be careful to distinguish between, Nazi and German, for what happened in Germany could happen anywhere, if people are not careful to keep corruption from getting the upper hand. By the way, what do the crosses the kids are wearing around their necks stand for?

Yours Truly,
D. M. CLOUSTON

The elderly get a helping hand

OTTAWA (CP) — The old person who wants to live independently but who may be in a state of uncertain health gets a helping hand in this city.

For the last 10 years the information and service bureau of the Ottawa welfare department has provided a direct care agency for old people and chronic invalids.

"We try to help many of the older people to keep their independence," says the bureau's director, Marjorie Bradford.

"Sometimes the assurance that someone will stand by them in time of crisis relieves the anxieties of older people so they can carry on alone."

Referrals come to Miss Bradford's office from relatives, hospitals, or group homes where intensive nursing care is not available.

More than a third of the bureau's clients are more than 80 years of age. Many of the younger ones—60 to 70—are disabled by chronic illness.

In dealing with distressing situations, Miss Bradford has found that "the way we reach out a hand to help is important—not just what we do."

"Orphaned old people need a friend, not an impersonal service. We're the last on the line and must do something because we can't pass them on to someone else."

Last year the bureau was concerned with 411 elderly people living in some 26 supervised boarding and nursing homes.

Editorial comment

Press mourns Johnson's death

Following are excerpts from editorials in representative Canadian newspapers on the death of Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson at Manicouagan, Que.

Montreal Star: It was only yesterday (Wednesday) that Premier Johnson appeared in what seemed perfect health to talk on national television. He did, as he always did, a masterly job. He was a superb politician. He had reassuring words for the minorities of this province. Now he is dead and the political situation again is sadly fluid. . . . The philosophy he stated seemed to us exemplary. It was a final and good tribute to himself.

Montreal La Presse: The prevailing feeling is the feeling of a void. Daniel Johnson died in harness, at the time when the province, the country and his party needed him the most. Now we can consider his press conference, telecast across the country, as his political testament.

Saint John Times-Globe: . . . Clearly, he intended to work as a Canadian to change Canada, as a Quebecer to change Quebec—but he was no truculent demagogue with take-it-or-we-leave-it ultimatums. He showed that he realized, more than some of his ministers appear to do, the values as well as the shortcomings of Confederation and the realities of the world in which Quebec must live.

Calgary Herald: The death . . . averts or at least postpones a developing crisis in Canada's relations with France. Had Premier Johnson carried out his planned visit to Paris on Oct. 11 and been accorded head-of-state treatment by President Charles de Gaulle, relations between Ottawa and Paris would have deteriorated, perhaps to the vanishing point.

St. John's Telegram: Daniel Johnson knew when to push and when to give in the continual struggle between Quebec and Ottawa, and he was regarded as a man who might be able to "damp down" the smoldering fires of separatism until the constitutional issues were resolved. His unexpected death leaves a power vacuum that has to be quickly filled. We trust that whoever fills it will do right by the people of Quebec and the people of Canada.

Lethbridge Herald: . . . It is to be hoped that Mr. Johnson's successor can continue to claim the confidence of the people of Quebec and to embody the hopes of the rest of Canada.

Regina Leader-Post: Premier Daniel Johnson had a vision of a strong and viable Canada in which Quebec would play an active leading role. His death . . . has stilled one of the more moderate and responsible voices in Ottawa-Quebec relations and has ended too soon an outstanding public career.

Timmins Press: . . . There are signs that a harder line will be followed as regards demands for greater control of affairs Quebec feels are within its jurisdiction. Canada could ill afford to lose Mr. Johnson at this time in its history.

Kitchener Record: Whoever takes over the reins in Quebec, we can scarcely hope for anyone who will put Quebec's case to the rest of Canada as persuasively and soothingly as Premier Johnson has done.

Ottawa Citizen: . . . His followers now must decide whether to choose a leader who can co-operate with a French-Canadian prime minister whose vision is Canada-wide and world-wide, or choose one whose claims are based on an ability to prosecute a verbal war with Ottawa. It will be a crucial decision for Quebec and for Canada.

Ottawa Journal: Canadians will remember Premier Daniel Johnson for his last public words: For their civility, their moderation, their humor. They were typical of the man. Wednesday he restored a welcome air of reasonableness and cordiality to the dialogue between Quebec and the rest of Canada over language rights and constitutional matters. . . . He had provided a reassuring prologue to the new round of constitutional discussions which is soon to begin.

Medicine Hat News: . . . Mr. Johnson proved to be a fairly reasonable and strong premier, and on the whole a stabilizing influence in Quebec. . . . He was walking a rather thin line between extreme nationalists who favor separate status for Quebec and those who would permit the erosion of the French language and culture in that province. . . . The big question now is who will succeed Mr. Johnson as premier and in what direction his successor will steer Quebec.

Victoria Times: The death of Premier Daniel Johnson came with tragic suddenness. . . . The question of language is paramount in the fortunes of Quebec, and Mr. Johnson's last official effort was in the direction of safeguarding the French tongue while still preserving the rights of the English-speaking residents of the province.

Late Daniel Johnson

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I have an oversupply of linen and also some cotton and nylon napkins and would appreciate some suggestions as to ways to utilize them. Some have never been used.—MARY

DEAR POLLY—When casseroles are to be frozen and stored, I line the baking dish or pan with foil, fill with the mixture to be frozen and press the foil firmly over the mixture to seal it airtight.
When it is solidly frozen, foilwrapped block can be removed from the pan. This saves storage space in the freezer as the "blocks" stack nicely, and pans or casserole dishes are not tied up for long periods of time. When ready to use the frozen casserole you can easily remove the foil and slip the block into the original pan to heat. Some may only require unwrapping the foil from the top and placing the foil-wrapped block on a cookie sheet.—SUE

DEAR POLLY—After cleaning the toilet bowl with your preferred cleanser, use a few drops of nicely scented dishwashing liquid. Stir around with the brush a few times and leave the pleasantly scented suds for awhile. You will be delighted with the results.—ELLA T.

Miss Eva Adams, Director of the U.S. Mint, mentioned at a recent press conference that illegal traffic in silver coins at the U.S.-Canadian border for melting purposes can only spell trouble. She warned that the U.S. Treasury Department is clamping down on people who are breaking laws and pointed to the illegality of quantity export and the silver coin melt ban in existence in this country.

Miss Adams said there would be no "C" or "P" Mint mark on the 10-cent piece; she denied that there would be some minute identification mark to indicate the U.S. production of the Canadian pieces.

A team of eight U.S. technicians have been in Canada consulting with Royal Canadian Mint staffers; the 10-cent dies have been hand-delivered to Philadelphia, and work is progressing, she said.

She indicated the Philadelphia Mint may also be asked to produce Canadian 25-cent pieces should the shortage persist. Canadian Mint officials will be watching with interest the high-speed U.S. production methods as they are applied to the Canadian coinage, she said.

First announcement of the U.S. Mint's assistance came in Canada from Finance Minister Edgar J. Benson in Ottawa, August 21. Benson said the production of the dimes in the U.S. would free the Royal Canadian Mint to concentrate on quarter production. Completion of the Canadian order in Philadelphia is expected in about two months.

Two privately issued medals commemorate the 60th anniversary of the Canadian Mint and are available from coin stores and dealers at $2 each.

WAS IT THE HEAT? — The temperature in southern California was 99 yesterday, so some observers at Los Angeles' Marineland of the Pacific oceanarium assumed Farouk was helping (above) his 4,000 pound walrus mate avoid the heat. Others said the dunking was to put Priscilla in her place—possibly for being overweight. They've been mates for six years.

Jottings

BY
PHILLIPS

I was a dillar, a dollar, a ten o'clock scholar type of student. By dint of unrelenting effort I managed to leave school with my mind as virgin soil as when I entered; a few bits of fluff adhered long enough each year to permit me to scramble through exams.

Actually, I did not dislike school but found there was so much without the hallowed halls than what was within them. I learned a great many irrelevant and unsubstantial things that added zest to my life.

For example, some kindly soul who knew my avid love of reading once told me that L. M. Montgomery had spent either months or years in her youth in Prince Albert (my home town). When I asked "Where?" she waved vaguely north of the residential area. I went to school via "north" for weeks looking for what must have been Miss Montgomery's former home.

I finally discovered an old unpainted shack, which must surely be the place I decided since it had about it that air of mystery and romance that I associated with the author of Anne of Green Gables.

I sat among cobwebs, an abandoned teakettle, a chair with three legs, a rickety, unpainted table, to re-read Anne's adventures or simply to breathe the air in the room where the great author had played or written or dreamed. I dreamed too, of becoming another L. M. Montgomery.

I have been assured that Miss Montgomery never lived in Prince Albert; that she never even visited that tiny northern metropolis (6,000 strong, in my day).

Music on Records

By Elisabeth Gustafson

CHOPIN: Etudes Op. 10 and Op. 25. Tamas Vasary, piano. Deutsche Grammophon stereo 136454.

At last, a pianist who can play Chopin's Etudes! The most formidable task a pianist can undertake are these twenty-four so-called études — "so-called" because they transcend the limits of any "study" in the ordinary use of that term, transcending into the very soul of music. They are difficult, devilishly difficult, yes. If you have the technique to play them, then you needn't worry any longer about playing any music.

But this music only starts where the technical difficulties end. They are soul-searching, not finger-searching. In these short pieces, Chopin put the purest of music; that is, humanity and all the passion and tragedy and emotion and intelligence that make each of us human.

And now, comes a pianist who not only technically can play these Etudes but who plays them as music. He respects this music. For this, we respect him. He is Tamas Vasary, a Hungarian artist in his thirties. He is not unknown, of course. I heard him some years ago in a recital at Carnegie Hall, New York. I remember I was not particularly impressed; I seemed to find an arrogance behind the music that sounded. Well, if it is of any interest to anyone, I eat crow; willingly.

He plays on this record with accuracy, clarity, sensitivity and humility. He does something on this record which I have not heard before; he plays from short composition to short composition with continuity. We are used to pianists picking out singly those Etudes which they like playing or can play well or play to show off. But here they are, all in sequence, with a remarkable continuity and inevitability.

Individually, there is much to say. First of all, Vasary brings to certain of these Etudes a tempo and a clarity of phrasing that put into perspective the harmonic counterpoint. He knows what the scope of each is about and thus never lets the detail disintegrate the total effect; yet the color and contrast and the counterpoint are there. Listen, for instance, to that "octave" Etude in B minor.

Let this review become unbelievable because of insistent praise, it also reports that Vasary is not perfect. The first great C major Etude is not nearly grand enough. The proof? Listen to the way Rosenthal did it. There is also a grave musical flaw in this record: an added bass note to end the Opus 25 No. 10. Mr. Vasary is only the near-perfect player of Chopin's Etudes.

Tells a tale of a personal war

FIGHTING CONFEDERATES by Curt Anders, Longmans Canada Limited; 315 pages; $8.25.

The American Civil War was a highly personal war; some have called it a "Brother's War." Commanders on both sides had studied at West Point and had fought, often shoulder to shoulder, against Mexico and in Indian campaigns. The South's James Longstreet was best man at Ulysses Grant's wedding and General Philip St. George Cooke was the father-in-law of "Jeb" Stuart, the colorful Confederate cavalry leader.

Exploring the personal as well as militaristic values involved, Fighting Confederates by Curt Anders spotlights the careers of Confederate heroes.

Jefferson Davis, first President of the Confederacy; Robert E. Lee, called "Granny" Lee by men around the War Department, yet who late in life, assumed the enormous risks of Confederate leadership on the fields of battle; J. E. B. Stuart who served as Lee's front screen; Thomas J. "Stonewall" Jackson who met death at Chancellorsville, and others. Heroism is the theme of this highly readable novel — the heroism of men whose courage, daring and pride made them forget the overwhelming odds. Mr. Anders' lucid analysis of tactics adds much to the understanding of the importance of the various campaigns, and dramatic re-enactments of the battles in which they won fame reveal the strength and the weakness of the generals involved.

Jefferson Davis is described as a "splendid failure." A complex man caught in the vortex of complicated events, his intellect and personal courage were admirable, but his mistakes contributed greatly to the humiliation and defeat of the Confederate forces.

Since the role of the sovereign state is so much discussed in Canada today, The Confederates is of interest in helping to understand the role of sovereignty in the American Civil War. The peculiar isolation of life in the South precluded the average voter from drawing comparisons of power with the Northern States; and it was, therefore, unthinkable to him that any State could be superior to his. Even men of education and wider experience were trained to think of State sovereignty as the foundation of civil liberty, and when their State spoke, they felt bound to "follow their State."

Thus, when offered a choice of commands — South versus North — General Robert E. Lee's decision was tragic but inevitable. West Point trained and molded in the values of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and James Madison, Lee had spent all his adult years giving unstintingly to the service of the United States. Yet when Lincoln offered him command of the U.S. Forces, only one answer was possible. Virginia was his birthplace, the heritage of his spirit. Offered the command of Confederate forces, he returned to his homeland to give Virginia all that he was, all that he had of valor and devotion.

LILLIAN WYLIE

A blinded man adjusts

BLIND DATE by John Windsor; Gray Publishers; 192 pages; $4.75.

John Windsor was blinded in World War II. In his book, with its gently satirical title, BLIND DATE, he tells the story of his blindness caused by an anti-tank shell and of his adjustment to a totally new way of living.

Author Windsor has no time for self-pity or bitterness. He writes in a light-hearted vein and with an ironic humor. He was 23 years old when he was wounded, a lieutenant in the Lord Strathcona's Horse (Royal Canadians). He had, at that time, married a beautiful English girl and was the very new father of an infant daughter. His tank was destroyed during the invasion of Italy.

Veterans of World War II will find the book interesting. Windsor is returned from Italy to hospitals in England at Marston Green and Basingstoke, names familiar to many Canadians.

By far, the most interesting part of his story is his rehabilitation at St. Dunstan's in England. The book is worth the reading if only to learn of this most wonderful institution.

It is indeed a book to be recommended. With determination and high courage John Windsor accepted his tragic handicap and here, in his first book, has presented a gently humorous and movingly intimate insight into the world of the sightless.

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

Hunting and fishing in the E.T.

By NORM NICHOLL

The annual chase between Protection Service officers and "jackers" of the area and presumably throughout the Province is on. To make any assessment of the cost to the department would be almost impossible as to the cost of labor, vehicle expense etc., and to the frustration of the Protection Service Officers.

How many deer are killed by this method of poaching? Perhaps some of the decline in deer herds of the Province could be found here. How many farm animals are shot or wounded by this method? These are only a few of the possibilities that can go unanswered. This method of hunting gives the deer little chance of escape when carried out by those proficient in night hunting.

Try this experiment. Put yourself in a dark room, allow yourself plenty of time to become accustomed to the darkness. Then have someone turn a bright light on your face and find out what you can see. Now the deer is similar except that they aren't expecting the light.

During the past couple of years magistrates sitting on the bench in Sherbrooke seem to think that breaking game laws are only minor offences and in some cases perhaps a joke and why bring such trivial matters before them. Perhaps there are numerous cases pending hearings.

The fact still remains that offenses prosecuted under the Fish and Game Statutes are there for the purpose of trying to preserve hunting for all to enjoy. When violators of said laws are brought into court they should be assessed fines or jail terms as prescribed and the personal feelings of the magistrates should not interfere with such decisions.

Since the Quebec Wildlife Federation Convention is coming up it might be well for some pressure to be brought to bear in this respect. At present it might be well worth while for clubs and associations in all areas to write magistrates holding court in their areas expressing their feelings and ask they use the maximum penalties for "Poachers".

Lake Massawippi F and G Protection Club Inc., held a general meeting this past week. Plans were discussed and money allotted to make the lower rearing pond larger and to be divided into two sections so that when fish are removed from the lower pond to the lake the upper pond can be drained into the lower one thus reducing loss of fish due to handling and transporting. H. T. Emo and Cliff Woodard are to be congratulated on their fine idea which should be of great value.

Resolutions were discussed and will be passed along to the Quebec Wildlife Federation Conference which is to be held later in the fall.

First reports from local hunters who have been trying their luck up "north" show that hunting has been very good. Further breakdown on moose hunting will be forthcoming next week.

DOWNHILL ALL THE WAY. Cristina Baronesse Oster-Sacken of Germany seems to have picked the wrong place for a bike ride since she's having trouble standing up, let alone riding, on the steep-sloping (38.5-degree angle) Olympic cycling track in Mexico City. Miss Oster-Sacken works for a committee to aid visitors to the upcoming Olympic games.

To dress six defensemen

Beavers meet Barons tomorrow night at 7:30

Sherbrooke Beaver's Coach Bruce Cline, said yesterday he will have six defensemen dressed for tomorrow night's encounter with the Cleveland Barons. The Barons of the American Hockey League were easily trounced 7-0 by the NHL league champion Montreal Canadiens last Tuesday night.

The game will get under way at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow night at the Sports Palace. Coach Cline said in a telephone interview Robidas, Tessier, Langlois, Dupuis, Foster and Haines will all see action on the blue line for the Beavers. Jacques Monette will start in nets for Sherbrooke.

Working center ice will be Dupuis, Bouchard and Bergeron. At right wing is Rene Pepin, Don Snider and Maurice Hurtubise. At left is Lafond, Sara-Bourneil and Lacoste, Robert, Desruisseaux and Lepage will most probably see action, also Jim Beckman is back in the lineup.

"In all probability," said Coach Cline, "I will use four lines." Coach Cline also hinted that Tremblay may also see some action in the Beavers' goal.

Bill Dupre is a doubtful starter. Dupre suffered a back injury in the Beavers' first exhibition game last Sunday night against the Kansas City Blues.

The Sherbrooke coach also mentioned that at a Senior Hockey League meeting, held last night in Chicoutimi, he would attempt to talk trade. Mr. Cline will not be back at Sherbrooke until late this afternoon.

Cleveland, although decisively beaten by the Blues, showed some good hockey during the second and first half of the third periods.

Likewise the Beavers who were beaten 4-0 by the Kansas City Blues last Sunday showed well for themselves. Sherbrooke, too, it must be remembered were without the services of a number of seasoned veterans. Tomorrow night the Beavers will have their best out to show local fans that this just could be another Allan Cup year.

Lefebvre's Tom Lucky favored in main dash Sunday, new stable here

A field of seven will go to the gate in the main pace on Sunday's card at the Sherbrooke Race Track. They will fight it out for a purse of $300. A trot for non-winners of $1,500 for 1968, with seven of the top steppers entered.

Ozarak Plutocrat, Delaway, Duke Crain, Tom Lucky, Beatie Mir, Martyn G. Herbert and Jimmy Fund will comprise the field and they will get away from the gate in the above manner. It should be a closely contested battle.

Peter Lancaster teaming Tom Lucky pulled a surprise last Sunday when he beat the classy field under the wire in 2:09. His effort will make him one of the favorites tomorrow. Beatie Mir, owned by Laurier St. Onge and Claude Grenier, pulled up in second spot nosing out Ernest Letourneau's Jimmy Fund. The field was clocked in 1:04.4 to the half and to finish in 2:09.

Peter Lancaster caught the field by surprise as he moved at the right after finding a hole near the top at the quarter. He remained well protected and then made his move on the back stretch before the field commenced to pull out.

Beatie Mir, Adios Mary Herbert and Duke Crain were the favorites last Sunday but Robert Jutras and Jimmy Fund along with Lancaster and the winner, Tom Lucky, upset the field. Claude Grenier, with Beatie Mir, managed to hold on to finish second but tomorrow Lancaster and Tom Lucky will be given special attention.

The trot which is listed as the eighth on the card has a well balanced group of horses with a couple of new starters in the class. J. P. Courchesne with Preferred Stock, who has drawn the fifth spot in the field, will be making his first start at the local oval.

Courchesne pulled in with his stable from Trois Rivieres this week and has three starters on the weekend card. Henri LePage with Hero Pick should be a strong favorite but strong opposition can be expected from the rest of the field.

Robert Jutras with Kory has the favored spot, the pole, with C. Chabot and Seguin's Boy along side. John Davis with Serenade has the third spot and he could be right in the thick of the fight. On Wednesday they won out over a good class in 2:11.2.

Hero Pick is next with Preferred Stock, Baron and Ray Bang filling the class. The outcome could be decided before the quarter depending on what horse, takes the front and how the others get placed. If Serenade gets in front the rest of the field may have a hard time overtaking him. Despite this Hero Pick should emerge the winner but Preferred Stock could upset the field.

Stamps still rely on aerial offensive

TORONTO (CP) — At the start of the football season, Jerry Williams, coach of Calgary Stampers of the Western Football Conference, said he was trying to develop a strong ground attack to complement his team's aerial offensive.

But with the season more than half gone, and the Stampers perched just half a game behind Saskatchewan Roughriders in the WFC standings, statistics indicate the Stamps are still living by the pass.

Figures released Monday by CFL headquarters show the West's top passer is Peter Liske of Calgary, and three of the four top receivers are Stampers.

In rushing totals, you have to go all the way down to seventh place to find a Calgary name.

Up to the end of Calgary's successful eastern swing, in which they knocked off Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders, Liske completed 154 of 262 pass attempts for 17 touchdowns. His completion percentage is 58.8 and his passing yardage is 2,570. This put him far ahead of Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan, who has completed 113 of 227 passes for nine touchdowns and 1,728 yards.

HIS FAVORITE TARGET

Terry Evanshen remains Liske's favorite target, having caught 44 passes for 706 yards and five touchdowns.

Ken Nielsen of Winnipeg Blue Bombers is second in this department with 42 receptions for 525 yards and five touchdowns.

Herm Harrison of Calgary is third with 39 receptions for 795 yards and Bob McCarthy of Calgary is fourth with 36 receptions for 589 yards.

George Reed of Saskatchewan remains the leading ground gainer with 666 yards on 141 carries. Tops for Calgary is Dave Cranmer with 342 yards on 88 carries.

Bob Kosid of Saskatchewan leads in interceptions with six.

Ted Gerela of British Columbia Lions is the top field goal kicker with 16 of 33, but Larry Robinson of Calgary tops the convert kickers with 27 of 31. Gerela, however, has a perfect convert percentage, being successful on all eight he has tried.

Practice sessions will be held at Watkins Glen on October 4 and 5 and the Grand Prix roars off at 2 p.m. on Sunday, October 6.

Both drivers practised in the Formula 1 cars at Monza, Italy, but were not allowed to race as they had competed at the Hooiser 100 miles within 24 hours of the Italian Grand Prix.

Action will be fast at the Glen as Graham Hill of Britain and Denis Hulme of New Zealand are tied for top honors in the Formula 1 World Championship.

Hulme is hot, having won the last two Grands Prix, the Italian and the Canadian, but Hill has always done well at Watkins Glen which is a very fast course.

In addition, $15,900 prize money is in the kitty, representing the largest purse in the history of road racing throughout

World Series outcome depends largely on Gibson and McLain

NEW YORK (AP) — More than anything else, the outcome of the 1968 World Series is likely to depend on the confrontations between ace pitchers Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals and Denny McLain of Detroit Tigers.

The two are virtually certain to meet in the first game in St. Louis next Wednesday. They will probably clash again in the fourth game, scheduled for Detroit, Sunday, Oct. 6. And, if there is a seventh game, there is little doubt they will pitch against each other a third time.

Statistically, through Monday's games, the Cards' staff has the edge over the Tigers'. St. Louis pitchers have compiled an over-all 2.44 earned-run average with 61 complete games and 29 shutouts. Detroit hurlers have combined for a 2.68 ERA, 59 complete games and 19 shutouts.

The Cards' advantage, though, seems to be more pronounced in the bullpen than among the starters. Lefty Joe Hoerner, 8-2, and right-hander Ron Willis, 2-3, give St. Louis a strong tandem.

The Cards' other relievers are Wayne Granger, 4-1, and Mel Nelson, 2-3. In addition, manager Red Schoendienst has Steve Carlton, 13-11, Larry Jaster, 9-13, and Dick Hughes, 2-2. Each was used mostly as a starter during the regular campaign, but is likely to see action only as a reliever in the series.

LACK EXPERIENCE

Except for Don McMahon, 3-1, and John Wyatt, 2-4, the Tigers' bullpen lacks experience. Pat Dobson, 5-6, and Fred Lasher, 5-1, are in their second year. Jon Warden, 4-1, and Daryl Patterson, 2-3, are rookies.

McMahon, John Hiller, of Scarborough, Ont., who is 9-6, and Joe Sparna, 10-10, will probably do most of the relieving. Sparna, who started in 30 of the 33 games in which he's appeared, is likely to be the long reliever.

The starting pitcher matchups figure to go this way:

First game—McLain, 31-6, against Gibson, 21-9.

Second game—Mickey Lolich, Detroit, 16-9, against Nelson Briles, St. Louis, 18-11.

Third game—Earl Wilson, Detroit, 13-12, against Ray Washburn, St. Louis, 13-7.

None among the Tigers' probable starters has series experience. Gibson, who won three games against Boston Red Sox last October, has an over-all 5-1 mark. Briles is 1-0 while Washburn worked 2-2-3 innings last year with no decision.

LEAN TOWARD GIBSON

There is a tendency to lean toward Gibson in his meetings with McLain because his fastball is more overpowering. The Tigers' star changes speeds more often.

Because McLain has worked more often than Gibson—43 games and 329 innings to 34 games and 295-2-3 innings—several of Denny's figures are more impressive from their won-lost records on down.

McLain has also more complete games, 28 to 26, and strikeouts, 276 to 257. Gibson leads in shutouts, 12 to 6; and earned-run average, 1.16 to 1.97.

In addition, the husky Cards' ace has yielded only 11 homers while McLain has given up 31.

Lolich had a 3.13 earned-run mark with eight complete games in 30 starts, 62 walks and 190 strikeouts.
